'Bike-A-Thon' Registration Deadline Set

Some 100 riders have entered Sunday's "Bike-A-Thon" for cancer with some boy and girl scout troops still organizing entries.

The American Cancer Society's work will benefit from the ride in that each rider must have a sponsor who will pledge so much a mile for all the ride covered by his rider.

There is still time to enter, according to Jack Skelly, chairman for the event.

Final registration will be at 12:30 noon Sunday in front of the Piggly Wiggly store in Coronado Center.

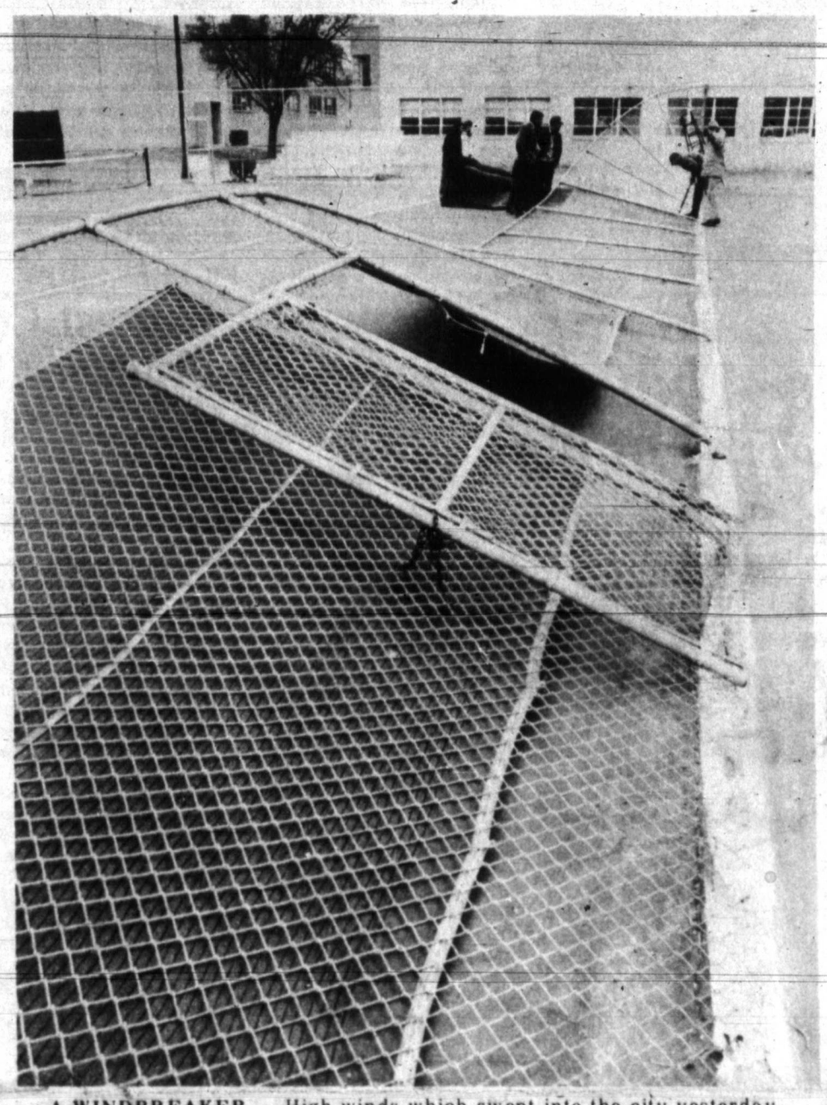

The scope of the course is best illustrated by noting that riders will leave Coronado Center and the first check point is the office at Perry Lefors Field.

As assurance to parents who have children wanting to ride, police and highway patrol personnel will supervise traffic safety.

It has been pointed out that riders should bear in mind that speed is not the contest but endurance. In a similar Bike-A-Thon in a nearby city, some riders were injured by being hit by fellow contestants because they were trying to get ahead of one another. This is not necessary to win.

The aid and research programs of the cancer organization will be the real winner while several hundred Pampans will have a Sunday afternoon of fun.

California Family Quizzed About 22 Related Slayings

A WINDBREAKER — High winds which swept into the city yesterday blew down part of the fence around the new tennis courts at Pampa High School. The north fence and the center section were both nearly leveled as the wind struck against the netting cover on the fences, bending the vertical poles. Most of the other damage in the city occurred from limbs being blown off trees.

Killings Dating Back To 1971 In 7 States

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A possible link between an itinerant family and a bloody string of 22 kidnap-robbery-murders, at least three involving waitresses at doughnut shops, was probed today by authorities from across the nation.

FBI agents and investigators from as far away as Florida questioned the five persons about the grisly slayings dating back to 1971 in Texas, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and Florida, police here confirmed Thursday.

Federal kidnaping charges have been filed against the father and son-in-law of the family in the abduction of a doughnut shop waitress later found slain.

The five family members are now in jail in Santa Barbara County Jail and San Quentin Prison on convictions in a supermarket robbery and shooting of a policeman here last June.

They were identified as Sherman McCrary, 47; his wife Carolyn, 45; their son Danny, 19; their daughter Ginger McCrary Taylor, 22, and her husband Carl Raymond Tylor, 38.

Taylor and the elder McCrary, both transient laborers, are serving five-year to life sentences at San Quentin. The others are in the county jail. Taylor also was convicted of attempted murder of a Santa Barbara police officer who was shot in the head during the supermarket robbery.

