DAVID SELLERS Second Victim Of Wreck Dies

A second person died here Monday as a result of injuries received in a two-vehicle wreck late Saturday four miles north of Big Spring on the Snyder highway. Frank Schifmacher perished at the scene.

David Sellers, 21 of Snyder, died at 6:40 p.m. in Medical Center Hospital here.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the 37th Street Church of Christ in Snyder with Pat Abananto, minister, officiating, assisted by Elbert Garretson, minister of Birdwell Lane Church of Christ in Big Spring.

Born Dec. 18, 1951 in Snyder, he was a member of the 37th Street Church of Christ. He was employed by Wicks Mobile Homes.

Survivors include his father, Grady Sellers, Snyder, mother, Mrs. Nell Sellers, Snyder, and two sisters, Mrs. Jackie Roemisch, Hermleigh, and Mrs. Jim Robinson, Snyder, and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Blythe, Snyder.

Lamesa Linewoman Enjoys Her Work

Females once again invade the domain of the male in West Texas.

First Big Spring ended up with a mailwoman. Then Odessa came up with a highway patrolwoman trainee. Now Lamesa has a linewoman.

General Telephone has trained and employed Mrs. Wanda Ervin as the first active installer of telephones in West Texas who is of the female sex.

Mrs. Ervin, the mother of a 15 and six year old child, said recently that "I consider it a challenge — and then I like to work outside."

Mrs. Ervin scales the poles with the best of them in the training course and is currently helping install phones all over the area.

Previously, she worked in jobs such as receptionist and clerk — all inside. "I like it outside," she re-emphasized.

He Is Ready To Take Lie Detector Test

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Emphatically proclaiming his innocence, Juan Corona says he lives in faith he will win a new trial and prove he did not murder 25 itinerant workers near Yuba City, Calif., in 1971.

That was the nation's largest mass murder case until 27 bodies were unearthed in Texas this month.

The former farm labor contractor said it is impossible for him to think of spending the rest of his life in jail, despite the sentence of 25 consecutive life terms.

"No! No! No. Whatever they accuse me for, I know it is not true, and God knows it is not true," the 39-year-old Corona said.

"Why does an innocent man spend his life in prison if he didn't commit a crime. I think that justice will be reasonable . . .

"I never put it in my mind that I'm going to be here forever, because it's not right, because that's impossible . . . They will have to prove the truth."

He said he is ready and willing to take a lie detector test, if the authorities will give him one.

Asked if he knew who did commit the murders, Corona replied: "I don't know, sir."

Dressed in blue prison denim, Corona appeared relaxed and in good health during an interview Monday at the California Medical Facility 50 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Hunt Ex-Cop In Nixon Plot

ARROYO HONDO, N.M. (AP) — Police armed with rifles roused sleeping residents of the Morning Star commune at dawn today, searching for a man charged in New Orleans with threatening the life of President Nixon.

HUNT 'CAT'

About 25 men fanned over the fields and hills near the adobe community some 12 miles north of Taos where the man, known in the commune as "Cat," lived with his wife and three children.

Secret Service agents said they were looking for Cat, whom they believe is Edwin M. "Punchy" Gaudet, a former New Orleans policeman charged in a federal warrant with threatening the President.

Mike Duncan, who owns the commune, asked police and the television cameramen who accompanied them to leave the premises after about two hours of fruitless searching. Duncan's attorney, John Ramming, said the state police and Taos County sheriff's officers had no warrant to search the commune.

TEMPER, TEMPER

Before resuming the search early today, state Police Lt. Tom Cantu warned searchers to exercise caution because the subject was armed and allegedly had fired on two officers with a 30-06 rifle Monday afternoon.

The manhunt began Monday when the man slipped away from Secret Service agent Ernest Aragon during an attempted arrest.

The commune residents who had lived with the man described him as a former prize-fighter who was not the type to plan an intelligent conspiracy.

Duncan said, "He has a little bit of a temper, but it always cools down. We went deer hunting and he had the deer in his sights, but he didn't have the heart to shoot it even to feed his family."

SWAP SHOTS

The Secret Service said Gaudet has not been connected with an alleged conspiracy to kill Nixon during a visit to New Orleans on Monday.

John Paul Jones, chief of the Secret Service in New Mexico, said law enforcement officers and the man believed to be Gaudet exchanged gunfire Monday afternoon.

"Shots were fired at some officers, and those shots were returned," he said.

Taos city policeman Jose Lucero said he and sheriff's Deputy Joe G. Martinez came upon the hunted man in a thicket.

Lucero said the man showed himself and fired twice with a high-powered rifle.

"He fired twice at me, and I fired four times at him," Lucero said. He said he and other officers apparently missed the man, who disappeared into a nearby arroyo.

Jones said that, after the warrant on Gaudet was filed in New Orleans, officers were sent to the commune to pick up the man believed to be Gaudet but he ran away.

Judge Says Agnew Can't Be Subpoenaed To Testify

BALTIMORE (AP) — The chief judge of the U.S. District Court of Maryland says Vice President Spiro T. Agnew can't be subpoenaed to testify before a special grand jury investigating alleged political corruption.

"That's because he has been put on notice by the Justice Department that he could be a defendant," Judge Edward S. Northrop said in an interview Monday. "He could agree to appear voluntarily if he wished, but that would be his own personal choice. He can't be made to come."

LEGAL VIEWS

Northrop also noted there are conflicting legal views on whether a vice president can be indicted while in office, something never done before.

Agnew, former governor of Maryland, is being investigated with other political and business figures—many of them his former associates—for possible extortion, bribery, conspiracy and tax fraud.

Meanwhile, in Washington, a Justice Department spokesman confirmed that Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had discussed the allegations against Agnew with White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr.

This discussion took place prior to Richardson's session with Agnew Aug. 6 to inform the vice president of the status of the investigation, the spokesman said.

He refused to say why Richardson discussed the allegations with Haig before meeting with Agnew.

GRAVE QUESTION

"Executive privilege is a very grave question," Northrop said. "It is a valid defense, and it could happen."

"In a confrontation on executive privilege, or on separation of powers, there would, of course, be a full-blown hearing."

"What exactly can Congress and the courts get from the executive branch? This is now being tested in the fight over the Watergate tapes. That same issue could be raised here."

Agnew has denounced as "damned lies" allegations that he took kickbacks in return for state contracts while chief executive of Baltimore County in the mid-1960s and later as governor.

