WHOLE SECTION SOAKED BY INCESSANT RAINS

Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma was drenched Thursday with a rainfall that lasted throughout the day and increased as night approached. Rains equal to that in this city were reported by railroad offices here as stretching from Amarillo and Forgan, Okla., on the north to Breckenridge, Fort Worth and beyond on the south.

As a climax to the day of dampness, a severe hail storm broke over the city about 7 o'clock Thursday evening. For a few minutes a barrage of tiny ice pellets beat a steady rat-a-tat-tat on housetops, but the stones were not of sufficient size to cause much damage. So far as could be learned last night, no loss was caused by this feature of the storm.

Falls Whole Day

In the Wichita Falls trade area, rain in abundance fell the entire day. At Forgan, Okla., the Wichita Falls and Northwestern reported an inch of rain Thursday morning. Less heavy downpours were reported to the south between the city and Breckenridge.

A maximum temperature of 71 degrees was reported in this city Thursday with a minimum of 68.

Unpaved roads out-of-town were virtually impassable Thursday night as a result of the constant downpour, and a large amount of new construction under way here was shut down indefinitely.

STEADY SHOWERS FLOOD ALL OF SOUTH TEXAS

HOUSTON, May 6.—(AP)—Torrential rains which fell in nearly every part of Texas Wednesday night and Thursday reached a peak at Robstown and Bishop and in the Corpus Christi section, according to reports today, which, however, added that conditions were again approaching normal.

A virtual cloud burst struck Robstown-Bishop neighborhood bringing death to one man, flooding the town and driving scores of families from their homes.

R. W. Westmoreland of Eagle Lake with the United States geological survey, lost late last night when a car he was driving went through a washed out bridge near Bishop.

Entire sections of Robstown were under water after a rainfall estimated at more than nine inches.

At Corpus Christi 6.60 inches of rain fell, which virtually stopped all traffic momentarily early in the day and seriously affected the public utility services.

New Ruling Made For Road Heads

AUSTIN, May 6.—(AP)—Resident engineers do not come under the ruling of the attorney general made March 16, when it was pointed out that the statutes provide only 18 division engineers could be employed by the state highway department.

The letter addressed to the state highway department and written by Assistant Attorney General C. L. Stone, states that it supplements his letter of March 16, "and will modify the same if it be construed as holding that resident engineers employed in connection with the road projects cannot be employed and paid out of the general appropriation of the highway fund."

Bullard Supports British Officials

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Major General Robert Lee Bullard, U. S. A., retired, president of the National Security League, has sent a cablegram to Premier Baldwin, saying:

"All those who believe in democratic constitutional government and are opposed to the destructive policy of revolutionary communism in its attack on present social order, are with you in your fight."

General Bullard expressed his belief that the common sense of the American people would make such a strike impossible here and said he had absolute confidence in American labor.

RIOTING AGAIN SWEEPS LONDON

"Sales Ability" Is Convict's Key to Freedom Again

HOUSTON, May 6.—(AP)—Granting of a full pardon today by Governor Ferguson to C. W. Hayward after the latter had served four years of an eight-year term for auto theft, recalls an unusual plan of auto thefts employed in Houston and New Orleans.

Testimony in the trial of Hayward, a man of unusual personality and sales ability, developed that after a car was stolen, usually a small sedan, it would be placed in a private garage for a few days, the serial and license numbers changed and necessary repairs attended to.

Hayward admitted he sold each car for practically what it was worth, because he was a salesman by trade and saw no reason why he should not use his sales ability. He operated with a woman, and women were good customers, but he never sold a car to anyone unable to pay cash for it.

Hayward at the time of his trial appeared thoroughly repentant.

Jas. V. Acquires A Gem And Then Turns It Back

Jimmy Allred, whose first name is James and whose middle initial is V., acquired considerable affluence for a time Thursday and then turned around and handed it back.

Jimy, it should be understood, was one of the novices who tread some real hot sands in Maskat Temple's spring ceremonial yesterday. He was also a candidate for the Shrine ring, a valuable and beautiful diamond offered by the Shrine each year to the most popular novice.

The redoubtable Jas. V. was somewhat nonplussed at his success, notwithstanding the fact he pushed a wheelbarrow all over town yesterday and got into numerous other Bacchanalian scrapes at the behest of heartless Nobles.

After the presentation, however, he handed the ring back to Maskat officials with orders that it be sold and the funds turned over to the Shrine crippled children hospital funds.

GET THE BRIDGE NOW

Free Passage Across Red River This Year The Big Thing City and County Seeks This Summer

(An Editorial.)

Wichita county in its long fight for a free bridge across Red river has been forced to undertake numerous plans and ideas for the attainment of this end. It has virtually succeeded, but work on the new structure is not yet under way.

The coming year, it now seems, has every indication of being especially prolific from an agricultural standpoint. Wichita county and Wichita Falls have shown in certain terms that they are heartily in accord with the free bridge idea—and idea which once realized will reduce to a minimum the expense of interstate commerce in this locality. That approval has up until this time been such as to definitely authorize the expenditure of county, state and federal funds aggregating more than $257,000.

Funds Tied Up

Litigation has tied up funds for the construction of the concrete bridge in one way and another and temporarily, at least, has delayed the realization of a dream years old. Attorneys of the county and of the Austin Brothers Bridge company in a called session of the county commissioners court recently expressed the opinion that with adjustment of some small items in the contract, work on the concrete bridge could proceed at once. The representative of the bridge company stated that once under way, work could be completed in nine months and that the bridge could be ready for use early in 1927.

A month ago in an effort to clear up the first injunction suit brought to involve state aid to the free bridge project the Wichita county commissioners voted $20,000 for the purchase of the Willis et al toll bridge across the river just east of the site of the new concrete bridge. The purchase terms called for delivery at the end of a two-year period, by which time the free bridge will have been constructed and in use.

In the meantime, though, how can free passage across the river be obtained? To that end, Wichitans interested in the matter might find an easy solution through purchase for immediate delivery of the existing toll bridge it has already bought for delivery in two years time. This in effect would amount simply to a purchase of the tolls for the two years.

Get It Now.

Get the bridge now and, throw it open to the public at once, is the prevailing note in the city at present. Authority of the attorney general for expending of county funds for immediate delivery of the bridge has been obtained, it is understood.

But what if a washout, some may ask? Would the county feel justified in putting out additional funds for repair of its wooden bridge when its concrete bridge is already on the road to completion? Is it not possible such a situation might arise and that Burkburnett and north Wichita county would be without means of any sort of crossing? To remedy that it is suggested that possibly Wichita Falls business men might under-write any loss the county might incur should such a washout come.

If the free bridge idea is good at all, it is good enough for the county to have a bridge this year without waiting until 1927 or even later. The few thousands of dollars the county would expend in obtaining immediate delivery of its wooden bridge would be repaid in a short time in dollars spent in the county by Oklahomans down to Texas by its new accessibility.

U. S. JUDGES TO GET MORE PAY

Increased Salaries Is Given Endorsement by The Senate

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—Increased salaries for federal judges were voted today by the senate, 66 to 8. The bill now goes to the house where an identical measure is pending and will be taken up after farm relief legislation is disposed of.

Favorable action by the house is forecast and, although the measure would place a continuing charge against the treasury, President Coolidge has indicated to congressional leaders that he would approve the bill in the form in which it passed the senate.

Senator Reed ,democrat, Missouri, is the author of the senate measure, while Chairman Graham of the house judiciary committee, is sponsor for the house bill.

Under the bill as finally perfected the chief justice of the United States would receive $20,500 instead of $14,500 while each associate justice of the supreme court would receive 20,000 instead of $14,000.

Several circuit judges would get $12,500 instead of 8,500 and each district judge $10,000 instead of $7,500. Judges of the court of customs appeals would receive $12,500 as against $8,500.

BABY GUY TO FIND A HOME

Stillman Wealth Opened To Youngster, Storm Center In Suit

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Baby Guy Stillman, storm center of the Stillman divorce fight will be brought from Mrs. James A. Stillman's camp at Grand Anse, Canada, to live with his reunited parents in this city, Mrs. Stillman said today.

On the return of the Stillmans from Europe yesterday Mr. Stillman, former president of the National City bank, refused to say whether he would admit Guy's legitimacy.

He denied the parentage of the child during his unsuccessful divorce suit against Mrs. Stillman.

Mrs. Stillman said she plans to go to Grand Anse to visit Guy and to rest and that Mr. Stillman will spend a few weeks there hunting and fishing. Asked if the child would be brought back to New York with them, she said:

"Absolutely. I would not live without baby Guy. That is the answer."

Senate Aspirant From Missouri Finding a Soul Mate in Texas, Uses Ads in Divorce Campaign

Odd Classified Notice in Houston Paper Brings To Light Another Age Old Case of 2 Women In Love With the Same Man

HOUSTON, May 6.— (AP)—A Kansas City husband's dream of a career in the United States senate, inspired by a Texas woman, the reluctance of the woman to bring unhappiness to her sweetheart's wife and the willingness of the wife to forgive and forget from the three angles of a Texas-Kansas triangle which came to the surface here today.

It is another story of two women loving the same man. The wife thinks she has first claim; the other woman, it is inferred, is positive that she alone is able to stir ambition in the heart of her soul-mate.

In a classified advertisement in the Chronicle today, the wife writes that the decision will be made this week. The other woman who, the letter intimates, lives in Houston or nearby perhaps will see the plea in print.

"Help him make the right choice," is the concluding plea of the wife.

It seems the husband, apparently an able man with dreams of a seat in the senate, according to the wife's letter, "found his hopes growing dim. He came to Texas where he met a woman with whom he fell in love and who aroused again his ambition. With his wife, perhaps, he felt his dreams could never be realized. But with his new sweetheart as his companion his ambition was reawakened.

So the two planned their future together with divorce the only apparent barrier hard to leap.

The letter from the wife, mentioned no names, bore a Kansas City postmark and contained a $5 bill to pay costs of publication.

Labor to Give Stern "No" To Government Proposals

DEBATES GROW HEATED

Spokesman Invites a Foe To "Do Your Damndest, We'll Fight"

GLASGOW, May 6.—(AP)—The east side of the city of Glasgow was the scene of prolonged rioting today in connection with the general strike. Several persons were severely injured and many others were more or less seriously injured.

Sixty-six persons were arrested.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—Two no. 1 streets in the southeast of London were in a turmoil of excitement tonight, owing to strike clashes. Several persons were injured and taken to hospitals. New Kent road and old Kent ro. l were the centers of the trouble, the origin of which is obscure, but the centerpiece for a time was a blazing motor car. The two roads run through a poor district and were packed with people during the excitement and when the motor car went up in flames scores of mounted and foot police started to clear the jam. There was a wild rush in which numbers were hurt.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STRIKE

ENFORCED DIETS.

London's licensed victualers are considering the advisability of voluntarily closing their public houses, the general rush home after working hours having caused these establishments in central London and the west end to be virtually deserted in the evening.

ROYALTY READS.

The Daily Mail announced that it had sold 500,000 copies of today's issue including 250,000 printed in France and brought to London by airplane and steamer. Ten copies were delivered at Buckingham palace for the king and queen and ten to St. James palace for the Prince of Wales.

RELLOW CAB, A LA ENGLAND

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British premier, has plunged into the national struggle to keep up transportation by organizing a special fleet of automobiles to bring business women and girls from the suburbs to London.

THANKS FOR THE BUGGY RIDE.

The strike has produced at least one change in the automobile habits of Englishmen. Hitherto silk hatted men have been accustomed to go to business in lonely state and dignity but the "American pick up" system has come into vogue.

Many men and women who have been accustomed to crowd into the subways, busses and trams are now rolling to work in comfortable automobiles. The pretty girls seem to fare best, many of them getting seats beside the big "butter and egg men" from the western suburbs.

SAIL ON, SAIL ON—MAYBE.

The strike has tied up shipping in the Thames as a result the big liner Minnetonka will have to remain at her dock with the cargo which she brought from New York still aboard.

