MEN AND POLITICS in NEW ENGLAND

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

AUGUSTA, Maine, Aug. 22.—President Calvin Coolidge is looked upon as the soul and conscience of New England. He is an orthodox republican and as hide bound as far as the teachings of the party goes as an old time abolitionist. He has big business behind him in New England. There are democrats who say that he is neither a religious bigot or a political fanatic.

However he is for the rugged political virtues of New England, many of which were handed on by the Puritan fathers to the generations who came after them. The writer has visited every New England state this summer and it goes without saying that the president has lost none of his popularity. Here in Maine the democrats have been a minority party since civil war days but they have the guts to stand up and be counted every year. They nominate candidates from governor to constable and they never fail to put up a gallant fight.

THEY had the klan issue to deal with last year. This is the home of William R. Pantangall, who made the fight against the klan at the Madison Square Garden convention last year. Pantangall was the democratic nominee for governor at the time. He was defeated by Ralph O. Brewster, who had the backing of the klan, by a majority of 36,000 in the largest vote ever cast in Maine.

Brewster only won by 800 majority in the primary election over a republican contender who denounced the klan from every stump in Maine. Pantangall is the ablest criminal lawyer in Maine and began life as a newspaper reporter. He is just as full of fight as ever. He tells his friends that the democratic party is coming back in the nation. He tells his friends that the party will make a big showing in Maine next year.

These Maine antiklan republicans vote the republican ticket straight regardless. They do it everywhere in New England if defeated in the primary contest. Not so with New England democrats. A vast army of them voted the republican ticket last November. They said that the klan was born in the south, that it had obtained control of the democratic party and they would not support its standard bearers. Throughout New England the klan works within the republican organization and in the north and east the klan leaders are mostly republicans. Regardless of this, Coolidge polled a million democratic votes in the sections named in 1924 when he was elected president of the United States.

THIS is the home of Daniel W. Cony, chairman of the democratic state committee. Chairman Cony says the democrats of New England are as virile as ever, as true to the Jeffersonian faith as ever and he predicts that they will make a splendid showing in the congressional elections next year and perhaps capture both houses of congress. All the leaders say that the invisible government zealots will not cut a very wide swath in 1926 or 28. Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are reliable republican states. New Hampshire breaks away from the republican yoke at intervals and has been known to elect democratic congressmen and now and then a United States Senator.

For many years, or until the coming of William Jennings Bryan, Connecticut was a doubtful state. Bryan tossed it into the republican column and there it has remained, although there are two congressional districts which are democratic when conditions are normal. Democratic leaders say that conditions will be normal next year. Many of the cities and towns of Connecticut and in the other New England states are democratic strong holds in off years when it comes to local elections and thus the faithful enjoy a large amount of patronage. Boston is the great democratic city and democratic stronghold of New England. Indeed, the democrats control the offices in many of the industrial cities of the old bay state and this gives them a powerful organization or machine throughout the state of Massachusetts.

David I. Walsh is their leader. He is organizing for the senatorial battle of next year and hopes to defeat Senator William M. Butler, the friend and advisor of the administration. James A. Curley is mayor of Boston. His term of four years expires the coming November. Republican leaders who are close to President Coolidge are planning to make the fight of their lives to smash the democratic machine in Boston, if possible by the election of a fusion city ticket. Mayor Curley says who ever the democrats nominate will be elected by a majority ranging from thirty to forty thousand.

THERE are four democrats sent to the lower house of congress from Massachusetts. Democratic leaders hope to gain two seats in the elections next year. Many of the prominent leaders of the Massachusetts democracy are staunch followers of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. There is a reason for this. They are mostly of Celtic origin and they look upon Smith as the ablest democrat in public life. It is predicted that democratic gains will be made in the Old Bay state at the next general election.

There are thousands of French Canadians in the New England states. They are Catholics almost to a man but they are not democrats. Their leaders do not take kindly to the democratic party because of its southern leadership. Rhode Island is a democratic state when conditions are normal. In 1922 the democrats swept the state. They lost it in 1924.

Republican leaders named as their candidate for governor Aram J. Pothier, a French Canadian and one of the able citizens of Rhode Island. Thus the republicans gathered in the klan vote and the French Canadian Catholic vote for their ticket and captured all the offices in sight.

All the big factory lords are republicans; most of the bankers and financiers are republicans; most of the leading newspapers are republicans or support the republican nominees in presidential years. Republicans have magnificent state organizations. Right now they are laying their plans for the presidential election in 1928.

They are going to smash the democrats in Boston if possible. They are going to smash Governor Smith of New York, if possible and they hope with the aid of William Randolph Hearst to drive from power the Tammany machine in the state of New York.

OPEN DITCH TO LAKE COMES IN FOR CRITICISM

Real Estate Committee Hands in Exhaustive Report at Saturday Meet

OFFICIALS PRAISED

Manager Doing Great Work With His Limited Facilities

Decrying a number of conditions it is said needed remedying and speaking plainly on other evils found during the exhaustive investigation, a committee appointed some time ago by the Wichita Falls Real Estate Board to study needs of the city water department, reported Saturday on the results of its probe. The report, a lengthy one, went into detail on the water system here; it condemned several features found; made numerous suggestions as to improvements that could be made; and commended the department executives for the excellent work being done under great handicaps.

The board accepted the report unanimously and it will be transmitted to city officials in the near future.

Condemns Ditch.

As was expected, the principal item coming under fire was the open ditch stretching from Lake Wichita to the filter and pumping plants and through which the city derives its supply of water. This was characterized as "nothing more than an open sewer" that delivered "filthy, impure and polluted water to the filter beds." It was remarked, however, that the impurities were all removed and the water made safe for use during its transit through the filteration and chloorination processes.

After dealing in some detail with the history of Lake Wichita, Lake Kemp and the irrigation phase of the system, the report launches into a frank indictment of the open ditch and its constant pollution from open toilets and other sources along its banks. It then sketches the actual monetary loss caused by the ditch through loss of water by leakage and points out how the limited capacity of the ditch endangers the needs of the city in times when great amounts of water are being used.

No Bonds Needed.

In concluding the report points out that construction of a pipe line from the lake to the plant should be financed by issuance of warrants, secured by the properties of the company which are valued at approximately $1,500,000. There is no need of a bond issue being floated to pro-

1 Dead, 2 Injured In Ammonia Blast

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Frank Kelly, 35, employe of the W. A. Bennett Fruit & Produce company here, is dead, W. A. Bennet, president of the concern, is probably fatally injured and Nelson Malone, another employe, is suffering from burns as a result of an ammonia tank explosion at the company plant today.

The victims were hurled nearly 100 feet by the blast. Little damage was done the building.

JAMES L. STOREY DEAD.

Was Prominent Lawyer of Houston and Former Lockhart Official.

LOCKHART, Texas, Aug. 22.—News of the death of James L. Storey, 58, attorney of Houston, which occurred at Houston Saturday, was received here Saturday night.

Mr. Storey was born in Lockhart and practiced law here for many years. He served as district attorney here for 16 years and resigned to remove to Houston about 12 or 14 years ago. He entered a law partnership known as Lane, Wolters and Storey.

Escaped Killer Is Captured by Ruse

CENTRALIA, Wash., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Tom Murray, escaped killer from the Oregon state penitentiary at Salem, was captured by a ruse early today in the Savoy hotel here.

Phil Carson, 26, Portland mechanic, recognized Murray in Vancouver, Wash., last night and persuaded the convict to accompany him to Centralia where he pretended they would rob a road house.

--"QAHVEH"--

Wichita Falls Likes Its Cup at all Hours—And Here's How and Why It Gets it—What it Does And all About—Just Plain Coffee.

WHETHER they call it "shot in the arm," "dope," "mud," "ink soup," "ebony tea," "Java" or "stuff," Wichitans like their coffee—and they like it from one to six times a day, according to habit. This is the testimony of half a dozen waiters in leading restaurants and cafes of the city, where hundreds of bankers, doctors, lawyers, business men, clerks and others drop in each day at intervals of varying frequence for their "cup."

Many a business deal is settled; many a legal question solved; many a scientific theory expounded; many a religious issue argued and many a scandal started—over a cup of coffee. When two executives of a business wish to talk over a pending deal or tell about their last night's party, out of the hearing of gum-chewing stenographers, they say, "Let's get a cup of coffee."

Perhaps the consumers of $90,000,000 worth of coffee in the United States each year, and the world drinkers of 2,500,000,000 pounds of coffee every 12 months, would not be so proud of their habit if they knew that a goat is credited with discovering the exhiliarating influence of coffee.

An ancient Arabian legend says that in the Third century after Christ some monks fleeing persecution found refuge in the highlands of Abyssinia, across the Red sea from Arabia and supported themselves by tilling the soil and raising flocks. One night an aged father, guarding a flock of goats, ran amazed to the prior and shouted, "The animals are bewitched. They gambol and play as if it were a spring morning." The prior investigated and found that the goats browsed on the fruit of an unfamiliar shrub

COPS BAFFLED BY DEATH AND ASSAULT CASE

Investigations Saturday Bring Officers Against A Blank Wall

A full day of intensive work by the city police department and district attorney's office brought officers only to a blank wall late yesterday afternoon in their investigation of two criminal cases that have all the earmarks of going down as "unsolved." One is the death, presumably murder, of W. A. Hood who died Friday night from injuries received on the Fort Worth and Denver tracks near the river bridge earlier in the day; and the other is an alleged case of criminal assault against a 23-year-old white woman, victim of an attack in a down town rooming house where she was lured at 2 o'clock Saturday morning on reports that her husband was in trouble.

Two Men Jailed

Two men are in jail at the city hall in connection with the latter case and are scheduled for another grilling either late tonight or sometime tomorrow. Both deny any complicity in the attack, although the woman claims one of the them is the man who locked her in a bedroom and then attacked her.

In the Hood case, Chief of Police George Hodgins, Detectives Bryan and Allen and Mr. Spence declared themselves last night to be practically in the dark. A large part of yesterday was also spent in an investigation of this, but nothing was found which would give a tangible clue on which to work.

Hood died at 8 o'clock Friday night in the General hospital with a crushed skull, sustained, it is thought, when he was struck by a sandbag or billy. Approximately $50 in cash which he is known to have had in his pockets about 10 o'clock Friday morning was missing when he was found unconscious at noon under the Denver tracks where the viaduct crosses Bridge street. The supposition is that he was struck down by someone on top of the viaduct and shoved off to the ground below.

Borah Says Debt Pact Is Unpopular

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP) Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has wired Senator Smoot of Utah that the Belgian debt settlement is "almost universally criticized" and that it cannot be defended if it is to serve as a precedent for funding other foreign obligations.

EDITORS NAME GOREE MAN AS NEW PRESIDENT

E. L. Covey Selected As Head of Northwest Association

BACK TO WICHITA

This City Picked as The Next Meeting Place Of Convention

E. L. Covey of Goree is the new president of the Northwest Texas Press association following the election of officers in the final business meeting of a two-day convention here at the Kemp hotel yesterday afternoon. Verne A. Baker of Electra is vice-president. Ray Nichols of Vernon was re-elected secretary and treasurer. With H. H. Hudson of Iowa Park and Sam A. Roberts of Haskell these three will compose the executive committee.

Wichita Falls was chosen unanimously as the meeting place for the convention, both for 1926 and for all succeeding years.

Resolutions Passed.

At the final meeting of the convention resolutions thanking Mayor R. E. Shepherd, the baseball association, chamber of commerce, Kemp hotel, the local papers and retiring president, Will C. Edwards, and the visiting officers of the Texas Press association for their courtesies and services.

A number of interesting talks were heard at the Saturday morning sessions of the meeting. W. A. Smith, president of the Texas Press association, dealt with "Relations between the Texas Association and the district associations." Sam A Roberts of Haskell, "Uncle" Dick McCarty of Albany and E. A. Carluck of Paducah also made interesting talks on subjects akin to publishing a small newspaper.

Maine Battlefield, Once Gory, to Give Bumper Wheat Crop

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The battlefield of the Marne, where the Americans helped the French turn the tide of war seven years ago, will furnish a bumper crop of wheat this year. The department of the Marne and Eure were rated at the end of June at 90 in the official crop estimates, while 80 is exceedingly good and far above the average for recent years. Thirty-three of the 80 departments were rated at 80 to 85, yet government officials are wondering whether they will not again this year be obliged to import some wheat to meet ordinary requirements.

Agricultural experts say that while the crops look good, the rust has done much damage and that an early July estimate of 90,000,000 metric hundred weight or 340,000,000 bushels of wheat must now be reduced to about 288,000,000 bushels. France consumes about 325,000,000 bushels per year.

ORPHANAGE GIVEN BUILDING.

DALLAS, Aug. 22.—Plans have been completed for a nursery building to be erected at Reynolds Presbyterian orphanage near here, it was announced today by Roland Martin, treasurer of the institution. The building is to be financed by gifts from the Reagan Wofford estate. Cost of the structure is placed at $30,000. It will be one-story, 70 to 73 feet.

OIL MEN TO ORGANIZE

CISCO, Texas, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Steps toward formation of an association of oil men were taken here last night at a dinner and meeting at which C. V. Terrell, railroad commissioner, was the chef speaker. A special committee will draft tentative plans and report later.

Mr. Terrell spoke on the work of independent oil operators and relations to the railroad commission. Conservative regulations were explained.

Harvey Offers 10 Pct. To Spudders Fund

Wichita Falls Ball Prexy Boosts Drive

AN offer of a personal contribution of 10 per cent of the amount raised by Spudder fans in their campaign for a pennant fund has been made by R. O. Harvey, president of the Wichita Falls Baseball association, who, in a telegram Saturday to The Record News, heartily endorsed the movement now under way here. Mr. Harvey is in Rochester, Minn., and has just learned of the fund being raised in the interests of a Texas league pennant for Wichita Falls.

Interest in the fund went steadily ahead Saturday and secretaries of the various luncheon clubs, which are supporting the movement, said that the total raised was growing by leaps and bounds. The temporary set-back experienced Friday when the Bears drubbed the hopefuls was balanced again Saturday when the tables were reversed and this gave added impetus to the drive.

It has been noted the past few days that interest in the Spudders has been noticeably increased by the gallant fight they are making. Attendance has gained and spirit improved.

With Mr. Harvey's generous offer it is believed by those supporting the move that a still greater incentive has been added and that this will be reflected in a prompt spurt from more fans.

PROF. OUSTED BY POLITICS, IS DENIED CHAIR

San Marcos Regents Decline To Reinstate Bertam Harris.

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Bertram Harris, professor of the Southwest State Teachers' college at San Marcos, failed to obtain reinstatement to professorship today at his hearing before the board of regents of the Texas Teachers college. He was dismissed in June "for his political activities."

H. A. Nelson, dean of the school of agriculture at the San Marcos institution, who was dismissed in June because he sold a piece of property to the state as a part of the athletic grounds of the school for $500, which was considered by school authorities as an exhorbitant price, was reinstated. The regents elected him and granted him a year's leave of absence.

Reinstatement of three students at the San Marcos school was practically assured when Dr. C. E. Evans, president of the San Marcos institution, agreed to hold a conference with Walter R. Glick, A. J. Briesemeister and J. N. Kaderli students who were to have received their degrees at the Friday night graduation exercises at San Marcos.

CYCLONE HITSTOWN 12 HURT

HOUSTON, Aug. 23.—(AP) A dozen persons were injured and several houses blown down when a tornado struck at Seabrook, a bay shore town near here early Sunday morning. Several of the injured suffered by broken bones and every ambulance in the city has been sent to the scene.

Storm Blows Down Derrick on Truck, Driver Is Injured

OLNEY, Aug. 22.—P. H. Lewis, of Olney was victim of a singular accident today. While passing a derrick in the Humble oil field today driving a heavy truck, a windstorm blew down the derrick which fell on Lewis and his truck, demolishing the vehicle beyond repair and injurying him. He suffered a deep cut on the head, a broken wrist and several fractured ribs. He was extricated from under the flattened truck and hurried to Olney for surgical treatment. Lewis is now in a local hospital and doctor does not think his injuries will prove fatal.

Steamers Collide

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Two crippled steamers were limping back into port tonight after a collision two miles off Point Judith, R. I.

Distress calls sent out at 9:05 o'clock tonight reported that the oil tanker Harvester out of Providence, R. I., for Port Arthur, Texas, has been rammed in the rear by the British steamer Rosalind, New York to Halifax.

Klan Chief Named Customs Collector

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Marion O. Dunning of Savannah, Ga., was appointed today to be collecter of customs at Savannah.

RAINS END HEAT WAVE.

DALLAS, Aug. 22.—Scattered showers amounting to brief, hard rains which fell in sections of North and North Central Texas today brought relief from intense heat of the past few days and revived crops and pastures. Light showers also visited portions of South Texas, Houston, however, obtaining relief from record heat of the past week by a hard 30-minute rain late today.

Denton received a hard shower. Wichita Falls reported about .40 of an inch rainfall, with temperature dropping to 85 degrees. Local showers fell in the Mexia section, causing a drop in temperature to 88. Hearne received a light rain.

LIGHTNING FIRES BUILDINGS.

WACO, Aug. 22.—Lightning struck a frame garage and servants' house, property of C. H. Smith, negro, at 817 North Fourth street at 5:35 p. m. today and set fire to it, the flames destroying the building and an automobile kept in the garage.

MAGEE OUT UNDER BOND OF $10,000

Firey Albuquerque Editor Formally Charged With Murder.

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque nwespaper editor and stormy petrel of New Mexico politics, was formally named as the slayer of John B. Lassetter, state highway employe, in the verdict of a coroner's jury here late today. Magee shot Lassetter, a bystander in a fight with his bitterest political enemy, former District Judge David J. Leahy, in the crowded lobby of an East Las Vegas hotel last night.

A charge of first degree murder was filed against him today and he is at liberty under $10,000 bond.

The coroner's jury's verdict said that "Lassetter came to his death by reason of a gun shot wound on the left side of his neck caused by a bullet fired from a gun in the hand of Carl Magee."

Sternnadl Again Is Questioned In Engler Mystery

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—John Sternnadl, Jr., son of John Josephs Sternnadl, the man who found the bodies of the Englers, after the triple murder near Austin two weeks ago, was again questioned by the sheriff's department today.

Young Sternnadl was taken to the Hays county jail at San Marcos late last night and he remained there until Saturday at noon.

Mrs. Sternnadl and her two daughters, Nellie, 17, and Annie, 15, were questioned by officers in Austin Friday. They remained at the court house for half a day.

Texan Is Slain In Mexico, Is Report

HOUSTON, Aug. 22.—The Houston Post-Dispatch prints the following in its first edition tonight:

Archie "Cotton" Casey, 30, of Houston, was slain by a companion about 130 miles north of Tampico, according to word brought to Houston today by Will Allsbury, rent car driver of San Antonio. Casey, Allsbury and a third man from San Antonio, who is named by Allsbury as the slayer, were members of a party traveling overland, presumably bound for the border from Tampico.

'After the killing, Allsbury says he was forced to walk the 130 miles back to Tampico, where he wired to Houston for money and then came here.

1 TO 10 YEARS

Defendant Receives News Calmly and Continues Chewing Gum

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22. —(AP) — Dorothy Ellingson 17-year-old confessed matricide, was found guilty of manslaughter by a superior court jury tonight.

The young defendant took the verdict calmly. She was chewing gum when the jurors entered, after more than ten hours deliberation and continued chewing after the verdict was read. Manslaughter carries a penalty of one to ten years.

Tall Gentleman Who Bums a Light Is King Alfonso

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP).—Recently, says the Cri de Paris, a tall man, elegantly dressed, swung himself upon the platform of a street car in Bordeaux and too kout a cigarette. His lighter failed to work, whereupon a fellow passenger gave him a light from his own cigarette. Then the two men entered into conversation on the personal topic, the high cost of living.

"I suppose you are a manufacturer?" said the workman.

"No, I have no business," replied the other. "I have an old house which descends from father to son."

"Things are going well," asked the workman.

LISTON APPEAL CASE

Was Convicted and Sentenced to Five Years in King Killing.

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—(AP).—Appeal in the case of George Liston, sentenced from Burleson county to five years for murder, was filed today in the court of criminal appeals. Liston was convicted of the slaying of Hatfield King, who was killed April 12, 1924, at a dance.

Says Wichita Valley Cotton Beats That In Georgia

Cotton in the irrigated valley in Wichita county surpasses any in any of the great cotton belts from Texas east to Georgia, County Agricultural Agent Guy R. Jones has declared. He has just returned from a trip to his old home in Georgia and while away made it a special point to inspect many cotton fields through which he passed.

He declared that in all of his examinations he failed to find a stand as healthy or well developed as that to be found in Wichita county and other places within the irrigation districts. He was surprised as well as pleased, he said, to learn of this condition.

Mr. Jones also asserts that in the past day or two he has inspected many Wichita county cotton fields looking for possible boll weevil damage and thus far has found but very slight indication of the presence of the pests. He asserted damage from this will be negligible.

The county agent Saturday was exhibiting a cotton stalk brought in from a farm on the Iowa Park road and which had 229 squares.

Woman Frightens Drug Thieves Who Drop Rum and Dope

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 22.—Called upon to halt by Mrs. W. H. Whisenant with pistol in hand as she leaned from a window in an apartment above the drug store of her husband, two safe robbers deserted loot consisting of prescription whiskey and narcotics in front of the door, the value of which would exceed $2,500 at bootleg prices, and escaped with more than $100 in currency and checks early Saturday morning.

When Mrs. Whisenant attempted to fire at the fleeing robbers her revolver jammed, and by the time Mr. Whisenant reached the store with a shotgun the men had disappeared.

Randlett Masons And O.E.S. in Picnic

RANDLETT, Okla., Aug. 22.—On Wednesday, August 19, Randlett lodge No. 374 A. F. & A. M. and Randlett chapter No. 388 O. E. S. cooperated in having a basket picnic at the Vaden grove, north of Randlett. Lemonade and ice water was plentiful all day, and at noon an old fashioned picnic dinner was spread under the trees, after which Melville E. Peters of Wichita Falls delivered an address on the "Origin and History of Free Masonry'.' Senior Warden Baldwin of Faith lodge at Wichita Falls and Bro. Hathcock, pastor of the Baptist church at Randlett also made pleasing talks. Ice cream was then served, after which the happy crowd departed.

Memphis Will Get New Hotel in 1926

MEMPHIS, Aug. 22.—H. G. Stephens, proprietor of the Stephens hotel of this city has announced the construction of a new 50-room modern fireproof hostelry on the site of his old hotel to begin early in 1926. To supply immediate needs for additional hotel space here the Kennedy hotel is adding ten rooms to its present frame building.

Additional hotel facilities have been needed here very much for the last two or three years.

COFFEE

which grew in profusion. Picking some of the ripe cherry-like fruits, the old monk chewed them and he, too, became frisky and was wakeful at night.

However fanciful the legend may be, the fact remains that Abyssinia and Arabia were the original homes of the coffee shrub and some authorities even say the name of the drink came from the province of Kaffa, where it grows wild, while others say the name came either from the Turkish "qahveh," or the Arabic "k'hawah," meaning wine.

One thing modern coffee drinkers may be thankful for, is that they do not have to make their coffee as they do their home brew, or that the satisfaction of a desire for a cup of coffee does not make them liable to execution or imprisonment. For in the days gone by, laws sprung up as the coffee habit spread to the various nations.

In a treatise published by an Arab sheikh in 1566 the use of coffee in Mohammedan circles was prohibited by the priests. Long-winded pastors of today might take a hint from the story that one of coffee's first uses was in the religious services of the Mohammedans. Worshippers used it to prevent drowsiness during the long services. This stirred up the opposition of fundamentalist priests, however, who said it was intoxicating and therefore prohibited by the koran.

When the coffee drinking habit spread to Turkey, it again met opposition fro mecclesiastical circles. The popularity of the beverage in the coffee houses was said to have reduced attendance at the mosques. Then the sultan imposed a heavy tax on coffee houses. But, like Americans in this day of Volsteadism, this served simply to increase the popularity of the habit and the coffee houses flourished despite burdensome taxes.

The first coffee house opened in England in 1652. A servant of a wealthy Englishman, who was reared in Smyrna, made coffee daily for his master. The beverage became so popular with the Englishmen that the master soon found his home over-run with guests who came for a cup of coffee and a chat. The Englishman, faced with the not-easy task of keeping his coffee supply on hand, and with having his home made a public gathering place, finally ordered the servant to open a public coffee house.

But this time, singularly enough, Charles II of England attempted to suppress the coffee houses. He said they were "seminaries of sedition" and that while the "retailing of coffee might be an innocent trade, but as it was used to nourish sedition, spread lies, and scandalize great men, it might also be a common nuisance." It would appear then, that even in this early times, people of fashion, politicians, artists, and men of commerce and letters and professions, liked to gossip over their cups of coffee, just as do clerks of today.

In Paris the coffee houses soon became so popular that even today, a popular name for restaurant is "cafe," the French for "coffee" or "coffee house." The idea that the French are the greatest coffee users, however, is erroneous. Figures show that the United States uses more coffee than any other nation, and that the per capita production of 10 to 12 pounds a year, is higher than that of any other nation. More than half of the world's production of coffee is imported by the United States.

More different even than the races and kinds of peoples in the world, are the kinds of coffee. There are 80 recognized species, but the "coffea arabica," or the Liberian, "coffea liberica." The wide differences in the size, aroma and chemical content of the various kinds of coffee are attributable to the differences in climate, soil and age of the plant and its product.

Americans like their coffee a clear, brown color. They drink it, generally, with a dash of cream and spoon or two of sugar. The French prefer "cafe au lait," which is served in two containers holding hot milk and strong coffee in equal proportions. In Mexico coffee is served black with a pitcher of hit water. In Sumatra, "coffee-tea," made of the roasted leaves of the coffee plant, is a popular beverage. In the Orient, the coffee beans are ground up like flour. This makes a thick, black beverage. It is drunk with gusto, grounds and all.

While many nations and sections of these nations prefer their coffee with an adulteration of chicory roots, this robs the coffee of its most prized ingredient: caffeine. Other plants used in the adulteration of coffee or carrots, dandelion roots, beans, parsnips, seeds of yellow iris and dried sweet potatoes.

Substitutes are made of various cereals, all of which do not produce any caffeine content. But real coffee can be tested by dropping a little, finely ground, into a glass of cold water. Coffee is light and oily, and floats for a long time and colors the water slowly. Imitations either will sink rapidly to the bottom or color the water quickly.

When Wichitans gulp down their morning cup of coffee and dash down to the office to beat the boss there, probably they do not know that in 75 times out of 100, the coffee they drank came from Brazil and West Indies, where the entire crop is said to have developed from one lone tree.

This is another tale of romance wrapped up in the history of the coffee industry. Here it is.

After the spread of the coffee habit from Arabia and Abyssinia to Turkey and Java, the king of France was presented with a few coffee plants from Java. He sent them to West Indies to be planted. The voyage to the West Indies, however, was long and tempestuous in the crude boats of that age. One by one, the plants died. Water became scarce on board ship. Finally there was but one plant left. The officer in charge of the mission realized that to fail to satisfy the wishes of the king was, to say the least, an unhappy occasion. So he shared the scant allowance of water with the plant, which lived. It became the parent tree, the story goes, for the coffee plantations of the new world, from whence now comes three-fourths of the world's supply.

"Why do people like coffee?" the reporter asked several waiters in Wichita Falls eating houses.

"In the morning, they drink it to wake 'em up," one waiter said. "In the middle of the morning, if they get a bit drowsy, they get a cup of coffee to brighten up their minds. This is especially true where the coffee drinker has been up late the preceding night," he added.

"Then a lot of times, the cup of coffee is simply a means of getting away from the hum drum affairs of the office. It gets the folks away from their business, it is inexpensive, and at the same time, it makes them feel better. It is just like cigarettes, or chewing gum. A lot of times, they come for coffee just because they have formed a habit of coming at a certain time during the morning or afternoon. And a lot of times, two of the big men in a company will want to get out where they can talk office affairs without any danger of being overheard. Then too, coffee seems to bring men closer together. They are more sociable over a cup of coffee than they would be over a glass-topped desk," he opined.

The physiological influence of coffee is considered its most valuable characteristic. Coffee stimulates the nervous and vascular system. It increases frequency of the pulse. It lightens the fatigue sensation. Coffee sustains strength even under exertion and produces a feeling comparable to intoxication, without the unsatisfactory "after-affects" that come from a "spree" on corn liquor.

While the early hitsory of the coffee industry is beclouded in a maze of myths and prejudiced accounts, in a manuscript belonging to the "Bibliotheque Nationale" (National library) in Paris, the use of coffee is said to have been known at a period as remote as 875 A. D., or more than 1,000 years ago. In a treatise published in 1566, the use of coffee by worshippers to avoid drowsiness at Mohammedan religious services is mentioned.

The bulk of coffee sold in Wichita Falls restaurants and grocery stores probably comes from South America, especially Brazil. The famous Mocha coffee comes from Arabia. Central America and the West Indies also are great coffee-producing nations. Java, Sumtra, Ceylon and other islands in the Indian Ocean, Australia, parts of Africa, Hawaii, Phillipine Islands, Cuba, Porto Rico, Mexico, Central America, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Colombia, Venzuela, Ecuador, Peru and Chile, also produces coffee. It is not generally known that Mexico produces 200,000,000 pounds a year.

Coffee thrives best 1,200 to 3,000 feet above sea level, in a climate where the theremometer never drops below 60. It generally is grown in hilly lands, where drainage is good. The orchards are known as "fazendas." The plant has a dark, shiny foliage, covered with jasmine-like flowers. The trees are kept at a height not exceeding 10 feet. The plants yield three crops a year. The berries are crushed and the seeds retained. The seeds, or cofee beans, then are spread on cement floors for several weeks to dry in the sun. The parchment and "silver skin" which cover the beans are removed and the olive green beans are ready for shipment.

But if Wichitans attempted to drink cofee made from these beans, they would experience many and strange sensations. For the green or raw coffee beans have none of the aroma or flavor, which only scientific roasting brings out. The roasting brings out the aromatic oil known as caffeine—this is why coffee is drunk.

It makes folks feel better. If you do not believe the story that Wichitans like coffee, park yourself in any restaurant. You will not wait long to hear some man or woman come in and say, "Gimme a cup of coffee."

And this, despite stories to the contrary, is a notice restaurant and cafe owners like to hear. For where they sell any coffee at all, they clear from 1 to 2 cents per cup. The old idea that they serve coffee for the accommodation of the public is buncombe. It is a highly profitable venture at 5 cents per cup.

At proper social functions, the proper way to ask for "ink soup" is "kof i," with the accent on the first syllable and the "o" pronounced as in "soft." Some use the short "o," for an extra dash of refinement.

SEYMOUR IS BUILDING

THE BAPTIST CHURCH, SEYMOUR.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, SEYMOUR.

The Story of Seymour As Told By Her Leading Citizens:

One of the new enterprises of Seymour is the Seymour Manufacturing Co., which opened July 20, twenty power machines already installed and other equipment to be set up soon will give this overall, work shirt, canvas tent and cotton sack manufactury a capacity of eighty dozen pairs of overalls daily and other lines of production in proportion.