The FBI in Salt Lake City Thursday charged McCrary and Taylor with kidnaping the doughnut shop waitress Sheri Lee Martin, 17, in the Salt Lake suburb of Kearns on the night of Aug. 12, 1971. Her body was found later on an alkaline desert in Elko County, Nev.

The murders of at least two other doughnut shop waitresses were involved in the investigation.

Colorado Bureau of Investigation chief John McIvor said Leeora Rose Looney, 20, of Thornton, a suburb of Denver, was reported missing from the Mister Donut Shop in suburban Lakewood Aug. 20, 1971.

Miss Looney's nude body was found three days later in a field near the Wyoming border. She had been raped, strangled, shot twice with a .32-caliber weapon, authorities said.

CBI agent Howard Gillespie said witnesses identified photos of Taylor and McCrary as men who were in the doughnut shop on the night Miss Looney was reported missing.

Drivers licenses issued McCrary and Taylor list them as former Lakewood residents, Gillespie said, adding that records show a license issued to Danny McCrary at a Denver address.

Other slayings figured in the investigation, authorities said, though they have not been officially connected to those of the three waitresses.

Police in Mesquite, Tex., a suburb of Dallas, said Susan Darlene Shaw, 16, of Mesquite was kidnaped while working at the all-night Sweet Cream Donut Shop during the week of Oct. 17, 1971. She was found a week later shot six times and raped, floating face down in a lake east of Dallas, they said.

Dallas officers said the McCrary family was questioned about the three Mesquite slayings after their arrest on another charge last summer at Athens, Tex., but no connection was established at that time.

Three other slayings in the Lubbock, Tex., are area were under investigation elating to the McCrarys, officials said. They did not elaborate.

Officials also said the family members are wanted on warrants ranging from bad check charges in Colorado to four charges of armed robbery in Texas.

President May Revive Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected next year to revive several of his major domestic proposals rejected by the Democratic Congress in his first term. But the outcome may well be a renewed stalemate.

Nixon billed his proposals as a keystone of his "New American Revolution," but they quickly bogged down in controversy and bickering. In some cases, Republicans joined Democrats in opposing them.

The 93rd Congress, which will be just as firmly under Democratic control as its predecessors despite the President's huge election victory, is not expected to treat the recommendations any more favorably.

Most important of the disputed measures are welfare reform, government reorganization, a national-health-care system, and special revenue sharing.

Nixon announced last week in signing a Social Security bill that he would renew his efforts to achieve what he called "a work-oriented welfare program that will help all deserving persons on a fair and equitable basis."

The bill had contained his welfare proposal, known as the family-assistance plan, when it passed the House, but Republican and Democratic conservatives on the Senate Finance Committee joined to kill it.

Finance will have four new members in the new Congress but it appears certain conservatives still will control it.

The President's massive government-reorganization proposals, which would set up four new omnibus Cabinet departments, received little consideration in his first term. None reached the House or Senate floor for a vote.

Nixon has said he will continue to work toward streamlining the government. But the same forces which influenced the preceding Congresses to preserve the old-line departments are likely to be just as powerful in the next four years.

Plans For 'Expo '76 In Texas Announced

HOUSTON (AP) — Plans for a 1976 World Exposition to commemorate the 200th anniversary of America's founding have been announced by a corporation formed by three Texas men.

The United States Association for 1976 Universal and International Exposition Inc. announced at a news conference Thursday it hopes to locate "EXPO 76" on about 2,300 acres of land in Southeast Harris County. The proposed site would be between Pasadena and the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The corporation was formed by L. Clifford Davis of Fort Worth and Gordon Novel and Charles M. Micha, both of Dallas. It has offices here.

They said the proposal to hold the fair here has been submitted to the U.S. Department of Commerce and to President Nixon.

Novel said the project is contingent upon receipt of federal funds ranging from a minimum of $196 million to a maximum of $350 million.

10 Pampans Will Attend Municipal League Meet

Pampa will send a ten-man delegation to the 60th annual Texas Municipal League Conference in Dallas Sunday through Tuesday.

Attending from here will be Mayor Milo Carlson, City Manager Mack Wofford, City Commissioners R.D. Wilkerson, George Cree, Jr., Arthur Rohde and Leon Braswell, Police Chief Jim Conner, Fire Chief Finace Dyer, Public Works Director R.B. Cooke and City Secretary S.M. Chittenden.

The group will leave for Dallas Saturday afternoon. Conference headquarters will be in the Statler Hilton Hotel there.

According to Richard D. Brown, executive director of the TML, this year's meeting is expected to "provide a concentrated analysis of current diverse municipal problems--governmental, political, administrative, financial and operational."

In general, Brown stated, the program will reflect the focal issues affecting Texas city government and involving, to a greater extent this year, the state and federal levels.

Program participants will include John Hill, Texas attorney general; Barbara Jordan, member of Congress-elect, Houston; Tom J. Vandergriff, chairman of the Texas Urban Development Commission and Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations; Roman S. Gribbs, mayor of Detroit, Mich., and National League of Cities vice president, and Marvin Kalb, CBS News, Washington, D.C.

At least 50 additional authorities on technical and operational problems will conduct concurrent sessions of 15 organizations affiliated with the League, according to Brown.