STYLES SLOW UP.

The British general strike has interfered with rapid transmission of Paris fashion plates, which are sent to the United States by wireless. Plates of the newest creations are rushed across the English channel by airplane to the Croydon airdome, then whisked in automobiles driven by strike breakers to the radio sending room, only to meet delay in transmission because of the flood of strike pictures being sent across the Atlantic by various news agencies.

WOMEN ACTIVE.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—Women are taking a most active part in the strike it was said at the trades union congress headquarters today. Several sub-departments are under complete charge of women executives, who have proved their ability on previous occasions.

A majority of the Texas house and senate have replied to the questionnaire of Mr. Kemp fostering an immediate session of the legislature to validate road district bonds. DALLAS, May 6.—(AP)—A bottle of ginger ale was smashed today on the nose of "Miss Dallas," giant air mail plane that will wing its way northward next week on the first flight to Chicago in the postal service that will be inaugurated on that day. Other results: Carter and Summerville of Floydada, defeated Pratt and Pickrell of Greenville, 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, in a hard fought encounter; Gips and Redel of Yorkton defeated Traweek and Corley of Abilene, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. Baker and Atkinson of Jewett, defeated Baker and Rutledge of Crystal City, 6-4, 6-4. Camp of Derby, Laredo, won by default over Horace and Joe Smith of New Boston.

POWELL REVIEWS SCOUTS.

KANSAS CITY, May 6.—(AP)—General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, chief of the Boy Scouts of the World, is resting here today after reviewing 5,000 scouts from six states last night. Lady Baden-Powell, who is accompanying Sir Robert on his American tour, was honored by the Girl Scout organization, of which she is international leader.

TWO DIVORCES GRANTED

Two divorces, both of them a result of suits wherein the plaintiffs were the wives in the case were granted by Judge W. W. Cook of the 78th district court Thursday. There have been two or three, and one day five, divorces granted in this court every day for the past week or more.

SAKLATVALA TO PRISON.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—Shapurji Saklatvala, the lone communist member of parliament, was sentenced to two months imprisonment today for making a seditious speech. He was given the alternative of providing sureties to keep the peace, but chose the prison sentence.

FEDERAL TRIO PLEADS GUILTY

Indiana Negroes Admit Stealing Liquor From Vault

INDIANAPOLIS, May 6.—(AP) Three negro employes of the Indianapolis federal building pleaded guilty to having violated the national prohibition law, when arraigned here today in connection with the disappearance of a portion of the Squibb liquor which had been under padlock.

Judge Robert Baltzell remanded the men to jail without bail to give them "a chance to think it over," declaring it to be his opinion that "some one else is implicated with you in this."

He did not announce when sentence would be passed. The men are Joseph Shores, watchman at the federal building; Lander Dearson, janitor, and William H. Marshall, a fireman.

"It is my opinion some one else is implicated with you in this," Judge Baltzell said. "You are not helping yourself or your families by shielding any one else. I am going to give you a chance to think it over. This is one of the most scandalous things that has happened in Indiana."

ELECTRA

DOUBLE WEDDING

Misses Anna Bell Hinsley, and Rosa Lee Hinsley, sister, became the brides of B. H. Fowler and G. L. Hill, respectively, at the Baptist parsonage Monday afternoon, with Rev. E. M. Francis of the First Baptist church, reading the ring ceremony which united both couples in holy wed-lock at the same time. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the parsonage family in the living room. Both brides and G. L. Hill are residents of Wichita Falls, while Mr. Fowler has made his home in Electra for several months.

This is the first double wedding to be performed at the new Baptist parsonage.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couples motored to the home of S. G. Fowler, and wife on Wabash Avenue in Electra where they will remain for a few days, but will make their home in Wichita Falls on Travis street.

BAPTIST LADIES

The Baptist W. M. U. circles met in an all day meeting at the church Monday, May 3 and an interesting program was given by the members of the north circle which was as follows:

"Our Hospital at Home and Abroad," rendered by the North Circle. Hymn, "The Great Physician," followed by Bible study, Mesdames J. N. Brister, and R. L. Curry. Prayer for Earth's Sick, and Suffering Ones, Mrs. R. R. McClung; Personal Service Period, by Mrs. F. E. Griffin. Hymn, "There's Power in the Blood;" the Book of Numbers, Mrs. Byron T. Johnson. "New Hospitals and Enlargement in the South," by Mrs. W. J. Holder; "Doors of the Kingdom," by Mrs. Elsie Weaver; Hymn, "Send the Light;" "Medical Evangelism in China," by Mrs. W. E. Petty; Hymn, "Question Box," Closing prayer by Mrs. W. C. Gossage.

After the program a delicious plate luncheon was served in the basement of the church by the South Side Circle to about sixty-five members and friends.

At one o'clock a business meeting was held and each department gave a good report and every one was encouraged to press forward for a greater work in the month of May.

Two readings are included in the program and have been selected as appropriate for the occasion. Worth Shanafelt will read, "My Mother," and little Miss Lee Baker, will read for the class a number to be selected. The Men's Bible class quartette will sing, "Tell Mother I'll Be There."

While this meeting will be held in the Methodist church it is not confined to denominational lines and all men will find a welcome.

Schulkey is teacher, enjoyed an outing at the Lions club park Saturday evening, when the party gathered at the church and made their way to the park in cars. The young people spent the evening in swinging and playing games, until late in the evening when weinies and mashmallows were toasted around a great bon-fire. Those of the class enjoying the evening were, Paul Wilson, Leslie Ford, Alton Miller, Pierpoint Hagan, Marvelle Cooper, Freddie Baldwin, Morris Williams, Mark Roberts, L. C. Byrd, Tommy Robertson, Willie Jennings, Ralph Prince, Earl Lick, Eugene Reneau, H. C. A regular business meeting of the Berean-Fidelis Sunday school class Dramatic club was held Monday night in the class room of the First Baptist church. Joe Hardy Miller the president of the dramatic club presided and a very important business meeting was held. Due to the fact that the class reached their goal of over 100 per cent in the Sunday school class April 25, the class is planning a banquet for May 26th, in the basement of the church. The class is also planning to establish a tennis court soon. There were twenty-five present, with the teacher and director, Mrs. Jodie D. Smith.

WHERE AUTOCRACY IS IN FLOWER

AMERICA is not soviet Russia. America is neither Turkey in Europe nor Turkey in Asia. America is not ruled by any foreign nation through mandatory force. America is not Mexico. America, the United States to be accurate, is a republic, which was founded by patriots who established for themselves and their posterity a government of, for and by the people.

They shed their blood for local self-government. They did in defense of the rights of the state. They crushed, in the early days of the history of the republic, the Hamiltonian advocates of a strong centralized autocratic government to be ruled by a system of bureauocracy and commissions of bureaucrats in the city of Washington, the capital of the nation.

Now all this has been changed. A World war did it. Repressive war measures, intended for the preservation of the democracy of the world, placed in the hands of bureaucrats that authority or system for which Alexandra Hamilton and those who believed in his gospel, sought to maintain and make concrete in a government sense in the long ago.

These bureaucrats arrogate to themselves the right to say to the people of a sovereign commonwealth where they shall invest their money in the building of railways, to be used as feeders for the development purposes or to make modern the transportation facilities of a community or a commonwealth.

This is what the Mayfield bill, now pigeon-holed in a desk in a congressional committee-room seeks to do. It would restore the power of the state railway commission. It would awaken and foster the initiative of the people to do the best they can in their own way, with their own money without going to Washington to ask a permit or rather permission to carry out their building plans.

There are many cases in point, which affords splendid material for unanswerable arguments, why bureauocracy should be clipped for its talons and bureaucrats shorn of the power which they obtained in World war days.

For instance, there are sections of West Texas where the population is increasing at a rapid rate, where vast ranches have been thrown open to the man with the plow and the hoe, where hamlets are evoluting into villages and villages into cities, and where there are a hundred makers of wealth where there were on in the very recent past.

These people demand modern transportation facilities. They demand connection by rail. They demand carriers of the products which they have to sell to the markets of the world. Why should they be denied their rights by autocrats at Washington?

There is the Magic Valley for instance, it is destined to be the winter garden of America and the summer paradise of those who produce citrus fruits and the vegetables and berries so much in demand in centers of population of America.

Combinations of individuals offer to furnish the money for the additional railway mileage they so sorely are in need of.

Captains of industry and finance are ready to back these building enterprises with their millions.

An agent of bureauocracy visits the valley, undertakes what he calls an investigation, returns to Washington, reports to his fellow bureaucrats that the building of an additional line in the Magic Valley or additional lines may interfere with or weaken the earning capacity of this or that powerful rail combination now in existence with headquarters for operation somewhere in the United States, most likely in the street called Wall in the city of New York.

This is a feature or a method of bureaucratic control that the enactment of the Mayfield bill into law would destroy and restore to the sovereign people of a sovereign state the right of intitiative, the power of development of waste places and the free born right of an American citizen to invest his own money in a legitimate way in a legitimate field for the onward movement and rapid development of self and fellow and community or commonwealth.

The people of Texas are not interested in the building enterprises of the people of California, or Wisconsin, or Maine or Florida or New York. They are interested in the waste places of their own state, in the turning of the natural resources into assessable wealth, in the placing of their own money in fields or enterprises of investment which will do the most for themselves and their state.

They accord, freely at that, the right of the sovereign voter of a sovereign sisterhood to build for themselves, invest for themselves, operate for themselves, develop their own resources for themselves and if Texans are wise, they will band themselves together to see to it that their 18 representatives who have seats in the lower house of congress, shall faithfully represent them in their struggle for a restoration of democratic rule and their battle for the constitutional rights which they enjoyed for almost a hundred and fifty years before autocracy slipped in and bureauocracy became an established order of things at the capital of the republic.

GASOLINE WILL BE IN DEMAND

TEXAS is a petroluem state. Texas produces what the magazine writers call black gold, are reminded by trade newspaper, published in the city of New York, that the highest gasoline mark is expected in the year 1926. This trade authority says gasoline consumption this year is expected in oil trade circles to total between 275,000,000 and 325,000,000 barrels, a new high record for all time.

Furthermore, in the first two months of the year 1926, ordinarily the smallest nearly 40,000,000 barrels were consumed or about 4,000,000 barrels above the previous conservative estimates. Furthermore, again, the trade journal says with only about 44,000,000 barrels in storage March 1 and present refining capacity scarcely able to keep up with the anticipated demand at the present price structure, it is generally expected by the trade that storage stocks will be heavily drawn upon during the summer.

Is there money in petroleum? There is for the wise one. Is there money in gasoline refining? Same answer. If all the states imposed a tax of three cents a gallon to be used exclusively for the road highway purposes, the total revenue derived from this one source of taxation would stagger the minds of the luckiest or the most favored road building contractors under the shining sun.

And it is coming some day. It started in Pennsylvania where the leaders of the people, the champions of modern highways adopted as their slogan, "Those who use the roads should pay for the construction and the maintenance of the roads."

By the way, the congress now in session has appropriated $65,000,000 for federal aid purposes in the construction of highways. This may interest Bald Tom and Big John, rival candidate for state senator in the Dallas district. They are having what the parrot, after a fight with a monkey, called "a heluva time," in a vote getting sense.

OUR FASHION NOTE

American fashion leaders predict total weight of feminine summer costume will be 15 ounces. Price of mosquito netting will rise accordingly.

PERMANENTLY ELEVATED

The maxim that all that goes up must come down, does not appear to apply to the price of anthracite.

AN ABLE MAN PASSES ON

OSCAR STRAUS, diplomat, arbitrator, peacemaker and philanthropist, doctor of laws of the University of Pennsylvania, was a member of a very remarkable family that has given America striking object lessons in public service. In three administrations he was our envoy to Turkey, and the dependent minorites is Asia Minor had lasting reason to be grateful to him for his tireless intercession in their behalf. Named in the court of arbitration at the Hague by President Harrison, he served so acceptably that he was appointed by Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson; and his two years as secretary of commerce and labor under Roosevelt were fruitful in the promotion of accord between capital and labdr. His Knowledge of the law combining with his industrial experience made him an excellent choice for the post of chairman of the arbitration committee to decide the wage dispute between eastern railways and their engineers in 1912. In his entire career as publicist and patriot he illustrated those theories of American citizenship and a religious toleration which his writings expounded, and the example he set is worthy of emulation by all whose ambition goes beyond their personal fortunes to their country's good and to the racial advantage.