The proprietors of this enterprise are D. T. Bowdoin, O. E. Rickard and John Culver. Mrs. Rickard superintends all work and insures highest quality and dependable workmanship. Not only should the people of Seymour but of North Texas encourage and advertise the possibilities of this locality as a manufacturing center.

That the business enterprise and splendid schools of Seymour and Baylor county have been earnestly furthered is in a large measure due to the fine weekly newspaper of that community. The Baylor County Banner, published by O. C. Harrison, has one of the most modern plants of any weekly newspaper published in North Texas. Mr. Harrison is a graduate of Baylor University. After graduation he taught one term of school, worked in the bank one year and then found his place in the field of journalism.

The weekly paper does more for the betterment of the community it serves than anyone can estimate. Mr. Harrison bought the Baylor County Banner in 1906 and he has given the utmost in community building since that time. To pitilessly expose the hidden menace to public health, morals or prosperity demands from a newspaper more than a desire to be doing the right thing. It demands the highest courage, poise and balance in addition to a charity so large and kind that no unfair advantage is taken of situations that arise in all communities.

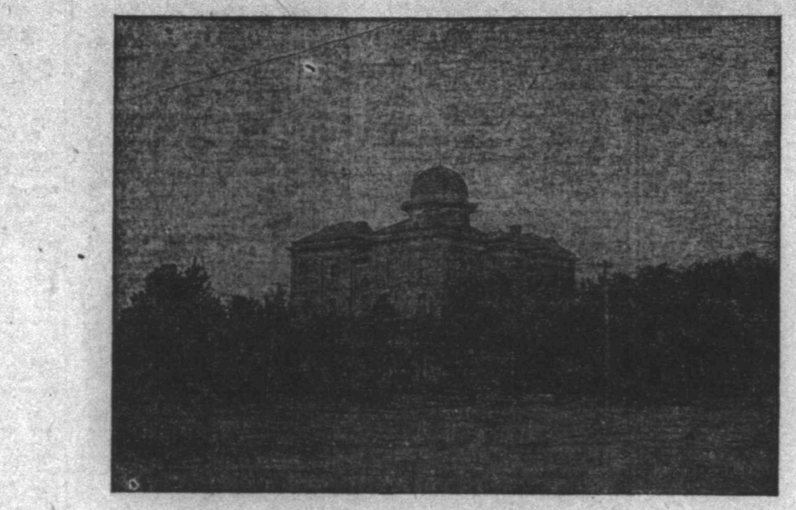

The newspaper preaches to more than the minister and the voice of the weekly is heard in nearly every farm home and in homes in towns of less than ten thousand inhabitants.

The steady and substantial growth of Seymour is a testimonial to the high standards of the Baylor County Banner published there.

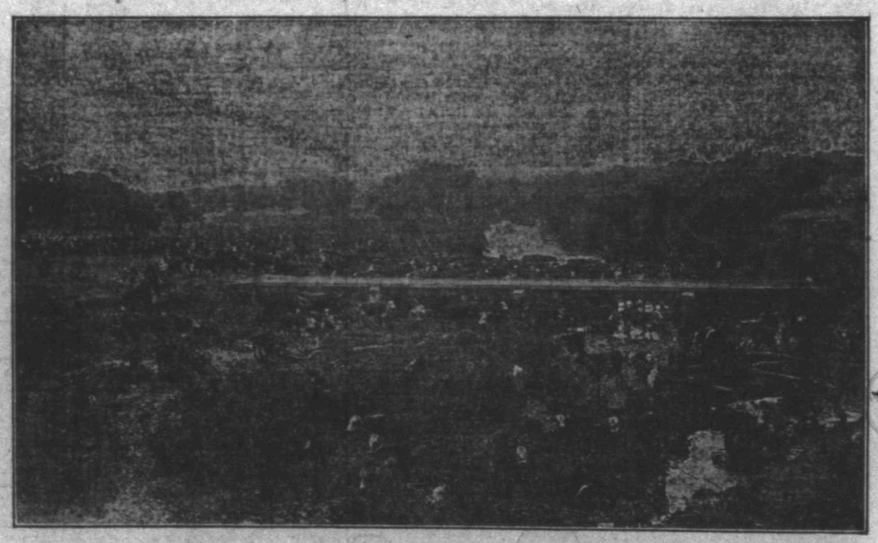

The Chamber of Commerce does for the town of Seymour what the Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs do for other towns, it is in this case both a commercial and a civic organization. It cooperates with all other organizations and under the leadership of the president, C. L. Caldwell, it fills all needs of the community for a protective, progressive, commercial and public welfare organization. Mr. Caldwell is never too busy to give information and help the visitor or the resident.

It is an inspiration to see such perfect idealism among successful business men in this utilitarian era, an era that bids fair to become disgusted with its own folly and swing back to the old and delightful time of kindly dealings for friendship's sake. Seymour has retained this priceless standard to a remarkable degree. The old kindly traditions of the cattlemen have never been disowned here as in some places, and the vast increase of wealth has not changed this feature of the community: friendships are as carefully guarded and the newcomer is received cordially and sincerely.

GREAT AUTO SHOW AT FAIR IS PROMISED

Elegant New Models to Be Featured at Exposition Oct. 3-8

Down at the far end of the principal street of the fair grounds is the automobile building, where the automotive show will be held during the Texas-Oklahoma fair, October 3 to 8, inclusive. The building is 65 by 360 feet and when the exhibits are placed the arrays will be valued at more than $100,000—an immense fortune in dazzling splendor that will be seen in one sweeping glance.

It will be a show which, in beauty of arrangement and in elegance and lateness of the models, will be unparalleled in the history of southwestern expositions, according to James King, superintendent of the automotive show.

Cars of many makes, sizes, styles and colors will be exhibited, and most of them will bring forth many prolonged "ohs" and "ahs" from fair visitors.

Sport models, touring cars, roadsters, sedans, coupes and every other known type of automobile is expected to be included in the display of local automotive dealers.

The decorations of the automobile show are to be far ahead of anything at either of the three previous expositions. The decorating plan for the automotive show was designed by an expert decorator of major shows.

The local automotive dealers association is said to be one of the most active in the southwest. The organization has a large membership and the displays at the 1924 exposition pleased the many thousands who reviewed the exhibits in the mammoth building.

Orient Employes Hold Celebration

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 22.—Several hundred employes of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad of Texas, together with a group of officials of the road headed by President W. T. Kemper of Kansas City, were here today to participate at an informal celebration. Objective of the road which includes two extensions into Mexico, will be outlined by Mr. Kemper.

The Orient band from Wichita, Kan., arrived in a special car, gave a concert, then led a parade.

The railroad men will gather tonight at the San Angelo Country club where President Kemper will discuss plans of the Orient, urging co-operation of the organization.

A Kemper party similar to that here today, was recently held at Wichita, Kan., for the Kansas-Oklahoma division.

Golden Wedding For Noted Pastor

CAMERON, Texas, Aug. 22.—Announcement of the golden wedding anniversary, September 1, of the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. McCune of Sabine Pass, a former editor of Cameron, has been received here. Dr. Macune, as organizer of the populist party in America, was once a figure of national prominence. He lived for a time in Washington, where he edited a populist newspaper that had a circulation of more than 1,000,000.

Prior to his connections with the political movement, he was editor of the Cameron Herald.

Goodman, Sentenced To Five Years For Death of Dallasite Says Verdict Is Unfair One

DALLAS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Captain William Jennings Bryan Goodman, Oklahoma national guardsman, was found guilty of manslaughter and the penalty fixed at five years' imprisonment by a jury in the Dallas county district court today. He was charged with having killed C. S. Swinney, a night watchman, June 21. His defense was that he did not fire a shot, but Joe Brown, a friend with him, did shoot when the night watchman fired at them.

The jury disregarded a plea for a suspended sentence, being silent in that regard.

"It's a victory," were Goodman's first words to a newspaper man near him when the verdict was read.

Under the Texas laws Goodman, in case of a new trial, cannot be convicted for more than manslaughter now. The maximum penalty for that is five years, which was the jury's verdict in this trial.

Goodman's attorneys announced they will file a motion for a new trial, probably early next week. In event it is overruled they said an appeal to the court of criminal appeals would be taken, and request made for Goodman's release on bond pending appeal.

Goodman smiled faintly as the verdict was read and leaned across the table to answer questions of newspaper reporters.

"I am satisfied that I was not convicted on any direct evidence, but purely on the circumstances involved," he said. "I was not guilty of the charge but am the victim of the sentimental and emotional appeals to the jury by the states attorneys."

After the jury had left the bench, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Goodman, parents of the defendant, rushed to the rail and weepingly smothered their son with affection. A long line passed the rail extending hands to the young guardsman captain.

Fire Prevention Plans Completed At Fair Grounds

Steps for the prevention of fire at the fair grounds during the Texas-Oklahoma fair, October 3 to 8, will be taken this week, according to R. E. Shepherd, fair secretary.

A water system was installed by the government engineers when Call field was built and the water mains are reported in excellent condition. The system is now owned by the fair association and water is pumped into the water tank daily.

A truck and chemical vehicle from one of the city stations will be placed in one of the centrally located buildings to be ready in case of emergency, if plans of J. L. McClure, fire chief, and others are carried out. The vehicles will be kept on the grounds day and night.

It is also planned to have firemen when off duty in the city to be at the fair grounds. This will insure more protection to fair buildings than at previous expositions.

Koch of Quanah with reference to the suppression of news. Some editors seemed to think that making friends and keeping them was the paramount duty of the paper; others held that the duty of paper to readers demanded a full account of happenings. It was held unanimously, however, that in the case of juveniles suppression was usually wisest.

Discuss U. S. Attitude.

The government's attitude toward the printing and publishing business came in for some criticism. The editors charged that they were printing government "publicity" free of charge and that the attitude of the government was not friendly enough even to justify a request for this.

A plea for the unity of Texas and the cessation of such differentiation as West Texas, Northwest Texas, South Texas, and the like, was made by Mr. Smith, president of the Texas association. He also laid stress on the association's code of newspaper ethics and stated that he hoped the time would come when a copy would be face up on every newspaper's desk.

"Uncle" Dick McCarty of Albany advanced the theory that newspaper men should not run for office; stated that it destroyed their independence.

But he added that running a country newspaper was ample training for the worst of the political "plums." Mr. McCarty called attention to the time when $35,000 would have purchased all of Wichita county. "The pavement costs that per mile now," he said.

Following the afternoon meeting secretary of the chamber of commerce of Iowa Park, Robert Anglin, supervised a trip over the irrigated valley, the visitors leaving the hotel at about 2 o'clock.

To Ask Congress To Repeal Tax On Autos and Parts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—A move looking to repeal at the next session of congress of the excise tax on automobiles and automobile parts has been started by the American Automobile association.

Declaring there are four times as many people paying the excise tax as there are paying income taxes, the association has addressed an appeal to motor vehicle owners to get behind its program and urge their representatives in congress to repeal the tax.

White Crosses On Roads Mark Spots Of Auto Fatalities

COLUMBUS.—(AP)—Dotting the sides of Ohio's highways throughout the length of the state at frequent and infrequent intervals stand white crosses. They mark spots where automobilists have been killed.

Automobile drivers rounding a sharp curve, in many sections, come squarely upon a white cross, or possibly two or three, muet reminders that one or more persons have been killed at that spot.

Governor Vic Donahey was responsible for the piecing of the crosses. It was his idea that they would help to cut down automobile fatalities by making drivers more cautious. They have not been installed long enough, however, to draw any conclusions.

Poor Victims Of California Quake Now Are Destitute

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Four-fifths of the poorer residents of Santa Barbara whose homes were destroyed or damaged in the recent earthquake are now objects of charity, Mrs. Nancy Winch Emery, president of the Associated Charities in that city, said in a letter received here today by the California Development association. The association is heading an emergency campaign to raise $1,100,000 for the immediate needs of the charities and the destitute of the stricken city.

Accused Slayer Of Wife Ends His Life

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Scotty Allison, indicted yesterday on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Mary Combs Allison, killed himself today by leaping from a third story window of a hospital where he was recovering from self-inflicted knife wounds. Allison was found unconscious in his cell at the county jail Thursday night with his throat and arms slashed and was taken to the hospital where he made his second and successful attempt to end his life.

ENGINEER IS KILLED.

CONESUS JUNCTION, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—William Brothers of Avon, engineer of an Erie shuttle train that runs between Lake Ville and this place on Conesus lake, was killed today when his locomotive jumped the track and plunged down a 15-foot embankment. The fireman and conductor were injured. The train was composed of a locomotive, coach and two freight cars. No passengers were in the coach.

Biologist Invited To Leave Church

RIVERTON, N. J., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Henry Fox, government biologist here, who was dropped last year from the faculty of Mercer university, Macon, Ga., for teaching evolution and who has been asked by the Tattnall Square Baptist church there to quit the denomination for alleged unorthodoxy, today said he would go voluntarily provided the Tattnall Square deacons and congregation officially went on record as denying the right of an individual Baptist to be the sole judge of the soundness of his doctrinal views.

NEW BRICK FACTORY.

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Another brick factory soon will be added to the growing list of this type of business in Texas, for which charter was granted today by the secretary of state to the Jourdanton Brick company, Jourdanton, Atascosa county. Large deposits of clay in this county are said to be ideal for the manufacture of brick. Directors are J. E. Hixson and Mrs. Anna A. Hixson of San Antonio and W. W. Holmes of Jourdanton.

What's What for Fall

Fresh from Society Brand comes these new fall Suits—fresh as the invigorating autumn breezes. New effects for fall place emphasis on shoulders and chests with a shapely low waisted coat that still carries all the ease in the world. It's an effect you won't see in any other clothes but

Society Brand

The new fabrics include the Haddingtons, diamond weaves in subdued shades of browns, fawns and blues. Piping Rock Flannels are back this season, smarter than ever in the new shades. Dovetones are the new chevoits, colorful in asparagus greens, penny brown, fog gray and fawn.

The Regent

A decided departure from last season's prevailing styles. The Regent is very much the suit of today. Long, wide, peaked lapels, a gradual taper of the body lines to the low waist, and the snug effect over the hips.

The Minnesotan

A loose and easy model hanging straight from the shoulders. Authentically tailored from the ideas of leading college men., low set pockets, wider lapels, and swagger English trousers in just the correct line.

The Poole

They come in every season and buy a Poole. Young business men of conservative taste who simply wouldn't wear anything extreme, or anything ordinary. They say nobody but Society Brand can make what they want. A three-button Coat with moderately wide trousers. Poole No. 2 has two buttons and peaked lapels.

The Boulevard

Men who have worn a Boulevard want another. Men who have seen other men wear it want one for themselves. The most popular suit of clothes in the straight line cut.

The Belden

Conservative fitted cut, though roomy in body and sleeves. A man's Suit with the same youthful lines that characterize the young men's models. Two and three button models.

The Row

A two-button, double breasted model with the coat somewhat short. The wide shoulders and narrow hips give it the "wedge-shaped" cut, a new fall style idea.

The Cornell

Again the easy fitting Suit that most men wear best. Broad shoulders, wide lapels, the low waisted effect; two-buttons. The Cambridge—the same style idea with three buttons.

The "Rolls-Royce" Toe

Broad and square is this newest toe on the fall Oxfords for young men. The Oxford, from Bion F. Reynolds, is all there in the new Yellowstone calf, though smart styles are also to be worn in tan and black calf and in Scotch grains. At $10, we think Bion F. Reynolds makes the best Oxford for the price in America.

Smart Headwear

Brims are larger and roll wider in the new felts for fall. It's time to throw the straws in the discard and don one of the new shades in Swiss pearl, Coolidge gray, Stanley brown or pecan. Hats from Borsalino, Crofut-Knapp, Schoble and John B. Stetson contribute to our line of new autumn headwear.

Spudders Pull Game Out of Fire, Win By 5 to 4 Count Saturday

FAST FIELDING, TIMELY BLOWS SUBDUE BEARS

Those romping Spudders are off again on a streak.

They forged ahead from a lead piled up by San Antonio late in the game Saturday and with Carl Williams holding the Bears to one hit and scoreless for four innings won the bout 5 to 4. The game was featured by many great catches in the field by both clubs and despite the seven errors in the field both teams did some brilliant fielding. Catches by Meyers, Fitzgerald, Nason and Tanner stood out especially.

Paddy Martin started for the Spudders and was in great form. He held the Bears well in check until the fourth when they found the key to his hooks and gave him the air. Carlos Willard went to the hill and was untouched after the first inning he worked.

With Jakie Atz's kittens idle the Spuds gained a half game on the Fort Worth club and cut the lead back to four and one-half games.

Two in First.

The Spudders counted two in the first inning. Metzler singled to left. Distel walked. Fitzgerald sacrificed both runners up a notch. Bodie was given a free ticket to first, filling the bases. Tanner hit to Gonzales who forced Bodie at second. Clark threw both late and wild to first after Tanner and Metzler and Distel romped home.

The Spudders scored another in the third innings. Distel singled past short. Washburn booted Fitzgerald's grounder to first and both runners were safe. Tanner dropped a Texas leaguer in left, scoring Distel.

San Antonio scored the tying run in the fifth inning. Clark caught the Spudder infield flat-footed with a perfect bunt down the third base line, and beat it out. Washburn poked a single to right and went to second when Metzler let the ball get by him, Clark romping home.

San Antonio took the lead in the sixth inning. Winters hit a home run over the left field fence. Gonzales walked. Martin was given the hook, and Carl Williams was sent to the hill. Meyers attempted to sacrifice and forced Gonzales at second, Query to Distel. Nason singled to right, sending Meyers to third. Clark flied to left with no advance. Tanner raced over behind second to take Rosenthal's grounder and forced Nason at second.

Win in Seventh.

Fitzgerald cut off a Bear rally in the eighth inning. Meyers walked with one out, and with two out Danny Clark made a great try to ruin a perfectly good ball game by lining one of Williams' slants to the green boards. Fitzgerald took the ball while going with the sphere and nabbed it as he reached the wall.

In the ninth, San Antonio was helpless. Rosenthal hit to Bodie and the two engaged in a heated foot race for the bag. The fleet footed Ping won by a hair. Washburn fanned, and Umpire Estill called the third one on Warwick.

Today's game will be Big Jim Roberts against Bob Couchman, according to Tanner and Coleman.

CUBS, DODGERS SPLIT.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Brooklyn and Chicago divided a double header today, the Robins taking the first game, 9 to 2, while the Cubs annexed the concluding number by the same score. The visitors staged a slug fest in the ninth of the second contest, knocking Petty and Osborne out of the box and scoring seven runs. In the opener Fournier broke a 2-all deadlock by poling out his 18th homer of the year with two on base in the fifth. Score:

SEEK CHEAPER BEER.

BRIGHTON, Eng.—(AP)—Cheaper beer has been suggested as one remedy for the unemployment in England that has been bothering successive governments since the war ended.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of a large brewery recently the chairman said that the country was still overburdened with taxation and that the crying demand today was for cheaper beer, which, he contended, could only be given by reducing the tax upon that beverage.

JIMMY MAHONEY

The legion fight card has almost been arranged for the coming Thursday night with the main event to go twelve rounds, and a ten round semi-final bout.

Jimmy Bean and Jimmy Mahoney are the ones scheduled for the main go, and should make a nice scrap for the fans. Mahoney has fought here but one time and won a decision from Walter Varner last week. Bean has fought here before and will make a tough man for Mahoney to stop.

Willie Jackson and Harvey Andrews are the ones slated to exchange blows in the ten rounder. Jackson is from Oklahoma City and Andrews from Chicago. This marks the first appearance of these two, and little is known of them but should make a good fight according ot Don Wofford.

Battling Turner and Virgil Masters are rematched for the weeks card and should make a good scrap. Turner looked good in the fight with Masters last week, and was able to break the North Wichita boy's string of kayos.

Young Murdock will probably be matched with Tabbie Levine in a six rounder but this has not yet been closed.

BRAVES-REDS SPLIT.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Benton held the Cincinnati Reds to five hits in the first game of today's double header, the Braves winning 4 to 2, but J. May, for Cincinnati, held the Braves to a like number of hits in the afternoon game, returning the Reds to an 8 to 2 victory. In this game, May's triple in the sixth inning started a four-run rally. Bancroft's long home run to left field fence with two on in the third inning of the first game brought victory to the Braves. The games brought out the largest crowd to attend a big league game in Boston for four years, 25,000 fans attending.

Henrietta Soon To Boast Sporty New Golf Course

Before many more days are passed Henrietta can boast of one of the sportiest golf courses in North Texas for a town of its size.

Nine holes with every one chuck full of hazards—woods, ditches, trees, and high tees fairly challenge the golfing spirit of the sporting public.

Just one week ago, on August 17, this project was started and now about four of the holes are ready to play on. Within two weeks the other five will be cleared out, rolled, oiled, packed and ready for the call "fore."

This course is located about a five minutes ride west of the public square at Henrietta, and is north o fthe plant of the Texas Pipe Line company. It is on land belonging to A. L. Smith, who is putting in an all-around amusement park.

On account of its location on the highway and its ready access, it is already proving very popular. It wil be opened to the tourists to and from Colorado.

A small membership fee is charged for annual memberships, and a fee of 50c per day for persons not members. Clubs, cold drinks and other necessities may be had at the first tee.

Brown Sugar $9.00; $4.40; $3.30.
Tangera $5.10; $3.00; Old Slip $4.30.

BELGIANS RETURN HOME.

Debt Commission, However, Refuses to Discuss Settlement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Members of the Belgian debt commission sailed today for Europe on the Majestic en route to Brussels. George Theunis, former premier, speaking for the party, said:

"We agreed in coming here not to talk for publication and we are leaving the same way."

A member of the commission, however, asked what attitude the Belgian people would take on the debt settlement arrangement in Washington answered:

"I believe that they will be satisfied."

Keep Pace With Washington by Pounding Thurston

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Athletics kept pace with Washington today by defeating Chicago, 6 to 1 in the second game of the series. The visitors landed on Thurston in the first inning for four hits, including a double by Miller and a triple by Dykes which with a walk by Bishop netted them five runs and caused Thurston's retirement in favor of Edwards. Edwards pitched a good game, allowing the visitors only three hits, two of which came in the second inning and gave the Athletics their sixth run. Slim Harris held Chicago to four hits which were bunched in two innings, a pair in the ninth inning being sandwiched in between an error by Lamar which kept Harris from registering a shut out. Pirates Scuttle Giants In Both Ends Of Double Bill, 8-1, 2-1

CORSAIR CREW LEAD LEAGUE BY 5 GAMES

Lee Meadows and Vic Allridge Subdue Clan Of McGraw

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates again increased their lead to five games when they defeated the New York Giants in both sections of a double bill today, batting out an 8 to 1 victory in the opener and a 2 to 1 verdict in the second game. The scenes were strongly reminiscent of the last world series played in New York. A capacity crowd of 55,000 witnessed the games. The grandstand was sold out half an hour before the first game and police estimated that 30,000 persons were turned away.

Meadows Invincible.

Lee Meadows pitched brilliantly in the first game, only two New York players passing first base on him, Frisch, who hit a home run in the third inning, and Southworth, who reached second with two out in the fifth on two singles. Cuyler hit a home run in the first inning, but Frisch's wallop leveled the count in the third. Pittsburgh regained the lead in the fourth, scoring twice on singles by Barnhart, Traynor, Wright and Gooch. Virgil Barnes retired under fire in the ninth when the Pirates closed with a five-run attack resulting from five hits, a fumble by Frisch and two sacrifices and a base on balls. The second game was a pitchers' duel between Vic Aldridge and Jack Scott and while the New York veteran yielded only six hits against nine for his opponent, one home run was his undoing. With Pittsburgh a run behind in the seventh, Traynor opened with a single and preceded Wright around the bases on the latter's home run. New York scored its only run on Aldridge in the fourth when Young beat out a bunt, reached second on a pass to Terry and scored on Kelly's single.

Johnston to Play St. Louis Star Today

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 22.—(AP).—William Johnston of San Francisco, defending champion in the Newport invitation tournament, will make an endeavor to gain permanent possession of the court bowl on the grass courts of the Newport casino tomorrow when he faces Brian I. C. Norton, St. Louis, in the final round of the tournament.

Johnston, winner in 1922 and 1924, reached the finals today by eliminating Manuel Alonso, captain of the Spanish Davis cup team, 9-7, 6-4, 6-2. Norton arrived at the final bracket by defeating Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Germans Using Hemp in Textiles

REUTLINGEN, Germany, Aug. 19.—(AP).—Cutting of coton imports into Germany by half may result from a new method of weaving cloth with hemp, invented by the German textile expert, Dr. Gminder. The hemp, it is expected, will replace in part the cotton formerly used in the cloth. There are about 5,000,000 acres of moorland in Germany adapted to the raising of hemp.

Senators' Star Is Seriously Injured

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—(AP).—Joe Judge of the Washington Senators, was still in a hospital tonight for treatment of an injury to his head, after being struck in the head by a baseball in Friday's game with Detroit.

An X-ray today revealed no fracture but there is a concussion and slight blood clot. Attending physicians said tonight that Judge should remain at the hospital for several more days.

APARTMENTS AUCTIONED

BERLIN.—Foreign speculators in Berlin apartment houses recently have been selling their real estate at auction. During the inflation period many tenement and apartment houses in Berlin were bought by foreigners for the equivalent of from $100 to $400, as the purchases were usually purely speculative the buildings were not kept in repair and the municipal governments has seized rents to keep the buildings in condition.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 22.—(AP) Discussion of Mexican immigration into the United States, most of which goes to Texas, will be the main feature of the Pan-American executive committee conference at Washington, Aug. 27, Luis H. Morones, Mexican secretary of labor and industry said here last night.

RUSSIA BUYING SHIPS.

MOSCOW—(AP)—German shipbuilding firms, including "Krupp Wharf" and "Deutsche Wharf," have approached the soviet commercial navy department with an offer to build a number of commercial and passenger ships on credit for 10 to 15 years upon payment of 10 per cent cash with order. The commercial navy department considered the terms acceptable and decided to order several tank steamers as well as passenger ships.

THE SADDEST MAN.

BELFAST.—(AP)— The saddest man on the liner Cedric which arrived here from Liverpool recently en route to America was John Neill, an 86-year-old Scot. He left his native Glasgow for the United States in 1863 and fought in the Civil war, and this was his first trip to the land of his nativity.

"I did not meet a soul I knew," he said. 'Everything was changed and I was like a stranger in a strange land. Now I am going back to Honolulu to spend the remaining days of my life.'

Simmons' Bat Is Aid to Athletics In Pennant Race

Not Only Holds His Own In Fielding, But Also Pounds Horsehide

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Al Simmons, Connie Mack's high priced outfielder, purchased from Milwaukee is more than doing his share in keeping the Athletics out in front in the close American league pennant race. This flashy fly chaser not only has been holding his own in fielding but in his last six games he has carried the brunt of the batting for his club. He smashed out eleven blows, one of which was a triple and two of them homers.

Simmons moved from fifth to second place in the scramble for individual honors, according to averages compiled today and including Wednesday's game.

The Philadelphia star is now runner-up to Tris Speaker of the Indians, who tops the list with a mark of .392. Simmons is batting .378. Harry Heilmann of Detroit is third with 377 and Ty Cobb fourth with .376.

Ken Williams of the Browns added only one home run to his collection, but is leading with 25. Meusel of the Yankees remaining at 23, while Simmons is trailing them with 21.

Johnny Mostil, White Sox outfielder, increased his base stealing record to 37 which brought him up to 104, the first player in the circuit to pass the century mark.

Hazen Cuyler has been one of the chief cogs in keeping the Pirates out in front in the hot National league flag race. This flashy youngster made the best showing among the top notch batters of the league when he boosted his average 14 points.

The work of Cuyler is the more remarkable because it comes at a time when his club as a whole suffered a slight slump in team batting. The Pirate phenom is hitting .355, and has considerable edge on his rivals for the scoring honors, having registered 116 times. His sensational speed is making it warm for his teammate, Max Carey, for the base stealing honors. Carey failed to increase his mark of 30, while the former Southerner swiped two and is trailing Max with 27.

Rogers Hornsby, Cardinals' leader, and 1924 champion hitter of the league, dropped below the .400 mark, to .393, but is not in immediate danger of being dethroned. Jimmy Bottomley, a teammate, also slumped, but continues in second place with .382, while George Harper of the Phillies, moved into third place with .365. Blades of St. Louis is next with .356.

Hornsby apparently has not placed must stock in reports that the "lively ball" has slowed up. He socked three home runs, swelling his total to 33.

Ties With Four Others For Second Place With A 287.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 22.—(AP.)—MacDonald Smith of New York today wrested the western open golf championship from Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago by shooting 281 for 72 holes, but the ousted champion won his share of glory by equaling the Youngstown Country club course record of 66 in the last round to tie with four others for second place at 287.

Smith won the title in 1911 at Idlewild club, Chicago, with 299, scored below par on every round of the 6,577-yard links, he ending the brilliant grind with a 69 after tallying 70-71-71 for the first three. His total has been equaled only once, Jock Hutchison getting that figure in winning two years ago at Memphis.

Eight Birdies

Mehlhan in shooting his 66 scored eight birdies and barely missed a six-foot purt on the 140-yard eighteenth for a birdie two and a new course record. His score was the third of the day under 70, in addition to Smith's 69, Eddie Held of St. Louis, who was second among the amateurs, made 68 in the morning round. Densmore Shuto of Huntington, W. Va., state champion, was the only amateur to get among the first ten scoring 290 in spite of a mediocre 77 this afternoon. Held was tied for eleventh place with 292.

Last year at Calument club, Chicago, Mehlhorn won the title handily with 293. This year there were 14 scores 293 or better. So fast was the play that 33 of the 65 who played today scored under 300 for the four rounds. Smith's score was seven strokes better than four strokes to the hole for the whole tournament. In addition to equaling the western open record, Smith bettered the national open record of 286, set by Chick Evans at Minneapolis in 1916.

Noted Stars in Tie

While none of the other stars could come closer than six strokes to Smith's score, five tied at that figure, 287. Emmet French, home professional playing with Mehlhorn, shot a par of 72s today and entered the tie with Walter Hagen, formerly British open title holder. Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion and John Farrell who had a 68 on Friday.

Spudders Guests At Wichita Club Dinner Saturday

The Wichita Falls Spudders were treated to a dinner at the Wichita club Saturday night when the directors of the club poured out their compliments to "the best ball club Wichita Falls ever boasted, and the fighting lads that are in line for the last half honors." They were royally treated.

Buddy Gardner, Lloyd Weaver, Dr. Bass, C. E. McCutcheon and Skipper Tanner were the orators of the evening. Dr. Bass especially emphasized the fact that this club had shown more fight than any other that has performed before the Spudder fans during the present home standing.

Every Spudder was there from Ping Bodie to Freddie Boone and "Jelly" Rosser, and all were well pleased with the evening. An elaborate dinner was followed by cigars.

Marston Changes Style of Shots

OAKMONT, Pa.—(AP)—Maxwell R. Marston of Philadelphia became amature golf champion of the United States in 1923, after eight years of competing in the event. Today he is an uncertain factor in the coming championship at the Oakmont Country club course.

Marston is a most interesting links-man. There was a time when he used a long sweep of the club on the shortest pitches with remarkable accuracy but in recent years he has changed the style somewhat, until it more nearly approaches that of other golfers of note.

