IRVIN RESIGNS LOCAL SCHOOL

PERRYTON SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT FOR 12 YEARS ACCEPTS LUBBOCK SUPERINTENDENCY

W. B. Irvin, for the past 12 years superintendent of the Perryton schools, resigned at a special meeting of the board Wednesday afternoon to accept the position as superintendent of the Lubbock schools. Mr. Irvin's resignation becomes effective on July 1 and he will assume his duties at Lubbock on the same date.

The board of trustees of the Perryton schools accepted Mr. Irvin's resignation with reluctance, knowing full well that they were losing a valuable school man, a man that has played a very prominent part in the building of the local school into one of the leaders in the entire state, but they would not stand in the way of such a promotion.

It is indeed a well deserved promotion that has come to W. B. Irvin. To step from the head of the schools in a small city of 3,000 to the superintendency of one of the largest schools in West Texas is a big jump and it well shows the high reputation that Irvin has made for himself as a school man and educator.

W. B. Irvin goes to Lubbock with the best wishes of hundreds of friends in every walk of life in this community. He will be missed here in Perryton for his activities were not limited to school affairs. He was an ardent church worker, a past president of the Lions Club, and prominent in American Legion, Chamber of Commerce and other civic work.

GIRL SCOUTS CONDUCTING SWIM TICKET SALE

Members of the Perryton Girl Scout Troop, under the direction of their leader, Mrs. J. Malvin Jackson, are conducting a city-wide sales campaign of season tickets for the municipal swimming pool. The campaign opened Monday and season tickets for both adults and children are being offered. People of this community, and especially the younger generation are awaiting with anticipated pleasure the opening of the new pool.

MONUMENT AT BURIED CITY

REPRESENTATIVE BOYER SAYS THAT BURIED CITY MONUMENT WILL BE COMPLETED SOON

Jack R. Allen, chairman of the Ochiltree County Centennial, states that he has been advised by Representative Max W. Boyer that the contractor for the Texas Centennial historical markers will be in Ochiltree county soon to erect the monument at the "Buried City."

This famous historical place is located on the Sam Handly ranch 18 miles southeast of Perryton. A considerable area has been excavated and many articles of value unearthed. No definite reconstruction of the history of Ochiltree county's "Buried City" has ever been made. The Handly Ranch adjoins the Ochiltree State Park on the west and it is hoped that at some time the "Buried City" will be included in the Park area.

Highway and Rail Travel in Many Parts of Southwest At a Standstill as the Raging Torrents Sweeps Out Bridges and Roads

WILL BENEFIT SOME WHEAT FIELDS

Rain has fallen over every part of the drouth-stricken Southwest during the past week and the greater part of the area reports a much heavier downpour than in the immediate vicinity. On May 28, the precipitation in Perryton was .07; May 29, .39; and on Tuesday night, 1.67 inches fell slowly, allowing almost every drop to soak into the ground. This brings the moisture for the past 32 days, since May 1, to a total of 4.20 inches.

On Tuesday night the rainfall in this area was as follows: Spearman, .85; Booker, .75; Follett and Darrouzett, .50; heavy rain over all of Beaver county; Cliff McGarraugh reports good rain in south part of Ochiltree county; 2 inch rain in Murphy and Cartwright neighborhoods to the southeast of Perryton, and a 3 inch rain at Dalhart.

Heavy rains in New Mexico and the Western Oklahoma Panhandle swept out rail and highway bridges to the northwest and halted traffic. The moisture of the past few days will be of much benefit to the wheat fields that have not been entirely burned up and will result in a considerable increase in the expected yield in this territory.

BEAVER BEATS PERRYTON HERE

THE BEAVER NINE WINS OVER PERRYTON IN OPENING GAME PLAYED HERE LAST SUNDAY

In the opening game of the Perryton Ball club played on the local field, Sunday, they were defeated 9-3 by Beaver.

The Beaver team has evidently been putting more in their workouts than before as they showed a marked improvement in their tactics.

Wink, who was pitching for Beaver, held Perryton so well that it began to look like they would be scoreless, but they broke out in the eighth inning and made three runs.

In the fourth inning Perryton lost cotrol and made five or six errors resulting in most of Beavers score. Perryton was on the defensive almost from the start although Tom Riley pitched a good game.

The Perryton club is showing signs of improvement and are working out every afternoon at the ball field. About twelve members work out regularly, but manager Sam Hergert states that more material could be used and anyone interested is welcome to join.

The next game is scheduled with Booker next Sunday.

Poppy Sale Success

American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Sale Proceeds to be Used In Relief and Welfare

Approximately one thousand memorial poppies, replicas of the poppies which grew on the battle fields of France and Belgium during the World War, were sold in Perryton last Saturday by the American Legion Auxiliary. According to Mrs. J. W. Herrell, poppy chairman, the total amount received for these was $91.60. The total proceeds, amounting to over sixty dollars, will be used in the welfare work of the Legion and Auxiliary among disabled veterans and children.

Selling poppies and aiding Mrs. Herrell and her committee were members of the Girl Scouts, under the direction of Mrs. J. Malvin Jackson. In appreciation of the Girl Scouts' assistance the American Legion Auxiliary gave $5.00 to the Girl Scout fund. The scout troop selling the most poppies was also awarded $1.00 by Mrs. Tom Denman, president of the Auxiliary.

Officers and members of the American Legion Auxiliary express their gratitude to the people of this community for their support in buying and wearing the poppy, thus honoring the war dead and aiding the war's living victims.

The swimming pool measures 60 by 120 feet and is reported to be the largest in the Panhandle. A wading pool is provided for youngsters who do not swim.