ANNOYED Nixon Shoves His Press Secretary

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — President Nixon became visibly annoyed Monday about a snag in the movement of his entourage, barked an order to a close aide and then gave the assistant a hard shove.

The incident, filmed by network television crews, occurred outside the Rivergate Convention Center when Nixon arrived to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

According to witnesses, here is what happened: After stepping from his limousine outside the hall, Nixon walked across the street to shake hands along the fringes of a crowd. Moments later, he headed for a side door of the convention center.

As he reached the door, he discovered that some reporters apparently were preparing to enter the same door, while some members of the official party — including the Louisiana governor and congressmen — were lost in the confusion and crush that often accompanies presidential movements.

Nixon halted and summoned Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. He grasped Ziegler by the shoulders and told him, "I don't want any press with me." Then, spinning Ziegler around, Nixon gave him a forceful shove with the order: "Take care of it!"

Most reporters had been directed toward another door, and the few near Nixon were quickly headed toward it, too.

Ziegler later said the President had merely instructed him that "the press should not come this way." He dismissed the incident, saying: "It looked different than the situation was."

Living Costs Up Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that consumer prices increased two tenths of one per cent in July, the lowest monthly increase in eight months.

President Nixon's 60-day price freeze, announced on June 13, apparently was responsible for the small increase. The increase in the previous month was seven tenths of one per cent.

The Labor Department said there were increases during July in prices of food, rent and household services, while prices of clothing declined.

The price of food was five tenths of one per cent above June, well below the average monthly increase of 1.6 per cent during the previous six months.

Nonfood commodities increased in price one tenth of one per cent after seasonal adjustment in July, compared with an average monthly increase of four tenths of one per cent from December through June.

Sex-Murder Witness

HOUSTON (AP) — A 15-year-old girl who was in the home of Dean Corll when he was shot to death at his home early Aug. 8 was expected to appear today before a grand jury investigating the sex-murder case in which 27 bodies have been recovered.

Rhonda Louise Williams was in the Pasadena home when Corll's fatal shooting by Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, broke the case and led to the indictment of Henley and David Owen Brooks, 18, on charges of murder.

Miss Williams has been held by juvenile authorities since making an Aug. 8 statement to police as a material witness.

Sources in the office of Dist. Atty. Carol Vance also said the grand jury was to hear testimony today from a 17-year-old youth who attended junior high school with Henley and Brooks. The youth's name had not figured previously in the case.

Brenda Weakening

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The National Hurricane Center issued this advisory on Hurricane Brenda at 12 noon EDT today:

Brenda weakening inland over Mexico. The center of Brenda crossed the Mexican coast early this morning at a point about 30 miles west of the city of Carmen.

No reports have been received from the immediate vicinity of the point of landfall but reports from Carmen showed sustained winds of 52 miles per hour with gusts to 58 m.p.h. At Villahermosa, near the path of the storm's center but more than 30 miles inland, wind gusts reached 48 m.p.h.

MANY TEACHERS ANSWER BELL

Holy Writ 'Best Seller' With Bible Fund Friends

Friends of the Big Spring High School Bible Fund began to respond to the challenge in a big way in the 24-hour period ending at noon today, with the result that the drive had its biggest 'day' yet.

A total of $815 was donated to the fund during that period, raising the aggregate to $1,550.

Among the big gifts were $300, given by Trinity Baptist Church, $100 by the Rev. R. Gage Lloyd (ret.) and $100 by the Hillcrest Baptist Church.

The Howard County Ministers' Fellowship, which is staging the campaign, still has a big hill to climb, since the objective is $5,800.

The Bible course offered at the local high school must be supported by donations, since by law it cannot be subsidized by the tax payers.

Donations in any amount are welcomed. They can be forwarded either to the Rev. Caleb Hildebrand, coordinator of the drive and pastor of the Wesley United Methodist Church, or to The Herald, PO Box 1431, Big Spring.

The solicitation will continue for about 10 days.

Parts Of City Without Power

A 45-minute power shortage in about a third of the city Monday evening occurred when a Texas Electric Service Company line fell at First and Runnels Street. The trouble started about 10 p.m.

They retreated from the scene, since the ground around the pole was wet. Tom Locke, local TESCO manager, who came to the scene along with workmen, stated that "I think possibly one of the guywires on one end or the other had received a bump which gave the line some slack and later it broke."

Exec Says Energy Not Short Here

West Texas does not have a shortage of electric energy according to Tom Locke, division manager for Texas Electric Company, who was guest speaker Monday for Cactus Chapter, American Business Women's Association.

Locke said the United States has six per cent of the world's population, but uses one-third of all energy. Progress is being made to keep up with the growing need. The speaker noted that most energy will soon be furnished by nuclear power; this being the only reliable source. Such a plant will be completed by 1980 at Glen Rose. In conclusion, he explained ways in which electric energy can be conserved and stressed that it should be used wisely.

Locke was introduced by Mrs. Helen Stewart, program chairman. Mrs. Cecil McDonald, president, presided, and Miss Eunice Hicks, tea chairman, announced the fall tea will be from 3 to 5 p.m., Sept. 9 in the home of Mrs. C. A. Agesen, 508 Highland.

The vocational speaker was Miss Sharon Thomas, a former ABWA scholarship recipient, who is a teacher at Coahoma Junior High School. She described the pleasure and challenge of a teaching career.

No Children

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem many others have, and if you answer me in your column, maybe others will benefit from it.

I have been married for nine years and am childless. Our first child was born so severely brain-damaged he had to be institutionalized. Then I had a miscarriage. (Twin boys.) A year later I miscarried a baby girl. After that, I had a hysterectomy.

We put in for adoption, and finally got a beautiful baby girl. At eleven months she died. Crib death! A beautiful, healthy child simply died for no apparent reason, leaving us heart-broken, frustrated, and filled with needless guilt.

Obviously, we have no children, and we probably never will have any. We both have been through a great deal.

My problem: Well-meaning strangers ask upon meeting me: "Have you a family?" Or: "How many children have you?"

This question throws me into a state of depression.

What do I say without going into my whole tragic history? I avoid going places where strangers may inquire about my "family."

Have you an answer, Abby? STILL TORTURED

DEAR STILL: Before you are asked, meet the expected question head on. Say: "We have no children, which is such an unhappy subject, I am not yet able to talk about it, so let's talk about something else." Then change the subject.