Bob Gardner, veteran Chicagoan, has been Marston's nemesis in the search for the amateur crown, eliminating him in the early rounds and semi-finals three successive times.

Last year at Merion he progressed to the semi-finals, putting out C. O. Hezlet of Ireland, J. Wood Platt and Dexter Cummings on the way, but he played poorly against George Von Elm and was beaten, 7 and 6.

Mad Play Winner

The victor, recognized as one of the three of four foremost stake horses in American, ran one and three-sixteenths miles in 1:56 2-5, clipping 4-5 second off the track record, established by Gibbon, in the first running of the special a year ago.

CARRIED 14 PASSENGERS.

LONDON.—(AP)—A single 650 horsepower engined airplane to seat 14 passengers recently completed its trials and will be used in the cross-channel service. It has a large roomy cabin with wicker armchairs for passengers who will have a constant supply of fresh air by means of special ventilation.

Emergency exits are provided in the room should it be necessary for passengers to emerge in case of landing on the sea, in which case the wheels, axle and under-carriage struts can be dropped by means of a lever in the pilot's cockpit.

Ed Hughes' Column

ROUSH OF REDS A WONDERFUL PLAYER.

They have been talking this year about the amazing effectiveness of the three Red pitchers, Donohue, Rixey and Luque, and how they have kept Cincinnati up in the race. But any close follower of the game any student, will tell you that Roush's batting punch is the main Red offensive, all through the season, year in and year out, for nine years.

And on the defense Roush never had but one rival in center field, and he is the wonderful Tris Speaker.

Roush's center field play in the 1919 world series was so wonderful that it stopped the first talk and suspicions of a scandal. He cut off triples, and his catches made the suspicious ones believe that the White Sox batters were surely trying, and that his super play was winning for the Reds.

Roush bats around .340 every year, all through the season. Here is his record. Only Cobb and Hornsby can excel it:

1917	.341
1918	.333
1919	.321
1920	.330
1921	.352
1922	.351
1923	.351
1925 to Aug. 14	.328

It will be noted that he only varied three points in the four years from 1921 to 1924. No set of pitchers, no change of summer seasons, no ailments of the flesh, none of the ordinary assailments of the world, the flesh and the devil can seem to stop or stay that inevitable batting average of .340 to .350. And only Speaker can come up to him in outfield play, and even Speaker can hardly equal Roush in the past few years, for he is slowing down, while Roush is still up to his best.

It can truthfully be said that Roush is the greatest defensive outfielder in the game today. And any expert, alleged or real, who picks an all-star or all-world team without Roush is either prejudiced or blind to the real worth of man.

When they had turned over all the players, goods and chattles of the ill-fated Federal league to the majors and were about to turn in and go to bed, they discovered that one player was left over and unaccounted for. His name was Ed Roush of the Newark club. Nobody wanted him. "But you have to take him," declared Harry Sinclair. They dickered and haggled. Sinclair was sleepy and tired out. He even offered to drop below the waiver price and throw Roush in for $2,500. Nobody wanted him. Finally, just to get some rest and some sleep, John McGraw offered to take Roush for the waiver—$6,000. "Maybe I can trade him to the minors," remarked McGraw, wearily.

McGraw traded Roush to Cincinnati for an alarm clock or a pair of clocked silk socks or something. And then Roush proceeded to establish himself as one of the first five batsmen and three greatest outfielders of modern baseball for the next nine years. His nine-year batting average is .344.

They ranked Roush tenth in the most valuable player award in the National league baseball writer's special committee findings last December, but many good judges rank him fourth and a few close followers of the game rank him worse than fifth in all-around value as a player. Roush has two league batting championships to his credit, one in 1917 with a mark of .341 and the other in 1919 with .321. He is a fast man and a wonderful fielder, taking rank above all major league outfielders in covering ground and in unerring certainty on fly balls since Tris Speaker bean to decline.

Ed Roush is what might be termed a "small town guy." He is of that distinctive type, the keen, competent, shrewd, close-lipped young fellow of the rural regions who was never a "boob" or a "jay" no matter how small his town or how limited his experience. He has the force of character to succeed against any obstacle and much stubborn spirit to maintain what he thinks are his rights against any real or fancied injustice from any persons whatsoever.

When Roush went to the Federal league in 1914 from the Kitty league of Evansville, Ill., his good right arm went back on him. He at once undertook the apparently impossible task of learning to throw left-handed. He developed that left arm until it became one of the strongest and truest arms in the game. This amazing achievement speaks eloquently for Roush's force of character.

For years Roush was the most stubborn holdout in the major leagues. His type goes to the extreme in all undertakings. The first thing I asked Roush when I visited with him in the Reds training camp at Orlando last spring, was to tell me his holdout story. I felt sure it would be worth the telling. It was. I believe he was honest, if not always right. He started from a grievance. And from that point he wandered on blindly to the holdout game, and not until his good friends began to criticize him did he realize that he might have passed from the realm of his rights into the mazes and morasses of the land of unreasonableness.

I find in my notes, taken after that long visit with the famous fielder, who is the batting punch of the Reds, the following: "Roush is an earnest, honest, stubborn, fearless type."

Roush was born in Oakland City, Ind., 32 years ago this spring. Always lived there. Married an Oakland City girl.

Roush is inclined to be taciturn and retiring, but no one can play such wonderful ball and not have hidden fires. Once aroused he is apt to disregard consequences. He is a man of strong and stubborn convictions. But he has the good sense and the honest of heart and purpose to come out right in the long run. The intent of this article is to neither praise nor criticize Ed Roush, but to set him forth as he really is, a strong and most unusual character, stormy, stubborn, honest, brave and one of the truly great players of his day. He gives every straining ounce that is in him when he plays ball. An intensive person. But intensive persons are the ones who do most of the great things in the world. When you come to know Roush you cannot help but like him, for he is a real man.

The Passing Hour

FOR THOSE WHO PLAY

I do not hold that there is loss in play
And wasted time from life's pursuit of fame—
For I remember lads who went away
And cherished best their memory of a game.

Then when the gridirons back at home were bare,
Nor sun-baked diamonds stretched for them by day,
When frenzied stands could neither know nor care—
How well another game they learned to play!

One Boost for Athletics.

DONALD FRAZEE, the erratic scholastic star of TCU, is eligible for the coming fall. Doc Stewart's freshmen who hovered around the ineligible line for Clyde Littlefield last fall are reported up and over the Plimsoll mark. Every school in the conference has a good report on this and that young man whose scholastic standing is known to be wavery. Here is a little boost you might put in for intercollegiate competition. It helps those young men make passing grades.

There are two incentives—one the player's only natural desire to play, the other the fact that the coaches, friends and others interested in college success get behind him to make him work. There is a third point that possibly has weight: as an athlete, the young man knows he holds considerable attention and that his scholastic demerits are flaunted to a mocking world. A blow to pride there.

The point is that the possibility of competition stirs the athlete to academic achievement that would not be possible otherwise. But for that urge, nine-tenths of the robust youngsters who love field sports better than books would have no ambition to overcome classroom setbacks.

Mark up one point for the coach and his game.

YOU can understand why Marvin Goodwin in a peave might hang Mr. Sydney Smith on the beezer, but why should Mr. Smith bang Mr. Goodwin's proboscis? He isn't in the present race.

POSSIBLY Sydney's actions are in line with the theory that even the engineer of a local freight must live up to the demands of a job. It would be obviously useless for the poorly paid Syd to sock an umpire, so he socked a manager instead.

THE umpires' union favors the move. The more skippers that are the recipients of the wallops the less umpires get theirs. For one thing, there would be fewer skippers left in the parks.

THE football card of SMU includes three Missouri valley games for the coming fall. For the past three years the Mustangs have averaged as many with the valley clubs. Does this indicate that the Dallas institution's eyes are focused on eventual location in the valley conference?

SMU and TCU are the only conference teams that are geographically located within reach of the valley. The jump into Dallas is far more favorable than the extremely difficult one into Stillwater now necessitated by the acceptance of Oklahoma A & M.

SMU was advised some years back that its athletic future might be best served by seeking a place in the valley, but careful thought there balanced equally certain losses in baseball and track and the prospect of inability to realize on basket ball with the inadequate accommodations now available. Dallas is a great football town—can be made a good basket ball one, but it is doubtful if it will ever be a star center for college baseball and might never be for track.

Meanwhile SMU has the best location to offer valley teams for intersectional football, as their rules require playing on the college location. They go further and require college playing fields, but this point has been evaded by labeling Fair park stadium as the official college field.

TORONTO police fined a Toronto player $50 for striking a spectator. It is getting so the umps is the only party you can assault in safety.

JACK KEARNS called upon Tex Rickard, but did not discuss fights. Naturally, when two capitalists get together the conversation is on stocks, bonds or golf.

BESIDES, the point is still at issue as to whether Jack Dempsey is managed by Kearns or the missus.

How Long Will They Last?

AN INTERESTING point upon which to reflect is the question that, with the bench manager rapidly being replaced in the majors by the playing leader, how long will the present crop that is being shot into the market last?

Look over the National league: McGraw is partially his own boss. It will be only the natural desire for rest attendant on age that will retire him. Robertson, assuming the presidency of the Brooklyn club, will find that running a team on the field is too arduous. Zach Wheat probably will handle the club next year, but it is a safe guess that they will miss Robbie badly, one of the few men who can get much from little. Fletcher looks like a fixture with the Phils, but the Braves may find a new pilot. If Pittsburgh wins, McKechnie sticks. If the Bucos falter, it must be his head. Hendricks has only a gambler's chance to stick on at Cincinnati. The Cubs will have a new leader. They are managed now by a man who can not manage himself. And Hornsby is good only as go the Cards. His personal popularity as a star will carry him a year or more—then he must have a winner.

Yale Golfer To Play in Tourney

OAKMONT, PA., Aug. 22—(AP)—William Sweetser has given warning this year that he will make trouble for the nation's amateur golfers in their annual meeting at Oakmont Country club, beginning August 31.

At Merion a year ago the former Yale star failed to qualify for the match play, one of the greatest surprises of the tournament, for he was a youngster who had just come into the ranks of the leaders through winning the intercollegiate championship of 1920, beating Chick Evans in the finals of the amateur title play in 1922, and gaining the runner-up position to Max Marston in 1923, the Philadelphia winning at the thirty-eighth hole.

In his first appearance in the amateur, as a collegian in 1920, he reached the third round where he was eliminated by Fred J. Wright.

BALDRIDGE TO 'SELL' WICHITA AT CONVENTION

Will Try to Get for Town Title of "Best City in in Texas."

Upon the silvery tongue of William Baldridge, local real estate operator, depends Wichita Falls' chance this year of acquiring the title of "the best city in Texas." Mr. Baldridge was named Saturday by the Wichita Falls real estate board to represent it at Galveston Sept. 14, 15 and 16 when the state real estate board convention is held and the annual contest for "the best city" is held.

Each city represented at the convention is allowed to present its claims as to why it is the best all-around place in which to live, and the winner is given a huge cup. San Antonio has won it the last three years in succession.

Harrison Is Speaker.

The principal address of the day was delivered by Hubert Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, who displayed one of the new booklets recently issued by the chamber as a booster campaign for the irrigated valley. He gave facts and figures concerning its compilation and then made a brief report on his industrial development study at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., this past summer.

Mr. Harrison also commented in some measure on an advertising program that might be undertaken here as an aid to the irrigated section. He said that while in Chicago this summer he had conferred with representatives of the W. H. Rankin and company, a noted advertising firm, and had obtained figures and data on a proposed plan for thoroughly advertising the Wichita county improvement project throughout the middle west.

Would Cost $11,000.

He said that such a campaign could be pushed through to a successful conclusion for $11,000. Its aim, Mr. Harrison said, would be to stimulate interest in the irrigation possibilities here; after which inquiries from prospective settlers could be handled by the local realty board.

In this connection the speaker asserted that the board could perform an important service to the community by limiting its field of activity to strictly real estate matters and carefully nurturing a sound and stable realty development.

M'TIGUE AND SLATTERY WIN THEIR BOUTS

Former Champs Beat Marullo and Buffalo Lad Whips Rosenbloom.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP).—Two light heavyweights tonight regained prestige lost b ydefeat several weeks ago when Mike McTigue, former champion, and Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, N. Y., scored impressive victories. The erstwhile title holder won a judg's decision over the rugged New Orleans fighter, Young Marullo in a 12-round bout, while Slattery gained an easy victory against Maxey Rosenbloom of New York after six lightning fast rounds.

U. S. Zionists Are Riled at Policies

VIENNA, Aug. 22.—Criticism of Great Britain as the power which undertook the mandate of Palestine to assist in the creation of a Jewish national home there was voiced by Louis Lipsky, chairman of the Zionist organization of America in an address before today's session of the fourteenth Zionist congress.

"I am bound to express the disappointment of American Zionists," he said, "over the fact that the mandatory power conceives its task in Palestine as that of an arbiter between two contending forces, instead of moving forward voluntarily and actively supporting the making of the Jewish national home.

"The mandatory power has seen fit to adopt the attitude of 'benevolent neutrality' which it has abandoned only in exceptional cases. American Zionists feel especially aggrieved at the fact that the application of article VI of the Palestine mandate which says that "the administration of Palestine shall facilitate Jewish immigration under suitable conditions and shall encourage, in cooperation with the Jewish agency, close settlement by the Jews on the land 'has not been met.'"

Do You Understand the New Headlight Law?

The headlights of every automibile, motor truck, motorcycle, tractor, trailer, semi-trailer and bicycle in the State of Texas must be inspected and adjusted by an Official Adjusting Station—on or before September 1, 1925.

READ THIS EXCERPT FROM THE LAW:

Amount of Work for 25c

For the 25-cent fee received by the test station only the following should be done:

1. The equipment should be inspected.
2. The bulb should be focused.
3. The headlamps should be properly aimed.

Any work done to place the headlight equipment in condition to be adjusted may be charged for as repair work.

Test men are not expected to do repair work on any part of the headlight equipment for the 25-cent fee received. Equipment must be in good condition before a certificate is issued, and the test men are hereby instructed to inform the owners of motor vehicles or motorcycles if the headlight equipment is in bad condition in any respect, and at the same time inform them of the cost, if any, of putting the equipment in proper condition. In other words, there should be an understanding with the owner of the motor vehicle or motorcycle before any repair work is done.

FEES—After lights are tested and adjustments and equipments made to conform to this law, the owner is given a certificate showing that lights conform to the law, as to tilt, focal adjustment and efficient operation. For this certificate a fee of 25 cents (25c) is charged. FOR REPAIR OF PARTS, THE OWNER IS REQUIRED TO PAY AND THESE ARE NOT COVERED BY THE FEE.

ANY REPAIR WORK OR REPLACEMENT IF LENSES, REFLECTORS, WIRING, LAMPS, ETC., MUST BE PAID BY THE MOTORIST—IN ADDITION TO THE FEE.

Magnolia's Mitchell County Oiler Is Texas Week's Sensation

NEW POOL FOR MARATHON IS CERTAIN NOW

Crude Market Weak As Companies Follow Humble Cut

NEW WICHITA POOL

Texas Is Third State To Pass Billion Barrel Output Mark

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 22.—It was the Magnolia Petroleum company's day this week.

In the big West Texas country, where a 5,000-acre drilling block is small, the Magnolia opened up a new pool in Mitchell county on the immense geological structure known as the Marathon Fold.

The well was No. 2 Foster, southeast of the southwest of section 17, Block 29, T. & P. Ry. survey, flowing 200 barrels daily by heads with the 8-inch casing set at 2,453 feet dropped into the hole when it lost the seat.

The pay, described as a sandy lime, was at 2,870 to 2,872 feet and the oil is 30 degrees gravity, four degrees higher than the nearest production, 18 miles northeast in the Westbrook field. The character of the pay is not yet know but efforts are being made to connect it with the Big Lake field, which has that peculiar substance known as oolites, whose grains are shaped like an egg and is as porous as sand if not more so. Big Lake so far has a monopoly on the oolites.

Until steel tankage is finished no effort will be made to recover the casinghead and complete.

Magnolia has 13,500 acres in the block and the only break is a 100-acre lease owned by the Gulf Production company immediately south of the well. There is little acreage available at the nearest outside piece one and one-half miles southeast. Royalty trading has been reported but no lease deals. Virtually every big company has a representative there, however.

There are a dozen tests started or starting within 10 or 15 miles, all on big blocks.

Market Is Weak.

The crude market is sick. Humble Pipe Line company cut North Texas crude 5 to 37 cents a barrel Aug. 15, Magnolia followed on Aug. 18 and the Texas Pipe Line company met it Aug. 21. Gulf Pipe Line company, Prairie Pipe Line company and Sinclair Pipe Line company so far are firm in the highere schedule. In the independent list, United Producers Pipe Line company, American Refining company and Texhoma Oil & Refining company met Humble's cut. Panhandle Refining company followed the Texas cut.

The gasoline market is quite weak and an inquiry to sell three cars under 10 cents would break the market t othat point on the part of all selling. Fuel oil is weakening with other burning oils, export gasoline is slow and the natural gasolines have no redeeming feature.

Too many cracking units, is the solution offered by local market sages. "For effect, I might say we are almost getting 42 gallons of gasoline from a barrel of crude," one refiner said.

Closed Car Fallacy.

The explanation that closed cars are cutting down touring is scouted as ridiculous in Fort Worth circles. The writer knows of two persons who bought closed cars in order to make long trips Aug. 1, while any number of persons say more closed cars than ever are being used on tours. In Estes Park, Colo., more tourists in automobiles have visited there than ever before, reports a returned tourist.

A trip south and southwest of Fort Worth in Texas discloses a pitiful condition. Everywhere rigs are idle for one reason: no water. There has not been rain in some spots for a year, while others had only a light shower or two in a long time.

In the face of this, wildcats are being announced daily in West Texas. Counties are being scouted for the most obvious structures and most of these are large companies that are doing the work.

Passes Billion Mark.

Humble Oil & Refining company led all others in the production report for the second quarter in Texas. About 22,000,000 barrels was recovered then. Humble led with 4,533,396 barrels. Next in order were Gulf Production company, 3,378,143; The Texas company, 3,184,794; Pure Oil company, 2,567,842; Magnolia Petroleum company, 1,527,253; Big Lake Oil company, operating on Texas university lands in one field, Big Lake, 1,202,442; United North & South Oil company, 1,603,716; Texon Oil & Land company, group one, also operating only in Big Lake, 905,807; Simms Oil company, 785,169; Republic Production company, 779,280; and Sun Oil company, 725,113 barrels.

Texas is the third state to pass the billion barrel mark since drilling started. Including the first six months of 1925, Texas has yielded 1,031,415,000 barrels of crude oil. The other two states achieving this mark are Oklahoma and California. This mark has been reached since 1894, though drilling began and oil was produced in 1888.

Crockett County.

There was little of note elsewhere. Humble O. & R. Co. got its second test on its World pool acreage under way an danother test was located by two independent operators 1,470 feet east of the World discovery, for which Humble and Marland paid $1,400,000 of which $350,000 was cash.

A survey reveals there are 16 drilling wells, three tests shut down, four rigs and three locations in five counties, within a radius of 30 or 40 miles of the Big Lake field, outside of production.

Crockett county leads with four rigs, five tests drilling, three locations and one test shut down. Irion county has one wildcat going, Pecos county has two, Upton county two and Reagan county six tests drilling and two shut down.

New Wichita Pool.

Texhoma Oil & Refining company has opened a new pool in Wichita county, southeast of Electra. It is No. 2 John and Jeff Waggoner, which made 70 barrels in 24 hours at 1,767 to 1,770 1-2 feet. It is in the northwest of the southeast of section 11, B. S. & F. Ry. survey, near Beaver Creek district.

North Beaver Gets New Pool

Southwest Wichita county provided the high spot for an almost featurless North Texas week during the past seven days. The Texhoma Oil and Refining company opened another pool north of Beaver Creek that has every promise of developing into another area very much like that on the McCarty and Nance farms to the south. In the market things dropped from bad to worse. The Texas company, last of the major purchasing companies to retain its high summer schedule for crude oil purchases cut Friday morning, and the district entered in earnest into what is characterized by many as the worst slump in its history. Literally, there is nothing doing. In Archer two areas are showing a transient activity, namely the first Waite Phillips pool southeast of Dundee and the Barkley and Meadows area north of Archer City.

Barkley and Meadows Area Is Most Active Spot in Whole of Archer

Southeast Baylor's new pool has settled to a pumping proposition with most of the wells at a point where abandonment might pay better than pumping. North Young county shows a well or so drilling in the Northeast Litchfield area in the F-H-E pool southwest of Olney. Montague county is quiet with only three or four rigs running, while the continual "nothing new" from Wilbarger county may account for growing inactivity there.

The refined markets continue to slow up considerably, although no cuts, tank wagon or retail have been announced in gasoline for local territory.

Production continued its upward tendency, showing a small gain for the fourth consecutive week.

In Wichita county, 450 feet each way out of the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of the BS&F RRCO survey, abstract 387, section 11, block 7, Texhoma's No. 2, John and Jeff Waggoner is showing for about 100 barrels a day, from sand at 2,764-70 feet. There is a dry hole 1,700 feet to the west and two or three very small wells nearly a mile to the northwest. Otherwise the area is open to wide development, although definitely separated from the old Beaver Creek pool a mile to the south by a known synclinal area. The sand in this pool is reckoned as the same 1,600-foot sand in the Beaver Creek pool, which has to date proven one of the best of South Electra's many prolific areas. The well will be equipped for the pump and the rig skidded to a diagonal northwest location, 150 feet each way out of the same corner. The well is near the east side of a large block of Texhoma holdings, but far enough in that it won't see the devolpment around that it might have experienced under other circumstances.

In Archer county the most active area and one of the only two showing activity of note now is the Berkley-Meadows area north of Archer City. Here Freeman and Hampton and T. G. Lomax both have very small wells on the first tier south of the original Freeman and Hampton extension well. The Freeman and Hampton well, their No. 2, was originally looked upon as a dry hole but has since shown a negligible amount of oil. Sand in both instances showed a marked dip to the south. The Freeman and Hampton No. 3, offsetting the Muse-Roberton extension well of last week was completed during the week and at last reports was still making better than 250 barrels of oil a day. Lee Wilson is starting a test to the north of the field, while the two small wells on the southern edge have set the new locations on the north edge of production.

Waite Phillips Is Drilling Lots Of Holes on Horrits Survey Pool

In the year old Waite Phillips pool southeast of Dundee, Waite Phillips is conducting an intensive drilling campaign on his Horrits survey lease. Recent completions of some real good wells here failed to attract the usual interest, the pool being the sale property of the Oklahoman, or his assignees now.

Texhoma and Murchison and Fain failed to make an impression after getting a good show of oil in their No. 1, Richardson in the northwest quarter of block 11, Thomas McCoy survey, northwest of the Carey pool. The well had broken sand showing for about 3 or 4 barrels a day at about 1,200 feet.

Sun company's No. 1, Otto Dietrich, a mile east of the Gambrell was abandoned at a total depth of 1,251 feet after showing for a time for a well and creating considerable interest.

Marland has a second rig running in its Southeast Litchfield extension, while on the east edge of the F-H-E pool southeast of Ilney Clark-Harbin-Baldridge have a nice well in their No. 1, Bishop, with the old Goldsmith duster and a north offset dry hole between it and production in the pool. The operators are moving east for their second well.

Just west of Anarene Smith and Trahan are down past 850 feet in their No. 1, Justice, Patton survey, 50 feet north of the old McNamara dry hole, and should be down Sunday or Monday. This is one of the most interesting wildcats in the county.

Marland has a third wildcat on its Krupka lease, J. Scott survey, east of Swastika, going and is down past 900 feet and drilling, while north of the survey in the Robert Hensely survey, Richardson tract, Tidal is drilling at about the same depth on a wildcat of their own.

Southeast Baylor County Will Show Two Drilling Wells Soon

In Southeast Baylor county Petroleum Producers have a derrick up for a test in the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of block 2, 427, on their hundred acre lease. The well will be about two locations east of the Maer and Staniforth No. 4, Mills, which was completed in the week and went on the pump for about 75 barrels a day. Maer and Staniforth are moving south for their No. 5, Mills, all in block 2,428, TE &LCO survey.

In the Dallas county school lands, Crabtree and Carrico have spudded and are drilling on their No. 1, Parkey, on the old Empire block.

nl the Riner and Bailey eastward extension to the old Texhoma-Gose pool in the northwest quarter of the county Texhoma completed its No. 44 Goose, south of the Riner and Bailey well, for about 75 barrels, and No. 45, Gose, west of the well, now going on the pump. Texhoma's No. 46, east of their south offset to the discovery is down past 1,297 feet and drilling. Riner and Bailey's No. 2, was a small well, while the discovery is still making about 100 barrels a day. The Riner and Bailey No. 3, in the southeast corner of their 10 acres is down past 600 feet and drilling.

In this area is in other parts of the county water is lacking and what little drilling is taking place i sseriously hampered by the shortage.

South of Luke Wilson Consolidated Oil company seemingly has a dry hole in its No. 3, Sallie B. Dycus, H. Smith survey, drilling below a last reported depth of 1,607 feet and filling out to 1,750 feet. The Consolidated's hole on the Kelsay farm southwest of Dundee was dry below 1,700 feet.

South Vernon Quieter Than Usual With Bigger Tests Hanging Fire

The principals South Vernon developments are in the deep sand wells and in a west side 1,300-foot dfinition where Barkley and Meadows have a dry hole at 1,325 feet in their No. 1, Bond-Hawkins-Williams, Barkley and Meadows Stephens lease well in the northeast corner of their 40 acres in section 83 is showing for the opener in the new deep horizon there with sandy lime at 2,379-2,400 feet. The well is fishing for a lost liner and will run a string of five-inch casing and complete, with the hole showing plenty of oil and looking like 100 to 200 barrels.

Atlantic has its No. 5 Zipperle considerably to the southeast on the same sand, apparently, and is drilling in with cable tools. The Barkley-Meadows well is a south offset to the old Prince Brothers well, quit and abandoned at a shallower depth.

Panhandle Follows Texaco Crude Cut

The Panhandle Refining company has posted a new schedule for crude oil, complying with that of the Texas company. The Panhandle's schedule is effective as of August 21, at 7 a. m. The American Refining company and Texhoma Oil and Refining company cuts were made earlier in the week, immediately following the Magnolia cut.

Panhandle Profit Shows a Decline

Panhandle Producing and Refining company reports for quarter ended June 30, 1925, net income of $61,483 after taxes and deductions, but before sinking fund, depreciation and depletion. This compares with $182,923 in preceeding quarter and $68,511 in second quarter of 1924. Net income for six months ended June 30, 1925, was 244,407 before providing for sinking fund, depreciation and depletion, comparing with $255,146 in first half of previous year.

Skelly Places Big Steel Tank Order

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 22.—The American Tank company of Oklahoma City has been given an order by the Skelly Oil company for a minimum of 250 replacement steel welded tanks for use in North Texas and Oklahoma oil fields. The tanks are of the flow and stock type and will be manufactured at the American Tank company factory located near the Oklahoma state fair grounds.

Each of the tanks to be supplied the Skelly Oil company will represent about $260, making the total expenditure approximately $70,000.

Yesterday's Cuts

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP).—The third reduction within a week in the price of export gasoline was announced by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey today when a cut of 1-2 cent a gallon was put into effect. The reduction brings the price of cargo lots to 15 1-4 cents a gallon and that of United States navy grade to 14 cents. Export kerosene was lowered 1-4 cent a gallon.

REAGAN AREA IS ACTIVE IN WILDCATTING

Sixteen Drilling Away From Proven Territory

A survey reveals there are sixteen wells, three tests shut down, four rigs and three locations in five counties in the Big Lake district outside of the proven area in West Texas.

Crockett county leads with four rigs, five tests drilling, three locations and one test shut down. Irion county has one wildcat drilling, Pecos county has two, Upton county two and Reagan county six tests drilling and two shut down.

The district in detail follows:

Crockett County.

J. S. Cook et al., University No. 1, sec. 14, block 29, underreamed 12 1-2 inch casing at 1,000 feet.

Crockett Drilling syndicate, Shannon No. 2, sec. 9, block 10, drilling at 300 feet; No. 1 Massie, section 28, block "UV", drilling at 2,815 feet. Elevation, 2,512 feet.

Cumberland Oil company Couch No. 1, sec. 18, block "QR", drilling water well.

Marland Oil Co., Corbett No. 1, sec. 19, block B2, location; Todd No. 1, sec. 17, block WX, location.

Schaefer et al., University No. 1, sec. 9, block 47, drilling at 200 feet.

Irion County.

Pecos County.

Dixie Oil company, Sherbino No. 1, sec. 51, block "C4", drilling at 480 feet.

Reagan County.

Cogsdell and Mascho University No. 1 sec. 23, block 8, drilling in salt at 3,010. Elevation 2,884 feet.

W. H. Dunning et al. Sugg No. 1, sec. 185, block 2, drilling in hard gray lime at 2,860 feet. Elevation 2,666 feet.

O'Reilley-Slack et al. University No. 1, sec. 17, block 10, shut down at 3,115 feet. Elevation 2,604 feet

Upton County.

Big Mesa Oil company, University No. 1, sec. 17, block 3, shut down at 1,770 feet. Will run 8 inch casing. Elevation 2,690 feet.

Marland Oil company Baker No. 1, sec. 8, block "AB", drilling at 250 feet.

News Of The Fields

Stonewall County

Arkansas Fuel Oil company has changed the location of its deep test in Stonewall county near Aspermont. Location is on the Joe J. and Jesse Craft lands, 960 feet east and 300 feet north of the southwest corner of section 120, block "F," H&TC survey. Contract depth is 3,000 feet but it is likely that it will go 4,000 feet if necessary.

Comanche County

Twelve feet more of drilling has failed to help materially the Trojan Oil company's No. 1 Utterback, five miles east of Dublin Comanche county, though it put 500 feet more of oil into the hole.

The wildcat had a grey lime, oil bearing, at 3,523 feet and at 3,550 feet, its present depth, bit is still in the lime with 2,500 feet of oil in the hole.

Montague County

The big gas has broken in on Newblock Oil company's No. 2 Maddox, Nocona district, Montague county, and the well is at present shut in pending preparations to kill the gas flow.

No. 2 Maddox had 7 cubic feet of gas at 855 feet which was mudded off and an oil sand taken at 875 to 914. The test swabbed 438 barrels of 23 gravity oil the first 24 hours and the first day's pumping yielded 272 barrels. Total depth is 915 feet.

East Central Texas

Only the Richland pool of the five Woodbine sand pools along the Balcones fault in East Central Texas revealed an increase the past fiscal week. Its production was 3,420 barrels a day from 9 wells, a gain of 480 barrels and with one new well in.

Powell field did 44,640 barrels a day from 823 wells, a decrease of 850 barrels and with two new wells in.

Mexia did 19,005 barrels a day from 452 wells, a loss of 95 barrels and two wells.

Currie did 1,110 barrels a day from 56 wells, a loss of 10 barrels and eight wells.

Mitchell County

Trading in the new pool opened up by the Magnolia Petroleum company in Mitchell county, West Texas, 18 miles southwest of Westbrook field and southwest of Colorado, seems largely confined to royalty deals.