Panhandle-Plains Legion Association Met Here Saturday

The attendance at the convention of the Panhandle-Plains Association of American Legion Posts and Auxiliary Units in Perryton last Saturday was disappointing due to the rains that fell over the entire Southwest Friday night and the greater part of the day Saturday. But the rain was very welcome and it did not dampen the ardor and enthusiasm of those that came through the mud and water to this meeting.

The entire program as scheduled was carried out with the exception of the morning meeting of the Auxiliary and the sightseeing trip to the Perryton CCC camp. H. B. Ackerman, Liberal, commander of the Association, presided at the business session of the Legion; and Mrs. Ralph Weir, vice president of the Auxiliary division of the Association, presided at the business meetings of the Auxiliary.

Enter the Stratosphere Flight, Aviation's Newest, 'Highest' Achievment

Modern wonder is this huge stratosphere plane, the type which is now under construction at Seattle by Boeing. Six of these planes have been ordered by TWA.

AVIATION is going up—and up and up!

Consider that all-weather stratosphere flight you will be able to make one of these days when the industry puts into service the giant "upper level" liners now under construction.

Most fascinating chapter of modern aviation will be their launching. Four-engined, much larger than any commercial land plane now in service on the country's airways, these new Boeing stratosphere ships, being bulit in Seattle, will introduce a new era of air travel in America.

Spacious accommodations for 32 passengers, daytime, and 26 pessengers at night; 18 of them in upper and lower berths and eight others in sleeper chairs.

Travel in a specially sealed cabin, supplied with air by two mechanical super-chargers which produce conditions comparable to those at present-day flight levels of 8000 to 12,000 feet.

Speeds of 250 miles per hour.

Altitudes up to 35,000 feet, free of all meteorological disturbances, the stronger winds and other hindrances to flying.

Operation of a 42,000-pound ship by a crew of four, the ship carrying 3700 pounds of airmail and air express in addition to its passenger load, more than the entire payload of many transport planes now in operation.

PROGRESS you say. Yes, but this is not all of the story. The first of these planes, say their builders, will be merely the forerunners of the really giant planes which will streak across the heavens in a very few years, perhaps months, hence. This is so because the airplane is no longer very definitely limited by its power output. The limits today are determined by airport size and the problems of handling a plane while on the ground.

Take these new Boeings, for example. Each will be powered with four motors capable of turning out 1220 horsepower at the takeoff. This is a new achievement in plane manipulation on the ground. Moreover, it is expected by the close of 1937 that these engine units will be stepped up to 1800 horsepower.

Fundamentally, of course, the real development in stratosphere flying is the provision for high altitude travel. All compartments within these planes will be completely sealed through the use of pressure-tight skin, reinforced windows and pressure doors—all built for a designed pressure of six pounds to the square inch and an operating pressure of 2½ pounds to the square inch differential between outside air and inside air.

TWO newly developed mechanical superchargers, each operating on only a fraction of the horsepower of one engine, will draw the air through intake valves far out along the leading edge of the wings, building up its pressure for introduction into the cabin. After the air is pumped through the wings, it will be uniformly distributed through ducts into the cabin where exhaust valves will be located.

Thus, flying at an altitude of 20,000 feet, which is on a level with the summit of Mount McKinley, highest peak in North America, you would have within your plane, conditions comparable to those at present flight levels.

You will fly, moreover, above storm, in smoother air and with greater speed. New York to San Francisco, dawn to dusk, will be routine. Europe and back for a week-end will be entirely possible. Aviation is not only going up; it's going places faster.

The Jinx Trailed Him Two Years, but Joe Cronin Is Coming Back!

BY IRVING DIX

AT long last, Tom Yawkey realizes that he got his money's worth when he paid something like $250,000 in the currency of the realm for Joseph Edward Cronin. Joe's heart is worth that much.

Pursued for more than two years by an injury and illness jinx which wounded him and his team and his family, Joe nevertheless is putting on a grand don't-give-up-the-ship-boys comeback this season.

Despite the fact that the jinx is still working, Joe is pounding the ball at a savage clip and fielding his shortstop position as of old, when he was considered the best short-fielder in the major league since the days of Honus Wagner.

Joe says his improved work this year is due to the mending of his thumb and wrist. The thumb on his throwing hand was broken early last season when Pinky Higgins, then with the Athletics but now with the Red Sox, collided with him on a double-play pivot at second base.

The wrist was broken in the fall of 1934 when Joe, then shortstop-manager of the Washington Nationals, collided with Wesley Ferrell of Boston.

"DID you ever try to bat with a broken wrist or with a thumb that was swollen twice its size?" says Joe. "Well, I did, and I was a fool. Both are all healed now and that's why I'm able to meet the ball squarely.

"I should never have tried to play last year. I should have done what Hank Greenberg did and retired for the rest of the year—or, at least, for two months. I might have injured myself for life."

Unbeatable Joe Cronin swings into action.

It looked for a while this like Joe might be laid low by injury. He was hit in the by a ball thrown by Pinky gins during batting practice had to remain idle for a of days.

But you can't keep a good down. Joe was up and again, banging the ball far and handsome. It's getting he's becoming used to adv and wouldn't know what without it.

You see, ever since he Washington to the 1933 can League championship first year as manager, Joe been hounded by misfortune.

CHRONOLOGICALLY, here the jolts he has from the jinx since 1933:

1934—His pennant-win club was riddled by 27 di injuries, including broken suffered by Firstbaseman and Outfielder John Stone;

1934—Broke his own wrist in season;

1935—High-priced Red stars failed to produce under as injuries struck them;

1935—Broke his thumb;

1936—Shortstop McNair died in childbirth; Second man Doerr beaned by Reserve Infielder Melillo home by serious illness of Firstbaseman Jimmy Foxx low by sinus infection; Pi Lefty Grove out with bad tack of grippe; and then death of Joe's twins and wife's serious illness.