Entertainment activities are scheduled for each evening and many of the statewide delegates will attend the Dallas Cowboys Vs. St. Louis Cardinals football game Sunday afternoon in Texas Stadium at Irving.

New officers will be elected Tuesday afternoon and the three-day conference will conclude with the annual banquet and ball in the Statler Hilton grand ballroom.

Wind Blamed For Death Of Woman

High winds gusting up to 50 miles an hour swept across the Panhandle yesterday and contributed to the death of a Borger woman.

Mrs. Edith N. Tilson, a Borger housewife, was blown off her porch by a strong gust of wind while trying to open the door to her house yesterday morning.

The door swung open and flung the woman back off her porch. According to a witness, she hit her head on the concrete steps and landed on the cement sidewalk below.

She was pronounced dead about 11 a.m. at North Plains Hospital in Borger.

Various wind damage was reported in Pampa, most of it minor. Tree limbs damaged by last week's ice storm were blown down throughout the city.

The greatest damage occurred to the fence around the tennis courts at Pampa High School. The north fence and the center section were both blown down by the wind hitting the netting cover stretched across them. No immediate cost estimate was available.

The winds resulted from a Pacific cold front which pushed through the area, dropping the temperatures into the 50s during the day and into the 30s for the night.

Pampa's high yesterday was 52, with an over-night low of 33.

Skies cleared over the area today, with sunshine returning. The sunny skies are expected to remain through Saturday, with a warming trend expected to reach near 70 tomorrow.

The winds were expected to remain light and variable today and calm tonight, picking up some Saturday. Cooler weather is predicted for Sunday.

Thieu Sets Conditions For Cease-Fire Accord

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told an envoy from President Nixon today that all North Vietnamese troops must be withdrawn from South Vietnam before an agreement to end the war can be finalized, a newspaper controlled by the president's office reported.

Thieu conferred for nearly two hours with Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. shortly after he arrived in Saigon to urge Thieu to go along with the cease-fire agreement Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger worked out with the North Vietnamese in Paris. Haig is Kissinger's chief assistant.

The newspaper Tin Song, which is financed by Thieu's private secretary, quoted a high-level source as saying that Thieu in his meeting with Haig insisted on the total withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops from the South. Thieu reportedly said he would not accept any private agreements or tacit understandings on a pullout.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said he could neither confirm nor deny reports that Haig carried a personal letter from Nixon to Thieu urging the South Vietnamese president to accept the cease-fire plan as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, the U.S. military command accelerated its planning for a complete American withdrawal from Vietnam in the event of a cease-fire.

Informants said American troop strength in Vietnam would drop below the 27,000 ceiling ordered by Nixon by Dec. 1 and indicated there might be further withdrawals of U.S. troops even if a cease-fire agreement is not signed by next month. Current U.S. military strength in Vietnam is about 32,000.

Informants also confirmed that the United States is sending additional minesweeping forces to join five minesweepers already in the Western Pacific.

Coinciding with Haig's second visit in six weeks, Thieu's government began a new propaganda campaign in support of Thieu's demands for withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam, application of the proposed cease-fire to Cambodia and Laos and guarantees that there would be no coalition government. Thieu's closest adviser, Hoang Duc Nha, Senate President Nguyen Van Huyen and other top officials have been giving a number of Western newsmen "background" interviews in the last few days.

Observers Estimate 50% Voters Have Cast Split-Ticket Ballots

Maybe half of Texas' voters in Tuesday's election were ticket-splitters.

That's the consensus of a number of persons prominently involved in the recent state and national campaigns.

"There's no other way you could look at it, when you look at the actual number of Republicans in Texas and then look at the vote President Nixon got, and some other Republican candidates," said a political professional. He did not want his name used because he's looking for another job now.

sional. He did not want his name used because he's looking for another job now.

Generally, the switch from one column to another column of the general election ballot occurred when Democrats crossed over to vote for Nixon. But, there were plenty of instances of Republicans voting for the Democratic candidate for governor. And a sizeable number of voters, probably mostly liberal Democrats, voted for governor on the Raza Unida ticket.

Just how many card-carrying Republicans are in Texas is the basis of any argument on ticket-splitting. Some say that can be determined by counting those who voted in the Republican primaries—114,000 in May and 62,000 in June. Others say you can look at the general election vote received by one of the lesser known GOP candidates and that portray's the party's "strength."

Even if you take the 1,036,933 votes received by Jim Segrest, GOP candidate for railroad commissioner, as a GOP base, that still leaves another 1,182,206 "ticket-splitters" outside the Republican party who helped give Nixon his 2.2 million votes.

Those Democrats who split the ticket to vote for Nixon played a big part in the outcome of other big Texas races.

Apparently most of those who split the ticket for Nixon followed on down the Republican column to vote for Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., because Tower won with a margin of 292,000.

Democrat Barefoot Sanders, Tower's opponent, brought up the "quirk of conscience" theory in this campaign and said he was counting on Democrats to immediately shift back to the Democrat column after voting for Nixon. Apparently he overestimated Democratic consciences.

Republican Henry Grover also counted on the ticket-splitters in his race for governor. But the coattail effect of Nixon's massive landslide did not fully reach the governor's race. Grover threw an unexpected scare into Democrat Dolph Briscoe but Briscoe finally pulled out the winner by close to 100,000 votes.