Nearest acreage available is one and one-half miles from the well and the attitude of buyers is that is entirely too high on the present showing of the well.

A. F. Marion of Dallas paid $10,000 cash for a one-sixty-forth royalty on section 19, 640 acres, in block 29, T&P survey, it is reported, with a few other deals made.

The No. 2 W. L. Foster, southeast of the southwest of section 19, block 29, T&P survey, which started it all, is gauging 12 1-2 barrels at every head, these occurring each one and one-half hours. The 8-inch casing set at 2,453 feet lost a seat and dropped to the bottom.

The well will not be touched until plenty of steel storage now building is completed. Oil tests 30 gravity and is considerably lighter and contains less sulphur than that produced in the Westbrook field, reports from the field say.

OKLAHOMA IS SLOWING UP; 142 NEW ONES

Group III Refined Markets Generally Slump Off

TULSA, Aug. 22.—There were 142 completions "officially completed" in Oklahoma and Kansas the past fiscal week. Of this number 103 were in Oklahoma and 39 in Kansas. There were 59 producers in Oklahoma and 44 dry holes, and 27 producers and 12 failures in Kansas.

Oklahoma oil wells were divided among the following counties: Okmulgee, 8; Kay, Osage and Tulsa, 6 each; Creek and Pawnee, 5 each; Garfield, 4; Lincoln, Seminole and Stephens, 3 each; Hughes, Okfuskee, Wagoner, 2 each; Caddo, Grady, Jefferson, Payne, 1 each. Its failures were: Creek, 9; Pawnee, 6; Okfuskee, 5; Tulsa, 4; Garfield, Hughes and Okmulgee, 3 each; Wagoner, 2; Carter, Comanche, Kay and Seminole, 1 each.

Kansas producers: Greenwood, 14; Cowley, 8; Butler, 2; Chautauqua, Marion and Woodson, 1 each. Its failures: Elk and Sumner, 3 each; Butler, Cowley and Greenwood, 2 each.

Gasoline Market.

Gasoline prices throughout the Mid-oCntinent continue to weaken, according to reports gathered from many sources. The tendency for first one marketing area to undergo tank wagon reductions and then another, along with crude prices softening, makes it difficult for refiners to halt the decline of motor fuels.

Oklahoma (group 3) prices for 56-58, U. S. motor, range from 9 1-2 to 10 cents, while the 58-60, U. S. motor, is offered at 9 3-4 to 10 1-8; the56-58, 450, is around 9 1-2 to 9 3-4 cents, and 64-66, 375, is around 10 1-8 to 10 1-2. Natural gasolines are offered and being sold from 11 7-8 to 12 1-4 cents. Kerosene and distillate price s are more stationary than other petroleum products. The 41-43 kerosene is offered from 4 1-8 to 4 3-8; the 42-44, at 4 3-4 flat, and distillates range from 3 1-2 to 3 5-8, with gas oil at 3 to 3 1-4 cents. Fuel oils are slipping, being quoted at $1 to $1.12 1-2 a barrel.

Platt's Oilgram, which has become an accepted criterion of the daily refined market, reports Chicago prices from 9 1-2 to 10 cents on U. S. motor to the trade, with the average offered by jobbers at 10 to 10 1-4 cents. There are some reports of export activity at New Orleans, but trading is flat. At New York such U. S. motor as is moving commands 11 3-4 cents.

Northern Oklahoma.

Tonkawa field the past week produced 48,922 barrels a day from 776 wells, a loss of 3,788 barrels and with two new wells in. The 111 deep sand wells did 31,769 barrels.

Braman townsite pool did 17,670 barrels a day from nine wells, a decrease of 167 barrels and one new well.

North Braman pool did 2,095 barrels from 20 wells, a decrease of 190 barrels.

Hubbard pool did 2,441 barrels from 28 wells, a gain of 25 barrels and a loss of one well.

Otoe pool did 6,673 barrels from 20 wells, a gain of 312 barrels and one new well.

Thomas pool made 3,904 barrels a day from five wells, a decrease of 119 barrels.

Wewoka and Holdenville.

Cromwell pool did 28,883 barrels a day from 405 wells, a loss of 488 barrels and three new wells.

Wetumka district, including Gilcrease and Papoose, did 15,255 barrels from 201 wells, a loss of 593 barrels and six new wells in.

Wewoka did 11,801 barrels from 143 wells, a gain of 772 barrels and one new well.

South Weleetka did 2,487 barrels from 39 wells, a gain of 75 barrels.

Holdenville-Gypsy pool did 2,202 barrels from five wells, a gain of 337 barrels and two new wells

Wichita Output Almost Steady; 95,810 Each Day

THIRD SAND AT SMACKOVER IS NOT SUCCESS

Blossom Pay Shows Only 20,000 a Day From 50 Wells

By D. H. BANCROFT.

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 22.—With 50 wells running a daily average of 16,000 to 20,000, on a liberal allowance, the third (Blossom) Smackover sand isn't proving the great producer enthusiasts predicted it would be when it was first tapped. Gas and salt water are putting a crimp in it, but to say that it will not perform up to expectations is taking a big chance, for experience has shown that Smackover is and probably always will be the "X" of the equasion. Three years old, it is as much an unknown quantity as it was when the first wellwas drilled. Hopes for the third sand's future as a big producer are based on its repetition of Smackover history. Smackover is and always has been an area of tremendous gas pressure. It was a gas district before oil was found. After the Oil Operators Trust craters had relieved pressure which was holding back the oil, V. K. V. Drilling company got the first producer. Gas was a source of trouble and danger in the recent boom and is repeating the performance with the Blossom—and will probably repeat with the Woodbine when the time comes to explore that horizon more fully.

Lots of Gas Wells.

Gas is particularly noticeable in the list of this week's completions in the field, there being seven such wells, all in the Blossom, with an initial open flow capacity of 239,000,000 cubic feet. Salt water is also present in a number of new wells, though not in quite so large a percentage taking the cut wells as a group. One well, however, was 95 per cent water. Another is somewhat of an extension and came in a gasser with water. Ohio Oil Co. No. 5 Goodwin in 29-15-15. Penguin Oil Co. No. 3 Sanford, which is 95 per cent water, is in 17-16-15, making a net 200 barrels of oil.

Analyzing the performance of this week's completions it is seen that the average initial production of Smackover wells has dropped fast and far in the last few weeks, the week's figure being 288 barrls for 27 wells compared to 503 for last week's 24 producers. Graves sand wells this week averaged 296 barrels for 14 wells against 670 barrels for the same number of completions last week. Blossom sand producers, however, improved slightly despite the water and gas, averaging 300 barrels initial for 12 producers to 293 barrels for nine wells last week.

Complete 51 Wells.

There were 51 completions in the Shreveport district during the week compared with 39 last week and of these 30 were producers against 20 the week before, the 30 having an initial production of 7,914 barrels, however, in contrast to 12,998 which was in itself a decrease of 16,078 from the week before. There were nine gassers this week with 280 million feet open flow capacity and six last week with 226 million feet; 12 failures this week and four the week before.

Smackover completed 37 wells, 27 producers with 7,784 barrels compared to 24 with 12,079 last week seven gassers with 239 million feet and three junked holes. Scattered wildcat faiuures brought Arkansas completions to 43. In Louisiana Caddo had two new wells with 30 barrels and two failures, both in the original producing area, one of which was a deep test with cable tools. Cotton Valley reported one 100-barrel producer and LaSalle parish another failure. LaSalle, however, has its first commercial producer, Rowe-Wallace Urania 2 in 19-10-2E pumping 30 barrels of heavy crude very similar to the Nevada county, Ark., product. Caddo's deep test was the Texas company's B-1 Federal—Jeems bayou in 15-20-16, salt water at 3,630 feet after pounding away with cable tools since the early part of the summer.

Production Figures.

Production for the week just closed measured in pipeline runs reversed itself and instead of a gain of 26,397 barrels registered for the district last week, there was a decrease of 68,271 barrels—Smackover again. Louisiana runs gained all of 1,120 barrels with a total production of 344,855 barrels but the "drop" disappeared in the "bucket" of Arkansas decline of 69,391 barrels, on a total output of 1,701,245 barrels.

Production for the district was 2,046,100 barrels compared to 2,114,370 barrels last week; Louisiana 344,855 against 343,735 last week and Arkansas 1,701,245 compared with 1,770,636. By pools prodpction was as follows:

Frazier to Go With Hammond And Haddox Co.

Bruce Frazier, for the past three years deputy supervisor of the oil and gas section of the Texas railroad commission, will be associated in the future with Pink Hammond and Haddox under the firm name, Hammond-Haddox-Frazier, it was learned here last week. Offices for the firm will be in the Staley building, room 404.

Frazier has for the past three years been employed by the railroad commission to look after things in the west half of Wichit county and Archer county. He has proven one of the most popular officers that has ever been attached to that division, and has made friends for himself with the operator, derrick hand, and producer alike. It is said of him that he made the, what many oil men ter m"unpleasant" supervision of the commission, as agreeable as possible to operators, still complying to the letter owith its requirements.

His connection with Hammond-Haddox-Frazier will date from Sept. 1, the date of his leaving the service of the commission.

Complete High Gravity Well In Deeper Pay

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 22.—Ezell No. 1 of Jim Stock in the southeast corner of the northwest, late northeast, 18-17-14, was completed Friday as a high gravity producer from a new low level for the old El Dorado east field. Although not a flowing well, the test has a strong show of gas and is expected to make an excellent pumper. Stock estimates it will make from 200 to 275 barrels daily. The well was swabbed all day and each time the crew came out of the hole, the gas pressure sent a stream of oil over the crown block.

When shaken down oil from the wel ltested 35 gravity at a temeprature of 78. Experienced oil men were optimistic of the possibilities of the low pay. They base their conclusions on the showing of this well, which was far from being a perfect completion. The pressure is extremely strong under existing conditions. When setting casing some of the pipe was mashed and consequently the well could not be swabbed all the way down. The crew reports the swab went to within about 200 feet of the bottom. Trouble was also had in getting the plug cemented at the proper depth. The well is an old pumper which was deepened from the regular depth in the east field. Although several tests in that vicinity have had high gravity production from a pay which is looked upon as Blossom sand

Duncan Wildcat Peps Up Stephens

DUNCAN, Okla., Aug. 22.—The Pace well No. 1 in the southwest of the southwest of section 12-2s-8w, 7 miles southwest of Duncan, continues to hold the center of attraction in Stephens county, with a flow of 1,000 to 1,200 barrels daily.

Workmen are busy day and night constructing additional tankage to care for the oil. The Rock Island refinery has laid one 2-inch line to their plant four miles away and are constructing an additional line. The surplus oil is being stored in earthen tanks.

Three new locations, offsets, have been staked off, and derricks are being constructed, and machinery is moving in to develop the lease which is known as Fobbs' Indian lease.

With the discovery of this new well oil men gener

Directors and Superintendents of Exhibits Already Picked

HASKELL, Aug. 22.—The Haskell County Fair association, which has worked continuously since the closing of the gates last year, announces all things are now ready in point of ground space, exhibit halls, exhibits of all kinds, horse, motorcycle and automobile races. The dates are October 1, 2 and 3.

F. N. Clifford, the manager, is working out details with the directors, who are: President, Hardy Grissom; vice-president, Henry Alexander; secretary-treasurer, M. H. Post; directors, O. E. Patterson; M. F. Spurlock, M. R. Smith, W. Winert, Courtney Hunt, J. S. Abernathy, J. A. White, J. B. Post, A. B. Carouthers, R. V. Robertson, H. M. Smith and J. U. Fields. He has appointed the department directors as follows: Home demonstration and culinary, Mrs. T. A. Pinkerton; agricultural; Roy Neal; livestock, John D. Hughes; poultry, John P. Payne; beautifying of the home, Mrs. H. M. Smith; exhibition hall and exhibits (some one will be substituted to take the place of B. M. Whiteker, who expects to be engaged elsewhere in his usual duties with the West Texas chamber of commerce); art and textile, Mesdames Clarence Lewis and R. V. Robertson; education, H. D. Neff, superintendent of Haskell schools; old relics, Mrs. Henry Post; parades, J. B. Post; races and sports, Henry Alexander; publicity and information, S. A. Roberts; directors will have the following superintendents: beef cattle, Earl Atchison; dairy cattle, T. A. Pinkerton; draft horses, Paul Frierson; swine, sheep and goats, B. L. Jackson; poultry, J. C. Crawford; agricultural, W. G. Pope; community exhibits, P. S. Young; publicity and information, W. M. Free; community singing department, Mrs. Hardy Grissom.

many leaders in New York City. New Jersey is another state where an important election will be held this year. For eight years New Jersey has had democratic governors. Now the republicans hope to win the state away from the democrats this fall and to make a solid New England and a sold east for Calvin Coolidge in the presidential year to come.

The battles planned in New York and New Jersey with pen pictures of the leaders will be given to the readers of this newspaper in the near future. Congressman William Oldfield, chairman of the democratic congressional committee is out west fanning the democratic embers into life. There are important elections in New York and New Jersey this year but the man from Arkansas isn't on the firing line.

Bootlegger Loads Grapes With Wine

LONDON, Aug. 22.—America's ingenuous bottleggers might learn a trick or two from the ordinary English excursionists returning from their holidays to the continent. To escape high prices that must be paid for rare wines and liquors in their own heavily taxed land, scores of these trippers have been trying to sneak bottles home hidden in their clothes and in the case of cripples, inside hollow artificial legs and arms.

The prize package so far, however, was a lucious looking basket of grapes. The fruit looked a little flabby to the keen eye of one customs man in Dover.

"Excuse me, they look so lovely I'd like to have one," he remarked to the passenger going through the inspection sheds, and thereupon he plucked a grape and put it in his mouth.

Surprise and delight was written all over his face as he invited the passenger to wait a minute.

The traveler had deflated each grape with a needle pointed syringe and then inflated them again with rare and heart gladdening liquor.

TO HOLD REVIVAL AT VERNON

VERNON, Aug. 22.—A two weeks' revival meeting under the auspices of the First Baptist church of this city will begin here August 30 with the Rev. N. Y. Pond of Dallas in the pulpit, according to ann ouncement by Rev. E. F. Lyon of the church here. H. C. Norsworthy of Vernon will lead the song service.

OPEN DITCH

wide funds for building the line, it is said.

The report of the committee in full was as follows:

On July 18th, 1925, Mr. F. B. Curd, commissioner of public utilities, appeared before the real estate board and advocated the building of a pipe line from Lake Wichita to the city water works. The recommendation was approved by Mr. R. E. Huff, who was also present.

As a result, the real estate board through its various members has undertaken an investigation to determine whether or not it should endorse the proposal of Mr. Curd and to advise the citizenship of its findings.

The water works was inspected. An examination made of the methods of deodorizing, clarifying, chlorinating and pumping of the city water. The laboratory was visited where daily tests are made of the bacterial contents.

Such portions of the city ditch were traversed as were accessible. Two trips were made to Lake Wichita. The first to view the condition of the lake and its outlet into the city ditch and the second to determine how badly it had filled up with mud since it was built some twenty odd years ago.

A great deal of time was given to the reading of contracts and records covering the matter of the several interests and rights in the waters of the lake and in the ditch.

Especial attention was given to the sanitary conditions which now prevail along the ditch and the future sanitary situation was considered.

It is necessary for a proper understanding of the recommendations which will be made to have some knowledge of the conditions surrounding our present water works and its history.

Over twenty years ago Lake Wichita was built by Mr. Kemp and his associates. The records state that the lake covers an area of 2,000 acres with a drainage area above it on Holliday creek of over 100,000 acres, and it has a capacity at spillway level of 13,800 acre feet of approximately 4,500,000,000 gallons.

It was built primarily to impound water for the irrigation of several thousand acres of land along Holliday creek, a water supply for Wichita Falls was a mere incident as the town was then but little more than a village.

As the city grew various transfers were made until now the waters of the lake and the rights in the ditch are almost wholly the property of the city. In our investigation we found only three parties at interest—the city, Wichita Falls Electric company, and Irrigation District No. 1. There may be other interests, but we did not find a record of them. The interests of the Electric company are very small and easily taken care of.

In 1917-18, on account of a continuing drouth and the use of water for irrigation, Lake Wichita practically went dry. This caused the people to demand further and more ample water supply which has now been secured through the construction of Lake Kemp.

As a matter of fact had the waters of Lake Wichita been used for a city water supply only, during and preceding the dry years of 1917-18 there would have never been a water shortage as we will show later on.

The city water works and pumping plant are located at the south end of Burnett street, adjoining the Electric company's power plant. Lake Wichita, the source of supply is about six miles distant. The connection between the two is made by an open ditch which passes through a thickly settled portion of the city for a considerable distance.

The ditch is located on a slope so that during every rain all manner of filth is washed into it. Our observation showed that many open toilets existed along it which we were informed were not being used. Many additions to the city are planned along this canal and it is only a matter of a few short years until it will be running right through a densely populated section of the city with consequent additional contamination.

In spite of all the efforts of the city water department the ditch is filled with weeds and decaying vegetation. The removal of this vegetable growth is a great expense and relief is only temporary at the best.

Water moccasin snakes and other reptiles were observed by us in our inspection swimming in the ditch.

It is obviously impossible to operate and mantain this ditch in a sanitary condition despite the utmost vigilance on the part of the water department. It is a disgrace for a city the size of Wichita Falls to have to secure its water supply through what amounts to an open sewer.

The ditch is inadequate in size. Culverts had to be removed and the banks raised to get enough water through it so the city could get enough water during the hot days of July and August. In places the ditch banks leak so badly that damage has been done to trees and gardens lying below it.

According to the records of the city water department, the average annual use of water in Wichita Falls amounts to about one billion gallons in a year. This being the case it is obvious that if Lake Wichita holds over four billion gallons, then we have a supply of soft water good for four years use if it never rains a drop and evaporation is not considered.

No four year period has ever elapsed without sufficient rain falling to replenish the supply.

We make the above statement advisedly and in face of the fact that a water shortage occurred when the city was much smaller than it is now. This previous shortage was not caused by city use, but by the irrigation of land along Holliday creek. It was estimated by a former manager of the city water department that at least 60 per cent of the water taken from Lake Wichita during any one year is used for irrigation and not by the city.

The statement has been made that Lake Wichita, during its twenty odd years of service has become filled with mud to a considerable extent. This would seem to be a reasonable conclusion as the waters of Holliday creek which fill the lake are always muddy.

We made many tests to determine the depth of the mud deposits and much to our surprise find that it does not exceed two or three inches if that much, on the average. The lake has filled but very little with mud.

Further we found that the spillway level can be raised with ease and at small expense so as to hold an additional depth of one foot. This would give an increased storage capacity for soft water of over 2,000 acre feet, or an increase in capacity of about 15 per cent or say enough water for an additional nine months supply for the city.

The question of hard water has been before our people for more than a year past. By many it is accepted as a nuisance which cannot be eliminated. They are mistaken. It can be, and very easily by the construction of a pipe line. With a pipe line and the use of Lake Wichita for domestic purposes alone it is not likely that we would ever have to use hard water again until we have exceeded a population of 150,000.

The expense and cost of hard water to the citizens of this city has been estimated by Dr. A. H. Douglas, manager of the city water department, to be over $500,000.00 per year. This additional expense is caused by the increased use of soap, rapid deterioration of plumbing, and the additional use of gas to heat water in our homes on account of the deposit from the hard water accumulating in the hot water tanks.

Some of our physicians have expressed themselves as believing that the use of soft water was more healthful than hard water.

This hidden tax caused by hard water would be entirely eliminated with the construction of a pipe line and the exclusive use of Lake Wichita for domestic purposes.

Another phase of this matter of soft water has to do with the future industrial development of the city. Very few industries can or will use hard water. A plentiful supply of soft water such as can be offered when a pipe line is constructed will be a very powerful inducement to any manufacturer seeking a location for a factory.

Irrigation District No. 1 through transfer from previous owners, has recently acquired a right to water stored in Lake Wichita and a right to use the city ditch to deliver this water to farmers along Holliday creek. The way matters stand today they are using Lake Kemp water to supply these farmers, or rather they run hard water from Lake Kemp into Lake Wichita and take an equivalent amount out for the farmers. This procedure is what causes the hard water in Lake Wichita.

With the installation of a pipe line the city ditch could and would be turned over to the irrigation district for its exclusive use and by a slight expense a connection can be made from this ditch to one of the laterals of the big irrigation system and there would be no further excuse for polluating Lake Wichita with hard water.

We find that there is no understanding or agreement between the city and the irrigation district as to the city's share in any in Lake Kemp. There is one reference in the contract between irrigation District No. 1 and No. 3 where fifty thousand acre feet is mentioned as being reserved for the use of the city of Wichita Falls. The city, however, as far as we could ascertain, has no agreement with the district for this reserve supply. Such an agreement should me made and the city's rights in Lake Kemp defined.

With the installation of a pipe line, the city should turn over to the irrigation district the present city ditch reserving only a right to use it in case of an emergency. The district should in turn relinquish all its rights to any water stored in Lake Wichita and all irrigation water should come from Lake Kemp.

The city should have the exclusive right to say when water from Lake Kemp shall be turned into Lake Wichita and no water should be turned in without their request.

The city filters and clear wells are now too small for the demands made upon them. Additional filter capacity must be provided before next season.

The pumps as they stand today are not adequate, but with the installation of a new pump now on the ground, there will be plenty of pumping capacity for some time to come.

We found that daily tests are made of the purity of the city water and that it is pure so far as bacteria is concerned. We also learned that on account of the filth accumulated by the water as it travels through the city ditch the purity of our water is dependent upon the thoroughness of the chlorination.

If only for a short time the chlorination machinery should cease to work we would almost surely have an epidemic of typhoid fever and similr rdiseases with consequent loss of life. With a pipe line the water would be pure.

With a pipe line installed the city would then be in the unique position of having its water works connected with an unlimited supply of water through two separate conduits. The pipe line would be connected with Lake Wichita and the ditch which would be instantly available would be connected with Lake Kemp.

It is probable that this double source of supply would be taken into account by the insurance companies with a resultant lowering of the key rate and a saving in insurance premiums to our citizens.

It is estimated that a pipe line sufficiently large to deliver from fifteen to twenty million gallons daily can be constructed for something less than $130,000. A pipe of this capacity would supply from three to four times the amount of water now used by the city in any one day. It would give enough water for a city of 150,000 and would also furnish water for extensive industrial development.

When hard water from Lake Kemp was turned into Lake Wichita it caused the refineries and other heavy users to cease taking it on account of its hariness. The revenues lost to the city from these sources alone amounts to about $50,000 per year. It is likely that with an assurance of a continuous supply of soft water these industries would return to the use of city water. In fact some of them have so expressed themselves to officials of the department.

The revenues lost to the city and which would probably be regained upon the construction of a pipe line supplying soft water would pay for the installation in three years.

The city water department stands in an independent position among all the other departments of the city. It is in no way dependent upon general taxation for its revenues. In itself it is a revenue producer. It is managed and run much on the same lines as if it were a private water company which is as it should be.

If it were a private water company there would be no hisitancy or delay in securing funds to make such improvements as would bring in additional revenue. No private company would hesitate to spend $150,000 to secure an additional revenue of $50,000 per year.

Its property is worth more than a million and a half dollars. Its gross revenues are in excess of $250,000 annually with a sure increase as the city grows. It can give ample security for any amount of money it may need for necessary improvements. We do not believe that a bond issue should be called for to provide these funds. We are therefore in favor of the water department issuing warrants to secure funds for its needs rather than to call on the citizenship to provide funds. Warrants carrying a low rate of interest can be sold readily.

Without water there could be no city of Wichita Falls. Water is the most important utility we have. An inadequate supply might mean a great catastrophe through fire with millions of dollars loss which would set the city back many years in its growth. An impure water supply means disease death and misery to our people.

We therefore approve the proposal of Mr. Curd that a pipe line be built, and ask for him the support of every citizen in Wichita Falls who is interested in the welfare of the city.

We approve of the management of Dr. A. H. Douglas. Any man who can take the dirty, stinking, polluted water that comes down the present open ditch and by his work change it into the clear disease free liquid which we wrink, is worthy of the support of every citizen, and should not be handicapped in his operations by lack of facilities.

Resolution of Approval.

Therefore, premises considered, the Wichita Falls Real Estate Board endorses and favors any feasible plan that may be submitted that has for its purpose the laying of a pipe line from Lake Wichita to the city water plant. We favor this because it is progressive, because it is economy, and greatest of all, because it will conserve the health of our citizenship.

Consider the Quality

Don't Buy Furniture on Price Alone

THERE'S so much of furniture's real value hidden that it pays a buyer to consider other than the appeal of low price. Cheap woods, poor finish and haphazard construction follow in the wake of low price—so, we say, consider the quality!

Look into the construction of the piece, how it is joined together, how it looks "beneath the surface"; find out about the woods used; note carefully the finish—then judge value! Price is secondary consideration in the real worth of furniture.

Exactly As Represented

Our salesmen gladly give you every detail of the construction of a piece of furniture. They show you through the piece, just what composes its value. They can justify the price asked for any piece of furniture in our store—and, we assure you, there will not be one word of misrepresentation in anything they tell you.

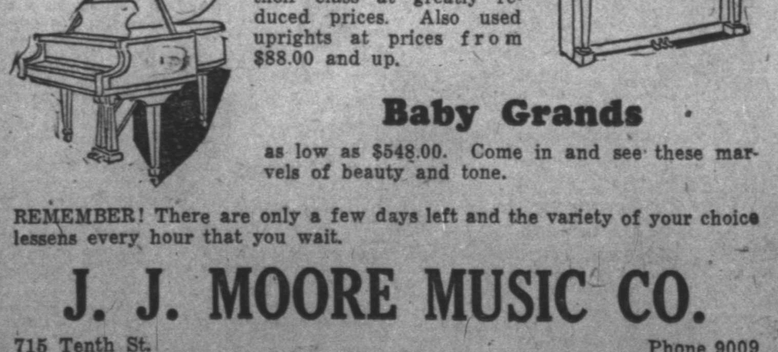

For Your Protection

The one big reason for the success of this home-furnishing institution is: We satisfy our customers. We make this definite guaranty with every sale—should you not find the suite or article sold just as we claim it to be, we will cheerfully make an exchange or refund your money.

ORDINANCE NO. 613.
AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE TRANSPORTATION OF NITROGLYCERIN, GYLNOIN OIL, NITRALIUM, OR BLASTING OIL, OR NITRATED OIL, OR POWDER MIXED WITH ANY OF SUCH OIL OR FIBER SATURATED WITH ANY SUCH ARTICLE OR SUBSTANCE, PROVIDING A PENALTY, DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.
Be it ordained by the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls, Texas.
Section 1. That it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to carry, convey or cause to be conveyed or carried the substance or article known or designated as nitroglycerin, or glynoin oil, nitralium or blasting oil or nitrated oil or powder mixed with any of such oil or fiber saturated with any such article or substance on the public street or alleys within the city of Wichita Falls, Wichita county, Texas. Provided, however, that this ordinance shall not apply to dynamite and blasting powder.
Section 2. Any person violating section one of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction in the corporation court shall be fined in any sum of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars.
Whereas, on account of the great demand for the protection of the public and property and the lives of the citizens against the hazards of explosions arising out of the transportation of nitroglycerin, glynoin oil, nitralium and blasting oil and nitrated oil and powder mixed with any of such oil or fiber saturated with any such articles or substances upon the city streets and alleys; creates an emergency for the immediate preservation of the public peace and safety, that the rule requiring ordinances to be passed on three separate days be suspended and said ordinance is hereby passed on one reading, and it is so ordained.
Passed and approved this the 17th day of August.
R. E. SHEPHERD, Mayor.
Attest:
W. E. McBROOM, City Clerk.

Making Money

Some men make money in business—some in stocks—some by toil some saving of their daily wage. But we submit to you the unquestioned fact that more men have reached a comfortable competence through the ownership of property—houses and land which bring a fixed income—than in any other way.

Business requires your sole attention—stocks mean sleepless nights and days of worry—property works by itself for you without your care.

Select it—set it to work—it takes care of itself and will take care of you.

A good example of this sort of investment is found in the FARM which we are offering for sale, and for which we are exclusive agents.

640 acres 3½ miles west and 3½ miles south of Tipton, Okla., Tillman county, about 600 acres of this sub-irrigated farm in cotton on share basis, and if sold within the next 30 days crop goes with place, about 75 acres rolling land, balance is level, lots of improvements and has one of the largest barns in the country, plenty of tenant houses and a dandy home for superintendent or manager.

YOU CANNOT LOSE YOUR DOLLARS IF PUT INTO A PROPOSITION LIKE THIS and it will earn a good dividend on the price of $75 per acre. Can loan you 18 to $20,000 on this. A careful inspection will bear us out that this IS a bargain.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The market for cotton was very quiet affair in today's short session and except for a wave of hedge selling right at the end, trading was sluggish and practically inactive. After an early gain of nine points largely due to better cables than due and a fair amount of trade buying the market eased off eight points on week-end evening up and some hedge selling. Just at the end there was a fresh wave of hedge selling which forced prices down to new lows and the close showed a net decine for the day of two to three points.

At the start Liverpool was about three penny points better than due and the local market opened six points higher which was a full response to the course of Liverpool. Prices advanced a few points additional right after the opening call and October traded at 22.88 and December at 23.08 or nine points above yesterday's close. These levels proved to be the highs of the day.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The cotton market was quiet again today with traders avidently waiting for Monday's government report. December contracts were traded in at prices ranging from 23.63 to 23.70 and closed at 23.63 with the general market closing net unchanged to two poits higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of five to nine points and the active positions sold about seven to 11 points net higher during the early trading with October selling up to 23.46 and January to 23.81. Buying was promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables, more favorable advices from Manchester and continued apprehensions of crop damage reports from the eastern belt. In addition to coverinz, some trade buying was reported bu there was enough for sale to check the advance during the middle of the morning and prices eased later on private reports of showers in North Texas and the lower temperatures in the belt. October sold off to 23.37 and January to 23.13 and the close was within a point or two of the lowest.

Some buying was promoted by the outlook for dry and warm weather following the lower temperatures of yesterday and last night but general business was restricted and the market acted as if accounts had been pretty well evened up in preparation for Monday's government crop report.

Another private report estimated a condition of 64 and an indicated yield of 14,450,000 bales, but this was nearly enough in line with previous estimates to have comparatively little effect on sentiment. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 30,000 compared with 19,0000 last year.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Stock prices bounded upward again today under the leadership of the Southwestern railway shares. With a plentiful supply on money available for stock market purposes, most lines of business reporting steady improvement and bear traders showing little disposition to renew their attacks on the general list, operators for the rise encountered little difficulty in bidding up their favorite stocks. Trading was in substantial volume for a half holiday session running well over a half million shares.

Except for additional favorable July earnings reports there was nothing to account for the steady action of the southwestern carriers, most of which have been associated of late with favorable merged and dividend rumors. St. Louis-Southwestern common was the individual feature of that group, being bid up over five points to a record high at 62⅛, and then easing about a point on realizing. The preferred touched a new peak at 75⅞. Frisco common crossed 98 to the highest level reached since the reorganization of the property. Katy common, Wabash common and the preferred B and Seaboard Air Line common also attained new 1925 peak prices.