A Well Dressed Bed

A Few Slats Added To The Frame Makes a Bed More Attractive And Comfortable To Use

Beryl Dodson, the bedroom demonstrator of the Busy Bee club, states that she had no idea the difference of the addition of a few slats on a bed would make. Beryl has supplied enough slats to go under each row of coils of her springs. She says the slats make the bed more attractive and after sleeping on it for one night she states that it is more comfortable because the body is better supported.

Beryl has dressed her bed up by painting it a medium brown to harmonize with the other colors of the room, and is keeping the dust out of the springs with a spring cover made from overalls. She is protecting the mattress with a cover made from unbleached sheeting, and a protector made by covering an old quilt with unbleached sheeting and then tacking. Her sheets are three yards long and the tufted spread is pink with white tufts.

Beryl is a firm believer of using light weight covering; because she feels more rested after a night under light cover than she does after a night under heavy cover.

Supplying Own Needs

Thirty-Five Varieties of Garden Vegetables are Planted To Supply Family Needs

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Austin of the Blodgett Community are planning to supply their families' nutritional needs at home this year. So far, over thirty-five varieties of vegetables have been planted in the 150 by 150 feet garden. 150 feet of this garden is tiled and the water is supplied by the large storage tank which Mr. Austin erected for that purpose a few weks ago.

For a week or two the Austins have had fresh vegetables from their garden. Some of the early vegetables are english peas, onions, lettuce, radishes and asparagus. Some of the other vegetables that they are experimenting with are: egg plant, rhubarb, garden huckleberries, horse-radish, brussels-sprouts and ground cherries.

Before the season is over the Austins plan to have fifty different varieties of vegetables in their pantry to supply the family during the non-productive months.

For a permanent windbreak, Mr. Austin is planting current hedges around the garden. This year, tin and burlap sacks are being used and in addition several rows of corn. The corn serves as a wind break and can also be eaten when mature.

Drill Irrigation Well

Liberal Business Men Experiment By Drilling a Deep Well For Irrigation Purposes

Liberal launched a deep well irrigation project May 20. The well is on the north edge of Liberal and is to be 350 feet deep.

The well is gravel treated and designed to produce from 500 to 750 gallons per minute. The project will cost in the neighborhood of $5,500 when completed.

If the project works, farmers throughout that section can make arrangements for wells to irrigate from 10 to 40 acres on their farms to insure a feed crop around which to build a hog and dairy herd and a flock of chickens. It is a step toward stabilizing agriculture.

The well is to be drilled by the Garden City Well Works Company of Garden City, Kansas.

Uncle Jim Says

"Strip cropping, contour planting, check dams, and terraces may sound 'hifalutin' to some folks, but they keep soil and water where it belongs."

Legend: Tests of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that strip cropping, contour planting, terracing, and other conservation practices cut the losses of soil and water from 50 per cent to practically nothing. Texas farmers who have protected some 12 million acres of land with the help of county agricultural agents get the same results.

In Lipscomb county, W. P. Freeman began terracing his farm seven years ago, and now has terraces on 475 acres of tillable land and contour furrows on 200 acres of pasture land. Freeman has reported that the terraced land has averaged eight bushels of wheat more per acre than unterraced land in the seven year period.

In 1936, Alford Browning of Borden county had his county agricultural agent run contour lines on part of his farm. After making two crops on the contoured acreage, he was so well satisfied with the increased moisture available for his crops that he has terraced his entire form of 395 acres.

The 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program helps farmers protect their farms against loss of soil and water by making payments for construction of terraces.

James Louis, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCarty, Amarillo is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Autry while his parents are making a trip to Washington. He will enter the Ellzey Boys' Camp the last of the week.

NO CROP ABANDONED LAND IN THE COUNTY

The use to which the land in Ochiltree county, Texas, is put has been tabulated by the Land Use Planning Division of the Resettlement Administration in Region Twelve. The figures for this tabulation were compiled by field crews which spent several months in their field gathering the data used. The results of the study of the data shows that out of a total of 581,521 acres of land in the county, 580,527 acres or 99.8 per cent is within operating units or used by farmers. Only .2 per cent or 994 acres of the land is not in operating units.

Of the land in use by the farmer, 277,531 acres or 47.7 per cent is in crops; 196,613 acres or 33.8 per cent is in pasture; 104,557 acres or 18 per cent is fallowed; and 1,631 acres or .3 per cent is idle. There are 195 acres used other than mentioned.

Of the land outside the operating units, 994 acres or .2 per cent is in pasture, and there is no crop abandoned land in the county.

Ralph Headlee went to Dalhart Saturday, returning Monday. He was accompanied home by Mrs. Headlee who had been visiting her parents for the past week.

The headers are trouble-free and carefully shielded. The threshing and cleaning machinery get more of the grain from the straw and put more of it into the grain tank. There are 10-foot, 12-foot, 16-foot and 20-foot cut machines and if you want big capacity just give any one of them a trial! There are so many reasons why an Oliver Combine is "O. Home Towns To Be Proud Of

The Manager Plan is Remaking Local Government

By Howard P. Jones and Walter J. Millard of the National Municipal League

The Manager Himself

A city manager by the orderliness of his procedure makes it easy for the council and therefore the citizens, to understand the city government and its operations and makes no mystery of what he does. A universal feature of manager cities is a yearly report which explains, usually by "bar" and "pie" diagrams, the activities and spending in each department.

A city manager provides the council with facts for determining the policy and encourages the council to decide the policy positively instead of passively accepting his recommendations. A city manager sees the press representatives frequently and informs them fully, but he resists being incessantly quoted or pictured. A city manager never speaks in election campaigns, never supports candidates, nor does he identify himself with any party.

