Representatives from many surrounding towns and cities are also scheduled to attend the reception, including Sherman, Denison and Gainesville. The local post of the American Legion has also announced it will have a welcome delegation on hand.

ONE DYING AFTER CROSSING ACCIDENT

By The Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 21.—George Turner, 24 years old, of Hope, Ark., was fatally injured and Ray Brock, 22, of Delight, Ark., incurred a broken left arm and bruises about the body when a southbound Cotton Belt motor car crashed into their automobile at Honoree crossing three miles north of Shreveport at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

According to Henry Nichols, motorman, the young men failed to respond to his warning signals and drove the automobile on the tracks. The automobile was struck broadside and demolished. Both men were thrown several feet and were rendered unconscious. Brock recovered a few moments later.

The injured men were placed aboard the motor car and brought here and transferred to the Highland sanitarium, attending physicians pronounced Turner to be in a dying condition. His skull was crushed and he was badly bruised about the body.

GEORGE VISITS LINCOLN HOME

Takes Great Interest in Log Cabin; Asks Many Questions

By The Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—The birthplace of Abraham Lincoln at Hodgenville, in western Kentucky, was visited today by David Lloyd George, the former British premier. Evidencing the greatest interest in the log cabin in which Lincoln is said to have been born and all land marks on the old farm, which is now a national park, the distinguished visitor trudged about the place and asked a running fire of questions concerning the early life of the man who is his ideal.

Mr. Lloyd George last week visited the tomb of the martyred president at Springfield, Illinois, and eagerly arranged to visit his birthplace during his week end stay here as the guest of Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal.

At Hodgensville Mr. Lloyd George was met by a crowd of several hundred Kentuckians, all of characteristic pre-revolutionary American stock who still live in a region but sparsely settled and who refer in conversations of the great president as "Abe."

Proceeding to the public square, the former premier stopped in front of the old court house to inspect the monument of Lincoln by Weinmann and was received by citizens and school children, the later singing "God Save the King", as the distinguished visitor stood before them bareheaded and then presenting him with flowers.

Over a rough country road Mr. Lloyd George from there went by automobile to the farm with its old log fence surrounding it and with several hundred residents from the vicinity about him, entered the granite memorial building to inspect the log house within. Carefully examining the small structure of logs and clary, built without the aid of nails, he peered through chinks in the wall, stood at the doorway to be photographed and then signed the visitors' register. From there he descended the elevation on which the memorial building stands, to a spring which half hidden in a rock cave, supplied water to the Lincoln family more than one hundred years ago. Later he walked about the farm, examining all objects of interest, even the old tree under which the boy Abraham is said to have played until eight years of age when his father moved to another section.

"LEAGUE" BOOK TO BE RELEASED BY PRINCETON U.

Hamilton Foley Has Compiled All Wilson's League Arguments

BOOK ISSUED MONDAY

The Title Is "Woodrow Wilson's Case For the League of Nations"

By The Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Woodrow Wilson's arguments for the league of nations, as explained by him in public addresses and in conferences, have been compiled and set down in complete form by Hamilton Foley in a book which will be issued by the Princeton university tomorrow. The work has been approved by the former president, who, in a letter to Mr. Foley, gives it his endorsement with the hope that it "will be of service to all who wish to understand the league of nations and the vital issues which arise in the attitude of the United States toward the league."

Mr. Foley, in a large measure, has chosen those excerpts from the war-time president's utterances that are intended to answer criticisms directed at the league. "Woodrow Wilson's Case for the League of Nations," is the title.

"Every word in this book," Mr. Foley points out in the foreword," is Mr. Wilson's own word, and all are here used in explanation of that detail of the subject in which he used them."

From stenographic minutes of a conference with senators in the White House in August 1919, and from the official record of 37 addresses to the public, Mr. Foley has extracted sentences and paragraphs, and put them together so that every argument Mr. Wilson advanced on any particular point has found its way into the book

Two Frenchmen Arrange a Duel After Squabble

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Storms proverbially are liable to arise in tea cups, but hitherto duels have seemed unlikely to be arranged as the outcome of an incident over the theater ticket tax. Yet, unless an eleventh-hour change occurs, the Duke Lanza de Camastra and Jacques Richepin, who is the husband of Cora Laparcerie, actress-theater manager, will meet tomorrow morning to settle an affair of honor of which the theater tax was the starting point.

The Duke de Camastra presented himself at the Cora Laparcerie theater with a coupon for a seat in a box. It had been given him by one of his friends. The ticket tax collector requested the duke to pay the government tax. The duke explained that he was an invited guest at the theater but the tax collector insisted on payment and eventually sent for M. Richepin in an endeavor to have him make the duke understand that the tax must be paid even on free tickets.

M. Richepin's efforts were wasted. The duke got riled and is said to have characterized Richepin as a low blackguard. This was too much for Richepin and his right hand shot out and smoke the ducal cheek before the ducal cane could ward off the blow. The usual rapid exchange of cards followed, seconds were named and arrangements for a duel tomorrow near Pearis were made.

Car Racer Plunges Into Crowd at Fair

One Is Killed and Another May Not Live; Injured Number Ten; Driver Uninjured.

By The Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 21.—Erwin Thomas Adams, 12 years old, of Waskom, Texas, was killed and ten other persons were injured, one probably fatally, when a racing car driven by Max Markmann of Chicago crashed through the fence at the turn into the back stretch at the east end of the track at the end of the first of Sunday afternoon's state fair auto race program. Markmann was not injured.

Those injured:

Albert Nichols, 16, Oil City.

The Adams boy was killed instantly, his neck being broken and skull fractured. He was picked up by one of the crowd and carried to the emergency hospital where all the injured received first aid treatment by half a dozen doctors who rushed from the grandstand when the extent of the accident became known, before being sent to hospitals.

Albert Nichols was thought to have been killed but revived on the way to the emergency hospital. None of the injured knew what had hit them until they reached the dressing station and McLaughlin was still in a semi-conscious condition when he reached the charity hospital.

The accident was the first fatality in the 18 years of the fair's history and the 10 years in which automobile races have been a feature of the fair program.

The Scientific American Calls Her Mystic Writing a Fraud

United Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The mystic hardwriting of the spirits conjured up by the Cleveland medium, Mrs. Josie K. Stewart, was a fraud, according to announcement of the Scientific American magazine board before which she performed.

The fraud was detected, the board said, by changing the sizes of paper cards upon which the mystic writing was inscribed.

The board charged that Mrs. Stewart stole five cards at her first unsuccessful seance and substituted these cards for those blank cards given her before her "successful" seance. The sizes of the cards were different.

Therefore, the board stated, Mrs. Stewart is not entitled to the prize offered by the Scientific American for proof of spirit communication.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Arriving here from New York early today, Mrs. Josie K. Stewart learned that she is not to receive the $2,500 prize offered by the Scientific American for an authentic demonstration of spirit writing.

She flatly denied charges of J. Malcolm Bird, head of the investigating committee that she had substituted her own cards bearing the writing for the black ones furnished by the investigatorg.

"I will go before a notary public and swear I had nothing to do with changing the cards, if they were changed," she avered.

C. W. Stewart, her husband, read the committee's report and declared he would bring suit against the publication for "malicious libel."

THEATRES PLAY TO BIG HOUSES

Managers Are Again Arrested But Report Large Audiences

Despite the fact that charges were made last week in county court and yesterday in city court against managers and operators of Wichita Falls theaters running on Sunday, two city theaters were in operation all day yesterday with large crowds in attendance. Last Sunday the theaters were closed by county officers.

Packed houses were played to both afternoon and night, according to the managements of these two houses. Even the second evening show was given before a full house, it was stated late last night at the Strand. Several hundred people were turned away because of scarcity of seating room, said Manager Ford last night in regard to the business of the day for the Olympic theater. Congratulations for success were coming in all day from many sources, further stated Mr. Ford.

City officials took the lead in the case yesterday when they hailed the managers and operators of the two theaters to court, where bond was immediately made. Summons was given to appear this morning. County officials checked up on the situation yesterday also, but made no further charges or arrests.

COOMBS GUILTY; GETS FIVE YEARS

By The Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 21.—J. L. Coombs was found guilty of the murder of W. A. Matthews, prominent lumber man of this city, and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in the verdict rendered this afternoon in circuit court by the jury which had deliberated since last midnight. The court, in instructing the jury, declared the evidence justified consideration of all degrees of homicide in arriving at a verdict.

The killing of Matthews last August, followed an argument over the sale of timber to him by Coombs, who operated a saw mill near here.

WAITE TO PROBE DIPLOMA MILL

Noted Medical Examiner Into Missouri Fake Diploma Case

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—Dr. Frank O. Waite of Cleveland, noted examiner of medical conditions, arrived here today and conferred with representatives of the state board of health, the State Medical association, medical deans of Washington, St. Louis and Missouri universities in regard to instituting an inquiry into the Missouri medical standards.

Demand for the inquiry arose last week following the disclosure by a reporter of a local newspaper that he purchased a medical diploma from a group of doctors in Kansas City and St. Louis for $1,200.

Three of the doctors have been arrested and another has confessed to participating in the operation of a diploma mill in the state.

During the conference the scope and necessity of the investigation were imparted to Dr. Waite, who was invited to make the survey. He said, however, that before he could undertake the investigation he would have to obtain a leave of absence from Dr. R. E. Vinson, president of Western Reserve university, with which he is connected.

The Missouri medical authorities then sent a telegram to Dr. Vinson asking him to lend Dr. Waite to Missouri for a period long enough to make a thorough investigation of the situation.

After the conference Dr. Waite departed for Cleveland.

GOVERNORS ON WAY BACK WITH DRY-UP PLEDGE

Each Will Call Two Conferences to Enforce Prohibition Law

CO-ORDINANCE NEEDED

Finchot Tells How Government Can Almost Attain Enforcement

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Formulation of prohibition enforcement program by the various states will come as the next step in the campaign of the federal government to make the dry laws more effective.

Governors of more than two-thirds of the states of the union who attended the conference here with President Coolidge yesterday on enforcement of the narcotic and prohibition laws, left for their homes today pledged to call two kinds of conferences. One will include municipal, county and state officials, while the other will embrace the prosecuting attorneys of the counties of the various states.

The proposal for the conferences was adopted by the governors along with other plans providing for co-ordination of all federal, state, county and municipal enforcement forces and co-operation of the federal officials in the formulation of the state enforcement programs. In line with the proposals all federal enforcement officials will be directed by the president to lend all assistance in promoting the conference.

Executives favorable to prohibition predicted that the governors' conference would result in better enforcement. Those inclined to the opposite view, however, frankly declared they could not see how the conference could do much, if anything, to stop liquor drinking, sale or manufacture.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, in a statement issued here today suggested a system of permits under the internal revenue law which he said "would put an end to the larger part of our troubles."

"The request of the president for co-operation," made to the governors yesterday, said Governor Pinchot, "will be most cordially met in Pennsylvania."

Gray was dazed by the blow and suffered a gash on the forehead. County officers say that Gray is not in a serious condition. No date has been set for Gray's electrocution.

Burl Kemp, negro will be tried on the same murder charge and selection of a jury from a panel of 100 will be started Monday.

12 ARTICLES TO IMPEACH NAMED

If One Is Sustained Trapp to Be Governor By Midnight—Predicted

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 22 Today Oklahoma City will hear its governor, Jack C. Walton, accused by the investigating committee of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature of corruption in office, incompetency and offenses involving moral turpitude.

Twelve articles of impeachment will be reported to the house by the Disney-Tolbert committee when the lower body of the legislature meets at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The articles will allege corruption in office; incompetency and offenses involving moral turpitude, so the committee announced Sunday. Additional indictments will be returned two days later in a supplemental bill, W. B. Disney of Muskogee, chairman of the committee stated.

Should any one of the 12 counts be sustained, members of the investigating body predict, M. E. Trapp, lieutenant governor, will become acting governor by midnight. Balloting in the house will begin Monday night or early Tuesday, they point out, and declare their prediction is based on precedents in other states where governors were suspended from office after the house sustained impeachment charges. They specifically allude to the supreme court in the impeachment of Governor Sulzer of New York.

The senate will be prepared to take up the impeachment, should any of the charges be sustained within two days of the final vote in the house, upper house leaders say. Legislators believe the final verdict in the case will be reached within 10 days.

Persistent rumors that Governor Walton would resign before the investigating committee met this afternoon, met with repeated denials from the executive mansion that the governor contemplated such a move.

