Seven Japs Die On Guam To One Yank

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Aug. 2. (AP)—Killing seven Japanese for every Yank slain, American conquerors of the south half of Guam have seized a second airfield—seventh won in the Marianas—in a mile gain made against stiffening resistance.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in a communique tonight that Tiyan airfield, believed to be a fighter strip, was overrun yesterday by Marines and soldiers who in 13 days of invasion action have killed 7,419 Japanese at a cost of 1,022 Americans.

Troops Are Lauded

Nimitz said that Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, commander of Fleet Marine forces in the Pacific, has congratulated Maj. Gen. A. D. Bruce of the Army for the excellence of 77th division troops in the Guam operation.

This recalled that newspapers in the United States recently reported another Army general had been replaced at conquered Saipan because of a disagreement with the Marine general.

Smith congratulated Bruce for the cooperation of the 77th (Statue of Liberty) soldiers "with other fighting elements" (Third Marine division and First Provisional Brigade Marines).

It was the 77th's capture of 1,020-foot Mt. Tenjo July 27 which led to a push from the west to east coast of Guam, splitting Japanese forces.

4,946 Are Wounded

In addition to the 1,022 American dead, as counted through yesterday, Nimitz said 4,946 have been wounded and 305 are missing in action.

On Tinian, conquered in nine days, 208 Marines died in the lightning drive which cut down thousands of Nipponese. Nimitz said tonight that 2,047 enemy dead have been buried on Tinian and "large numbers of the enemy have yet to be buried."

(Presumably this made the known Japanese dead on Tinian more than 4,000. On July 27 in the early stages of the island's invasion, Nimitz announced that enemy dead totalled 2,089.)

American wounded on Tinian totalled 1,121 and 32 are missing in action.

Ouster Of Home Dem Chief Asked

By MARY L. KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Aug. 2.—The Texas Home Demonstration association today voted to accept the report of its board of directors as presented by Mrs. Leon Sullivan of Red Oak, president, asking for the removal of Miss Maurine Hearn, the newly appointed vice-director and state home demonstration agent of the Texas A & M Extension service.

Mrs. Sullivan told reporters that she would carry the matter directly to the president of Texas A & M college and the director of the extension service, basing her action on the vote of confidence which the convention gave the board. A proposal from the floor that the convention give Miss Hearn a vote of confidence was quickly tabled

Harmony Needed

The resolution of the board of directors read: ". . . Since women in farm extension work must work under the supervision of the vice-director and state home demonstration agent of the extension service of Texas, it is expedient that all relationships be harmonious, and with someone in whom we have the highest respect and confidence. Miss Mourine Hearn, recently appointed (to this position) does not in the minds of the board of directors of the Texas Home Demonstration association measure up to these qualifications."

The movement to oust Miss Hearn was contested by district 7 in which she had been county agent for a number of years, as well as by delegates from other districts.

Calm Judgment Urged

One woman took the rostrum and admonished delegates not to be "hasty in judgment."

Mrs. Walter Hamilton of district 7 said they were standing behind Miss Hearn 100 per cent, that she had served long and faithfully and that because of their loyalty to Miss Hearn they did not deserve the cold shoulder, boos and brush-off they had gotten at the convention.

Reds In 8 Miles Of Prussia; Nazis Said Leaving Finland

Soviet Ready For Armistice Appeal

By ROBERT STUDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 2.—Evacuation of German troops from Finland to Estonia was reported tonight and reliable advices said that Finland's new president, Mrashal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, had received advance assurance from Russia that the Kremlin would consider an application for an armistice which would guarantee tiny Finland's independence.

(A Reuters' dispatch received in London tonight from Stockholm said it was reliably reported that the change in presidents in Finland was predicted by a Finnish-German agreement in Berlin consenting to a separate Finnish peace with Russia and a Nazi promise to evacuate German troops at least from southern Finland.)

Infantry Division

An authoritative report said the Germans were evacuating an infantry division sent to the Karelian front last June as their part of Nazi Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop's bargain to keep Finland in the war with Russia.

This division plus a Panzer brigade were all that Finland got in the way of military assistance, according to competent military circles here, and of these only the Panzer brigade actually was sent to the active southern front.

Another report said at least one division of German troops long stationed in northern Finland also had been sent to Estonia, suggesting strongly that the Nazis may be in process of abandoning all of Finland as a result of Mannerheim's replacement of Risto Ryti as president. Ryti had pledged the country to full military partnership with the Germans.

Talk Of New Cabinet

Meanwhile, Finnish political groups discussed formation of a new cabinet, upon the character of which informed sources believe hangs Finland's hope for peace

Japs Way Ahead In War -- On Paper -- As Guam Gets Story

By PERCY FINCH
(Representing the Combined Allied Press)

ABOARD ADMIRAL CONNOLLY'S SHIP, Guam, Aug. 2 (AP)—The way the Japanese told it, the Pacific war had just about been won—by Japan.

Now-liberated civilians on Guam told Marines that before the American invasion, they got this version of world affairs from the Japanese:

Japan had captured the Hawaiian islands, then had sailed through the Panama canal without losing a ship and occupied Washington.

They also captured the entire Far East and Australia.

"The Japs told us the Americans wouldn't return for 100 years," a whitehaired Guamanian told me. "When the American fleet appeared in sight of Guam the Japs said it was the Jap fleet."

Violent Siege Of Warsaw Tightens

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 3. (AP)—The Third White Russian Army thrust within eight miles of East Prussia's pre-1939 border yesterday in the foremost of twin drives aimed at the heat of the Junkers homeland.

Other Soviet armies on the long thundering front tightened their violent siege of Warsaw, pushed a quadruple annihilation drive against possibly 300,000 Germans isolated in Estonia and Latvia, and launched a new offensive in the south towards Krakow, Poland's second city.

The closest, approach to East Prussia came with the capture of Dydvizhe in a steady advance westward. The fall of this town, which is eight miles southeast of the junction town of Schirwindt on the frontier, was confirmed by the Soviet radio monitor's reception of the Moscow midnight communique.

Rail Station Captured

The broadcast as heard earlier in London had listed the town of Vistytis, which is directly on the East Prussian border, as among the towns captured, but this was not confirmed in subsequent broadcasts.

The Russians further solidified their positions threatening East Prussia by capturing the railway station of Vilkaviskis, nine miles from the border, and the city of Vilkaviskis, two miles farther distant.

Konigsberg, East Prussia's principal city, lay 96 miles due west.

The Soviet midnight communique, which disclosed the advance, also reported a Red Army spearhead driving 40 miles due north from captured Kaunas and another north of Daugavplis (Dvinsk), further squeezing the Germans isolated in the north Baltic area, and told of a break-through on the southern Polish front west of Jar-

Blistering Heat Continues Here

Lubbock residents continued in a slow burn Wednesday, the seventh day of the summer's second long-winded heat wave.

The experiment station recorded its highest temperature of the year—104. However, the thermometer at the West Texas Gas Co., main line station southeast of the city gave the same high of 108 recorded Tuesday.

Called Year's Hottest

Most citizens, guided by their own ideas of what's hot, chorused: "The hottest day of the year!"

For the information of Avalanche readers, the weather thermometer at the gas station is in the shade in a slatter box, so that the air reaches it from all sides and stands about five feet above the ground. The box is covered by a wooden roof.

Lubbock had nothing to itself. Readings of 100 degrees elsewhere in Texas were as common as victory salutes in Moscow.

It was the ninth straight day of egg-frying weather for many parts of the state.

Electra Has 112

Electra in Wichita county took away, reluctantly, hot weather honors with 112. Nocona, in nearby Montague county, cleaned out its pores with 111. Wichita Falls wilted with 110.

Beaumont was the only Texas town lucky enough to get rain. A thundershower there brought the mercury down to 71.

Partly cloudy weather was predicted for the South Plains today and Friday.

Other state readings as reported by the Associated Press:

Pyote registered 108; Big Spring 107; Wink, 107; Midland, 106.

The Panhandle, too, was warm. Clarendon had a melting 108 and Amarillo recorded 103 and Pampa got 105.

Other temperatures included Dallas, 103; Fort Worth, 104; Sulphur Springs (East Texas) 101; Gainesville, 104; San Angelo, 104; Waco, 101; Austin, 100; Dalhart, 102, Laredo, 103; Del Rio, 102; El Paso, 101, Tyler, 100; Houston 99 and San Antonio 99.

Gen. McNair's Death Laid To Allied Bomb

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Army announced today that Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair was killed by the explosion of an Allied bomb which fell short in the intensive bombardment of enemy lines in preparation for the latest breakthrough in Normandy.

This report was sent to the War department by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, the brief announcement said.

The fact that some bombs were released over their own troops by Allied airmen was announced in the theater by Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brerton, tactical air force commander, who said that a number of casualties were inflicted by this premature release of bombs among forward elements of the American lines.

German Conspirator Said Tunisia Victim

ROME, Aug. 2 (AP)—A report from Allied headquarters today said the Col. Count Claus von Stauffenberg, who Berlin has announced was executed for the attempted assassination of Hitler, was seriously wounded in the Tunisian campaign and returned to Germany "disillusioned, crippled and full of bitterness."

The Allied announcement said he was wounded at Mezzouna, "losing an eye and arm." He was desribed as "a cavalry officer of the old school and . . . no friend of the Nazi regime."

"He had witnessed two German disasters, having been to Tunisia from the Stalingrad front," the announcement added.

Berlin Says Rommel Hurt In "Accident"

LONDON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Berlin admitted tonight that Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel, second in command of German armies of the west, had met with "an accident" while driving in France during an air attack and was suffering from brain concussion, but said his condition was "satisfactory" and "his life is not endangered."

This followed persistent reports from Allied sources that Adolf Hitler's favorite either was critically injured or had died as the result of a strafing attack on the Caen area July 17.

Turks Hoping To Avert War Despite Break

By FRANK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 2. (11:00 p. m.) — Turkey broke her diplomatic and economic relations with Germany today at the request of Great Britain, backed by American diplomacy, but she clung to the hope of avoiding actual warfare.

(The Nazi reaction to the break was quickly apparent in a Berlin dispatch from the official German news agency DNB which said the action initiated a policy, the "consequences of which, if Turkey should continue along this dangerous road, are not very difficult to see. War with Germany will of necessity follow."

Berlin "Warns" Turks

("The decision taken today can only be called a new step along a very dangerous phase of Turkish policy," Berlin said.)

Prime Minister Sukru Saracoglu announced the government's decision with his request for grand national assembly approval. Most deputies, like the prime minister, had been up almost all night at a caucus of the People's Republican party — Turkey's only political party — where the matter finally was thrashed out.

Quick assembly ratification was expected for the solid body blow to German prestige—particularly in the neighboring Balkans, where the Nazis are struggling hard to keep their grip on their satellites.

Anti-aircraft guns moved through the streets of Ankara today — directly past the assembly house—and throughout the nation Turkey was girding herself for war.

In Istanbul, police rounded up more than 100 Germans considered dangerous and put them under observation until they could leave.

The Turks hope their action will not bring war upon Turkey. At least for the time being they do not wish to go farther than the evacuation of Germany's diplomatic and consular and secret service from Turkey and the halting of all trade with Germany.

Saracoglu explained that whether or not the rupture is converted into war lies at the moment entirely in the hands of the Germans. Turkey will defend herself against any attacks.

Such a break has been expected

GOP Governors In Conference

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Twenty-six Republican governors assembled in a politically portentious conference today and immediately split up into teams to draft a 14-point policy declaration designed to help hoist one of their number, Thomas E. Dewey of New York, into the White House.

It was a good start, said Governor William H. Wills of Vermont, "toward bringing government back to the village pump."

Will Shape Policy

The idea of the governors, Dewey said, is to "shape policy for the next four years."

"I am entirely convinced," the Republican presidential nominee told a news conference, "that the people of the United States have the right to know that when a Republican administration takes office next January 20 the squabbling between units of government will come to an end as far as we can achieve it."

An effort will be made here, he asserted, to wipe out "areas of intense warfare and conflict" which he has said 'the New Deal erected between federal and local governments. There will not necessarily be any supplementing or amplification of the party platform, however, Dewey declared.

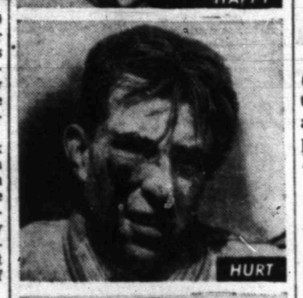

Consider 14 Topics

The governors were divided into sub-committees of four to eight members to consider 14 topics. Each sub-committee was instructed 10 bring in a report for adoption before the conference concludes tomorrow night.

Yanks Spread Over Breton

Tidal Wave Sweeps Brittany With Little Nazi Opposition

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Thursday, Aug. 3. — An American tidal wave pouring across Britany today threatened to lop off the entire Breton peninsula as Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's armor raced toward Rennes, communications hub almost halfway across. All along the British-American front out-flanked German defenses were crumbling in withdrawals ranging from retreat to near rout.

Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British smashed through the Nazis' sagging center in a mid-peninsula drive, thrusting a seven-mile salient eastward from the old Norman capital of Vire for a total gain of 17 miles south from Caumont, springboard of their four-day-old offensive.

"The Great Retreat"

A late dispatch from British headquarters at the front described this as the beginning of "the great retreat," and spoke flatly of a breakthrough—a word much avoided since the offensive across the Orne bogged down.

Thousands of Germans were penned in traps behind the British and American lines. About 22,000 prisoners have been taken on the entire front, more than 20,000 by the Americans in their ten-day drive.

British troops were fighting in the streets of Vire and to the east, three miles north of their spearhead on the Vire-Vassy road, they captured Estry. Farther north, five miles below Villers-Cocage, key to the Nazi defense perimeter in the Caumont sector, the town of Aunay was threatened with encirclement. Two miles below it the British Stormed Ondefontaine and fierce fighting raged there.

Bradley's men in the west swept in two directions from captured Brecey, advancing on St. Pois, five miles northeast, and also striking some miles southeast.

Villedieu-Les Poeles, ten miles north, by-passed in the southward surge, fell to the Yanks, and American columns stabbed east-

Philly's Disorders Bring Plea To FDR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2 (AP)—Complete paralysis gripped Philadelphia's transportation system again tonight after subway trains had operated on a curtailed basis for two hours.

A spokesman for the Philadelphia Transportation company, operators of all of the city's subways, street cars and buses, said that subway crewmen who had returned to work "just walked out on us again."

He added that he did not "know whether anybody had said anything to them or not."

Back Where It Started

The two-day tie-up, back where it started, has precipitated clashes between whites and negroes, inconvenienced 1,500,000 daily riders and curtailed war production.

PTC officials said their 6,000 drivers had walked out in protest at the upgrading of eight negroes to posts as street car motormen.

The return of the situation to complete paralysis came shortly after the War Labor board had appealed to President Roosevelt to halt the work stoppage.

Only One Hope Held

An international officer of the Transport Workers union (CIO) who declined use of his name said he did not think there was "a ghost of a chance" that the workers would return tomorrow.

He added that the only hope was "that something big will break in Washington."

At almost the same moment that the subway trains were halting for the second time, Mayor Bernard Samuel declared in a special radio broadcast that the stoppage amounted to "sabotage of our country's war effort."

Others Make Appeal

Officials of the Transport Workers union, representing the company workers, but opposed to the stoppage, also appealed on the broadcast for the workers to return to their jobs.

A new problem stemming from the transportation tie-up developed tonight when an oil industry spokesman said that if extra allotments of gasoline granted to motorists continued at the same rate for another 24 hours it would be necessary to draw upon military supplies.

Philadelphia ration boards have alloted about 80,000 gallons of gasoline to 11,000 motorists since the tie-up began two days ago, so they might help transport war workers to their jobs.

Negroes Beat Whites

Fast-moving gangs of armed negroes beat white men and women, smashed windows and looted stores in a negro residential-business section today.

Disorder died down in midmorning after 13 persons were injured and taken to hospitals.

Police said the gangs, made up mostly of 'teen age youths, carried guns, knives, bottles, stones or bricks, and they arrested 300 on charges varying from malicious mischief to aggravated assault and battery and carrying concealed deadly weapons.

Height Captured Near Florence

ROME, Aug. 2 (AP)—New Zealand veterans of the North African campaign have bludgeoned their way to within less than five miles of Florence from the southwest, capturing a commanding ridge from which they looked down today upon the spires and towers of the ancient city.

A field dispatch from Associated Press correspondent Lynn Heinzerling, reporting the dogged advance by the New Zealanders on a five-mile front, made it plain, however, that the Eighth Army still faced much hard fighting before it could force the Germans to retire into their "gothic line" defenses north of Florence.

Furious Defense

"The Germans still are defending their positions furiously," he said. "The New Zealanders, who are nearest the city, are pushing forward against infantry backed up by huge Tiger tanks."

British guardsmen, probing toward Florence directly from the south, were reported to have gained two unidentified mountain positions without opposition. A column advancing from the southeast was last reported within eight miles of the city. Five German divisions—three of them crack outfits—were said to be dug in on an arc before Florence, frantically opposing the Allied advance. The Germans announced July 1, however, that Florence itself was to be regarded as an open city.

(A broadcast by the German Transocean news agency Wednesday night reported that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, minister of de-

Churchill, In An Optimistic Report, Says War "Perhaps Approaching Final Stages"

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Prime Minister Churchill declared in a comprehensive review of the war today that "I fear greatly of raising false hopes, but I no longer feel bound to deny that victory may come perhaps soon."

With caution tempering his optimism, Churchill said that the latest news from the Allied beachhead in France "seems to me extremely good," that the Red Army was "tearing the guts out of the German Army," and that "the interval between the defeat of Hitler and the defeat of Japan will be shorter—perhaps much shorter—than I had at one time supposed."

The war, he said, "approaches perhaps its closing stage."

Of the revolt of the Army generals in Germany, Churchill said that 'potent as may be these manifestations of internal disease, decisive as even they may be one of these days, it is not in them that we should put our trust, but in our own strong arm and the justice of our cause."

Speaking for an hour and 40 minutes before a House of Commons which laughted frequently at typical Churchillian barbs dug into the enemy the prime minister declared that he had "upon the whole a good report to make to the House this afternoon."

"On every battlefront all over the world," he said, "the armies of Germany and Japan are recoiling. In the air, on the sea and under the sea, our well-established supremacy increases with steady strides."

Churchill stressed particularly the American victories in the Pacific, "opening to us the prospect of a more—much more—speedy climax in the war with Japan," and the "splendid and spectacular victories" won by the Americans in France, who he said are now proceeding at "almost a gallop" in their southward plunge.

He praised too the "parade of the nations' northward through Italy, but declared emphatically that "it is the Russian Army which has done the most work in tearing the guts out of the German Army."

The prime minister said, "I salute Marshal Stalin, (cheers) that great champion of his country, and I firmly believe that our 20-

HOME NURSING TIPS

HOSPITALS are overcrowded these days and whenever a patient is sufficiently recovered so that he no longer needs the attention of a doctor or nurse, he is sent home to convalesce.

Patients can be made more comfortable at home if a few nursing tips are followed.

For one thing, you might use drinking straws for orange juice or other liquids which the patient must take. Drinking straws do not require as much care as glass tubes, they can be discarded after once used, and there is no danger of having them break.

Dress up meals served on a tray in bed with gay linen, a single flower or ever bright-colored salt and pepper shakers.

Patients appreciation receiving a fresh newspaper with their breakfast or a light fast-moving book brought in occasionally to keep their minds off the illness.

Well-made beds are another morale-building factor for the convalescent patients. Seeing that the linens are changed frequently and that the ends of the sheets are well tucked in and the pillows fluffed does much for patient's comfort.

NICE PEOPLE—Since recruiting at best is a temporary job, some officers and assistants do not take time to enter into the life of a community, knowing their stay will be short. This is not always true, however. There were the John C. Oldhams, for instance.

Mr. Oldham, specialist first class, has been in charge of the Naval Recruiting office here. His wife, an accomplished musician, has been playing accompaniments for women's programs at First Christian church and furthermore agreed to take a place as a packer for the Red Cross and to assist with the knitting in the new season which has just got under way. We don't know of a newcomer who was received as quickly as she because of her cheerful disposition, her graciousness to play the piano and her willingness to help with war work.

The baby grand piano is about the only thing the Oldhams brought when they came here from Fort Lauderdale and it is being sent to Amarillo where he has been transferred as assistant. Welcome news to their many friends is that the Oldhams plan to establish a residence here after the war.

Series E Quota In Bond Drive Exceeded

Lubbock county has exceeded its Series E quota in the Fifth War Loan drive—and this is official, according to a report Wednesday from state drive headquarters in Dallas. Through July 26, the county was credited with $1,110,881 in Series E sales, or $881 more than the quota.

It was the first time the official records have put the total over the particular quota. Sales through July 31 also will be credited to the county's quota, and the expectation is that these won't run much short of an additional $100,000.

Total of all sales in the county during the fifth loan drive was $5,405,185 through July 26, an excess of $720,185 over the $4,685,000 quota.

Tire Applications Far Exceed Supply

Though "B" and "C" gasoline ration holders are eligible for new tires, there aren't enough tires to meet applications resulting from the increase in the number of eligibles, it was announced by the Office of Price administration office here Wednesday.

Only 20 per cent, rated by the August quota, in fact. The local boards have been instructed to screen applications carefully and issue certificates only to the more essential drivers. That explains why some persons who filed requests for tires weeks back have received no certificate, why others who put in more recent applications may have obtained new tires.

When grade 3 tires are available, it may be necessary to fill some less essential requests with certificates for them, it was explained.

GOP Claims Clark's Defeat In Missouri Helps Their Chances

(By The Associated Press)

Senator Bennett Clark's apparent defeat in the Missouri Democratic primary was interpreted by Repblicans in Congress yesterday as enhancing their party's chances of capturing the Senate seat and carrying the state for the GOP national ticket next fall.

Most Democrats in Washington limited their comment to words of praise for Clark and for Roy S. McKittrick who was leading the senator by 18,000 votes on the basis of incomplete and unofficial returns from Tuesday's balloting. Still to be counted on Friday are about 30,000 absentee ballots.

General GOP View

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, jr., House Republican leader, summed up the general GOP view in these words:

"The defeat of Clark makes it a clean-cut November fight in Missouri on the New Deal. I believe it means election of a Republican senator and that the state will go for Dewey and Bricker."

McKittrick, state attorney general, campaigned as an out-and-out administration supporter while Clark often has been critical of the administration.

Governor Forrest C. Donnell is the Republican senatorial nominee.

In New York state, Rep. Hamilton Fish attributed his success in winning Republican renomination in part to the criticism fired at him by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, and Wendell Willkie.

Fish Leads Bennet

Fish, veteran of 24 years in Congress, won by about 2,500 votes over August W. Bennet who already had the Democratic and American Labor party nominations and will oppose Fish again in November.

Among other results of Tuesday's primaries was renomination of Republican Senator Clyde M. Reed in Kansas. Rep. W. P. Lambertson, Republican who had criticized the war records of President Roosevelt's sons, was defeated by State Senator Albert Cole.

Fourth Demo To Lose

If the final results in Missouri show Clark's defeat, he will be the fourth Democratic senator to lose out in the primaries this year. Senator D. Worth Clark lost in Idaho, Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith in South Carolina, and Senator Hattie W. Caraway in Arkansas. Only one Republican has lost. This was Senator Rufus C. Holman of Oregon who was defeated by Wayne L. Morse, former member of the War Labor board.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas, one of the few Democrats willing to comment publicly, said that "while I didn't always agree with his (Clark's) views, I had high respect for him. I understand Attorney General McKittrick is a man of ability also."

Tennessee Votes Today

Today Tennessee Democrats hold their primary to nominate candidates for 10 House seats, for governor and for some other state officers. Rep. James McCord has the state party organization's backing for the gubernatorial nomination.

The threat of a southern revolt against the Democratic ticket faded still further yesterday when South Carolina Democrats, in a brief conclave, in effect voted approval of the party's national platform. Last May's state convention had set the August meeting and raised a threat that South Carolina Democratic electors might withhold their votes from the national ticket if the platform adopted by the Chicago national convention was not to their liking.

Stevenson Not To Take Sides In State Race

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson said today that he would not take part in the run-off race for attorney general between Grover Sellers of Austin and Jesse Martin of Fort Worth.

"I appointed Sellers as attorney general," he said, "but I would not undertake to tell the people who to vote for."

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear on Stevenson recently to issue a statement in connection with the race. He said he would issue no statement.

3 Saber-Swinging Jap Officers Killed By 2 Yanks On Guam

By MAC R. JOHNSON
United Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 77TH ARMY DIVISION, Guam, July 22. (Delayed)—Two American soldiers last night killed three saber-swinging Jap officers who charged their foxhole, but only after several minutes of violent hand to hand combat.

Staff Sgt. Robert L. Livingston, 22, of Pensacola, Fla., and Pvt. Auguste B. McLees, 34, of Rutherford, N. J., emerged with saber cuts on their left hands, and battered helmets which probably saved them from death.

The enemy swords cut through the steel visors but neither soldier had as much as a scratch from blows on the head.

Livingston, bazooka expert, and McLees, a rifleman, were awake in their foxhole before the attack. A third soldier was sleeping.

"I heard a noise but it was pitch dark," said McLees. "I didn't see anything but I hollered, 'halt,' then I saw there Jap officers waving their swords, running toward the foxhole. They were only ten feet away when I saw them. I fired one shot from my Garand and knocked one down. He was so close I couldn't miss."

Meanwhile Livingston fired with his carbine but his gun jammed. the two remaining Japs jumped into the foxhole, slashing and seriously wounding the soldier who had been sleeping.