A city manager is watchful to prevent encroachment by the council on his authority over departmental personnel or of any interference with his right to discipline or discharge employees.

A city manager's most difficult task is to keep his organization "lined up" so that employees will always observe proper channels in reporting and seeking instructions. While most manager charters permit the council members to deal directly with department heads in seeking information, for the maintenance of proper organization morale, a manager requires that this direct dealing be avoided whenever possible. Committees of council should secure information from the manager's office direct rather than from department officials.

A city manager prepares the annual budget, recommends a long-term program of improvements, controls expenditures, patrols every operating unit and every contract job. He knows every employee and what they are doing, develops more morale and keeps abreast of the advancing art of municipal administration in other cities.

The city managers have an organization which meets yearly, publishes a monthly magazine "Public Management," and a year book. They have adoped a code of ethics as follows:

Code of Ethics

In order that city managers might maintain a high standard of professional conduct, the following code of ethics was adopted by the International City Managers' Association on September 25, 1924:

1. The position of city manager is an important position and an honorable position, and should not be accepted unless the individual believes that he can serve the community to its advantage.

2. No man should accept a position as city manager unless he believes in the council-manager plan of government.

3. In personal conduct a city manager should be exemplary, and he should display the same obedience to law that he should inculcate in others.

4. Personal aggrandizement and personal profit secured by confidential information or by misuse of public time is dishonest.

5. Loyalty to his employment recognizes that it is the council, the elected representatives of the people, which primarily determines the municipal policies and is entitled to the credit for their fulfillment.

6. Although he is a hired employee of the council he is hired for a purpose—to exercise his own judgement as an executive in accomplishing the policies formulated by the council; to attain success in his employment he must decline to submit to dictation in matters for which the responsibility is solely his, and responsibility demands power, and a city manager who becomes impotent to inspire support should resign.

8. The city manager is the administrator for all the people, and in performing his duty he should serve without discrimination.

9. To serve the public well, a city manager should strive to keep the community informed of the plans and purposes of the administration, remembering that healthy publicity and criticism are aids to the success of any democracy.

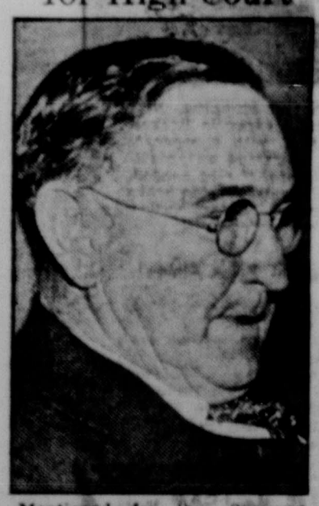

10. A city manager should deal frankly with the council as a unit and not secretly with its individual members, and similarly should foster a spirit of cooperation between all employees of the city's organization.

11. No city manager should take an active part in politics.

12. A city manager will be known by his works, many of which may outlast him and, regardless of personal popularity or unpopularity, he should not curry favor or temporize but should in a farsighted way aim to benefit the community of today and posterity.

The success of the council-manager plan in Cincinnati is the subject of the next article of this series.

Several outstanding names of the New York stage have joined hands to bring to the screen the picturization of last season's best-seller by William Joyce Cowen, "They Gave Him a Gun", which is showing at the Ellis Theatre Sunday and Monday June 6 and 7.

Spencer Tracy is the Fred Willis of the Cowen story, circus barker and owner who enlists as a buck private; Franchot Tone is the small town bookkeeper, and Gladys George is the Red Cross nurse with whom both fall in love.

The ex-circus barker is reported missing and she marries the weakling, out of pity for his helplessness. But the other man escapes from an enemy prison camp and they meet again in th States after the Armistice.

Now an expert with firearms, the clerk has become a crook. The circus man tries to save him from himself, still loving the girl, but a police bullet eventually proves to be the only cure.

"GYP" ADVERTISING

A few weeks ago when it appeared that Perryton community was due for a good wheat yield, the "gyp" advertising grafters started their raid on the business men of this city. Two school curtains were "worked" in succession and the business men of Perryton paid the bill, which was several times more than the scenery was actually worth. For many years the Perryton Chamber of Commerce had a committee whose duty it was to pass on all advertising propositions and donation solicitations by out-of-town people. During the years that this committee functioned there were few such schemes endorsed by the committee. As to the school curtain and scenery, the committee found that such equipment could be purchased, without any advertising, for only a small percentage of that collected by the out-of-town painter.

Business men and members of the Chamber of Commerce displayed cards in their offices and places of business stating that they would not subscribe to any such proposition unless same had the written endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce. From the annual reports of this committee, it shows that the "advertising" committee saved the business men of Perryton many more dollars each year by stopping such schemes than was paid in for the entire expense of operating the Chamber of Commerce. Such a committee is needed now.

A "gyp" advertising scheme promoted by an out-of-town party has just been released at the expense of 15 Perryton business houses. This "gyp" scheme consists of a piece of cheap uncoated cardboard, carrying advertisements on each side, size 9¼ by 11 inches, with the four corners chopped off and going under the name of a "fan". We have been informed by a number of parties that they were informed by the solicitor that the so-called fan was to be printed in Perryton. It was not printed in Perryton. We do not know where it was printed. The Herald quoted a price on the job, but at the time we quoted the price to the lady solicitor, we did everything we could to discourage her selling the "gyp" scheme and told her in no uncertain words just what we thought of such propositions. We endeavor to operate a legitimate advertising medium and commercial printing plant and in our years of business here in Perryton, have succeeded in killing many such schemes even though it would have meant a little business for us.

PERRYTON HAS FORGOTTEN!

