

E. W. PROVENCE NAMED TO SUCCEED CHITWOOD STATE SECRETS GUARDEDLY TOLD IN FALL-DOHENY TRIAL

ADMIRAL TELLS OF STRATEGIC PLANS OF NAVY

SAYS DOHENY WAS AIDING GOVERNMENT BY BIDDING

ORDERED TO TALK JUDGE RULES ROBISON MUST TELL ALL FACTS

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A guarded story of the navy department's "state secrets" of the Pacific went before the jury in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial today after Secretary Wilbur's formal order to Rear Admiral W. J. K. Robison, retired, forbidding disclosure of "confidential matters," had been admitted in evidence.

Admiral Robison's testimony presented in general terms the conviction of navy executives concerning the strategic importance of the Pearl Harbor Hawaiian base in national defense plans. It went into the records after a ruling by Justice Hoehling of the supreme court of the District of Columbia that the trial court alone was authority on what may or may not go before the jury.

Government attorneys, who entered perfunctory objection to admission of Secretary Wilbur's order, prepared to fight to cross-examine Admiral Robison, as to when these "confidential matters" agitated naval officers, particularly with reference to the situation after the Washington naval armament conference in 1922.

Under present plans, Secretary Wilbur will be called to the witness stand Monday for examination as to why he sought to withhold from the record testimony regarded by counsel as of vital importance to the defense case.

Admiral Robison twice refused to answer the interrogations of defense attorney Frank J. Hogan regarding the importance of the Pearl Harbor project in the deliberations of the navy department, and then to reply to Justice Hoehling's summary directed him to.

He then related that he had revealed this confidentially to the defendant, Edward L. Doheny, late in 1921, when Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Trading company contemplated building on a 4,000,000-barrel oil storage plant at Pearl Harbor.

The Pan-American company was awarded the contract, Robison said, chief of the naval bureau of engineering, approving it and the E. K. Hill lease to Doheny.

Admiral Robison said Doheny was "considerably agitated" by what had been revealed and gave assurance that the government might bank "on least one bid."

Preferential Rights The clause in the Pearl Harbor contract which gave the Pan-American interest "preferential rights" on such lands in the E. K. Hill, Calif., naval reserve as might thereafter be opened to leasing by the then secretary of the interior, Fall, as regarded at that time unimportant, said Robison.

Admiral Robison was on the stand throughout the entire short session today. His examination was directed by Hogan to the defense contention that the navy department's part in the leasing negotiations precluded all possibility of conspiracy between Fall and Doheny as charged by the government. His direct examination had not been completed when court adjourned until Monday morning.

ARMY WEAKENED Hines Says Reduction "Merits Serious Consideration"; Former Chief of Staff Makes Report

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—With only 51.3 per cent of the officers and 81 per cent of the enlisted men available in the regulars, national guard and organized reserves to carry out the six field army major mobilization plan contemplated by the national defense act of 1920, the situation "merits the most serious consideration," Major General John L. Hines, former chief of staff, declared in his last annual report. Progressive reductions and curtailments in the strength of the regular army since 1920, said the report, made public Saturday, have brought about "an inevitable weakening of the mobilization structure as important struts" have been topped off.

Burglars Break Into Local Store

The Hemphill-Price store at 1212 Avenue J, was entered by thieves early Saturday morning, but late last night officials of the company said they found nothing missing. Entrance was gained, presumably about 6 o'clock a. m. when the lock on the rear door was broken by the use of a chisel or screw driver. The door was pried off, and the door shows chisel marks. Someone was heard in the building about 6 o'clock by the negro porter, but presuming that some of the boys had come down to work early, he said he paid no attention to it. Later it was discovered that the door had been pried open, and efforts to check the stock for possible loss had not been completed last night. No clues are held by officers, it was said, and no trace of the brigands has yet been found.

TEXAS MOTHER AND GIRL FOUND DEAD NOTE POINTS TO MURDER AND SUICIDE; HOUSE IS BURNED

Mrs. Cooper had been married less than a year and her husband was away on business at the time of the tragedy. A note in the mail box signed by Mrs. Cooper, stated that she had just killed her daughter, despite the letter's pleas that her life be spared and that she was about to set fire to the house and kill herself. The bodies were found about 75 feet from the house, in the mother's hand was a razor.

W. B. POWELL IS INITIAL DONOR OF FUNDS FOR POOR CALLS AT AVALANCHE-JOURNAL OFFICE WITH CHECK FOR $10 WANTS 100 MORE CHRISTMAS EDITOR SAYS SANTA NEEDS SOLID ASSISTANCE

W. B. (Kid) Powell has the honor and distinction of making the first donation to the Avalanche-Journal's Christmas Cheer Fund for Mr. Powell visited the Avalanche-Journal office Saturday, and insisted upon leaving his check for $10. Naturally it was accepted, and it is the hope of the Cheer Fund editor that about 100 good citizens of this city will follow the action of Mr. Powell.

There is no limit as to the amount of money needed, neither is there a goal. We simply want every dollar we can get and assure ever donor the money given this fund will be well spent. Just because you have three meals each day, plenty of warm clothes, and money to spend is no sign that other people—many of them your neighbors, are as fortunate. As a matter of fact there are many families in Lubbock worthy of assistance, and they are depending upon you to render this assistance. A few dollars will not cripple you, but it will bring joy and happiness to others.

Miss Eula Hurst Guards 150 Students She's Confident for H. S. Senior Class

Guarding the welfare of 150 youngsters who are "sitting on top of the world" is only half the job of sponsoring the senior class of the high school, according to Miss Eula J. Hurst, who has this task. And it isn't so easy as those same boys and girls college, dropping to the position "time," "lower than the seacreech bottom of the ocean."

In addition to teaching five out of eight senior English classes in the school, Miss Hurst is sponsor of the year book, the newspaper, which is issued twice monthly, and of all other class activities. Although she is assisted by others in this work, as the official class sponsor, she takes the lead. G. N. Atkinson, Miss Rita Wallace, and Don Powers assist in sponsoring the newspaper and M. E. Witt, also is sponsor of the class.

One hundred and fifty boys and girls have met all credit requirements of seniors and are now enjoying the privileges of that body in the local high school. There is a class of "orphans" students from unaffiliated schools who probably will graduate, according to Miss Hurst. After the first term of school they enjoy full senior privileges if they make an average grade above 80.

Brilliant Students "Orphan"

Some of the most brilliant and capable students are found in the orphan group. Miss Hurst said, pointing out that Joe Seeger, they boy making the highest average among senior boys last year and an exceptionally good student, who is now attending the Tech, was an "orphan" in the fall of 1925.

Homer Herdberger is president of the senior class this year, assisted by Warren James as vice-president and Miss Sallie Egan as secretary-treasurer. Old rose and silver are the colors chosen by this group with the sweet pea as a class flower. "The stars our camp, the Deity our light" is their motto.

The class is planning to give two plays this year, one in February and the other near the close of school, and proceeds from these two probably will constitute the principal working fund of the class for all activities. Miss Hurst said.

Yearbook is Begun

Staffs have been chosen and work has started on the yearbook and the newspaper, the first edition of the latter, the Westerner, to be off the press this week.

Westerner, with Miss Sarah Michie, assistant editor; Maurice Powell, business manager and Edward Blackwell and Haskell Beard as assistant business managers.

The board of publication, which was elected by the high school student body, is as follows: Eighth grade, H. C. Garrard and Howard Price, low ninth, Miss Eulalie Henderson and Miss Inez Hensley, high ninth grade, Allen Moses and Miss Evelyn Woodson, tenth grade, James Kennedy and Miss Marjorie Atneworth, eleventh grade, Miss Lois Love and Cyrus Leonard.

No advertising will be sold for the yearbook, Miss Hurst said, and the class will be allowed to spend only $500 upon the publication. Aside from the yearbook, a campaign is being conducted from December 1 to 18, the class will use the fund raised through giving the plays to finance the publication. The election of favorites for the book will be after the Christmas holidays.

Green is Editor

Lawrence Green is the editor of the yearbook and Mancell Hall is business manager. Other members of the staff are as follows: Assistant business manager, Maurice Powell; associate editor, Miss Sallie Egan; art editor, Miss Lucille Jordan, joke editor, Miss Feller Dockray.

Seniors have literary, artistic and athletic abilities in addition to purely academic qualities. Miss Hurst said, although most of the latest possibilities of students are discovered after they have reached college and have a greater choice of work. Of the 15 lettermen in the high school, about one third of them are members of the senior class, she said, and 16 seniors were members of the football squad, with Orville Brothers serving as captain.

Three Girls Edit

Three girls in the class have lettered in athletics, Misses Leliese Hays, Mildred Harris and Ada McCarty.

Brady Isaacs, a member of the class, shows poetical tendencies worthy of notice. Miss Hurst thinks, and Miss Lucille Jordan's art work distinguishes her, she said.

High school students are not allowed the freedom of choosing their subjects that is granted in universities, Miss Hurst said, and for this reason, the teachers do not "discover" talent and tendencies so often in the public

Slaton Test Well Down 600 Feet

(Special To The Avalanche Journal)

SLATON, Texas, Dec. 4.—Slaton's deep test for oil which was recently spudded in on the El Capitan lease, Robertson ranch lands, and located five miles east of this city, has passed a depth of six hundred feet in drilling operations.

The El Capitan lease includes 26,000 acres and the contract depth of the well now drilling is 1,500 feet. Considerable leasing is being seen here at this time.

Most of the boys and girls have rather vague ideas of vocations that they will follow, although they do sometimes confide their ambitions to their sponsor. With a large per centage of the 1926 graduation class now in the Tech as freshmen, many of them have come to Miss Hurst this fall for advice about courses and subjects to study.

Students Seek Her

She was sponsor of that class last year and it seemed natural for the boys and girls to come to her this fall with their college problems, knowing that she would help them to the best of her abilities.

"I thought last spring that I would not sponsor another senior class," Miss Hurst said this week. "For just as I had learned to love each one as an individual and felt that the class members were loyal enough to me to do anything that I wished, they graduated and scattered."

Miss Hurst knows each member of her class no matter how large it is. Instead of seating the students alphabetically and knowing them according to where they sit in the class room, she learns them as individuals, although it takes much longer in this way, she said.

It is this, with her system of discipline that makes her beloved to the boys and girls in the school. "Miss Hurst has the most orderly room in the school and yet she is the least strict of the teachers," one member of her class said recently, and "Discipline in high school is not based upon fear, but upon sympathy and understanding," the teacher said. "I try to place myself in the student's position and feel his reaction to happenings," is the rule guiding her judgments.

Ask Bids to Carry Lamesa Mail

(Special To The Avalanche Journal)

LAMESA, Dec. 4.—There has been posted in the lobby of the local post-office notices asking for bids for carrying first class mail between Lubbock and Lamesa by way of Tahoka and O'Donnell. This service was in operation for several months during the fall of 1925 and the carrying of 1926, and the postoffice department wishes to inaugurate this service again. Previously it was impossible for the department to get a permanent contract with anyone which was the reason for discontinuing the service. Various persons and the commercial organization in the town are to be benefited by this service have been at work on the proposition for some time and if it is at all possible for the postoffice to get a reasonable bid and are able to get permanent contract this service will be started. It is hoped that some one will turn a bid for furnishing this much needed service of this town.

SUPPOSED VICTIM OF SLEEPING SICKNESS TO BE PLACED UNDER SPECIAL TREATMENT THIS WEEK

The condition of W. W. Scott, 18, who for the past two years has been a victim of what doctors believe is sleeping sickness, and for ten days has been under-treatment of specialists in the Lubbock clinic here, remained practically unchanged Saturday. Dr. V. V. Clark, of the clinic, who is in charge of the case said.

Two strange organisms have been found in the blood of the youth, Dr. Clark said, but these have not yet been identified. Efforts to discover a means of culture of the organisms have yet been unavailing, but laboratory experiments are still going on.

Doctors plan within the next day or two to make tests of the serum in the spine, and Dr. Clark said Saturday that he is today placing young Scott under special treatment for the tests. To date, the only medicine given has been stimulants to aid in keeping him awake, but the patient says even this has little effect on his condition.

This condition is being closely watched by doctors, and due to its strangeness, is attracting wide interest here. It is the only case of the particular kind known to have been discovered in this part of the state, and doctors hope for a cure as long as the patient is kept away from insects and swampy and tropical regions, as that the germ will not be continuously replaced in the blood by insect bites.

Young Scott has been a victim of the maldy more or less since he was bitten by the rare insect in a swampy section of East Texas about two years ago. He immediately falls asleep when alone, or even when engaged in a monotonous conversation. Only vigorous exercise or a real lively conversation will keep him awake. He is able to work, and is steadily employed as far as his condition will permit.

He was removed by his father upon advice of doctors the last week from employment at a gin plant at Shalio-water after he narrowly escaped death when he went to sleep and fell across a large belt in the plant. He is now employed in the open, and as long as he vigorously engaged, can do as much manual labor as any averaged in health, so far as physique is concerned, and is a good athlete.

Treatment for another week probably will disclose some feature of the case to give doctors an opportunity to get at the bottom of the case, or at least to make a definite decision as to whether the maldy is sleeping sickness or some other ailment, it was said Saturday.

O'Hara Inspired "Abie's Irish Rose"

A simple little story of a Jewish boy who had married an Irish girl, as recounted one night by Fliske O'Hara, formed the basis of the soul-stirring comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose." It was revealed recently by Miss Anne Nichols, producer and playwright. Miss Nichols, who at that time had written several successes for O'Hara, heard him tell the story one night. She worked all that night and many more nights until she had completed her manuscript, which was to prove such a ridiculous "bit of rotteness," to so many Wisecrack along Broadway. The story, according to Miss Nichols, was that of a Jewish boy who was trying hard to keep his parents from knowing that his wife was Irish. In every way he sought to palm her off as a Jewess. "The trick was going fine," Miss Nichols said. "No one could make a better plate of gefitefish than Rose. Then one night when her father-in-law came into her bedroom, he discovered her kneeling before a small crucifix which she had attached to a bedpost. The father ran from the house, uttering inarticulate cries of

Deluge of Chilly Checks for Drugs

A young man, about 25, who gave his name as Jackson, and who was frustrated in an attempt to pass an alleged worthless check at the J. C. Penney store here Friday, was not satisfied with the failure of this attempt, and before he left town, made several druggists of Lubbock victims of his scheme, according to reports at police headquarters Saturday.

Other dry goods houses of the city were notified by Penney after the episode, and supposing that this was sufficient, nothing else was done in an effort to apprehend him. But taking advantage of the dark, he immediately stepped into action again, and passed several checks varying in amount from $9 to $12. No clues as to his identity have been found by officers.