THEY GET OFF EASILY

What would have happened to the redskins if it had been bootleg liquor the first American traders sold them?

ABSOLUTELY SURE

One way to increase industry in this country would be to prohibit it by constitutional amendment.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

In addition to the old complications of matrimony appears a new one in the form of man's jealousy for a modern wife's superior business ability—and earning power.

The other day a man killed his beautiful young wife because she was a better business man than he was, and made more money.

The woman loved her suband and was good to him. She was ambitious for him. She got him a job with the people for whom she worked, and tried to push him along and help him in every way. But it simply was not in him to be the go-getter that she was. She was a success and he was a failure. And in the frenzy of morbid jealousy that this engendered in him, he slew her.

Thus vividly do we have brought to our attention one of the new difficulties that the advent of women into the business world has injected into the already complicated matrimonial proposition. It makes the question of how the modern wife can best be a helpmeet to her husband one that takes a Solomon in petticoats to answer.

In olden times the matter was perfectly simple. The woman who wanted to help her husband along had only to be a good and thrifty manager, to pare the potatoes thin enough and squeeze the nickles. She did her part in building up the family fortunes by saving.

But, in many cases, the old woman's granddaughter is a crackerjack business woman who sees that she can help her husband more by earning than by scrimping, and that she can make more money in one year in business than she could save in ten years by doing her own housework and wearing shabby clothes.

So, as long as she is working for the communal good, the woman who cannot understand why her husband shouldn't be just as willing for her to help him by working in an office as in a kitchen, or why the wife who does brain labor isn't as good a wife as the one who does manual labor.

But the great majority of women who continue to follow any gainful pursuit after marriage find out that while there is a new woman who looks at everything in life from a new angle, there is no new man. Women have change in their relationship to men, but men stand pat just where Adam did when it comes to dealing with women.

If you will notice, it is only women who prate about equality between the sexes. Men take no stock in any such heresy. When a man tells a woman that she is an angel, and that he looks up to her and worships her, it is one of the lover's perjuries at which Jove laughs. In reality, he doesn't mean a word of it.

The very basic thing on which a man's love for a woman is built is his sense of superiority to her. He wants to feel stronger than she is, wiser than she is, to be more successful than she is. She must look up to him, ask his opinion, be guided by his advice.

That is why the clinging-vine type of woman is so appealing to men, and it is why intelligent, big-brained men so often marry morons and are happy and contented with them. Their silly little wives do not understand one word in five they say, and are no companions to them, but they satisfy the masculine demand to dominate the woman.

When the case is reversed, as it often is, and when the wife is the more intelligent, the stronger character—when the gray mare is the better horse and pulls most of the load—the marriage is invariably unhappy, and the husband almost invariably either openly or secretly hates his wife.

The Whip Discovers Art

BY MEIGS O. FROST

With dulled eyes, Edouard Cartier regarded the newcomer.

"I am done for, Palovski," he said. "I sell at last. I have sent for you because I know you will pay cash down when the price is set. Take them all. Pictures, furniture, even the ivories that were my wife's. Look them over and give me your price on them. For all, mind you."

Like a jackal prowling among the treasures of some buried ancient king, Palovski began his round.

The Whip watched him with chill disguest.

He knew the type. Behind the battered grimy counter of many a fence and many a pawnshop that was nothing but camouflaged fence, they lurked, these human spiders, waiting for the necessity of poverty or crime that drove bargains into their hands. And the Whip, gunman, killer that he was, looked down with the disdain of the upper caste warrior Sikh for the pariah, on this thing that would haggle and whine or grow raucuously bullying when it felt safe to bully.

He watched the jackal prowl in silence for a moment. Then he beckoned to Kathie Rutherford. She followed him to the hall.

"Say," he whispered hoarsely, "that croop is gonna gyp Old Timer outa his kicks, ain't he?"

Puzzlement blent with dawning comprehension in the girl's face.

"You mean he's going to cheat him?" she asked.

"Sure," said the Whip.

"I'm afraid he's going to try to," admitted the girl. "But I couldn't get the poor old dear to call anybody else. He's frightfully stubborn. And proud! He determined to get it over now, and sell everything at once."

"How much is it worth, miss?" asked the Whip cautiously.

"Thousands, if he got it before the right people with means enough," she said. "But he always said he 'never would peddle.' Now he wants to let it all go for anything above three thousand dollars he can get."

Long and softly the Whip whistled.

"Why just three grand, miss?" he asked.

"Grand?"

"Three thousand, I mean," hastily corrected the Whip. "Why that price?"

The Whip drew a long breath. That was the dope the way the queen herself had handed it to him. He felt better, getting it off his chest.

"Listen, my young friend," growled Palovski, his yellow eyes taking in the Whip's innocuous appearance. "I have no time to talk with young fools like you."

He turned to the figure on the couch-bed.

"Five hundred cash money I offer you, Mister Cartier. If you don't take it, it stays here till it rots, for all of me, unless I buy it at the auction. I got no time to fool with crazy young flappers and paralyzed old down-and-outers. New Orleans has got too many bums and shopgirls now thinking they're artists, I got my business to—"

But that was as far as Palovski's speech was articulate. It ended in a choking gasp.

A sinewy hand had gripped the collar of shirt and rusty black coat. Another hand, equally wiry, reached around and took a satisfying grip on luxuriant beard.

"Hit me, won't ya?" invited the Whip softly. "Ya got both hands t' use. No? Bawl my friends out, will ya?" he went on. "Come clean now, Whiskers. Ya couldn't buy a burnt match up here f'r a million dollars now. Tell 'em you're a cheap skate an' you're sorry you talked like a lowlife bum, Whiskers. An' tell 'em before I twist your block off your neck."

He shook the gasping figure a couple of times, and then released his grip on the beard.

"Let out a squawk anybody hears outside, an' I'm battin' ya f'r a row of garbage buckets,' he warned. "Come clean, now."

Palovski gave choking apologies. His whine was servile, but his yellow eyes were murderous in their hate.

"You saved yourself a quick bumpoff, that time, Whiskers," the Whip congratulated him. "Now it's the bum's rush for yours."

To the head of the stairs he led his captive. There for a second he poised him, holding alone the coat-collar grip. And then, carefully calculating, for punting had held no part in the Whip's scheme of things, he kicked the fat form down the narrow, dingy flight.

He listened to the stumbling series of bumps, to the thud at the turn. Carefully readjusting his cuffs, he re-entered the studio.

"Couldn't see Old-timer gypped like that," he said, apologetically, to Kathie Rutherford, who still stood by the skylight, wide-eyed. "Now listen to uncle. Will you stay here just a minute, miss? I'll be back in no time. We'll get this business fixed right."

Across the hall and into his own room he stepped. The door closed behind him.

The amazed gaze between Kathie Rutherford and old Edouard Cartier had not yet changed to articulate speech, before he was back.

"Listen, miss," he began. "I'm on my way outa here. I don't know just what my address'll be f'r awhile. But I can find you here when I come back, can't I?"

"Why, yes," gasped the girl. "My studio's on the floor below. If I'm not here in town I'll be at Oak Alley Plantation on Bayou Teche."

"Well, don't you let 'em gyp Old-Timer outa his junk, miss. You're an artist. You say his stuff is the goods. Your word is good to me, miss, f'r anything. See? Besides, any guy can pull a stunt like that—" he indicated the plantation picture with a wave of his hand—"he's got the stuff.

"Now listen. You get Old-Timer fixed up in this nursin' home you was talkin' about. Then you sell his stuff when you can get the right price for it, an' keep the jack till I come back, see? I'm buyin' it now. Then we'll split what we get f'r it—an' we'll split it right."

"Why," exclaimed the girl, "there is no need—I can—"

"You can do what I'm askin' you, can't you, miss?" said the Whip brusquely. "I gotta little jack I wanta invest. If you'll sell to a crook like Whiskers, you'll sell to me, won't ya?"

He stepped forward with hand outstretched—and wheeled like a flash of light.

On the stairs below a heavy tread was sounding.

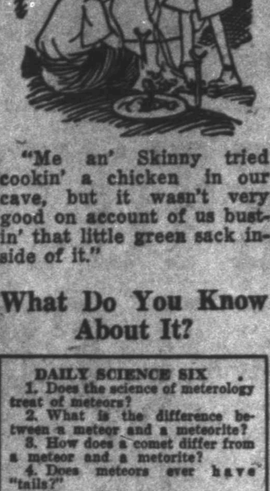

Palovski, bruised and battered and raging, hardly had reached the street corner before he met two of the precinct's patrolmen of the night shift, on their way to headquarters. To them he had told his tale of brutal and unwarranted assault. It sounded bad, the way Palovski told it.

Trailing in the rear of the law, he had come back for vengeance.

Nothing of this the Whip knew.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. Does the science of meterology treat of meteors?
2. What is the difference between a meteor and a meteorite?
3. How does a comet differ from a meteor and a meterite?
4. Does meteors ever have "tails?"
5. How close do meteors ever come to the earth?
6. How many meteors are seen (enter the earth's atmosphere) per year?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

GREAT METEORITES

From ancient times meteoric "stones," that six meteorites that have struck the earth, have been regarded as sent down by the gods. The sacred black stone of the Mohammedans, kissed by all the pilgrims to Mecca, is a meteorite. The largest meteorite in the world weighing 100 tons, was found in Greenland by the explorer, Peary. Greenland and Mexico especially have much meteoritic iron in them, for iron is largely what meteorites are made of, proving that this in the skies as on our earth. One metal, and several others, are common would think that a heavy meteor would make quite a hole when it strikes the earth, falling out of infinite space with terrific velocity. Indeed, there is in Oregon a hole several hundred feet deep, with a great "splash" of earth heaped up around it, which is believed to have been caused by a meteorite. That must have been a bad place to happen to be standing, some day a thousand or so years ago!

Now what do you know about that? Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. A contour map is one showing contours or lines of equal elevation, so that all hills and valley are accurately represented.
2. The longitudes of the earth's surface are not parallel as are the latitudes, but converge at the poles and spread far apart at the equator.
3. A mercator's projection is a map distorted so as to make the longitudes appear parrallel; most book maps are of this sort and are useful for ordinary purposes, but have no value of measuring distances accurately, or traveling by them.
4. Erat Osthenes was the most famous map-maker of ancient times.
5. It has been known that the world was round since classical times.
6. Magellan was the first to circumnavigate the globe.

Co-operation of city and county officials, not only in Tarrant county but in all other parts of the state, will be sought by Leo Callan, commission chairman, it was announced. Dead virus, injection advocated by the commisison, is said to be painless and almost 100 per cent effective.

MANK THANKS
From the Editor to the Mothers' Club

Dear Mothers' Club:
I am compelled
To give you ladies credit!
For all your work in my behalf
I'm very much indebted.
But gee! TEN GIRLS! And all of them
To marry me just yearning!
It seems ungrateful, I admit,
But this whole gang I'm spurning!

My action casts upon these maids
No sinister reflection;
Each one of them, without a doubt,
Is worthy of affection;
But should I marry them I'd get
In grief too deep to wiggle,
For don't you know, dear Mothers' Club,
Polygamy's illegal?

Nor will I take ONE of the lot
And send nine other packing;
To cause nine broken hearts would mean
In pity I was lacking.
So keep your girls! I'll keep my job.
Keep single and keep happy!
If any woman captures me
She'll have to make it snappy!

Get This—This Hick!

The Wisdom Tooth!

Little Mary, aged five, was traveling in a Pullman car over night for the first time!