Still another Republican candidate counting on Nixon's coattails attracted even fewer of the ticket-splitters. Rep. Maurice Angly lost to State Treasurer Jesse James, Democrat, by about 140,000 votes.

City Awaiting PRPC Word On Application For Grant

By TEX DeWEESE

City officials were standing by today hoping for a favorable recommendation on their preliminary application for a $203,500 federal grant on a $370,000 project to bring Pampa's sewage treatment plant up to standards required by the Texas Water Quality Board.

City Manager Mack Wofford, City Commissioner R.D. Wilkerson and Gene Barber, consultant engineer, appeared yesterday before the Environmental Committee of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in Amarillo.

Pampa must have the favorable recommendation of the PRPC Review Board before the application would be granted by the Federal Housing and Urban Development agency.

Pampa's case was presented by Barber who summarized the project in an hour-and- a-half long question and answer hearing in which he explained the need and presented drawings and diagrams in support of the application.

City Manager Wofford said the procedure to be followed would be a recommendation for acceptance or rejection from the Review Committee to the PRPC Board which in turn recommends its findings to HUD.

The $203,500 federal grant would represent 55 per cent of the total cost of the project, leaving Pampa to bear $166,500 of the expense involved in bringing the sewage plant up to state standards.

Wofford said following the hearing yesterday, Pampa officials were "assuming" the recommendation of the PRPC will be favorable.

He said it probably will be a week or ten days before the decision is announced.

Drug Cases No-Billed By County Grand Jury

The Gray County grand jury indicted two men yesterday and no-billed all of those previously indicted in Pampa's sweeping drug roundup a few weeks ago.

Thomas Dale Bevel was billed for possession of marijuana and Jack Carnutt was indicted for felonious driving while intoxicated based on an alleged previous conviction for that offense in Jefferson County, Texas.

District Attorney Guy Hardin said he wanted to go on record as accepting the blame for any failure in the drug cases. He cited a hurried call of the grand jury following the arrests as an unwise move on his part.

The cases began to fall apart, according to Hardin, when defendants either passed polygraph tests or proved ironclad alibis for their whereabouts at the times they allegedly bought (or sold) narcotics.

"I feel there was some good come out of it," Hardin said. "Some of the young people in this area should be convinced that none here at the courthouse is trying to 'railroad' them on drug charges."

Hardin said he thought the move to no-bill the cases would protect those who were not guilty while those who continue to traffic in drugs will eventually be caught and prosecuted.

Farm Exports Will Set Record In 1973: USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's corn crop, in large demand for expanding cattle and hog production, will be 5,400,390,000 bushels, down only 3 per cent from last year's record harvest and 3 per cent more than forecast in October, the Agriculture Department says.

Corn also is a big export item, part of a $1.2 billion grain and soybean purchase this year by the Soviet Union. In all, the USDA predicted Thursday, farm exports in the fiscal year ending next June 30 will be a record $10 billion, up about one-fourth from 1971-72.

Grain, including more than 400 million bushels of wheat sold to the Soviet Union, is expected to comprise more than $4.3 billion of this season's total export.

There was no new production estimate for the 1972 wheat crop. It was estimated in September at 1.56 billion bushels, down 3 per cent from the record output in 1971.

The department's first report on winter wheat planted this fall for harvest next year will be issued Dec. 22.

Meanwhile, based on current surveys, officials said the 1973 wheat crop was off to a good start in most major growing areas. Rains in October helped improve fall seeding prospects in much of the southern Great Plains area, including western Kansas.

Despite heavy demand for corn, the larger November estimate means production will exceed anticipated requirements of 5.3 billion bushels this season by about 100 million bushels.

Consequently, unless larger usage develops, the corn surplus will be larger a year from now. There was a carryover of 1 billion bushels going into the current harvest.

The department's "all crops" index, based on field conditions Nov. 1, was a record 114 per cent of a 1967 base used for rating production compared with 112 per cent last month.

Producers generally have had more cattle in feedlots this year, reflecting record high peaks in market prices and rising consumer demand for more meat.

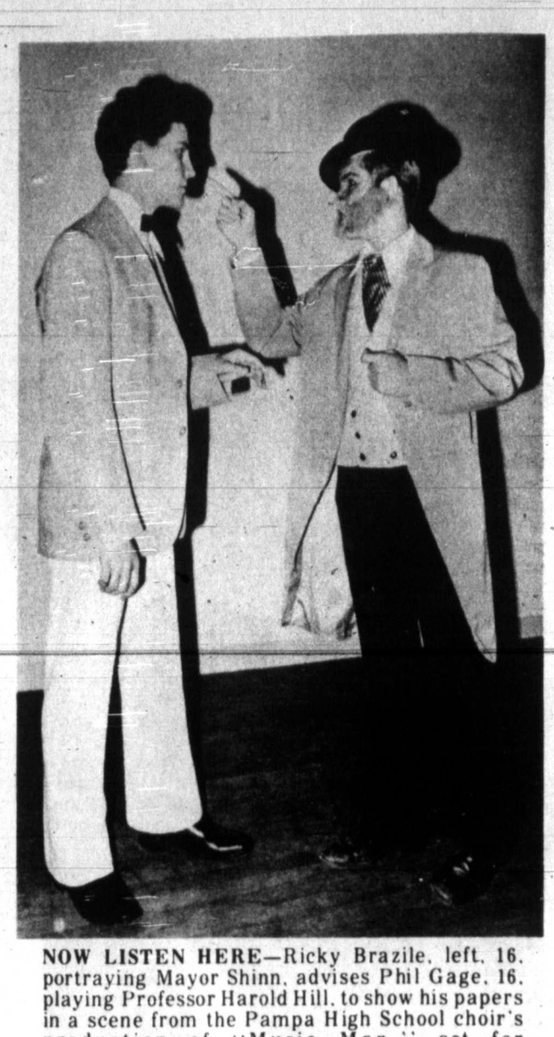

Hog farmers, who cut back production this year, are being encouraged by near-record prices and plan to expand this winter and next spring, according to USDA surveys.