Livingston and McLees grabbed the swinging blades with their bare hands and wrestled and wrestled the Japs in the bottom of the foxhole. Said Livingston:

"I pushed one Jap down atop my wounded buddy, then grabbed a carbine and started clubbing the Jap who hollered, 'No' 'No', I also hit the Jap with whom McLees was wrestling, hiting him in the base of the neck and on his face.

"Both Japs started crawling out of the foxhole so I grabbed the good carbine of my wounded buddy and McLees got his Garand and we shot and killed them."

Are you using cake make-up on your lovely, delicate skin? If so, here's something I'd like you to consider before you use it even once more!

Run your finger-tips gently over your skin. Does it feel a little dry and rough, a little flaky—a little bump here or there?

Now examine your skin carefully, in bright sunlight! Is it as fresh and young-looking as you want it to be—or does it look even a little older than you are? Is it beginning to look a little coarse . . . bumps here and there?

Why let this tragic thing happen to your lovely skin—even for one more evening? You don't have to risk these dangers to get the smooth, flawless texture you want! You can get a much lovelier effect —without danger — a softer, fresher, far more appealing look to your skin—with Lady Esther Face Powder! "I'm Fighting It Out Along This Line!" . . . says Reddy Kilowatt

The electric power line is busy backing up the front line, and it's one the Axis can't break. I'm doing my bit along this line. It's a mighty big bit, too—because the United States has more electric generating capacity than Germany, Japan and Italy combined. It's helping build tanks, planes and guns all over the country.

When you consider how many war plants right in this section depend on me for power to keep them going, you'll see why I'm really a war worker like a lot of you folks. Then remember that I am helping out on thousands of farms here, to maintain the food supply that both our armed forces and our home-front workers need in the big push for final Victory. In the home, too, you'll find me running all kinds of appliances so that women can spend more time doing their share.

I'm devoting everything I can to working for Victory—and I've never been too little or too late. Yet you haven't had to go without my services elsewhere just because I was doing war work.

Commercial Vehicle Operators Must Keep Records, ODT Says

Operators of commercial motor vehicles are required to keep records of the operation of all vehicles covered by certificates of war necessity although they may use simplified forms of their own, the Lubbock district Office of Defense Transportation announced Wednesday.

While the ODT feels that records of miles traveled, motor fuel used and tire inspections made are more necessary today than ever before, such records may be kept on forms suitable to the convenience of the operators, it was explained.

Some Forms Cancelled

Forms 17 and 17-a, formerly required by the ODT for reports of operations and tire inspections, have been cancelled and will no longer be supplied. Operators still having a supply of these forms, however, may continue to use them, the ODT said. All records will be subject to periodic inspections by ODT officials.

Information required of operators in keeping records of vehicle operations include a record of tire inspection for each vehicle; date of inspection; inspection station number, county and state; serial number or brand of tires requiring service and description of the required tire or vehicle services; certification of inspector that no service is necessary, or certification that such service as was required has been performed.

Tire Inspections

Tires must be inspected at the end of 5,000 miles of operation or at the end of six months, whichever comes first, the ODT said.

With certain exeeptions, a record of loads transported is required to be kept for each vehicle. Certificate h-lders engaged in non-distributive operations are required to keep such records only in respect of loads transported in over-the-road operations. Generally speaking, the ODT pointed out, certificate holders are not required to keep a record of loads transported in vehicles engaged in (1) retail distribution service (other than tank vehicles); (2) construction operations; (3) maintenance or repair services; (4) transportation of property wholly within the boundaries of any property under common carrier control or management or between such properties when not separated by more than one mile; (5) public health, safety or public utility service; and (6) farming or the transportation of farm products or supplies (not including for-hire vehicles).

Record For Each Vehicle

Every certificate holder who operates a property-carrying vehicle is required to keep a record for each vehicle of the number of days the vehicle was idle with the reason therefor, it was explained.

Some classes of operators, such as local and over-the-road common carriers, and petroleum tank truck operators, are presently required by the ODT to file a monthly operating report. The forms for these reports are mailed directly to the operators by the ODT and are required to be filled out and returned by the 15th of the month following the month indicated on the face of the form.

Operators were advised not to mail in monthly reports unless specifically requested to do so. The ODT told operators it is "trying to simplify for you the task of keeping all truck records."

Way Of Living, Not Longevity, Is Said Main Goal In Life

Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of First Presbyterian church, was prinicpal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club in Hilton hotel Wednesday.

In citing the deeds accomplished by men who have passed the prime of life age, Dr. Lewis said that it is not "how long we live, but how we are living while we are living that counts." This day calls for great living, he added. "We are here for a purpose and unless this purpose is fulfilled under God the world will be made immeasurably poorer and the generation of tomorrow will be called upon to pay for our laxness. We are expected to measure up to our responsibilities."

Dr. Lewis was introduced by R. B. Luker, program chairman. An invitation was extended members of the Rotary club and their families to attend open house of the Lubbock Boys club next Monday night by Dr. W. M. Cauley, a representative of the American Business club.

Out-of-town guests were: Brace Helfrich of Wichita, Kas., George Loos of Laredo, and Ike Moore of Ralls C. A. Bestwick, club president, presided.

Wild Oklahoma Gas Well Is Set Afire To Halt Explosion Threat

CEMENT, Okla., Aug. 2. (U.P.)—Abandoning attempts to shut in a roaring flow of gas estimated at 100 million cubic feet a day, officials of the Little Nick Oil Co., Chickasha, last night set afire a well that had been out of control since July 16.

The wold gasser was turned into a torch reaching several hundred feet into the air to prevent further threat of a huge explosion from the widely drifting gas, a conservation officer for the state corporation commission, said. Flames from the well were visible for more than 20 miles.

Meanwhile, in Oklahoma City, officials of all oil companies operating near the well were called to the corporation commission office for a conference on safety measures to be forced as long as the well burns. Walker Pound, conservation director, said it might take the company 60 days to drill a diagnal hole to the wild well, thus permitting a cement plug to be insterted.

Pound said the well had defied the efforts of M. M. Kinley, famed wild well tamer from Houston, Tex., and formerly of Tulsa, to shut it off. Kinley worked on the roaring well nearly a week without success.

Ceiling Prices In Cafes Take Effect

Nationwide restaurant ceiling prices became effective this week and the district restaurant advisory committee is asking both proprietors and patrons to help them get full compliance with the regulation.

"We have all helped work out this regulation," Omer Elliott of El Paso, committee chairman, said. "We realize that price stabilization is a protection for both business and customers. We proprietors are proud of our ceiling prices and we want help in their full enforcement."

The restaurant ceiling prices are now in effect for all of the Lubbock district and all restaurants in this district will be required to post in a prominent place the 40 basic food items after Aug. 16. These items were selected last week in a meeting of the restaurant committee with OPA officials.

Elliott pointed out that any establishments which do not serve all of the 40 selected items must post prices of those they do sell and add other commonly sold items until the poster is filled.

Unevenly rising prices have been causing an unfair distribution of scarce supplies and serious rises in the living costs of many workers who must eat meals in public eating places were given as reasons for this new regulation, Elliott said.

Inventory Required On Heavier Tires

Separate inventory of new and used truck tires, 8.25 and larger, must be taken by dealers as of the close of business July 29, and separate records of any such tires in transit to him on and after July 29 must be kept, the district Office of Price administration announced.

Consumers must return to local boards all unused certificates dated prior to July 16, the OPA stated. These certificates have been declared invalid fo rtransfer to consumers or for replacement by dealers and manufacturers.

Dealers must forward to the district OPA in Lubbock all replenishment portions, whether or not a tire was transferred, and all certificates and parts of certificates on which no tire was transferred.

GOP Not To Try To Reorganize House

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP) — House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., set at rest today capitol corridor speculation that the Republicans might attempt to take control of the House organization, putting Martin in the speaker's chair instead of Sam Rayburn (D-Tex).

"We do not contemplate any such development at this time," Martin said.

The Democrats lost an actual majority of the House membership Tuesday with the swearing in of Rolla C. McMillen, Republican of the 19th Illinois district, succeeding the late William H. Wheat, Republican.

This gave the Republicans 212 seats, the largest number the party has occupied in more than 12 years. The Democrats have 216 seats, which is the exact total of the combined strength of the Republicans and minor parties, which have four seats.

Earth Shakes As Planes Batter Japs At Sugar Ridge On Guam

By CHARLES P. ARNOT
United Press War Correspondent

WITH THE THIRD MARINE DIVISION, Guam, July 25. (Delayed) — Acrid smoke hung over Sugar Ridge, a wooded bluff overlooking Guam's western beaches. Marines hugged the ground as our planes roared overhead, softening up the waiting Japs with bombs. The earth shook.

That was the way we began the assault on this vertical ridge which dominated thousands of yards of beachhead. The Japs were well entrenched; the ridge was honeycombed with caves, observation posts and pillboxes.

General Is There

Brig. Gen. Alfred Noble of La Jolla, Calif., was there, just to make sure the job went off all right. The assistant division commander stationed himself at our battalion command post—a foxhole covered with a shelter-half. He could smell 30 dead Japs a few yards away.

Only a single road wound up the side of Chonito cliff, from which the attack was to be launched. Bearded, sweating Marines advanced alertly, and Jap mortars were falling with alarming regularity.

Dig Their Noses In

The Marines reached the jump-off point for the attack.

"Get down! Stop moving!" was the order.

They froze, digging their noses into the soft earth.

Then came the bombardment—naval shells and aerial bombs from destroyers and dive bombers. The earth contracted and shook as if in the fist of an angry god.

Now the foot soldiers rose and began their advance—quickly. One column of Marines pushed across the draw toward the extreme heights while a second column probed carefully along the base of the ridge. Our light automatics chattered. But the enemy was back on his feet after that terrible bombardment, and we could hear the unmistakable crack of Jap rifles echoing across the ravines.

Marines Kept Pushing Ahead

Black puffs from enemy grenades and mortars rose from the earth ahead, but the Marines kept pushing ahead. They would hit the dirt while our supporting machine guns and riflemen carved a lethal pattern of lead back and forth across the Jap positions. American mortars took up the refrain, too, and soon the enemy was enveloped in a pall of smoke.

Wounded and dead Marines rolled down the steep slopes. Those who lived got up slowly—if they could walk—and picked their way to an aid station.

Japs Like Jackribbits

The rest of the Marines moved on and up against the enemy remnants trapped in a narrow draw bisecting the ridge. The Japs jumped like jackribbits from one small foxhole to another, popping out for quick rifle shots then hitting the deck.

When our advance elements neared the crest, the remaining Japs began to run out, heading for the rear. Marine sharpshooters potted a few, but some Japs got away.

The last enemy riflemen were being flushed out when our medium tanks could be heard rumbling up the slope to lead new attacks. The battle of Sugar Ridge ended.

State Tax Rate Hiked 8 Cents

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP) — A state property tax rate of 59 cents per $100 valuation, including 18 cents for schools, 35 cents for the general revenue fund and two cents for the Confederate veterans pension fund, was set today by the automatic tax board.

This represents an increase of eight cents per $100 for 1944, the boost coming in the amount set for schools, which in 1943 was 10 cents per $100 valuation.

The increase for schools was made necessary by the recent decision of the state board of education to pay to the schools a $6,000,000 balance in the available fund, in addition to the $25 per capita.

Had this balance been carried over and applied to the 1944-45 per capita apportionments, said Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, member of the automatic tax board, the increase in the rate for schools would not have been necessary.

As it is, the $6,000,000 can be applied on salary increases for teachers. When the board of education voted the supplemental payment, it was upon the understanding that the funds would be used in an effort to maintain teaching staffs in face of the drain to higher-paid war industries.

BY, OF, and FOR THE PEOPLE

RAPS OPPONENTS

Editor, The Avalanche: The Lubbock County Democratic convention was held and if there was anything democratic about it, I was too dumb to see. In fact, it was one of the most disgraceful things that has happened in Lubbock for a long time. It is generally known that we have a little "Tammany" group in our city that run everything by way of planning and plotting in hotel rooms, and via the telephone to get people to do their bidding and push the scheme over. This is done in city elections and everything of importance that is up for decisions by the people of Lubbock.

The special interest group and their lawyers and their stooges took charge of the Democratic party in our county last week. It might be interesting to the people if they would find out from whom these lawyers draw retainer fees regularly. It might enlighten them as to why these same lawyers were so vitally interested in the welfare of our country.

Some doctors were also vitally interested in the welfare of the country, and if the people would investigate their interest I think they would find that their cause for worry is the fact that the President wants a law passed to establish medical centers for the poor people who are unable to pay the hijacking prices for treatment when sick. Yes, the doctors feel that the people should go ahead and die if they can't pay the price.

I noticed also that the oil people were somewhat worried. To put the truth above everything else, the trouble is involved around the almighty dollar with such people as these. Then they cry to high heaven when the worker wants a little more pay to meet the rising cost of living.