THE LORD REIGNETH—"Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice; and let men say among the nations, the Lord reigneth." 1 Chron. 16:31.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT

This question is in the minds of a lot of people at this time in the state of Texas. We refer to our courts and the wholesale pardoning policy of the present administration on the number of pardons for the term of office as governor, during which time Mrs. Ferguson has had the reins, has been astounding to most people. Very soon after she was installed in the office pardoning began. It has kept up a very steady gait, until after the primary when it was known that her reign must come to an end soon, no doubt a deluge of applications were shovled upon her, and as a result the list has grown steadily. Thanksgiving brought a large number and several batches since that time. Christmas and New Year will no doubt have their fling, and the list will be greatly augmented. We do not take the position that the policy of pardons is all wrong. In some cases we believe they are justified, but we cannot think that the wholesale pardoning of convicted men and women can be the proper thing to do. We believe the effect on the morale of the state will be bad. We believe it will have the effect of encouraging crime. Fact of the business the wave of crime that is going on over the state at this time is no doubt the result of the effect that such action has on the minds of the criminally-inclined people of the country. It has become apparent that about all that is necessary is to get a list of people to sign a petition and the work is done. The fear of punishment is the success of the criminal laws, and when there is no fear there will be no respect for the laws by that class of people who are continually breaking them anyway. The failure of the courts, the juries and the so-called law-abiding citizens of the community to back up the peace officers is responsible for much of it. One of our good exchanges, the Vernon Record says: 'The unusual and unprecedented number of pardons issued during the last few weeks cannot fail to arouse a feeling that our legal machinery is being made into a mockery and that if justice is to be obtained it must come from one's own efforts. 'But there is no occasion for blaming the Governor with all this condition. She may be primarily responsible, but she is by no means wholly so. When grand jurors that indict, petit jurors that try, and state's attorneys who prosecute persons convicted of crime join with a long list of friends, including public officers of all ranks, we can't blame the Governor very much for granting pardons. Hardly a pardon is issued that is not supported by the petition of a long and impressive list of respected citizens. When bankers, business and professional men, mayors; county and state officials ask the Governor to grant a pardon, these latter ones, more than the Governor, are responsible. 'The regrettable feature of this situation is that it reveals a lack of respect for the law and the courts that is more wide-spread than one could believe possible in a citizenship that claims to stand for the best interests of the great majority whose lives and property are placed in jeopardy by acts of criminality. 'The failure to mete out justice to begin with must have been the trouble if the cases where 'they say' the prisoner should never have been sent to the penitentiary. This is a positive accusation against the courts of the country, and should not be continued. If a person is unjustly convicted it is wrong and if justly convicted then we do not see the justice of releasing the criminal from the punishment assessed. We are confident that it will prove a boomerang to society, and will cause a lot of folks to disrespect the laws, believing to begin with that they will possibly never be caught because of the failure of the citizenship to cooperate with the peace officers, and if caught will possibly be acquitted by some hook or crook of the courts and if convicted will be given a pardon before they go to prison or shortly afterward. Let justice reign. We are sure that the new administration will be beset with a deluge of applications after all have been given liberty that the present governor feels she can afford to release, and it remains to be seen just what Dan Moody will do. Criminals and their friends and their attorneys will of course test out the new machinery and the months following will determine what the results will be with the new Governor in the chair.

DISTRICT BANKS CONDITIONS VIGOROUS

Officials of the Reserve District, in commenting on the general conditions of the banks in the Eleventh District say that the declines in merchandise movements in the Southwest are counterbalanced by the fact that banks generally are in good condition, and the increased yields of feed crops, it is declared in the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, just made public. Crude oil production in the Eleventh Federal Reserve District reached a new high level in October, the report recounts, with 20,287,676 barrels. Drilling operations also are reported as going forward rapidly. A decline in petroleum prices, due to the increased production, also is noted.

There was a marked decrease in wholesale trade, but a seasonal increase in the retail trade, although not so great an increase as was recorded at the same time last year. The demand for farm implements fell off appreciably, due to the fact that many farmers were unable completely to liquidate their indebtedness. Condition of member banks over the district is reported as gratifying. An appreciable increase in savings depositors and a substantial increase in deposits to drawing accounts are mentioned.

Crop conditions are good, as a rule, aside from cotton, the report shows; the ranges are in excellent shape and the cattle market fluctuated slightly.

'Financial conditions are generally sound, even though the credit situation is somewhat tighter than for several years,' the report said. 'Increased yields of feed crops assure feed, an important item in the cost of agricultural operations. Plans for withdrawing a large portion of the surplus cotton from the market are underway and efforts are being made to bring about a large reduction of the cotton acreage and the diversification of crops.'

The report goes further by saying that a great increase in the production of poultry, which requires a comparatively small outlay of cash with big rapid returns make the outlook more promising than many people would think. Dairy products will also be greatly increased and the cream and butter receipts will have a great deal to do with the future prosperity of the State. It has been found that large money can be made from production of butter, and cream, and from eggs and chickens as well as turkeys on the farm, and the hog and sheep raising feature of the program will likewise work well to stimulating the financial condition of the Southwest.

PLAN SAVINGS FOR NEXT YEAR

Now is a good time to make plans for the coming year. No matter what ideas are incorporated in these plans they should include some provision for the systematic saving of money. Many persons make resolves of this kind each year, hold to their resolutions for a while and then let them go. Quite often this is due less to instability of character than to defective planning. It is as much a mistake to try to save beyond one's means as it is to try to live beyond one's means. There are right and necessary demands made upon every individual. If we try to save too much, especially if we are beginners in thrift, we court failure. The amount to be saved is a matter of adjustment. The man who has never saved money will find that he can save more the second year on the same income than he was able to save the first. This is because, with the development of thrift habits, he not only finds it easier to restrict his extravagances and unessentials, but he finds his efficiency increased. He develops short cuts. He learns that, with ingenuity, he can attain the same results often at less cost than when he was not under self-discipline. It is for these reasons that every savings plan should be based on the idea of systematic accumulation. There is little value in sporadic saving but there is incalculable merit in putting aside specified amounts regularly regardless of how inconsequential they may be. Plan your savings for the coming year along sensible lines. Adjust them to your income and to the conditions of life about you. Goethe observed that "enthusiasm is of the greatest value when we are not carried away by it." This can be applied to saving money as well as to everything else in life. Even in thrift there is harm in over-enthusiasm.

Little Avalanches

In an article headed "Beg Your Pardon," the Birmingham News apologizes to former Warden Davis of the Flat Top, Ala., prison for saying that he was accused of a shortage in his accounts, when the examiners merely charged him with "irregularities" in bookkeeping. The article of apology adds that Mr. Davis will face trial on November 1 on the charge of murder in connection with the death of a convict at the prison. A good newspaper always gladly makes corrections when in error.

That one may travel a lot without getting anywhere is illustrated by the case of Nicholas G. Stoehr of Pittsburgh, who has covered a million miles in the last 35 years. He has just retired from service as a street car conductor in his home city.

Correspondence courses are no doubt helpful to a certain extent but they have their limitations, as 17-year-old Otto Uban of New York can painfully testify. Studying to be an expert detective, he tried to follow written instructions for the correct handling of a revolver—and shot himself in the knee.

Persons of varying shades of religious opinion will view a recent occurrence at Port Huron, Mich., according to their respective lights. There an American flag, donated by the K. K. K. was hoisted by a negro war veteran to the top of a pole given by a prominent Jew, while the dedicatory address was made by a Catholic priest, the ceremony taking place in the yard of the Methodist Church.

The Big Show

SO THINK WE

We think that a real windy argument is usually easily punctured.

We think Lubbock should reach out for development of many industries that at present are lying dormant. What about building a potato curing plant here and make this one of the leading industries of the South Plains? There is no use going east or west or north or south for potatoes when we can produce them in Lubbock in quantities that will exceed the local demand and furnish a wholesale market for all that are raised here.

We think many things will happen in Lubbock during the coming year for the betterment of the community, but the more people of this community help them to come to pass, the faster they will happen.

We think the resolve of the citizens of Lubbock should be that not less than twenty miles of good cement sidewalks will be built during 1927.

We think the total acreage of cotton next year should not be any more than this year, on the South Plains, counting the thousands of acres of new land that will be put in, and the number of sows and cows and hens that should be multiplied by five.

We think that Lubbock should have a weather signal station.

We think that Lubbock will need several miles more paving before this time next year. Great care should be exercised in the kind of paving put down, so that the property owners will get the most footage for the least amount of money possible, of course, always taking quality into consideration. But it has been found that thinner brick gives equally as good service and the cost is very much reduced.

We think that if courtesy is cultivated for its own sake, and not as a business asset, that it will very soon become such anyway.

We think that possibly the bird that said the good die young had in mind this day and time when there was so much bad in the world that it is hard to live good.

We think that the size of the other fellow has much to do with keeping down a good many fights.

We think it used to be real that where there is a will there is a way. The modern reading where there is a will there is also a bill.

We think that it is altogether the way it is written as to whether it is news or not. For instance, a farmer killed a hog and there was no news to that, but when the hog killed the farmer it was a banner story.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that 875 students in Southwestern University are in danger of being sent home at the end of the fall term because of deficiency grades. Students as a whole are not thinking as much of grades as they are many other things at this stage of the game.

It is reported that many farmers are interested in the growing of potatoes, and all they want to know is that Lubbock will provide a curing plant that they may be able to save all they can grow.

It is reported that a number of Lubbock men are wiser and poorer for a recent visit of a "bootlegger" to Lubbock. As the story goes, Mr. Boot Legger went over town and got up a list of names enough to take up a full case of "Old Scotch" collected for money for the booze, and departed for parts unknown without having delivered the said spirits.

It is reported that the fellow who slew the chief of police at Elmer several days ago died of wounds inflicted in the fight. The wages of sin, etc.

It is reported some Lubbock farmers have made a good living for their family and have money in the bank to buy Christmas presents for the whole family, just from the crop of turkeys on the farm this year.

It is reported that automobile wrecks continue to increase. Most of the wrecks are caused from pure carelessness on the part of people who do not take the proper precautions. They are either careless about driving, or they fail to keep their cars in good condition so they can control them or the lights are defective or none at all. Automobile drivers should be more careful in order to reduce the number of accidents to the minimum.

It is reported that many accidents occurring between automobile and wagons is caused by the wagons having no lights at night. Of course drivers of wagons, look upon this as a huge joke, but sometimes it would avoid an accident for the driver of a wagon to have a lantern placed some where on the wagon where it could be seen from back and front. This would possibly eliminate some of the fatalities and damages to property.

WEEKLY SHORT SERMON

"And a child shall lead them" Grace White in Sunshine Weekly

Some time ago I read a story which impressed me greatly. It was entitled, "Jesus Paid My Fare." It was about a little girl whose parents were dead, and she was left all alone in the world. Her parents had been Christians and had told her about Jesus and His love to the lost world.

One day she was very lonely and ill, and wanted her mama very much to comfort her. She went to her little room, got a few things wrapped them in a bundle and then went out in front of the house where the trolleys stopped, and took the first one that came along.

When the conductor came to her to collect the fare, she lifted her sad face to him and answered, "Jesus paid my fare." Very sternly he said again, "Fare please," but she gave him the same answer as before. He asked her "Whom do you mean by Jesus?" She said, "Why haven't you heard of the Man who died that we might get to Heaven? That is where I want to go, to be with Mama; she is there."

He turned and left her and went to the front of the car and thought of his own little girl who only a short time before had gone to heaven. She was just about this little girl's age.

In a little while he came back again and wanted to know how she knew Jesus died for us. She answered, "Because the Bible tells me so. It says 'God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.' He died that sinners may be saved and get to Heaven."

Fearing she was ill, he took her to a hospital because she looked so weak and tired. She was there only a few days when she went to be with her mama and Jesus.

The conductor that night went home and got down on his knees and began to pray earnestly for Jesus to save his soul, and he soon found his Savior.

Children, Jesus has paid the fare to Heaven for every one of you. He paid it with his own precious blood, which he shed on Calvary for us all. He said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." If you have not been a good boy or girl, Jesus can make you so and help you to be a blessing to others, as this little girl was a blessing to the conductor and brought him to know his Savior.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 3.—"Little Switzerland appreciates the grave immigration problem of the gigantic republic of the west, but we would be very grateful if your government could find some way to let more Swiss citizens come to America, settle down and become law-abiding members of your body politic."

This was President Henri Haerberlin's opening remark made in his modest drawing room, when I interviewed him in his home here.

The democratic Swiss people expect their chief executives to lead the lives of ordinary Swiss citizens, maintaining the kind of home their purse can afford. There is no red tape. I had an appointment with the president and I walked up three flights of stairs until I reached a door on which was a neatly placed little white card which read: "Henri Haerberlin."

No crests, no coat of arms, no flags no flap-doodle of any kind. I might have been calling on a grocer or a lawyer.

President Haerberlin was at pains to explain to me that the government of his country was in many aspects like our own, only on a smaller scale. The country is divided into 22 cantons, each of which is in many respects self governing like our states. The Federal assembly, which corresponds to our congress, elects a Federal council of seven for terms of three years. Each member of this council conducts a state department, just as our cabinet officers do. And the head of the federal council, elected annually, is the president of the republic.

"America," said the president, "very rightly fears an influx of immigrants who are illiterate. It need not fear that as regards the Swiss. Like you, we have a compulsory school system where children have to go for at least eight years. Also for our four million people, we have seven universities, some of which are world renowned."

He leaned forward earnestly in his worn old armchair, as he started to make another point: "In politics our ideal is strict and honest neutrality. We have no professional politicians and, therefore, no graft. Amendments to our constitution are voted on by the people in a direct referendum. For instance, we are the only people in the world who voted directly on the question of joining the League of Nations."

"We never strove to take land away from other nations. But with our dense population and so large a part of our territory unproductive, our people have long been folk who emigrate. I think I can truthfully state that our best elements go abroad and not those who have failed at home, or

"Well, ours can walk across the room without being held," countered the other. "They not only make their home there, but they keep their money there and invest it there."

"In Switzerland we have four languages and four racial elements: German, French, Italian and Rumanian. Switzerland is not a melting pot. The peoples have kept their language and their cultures, but they have learned team-work and tolerance. Anxious About Immigration The president stood up, tall and lean, with olive skin and keen brown eyes. He was dressed in simple, loose fitting clothes.