In all, the Crop Reporting Board said, total production of livestock feed grains this year—corn, sorghum, oats and barley—is estimated at 198 million tons, down 4 per cent from 1971. The October estimate was 193.5 million tons.

Soybean production, rising in recent years to new records, was put at 1,350,517,000 bushels, up 15 per cent from 1971 and 3 per cent more than in October.

The average corn yield was put at a record 94.5 bushels per acre, compared with 86.8 last year and the October estimate of 92.2 bushels.

Soybean yields were estimated at a record 29.5 bushels per acre, compared with 27.6 last year and 28.7 forecast in October.

Ex-Russian Talks About Freedom And Her 'Discovery Of America'

By LARRY HOLLIS

"Everyone who comes to this country brings his own life with him," Nila Magidoff, a Russian-born naturalized American citizen, told members of the Knife and Fork Club at their first meeting of the 1972-73 season last night.

Addressing the group at the Coronado Inn, Mrs. Magidoff said immigrants to America find a new life, new customs, even new food.

With all the differences between America and their old country, many tend to become unhappy. Instead, Mrs. Magidoff said, they should spend more time trying to adjust to the new ways instead of lamenting the old ways.

"They need to find the happiness within themselves," she said in her talk entitled "My Discovery of America."

While a young girl in Russia, she lived in poverty in a small village. When she became a young woman, she decided to leave her village and go to Moscow, the center of culture and learning and a more exciting life.

Her mother tried to keep her at home. But one day, wearing a set of home-made clothes and carrying only a very few possessions, she left for Moscow.

In the Russian city, she studied at the university. She wanted to do a lot of traveling, especially to America, but when Stalin came to power, travel was restricted. She overcame this by joining the Merchant Marines. She did a lot of traveling but she never made it to America in the service.

While skating at an ice rink in Moscow, she met Robert Magidoff, an NBC correspondent, who later became her husband.

They were married and then applied for a visa for Mrs. Magidoff to leave Russia to live in the United States. They waited for several years without obtaining permission. During that time, they were often under the observation of the Secret Service police.

Then her husband's secretary disappeared; and shortly afterwards, a story appeared in the papers that the secretary had accused Magidoff of being a spy. A few days later, the Magidoffs were given 48 hours to leave the country.

While in Russia, Magidoff would often bring his wife some small American gadget. The Russians were always short of consumer goods, Mrs. Magidoff noted, so her friends would always be excited by the new gadgets.

With her husband being busy as a correspondent, Mrs. Magidoff came to America shortly before Pearl Harbor, landing in San Francisco and then heading for New York.

On her first day in New York, she recieved an invitation to address a group in Madison Square garden on her experiences. She did so and the invitations to speak increased.

The first crowd she addressed consisted of 16,000 people.

"What most impressed me with 16,000 Americans was that everybody showed what they liked or didn't like," she said.

She said the crowds in Russia were all very disciplined, with no excess chatter. And certainly no selling of popcorn and soft drinks during the program.

During the war, she made many speeches across the nation, most of them to sell war bonds.

After the war, she and her husband settled in Louisville, Ky. Here she really began for the first time to "discover America."

Her speaking tour during the war left her little time to really become acquainted with the country, she said.

In Kentucky, she began to know her neighbors and to discuss matters with them—trips, babies, illnesses, clubs and so on. She taught Russian in the university there and was really impressed with the educational system and the students.

"You are free to choose what you want to learn," she once told her students. There was usually very little such choice in Russia.

She began to study the election system and was amazed that there was more than one party. And what even more impressed her was that members of either party could win elections.

She planted a number of trees at her Louisville home. When she returns home after a trip, she likes to go see the trees and to watch their growth.

"The deeper the roots of my trees, the deeper my roots are in my new country," she said.

Now a very ardent supporter of her new country, she encouraged the audience to always work to maintain its freedoms.

"As long as I live, I am going to fight for freedom and democracy," she concluded.

Mrs. Magidoff was introduced by Dr. James F. Malone, with Ray Duncan, president, presiding over the meeting. Sheriff Rufe Jordan delivered the invocation.

Largest Cotton Crop Produced Since 1965

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cotton production this year is estimated at 14 million bales, up 2 per cent from last month's forecast and 33 per cent more than the 1971 crop, the Agriculture Department says.

The estimate, based on Nov. 1 indications, would be the largest crop since 1965 when 14.9 million bales were produced, the Department said Thursday.

Crop Reporting Board officials said production in the southeastern states—North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama—is expected to be 1,420,000 bales.

In the delta states of Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee and Missouri, producers will harvest an estimated 5,549,000 bales.