E. W. Marland, millionaire oil man of Ponca City, was to testify before a sub-committee at Ponca City Sunday night.

Marlan was to be asked to explain certain contributions to the Walton campaign fund, and the relationship, if any, he had with the alleged disposal of $30,000 worth of notes sold in connection with the purchase of the Walton mansion in one of the exclusive residential districts of the city.

Separatists Declare A Rhenish Republic

City Hall, Buildings and Police Departments Taken Over; No Bloodshed; Belgians in favor of Move

By The Associated Press.

AIX LA CHAPELLE, Oct. 21.—The Separatists, led by Dr. Gurthardt and Leo Deckers, proclaimed a Rhineland republic here today. Not a drop of blood was shed, although the separatists took possession of the city hall and various public buildings and control of the police reserves. The regular police ranged themselves on the side of the republic.

Having experienced no opposition here, the separatist leaders decided to proceed with the taking over of other towns, leaving Aix La Chapelle in charged of a few picked men, to watch that the police kept their promise to support the republic.

As an additional precaution however, the police who were allowed to retain their arms upon promising allegiance to the republic early in the day, were disarmed tonight, but were allowed to remain on duty.

Separatist night riders left this evening aboard a fleet of touring cars and trucks for Munchen-Gladbach, which they expect to reach at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning. After proclaiming a republic there, they will continue on to Crefeld and Bonn and then go further up to unfurl their flag at Coblenz, Mayence and other cities.

Deckers informed the Associated Press correspondent that he planned to have all the cities in the French and Belgian areas plus Elberfeld and Barmen in the unoccupied territory in the hands of the republicans within five days.

"From tomorrow," he said, "German paper marks will be considered foreign money. We plan within the next few days to issue a new currency to be called the Rhenish franc, on a par with the French gold franc and secured by mortgages on all republic buildings occupied, at least until we can establish a permanent gold reserve."

Deckers said that the new francs would probably be printed in Brussels or Paris. Asked about Cologne, he said he advised a getegation from Cologne today to do nothing yet, but to wait and see how things went in the French and Belgian areas. After the republic began functioning normally, he expected all the towns in the British zone would apply for admission.

Deckers declared that he had no thought of stealing a march on Joseph S. Matthes, in order to get glory for himself. They all had the same aims, he explained, and personally he wanted to get back to business without delay. He declared that he had worked for a republic as the only thing that could create stable conditions for his business.

Speaking of future plans, the separatist leader said that for the time being a local executive council would administer government affairs in each town occupied. It was recognized that the leaders would assume a sort of dictatorial position, but as soon as the machinery of the government was oiled, free elections no doubt would be held for president and other officials. The government system will be modelled somewhat along American lines.

JOHN COWAN IS FOUND IN FIELD BADLY WOUNDED

Shooting Took Place Near Iowa Park on Farm of Albert Johnson

MEN AND GIRLS HELD

Owner of Farm Not Arrested After Shooting Is Explained

John Cowan, who was found last night in a field near Albert Johnson's home, north of Iowa Park, died here in the General hospital at 12:45 o'clock this morning. Fourteen bullets are said to have entered his body, some penetrating the brain.

John Cowan, of Clara, is not expected to live, and Hubb Lay, of Wichita Falls, is seriously wounded as the result of a gun battle late Saturday night at a farm house northwest of Iowa Park, belonging to Albert Johnson. Seven others were being held last night, five of whom are women.

According to Johnson's story, he had been warned by a neighbor that a party was headed in that direction, and he took a position behind an out house. He opened fire, he said, with a double-barrel shotgun loaded with No. 2 shot.

His fire was returned, Johnson said, by pistols, but doing no damage. By the time Johnson had exhausted four rounds of ammunition, he said, the party started to flee.

Cowan was found in a nearby field by Johnson and Constable John Turkett and City Marshall Hamp Love of Iowa Park, who were called to the scene by Johnson. He was located by his groans while lying in the field. The others got away in their car and were brought to Wichita Falls yesterday morning by Sheriff Murphy, where they are being held. Charges will be filed this morning against the entire party, according to Murphy.

The party was composed of four men and five women.

According to the story told by those being held, they had started on a chicken roast, having stopped at a store and bought pickles, bread and other accessories. They then started toward the Johnson place.

The neighborhood has been subjected to a number of chicken thefts recently and according to Johnson, he had lost about four hundred chickens as a result. A neighbor phoned him that a car bearing a party of people had been seen headed in that direction, whereupon Johnson got ready, he told Murphy. Mrs. Johnson said that the clock struck 11 just as she had started to call her husband into the house, and immediately the firing started.

According to Johnson, there were about 15 shots fired, including the four shots fired by himself. A lead bullet, which Sheriff Murphy dug out of the side of the outhouse, was about the size in a .44 or .45 calibre pistol. A pistol was found beside Cowan, which was of .38 calibre.

Cowan was taken to Iowa Park and later sent here, he being now in the General hospital. According to attending physicians, he was struck by 14 buckshots, six entering the face and head, two penetrating to the brain, while the remainder lodged in the lungs and stomach. Hubb Lay was brought here to the General hospital yesterday morning when Sheriff Murphy brought the whole party in. He is suffering from four shots in the region of the right eye, a shot in the shoulder, and other flesh wounds.

Those being held here in connection with the shooting are as follows: Hubb Lay, John Cowan, Tom Ashley, Wichita Falls; Mrs. Tom Ashley, Wichita Falls; Olena Ashley, Wichita Falls; Barney Sims, Wichita Falls; Lillian Cowan, Clara; Octavia Baker, Wichita Falls; Minnie Mann, who lives east of Burkburnett, was released after making a statement to the sheriff.

Johnson was not arrested.

HERE IS A CHANCE TO SEE SOMETHING

Sheriff Pat Murphy, any of his deputies, or anybody in the constable's department who wishes to fire a pistol point blank at a man, will have a chance to do so today.

Ben Schuster and Pat Woods of the Bullet-Proof Vest corporation of New York are in town, and announce they will allow anybody to fire a bullet at them from any size or make of a pistol, and will hand back the bullet to the shooter, flattened out like a nickel.

The demonstration for the county and constable departments is expected to take place at the court house about 9:30, and later in the day the police department will be allowed to take a shot at the bullet-proof vests.

Kansas City Blues Take 6th From Orioles

BUNCH HITS AND PROFIT BY BONES AND BASES ON BALLS; NEED 1 MORE TO COP SERIES

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Bunching their hits and aided by errors and bases on balls, the Kansas City American association team had little trouble drubbing the Baltimore Internationals in the sixth game of the little world's series here this afternoon, 12 to 5. This gives Kansas City four wins against two for Baltimore and means that the Blues have to win only one game in the remaining three to take the minor league title.

Lefty Groves, Baltimore's strikeout king, started on the rubber for the Orioles and walked four of the first five men to face him, forcing in a run. Hammond drove in two more with a single to right and Ogden was rushed to the rescue. Score:

2 WESTERNERS CONSIDERED OUT

Four Other Western Conference Teams Have Come Out Victorious

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Four western conference teams emerged from Saturday's gridiron contest with their records unscathed, while two other teams which had been regarded as Big Ten championship contenders, were virtually eliminated.

Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Chicago are tied at the end of the second week of conference competition with one each and no defeats. Illinois shattered most of Iowa's hopes of championship honors yesterday, while Michigan's trouncing of Ohio State left the Buckeyes with chances for first honors lessened.

While Michigan and Illinois have demonstrated the most strength to date, Wisconsin has developed by leaps and strides since opening its season two week's ago and demonstrated its strength yesterday by smothering Indiana, 52 to 0 in its first conference contest. Chicago, which also engaged in its first Big Ten game, fought a hard battle to defeat Northwestern 13 to 0. Illinois' 9 to 6 victory over Iowa was probably the most sensational conference contest of the day. The Illini, who have shown shown its strength on offensive play in non-conference contests, exhibited a marvelous defense against Iowa when the game seemed slipping from its grasp and the Hawkeyes were tasting what seemed almost certain victory.

Michigan played true to dope in winning from Ohio State 23 to 0 by launching an aerial attack that dazed the Buckeyes and left them almost helpless at times.

Wisconsin's 52 to 0 victory over Indiana was a surprise even to Wisconsin fans and showed a great development of the Badgers in the last week.

GOVERNORS ON "LEAGUE" BOOK

under the heading of the subject under discussion.

Also there have been appended the covenant of the league; copies of cablegrams from William H. Taft and Elihu Root addressed to Mr. Wilson in Paris and which suggested changes in certain portions of the text (which, it is pointed out, subsequently were adopted); two addresses the former president delivered before the peace conference in Paris, and an interpretation of article X.

The first chapter in the book is devoted to the causes, as set forth by Mr. Wilson of the world war, and the second to a review of the treaty of Versailles of which the league covenant is a part. It is not until the third chapter, under the heading, "The League of Nations," that Mr. Wilson's answers to his critics and his arguments for the document he played an important part in framing, are set forth.

At the outset in that chapter is an explanation of the two bodies of the league; the council and the assembly, and it is emphasized that the council of which he intended the United States to become a member, is the only real power in the body, and without an unanimous vote, to obtain which America's ballot would be necessary, there could be no decision rendered by the league. It is back to this point that many of the arguments revert and therein, Mr. Wilson points out, is the only thing that seems to be weak about the league. "I am afraid that a unanimous vote will sometimes be difficult to get." Then they are set forth all points considered by Mr. Wilson as assets in the obtaining of world peace.

Mr. Wilson's comment on other articles in the league and on other objections to its provisions also are contained in this chapter. These items include dissertations on international law, secret treaties, secession of German rights in Shantung and quotations from eminent republicans purporting to show that they were in sympathy with the league's objects.

The final chapter of the book is devoted to "America and World Problems," and tells the former president's view on what he considers the nation's duty to the world. His assertions that American isolation is impossible and that opponents of the league have no other constructive plan to offer are summed up in this section.

The cablegrams from Mr. Taft and Mr. Root in an appendix to the book, asked chiefly for reservations or additions to the sections of the original covenant dealing with the Monroe doctrine, domestic policies, Japanese immigration, limitation of armament, permanent court of arbitration, international law and rights to withdraw from the league.

"A comparison of the suggestions made by Mr. Taft and Mr. Root, with the covenant as it stands today," comments Mr. Foley, "will prove that it was adopted in its final form by all the nations represented at the Paris peace conference and before he submitted it to the United States senate, President Wilson succeeded in having written into it practically every suggestion made by Mr. Taft and Mr. Root, either in the language they proposed or interms that very specifically provide for the matters they wish made definite."

not discussed the practical details of how to enforce the law, I venture, in pursuance of the president's suggestion to point out concretely how in my opinion the sources of illegal domestic liquor can be dried up.

"If the federal government would write into each of its permits to manufacture, transport, store, or utilize alcoholic liquids, certain simple conditions, it would make law breaking so difficult as to be practically impossible under anything short of actual collusion between law breakers and the enforcement officers.

"The provisions intended to prevent tax dodging which were written into the internal revenue law re-enacted on November 23, 1921, which re-enactment was sustained by the supreme court, supply in detail nearly every condition necessary to be embodied in a permit in order to bring the sources of illegal liquor under control. Necessary additions can easily be supplied.

"Among the conditions should be—revocation of the permit when the permittee is caught violating the law—supervision of manufacture and access to all parts of the plant day or night by state and national enforcement officers—products to be shipped only at specified times and only after inspection and stamping at the plant.

"The main sources of the present flood of the illicit drink are breweries, alcohol producing plants, liquor in bond, and smuggling. Smuggling can be dealt with only by the national government. It is a problem by itself. Breweries and alcohol producing plants cannot operate or deliver their products except under federal permit, while liquor in bond is wholly controlled as to safe keeping, transportation and release by federal permits. In the matter of permits the federal government as Commissioner Haas Wall said is solely responsible, and the states cannot help.

"I do not suggest that Pennsylvania or any other state should be relieved of any part of its duty in law enforcement, but the states should not be compelled to pick up the bird shot scattered all over the floor by the failure of the federal government to check the flood of illegal liquor at its source."

MYSTERIOUS FIRE THREATENS TOWN

By The Associated Press.

QUITMAN, Ga., Oct. 21.—Fire that broke out in three different parts of Quitman at 1:40 o'clock this morning, and believed to have been incendiary, caused more than $100,000 loss.

Fire companies that made a fast run here from Valdosta, 20 miles away, and heroic work on the part of the local fire fighters saved the city.

Robberies that have been reported during the afternoon and night from all parts of the city, appear to confirm the theory here that robbers caused the fires.