"I hope I have made you understand, Miss America, why we are so anxious about your new immigration question. And as I left, there was a homely touch. The president was playing with his cat. ALL-PANHANDLE GRID TEAM IS SELECTED

KNUTE ROCKNE'S MEN NOSE OUT ON TROJANS BY 13 TO 12

FIVE WESTERNERS AND FOUR SANDIES WITH THREE PLAINVIEW PLAYERS, ARE NAMED AS FIRST MYTHICAL ELEVEN

By JAS. R. DOW
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor
 After a very characteristic and most unusual gridiron calendar, with a microscopical view of the Panhandle class A high school eleven, Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock, the Avalanche-Journal sports editor has seen and observed the lads from all angles, from far off and close up; have noticed their head work; observed their tactics on both the offense and defense; watched their ability in passing, punting, running, and in no manner feels any hesitancy in making his annual All-Panhandle selection. The outstanding performers of the three schools run neck and neck and it becomes a real intellectual task to comb out the differences in such a way as to figure out the rightful possessor of their respective positions on the mythical eleven.

In this selection, Lubbock heads the other schools, by having five of its members on the eleven; Amarillo has four, and Plainview, two.

The Selection

Bassett Outstanding
 Carter Bassett, the mainstay of the Sandie club, unquestionably is the outstanding and best all-around player that graced a Panhandle gridiron this season. He ran his club with unusual ease as the brains of the club and a triple threat any moment in the game. Maurice Powell, the Westerner quarterback, is a heady youngster and was largely responsible for the onward march of the Westerners in their year's achievement; but still he lacked the punch and varied qualities that are possessed by Carter Bassett, who has been placed on the first team.

Probably the strongest position of the mythical eleven will be found in the guards and tackles—the clubs in the Panhandle this season, and especially is this true of Lubbock and Amarillo; they were not linemen of strong lines. They were not linemen of excessive weight but were rangy built and had plenty of fight. Raymond Barton, the fiery tackle of the Westerner, displayed more fight and presented a very aggressive type of offense and defense attack.

Jack Wilhelm, the Plainview strong-hold in defense, is of a rangy build and is capable of being called back for an offense attack on off tackle plays. In the last two title games the rangy Bulldog lineman displayed rare ability in carrying on backfield work. His work was very impressive in the Amarillo game in backing up the line; he smothered and threw the Sandies back for losses time and again.

Westerners Second
 Mark Cummings and Pack Rutledge, both members to the Westerner forces, have been placed on the second team, because both the lads were first year men, inexperienced, and somewhat awkward in handling themselves; however, with the coming team next season these tackles will have plenty to offer to the opposing eleven as they have gained considerable knowledge in the grid event.

At guards, in the opinion of the writer, Larsen, of Amarillo, and "Tuffy" Wolffarth, are the strongest individuals in the position. "Tuffy" Wolffarth is one of the most experienced linemen in the Panhandle and in every contest he exhibited the same smashing type of defense. In the Amarillo contest, Wolffarth was called upon to back the line; in this same game the stocky built Westerner muddled every Sandie attack at line and was also the main figure in crashing into and runs attempted by the Amarillo club.

Larsen, Sandie tackle, has been placed at the other guard on account of his build and experience. Like Wolffarth, he has a wide knowledge of the game and is capable of putting up a stiff defense attack.

Conkila, of Amarillo, and Carter, of Plainview, are both inexperienced in the game but can exhibit a great fight in defense. However, on the offense, they both lack the punch that is possessed by both Larsen and Wolffarth.

Evenly Matched
 Bishop, center for the Amarillo Sandies, and Curtis Allen, center for the Westerners, are as nearly evenly matched and it is almost a toss up for their position. But in the writer's estimation, Bishop is the stronger of the two; he seemed to have a stronger conception of the game and is considerably heavier and more able to withstand the charges of the opposing backs. Although, Allen was capable of backing a line to a perfection, and was the main figure in breaking up many of the off-tackle charges.

In the backfield of this selection three men who are capable of triple threat, Bassett at quarter; Reynolds, at half; and Smith at fullback, are the fittest back of the Westerners, is not a triple threat man but in no way could he be left off of the first selection on account of his speed and ability in broken field running.

Boswell, captain of the Bulldogs, is a fast man and is possessed with plenty of experience and is able to pass and kick.

Smith, Westerner fullback, is another triple threat and is the most outstanding man for the position. He is experienced and is a hard man to hold, runs straight up, which is not good style for a backfield man, but runs with his knees high and give the tacklers considerable trouble in their attempt to stop him.

The ends for this eleven, seemingly are the weakest positions. The terminal berths of the Panhandle Class A schools were not impressive. On every club in the Panhandle Class A clubs every other position on the team was stronger than the wings. But Bill Teal, of Lubbock, and Nunn, of Amarillo, seem to be the best bets.

These lads are of the same type, stronger on defense than on offense. Teal is the outstanding character in his position and came to the front several times in the Amarillo-Lubbock game.

This selection has been carefully considered and in the writer's opinion are the outstanding figures for the respective positions.

Tech Steer to Be Eaten by Gridsters

The young Hereford steer that is dear to the hearts of all students of Tech college, on which a brand of 30-0 was burned between halves of the first game the Matadors played after the school opened will be "sent up as a burnt offering" next Wednesday night at a program in the stock pavilion when athletes will be awarded to football letters and a captain elected for the 1927 squad. It was learned here Saturday.

The steer will be barbecued, and together with appropriate trimmings, will be served to the athletes, and their friends who are lucky enough to have invitations to the affair. The Matadors are looking eagerly forward to "killing the fattest calf" and appeasing their appetites on the meat of the animal that has in a measure built tradition for Tech. The hide will be saved and placed in the Tech trophy room.

The feed is being offered by Marvin T. Warwick, superintendent of buildings and grounds, the donor of the steer to the college. All trimmings are being arranged by Mr. Warwick, and a real program of entertainment is to be offered. Letters will be awarded deserving athletes, and a captain will be elected for next season at the meeting.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA COULDN'T KICK THAT EXTRA POINT, AND NOTRE DAME'S INVADERS DID THE REST

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP)—Speed on the breaks, head work in the pinches, ability to kick goal when it was needed, and baffling strategy gave the Notre Dame football team a 13 to 12 victory over Southern California here today.

Troy lost the first of the five inter-sectional games it has played primarily because there apparently was not a single toe in its big squad that could kick the extra point after touchdown. Notre Dame failed to do this once but made good on its other try and thereon hung the victory and the honor. An upstretched Trojan hand, there in an attempt to block the kick, worked with reverse English and tipped the pigskin just enough to send it over the bar.

With the exception of the last four minutes of play the battle was a grim struggle between two evenly matched football machines keyed up to near perfect playing pitch. There was one fumble, that by Hearndon of Notre Dame and he discounted its effect by recovering himself.

But the last four minutes with twilight darkening and Parisien's generalship functioning on high, brought the South Benders to the top of their form and in that brief period of action Southern California went down before a potential superior football aggression.

Rockney had pulled his last quarterback out of the reserve list when he sent Parisien to do the trick of victory. Riley, Edwards and McNally had preceded him and had shone, but Parisien was dazzling. He shot a 25 yard pass to Niemic on Southern California's 20 yard line. Then his unerring leg kicked another to Leppig, who went over for the touchdown that won.

Strolling Down Sport Lane With James R. Dow

Gus Miller, coach of the Slaton Tigers, is ready to begin with his Panthers in the cage line. Miller states that the majority of his club members will consist of former grid performers. The Slaton mentor expects to have a very fast combination this season.

Basketball is getting under way rapidly all over the South Plains. Daily reports are sent out from South Plains high schools relative to the 1927 basketball prospects. Apparently the cage sport will have its thrills and plenty of them this season.

Coaches L. J. Von Tungen and Henry Frnka will start actual training in the cage affair Monday after when they will make announcement for the initial training. From all indications this pair of mentors are setting their desires for another title club; they have expressed themselves already as to having a real fighting combination.

The Matadors will miss out on the pre-holiday training for basketball. They are waiting for the gigantic gymnasium to be finished. According to announcement made by the manager of athletics, H. C. Hervey, this gym will be completed for the lads soon after the Christmas holidays.

Reports from Canyon, seat of the West Texas State Teachers college, the Buffaloes have already started their training for the cage performance. Coach S. D. Burton, who has charge of the Buff basketball, has for the past six or seven years presented a winning club in the T. I. A. A. circles.

With the return of Captain Rupert Hays for the Westerner foot action the Westerners are fortunate. Rupert is one of the best high school dribblers to be found in the Panhandle has excellent floor work; is alert and gets his teammates into the best of action—his executive ability over his teammates is great.

Engineers Win Title in Tech Grid War

The Engineers won the college departmental championship of Texas Tech yesterday afternoon, beating the Liberal Art crew before a good attendance of students by a score of 15 to 6. Both teams fought to a draw in the initial period and the first scoring done was counted in the second session when Holter booted a field goal from the twenty yard line.

In the last period the Engineers tallied two touchdowns on the Liberal Art crew.

"Little Ache" Atchinson grabbed up Smythe's fumble and raced 95 yards for a touchdown; but was called back as one of his own men had tripped and his club suffered a penalty.

Okla City and Tulsa to "Stay Put"

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 4 (AP)—The Tulsa and Oklahoma City baseball clubs will remain in the Western League and will not be transferred to the Texas League, Das Gear, president of the Western League announced tonight. He said everything had been arranged to the satisfaction of the clubs at a conference.

The league's "rookie rule," which required the six out of 18 men carried by each club should not have any previous experience in class A baseball was abolished, Mr. Gear also announced.

The St. Joseph club will be moved to Amarillo, Texas, if satisfactory arrangements can be made with Amarillo interests, A. B. Tracey, president of the St. Joseph club announced.

Brownsville Jr. Wins Title Again

BROWNVILLE, Tex., Dec. 4 (AP)—Brownsville Junior high school, undefeated by a team in its class in two years, won the junior championship of South Texas today by swamping Kingsville Junior high, 13 to 0.

FIFTY TO SEVENTY-FIVE REGISTERED HOUNDS WILL BE HERE ON NEXT SUNDAY FOR BIG COURSING RACE

The stage is set for one of the greatest dog races in West Texas, or the Southwest. The Lubbock Coursing Park association is taking advantage of the dull sporting season and will offer to the sporting fans of the South Plains and Lubbock some real dog races. It is expected that some 50 to 75 registered hounds of the best blood in the Southwest will be here next Sunday, December 12, to take part in the event.

Daily the local association receives inquiries of the races and according to the secretary, Gene Wofford, some of the fastest hounds will be here to take part in the event. Owners of these hounds reside in Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and all parts of Texas.

Nothing is being forgotten in the coming event—rabbits have been contracted for and will be here for the races from Keesfield, Kansas, these rabbits are known to all Coursing Park associations of the Southwest as the "Kansas Blacktails." The Kansas rabbits are known to be the fastest rabbits to ever run on a coursing park.

Drawing for the heats in these races will be held Saturday evening, December 11th at a place to be later announced. The races will start immediately at two o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Oak Cliff Beats Cleburne 18 to 14

CLEBURNE, Texas, Dec. 4 (AP)—By a margin of four points, gained on a field goal and a safety Oak Cliff high school defeated the Cleburne Yellow Jackets here Saturday afternoon in a football game filled with spectacular play. Fully 7,000 people packed the stands and overflowed along the sidelines to watch the contest which ended with a 18 to 14 score, advancing the Leopards into the semi-finals of the interscholastic league's class A state championship race.

Woman Leaves Him,
But Wants His Cash

Being separated from a husband is perfectly all right as long as money holds out. But when money is all gone and there is no one to provide more, then a husband is as handy as a pocket in a shirt.

One woman in Lubbock realized this after it was too late. She had left her husband, who resides in a nearby town in an adjoining county, and came to Lubbock to live. All was well for a few days and then her money played out.
She went to a local service car-station, hired a car and then paid for it with a check she drew on her husband.

The check came back with the following notation: "Can not pay this check—signature unauthorized." Now the car owner declares he is not going to be the goat—he will swear out a warrant for the woman's arrest. In fact he did so late last night.

SLATON CANVASSED FOR BOY SCOUTS

MONEY WILL BE USED PARTLY TO IMPROVE PARK
AT POST

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, Texas, Dec. 4.—The South Plains area council, Boy Scouts of America, will benefit from a campaign being waged here to raise funds for boys' work in this section, a considerable portion of which will be used in improving the park at Post donated by the C. W. Post estate for the use of the scouts.

The drive for funds was begun here
Friday when the Rotary club sponsored the movement by appointing committees who worked Friday afternoon in canvassing the town for subscriptions. J. W. Hood, in charge of boys' work, fostered by local Rotarians, had charge of the program at Friday's launching. He introduced H. B. Emlinger,
South Plains' scout executive, L. S.
Harvey and R. J. Murray, all of Lubbock, who addressed the local club on the necessity for carrying to successful completion the work already started for the benefit of South Plains by scouts. Following the speeches made by these three men, the club's committee began their rounds of canvassing, returning in shortly more than an hour with over half of Slaton's quota subscribed, much of it in cash.

The campaign will be carried to completion during the next few days, it is believed by those in charge.

wrecked, Mr. Mansell's car escaped without serious damage. Neither of the

OIL MEN BUSY NEAR MULESHOE

Representatives Of Concerns
Seeking Leases Are Looking Over Prospects There

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
MULESHOE, Dec. 4.—The Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company has a representative in the Muleshoe territory at the present time looking for oil leases. The Humble, the Gulf Producing, The Sun and other big companies have been securing leases for the past few months until a goodly percentage of the county has been leased.

The Gulf Producing company's test well nine miles northwest of Muleshoe is at a depth of about 300 feet and drilling night and day. The crew doing the work is equipped with comfortable quarters for winter and with one of the best rigs to be found anywhere.

They are to drill to a depth of 3,500 feet or until oil is found in paying quantities.

SALVATION ARMY IS AIDING POOR

LUBBOCK UNIT OF ORGANIZA-TION IS DOING GREAT WORK WITH POOR

The local unit of the Salvation Army is planning this year to spread more Christmas cheer than during any holiday season since the organization has been operating here, and although receipts for this purpose have not come up to expectations of those in charge, they anticipate a heavy increase between now and Christmas, it was said Saturday.

The $25 donation by the Lubbock fire department is very much appreciated, officials of the unit said, and will be used to the best advantage possible. The Army now has approximately 40 families on its list that it is in a measure supporting, and each family has an average of five children.

Much Bread Distributed

During the past week the Army has distributed between 200 and 400 loaves of bread to needy families in the city.
The bread was donated by a baker
here, whose name is being withheld.
Some clothing has been received, and distributed, but much more assistance of this kind is needed, it was said.

In preparation for the holiday program that will be offered by the Army a hall to be used for practice has been donated on the first floor of the building occupied by the Elks club, and a good Christmas is being arranged.

Receipts from the Christmas letters are not up to expectation, it was said, but these are beginning to increase daily. Additional funds, however, are being called for.