Production in Texas and Oklahoma was forecast at a combined estimate of 4,551,000 bales.

Production of all cotton in New Mexico, Arizona and California was estimated at 2,413,000 bales.

The indicated yield of upland cotton per acre and production in bales of 480 pounds each, respectively, included:

North Carolina 357 pounds per acre and production 130,000 bales; South Carolina 427 and 320,000; Georgia 423 and 370,000; Tennessee 610 and 610,000; Alabama 488 and 600,000; Missouri 590 and 504,000; Louisiana 534 and 745,000; Oklahoma 305 and 310,000; Texas 387 and 4,210,000; New Mexico 517 and 140,000; Arizona 963 and 562,000; and California 906 and 1,650,000.

Production of American-Pima cotton included:

Texas 431 pounds per acre and production 31,000 bales; New Mexico 429 and 17,000; and Arizona 459 and 44,000.

It will convene at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas building.

Simmons arranged for the meeting to be held in Pampa.

Cotton Production In Texas Higher Than Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has predicted that the Texas cotton harvest will be more than 300,000 bales higher than what was predicted a month ago.

The department also announced Thursday that the harvest of grain sorghum would also be better than earlier forecast.

The condition of crops on Nov. 1 indicated a state cotton harvest of 4,210,000 bales, compared with the Oct. 1 prediction of 3,900,000 bales, the department said.

Senate Unit Joins Probe Of Watergate Incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continued Democratic control of Capitol Hill apparently assures a congressional investigation of alleged Republican spying and political sabotage during the presidential campaign—and competition for opportunity to conduct the probe has begun.

The Senate general investigations subcommittee is the latest entrant. Under a developing shift in committee chairmanships, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., is expected to head this panel, a branch of the Government Operations Committee.

And one of the more influential House Democrats, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, said in a telephone interview he thinks the investigations subcommittee would be the appropriate one to determine whether, as Mills put it, there had been a concerted effort to disrupt the campaign of "any Democrat who had even a remote chance of getting the nomination."

Optimist Club Sponsoring Youth Appreciation Week

The Optimist Club of Pampa is sponsoring its annual Youth Appreciation Week beginning Monday with a banquet at 6:30 p.m. at the club building.

Rev. Gene Allen, minister of the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, will be the guest speaker at the banquet.

Ten students, five boys and five girls, from the high school grades will be honored at the banquet. The students were selected by the student councils.

Shelly Pitcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Pitcher, and John Agan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Agan, will represent Lee Junior High ninth grade.

Tenth-grade students from Pampa High School to be honored are Leslie Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Dixon, and Dolores Riggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Riggs.

Selected from the junior class are Randy Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don E. Cain, and Kathy Haynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walden Haynes.

Seniors to be present at the banquet are Bobby Ingram, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingram, and Sherilyn Sayles, daughter of Mrs. E.M. Sayles.

All students will be accompanied by their parents.

Youth Appreciation Week is set aside by Optimist International to give the Optimists a chance to honor the youth of their community.

"It is our desire to wish these students success and happiness in all their future endeavors," George Massie, local Optimist representative, said.

"Today's youth will be the leaders of tomorrow, and we sincerely hope that the goals they have set for themselves will lead to the success and happiness they deserve."

Nixon Will Travel Extensively Overseas During His Second Term, Aides Predict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with a re-election mandate, President Nixon will push ahead in his second term with delicate negotiations aimed at weaving a new fabric of world order from the divergent interests of friend and foe.

That's the forecast of top administration officials who are confident the stain and strain of Vietnam will be pushed into the past before Nixon's second inauguration on Jan. 20.

The President will travel extensively overseas—perhaps beginning before spring—but missing in the next four years will be the spectacular foreign policy breakthroughs of his first term, the advisers say.

Instead, they see a concentrated effort to cement still-fresh ties with Communist superpowers while strengthening sometimes-strained bonds with allies in Europe and elsewhere.

In the days before his resounding election victory, Nixon outlined on the campaign trail what he does—and does not—expect his second-term foreign policy to accomplish:

"It is clear that we will not in our lifetimes have a world free of danger. Anyone who reads history knows that danger has always been a part of the common lot of mankind. Anyone who knows the world today knows that nations have not all been suddenly overtaken by some new and unprecedented wave of pure good will and benign intentions.

"But we can lessen the danger. We can contain it. We can forge a network of relationships and of interdependencies that restrain aggression and that take the profit out of war."

The seeds for more peaceful conditions were sown in the first term, one of Nixon's top aides said, and will be nurtured in the second term's wide-ranging negotiations.

The adviser ticked off the current or soon-to-come talks: the second phase of strategic arms limitation negotiations with the Soviet Union; trade and monetary discussions with Common Market nations as well as with Japan; the European Security Conference and talks on mutual troop cutbacks in Europe.

While there won't be the splashy breakthroughs such as the first-term trips to Peking and Moscow, aides predict the President will travel extensively.

Meanwhile the Washington Star-News quoted Nixon today on his philosophy of government and his outlook for the next four years in a copyrighted story by Garnett D. Horner, its veteran White House correspondent.

Horner interviewed Nixon at San Clemente, Calif, for nearly an hour last Sunday.

Nixon referred only briefly to the current Vietnam negotiations. "I am completely confident that we are going to have a settlement. You can bank on it," he said.