The hour came for retiring and Mary was given the upper berth to sleep in. Appearing timid and curious at her new sleeping place, Mary commenced to ask her mother and father all sorts of questions about the train and its various feature.

Her mother assured Mary that everything was all right, that she should not worry, that her mother would be in the lower berth right under her, that God was safely watching over them, and that she should be a good girl and go right to sleep as soon as she had said her prayers.

Soon Mary was heard to cry out for a drink! Shortly after that she was afraid! She kept up this manner of fussing until her father pleaded with her to be a good girl, repeating that her mother and daddy were there close by her, that God was protecting her, and she should go to sleep.

However, Mary continued to cry aloud!

Soon an exasperated passenger in the rear of the car was heard to yell out: "For the love of Mike go to sleep! Your mamma and pappa's here, God's here, we're all here—GO TO SLEEP!"

A moment of silence—then Mary was heard to say:
"Mother! Was that God?"

Transcontinental Service May be Started, Says Report

DALLAS, May 6—(AP)—Trans-continental mail for Texas may result from a conference between the heads of two commercial flying companies here today for christening of one of the planes for the Chicago-Fort Worth Dallas air mail service opening May 12.

Mail from the Pacific coast would be brought through Tuscon, Ariz., and El Paso to Dallas to connect with the Chicago route, under a plan outlined by Harris M. Hanshue, Los Angeles, president and general manager of the Western Air Express.

Hanshue was in conference with Colonel Paul Henderson, general manager of the National Air Transport, Inc., operators of the Texas-Chicago service.

"Trans-continental flying, particularly west of Dallas, is easier along this Southern route than any other part of the country," Hanshue said. "The country is free from trees and there is no need for high altitudes occasioned by the mountain ranges further north."

SOCIETY

Mrs. Wallace Hostess To Wednesday Study Club At Huff Home

Observing the annual custom of culminating the year's work with an elaborate function, Mrs. Charles William Wallace, director of the lesson programs of the Wednesday Study club, entertained the active and associate members with a charming buffet luncheon at her home on Huff avenue.

Small tables seating four at each table, were arranged in the reception hall and library, each covered with dainty cloth and centered with vases or baskets of crimson roses and other spring blossoms. Pink carnations, the club flower, formed the favors. Myriads of blue bonnets lent attraction to the library in which also hangs a famous oil painting of the Texas flower. Assisting Mrs. Wallace in entertaining were Mesdames W. W. Cook, T. R. Boone and Mark Moore.

The dining room also presented a pretty picture with tables centered with pink hydrangeas from which extended pink and green tulle streamers the club colors, each ending with a fluffy bow. Candles in the pastel shades and a lovely silver service were added decorations.

While no program was given, the affair proved exceptionally delighting, the members speaking freely of the satisfaction they have derived from the year's work and enthusiastically of that planned for next year. This year's club baby, little Miss Ann Cochran was brought in and introduced by her mother, Mrs. Sidney Cochran, the little lady proving herself an attractive addition to the group.

Mrs. Wallace was remembered at this last affair of the season, with an elaborate lace bed spread, the presentation being made by the retiring president, Mrs. O. E. Nicholls, in behalf of the club as a token of appreciation of the splendid work done with the club by Mrs. Wallace who will also direct the study course next year.

Those enjoying the hospitality were Mesdames T. E. Allday, T. R. Boone, J. W. Cantwell, E. B. Carver, N. B. Chenault, Sidney Cochran, W. W. Cook, Harry Davis, B. L. Fain, J. C. "HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year when he asks her to free him, because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives him up, much to the satisfaction of her spinster AUNT AGONY, who brought her up. Aunt Agony says that Ranny will never be true to any woman for very long, and urges Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a bachelor who has always adored her.

Aunt Agony's opinion of Ranny seems to be correct, for suddenly he drops Fay, and marries Sylvia after all. But their married life is not happy. For Ranny hates to be tied down, and he returns to his old bachelor habits of flirting with every girl he meets, and gambling and drinking with his cronies. Sylvia finally has to give music lessons to pay the rent for their tiny flat, The Nest.

The first baby, JUNIOR, dies, and Sylvia has a nervous breakdown, refusing to go back to The Nest, and even refusing to see Ranny. She is sure that he no longer loves her, and he spends weeks trying to persuade her to live with him again. Then they buy a little house, and months later the second baby, a little girl, is born. And for a time Sylvia and Ranny are very happy. Then an old friend of Sylvia's, BABS DELANO, a librarian, comes to town and stays at their home. She "vamps" Ranny and makes so much trouble that at last Sylvia practically invites her to leave. One night she comes to dinner, and Sylvia surprises her and Ranny in each other's arms. She puts Bab's overnight bag on the porch, and tells Ranny that if he dares drive her away from the house in his car, she herself will leave him and never come back. Ranny sneers at her and takes Babs away. Sylvia brings the baby to Aunt Agony's house in Peter Wilke's car. Poor Peter had dropped in, expecting to take Babs to the movies, as Sylvia had ask him to help entertain her.

"Is There Anything I Can Do," He Wanted to Know.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER LIII.

Aunt Agony peered around the edge of the door at Peter, who was standing in the outer darkness hold-Sylvia's suit cases, and the rack for the baby's milk bottles stood at his feet.

Aunt Agony gave her familiar snort as she took him in—milk bottles and all.

"Quite the family man, aren't you?" She beckoned him into the house with a waving forefinger. "You get in here, Peter Wilk. I want a word with you."

Peter saw that she was angry, but he couldn't imagine why.

Her eyes were dark with suspicion as she looked first at Sylvia, on her way upstairs with the baby, and then back at him.

"Now then, how do you get in on all this trouble?" she snapped at him. "How do you happen to be bringing Sylvia to my house tonight? How do her troubles concern you? That's what I'd like to know."

She had never used so sharp a tone to Peter before.

There was no man on earth that Agony Starr really liked—but she almost liked Peter.

If Sylvia had married him she would have been delighted.

But since she hadn't married him—and had married that good-for-nothing Ranny, instead—she had no business even seeing Peter. Certainly she had no business leaving her husband's home with him, late at night.

"Well, I've asked you a civil question," she reminded him, when he didn't answer her promptly enough to suit her. Peter was slow and deliberate, and before he said anything he usually thought it over for a long time.

So it was Sylvia who answered Aunt Agony. Sylvia coming down the stairs with her hat off, and her eyes like wet violets in her white face.

"I'll tell you how Peter happened to bring me here," she said very quietly. "He was going to take Babs to the movies, and—"

"And where's Babs?" Aunt Agony interrupted.

Sylvia gave a shaky little laugh.

"Babs? Oh, Babs is somewhere with Ranny," she answered unsteadily. "But please don't ask me where, because I haven't the faintest idea."

Aunt Agony shook her gray head in a bewildered way.

"I wish you'd please tell me just what's happened," she said, frowning. "All this is beyond me."

"All right, I'll tell you the whole thing from start to finish, in a minute," Sylvia told her, "but first I want to say goodnight to Peter." She was speaking to Aunt Agony, but her tear-tained eyes were on Peter's eyes as she reached the bottom of the stairs.

She gave him her hand for just an instant. "You go now," she said to him. "Thanks for bringing me over, and goodnight."

He stood for a moment longer, looking down at her earnestly as if he had something more than just "goodnight" to say to her. Then he picked up his hat from the hall seat and turned to go.

But halfway to the door he turned and came back to her. He caught her hand up in his again, and held it for a second.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" he asked, "anything at all?"

She shook her head and drew her hand away from him. "Goodnight," she said.

* * *

As soon as he was gone Aunt Agony went out into the kitchen.

Sylvia knew that she was going to make herself some tea. Whenever Aunt Agony was upset, or sick or "blue," there was only one thing that did her any good, so she said. That one thing was tea. Strong black tea.

And sure enough in two or three minutes, she was back with a pewter pot of it, and two china cups on a little tray.

"Come in here by the fire," she said to Sylvia, who was still standing where Peter had left her, "and have a cup of this. It'll do you good."

She had three cups herself while she listened to Sylvia's story.

Every now and then she would nod her head jerkily, and her mouth would twist bitterly, as if she were drinking alum instead of tea.

"Haven't I always told you that Randall Phelps would never be true to you, or to any other woman?" She asked when Sylvia had finished. "You mark my word he'll go on having these affairs with women all his life! If you go back to him, you're a fool! But you will, I suppose. You'll put your pride in your pocket and run back to him the minute he lifts his finger, I'll bet a cooky."

She got up stiffly and marched into the kitchen with her tea tray.

"All right, you do as you please!" she snapped when she came back. "I'm not going to say another word to you. You'd better come up to bed now and sleep on your troubles, as they say 'There's good advice in the pillow.'"

She led the way upstairs through the darkened house, and Sylvia followed her silently. In the darkness at the head of the stairs she spoke again.

"Peter Wilk's still in love with you, the poor fool," she said. "When I was young, men put a woman out of their minds as soon as she was married. Still, I suppose, 'forbidden fruit is sweetest,' after all."

Then she said goodnight, gave Sylvia a peck on her cheek and went into her own room, locking her door behind her.

While Sylvia was undressing she heard her door open again, and Aunt Agony put her head into the room.

"I curse the day that you saw Ranny Phelps," she said impressively, "and you'll live to curse it too."

Sylvia sat on the edge of her bed for a long time after the house was quiet. She was thinking, thinking, thinking.

She wondered where Ranny was. Had he gone home with Babs, or had he come back to the house?

Then she asked herself if she hadn't been foolish to get up and run away just because Ranny had kissed Babs.

Perhaps she was making a mountain out of a molehill. Perhaps he didn't care the snap of his finger about Babs Delano, after all. Ranny had kissed many a woman who didn't mean a thing to him in his lifetime. Sylvia knew that.

"And anyway, I had no right to leave the way I did," she made up her mind at last. "I've married Ranny, and my job is to stick to him through thick and thin."

That was what she had promised to do when she married him, wasn't it? "For better, for worse, 'till death do us part," she had said.

She jumped up, pulled her nightgown and began to dress with feverish haste.

It was 12 when she slipped halfway down the stairs and looked at Grand father Starr's old clock on the landing. Very quietly she tiptoed down the last flight of the steps and telephoned for a taxicab.

She stood on the porch, in the windy February darkness, waiting for it to come. She did not want Aunt Agony to wake up, and she ran down to the curb when it drove up, and jumped in begging the driver to make as little noise as possible.

The little white house was in darkness except for the two front windows above the door—the windows of their room, Ranny's and hers: He was home, then.

Breathlessly she ran up the walk and unlocked the door. Ranny's overcoat and his soft gray hat were hanging on the hat rack. The smell of his smoking tobacco was in the air. His newspapers were scattered on the floor of the living room. The whole house spoke of him.

She ran upstairs. He had fallen asleep reading, and a cigar dangled from his limp fingers. It had scorched a hole in the bed spread before it went out. "It's a wonder he doesn't burn the house down," she thought.

The soft glow of the lamp beside his bed brought out the chiseled straightness of his features, and glinted on the side of his blonde head.

"How I love him," Sylvia thought. "I couldn't leave him, for I love him too much."

He gave a sleepy sigh and moved as if he were waking up.

"Ranny," Sylvia said softly, and he opened his eyes and looked at her.

"You came back?" he said, after a minute.

She nodded happily. Her heart was suddenly as light as a feather, because she had found him here, where he belonged.

"Of course I came back," she said, and dropped down on her knees beside the bed. "I got to thinking things over, and I made up my mind that it was silly of me to run away from home just because you kissed Babs."

The memory of that scene in the living room when she had found him with Babs in his arms, stabbed her like a knife, for a second. But she went on bravely:

"I know that you don't really care for Babs," she said gravely. "I know you have a little case on her the way you had cases on Fay and Puss March, and pretty girls like them."

Why, it was absurd to think that Ranny could fall in love with a lummox like Babs Delano. For even if she had learned how to paint her face and dress herself well, Babs was still a lummox in Sylvia's eyes.