GET CAR LICENSE NOW, SAYS HOLLAND

TAX COLLECTOR WARNS THAT BIG RUSH WILL COME LAST OF DECEMBER

It is now only four weeks until car owners will have to equip their cars with a 1927 license, and unless Lubbock people are different from people in other sections there will be a mighty rush about January 1st. Everybody will want a license plate at the same time. For this reason Tax Collector L. F. Holland hopes all car owners will get their plates on the last day to get their plates.

The collector has a supply of 1927 plates on hand and by the middle of this week will be ready to supply customers who wish them.

In order to save trouble, Mr. Holland insists that all car owners have their lights tested before they make application for license, as a light certificate is necessary before the number will be issued. There are a number of testing stations in the city, and the cost is nominal.

TRAFFIC OFFENDER WEEPS IN COURT

YOUNG MAN REPENTS IN TEARS FOR VIOLATION OF CITY LAWS

Many violators of various and sundry types have been handled by Desk Sergeant J. T. Inmon, of the Lubbock police department, but Mr. Inmon handled a case Saturday that according to his statement "got under his skin" more than any he has ever had.

He recounted the story of a young man brought before him for traffic violation, who before he had finished the routine of signing up and paying off, had delivered a moral lecture rarely ever heard in police court circles.

The young man, apparently raised in a law-abiding and God-fearing home, broke down and shed bitter tears before his lecture, which took bitterly to task law violators, was ended. "It isn't payment of the fine that I am protesting," the young man said, "but it is the thought that I have violated the laws of my city and state."

At this point his eyes filled with bitter tears, as he probably recalled the warnings of a loving mother who had always sought to guide him in the right way.

Efforts to console him, and statements that he probably would live over it, proved almost unavailing, but the young man left the building seemingly easier in mind, and vowed that he would never be guilty of law violation again.

A smile played over the genial face of the sergeant as he remarked "Oh, for more such youths in this fast modern age."

SWIPES TIES, BUT PAYS FOR 'EM WHEN HE GETS CAUGHT

If you can steal ties, and get by with it, maybe three will not be too many, but if you have to pay for them, better try making out on one or two. That is the way one Lubbock young man feels, for he did both—swiped them and then paid for them.

The lad entered the store of Hogan and Patton Saturday afternoon, and after "hanging around" the place for a while, wiked off with three ties valued at one dollar each. Carl Patton saw him and a few minutes later he was asked to pay for the ties. This young man did.

E. B. Gober, better known to Lubbock baseball fans as "Emmer," left Berger Saturday where he will make his home. Mr. Gober will be connected with the Thompson Furniture and Hardware company there.

ROAD BIDS FOR COUNTY CALLED

Nordyke Announces Work To Be Done On Drainage Of Shallowwater Road

Bids are to be received by the State Highway Department for construction of grade and drainage structures on state highway No. 7, from Lubbock to the Hockley county line, just beyond Shallowwater. It was announced by Chas. Nordyke, county judge here Saturday, in issuing official notice to contractors. The Commissioners Court of this county will receive bids until January 10, and at 2 p. m., they will be opened and publicly read.

The project involves approximately 17.5 miles of construction, and is a continuation through the county of the project now being finished up between here and the county line south through Slaton. Only grade and drainage construction will be done at the present time, the notice sets out.

Plans Are On File

Plans and specifications on the project are on file at the office of B. K. Garrett, Resident Engineer of Lubbock county, or at the office of the State Highway Department at Austin. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $2,000 to insure that the bidder, if successful, will enter into contract to complete the work as required.

Work is fast being brought to completion on the Slaton project, but the road is yet officially closed, and warnings have been issued advising that they must take the risk of accidents if they continue to use the highway.

Practically all right-of-way for the Shallowwater project has been secured, and this will be finished up in the immediate future if commissioners are forced to resort to condemnation proceedings. It was said, for it is the plan to have construction work start as soon as possible after contract is awarded.

EVANS ADVOCATES PROBLEM TEACHING

TECH EDUCATOR SAYS METHOD IS BEST ADAPTED FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

At the regular meeting of the teachers of the Lubbock schools held at the high school building at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the education department at Texas Technological college, addressed the teachers on the problem or project method of teaching.

Dr. Evans opened his address by expressing his appreciation to the schools of Lubbock for their co-operation with the educational department of the college in permitting the students of the college to do practice teaching in the public schools, and stated that the college would be glad to arrange for any special courses in education for next summer that would be wanted by the teachers present.

Dislikes Present System

Dr. Evans stated that text books are not adapted to teaching the child in the natural or psychological way. The major aim is not to present the matter but to link the material up with life. This can best be done by the problem or project method which was first used in 1910. The teacher should seek to raise real life situations in presentation. Begin with the unknown and from this there is a certain amount of curiosity aroused. Curiosity is always followed by a mental process to solve the mystery. In carrying out this problem method the work will be done in one of three ways: mental, symbolical or actual or real.

Gives Example

Here, Dr. Evans paused to give an example of a problem or project which was used in one of our schools in a sixth grade grammar class which showed how school work could be linked up with home life or community problems.

The duty of the teacher is to make the child realize the need of the problem being solved. In life problems this will be easy. If the child is in a mental process there will be no real physical problem for the teacher or problem of discipline. It is here that the only objection that has ever been raised against the problem or project method comes in. It has been claimed that children show so much interest and enthusiasm in the work that dead quietness which was formerly called "good order in the school room" is lost.

The problem method is not a lazy teacher's method. It requires effort and planning on the part of the teacher, he said. She must have the whole of the subject matter in hand and then work out problems to connect up the facts of the text with life problems. The subject matter to be taught must be well in hand of the teacher, she must be a student of human nature, social needs, and see life from the proper viewpoint. If education is to have the real meaning it should be presented through life problems so children will be taught how to meet life.

The next regular meeting of the teachers will be held after the holidays.

Feminists Marshal Forces to Fight Against War

Women at the helm in the Washington Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, to be held Dec. 5-10. From left to right, secretary, Miss Josephine Schain; general chairman, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt; president of the National League of Women Voters, Miss Belle Sherwin.

By VIRGINIA SWAIN NEA Service Writer NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—"War is the last infirmity of the sentimental male mind," cry the feminists.

"We also mean to show that it is the man who is the sentimentalist in war, as in nearly everything else, popular tradition notwithstanding."

The first aim of the Washington conference will be to define a plan of action to which all the organizations represented will subscribe.

Another Masculine Illusion It seems that another nice little bubble pricked by man is about to be exploded also—his conviction that he is the destined protector of woman and the home.

Women have no such status to maintain, and so are at liberty to say what they really feel about war. They will have to lead the battle for peace, all the way.

Arbitration and disarmament are the remedies for these evils, they believe, and they mean to bring about 25,000,000 American women into the campaign for these measures.

Cold-Facts Campaign Always accused of sentimentalism and emotionalism by the menfolk, the women are planning this time such a hard-boiled, cold-facts attack as will abash the hardest male.

"We intend to explode the fallacy that women's opposition to war is sheer emotionalism," says Mrs. Catt.

"Wars come only once in a generation, because the people who fight in them are too old and disillusioned to get into another. It's the new generation we have to guard against the romance and false patriotism of the jingoists."

There were millions of happy marriages and fewer divorces before women were emancipated.

For marriage is a simple thing for simple people. It is only when two over-educated people become united that complexities and difficulties arise.

Fashion Hints

RIBBON TRIMMING An effective trimming on dark serge and silk frocks is the use of bands of different, but harmonious colors in cross grain ribbon.

HAVE LONG SLEEVES The black lace dinner dress of this season is smartest when it has long sleeves. Clifton dinner frocks are quite as apt to have sleeves as to be without them.

SHAKESKIN MODE Gloves of a new kind that very closely resemble the skin have made their appearance on the market.

ON UMBRELLAS, TOO A red silk umbrella is effectively topped with a handle that combines red lizard, natural snake and ivory.

DARK SHOES Besides the light nude and pinkish tan shades in hosiery for evening, one sees an occasional gun metal or black.

WIDE FRINGE The most fascinating evening coats of this season are finished at the edge with wide silk fringe.

FOR SPORTS Novelty silks for spring include checked and plaid taffetas in brilliant colors, to be used for sport frocks.

SPRING FROCKS Metal and wool embroideries are featured on frocks for spring, and they are used on light wools and on cotton fabrics as well as on silks.

LARGER COATS In coats, one notices a tendency to fuller models and more circular cuts.

RIBBON AND LACE In the realm of luxurious lingerie are corsets of ribbon and lace, with brassieres of matching lace.

PINK AND GOLD An evening slipper of bright blue satin is edged with gold leather and embroidered with pink satin flower on the vamp.

JEWELLED PUMPS The use of brilliants and jewels on footwear persists. There are lovely yellow satin slippers with buckles, of topaz, black satin sandals outlined with rhinestone straps, and red satin ones heavily incrustated with pearls.

NEW SHAWLS Paisley shawls with fringed borders are a novelty from Czechoslovakia, and they are very attractive indeed.

PEARL FASTENINGS Pearl buckles have returned to favor and serve as fastenings for Jersey and velvet frocks, and sometimes on the more fragile fabrics like chiffon.

TAFFETA 'KERCHIEFS Handkerchiefs of washable taffeta, embroidered with odd little monograms are very dainty accessories.

FEW PASTELS Brilliant rather than pastel shades are desirable in millinery this season, though there is a grayish blue felt that is very popular because it blends so well with gray furs.

CHAPTER I

The Indianapolis Flyer, south bound from Chicago, was speeding through the black stretch of a rain-swept night in late October of the year 1895. It was ten o'clock.

For an hour and more Martha Dalton, from her own seat in the brilliantly lighted Pullman car, had been fruitfully studying the woman beside the window.

Not only was her professional interest aroused and her eye-like curiosity piqued, but her womanly sympathies were alert and forever seeking an outlet somewhere, had been challenged again. It was the old "mother call," and it was hammering at Martha Dalton's heart.

"But why," she kept asking herself with a whimsical sort of humor that old doctors used to say was "better medicine in a sick room than any physician," "why should I concern myself with the possibility of every woman's troubles? Lord knows I've got troubles enough of my own and to spare."

Thus Martha Dalton—"Mother" Dalton they had affectionately nicknamed her back there in the big maternity hospital where for four years she had battled with life and death, with internes, with graduate and undergraduate nurses, from the citadel of her arduous stewardship as ward supervisor—"Mother" Dalton—Martha of the Hoosiers—whose cry in arms might have been, "come all ye nameless babes and unfortunate mothers, and damned be them that forsake ye!"

The woman who had aroused these thoughts in Martha Dalton on that memorable night, a woman young, beautiful and alone, and wearing the badge of culture in the shape of her broad head, occupied a deep leather chair drawn close to a window. Spread across the back of her chair was a seal-skin coat. The handsome suit of brown broadcloth she was wearing bore the unmistakable stamp of New York tailoring. Her gloved hands were clasped tightly over a postman-tea resting in her lap.

On the floor at the side of her chair lay a rightly plumed Gainsborough hat. A splendid diamond sparkled on one finger. On another gleamed a heavy wedding ring. A great mass of bronzed hair like the rippling flow of a stream copper graced the shapely head, and the face, turned slightly away from the rain-lashed window pane, was tragic in its expression. In the depths of the dark eyes looking straight ahead was written a tragic story that seemed to tell of wrecked hopes and a shattered faith.

At times, as she watched, Nurse Dalton would see the woman's clasped fingers grip the knuckles in a convulsive clutch. The mobile mouth would grow strangely distorted for a fleeting moment, and into the handsome eyes would leap a frantic gleam, to hold for a brief instant and then gradually fade out again.

"That woman," the watcher finally told herself, "is suffering both mental and physical torture. Unless I am greatly mistaken, she ought to be got into a hospital and that pretty quick. So I reckon, after all, that it's up to me to get busy."

At that instant the train began to slow up. They were nearing the station of Martha Dalton's own home town, Camdenville. She rose with quick determination and crossed over to the woman by the window.

"Please pardon me, madam," she began, getting to the heart of her purpose on the jump. "I am a nurse, as you can see. I live in this town and you need it quick. This is no time or place to bother about formalities. If you'll come with me I'll take care of you."

The woman looked up and into the nurse's eyes. What she saw there seemed to soothe for a moment both her tortured brain and body. She tried to smile, but it was a crooked, pitiful little smile that was wiped out when the slender body twisted and then suddenly crumpled in the chair. The bronze-topped head dropped over to one side.

Nurse Dalton bent down and caught the drooping form in her arms. A second later the train drew up at the station and stopped. She looked around. Several men were sitting close by but none made any offer of aid. A porter rushed up from the rear of the car.

"Can I help you, ma'am?" he inquired, solicitously.

Nurse Dalton flashed him a grateful look.

"Indeed you can," she replied swiftly. "You can help me get her off the train and into the waiting room. She must have a doctor at once. She is very ill."

The porter, big and strong, took the limp figure from Martha Dalton's arms. He held the woman erect while the other wrapped the unconscious form in the seal-skin coat which she fastened in front. Then the porter lifted the woman and carried her to the car's exit. Down the steps he went, and across the platform into the waiting room. Nurse Dalton followed closely, luggage in suitcase and the woman's portmanteau and hat.

The station agent, mouth agape and eyes staring, rushed out of the ticket office.

"What's the matter, Miss Dalton?" he gasped.

"We've had to take this woman off the train, Charlie," she replied, talking fast. "She is very ill. The case is urgent. There's no time to take her clear out to St. Mary's. We'll take her across the street to Prof. an' Mollie Elwell's. I know it'll be all right with Mollie an' Prof. You get a redneer or something to wrap her up in—an' get it quick!"

The engine's bell was ringing. She turned to the porter holding the still form.

"You've got to be going," she said briefly. "Goodby, and thanks. You're a real man!"

She took the limp figure in her own strong arms. The porter, his dark eyes glowing, rushed out to catch his train. A moment later the station agent returned with a big piece of tarpaulin. Nurse Dalton held the woman up on her feet.

"Was it around her," she said, "neck, head and all. This rain's awful. Then carry her across the street for me to the Elwell cottage. Then you hurry over to Doc Palmer's an' bring him back a quick as you can."

There was no lost motion in the cog of Nurse Dalton's brain nor in her talk. She did her work well and did it fast. Always.

In the driving rain, the agent carried the woman across the street and up on the porch of a hospitably-lighted cottage. There he jerked the dripping tarpaulin off and let it drop to the floor. Nurse Dalton, holding the suitcase handle in one hand and the handbag and hat in the other, stepped close to the door and gave it a couple of lusty kicks. The glass panes in their settings shook and the doorknob rattled.