Being refused a chance to speak at the meeting Saturday by the chairman, I want to say that the inference that the CIO is, or has been, taking any hand in the South Plains politics in the past election is absolutely false. Insofar as I know, there is not one member of the CIO in this territory. You are aware of this fact in spite of the CIO editorial warning that was run in The Avalanche previous to the recent election.

The main reason these special interest citizens are able to take control of affairs is that the patriotic folks of this city just sit contented at home and let them get away with it. I'll put my patriotism and interest in the welfare of my country up against any of these so-called Democrats. I spent three years and one month in the service of my country in the last war, and I came near to losing my life more than once. Where were the saviors of our country? They were in the age range. I was under age, but went anyway. Why haven't more of those in the age range at this time gone to the army rather than stay at home and cry that they want to save the country?

Tom H. Carter,
Lubbock.

Dear Mr. Carter: Thanks for your letter. Being out of the city at the time, I was not at the Democratic convention, so all I know is what I have read in the papers since returning. However, just to keep the record straight, the CIO was active in the last election in races of interest to Texans here and everywhere in the state. I saw a broadside, distributed to its members by the CIO, which "recommended" numerous state and district candidates. Among those given attention by the CIO "Political Action Committee" were races covering Congress in this district; (C. L. Harris was given the CIO ok) and the state senate, in which Sterling Parish, then opposed by Alton Chapman, was given the palm. The Avalanche's warning was to the many people of this area who believe the CIO is built and operated on the basis of foreign-spawned "isms," and to whom the term CIO is like a red flag in a bull's face. If the CIO had its way it would dictate the election of every candidate of any importance, not only in this state, but every state. Your being a staunch Democrat, I'm sure you favor a government by, of and for the majority of the people; not simply by, of and for the CIO minority. Very truly yours, The Editor).

Government Policies On Hogs May Change

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP) — Faced with a possible shortage of pork next year, the government may soon alter price policies affecting hogs so as to reverse a sharp downward trend in the production of this meat animal.

Latest official surveys indicate that a third fewer hogs will be produced this year. Factors contributing to this sharp decline include less favorable prices and short feed supplies.

Now that a new feed production season is at hand, the government may soon be in a position to establish policies which would assure hog raisers somewhat better prices. Whether such policies will be put into effect will depend largely on weather conditions in the midwestern corn belt during the next two weeks.

If seed production prospects look good, the government may announce a change in a reduction in the support price of hogs. Designated weights now carry a support price of $13.75 per hundred pounds, Chicago market basis. That price is due to drop to $12.50 on October 1.

Lubbock Flier Was In Navy Squadron Which Shot Down 20 Jap Planes Over Iwo Jima

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2. (U.P.)—Twelve pilots of a carrier-based Navy fighter squadron blazed their way out of a Japanese trap over Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands only 750 miles from Tokyo and shot down 20 enemy planes while losing only two of their own, the 12th Naval district disclosed today.

Two of the pilots shot down four planes each. They were Lt. Paul M. Henderson, Lakeland, Fla., who was one of the fliers who failed to return, and Lt. John R. Meharg, Troy, N. Y.

Air Filled With Japs

Henderson, Meharg and Ens. Alden P. Morner, Ironwood, Mich., were flying together in a three-plane section when the action started, the Navy said. They sighted three Jap Planes, and Henderson, a veteran of Tarawa and Guadalcanal, "went in with guns firing and the first zero blew up in the air," the Navy said.

As his two flying mates followed him "the air suddenly became filled with attacking Japanese planes on all sides, above and below," the Navy account said. His fellow pilots said Henderson "was destroying Japs at every turn, and they counted four of his victims before they lost sight of him."

"It was just like the movies," Meharg said on his return to the carrier. "The first Jap plane I hit just blew up in the air. I must have made passes at 10 or 12 others, but I counted just the ones I saw go down. I finally chased the last one down with only one of my guns firing, and he flew right into the water."

After shooting down the fourth plane and running out of ammunition Meharg dropped a fragmentation bomb over a volcano target. His plane was not hit. Morner accounted for two Zeroes.

The other pilot who failed to return was Lt. Jack Hogue, Graham, Tex., the Navy said.

Other pilots and their scores included:

Lt. M. M. Tomme, Troup, Texas, (who was fatally injured a few days later in an accident aborad ship) one; and LT. (JG) ROY A. BECHTOL, 2114 Eighteenth street, Lubbock, Tex., (later killed in action), one.

Cards Roll Over Pittsburgh, 8-4

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 2. (AP) — Behind the five-hit pitching of Max Lanier, the St. Louis Cardinals rolled over the Pittsburgh Pirates to move a step closer to another National League pennant here tonight, 8-4.

Lanier hung up his 12th win of the season against five losses, and coasted easily to the victory with only one bad inning. Given an early 5-0 lead by the Card heavy barrage off Rip Sewell's blooper ball, Lanier ran into trouble in the third inning when Bob Elliott homered with two mates on the runways to spark a four run rally. Lanier settled down after this inning, and blanked the Pirates the rest of the way.

With Johnny Hopp setting the pace with a single, double and a tripple, the Cards handed Sewell his ninth loss of the season by shelling him for seven hits in the first four innings. Resigno gave up five more hits in the next three, but Strincevich held the Cards hitless for the last two frames.

Lanier added seven strikeouts to his hefty season's total.

The city tennis tournament nears its climax, with Norma Crossland and Norenn Sparkman winners of the women's doubles. Final sets are to be played between Jerry Le-Mond and David Hester in the boys' singles in the near future. Josephine Valdez is set to meet the winner between Crossland and Sparkman in the finals of the women's singles, while Martin Mayer and Norenn Sparkman will receive either Doris Richardson and Verne Batchelor or Lts. Brown and Valdez in the closing match of mixed doubles.

In the men's singles, Choc Miller, Thad Ricks, Martin Mayer, and R. D. Brown are set for semi-final matches. Lieutenants Brown and Tucker are prepared for either Martin Mayer and Thad Ricks or H. L. Burgess and Lieutenant Rabbie in the finals of the men's doubles.

Many Servicemen To See Bond Fight Free

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Friday night's Madison Square Garden 1-rounder between Sidney (Beau Jack) Walker and Bob Montgomery took on a "seat-a-serviceman" tinge today as war bond sales for the fourth meeting of the two army privates soared to $13,250,000.

The only way you can get in is to buy a war bond but Uncle Mike Jacobs, the promoter who generally is taking instead of shelling out around the fight shows, is fixing it so some of the service men may get in free.

Jacobs bought 43 bonds of various sizes today and turned the tickets over to government hospitals to be distributed to wounded service men. Joe Leonard, brother of Benny Leonard — the former lightweight king—bought 100 of the $25 bonds and sent his ducats to service men, too. The idea is spreading.

Another uncle—Uncle Sam — will pay out $3,312,500 to buyers of bonds who get to see the show free, while the two fighters get nothing but training expenses. For their three previous encounters, two won by Montgomery, the punchers drew about $100,000 each.

Up to today 60 seats at $100,000 each had been sold, along with 88 at $50,000, 104 at $25,000, and 25 at $10,000. No count was available on sales of smaller bonds but Jacobs said they were moving fast.

The promoter predicted at least 18,000 fans would see the slug-fest at bond prices ranging from $25 to $100,000.

Both Beau Jack and Montgomery have held the New York version of the lightweight title twice, with Montgomery now having the crown. Friday's fight will have no bearing on the title, since it's at 10 rounds and the boys will come in over the class weight limit.

Sears Slug Way To Win Over Purinas

The Sears and Roebuck junior baseball nine, paced by the big bat of George Brewer, pounded out a 16 to 7 win over Purina Mills Wednesday afternoon at Chapman field to stay in the thick of the race in the second half marathon in the National League.

Brewer slammed out three doubles and a single in leading attack for the winners, with Fulton pressing him for hitting honors. Brewer also aided Charles Pressley in pitching the victory, relieving Pressley in time to finish the game. The two limited the Millers to six hits.

Ted Forsythe did the chunking for the losers, giving up only 10 hits.

Sears bounded away with a seven-run deluge in the first inning, and were never headed off.

NYU To Return For Six Game Grid Card

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—New York university, which gave up football in 1942 because of manpower shoratges despite its enrollment of 22,000, will return to the gridiron this fall with a six-game schedule, graduate Manager Albert B. Nixon said today.

The Violets, who in the past drew their opponents from all corners of the United States, this fall will tangle only with eastern foes and have scheduled all their home games for tiny Ohio field.

Temple, City College of New York, Swarthmore and Brooklyn college will visit the New York U layout while the Violets will make forays, for games with Boston College and Bucknell.

Football recently was returned to the NYU program. John J. (Jack) Weinheimer, one of the school's greatest backs and an assistant mentor at his alma mater since his graduation in 1922, was named coach.

The school is the largest in the United States, having an undergraduate body of 22,751, of which 10,685 were men, as of June 1, 1944.

Card Stars Set For Fast Finish

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—It's going to be different this year—if and when the St. Louis Cardinals nail up their third straight National League pennant. That time appears to be only a few weeks away with the Red Birds now out in front by a comfortable lead and conceded by all to be the class of the league.

Giving what amounted to an advance tip on his World Series plans, popular Manager Billy Southworth, of the Cards, disclosed today he intends to keep his regulars in the lineup virtually every day to the end of the season. This is the direct opposite to last year when most of the Card regulars, with the exception of Stan Musial, in the thick of the batting race, were given a good rest after the pennant was clinched early in September.

"All winter long I wondered what happened in the 1943 World Series," Southworth explained. "We beat the Yanks in 1942, then lost to them last fall. Right or wrong, I've decided I was to blame for letting some of our regulars take too long a layoff after we were in."

"So this year," the Sunbury, O. "Farmer" continued, "If we again win the pennant—mind you, I said if—I'm going to keep the boys in the lineup. Of course they'll take a day or two off now and then, but nothing longer than that. We'll play every game to the hilt just like we had to do in 1942 to nose out Brooklyn by a game on the last day of the season."

Football Talk Fills Texas Air As Season Draws Near

(By The United Press)

Scattered bits of news brought thoughts of high school football to the forefront in Texas today despite the sweltering temperatures that was reminiscent of anything but the usual grid weather.

While preparations were under way for staging the annual coaching school conducted each year by the Texas High School Coaches Association, changes in coaching setups and abandonment of a "strike by one high school team shared in the news.

School Starts Monday

The coaching school opens at Wichita Falls Monday and will be climaxed on Friday night, Aug. 11, by the annual all-star North-South football game between star senior schoolboy gridders.

Newest coaching changes were reported from Corpus Christi and Cisco.

At the Gulf coast city, A. Y. (Bud) McCallum was chosen to take over the coaching reins of the Corpus Christi Buccaneers, perennial district champions and state title contenders. McCallum, head mentor at Texas Agricultural and Industrial College at nearby Kingsville for the past 15 years, succeeded Bill Dubose, who resigned to move to Waco High as assistant coach.

New Cisco coach will be Lindon Binion, who has been serving as an assistant at Fort Worth North Side. Binion, a former Texas Christian grid star, will have C. B. Midkiff as his assistant. Midkiff had held the same post the past two years under Monroe Sweeney, who resigned last spring.

Strike Is Settled

At Fort Worth, Amon Carter Riverside players decided to forego their plans not to report for football this fall in protest over the school board's relief from coaching duties of W. C. O. Harris.

Harris, himself, was instrumental in persuading the players that it was their duty to come out for the team under their new coach, Ed L. Lowe, moved up from Class A Handley High school.

Despite a petition bearing the names of more than 1,900 residents of the Riverside area calling for the re-instatement of Harris, who is president of the state coaches association, the board refused to change its original order moving Harris from the athletic department and naming him as an instructor only in the school system.

Connie Mack Looks Back Over 50 Years

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2. (AP)—"And when the war is over," Connie Mack penned, "I look for better, more exciting baseball played by more skillful men before greater crowds than we ever have known."

It was part of Connie's own story of his 50 years as a baseball manager. The game's great will help him celebrate at a New York Yankees-Athletics game here Friday night.

Recalls First Club

Connie, writing for the Philadelphia Inquirer, recalled that 'when I first took hold of the Pittsburgh club" in 1894 ball players were "rough, tough and uncouth" and "we were not welcome in first- or second-class hotels.

"Third-class hostelries," he added, "received us only when we promised not to eat with other guests."

As players have progressed in sociability, he said, "just so has baseball advanced in speed, cleverness and appeal," until now "as a group, today's players are faster, smarter and more skillful." "I am speaking of baseball before the war," he explained.

Connie called the Jimmy Collinses and Tris Speakers "the Orville Wrights and Robert Louis Stevensons of the diamond and of a different age" and said "The Di Maggios and the Ted Williamses are the super-bombers of a faster, more mechanized age."