A good demand also developed for Rock Island common, Colorado and Southern, Kansas City Southern, Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred, Texas Pacific and Western Pacific

5,000 INDIANS TO PARTICIPATE IN BIG FAIR

Rodeo, Horse Races, War Dances and Parade Are Among Features

The second annual exhibition of the Craterville Park Indian Fair association will be held at Craterville Park, Okla., August 27, 28 and 29. This year's fair promises to be even bigger and better than last year's. According to Frank Rush, owner of Craterville, Park, there will be approximately 5,000 Indians present to participate in the event, and they will bring exhibits of all kinds with them.

Craterville Park is located at the south edge of the Wichita mountains and the fair grounds are in a natural amphitheater at the foot of the hills. A regulation half-mile track fenced with five-foot woven wire has been completed together with a grandstand, judges' stand and suitable exhibition tents and buildings.

Rodeo and Races Daily.

There will be Indian horse races and goat roping contests daily. On Thursday, August 27 a realistic old time stage coach robbery will take place on the fair grounds. The Indians will lapproach from the mountains. This will be staged realistically and promises to be the most thrilling event of the fair. On Friday, August 28, the Indians in their buckskins and old Indian costumes will take part in a grand parade in front of the grandstand. This parade will show the progress of the Indians for the last 150 years. Every night there will be weird Indian war dances that will take you back to the barbaric days of the early west.

Indian Exhibits Too.

In addition to the Indian games, races and other events, Indian agricultural and livestock exhibits will be placed on display. Indian bead work, blankets and ancient relics will also be a feature of the display. Governor Trapp of Oklahoma has promised a silver cup for the best agricultural display from any Indian farmer district.

The Craterville Park Indian Fair association is the only one of its kind in existence. Before the charter was granted this organization, a covenant was drawn up on buckskin and entered into by Frank Rush of Craterville Park and the Indians, after sitting in council for several days. The Indians are now taking the initiative in the movement which Mr. Rush started and the Indian fair association promises great things for the future.

Mrs. Dorothy Kent Of Burkburnett Dies

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 22.—Mrs. Dorothy Kent, aged 67, died at the family residence Friday night following several days of severe illness and a long period of ill health.

She was the wife of W. Kent, a prominent citizen of this city and mother of three grown sons, R. W. and George Kent of Burkburnett and P. W. Kent of Long Beach, Calif.

She is also survived by a sister and brother in England, the native country of the family. The sister is Mrs. Eddison, the brother William Briscoe.

Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of the son from California. Burial will be in this city.

Mr and Mrs. Kent and family came to this country about 35 years ago, and have lived in Burkburnett for the past 18 years. They established the Kent Brothers Auto Supply company here, and are well known and highly esteemed citizens.

Until a few years Mrs. Kent was a social and church leader. She had an unusually sweet voice which was graciously given to community interest in her years of health and activity.

Pythians to Have Open Meet Tuesday

The Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 49 of Wichita Falls on regular meeting or convention night, Tuesday, August 25, is to hold an open meeting with an invitation extended to all members, their guests and the general public at the lodge hall at Travis and Ninth.

A special committee, consisting of G. N. Monroe, J. H. Simmons and G. W. Lobaugh, is in charge of the program and entertainment, assisted by the officers of the lodge. The lodge has recently completed adjustment of matters of interest to Pythians and their friends, and are celebrating Tuesday evening.

BURKBURNETT CHILD DIES

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 22.—Tommy Lou Stierwalt, one-year-old, died in the Wichita Falls hospital Friday night, following an illness of six weeks.

The baby was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stierwalt. Mr. Stierwalt is with the Tidal Western refinery. The funeral was held in the home of L. O. Smith in this city at 1 o'clock Saturday. The services were held by Rev. E. L. Finney and the body was taken to Wichita Falls and sent to Chanute, Kan., for burial. The young parents accompanied the body.

SINGING INSECTS.

Warbling Crickets and Grasshoppers Find Market in Japan.

TOKYO.—(AP)— Singing insects are now on sale by street venders along the Ginza, the gay "Main street" of Tokyo. The principal warblers of the insect variety are crickets and longhorned grasshoppers. To the Japanese the "song" of the cricket and the grasshopper lends a peculiar charm to the summer evening.

The diminutive insects are sold in quaint bamboo cages, decorated with silk ribbons. Prices range from fifty sen to as high as twenty-five yen each.

SAYS PARENTS TO BLAME FOR DELINQUENCY

They Keep Children Out Of School Juvenile Officer Tells Trustees

Lack of attendance of boys and girls in school is attributable to parental laxity in the government of their children, or to lack of parental interest in education, G. W. Bralley, juvenile officer for Wichita county, told rural school trustees in session at Iowa Park yesterday. Mr. Bralley said that in a majority of cases where children of school age failed to attend it was the fault, directly or indirectly, of parents.

"The majority of juvenile delinquents who have come under my observation during the last three years I have held the office have been children who do not attend school regularly," he said.

Parnell Speaks.

Mr. Bralley was one of a number of speakers at the meeting. Mayor J. C. Hines of Iowa Park, in welcoming the visitors to the city, urged co-operation between teachers and trustees for the mutual benefit of both, and of the school system.

Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls spoke on "Education," in which he compared the advantages of the modern boy and girl with the advantages of the child of many years ago.

Roy Daniels of Wichita Falls, state representative, reviewed school laws of the state. W. R. Bradford, superintendent of Iowa Park schools, talked on "Maintaining School Property." Following Mr. Daniels' address, a round table discussion was held, during which Burl Bryant, Wichita county superintendent, advised trustees to employ help, if necessary, to keep equipment in good condition.

Select Depository.

The trustees again selected the City National bank of Wichita Falls as the depository for school funds. Trustee Cox of the City View school spoke on "Responsibility of the Parent in the Education of the Child."

The Iowa Park chamber of commerce served a luncheon at the Helton hotel at noon to trustees, teachers and visitors, for which the meeting extended thanks, both to the chamber of commerce and to the hotel.

Brunswick Men To Meet in City

The Phonograph Shop of Wichita Falls has been picked as a meeting place for the Brunswick dealers of Northwest Texas. A radio school for the dealers will be held here commencing Wednesday. W. A. Walanka, special technician for the Radio corporation of America will conduct the school, giving lectures and demonstrations. Three sessions will be held Wednesday for the dealers and three on Thursday. On Thursday evening at 8:30, the school will be open to radio fans and the public. Mr. Walanka will give a popular lecture and demonstration on radio, and radio fans will be given an opportunity to ask questions.

Mr. Walanka is an expert on this subject and his lectures and demonstrations will be interesting as well as enlightening. Mr. Coffey of the Phonograph Shop requests that people intending to be present will let him know by telephone so that he can make the necessary preparations.

Two Prominent Wichita Falls Girls Wed In Denver

Miss Adele Marcus, Miss Sadie Adickes Brides Last Week

CUPID, along with all the rest of the folks, recently moved his matrimonial practice to Denver, Colo., where reports show good business. Rather than lose out altogether here he followed the crowds to Colorado and the result was the marraige of two prominent Wichita Falls society girls in Denver recently.

Miss Adele Marcus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris A. Marcus, long time residents of Wichita Falls, was married to Lee Haney, a teller at the First National bank of this city, at noon Tuesday. Miss Marcus is a prominent member of the younger society set of this city and Mr. Haney is also a popular resident here with a wide circle of friends. Mrs. M. A. Marcus and Miss Kathryn Marcus were the only members of the family present. The party are at Shirley-Savoy hotel, Denver, until the first of September, when Mr. and Mrs. Haney will make their home here in Wichita Falls.

Miss Sadie Adicks, another prominent member of Wichita Falls' society, was the second bride of the week at Denver, when she married Roland Bond of Dallas, Thursday at high noon. All of the family was present at the wedding except Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Goose, Jr. Mr. Bond is wit hthe Payne-Bond Oil Royalties of Dallas. Mr. and Mrs. Bond will make their home in Dallas after a stay in Colorado until the first of September.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR LITTLE MISS WILSON.

Mrs. L. A. Wilson entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of the fifth birthday of her little daughter, Dorothy Loraine, at the home of Mrs. O. McLain, 1602 Austin. Games were played and stories told upon the lawn, as entertainment for about twenty kiddies, followed by their hearkding to the dining room where the birthday cake was on display, pink and white with a bouquet of pink roses in the cented tied with a pink ribbon. Place cards were pink crepe baskets filled with mints tinted to harmoniza with the color scheme of pink and white. Favors were, for the girls, toy wrist watches, and for the boys French harps. Refreshments, angel food cake and pink and white brick ice cream, were served to Frances Bishop, Billy Walker, Helen Wilson, Lee Wells, Marcelle Smith, Baker Taylor, Majorie Smith, Wayne Drake, Helen Smith, Thomas Lynch, Jr., Elizabeth Holt, of Fort Worth, Carl Greenwood, Vesta Catherine Hopkins of Electra, Joe Smith, Ella Majorie Walker, Bobby Lanier, Peggie Mathis, Lamoss Lanier, Betty Jane Lynch, and George Allison Wilson. Mrs. Wilson in the role of hostess was assisted by Mesdames A. H. Hopkins of Electra, P. L. Bishop, T. C. Lynch, Jennie Holt of Fort Worth, and O. McLain.

MISS CHASTAIN ENTERTAINS WITH TACKY PARTY.

Miss Norene Chastain entertained a group of her friends with a tacky party at her home Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. The guests were dressed as Indians, sheiks, and many other "mimics," some of which brought memories of the remote past. Old-fashioned games were enjoyed, prizes being awarded Miss Annie Zereskti, and Doc Krajca. Punch was served Misses Florence Simpson of Holliday, Opal and Willomae Holden of Iowa Park, Lometa Forbes, of Electra, Millie, Kathryn and Ollie Roediger, Ethel Swimford, Katheryn, Josephine and Agnes Krajca, Annette and Lydia Zereskti, Hazel Freeman and sister, Jewel and Fay Martin, Myrtle Cox, Evelyn Xhastain, Euphenia Forbers, and Maudina Cox and Messrs. INSTALLMENT IDEA SPREADS.

German Retailers Find It Is Great Method of Increasing Sales.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—German retailers are awakening to the possibility of a great extension of business through sales on the installment plan. Some of them are sending a special commission to the United States to study the methods of that country. Before the world war buying on the installment plan was frowned upon by the German aristocrats as the wrong way to do business.

The infation period and the change in the economic situation, however, have upset this prejudice, but retailers thus far have been unwilling to sell extensively on time, because they lack the facility to protect themselves against swindlers, such as getting proper information of the credit rating of prospective customers.

Cypher Club Dance At Lake Wichita Is Big Hit Wednesday

Lake breezes and jazzy tunes by Gaffey's Blue Devils made the Cypher club dance at Lake Wichita Wednesday evening a big hit. The Cyphers now fall into line regularly for all of the dances, as one is given each week. Next Thursday at the Kemp hotel, the Bell-Hops will deal out the tunes, sounding off at nine, and signing off at twelve.

The lake dance was attended by Misses Helen Bullit, Neva Black, Thompson, Talmadge, Mary Louise Smith, Mary Brown, Margaret Blum, Frances Boyd, Janice Truce, Helen Davis, Sue King, Dallas; Anna Ruth Kahn, Faye Cameron, Adeline Penny, Polly Walker, Frances Walker, Graham, Willson, Bernice Martin, Georgia B. Many New Books For Youngsters At Library

The latest arrival of books at the Kemp library have been mostly for older people, but now an interesting assortment is on hand for boys and girls.

Beyond the Rainbow Bridge, by F. G. Wickes—A collection of attractive and interesting stories taken from the age old stories of mythology and arranged for telling.

Boy Life on the Prairie, by Hamlin Garland—A story of the hard wor kand the fun of boyhood on the prairies. What it is like to ride at night listening to all the night calls, to spend days in a blizzard, and to feel the call of out of doors. The actual life experience which came to one boy.

Boys' Book of Policeman, by Irving Crump—An engrossing book for boys about the "bluecoats," telling how the patrolmen, the traffic guards and the men on the motorcycles go about their work of protecting life and property in a big city.

Creeping Jennuy, and other stories by Kate Douglas Wiggin—Happiness cannot be measured but it is safe to say that no recent writer has brought more into the world than Kate Douglas Wiggin. In this collection we have four of her best short stories.

Cuddy of the White Tops by E. C. May—A circus story. Cuddy inherits the circus from his dad just as he graduates from college. He starts out as manager and his difficulties of the adventure he has makes an interesting story.

David Blaize and the Blue Door, by Edward F. Benson—David discovers the blue door under his pillow, which he opens every night and slips through to speed off down the road of adventure. Some nights it is the flame cats that come out to dance on the nursery walls, sometimes it's the familiar Noah's Ark family or Miss Muffet and her spider, but whatever his encounter he always gets back through the door and in his proper place on the pillow before the breakfast bell rings.

Laughing Last by Jane Abbott—"He who laughs last, laughs loudest" was the motto the Romley family lived by. As a consequence the whole family laughed together long and loud, and the book echoes their laughter.

Little Lucia, by Mabel Robinson—Story of a little girl who breaks her leg and has to lie still for six weeks. Her mother fixes her a hammock bed under the trees where she can have the fresh air and out-doors day and night and is able to make friends with the animals and birds.

Police Dog, by David Brockwell—This book is intended as a practical guide to those interested in the keeping and breeding of police dogs and dog lovers in general.

Real Princess, by Elizabeth Thomson—Marjorie, a little girl 12 with her vivid imagination weaves a story out of her everyday and neighbors. The little girl next door being the princess and the little cripple boy the Little Lame Prince.

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 22.—(AP) Twelve delegates from the Canyon chamber of commerce will attend the district meeting of the West Texas chamber of commerce to be held at Dalhart, Aug. 24. Senator J. W. Reid was named the voting delegate.

Interest is keen here in the competition between Hereford and Shamrock for the next regional meeting. The local delegation will go without instructions, however.

Sues U. S. for His War Risk Insurance

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 22.—The first suit ever filed in this district against the federal government to collect on a war risk insurance policy was received Saturday by G. D. Hartman, federal district attorney.

Horace G. Bellamy of El Paso, alleges in his suit that he was declared totally and permanently disabled by the veterans' bureau in 1919 but that he has never received a payment from the government.

Bellamy asks for $4,370, due on his policy at the rate of $57.50 per month.

To Improve Highway

MEMPHIS, Aug. 22—Actual work on the improvebents of the Colorado to Gulf highway through Hall county is expected to begin by October 1, according to information received here. After two years of effort on the part of the county judge and commissioners' court, approval of both the state and federal highway departments to plans have been secured. Contracts for the dirt work and structures will be let in Austin on September 11.

The approval at present guarantees work on 14 miles of highway that through the Estilline district not yet having been approved.

PRINCESS STARTS FAD.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Princess Mary, daughter of King George and Queen Mary, is responsible for a new needlework fashion which consists of working seats of chairs in designs of flowers and leaves. The art was practiced during the eighteenth century and called "petit point." Designs from the William and Mary or Queen Anne periods are worked out on point paper, colored at the royal school of art needlework and afterward copied on canvas by society women.

Princess Beatrice already has finished several cushions and a screen; Princess Victoria, the king's sister, is busy on several patterns, while Lady Patricia Ramsay designs and works her own patterns.

Wilbarger Fair Is Set for Sept. 16-19

VERNON, Aug. 22.—The Wilbarger county fair will be held here this year on September 16 to 19, inclusive, according to a decision reached following a series of meetings of the council. R. H. Coffee has been placed in charge by the chamber of commerce and business league.

Unusually good crop conditions have prevailed in Wilbarger county during the past year and exhibits and attendance much larger than has been the case in the past is expected. The management is making plans with owners of horses here for their entrance into the horse races that are being planned for all four days of the fair. In addition a high type carnival show has been engaged for that week.

DERGEES AWARDED

ABILENT, Aug. 22.—With the awarding of 35 bachelor of arts degrees Aug. 19, Simmons university brings the total number of degrees awarded in the last 10 years to 611. One hundred students received degrees at the close of 1925, which was the greatest number ever awarded by the local university.

In 1915, 32 degrees were awarded; in 1916; in 1917, 55; in 1918, 27; in 1919, 36; in 1920, 48; in 1921, 56; in 1922, 59; in 1923, 79; in 1924, 92; in 1925, 100.

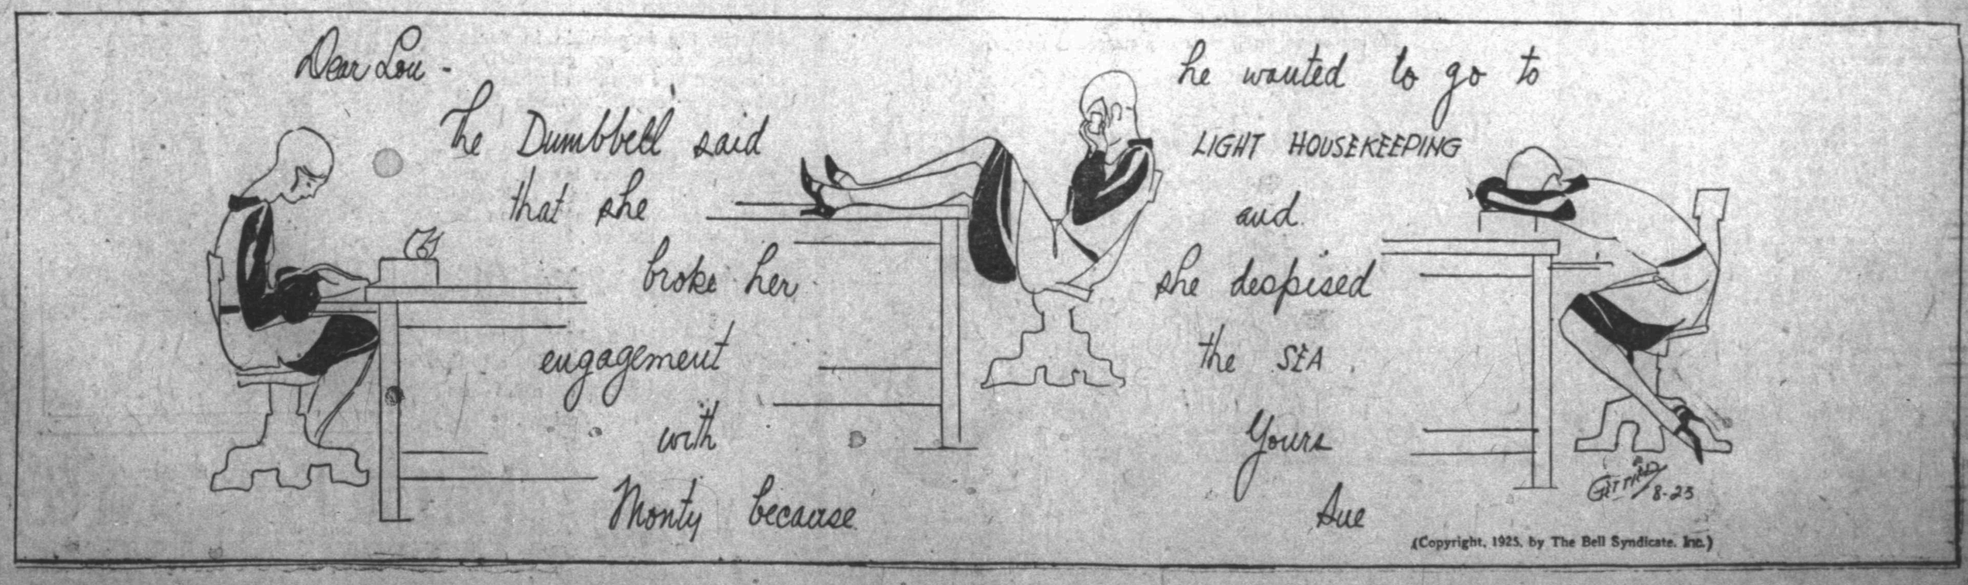

Duncan's First Bale Brings Big Premium

DUNCAN, Okla., Aug. 22.—The first bale of cotton was marketed in Duncan by J. T. Henderson, who lives ten miles east of Duncan, and sold for 23 cents per pound with a premium of $56.50.

Duncan is better prepared than ever to take care of a heavy ginning season. One new gin has recently been completed and the other three gins have undergone complete overhauling.

Visit of Stork In Spitzbergen Is Gala Occasion

LONGYEAR CITY, Spitzbergen.—Bird life is prolific enough in these lonely latitudes, but a visit from the stork is a sufficiently rare event to set all the wireless apparatus in the archipelago humming.

A baby born here enjoys the unique privilege of being baptized in the most northerly church on earth (78 degrees, 18 minutes north latitude) and it was the good fortune of an Associated Press reporter to witness the christening ceremony of Baby Sigurd, first born son of a mining engineer of the Great Norwegian Coal company.

The little wooden Lutheran church was crowded to capacity with the entire female population of the village hardly more than 40 all told, all in their Sunday best, and young Sigurd marked his disapproval of the proceeding in the way infants have all over the world. He was much more amiable at home, where celebrations were kept up until the small hours in a dense atmosphere of tobacco smoke and an imiprovised one-man jazz band.

IF BILIOUS, SICK! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children.—Adv.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects are neither favorable nor adverse. There will be experienced no stimulating vibrations, nor, on the other hand, any depressing in fluences. It is preeminently a day suitable for rest and relaxation, and much enjoyment can be had by yielding to the conditions created by such an atmosphere, and by not trying to do more than is absolutely necessary. At times during the day, there will be felt a slight inclination to be dissatisfied and to feel mean. These periods, however, will be of a passing nature, and can be easily overcome by a little will-power, and a resolve not to allow insignificant trifles to be magnified into either real troubles or grievances; not to make a mountain out of a molehill.

Children born today will be practically immune to sickness, and, as a result of their exceeding good health and constitutional vigor, will often take chances, involving the risk of accidents. In their early days, and to guard against this tendency, they should be taught the desirability of moderation in play and in sports. They will, undoubtedly, possess personality. In the case of a boy, it will be compelling, and, in that of a girl, Winning and winsome. They will be very sensitive—especially to what they consider wrong or unjust. They promise to be very affectionate—demonstratively so—and exceedingly loyal, not only to individuals, but to ideals. Courage and self-reliance, combined with pertinacity and intelligence, will ensure for them success.

If today is your birthday, you possess a keen mind; have an inquiring nature, and remarkable energy and perseverance. The indications denote that you are physically strong and robust, more fond of outdoor life, sports ad pastimes, than of anything, no matter how profitable it may be, that entails sedentary work, or confinement. You are possibly more successful and skilful in athletics, than in the daily occupations you follow.

You are full of resource—not only in action but in speech. You are kindly in spirit, large-hearted in disposition, and, as a result thereof, you have been able to form many dear friendships.

You are devoted to your home and its ties, and the signs promise unalloyed happiness with your mate.

Successful people born on this date are:

Isaac J. Merritt, inventor.

Theodore Lyman, naturalist.

John Ashhurst, Jr., physician and surgeon.

Charles F. Hartt, geologist.

Advance Showing of Styles for Fall

First Official Glimpse of the Modes that Will Prove Favorites Throughout the Season.

Fall Fashion notes herald a vast change in modes—Straight lines and low waists are conspicuous by their absence. Fitted effects, princess lines, back fullness flare, and barrel skirts are the tendencies by which we know the new styles.

NEW FALL DRESSES—NEW FALL COATS

Autumn's Newest Creations Now Ready for Your Approval

A Special Department for Little Women

We take special pride in announcing our specialization of an exclusive selection for small women—In this department you will find every style for the moden "Flapper" as well as the more conservative types.

Heretofore it has been impossible for the little woman to find as varied assortment as in larger sizes, but this season we have given special attention to the selection of small sizes and you will now find our autumn sizes 13½ to 21½.

DRESSES—in Crepe, Satins Mirroleen, Jerseys, French Rep and Lustrite, in such colors as bervaine, dune, titian, jay blue and others, priced $19.75 to $95.00

COATS—in all the season's leading fabrics and colors, priced $29.75 to $150.00

(SECOND FLOOR)

A Department for "Larger" Women

Here is another department in which we take great pride—The "Stout" woman has found it just as hard to find stylish apparel in large assortments as did the small women.

Specializing also in this department we are prepared to show you the correct apparel for autumn.

SLENDERIZING STYLES FOR LARGE WOMEN

In keeping with fashion and the desires of larger women, our showing of extra sizes is destined to please—They are products of several manufacturers who cater exclusively to stout women.

Each model will evidence the care and thought given to its slenderizing lines.

QUARTER SIZES FOR "SHORT STOUTS"
COATS AND DRESSES—in sizes 38 1-4 to 48 1-2, priced $29.75 to $150.00

GARMENT SOLONS SECOND FLOOR

WHAT THE RAILROADS ARE DOING

The volume of freight handled by the railroads is an index to national prosperity. When it is known that 1,051,611 cars were loaded with revenue freight during the week ending August 8, that being the peak for the year and the fourth consecutive week in which loadings exceeded 1,000,000 cars, even pessimists must be persuaded that business is prospering.

But what kind of freight do the railroads haul? It would be quite easy, of course, to name a few of the commodities that make up a large portion of the railroad's freight business. It would be much more difficult, without carefully prepared data, to say about what part of their total business and particular kind of freight constitutes, or how one compares with another—how products of the mines, for example, compare with agricultural products in the percentages of railroad haulings.

The bureau of statistics of the interstate commerce commission has completed an analysis of the revenue freight carried by class one railroads in 1924 that gives an exact answer to the above query. It shows that more than half of the total tonnage of the railroads, or 51.33 per cent, came from the mines. The tonnage from the bituminous fields, 28.45 per cent of all freight, exceeded the total tonnage of all manufacturers and miscellaneous products—refined petroleum, iron, machinery, brick ad artificial stone, automobiles and many other products—amounting to 23.04 per cent. Of all the freight hauled, 10.63 per cent was agricultural. Other products of the farm, however, are listed as "animals and products," including horses and mules, cattle, sheep, hogs, etc., making up an additional 2.23 per cent. Forest products amounted to 9.64 per cent of the whole. Bituminous and anthracite coal combined comprimised about 34 per cent of the total, anthracite amounting to 5.68 per cent.

This analysis conveys a clear idea of the part that these different kinds of freight have, not only in the business of the railroads, but in the nation's business. That is not to say that the importance of each is proportioned to its volume. We could not get along without coal, nor without most of the other commodities. Some of lesser volume are more plainly indispensable than others of greater volume. While their contribution to the revenue of the railroads in 1924 was $4,345,000,000, their contribution to other business was much greater.

GOUGING THE PUBLIC

"The public welfare next winter," according to the view of the Brooklyn Eagle, "hinges on what President Lewis conceives to be the war strength of his union—the United Mine Workers of America."

It is fortunate for us in Texas perhaps that this public welfare relates only to the districts that are dependent upon hard coal for heat and power; and it may be equally fortunate for Mr. Lewis and his associates that their union is not subjected to the competition of independent mine workers from Texas.

His demands would be regarded here as ridiculous. For instance, his union refuses to submit its demands for increased wages to a committee of arbitration unless he is permitted to name the arbiters for the operators. One wonders how sane men can entertain so preposterous a demand. Surely arbitration becomes a misnomer when one party to the dispute selects all the arbiters. It would be equal to permitting the defense in a murder trial to select the jury.

Another of his demands is the "check-off," a term that is unintelligible in industrial free Texas. It is a system under which the employer is made the collector of union dues through the expedient of deducting the amounts from the pay envelopes of employes and turning the mopey over to the walking delegates. "The inference," comments the Eagle, "is that Mr. Lewis' agents are noe always successful in collecting dues. The check-off would mean that the men, to work, must pay dues and that the operators would have to do the enforcing. Under ordinary conditions this arrangement would seem preposterous, but in the coal industry nothing is fantastic."

BETTER SO.

You read where three Japanese maidens, aged 23, 24 and 25, threw themselves into the yawning mouth of a volcano because they had attained those advanced ages without getting married.

A generation ago, even in this country, a girl was an "old maid" at 25.

Today, she goes right on through the early thirties and sometimes into the forties without assuming, or being awarded, the title of spinsterhood.

Ideas change rapidly in this world. The old maid of the 1890s is the flapper of today. The gray-haired grandmother of Cleveland's time is the high-stepping, snappy looking young woman of 1925.

And who will have the temerity to argue that it isn't better so? People are as young as they feel. There is little sense and no profit in pulling a long face and moping around just because King Time gets a strangle hold on you. If at fifty you feel like thirty-five, so much the better.

It is a pepful age, this is.

HAIR RAISING.

At a recent gathering of sheep breeders in England it was disclosed that a Japanese scientist has perfected a tonic that, when injected into the veins of a sheep, will produce a full year's growth of wool in two months. This would be a fine thing to shoot into the pelts of some of our bald-headed scouts. If full strength hair can be produced in a couple of months there are thousands of men in America who want to know it. The Japanese discoverer can have all the money in the world if he is able to deliver the goods.

ROBBING THE MAILS

Recent robbery of the air mail at San Francisco indicates that bandits have taken up another hazardous sport. Any man who runs afoul of the post office department is sure to pay the penalty. But in these days the bandits have grown careless and defiant. What is wanted are a few official hangings to indicate that Uncle Sam still has justice and authority at his beck.

THE CHEMICAL SOCIETY.

The members of the American Chemical society came quietly into Los Angeles, read a few papers to each other, talked a little and then, as quietly as they came, left for the workshops, scattered over the country. They did not parade the streets with brass bands and platoons of police to announce their presence; and neither were their names broadcast from radio stations nor flashed along the avenues where thousands come and go in seach of life. Some of them came thousands of miles to meet men engaged in work they themselves were doing and these long journeys were expressions of the same interest that all true scientists show for each other and the work in hand.

A great deal of sham finds its way to the public when the question of labor is raised, and this is especially true when the skilled worker and farmer are mentioned. The inference is eternally made that it is the man who works with his hands who is the salt of the earth and alone entitled to the sob sympathy of the public. There is not a class of men in this country or any other whose labor is harder or more relentless than that of practical or experimental chemists, and the object of their work is not money, but search for truth and its useful application to the needs of life.

It is not possible to measure the value of the contributions chemists have made to modern life or to trace their influence, sometimes delicate. The food that we eat, the clothes that we wear and every essential of the life are marked some way or other with the finger print of the chemist.

Even death itself has been defeated by the chemist. The news is now at hand from London that cancer, one of the most mysterious foes of man, has at last been found to be conquerable. The man who may have found the remedy was once a day laborer, working so many hours a day for so many shillings. When man has been freed from disease (and it is not too much to say that he may eventually especially if more men such as Gorgas were to come into the world) happiness will, or should be, a normal condition and society will approximate that ideal state which so many good and wise men have talked about for ages.

FROM PORTER TO PUBLISHER.

William J. Conners, Sr., of Buffalo, an industrial magnate and owner of two newspapers, has decided to give a part of his great fortune to a charitable endowment in the hope that he will live to give away what he has accumulated.

Mr. Conners was once a porter on a Lake steamer. He has risen by his own efforts until now he owns important interests in the Lake shipping business, extensive holdings in Florida, and is proprietor of two Buffalo papers.

No better way has been found yet to help the poor than Henry Ford's way of giving them something to do. To endeavor to help them by charity has never been greatly successful. Mr. Conners appreciates his wealth because he gained it by a struggle. To those who get a part of it or all of it without a struggle, it will mean little.