"She's not your kind of a girl at all," she went on. 'And I knew it all the time. I wouldn't ever have been jealous of her, only—only I'm jealous of every woman you see, Ranny. Forgive me, dear, and promise me not to flirt with Babs or anybody else."

She took hold of his shoulders and put her face down in the pillow beside his face.

"I never could go through another three years, like the first three years we lived together," she told him, with a kind of moan. "I thought I'd go crazy tonight, when I saw you and Babs standing there by that lamp downstairs. It made me remember Fay and Puss, and all the rest of them."

She felt him draw away from her.

CHICAGO MAY AGAIN TURN OUT CHAMPIONS

Chicago now has legalized boxing, but she has been a long while without it, thus handicapping her output of glove talent. In the old days Chicago was something of an incubator of doughty fistic specimens, particularly in the bantam and feather divisions. There are many Chicago bantams and feathers whose names will never be quite forgotten while historians scribble about boxing.

* * *

First among "Chi's" famous bantams is undoubtedly the name of Jimmy Barry. This whirlwind Irish youngster listed himself as one of the greatest little fellows that ever skinned on a buffer. Many place him even above Terry McGovern, and the marvelous George Dixon—"Lil' Chocolate." Barry won the bantam title back in '94, after Dixon had entered the featherweight class. Barry and Casper Leon, one of the best bantams produced in Little Old Bagdad on the Subway, fought twenty-eight desperate rounds for the honor. The battle took place at Lamont, Ill., and Barry was the victor by a knockout. Later Leon fought two twenty-round draws with his conqueror, which gives you some conception of how near the popular New York Italian came to the coveted title.

* * *

BARRY QUIT UNDEFEATED

Barry met any and all who cared to jouse with him, one of his best displays being against Sammy Kelly, of New York's west side. Kelly was remarkably clever and could hit, which he convincingly proved by stopping England's bantam wonder, Billy Plimmer, in the twentieth and last round. Barry had sufficient confidence in his ability to tackle Kelly in his own back yard, so to speak. The Chicagoan defended his title in this city, and at the conclusion of twenty rounds the best Kelly could get was a draw, Barry thus retaining his honors.

* * *

Barry was not only ring wise, but he was considerable of a philosopher on the ups and downs of life as well. He retired from the ring before Father Time could humiliate him. Barry in 1899 quit the ring a champion and never went back for a beating. He ranks as one of the three wise champions of the ring who thought more of quitting undefeated than of a few thousand dollars to be amassed after the best energies had been expended. Jack McAuliffe was the first to achieve this distinction. This oldtime lightweight champion retired with his laurels intact six years before Barry hung up his conquering leathers. Benny Leonard counts as the third, but Benny, at current writing, appears to be wavering on his good resolution.

* * *

Harry Forbes was another Chicagoan whose ring abilities call forth cheers from the oldtimers. And not without good reason. Forbes had an amplitude of "class" and was justified in making his claim. He was good enough, as a bantam, to give McGovern one of the stiffest arguments the immortal Brooklyn boy ever experienced. In their first engagement it required fifteen rounds before the Terrible One could master his foe and knock him out. Later McGovern dropped Harry in two rounds, but then McGovern turned that astonishing trick on scores of clever boxers. Forbes held his bantam title two years, finally succumbing to the punches of Frankie Neil, of Frisco, who knocked out the Windy City boy in two rounds.

* * *

THE HUMAN SHOELACE

Chicago has been especially prolific in developing crack featherweights in the past. One of the first American champions in the class was Harry Gilmore, a most redoubtable performer, who was equally proficient with gloves and bare fists.

Harry Harris, the "Human Shoelace," was another. Harris, a gangling, skinny chap almost six feet high, was a ring freak. He was unusually fast and skillful, and the qualities, combined with his height and unusual reach, made him a most difficult person to beat. Harris demonstrated his talents most convincingly to Britishers when he outpointed London's idol, Pedlar Palmer, "The Box of Tricks," in fifteen rounds in England's capital.

Then there was Tommy White and Eddie Santry, both Chicagons and two of the finest featherweights this country has ever produced. Only Terry McGovern stood between them and the title. White was clever enough to draw with the wizard of the ring—Young Griffo. Santry knocked out Ben Jordan, England's clever featherweight champion, who came here seeking the world's title in 1898. Santry stopped the Britisher in sixteen rounds and Jordan shortly before that had obtained a twenty-five-round decision over the wonderful George Dixon.

* * *

Johnny Coulon, Chicago's champion seventeen years ago, was not in a class with these, but he was a reasonably good bantum king for all that.

Stuvy Thinks Fast And Starts Triple Play With Saints

During an interesting chat with President Barnard of the Cleveland ball club down south last spring, he mentioned the fact that there was a dearth of first basemen of major league caliber in the minors.

He mentioned Stuvengen, first sacker with Des Moines last season and now with St. Paul, as one of two prospects without previous trials in the big show who were granted bright futures by big league scouts last year.

Now Stuvengen has broken into the lamplight in a play that indicates he at least thinks is big league style. He was the man that started the triple play pulled off by the St. Paul infield the other day against Toledo.

Lebourveau, former Philly player, was on second and the old Detroiter, Bobby Veach, on first. Ray Grimes, at bat, lined to Stuvengen at first. The latter threw to McMillan doubling Leboruveau at second, and then retraced his steps to first in time to take the return throw from McMillan and retire Grimes en route to the bag.

A bit of quick thinking there—which netted his team the first triple play killing this season in the American association. Stuvengen's has been such as to recommend him again, A. A. Faus say.

FUNNY COMMISH UNCORKS MORE FOOLISH HOKUM

Brower Would Name Wills Champ If Dempsey Fights Tunney

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Only by declaring Jack Dempsey's heavyweigt title vacated and elevating Harry Wills to championship recognition in default of the acceptance of the negro's long standing challenge can the New York state athletic commission open a way for Dempsey to battle Gene Tunney at the Yankee Stadium in September. Otherwise Rickard will be compelled to take the bout to his Jersey City arean, Boyle's Thirty Acres.

This somewhat startling pronouncement came today from George E. Brower, member of the commission in outlining his suggestions for the solution of the present tangled hedvyweight situation. Brower, it is conceded, holds the key to the situation because of the deadlock between his two associates, Chairman James A. Farley and Commissioner William Muldoon. Farley is insistent that Wills be given first call in a title battle while Muldoon has come out in support of Tunney.

So far as recognizing Wills as the leading challenger is concerned, Brower today definitely aligned himself with Farley, thus exploding previous assumption that he sided with Muldoon in favoring Rickard's program. At the same time, Brower sees no way by which the commission can force Rickard to match Dempsey with Wills instead of Tunney or discipline the promoter if he does not do so.

To hasten a solution of the problem Brower may propose to the commission either tomorrow or at its regular meeting next Tuesday, that Wills be declared the champion. This, he claims, would be based on the failure of Dempsey to sign definitely for a bout with the negro and would follow procedure of the board in other championship divisions. Dempsey then would revert to the status of a "title contender" in the eyes of the commission. As such he would be free to fight Tunney here or elsewhere without occasioning interferrence by the boxing solons.

White's Ponies In Front Ranks At Houston Exhibit

HOUSTON, May 5.—The opening game of the Houston riding and polo club which had the local team pitted against the combination team of Wichita Falls and Dallas was postponed until Friday afternoon when rain drenched the field early Thursday morning and put it in an unplayable condition.

In the horse show which was held Wednesday afternoon, Dave White's polo ponies scored well. The Wichita Falls star copped first in the lightweight polo pony class and placed in several other events. He also proved to be a handy man with the mallet, coming in second in the special stick and ball race.

White and Charles Featherstone will be the Wichita Falls players in the lineup against Houston Friday.

If Dutch Ruether Is Still Angry Senators Hope He Never Cools Off

When Manager Stanley Harris failed to let Dutch Ruether pitch the last game of the 1925 world's series Ruether became real awngray, it is said. Was still so mad over the winter that he at first refused to join the team for this year. When he did was still so peeved that he threatened to show Harris up by pitching brilliant ball this year. So far he has hurled that kind. Photos are of Dutch and a section of the world's series crowd at the final game.

SAND LOT SLANTS

The Panhandle Refinery Longhorns and the Wichita Falls Electric are scheduled to hook up this afternoon on the Twilight league diamond. This pair has been going strong all year and will be very closely watched this afternoon.

McDuffey probably will oppose Everette Blue on the hill.

* * *

Ump Louderdale, the new Twilight league official, gave all the fans some good inside dope on catcher Sid Stanfield of the Electrics. The umps say that he played baseball with Sid Stanfield 24 years ago. This was a year or so after Sid started out in the game.

* * *

The Water Department nine has added Fat Watson of the Newcastle Terrors for the first base job. This lad has been playing some bang-up ball on the first base position with the Newcastle club. The American Refinery team has met him twice and the Panhandle once as well as the Spudders once.

The Security National bank and the City Water department still have a postponed game hanging over. The game was scheduled to be played Thursday afternoon but rain of Wednesday night forced further postponement.

* * *

Skipper Ray Martin is serving on jury duty and will be out of all the Water company games for a period. It was for this reason that Martin loudly protested the playing off of the Security game Thursday.

* * *

The addition of Charley Hefner to the Water department team appears one of the best steps the club has taken. Hefner was played in rightfield Wednesday, but he is no outfielder and made a very poor showing there.

Still with a little practice he will give any of them a hard fight for the infield. Hefner has played lots of baseball and knows the game. He has played side by side with Ping Martindale for a long time.

Longhorns Wallop Razorbacks, 6-1

AUSTIN, May 6.—(AP)—This afternoon, Howard Williamson and Edwin Olle, pinch-pitching for Neal Baker, the only Longhorn regular moundsman, took turns in the box, and let the gaunt Razorbacks down with but one hit, turning the Porkers out of their corral by the count of 6 to 1. Williamson did the Steers' hurling during the first five innings. The score:

HULL-EWING TIFF TONIGHT

The Clyde Hull-Wildcat Ewing ten-rounder carded for Thursday night in the Eleventh and Ohio arena was held over because of poor weather until tonight.

Weather permitting, the program will start at 8:15 this evening, according to the matchmaker.

The program as originally announced is to be staged.

O'DOUL SLAMS BALL

Frank O'Doul, outfielder, whose terrific slugging in the Pacific Coast league earned him another tryout in the big show, is slamming the ball as usual now that he is back in the circuit. He failed to make good with the Cubs, a team sadly in need of outfielders and—above all—hitters. Another case apparently of a whale in the minors but a minnow in the big show. O'Doul failed also to win a big league berth as a pitcher in previous efforts.

A. A. U. Orders Hoff to Stick With Schedule

Pole Vaulter Declares He Perform In San Francisco

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Rejecting a request from Charley Hoff that he be permitted to cancel a scheduled appearance at San Francisco this Saturday, officials of the Amateur Athletic Union today wired the Norwegian pole vaulter that he must adhere to his schedule or have cancelled his permit for further competition in this country.

Hoff, in a telegram sent from Pasadena, Calif., today notified the A. A. U. headquarters here that he was not in his best condition and required further rest before resuing competition. The A. A. U., however, informed the vaulting viking that this was not sufficient reason for his withdrawal from the San Francisco meet.

"The Pacific association acted in good faith in arranging for your appearance," the message to Hoff said, "and your failure to compete would be an injustice to it. The foreign relations committee of the A. A. U. has voted unanimously to cancel your permit for further competition if you fail to compete at San Francisco."

Hoff, who has been quoted as saying he planned to carry out the rest of his schedule, will not be permitted to compete at Los Angeles May 15 if he fails to appear at San Francisco, according to word received by the A. A. U. from Robert S. Weaver, its Los Angeles representative.

Hoff was slated for other appearances in Chicago and Pittsburgh before competing at the national A. A. U. championships at Philadelphia in July.

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—(AP)—Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, when informed of New York A. A. U. officials' decision that he must compete in San Francisco Saturday or be barred from further competition in this country, reiterated his statement that he would not appear at San Francisco. The reason, he said, was his poor physical condition.

OUTFIELDER PURCHASED.