"Mollie an' Prof, come quick!" she cried in a voice that cut sharp above the screams of wind and the splash of the rain. "It's Dalton out here—Nurse Dalton!"

The instant and the door was opened wide. A man, good looking, young, with a face alive with friendly interest, stood framed in the opening. Behind him stood a pretty young woman with a boy of, perhaps, five by her side. Nurse Dalton stepped quickly inside, followed by the agent with his burden wrapped in a seal-skin coat. The young couple and the little boy stared with wide-open eyes.

"A woman taken ill on the train," began the nurse at once, and her tongue worked fast. "She's fainted. It's an emergency case so I had Charlie bring her here. I know you both would be glad to help. There's no time to tarry her out to St. Mary's."

She turned to the man who had helped her to the Elwells and jerked a thumb toward a sofa near the wall. He stepped across and laid his burden down.

"Hurry now an' get Doc," he said as he straightened up. Martha Dalton nodded and he opened the door and doctored out again into the stormy night. The nurse whispered something in Mollie Elwell's ear.

"Why certainly! Of course!" exclaimed the young wife with a quick, warm sympathy. "We must get her to bed at once."

She turned swiftly to her husband. "Prof, dear," she said, "Dalton says she expects a little stranger is coming to visit us. Jim and you go out and light the gas range." She gave more directions, while her husband listened attentively and sympathetically. Then, followed by the boy, he started at once to carry out orders.

No questions, no hesitancy. Just ready to help—always. That was Edwin Elwell, scenic artist and gold decorator, known to everyone in town as "Prof."

Ten minutes later Doctor Palmer arrived. Nurse Dalton led him into the room where the unknown guest from out of the night had been put to bed. A few moments afterward Mollie Elwell came out again into the sitting room where her husband and boy were waiting. She told them the story, just as it had been told to her by Martha Dalton.

"The poor dear has come out of her trance," she related, babbling of a brother to whom she was going home; of a husband she calls Jack; of a woman she has learned he had loved that he never told her about; of her unborn child that he should never see.

"Oh, Prof, it's pitiful—tragic. My heart just aches for her, she's so young and beautiful and, oh, my dear, so evidently broken-hearted!"

"And she has said nothing to indicate who she is?" questioned Prof Elwell with his ready sympathy; but a sympathy toned down to a man's practical view of such matters. "Hain't she any cards or letters in her handbag to show where she came from? It's very strange, you know, dear, but was on 'that a woman's her appearance, in the state she is in, attired as she is and wearing a thousand-dollar diamond, should be traveling alone. For she must, of course, belong to people of culture somewhere."

"She hain't made mention of a single name except Jack," Mollie told him. Her fish-gray eyes were wet with tears. "And there's not a thing in her bag except twenty dollars in bills. No cards, no letters, nothing."

Prof Elwell was silent for a long minute, his forehead wrinkled in thought.

"It's about the strangest thing I've bumped into for some time," he finally remarked.

Several hours later on that wild October night, while the storm still howled outside with an eerie din, and all Camdenville kept close to its firesides, two little strangers were ushered into the world by Doc Palmer and Nurse Dalton. Two, not one, and both girls; they had arrived, the doctor thought, a little ahead of schedule.

And just as the gray misty dawn of another day was lighting the east, the young mother of the little twins left this life and ventured into the Unknown, leaving behind her no hint, no trace, nothing to show who she had been or whence she had come. And though Prof Elwell, during the four days immediately following her communication with Chicago police and inserted inquiries in Chicago and Indianapolis papers, his efforts brought no results.

Who or where the husband was of whom the tragic stranger had babbled, or who the brother was to whom she was going, no word came to tell. The connecting threads were broken, the ends tangled up and lost in the Spinning Wheel of Life.

And so it came that the earthly remains of the beautiful young woman who had died that night under such strange and pitiful circumstances were finally buried in October of 1895 when the storm brought two little strangers to the hillsides, the expenses paid by Prof Elwell. Three months later a pretty tombstone marked the spot. Graven on its marble face in Old English letters was an epitaph that read:

TO THE SWEET AND LASTING MEMORY OF ONE WHO DIED THAT OTHERS MIGHT LIVE

And of the twins, strange little wayfarers in a big and strange world, what of them?

But it has been remarked that Prof and Mollie Elwell were sympathetic and understanding and kind of heart.

Seventeen years and eight months have marched by since that night of tragedy in October of 1895 when the Elwell home witnessed the passing of one life and the beginning of two more.

In that span of years we pass from a period during which America was readjusting its life after a war with Spain to June of 1916, when America was slowly but inevitably being dragged into the greatest conflict in the history of nations.

The allies of Europe are crying to the United States to get in it. For one year they have been after us to avenge the sinking of the Lusitania. The war spirit is slowly kindling throughout the country; young patriotism is inflamed; young blood is running hot and angry, wanting to fight, knowing nothing of the fragile specter of death and heartbreak that is to walk through the land before the world is restored once more to sanity.

And in Washington a lonely man sits in the White House, his heart torn, still playing his game of "watchful waiting," still holding his thumb in the leak in the dyke of passion, trying to forestall the cataclysm.

And the little town of Camdenville once more. It is a Hoosier town, flanking the left shore, looking southward, of a winding river that finds its crooked way along down through the farming country of Indiana.

Walking down the shady side of Main street to just pass Fifth, you look across the street through the plate glass window of a narrow brick building with sidewalks sixty feet high and reaching back a hundred feet to the alley. The building is topped its whole length by a peaked skylight roof like that of an artist's studio. Six-inch gold letters running across the plate glass window inform you that this is the workshop of E. C. ELWELL & SON—SCENIC ARTISTS AND WALL SIGN PAINTERS.

You cross the street and enter the open door. Stretched on the sidewalk you will see a mighty canvass forty from bottom to top and sixty feet long. It is a theater curtain and the scene spread over its broad expanse portrays the story of Othello, as on bended knee, he pours out his defense to the father of the murdered Desdemona.

The painting is almost completed. Only the lower border remains to be put in. The two artists and partners father and son, are clasped in overalls crouched with every color of the rainbow.

It is here that we meet Prof Elwell again and are properly introduced to his son, Jim, tall, straight and broad-shouldered at the age of twenty-two. Jim, who was just five on that memorable night in October of 1895 when the storm brought two little strangers who were to grow up along with him

16th St. and Ave. J

Man is so constituted that he must have a master. He craves some one to whom he can look for guidance and help. This desire is witnessed in every sphere of life, and in none more than in the exalted realm of religion. And this religion will be kept alive and the soul in tune with God by church attendance. Of course you are to be found in the church today. Everybody needs the uplift which comes from church services.

Our Bible school begins at 9:45 a. m., with Mr. Harold H. Griffith as superintendent.

We are expecting a great high day at First Christian church today. We are going to take pledges for the 1927 church budget. We are expecting a response from every member. Many have already sent in their pledges.

The Junior and Intermediate Endeavor societies meet at 4:00 p. m. The Senior Endeavors at 6:30 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m. the pastor will speak to the subject: "God and Man Walk to the House of God."

The choir will furnish special music at each service. We extend to you a personal invitation to all our services. Come and bring your friends.

"I was glad when they said unto me let us go into the House of the Lord," Captain R. P. Hobson, hero of the Merrimack, will speak at the First Baptist church Tuesday, December 7, at 7:30 p. m., on "The Crisis." You will want to hear him.

TWO MILLION CHICKENS TO BE HATCHED ON SOUTH PLAINS DURING THE COMING YEAR, POULTRY MAN'S PREDICTION

"A million chicks—a million dollars." This is the slogan South Plains farmers will adopt in 1927, and if they had hunted for ten years they could not have found a better one, is the opinion of one of Lubbock county's most prosperous poultry growers.

A million chicks may seem like a lot, yet during the past season South Plains farmers have grown at least that many. Five hatcheries on the South Plains have a combined capacity of 85,000 chicks every 21 days, and all of them run full blast during the two hatching seasons.

The average farmer can handle from 100 to 200 chickens at a very small expense, and they will mean more money to him every month in the year.

One of the largest ranching deals consummated recently was the leasing of 200,000 acres of the famous Egan Wallace ranch near Courts, in South Alberta, Canada, by P. Burns, Alberta cattle baron.

AMERICAN GAME HUNT ATTRACKS MANY SPORTSMEN AS PLANS ARE MADE FOR 5,000 MILE JAUNT INTO JUNGLE AREA

A hunting and sight seeing trip to the primitive lands in South eastern Africa which will be combined with a motion picture safari film is being organized for a party of 150 sport loving Americans by the South African Big Game Tours, Ltd.

The men and women of leisure with a desire to see new places and to partake in the most exciting animal hunt this year presents a remarkable opportunity. The jungles of Africa, as is known, abound in wild game of every sort; the people are interesting to see and study, the scenery is beyond compare; these features together with the convenience of having even the smaller details properly taken care of by the managers assures well for the safety and pleasure of those who undertake the tour.

Europeans to every ten square miles, the towns are few and sparsely populated, the native population being practically all rural.

Camp at Limpopo River

The first camp for an extended stay will be made at the Limpopo river, which is centrally located for hunting of a wide variety of game. Also, the climate hereabouts is excellent from April to August, surroundings are beautiful and from whatever point considered the northern Transvaal is one of the most noted shooting grounds in the world; and for men of sporting blood who wish to enjoy the sports of sport there is no finer territory.

Complete details of the trip may be had by writing to Mr. W. C. Bowman, Standard Bank of So. Africa, Ltd. New York City.

List of Game

A list of the larger game which is plentiful during the season includes lions, leopards, wild bear and hippopotamus. The first three mentioned provide great sport and excitement in a chase; they are shy, cunning and quick to act, and are, of course, extremely ferocious when attacked. The "hippo" is a good target for those who are possessed with a keen shooting eye because he is vulnerable only in certain spots. Thoroughly experienced competent guides insure safety to the guests and their knowledge of the habits and whereabouts of the animals aids the hunter in pursuit.

For the quick and accurate shot there is an abundance of smaller game. Thousands of quinea fowls are often sighted on a trip of a few days. Partridges are plentiful, especially Red-wing, Bush Partridge and Red-headed Pheasants. Many spur-wing Geese are seen near all the slow flowing rivers, as are Teal and every sort of Duck.

Leaves Capetown May 1

According to the present plans the party will leave from Capetown on May 1st in a fleet of Hupmobile Eight Touring cars. They will proceed to Port Elizabeth, seaside resort widely known for magnificent forest scenery and fine motoring routes. The route taken is along the water edge on one side with lordly cliffs on the other.

From Port Elizabeth to East London the visitor will see the East African Zulu in his native surroundings. Their general habits and customs always attract attention. Also their war dances, folk songs and manner of living are distinct and decidedly different from any other race or tribe. A party to be started in reference to that country is that there are only seven

BORDER PATROL IS USING CHEVROLETS

WORK AS COLORFUL AS ROYAL GUNTED OR FAR FAMED TEXAS RANGER FORCE

Their uniforms may not be as brilliant, but their work is just as colorful as that of the Canadian Mounted Police. Their organization is too young to have the traditions of the Texas Ranger behind it but they are making interesting history every day. They ride a "beat" that stretches from the pleasant coasts and cliffs below San Diego to the blazing heat of Sonora desert east of Yuma over hills that even those hard bit Spaniards of long ago christened the "Camino del Muerto," journey of death.

They are the boys of the Border Patrol of the United States Immigration Service, who, 24 hours out of the 24, and 365 days of the year, watch the Mexican Border for Uncle Sam to see that no unwanted aliens "crash the gate" and make their way illegally into this country.

Four or five years ago there were only sixteen men employed on the Border Patrol between Tia Juana and the point sixty miles east of Yuma where the southern California district ends. Then came the passage of the Johnson bill restricting immigration from the European nations, and where the patrol before had the single task of keeping out smuggled Chinese, there was added the much more difficult job of barring the way against natives of a dozen European nations. Entrance to Mexico is open to any alien and from Mexico thousands of Europeans who have been unable to obtain legal entry to the United States yearly attempt to cross the line.

Today there are 11 men in the Border Patrol in this district. They are mounted, not on horses, but with a fleet of Chevrolet cars, recently purchased for their use by the government. Hitherto the men owned their own cars but a late change in policy led to the purchase of the Chevrolet fleet for their use.

Few persons are aware of the tight watch maintained on lonely mountain roads, on dim tracks through the desert or the high meadow lands of San Diego's back country. You never know where you will find the Border Patrol at work, which, of course, is decidedly inconvenient for the men who make a business of smuggling aliens.

Lynchers, Beware!

This benign looking gentleman is Judge Harry Day Reed, of the Georgia Superior court. By the heavy sentences he recently imposed upon nine self-confessed members of a lynch mob, he has proclaimed that the midnight noise is not to replace the law's orderly course in Georgia, so far as he is able to prevent it. Of the nine men who pleaded guilty before him, one was sent to the penitentiary for life and the others were given terms of from four to twenty years imprisonment.

PRESENT COTTON SITUATION WILL DO MUCH TO CORRECT PLANTING IN THE FUTURE, LUBBOCK MEN BELIEVE

With the prospect for a cotton crop of 75,000 bales in Lubbock county, and a proportionate number in surrounding counties, farmers of the South Plains apparently have been converted to the idea of diversification and next year will use this method of farming to the extent that the cotton acreage will be cut at least in half. Unless each farmer decides in the spring that his neighbor is not going to plant much cotton, and increases his acreage over this year, as was done the past spring, with the result that the market was glutted, and the price went to the lowest level since several years before the war.

Prices Are Low

Street prices here the past week hung around four to five cents, considered by the farmer, and rightly so, to be wholly inadequate to meet expenses of harvesting the crop, and getting into condition to market. Gin prices have been increased, due no doubt to the practices of farmers in bleeding the crop for economy.

Estimates made by agricultural leaders here Saturday placed the yield in the county this year at about 75,000 bales. It is further estimated that nearly two-thirds of this has already been ginned, based on reports of ginnings in the city of Lubbock.

Continue to Sled Cotton

Farmers generally are continuing to sled cotton as a means of economy and in this way rather several bales a day when if the snapping or picking method is used, much less can be harvested in the same time. Little difference in the price is noted on sledged and picked cotton, and the sledged cotton makes a better sample than snapped, according to those in close touch with the situation.

But, in the face of all this, the country generally is considered to be in much better condition than it was at this time last year. Production has been practically doubled, and the price a little more than cut in half. But on the basis of a 75,000 bale crop, as forecast, this crop alone will bring into Lubbock county alone approximately $1,855,000. Other counties are in the same proportion, and it has been estimated by bankers that the South Plains this year will be enriched by more than $16,000,000 when the cotton crop is harvested and marketed.