It is not the earning generation, the working people, who waste and gamble and become worthless idlers, but it is the next generation. One of the best solutions yet found is that hit upon by Mr. Rockefeller. He gives for the purpose of education and the promotion of science. In these things the Government is lax and deficiency can be pieced out by millionaires without causing hardship.

DISASTERS OF THIS KIND UNUSUAL

The accident to an excursion steamer in Narragansett bay by which more than 75 persons were so severely scalded that the deaths numbered nearly 40 within a short time, comes as a summer fortunately free of major disasters, is drawing to a close. Some of the panic-stricken passengers among the 677 aboard jumped into the bay, but Captain Thomas McVey's presence of mind in beaching the boat with the little momentum left her availed to prevent a more lamentable loss of life.

It is said that either the boiler was seriously defective or incompetent engine room help permitted the water to get too low. In either supposition a responsibility rests with the steamboat inspection force. In very many sections of the country excursions on larger or smaller steamboats are one of the most popular forms of summer recreation. Explosions of this kind attended by serious results have been almost unknown in recent years, such is the care with which supervision is enforced, and the concern in ascertaining what special or unlooked for cause contributed to this accident of many fatalities will be general in many states.

A BURLINGTON TOWN.

Railroads have more than once built cities. Childress has been favored by the Denver road many times and now comes the great Burlington System to expand its Texas properties, chief of which is the Denver road.

The Burlington officials are very friendly to Childress. They should be for this city is one of their greatest points in the amount of tonnage. By building Childress the Denver road will profit most.

The Index would be contented and pleased to see the Denver road "sew Childress up" with branch lines. We do not care whether the Santa Fe, Rock, Island, Katy or any other railroad builds into Childress. If the Denver road builds the branches the shops will be increased and the city put on a foundation that few cities of Texas could lay claim to.

The chamber of commerce in a recent excursion trip bannered the automobiles with signs reading: "Childress wants more Denver roads." That was the best slogan ever written. We people of Childress mean it, too.—Childress Index.

SCENTS, CENTS AND SENSE

The French woman whose nose has been insured for $50,000 as a perfumery expert insists that perfumes should only be used for their influence upon the individual and not for their effect upon others. Certain odors will be stimulating, inspiring or soothing to one person and find no response in another. The skilled artist in scents will study the personality of a customer and prepare the especial fragrance that tunes with such temperament. This sounds like a rather complicated process, but there it is. Possibly an intelligent artists could brew a mess of onions, peppermint and glue to form a perfume that would inspire a little flyweight to rise up and smite Jack Dempsey. The big idea is that the fragrance we carry should be for our own entertainment and not for the refreshment of perfect strangers.

REAL PHILANTHROPY.

The Salvation Army runs true to form and there are no boundaries to its field. Gen. Booth has just opened a big hotel in Paris that will house the poor and unfortunate. Rooms and two meals can be had for as low as 12 cents a day. The hotel is built in the heart of a slum district and is designed to be a sort of a community center with uplifting tendencies. There are more than 500 rooms and every one of them has hot and cold water. There are also many baths, for the army is mixing cleanliness with its godliness. It contains a large lecture hall, a library and gymnasium to which the general public may be admitted. Such a project in a great worldly capital cannot but be of vast value to humanity. The enterprise may be made self-sustaining if all the rooms are filled—which makes the philanthropy all the more practical.

Another Duty Neglected—A Worthless Human Being—The Lure of the Society Page —By Ed Howe

I am told in a magizine article that all the world show bow to Carl Spitteler as a profound genius. I had not previously heard of Carl Spitteler, so I have long been neglecting a duty I did not know about. I am comparable with an African savage who has never heard of Christ, and therefore has neglected to worship im.

The writer of the magazine article is Romain Rolland. I know only a little more about Romain Rolland than I know of Carl Spittleler. Rolland's tribute to Spitteler's masterpiece (which I had not heard of) reads: "It gripped me strongest because of its racy harshness, its chaotic aspect, the pungent power of its penetrating juices, that well forth as from the trunk of a broad-branched oak. Here is a luxuriant jungle of myths, similes and parables, reveling in parables that might have been borrowed from a medeiavel bestiary. What luxuriance of dreams, visions, inventions, both lofty and beautiful, and all new and unhackneyed, welling up spontaneous vigorous and pure as a fresh mountain spring."

Among the millions of worthy people who have never heard of Carl Spitteler is the editor who printed praise of him in a magazine.

The editor says so in a prefatory note.

This being the case, why did the editor admit this tremendous puffery to his pages?

As I have often confessed, I do not understand literature or literary men. Half the time I do not know what they are writing about, or what they hope to accomplish.

What is going on in literature? Is it any sort of offense if the people do not know, or care?

A man called Romain Dolland has an opinion. Very well; the people deny it and regard him as an unimportant man working at unimportant tasks.

There is a literature of learing that we all respect, but the pure literature of fancy is not much respected in this practical and better age.

A man attacked a woman's devotion to her church. "Yes," she replied. "I attend church entertainments and church services, and I like the women I find there better than those I find elsewhere playing cards, dancing and smoking cigarettes." I thought the answer was very good. There may be objections to church entertainments, but not so many as to affairs where the saxophone, the bottle, cards and cigarettes are exploited. Those of you who do not attend church are invited to try it, and see if I am not right.

Some men seem to naturally dislike work and to greatly admire adventure, the crack of the pistol and the sight of blood. So they engage in bank robbery. Why are not some of these employed to shoot bank robbers? A Kansas City negro shot such a robber and has become a hero. Money is being sent in for him, and the newspapers are printing his picture. Is there not as much excitement in shooting a bank robber as is found in shooting a banker?

There are good doctors and bad doctors; good and bad social, political and religious doctrines; good and bad citizens, women, children, countries, insects, plants, fish, animals. It is no disparagement of the good to condemn the bad. In every sort of criticism, if the shoe doesn't fit, do not put it on. If a criticism disturbs you, it means you are a little guilty.

The only way to get the laugh on the fools is to behave better than they do. The fools have not as yet found a way of sending to jail a well-behaved, useful and successful man. The fools do not like such a man, but have found no way of scaling his fortress.

I am entitled to a certain amount of liberty: just how much the Jury of the Ages must decide. I cannot be trusted to make the decision.

Free thinking should be correct thinking, but is usually false and mean thinking.

Is there a better plan of handling the liquor question than prohibition affords? . . .

We never inquire, we so enjoy the hypocrisy prohibition affords.

The most worthless human being I have ever known was a 19-year-old girl. She was what they call "respectable," the gossip about her was that she was idle, and a burden to her parents. Her folks were poor, and she hated them for it. She could dance and sing a little, and play the piano a little, but many a time I have known her to sleep until noon the morning her mother did the washing. She also had ambition, ambition to marry a rich man, but married a young fellow as worthless as herself. I don't know what became of her, but I am certain she is still what is called "respectable", she had sense enough to take care of herself in that way, but lacked sense in every other.

What is your greatest fault? Mine is that I put off until tomorrow that which I should do today. And I find a very old maxim about this fault: It seems to have been common a long time ago.

It isn't the world that is going to the devil: it's the people. Probably you never saw a man a hundred years old. The world has already existed millions of years, and hasn't reached middle age.

A pastor is an attorney for his church, and makes out as good a case as is possible, as attorneys do for clients. His criticism of antagonists is seldom fair.

The main idea, of course, is to be a good and capable man; not to claim such distinction while acting like the devil.

In a certain city a specially great effort is being made to enforce the law, according to the papers. A gentleman I believe to be reliable writes that lately he spent a night in the city, violating law in a particularly violent manner. Everywhere he drove much faster than the laws allows. He visited many place where liquor was sold openly, and many places where gambling games were openly played. "Not long before," he adds, "I visited a friend in a country town. This friend, during a drive, took me into the homes of four friends. All served liquor. All of those whith whom I talked, in the city as well as in the country town, favored prohibition of both liquor selling, gambling and fast driving. I hear everywhere of liquor being scarce, and of bootleggers being on the run. Actually, liquor is plentiful, and at least good enough to violate the law. Much of it is as good as liquor can be made."

In Pittsburgh, Pa., a "Drive" is on to collect ten million dollars to found a university for training jazz bands—A subscriber there, (I think he is a fiddler) is in a rage, and appeals to me . . . I can do nothing: so much foolishness is going on I cannot even catalogue it in my limited space.

Marriage isn't a solace; it's another problem to work out.

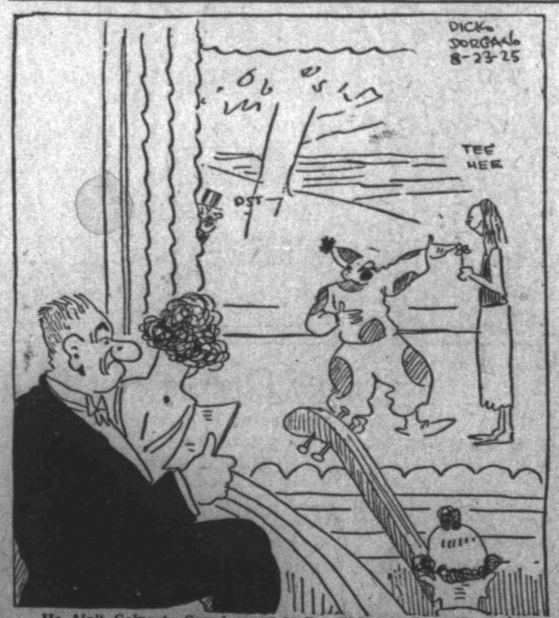

I find newspaper gossip far superior to the gossip of my own community. We have none equal to this: A divorced woman in receipt of a hundred dollars a month alimony, gave it up to marry. The new man proved worthless, the court only awarded the wife seventy-five dollars a month. Now the wife has sued the first husband for the difference . . . Here is another piece of newspaper scandal we cannot equal in our town: A woman sued her husband for divorce, and, as he was rich, the court settled two hundred thousand dollars on her. The woman, in the course of a few years squandered her fortune. Now she has sued her former husband for further maintenance, although he has another wife with alimony rights . . . With such big gossip as this in the papers, the little ding-dong stuff around home does not interest me.

If my neighbor is religious, and loves his church, it doesn't make any difference to me: it never occurs to me I should attempt to coax him out of the notion. Why should he not be equally unconcerned and polite with me? Is not evangelism actually a very absurd thing?

The Society Page of newspapers enrage me—Still, when I lately took a party of women to the races, I sneaked out among the newspaper girls, and induced them to print pictures of my guests, and descriptions of their costumes.

When a man acts foolish, what an excellent excuse if his relatives can say he was shell-shocked during the war!

Vital Suggestions for Relief of Marriage Problem —By Ring Lardner

He Ain't Going to Spend no $7.70 Per Ticket to Set 3 Hours Listening to a Couple of Frogs Bellowing to Each Other in Wop.

To the Editor:

If a person goes around from here to trere and back with their eyes open it won't be long before they find out that though a man's or a woman's spouse is often referred to as their mate, why some husbands and wives ain't no more mates than Pussyfoot Johnson and Sophie Tucker. These couples who I refer has little or nothing in common and you ain't alone with neither party more than five seconds when you are told verbatim that he or she to who you are listening is misunderstood.

The lease bit of sympathy showed one of the confiders and they will follow you around all the evening adding details till finely you even know whether their wife's or husband's toothbrush is soft, hard or medium.

Harry Won't Dance Unless He Can't

The whole trouble seems to be that the boys down in Washington has overlooked one amendment to the constitution, namely a amendment legalizing trial marriages, and the result is that thousands and thousands of ladies and gents launch their frail craft on the salty sea of matrimony before they can spell each other's name and address. It don't take them more than a month or 2 to discover that the consort to who they have yoked themselves up should ought to of been put out of their misery in childhood, but now they are tied to them and must remain so unless they have grounds for divorce and the patience and means to enjoy same. A trial marriage would of showed them the serious discrepancies and one of them could of just packed up and left the joint without paying the Lambs club for Dudley Field Malone.

So as to make my point more clearer leaves us take the case of a typical couple who we will call Mr. and Mrs. Claffert. In the first 12 weeks of their wedded bliss they become aware of the following hiatuses:

Mrs. Claffert likes to go home early. Mr. Claffert likes to stay out late.

Mrs. Claffert has a average of 5 headaches a wk. Her husband don't even know what they feel like though he should of.

Mrs. Claffert likes to be took out with 5 of a major suit. Harry Claffert (for Harry is indeed his first name) will begin to hit innocent bystanders if he partner don't leave him in with whatever he bid.

Genevieve Claffert loves grand opera. Harry says he ain't going to spend no $7.70 per ticket to set for 3 hours listening to 4 or 5 frogs and a heine or 2 bellowing back and forth at each other in wop. Give him Harold Lloyd.

Genevieve loves le danse and a specially with Harry when he is sober. Harry won't get up on the floor unless he almost can't.

Harry likes a steak rare or medium rare and smothered with onions, also French fried or baked potatoes. Genevieve can't stand steak unless it's burnt black, hates onions and insists on potatoes au gratin. Harry says anybody that will eat cheese—and Genevieve says the same thing to him about onions.

The Martial Catechism.

Genevieve screams when Harry drives the car, and vice versa.

Harry talks golf all the time and bores Genevieve stiff. Genevieve discusses out loud the relative merits of Otto and Mr. Shirley as hairdressers and the topic doesn't seem to give Harry no big thrill.

Genevieve drinks a couple of cocktails at parties to insure herself vs. going to sleep before it's time to go home. Harry will take all they will give him so as he won't waste no time lying awake when he finely does get home.

Now, friends, cases like the above named is galore in every community and accounts for pretty near 100 per cent of all the unhappy marriages. And since they seem to be a prejudice vs. trial marriages and besides that would not do no good to people all ready married, why I would suggest 2 things, (1) that all existing marriages where either or both parties ain't contented be declared off by a presidential proclamation and follow this up by a entire redistribution of husbands and wifes based on a similarity of tastes and (2) that before unmarried couples be allowed to marry, each party be obliged to fill out a questionaire reading something like as follows, and if the answers to 9 out of the 10 questions is not the same, to forbid the bands:

1. Can you read?
2. When you double a 2 bid do you mean business.
3. Can you make coffee?
4. Can you handle your liquor?
5. Are your relatives all right mentally?
6. How do you feel about the radio?
7. Who are your favorite comical cartoonists?
8. What does a green light mean?
9. Is this your first visit to the Falls?
10. What's the right time?

Velvet Popular For Winter Wear

PARIS, Aug. 22.—A great deal of velvet, either cotton or silk, is expected to be worn this winter. Some very attractive dresses are already being made from this material, the softness and flexibility of which gain additional attraction from the great variety of new colors in which it is being turned out.

For the time being velvet is "the things" for hats, but one of the biggest dressmakers has brought out small stitched velvet coats for morning wear, with hats to match.

It is quite possible that the cloche hat may be near the end of its long reign. Medium sized and large chapeaux are opening a regular offensive against the simple little bell-shaped hats which are so easily donned and doffed, and smart women are showing approval of the change.

INTERPRETERS AID TOURISTS

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Uniformed interpreters for the convenience of tourists have been stationed at the three principal railroad terminals in Berlin. They are on hand at the arrival and departure of all trains and their services are given to the traveling public without charge.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Red caviar!" Warren was deciphering the blurred menu of the "Russian Bear." "That's a new one. Ringin' in their national color, eh? Want to try it?"

"I don't," crisped Carrie. "Never heard of red caviar. I'd be afraid of it."

"How 'bout you, Helen? You're dippy over caviar. Lawrence? Oh, we'll all have it. Can't kill us—try anything once. Yes, four caviars, to the peasant-bloused waiter.

"Why, it's one of the best Russian restaurants in New York," resented Helen. "And famous for its music. You have to come early to get a table. Only a quarter of seven and look—not a seat left."

"Well, I detest crowded places. You never get good service and—"

"Now, Carrie, don't be a frost!" reproved Lawrence. "We're here to enjoy it. Look at these high ceilings! Been a fine old house once."

"Yes, don't you love these arched doorways?" glowed Helen. "And those old fashioned pier glasses! Oh, here come the musicians."

A stir of interest as the five musicians filed through to their platform. Tall, dark, distinguished youths, in colorful Cossack blouses.

"What curious instruments! Not mandolins, are they?"

"Balalikas. The real thing," approved Warren. "Wait'll you hear what that bunch can thumb out of those flat-footed ukes."

"And that bear has one!" Helen smiled at the facetious wall painting. A grinning polar bear seated on a cake of ice, strumming the Russian tri-colored instrument.

Lawrence, who loved music, was keenly appreciative of the plaintive folk melodies, but Carrie kept looking for their waiter who had failed to bring the ice.

"Don't be so impatient, Carrie. He has all these five tables."

"That's why I don't like these 'arty' places. Takes forever to get served. Oh, I'll have to slip off this shoe! Shopping all day—my feet almost kill me."

"Kick 'em both off and be comfortable—if it'll put you in better humor," grinned Warren. "Anything goes here. No high-hat 'bout this joint.

"Oh, it really IS red!" viewing the dab of crimson decorating a lettuce leaf.

"Not so bad," appraised Warren. "Stronger than the black."

"Yes, it is stronger—saltier, too. And the eggs are larger," decided Helen. "But what makes it red? Do you suppose it's colored?"

"From the red sturgeon in the Mora river," contributed their waiter. "Only lately have they exported it. It never used to come to this country."

"I asked for some ice," complained Carrie curtly. "This water's lukewarm."

"I beg your pardon, madame, I will bring it now," hurrying off.

"Carrie, I wouldn't be so sharp," protested Helen. "Did you see how he flushed? These waiters are all refugees—from fine old Russian families."

"Impoverished counts, I suppose. That press-agent stuffs' overworked. There must've been a few Russians without titles."

"Your dogs still hurt you?" insinuated Warren.

"No, but I didn't want to come way down here tonight," bristled his sister. "I suggested the Ritzmore—but you all wanted 'atmosphere'."

"Well, if you don't like it, don't make it unpleasant for everybody else," remonstrated Lawrence. "That's great music. Stop fussing and let us listen to it."

Excited applause and calls of "Bravo! bravo!" followed the spirited swing of a Hungarian rhapsody.

"What do you call this soup?" Carrie was tasting it gingerly.

"Bortsch. Beets and cabbage and sour cream. That's their famous soup. We had it at that Russian place in Paris. If it's too sour—you can sweeten it," Helen moved over the sugar bowl.

"No, thank you!" pushing back her plate. "Tell him to bring me some consomme."

"Any consomme?" Warren flagged the hurrying, overworked waiter.

"I will see, sir."

"Well, get some if you can. One order."

"Dear, I'd like a footstool," ventured Helen.

"Now, no more extras. That poor fellow's got all he can do."

Helen bit her lip. His sister's selfish demands indulged—but her one modest request promptly squelched.

The whole dinner delayed by Carrie's special order. A trying wait—and at last the consomme.

"Nothing but hot water and a beef cube," Carrie pushed back the plate. "And you call this a good restaurant?"

"Oh, well, it's all right," with exasperating resignation. "I'm not hungry, anyway."

"Oh, you're a dear!" Helen stooped to pet a wistful-eyed dachshund. "Do you belong here? No, I'm sorry, I haven't a thing for you now."

The next course, duck, was served Russian fashion with preserved raspberries. The beet and horseradish salad had a dressing of sour cream.

"Sour cream!" sniffed Carrie. "Do they put that on everthing?"

"Yes, they use it as Italians do cheese," admitted Helen. "But it isn't just cream that's soured—it's specially prepared. I think it's delicious."

"This duck is great!" Lawrence's verdict. "What's it cooked in, anyway? Tastes like herbs."

"What IS that under the table?" Carrie jerked up the cloth. "That dog! Lawrence, make him go away. I can't bear those slinky dachshunds."

"Why, they're so gentle and affectionate. Here," Helen gave him a bit of her duck. "Look at those eyes!"

"If we ONLY could get enough ice! That little piece has melted. There's nothing so sickning as warm water. You drink a lot and it doesn't quench your thirst. Why can't we have a bowl of ice?"

"A dollar dinner! Is that all?" disdainfully. "No wonder we don't get service."

"Don't worry, we won't bring you here again. That's certain.'

"I should hope not,' acidly.

"Fried? I never eat anything fried!"

The delicious tea, served in tall glasses, she sipped condescendingly.

"Drink it like the Russians," coached Warren. "Don't put sugar in it. Bite off a chunk and suck the tea through it."

But the result of Carrie's experiment was a tea stain on her gown—contributed to her ill-humor.

It was a leisurely, comradely place. A general loitering over tea, long Russian cigarettes and listening to the orchestra.

"This smoke—you can cut it with a knife! It hurts my eyes. We'll have to go, anyway," Carrie glanced at her wrist. "We want to make that 8:45. No, that 9:20 gets home too late."

The very moderate check Warren supplemented with an extra generous tip to compensate for his sister's many demands.

"Not here!"

Raising the cloth, they all peered under the table.

"Did you drop anything, sir?"

"A shoe," laughed Warren. "The lady slipped it off. Here somewhere."

A flurried, colliding search. Carrie's color deepened.

"Well, it's not here," growled Warren. "Can't upset everybody in the place to find your number nines. You'll have to hobble out to the cab. We'll find a shop 'round here to fix you up."

"Lawrence, you see the manager. They MUST find it!" insisted Carrie. "Why it's too ridiculous—"

"Hello, what's that dog got? By George' that's it! Here, Sport, give it up."

"It's ruined! My new pumps! Sixteen dollars!"

"Next time keep your shoes on your feet—or check 'em with the hat boy."

"Oh, I'd love to! There's a brass shop just below—that place I got those andirons last year. Dear, can't we go now—they keep open late?"

"How far's that brass place?" demanded Warren, as they swung down the teeming, shop-glittered street.

"Not far—just a block or so. Now, dear, don't scowl! I think you might do SOMEthing for me."

"Eh? What're you drivin' at?"

"After the way Carrie acted! You always excuse her—but that performance tonight—"

"Yes, that was pretty raw. But she's not well—just had that operation."

"But if I ever acted like that—"

"Yet you never say a word to her—no matter WHAT she does!"

"Well, she's my sister—don't have to live with her. A man's family's wished on him—but he picks his wife!"

"Oh, I see!" mischievously, glancing up at him. "And did you—"

"Pick a winner? Mightve done worse. Guess I didn't get such a lemon at that,' tucking her arm through his. "But don't try pulling any of Carrie's stuff—you'll never get away with it. Have to put up with a lot from your family—theyre fixed. But just remember—you can change your wife!"

Nice, Gay French Resort, Likely Will Be University Town

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Americans visiting the Riviera in future winter seasons may see the city of Nice blossom out as a real university town instead of being "Nice, the gay," as the famous Mediterranean resort has been known in the past.

Courses were given there last season under the auspices of the chamber of commerce, and these proved so popular both with the visitors and residents that the department of Alpes-Maritimes, in which Nice is situated, the municipality and civic bodies voted subsidies to make them permanent, increase their number, broaden the scope of the instruction offered and assure their continuance for ten years.

The teaching force, it is understood, will be recruited largely from the old provincial university of Aix-En-Provence, with special lecturers imported from the Sorbonne at Paris and the ancient university of Toulouse.

One of the subjects to be stressed will be the provincial literature and language, featuring particularly the work of the great Mcridional poet, Frederic Mistral, whose writings were greatly admired by Theodore Roosevelt.

STUDENTS ENROLL

125 Already Reserve Rooms At Simmons College

ABILENE, Aug. 22. — Approximately 125 students have reserved rooms at Simmons university for the 1925-26 term, which opens Sept. 16, and prospects for a good attendance is better at this time of the year than it has been at the same time any previous year, according to officials at the bursar's office.

Sixty girls have reserved rooms at Mary Frances Hall, dormitory for girls, while 61 have reserved rooms at Smith Hall, girls industrial home. Many reservations have also come in to the college from boys who wish to occupy the new boys' dormitory, Ferguson Hall, which when completed will have cost around $150,000.

ART EXHIBIT OCT. 6.

PITTSBURGH.—(AP)—An additional prize of $500 has been added to the list of awards for the 24th International Exhibition of Paintings at Carnegie Institute here, beginning October 15, and continuing until December 6.

The Gorden club of Allegheny county added the $500 to the regular prize list of $3,300. It will be awarded for the best painting of flowers or gardens in the exhibition. The award will be made by the jury, which will meet here September 25.

KLAN A FACTOR BUT A SMALL ONE NEXT YEAR

Its Political Strength In Coming Election a Matter of Doubt

Will the revamped klan take a midway course between endorsement of candidates and that avowed by Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans, of "hands off' and follow dummy candidates till the chosen time to swing to chosen men for the various officers?

Or will the klan's activties next time be passive, negative rather than a real effort to elect their candidates—will they be out to defeat, rather than to elect?

All these things hinge about what seems the most important political declaration so far in the preliminary shoping for the races of 1926.

Claim Themselves Passive.

That statement, frequently quoted since it was made two weeks ago, is that the klan will have no candidates in the field next year. y

Wizard Evans didn't say the klan wouldn't vote. He didn't say the members would not look att he selection from a klan and anti-klan viewpoint.

Bob Henry was an avowed candidate for klan support. The klan votes swung to Earle B. Mayfield for the senate. Evans' statement indicates there may be no Henry, but doesn't disclaim the Mayfield of the various races for state office next year.

How the klan may operate next year, deprived of voice in the party organization, is a question just now getting serious thought from those leaders who have the whole thing worked out about the time the followers first hear of them.

It is said that throughout Texas the local klans, many of which have been dormant for months, are being asked to bolster their membership and revive the interest of their members. An invitation of 7,000 near Dallas indicates some measure of success in the efforts.

The klan strength was fairly revealed in the Robertson race of 1924. It is undoubtedly far below that strength now; and probably will not be back close to the number of votes given Robertson in the run-off primary.

But, there will be a block of votes, which if cast with any degree of unanimity to any one candidate, will materially aid that candidate in getting into the run-off. Qualified, will materially aid him or her in case the klan is not so publicly supporting the candidate as to alienate as many other votes. For, with or without Wizard Evans' statement, it doesn't seem probable there will be an out-and-out klan candidate for any office.

The klan must look to the degree o fanti-klan-ism of the candidates, to find its fighting-place next year.

Strength of House.

The klan had enough strength in the last house of representatives to block any two-thirds' action by the antis. Its friends wielded the opposition strictly as a minority party and made no efforts at dominance. Some of the sharpest issues of the house were not based on the klan lines at all.

Probably a frank admission would be that the klan will expect fewer sympathizers and supporters in the legislature next year than it had last.

With less than 50 members in the house, the majority will be able to march rough-shod over its opposition. You probably recall the thunderous announcement of the published-membership-lists bill of the last sentence, and the death-penalty-for-masking: and you recall the outcome of it all was the mild anti-masking law, with penalties ranging from fine and jail sentence up to a 10-year prison term for the most extreme whitecapping.

This inquiry is not on the success of any candidate; but rather on the tendencies of the klan, and the direction it may take.

Must Be Figurehead.

In some form or other, there must be a figurehead for the klan vote, if it is to be used successfully as a hidden power in the final vote.

The most certain thing now is that regardless of the action of the leaders, the entire klan is not going to follow any one candidate. The next most obvious, is that the leaders won't be able to swing the vote from one candidate to another. That means uncertainty. It means the rank-and-file klan voter must be taken in on the deal from the beginning, and both his reason and his partisanship must concur.

The klan is a factor in the campaigns to be considered. As a political power, its weakness is on the inside, that of division; its source of strength a continued frontal attack by its enemies which would keep consolidated defensively.

CHURCHES

Preparations are being made for another capacity crowd at the popular union church services to be held Sunday evening at Bellevue park with all churches in the city collaborating. The sermon this week will be delivered by Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church. VARIED FILMS GIVEN PALACE MOVIE PATRONS

"The Empty Saddle" And "The Devil's Charge" This Week

One of the most thrilling episodes in "The Empty Saddle," which comes to the Palace theatre on Sunday only, is when Pete Morrison, as Bob Kingston, rescues the brother of his sweetheart from a western dive. He finally has to knock the boy out to get him away, and then stands off the whole villainous crew while he carries his friend away. It is a brand new way to induce a man to give up his evil ways, but mighty effective as you will see.

Life in the early California gold camps was not merely a series of fistic brawls, lynchings, and battle with Indians. Every man was particular to attend to his own business.

This information was gleaned by Victor Fleming during the production of his latest Paramount picture, "The Devil's Cargo," Monday and Tuesday at the Palace. The story is laid in Sacramento in 1850.

"Life in the gold camps was unusually quiet," one old-timer told Fleming. "An argument always ended in a few moments with one of the debaters being carried away feet first with a few chunks of hot lead in his ribs. Every one knew this and every one was careful about mixing into another's affairs."

"The Devil's Cargo," adapted for the screen by A. P. Young from the story, "The River Boat," by Charles Whittaker, duplicates the little pioneer town of Sacramento as it really was 75 years ago. Cut off from the rest of the world, the only communication with neighboring San Francisco being by means of stage coach.

At the time of the story the citizens have banded together in a vigilance committee bent on driving out of the town many undesirables. A young fellow, John Joyce, comes to Sacramento to edit the town's only paper for the advancement of the cause of the vigilants. He meets and falls desperately in love with Faro Sampson, daughter of the proprietor of the most notorious saloon in the camp. That puts him in bad with the vigilantes and things wind up with his being deported with the others on the river boat.

The boilers on the old ramshackle craft blow up. Many of the passengers land safely at San Francisco, but Joyce, his sister Martha, and Faro with several others and the crew are swept seaward.

Olympic Offers Two Exceptional Films This Week

"Beggar on Horseback" Now Showing; "In The Name of Lone", Coming

The making of "Beggar on Horseback" is said to mark a new high spot in the directorial activities of James Cruze, the man who produced "The Covered Wagon." Edward Everett Horton and Esther Ralston, who played "Mrs. Darling" in "Peter Pan," are featured in the principal roles of the production, which comes to the Olympic theatre for a four day's run on Saturday next.

"Beggar on Horseback," adapted from the screen by Walter Woods from the Kaufman-Connelly stage success, begins in a humble little studio on New York's East Side, with Horton as a poor but talented young composer. His heart is set on a symphony but he is forced by circumstances to do hack orchestrations for jazz music. He detests jazz.

Across the hall lives Miss Ralston, a sympathetic admirer who is secretly fond of him. Occasionally, also, he gives music lessons to Gladys Cady (Gertrude Short), daughter of a noisy new-rich family. This girl also is fond of him, for she sees the possibilty of crashing the gates of society through being the wife of a genius and here is where the rope of the plot becomes twisted.

For the three following days of the week, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the Olympic has another treat in store.

To those worldly-wise, sophisticated souls who claim romance is dead and insist there is no such thing as true love in this modern day and materialistic age, we heartily recommend a visit to the Olympic theatre where "In the Name of Love," a new and joyous Paramount picture starts Wednesday for a three-day run.

For this modrn magnificent picturization of Bulwear-Lytton's world-famous stage success, "The Lady of Lyons" offers glorious proof that the twentieth century youth is just as daring and resourceful in love-making as were those knights of old who fought for the hand of their "ladye afire" in shining suits of armor.