SAN ANTONIO, May 6.—(AP)—Purchase of Outfielder Orsatti from the St. Louis Cardinals was announced today by President Harry Ables of the San Antonio, Texas League club in a telegram from Dallas. Orsatti this year has been with Syracuse in the International circuit, and last year was with Cedar Rapids in the Mississippt loop. His batting average last season was .347.

"Have a Camel"

No other cigarette ever made..and kept..so many friends as Camels

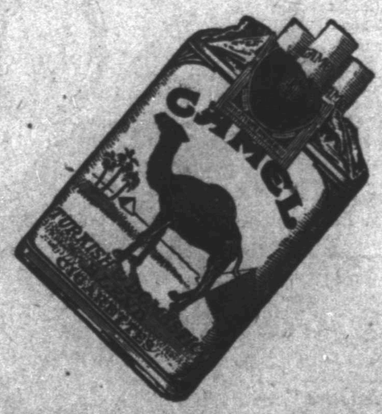

CAMELS began to make warm friendships their very first day on the market. And they've been busy making friends ever since!

Only a cigarette of choicest quality could make a record like Camels. Quality made Camels the world's largest selling cigarette. And quality has kept them far in the lead. Their friends have increased by millions.

Finest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos — cured and mellowed by men long experienced in the art. But it's Camels' exclusive blend that brings out the real fragrant goodness of fine tobaccos. And no tiring of your appetite however liberally you smoke. And never any cigaretty after-taste!

Just every good feature of a good cigarette. "Have a Camel!" is the most welcome smoke invitation ever spoken.

SPUDDER BLUDGEONS FAIL TO CLICK AGAINST HOVLIK SERVE SO MARTIN LOSES 1-0 GAME

Beaumont Right-Hander Holds Wichita Falls Wallopers to Scattered Three Safeties

BY BLONDY CROSS.

"Yuh can't hit 'em when yuh can't see 'em!"

This startling (?) announcement of 300 B. C. vintage was voiced in melancholy drawl by a 1926 Spudder fan yesterday as he filed through the starboard portal of the Gardner citadel with others of the winter colony who attended Thursday p. m.'s winter-time slush party staged by Galloway's Beaumonters and Brainard's Spudders in the mire of a well moistened terrain.

This fan of the surprising discernment in so speaking alluded to the exotic and sudden spiral of one Ed Hovlik, the Irish right-hander who, on the hurling knob in a Beaumont uniform, fired the ball up to the plate through nine palpitating stanzas with the force and devastation of a first class naval bombardment. Perhaps the description is colored a bit too deeply. Fire-Ball Ed wasn't all of that bad. Nopetheless, abetted by a chill breeze that wafted in from left center to the utter dissatisfaction of Spud right-hand batters and performing with the sun shrouded in a veil of clouds most of the way with the result it were more like night than day, Ed worked havoc with Wichita Falls slugging statistics.

She was boggy. She was cold. And she was well nigh dark. A great situation at that for the enaction of a pitcher's battle.

That was exactly the menu dished up to a scattered flock of ball microbes Thursday as the Spudders faltered in a 1-0 defeat.

Paddy Martin, the southpaw, held the heavy-hitting Beaumont detachment through seven innings of eight. Andrew Woehr paired a double with Claude Robertson's single in the seventh to score the only run of the game.

Spudder bludgeons were strangely calm, big guns spiked by the wierd heaves of Hovlik, the Irishman, who gave up three safe blows in all.

Pinch Punch Missing

Paddy checked out in the eighth for a pinch hitter who didn't hit. Morgan clambored atop the flinging eminence in the ninth. Beaumont threatened with a base on balls and a single but failed to vault Dick's protective infield barrier.

The defense functioning of Brainard, Distel and Turgeon was refreshing. Weahburn enjoyed himself immensely in the mud.

The domestics fielded flawlessly. Beaumont maneuvered a mild menace in the first sally after there was one gone when Dunning outfooted a slow bounder down first base way, Deviveros coaxed a four-balls donation from Paddy and Davis beat a bunt between the box and third. But fluent fielding at short by Gorgeous George turned back the advance in sudden rout. Woehr pasted a hair-raising drive to port. Distel enacted a kangaroo leap into the heavens and plugged the smoking missile in mid-flight, then volplaned back to Spudder park and the rusty loam of Gardner's infield to double Deviveros off second.

Two golden opportunities to tabulate in the first and second knuckled the Spud dugout door but failed to gain entrance. Distel led away with a spank to right, but was imprisoned at first base while the next three batsmen expired via the pop-out route. Lamb endeavoring to lay one down, popped to Hovlik. Third base handled Metzler's hoist and Ormand swallowed aviation to left raised by Brainard. Washburn hooked a crackling single to center in the second, but could not negotiate the distance to the keystone. Fits filed to right. Turgeon was called out on strikes and Lapan sailed one to Dunning in center.

Double Plays

The third was almost a duplication of the other two couplets. Martin started her with a walk to first, but the next three Spudders on the line of fire were unable to produce the money punch.

Galloway dipped a one-baser through short to open the Beaumont second but speedy action on force plays by the Spud inner works staved all further advance.

Another lightning double erasure with Turgeon on the starting end in the fifth balked the Beaumonters. Then in the sixth with Dunning on first and none out, Deviveros busted an under slung bounder to short. Distel corraled the sphere on a dead gallop, tossed to Turgeon at second forcing Dunning and Pete launched a streaking throw to Mule at first to complete the third two-ply killing.

Two-cushion sock in the seventh by Woehr followed after there were two out by Robertson's slam to right that flicked Turgeon's glove as the midget jumped high in frantic effort to haul in the fleeting sphere sent the run into the Beaumont scoring column. Paddy, his left-handed ire aroused, came back in the eighth and fanned Connolly and Deviveros. Dunning popped to Brainard.

Hornsby's Altered Lineup Defeats Brooklyn, 3 to 1

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—(AP)—The Cardinals knocked Vance out of the box in the first inning today and defeated the Robins, 3 to 1, in the first game of the series. The Cards' three hits, including a double and a triple, were all off Vance. After that it was a strike out duel between McSweeney and Rhem. Yanks Hit 15 Home Runs In 15 Games, But They'll Fall Off

Fifteen homers contributed by the team in 15 games.

Four turned in by Babe Ruth himself.

A couple added by Tony Lazzeri, green kid from the minors. Combs, Gehrig, Meusel and Dugan, adding their bit in hitting. Oh, what a ball wrecking crew Miller Huggins has just now.

The Yankmen still lack something in the way of consistent, dependable pitching. Will for some time. That is the weakness of the team right now. But they have the hitting. Which means that as long as they strike the pace at bat the team will draw well—and be up there in the standings. The drawing part will appeal to Col. Jocob Ruppert, without a doubt. For he has spent several ordinary fortunes in the last three years trying to get a new mechanical machine together.

The Yanks surely are hitting the high road now. One thing will dump them in a hurry, however—a short slump, during which the morale of the team drops a bit. Koenig, Lazzeri and Gehrig are youngsters in big league infield play. When the going gets tough and they bobble a few they may present an entirely different defense than they do now.

But meanwhile the Hugmen are piling up victories—which count as much in the spring as they do in the fall.

Motto: "RAZZ THE RAZZERS"

A DISCOVERY!

We are proud to make one declaration this morning. Nobody has heaved a hitless game against our noble Spudders.

◆ ◆ ◆

Dell pratt's combination swings into operation at the orchard this afternoon in the first of a two-day stand. The Brazos valley village outfit has with it a young heaving person who very often comes so near spinning no-hit affairs that it's dangerous to squat on the edge of your chair. But perhaps Mr. Hudlin won't work here this trip.

◆ ◆ ◆

It has been suggested Jim Roberts absorb the twirling duties against Waco this afternoon. It is "Ladies' Day," hence Jim's turn to work.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Spudders were held to three safe blows yesterday, but it is only fair both to the enemy and the home boys to inform the world that Deviveros at short was a robber without a mask. Quite different from the umpire here one day a week or so ago.

◆ ◆ ◆

"Match me with Londos. I will lick him or don't want a cent!" telegraphic communication received yesterday from Rough Richard. Now all the Greeks are on the warpath.

◆ ◆ ◆

And who, may you ask is Rough Richard? And we replay none other than our coy play fellow, Dick Daviscourt, the educated roughneck, the heavyweight counterpart of the well known Columbus monkey-man, Dutch Mantell.

◆ ◆ ◆

LONDOS LEAVES REGRETS

Londos, incidently, departed Wichita Falls early yesterday morning expressing earnest regrets that he was rained out of his match the night before scheduled with Nick Velcoff. A host of fans had driven in from Vernon, Electra, Burkburnett, Seymour, Olney and other nearby towns to witness the engagement merely to be thwarted by Jupe's sudden opening of the flood gates. Jim declared gratification at the interest taken in his appearance in this city and sorry that the elements forced postponement of the encounter.

◆ ◆ ◆

Londos said shortly before leaving that he hoped to be in a position to return about May 25 to meet Velcoff or any other opponent selected for him.

◆ ◆ ◆

Nick is still on hand ready for a match with somebody. His Bulgarian wrath was aroused momentarily when we read Daviscourt's telegram to him, substituting the name Velcoff for Londos. "Get that big bum in here! I'll show him!" yelped the irritated Bulger. Velcoff was confident of beating Londos, at least, he radiated that atmosphere throughout the day prior to the scheduled hour of the match.

COMICAL STYLES

We thought we had run into more than we could handle for a minute or so yesterday while walking up Indiana with Velcoff. The Bulgar's eyes almost popping out, a wild expression on his face and jawing hanging almost to his knees, suddenly turned and grasping us heavily by the arm, nearly shoving one sports writer into the gutter, yammered:

"Look! Look! What's that?"

We jumped around nervously and leveled our gaze in the direction he had jerked a large thumb merely to see a flossy young female trotting down the sidewalk bedecked in a man's size set of galluses, suspenders to which an abbreviated skirt was attached, atop her head and quite askew a hugh Panama rode with the barest hint of a ponjola bob peeping out under one side.

◆ ◆ ◆

The New York biff commish, the high and royal order of mental miscues, pulled another for the comic supplement when Commissioner George Brower made suggestion that Dempsey be allowed to fight, in fact couldn't be stopped from it, Tunney but the decrepit negro heavyweight, Harry Wills, in the meantime should be awarded the championship.

◆ ◆ ◆

New York's boxing solons could—almost, could at that, take lessons from those who have mismanaged certain boxing cards in North Texas the past several months, and benefit by the course.

Boston Evens Up Series With Bucs

PITTSBURGH, May 6.—(AP)—Boston evened the series with Pittsburgh today by winning the second game, 3 to 1. The Braves bunched four singles off Morrison in the sixth and these with an error by Cuyler accounted for all their runs. The Pirates had the bases loaded in the ninth, but Welsh pulled down Rhyne's hot liner for the final out. Wertzs injured his pitching hand fielding a hot smash from Traynor's bat in the ninth and had to retire, Hern finishing. The score:

Browns Lose In First Invasion Of Eastern Field

Athletics Rally In Late Rounds to Win Out By 5-4 Count

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—(AP)—The Browns started their invasion of the east by losing here, 5 to 4, when the Athletics made a three-run rally in the ninth inning. Gaston allowed only five hits in the first seven innings but was pounded for five more in the eighth and ninth. The bags were filled with one run in and none out when he was relieved and a double by Cochrane settled it. Hershel Bennett was injured in the sixth when he dashed headlong against a concrete fence after chasing a foul ball. He was carried off the field unconscious and rushed to a hospital. Shortstop Gerber split his finger bunting in the ninth and had to be replaced. The score:

SKULL PRACTICE

Baltimore and Toronto are once more playing out the schedule for the benefit of the other six teams in the International league.

◆ ◆ ◆

Can it be the Pirates don't care about bringing home the bacon and are content with the Rhyne?

◆ ◆ ◆

The trouble with some home run hitters in baseball and life is that they figure a four-base hit is as good as four singles and take it easy the next three times up.