DEAR ABBY: I have often been tempted to write to you in rebuttal to certain letters, but simply never found the time. Now I am so incensed, I must make the time. In reply to the self-righteous ex-reader signed "believer in Buffalo," who states that: "God determines who shall die and when, not you or anybody else." Are the physicians who maintain a human body by needles, tubes, and machines long after the human being in that suffering body is gone, God? Having seen both my parents in this situation recently, I do not believe it is humane or even moral to allow it. When they finally died, they no longer even looked like human beings.

I do not believe that kind of suffering is the will of God. Furthermore, I believe those people who are so quick to tell you what God's will is are being very presumptuous. Thank you for taking a stand for the dignity of man in his final hours. Sign me.

"ALSO A BELIEVER IN NEW JERSEY"

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. N. IN LAKESIDE, ORE.: No, I am not encouraging permissiveness, but what has been done is done, so why carry a grudge for a lifetime? The past is but a bucket of ashes.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Men's Garden Clubs Will Convene Here

Events for a Southwestern Region convention of Men's Garden Clubs were scheduled Monday by members of the local men's group at the home of Johnny Johansen.

Assisting in planning the convention, slated here Oct. 19-20, was F. Martin Brown of Dallas, regional president. Pre-registration for the meeting will be held the evening of Oct. 19, followed by a visit to Roy Peet's home and gardens, and a tour of Scenic Mountain.

Business sessions and workshops for the men are scheduled the morning of Oct. 20, and wives of those attending will see a style show and musical program. Workshops for both men and women will be held that afternoon, followed by a banquet in the evening.

About 100 people are expected to attend the convention, including some national officers of the group. Wives of members of the local group will be hostesses for the activities.

The next regular local meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 18 at the U.S. Experiment Station.

A Party On The Rise

Americans, preoccupied by their own political matters, probably have paid little attention to a rising phenomenon in the politics of England. There, the Liberal party, long only a gadfly nipping at the Labor and Conservative parties, is enjoying a resurgence — and the British don't quite know what to make of it. Neither do the Liberals.

The Liberal party once was a driving force in British government; it is the party of Lloyd George and a host of other British leaders. But the rise of the Labor party eclipsed it; the Liberal party remained alive as a sort of polite society of the non-Tory middle-and-upper class Englishmen who were not prepared to embrace socialism.

But a strange thing has happened. The Liberals are beginning to win by elections — those votes for individual seats in Parliament which become vacant between general elections. And a recent public opinion poll showed the Liberal party to be supported by an astonishing 26 per cent of the electorate; the party's leader commanded nearly as much support as the present Conservative prime minister, Ted Heath.

A vote for the Liberal candidate in any election has long been regarded in England as a protest against both the major parties — something more than simply refusing to vote, but something less than real support for the Liberals. For that reason, the fact Liberals are winning seems to mean great dissatisfaction with the way things have been going, and general lack of confidence in both the Conservative and the Laborites.

But if the opinion poll results are reflected in votes in the next general election, perhaps to be called this fall, then the Liberals will have a say in the government. They will perhaps have the balance of power, preventing the formation of either a Labor or Conservative government

Close Relationship

What is the relationship between cattle-raising and tire-making? The relationship is excruciatingly close, it seems.

Recently the B. F. Goodrich Co. of Akron, Ohio, said the job security of thousands of rubber workers is threatened by a shortage of tallow. Tallow? Yes, tallow. It is an essential element in the processing of rubber into tires.

Tallow, of course, comes from cattle. The without their participation.

Now that this possibility looms, some observers in England think it may sound the death knell of Liberal resurgence, rather than a clarion for its future. The rationale is that if a vote for the Liberal candidate becomes a serious matter rather than a protest, much of the party's support will vanish. The next British election should prove the point one way or another; if the Liberals finally succeed in becoming a viable political force, other third-party adherents in other democratic countries, including our own, will do well to study how they've accomplished it.

freeze on wholesale and retail beef prices has persuaded many cattlemen to keep their cattle on the range or in feed-lots until the freeze ends Sept. 12. This, in turn, has created a shortage of slaughter cattle and of the tallow which comes from them, and shortage of an ingredient used in tire-making. It is the rough equivalent in the economic field of a cough in Washington causing a cold in Tokyo.

Don't Get Stung

Jo Bright
Around The Rim

My niece, Mrs. Lavelle Robinson of Colorado Springs, was determined to keep busy while her husband, Maj. Skip Robinson, is away from home on Air Force business.

She's developed into a cracker-jack real estate agent.

SOME TIME ago, when she was here for a presentation to a group from Webb AFB, we discussed the land boom in Colorado and she expressed ideas which were re-enforced by something I read last night. The article stressed nine ways not to get stung when buying vacation land.

First, buying land in a recreational development for a vacation or retirement home can be the realization of a dream — if you avoid the booby traps. Many people succeed in buying good land at fair prices but, all too often, fast-talking con artists talk buyers into poor land at outrageous prices. The American Land Development Association is making an effort to police its business for, as a buyer, you are pretty much alone in a field with an unsavory reputation for high-pressure tactics. Here is what they suggest:

Don't buy by mail or sight unseen, for this can expose you to every possible abuse and mistake. Artful photography and heady prose in sales literature are no substitute for a hard look at property itself.

DON'T BUY on your first visit. Most land salesmen live on commissions, so they try to persuade every potential buyer to close the deal on the spot. (You may be softened up with glowing promises of future lakes, golf courses and other improvements; enticed with hints of future profits as land values rise; but give yourself at least a few days to check the details.)

Buy for your use, not investment. Underlying land values might have to rise substantially before you can make a profit by reselling your lot, particularly if you have to pay a commission.

Check the area. What's the climate during various times of the year? Are shopping facilities and roads adequate for the planned population? How far to the nearest hospital, library, police station? Can a local builder put up your house or must you depend on the developer? Look for anything that answers the basic question, "Is this where I want to stay, for vacations, retirement, or both?"

FINALLY, STUDY the property report (developers subject to HUD regulations are required to give you one), don't waive your rights by signing such a document buried in other papers, consult an attorney and have him go over the proposed sales contract and avoid contracts for deed.

When you buy land on an installment credit basis, you must be given a truth-in-lending statement disclosing the annual percentage rate of interest and other details before the sale is consummated. If this is not forthcoming, you have the right to rescind the contract within three days. Complaints should be filed with the Federal Trade Commission in Washington, D.C.