Several attempts were made to open safes in offices and business houses, it was reported.

A cotton gin, five business building and several small houses were destroyed by the fire. The first blaze was discovered in a machine shop and while firemen were fighting it, an alarm sounded in another section of the city.

Four buildings burned in this blaze. The third fire was a cotton gin.

There was no casualty. Authorities are investigating the origin of the conflagration tonight, but as yet have made no arrests.

SPORTS through the Edgren EYES

By Robert Edgren

In his first fight with Beckett, heavyweight champion of England, Georges Carpentier scored the knockout in seventy-five seconds. Next time Carpentier knocked Beckett out in fifteen seconds. If they ever fight again Beckett will be knocked out before he enters the ring.

When Carpentier came here to fight Dempsey I met many of the English sportsmen who crossed to see the battle. They were all betting wildly on Carpentier. One, who had put up ten thousand dollars on Carpentier, taking two to one for his money, asked me what I thought of the wager.

"You're throwing away your money" I said.

"Carpentier will knock Dempsey out down and Georges got up and knocked him out.

The second time they met Carpentier ran across the ring at Wells and knocked him out with the first punch. He knocked Beckett out the same way. Wells and Beckett were English heavy-weight champions. For a century or so England was the one great boxing country of the world, and English champions were supposed to be invincible. When a Frenchman could go to England and knock out the English champions in a few seconds each it's no wonder the English thought him invincible.

England Woefully Lacking in Good, Big Boxers.

I've often wondered why England can't produce a good heavyweight. There are at least twenty heavyweights in this country who could go to England and beat any English heavyweight of the last quarter-century.

England isn't a country where men lack gameness. There were no grittier soldiers in the world war than the English. English armies were annihilated, but they never were whipped. So it isn't a matter of courage. As for athletic ability, the English this year are developing Olympic material that will make a better showing in the coming Olympic games than any British team has made since the meet at Athens in 1896. England always has splendid distance runners. Good men are showing up in the weights and other field events. The athletic material is there.

In Wilde, Driscoll, Wells, Moran, Bowker and a lot of others, England developed world beating little boxers. But there hasn't been a fairly good middleweight or heavyweight in England since Charlie Mitchell's time. the big, strong fellows had no fighting brains, and the men with fighting brains had no endurance. They've always lacked something. Yet there are plenty of good, tall, strong fellows in England, especially among the thousands of football teams. Some of them should make good boxers.

Perhaps the trouble is that for many years in England a heavyweight boxer has been looked upon as somewhat of a bully, following the ancient traditions of Figg and Broughton and Slack and all the rest who were sluggers and hangers on for noblemen and wealthy men who wanted to carry around bullies to do the fighting when they got into mischief. Small boxers are of a different class. The big men, looked upon as bullies, didn't have the same incentive to work and study and strain. Most of them hang out at ale houses, fight in cheap clubs and take no care of themselves between bouts.

In America, today, boxers who get into the championship class live like the athletes of ancient Greece, who were barred from competition for life if they broke training during preparation for an Olympic meet. Being a champion is a big-money profession, and a champion is a successful man of affairs, not a bully or a hanger-on for anyone. When that idea penetrates England they'll begin to turn out champions instead of men whose ambition is to leave the ring with enough coin and reputation to run an ale house in some country town.

America Holds All Ring Titles

This is the first time in many years when all the ring titles stayed in the United States. Jimmy Wilde of England, original flyweight champion beat all contenders for several years and would have been champion still but for his age. Freddy Welsh won the lightweight title from Ritchie in England. Jem Bowker won the bantamweight title from Frankie Neil in London before that. No championship above the lightweight has been held in England for a generation back.

Georges Carpentier took one world's championship back to France when he knocked out Battling Levinsky here. Eugene Criqui won a world title when he knocked out Johnny Kilbane. But quickly lost it to Dundee. Charlie Ledoux gave Kid Williams a hard fight for the bantam honors but lost. Aside from those few no invaders have made any disturbance among the American ring champions of late.

The only ring title held in America that is in doubt at present is the light-heavyweight won from Battling Siki. McTigue hardly measures up to championship class. It doesn't seem reasonable that Siki could have retained his title—fighting an Irishman in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day, with the ring surrounded by armed Irish soldiers and Irish bombs exploding in the next square. Perhaps Siki didn't dare try to win.

M'CALLUM OFF TO PLAN GAME

Is Driving to Austin to Arrange Play-off For Championship

Coach "Buddy" McCallum left early yesterday morning for Austin, where he will go into the matter of the approaching play-off for championship honors between the Coyotes and the winner of the Vernon-Quanah game Friday. McCallum is driving through and will stop over at Fort Worth and Dallas to see friends, he stated yesterday.

Regarding the place chosen for the play-off game, which will decide who will represent the north of district No. 4, in the elimination race, the Wichita Falls' mentor stated that it did not particularly matter if the game could not be played here, intimating the Coyotes could play as good football away from home as at home. However, he will not overlook an opportunity should one arise that might warrant the playing of the game here or on neutral territory, he said. The rules in regard to further matching of games will be one of his chief objects at Austin.

Harvard university, according to dope radioed from the east, is pulling some deep secret stuff. It seems that the Crimsonites have a brilliant backfield star, whose identity they have kept a secret. However, he will be suddenly and unexpectedly uncovered in one of the important games on the Harvard sked and then let the enemy beware. Sounds like a movie thriller doesn't it?

Maxie Marston, the new amateur golf champion is alleged to have pulled the following in a recent conversation "Half the secret of success in golf is putting. The whole secret is hitting the ball straight and true with whatever club one uses." Maxie certainly has a well defined sense of humor all right.

The two H's, Heilmann and Hornsby, took the 1923 swatting honors in the major leagues with little difficulty, the former closing with a percentage of .402 and the latter with .384. As strange as it may seem, Heilmann's mark was not as high as that set by George Sisler last year while Hornsby was 17 points below his 1922 average.

Seems strange to see the Middlebury eleven tie the Crimson warriors, 6 and 6. Time was when a squad the class of Middlebury would be easy picking for Yale's ancient rival. However, times change on the gridiron the same as other places. Let's see—what was it that that famous little Center college, from Danville, Ky., did a couple of years ago?

The most important sale in the field of the light harness horse in recent years was the deal consummated recently when Peter Manning, 1:56 3-4, world's champion trotter, was sold to W. R. Neill, Memphis, Tenn., and Frank E. Lalley of Bridgeport, Conn., for the tidy sum of $50,000. Neill is a nephew of the famous Pop Geers, who will hereafter handle Peter Manning in all his engagements. The brilliant son of Azoff will be used for exhibition purposes only. This sale is the largest of its kind since Stoughton Fletcher, the former Indiana banker, paid W. E. D. Stokes $50,000 for the peerless sire, Peter the Great.

Since so much has been written lately about those English girls who are showing such skill as jockeys, we are beginning to find out something about American girls who are equally as skillful. The latest "finds" are Miss Margaret Bingham, 17, and Miss Mary Manoway, 13, of Logansport, Ind. They have been riding the runners at the county fairs in northern Indiana this year with signal success.

Norman Ross of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, and national all-around swimming champion of 1921, will winter in Honolulu, spending a lot of time, no doubt, on the famous beach at Wa Ki Ki. It is his intention to train again in an endeavor to regain his old speed and try for the Olympic 1,500-meter swim at Paris next summer. It is pertinent to mention that none of our middle-distance men has touched Ross' record for this distance so far.

The great and only Bambino Ruth, who shone so brilliantly at times in the world's series recently ended, with home runs and who also struck out a time or two with the bases loaded, came to bat 17 times in the 1922 series, making but two hits, which yielded him a percentage of .118. How different his 1923 work!

FENGLER WINS K. C. AUTO RACE

Beats Last Record on Track By Milton With 113.2 Average

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21.—Harlan Fengler, a home boy in a Kansas City made car, thundered to victory today in the 250-mile national championship motor race here, breaking all time records here on the speedway and winning $3,000 in prize money.

Eddie Hearne was second, Jimmy Murphy third, and others finished in the following order:

Fengler, whose average of 113.2 miles per hour today eclipsed that of 108 miles per hour made last year by Milton, drove his own race from the first and worked his car for every bit of speed he could get out of it. The audience paid little attention to him after the first few laps as a gripping battle between Earl Cooper, Tommy Milton and Jimmy Murphy took all of its attention.

NO MORE LEAGUE PARKS FOR BOUTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Orders prohibiting the use of American league baseball parks for boxing, issued by President Ban Johnson, probably will be ratified at the winter meeting of the club owners.

No action to stop the use of National league parks for fights has been taken yet, according to President John A. Heydler.

BURK ALL-STARS LOSE TO WALTERS

BURKBURNETT, Tex., Oct. 21.—The Burkburnett All-Stars were defeated by the Walters A—Stars here this afternoon, 9 to 6, in a hotly contested game. It was a battle at all times between these rivals, neither side having the game until the last whistle.

Gleason, Burkburnett tackle, was forced out of the game with three ribs broken, this being the only serious injury of the hard fought game

SATURDAY'S TIE WAS A FEATURE

Out-Come of Kansas-Nebraska Game Was a Surprise

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—The great showing of Kansas in holding Nebraska to a scoreless tie Saturday and Oklahoma's overwhelming defeat of Washington university were the outstanding features of the second week of the Missouri Valley conference race.

For the first time since 1916 the Jayhawkers held Nebraska and Kansas looked upon the scoreless result at Lincoln as a victory. The Cornhuskers outplayed their opponents, the record shows, but Kansas developed an impregnable defense when danger neared. Closing three decades of competition between the two universities the record stands 19 victories for Nebraska against nine for Kansas with two ties.

Oklahoma, which went down before Nebraska a week ago, 24 to 0, came back Saturday and tumbled the invading warriors of Washington university, 61 to 7.

Iowa State wtih a 2 to 0 victory over Missouri, found a formidable opponent in the Kansas Aggies making their first conference start, pulled out with a 7 to 7 tie.

The valley witnessed another tie game and scoreless at that, in the battle at St. Louis between Missouri and St. Louis university, a non-conference institution. Missouri could not deliver the final punch in three line plunges on the St. Louis one yard line and missed three attempts at field goals.

SISLER MANAGER OF THE BROWNS

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—George Sisler, who was adjudged the most valuable player in the American league in 1922 and who was unable to play his position at first base this year on account of eye trouble, has been appointed manager of the St. Louis Americans, according to an announcement by Bill Friel, business manager for the club.

In making the announcement, Friel declared that Sisler has signed a contract to manage the team but that no details, such as salary or length of time, have been decided upon yet. Friel stated, however, that Sisler's salary as manager would depend upon whether he would be able to play and act as manager at the same time or would be forced to direct the team from the bench.

TEXAS VICTORY DOPE UPSETTER

By The Associated Press.

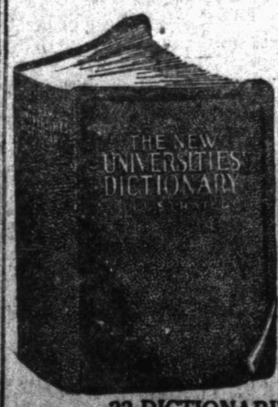

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—Vanderbilt's unexpected defeat by Texas university in one of Saturday's two intersectional games constituted the only important deviation from the dope sheet on the week-end gridiron contest in the south. The Commodores, after holding Michigan last week to threes scant points, were regarded as certain to surpass the Texans. They failed, however, 16 to 0, and only in the opening quarter did they threaten the Texans' goal.

SOUTHERN G.O.P. TO DEFY RULING

Will Elect Delegates As in Past on 2 to 1 Ratio

B. N. TIMMONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Southern Republicans will defy the ruling of the Republican National committee which is intended to reduce their representation in the next national convention.

This became known here today after the visit of several national committee members who have filed protests against the rule which they say penalizes them because their states vote Democratic, not only by cutting down their convention strength, but doubly because the Republican states of the north and east are rewarded with two additional delegates at large.

The rule promulgated several weeks ago, under authority granted the national committee at the 1920 convention, was conceived rather as a means to eliminate the recurrent scandals in connection with selection and seating of negro delegations from some of the states of the south. Now it appears the plan will fall short of the purpose, and it is feared the effort to enforce it will have harmful effect in the general elections, in states where there is a large negro vote.

States like Mississipni, Alabama, and Georgia, which suffer the largest delegate losses under the new order, have served notice that they will disregard the call, but will elect their delegates as they have in the past on the ratio of two delegates for each senator, and each representative, the state has in congress, and that they will carry their fight for credentials to the floor of the convention.

Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro committeeman from Georgia, who has long been a thorn in the side of the national Republican organization, is taking the lead in mixing war medicine for white leaders in the next convention. The plan adopted for the contest is not only to demand the seating of the number of delegates allowed under the old order of apportionment, but to demand that northern states which benefit under the new rule shall not have seated the additional delegates at large which have been allotted them. At the same time, resentful of the attempt to squeeze them out, negroes are going to make the fight to pack Southern state delegations wherever they may control.

The demand for recognition on the part of negro Republicans is likely to cause an upset in states like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, all of which contain a large negro Republican vote, and in all of which there exists a considerable unrest.

As a part of the embarrassment which is coming in the demand made on Ohio leaders, who are in prominence in the federal administration, that negroes be given two of the delegate-at-large places. The same demand, it is said, will be made in Indiana, and Illinois, and it is understood the negro leaders making it will seek to reserve for district decision the matter of sharing in the makeup of district delegations where there is a sizeable colored vote.

The apportionment rule of the Republican National Committee which is causing the trouble, abandoned the old order of fixed representation, and places penalty on the southern states by denying any delegate to a district which did not cast more than 2,500 Republican votes, and allows only one to a district which did not cast more than 10,000 Republican votes at the last preceding election. A further provision is to reward Republican states, by granting two additional delegates at-large to states which cast, at the last preceding national election, its electoral vote for the Republican candidate for president.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

A Backyard Hallowe'en Party

"Shall we have the Hallowe'en party in the house or in the barn?" Natalie Clipper asked her friend Betty Cut-out.

"Let's have it in the backyard!" Betty cried. "There's a high picket fence all around, and over the gate we can build a big arch with pumpkin faces glaring down."

"Just the thing," Natalie agreed. Together they ran to the backyard to plan just how it would be.

If you want to have a regular Hallowe'en party for your Cut-outs, here's the way to make a yard to give it in. Take a hat box and cut the top in points as in the picture above. Cut an open place in one corner for the gate. Tomorrow you will see how to make the arch above it, and on the following days will appear a witch's cavern, a grab bag, a cat with a broken tail and other amusements for the party.

NURSE AGENCIES TO PAY TAXES

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 21.—Nurses' employment bureaus, in every city of Texas, Saturday entered agreement with the state labor department, approved by the attorney general, under which they are brought under provisions of the state employment agency law passed this year. Representatives of every nurses' registry in the state were here, and signified willingness to come under the regulations, in line with the attorney general's ruling that they are subject to the law.

Fees of nurse registry bureaus will not be reduced under the agreement, but each agency will pay the $150 annual tax, one-fourth of which goes into the school fund and three-fourths to enforcement fund of labor laws. Labor Commissioned J. S. Myers stated that his distribution of harvest labor program has been conducted on the funds from employment agency licenses.

The nurse agencies are not maintained on a commercial basis, but not for the cooperative benefit of nurses, it was pointed out, and fees charged are only for paying expenses of maintaining registries. Because of this, there was doubt until the attorney general gave a formal ruling, that they were subject to the employment agency law.

Leakage Losses

R. A. Catte, natural gas engineer of the department of the interior, attached to the Bartlesville, Oklahoma, experiment station of the bureau of mines, is conducting actual field tests in a study of the leakage of natural gas in transmission systems. The purpose of this work is to obtain authentic information that will be helpful to gas companies in increasing the efficiency of their natural gas transmission systems. The first part of the work consisted of the installation of a specially designed system of piping for the study of the flow of natural gas and air through small orifices and through various kinds of leaks. Both gas and air determinations have been made under a number of different conditions.

During the coming months this work will be extended to include leakage surveys of several natural gas pipe lines. Various natural gas companies and the Natural Gas association of America are cooperating in this work.

Crude Oil Survey

The purpose of the crude oil survey being conducted by the department of the interior at the Bartlesville, Okla., experiment station of the bureau of mines is to analyze crude oils from every field of commercial importance in the United States and foreign countries and to publish the results. The value of this work lies chiefly in the methods in which the analyses are made, every oil being run in a similar manner so that the analyses of the various oils are comparable. Thus a Pennsylvania crude oil, for example, may be compared with a Rocky mountain crude or with a crude from Egypt. All fields in the United States, excepting the Californian fields, have been reported upon. During the coming fiscal year it is planned to complete the analyses of Californian crudes as well as of foreign crudes, all of which have been received excepting samples from Russia.

HIGH SUSPENDED FROM LEAGUE

Fort Worth North Side Charged With Use of Ineligibles

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 21.—The Fort Worth North Side High school was suspended from the University of Texas interscholastic league in football until the close of the 1924 footbal season, by action of the state executive committee of the league at its meeting here Thursday afternoon. The reasons for this suspension are outlined in a letter from Roy Bedichek, secretary of the committee, to Professor C. A. Gardner, principal of the North Side high school, Fort Worth, as follows:

"The interscholastic league state executive committee on November 6, 1922, after due hearing in the respective cases, declared the following players on the North Side high school team of 1922 ineligible for further participation in interscholastic league athletic contests: Herman Clark, Finney, Lefty Williams and Walter Holland.

"At the meeting of the same committee on October 10, 1923, it being claimed that new evidence had been discovered, the case of Walter Holland, upon motion of Professor H. J. Ettlinger, (who is a member of the committee and who had been in conference with authorities of your school) was taken up for reconsideration. The committee at this meeting requested further information and testimony in this case before taking final action. You submitted additional testimony by wire October 11. Before the committee could act on this testimony, however, you used this player, Walter Holland, in an interschool game with North Dallas high school on October 12.

"The introduction to Article VIII of our constitution and rules which contains our eligibility rules, says:

"'Member schools agree to observe these rules in all inter-school contests, whether with another member of the league or not.'

"Section 12, Article VIII, says:

"'A school which continues to use contestants who have been declared ineligible shall be suspended from the league for a period of from one to three years in the event in which the infraction is made.'

"We have your acceptance of the football plan of the league, and your membership fee, constituting an agreement upon your part to observe these rules in all inter-school contests, whether with another member of the league or not.'

"The use of Holland in the above-mentioned game is, in the opinion of the committee, a clear infraction of the rules in peculiar circumstances which leave no reasonable doubt that you and your school were on due notice. As a matter of fact, Professor Ettlinger informed the committee that he explicitly warned Mr. Farrington, your city director of athletics, against using this man until his case had been passed upon.

"A copy of this letter is being sent to the superintendent of the Fort Worth city schools. Since it is necessary for member-schools to be advised of this suspension as quickly as possible, we shall give the press a statement of the case in the next day or two."

HINGHAM SENDS GIFT TO HINGHAM

By The Associated Press.

HINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20.—Wood from an oak tree planted by Queen Elizabeth went into the making of three chairs which have been shipped from Hingham, Norfolk, England, to this town. They are the gift of Harry C. Tofts, a builder in the English Hingham, to the Bay State township which was founded by men from the Norfolk town in the seventeenth century.

Sixteen years ago the top of the tree planted by the great Queen in Kimberly Park died and it became necessary to fell it. Mr. Tofts bought the timber and stored it. A few years ago he met Rev. Louis C. Cornish, secretary of the American Unitarian association, who for 16 years was minister of the First Parish church of Hingham, Mass., and decided to make through him his gift to this town.

Mr. Tofts made the chairs, which were designed by Hugh Mottram after a model of a chair of the period when the Hingham men emigrated to America. Mr. Tofts stipulated that one of them should be used by the chairman of the board of selectmen, one be placed in the First Parish meetinghouse, erected in 1681, and the third be used by Mr. Cornish during his lifetime and after that go to the minister of the First Parish church in perpetuity.

TEXAS 13TH IN ELECTRIC ROADS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Texas has 973.69 miles of electrical railways standing thirteenth among states in that respect, the department of commerce today announced.

In the entire country the miles of single track electrical railways operated in 1922 aggregated 43,934 miles as compared with 44,808 miles in 1917 and 41,033 miles in 1912. Very little electrical railway building has been done in the United States in the last few years. The figures show decreases in track mileage in 32 states and small increase in 16 states. The most important losses of trackage occurred in Massachusetts, 366 miles, and in Ohio, 200 miles.

Just 24 miles of electric track was built in Texas between 1917 and 1922 as compared with 228 miles built between 1912 and 1917.

New York leads all states with 4,792 miles of electric track. Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, California, Massachusetts, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Missouri, Connecticut, Iowa, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin, Maryland and Minnesota follow in the order named.

FOURTEEN QUALIFY FOR K. C. EVENT

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—All fourteen cars and their drivers qualified today for the 250 mile national championship motor race to be run on the Kansas City speedway tomorrow. The cars clipped off 115 to 117 miles an hour, and, according to speedway officials, might have exceeded that speed had there not been a strong wind. The track was in excellent condition.

Bowie News

Rev. Atticus Webb of Dallas, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, will deliver a lecture on law enforcement at the First Baptist church Sunday evening. The other churches of the city have agreed to close their services for the occasion.

The City Federation has changed the date of the meeting to the first Monday in each month, instead of the second Monday as heretofore. The City Federation is composed of the ladies of the various clubs in the city and others interested in the civic advancement of the city.

An auction sale of lots in Sunrise addition will be held by the Holman Realty company of Springfield, Tenn., next Wednesday.

M. Johnson of Bowie, captured the grand championship and several other prizes in the poultry department at the state fair at Dallas with his single comb white leghorns. Other awards that went to the owner of the largest poultry farm in the world were: first, second and third on cock; first and fourth on cockerel; third on pen; second and fourth on pullet; first on old hen; first and third on young pen. Mr. Johnson reported the competition this year was the stiffest ever experienced at the state fair.

CONTINUE SHALE RESEARCH WORK

Horizontal Type of Retort Reported to Be Unsatisfactory

Research work on oil shale is now being conduced by the department of the interior, through the bureau of mines, in co-operation with the state of Colorado, the University of Utah, and the department of conservation of the state of Indiana. The object of this work is two fold: First, to determine the conditions of retorting that produce the highest yields of the best oil from various shales, and second, to make a thorough study of methods of refining shale oil.

Research conducted by the bureau of mines at the Boulder laboratory, in co-operation with the state of Colorado, for the past year has been with an experimental vertical retort, a large horizontal retort, and a small assay retort.

The experimental vertical retort is so designed that it gives results which might be comparable to those obtained from commercial retorts of this type. Experiments are being made to determine the effects of time and temperature of preliminary heating, holding at various temperatures, use of steam in the retort, etc. A complete analysis is made of all the products obtained.

The results obtained with the horizontal type of retort have not been very satisfactory as it gives a lower yield of oil of a poorer grade than that obtained from the other retorts.

Most of the refining experiments of the bureau of mines have been centered upon the refining of gasoline or motor fuel from shale oil. This work, which has been partly completed, has shown that good grades of these products can be produced.

Assay retort studies have been made with typical American shales, in comparison with shales from the foreign fields which are used in producing commercial shale oil. This work should have an important bearing on the question of how far the present oil shale practice in foreign countries may be adapted for use in this country.

At Salt Lake City, the problems being studied are: The distribution of sulphur and nitrogen in oil shale and its products, the separation and examination of kerogen, the approximate and ultimate analyses of the shale and ash, the determination of the best conditions for recovering ammonia or other nitrogen products from American shales, and thermal decomposition of the oil yielding materials from oil shale.

Determination of the distribution of sulphur and nitrogen involves the distillation of various shales from the most important deposits of this country, and the examination of the products. The results of this study may give important information regarding the refining of shale oil. The separation and examination of kerogen, and the approximate and ultimate analyses of the shale and ash, give information relative to the organic matter in the shale and the oil yield. The study of the best conditions for recovering ammonia includes a determination of the form in which the nitrogen compounds exist in the shales.

The process of thermal decomposition has a considerable bearing on the various proposed theories of the origin of petroleum. The rate of formation of bitumen has been determined at various fixed temperatures by heating the samples of shale in closed tubes for long periods of time. It had previously been learned that the decomposition of the organic ingredient of the shale takes place below the temperature at which oil begins to form. Valuable information has been obtained on the relation between time and temperature at which this primary dissociation takes place. The study further involves the chemical and physical examination of the soluble bituminous substance which is formed from the organic matter of the shale by the action of heat.