Predicts Big Boom

"Attendance should soar after the war," he wrote. "Even now baseball is making millions of new friends, young friends and women friends. . . . Night game have done much to popularize baseball. . . . Whether night games will be increased after the war, I don't know. I feel that any team should not play more than 14 home night games under the lights. Nevertheless I believe baseball will give the fans what they want."

Connie recalled that the broke up "my first great Athletics team in 1914 because of the high salaries offered my players by the outlaw Federal League," and that he broke up "my second great team, champions of 1929, 1930 and 1931, because the overhead was so great."

"Many persons think I am rich," he said. "I am not. I have to make baseball pay the same as any other business man. I wish I even could say that I am out of debt."

The date palm was brought to America by the Spanish mission fathers in the 18th century.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands: One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

A Proof Of Democracy

REGARDLESS of the personal feelings that Texans may have in the pro-Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt partisanship which presumably will reach a climax in the approaching State Democratic convention, fights of that kind are indicative of a healthy condition in the state and nation.

It is healthy that sound and soild men and women should take such an interest in the governmental affairs of their state and nation that their feelings could be worked up to a pitch exhibited in many of the county Democratic conventions last Saturday. When such men and women are as alert to affairs of government as they proved by the enthusiasm of their participation in those meetings, Americans may feel sure that their democracy is strong. With that sort of alertness, there seems little reason to fear that anything resembling a dictatorship ever will be slipped over on the American people.

Those meetings proved further that democracy still is real in the United States by the fact that participants in the convention had no hesitancy in giving full voice to personal opinions. They proved that freedom of speech, which is the first bulwark of any democracy, still exists in the fullest sense in America. Anyone desiring to express opinions—including the most critical opinions—do so without resitancy and without fear of consequences.

Yet all of us know that when the fight is over, those who win and those who lose are going to make the best of it. Except in a few individual instances, ill-feelings will pass with the end of the fight. Both sides doubtless will fight to the last ditch. But when the verdict finally comes in, both sides will accpect it with good grace. The winner can be sure of loyal support even among those who may have fought hardest and criticised most vigorously.

In the final analysis, it probably won't make too much difference who may lose and who may win. The important fact is that millions of Americans actually practice their democracy. So long as they may do that, no one need have great fear for the future of America.

An Encouraging Outlook

WITHOUT any question, one of the most serious economic problems of the early post-war period will be the disposal of the enormous surpluses of goods of every kind that have been accumulated during the struggle.

Therefore reports like that a few days ago from the Office of War Information relative to the plans that are being made to dispose of surpluses are of intense interest to everyone. Meanwhile, the study that is being given the problem is encouraging.

Exact figures on the quantities of surpluses have not been disclosed. OWI estimated that 15 billion dollars in such merchandise will go on the civilian market at the end of the war. But the quantities of accumulated goods unquestionably are much larger than the 15 billions reported. Some estimates run as high as 100 billion dollars, which is more than ever has been spent for civilian needs during any year in the history of the nation.

Certainly, the stocks are large enough that they could lead to virtually an economic chaos unless they are marketed wisely. If there should be any considerable dumping of merchandise, then factories assuredly will be closed down while surpluses are being consumed.

Fortunately, the indications are that serious efforts are being made to guard against lumping. The promise is made that quantities released at any one time will be relatively small and will be made available in lots sufficiently small to be within the reach of most pocketbooks. The further presumption is that the first goods released will be scarce merchandise not being manufactured for civilian use except, perhaps, in very small quantities. There also is the sound of common sense in the plan to release large portions of the surpluses in foreign markets to people who are going to need help desperately, and who aren't going to be able to pay for what they receive. The existence of surpluses thus may be expected to fill a most critical humanitarion need without imposing added drains upon American pocketbooks.

However, it seems inevitable that, regardless of the foresight that may be exercised, the surpluses are going to become a serious problem. The best that can be hoped for is that the problem will be handled in such a way as to minimize its seriousness—and hopes are justified by reports like that from OWI that it will be handled with conscientious intelligence.

Even time that treads on thorns also flies. It has been three years since "Beat Me Daddy, Eight to the Bar" was the favorite juke-organ selection.

Enlisting as a Red Cross nurse after her American husband has been killed in action, German-born Charlotte Moore undergoes hospital training. Her particular group is called "The Foreign Legion" and includes Eurasian Mali, Brazilian Juanna, Belgian Yvonne and English Elizabeth. They receive Army commissions upon graduation and fly under orders to a secret destination. This turns out to be a three-day-old hospital in the heart of Algeira where they are desperately needed because of the recent American landings in North Africa. Dr. Merrill and Miss Fryberg are in charge.

A SECRET AMONG SOLDIERS

A LARGE mess table with benches at both sides filled the center of a spacious room that looked like anything but a kitchen. Two kerosene stoves were the victorious competitors of an old-fashioned oven, the kind you see in French villages in the public bake house. Cases of canned goods were piled up in one corner.

Ted, a male nurse, was eagerly preparing coffee for us and while we pitched in and set the table he explained that the great new hospital kitchen, started three days before, would begin to function tomorrow. This was going to be the mess hall from now on.

Miss Fryberg gave us exactly 20 minutes to have coffee and to make ourselves at home in the dormitory till she summoned us for an inspection trip through the camp. Though it was a cloudy, starless, blue-black night our eyes quickly became accustomed to it and soon began to see and distinguish objects in what had seemed a short while before a maze of darkness.

It was one of the many hundred camps the Army had established at home and overseas. A miracle built in three days.

"Mr. Kayser is building liberty ships in seven days, so why shouldn't we be able to construct barracks in three?" Miss Fryberg said tersely. And then she added, "We see and feel the war here. We work! And we have no eight-hour day! A day is long only if you make it long."

The operating room in barrack "A" had no linoleum floor and no tile walls but everything a doctor would need for antiseptic work. There was even an electric light and a wash basin with a sort of running water, not from central plumbing but from a container hanging over the basin. Everything planned at home, everything transported 6000 miles, everything part of a miracle.

THERE were enamel cases with instruments, medicine chests with drugs and dressings, water jugs, buckets, rubber things.

The barrack wards, wooden rectangulars, were not exactly luxurious but far from being as primitive as Yvonne had indicated.

"These iron cots with pillows and blankets are heaven for those who have lain wounded in blood and sand," Miss Fryberg replied, rather offended. "You mustn't forget where we are. The field dressing station directly behind the front line consists of a tent, a stretcher, and one chair. We are a Grand Hotel compared to them."

Then, hurriedly, she took us to the village.

The village itself was a typical Arab set, with white clay cubicles for houses, a mosque with a minaret, a public bath and a market center. Miss Fryberg, in whispers, gave us instructions on how to address the natives, how to respect their customs, how to guard our dignity in their eyes.

On the way back she asked that we bring all questions, requests, or complaints to her personally and not bother Dr. Merrill with them. "Dr. Merrill is not only a surgeon, he is a great scientist, always searching for new methods, in his field. I worked side by side with him for nearly 10 years at Johns Hopkins. I know his obsession for work, and his greatness, and you all will learn to admire it soon. But I insist that you do not disturb him with your problems. We will be sent an assistant doctor in a couple of days. He might be your second choice if I should be busy." That sounded very plausible to me and I didn't give the order a second thought until Yvonne whispered in my ear: "It means, plainly spoken, that she is in love with him and jealous of all other females."

"Your brain runs only on one track," I said.

"On the right track," she answered.

Back in the house Miss Fryberg asked: "Would someone volunteer for night duty right away?" Ten hands went up at once.

Mali and Elizabeth were chosen.

"I'll go with you tonight," said Miss Fryberg. "Fredda and Caroline will be happy to get a wink of sleep. They have been on their feet ever since we arrived."

HOWARD used to say: War is a secret among soldiers. How right he was. Though we are as close to war as women can be, though we take the wounded boys from the battlefield, though we hear their first words and their last ones, though we write their letters and hold their fevered hands, war is their secret and we don't know what it is. One boy whose arm had to be amputated said to me when he came to after the narcosis: "I am not sorry about my arm, nurse, only for my golden wrist watch. It was such a beautiful thing." But his eyes were filled with unforgettable horror and with a knowledge of war that none of us can share.

The boys in their beds rarely talk to each other of how it had been; they try to best each other with wisecracks even through their pain. But there is that certain something in their eyes which is like the bond between two people who have shared a lifetime.

Those who can be transported without risk will be taken by hospital ship to a big Army hospital in Washington, D. C. But there are many others who cannot be moved yet. Our three wards are already filled.

Texas Farm Laborers Are Staying At Home

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP) — Texas farm laborers are finding the pastures greener at home, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

John D. Reed, commissioner, reported to the governor that there was a reduction of 20 per cent in number of farm workers leaving Texas in 1944 as compared with 1943, and a reduction of 62 per cent as compared with 1942.

Reed said that practically all the recruitment of labor by licensed agents has been completed for the year, and that the total thus far was 15,475. Bexar county led the state, furnishing 2,948 of the total, with Zavala second, 1,681; Hidalgo 1,347; Webb 1,331.

RULING GIVEN ON ELECTION

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—The attorney general, in an opinion rendered to Dan Abbott, assistant county attorney of Taylor county, said the county judge is the only person authorized to order a bond election upon petition of 20 or more porperty tax payers in a common consolidated school district. In the event there are less than 20 taxpayers, then a majority will suffice.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

A SUMPTUOUS new home for dogs has just been opened in New York's Bronx.

It is a former public bath house and more than $10,000 has been spent in converting it into a sort of canine Waldorf-Astoria.

There are private kennels, modern bathrooms, uniformed attendants and just about everything that a dog—if it were a human being—would consider the height of luxury.

A couple of days ago Trixie, a four-year-old dog of mixed ancestry, took advantage of an open door in her modest Bronx flat and decided to enjoy the sunshine and the delicious cooking odors of Eton Avenue.

But her adventure was brief. A dog catcher caught up with her and took her to the dog hotel, since there is a law that all dogs running loose in the Bronx must be confined for six months and watched for rabies.

Trixie examined her sumptuous quarters, sniffed disdainfully at the luscious food put in front of her, refused to eat and started to howl.

She has been whining and yelping and crying and whimpering ever since. Attendants at the home say she is crying her heart out for her home and her mistress, and they are afraid that she may die of homesickness.

BUT THE law is the law—no visitors are allowed while dogs are under observation, and Trixie will just have to make the best of it.

As I am writing this, my own dog, Beuce, is asleep under my desk, his head on one of my feet (which is also threatening to go to sleep), and every once in a while letting out a dreamy sigh of contentment.

Trixie and Deuce don't care anything about luxury, and neither do Rex and Dottie and Rover and Scotty and the millions of other dogs to whom home is wherever their beloved master is.

A dog's home is not a cottage or a palace or an apartment or a hovel. It is his master's heart, his love, his presence, his scent.

Sometimes I wonder why a dog—unscholled, uncultured, uncivilized, unable to speak or understand the spoken word—has so much of what the human race is trying so hard to acquire.

So many things for which we fight and hope about which we orate and write as things of a distant civilization, are inherent and instinctive qualities in a plain, ugly, dumb, lovable mutt.

Doesn't it make you ashamed of yourself sometimes, when you are planning to do something petty or mean, and then your dog puts its wet nozzle into your hand, looks up at you and says, without a word, "You perfect being, I adore you?"

I'll have to stop now. Deuce just woke up and wants to be petted.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE Sidney Hillman-Philip Murray combination is playing a shrewd, politico-economic game these days. Whether or not it hits the golden jackpot may depend ultimately on the man it seeks to re-elect for a fourth term—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Thousands of colorful and critical words have been written about its violent attempt to dominate the Democratic convention in Chicago and to renominate Henry A. Wallace as vice president.

Although rebuffed by the big city bosses and FDR, the partners accepted the turndown good-naturedly. Instead of sulking, they announced immediately that they wouuld strengthen their bid by raising three million instead of $750,000 for the New Deal campaign.

But hardly any notice has been given to their simultaneous demand before the War Labor Board for wage increases which, if granted, will make futile all efforts to hold down prices and prevent inflation. They want to toss the Little Steel formula and stabilization schedule on the scrap heap.

SMASH: Mr. Murray, in fact, came direct from Chicago to Washington to participate in the closing arguments before the NWLB panel. In a highly emotional speech the pro-Roosevelt champion, fresh from the convention battle, covertly reminded his official listeners that the man who appointed them may be defeated if the CIO does not go down the assembly line for him.

This kind of pressure may shock the old-fashioned But Phil merely adopted the tactics once employed by powerful corporate lobbyists when they sat in the national saddle. He, too, means to make hay for his followers while his political sun shines.

The CIO leaders are determined to win their wage fight because, although the Little Steel formula was first framed to prevent John L. Lewis from gaining an increase for his miners, the UMW president managed to smash it with the connivance of Harold L. Ickes, solid fuels administrator.

If FDR's enemy can get away with it, they think that their contribution to the New Deal wing entitles them to material recognition.