As a member of the American Legion, we want to thank those few citizens of the Perryton community who joined with the American Legion and Auxiliary in greeting and hearing National Commander Harry W. Colmery in Perryton Saturday night. But for the hundreds who were not there, our only conclusion is that we have a citizenship that does not appreciate this organization. Evidently they have forgotten the days of '17 and '18 and the years since that the Perryton Legion and Auxiliary has carried on a worthwhile community service program.

At great expense and pulling of many wires, the National Commander of over one million men was brought to this little city for an address. Harry Colmery is one of the biggest, if not the biggest man ever to appear on a public program in Perryton, yet he was greeted by a mere handful of people, outside of those whom he leads.

Was this a direct slam at the American Legion in Perryton? Is this what the citizenship of the community think of the Perryton Post and Unit, an organization that numbers in its membership from 50 to 75 men and women actively engaged in the business and professional life of the city?

Is this the thanks that we get for our community service, child welfare, Americanism, aid to the needy and many other programs? While we may be hurt and disappointed at this "thumbs down" attitude on the part of our own fellow citizens, the men and women of the Legion will carry on for "Community, State and Nation", even though they feel that Perryton failed to cooperate with them in honoring their National Commander.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Court Plan Viewed as Crucial Test of President's Leadership

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—There is no indication that the new liberal temper of the Supreme Court, as evidenced in the decision upholding the Social Security Act, has made President Roosevelt willing to compromise in his fight to get his judiciary bill through Congress.

On the contrary, in his most recent message to Congress, asking for legislation to insure maximum wages, minimum hours for labor and the abolition of child labor, the President referred pointedly to the case of Hammer vs. Dagenhart which came before the Supreme Court in 1918. In that case, Justice Holmes, speaking for the dissenting minority, said Congress had the right to prohibit the shipment in interstate commerce of the factory products of child labor.

A possible key to the President's present attitude toward the court is found by most observers in his emphasis on the fact that this liberal view held by Justice Holmes was shared by only three others on the court at that time.

The President said: "A majority of the court decided 5-4 against Mr. Justice Holmes and laid down a rule of constitutional law which has ever since driven into impractical distinctions and subterfuge all attempts to assert the fundamental power of the government over interstate commerce."

To those who keep an ear to the ground in Washington, this had an unrelenting sound.

THE history of social security and labor legislation, championed for years by unsuccessful minorities, is suggested as Roosevelt's justification for deciding not to repose full confidence in the recent liberalism of Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts, who have at different times voted with the conservatives, as well as their more liberal colleagues.

Roosevelt's strategy, it is reported, is to keep the issue wide open and forge ahead. It is possible that the President had reasons, known only to him, for believing in the rumors that three or four more justices may resign in the next few weeks. Whether or not that develops, it is expected that Senator Robinson of Arkansas will be selected to replace Justice Van Devanter.

After this session of Congress Robinson, if he moves up to the Supreme Court, will probably hand down the whip of Senate leadership to Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky. By that time, Senator Robinson's whip hand will be weary. Bringing Democratic members of Congress into party line for a vote on the judiciary bill is the most difficult thing Roosevelt and Robinson have so far attempted.

The President is not "leaving it to Joe," entirely. He is calling senators to the White House day after day, and reports are that he isn't mincing words with them. Roosevelt's ambition is to establish a Democratic liberal-progressive party, and to name his own successor in 1940. He believes these ambitions are at stake in the court fight.

So effective has been the President's "tough talk" in these White House chats that some perfectly sincere senators are convinced that to vote against the plan will be "political suicide."

Others are just as convinced that Roosevelt is no longer the popular hero he was last November, and that to vote with him on this issue would be to follow dangerously a leader who has crawled too far out on a limb.

On one point, both sides, hopefully or fearfully agree. If Roosevelt gets this bill through Congress his leadership will in all probability be established for the rest of his term of office.

NEWS of the WEEK

ON THE LABOR FRONT

With 75,000 to 80,000 steel workers on strike over the holiday weekend, the largest number of idle in the industry for many years, leaders of both labor and industry are anxiously awaiting the outcome this week of conferences called by Gov. Martin L. Davey, of Ohio, between officials of the Republic Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and leaders of their striking workers, in the hope of effecting an early settlement . . . At the Gadsden, Ala., plant of Republic Steel, representatives of 3,000 workers stated that the men had no thought of striking . . . Retiring from the presidency of the American Iron and Steel Institute, Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said: "While substantial progress out of the depression has been made in most industries, the labor unrest in many places is retarding that movement."

ARM SALES BOOM

London, England—All barriers between European nations seem to dissolve in the mad rush to buy munitions of war. Regardless of political differences, they are selling arms to any country with the cash to buy, even where their own product would inevitably be turned against them in the event of another war.

NEW ENVOY DEPLORES INSULTS

New York City—In his first public speech in this country, Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, newly appointed German Ambassador at Washington, suggested that friendly trade relations between this country and the Reich could be attained if "insults against the other country's head of state" were hereafter avoided.

FLORIDA'S REPUBLICANS SAVED

Tallahassee, Fla.—The identity of the Republican party in Florida was saved when a solidly Democratic Senate voted to reduce from 30 to 15 per cent necessary proportion of the State's total vote in order that a party's candidates might appear on the official ballot.

DRIVE ON TAX EVADERS

Washington, D. C.—Congress has been asked by the President to inquire into the widespread evasion of income taxes by wealthy Americans who have adopted the device of setting up corporations in nearby British islands' in Canada and Central American countries to which they have transferred large parts of their estates on which they pay no United States levies. A Federal jury in New York decided in favor of the Government in a suit brought by sons of the late Viscount William Waldorf Astor for $20,000,000 representing principal and interest on $10,800,000 taxes paid in 1922 under protest. The government's contention was that the late Baron transferred his $46,000,000 estate to his sons in anticipation of death, in which the jury concurred.