COTTON WAS UP DURING WEEK

Reacted But Last Two Sessions Resulted in New Highs

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 21.—The early trading of the week in cotton brought wide advances after which a reactionary movement set in but in the last two sessions of the week the advance was resumed and new high levels for the season were reached on all months in the contract market and in the spot department as well. Prices were net gains throughout and at their highest were 120 to 130 points over the close of the preceding week with December up to 29.37. The close was 106 to 123 points net higher on the week with December at 29.20. In the spot department, middling gained 150 points and closed at 29.88, which compared with 23.00 on the close of this week last year.

The gains of the early sessions were due to the wet weather that spread over a great portion of the cotton belt, and the threat of storms from the Gulf of Mexico. As prices advanced a great deal of liquidation came from the long side and this, together with hedge selling and new selling from interests who expected set-backs on technical conditions brought about the reaction. About the end of the week much better accounts from mill centers, both in this country and in England, put a new aspect to the situation but the greatest strength arose from the announcement by the government that it would issue a special report on the crop to be dated October 25 and giving condition and the yield it indicates.

This coming week it seems likely that the pending condition report will be given a great deal of attention for the trade generally expects it to reflect excessive crop destruction and to show a marked falling off in indicated yield, compared with the figures for September 25th, when the indicated yield was 11,015,000 bales. In some quarters it is thought that additional strength will be derived from the census bureau report on ginning that will be issued Thursday. Some talk of ginning to October 18, the end of the third ginning period of as low as under 6,000,000 bales has been heard, which compares with 6,978,321 to same date last year.

TEXAS SIXTH IN LUMBER YIELD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Texas still ranks sixth among the states in lumber production, figures obtained at the department of commerce show.

A total of 240 Texas mills cut 1,542,708,000 cubic feet of lumber in 1922. In 1921, 301 mills cut 1,502,353,000 feet. Washington, Louisiana, Oregon, Mississippi and California are the five leading lumber producing states.

For the nation the total production of lumber during 1922 in the United States was 31,426,922,000 feet. This is an increase of 16.5 per cent when compared with the cut reported for 1921 but a decrease of 9 per cent compared with the cut for 1919.

The production of lath was reported as 2,905,595,000 in 1922 and 1,970,696,000 in 1921, and the production of shingles 8,068,585,000 in 1922 and 6,843,187,000 in 1921.

Comparing the statistics for 1922 with those of 1921 the greatest changes are shown for the western states, the states in that region apparently having recovered from the severe depression of 1921.

In 1922 yellow pine contributed 36.6 per cent of the total cut for all kinds of wood, Douglas fir 21.4 per cent, and western yellow pine 6.6 per cent.

The figures for 1921 and 1922 are not strictly comparable. In 1922 the output of mills cutting under 50 thousand feet each was omitted and in 1921 the cut of custom mills was omitted. The cut of neither class, however, materially affected the totals.

Road Bonds.

Petitions will be presented to the commissioners court Monday morning asking that an election be called to vote on $600,000 worth of bonds for road improvements.

According to the plans mapped out by the court and those interested in the movement the Colorado-to-Gulf highway would be paved from Wichita county to Hardeman county and the Lee highway from north to south. This would require about $400,000 of the bonds. The balance would be divided between the four commissioners precincts.

The state highway has promised about $800,000 in state and federal aid if the bond issue is voted.

The Vernon high school team was presented with 13 blankets Friday morning by the Rotary club. The blankets are maroon with a large "V" in the center. At the game that afternoon with Paducah the team used them for the first time.

The local post of the American Legion met last night and made plans for the observance of armistice day here. Post Commander E. M. Haney stated that details of the program would be worked out during the coming weeks.

L. G. Hawkins has been elected a knight commander of the court of honor in the Scottish Rite Mason. He must serve four years before he is eligible to have conferred upon him the thirty-third degree, which is the highest honorary degree conferred by the supreme council. Mr. Hawkins is president of the Waggoner National bank and is past grand commander of the Knights Templar.

2 COMMITTEES ARE TO PROBE

Senators to Inquire Into Vet Bereau and "Tea Pot Dome"

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Inquiries by two senatorial committees are set down for tomorrow in advance of the assembling of congress. Others will get under way soon, and as a number of the leaders and many of the rank and file of the membership are gathering in Washington, the capital again will be the scene of comparative activity of eight months of congressional "vacation."

One of the investigations started will be that into the veterans' bureau by a select committee composed of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman; Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, and Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts. The other will be conducted by the senate public lands committee, Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, chairman, into the leasing of the naval oil reserve in Wyoming known as "Tea Pot Dome."

Major General F. O'Ryan of New York will conduct the inquiry into the veterans' bureau and will call as first witnesses Brigadier General Frank A. Hines, retired director of the bureau. General O'Ryan and a staff of assistants have been engaged all summer with a private inquiry for the collection of facts and data which will be presented to the committee. Much of the interest in the "Tea Pot Dome" inquiry centers on the reports of the geologists who surveyed the oil reserve to determine whether there had been drainage of the fields by wells sunk in nearby territory. Reports to the navy and interior departments by geologists indicated that the reserve was not nearly so rich in oil as had been presumed at the time of the leasing.

HOG INDUSTRY GROWS BIGGER

HEREFORD, Tex., Oct. 20.—The development of the hog industry in west Texas is especially portrayed by the purchases of one hog buying firm in this city. This concern in the period from January 1st. to October 1st. 1923 purchased something over $100,000 worth of hogs for shipment. This large sum of money was represented in the purchase of 95 carloads of hogs, shipped says the West Texas chamber of commerce, to buyers in Kansas City, Los Angeles, Fort Worth and Honolulu. The disposition of the 95 carloads is as follows: Kansas City, 25; Los Angeles, 60; Fort Worth, 70; Honolulu 2.

It is believed that it is a record in swine shipments for a West Texas concern to be selling carloads of hogs in Honolulu. Another interesting development in this connection is the extraordinary number of swine moving to the California market.

FIND NUDE BABE IN TRASH PILE

CORSICANA, Texas, Oct. 20.—A plain wooden panel was set at the head of a new grave at the county farm today. This grave is the resting place of an unknown infant whose nude body was found today in a burning pile of trash.

The body was in a trash can and thrown on the fire before it was discovered.

Officers tonight were unable to give any clue to the placing of the baby in the trash can. They were even unable to state whether the baby was black or white, so badly burned was the flesh.

Young Matrons' Class

Mrs. H. F. Deering was hostess to the Young Matrons' class of the First Baptist church Thursday afternoon, where both business and social matters were considered. Following the business, Mrs. C. M. Bell gave a pretty solo, and later a spelling puzzle was given in a contest of readjusting the names of kitchen utensils. Mrs. J. E. Gray proved the clever leader in the merry game, and was duly rewarded; while Mrs. P. M. Coker received the consolation. The class gathering was closed with a refreshment treat served by the gracious hostess.

Second Mass Meeting

The second mass meeting for the promotion of funds for the further development of the H. L. Lewis deep test well, which is located about five miles southwest of Burkburnett, resulted in the sale of a limited amount of shares, and a committee was appointed to take up the matter with individual citizens. The sum of $25,000 is said to be the needed amount to complete the well, which is down about 2,600 feet, and now in the blue limestone, which indicates the promise of a good well, it is said.

Sam Spence of the chamber of commerce visited Dallas Saturday.

Rev. J. C. Ford of Bonham, will be in Burkburnett Friday, and will spend several days in the city when he will preach at the Presbyterian church each evening including Sunday, October 28. All members of the congregation and friends are urged to be in attendance at these services.

Miss Jessie Mae George spent the week-end with her parents in Iowa Park this week.

The meetnig of the Rotarians this week was marked by the presence of Hurbert Harrison and Dan Daniels of the Wichita Falls Rotarians. Speaking, singing, exchange of humor and a serious discussion of the much-quoted statement relative to our president, Mr. Coolidge, comparing him to a man with a "heart of stone and the mind of a small-town Rotarian." The speakers gave broad-minded views of the matter, endorsed by the organization.

The first degree staff of the Burkburnett I. O. O. F. were guests this week of the Iowa Park lodge. A number of the Ladies of the Rebeckah degree accompanied them, and a good social time was enjoyed, after the ritualistic floor-work, put on by the Burkburnett team.

EUROPE PROSPEROUS

Senator Kenneth McKeller of Tennessee, has returned from Europe. Many other senators and representatives have returned from Europe. Each tourist has his own viewpoint of conditions in Europe and what should be done for the former allies and the former enemies in war-time of the United States.

Senator McKeller has a view point. He found all the countries of continental Europe prosperous; he found bumper crops everywhere; he found the people well fed; he found them well clad. He would have workers of all nations of the other side of the ocean return to productive employment and cease to hate their fellowmen and cease to follow statesmen of the old order before empires crash and thrones tumbled.

Senator McKeller is a democrat. He says all the countries that were engaged in war not many years ago are able to pay the loans advanced in war time by the United States government and that they should be compelled to pay. If all these erstwhile war ridden countries are prosperous, if the crops harvested are generous, then why shouldn't they fund their loans and begin the payment of interest on the same.

France has taken possession of the Ruhr and France intends to remain in the Ruhr until her demands have been conceded. Wouldn't it be awful if the United States sent any army to Europe to compel one of its many debtors to come across with interest or principal and threaten the seizure of territory or property if the money was not forthcoming? Lloyd George says that Europe is on the brink of Hell.

Senator McKeller says that Europe is prosperous and well fed. Which is right?

HENRY AND HIRAM

Senator Hiram Johnson's friends in Nebraska have started an active campaign and his name will be placed on the primary ballot. Senator Hi carried Nebraska in the 1920 primaries and his friends say he will duplicate the record next year. Henry Ford's name has been placed on the primary ballot and there are Nebraska democrats who say that the billionaire flivver manufacturer will led all other democrats and capture the delegation to the national convention.

W. J. B. is a citizen of Florida. He deserted Nebraska in 1921. He has announced his intention of going to the national convention as a delegate from the Everglades state in order that he may be better able to tell the delegates who to nominate from the floor of the convention rather than from the press gallery or the press tables.

W. J. B. wrapped his long legs about the neck of the democratic donkey away back in 1896 and he has been riding the docile animal ever since. His donkey was ditched in San Francisco. Will history repeat itself next year.

AMERICANS GOOD SPENDERS

Americans are good spenders. Money spent by American tourists abroad in 1922 amounted to three hundred and fifty-six million dollars, according to estimates just made public by the United States department of commerce. This survey shows that tourists expenditures have increased since 1919 and that they probably average each year about one hundred and seventy million dollars during the period from 1896 to 1914.

It is said that Americans spent traveling abroad this year more than four hundred million dollars. Travel is a great educator and civilizer. It transforms narrow-eyed shriveled localisms into wide-eyed men of vision and information. God pity the ignorant or those who never get out of the ruts where they were placed at the hour of birth.

WHERE DIR HE GET IT?

A prohibition enforcement officer in a New York village passed on. He had been a modest man, his salary was $3,000 a year and he had never made a display of wealth. It was discovered when he died that he had a private box in the vault of the village bank and state tax ferrets were on guard when the box was opened.

It only contained $60,000 in cash and his wife was given the surprise of her life. Now the impure minded are asking, "Where did he get it?" An honest man isn't [illegible]. Now who gets the money? The widow or the state?

That's the Trouble With This Game—If You Bend Over for One the Whole School Wants to Play Leap Frog

Black Money

BY J. S. FLETCHER AUTHOR OF "SCARHAVEN KEEP" "THE BOROUGH TREASURER," ETC.

"Put it this way," replied Matherfield: "Of course you've got to assume a lot. Lady Riversreade was formerly Mrs. Whittingham. As Mrs. Whittingham she did a clever bit of fraud at Sellithwatee, and got away with the swag. Baseverie was her accomplice. Now then, ten years late, Mrs. Whittingham has become my Lady Riversreade, a very wealthy woman. She's suddenly visited by Baseverie at Riversreade Court, and is obviously upset. Then she starts for a port—Southhampton. What inference is to be drawn? That her visit to Southhampton has certainly something to do with Baseverie's visits to her and her visit to Vivian's!"

"Go on!"

"Very good train, that," continued Matherfield. "We got to Southhampton just before eight—a minute or two late.

"She went to the White Star Line offices and I waited outside, where she wouldn't see me when she came out again. When she came out, she turned to another part of the town. And I lost her—altogether. I just happened to let my attention be diverted—and she was gone! I hung about; no good. Then I thought I'd find out what she'd gone to the White Star offices for, so I got hold of a clerk, showed my credentials, and asked him for the information I wanted. I got it.