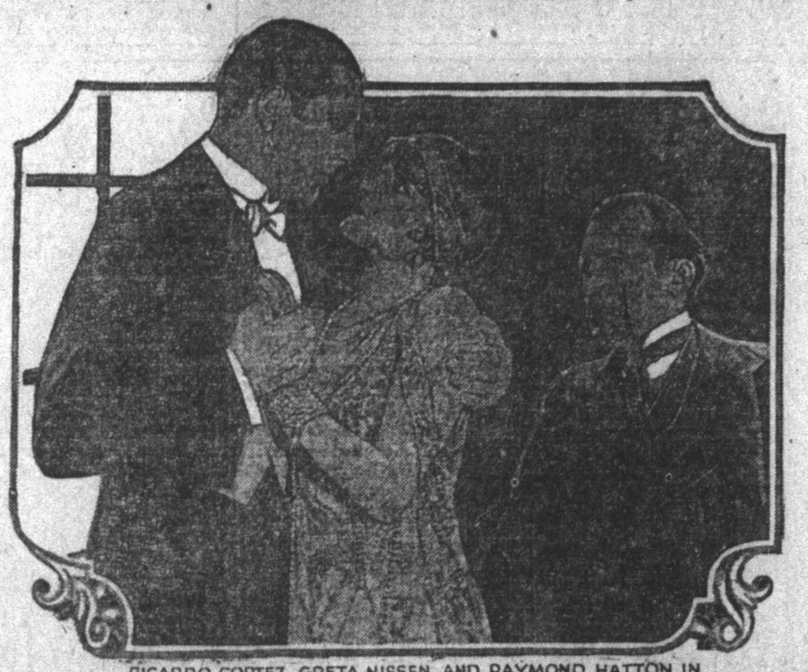

"In the Name of Love" has for its central characters Ricardo Cortez, as the handsome but penniless lover, and Greta Nissen, as the lovely but snobbish heiress.

HAIL RAVAGES COTTON

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 22.—Approximately 2,500 acres of cotton were destroyed by hail Thursday night in the Leslie community, 20 miles west of Memphis.

Two inches of rain accompanied the hail. A number of fields were so badly damaged that it will not be necessary to carry a sack into them this year.

PROF., HATER OF WOMEN, IS IN MISSION FILM

"I'll Show You the Town" Is Great Laugh Picture Starring Denny

As a warning to all persons who dwell in flats or apartment houses, "I'll Show You the Town," the Universal-Jewel feature comes to the Mission theatre, commencing today.

Professor Dupree, as played by Reginald Denny, is an avowed hater of women and of the wild life—so-called. In his flat, in the heart of a great metropolis, he has locked himself up to concentrate on his dissertation on "Apartment House Life in Ancient Rome."

The book might have been written and published and Professor Dupree might have become a famous author or a political economist or something of the kind—but alas! the sympathetic professor, when he had moved bag and baggage into his comfy flat, had not taken into consideration his neighbors. Most of the laughs in "I'll Show You the Town" are furnished by the extremely funny relationship between Denny and his neighbors, who, with great ingenuity, prevent him from carrying out the completion of his great work.

Billie Bonner, played by Neely Edwards, a high powered automobile salesman, is Dupree's neighbor on the one side, and "The Greens" on the other. Between the two Dupree becomes involved in a series of precarious situations. Denny is supported by a notable cast including such well known favorites as Marion Nixon, Edward Kimball, Lilyan Tashman, Hayden Stevenson, Cissy Fitzgerald, Margaret Livingston, Neely Edwards, William A. Carroll, Martha Mattox, Helen Greene and Lionel Braham. The production was made under the direction of Harry A. Pollard.

FOLK SONGS USED IN OPERA.

KASA, Rusia.—(AP)—An opera based upon the folk songs of the country, has been composed to be a feature of the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the autonomous Tartar republic. The work, entitled "Sania," consists of an overture and three acts. It is the first national production of its kind and required the efforts of three collaborators two years to complete it. The Eastern Musical conservatory of Kasan has undertaken to prepare the opera for presentation during the anniversary festival.

France to Boost Shipping Trade

PARIS, Aug. 22.—French shipping is doing well, but the government desires that it do better. Wtih that end in view a bill has been laid before the chamber of deputies providing for the creation of a national office of maritime credits which would grant loans to French ship owners at a rate of interest not exceeding three per cent. Then ecessaryf unds, apart from gifts, legacies and the like, would be furnished by dues on goods landed and on passengers embarked.

The proposed tax on goods would be from one-half franc to two francs per ton and the rates for passengers ten, four and two francs respectively for first, second and third class, with lesser rates for steamers engaged in international coastwise services or plying the route to Algeria.

The effect of the bill would be to enable the ship owners to order more vessels from the French ship yards, which have received very few orders during the last three years, and which have only been able to keep operating by orders from abroad.

CHANNEL SWIM DELAYED

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 22.—(AP).—George Pouilley, former French national swimming champion, and Isha'k Helmy, the giant Egyptian, have been compelled to postpone their attempt to swim the English channel which was to have begun tonight, on account of high winds and heavy seas.

Baby Has Leading Role in Garden Theatre Picture

Despite the presence of two such sterling comedians as Fred Thomson and his horse, "Silver King," a baby is the real star of "The Bandit's Baby." Or more strictly speaking, a baby together with several other babies, cause most of the laughter which has rocked the critics right out of their accustomed cynicism wherever this new F. B. O. production starring the famous athlete and his equally celebrated horse has been shown. "The Bandit's Baby" comes to the Garden theatre on Sunday for its initial performance in this locality, and to judge by the reports which have been received it is the most uproarious comedy-melodrama in which Thomson has ever been featured. The difficulties of a real live "bandit" who is forced by circumstances to act as judge at a baby show in a tough western town and who afterward is unwillingly handed a prize winning baby to take care of form a most unusual story, crammed with laughs. Director Del Andrews has made the most of his comedy, as have the stars and an excellent cast. The story is an original by Leete Renick Brown, and the adaptation was done by Marion Jackson.

DAIL IS REJECTED.

DUBLIN.—(AP)—During the session of the Free State parliament which recently adjourned, the government was not faced by serious opposition. This was due to the refusal of the Republican party to recognize the Dail or take any part in the government proceedings.

Potash & Perlmutter Discuss These United States as a Real Estate Proposition —By Montague Glass

"In Fact, Abe, Nohting Happens in This Country From Maine to Californ nia But Somewhere, in Some Part of the United States a Real Estator Won't Take Action on It."

"Will you tell me one thing, Mawruss?" asked Abe Potash the other morning. "Why is it when we have a hot spell in New York, people in the Western states say: 'I see where it was a hundred in the shade in New York yesterday, and my Gracious, I had to laugh; twenty people was overcome by the heat'."

"Well, they ain't got nothing on the New Yorkers at that, Abe," Morris Perlmutter replied, "because when they have a little trouble with chimneys falling in Helena, Montana, and two or three people get scalp wounds from walking around bare-headed in a light shower of bricks, y'understand, instead of feeling sorry because them Montanners was caught out in the bricks without an umbrella, the New Yorker gets to talking chesty about Manhattan Island, except once every twenty seconds when a Fifth Avenue bus goes by."

"But why should people on the Coast consider that a hot wave in New York is something that should ought to be considered as a sort of comic strip when they read about it in the papers?" Abe protested. "After all don't the people of New York and California both pay income taxes to the same United States treasury and ain't we all violators of the same Volstead Act? Am I right or wrong?"

"Absolutely!" Morris agreed. "And if ever the United States got into a war with a foreign country, Abe, you would find that Prohibitionists and Light-Wine-and-Beerists was brothers under their breaths, and you would also see ranged alongside of them all the other ists, including Fundamentalists, Modernists, Socialists and Ventriloquists, but when it comes to one part of the country sympathizing with another part on account of misfortunes connected with the climate, Abe, then the United States ain't so much a country, y'understand, as real estate."

"Some Californians can see a February Freeze-up in Florida as being worth anyhow ten dollars a front foot to Pasadena, California real estate, and vice versa," Morris continued, "and when they have a little earth tremble in Montana, y'understand, realtors in Idaho revise their list prices and they don't mark them down neither.

Real Estators Take Advantage of All Breaks in the Game.

"In fact, Abe, nothing happens in this country from Maine to California but somewhere in some part of the United States, a real estator won't take action on it, and it must be very difficult sometimes for such a real estator to make up his mind whether an account of the advertising his town has received, he should ought to ask more or less for the property he has listed for sale."

"Take for instance a place like Dayton, Tenn., and I admit that from the newspapers, you get the impression that it's a combination of a poor farm and an old men's home with some of the features of a lunatic asylum and one or two suggestions of an out-of-date county jail," Morris went on. "Nevertheless some people would consider it real estate on which its inhabitants,—such as they are,—will build houses and occasionally a drug store for conversatios purposes, y'understand, and the question is,—from a realtor's standpoint, should real estate in Dayton, Tennessee, sell at a higher price per front foot than real estate in Herrin, Illinois, or even Molokai, in the Hawaiian Islands?"

"I don't know, because I ain't a real estater," Abe declared.

"Neither am I." Morris said, "but it seems to me that realtors should ought to consider what non-realtors think about how certain advertising affects real estate proposition, Abe, and you must get to admit that the way it has been subdivided, y'understand, causes some sections to be considerably more desirable than others, and it's all on account of the advertising which non-realtors read in the papers.

"For example, Abe, if I would be a real estate owner in the Tennessee subdivision of the big real estate proposition which we would call for real estate purposes, Coolidge Heights, I would get busy and ask my lawyers if I didn't have no covenant against nuisance in my deed which prohibited anybody from conducting, maintaining or carrying on any glue factory, slaughter house, Evolution Trial or other occupation from which noxious or offensive odors might proceed."

"In fact, Abe," Morris continued, "I don't know but what the whole of Coolidge Heights is affected by the nuisance now being maintained in the Tennessee subdivision, and as a property owner in the New York subdivision, I strongly object to the advertising which the entire real estate proposition of Coolidge Heights or the United States of America is getting out of it. It's bringing down the value of our big tract of real property in the eyes of them competing real estate developments across the Atlantic Ocean."

People Nowadays More Sensitive About Homes as Regards Real Estate Than Otherwise.

"Do me the favor, Mawruss," Abe broke in impatiently, "and tell me where you are driving into with all this talk about real estate."

"Well, Abe, I'll tell you," Morris said. "There's too many people in the country which is much more sensitive about the country they live in,—as real estate than as a country, y'understand.

"For instance, if there's an earthquake in Montana, y'understand the Montana property owners like to see the Montana newspapers soft-pedal it as much as possible in the interests of real estate values. They don't print headlines about it and put the earthquakes on the front page every day of the year.

"But on the other hand, Abe, we've got certain people in this big real estate tract we call the United States, which when it comes to injuring its value in the eyes of them trans-Atlantic real estate developments, are worse than an earthquake, coupled with a tornado and followed by a hot spell, and yet day after day, the newspapers feature certain Washington politicians just as though they would be some great natural advantage enjoyed by our big real estate development. They treat them as though they would be a pure water supply, beautiful scenery, a mild climate and a fresh ocean breeze or any other feature which would raise the value of the United States, considered as a real estate development, at the lowest estimate,—fifty dollars a front foot."

"You ain't implying that a Washington Politician is an earthquake or a tornado, are you?" Abe asked.

"Not at all!" Morris replied. "Earthquakes and tornadoes are acts of Providence, Abe. They ain't anybody's fault, and it don't do any good to play them up in the newspaper. But soft-coal smoke, poor transit facilities, Evolution trials and Washington Politicians who are working for notoriety and not for patriotism, y'understand, are something we could put a stop ot, and it's bad enough for real estate values that we allow them to exist at all, without making things worse by featuring them on the front page every morning."

"But them Washington Politicians always see to it that the way they act is what editors call news," Abe said.

"Then let them print it in small type, as though it were a slight earthquake i nthe vicinity of Washington, D. C., from which no damage resulted," Morris concluded, "and maybe no damage will."

PUBLIC BATHS OF OLD ROME COMING BACK

Architects Draw Plans For Huge Structure to Be Used Also as Gyms

ROME. — (AP) — Public baths which constituted part of the greatness of ancient Rome, are beginning to come into vague again with the ever growing interest in athletics on the part of Italian youth.

Inspired partly by the grandiose pomposity of the ruins of such ancient structures as the baths of Caracalla and Diocletian and partly by the practicability of modern gymnasiums, Italian architects have drawn up plans for the erection of two massive structures which are destined to serve the Roman public not only as baths but also as athletic and sport centers.

One of these is to be constructed in the Piazza Risorgimento in the center of one of Rome's most rapidly growing residential sections. According to the architect's plans it will be rivaled in splendid ornateness only by such new buildings as the Palace of Justice at the Piazza Cavour. The new public bath establishment will contain, among other, things, a huge swimming pool, 60 meters by 20, as well as a large kymnasium, reading and lounging rooms and other equipment calculated to attract athleically inclined young men.

Socialists Take To French Parlors

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—One of the militant leaders of the socialist party in France will soon occupy one on the apartments of the "Sun King," Louis XIV., in the palace of eVrsailles. The announcement of this most unexpected even has caused considerable emotion in the rank and file of the socialist party.

"What are we coming to?" is the general remark, "with Alexandre Varenne, governor general of Indo-China; Paul Boncour hobnobbing with bourgeoius ministers and representatives of reactionary republics and monarchies at Geneva, and Edouard Barthe playing the nabob in the gold trimmed salons and boudoirs of Louis the Fourteenth?"

Barthe, who is one of the questeurs of the chamber of deputies which is a kind of governing committee of the rouse, says, nevertheless, he is going to see how it seems to live in a royal chateau. He cites the precedent established by the late secretary of the chamber, Eugene Pierre, who spent all his vacations in the apartment reserved at Versailles for the secretary of the lower house.

Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tikhten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out) giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

U. S. Tourists Carrie On Chairs In House of Lords and Tell King George To "Put It There"

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—As is usual during the tourist season, the Londan newspapers are carrying almost daily accounts of the amusing doings of some aof the American tourists engaged in seeing England.

The good natured effrontery of the American who accosted the king at Wembley and succeeded in getting a royal handshake soon lost its funny side when the monarch's own subjects became bold enough to do likewise, but there has been a steady run of similar incidents to amuse the English public.

An affair which bordered more on the serious occured in the House of Lords, when a tourist attempted to cut off a piece of leather from the wool sack, upon which the lord chancellor sits during business hours, and it cost a fine in police court to square the matter.

Numerous mistakes arising from the difference in the English and American language frequently occupy much newspaper space, while the escapades of Americans resulting from the absence of their accustomed environment of prohibition are a source of constant entertainment.

Sweden Between Two "Dry" Nations, Says It is Driest

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Situate dbetween Finland and Norway, both partial prohibition countries, a non-prohibition country, claims to be the soberest of the lot.

In Finland and Norway the illegal consumption of liquor is said to far exceed the amount legally consumed, while the amount used in Sweden is steadily decreasing, figures show. The Swedish policy is said to be toward reducing the consumption of liquor, rather than total prohibition. Each household is allowed four liters of liquor a month and the supply for restaurants also is restricted.

During the period of 1911-13 when the system of restriction was new, consumption of liquor in Stockholm averaged 24 liters a year for each person. Public offences were 47 for each 1,000 inhabitants and drunkards treated in hospitals averaged 12 for each 10,000 of population.

BASEBALL CUBA'S SPORT.

HAVANA.—(AP)—More than 1,000 amateur and professions teams easily put baseball in first place as the most popular sport in Cuba. The American national game, however, is not the only one that engages the attention of the youth of Cuba.

All the larger social clubs have athletic teams including besides baseball, swimming, rowing, football, track fencing and jai alai (Spanish handball).

350,000 PILGRIMS IN ROME.

ROME. — (AP) — Approximately 350,000 holy year pilgrims arrived in Rome during April and May, according to statistics compiled by the daily newspaper, L'Epoca. Railway officials announce that the heaviest single day of traffic was May 15, when 110 special trains, 70 of them from outside of Italy, brought 59,000 pilgrims to Rome, while special cars attached to ordinary trains brought 18,000 more.

PLAN TEACHERS' EXAMS

Will Allow Quizzes For Chance to Raise Second Grade Certificates

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Special examinations for teachers who wish to convert second grade certificates to first grade or first grade to permanent will be held in every county seat of the state, Saturday, Aug. 29, S. M. U. Marrs, superintendent of public instruction, said today. Only those teachers who are building on their certificates under the law in force prior to 1921, will be allowed to take examinations, he said. No extension of old certificates is permitted, he said, and the time for completion for such certificates expires Sept. 1, 1925.

AUBURN PAYS BIG DIVIDEND ON COMMON

Motor Company Declares 100 Per Cent Payment On Stock

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Auburn Automobil company a stock dividend was declared of 100 per cent on the common stock of $25 par value, increasing the capital of Auburn from $750,000 to $1,500,000.

E. L. Cord, vice-president and general manager, who has just recently bought out the former control, in his report to stockholders advised that unfilled orders on the books of the Auburn Automobile company were the greatest in the history of the company.

"Earnings for July approximated $1.50 per share on the new capitalization of 60,000 shares after setting up a reserve for taxes and estimated earnings for the month of August will approximate $2.25 per share," stated Mr. Cord.

"Within the last year the Auburn Automobile company has retired $500,000 in preferred stock and is in exceptionally nice position. In the past twelve months we have not used any credit whatsoever, having had sufficient working capital to operate our business on.

"We anticipate that the complete year of 1925 will far exceed the best year that Auburn ever had in both numbers of cars and earnings."

Immediately following the stockholders' meeting the directors had a special meeting and voted the issue of the stock dividend and authorized the payment of a quarterly dividend of seventy-five cents per share payable October 1 to stock of record September 20.

The resignation of F. B. Hitchcock as a director was accepted and L. B. Manning was elected to complete that portion of his unexpired term.

TOWN WITHOUT LAUNDRY

Chinese Operator Arrested by Federal Narcotic Chief.

HONOLULU, Aug. —(AP).—The laundy business in Wailuku, Island of Maiu, Hawaii Territory, has been paralyzed, and irate citizens deprived of clean shirts, collars, etc., have been on the verge of calling a protest meeting all on account of the Harrison narcotic law. Such was the story told by J. A. Manning, federal narcotic chief for Hawaii, on his return from Maiu, where he arrested among others, the town's only laundryman, Chow Wing.

"One hotel had no linen, and everyone in the village seemed to have a dress or a shirt in the hands of Wing Chow," Manning said. "To hear the grief and protests, you would have thought the patron saint of the town had just expired."

Motor, Like Motorists, Injured By "Eating Dust"

All motorists dislike to "eat dirt." So do all motor cars.

The only difference is that the motorist can hold his breath until the dust cloud has passed while the motor keeps on breathing whatever variety of air comes to the "nostrils" of its carburetor.

A striking series of experiments conducted by the engineers of the Oakland Motor Car company revealed that the breathing of dust is really one of the most serious factors in engine wear.

The experiments were conducted with the most delicate of scientific instruments some of which measure a minute dust particle .0005 of an inch in diameter.

Oakland Has Air Cleaner.

The conclusion reached by these engineers has resulted in the adoption of the air cleaner with which the new Oakland cars are equipped. This cleaner, which operates on the principle of the centrifugal cream separator, whirls every particle of dust and foreign matter from the air and feeds only the purified aid into the carburetor.

Oakland and General Motors engineers have overwhelming proof of the necessity for such protection, regarding it as particularly important in the present day of heavy traffic and dust-stirring balloon tires.

Among other things it was found that an average automobile breathes 10,000 gallons of air with every gallon of gasoline. Every bit of this air contains dust to a greater or lesser degree.

Some dust is so fine that it falls at the rate of less than one inch per hour. The air over dirt and gravel roads of course reveal the highest content of dust. But even over concrete roads the air, particularly when traffic is moving, contains dust in harmful quantities.

General Motors engineers have made some interesting tests in the district south of the Mason and Dixon line and west of the Mississippi. A number of cloth filters were sent out and placed on automobiles which were driven from widely separated districts. They revealed that the dust breathed in by automobiles in 500 to 1,000 miles in all localities is substantially the same. It is from 90 to 98 per cent mineral matter, more than half of which is silica or quartz, a destructive abrasive or grinding compound. Its size varies from .0005 of an inch to .0015 of an inch.

Causes Knocks.

The engineers knew that foreign matter mixed with lubricating oil wore the moving parts of the car and combined with the oil to form the hard carbon which causes carbon knock and pre-ignition. But they wanted to know just what degree of wear was caused by the abrasive road dust.

They wanted exact figures. Accordingly they made an indoor laboratory test. Two engines were operated continuously for 36 hours. One was protected by a centrifugal oil cleaner. The carburetor of the other carried no air cleaner. Two-thirds of a pound of rust was fed evenly and gradually into the air intakes of both motors. Measurements then revealed that the cylinder wall wear of the unprotected motor was 15 times greater than that found on the motor which had been breathing through the air cleaner.

Tests of this kind reveal why the more progressive motor car manufacturers are turning to the air cleaner as a practical essential under today's driving conditions.

N. Y. Motor Police Go to Ford School

To give the motorized police of New York City an intimate knowledge of the construction and operation of the 722 Ford cars recently purchased by the city, a special Ford school has been established by the New York Police Academy at Thirty-fourth street and Lexington avenue. More than 2,800 police sergeants and patrolmen detailed to the motor division of the police force are enrolled in the Ford school in a course which completely covers every phase of the Ford engine, electrical, clutch and drive system.

"Fords are rapidly taking over the important features of the police department's patrol work," Police Inspector John J. Noonan explains, "and it is our intention to make every officer as familiar with his Ford as he is with his revolver."

Sixty especially selected men of the division, in addition to their weeks' instruction in the Ford school of the police academy, spent a week in the Ford Motor company plant at Kearny, N. J., to learn Ford methods in shop work and construction. They will have charge of the precinct police garages.

After his training of six eight-hour days in the police Ford school every sergeant and patrolman is competent to make minor repairs on his car which may become necessary while on patrol. The precinct garages will be equipped for all major repairs and each car will be kept "tuned up" to meet the requirements of metropolitan police work.

The only departure from the standard Ford equipment on the police cars will be the use of solid tires which cannot puncture and cripple the car in a critical moment.

STUDEBAKER USED IN TRIPS OVER DESERT

Death Valley Man Uses Car For Tours Over Rough Country

Death Valley, lowest point in the United States, and the hottest, may be a terror to most folks, but to Charles Brown, merchant and guide of Shoshone, the village at the south end of the inferno, the valley holds no fear. Brown knows Death Valley from one end to the other, and has been in more points there than nearly anyone else in that country. And he makes his trips in a Studebaker bix six.

In a letter to a Studebaker dealer Brown says: "I just want to tell you how much complete satisfaction and service my Studebaker big-six touring car has given in Death Valley. Since the car left your salesrooms it has not seen pavement. Its entire mileage of almost 18,000 miles to date has been made in the Mojave desert and Death Valley. It is the only car used for tourist travel in this country, which few men see.

"I never did a tap on the motor since I got the car. I have had the spark plugs out once. I change oil every 700 miles, and flush the crankcase with the same kind of oil I use to fill it with. My gasoline mileage to date is better thon fifteen miles to the gallon. I consider this remarkable, due to the fact that in this back country one mile of travel for a car is equal to five miles of travel on the pavement. Out here tire mileage is hard to get. But the Studebaker seems to give unusual mileage. Travel here is up washes; over rocks and boulders; through lava beds; the biggest salt beds in the world where the going is very tough and five miles an hour is high speed; and through endless miles of sand. There is no easy going to be found, except on the roads we are building now."

Export Demanded Largest In History of Country Indicated

An indication of the growth of the foreign trade of Nordyke and Marmon company is given by E. S. Gorrell, vice president, in the announcement that foreign shipments of Marmon cars for the first six months of 1925 are more than double the foreign shipments for the first six months of 1924, and that present indications point to 1925 as the largest year in point of foreign exports in the history of the company.

The actual increase of foreign shipments for the six months period was 114.28 per cent, Colonel Gorrell said.

February was the banner month of the six months period, exports that month showing an increase of 400 per cent over exports in February, 1924. Shipments of the new Marmon to England, France and Germany have been particularly high since the first of the year. Francesco Alberici, Marmon distributor in Spain, reports a growing demand for Marmons in Spain, while dealers in Italy, Norway, Sweden and Denmark are taking a greater allotment of cars than formerly.

Domestic shipments likewise are forging ahead. The statistical report for July, just issued, shows that shipments of the new Marmon to dealer and distributor establishments in July were greater by 101 per cent than shipments in July, 1924. Much public interest is being exhibited in the new Marmon Victoria coupe, just announced, dealers report. Sales of this model are far in advance of production.

Drives Car Nine Years; His Repair Expense Is $24.95

Important factors in the manufacture of Overland cars, as proven daily by enthusiastic reports from owners, include, factory engineers declare, an unusual built-in quality that insures long life and fine service in the hands of Overland owners.

Ever since Willys-Overland first brought out the Overland four cylinder car, quality has been the all-important feature, coupled with the lowest possible price, according to company officials. Thousands and thousands of Overland owners are highly enthusiastic over the performance of their cars, and unusual illustrations of Overland performance daily reach the Willys-Overland factory.

H. M. Vandergraaf of Goodwin, S. Dakota, purchased his Overland in June, 1916. "This car has been in continuous service since its purchase," he writes, "and only yesterday I drove it more than 200 miles through mud and over bad roads without the slightest trouble, carrying four grown people and four children in the car."

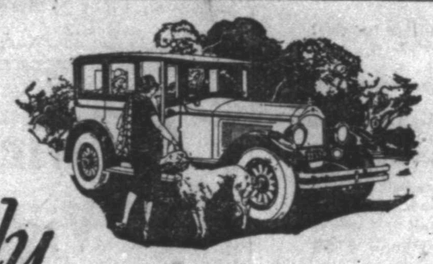

One company executive, in commenting on this owner's letter, declared' "That is just typical of the built-in quality that has marked Overlands ever since we started to construct them."

"My total expense for parts, mechanical service, etc.," continues Vandergraaf's letter, "has been but $24.95 in the entire time I have had the car. A neighbor and myself overhauled the engine last winter for the first time in the nine years excellent service this car has given.'

on "the car that has established the greatest performance-record in America"!

THIS IS THE CAR "with an engine you'll never wear out." Since its introduction 10 years ago—in test after test, with owner after owner, 100,000 miles after 100,000 miles—it has never failed to prove itself the most efficient, the quietest and the simplest engine ever put into an automobile!

THIS IS THE CAR with the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine—the only known motor that actually improves with use. The longer you drive it the better it gets!

THIS IS THE CAR with exactly the same type of engine you will find in four leading European-built automobiles—Daimler-Knight, Panhard, Minerva, Peugeot—names to conjure with, the ultimate in motor-car manufacture!

THIS IS THE CAR with the world famous Lanchester Balancer—an English invention used in this country exclusively in the Willys-Knight. Absolutely prevents engine-vibration at any and all speeds. To the Lanchester Balancer, United States owners owe their first delightful knowledge of vibrationless motoring.

THIS IS THE CAR that knows no carbon troubles, that has no valves to grind. The patented Knight sleeve-valve idea gets rid of both!

THIS IS THE CAR women are particularly proud to drive and ride in. Easy to handle. Good to look upon. Very flexible. Smartly designed. Richly upholstered. Completely appointed. Thoroughly comfortable. So satisfying and gratifying to go about in!

THIS IS THE CAR that, quickly and surely, is achieving one of the most conspicuous sales successes in America. At these GREATLY REDUCED PRICES, this is your opportunity to own a car whose performance has never yet been known to reach its limit—as beautiful, as distinguished, as inviting a motor-car as you have ever cast your eyes upon!

CHRYSLER IN BIG DEMAND ALL OVER U. S.

Huge Output Insufficient To Meet Orders For Four or Sixes

Seven hundred and fifty Chrysler cars, 500 of them the new Chrysler Four, are now being turned out every day by the Chrysler corporation in its effort to catch up with the country-wide demand for its cars. The plants are working on a schedule of 16,000 cars in July. Unfilled orders at the factory are the greatest in the history of the organization, according to J. E. Fields, vice president in charge of sales.

"The first showing of the Chrysler Four has attracted thousands to our showrooms," said Mr. Fields in a statement issued recently. "Scores have placed orders, without demonstration, after a first view of the car. So instantaneous has been its appeal that already public demand exceeds our scheduled production.

"Every faculty of the great Chrysler plants is concentrated today on meeting the demand in dellvering the Chrysler Four. Production is now running 500 cars a day—the greatest output of four cylinder cars ever attained in a Chrysler plant.

"Chrysler dealers today are making deliveries with a rapidity not anticipated by the thousands who placed their orders, content to wait until delivery could be made."

Breaks Record.

This huge production by the two Chrysler plants in Detroit is made possible by the installation of several hundred thousand dollars worth of new and improved machinery. The Chrysler Highland Park plant, where the newly announced four cylinder car is being built, is operating on a schedule larger than it has ever before reached in order to fill the flood of orders which began when the car was first shown a few weeks ago. The Chrysler Jefferson avenue plant is turning out 250 sixes a day. Increased efficiency in the Jefferson plant has recently permitted the production of an additional 100 to 125 cars a week.

The rapidity with which production of the new Chrysler Four has jumped approximately 100 cars a day to 500 is a feat which astounded automobile manufacturing executives of long experience, says W. Ledyard Mitchell, vice president in charge of manufacturing. This phenomenal increase was made possible through new machinery designed and installed under the personal direction of Walter P. Chrysler, and adds another manufacturing achievement to his long career as the leading figure in that field in the motor car industry. It is even more of a feat, adds Mr. Mitchell, because of the greater number of and more rigid inspections to which each Chrysler Four is subject before being permitted to receive final approval. Cars are being turned out at the four plant as rapidly as is consistent with quality production, says Mr. Mitchell. Every facility of the entire organization is concentrated on meeting the demand in delivering the four. Production from the Jefferson plant is likewise the greatest every attained.

Mr. Fields announces that orders for both four and six cylinder cars taken by Chrysler distributors and dealers since the advent of the Chrysler Four, June 25, have consistently been the largest reached at any time in its history. He estimates from reports filed by factory district supervisors throughout the country that an average of more than 1,000 retail orders for Chrysler Fours and Sixes have been placed since that time.

U. S. Hostess Has Three of Royalty In Home at Once

LONDON, Aug. 22.—It is not often that an American hostess in England has the privilege of entertaining three members of royalty all at the same time, but last week the Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly May Ogden Goelet of Newport, had as guests the Duke and Duchess of York, and Princess Mary, who visited at the duke's fine old country seat, Floors Castle, on the Tweed, for a bit of grouse shooting on a 60,000 acre estate.

Thed uchess is a close friend of the royal family and is extremely popular with all classes in England, and Scotland. She is one of the kenest sport lovers among the nobility and prodigious tales are told of her prowess with gun and rod, especially the former. Although the first lady of one of the greatest houses of England, the duchess dislikes publicity and is said she never has had a picture taken of her only son, the Marquis of Bowmont and Cessford, who is ten years old, for fear it might find its way into illustrated papers. Her parties never are described in thes ociety columns.

Finds Valuable Paintings in U. S.