General Condition Better

Farmers are as a rule in much better condition this year than last, so far as debts are concerned, many of them having this year resorted to at least a measure of diversification in raising cows, chickens, and hogs, although the number of these animals is far less than is contemplated for the coming year.

Banks report that note liquidations have been on a much heavier volume than last year, and although deposits in the three banks of Lubbock show a decrease over this time last year, this is attributed to the WONT of farmers to use what funds they receive as far as possible in liquidation.

Total Bank Deposits

Total deposits in the three banks in Lubbock this year totaled $1,944,622.22 at the close of business November 30, while in 1925 the total reached $5,302,541.65 on the same date. In spite of this fact, deposits this year reflect a much more stable prosperity, and better conditions in general than prevailed last year in the opinion of Lubbock bankers.

One of the banks showed an increase this year over last of approximately $70,000 while the other two both show decreases. Individual deposits have just about held their own, however, in all the institutions, with the difference being brought about by withdrawal by smaller banks over this territory of funds on deposit in banks here.

Individual Deposits

Individual deposits are slightly off from the same date last year, but when it is considered that between a half and two-thirds of the cotton crop is in this year, and at the same time last year, the crop was almost wholly gathered, the difference can readily be seen. Funds from the crop to date this year have largely been used for liquidation purposes, and do not show up deposits, while last year practically all the money brought by the crop was disposed of, either in liquidation or by deposit.

Robt. T. Ross, of Dallas, was in Lubbock yesterday attending to business matters.

These Improvements are Important

There are two general classes of motor car improvements. Those made primarily for their effect on the public—and those made primarily for their effect upon the car.

You will perceive at once that Dodge Brothers new five-bearing crankshaft, two-unit starting and lighting system, air cleaner and other recent improvements, are the sort that represent genuine value.

They are sound and substantial betterments, producing definite and marked results, and as such they are typical of Dodge Brothers methods and product.

The 3rd Year Tells the Story of Hupmobile Value

Any moderately priced six can be expected to deliver fairly economical service in its first year. A few will pass the year-and-a-half mark before visits to the repair shop become routine.

It is the third year that tests the quality of a motor car. Then you begin to realize the vast difference between Hupmobile Six endurance and the maintenance costs of other cars.

In the Hupmobile Six, as in all Hupmobiles built in the past 18 years, strength has been united to surpassing performance by Hupmobile's high standards of engineering and manufacture.

The fact that Hupmobile piston pins are held to limits of one ten-thousandth of an inch—the 30th part of a human hair—may not mean much to you in theory. But this is only one of the extra-precise operations which distinguish Hupmobile manufacturing; and all of them contribute to that fine performance and long life that set Hupmobile apart from all other sixes.

It is an essential of such fine engineering, that only the highest grade materials can be employed.

Hupmobile, for example, is one of the two manufacturers to import a special Cuban iron ore for making its cylinder blocks. Rich in nickel content, this ore insures a metal unmatched for resistance to wear.

Hupmobile's ability to stand up to punishing service, year after year, long after other cars have reached the "trade-in" stage, is the logical result of such painstaking methods.

These methods mean that to flexible, agile six-cylinder performance, you may now add the sterling Hupmobile qualities of long-lived usefulness and dependability.

Supplementing the fundamental value of the Hupmobile Six are many advanced features of equipment and beauty that place it in the front rank of fine motor cars. The co-ordination of these features of luxury and beauty with Hupmobile mechanical excellence is responsible for the public's record-breaking buying of the Six in the past twelve months.

Hupmobile Six a Leader, Also, In Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy, of course, on mere externals and non-essentials, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. To support you in these fundamentals, however, the Hupmobile Six also joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car in its price class.

Sedan, five-passenger, four-door, $1385. Coupe, two-passenger, with rumble seat, $1385. Touring, five-passenger, $1325. Equipment includes 30x5.25 balloon tires, four-wheel brakes. All prices f.o.b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

INDUSTRY DEVELOPS TESTED INDEX TRADE: BAROMETER SEES RECESSION IN VOLUME BUT REVIVAL NEXT SPRING

With its economic finger on the business pulse of the entire United States, the Pan manufacturing industry has developed a new barometer of trade which is phenomenal in the accuracy of its forecast, its leaders say.

This barometer, more popularly known as the Pan or Hoover index, has commanded the attention of hundreds of business men, engineers and architects for years. Its conclusions and intimacies with the business trend are based on the fact that the Pan manufacturers, makers of ventilating equipment, set to practically every phase of industry and trade, and therefore are the first to feel an upward or downward trend in activity.

What then does this barometer of trade, followed by its readers as faithfully as the stock market operator consults his statistical service or chart say of the future of business in the United States? According to E. E. Freeman of Boston, president of the National Association of Pan Manufacturers, business is not going to the low-noon, but there will be a further "skid-down" of general trade during the next ninety to one hundred days.

"That does not imply that a pessimistic attitude is warranted," Mr. Freeman declared. "Business and trade is in a general recession that is likely to carry on until the early part of March, when there will begin a general and brisk revival of buying, according to our index, of that we are positive."

The association counts in its membership the largest manufacturers of air-conditioning equipment in the United States extending from New York City to Buffalo, Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities.

How and why many business men use the Pan index as an indicator or barometer of the business future is explained by Mr. Freeman.

"Wherever people are collectively busy, the Pan manufacturer has a customer," said Mr. Freeman. "He sells equipment which people do not buy unless they expect to be busy. He sells to all classes, heating and ventilating apparatus for industrial plants of all kinds, for schools, churches, office buildings, railroads, are a part of his field. This includes apparatus for improving industrial processes and to lower the cost of production. Even farms, ships, trains, power stations, tunnels, wireless stations, require this equipment."

"None of these purchases, however, unless they feel the need for them. Any one industry may be extremely dull for a time but this is reflected and does not mean that business as a whole is bad. The textile interests ceased buying fan equipment some months before the public appreciated that a bad slump was developing in that line. This was also true of the leather business. At the time this was evident the automotive industry was buying larger and larger quantities of fan equipment."

"Cotton spinners purchased several thousand fans last year. It is already apparent to the fan manufacturer that but a few hundred fans will be purchased this year.

"Pan manufacturers, their engineers and salesmen, are brought into contact with every angle of activity. Any change in activity, or fear of let-up is quickly sensed. The pulse of their insatiable customers is registered through their credit conditions. Then follows slackening of inquiries, cancellation of equipment and disposition to delay installation.

"Business history repeats itself, to be sure, but not in the regular order nor intensity that statistical students would have you believe. It is possible that not for some years, if ever, shall we experience the depths of gloom and the heights of boom that have existed in the past. Business understanding, convenience of travel and transportation, better control of finance, of manufacture, of distribution throughout producing countries, individually and collectively, will level the depression and peaks."

"The general economic conditions at any period from available statistics at our command are, broadly speaking, correctly interpreted. Who does not believe that the whole civilized world must pay for the losses caused by the world war? This means that the world over will average more work, longer hours, frugal expenditures, lower wages and in turn, lower commodity prices. Severe competition will obtain, all of which will necessitate and bring about lower costs."

According to this index, business in the middle west, extending from Buffalo west to Kansas City, stands out predominantly over business in the east and south. Export sales show that business with South America is steadily increasing. These companies also trade with firms in Africa and the Orient.

ASK C. I. A. TO FIGHT FOR WORLD WIDE PEACE

DENTON, TEXAS, Dec. 3.—A letter from the Honolulu Y. M. C. A. requesting the co-operation of the C. I. A. students in a movement for world wide peace has been received by the student president and Y. W. C. A. The letter, written by a group of McKinley high school students denounces military training and makes appeal for international friendship. It is signed "The Fishermen."

ROYALTY ENJOYS THE MOVIES

The Prince of Wales and Princess Mary have recently formed the habit of "slipping" into the neighborhood movie theatre near Buckingham Palace and enjoying the pictures without being recognized by the audience. Whenever royalty visits the theatre the event usually is quickly told to the world, but the prince and princess, it just has been learned, have been attending the little movie house once a week without it being known.

STRAIGHT 8 SALES DOUBLE THIS YEAR

HUPP PRESIDENT ILLUSTRATES HOW THAT TYPE CAR IS GAINING DOMINANCE.

Corporation of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation that the straight eight type of motor car is generating momentous changes in the entire automobile market above $1500 is based on figures which show that in America the buying of straight eights, which increased five-fold in 1925, will this year double the 1925 total. This is in contrast to an anticipated growth in volume for the entire motor industry of five per cent this year as compared with last.

"Eight cylinder buying for 1926 is expected to exceed $200,000,000 in a total motor car market of $2,500,000,000, against slightly more than $150,000,000 in a market of about $2,000,000,000 in 1925. In other words, practically the entire increase in motor car buying registered this year has been by that type car. More than half of this increase in motor car buying is accounted for by the straight eight.

"Eight Gaining Strongly
"In the light of the 1926 developments, it is obvious to us that far-sighted judges of motor car values are turning to the eight cylinder car as the expression of the finest type motor car and, in 1927, will turn to it to a degree that will establish conclusively its prestige as the topmost motor car principle," says DuBois Young, president of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation.

"That a considerable part of the eight cylinder gains have come from sixes costing more than $1500 is proved, in part, by our own sales analysis and, still more convincingly, in the price reductions continually being made in that classification of sixes.

"Prices of these sixes are steadily being lowered. Manufacturers are realizing that their market is becoming increasingly narrowed before the inroads of the eight—particularly the straight eight. In their effort to hold their own market or, rather, in their effort to keep the eight from making too rapid inroads against their own product, these makers of high priced sixes must necessarily lower their prices still further.

Moving to Lower Levels
The high priced six is being compelled to move into a lower level below the limit just as the four was compelled to move below $900 before the inroads of the six.

"Do not mistake me as inferring that these higher priced sixes are not good cars. They are splendid ones, but the superiority of the eight principle over the six, or any other principle, has and will continue to compel them to be lowered in price. Just as in superiority of the six principle over the four in operating smoothness compelled the four to abandon the first above $1000.

"Motor cars are, without question, rapidly moving into three groups, governed both by price and social distinction. The four is supreme up to $900, the six from that point to $1,500 and the eight is rapidly moving toward dominance of everything above the $1,500 level. Within two years it will have achieved that dominance."

URGES AUTO FIRST-AID BOOTHS

That first-aid dressing stations or booths be established at dangerous points on highways to care for victims of auto accidents, was the recommendation of a coroner's jury in Selby,

England, at the inquest of a motor crash victim recently. It further urged that a list of the nearest doctors be posted in every dressing room, and suggested that the plan be brought to the attention of the Minister of Transport of the British government.

TO HONOR "7s" CLASSES IN C. I. A. FESTIVITIES

DENTON, TEXAS, Dec. 3.—Classes of 1907, 1917, and 1927 will be honored in all of the association festivities at the spring assembly scheduled for former students of the College of Industrial Arts. This announcement was made today by Mrs. Corrie Walker Allen, president of the C. I. A. Students Association.

An added feature of the occasion will be a roommate reunion. Invitations will be sent to all former students urging them to meet their former roommates on the campus next spring.

ANTS AWE LARGEST ANIMALS

In certain places of South America and Africa there are species of ants that strike fear and awe into even the largest beasts. These ants at times form "marching" and it is said that the most agile and strongest animals just give way to them.

Again Chevrolet's Greatest Year

In 1925 Chevrolet astonished the automotive world by attaining an annual production never before reached by any manufacturer of gearshift automobiles.

Thus, for two years in succession, Chevrolet has broken all its previous records and has set a new mark in automobile history.

This splendid achievement results from a steadfast adherence to the fundamental Chevrolet policy of building a car of the finest possible quality to sell at a low price.

That the vast majority of buyers now demand a car of this type—and that Chevrolet has been successful in building such a car—possessing the highest degree of smooth performance, smart appearance, and economical operation—is proved by Chevrolet's success during the year now drawing to a close.

CHEVROLET SETS NEW HIGH RECORD

THIS MONTH CLOSING GREATEST YEAR WITH OUTPUT OF 40 PER CENT BOOST

Again whitening all production records in the history of three-speed automobiles, the Chevrolet Motor company, this month, closes its greatest year with an output of 735,697 cars—a 40 per cent increase of more than 40 per cent over the previous record year.

The distinguished publicity favor has attached to the Chevrolet car has enabled the company to exceed by 200,000 cars its own record of 1925 when 535,697 units were produced.

Under pressure of the most successful demand the great organization has ever witnessed, factory workers turned a record clip throughout the year building a Chevrolet car every 19 seconds of each working day. Daily production averaged 2,450 cars and reached a high monthly level in September when daily output averaged 3,381 units.

Output for the year far exceeds that of the combined total production in the first ten years of Chevrolet production, 1913 to 1921 included.

Production records, which Chevrolet has been able to establish very consistently are especially gratifying primarily because they reflect the increasing public confidence in the organization and its product.

W. K. Knudsen, president Chevrolet Motor company, says: "We thoroughly appreciate this evidence to the Chevrolet car and we shall strive to merit the continued high endorsement, which the motoring public has conferred upon our product."

Chevrolet established a new month-by-month output record in September when 81,415 units were produced. This achievement followed several months of record-breaking production.

C. I. A. Is Planning Spring Festival

DENTON, Texas, Dec. 3.—Elaborate plans are being made by the department of music at the College of Industrial Arts for a spring festival, in which a series of programs will commemorate the centennial of the death of Beethoven. The programs will be given the latter part of April and will be part of elaborate festivals being held in his honor the world over.

The choral club is studying Beethoven's "Choral Fantasy" and others of his larger works are being rehearsed. Songs of Palestrina, Mozart and contemporary composers will also be given.

The choral club consists of 100 voices, and the number will be augmented to 150 after Christmas. This work will be presented under the direction of William E. Jones, director of the department.

Hardheaded men are brainier than those with luxuriant locks, according to Prof. H. J. Fleure, noted scientist. He believes the growth of hair absorbs a large amount of energy.

PUMP-DRIVEN GEAR EMBODIED IN OLDS

INDICATES CARE AND PRECISION USED BY COMPANY IN THE MAKING OF ENGINE

The making of the Oldsmobile oil pump driven gear shaft is indicative of the care and precision used in the manufacture of the Oldsmobile engine. This gear shaft is one of the smallest moving, precision-made parts in the car. Despite its diminutive proportions its manufacture requires 14 separate operations in four different departments.

It is one and five-sixty-fourths of an inch long and its diameter is .67 inch. Bars of tested cold rolled steel are cut into sections long enough to make two finished gear shafts. Each bar is washed and then carefully inspected to make certain there are no flaws in the metal.