◆ ◆ ◆

The numbers on Red Grange's jersey, "77" are still very significant. They represent just how much of every dollar at the gate will go to Red when he limbers up next fall.

Reds Rout Phils By 14 to 4 Score

CINCINNATI, May 6.—(AP)—Knocking Mitchell out of the box in the first inning Cincinnati turned 15 hits into a 14 to 4 victory over Philadelphia today. Wellaughy, Brashi and Bentley followed Mitchell to the mound as the Reds continued their hitting. Donohue allowed 11 safeties but kept the hits well scattered. The score:

More Truth Than Poetry

RECIPE FOR REPOSE

When I heard that a garden would give one repose
And bring one contentment and rest,
I hurriedly purchased a couple of hoes,
And tilled my backyard with a zest,
Some seeds I sowed early, and some I sowed late,
Which the catalogue said I should do,
And then I sat down in a hammock to wait
Till they grew.

But as soon the the green things shot up through the ground
My long weeks of toil to reward,
The aphis and cutworms began to abound
In a mighty and ravenous horde,
All that they didn't do was performed by the frost
Which descended a quarter-inch deep,
And together they worried me so that I lost
Half my sleep.

All summer I battled with various bugs—
Some big and voracious, some small,
I fed them doses of poisonous drugs,
But these never annoyed them at all.
They seemed to regard every neatly tilled plot
As their personal private preserves,
And the way they encamped on the premises got
On my nerves.

Today I am easy and calm in my mind,
I sleep like a log every night,
I engaged in no worrisome labors designed
To compete with the mildew and blight.
My nerves are not shattered, my back is not lame,
From care I have perfect surcease,
My nerves are not shattered, my back is not lame,
From care I have perfect surcease,
The fact that I'm out of the gardening game
Brings me peace.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

TAURUS

Today's planetary aspects are unfavorable until noon. They then change for the better and a steady improvement is maintained during the remainder of the day. It is quite evident that nothing demanding initiative or energetic enterprise should be attempted during the early part of the day and attention at this time must only be given to routine duties. In the afternoon, however, those plans that you are bent on realizing can, with perfect safety, be essayed and success is assured. The evening conditions will favor all family or social gatherings, as there will be sensed a feeling of mirthfulness and gaiety.

Children born today will, according to the signs, enjoy normal health during infancy although this assurance should not serve as an excuse for failing to exercise due precautions about nutrition, as the ailmentation they will receive in their early years will minimize the seriousness of the ailment that will affect them at adolescence. Their characters will be rather weak and passive, rather than agressive. They will never show any strong tendency to fight for what they want. If anything be difficult of achievement, they will prefer to sacrifice their ambition or their desire, rather than labor for attainment.

If today is your birthday, your character is rather austere and unbending. You rarely show evidences of congeniality and much less of joviality. You possess very little sense of humor and have not much toleration for the weaknesses of others. You are very decided in your opinions and positive in your convictions, and are never prepared to admit that you might be wrong. You are strong on giving advice, even when it is not sought, as some kind spirit has convinced you that you are better acquainted with people's needs than they are themselves.

You have the respect of your friends, even if you lack their affection, as your rectitude and integrity are unquestioned. Many of them resent your busy-bodiness and none appreciate your "holier-than-thou" attitude.

Your home life is simple and regulated by custom; system prevails, even if happiness is missing.

William Bainbridge, naval officer.

LONDON.—The baby born with a silver spoon in his mouth "would be eliminated if Philip Snowden, former chancellor of the exchequer, had his way. In an article published here Sir Philip advocates the drastic limitation of the right to bequeath and inherit large fortunes. Harris County Not Weakened by Bond Market In Texas

HOUSTON, May 6.—(AP)—Bonding houses have confidence in Harris county securities in spite of the supreme court ruling in the Archer county road case, correspondence in the office of County Auditor H. L. Washburn indicated.

Several weeks ago, Auditor Washburn deplored an apathy of public officials in the matter of assuring bond holders of the good faith of Texas in bond issue obligations and urged a special session of the legislature to enact special curative legislation.

About this time a Houston bond concern wrote to the Chicago bond firm holding Harris county road district securities that the value of all securities had dropped because of the ruling in the Archer county case and offered 90 cents on the $1 valuation for the bonds outstanding.

The Chicago concern wrote to Auditor Washburn to know the attitude of Harris county and asked if the local bond firm was in any way authorized to act for the county. The auditor promptly offered the firm par value for the balance of the Harris county bonds. The firm decided not to sell.

GUTHRIE, Okla., May 6.—(AP) The trial of W. H. Giles of Ripley, Miss., in federal court here today assumed the proportions of a national convention of raccoon hunters. Giles is charged with fraudulent use of the mails in connection with his national traffic in hound dogs that were represented as rabbit chasers by day and "coon hunters by night."

A dozen government witnesses who testified they bought dogs from Giles at prices ranging from $35 to $150 heard Tomlinson tell of buying hounds from farmers to fill the orders and at an average price of from $7 to $10. He had never paid more than $80, the witness saids and a grin suffused the face of Herbert Felhaum of Youngston, Pa., who remitted $150 for a dog he has not yet received. Tomlinson quoted Giles as saying, "you can sell anything if you advertise it right," and bore it out with the statement that on one day they expressed 42 dogs from Ripley.

The Indians have taken the war path again.

A grim host of 2,500 Navajos stripped bare with the exception of tight skins, breech cloths and moccasins, their lean bodies blackened with charcoal from lightning struck trees, charged across the hot floor of the Painted Desert on lean Navajo ponies.

Shrill, blood chilling cries escaped the thin lips of the riders as they swept onward, paying scant attention to their saddleless horses and occupying themselves almost wholly with their tough hide shields, long spears and bows and arrows.

Forgotten was the fact that the Navajos gave up war forever nearly sixty years ago; forgotten was the fact that they were reproducing a battle against the whites in order that motion picture cameras might capture the scene to be used with hundreds of other scenes that go to make up the Paramount screen version of Zane Gdey's epic of the American Indian, "The Vanishing American," at the Strand today.

Standard "Ax" Slated For "Little Fellow" Avers Waco Gas Monger

MERGER BILL PAVED THE WAY

Lynch Davidson's Campaign Issue Looms Large In Waco

WACO, May 6.—(AP)—The independent gasoline dealers has been slated for execution since the passage of the so-called oil merger act of the last legislature, and his company, with others which he quotes, have been forced out of business by manipulation of prices by Standard Oil controlled companies, according to P. H. Sparks, owner of three Waco filling stations and of a wholesale gasoline business which has been idle since last fall. In a written statement given to the press, Mr. Sparks quotes:

"The comment in this morning's papers by State Senator Edgar E. Witt of Waco that it is a striking "coincidence" that complete domination by the Standard controlled companies has come about only since what is called the "oil merger bill" was passed by the last legislature, Mr. Sparks said the "screws were put on us tighter and tighter until last fall we had to discontinue business as wholesale distributors, and the thousands of dollars investment of our companies are now idle. We have the option now of buying our products from the Standard controlled companies and making such margin of profit as they will allow us by reason of the competing stations or closing up shop."

Mr. Sparks quoted Marlin and other points as places where there have been no independent operators and where gasoline has been 4 to 8 cents higher than in Waco, where independent competition was strong. Higher prices at the non-competitive points have enabled the major companies to recoup the losses sustained by cutting at points where there was independent competition, said Mr. Sparks.

He forecast that gasoline consumers would be joined "by thousands of those who have been independent oil and gasoline operators in Texas in supporting Lynch Davidson's attack on the bill which allowed such a condition to arise."

GAS INCREASE

HOUSTON, May 6.—(AP)—Effective today practically all large marketing companies including the Texas, Gulf, Humble, Magnolia and Pierce posted an increase of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline. The new quotation is 19 cents at filling stations and 16 cents on tank wagons. The old prices were 15 and 18 cents.

Good motor weather demand and steadily declining crude production are given as the causes for the price increases. The new prices are common to all Texas points.

SAN ANTONIO, May 6.—(AP)—A two-cent increase in the price of gasoline effected yesterday by the Magnolia company, was met today by the Gulf Refining and Grayburg oil, their new rate being 19 cents. Several independent filling stations which had been selling for 14 and 15 cents, increased, too.

New Gusher Comes In Near Laredo

LAREDO, Texas, May 6.—(AP)—Moody-Seagraves-Morgan No. 4 well located on block 20, survey 291 in the Randolph basin, Jim Hogg county, came in today at a depth of 1260 feet, gushing oil through a six and five-eighth inch casing over the top of the derrick. The well was put on guage and made 250 barrels in one hour and 15 minutes or better than a 6,000 barrels daily. This is an off-set, west of their No. 25.

Garber Pool Gets New Large Wells

The prolific Schroeder lease of the Roxana Petroleum company in the Garber pool of Garfield county, which produced 18,500 barrels for the 24 hours ended Tuesday morning, was given another gusher at 8 o'clock a. m. Tuesday, which started flowing at the rate of 250 barrels per hour. It is No. 7-H Schroeder, in the southeast corner of the northwest of the southwest of 18-22-3w. The Tonkawa sand was topped at 3,005 feet, and drilled in to 3,047 feet. After the first five or six hours the production dropped to 200 barrels an hour, which it was making late Tuesday. This increased the total daily output of this famous lease, to better than 24,000 barels.

Sinclair is also getting a well in No. 8-L Schroeder, which is located on the north line of the lease, which topped the lower Hoover sand at 2,707 feet, and is in the sand to 2,734 feet, and well has made several small flows. No. 6-H, should drill in some time Wednesday, the pipe being set here at 3,118 feet.

Sinclair also has a nice producer in No. 2 North Walker, which is an old well drilled deeper to 2,512 feet, the top of this pay being 2,505 feet, and well is reported to be making 500 barrels daily. This is located in the northeast of 13-22-4w; No. 38 North Walker, the giant gasser which blew in wild Saturday, was unde control Tuesday, and the rig is being repaired and tanks erected, before the well is drilled any deeper. The well blew in when the cement plugs were drilled out at 3,078 feet; Nos. 39 and 40 North Walker, are on top of the Hoover sand, and will be drilled in as soon as the casing is run.

Wale's Would Be Out of a Job If This Idea Endures

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales and his brother, the Duke of York, who is next to him in line for the British throne, were present in the house of commons today when George Buchana, a laborite member, declared that he was a republican and would like to see the British throne abolished tomorrow.

Buchanan was participating in debate and his remarks were made good naturedly, causing no flurry, but adding spice to the proceedings for the prince and his brother, who were seated in the peers' gallery.

LONDON STRIKE

tum that a recall of the strike order must precede resumtion of negotiations."

A statement to this effect from the council of unions and a decisive government victory in commons mensures designed to tighten control of the situation featured the third day of the tremendous struggle.

Sporadic disorders continued, but as in the preceding 48 hours, they all were of a secondary nature, not attributable wholly to activities of the strikers. Disturbances today centered chiefly around Glasgow and Edinburgh.

Proceedings Heated

The proceedings in commons became heated as the government pressed its proposal of a bill dealing with protection of property. Jack Jones, a minor laborite, at one point invited the government spokesman to "do your damndest," adding: "We are prepared to fight."

J. Bromley laborite, and general secretary of the associated societies of locomotive engineers and firemen said in the course of the debate in the house of commons tonight:

"The industrial situation may become intensified by this time next week when there will be an appalling situation."

He strongly urged the government to permit meetings, saying there would be great gatherings of the strikers on Sunday, at which speeches would be made and "steam blown off," and, he added, "without such meetings the position might become dangerous."

If the term is permissible in connection with such an unconstitutional movement, it may be said that the great struggle between the parliamentary government and trades unionism is being carried out up to the present in a constitutional manner. What it may develop into later, should the struggle be protracted, nobody dares predict. The difficulty of renewal of peace negotiations seems on the surface almost insuperable owing to the feeling aroused on both sides that it would be impossible without great loss of prestige to make the first advance.