BERLIN, Aug. 22—(AP)—Thirty-one paintings which Dr. Hans Wendland, a German art lover, acquired in Chicago last spring are attracting much attention in the national gallery.

In Chicago the pictures were believed to have been the work of the Swiss lanscape painter, Alexandre Alecame, but Dr. Wendland is of the opinion that they are from the brush of Arnold Boecklin, also a Swiss artist, whose "Island of the Dead" and other fantastic paintings have given him fame comparable to that of the old Dutch and Italian masters.

Dr. Wendland acquired the collection, and, after exhibiting it in Switzerland, brought it to Berlin, where the professional critics have supported his views that Boecklin painted the canvsses.

Willys-Knight 'Repeat' Sales Are Feature of Trade

Make up Large Part Of Huge Sales Volume For Four Cylinder Cars

One of the outstanding factors reported in the six months Willys-Overland dealers reports was the big part played in the sale of Willys-Knight four cylinder cars to former Willys-Knight owners, factory officials state.

From one end of the country to the other come letters and telegrams from enthusiastic dealers over the exceptional activity of the four cilynder Willys-Knight line with its new refinements and added beauty, and these dealers report would fill several volumes relating to the resale of Willys-Knights to satisfied owners.

Coupled with this information from dealers, comes the information that many automobile purchasers, capable of buying higher priced cars, have centered their interest on the Willys-Knight four cylinder lines because of its adaptability, long wear and efficient motor performance. Dr. Lawrence Busby, well known physician of Memphis, Tenn., is now driving his third Willys-Knight, a roadster, and both the doctor and Mrs. Busby are unanimous in their high praise of the new car.

It is this fine and satisfactory service which is being rendered thousands of Willys-Knight owners in the United States and foreign countries that is responsible for the fine showing in dealers sales of this model. Every day's mail at the factory brings letters telling of repeat sales because of the dependability of the sturdy Willys-Knight.

H. E. and Joseph Smith, prominent florists of Danville, Ills., are typical Willys-Knight boosters. H. E. Smith recently purchased a four cylinder Willys-Knight sedan, this car making his third of the famous sleeve valved creations. The second Willys-Knight was just purchased by the brother and is a Willys-Knight Six. Both brothers are unanimous in their unstinted praise for the "motor that improves with use" and declare that the "only reason we have bought no more Knights is because they won't wear out fast enough."

In addition to the two Willys-Knight passenger cars owned by the members of this popular Danville firm, three Overland delivery cars are in daily use in their business, for, as the brothers put it "These Overland delivery cars give us better mileage and less upkeep expense than any other make of delivery car we have ever used." Three other leading citizens of Danville have recently purchased Willys-Knights for the second time, including Mrs. Blanche Clements, Dr. Francis Barton and L. V. Jones.

These illustrations, declare factory officials, are simply identical with hundreds of other instances in which the original owners of Willys-Knight cars have bought their second, third and even fourth Willys-Knight because of the complete satisfaction derived from their former cars.

Sousa's Marches Popular at Dance Resorts in France

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—John Philip Sousa's stirring marches of Spanish-American war days are enjoying an unusual revival in the dancing resorts of the Mont Matre, and the newly opened dispensaries of melody and champagne in the Latin quarter and Montparnasse.

Strangely, it is not the visiting Americans who demand encores of such old favorites as "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and "National Emblem," but the native French and the sprinkling of other Europeans attracted to Paris by the exposition season.

The revival has amply proven—at least to dancing Paris—that the old works of the famous bandmaster are just as good for the modern one step, as for the two step of McKinley and Roosevelt vintage. Futhermore, they provide welcome change from the over-done jazz, langorous tangos and "the java."

SEES GREAT PROGRESS IN MECHANICS

Olds Motor Works President Says Year's Developments Marvelous

By I. J. REUTER
President and General Manager Olds Motor Works.

Undue praise is bestowed on the craftsman and artisan of the past, principally through our tendency to heap laurel wreaths on the brow of antiquity without proper knowledge. If guild workmen of the Sixteenth century were to try to build a present Oldsmobile, the result would be a car greatly lacking in accuracy and precision and selling at a fabulous price instead of less than $900.

Credit is due these early workmen for what they accomplished with the meager equipment of those times. But it is decidedly unfair to present day workmen and industrial scientists to exalt the craftsman of the past and his product. It can be safely said that these men in an entire century failed to bring about economics and betterments in manufacture as have, for example, been accomplished by the Olds Motor Works during the past year.

Modern Way Best.

In olden times men served long apprenticeships, learning to do as their elders had done for generations past. The more progressive sometimes traveled to other cities seeking new methods, and this was the chief way any progress was gained. Today corps of highly trained men are constantly directing experiments and tests. Under them are skilled workmen who carry on the actual work. Every day something new is tried and something new is learned.

The recent introduction by the Olds Motor Works of the latest Oldsmobile with added power, beauty and performance at drastically reduced prices is illustrative of the vast difference between crafts of today and yesterday. Under the ancient system such an accomplishment would have been impossible.

For months an enlarged Oldsmobile engineering staff has been working toward two purposes—one to create improvements and the other to reduce manufacturing costs without the sacrifice of quality.

Unlike their prototypes who strove to excell along established lines only, these craftsmen of 1925 work on the assumption that everything can be improved upon and that every process can be performed better and more simply. That which has been proven good is to them not good enough.

One group of skilled engineers devoted their time and talents toward changes that would result in more engine power without adding weight or sacrificing economy. A larger valve here, a slight change in the shape of another part, the lengthening of one rod or the shortening of another—such things as these were decided upon after exhaustive tests.

Every Idea Tried.

Every idea was tried out thoroughly before acceptance or rejection. Engines containing a proposed change were tested on dynamometers for hundreds of hours and their every degree of performance registered by delicate instruments. Then cars equipped with these engines were run thousands of miles around the 146-acre proving ground maintained by the General Motors Corporation. The proving ground roads approximate every condition an automobile will be called to face, containing varying type grades and constructed of different kinds of road material, from a rough dirt road to the latest concrete speedway.

At the same time another group of experts was busy with manufacturing methods. New ideas shaved seconds off single operations. Machines that appeared to the layman to have uncanny intelligence and speed were improved upon. Changes in layout made further savings in time and labor. The result of these labors was the ability to make a better Oldsmobile at a lower cost than ever before.

What Oldsmobile has succeeded in accomplishing and its continual striving for improvement toward perfection is just one illustration of the spirit that has made the automobile business the foremost industry of this country and its craftsmen the peers of the workers of all times.

Kills Catarrh Germ In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh. W. R. Smith, 4447 Lavex Building, Kansas City, Mo.—Adv.

Two Go 3,104 Miles In Chevrolet at A Cost of $22 Each

Los Angeles to Detroit at a total cost of $22.20.

That is what it costs in a Chevrolet according to Joseph L. Rogers, Hollywood, and A. V. Gallina, Los Angeles, insurance men who recently made the trip of 3,104 miles at an expense of $44.40 for gasoline, oil and food or seven-tenths of a cent per man per mile.

The Chevrolet used was a sedan owned by Mr. Gallina. It had been driven only 630 miles before they decided to make a vacation tour to the Detroit home of Mr. Roger's brother, Clifford W. Rogers.

Alternating at the wheel, they made the trip in five days and 18 hours, only a day and one-half longer than the time of the transcontinental flyers which travel a much shorter distance due to the windings of the motor roads.

The tourists gave no particular thought either to the speed or economy of the trip until they were questioned in Detroit by the manager of a Chevrolet service station where they stopped on arrival to change the crank case oil. He induced them to visit W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company, General Motors building. After inspecting and driving the car, Mr. Knudsen pronounced it in excellent mechanical condition.

"The trip was in no sense a stunt," said Mr. Rogers. "We had no accidents except a puncture, the repair of which incidentally is included in the expense budget. Our only adventure was finding two Indian children nearly dead of thirst on a lonely stretch of desert road in New Mexico. They fell on their knees when we gave them a bottle of water."

MONEY COMING BACK.

U. S. Paper Currency, Once Used, Returning Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP) Europeans who resorted to the large scale use of American paper money during the unstable currency conditions which followed the war are now again putting faith in the stabilized currencies established by their own nations and the American money that was drawn abroad is beginning to come back home.

The commerce department has determined that during the first seven months of 1925 American currency previously sent abroad to a total of $42,071,000 was returned. In the same period, only $3,131,000 of American money was sent abroad.

THE GRIT OF A RACING CAR

Its brilliant, utterly different performance was bound, at first, to overshadow the unsurpassed dependability and durability of the Hupmobile Eight.

Now, the public is learning that this Eight is as extraordinary in these respects as in the new interpretation it puts on fine motoring.

Owners habitually drive thousands of miles without even minor adjustments—which means that this is a trustworthy car for a woman.

The fact is, the Hupmobile Eight is built like a racing car—that is, built to travel all day long at top speed. Naturally, such a car, in ordinary day-after-day service, is certain to prove a revelation in stand-up-ability.

Drive this Eight—and you won't be able to resist its performance. Come in.

Gardner Leader In Motor Trade, Ex-Buggy Maker

most firmly established automobile factories in the United States is a far cry, but it briefly describes the career of Russell E. Gardner. The foundation on which the present Gardner business has been built was laid by him in 1875, when he began the manufacture of Banner buggies, after an extensive experience in banking, the sale of timber and as a vehicle dealer.

From Banner buggies to one of the

Mr. Gardner entered the vehicle manufacturing busniess when it was already an established industry, and with the thousands of manufacturing concerns in the field.

Within a few years' time Gardner saw his business grow from a humble beginning to the largest buggy manufacturing plant in the world, with more than 10,000 dealers throughout the world handling this product.

This year, Gardner dealers all over the United States are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. Gardner's entry into the manufacturing of dependable transportation. The local distributor, the Southwest Motors, points with pride to the new eight-in-line and its unusual accomplishments on the market.

The popularity of the new car at the automobile shows was reflected in sales in the Southern California territory. The Southwest Motors now have a splendid distributing organization, with dealers at convenient intervals throughout the territory.

Here's the Greatest Test for Curious Rodeo Experimenters

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. — (AP) — While radio engineers go into spasms of delight over direct communication between the Malay Archipalego and the African gold coast and between the far reaches of the Arctic area, to the lower end of Lake Michigan, railroad experts are searching eagerly for wireless equipment capable of maintaining reliable communication between the cab and caboose of freight trains. Thus far their quest has been in vain.

I. C. Forshee, telegraph engineer of the Pennsylvania system, has outlined the problems of railroad wireless before the national convention of the American Radio Relay league.

He challenged fans with inventive bent to develop something for railroad use.

"There is a real need," he declared, "for better communication between engine and caboose of long freight trains; especially during storms and foggy weather."

Growing Demand Calls For Vigorous Preparation

Growing demand for natural gas through all the territory we serve is noticeable among domestic consumers. Growth of the communities and the addition of a town now and then when facilities can be provided are extending the convenience and economy of this wonderful fuel to more people.

This means the necessity of obtaining a greater supply at all times. Since the various factors entering into natural gas service require that we hold in readiness from two to four times the amount of gas that is actually called for, the great work of the summer is provision for the winter.

Connection of new wells, sometimes with many miles of pipelines, the necessary adjustments at the fourteen compressor stations, and the constant effort to improve our transportation facilities call for a huge force of men at work all summer, supplies for the work, and the permanent investment of large sums of money, all to the end that our patrons will not be disappointed in cold weather.

Those who think a gas system consists of a well, a pipeline and a cashier would be astonished at the magnitude of our annual preparations and overhauling, now under way.

ARCHER COUNTY AND ARCHER CITY

ARCHER CITY IN STRATEGIC TEXAS AREA

Eastern Business Man Is Greatly Impressed With Possibilities

"Archer City, to my mind, has one of the most strategic locations of any of the smaller cities of Northwest Texas," remarked Homer T. Harriman, New York business man, recently, following an inspection tour of the Archer, Young, Baylor and Wilbarger counties. Mr. Harriman represents extensive oil and manufacturing interests in the north and east and was in North Texas primarily to look over a country which, he says, is being boosted more back "home" from a business standpoint than any other region in the United States.

"I'd say first that Archer county's oil fields should prove the foundation for big things there. True, the country is virgin; there has been little agricultural development, but the day is to come when irrigated fields, irrigated with money from oil royalties and the commerce that the oil fields have brought will spell the lasting wealth that is to prove the real basis of Archer county prosperity ten years from now.

"To my mind the greatest handicap of the county in the past has been its lack of water. There are few streams of any size in it, and little attempt has been made to get water from them. The soil is fertile, as witness the luxuriant growth of mesquite that abounds from Megargel to Scotland and north of Olney to Lake Wichita. In places where suitable water supply has been found some of the best farms in North Texas have been developed.

"Both wheat and cotton will grow and make wonderful crops, I am told.

"In the northwest corner of the county, over by the little town known as Dundee, I am told that the far eastern end of the diversion lake of mammoth Wichita irrigation project extends into Archer county, and that arrangements are possible whereby that part of the county at least and possibly the whole of it may come under the mammoth wand of bountiful water supply. When bonds are voted and taxes assessed to assure this supply I can see a county that will rank with the wealthiest in the northern half of the state from an agricultural standpoint.

"The oil has already assured a wealth from that source that is and will continue to be the envy of your neighbors. This development will continue indefinitely. Then I see good roads, then the irrigation canals, and last the wide green farms, with bigger and better homes marking the section corners.

"For Archer City itself I see a thriving, growing little city with prosperity its lot for the future, the hub of a thriving, prosperous county's agricultural and oil development, the gateway to a large region, which is bound to have its place in the sun."

Mr. Harriman refused to comment on what plans the interests he represents had in mind for that county, if any. There would be some drilling throuhg their agents, he assured the Record News in this interview, and he indicated that other enterprise might be expected to follow not so far away.

Arrangement for irrigation facilities he stressed as the backbone of future development and urged that tax money and a bond issue be provided to take care of that at once. It was his suggestion that a bond issue for good roads would assist the county materially, in fact, stating that the present Archer county highway system was his sole disappointing experience gained during his several days in the county.

Various citizens of the county that met Mr. Harriman expressed themselves as favorably impressed with his ideas and his forecasts in their behalf. Mr. Harriman himself was delighted with those Archer county and Archer City citizens that he met.

Judge R. S. Morrison who came to Archer City from Hazelhurst, Miss., in 1908, was county attorney for 13 years, thinks the future of Archer City is assured in that the people of that community are the finest to be found anywhere and the growth of the population has been steady and honest.

There has never been a boom and the substantial business men who have been attracted to Archer City have never undertaken to "boost" the town beyond the truth about its advantages. The pure water of which Archer City has an abundant supply is not drained from alkali or salt land as is the case in so many oil producing counties.

The tank where the supply is settled and purified is 15 feet deep and Archer has what equals the clear spring water of the mountains.

Archer City needs the following institutions and industries: Supply house, modern hotel, more farmers, another good machine shop, the one there now is snowed under with work, an up-to-date department store, another good picture show house, photographer, there is no resident photographer. But much demand for this work, manufacturing candy shop, dairy lunch or cafeteria.

When all the commercial and the land values are listed, when all the oil production and the fine cattle and the fine farming intererts are set forth one asks, but what of the education of the children, in letters, in ambition, in the ideal of clean living, in the well being of soul and body? What are you doing about that? What will my boys and girls meet as conditions surrounding their formative years? And it is wonderful to hear the reply from Archer citizens. You hear of a maker of men. An educator who lives with his pupils, of all ages, teaches them all that goes to make loyal, patriotic men and women, clean in mind and soul. Play with them and fights the various games of football and baseball with other sports just as though he were 18, and had no other duty than the inculcating of high motives through the clean medium of sport.

The educational system has improved under his four years of living and fighting all untoward conditions to a victory for the goal of university credits and due to the wonderful cooperation of Mrs. Wilson, who came to Archer City as a bride four years ago he has won.

W. S. Wilson is indeed a maker of men and has enlisted the entire cooperation of the parents in the building up of a model and comprehensive school system that even four years ago was in advance of that in other counties having a much heavier population tax.

ARGENTINA BUYS MOTORS

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—During the first six months of this year, 24,110 motor cars and 3,394 trucks and tractors were imported into Argentina, says a report received here by the Argentina-American Chamber of Commerce. Ninety-seven per cent of the vehicles were from the United States.

Clubs for Gloomy Formed in London

LONDON, Aug. 22.—England's "bright yough people," as those of the smart set are known, may use some of their brightness to mask an aching heart or a grouch against mankind, if one is to believe all that is implied in the formation of a number of clubs for gloomy people.

One of these is reported to have gone so far on the road to gloom as to arrange excursions to graveyards for members who wish to contemplate the sadness and sorrow of the world in fitting surroundings. Another has its meeting place draped in funeral colors.

The idea of such an organization is new to the present generation but it was popular a hundred years ago when there were clubs for gloomy people, ugly people, and even societies for liars. One of the strangest organizations was a split-farthing club, where tight-fisted old gentlemen who held on to a penny until its last gasp could exchange tales how they had saved an eighth of a cent.

Under the roof of another the Unfortunate club, gathered the unhappily married, bankrupts and those who lost on races, all on equal ground in the re-telling of their grievances.

Noted Artist To Lead Orchestra For Movie House

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Richard Strauss has given German art circles a great thrill by announcing that he personally will conduct the orchestra which plays during the showing of his opera "Der Rosenkavalier" on the screen in Dresden. This action on the part o fthe famous composer has given a new dignity to the movies, which German art circles hitherto have frowned upon and refused to regard worthy of classification with the legitimate theatre or the opera or concert stage.

SHIPPING TRADE SLOW

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Shipping freights are at present in a bad way. Rates have fallen to levels below those of pre-war days and represent losses to many ship owners. Large liner companies are experiencing a great dearth of demand for their space and cut rates to absorb cargoes which would ordinarily go on tramp steamers.

This policy is said to be insufficient to fill the liners with remunerative cargo and consequently several concerns have curtailed sailing programs and laid up several boats. Many cargo steamers are returning to home ports here in ballast rather than accept rates quoted in some trades.

New Studios To Be Opened Here By Mrs. Tandy

Mrs. Roma Tandy has just returned from an extended trip to Detroit, New York and other eastern cities and is opening an attractive studio of Interior decoration at Tenth and Broad. While in New York, Mrs. Tandy devoted a great portion of her time to advanced instruction on artistic decoration as well as securing new ideas to bring to Wichitans.

Before coming to Wichita Falls she was connected with Miss Nowell of Fort Worth and Dallas and the Halaby Galleries of Dallas.

Successful Revival In Temple, Okla.

TEMPLE, Okla., Aug. 22.—The Church of Christ in this city is in the midst of a successful revival that is said to be the largest ever held here. Good crowds are turning out each evening for the services conducted by Tice Elkins, evangelist. T. J. Kiser is in charge of the pretentious song service each night.

A large number of conversions have been reported.

Fable of What Is a College —By George Ade

It came about that early one Autumn, during the Days when the Ippies and the Ki Yis were rushing the Freshmen, looking for Saxophone Players, there came to the Campus of Bingham College an old Grad who had been a Football Hero away back yonder. He had with him the Only Son, just out of Prep School. The Offspring was a Husky who looked like an incipient lumberjack and walked like a Sailor. He was thrice welcome at good old Bingham because he had all the Ear-Marks of a Bird who might travel in the Foot-Steps of his illustrious Dad and butt large irregular Holes in the opposing Elevens and especially the hated Atwater.

Now it happened that "Beef" Hinkle, the honored Alumnus whose Achievements on the blood-soaked Gridiron were preserved in the Folk Lore of the School, had been a Classmate of Erasmus Twigg, D. D., L. L. D., Ph. D. etc., now the honored Prexy.

"Beef" had kept on bucking the Line and mussing up the Opposition after copping his Degree and it was generally agreed that he had put away more Kale than you could load on an Army Truck. For every Degree that Erasmus had annexed, "Beef" had swiped another Hunk of Currency.

One operated in the quiet Cloisters and the other was up to his Neck in Battle. One was the Apostle of Scholasticism and the Other was the Disciple of Rough and Tumble but when they met on the Campus they were just like a couple of Twins, for they had sung in the same Glee Club in the Days of Yore and each had a large and glowing Admiration for the Other.

"Beef" explained to Erasmus that he had brought the Kid back to the dear old Knowledge Works so as to head him in the right Direction and be sure that he got all the Education he could stand.

Anything Possible These Days.

Erasmus was full of A 1 Advice. He said that if "Beef" would help him between the two of them they might find it possible to make young Mr. Hinkle a Credit to Himself and to the College. He said that the Faculty was fighting hard to protect the Student Body against a lot of demoralizing Influences which were putting Higher Education on the Frits. He said that the nut-headed Under-Graduates were all crazy about Athletics. They thought more about Winning Teams than they did about storing their cavernous Beans with rich and useful knowledge. They were encouraged by a lot of rowdy Alumni, who came back to the Big Games and whooped it up and begged the New Generation to kick the Daylight out of all the old-time Rivals. It was very discouraging.

Erasmus said that the average so-called Student was so all-fired busy with House Parties, Dramatics, Jazz Bands, Daily Papers, Pep Sessions and other extraneous Forms of Low-Brow Excitement that he seemed to regard Recitations as a Side Issue. The curriculum was running second to the Movies. He believed that it would be a great Idea to clean House and get rid of all the fool Diversions which side-tracked the Youthful Mind from the prescribed Courses of Study. That's how he felt about it.

"Beef" listened with great Respect. Then he said to Erasmus: "I get you, Erasmus. I know just how riled you are because these impulsive Comanches are interested in the Things that interest them, instead of being keen for the Pursuits which appeal to One of your sedentary Habits, with a Blood Pressure below 100. The Situation which is fussing you seems to have got the Gost of many an Educator. Hence all the earnest Talk about about abolishing Athletics. Mebbe it could be done.

"In these days of Prevention, Restriction and Regulation I suppose we will find out how to lay a Man on a Table and surgically remove all of the usual Impulses which he has Inherited from a long line of tough Ancestors. Possibly you can convert every Institution of Learning into a Workshop surrounded by stately Elms. You can put the Loud Pedal on Mental Discipline and compel the Boys to forget that there is any such Thing in the World as a Flapper. If you and the other Lads with the corrugated Domes and the Rubber-tired Specs think you can put across any such bunch of Miracles, I will be glad to sit on the Side Lines and watch you."

Prexy Disapproves Didoes.

Erasmus allowed that what this beetle-browed Country needs, next to a noiseless Auto Horn, is a general Leaven of Culture. He said that in England the Varsity Men bring to their various Professions a lot of Dignity and an abiding Love for all that is top-notch in Literature, Science and the Arts. They are correct of Speech and any one of them can sit down and tear off a Thesis on Archaeology or the Atomic Theory, whereas the Graduate of an American College, eight years after he has escaped into the Open, has about as much intellectual Hauteur as a Taxi Driver, and reads nothing but the Head Lines, and keeps himself in prime Mental Condition by dictating one-syllable words to a gum-chewing Typist.

It was Time to tighten up and compel the High Jumpers and Ragtime Hoofers to work for their Sheep skins and cut out the Didoes. Colleges were founded to impart Knowledge, teach Correct Thinking and saturate with Culture and not to provide Hot Copy for the Sporting Page.

"Beef" admitted that Erasmus held all of the Views which might be expected from a Professor who was inside of a College Building and looking out. He wondered, however, if the British Type of Illuminati would harmonize with the Present Conditions in Chicago.

"You want to remember one Thing," said the Old Grad. "You are not coaching a lot of domesticated Book Worms to go out and teach the Ologies in Female Seminaries and High Schools. The Classes are getting so big that only about five per cent of the Graduates can consecrate their Lives to a Diet of Bread and Milk while directing the Young Idea how to Shoot. The other 95 per cent must go into the Scrimmage. They cannot spend the glad Hours in polishing up their Vocabularies or proving to the World that they retain all of the Lustre which they acquired in the Halls of Learning.

Buck the Line or Get Off the Field.

"They have got to go out and mix with Folks in a very intimate Way and make Friends and cause the Communinties in which they live to sit up and take Notice. To get away with the Assignment they must have something which no studious Young Person can get out of Books or in a Laboratory. They must know how to appear in a Roomful of People without falling over a Chair. They must be familiar with the Manners and Customs and all the fool Contraptions of an eager and restless Public. They must be on the Job if they wish to succeed and when it comes to lamming them across the Plate they must have something up the Sleeve besides Socrates and Calculus."

"As I expected," said President Twigg, "you are now speaking of Success in terms of Dollars."

"Well," said Beef, "I don't know of any Article except the old-fashioned Iron Dollar which will permit the Citizen today to carry out his Plans, provide for an expensive Family and give him Power and Influence when he has to lock Horns with hard Emergencies. Possibly your Idea is that the College-Bred Men in every Neighborhood should be soft-spoken and gentle-mannered Philosophers who lecture at the Literary Clubs and owe Grocery Bills.

"Dog gone it, Erasmus, you've either got to buck the Line or get off the Field. I've been driving hard for Years to acquire some Results and now, when I get among the Pedants, the Savants and the other kinds of Aunts, they make me feel as if I were a Babbitt, just because I have kept out of the Poor House. The best I get is the Title of Super-Rotarian. I will admit that a lot of the New Dope on Scientific Salesmanship is Bunk. You will give me Credit for not saying that I want my Boy to learn how to go out into the World and Sell himself. I do not insist that he shall come out of College with a Blue Tie and a Beaming Personality.

"All I ask is, that after he arrives back Home and I give him the Once-Over, I will not be compelled to lock him up. I want him to get everything you have to sell at the Works. I want him to be an Officer in the Cadet Corps, a Baritone in the Glee Club, one of the Backs on the Eleven, an Editor of the Daily and Business Manager of the Frat House. I want him to meet all kinds of People so that he won't be afraid of anything that wears Knickerbockers, no matter what the Sex may be. Incidentally, I want him to avoid flunking in any of his Work. I want him to emerge from this Joint as the Type of He-Man who is now making Life a vivid Proposition in Office Buildings and Country Clubs."

Erasmus shook his Head sadly and remarked, "He is your direct and legitimate Offspring, so I think I may safely guarantee that, no matter what else happens to him, he will not suffer from Eye-Strain while under our Tutelege."

Moral: If it were not for the Home Influence many a Collegian would be ruined by Over-Education.

THE DESERT - - By FANNIE HURST

Copyright, 1925, by
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Leila overcome by the loneliness of the desert.

Then the East. Leila in the midst of it, drowning in its loneliness. The desert in the most crowded city in the world, too busy to reckon with her.

Sitting there in the desert of her little room, placed in the heart of the desert of Manhattan, something in Leila's heart began to flow.

THE town of Nettleton occurred in the middle of the desert.

THE TOWN. You smiled as you said that, because Nettleton consisted of thirty-eight settlers, including two Mexican Indian families that lived in box cars along the railroad tracks.

There was oil somewhere around Nettleton. It formed in little pads on top of a tiny lake that created an oasis in the heart of wasteland that, when you felt blue about it, seemed, as it stretched into an infinitude of horizon, to be the color of despair.

Most of Leila Marbury's days had been that color since she and Jim had come to live at Nettleton. Jim was after oil. Ever since the days back in New York when he had been shipping clerk in the sub-cellar of a department store, and had never seen the west side of Albany, Jim's eyes could be a little fanatical when he talked of oil.

When Jim and Leila were engaged and used to sit on a bench in Central Park overlooking a saucer-shaped pond and some white swan boats at five cents a ride, Jim had dreamed out their future in terms of oil.

Oil. There were days, now that they were living the adventure of the quest for oil, when that little three-lettered noun could race around Leila's tortured brain like one of those old-fashioned three-wheel velocipedes.

Oil. Oil. Oil. If you were fed up with it, dinned with it, bored with it, satiated with it, disappointed with it, it made you a little mad, as if the amphitheatre of your brain, with that word oil racing around in it, were going to blow itself to smithereens. Those were the days that could look to Leila the color of despair.

The little shanty upon the edge of the sage-brush that cackled faintly in the hot breeze. The dirt roads that made ruts as undulating as ocean waves, and the twisting, tortured little flivvers that rode you out into more and more desert. The cackling desert. The thin-voiced desert. The desert you had grown to hate.

There wasn't much that Jim could do with Leila when these moods of yearning were on her for the life in the crowded metropolis she had left; the metropolis that had used to stifle her, but now the metropolis for which she mourned and cried homesick tears, while Jim at her side slept the deep sleep of exhaustion.

It was hard to wake to those days that were the color of despair, in the little shanty house there behind the railroad track. Twice a day, while Jim was off drilling, the Eastern Express thundered past that house, and past Leila with her burning, yearning face pressed against the screening of her doorway. It was unendurable to see it tear by, leaving her marooned there in the desert; drowning in it, dying in it.

The agony of those days. Jim at his eternal drilling. Sterile, unyielding drilling into a dry, gaping hole in the desert that was like an old mouth without saliva.

There were times when Jim feared for her sanity. Women had been known to go mad of loneliness, the loneliness of farms, the loneliness of deserts. Leila knew that too. It frightened her. Jim had no right to keep her here. A flaming sullen rage took hold of her against Jim—Jim and his oil. Jim and his mirage, that horrible dry-mouthed hole that should have been gushing oil instead of dust.

One night—for a whole month now he had worn a worried furrow between his eyes about her—Jim came home and laid down the price of a one-way railroad ticket to New York. "It's for you, Leila," he said, with something tired out in his voice that had never before been there. "Get back East and see how it feels, and we'll let the future take care of itself."

And so it was, with a beating in her throat that was almost more than she could bear, that one of the eastbound trains was flagged for the first time in many a day at Nettleton and Leila boarded it for home.

The East. Leila in the midst of it, drowning in its loneliness. The desert of the most crowded city in the world, too busy to reckon with her. You stood in the swirl of humanity so alone that something had you by the heart, like a hand holding back its beat. It was curious, the quality of the loneliness percolating to Leila there in her little room that looked down into the narrow slit of a street trod by thousands of feet every hour. It made the loneliness of Nettleton a slight thing compared to the terrific quality of being alone in New York.

Why, in Nettleton even the sound of the drilling had had a personal, intimate quality compared to the vast impersonal roar of the city. Why, in Nettleton the sound of the gibberish of the Mexican Indians was the sound of her neighbors, who presently, at evening, would come crowding around the picket fence b[illegible] shanty, eager to pass the time of day.

Why, Nettleton, out there in t[illegible] immersed in the silence, mysterious with t[illegible] of oil, with its star-pitted sky that fitted at n[illegible] like a dome, was warm and gregarious and intimate compared to the vastness, the unspeakable vastness of the hundreds of thousands of humans about her that closed in on Leila there in her room on the street that was trod by thousands of feet every hour. Humans who did not care. In all those dozens of thousands of humans not one of them with a thought or concern for her.

The whistling of Jim coming home across the desert evenings after days of drilling was for her. That in itself was enough to make a desert a vibrant, living, warm thing. Vibrant with the coming of Jim to her. Sitting there in the desert of her little room, placed in the heart of the desert of Manhattan, something in Leila's heart began to flow.

An oasis in the desert of her misunderstanding.

Jim never questioned Leila when she came back to Nettleton. It was somehow too precious just having her back that way, with the mad look gone out of her eyes and her brand new love of the vastnesses and the silences and the friendly little cackling of the desert when the sage-brush rattled in the breeze.