The ends are ground to a smooth finish and the bearing surfaces of the shaft carbonized at a temperature of 1700 degrees Fahrenheit. It is then air cooled, which operation requires about 12 hours. The smaller, or neck end, is then formed, this same operation being repeated on the opposite end of the bar.

After another inspection the bearing ends of the shafts are case hardened to a finished depth of one-sixteenth of an inch, this hardening being by heating the metal to 1450 degrees Fahrenheit and then quenching it in water. This gives a glass hard finish. Wedge-shaped holes in the end are then finished with an emery drill and the diameters carefully ground. The bar is then halved, forming two gear shafts and the severed ends ground smooth. A final inspection checks all operations.

The precision with which each operation must be performed is proven by the close limits of the four inspections made of each shaft. The diameter of the smaller end of each gear shaft is correct to one-thousandth of an inch.

HOUSE PUZZLES TWO NATIONS

while the bearing end is held to a limit of one-half of a thousandth of an inch.

A thousandth is one-tenth the thickness of a single sheet of a newspaper; it is from four to eight times thinner than silk fibre and a average human hair would have to be split many times to attain this minute dimension.

BIG DEMAND FOR KNIGHT ROADSTER

PRINCE NICOLAS OF RUMANIA LEADS BIG PROCESSION WITH GREAT SIX

While the outstanding purchaser to put his name on the dotted line for a Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster during the past month seems to have been Prince Nicolas of Rumania, the general demand for this car all over the country is reaching a high point and production is considerably ahead of the originally planned figures.

The growth of popularity of the two-passenger open model among the larger and most luxurious makes has been an interesting development of the past ten months and the response of the manufacturers in the way of attractive design and finish has been notable.

The Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster model, which is a car with a real reputation for road speed, is built with a folding seat in the rear to accommodate two extra passengers when this becomes desirable.

It is conspicuous for the roominess of the seating space and for the degree of comfort afforded by the design and placing of the seats.

The Prince of Rumania is reported to have expressed a democratic enthusiasm for this car in which he was aptly seconded by his sister, the Princess Helena and their first ride is said to have brought them back with a profound respect for the power plant, which had been thoroughly run in before the car was delivered.

HOUSE PUZZLES TWO NATIONS

A small house at Oost Cappel on the Belgian-French border is causing much concern to chiefs of customs in Brussels and Paris. The front door is in one country and the back door is in the other.

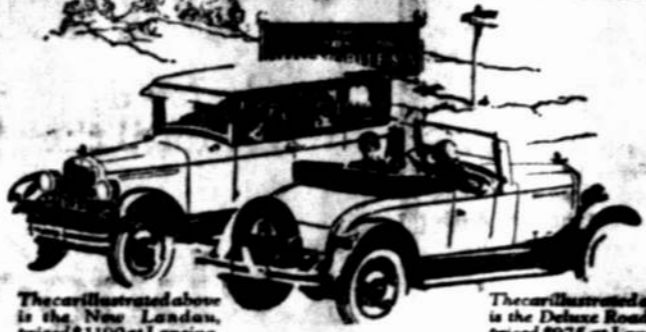

The French authorities are disturbed because dutiable articles pass into the Belgian door and out of the rear into French territory. The Belgians are concerned when the route is reversed. No solution of the problem has yet been found.

NUTRITION CLASS FOR SCHOOL

To turn out children perfect in physique as well as in education is the plan of officials of the public schools of Northcote, N. Z. To this end nutrition classes are to be started. At first from twenty to thirty pupils will be selected and these will be given special treatment in the building of physique.

Wholesome food will be provided, pupils will be urged not to be hasty in eating and rest periods and regular times of exercise will be scheduled.

THEIR JUDGEMENT STANDS CONFIRMED

Why shouldn't they voice their satisfaction—those thousands and thousands of owners who made the year just passed the greatest in Oldsmobile history?

Attracted to Oldsmobile, perhaps by some one outstanding feature, they discover, as the months and miles roll by, an overflowing measure of all those qualities which contribute to enduring satisfaction.

Oldsmobile gratifies their finer tastes, satisfies their every need. Their expectations are more than realized. Their judgement stands confirmed!

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, teacher at Pendleton University, is admired by ERIC WATERS, leader of the student radical faction, and DR. PETER DORN, of the astronomy faculty.

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN resents her interest in Eric and her general unorthodoxy.

MYRA ALDRICH, Eric's boyhood sweetheart, is jealous of Judith.

"KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail the dean's wife, and Judith, befriending her, asks Eric to help them.

Shea's body is found in a creek and Eric is arrested as a material witness. Mrs. Brown tells the prosecutor an outlandish lie, providing an alibi for Eric and damaging her own reputation.

After an unhappy scene with Eric, Judith goes to spend the evening with EVE GERHART, town widow. Eve tries to coax her to make friends with Eric and keep him out of the mad schemes he is forming, to defy the dean.

While they are talking, WILL WETHEREL, Eric's frat brother, rushes in, crying, "Eric and Dr. Dorn are beating each other to a pulp down the road!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV

Wetherel leaped against the door jamb, panting for breath.

"Will," said Eve, after a moment. "What did you say?"

"Having a fight. Wetherel nudged 'I come to get you.'"

"And what," said Eve caustically, "did you think I could do with a couple of battling men?"

Wetherel looked bewildered. "Why—I don't know, exactly. Tom Ballard and I were coming down the road—I was bringing him to call on you—when we saw the crowd of people. I caught a glimpse of Eric and Dorn, their shirts torn in ribbons, with blood on their faces, pounding each other for all they were worth. I was so shocked I stood still for a minute—then came to get you. Perhaps I had a vague notion that you could make Eric stop, if anyone could."

Judith looked at Eve with a flicker of suspicion in her eyes. "You're an awful fool, Will—probably the worst in Pendleton. But what happened?"

He shook his head sadly. "I don't know. They were trying to pull 'em apart when I left."

"What were they fighting about?" asked Eve. But the front door opened again and a lean, sallow face under a freshman's green cap protruded into the room.

"They've separated 'em," the newcomer shouted to Will. "Gosh, what a black eye Waters got!"

"Come on in, Tom," said Wetherel with a lordly air. "Eve, this is Tom Ballard. Tell us what happened, Tom."

"A couple-a huskers did it," he said. "Town fellows coming in from the Red Lantern dance hall I guess. Anyhow, one grabbed Eric and the other Dorn. That professor chap gave him a stuf-upon her face, and she lay in a state of passive relaxation during twenty minutes of breakneck speed through quiet streets.

A grinding of the brakes and a violent jolt brought her rudely out of her drowse.

"Damn fool," the chauffeur was saying, under his breath. "Park a car near a corner like that and not leave a light burning! Wrong side of the street, too!"

Judith blinked. They were in College road, not ten yards from the Steadway steps. In front of them, at the curb, stood a long, low racer. As Judith stared at it, someone roared from the driver's seat and came toward the taxi.

"Eric!" she gasped. The chauffeur had been muttering farther imprecations at the careless parker. Now he gazed at Judith in amazement. Eric handed him a bill and helped Judith out of the car.

She stood on the sidewalk gazing up at him. The black eye looked, even in the pale moonlight, like a piece of raw beef.

He led her toward the car. "I've been waiting for you a long half hour, Judith," he said. "I had to see you to-night."

Judith was silent. He helped her in to the car and sat down beside her. "It was pretty late to come," he said. "But I simply had to see you."

Judith looked at him. "Why?"

Eric met her gaze. "Because I couldn't bear it away from you another minute. Can't we drive out a little way and at least have privacy for our conversation?" he urged, anxiously. "We'll be back in an hour."

"Yes," she said.

Eric began the conversation. "I suppose you'll have to be told about the fight. Everybody in school will know it tomorrow."

"I already know about it," said Judith, and she told him of Wetherel's report of the fight.

"Darned lousy body," was his comment. Wetherel shrugged.

"Look here," said Eric, "who did he say was winning?"

"Nobody," Judith replied. "He left before the finish."

"Well," continued Eric, "if they'd have left us alone a minute longer, I'd have laid that big stiff out."

Judith smiled wickedly. "Has Dr. Dorn got a black eye too?"

Eric stopped the car and faced her. "I don't know what he's got—Judith, are you in love with that moralizing fool?"

A devil of perversity had seized Judith. "What if I am?"

Eric's face darkened. "You'll never get him. I'll tell you that right now," he said, stubbornly.

"And how do you know?" she asked.

"I can't tell you that. But you mark my words. Peter Dorn will never ask you to marry him."

Judith drew back. "That sounds seriously like an insult, Eric."

Eric leaped forward and seized her hands. "Judith, don't sit here quarreling with me, when our precious time is slipping away. Dr. Dorn doesn't matter—except that I'm so jealous of him I wish I'd broken his neck tonight. What I want to talk about hasn't anything to do with fights and harsh words. Judith, it's a wonderful night."

OCTOBER WEATHER RECORD WARMEST

MERCURY ROSE TO 109 DEGREES AT VICTORIA, TEXAS, DURING MONTH

HOUSTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—October weather was the warmest on record in Texas, L. H. Daingerfield, government meteorologist Houston, announced in his monthly weather report.

The month also was wet he said, with an average precipitation of four inches which was 1.41 inches above the normal. It did not compare, however, with the tricky October weather in 1919 when the abnormal average rose to 42 inches for in 1907 with 8.85 inches above the average. These figures were records for the state.

But to return to Mr. Daingerfield's record of Texas temperatures: the mercury rose to 109 degrees at Victoria on October 11, the highest recorded for the month. Twenty days later it fell to 21 degrees at Dalhart.

The Victoria record was only two degrees higher than the temperature at Fort McIntosh on the same date. A day later, Eagle Pass sweltered under a temperature of 106. Temperatures of from 100 to 102 were quite common about the same dates, notably at Brownwood, Coleman, Llano, San Angelo, Dilley, Elmhurst, Palfurrias, Hondo, San Marcos, Seguin, Uvalde, Alice and Ricardo.

A host of other minor features are in the report. For example, was noted that the wind blew 43 miles an hour at Dallas on October 5, the highest velocity for any point in the state.

I want it to be a magic night for both of us."

"What do you mean?" asked Judith, with a hint of uneasiness in her tone.

Eric held her hands closer for a minute, then dropped one of them and slipped an arm around her. "Can't you guess what I'm going to say, Jude?"

"I don't choose to guess," she answered, a little stiffly.

"Then I'll tell you. I want to ask you to marry me—tonight, at Earlham. I've got a license clerk waiting for me there."

Judith begins to have her doubts about Eric, and Dr. Dorn comes to her with an apology.

UNIVERSITY TO KEEP CHILDREN

Youngsters Will Be Given A Taste Of Intellectual Care At Austin

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

AUSTIN, Dec. 4.—Details for the establishment of a Division of Child Training and Care for Infants and run-abouts in the department of home economics of the University of Texas are rapidly being worked out under the direction of Miss Mary Edna Gearing, chairman of that department. The project was made possible through the generosity of the Texas Public Health Association which appropriated $10,000 for the work at a meeting in San Antonio recently. It is the purpose of the new division, which will be opened January 1, 1927, to train for motherhood and child care and afford a practical application for several courses offered in the department of home economics. A large majority of the students in home economics are anxious for an opportunity to observe at first hand the daily activities of children.

The staff of the division will consist of a director, trained recreation specialist, University health consultant, nutritionist, full time nurse, members of the home economics faculty. Most of the members of the staff will be specialists of the University faculty it is said.

The enrollment of children will be limited this year to sixteen, it is announced. The days program for the youngsters will duplicate that of a normal and healthy child's home life. Girls in the department of home economics will assist in the preparation of the food under the supervision of the division of nutrition, aid in caring for the children, and at all times will be allowed to observe the work being done. The students will be intimately connected with the project.

JAZZ BECOMING POPULAR IN JAPAN

Jazz is becoming popular in Japan. The wave of American music, that has been rising in the Oriental country for many years is turning toward syncopation, and many instruments from this country are being mastered in place of the koto, shakuhachi and samisen.

40,000 Bale Crop Hale County Goal

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Dec. 4.—Present indications are that practically all cotton in Hale County will be picked by Christmas or shortly after this date. A great deal of cotton here is being shelled and farmers who never before tried this method of picking cotton have adopted it as all conditions and circumstances considered the shelling is the proper way to gather this year's crop for one man can shelled and bring more cotton to the gin than many could under the picking system. Shortage of pickers and the low price of cotton has almost made shelling a necessity. Ginners here estimate that Hale County will produce 40,000 or more bales this year.

STRONG ENOUGH FOR COLLEGE?

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Physical tests will comprise part of the routine entrance examinations in the near future at any college is the prediction of Dr. W. G. Anderson, director of the Yale gymnasium. Half of the students embarking upon collegiate courses have physical defects, he says.

Do Married Folks Love One Another Like They Used To? 'No', Says Major Hoople

BY MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE

Avalanche-Journal Philosopher
Do husbands love their wives and wives love their husbands today as they did a decade or so ago? This is a question propounded this week, and while we could answer the question in one word containing two letters, we are not going to do so. We are going to answer the question by saying NO, and then cite facts to prove the answer.

When God created the heavens and the earth and placed man in the Garden of Eden as a kind of custodian, He immediately realized that it was not good for man to live alone, so He created a helpmate—a woman, to help him enjoy the pleasures of life. And, mind you, all was pleasure at that time, but it remained for woman to sin and start a series of trials and tribulations that have not been lived down during six thousand years or more. In fact it appears that our troubles increase from day to day.

How About Adam and Eve?
But this was probably not God's plan. (quien sabe). Still He must have intended for men to love their wives and for wives to love their husbands. So far as we know Adam and Eve dearly loved each other, as have many other couples since their day. In some sections men were allowed more than one wife, but as a rule they made some kind of effort to love them all, and divorce courts were not heard of.

Even fifty years ago a divorce was considered more or less a disgrace, and people (husband and wives) buried their troubles instead of airing them out in divorce courts. We have a few lawyers, today, who insist that this was not right—that they should have been divorced, but they have no authority to prove it. Marriage is a holy ordinance, but one that is sometimes very lightly considered.

Child marriages have been responsible for many marital squabbles, and that is why divorce court dockets are congested all the time. An 18-year old jelly blessed with more hair than brains, more gall than grit and more nerve than a Roman gladiator, imagines himself in love with some little half-cracked flapper who doesn't know biscuit from bull foot, and who couldn't boil water without scorching it, proposes marriage. Poor boy! He has allowed his gall to go to his head and curdle his brain, and the chances are the poor little simp of a girl will "sweetly slobber yes" unless a wise father intervenes and vigorously places the business end of a good boot against an extremity of the jelly before a Justice can pronounce them man and wife. If the father fails to do his duty, then just pity the girl and boy.