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

Why do many clergymen refuse to speak out against animal cruelty? They say they're too busy saving souls, but Albert Schweitzer said, "Pity for animals is a mandate no thinking person can escape."

S.B. The fact of God's care over His creation is well established. After the creation of the animal world, Genesis 1:25 indicates that "God saw it was good." In the law of Moses, as reflected on by Paul in I Corinthians 9:9, there was this prohibition: "Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn." And when Jesus was delivering his famous Sermon on the Mount, Matthew 6:26 quotes Him as saying: "Behold the fowls of the air, for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them."

Now in the matter of what priority in their preaching clergymen should give the subject of animal cruelty, I could not say. I suppose as you indicate, it seldom appears as a major theme, although I am sure it is alluded to in the course of the year's sermonizing.

The saving and shepherding of souls is the minister's main assignment, and I would not fault him for giving this preeminence. I think, however, if you examine the involvements of the average pastor over a long period in his community, you will discover he does relate his faith to a wide range of subjects. They would include child care to open housing to denouncing pornography. I agree with the inference you make, however, that the mark of a Christian is love and kindness to every segment of God's creation.

Health In The Big City

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — My friend Arnold, the office hypochondriac, was in a blue funk.

"What's the matter?" I asked him. "Have you run out of diseases?"

"It's worse than that," he replied. "I just read that a city dog lives about one and a half times as long as a country dog."

"So?"

"Well, by analogy, a man who lives in the city, particularly if he lives a dog's life, and I assure you I do, should live about one and a half times as long as a man in the country."

"So?"

"Well, that means the city must be healthy, and that my doctor is right when he tells me that all my ills are imaginary. I don't like to think that I'm really nothing but a psychosomatic nut."

I realized Arnold was in a real crisis. When you destroy a hypochondriac's faith in his ailments, you kill his self-confidence.

"All is not lost," I reassured him, reaching for my desk medical dictionary. "The truth is, Arnold, you're sicker than you realize. You've got a lot of maladies your doctor hasn't recognized."

"Like what?"

"Well, 'I said, turning the pages, 'You're afraid of being mugged, aren't you?'"

"Who can live in the city and not be?" said Arnold.

"Then you've got two ailments — bapaxophobia, the fear of being robbed, and rhabdophobia, the fear of being beaten."

"That's nice. Anything else?"

"Yes," I replied. "You hate cabdrivers, I know. If you're afraid a cab will hit you on the right side of your body, you're suffering from extrophobia. But if you're afraid of being hit on the left side, you've got levophobia."

"I've got both!" exclaimed Arnold.

"But that isn't the half of it, Arnold. You've told me that you think the people in the apartment across the way are watching you. That proves you've come down with ophthalmophobia, the fear of being stared at. And I would also say you have xenophobia, the fear of strangers and foreigners, and, since you run from little old ladies with umbrellas on rainy days, you must be in the grip of belonephobia, the fear of sharp-pointed objects, and —"

Then I noticed that Arnold was heading for the door. I put back the dictionary.

"Where are you going, Arnold?"

"To see my doctor," he answered cheerfully. "When I tell him some of the things wrong I've got, he'll probably think I'm lucky if I live through the rest of the year."

Reflections On Speech

William F. Buckley Jr.

Mr. Nixon's speech was disappointing, but short of something genuinely dramatic, about the only thing to say. He might have said that he would turn the tapes over to an independent tribunal: that would have been a grand gesture.

OR HE MIGHT have said: "Look, gentlemen, Watergate is a mess, and if Archibald Cox desires to spend the rest of his life pursuing crimes major and minor, let him do so, and let Sen. Ervin do, and let them meet at night with the editors of the New York Times and the Washington Post and deplore together the human condition. What I will not do is acquiesce in the paralysis of government pending testimony from Segretti's brother-in-law. The principals have been heard publicly under oath. If both houses of Congress pass a censure resolution against me before the first of September, I shall resign my office. If by the first of September they have not done so, I shall proceed with the job at hand and will never again while I am in office allude to Watergate, or acknowledge a question alluding to Watergate."

This does not mean, of course, that the experience of Watergate is excreted from the American memory. Its ugliness is there, and survives even the opportunism of Mr. Nixon's critics. They are a depressing lot, most of them. There is the swivel-hipped morality that says No when Otto Otepka does it, but says Yes when Dan Ellsberg does it; that loves military bases in Massachusetts but hates them in Texas; that dispatches everything from jets to valentines to those who do sentry-duty on the Gaza Strip, but votes to suspend K-rations for those who patrol the DMZ; who insist that after two years' investigation, two trials, and seven court reviews, Alger Hiss is innocent and it was really Benvenuto Cellini who constructed his typewriter, but Haldeman is guilty just because John Dean said so.

Notwithstanding all that, there is the wretched behavior of some of Nixon's subordinates.

JOHN DEAN, to judge from his memorandums, would have served Benito Mussolini happily, and would have shown as much exasperation over the notorious inefficiency of Mussolini — who, although he contrived to make the trains run on time, never really succeeded in coordinating national policy behind fascist ideals — as he showed in protesting the apparent failure of the Nixon Administration sufficiently to harness the powers of government so as to torment the critics of the Nixon Administration.

I count it, by the way, the most inexplicable of Mr. Nixon's silences that he should have refrained from expressing his disgust over the famous Dean Memorandum.

THE FACT of it is that we have seen the abuse of power — or, more properly, a spectacularly clumsy attempt to abuse power. I don't know whether in fact somebody in the anti-trust division of the Justice Department was responsible for dropping monopoly charges against I.T.T.'s acquisition of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, knowing only that highly responsible jurists thought the acquisition perfectly legal. But if that is what the little neo-fascists accomplished, it is about the only thing they did accomplish, otherwise behaving rather like the Lavender Hill Mob than like the Great Train Robbers. Segretti didn't convince anybody that Sen. Jackson was abnormal. George McGovern won the primaries he won by votes substantially affected by clandestine money from the Committee to Re-elect the burglarization of Watergate was about as successful as the Bay of Pigs, the cover-up as tidy and well-concealed as Woodstock Nation.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife and I are having difficulty having a baby. The doctor says a varicocele is in order.

Just what is a varicocele? Is there any personal danger to me? Could the operation lessen our chances? My sperm count is low but not non-existent. — F.T.C.