CASH: The NWLB panel has heard all the pros and cons advanced by spokesmen for the CIO steel workers and the employers regarding basic plants in the industry. On the evidence presented, it can probably forward its report to the White House within a month.

This might place President Roosevelt on an embarrassing spot. If he okays a boost for the Hillman-Murray followers, Republican orators would undoubtedly brand his action as a 'political payoff". But if he denies it, his refus . may incline CIO-ers, especially the rank and file, to relax their re-election activity. Likelihood is that he will make no final decision until after the returns flow in on November 7th.

The unions are asking for a raise of seventeen cents an hour, retroactive to January 1st, 1944. They demand that 1945 wages and employment totals be frozen on the basis of 1944's maximum figures. They also insist on a guaranteed pay envelope of around $56 a week as against a 1939 average of approximately $48.

These requests explain why the CIO seeks complete control of the administration and the Democratic party. It hopes to make politics pay—not in prestige or patronage, but in hard cash on the line. Here again the chieftains are taking whole chapters from the books which once guided the strategy of the "economic royalists."

Thus the abortive Hillman-Murray coup in Chicago was a comparatively unimportant affair. It is these behind-the-scenes moves and deals in Washington which are the McCoy.

HOMES: Major General Philip B. Fleming will soon visit Russia and England to study their plans for public projects in the postwar period. The Federal Works administrator goes on this important mission by direction of President Roosevelt, who has instructed Secretary Stimson to provide a plane.

British and Russian architects and engineers have already made blueprints for rebuilding their bombed cities. Since many communities have been destroyed utterly, they have experimented with schemes for far-reaching changes. They can afford to.

The residences, buildings, schools, water systems, parks, playgrounds and roads rising from the ruins may supply the pattern of the "dream city of the future." So General Fleming wants to get in on the ground floor.

He has already quizzed 5,000 governors, mayors, county commissioners and taxing units on their postwar reconstruction needs. It is probable that more than $15,000,000,000 will be spent on a 50-50 basis with the federal government for improvements and additions in the first few postwar years. This does not include the billions that will be paid by private industry.

General Fleming is no starry-eyed planner. He was born in Burlington; Iowa, where his father was a banker, and he was graduated from West Point as an engineer. But his reports, together with American designers' inventiveness, may give us a surprise picture of tomorrow's "home, sweet home."

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

WHAT'S next, now that Germany's three fronts are crumbling?

The over-all strategic position of the Wehrmacht is hopeless. Yet top men in the War Department caution against expecting an early enemy collapse. A high source analyses the good and bad features of the present military situation this way:

General Montgomery, who commands both the British and the American armies in Normandy, outsmarted Rommel, his old antagonist. He sent Dempsey's English and Canadians to hammer Nazi fortifications near Caen. Allied reconnaissance observed that the Germans were shifting divisions from their left flank to bolster their threatened right. The front in the vicinity of Coutances was weakened.

Whereupon the Yanks, like a winning football team, plunged through the line for a touchdown, one of the greatest feats of the western war to date.

FOOLHARDY: It is too soon to predict the outcome of the current push. The correspondents write a lot about our men debouching into "open country" where vehicles can make swift progress.

The description of the terrain as given by the staffs does not hold this promise. There are still miles of orchards, hedgerows and fairly large cities before us where the foe is well placed.

The buildings in Norman towns are made of heavy stone, excellent for defense whether standing or in ruins. Despite glowing reports, our tanks cannot successfully attack such strongpoints head-on so long as the Jerries can hit back. The Nazi Mark V and Mark VI iron monsters are as powerful as anything that we have. So are the enemy's 88-mm. guns.

Monty has been accused of sluggishness by park-bench strategists because he doesn't romp forward every day at breakneck speed. A high-ranking officer now in New York points out that until we land more tanks and complete repairing facilities, the General must conserve his armor. When he was in Africa his then superior threw away Britain's whole tank force in a single foolhardy grandstand play.

The New York barber who won a contest by shaving a customer in 18 seconds is so hoarse it will be a weak before he can return to work.

Naturally, money is circulating faster now. When a person gets hold of a dollar now he rushes out to spend it before a tax collector can catch him.

"An exclusive vegetable diet will produce a graceful figure," declares a woman columnist. Lady, did you ever take a good look at a hippopotamus?

Our opinion of an American who will not buy war bonds until a motion picture star offers them for sale is not highly complimentary.

Know Where Merritt Street Is?

Lubbock Has Little Heard-Of Streets, Reporter Discovers

By GEM BOB CALLEY
Avalanche Staff Writer

ASK THE next person you meet where Merritt street is located and you probably will get a blank look.

Inquire further as to which sections of the city Edna, Sanders, Wolffarth, and Hill streets are located, a look of complete bewilderment will register on the would-be-informers face and a doubt will cross your mind whether such streets lie in Lubbock. Long-time residents think of the city limits as being comprised of streets numbered from 1 to 34 with no in-betweens, but the city map shows streets the average person hasn't heard about or found.

Ordinance Passed in 1931

Prior to 1920 streets were numbered beginning from the courthouse square as North First, South First and continued numerically, but after this date the north and south were dropped from the number. As new streets were added numbers ran consecutively. This general plan was followed until 1931 when the city commission passed Ordinance 485 for the purpose of officially naming streets and avenues.

Short Streets Named

Lubbock, greatly expanded by this time, had a few short streets known by names instead of numerals such as Ruby, Edna, Frances, Lily Belle, Merthel, Allen, and Elm, all located in the extreme northwest section of town, near Texas Technological college campus. In new additions, streets usually acquired the name of the owner selling the lots and another numeral was omitted. For instance D. N. Arnett, jr., owned the addition where Arnett street is located between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets. W. L. Ellwood was owner of the Elwood addition in Southwest Lubbock and Sanders street is located in the addition that Liff Sanders owned in northeast Lubbock.

Better Inquire First

GREEN ACRES addition in the southwest section of own, south of Tech campus, has no named street but simply a road circling through the area. A comparatively new residential district, it's best to have specific directions before beginning that extended tour in search of a friend's house.

Streets Hard to Find

No easy task is locating Hill street and Wolffarth avenue. West of the George R. Bean school and first street south of Twenty-ninth, Hill street begins at Avenue N and extends west to Avenue P. Wolffarth avenue is divided in two sections which begins at Avenue D between Third and Fourth streets and extends west to Avenue H. It is discontinued in the intervening blocks until Avenue X and College, where it extends another block west.

Named After Presidents

Avenues, north and south thoroughfares, were named letters of the alphabet until it was exhausted in 1930 and they were then named for presidents of the United States, in order. This condition exists in the Elwood addition with the avenues Washington, Adams, Jackson, Jefferson, and Lincoln. Some exceptions are noted in the alphabetically named avenues as Texas instead of I, College instead of Z and Dixie Drive which extends from Nineteenth street to Twenty-first street, located between Avenue P and Avenue Q. East of Avenue A, the avenues are called East A and progress to Avenue Y near the west side of Overton addition.

Named for Cities

SHORT avenues north of Fourth street, as Sherman, Vernon, Waco, Dallas, Temple, Uvalde are so named for Texas towns because city officials sought a system whereby the alphabetical letters they began with would coincide with the avenue west of it, i.e., Waco is west of Avenue W. Residents of Tyler avenue have the distinction of living on the highest elevation of the city which is 3276 feet, the lowest elevation of 3200 feet is Mackenzie Seate park.

Plan is Systematic

Discrepencies in naming streets and avenues occurred because the city was new and residents had their own ideas. However, there is a systematic naming plan whereby new streets and avenues will have relaitve meaning to ones preceeding them, according to Arch King, city engineer. Expanding past College avenue, other avenues will take names of presidents and the streets following Thirty-fourth will be consecutive, King said.

Merritt Street Located

As the city expands this street naming plan will facilitate orientation for newcomers. probably they will still have to be told that Merritt street, extending west one block between Fifth and Sixth streets, begins at Avenue P, just off Pecos avenue, in the northwest part of the city.

In the tropics, Japanese soldiers generally wear rubber-soled canvas- boots with a division between the big toe and the others.

Total German Collapse May Be Nearer Than World Dares Hope

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Political events on the far ends of the Russian-shattered Nazi east front go far to sustain authoritative hints in London that total German collapse in Europe may be closer than a war-weary world yet even dares hope.

SIMPSON

In the north, a Russian breakthrough to the Baltic below Riga, cutting off whole German armies in Latvia and Estonia from their last land escape routes, virtually eliminated doubt that the political overturn in Finland means her impending exit from the war.

Bulgaria Is Shaky

In the south, Turkey abruptly broke relations with Berlin to verge toward full participation in the anti-Nazi war fellowship. The move left Bulgaria dangerously exposed, and the probable next stone to give way in the fast crumbling Nazi European Axis arch, as the war rolls into the Balkans possibly from east and west simultaneously.

There is ample evidence that further implementation of the Russian-Allied military commitments reached at Teheran and closely keyed to Turkish and Bulgarian political developments may be close at hand.

Italian and Russian based Allied heavy bombers have been blasting again at Ploesti in Romania, just behind the Galati gateway to the Danube valley. Powerful and well rested Russian armies have stood idle for many weeks on that Black Sea flank of the east front, awaiting Stalin's signal to go for a kill as comrades northward from the Carpathians to the Baltic have stormed forward to "tear the guts out of the German Army" in Prime Minister Churchill's characteristic phrase for it.

Another Front Probable

That the Teheran strategic conception now sealed by integrated action on far separated fronts east, south and west is still incomplete is axiomatic. It is already straining German ability to find men and equipment to avert crushing and decisive defeats on all three far separated fronts. The addition of a Balkan campaign and even a new incursion from the south would stretch Nazi lines anew, thin them to the breaking point under the mounting weight of multiple Russian-Allied assaults.

18 Others Die With Admiral In Crash

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Eighteen other officers and men were lost in the airplane crash in which Rear Admiral Charles P. Cecil, 50, was killed at an unnamed Pacific base Monday, the Navy announced tonight.

The plane crashed soon after it took off from the base carrying 10 naval officers, three army officers and a six-man Pan-American Airways crew which operated the big transport under contract with the Navy.

All of those aboard are listed as dead or missing.

Cecil's death was announced by the Navy yesterday.

Among the four known to be dead are Cecil, the 11th flag or general officer of the naval service to die in combat areas, and Captain Horatio G. Sickel, 47, who won the Legion of Merit at Fedala and Casablanca at the time of the north African invasion.

The missing, the Navy said, include Lt. Walter S. Gifford, jr., 26-year-old son of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Gifford entered the Navy as an ensign on Dec. 9, 1941.

oslaw in a new push towards Krakow.

The Russian war bulletin did not mention directly either the fiery siege of Warsaw or the progress of the great Baltic entrapment of up to 300,000 Germans in Estonia and northeast Latvia.

German acknowledgements and other sources made it clear, however, that four Russian armies methodically were proceeding with drives on Riga and the slicing up of the two isolated armies, while Polish patriots rose inside Warsaw to aid the Soviet and Polish troops prosecuting the all-out battle along a 20-mile suburban arc east of the capital.

The Germans also made the major admission that the Russians had thrown two strong bridgeheads across the all-important Vistula river, 120 miles southeast of Warsaw, and had driven 17 miles west of the river at one place, but on this the Russians kept silent, as is their custom when new drives are in their early stages.

Another Column Near

Forty-odd miles farther south, General Cherniakhovsky's men were driving along the Augustow canal, only 11 miles from the original East Prussian border. Their twin drives against East Prussia seemed aimed at going to the north and south of the difficult Masurian lake country.

While the German high command rushed to the threatened East Prussian border zone all the reinforcements it could muster, Moscow dispatches said that old junkers breeding-ground of warmakers was the scene of a gigantic and confused civilian exodus. The trains were busy moving up German troops, while fleeting women and children trudged westward on foot, the Soviet account said.

The next few days may see a major breakthrough into East Prussia at one or more of the threatened points, with far-reaching results on the conduct of the war.

On the south Polish front, the Russians announced a breakthrough advance west from Jaroslaw toward Krakow, Poland's second-largest city and new seat of the German government which fled from besieged Warsaw.

Solon Who Criticized FDR's Sons Defeated

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 2. (AP) — Rep. W. P. Lambertson who created a stir by criticizing the war records of President Roosevelt's sons, today conceded his defeat for renomination in the primary yesterday in which the state's only other two Republican congressmen facing contests were victorious.

Lambertson, seeking his ninth term, several times had sharply criticized the war record of President Roosevelt's sons, charging they had been coddled and that he had been told one of them had been "jerked" out of the danger zone on Guadalcanal.

With 418 of the 428 precincts in the first district reporting, State Senator Albert Cole of Holton had an insurmountable lead, 20,350 to 18,090.

LEADERS BUILD HIGHER

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—The stock market resisted mid-summer apathy today to the extent of building up further moderate gains in a fair number of leaders.