On foreign policy generally, he likewise forecast "an exciting period" ahead though not "as spectacular as the year 1972" with its Moscow and Peking summits.

He said his second term will accomplish more than the first in foreign affairs because it will build on his initial steps. He spoke for forthcoming negotiations concerning Europe, of more strategic arms cut talks with the Soviets, of a fresh effort for a Mideast settlement.

Mainly Nixon dealt with the domestic scene, indicating a conservative—he called it basically centrist—course for the next four years.

Going beyond Wednesday's White House announcement of a planned shakeup in the administration's executive staff, Nixon said:

"If you look at the Nixon proposals in the first four years ... when you look at them over the next four years, this will be known as an administration which advocated—and if we get proper support in the Congress after the election, was able to accomplish more significant reform then any administration since Franklin Roosevelt's in 1932; but in a different direction.

"Roosevelt's reforms led to bigger and bigger power in Washington ...

"The reforms that we are instituting are ones which will diffuse the power throughout the country and which will make government leaner, but in a sense will make it stronger. After all, fat government is weak, weak in handling the problems."

"It is our responsibility," he said, "to find a way to reform our government institutions so that this new spirit of independence, self-reliance, pride that I sense in the American people can be nurtured."

The Star-News account quoted these highlights from Nixon's remarks:

The election—

It was settled the day Democratic Sen. George McGovern was nominated for president. McGovern's views "probably did not represent even a majority of Democrats. They certainly represented a minority of the country."

Foreign policy—

The second round of U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—SALT—starting Nov. 22 will be more important than SALT I, which produced agreements to limit defense nuclear weapons and some offensive ones.

The Middle East "will have a very high priority." U.S. policy toward Cuba will not change unless Castro changes his attitude.

Domestic policy—

He will "shuck off" and "trim down" social programs set up in the 1960s that he considers massive failures largely because they just "threw money at the problems."

Taxes—

"There will be no solutions of problems that require a tax increase ...

"I am convinced that the total tax burden of the American people, federal, state and local, has reached the breaking point. It can go no higher."

Presidential aides—

Some healthy "friction, competition" between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and the State Department, and adviser John Ehrlichman and the domestic agencies is going to continue. "That is the way it is going to have to be with them or their successors."

Political campaigns—

They are too long and they "bore people to death." Shorter campaigns would be better for presidential candidates "because we don't want to wear our people down to a frazzle before they take on the awesome responsibilities of this position."

Nixon added, however, that he is very pessimistic about whether campaigns actually can be shortened as a practical matter, because they are so competitive.

Horner wrote that Nixon was perhaps most emphatic in asserting "I honestly believe that government in Washington is too big and it is too expensive."

"With a puritan fervor he has seldom shown in public," Horner also said, "Nixon seemed to be closing the door on a time in which he felt the nation had been pampered and indulged, leaving its character weakened."

He quoted Nixon as saying:

"The average American is just like the child in the family. You give him some responsibility and he is going to amount to something. He is going to do something.

"If, on the other hand, you make him completely dependent and pamper him and cater to him too much, you are going to make him soft, spoiled and eventually a very weak individual."

Kennedy, Wallace Plan To Work For Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Gov. George C. Wallace say they plan to work for a broadened Democratic party in the years ahead after George McGovern's smashing presidential defeat at the hands of President Nixon.

And Texan John Connally, who led the Democrats supporting Nixon in the 1972 campaign, says he hopes the lessons of McGovern's electoral disaster Tuesday will produce a "responsible leadership that will bring the party back into the mainstream of American political thought."

None of the three—Kennedy, Wallace and Connally—would say much about his own political future but it took less than 24 hours after Nixon's landslide victory for the first voice for 1976 to be raised on the Republican side.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only black member and a landslide victor himself Tuesday, said he is going to give "serious thought" to a 1976 presidential bid, declaring that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "is not the heir apparent" to GOP leadership.

Most of the political talk Wednesday looked toward the future as politicians of both parties assessed the voters' split decision that gave Nixon 49 of the 50 states and the largest popular vote total in history while confirming Democratic congressional control.

Final returns, still to be confirmed when official canvasses are made, showed Democrats with a net gain of two senators for a 57-43 Senate majority in the incoming 93rd Congress and a net loss of 11 members for a still-substantial 244-190 lead in the new House. There is one House member designated an independent.

Democrats made a net gain of one governorship among the 18 contested Tuesday, leaving them with 31 of 50 including four of the seven largest states—Illinois, Texas, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In the presidential race, with 98 per cent of the nation's precincts counted, the popular vote stood:

Nixon 45,861,690, or 61 per cent.

McGovern 28,402,465, or 38 per cent.

Although the turnout for the election almost certainly set a record, incomplete figures indicated it fell far below the predicted 80 million to 85 million. About 77.5 million voted, compared with 73 million four years ago before the voting age was lowered to 18 nationwide.

But the percentage turnout was expected to be about 56 per cent, the first time since 1948 that it has been below 60 per cent of the voting-age population.

Kennedy, who emerged from Tuesday's election as the nation's leading Democrat and top 1976 prospect, was asked in an interview by the American Broadcasting Co. if he would be more available for the nomination four years from now than in 1972 when he refused to run.

Biographical Movies Now Stage Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After a period of drought, the biographical movie is staging a comeback.