A varicocele is an operation to remove a complex of varicose veins called a varicocele) which sometimes forms in the scrotum. Since varicocele can be a factor in male infertility (by lessening the sperm count) the operation makes sense.

There is no danger to you, nor are there any after-effects. In fact, the time you would have to take off from work would be very brief.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Thank you for your good advice — but do you have any booklet that deals with migraine? — Mrs. T.

Yes, there's a whole section on migraine in the booklet, "How to Tame Headaches," since migraine is a quite common (and certainly distressing) form of headache. If you'd like the booklet, send

Operation Might Help

25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why do so many people get blood clots in the lung after gall bladder surgery? — Mrs. W.E.

The fact that people can develop emboli, or blood clots in the lung, after abdominal surgery is a recognized fact, but statistically it doesn't happen very often. This has nothing to do with gall bladder surgery in particular; it can happen (but usually does not) after surgery for other purposes.

The same thing can happen after injuries; but it can also happen when there is no evidence whatever of injury, prior disease or surgery.

Various methods are being used to prevent such clots, or to keep the trouble minimal if it does develop.

One important method is early ambulation — getting the patient up and walking as soon after surgery as possible. This has helped a great deal.

Movement of the legs in bed also helps prevent clot formation. Deep breathing also helps.

Finally, if the earliest signs of clot formation in the calves of the legs are treated promptly, that can reduce trouble, too. You may wonder why I mention the legs. That's the easiest place for clots to form. And since all the blood of the body is circulated through the lungs, if a clot starts moving, it can be carried to the lungs and lodge there.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a coronary artery that is plugged. I am 57 and have had two heart attacks in 2½ years. I have read about the new bypass operation that is supposed to alleviate the condition. My cardiologist is not too much in favor of it as he says the saphenous vein graft is not an artery and cannot be expected to function as an artery very long.

Would you care to comment? — A.J.N.

Not especially. But I will. I'd be inclined to side with your cardiologist.

It is true that a bypass procedure relieves the pains of angina in many cases, but you make no mention of angina. Your doctor knows your condition, and I am sure he would recommend the operation if he thought it would benefit you.

On Collision Course

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The fact that several leaders of the powerful American-Jewish community discreetly — but bitterly — complained to Israeli ambassador Simcha Dinitz about Israel's skyjacking of a civilian Arab airliner is harsh evidence that Israel now risks becoming an acute embarrassment to her best friends here.

SOME HIGHLY placed American Jews, in fact, were quick to point to their outrage over Israel's decision once again to invade Lebanon's air space as proof that the American-Jewish community is no handmaiden of the state of Israel.

As one prominent Jewish leader, with close ties to the Nixon administration, told us (asking anonymity): "I have a sixth sense that Israel is getting too smart for her own good."

Yet, that ominous warning to the country which controls by far the most powerful military might anywhere in the Arab Middle East, thanks to American weapons, is only the beginning of the new round of troubles Israel now confronts here.

Far more significant is the fact, unreported until now, that President

Nixon himself has suddenly come to realize that the old intimacy between the U.S. and King Feisal of Saudi Arabia is endangered.

Mr. Nixon, in fact, is using the threat of strained relations with old friend King Feisal, whose country sits on 24 per cent of the world's known reserves of crude oil, to justify a new look at the tumultuous Middle East. With the U.S. facing grave oil shortages, and King Feisal under growing Arab pressure to use his influence to shift American policy from pro-Israel to neutral — no small shift — Mr. Nixon is far more concerned than generally realized.

BUT TO that there must be added the explosive ingredient of Israel's seeming contempt for the opinion of major U.S. allies, particularly in Western Europe, and the U.S. itself.

In the dramatic Israeli raid into the heart of Beirut last April 10, for example, the first fatal victim of the Israeli counter-terrorists was no Palestinian terrorist but an elderly Italian woman who happened to be occupying the apartment where the Israelis expected to find a guerrilla leader. She was gunned to death.

Baseball A La Gresque

Art Buchwald

(Art Buchwald has gone off for a few weeks to forget about Watergate. He left behind some of his all-time favorite columns which he insists to the best of his recollection, at that point in time and in hindsight, everyone wanted to read again.)

WASHINGTON — The game of baseball can be Greek to a lot of people, particularly if you are Greek. I had the pleasure of watching a World Series game on television with Melina Mercouri, the Greek actress who was in Washington with her director, Jules Dassin. Miss Mercouri didn't want to watch the game but Mr. Dassin had his heart set on it.

"Darling," he said, "this is the World Series. I've got to see it."

"WHAT COUNTRIES are playing?" Miss Mercouri wanted to know.

"No countries are playing. It is between two American teams."

"Then why do they call it the World Series?" she asked.

"I guess because to Americans it is the most important thing in the world. You see, baseball is the national pastime."

"In Greece we have better pastimes," the actress said.

"Yes," Mr. Dassin agreed, "but you can't show them on television."

"I don't care. I want to see the White House and the Capitol and the Pentagon. I don't want to sit in this hotel room looking at a stupid game."

"It's not stupid. Let me explain it to you. Look at the screen. There are nine men on each team."

"WHO IS the man in the blue suit with the life preserver?" Miss Mercouri wanted to know.

"That's the umpire. He's neutral."

"I like him. He's dressed much better than the others."

"Now pay attention," Mr. Dassin said. "There are four bases, including home plate. The man with the bat stands at home plate and tries to hit the ball which is thrown by a man called the pitcher."

"And the rest of them just stand around doing nothing," Miss Mercouri said.

"No, that's not so. If the man hits the ball, they must try to catch it and put him out."

"That's all they do?"

"Well, they also have to bat when it is their turn. Now watch. The pitcher has just thrown a ball."

"The man didn't try to hit the ball," Miss Mercouri said.

"No, he didn't, because the pitch was a ball."

"I know it was a ball. I can see."

"You don't understand. It was a bad ball."

"Why don't they play with good balls? I thought America was a rich country."

For What It's Worth

Jack Cowan

A defeat at this stage in my life could be disastrous. I mean, I really could be damaged severely, and for a long time even. What kind of respect could a young sports editor command if he loses to a female in a colossal tennis exhibition? None. Less, maybe.

However, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday when Sissy Mann and I square off at the Figure Seven Tennis Center in the match of the hour, I shall do my utmost to keep from being too badly embarrassed. Some say there's not much hope. My only prayer is that Bobby Riggs won't be disappointed. But then, on second thought, I don't really care since Bobby and I aren't getting along these days. After all, it's his fault I got into this mess. If he hadn't gotten such a big head and started challenging every woman player in the world, then Mrs. Mann never would have gotten the idea to invade my lair at The Herald and challenge me.

But I'll not waver. After all, I'm a veteran at this sort of thing. I'm 1-0 in challenge matches. Hah, didn't know that, did you Mrs. Mann? Never mind that the first one was in golf and I, was playing a 50-year old columnist who called himself "The Duffer." And never mind the score. It's the experience that counts.

And don't I have a trophy at home that proves I was runner-up in the 1968 Uvalde City Championship men's singles division? So what if they didn't play all that much tennis in Uvalde. I'm not worried. No sir, uh uh. You won't catch me getting shook.

I mean, she's just a woman, isn't she? What more could I ask? I once took my mother out to the tennis courts and trounced her severely. It's the same thing, right? Sure. Uh-hh, I'd better move along so I can get out and practice.

So the night won't be a total loss tennis-wise, Figure Seven pro Novice Kniffen and his assistant Barry Stevens will take on Big Spring High netter Randy Mattingley and Stanton's Tommy Deavenport following the Cowan-Mann farce, er, I mean match.

Theirs will be an exhibition. Ours will be an "exhibition," if you know what I mean . . .

Swim Action In Spotlight

MOSCOW (AP) — American swimmers get a chance to perform today at the World University Games after U.S. sprinters salvaged a bit of pride in wild track and field finales and the Soviet Union added six gold medals.

The Americans figure to dominate the four days of swimming events and could easily add a dozen golds to the two golds, three silvers and nine bronzes they now possess.

However, there is no hope of catching the powerful Soviets, who have picked up clusters of medals in gymnastics and wrestling. The Soviets now have 44 gold, 21 silver and 22 bronze.

The final day of track and field Monday saw seven European countries win first place, among them Mona Lisa Porsialainen of Finland, who became the premier women's sprinter of the Games when she added the 200-meter title to her earlier victory in the 100 meters.

Pietro Mennea of Italy took the men's 200-meter race, Britain's Francis Clement won the 1,500, Czayna Rabstzyn of Poland won the women's 100-meter hurdles, and Margit Olfert of East Germany took the broad jump.

Czechoslovakia got its first gold of the Games when Vladimir Maly won the high jump and Bulgaria's Lilianna Tomova provided her country's first gold with a victory in the 800 meters.

The American track team, outperformed for four days, won the final two events on the program. The U.S. sprinters came from behind on a fine final lap by Steve Riddick of Norfolk, Va., State to win the 400-meter relay.

PART OF THE GAME — Big Spring Steer footballers are spending much of their time running these days in preparation for the 1973 football season, and that's what head coach Bob Burris is getting ready to tell his troops to do this time. The Steers will work out in shorts through Thursday, and on Friday they begin practice in pads. The season opener is Sept. 7 against Lubbock Monterey.

SMITH STOPS NASTASE IN DAVIS CUP MATCH

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase, of all people, went out and proved that big prize money doesn't necessarily produce the best tennis.

"It was probably one of our best matches," admitted the weary Smith after beating his old rival Nastase 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 Monday in the final match of the United States' 4-1 victory over Romania in the Davis Cup Interzone Finals.

Each man earned more than $150,000 in tournament prize money last year. They played Monday for relative beer money — the Davis Cup team salaries allotted by their countries — and there was nothing at stake but personal pride.

Marty Riessen had clinched the U.S. victory in the semi-final round of the Davis Cup competition by beating Toma Ovicil 6-1, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5 in Monday's first singles match.

Royals Top Yanks, Boost TV Image

By The Associated Press
Smile, Jack McKeon, you're on TV. "This is the first good game we've played on national television," said the Kansas City manager after a 6-2 triumph over the New York Yankees Monday night.

"Usually, we're sloppy." The Royals, who have been the national spotlight of late, made sure that they would have a good TV image with a four-run fourth inning.

That put the lights out for the Yankees and helped to break a four-game losing streak for the Royals. Steve Busby played the leading role in the Kansas City production, winning his 12th game with late relief help from Doug Bird.

Busby, 12-11, had only given up six hits through eight innings until allowing the two Yankee runs in the ninth. Bird came in to get the last two outs and recorded his 12th save.

The Yankee defeat dropped them into fourth place in the American League East, four games behind the front-running Baltimore Orioles. The hot Orioles won their eighth straight game with a dramatic 4-3 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

Gene Tenace blasted two home runs and drove in four runs to power Oakland past Detroit 7-2. Vida Blue won his 14th game for the A's with a seven-hitter.

National League scores: Cincinnati 8, New York 3 in 16 innings; San Francisco 6, Montreal 4 in 11 innings and Houston 10, Pittsburgh 2.

Forsan's Young Buffs Face Rebuilding Year

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles previewing Big Spring area football teams for the 1973 season. The person featured in each article is the main words in camp. Here's the season outlook for the Buffaloes.)

"Young and inexperienced" aren't strong enough words to describe the 1973 Forsan Buffalo football team.

With just two seniors in camp to help improve on last year's 5-5 mark, no one is accusing coach Jack Woodley of watering down his talent. "This is definitely a rebuilding year," says Woodley. "The kids have a good attitude, but they're so young and inexperienced. We're going to have to count on freshmen a great deal."

But Woodley thinks he just may have the best crop of freshmen in the league. Unbeaten as junior high graders last year and generally touted as fine over-all athletes, the squad now sets its sights on varsity careers.

Among those ninth graders being counted upon to fill eight offensive and seven defensive voids in the starting lineup is quarterback Ralph Miranda, whom Woodley calls "a fine athlete. He could make us a real good hand."

Another frosh expected to get a long look is John Medlin, who could start as a back or end. Both Miranda and Medlin weigh around 135.

Gary Tidwell, Jace Elliott and Billy Osbourn are other talented freshmen.

The only senior returnees are David Crooks, a wide receiver, and Randy Wall, who is being counted upon as a down lineman.

There are a large number of juniors ready to help out, however, headed up by tackle Phillip King (6-2, 215). "He could be our outstanding player this year," says Woodley.