The irregular advance fizzled out in some departments at the close and final prices were mixed. Such leadership as the market possessed was supplied by the steels, motors and a few blue chip industrials.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite had a closing gain of .2 of a point at 55.6. Transactions totaled 797,380 shares against 746,410 yesterday. Of the 858 issues traded 412 advanced, 216 declined and 230 were unchanged.

Westinghouse showed a closing advance of 1¼. Among stocks fractionally higher were Bethlehem Steel, Graham-Paige, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union "A", Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Texas Co., and Hayes Manufacturing.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Cotton futures prices lost ground today under commission house liquidation influenced by favorable developments in the war situation. Scale-down buying cushioned the decline, however, which came after the market made slight early progress, and final prices were 40 to 50 cents a bale lower.

The weekly government weather report indicated favorable conditions in most of the belt had been forecast and was a negligible factor.

War In Pacific

Afua was repulsed. Enemy casualties were heavy.

Americans who established a beachhead at Sansapor on the tip of Dutch New Guinea, 700 miles west of Aitape, Sunday, have consolidated their positions.

Patrols at Biak island in the Schouten group off Dutch New Guinea have counted 354 additional enemy dead. At nearby Noemfoor island, 249 more dead Japanese have been found.

Southwest Pacific bombers, continuing their unceasing sea searches between New Guinea and the Philippines, sank a 5,000-ton Japanese freighter southwest of Halmahera island.

Churchill Report

years treaty with Russia will prove to be one of the most lasting and durable factors preserving peace, order and progress in Europe.

Hitler's Booby Decisions

"It may well be that the Russian successes have been somewhat aided by the strategy of Corporal Hitler. Even military idiots find it difficult not to see some faults in some of his actions.

"Here he now finds himself with perhaps ten divisions in north Finland and 20 or 30 cut off in the Baltic states, all of which three or four months ago might have been brought with their materials and weapons to stand between Germany and the Russian advance."

Churchill's speech was preluded by the arrival of more flying bombs from across the channel during the night, but he put this menace in military perspective by mentioning that while the Nazis flung 4,500 tons of robots into London and southern England between June 15 and July 31, Allied airmen in the same period dropped 48,000 tons on Germany—more than ten times as much, and accurately aimed.

Of Russian-Polish relations he remarked that "this is a hopeful moment for Poland."

Churchill confirmed the announcement in Ankara of Turkey's break with Germany, and assured that country of British support in case Germany or Bulgaria attack.

Balkans Satellites Warned

He advised Romania to "make terms with Russia," and he warned that other Balkan satellite of the Axis, Bulgaria, that "the moment of repentance has not passed, but is passing swiftly." He asked "what will be the place of Bulgaria at the judgment seat when the petty and cowardly part she has played in this war is revealed?"

He spoke more gently of Argentina, but he warned that "not only belligerents but neutrals will find their position in the world will not remain entirely unaffected by the part they may have chosen to play in the crisis of war."

The House adjourned until Sept. 26, Foreign Secretary Eden assuring it that there would not be any peace made with Germany in the seven weeks between now and then, although he held out the possibility that Germany might surrender in that period.

Safety authorities say 80 per cent of occupational accidents involve human failure.

Grain . .

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP) — All grain futures turned downward in late trading today, rye breaking more than a cent from the day's best figures and wheat influenced by the bearish supply picture and the possibility of an early peace in Europe.

Finnish Trouble

with Russia.

An authoritative source here who could not be otherwise identified said his information was that the Russians had demanded that Finland first declare her willingness to capitulate, after which Moscow would receive a Finnish delegation to discuss terms. He expressed doubt that the Russians gave their war-weary antagonists any promises regarding boundaries or details of armistice conditions.

The Germans, meanwhile, professed to welcome the appointment of the 77-year-old Mannerheim as president of their co-belligerent.

Press Non-Commital

(Wednesday's broadcasts by the Finnish domestic radio, recorded by the OWI, indicated the Finnish press was none too clear about the import of the change in presidents. One Helsinki newspaper was quoted as saying it still was "impossible to say what political prospects are open for Finland" with Mannerheim at the helm. Another said the change "may have a unifying and clarifying effect on a difficult situation.")

Ryti's resignation in effect cancelled his pact with Germany in which he promised—without consulting his cabinet—that Finland would not make a separate peace. Finns in Stockholm predicted the next move would be the resignation of Premier Efwin Linkomies and his cabinet, leaving Mannerheim free to form a "peace government."

Turk-Nazi Break

in Turkey since the resignation early in June of former Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu, advocate of Turkish caution. Saracoglu now holds both posts.

Decided Some Time Ago

According to one report, Turkey's break with Germany had been decided upon before U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt left Ankara for Washington a month ago.

Saracoglu said the pre-break discussions with Britain included:

First—A British request for an immediate break with Germany backed by a similar request from Washington.

Second—A Turkish request for "economic, financial and material aid to off-set losses from German trade." This was granted.

Saracoglu also announced that the Atlantic Allies had agreed to help Turkey face the "difficulties" which might result from her break with Germany—war with the Axis. He revealed that the Allied ban on shipments of war materials to Turkey, effected after the failure of the February military talks in Ankara, had now been lifted.

Fight Goes On As Burial Services Are Held On Guam

MARINE CEMETERY, Guam, July 23. (U.P.)—(Delayed)—On this Red Clay hill, overlooking the town of Agat and the seas beyond, lie the first dead of our invasion. Twenty four hours ago it was a battlefield.

Burial services have just been concluded for 60 marine officers and men, including two "un" knowns" who will be identified later by their fingerprint records.

A Jap shell exploded within 200 feet of the cemetery while services were being read, but they continued. Cocoanut trees waved in the breeze, and American artillery shells whirred overhead enroute to demolish enemy positions.

Services were conducted by the Catholic chaplain, Lt. John P. Bordenet of Terre Haute, Ind., formerly a missionary for Mary Knoll fathers, and protestant chaplain Lt. Murray O. Johnson of Arlington, Tex.

Under the direction of Capt. H. R. Mrazmus of Grand Rapids, Mich., bulldozers scooped a wide trench in which two rows of 30 Marines each were placed.

A palm front was placed over each body. After the burial, a white wood headstone was placed to mark the position of each Marine.

More than a hundred men working in the area stopped and watched as the burial services began.

Normandy Front

ward in the direction of Paris. They were within a mile of Juvigny Le Tertre, 15 miles east of Avranches, widening their coastal corridor along which rolled columns of armor and supplies toward Brittany and paving the way for new snares for the Germans in Normandy.

The Americans stabbed more miles beyond captured Pontorson in Brittany, toward Brest, an important Atlantic port at the tip of the Breton peninsula. The port was threatened with isolation, and there were strong indications that another American force was near to Rennes. Headquarters remained secretive about the exact position of this force, which if it captured Rennes, would chalk up a 45-mile gain since the taking of Avranches two days ago."

Bitter Caen Fighting

On the eastern hinge of the French front, in the British Caen area, bitter fighting continued against enemy armor in the Tilly-La-Campagne sector, but the wheeling movement of the British in the Caumont sector to the west threatened at last to crush German resistance below Caen.

Stabbing spearheads were splitting into pockets the chopped line of Marshal Erwin Rommel.

The Allied war of movement rapidly was fashioning three huge pockets and one small one for the enemy, and today liquidated another.

Triumphantly heralding Gen. Dempsey's breakthrough, a British staff officer declared:

"Rommel must stand and fight on the high ground between Villers-Bocage and Caen, and I think we shall destroy him there."

Dozen Divisions Routed

Already the German debacle had netted 20,000 prisoners and resulted in destruction or near destruction of a dozen German divisions.

In the American sector a Bradley lancehead striking into the defense-sapped peninsula of Brittany advanced almost unopposed toward the big French port of Brest, at the Brittany tip, reaching a point some miles beyond Pontorson, 13 miles southwest of Avranches. This column was said to be in some strength.

Another column was on the 100-mile march in the direction of the mouth of the Loire river, and was last officially reported only about 30 miles from Rennes, provincial capital almost in the center of the base of the peninsula.

Steel Claws Reach Out

Southeast and east of Avranches, twin spearheads curled iron claws around the right end of what had been the Nazi left flank. One drove up the Selune river to LeBuat, 10 miles from Avranches, and the other smashed up the See river through Brecey to Cuves, 13 miles from Avranches. This force was reported 15 miles from Avranches.

These armored tips, with their flood of motorized infantry behind them, were pointed toward Paris with the Germans in headlong retreat.

The northernmost at Cuves was curling behind a huge 20-mile long, 15-mile deep pocket of Germans and was only 16 miles from meeting the British spearpoint driven to within four miles north of Vire.

In this oblong area the Germans were falling back so fast Bradley's doughboys were unable to locate their front. The Americans drove the enemy completely out of Villedieu and took Percy and Tessy in this pocket, driving the enemy across the Vire at Tessy.

(A Berlin broadcast report of Tuesday that German troops had evacuated Pisa in order to save the Leaning Tower and other monuments from destruction remained totally unconfirmed by the Allies. The German high command communique said Allied artillery had fired upon both Florence and the Pisa tower and that the tower was damaged.)

From 1820 to 1860, more than 1,900,000 Irish immigrants came to the United States.

Bell Group Neutral

The Bell county delegation asked it be recognized but that it intended to stay neutral.

The convention was thrown open to questions, and board members took turns countering both pro and con questions on the issue.

To the question "are we going to let the A & M board do our thinking for us," a loud "No" went up.

Mrs. Sullivan said in her report that last October word came from various sources that changes would be made in the extension service set-up at A & M, which would subbordinate women's work to that of men.

Didn't Know Of Group

Mrs. Sullivan added that when she and others conferred with members of the A & M board of directors, they said they "didn't know there was such an organization (as the demonstration association) and knew nothing of the work it was doing."

Nevertheless, the report continued, some weeks later, Miss Mildred Horton was replaced by Miss Hearn.

Feeling was tense throughout the session which came at the end of the second day of the association's convention here. Visitors were excluded until all delegates had been checked and seated, and then permitted only in the gallery of the Senate chamber.

Retail Sales In New Mexico Show Jump

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 2 (U.P.) — Independent retailers' sales in New Mexico took a sizeable jump in June, 1944, above the level set for June, 1943, it was revealed today by J. C. Capt, director of the census.

Capt said there was a nine per cent gain in independent retailers' sales in June of this year over that of the same period last year, and that at the end of June, the record stood eight per cent ahead of the record for the first half of 1943.

These data were compiled from reports from 137 retail stores in the state. They also show substantial increases in dollar sales for June 1944, compared with June 1943, in records from lumber-building materials dealers, motor vehicle dealers, furniture stores and jewelry stores.

A brass rolling mill reduced its accident frequency rate from 46 to 4.3 in a year by following a realistic safety program.

Mississippi Electors Expected To 'Line Up'

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 2. (AP)—A. B. Friend of Sardis, chairman of the "Mississippi for Democracy" club, said today members of the club "are of the opinion that the electors nominated at the state convention will assert their intention to vote for the Democratic nominees."

Otherwise, said Friend, the club believes "that the state convention will be reconvened and amend its action in June whereby the nominated electors were released from any obligation to support party nominees named at the national Democratic convention."

(The situation is somewhat similar to that in Texas, where electors named by a "regular" Democratic group were not bound to support national nominees unless certain conditions posed by the regulars to the national convention were met. The convention did not meet the conditions.)

Friend said that only when it was apparent that the electors would not declare themselves or the convention would not convene to make the amendment would "the proper authorities of public life in Mississippi" take action to "assure all Democrats a chance to vote for electors pledged for Roosevelt and Truman."

Severe Damage By Robots Disclosed

LONDON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed today that robot bombs had killed 4,735 persons in seven weeks and offered Britain no guarantee that the problem would be solved speedily.

But he promised the Nazis that as a result of the attacks "the severity of the punishment by our fighting men will be appreciably increased."

Besides the number killed, he gave these details on the destruction caused by the bombs in seven weeks June 15 to July 31) of constant bombardment:

14,000 seriously injured and many more slightly injured.

17,000 houses totally destroyed and 800,000 damaged, many, however, only to the extent of broken windows.

1,000,000 people not in essential work, including 225,000 mothers with children, assisted in evacuating London.

In seven weeks, 5,340 robots were launched against England, he said. The casualty figures reported for the first three weeks of the attacks were 2,752 killed and 8,000 injured, indicating that in the past four weeks, 1,983 were killed and 6,000 injured.

Cubans Duel Unhurt Over Price Of Sugar

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 2 (AP) — Eugenio De Sosa, jr., director of the newspaper Diario De La Marina, and Dr. Guillermo Belt, confidant of president-elect Grau San Martin, engaged today in a bloodless duel with pistols.

De Sosa, who issued the challenge, made no attempt to shoot, holding his pistol at his side until Dr. Belt fired and missed.

They were reconciled.

The duel grew out of a controversy over the prospective price of Cuban sugar to be sold to the United States in 1945.