THE WEEK IN BUSINESS

Addressing the National Association of Purchasing Agents, Dr. Neil Carothers, director of the College of Business Administration, Lehigh University, said that the present upward trend in industry was "irresistable," and would even overcome the labor unrest threatening it . . . General Motors formally opened its new assembley plant at Linden, N. J., which has a capacity of 125,000 cars annually, giving employment to 4,500 . . . Bank clearings in 22 leading cities totalled $5,284,141,000 for the week, a gain of 12 per cent over the same period last year . . . Excess reserves of Federal Reserve Banks rose $30,000,000 in a week, totalling $940,000,000 . . . Class 1 railroads reported a net income of $14,135,752 for the first quarter of the year, against a deficit of $27,575,000 for the same period last year . . . Exports of American brands of whiskey during the first three months of the year reached 7,903 gallons, or more than in the entire year of 1936, an increase of 2,200 per cent.

FEAR FOR D'ANNUNZIO

Rome, Italy—Recent morose letters from Italy's great poet, Gabriele d'Annunzio, to his friends have aroused fears on their part that he may contemplate suicide. The Nation Looks Back on 150 Years to Commemorate Its Constitution

Day of vast historic importance was this, Sept. 17, 1787, as members of the Constitutional convention presented the finished document, the Constitution of the United States, to George Washington. Portraying Washington, center, with cape, and the other members of the convention, this panel hangs in the Archives building in Washington today.

PHILADELPHIA.—Spring dawned late in this Quaker City in 1787, just 150 years ago. The roads were drowned in mud and storms kept ships in the harbor. It was altogether an inopportune setting for what was to become one of the greatest constitutional conventions of all time.

Came Monday, May 14, the date when the convention of the 13 states was to have assembled, but there was no quorum. Weather held most of the delegations back and faintheartedness detained the remainder. Traveling by degrees from his Mount Vernon estate, George Washington, now retired, was interrupted at every village by demonstrations of warm public approval.

By May 25, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and North and South Carolina delegations had arrived. Three days later, on the 28th, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Maryland were on hand; on the 31st Georgia, and finally on July 23, New Hampshire's two delegates. They had tried for weeks to raise sufficient expense money to make the journey. And Rhode Island, severely independent to the last, never did send a delegation.

It was an interesting group that comprised the quorum of that first session on May 25. True cross-section of American life of that day, it numbered politicians, business men, lawyers, and even speculators. There were 55 in all, most of them still in the full vigor of life. Six were under 31 two were 25 and 26 respectively Franklin, then 81, was the "grand old man" of the convention.

IMMEDIATELY on convening delegates chose George Washington to preside over their deliberations in the then new Independence Hall. And with that post, though he did not know it then, was to go eight more years of public service. On May 28, the doors were shut and the constitutional convention was officially under way. Decades were to pass before the world was to learn the substance of the debates in that historic session.

The long summer of 1787 passed and still the battle raged in Independence Hall. Records of the great convention, revealed afterward, showed that there was hot debate on many points: What should be the respective powers of the President and the Congress? Should Negro slaves be counted as a basis for representation in Congress? How should the balance of power between large and small states be maintained, and many other questions of equally vast importance and future consequence.

The Republic faced a crisis, that grave summer of 1787, and the men behind those locked doors rose above themselves to meet it. They realized mere independence did not make a nation. The old confederation had already begun to creak badly and the new structure must be made secure.

SO they builded, and the final document they signed on that last day of the convention, Sept. 17, 1887, was the Constitution of the United States—one of the most amazing instruments ever conceived. With various amendments, it has lasted a century and a half, through war and peace, through depression and prosperity, and the nation still anchors to it.

In a world of modern dictatorships, it still guarantees freedom in religion, press, speech, assembly and petition.

Washington wrote to a friend late in that momentous year of 1787:

"I wish the Constitution which is offered had been more perfect; but I sincerely believe it is the best that could be obtained at this time." That was the spirit behind the great document—the spirit of human understanding.

Joseph's Readiness for Service

I. The Persons Concerned

The first is Jehovah. He is the ame God of Abraham, Isaac and acob. His great leadership is just s effective as of old. He is much nterested in the welfare of his eople of Joseph's time as in yesryears.

Joseph, a younger son of Jacob, as the favorite of his father and as the occasion of much jealousy n the part of his brethren. His oat of many colors which Jacob ade for him was a beautiful garent. It was Jacob's expression of is appreciation of Joseph's fine ualities of young manhood. It was tribute to the young dreamer, but source of envy to Joseph's brethn. But Joseph would triumph over e injustice of his brethren and e favoritism of his father. Our resent study finds him in Egypt ear the beginning of one of those reat famines which occasionally nfested that country, reaching up nto Palestine with its ravages of food shortage.

Pharaoh and the Egyptians are also included in our lesson. They were the people among whom Joseph went to live during the years that brokenhearted Jacob thought he was dead.

II. The Famine Problem Solved

Through Divine guidance Joseph had become a favorite at the court of Pharaoh. So well had the young man won his way into the confidence of the king and of the people that he was looked upon as a great for the king about the fat cattle leader. He had interpreted a dream and the lean cattle which signified seven good years and seven years of famine. This stroke of heavenly implanted wisdom convinced the king of Joseph's powers, and he accordingly placed the young man over the realm of Egypt to make ready during the good years for the famine which was to follow. On Joseph's hand was placed the signet ring, while vestures of fine linen enrobed him. A chain of Gold was placed about his neck and people bowed the knee before his majesty. Only on the throne was Pharaoh greater than Joseph. Thus this slave who had ascended from prison pits to the office of prime minister was ready to begin his official supervision of storing up grain for the great crisis which was to follow.