"She'd booked a second-class passage for New York in the Tartaric, sailing that afternoon in the name of H. Cunningham. I decided then that I'd watch for her coming aboard the Ttartaric. I proposed to accost her, of course, as Lady Riversreade, tell her who I was, and ask for information about Baseverie. If she gave me any prevaricating or elusive answer, I'd ask her straight out if she was Mrs. Whittingham. And I practically made up my mind, too, that if she admitted that and I saw good cause for it, I'd detain her.

"But she never turned up! Of course, you'll say that she must have slipped aboard unobserved by me, but I'm positive she didn't. No sir! It's my opinion that she thought better of it and didn't go—forfeiting her passage money would be nothing to a woman of her means—or that she was frightened at the last minute of showing herself on that stage!

"But I'm not through with this yet, Mr. Hetherwick, and I want you to do something for me. This Miss Hannaford now, is down at Riversreade Court. I want you to ring her up early tomorrow morning, and ask her if she can meet you in Dorking at noon."

"Oh, I can fix it up all right," answered Hetherwick. "But I don't know what you want her for."

"Wait till morning," replied Matherfield with a knowing look. "You'll see. I'll meet you at Victoria station at ten o'clock, sharp."

Hetherwick was still in ignorance of the reason of Matherfield's desire to see Rhona when they met her in Dorking. Matherfield lost no time in getting to business.

"Miss Hannaford," he said, "just tell me—is Lady Riversreade up there at the Court?" She is!" he continued as Rhona nodded. "When did she come back, then?"

"Very early yesterday morning," answered Rhona. "By the seven-forty-five from Victoria. She was up at the Court by nine-thirty."

Matherfield turned an utterly perplexed face on Hetherwick. Then he stared at Rhona.

"Up at Riversreade court at nine-thirty yesterday—Tuesday—morning!" he exclaimed. "Then who on earth is that woman that I followed to Southhampton?"

Matherfield's question went without answer. Rhona, who had no idea of what he was talking about, turned a surprised and inquiring look on Hetherwick. And Hetherwick saw that the time had come for a lot of explanation.

"Look here!" he said. "I'd better tell you what Matherfield and I were after on Monday night, and what Matherfield was doing all yesterday.

"You see," he concluded, after giving Rhona an account of the proceedings, "I was absolutely certain that the woman we saw coming out of Vivian's on Monday night was Lady Riversreade. I'm convinced it was Lady Riverside. Then, Matherfield and I are both equally sure that that was the same woman we saw coming out of the flat in Paddington yesterday morning and whom Matherfield followed to Southhampton. Up to now, we've never had a doubt that it was Lady Riversreade—not a doubt!"

"It's beyond me!" exclaimed Matherfield. "If that really was Lady Riversreade we saw coming out of Vivian's and followed to Puddington, and if she wasn't the woman who came out of those flats yesterday morning and that I went after—well, then, Lady Riversreade has a double. That's about it!"

"As regards that," remarked Hetherwick, "I got some information. The woman is known there as a Madame Listorelle. She's believed to be connected with the stage!"

"You both seem to have arrived at a very promising stage!" Rhona said "At first I thought it a regular, impasse, but—"

"Isn't it?" asked Hetherwick.

"Oh, I think you're getting toward something!" she retorted. "I've got some news too! There was a sort of row at the Home yesterday, with that man Baseverie."

"Ah!" exclaimed Hetherwick. "That's interesting! Tell about it."

"Well, I told you that Lady Riversreade arrived from London yesterday morning about nine-thirty," continued Rhona. "Major Pentency arrived with her."

"Who's Major Pentency?" demanded Matherfield.

"He's a retired army man Miss Hannaford thinks is in love with Lady Riversreade," said Hetherwick. "Go on!"

"Major Pentency came to me, and told me that he wanted to have a little private talk with me," Rhona went on. "He said 'Miss Featherstone—'"

"Eh?" Matherfield said. "Miss—Featherstone?"

"That's the name Miss Hannaford's known by—there," said Hetherwick.

"'Miss Featherstone,' Rhona went on, "I believe Dr. Cyprian Baseverie will turn up here, about noon. I want you to show him straight into the private office. Instead of finding Lady Riversreade there, he'll find me. After I have had a little plain-spoken talk with this fellow, I shall ring the bell. I want you to come in and to bring Mitchell with you. You understand?'

"'I understand, Major Pentency,' I answered.'"

Rhona paused for a moment. Matherfield gave Hetherwick an unmistakable wink.

"Well!" he muttered. "I'm beginning to see a bit of daylight!"

"Well," continued Rhona, "about noon Dr. Cyprian Baseverie drove up. I ushered him to the private room and closed the door after him as he stepped across the threshold."

Matherfield rubbed his hands together.

"Good!" he chuckled. "Wish I'd been in that room!"

"I was, of course, tremendously curious to know what was going on there," Rhona went on, "but the door fits closely, and I heard nothing—no angry voices or anything. However, in less than ten minutes the bell rang. I called Mitchell—he's a big ex-guardsman,—and in we went. I took everything in at a glance: Major Pentency sat at Lady Riversreade's desk. On the blotting-pad, his right hand close to it, lay a revolver—"

"Huh!" exclaimed Matherfield. "To be sure! Just so! Fine!"

"Opposite the desk stood Baseverie. He looked like a man who has just heard something that he has believed it impossible to hear. But there was also such a look of anger and rage—well, if Major Pentency hadn't had that revolver close to his finger-ends, and if Mitchell hadn't been there, I should have screamed and run. Major Pentency spoke. 'Miss Featherstone and you, Mitchell—you see this man? If ever he comes here again, you Mitchell, will deny him entrance; and you, Miss Featherstone will telephone for the police; and if he hangs about, will give him in charge.'

"Then he turned to Baseverie. 'Now, he continued, 'you get out—quick! Go!' Of course, I looked at Baseverie. He was also livid with anger. His fingers worked his eyes blazed. It was dreadful to see his lips. He got out some words at last."

"Give me the exact ones, if you can," interrupted Matherfield.

"I can—I'm likely to forget them," said Rhona. 'He said: 'What! You defy me, knowing what I know—knowing what I know!'

"Then Major Pentency just pointed to the door. 'Get out, I tell you!' he said. 'And look in the papers tonight Be off!'"

"Look in the papers tonight, eh?" said Matherfield. "Um! And then he went?"

"He went without another word, then," assented Rhona.

So Goes It

By H. H.

Now that Papyrus, winner of the English derby, has been badly beaten by Zev, an American horse, we suggest that Papyrus be matched against Spark Plug.

It is said that the track was very slow. So was Papyrus. Zev beat him by six lengths.

Spark Plug may be something of a joke, but that is what he is intended to be, and he certainly is a favorite. Papyrus was supposed to be a real race horse, but he didn't show it.

You never can tell about a horse race. Once upon a time, a good many years ago, when "bookies" operated openly, we wagered a whole dollar on a ten-to-one shot. Being of an experimental nature we did it more as an experiment than to satisfy any craving for gambling. We wanted to see what would happen, and we enjoyed the suspense between the start and the finish. Suspense is a thing that is necessary to human nature.

It probably was the name of the horse that attracted us. We will never forget that name, Rose o' the Rancho. We thought a horse with a name like that ought to come of a pretty good family, so we took a chance.

But we were not proud of our judgment. In fact we were somewhat ashamed of it. And when a race track follower asked us if we had risked anything on the race, we were loath to admit to one of his certain knowledge that we had. Finally, after a rigid cross examination, we broke down and confessed that we had picked Rose o' the Rancho to win.

And the seedy individual who followed the race track like flies follow the smell of cooking victuals, gave us a bit of philosophy which we never have forgotten.

Thrusting his hands in his ragged pockets, he shifted his cud and spake as follows:

"You never can tell. I wouldn't have picked that horse to win because I know too much about horses. That's what keeps me broke. Not knowing horses you have a good chance to win. Knowing too much about anything often is a handicap. Sometimes a man's judgment is better when he doesn't know too much."

Rose o' the Rancho won. She started stumbling on the home stretch and stumbled in ahead of the bunch. And I had $11 and a bit of philosophy that was worth a hundred.

Moral: Never bet on a horse race. Rose o' the Rancho just happened to win.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A TRIBUTE

A simple creature is the hen,
She has no brain behind her forehead;
She has no song, but all day long
She clucks and cackles something horrid.
She is not like the noble horse,
The favorite of sports and scholars,
Yet she has made with eggs she's laid
A billion dollars.

Great poets of the skylark sing;
The nightingale, in song and story,
Has long been praised and now is raised
To heights of literary glory.
We chant the beauty of the swan.
But never do our pulses quicken
As we regard in our back yard
The lowly chicken.

Yet all the miners in our mines
And all our wheat fields, vast and splendid,
Could never do, the whole year through
As much as this unlovely hen did.
Not even Henry Ford himself,
With all his genius for construction,
Competed, in the point of self,
With her production.

Let beauty be its one excuse,
Its charm has always been conceded,
But in this world it has small use,
And therefore the excuse is needed.
Hard work is what the hen is for,
But she's a credit to the nation
And therefore with a little more Consideration.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

ONLY MIRACLE CAN SAVE EUROPE, SAYS VICTOR BERGER.

"Unless a miracle happens the civilization of Europe will go to smash."

This is the opinion of Victor Berger, socialist congressman from Wisconsin and editor of a socialist daily newspaper in Milwaukee. Mr. Berger recently returned from a five-month tour of Germany, Austria, Switzerland, England, France, Belgium and Holland.

"The great war that was to make the world safe for democracy has succeeded only in establishing firmly dictators in Italy, Spain, France and Germany, with Poincare, in France, a dictator to the whole of Europe," says Mr. Berger.

"There now is a feeling in England that, could it be given expression, would annihilate France. France now is dealing with England as it formerly did with Belgium.

"England, after the war, started to disarm. The labor party of England was partly responsible for this move. Armament cost too much. The people of the country, too, wanted to get back to normalcy.

"Did France disarm? Today she boasts that she has 20 times more tanks and many more submarines than ever before.

"In the past England never allowed one power to become powerful enough to dictate. Now, after England has helped France to squelch the ambition of Wilhelm, France and Poincare have become the dictators of all Europe. Poincare has it in his power, with the enormous air and submarine fleets, to destroy the largest cities of England in three days.

"France has a death grip on the jugular vein of Germany. France cannot collect reparations and she wants no reparations. She wants to keep the Ishineland and the Ruhr."

"Gentlemen," said the secretary, according to the Cornell Widow "is it the sense of this committee that the people for whom we have been working are quite dissatisfied with our work as done?"

"Yes," thundered the members of the committee.

"And do they agree that we have done everything as poorly and as expensively as possible?"

"Yes," again.

"And are they all of the opinion that they don't like to squawk but they could have done better themselves?"

Again the unanimous response was in the affirmative.

"Then," continued the secretary, "we have fulfilled the duties of the perfect committee. We will now go to have our picture taken, after which will take place the committee dinner, at which the shingles, watch charms, and gold cigarette cases will be given out."

The Tickton and Eastern, plying between Tickton and another equally inconsequential city, is what is known as a "one horse railroad," according to Judge. One hot summer evening the press agent of a street show waited at the Tickton station for the evening train to bring his manager. The train being already half an hour late, the press agent walked up to the ticket window to make inquiry.

"What's the matter with that train?" he asked.

"Hm," replied the stationmaster, looking at his watch, "reckon the engineer's wife's havin' company fer supper again."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Well, at them times Charlie don't take any chances of gettin' home before the dishes is washed."

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LIBRA

The early part of the day is adversely affected by Mars and all excitement, both physical and mental, should be avoided. There is a tendency to a feverish condition. These excessive vibrations lessen somewhat during the latter part of the day, but special care must be taken regarding travel, conveyances and money arrangements.

A child born today will be loving and affectionate.

Generosity is the key of your character if today is your birthday. You are generous in thought, in act and in emotion. You are commensurably elastic in disposition. Your mind is quick and decisive but your actions are neither hasty or ill considered.

You have a penetrating faculty of analysis, which is the causative principle underlying your philosophy. You know human motives as well as human activity and you realize that mankind is actually the responsible victim of its instincts, whether fulfilled or perverted.

You are also a keen judge of character, and your confidence is seldom misplaced even among the lowest of the land in whom you always manage to find some spark of dormant nobility.

In the undeveloped Librans the sign of the balance is exaggerated into carping criticism; they are skeptical of creed, contradict without cause and when angered express themselves with a freedom that leaves nothing to the imagination. System and routine are impossible to them; careless of their own belongings they borrow from others and invariably omit to return what they borrowed. They lose their heads in crowds.