It's Acute Infatuation

They were never in love—just an attack of acute infatuation, and the attack will prove fatal nine times out of ten. They knew they were not in love in less than 30 days after they are married and instead of living one for the other they begin pulling off and in a few months the chain that separates them is too wide to bridge.

But so much for the youngsters, for all have agreed that child marriage is folly.

Older heads—men and women of the present day, do not seem to be so congenial as when they were a few years ago. Time was when almost every man loved his wife, and almost every wife honored and respected her husband. They lived one for the other and both of them for the children. They were usually happy and satisfied with life. They did not need a divorce court, but an ample supply of beans and bacon and they generally got what they needed.

This Was Some Time Ago

This was all before the days of jazz music, Charleston dance and automobiles. Many wives who should be at home cooking dinner are now found riding around in a limousine, drinking vanilla fizzlers and studying styles. Their only worry is how they can manage to force their husbands to increase their allowance. Of course they care very little for his company for they have found younger and more interesting men to entertain them. Husbands increase the allowance, if possible, for they want to avoid a clash—wife might check up on them a little too closely.

The children, if there be any, are left to "root hog or be a runt." Mother helps entertain the town's quota of lounge lizards, and father has to be a good fellow and never cut a poker party. Home-life is perishing, dying a death only to be expected. When father thinks more of money than he does his children, and mother appreciates the company of friends more than she does that of her babies, it is time to throw up the sponge, call in the devil and take a coast.

Think of the Child

Now all homes are not in the class mentioned above, but we can truthfully state that there are entirely too many that are. A child must have a mother's love and a father's care if it gets out of life all that is promised. If mother and father fall what chance has the child?

Husbands and wives do not love and appreciate one another as they did in days gone by, for if they did they would stay at home more and with "friends and affinities" less. People stay where they are most interested, and a man who plays poker two nights a week, attends lodge three nights and claims urgent business the balance of the time, doesn't love his wife. He loves poker and golf better, and though he may deny the statement the truth remains unchanged.

A woman that will play bridge all afternoon while her children roam the streets and who gets home too late to prepare supper for her husband may claim that she is a good woman a model wife and an affectionate mother, but she is wrong and everybody in town knows it.

We have seen a few women who were not well acquainted with their husbands to call them by their first name—had to add "mister" to feel right about it. And some husbands are no better than some wives.

They're Not Trying

People (married ones) are not trying to be congenial. They marry for convenience and then live as they please. All home means to some people is a place to dress and arrange for a party. Children in this type of a home are to be pitied. They know that their father cares nothing for their mother, and that their mother thinks very little of the father. They may no fight, but there is a missing link, love, and the children know it.

The gulf between many husbands and wives is widening each year and unless a change is made it may only be a matter of time when there may not be no home-life—when free-love will prevail and when the holy ordinance of marriage may be mentioned with a sneer.

No, we are not howling calamity, but are willing to tell the truth even if it does hurt. Just because you see something in this column doesn't necessarily denote that it is so, but this time it is.

CHRYSLER LEADS NEW REGISTRATIONS

ILLINOIS FIGURES CREDIT DETROIT WITH PHENOMENAL GAINS

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Striking confirmation of recent reports that the Chrysler Corporation has been breaking all its previous production and sales records is being consistently furnished as successive state tabulations of new car sales are made public.

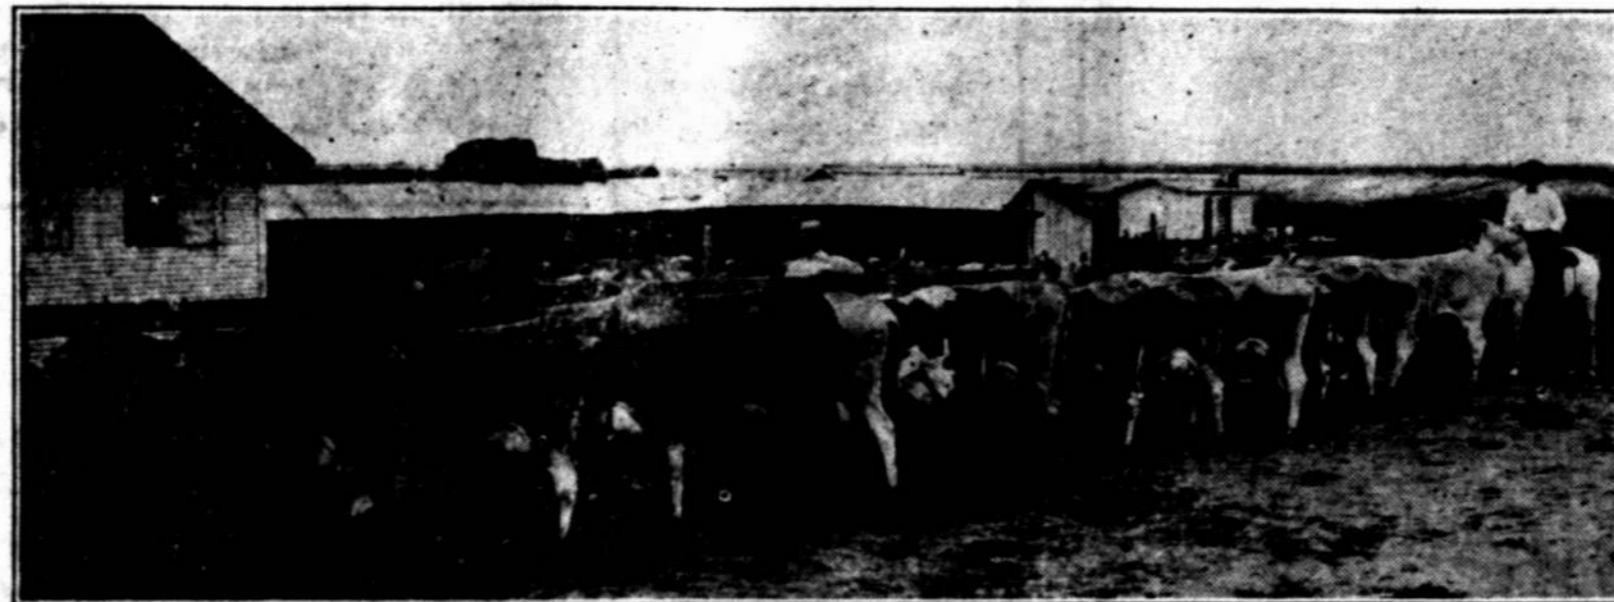

The Illinois table for October is a case in point, showing that Chrysler made the phenomenal gain of 72 per cent over the corresponding month in the preceding year. Analysis of the table shows further that in the ratio of increased registrations no other manufacturer in the competitive class equaled the 72 per cent gain by Chrysler.

Factory records have been running to unprecedented figures for production and shipments, Chrysler officials say. In October of this year Chrysler reached the highest shipment point in the company's history, with a total of 22,124 cars shipped. This is an increase of 19 per cent over the preceding month, which was the former record, and a gain of 51 per cent over October, 1925.

The figures for the younger children are taken from "Holt's Diseases of Infancy and Childhood;" for the ages from six years on from the studies of Boas, Burk and Smedlew. These latter heights and weights are with indoor clothes but without shoes. In all cases the weights have been approximated to the half-pound.

Perhaps you think your child is not really ill, that his underweight is not a cause for worry. Perhaps you would describe his condition by one or more of these terms:

- | | | |
|-------------|-------------------------|----------------|
| Run down | Below par | Easily upset |
| No Appetite | Always tired | Lacks energy |
| Frail | Doesn't sit up straight | Born so |
| Delicate | Low vitality | Nervous |
| Anemic | Very small | Very sensitive |
| Thin | Under-developed | Skinny |
| Pale | Not thriving | Not himself |
| | Growing too fast | |

If this is so, your child's condition is serious. You can correct it. It will mean more to the success and happiness of your boy or girl than any fortune you could leave.

Healthy Pecan Trees Resist Disease

By FRED A. MAHAN, Monticello, Fla.

We find that trees that are in a good healthy condition do not seem to be susceptible to scab and other diseases as do the trees that are in a run-down condition. I have seen healthy trees side by side in the orchard; one of them would be covered with scab while the others would have very little scab on them, enough to do any damage to the nut crop.

I believe that it is the same with trees and plants as it is with human beings in that a person in a healthy condition is not nearly so susceptible to diseases as a person who is in a run-down condition.

We have been trying to get our trees into a good healthy condition by cultivating, fertilizing, and spraying. In the fall of 1925 we harvested the fourth successive crop of orchard nuts. In the fall of 1924 our orchard was the only one in the vicinity from which a crop of healthy nuts was harvested. We know, too, that we would not have saved that healthy crop if we had not sprayed.

Some people will say that the first spraying is the most important spray. I will agree with them in that provided the orchard had not been sprayed for some years back, but if the orchard has been sprayed right along and has been kept fairly clean of scab then we think the third spray is the most important spray. We have found this to be the case with us, as scab did not appear in our orchard last year until about the 25th of June to the first week in July. It increases from 25 to 50 per cent from then on, if it is not kept clean by spraying.

We found that by giving our trees a thorough spraying the latter part of June or first week in July, which is our third spray, that we have kept scab under control, holding our trees from 55 to 90 per cent free of scab. We have done this for four years now. I have even started spraying for scab in June putting on the first application of spray in June, our second in July and our third and last in July and had our trees from 75 to 90 per cent clean. To those having their orchard fairly clean of scab, we are making their first spray this late in the first spraying would be very important. But I would advise any one spraying to make his first applica-

POULTRY POINTS

By C. S. MINCH

We will repeat the formula for colds and catarrh that appeared in this column a few weeks ago. Better copy or clip it out; although you may not need it now, you may need it sometime.

4 ounces copperas, 2 ounces sulphuric acid, mix these in one gallon of rain water, in glass container or tub. Give 2 ounces in 3 gallons of drinking water, in crock, stone or cement drinker; use no metal nor wood. Keep all other drinking water away, give until the trouble is cleaned up, generally in two weeks, in severe cases it sometimes takes a month.

The subject, "Preparing for Winter Quarters," by Judge Dwight E. Hale of Glen Ellyn, Illinois. He is among the best poultry authorities and has covered the subject well.

The month of November is significant and of popular interest to all. By this time the pullets will begin to rodden up in their head points and sing that old song, "We are laying for you."

If you do not want them to begin laying too early, just move them from one pen to another. You can also reduce the amount of proteins in their mash feeds.

A bird to lay a goodly number of eggs and carry over a long period of time, as well as producing eggs that will hatch big sturdy chicks must have an abundance of vitality. She must be well developed and have some fat in her body. Do not worry if it appears to be a white bird, and the plumage looks creamy, that is but the sap and vitality manifest in the feathers.

Feed rather heavily at this season with hard grain so as to build up their meat and fat supply. The meat across the breast bone should be plump and rounded so that you can hardly feel the breast bone. Then they are in prime condition for the laying pen.

If you maintain vitality, you need have no fears of getting both winter eggs and hatchable eggs. If the bird hasn't sufficient vitality, you can not expect her to produce winter eggs and have enough vitality in reserve to put into the egg to grow a good strong chick.

The incubator manufacturer has been blamed many times for poor hatches when the flock owner is at fault because his birds did not possess the necessary vitality to produce a good hatchable egg. There is a big difference between fertility and hatchability, and the word fertility has been often misused.

In putting your pullets into winter quarters see that the houses have no cracks where the wind can seep through. An air hole no larger than a hole can cause a lot of trouble if in where it will cause a draft to blow on the birds. Clean and disinfect all houses and whitewash them. Put in a nice new lot of clean straw about a foot deep, and make them dig and work in that for their scratched. The birds will enjoy it and it will do them a lot of good.

Have plenty of nesting boxes and get them when they want it, and not starting on the floor. Pullets and hens like their noses darkened, so it is well if you can have the entrance at the rear and have the front so it will let down for the gathering of the eggs.

Remember that water is the big part both their bodily makeup and later eggs, and they need and will consume a lot of it. Keep water fountains clean and well supplied with fresh water.

LEAVES GALESBURG ON SCHEDULE AND MEETS TRAIN AT BURLINGTON STATION

In a thrilling race through the night with a C. B. & Q. fast train from Galesburg to Burlington, Ill., a distance of 47 1/2 miles, an Overland Whippet sedan speeded its way into automotive history a few days ago in connection with the Whippet trials.

The Whippet, driven by A. L. Mulvaney with C. I. Dawdy, Galesburg newspaperman as official observer, left Galesburg just as the fast mail train was pulling out at 12:14 a. m. and Mulvaney mailed a letter on the same train at the station in Burlington 52 minutes later. The Whippet had followed the train schedule all the way, and at one time during the run was four minutes late.

Opening wide his throttle as he left the Galesburg city limits, the Whippet driver speeded on through the night, at times in sight of the mail train, sometimes ahead and at other times behind. Flying around curves, taking grades in high gear, unflinching over rough roads, the Whippet responded with every part functioning perfectly.

Finally in the skies in the distance the Whippet driver saw the faraway reflection of the lights of Burlington. Onward the car sped and in a few moments the street lights of the city came into full view.

The Whippet wended its way through the city's streets and just a few minutes later stopped at the C. B. & Q. station. There stood the waiting judge, puffing engine which a moment before pulled into Burlington with its string of mail cars.

C. OF C. IN SLATON PLANS YEAR'S WORK

NEW HOTEL AND RAILWAY TO EAST ARE MAIN FEATURES OF PROGRAM

SLATON, Dec. 4.—A program of work to be done by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce through 1927 has been mapped out by the members of the organization and announced by the board of directors. It is as follows:

Major program: 1. new hotel; 2. railway outlet to east; 3. natural gas; 4. publicity; 5. free U. S. mail delivery; 6. free express delivery; 7. better maintenance of unpaved streets; 8. improved marketing conditions for all farm products.

Minor program: 1. improved highways leading into Slaton; 2. operation of citizenship; 3. more sidewalks; 4. better garbage disposal; 5. strict enforcement of more rigid building regulations in the fire limits of the city; 6. co-operation with public school system; 7. beautification of home premises with flowers, shrubbery, trees, etc.; 8. sewer connections installed in every home adjacent to sewer lines.

In addition to these enumerated projects, a long list of other undertakings are planned, making the Slaton program the most extensive ever attempted here, according to Chamber of Commerce officials.

President J. W. Hood, of the organization said in a statement: "Slaton has made wonderful progress and amazing development in the past few years, and the chamber of commerce has played a large part in bringing about vast changes. We confidently expect the coming year to prove one of the most eventful ever known in the history of this city, and the activities of the chamber of commerce will be more intense along numerous lines than at any previous time. The opportunities for development are unlimited and the coming year will see a period of growth unequalled in any like stretch of time."