III. Conclusions

What value is attached to purity and nobleness of purpose and life? If we were to value the opportunities facing Joseph when his brothers sold him into slavery, we would likely place them at a very low figure. But such men as Joseph simply would not stay at the bottom of the ladder. He would not waste time in seeking vengeance upon the men who intended his hurt, but would use each opportunity for advancing himself through legitimate and upright means. He would always be fair, honest, loyal. Though falsely imprisoned for a crime he did not committ, he still remained cheerful, and through his accurate interpretation of some dreams won distinction. His masterpiece was the explanation of Pharaoh's dream about the famine which resulted in his being placed in the position of honor in which the present study picture him.

Many young people think they ought to sow their wild oats. Here is an example of a young man who did not think so. Purity in youth is as commendable as it is in age. It is useless to waste years of young life in adolescence foolishness just because it is the "natural" thing to do. God will no more excuse a young man or woman for sin than he will anyone else. Joseph demonstrated that it pays to be true to principle. He showed what diligence to the will of our God will do. His position was a just reward for service. It has become an example to us all. It is an object lesson to all succeeding generations its silent message wings its way down through the centuries soliciting our imitation of its worthy qualities.

'These Texas Gals,' Sighs Andy-'Oh, Me'

When oil business brought Charles Correll flying to Texas, a welcoming Texanita of the Pan American Exposition prompted him to repeat the sigh that, as Andy, of Amos and Andy, he has given on the radio networks many nights lately—"These Texas gals, Oh, me!" Victim of a "Texas gal" and her father in an oil promotion in the radio skit continuity, "Andy" gave out no details of reason for his hasty trip. He was greeted at Dallas airport by Eleanor Akers, pretty hostess of the international fair opening June 12, in Dallas.

Hopper Infestation

Grasshoppers Threaten Northwest and Central Texas; Farmers Should Obtain Poison

College Station—A grasshopper infestation equal to or worse than that of 1924 threatens a large portion of the State, according to R. R. Reppert, Extension Service entomologist. As the result of counts of eggs deposited last fall, Reppert forecast in April a severe grasshopper infestation, and reports from county agricultural agents indicate that the emergence of grasshoppers will be even more serious than anticipated.

Poison mash scattered around areas of concentrated egg deposits does much to control the insects before they do much damage, Reppert said. A state grasshopper control committee, with Reppert as state leader, has been set up to combat the infestation. This committee has requested 150 carloads of material from federal sources to use against the Texas grasshoppers. Congress recently appropriated a million dollars for this purpose.

A similar program in 1924 resulted in a saving of more than seven million dollars to Texas agriculture.

The federal material for the mash which is composed of bran or mill run feed and sawdust, an arsenic compound, and water, would be delivered to centers of infestations and distributed under the supervision of county agricultural agents.

The threatened infestation apparently will center around northwest and central Texas, according to Reppert, who is making a tour of the State to get an accurate estimate of the situation.

Monterrey, Mexico
May 25, 1937

Dear Van:

Of course, we expected to be welcomed back, but not to the extent you went to. You folks certainly out-did yourselves. All the way home we had had nothing but pure sunshine until a few miles south of Canadian, a drenching thunder storm came up followed by hail. This, with the high wind, made us realize that we were back in the Panhandle just as soon as we'd turned the corner at Childress. Soon after passing Notla, we were buried in dust and occasionally had to pull over to one side and wait as we neared Wolf Creek. A couple of days after that the ground was white with snow and the temperature was 20 and I got my first cold of the winter. Now, you boys didn't really need to go to that extent. The display was appreciated, of course, but coming up from the weltering south as we did, just to say "Hello" for a few days, I think perhaps you rubbed it in a little too hard. Nevertheless, I want you to know how glad we were to be with all of you again for a short while.

But here's a suggestion: since you folks are given to putting on displays, I'm going to remind you that we're hoping to return again about harvest time, and we want to see you piling wheat all over the ground as you were in 1929.

The trip back to Monterrey was uneventful except for the fact that we went via roads 83 and 81 all the way. Had a stiff south wind every inch of the way and sand in large quantities was blown at us continually until we got below Hamlin which isn't far from Abilene. The next night in San Antonio on the eight floor of the hotel I smelt dust in the air, and the morning papers revealed the fact that all the planes in that area had been grounded because of dust.

It might be of interest to know that from our front door in Monterrey to our front door in Perryton, the long way around (by way of Fort Worth) it is exactly 998 miles; while the shorter way, via Abilene, it is 906 miles. The only detour at present is the 17 miles between Shamrock and Wellington; and aside from the 66 miles of dirt road between Childress and Hamlin, the entire distance is hard-paved all-weather road (excepting the road from Perryton to Canadian).

Getting to Laredo we discovered the necessary papers had not yet arrived—the Mexican government was still in th throes of its Easter vacation. Every day for two weeks we were promised the papers "Manana" and so we took a run over to Corpus Christi. But was it hot! Then, and for a week after we finally got through the lines, the temperature was around 110 degrees. It has moderated considerably since. During the hottest weekend here we journeyed to Saltillo which is over a mile up in the air and had the real satisfaction of sleeping under blankets.

In a previous letter I narrated my impressions of the beautiful mountains; but now that summer is here and they are clothed in green and covered with flowers (and goats), I lack more adjectives to describe their beauty. Clouds slide all around their tops and sunsets, bringing on a handsome series of views every night. As we drive over the roads, every turn is a new delightful scene, and whether looking forward or to one side, or in the rear view mirrow, there's always something that I want to record in one of the several cameras I always carry with me.

This is the off season in oranges now and as they get poorer in quality the price goes up. They are selling now for about 23 cents (U. S. money) a dozen, and this is very high. There are a couple of places in town selling ice cream a la American and the cream is very good; but it took a long while for the Mexicans to realize just how good it is and to frequent the places.