Other junior experience comes in the form of Landon Soles (6-1, 155) who played some at quarterback last year but mainly was a running back, and Wesley Thixton, a two-way starter a year ago.

Back Gage Mims and linemen Chris Johnson (160) and Tim Yeats are other top candidates.

Sophomore linemen Brad Stevens (190) and Paul Bedwell could also help, along with Eddie Decker and Gary Turner. The Buffs get their first real workout Thursday when they host Grandfalls-Royalty in a 4 p.m. scrimmage session, while Aug. 30 they visit New Home for a workout.

The Stanton B team is in town Sept. 6 for the season opener, and Sept. 14 the Buffs travel to Roscoe. After dates with Imperial of Buena Vista and O'Donnell on the following weekends, the Buffaloes open District 3-B action at home against Sands in a Homecoming tilt Oct. 5.

Forsan travels to Roby Oct. 12, and after hosting Loraine comes an open week Oct. 26. Then the Buffaloes are at home against Jayton Nov. 9 before closing the season on the road in Bronte Nov. 16.

There are a large number of juniors ready to help out, however, headed up by tackle Phillip King (6-2, 215). "He could be our outstanding player this year," says Woodley.

WACO, Tex. (AP) — It is a sellout. Writers are picking the Bears for a first division finish and conceded Baylor Coach Grant Teaff was explaining the complexities of taking a football team and turning it into a semi-bully.

"What you do is work your tail off from sunup to sundown then get up the next day and do the same thing," Teaff said in a rather uncomplicated way.

Coach of the Year Teaff, who put together a 5-6 record in his first year, applied that sweat-and-hustle technique in the off-season for one of the finest Baylor recruiting hauls in history. The Bears nailed such bluechippers as fleet Alcy Jackson who said "I like Grant Teaff . . . I think he is a winner . . . I think Baylor is going to be a winner."

You think folks along the Brazos aren't in a tizzy. They've sold something like 5,500 season tickets — a record. The home opener against Okla-

Gen. Maloy To Speak

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Maloy, commander of the 17th Air Force, is scheduled to speak at the graduation of Undergraduate Pilot Training Class (UPT) 74-01, Aug. 30. Ceremonies are slated to be in the auditorium of Withycombe Hall, Bldg., 350, beginning at 10 a.m.

Maloy, who once was forced to eject from a crippled F-4 during the Vietnam war, got his start in the cockpit of P-61 Black Widow night fighters during World War II.

After the war the general remained in China to train Chinese pilots. He was a member of the China-Liaison Mission, the forerunner of the Military Assistance Advisory Group to China.

The general has also commanded a Tactical Air Command (TAC) fighter wing, held several staff positions, commanded an Air Division, and held several command positions working with the Korean Air Force.

Maloy has commanded the 17th Air Force headquartered in Germany since July 1972. He is the holder of a Silver Star, five legions of merits, the Distinguished Flying Cross, one Bronze Star, five Air Medals, the Army Commendation Medal with cluster, Purple Heart, and Vietnamese and Korean decorations.

Health, Welfare Group To Meet

The regular monthly luncheon of the Big Spring Health and Welfare Group will meet at the VA Hospital, 2400 S. Gregg, Friday at noon.

Charles Burks, Counsellor for Texas Vocational Rehabilitation Agency, Big Spring, will talk about the services available by his agency and eligibility requirements. His office in Big Spring was opened Aug. 1.

All persons interested in attending can call Mrs. Ruby Phillips of the Howard County Welfare Department and make reservations not later than noon, Wednesday.

Classes Will Be For Men, Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles plans to give its first classes in sex education this fall. But the classes will be for parents, not children.

Sex education in the 272 elementary schools of the archdiocese was prohibited three years ago.

The parents will attend eight weekly two-hour sessions, and they may pass the information to their children as they see fit, a spokesman for the archdiocese said.

AC Tests Slated At College Here

The ACT, American College Test, will be administered Friday and Saturday, Aug. 24-25, for those students who missed the national test dates. Students may use either test day, according to Wayne Bonner, director of guidance services at HCJC.

The tests will be given at HCJC in Room A-8 from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. with $7.50 as the cost for the test.

Col. Liotta Formally Takes Charge At Webb

Col. Robert G. Liotta assumed command of the 78th Flying Training Wing from Brig. Gen. Stanley M. Umstead Jr., earlier today in flight line ceremony at Webb AFB.

Among those attending the ceremony was Lt. Gen. William V. McBride, commander of Air Training Command.

Col. Liotta briefly commanded the 78th Air Base Group at Webb prior to assuming command of the 78th Flying Training Wing.

He came to Webb from Sheppard AFB, Tex., where he was commander of the 80th Flying Training Wing.

Col. Liotta entered the Air Force as an aviation cadet in 1949 with an Associate of Arts Degree from Boston University. Since that time, he has paralleled his military career with continued academic pursuits and has earned, while on active duty, a Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Vermont; a Master of Science from George Washington University; a Master of Arts Degree, ad eundem, from Brown University. In addition, he has completed the major portion of the requirements for a Doctor of Philosophy degree in political science.

BEGAN IN 1951

His military career began as a primary flight instructor in 1951 at Goodfellow AFB, Tex., where he taught American students, as well as students from Norway, Denmark, France, Belgium, Italy, Turkey and China. After returning from Korea in 1955, he became a flight commander in an F-86D Air Defense Fighter Squadron. He progressed through squadron operations officer to fighter weapons staff officer at Bangor Air Defense Sector Headquarters, while flying the F-102 and F-106.

His Air Defense experience culminated with an exchange tour with the Royal Australian Air Force as commander of the Mirage Training Flight, where he was responsible for the conversion of Australian fighter pilots to the French Mach 2, Air Defense fighter, the Mirage III-C. While there, he also flew the Avon Sabre and the DeHavilland Vampire.

From 1966 to 1969, during the period of campus unrest, Liotta served as Professor of Aerospace Studies at Brown University.

Since December 1969, Liotta has been associated in some capacity with the Vietnamese Air Force. At that time he was assigned to the Air Force Advisory team at Binh Thuy Air Base as Advisor to the Combat Group Commander and as the advisor to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, 4th Vietnamese Air Division. In addition to assisting the Vietnamese to develop organizational and administrative patterns responsive to combat requirements, he flew over 300 combat missions. For his service to the Republic of Vietnam, he was awarded the Cross of Gallantry with two silver stars; the Training Service Medal, Honor Class; the Air Service Medal, Honor Class; the Honor Medal,

COL. ROBERT G. LIOTTA

Ag-Tech Will Be Offered

A two-year program in agriculture technology will be initiated this fall at Howard County Junior College.