Their innate sense of proportion enables them to justify their faults with extreme subtlety. Even at their worst, however, they are extremely susceptible to good influences.

Both types are fond of home and rather interested in children and their education, particularly from a euginin standpoint as they seek improvement in everything they analyze. They have also a deep passional nature which is hidden under an exterior of calm arid manner.

AND FURNISH A HOME

Wall Coverings Are Foundation Of Furnishings

Success of Every Room Depends Upon Selection of Wall Paper

One of the first rules about wallpaper is that it is background, and mustn't be so blatant that you can't see anything else. If it is for a room without many pictures, however—a hall or dining room—it may be ever so striking and bold of pattern.

And it is background for people, too. Don't forget that, and make your friends appear against solid, bright orange, or some other color that will kill their gowns and make them look like ghosts. That was what the Empress Josephine did once, so they say. She learned that her rival was to wear a blue gown, so she hung her walls with a vivid green that killed it, while she herself appeared in white satin, admirably set off. But it wasn't exactly hospitable, was it?

Because a wallpaper should be background, it should not be ornamented with realistic pictures of animal life, real dogs, real women drinking tea, real lovers embracing and so on.

Yet all rules have exceptions, you know. So real dogs are adorable on nursery papers—while some reproductions of colonial papers have "scenes" on them, which are allowable because they are historical. And so, sometimes, daring and brilliant effects in color and design gain entry to good taste.

If your room is awkward, too low too high, too long, too short, wallpaper can make it right. Simple vertical stripes will increase height. Tapestry effects give width. Or there are devices that emphasize the horizontal lines by dividing the height into three parts, with a dado below and a cornice above the paper. Warm colors decrease; cool ones enlarge the apparent size of the room. Those are invariable physical laws.

Cabinet Makes The Kitchen Modern, Larger

The day of the kitchen cabinet is not over—in fact it is just coming. A few years ago builders started to provide cabinets built into the house which in a small measure took the place of the kitchen cabinets that existed at that time. This acted as a stimulant to the kitchen cabinet business. Manufacturers set their research departments to work; practical tests were made; national advertising started. From this great effort has developed the modern kitchen cabinet that saves the housewife miles of steps each day, the kitchen is made more beautiful, and greater sanitation is brought about.

One of the finest examples of modern kitchen equipment is the new kitchen cabinet. It is more than a kitchen cabinet; it is a complete working center for the entire kitchen and a beautiful piece of furniture.

Tiling For Floors?

Wood, tiling or cement is suitable for flooring, the most effective results being brought about by the use of tiles that can be purchased today in a great variety of shades and finishes.

The tiling is easily kept clean, spots are easily washed off, as it is ideal as a foundation. It may be covered with rugs, or not, according to one's fancy.

In breakfast rooms lattice is very popular and may be used for ceilings or wall treatment, giving as it does, a foundation for growing vines, etc., to relieve the plainness of the walls.

There is a saying that "half of the things we worry about never happen," and if we start our day right by eating our morning meal in a cheerful breakfast room we are less likely to look for unpleasant things to happen.

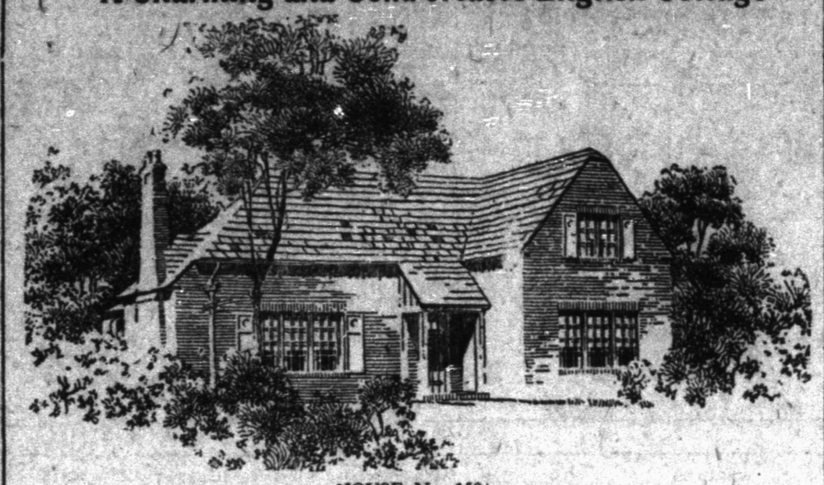

The dining room is usually too cold and formal for this morning repast, to which the family comes in a more or less irregular manner. While on the other hand what a joy it is to the business man to find his breakfast waiting for him in the midst of cool summer surroundings; or, if the season be cold, near a cheerful, crackling fire. Somehow it lightens his care for the day, and he takes up his duties more willingly for the bit of sunshine he has absorbed.

Whether this has had anything to do with its popularity it is hard to say, but the fact remains, that the breakfast room is fast gaining in favor and it is found in homes of moderate means as well as in the more pretentious places. In the stores we find breakfast sets ranging in price from the neighborhood of $2,000 all the way down to less than $100, for the plainer, painted types, some of which, however, are most attractive.

Breakfast Nooks

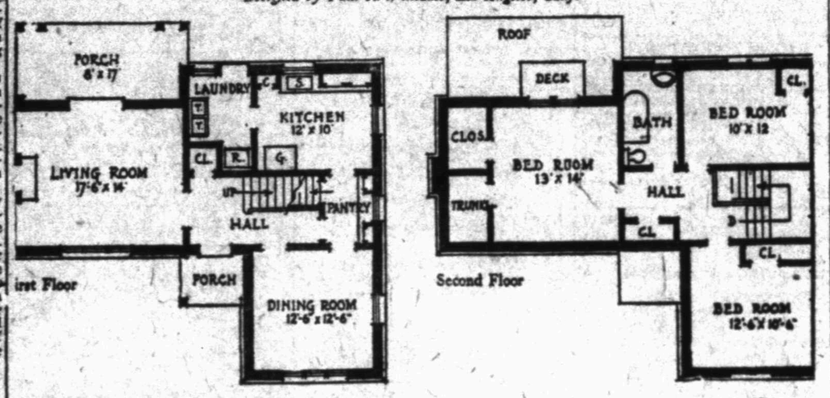

In this connection there is also the breakinast nook with the built-in pullman seats. This may be located in the kitchen or a portion of the pantry may be used for making it. The bride who does her own work will be sure to like it. The fact that it is in the kitchen need not will of course be painted to harmonize with the kitchen wood finish, and there are breakfast sets that can be used upon the table. These are attractive in the Japanese designs in blues and browns, and one can also buy similar material by the yard for window hangings. A rag rug in which the same colors appear makes this corner of the kitchen a most interesting one, and many, many steps are saved.

A Charming and Comfortable English Cottage

HOUSE No. 150

Designed by Paul R. Williams, Los Angeles, Calif.

Because of its low sweeping roof this simple cottage gives the impression of a bungalow. To appear at its best it calls for trees, shrubs, and flowers, the elements that contribute so much to the picturesqueness and beauty of the cottages of England from which the architect of this house got his inspiration.

It is such distinctive houses as this one that are transforming so many residential sections of American cities today. People seem to put more thought into their homes than they use to. They are no longer satisfied with four walls and a roof. They want homes of real beauty for they recognize that a beautiful house both outside and inside, has a distinct influence in creating a refined and contented atmosphere; and that such an atmosphere contributes immensely to the joy of living.

Houss of pleasing design cost no more to build than ugly homes. In fact, the simple house of good scale and proportion with good handling of detail frequently costsless than a house covered with meaningless ornamentation. And when the well-designed house is built of a durable material the owner doubly protects his investment.

In building, as in any other purchase, the owner gets what he pays for—and no more. A cheap purchase is always the most expensive purchase in the long run. A quality purchase always gives more satisfaction and keeps its value longer.

The house illustrated here is, however, more than just a good-looking house. The interior contributes its part in the compactness and convenience of its arrangements. The floor plans utilize every square foot of space, and the rooms are so related to each other that circulation through the house is exceptionally easy.

The house has a full second story despite its low appearance. Windows in the gable ends and dormers on the side and rear give plenty of light and ventilation. Throughout the house the rooms are all of good size.

The house should preferably face northeast, thereby providing morning sun in the dining room and affording a pleasant outlook for the living room.

The Eyes Have It

Have You Lights in Your Home That Are Kind to Your Eyes? Do You Have Upon the Fine Seam You Sew, or the Printed Page You Read, Real Illumination—or Just Artificial Light?

Light, properly controlled and directed, is poured in a soft illumnating glow over surfaces one wishes to see clearly. Left to run wild, it is wasted in glare and brilliance which is wearying, inefficient, and harmful to eyesight and nerve energy.

When the incandescent lamp first came into use, it was installed in thousands of homes in lighting fixtures whose design was purposed for the earlier illuminants. So long as the old-style electric lamp was used, this equipment, while not by any means ideal, was permissible. It involved the use of transparent or semi-transparent shades and reflectors originally devised for shielding flames from draughts; and though these did not protect the eyes from light sources, still those sources were of moderate brilliancy, and not especially menacing to eyesight.

But the brilliant electric lamp of the present day, which because of its economic efficiency in supplying light has replaced the milder incandescent lamp in home lighting, has altered conditions very materially.

The adaptation of this new science of illumination to home lighting offers wide opportunities for individual expression. Beauty walks hand in hand with utility, and light is being found so flexible, so expressive, that besides illuminating it can be made either to create a picture in itself or to temper and shade the pictures it touches into a variety of charming moods. Although the essential element in home lighting must be abundant and efficient illumination, yet there is also an aesthetic possibility that grows greater day by day.

Question: What can I use to cover my parlor floor—F. A. C.

Answer: Rubber or linoleum, patterned to represent tile, and completely covering the floor, is effective.

Question: Can you suggest something that I could make into an inexpensive between-meal cloth for my dining room table, which is used constantly in place of a desk or separate table? I will need something with enough body to protect the table and not show soil, but still appropriate.—R. S. P.

Answer: Linen in its natural tan shade is excellent for this purpose. You can trim it with course lace in ecru, or colored with coffee to the desired tint. If you are handy with the needle, you can find transfer patterns ranging from a simple conventional design in cross-stitch to gorgeous parrots, to embroider on it. If you want something still less expensive, you can get monk's cloth, which is a very coarse material resembling burlap and stencil a design in colors matching your rug or curtains.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Many a man is worse off after his salary is raised than he was before. Why? Because the raise is a signal for a lot of new expenditures!

When you get a raise, what is your reaction? Do you say "Ah, now we can buy that new fur coat," and go ahead and get one? Probably the coat was a little more expensive than you had estimated, but you buy it, and the first thing you know you are in debt, just because you received a raise in salary.

Instead of immediately figuring out what you can buy, figure out what can be saved out of that raise.

Remember that a certain percentage should be saved. Not $10 but 10 per cent. Then if income increases savings automatically increase too.

WILL TRY FOR MORE CONSULAR FUNDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The resignation of Ambassadors Harvey and Child have directed renewed attention to the meagre allowances the United States grants its diplomatic representatives.

Congress, though urged several times to provide relief for the situation, steadfastly has refused. It will be asked this winter to consider the matter again.

Senator Curtis, republican whip who will have charge in the senate of the diplomatic appropriations, will undertake to get the funds increased to the point where ambitious and able but unwealthy persons can be used in both the diplomatic and consular services.

He said today it was unfair to our representatives abroad to let them be at a disadvantage in world capitals, where the social side of a diplomat's life is important. Senator Curtis thinks it is unfortunate, too, that under the present system rich men alone can be ambassadors.

The United States ambassadors in London and Paris get only $17,500 a year—the highest salary paid any American diplomats. Wilbur J. Carr, director of the consular service, said one American ambassador at Paris recently paid $20,000 a year rent out of his own pocket. It cost Colonel Harvey $50,000 a year above his salary to represent America.

The American ambassador in London gets nothing besides his salary but office and traveling expenses. The British ambassador in Washington gets only $12,500 a year as salary, but has allowances that make the total $97,330. Besides, his residence is supplied by the British government.

In only nine countries — Chili, China, Cuba, Great Britain, Japan, Mexico, Panama, Siam and Turkey—does this country own the diplomats' residences. Great Britain owns them in thirteen—Austria, Belgium, China, Egypt, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Spain, Switzerland, Turkey and the United States.