Monterrey is in the midst of a fair that is advertised "just like the Chicago Fair". The comparison is very amusing when one considers the vast extent of the latter compared with one building of the former. We have been, and it is a good little commercial exposition with the usual side shows in the form of a small circus, ferris wheel, and merry-go-rounds and inevitable bull ring. But all there is there could be seen in any good-sized department store in the States.

A recent rodeo I visitd was the most docile affair I ever witnessed. I really expected that to be good but a Texan would get a good laugh at it. There were about four performers, two semi-wild steers, and a couple of half-grown, half-scared colts. The ropes wouldn't behave and do as told, and when the charros rode the "bronks" they held on for dear life with both hands—no fanning. One "wild steer" when it came out just lay down and had to be shooed away.

Since returning, Mrs. Spicer's aunt, Miss Nellie Perry, has spent a short vacation with us, but she was anxious to return to the plains country. I don't know whether it was the traffic problem or the Mexican smells that induced her to return. Or perhaps it was the fear that she'd bump into any one of the numerous mountains that surround us. At any rate, we enjoyed her stay and would delight in having any others from the Panhandle visit us.

Yours very truly,
Del Spicer

Panhandle Is In Fair Business Sector

This map represents business conditions as of May 1, 1937, as shown in "Nation's Business", official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Business Conditions as of May 1

April saw a rather sharp reaction in buying, widely constructed as a needed corrective to a heavy increase in both purchasing and production of finished goods during the preceding three months. How much of this was purely speculative remains to be seen. Differences in commodity price movements are perhaps best reflected in wheat and corn. The former declined but the latter held earlier gains because of a marked shortage in supply due to the reduced yield last year.

Crop reports are not altogether clear as to the future. Rains fell in most of the Northwest but the Southwest needs much more moisture for best results. Present prices for grains point to larger areas in leading crops.

Factory production results in the first quarter point to heavy outputs of textiles and other wearable products. Automobile and steel production, and mail order and retail sales are encouraging. The early date of Easter this year calls for more particulars as to the real proportions of retail distribution for spring. Building permit values exceed those of any year since 1931.

The Barometer

HORSE RACES MAJOR ISSUE

RACE HORSE GAMBLING WAS A MAJOR ISSUE DISCUSSED AT WEST TEXAS YOUNG DEMOCRAT MEET

Repeal of pari-mutuel horse race betting was a major issue in the 62-county convention that opened in Dalhart, Friday.

Earl B. Mayfield Jr. National Young Democratic committeeman from Texas stated that this issue was a main subject of discussion in the southern part of the state. Governor Allred had called a special session of the legislature to repeal the bill.

The evils of this system of betting was discussed fully at this meeting and the facts were brought out that more than $18,000,000 was taken in by the pari-mutuel system in Texas last year with the state receiving less than one-eighteenth of that in taxes. The retail sales during the betting was shown to have fallen off fifty per cent. Mr. Mayfield also stated, that the system was especially vicious where the small wage earner was concerned as it is an incentive for them to seek other forms of gambling after the races were over. Mayfield will ask withdrawal of the probe if repeal is made.

Other state, regional and national issues of importance were discussed.

John McCarty praised the Young Democrats for pioneering in modern thought and action and for their contributions to the New Deal.

Mrs. Roland Ward and son, Jerry, Enid, Okla., were in Perryton over the week-end and visited with her mother, Mrs. B. L. Holland.

Dolly Taylor and daughter, Mrs. and Miss Marian Pipkin, Lamar, Colo., came in Saturday and visited until Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. B. [illegible] Murphy.

Mrs. Mamie Powers and son, Robert, came in Saturday from Cebolleta, New Mexico, for a week's visit with Mrs. Power's mother, Mrs. S. J. Allen, who is quite ill at her home 520 Southwest Third street.

According to word received here recently, Rev. J. C. Jackson and Mrs. Ruthie Boyce, both of Utah, were married at Carrizo Springs, Texas, on May 7.

EXPECT LARGEST TOURIST SEASON

MERCHANTS, CONOCO DEALERS ANTICIPATE PROFIT THIS YEAR FROM THE TOURIST TRAVEL

Local merchants, and particularly the Conoco dealers, are looking forward to substantial profit this summer, as a result of the largest tourist season in history, according to A. N. Dowers, manager here for Continental Oil Company.

"Early summer requests received by the Conoco Travel Bureau for touring information indicate that 1937 will surpass even last year's travel business," he said. "Naturally all merchants will profit, but the Conoco dealers have an additional reason for optimism.

"Under Continental's new policy all of its products are sold through independent dealers—which means that every Conoco dealer either owns or leases his station, is in business for himself. He doesn't work for a weekly or monthly pay envelope; so naturally he gets out and hustles for that extra profit. And when he gets that profit, it stays in town, as he spends his money with the local merchants.

"Furthermore," Continental Oil Company is giving its dealers some fine cooperation. They are taking newspaper space to advertise the dealer's station as well as their own products. In this advertising Conoco dealers are known as 'mileage merchants"—and, actually that's just what they are."

Hot Water For Health

Plenty always on tap with an Automatic Gas Water Heater.

Even more important than the soothing relaxation of a warm bath every day is the health it safeguards. And for the same reason it's more than a matter of pride to have dishes that sparkle, linens snowy white, woodwork that gleams. And of course, these require plenty of hot water.

That's why an automatic gas water heater is so necessary in every home. It provides gallon after gallon of hot water at a turn of the faucet, heating new supplies of cold water faster than does any other type.

Call on your dealer and let him demonstrate to you the efficiency of the new modern automatic gas water heaters.