Press Suppression Hurts

In this respect it would seem to an impartial observer that the almost total suppression of newspapers by the strike acts detrimentally not only to the government and capitalist cause which it was intended to embarrass but also the strikers themselves. The disappearance of this forum of public discussion naturally keeps the general public in more or less ignorance of the exact state of affairs in the country and leaves the way open for all sorts of alarming rumors to spread.

Although the government itself and the labor side is each publishing its own paper, the difficulties of distribution as well as of production are so great that the papers reach only a small portion of the populace.

The strikers believe that the suppression of the press acts in their favor, because in a general way a large majority of the newspapers, and this applies especially to London, represent the capitalist cause. On the other hand, the voice of peace is equally barred, and this to the disadvantage of the strikers.

During the final stage of the negotiations that failed, and up to the last moment before the actual break occurred, letters were appearing in the public press, some from great dignataries of the church, appealing with considerable sympathy for the miners' cause and for just an impartial consideration of the whole question, now such appeals can no longer be voiced and the cause of peace is thereby injured.

What is necessary before any negotiations can be renewed is to get the situation back to where it was before the final rupture came. Monday night when, hot foot on the stoppage of the Daily Mail's printing presses the government launched its ultimatum demanding unconditional withdrawal of the notices for a general strike.

The council of the trades union congress daily repeats that such withdrawal is impossible.

At a Deadlock

As things stand, it would appear that only some means of having the mine owners withdraw their lockout notices would serve to initiate new negotiations because that would save the face of the trades union leaders and enable them to withdraw the general strike notices.

A statement issued by the council of unions today says:

"The council is ready at any moment to resume negotiations but gives an unqualified 'no' to the premier's request for unconditional withdrawal of the notices. The government was responsible for breaking of the negotiations and any further discussions can only be undertaken in a free and unfettered atmosphere."

Efforts to bring about peace are earnestly being made in many quarters. For example, the Baptist union assembly at Leads has sent communications to the archbishop of Canterburry and representatives of other churches as well as to Premier Baldwin and the trades union congress, urging a strike settlement. But these lost much effectiveness by the lack of press publicity.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—(AP)—The cotton market was decidedly active today and prices developed broad gains on all active trading months. The stimulating influences were the rather heavy rains in the western part of the belt, the prospect for more bad weather in the immediate future and the brighter prospects for an early settlement of the British strike. As Liverpool was much higher than due, first trades showed gains of nine to 16 points. After a slight temporary reaction the market started upward when the weather map was published. The advance persisted practically all day and at one time active months showed gains of 43 to 47 points. The close showed net gains for the day of 41 to 44 points.

Following the initial gains of nine to 14 points the market eased off to 18.06 for May 17.54 for July, 16.81 for October and 16.82 for December, or four to seven points down from the opening. These prices proved to be the lows of the day. The market rallied sharply after the weather map was posted, showing rains in the west and particularly after the official forecast for continued wet weather became known. By mid-session prices showed gains of 29 to 44 points.

The advance was helped by Liverpool cables representing the strike would probably be settled by night. Aside from a slight reaction in the middle of the afternoon the market continued firm, to the end and made new highs right at the close on all months except October, with May at 18.44, July 17.95 and December 17.20, or 43 to 47 points above the previous close. Exports for the day totaled 4,535 bales.

NEW YORK FUTURES.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Increasing nervousness over the crop outlook combined with a more optimistic view of the British labor situation seemed responsible for the greater activity and strength of the cotton market today. July contracts sold up to 18.69 or 50 points above the final quotation yesterday and closed at 18.61, the general market closing steady at net advances of 37 to 46 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of eight to 12 points. Buying on reports of heavy rains in the southwest evidently was stimulated by the firmer ruling of Liverpool and rumors that an early settlement of the British labor trouble were expected. Private wires said there had been more or less general rains in Texas and two or three messages claimed that precipitation had ranged up to 15 inches at one point in the southern part of the state.

These advices led to heavy covering by shorts.

Taken altogether the market was more active than for several weeks past. Realizing was encountered in considerable volume and prices approached 19 cents for May and 17½ cents for December. It was absorbed on comparatively moderate mid-day reactions, however, and the market reached the highest levels of the day in late trading when May sold at 19.14 and October at 17.76, while December advanced to 17.58. At these prices, the market showed net advances of 45 to 52 points and the close was within three to eight points of the best. The heaviest precipitation shown by the official weather details was 6.60 inches at Corpus Christi, but while these reports were somewhat less unfavorable than indicated by private advices, the rains were heavy and general enough to impress sentiment and apprehension that they would work eastward no doubt contributed to the advance. Private cables reported Liverpool higher on covering and local buying on the Texas rain news, but that yarn and cloth business in Manchester was practically at a stand still.

Exports today 4,535 bales, making 7,120,734 so far this season. Port receipts 11,632. U. S. port stock 986,422.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Trading in stocks was practically at a standstill today but the undertone continued firm. Total sales fell below 600,000 shares, the smallest of any full session since the middle of October, 1924. Commission houses were virtually deserted sporadic outbursts of activity in special issues representing the operations of professional traders. The market appeared to be awaiting a decisive turn in the British strike situation. Opinions as to the outcome abroad differed widely, but in the absence of any speculators for the decline to sell stocks here, especially in view of the fact of the short interest, judging from the number of stocks loaning "flat" and at a premium, already was of rather substantial proportions. Neither was there any widespread desire to buy stocks until the effect of the strike on American business could be more clearly defined.

A sudden advance in cotton prices probably inspired by reports of a damaging rainstorm in the Corpus Christi district of Texas was one of the outstanding features of the day's market. Other commodities showed little change. More stability also was apparent in the foreign exchange market with the decline in French and Belgian francs checked at least temporarily.

Steel shares received good buying support on reports that mill operations were still around 90 per cent of capacity although predictions were heard that the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation for April to be published next week would show a shrinkage of around 375,000 tons because of the widespread between production and new business. Special strength of Sloss-Sheffield, which jumped over five points to 131, was based on the belief that the company would benefit by the curtailment of pig iron shipments from Great Britain to this country. United States Steel common closed a point higher at 122¾.

Fresh weakness cropped out in the American woolen issues, the common touching 22¾, the lowest since 1915.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling ruled slightly firmer around 84.85 13-16 and French francs around 3.14 cents. Belgian francs again broke below three cents in the early trading but rallied later to around 3.05. Other changes were nominal.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 6.—(AP)—Serious crop damage reported both from Kansas and from spring wheat territory today tended to bring about higher prices in the wheat market here. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at ¼ to ⅝c net advance, May (new) $1.50⅝ to $1.50⅝ and July $1.39⅛ to $1.40, with corn ⅛ to ⅝c off, oats showing an equal decline and provisions 15 to 65c up.

Favorable weather for corn planting eased down the corn market and likewise oats.

Provisions were responsive to the upward trend of hog values.

Supreme Court Helps Out With Divorce Trouble

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 6.—(AP)—Cupid halted the august supreme court of Iowa yesterday.

The session of the state's high court was suspended for a few moments while Justice Lawrence Degraff married Monroe Marshall of Okmulgee, Okla., and Miss Ida Rater of Casey, Iowa.

Justice Degraff told the couple the supreme court was ready to lend its aid in overcoming the growing number of divorces, recalling that 25 were granted here on the previous day in three hours.

The couple had obtained their license and were visiting the state house when a guide suggested they might be married by a supreme court justice.

FREEAR PLANS SPANISH SHOW

Special Furniture Display To be Given at Store Saturday

Keeping up with the entrance of the Spanish element into American architecture and interior decoration, the Freear Furniture company is opening Saturday night an exclusive section of Spanish furniture in the establishment.

Many odd and beautiful pieces, desks, cabinets, tables, chairs, bed room suites, dining room suites and furniture for breakfast rooms will be included in the new section, Ivan Murchison, manager of the store said yesterday.

Vivid Hues.

All through this section will be found the vivid hued polychrome colors, not only in the finishes of some of the odd pieces but also reflected in the upholstering which is used on the furniture. Glimpses of Old Spain may be imagined in the bright colors that are used.

Mr. Murchison expressed the belief that in the next twelve or fourteen months, the Spanish design of furniture would become extremely popular. Already many homes in the city are being built following the Spanish architecture, and the furniture suitable for those homes is being displayed and carried in stock at the Freear company.

To Keep Good Stock.

"We expect to keep enough of furniture in the Spanish section all the time to have a good showing," Mr. Murchison said.

The special showing of the Spanish furniture will be made at the store Saturday evening from 7-9:30 o'clock, it was announced.

MAKE LIQUOR RAID.

No arrests were made and only a small and inconsiderable quantity of liquor was taken in a raid by city police Wednesday afternoon on a McGregor avenue residence. Records of alleged liquor salesmen similar to those taken in a raid on a Travis street residence about three weeks ago were captured, however.

The records indicate a thriving business with the commodities for sale a variety of the better class liquors, including cognac, absinthe, the better grades of whiskey, etc.

Four officers participated in the raid, the house being found without anyone at home when they got there, though.

Shriners' Fez Dots City Streets As Ceremonial Succeeds Despite Rain

With the streets dotted with the fezzes of Maskat Temple all day Thursday, the annual spring ceremonial of festivities of the local Shrine ran riot in their usual way and came to a climax at the fair grounds auditorium last night when 37 novices trod the burning sands to Mecca. Several hundred nobles looked on with diabolic glee throughout the ceremony.

An elaborate program which proved to be the best ever presented by the local temple was staged successfully in the field, despite unpleasantness of the rainy weather outside.

Class Assembly Held.

Class assembly was held at 7 o'clock which was followed by the program under the direction of Sidney Gaines. A Charleston dance by Billie De Vere and a number of other dancers, in addition to selections by the Shrine Chanters, made up the program. Records made by the Maskat Chanters quartette were played on a Brunswick Panatrope, furnished by the Phonograph Shop. Following the first and third sections the second section was held.

Novices Have Hard Times.

During the parade Thursday afternoon novices were at the mercy of the Nobles and were sent through undignified escapades. The divan, band, features by the novices attired in clown suites and clever costumes and vehicles of indescribable appearance followed by the Shriners and guarded by police wound their way through the down-town streets.

Out of town Shriners from Dallas, Fort Worth and surrounding cities were W. A. Browning of Dallas, Jack Motter of Dallas, Jas. F. Gibson, Thos. E. Backus, C. M. Christian and M. L. Shoffelmayer In Rotary Club Talk Plant less cotton and raise more bales, was the message brought to the Rotary Club by Victor H. Shoffelmayer, agricultural editor of the Dallas News, in a talk Thursday at the noon luncheon. His message was directed to the farmers of the irrigated valley, and its possibilities in the production of cotton.

Mr. Shoffelmayer discussed the plan of the Dallas News in presenting prizes to the farmer who planted cotton on an intensive scale and made few acres produce as much and more cotton than any had previously been produced on larger acreages.

"Let us raise cotton at a profit, if we raise it, or else plant something to make the farmer prosperous," he said.

The speaker showed how the two million bales of poor quality cotton raised in Texas reduced the price of cotton, and how in the states beyond the Mississippi, there were five million bales of the inferror product which caused a reduction in price of the better quality.

FOLSOM TRIAL NEARING CLOSE

Defendant Says Lord Told Him to Speak to His Daughter

The state, with the exception of one witness, Sam Woods, has concluded its testimony Thursday afternoon in the trial of Frank Folsom, charged with statutory offense. A jury was completed from the special venire at 3 o'clock Thursday and the first witness, Thelma Folsom, the defendant's fourteen-year-old daughter put on the stand. She was followed by Mrs. M. N. Mathis, next door neighbor of Folsom's. The state then announced that it had finished its testimony with the exception of that of Woods who could not be in the court room Thursday.

Folsom is apparently in much better health than in his second trial two weeks ago when he spent most of his time in the court room on a cot. At the conclusion of the testimony of his daughter Thursday he called out "God bless you sister" and when reprimanded by others in the court room declared the Lord had instructed him to speak to the girl.

It is believed the trial will be concluded today.