Well she is comeing to work tomorrow and at lease it means I will finely get a home cooked meal which if I waited for Edna to cook me one why in 4 or 5 wks. people would be takeing me for a lightning rod. KAY SPEAKS OF GOOD CITIZENS

Tells His Bible Class Law Obeyance One of Biggest Assets

This lesson is about being a citizen of the world. Once in a while, when we get to feeling cheaty, in this country we talk about ourselves being one hundred per cent American. We will look for a moment into that, to see whether that is true. We are made up of all the experience, and all the history, and all the biology, and all the weakness, and all the strength, of all the nations. Look about you for a moment. This word over that door, "Exit", is a foreign word. Latin. If we had the word "Entrance" (I do not know whether it is in front or not), that is a French word. Every word at the tip of the clock there, "Naval Observatory Time Hourly—Western Union," most every word on it came from Rome, and every figure on the dial of the clock come from the Romans. We got the curtains from Egypt, and the stage from Greece, and most of the architecture from Greece. We lack just a little of being altogether American.

A man went into a restaurant where they had the menu printed in French, and he said to the negro waiter, "Sam, haven't you got anything to eat here that is American?" "Yes," he says, "We have tea and coffee and sugar and molasses." Sugar and molasses came from the Portugese and tea and coffee, from Arabia. No, you are not one hundred per cent American. You may have a little of it in you, but not all.

The lesson is about the location of the Jews. You will hear business men say that location is everything. Those in business in the great cities, now, if a man wants to rent a business house, hires a man to stand on the street and count the number of people that pass by the door of the building that he wants to rent, because location is important.

A Jew moved to New York and one of his friends said: "Isaac, you are going to have a bit of competition there," and he says: "Yes, and they will all be competing with me, too." Location is important for business. It is almost everything for business. It is important for influence. It is not especially important for brains.

One of the greatest of all the Greeks who went up to Athens was twitted by some of the members there about the small town that he came from. He said: "You came from a very small village." "Yes," he said, "I can't afford to leave there. That would make it still smaller." Would it make Wichita Falls any smaller for one of you fellows to move out? You want to feel that it would.

These Jews located in Palestine were in the great trade routes. The camels had to come through there with gold, and spices, and silks, and perfumes, from China and from India, and from the far, far East. Also, the trade and traffic of Egypt came up from the south. They were in a wonderful place to meet and get acquainted with the world. They did not take advantage of that opportunity, according to this lesson. All these things were pointed out to them and they were told just to do one thing. "Be righteous and obey the law. You will become the greatest of all people." And they failed, because they did not keep the law.

Do you break the laws of your country? Ah, men; Men! Do you plunge a spear into the breast of Texas and sin against the manhood and womanhood of Texas, and make the way harder for every little child in Texas by breaking one of her laws? It is no light thing to go out here and break the law. It isn't a small thing to do. If you could do it, and its influence be confined to you, and to you alone, it would not be so widely important, but when you go out here and break one of the laws of your city, or the laws of your state, or the laws of your nation, you have started some waves that will break on shores that you never saw.

I wish that every man here would say—not to me, because you don't owe me thything, but say it to yourselves—that, I will rigidly keep the laws of my country. That's the important place for you to do some thinking, and, having got by that, accomplished that wonderful thing, then you can say another thing, and not until then. When you become yourself a keeper of the law, then it is that you can go out and make other men keep it, whether they will or not. How can a man enforce the law, or encourage other men to keep the law, when he, himself, is a law breaker? I have got a great many vices, but, you know, if I was a poker player, for example, I wouldn't sit on the jury and convict another man. I just couldn't swallow it. Or, if I was a cusser, I couldn't convict another man for profanity. It would just stick in my throat and I couldn't get away with it. That's the reason that we can't enforce the laws, because we do not respect them ourselves. That's the reason these people did not become what they were intended to become, just because they didn't have that one great word, obedience. That is the first—(as some of our young men here learned)—that is the beginning and the end of everything in the army, is obedience. It ought to be in private life. It ought to be everywhere. They were told that they would be made a great people, if they would do these things.

Now, now is a city judged by outsiders? Wichita Falls is not judged by its best people, or everybody would want to move here. It is not judged by its worst men, or everybody would refuse to move here. Wichita Falls is judged, by the outsider, by its average citizenship. Now, what is that? I am going to say here this morning, and I take a good deal of pride in saying it, I think out citizenship, those who live here and stay here, will average up very fine, indeed. We have had mighty little of the crimes among our own people who live here.

Our people are sometimes denounced as law breakers, and as a tough community, by people who do not know us, but I am here to pay tribute to the high character of the average citizenship of Wichita Falls. I believe in them, God-Bless-Them, and I want them to be even better than they have been.

What would be a good American, if we are going to be one hundred per cent American. A good American, would be a man with a tender conscience, who would keep his laws, and compel other men to keep them. A good American would be a man with influence. Now, there are some men that think they can run with the hare and bark with the hounds, but you cannot do that. You know, I never have been able to say that I believed in Abraham Lincoln's aphorism that "You can fool all of the people some of the time." I do not think you could fool some of the people any minute.

To be a good citizen, and that is what the lesson is about, requires something more than a fellow to keep the laws. What does it require other than that? It requires you men to set up in the community, and before the community, an example of high character. It is not enough to keep the law. That is not enough. The state requires that of you. Good citizenship requires that of you. But, there is more required. What is it? It is required that your life be so clean and fine that you become an example to the community. How do you do that? Not by thinking. But, live such a life that men will know about where you stand on any question before it comes up. I mean, any moral question. That is what makes a nation. That is what makes a people. That is what will make a one hundred per cent American, is a citizenship that rises above and beyond the law, and does right because it is right. Most men never think about the laws. It don't require any effort, I think, for most men to keep the law. I don't think it is a struggle for many men to keep out of jail.

I have magnified the law here this morning, but the law, after all, is not made for the best, but for the worst, and only for the protection of the best.

I have said that these people failed in this. Why did they fail? They failed because these camels were coming through with commerce. They became a commercial people. Their cry was not "What kind of a life can I live," but "how much can I make out of these people that are passing through the neighborhood." I would dislike very much to stand up in my old age, if I should get to be old—I should dislike very much to stand up and make the one and only boast available to me, that I got a great deal of the goods of my fellowmen away from them. Sometimes I think I have got a little too much now. That's what they were after—trade and commerce. They made haste to be rich out of trade and commerce. Now, I am not denouncing the rich man here. If he is a good man, he is better able to do something than anybody, but I am denouncing those grasping people who would pile it up for their own use alone, and who would never look up to the source from whence it came.

They failed as a military nation because they were too commercial. A commercial people won't even get ready for war. We had our boys in Europe with not enough big guns to protect the infantry. We hadn't had but 10 years to make these guns in—but we didn't have them made. We had been building skyscrapers and U. S. steel, and things like that, and yet, didn't have the steel and hadn't made these guns. We were commercial.

Now, after all is said and done, that is the most dangerous thing for you men, is becoming too commercial. I used to think when I was young that a man did a lot of things just for meanness; just because he was mean. Most of the crime; half of it; two-thirds of it; perhaps three-fourths of the crime is directly and indirectly traceable to the fact that the fellow who commits it expects to make something out of it. That's how bad he wants money. So, if you do go out here and commit a crime—Hear me!—if you do go out here and commit a crime, let's pick one that we won't make anything out of, at least. Stealing, burglary, forgery, and a great many others that I can not name here, are crimes, because men expect to make something out of them, and, these are the things that ruined the nation that we are considering this morning.

Now, is location everything? I have said here that they had a great location. We have got a fine location here in Wichita Falls. There are different types of men about things like that. Some like to be where the great tides of life are running strong, and some of us (me among the number) would like to live in some sequested vale where things are quiet, and where I could commune with the solitudes of nature. But, most of men would like to live in the rush of a great city, and a great civilization, and that is so strong among my friends the English, they even want a dead man to live in London, and their poet said, when they buried Wellington:

"Where shall we bury him whom we deplore,
Here in streaming London's central roar—
Where the sound of those who fought for
And the noise of those he wrought for
Shall echo round his bones forever more."

Now, they are great people for crowding their location, and things of that kind. Now, that means commercial people.

I notice these fellows that are writing in the paper, (the Dallas News I think it is) the series of 'What I like about my home town.' How they do flaunt in some instances and show their material wealth. Do you know what I like about my home town? It is these school houses and these mothers that comb the heads of these six or seven thousand children and send them up there to school every morning.

And, I like my home town because my people are willing to pay taxes to support that greatest of all institutions, our free public schools for our children. Now, I never complain at the school taxes, because they couldn't possibly beat me, I have so many children. Sometimes I make them a donation up there because I feel like I haven't paid enough. I like my home town because of these churches here. I like my home town because the men of Wichita Falls have been fair with me. I hear a great deal about fraud here, and one thing and another, but I haven't found it here. And, men have kept their word with me in Wichita Falls and men have lived right with me, and I will tell you a little secret right there, if you want to know one. You go out here and you are going to find just what you are looking for. You have lost some money. And I have lost a great deal of money around here, first and last, that is, for poor folks. It is natural for you to say that somebody is responsible. I am talking to you, now, and I want you to get it. Many a fellow has felt like he has been swindled by a mere dry hole. Many a fellow has felt like somebody has swindled him because he has gone into a project with his money, that was hopeless to begin with. I haven't been swindled out of a dollar since I was in Wichita Falls, but I will tell you what I did do. I have put many a hundred dollars into a fool scheme that most anybody, except me, would have had sense enough to have staid out of. So I want you fellows to quit hollering about your neighbor being so fraudulent, and use a little sense, in the first place, about where you put your money. You will accuse most anybody of most anything before you will just get right up in the open and admit that you have been foolish. There hasn't been so much fraud here, men, and there is not going to be. But a fellow who goes out here and expects to take $1.00 and make $10.00 out of it in three weeks, is beat to start with. Do you hear me? I am talking just a little practical sense to you. He is beat to begin with. He might as well surrender when he signs up. So don't charge things like that to your neighbor, but just be a man and stand up and say that "I was foolish enough to do it. Even me." That's the way to do things.

Now, the Bible is a book, as I have so often said to you, about life. It isn't a book about theology, although it has been made so; nor about history, although it has been made so, but it is a book about the way men live, and you ought to read it more. This morning I want to urge upon you that you men read the Bible. It is the most beautiful of literature. It is the most beautiful philosophy. It is a wonderful thing to read any where and every where through the book. Will you go read it? I say, it is about life. If you will read that book, you will understand why other men failed in life, and how peoples, and cities, and nations failed, and if you will read that book, and understand it, you will sometimes know how and why you fail, and why I do. Let me commend to you that book, religion is personal. You are not saved because you belong to a big organization, and are marching in the parade, but you are saved because there is in your breast a contrite heart, and for that reason only.

VENERABLE PEAR TREE STILL YIELDS HARVEST

By The Associated Press.

DANVERS, Mass.—A pear tree which was brought from England by Governor John Endicott of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630 and planted on his farm at Danversport is still bearing fruit. About a bushel of pears was its harvest this year.

The tree is protected only by a picket fence. Tradition has it that it was a custom of the governor to send a basket of the pears each year to the King of England. President Lincoln is said to have visited the tree and eaten of its fruit. When President Calvin Coolidge was governor of Massachusetts he came here to see the tree and characterized it as "one of the most remarkable living landmarks of the early history of New England."

Specifications for Kerosene

Results of survey of the kerosene marketed in the United States, conducted by the Department of the Interior, through the bureau of mines, indicate the need of further investigation as to long-time burning oil. In this work the bureau of mines was able to obtain the cooperation of the Signal Section of the American Railway association. A large number of samples of railroad oil were examined. It is hoped that this work will eventually result in the preparation of a more satisfactory specification for this product than now exists.

Women Stand Ready to Help Disabled Veterans

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—Thousands of girls and women throughout the United States will take an active part in the coming "National Forget-Me-Not Days" of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War according to National Adjutant Raymond A. Lasance.

The splendid success of last year's "National Forget-Me-Not Day" drive will be over-shadowed this year, Mr. Lasance says, when the campaign will be opened Saturday, November United States. Prominent national, state and civic officials have already guaranteed their support and active participation in the disabled veterans' great "Day," when public-spirited citizens all over the United States will purchase the little paper and cloth flowers.

Proceeds of National "Forget-Me-Not Day" will be used for national legislative and welfare work; relief and educational measures in the interests of the world war's maimed and disabled American veterans, and general progressive activities in the national work of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.