Himmler Exhorts Men To Greater Efforts

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Heinrich Himmler as commander-in-chief of the German home army has demanded that every officer and man renounce "all egotism and that damned spirit of fatigue," Berlin broadcasts said today.

The command was given in an order of the day in which Himmler openly acknowledged Germany's manpower shortage by demanding that "each officer and man who can be spared at home be sent to the front."

State Hospital Head At Abilene Resigns

Dr. Bruce Allison, senior psychiatrist at the Wichita Falls state hospital has been appointed superintendent of the Abilene institution.

Tojo's Court Rank Reported Elevated

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP) — A Tokyo broadcast said today that Emperor Hirohito had elevated the court rank of ex-premier General Hideki Tojo from senior third grade to junior second grade.

The emperor "bestowed the honor in recognition of the former premier's past distinguished services," said the broadcast.

Dixon Finds Boss' Instructions Fail To Cover Battle Situation

By KENNETH DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, July 21. (Delayed)—An open letter to the boss:

Dear boss—

Distinctly do I remember the day I left New York. You called me into your office and said among other things that if I expected to be a foreign correspondent I certainly should learn a foreign language.

DIXON

All I can say at this point is: Boss, you didn't know the half of it.

In North Africa they spoke French, so I soon was slinging bonjours, bonsoirs and merci beaucoups around like nothing. Here and there I even picked up a few words in elementary Arabic. It seemed like a cinch.

Then He Hits Italy

Then came Italy. Regretfully I abandoned the French lessons and began in Naples to learn Italian. Now you may think all Italian is spoken the same, but it isn't. A Roman has as much trouble understanding a Neapolitan as a Texan does a boy from Brooklyn.

But, bit by bit, the buoin giornos, buona seras and the gratsis and the pregos began to roll out more smoothly and I was just beginning to capish Italiano when I had to go to Sardinia.

Well, in Sardinia they speak Sard, which is a language whose mother is Italian, but whose father is some roving Latin no one has ever been able to locate.

Then came Corsica, which speaks its own version of French, and then back to the mainland, where the Polish were in action against the Germans. Boss, did you ever try to learn Polish in the midst of an artillery barrage? Also the French forces were in the line by that time, which added a touch of French, Arabic, Morroccan and whatnot to the confusion.

Moves In Desperation

In desperation, I dropped off to the east side—Bari and Foggia—and ran smack into a barrage of the Balkan tongue. The Partisan situation was hot and the Yugoslav, Croatian and Serbian phrases were flying like campaign promises in October.

On top of everything else, throughout the campaign the need to talk to prisoners brought a smattering of German into the vocabulary.

That brings us up to today. Boss, I had to find the camp of the Brazilians who recently arrived. I started out in a command car driven by a Neapolitan who spoke no English (and by now my 16 Italian words have a marked roman accent).

M. P.'s Not Wised Up

It took only a minute to discover the first military policeman didn't know the Brazilian bivouac from Brooklyn. But it required 15 minutes for the second MP, an Italian, to explain he didn't know either. The third was French and spoke neither English nor Italian, but after half an hour he got the idea and showed us which way to go. He was wrong.

A British Tommy got us started in the general direction. However, it required only about three minutes for us to reach a fork in the road and get lost again and then we saw the three Brazilian soldiers and thought our troubles were over.

But Brazilians, as you know, speak Portuguese, which was all that was lacking in this theater up until now. These three spoke no English and no Italian, so I gave them words combing three of the languages listed previously, with a touch of border-town Mexican I picked up years ago:

"Com esta, signores' pouvezvous bien me dove El Campo De Brazil?"

They didn't get that, but they sure were politely flushed for 15 minutes.

When a sergeant from the Bronx drove up and came over to help he tried German, Lithuanian and French without success. But finally he found common ground in pure Spanish and got the right directions for us.

I aimed to get his name and street address, but things were so confused by then that he drove away grinning while I was still trying to think of what language to thank him in.

See what I mean, boss ?

News Briefs

District headquarters for WAC recruiting is now in the postoffice building in Lubbock, effective Aug. 1. In charge of the office will be Lt. Jessie W. Gardner, former commanding officer of the headquarters when it was located here and before it was moved to Camp Barkeley.

Lt. (j.g.) Kinston M. Robertson is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irl Robertson of Lorenzo. A 1941 graduate of Texas Tech, Lt. Robertson is a Navy patrol plane pilot and had served eight months in the South American area before going to the Pacific where he has been the past nine months. He is to report to Jacksonville, Fla., for reassignment as soon as he completes his leave here.

E-2 and R-2 non-highway gasoline ration coupons are now being issued to farmers and other non-highway users according to the Lubbock district Office of Price administration. E-1 and R-1 coupons now in circulation are still valid. Both E-2's and R-2's bear the notation "non-highway" and are valid only for bulk purchases and neither may be exchanged for gasoline delivered into the fuel tank of a truck or automobile.

Names of four Texas servicemen were listed among the 1,219 soldiers held prisoners by Germany and Romania in an announcement made Wednesday by the War department. They are S/Sgt. Oren D. Albright, son of Mrs. Bera B. Albright of Odessa; Sgt. Stratton W. Breesley, son of Mrs. Hazel E. Breesley of San Angelo; T/Sgt. Earl F. McCain, son of Mrs. Floyd McCain of Littlefield; and T/Sgt. Charles R. Mueller, husband of Mrs. Alice L. Mueller of Wichita Falls.

Candidates Don't Spend Very Much

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (U.P.) — Texas candidates fell far below the permitted expenditure in races in the state Democratic primary campaign, expense accounts submitted to Secretary of State Sidney Latham showed today.

Gov. Coke R. Stevenson received his overwhelming vote for renomination with a total campaign cost of $1,948. Contributions to his campaign totaled $1,545, largest being $250 from the San Antonio Stevenson club.

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, runner-up in the race for governor, spent $3,517.68 and received $1,685, the report filed by her campaign Manager Marian Storm revealed.

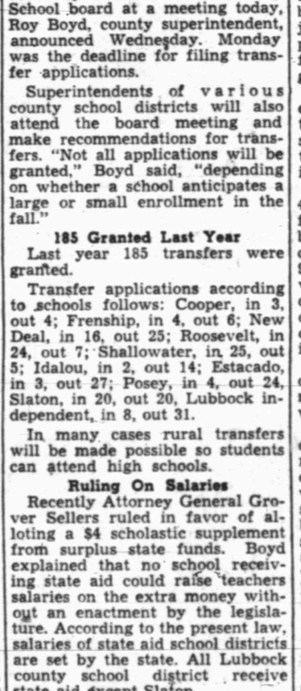

Gene S. Porter, making his second unsuccessful race for governor, spent $2,169. He said he had no contributors.

Others Spend But Little

In the attorney general's race, Atty. Gen. Grover Sellers reported spending $1,815.48 and had $500 in contributions. Sen. Jesse Martin spent $1,166.95, Fred Erisman, $1,001.42. Neither had contributors.

Associate Justice Richard Critz of the Supreme court spent $1,396.70 in his race for renomination, and Gordon Simpson of Tyler, who goes into a run-off with Critz, had total expenditures on his behalf by T. Spruiell of Tyler, a law partner, of $400. There was $100 contributed to Critz' campaign fund, and $500 to that of Simpson, who was overseas and made no personal campaign.

Statute permits spending $8,000 in the first Democratic primary and $2,000 additional in a run-off primary.

JAPS 'BUY' BONDS—Smartypants Japs little thought they'd be helping sale of U. S. War Bonds when they printed up "invasion" money, to be used when they captured Australia. Cpl. William R. Whitworth of Cleveland, U. S. Army Amphibious Engineer, sent his wife some of the shilling and half-shilling notes as souvenirs, and she donated them to the Cleveland Variety Club's bond auction. Above, she holds the Jap money in one hand, in the other, the $1000 in War Bonds which it brought at the sale.

Schools Take Up Transfers Today

Approximately 272 scholastic transfer applications will be passed on by members of the County School board at a meeting today, Roy Boyd, county superintendent, announced Wednesday. Monday was the deadline for filing transfer applications.

Superintendents of various county school districts will also attend the board meeting and make recommendations for transfers. "Not all applications will be granted," Boyd said, "depending on whether a school anticipates a large or small enrollment in the fall."

185 Granted Last Year

Last year 185 transfers were granted.

Transfer applications according to schools follows: Cooper, in 3, out 4; Frenship, in 4, out 6; New Deal, in 16, out 25; Roosevelt, in 24, out 7; Shallowater, in 25, out 5; Idalou, in 2, out 14; Estacado, in 3, out 27; Posey, in 4, out 24, Slaton, in 20, out 20, Lubbock independent, in 8, out 31.

In many cases rural transfers will be made possible so students can attend high schools.

Ruling On Salaries

Recently Attorney General Grover Sellers ruled in favor of alloting a $4 scholastic supplement from surplus state funds. Boyd explained that no school receiving state aid could raise teachers salaries on the extra money without an enactment by the legislature. According to the present law, salaries of state aid school districts are set by the state. All Lubbock county school district receive state aid except Slaton.

An anthropologist says people who live in the mountains have unusually strong hearts. Judging by the bedlam raised over the radio by hill billies, they also have unusually strong lungs, which is a pity.

Fourth Termers Claim Majority

HOUSTON, Aug. 2 (AP) — The Houston Chronicle in a special article said today that delegates favorable to Roosevelt and Truman will have a substantial majority of votes in the September 12 Democratic state convention at Dallas.

Based on returns from 172 of the state's 254 counties, with nearly all the populous counties listed, the vote according to the Chronicle's survey will be as follows:

For Roosevelt and Truman, 653.

Against Roosevelt, or for indorsing the action of the state's May convention, at which electors were conditionally bound to support the party nominees, 380.

Uninstructed, 143.

Ninety-five counties were definitely pro-Roosevelt, 38 against and 39 uninstructed, the Chronicle said.

No Conventions Held

Of the counties not listed, some 25 failed to hold conventions, said the Chronicle. Reports were not available from the remainder, mostly smaller counties including many in West Texas.

In the Chronicle's tabulation, Dallas county, where anti-Roosevelt delegates left the convention, is counted for Roosevelt; El Paso, Harrison and Tarrant counties, where the pro-Roosevelt forces walked out, are put in the anti-Roosevelt column.

"This listing of counties which will have rival delegations at Dallas is based on the theory that the bolting delegations will be at a disadvantage when their claims are heard by the credentials committee of the state gathering," the Chonicle explained.

Exact Votes Uncertain

"While the exact number of votes for and against Roosevelt represented in the uninstructed delegations has not been learned and probably cannot be in advance of the convention, it is believed that the majority, perhaps as much as two-thirds, will go Roosevelt," the newspaper said.

In arriving at the number of votes to be given each county, the Chronicle followed the instructions given in article 3141, Vernon's revised civil statutes. Under this article, the newspaper said, the vote given to each county shall be one for every 500 votes, or major fraction thereof, cast in the last primary preceding the convention, for the primary's nominee for governor.

In this case, the Chronicle stated, the basis is the vote given by the county to Governor Stevenson in the July primary, since there will be no vote for governor in the August primary.

For example, Harris county cast 45,711 votes for Stevenson in the first primary. Dividing this figure by 500, the result is 91.42. The county therefore will be allowed 91 or 92 votes, depending on whether the official figures, as canvassed by the state executive committee, are the same as the county official figures, the Chronicle said.

Counties which cast only a minor fraction of 500 for the governor, that is, fewer than 250 votes, will have one convention vote.

"It is not possible," the Chronicle said, "to predict the actual number of votes which will be cast for or against measures advocated by the Roosevelt leaders, since some of the counties are not bound by the unit rule and may split their votes. It is impossible, also, to predict how many counties will have representatives at Dallas, even though county conventions were held.

"One of the hot fights of the convention may develop on the question of allowing proxy votes from counties not fully represented."

Retirement Of Four Fishers Announced

DETROIT, Aug. 2. (U.P.) — General Motors corporation today announced the retirement of the four Fisher brothers who had been associated with the $2,000,000,000 motor company for more than 25 years.

The brothers who have retired "from active service" include William A., Lawrence P., Edward F., and Alfred J. Fisher, who with Charles P., and the late Fred J. Fisher, joined the corporation in 1919 when General Motors purchased controlling interest in the Fisher Body corporation.

In announcing "with great regreat" the retirement of the brothers, Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, jr., added that Lawrence P., and Edward F. Fisher "will continue to serve as members of our board of directors and that in view of the responsibilities they have been carrying, Edward F., and Alfred J. Fisher will continue to serve with our Fisher Body division so long as their services are needed with relation to the war effort."

In conjunction with Sloan's announcement, C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, announced that Thomas P. Archer had been appointed general manager of the Fisher Body division to succeed Edward F. Fisher, effective immediately. Archer, a vice president of General Motors corp., formerly was in charge of the manufacturing staff and formerly acted as assistant general manager of Fisher Body divison. He will be succeeded in charge of manufacturing activities by W. F. Armstrong, who formerly served as assistant to Archer.