Designed to enable students to receive college credit for part-time on-the-job training and summer employment, the program is in addition to agriculture science courses already offered for students wishing to transfer to four-year colleges and obtain agriculture science degrees.

The new three-phase program will offer students a chance of education and employment in farm and ranch management, plant science and crop production or agriculture business.

Col. Liotta's American decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with eleven Oak Leaf Clusters; the Meritorious Service Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster; the Air Force Commendation Medal; and several other awards. In addition to his other foreign decorations, Col. Liotta has been awarded Luftwaffe command pilot wings by the Federal Republic of Germany. He has more than 5,500 hours in fighter type aircraft of which 2,500 hours are logged as an instructor pilot.

Liotta and his wife, the former Barbara Ann Hearn, have three sons — Robert, age 22; Jeffrey, age 20; and Peter, age 17.

Ag-Tech Will Be Offered

Instructors will be James Owens, chairman of the Agriculture Science Department, and Byron Hedges. Both are graduates of Texas A & M University.

Anyone interested in the program may contact the dean of occupational education, HCJC, at 267-6311, ext. 70.

TRAINED GERMANS

His association with the Vietnamese continued after his return from Vietnam in 1971. As commander of the 3389th Pilot Training Squadron, in one year, he supervised the training of 90 per cent of the yearly production of young Vietnamese Air Force pilots. As wing commander at Sheppard AFB, Tex., he was primarily responsible for training pilots for the German Air Force, as well as the Republic of Vietnam.

Col. Liotta's American decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with eleven Oak Leaf Clusters; the Meritorious Service Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster; the Air Force Commendation Medal; and several other awards. In addition to his other foreign decorations, Col. Liotta has been awarded Luftwaffe command pilot wings by the Federal Republic of Germany. He has more than 5,500 hours in fighter type aircraft of which 2,500 hours are logged as an instructor pilot.

Liotta and his wife, the former Barbara Ann Hearn, have three sons — Robert, age 22; Jeffrey, age 20; and Peter, age 17.

Tips for using electricity efficiently:

Think twice before you open this door.

The habit of opening refrigerator and freezer doors only when it's really necessary is a saving habit. The cold air that rushes out each time has to be replaced, which causes the unit to run more and use more electricity. Make a mental list of the items you need before you open the door, then take out as many of them as you can at one time.

Here are other suggestions for using minimum amounts of electricity to get maximum benefits from your refrigeration equipment.

If your refrigerator has to be defrosted manually, do it before the ice deposit gets one-fourth of an inch thick. Ice (frost) acts as unwanted insulation and causes your refrigerator to work overtime.

Let hot foods cool to room temperature before you place them in your refrigerator or freezer.

Use a refrigerator thermometer to help you attain temperature settings of 35 to 40 degrees for your refrigerator and zero temperature for your freezer. Settings below these temperatures could be a waste of electricity and cause unnecessary wear on the appliances.

And turn the dial to a warmer setting in the refrigerator section (according to manufacturer's recommendation), when you're going to be away for a week or longer.

"Third hand high" is a sound principle in the play of the cards. However, to make it more than just a cliché, the word "usually" should be tucked in there somewhere.

As he was passed hand, South's response of two no trump was not forcing. It showed a hand of 11-12 points. North realized that his side might be an eyelash short of the point-count requirement for a no trump game, but his intermediate cards—the tens and nines—gave his hand body, so he went on to game.

West found a devastating opening lead. He knew from the auction that his partner could not have more than 3 or 4 points, and saw little future in leading from a four-card suit headed by the queen—that might easily give declarer a tempo and a trick. Instead, he decided to try to find his partner's suit. There was a good reason for choosing a spade: if South held a major suit, he would have responded in it rather than bid two no trump.

Dummy's jack of spades was played to the first trick, and East resisted the temptation to win the king. The opening lead of the nine marked South with the queen, in all probability guarded twice. East realized that if he took his king, he would have no entry to his long spades once the suit was established. Accordingly, he played the ten of spades—an enthusiastic request to his partner to continue the suit whenever possible.

Declarer had to make tricks in the minor suits if he was to come to nine tricks. He led the queen of diamonds. West took the ace and played another spade, forcing out dummy's ace. Declarer cashed his three diamond tricks and then led the queen of clubs. West won and played his remaining spade. Now East put his king of spades to good use, capturing South's queen and setting up two long spades for the defenders' fourth and fifth tricks.

Observe that with any other opening lead or defense declarer will have no trouble coming to nine tricks.

Owe An Apology

Jean Adams

TEEN FORUM

DANCE DISASTER: (Q.) Ellen is just about the MOST girl I ever knew. She is popular, has a shape, and also has a lot of whatever it is that makes boys like me drool.

I am not popular. One day I was raving about Ellen and my friend bet me $5 I couldn't get a date for the Friday night dance with her. I must have been really way out. I took him up, even though I had never had a date with any girl before. She said yes.

But it was a disaster plus. I stepped on her foot so hard once that her shoe came off. At refreshment time I tried to pour her a glass of grape drink. I was shaking so much I poured half a pitcher down the front of her yellow dress.

She cried. I took her home crying. She didn't say thanks or go away or anything. She just walked inside crying.

I have not had the courage to call her again. Should I? I like her more than I did before and want another chance. Or do I even have a right to call her? — Connecticut Clown.

(A.) Yes. You owe her an apology in the cool light of later time. She may also feel that she owes you an apology for not being a sport about it.

If she and you are able to see the humor in your learning effort and go on from there, your friendship may grow and bloom. If she can't forgive you, you will have done what you can, and you will have learned.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of The Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 3462, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Inn's Remodeling Project To Begin

Remodeling is expected to begin this week at the Ramada Inn on the club and meeting room facilities, kitchen, dining room and coffee shop.

A contract was signed over the weekend engaging Shaffer and Newsom Construction Inc. to handle the work. Recarpeting and redraping of all 67 rooms is also planned.

Vern Johnson, owner, said in July that the whole project will cost about $50,000. Completion date has not been set.

Johnson, of Rapid City, S.D., purchased the Inn from J. W. Eatman in June.