The film biography was a Hollywood staple for 30 years, with such stars as George Arliss, Paul Muni and Spencer Tracy portraying galleries of famous figures. But such films went into a decline when the industry fell into its economic decline. Reasons:

1. Biographies usually require costumes, big sets and crowd scenes, which the studios can ill afford.

2. Producers believed that young moviegoers, who comprise the major part of the audience, cared naught about history and yearned for "now" films.

One Down, One to Go

Mark Spitz has his goals in life almost made.

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Ever since he was a kid, Mark Spitz wanted two things out of life — a fistful of Olympic medals and financial security.

He got his first wish in Munich. Seven medals, seven symbols of swimming superiority. And that feat is about to lead him to his second goal.

Spitz just signed a deal with Schick, Inc., to become a member of their "worldwide marketing team." It was announced as a "lifetime association." What wasn't announced was that it brought Spitz a reward in seven figures, and, unless he goes haywire, that should be his dream of financial security.

"I want security," Spitz said, in an exclusive interview, "so I'll never have to worry again. It's not for any present extravagances — I don't even have another suit to wear tomorrow — but for security.

"That's always been my goal. That's why I decided, a long time ago, on oral surgery as my career. Oral surgeons do very well."

But heroes do better. And that's what Spitz is, and that's what attracted the Schick people to him. Edward E. Ettinger, the company's board chairman, thinks that way.

"Spitz is the nearest thing to a Lindbergh type of hero this country has had in many years," Ed Ettinger says.

And one day Ettinger was out on the links at Hillcrest Golf Club in Los Angeles. So was Spitz. The swimmer is taking golf lessons — already he shoots in the low 90s — and the two men found themselves in the same foursome.

"We walked around for a while," Ettinger says, "and then it came to me. So I turned around to Mark and I said, 'I want you.'"

To entice him into his opulent web, Ettinger asked Spitz what kind of car he'd like. Spitz said he'd like a brown Lincoln Mark IV with a stereo casette system.

"Three hours later I delivered it to him," Ettinger says.

There were lots of offers coming Spitz' way. But the agency that handles him — he's lined up a top agent and a top publicity firm—recommended the Schick's one first. There will be others.

There will be acting deals, too. He's already done some variety shows — Bob Hope and Bill Cosby — and much more will follow.

Spitz gives the impression that he wasn't too happy with his first appearance, on Hope's show. He only got the script on Sunday, he says, and they taped it the next day in one take. There were no rehearsals. Hope doesn't like to run through his skits more than once.

"I think I was all right," Spitz says, "but I'd have liked to have done it again."

This drive he has for financial security cannot be explained by looking at his youth. He didn't come from a poor background. His father is an engineer with a scrap metal company and makes a good living. He always lived comfortably.

"I began swimming when I was ten," he says. "I always had an aptitude for it. Some kids find their identity in Little League baseball. I found mine in the swimming pool."

He never thought about much else — just swimming and, then the ambition to finish college and go on to dental school. The idea of acting never really occurred to him.

"Oh, once in awhile," he says, "I'd go to the movies and I'd fantasize about how nice it would be to be in the leading man's shoes and kiss all the pretty girls. But it was just an idle dream."

But that's all. No acting lessons. No high school or college plays. Not even any speech practice. If it hadn't been for his phenomenal sweep in Munich, he'd be looking at teeth at the University of Indiana Dental School right now.

His Olympic career, he says, produced some peculiar numerical coincidences.

"I entered six events in Mexico City in '68 and seven events in Munich in '72," he says. "That's a total of 13 events — unlucky, right? I won four medals in '68 and seven in '72 — that's 11 medals. And that's supposed to be lucky."

So maybe luck didn't have very much to do with it. But he has a way of explaining his Olympic career.

"I believe in the old maxim," he says. "The one about the dog who stops to go to the bathroom won't catch the rabbit. Well, I stopped to go to the bathroom, I guess — but it looks like I'm going to catch the rabbit anyhow."

He's turned his back completely on swimming. He says he hasn't even been in the water since he climbed out of the Olympic pool in Munich, after his last triumph. He also says that if he'd been as successful in Mexico City in '68 as he was in Munich in '72, he would have quit then.

He's so far removed from things natatorial that he's not even in the Hollywood swim. His advisers are keeping him pretty much under wraps here — he goes to none of the big parties or premieres, he does no interviews to speak of, and so far there's no gossip about his doing much dating.

"I spend most of my time with my hobbies," he says. "I take pictures. I'm pretty good. I take pictures of all kinds of things — sometimes pretty girls, sometimes bottle caps in the gutter for ecology.

You'll be hearing more of Mark Spitz. He'll do many of Schick's commercials. He'll be acting and appearing on variety shows. Undoubtedly, he'll be in the gossip columns.

Domestic Problems Facing President

NEW YORK (AP) — A review of the domestic problems confronting President Nixon over the next four years provides the details hidden within that hackneyed cliche, "the awesome responsibilities of the presidency."

They are indeed awesome. Awaiting decisions are problems involving inflation, unemployment, economic controls, tax reform, budget deficits, welfare reform, health insurance, urban revitalization, education equality.

The list is endless, and if there are any clear-cut solutions they aren't evident. In fact, the demands of one problem are bound to impinge on the resolution of others, thus forcing uneasy, perhaps temporary, compromises.

Considering the present stage of technology, for example, the demands of ecology cannot be met entirely without slowing the productive process that provides the tax money. Already the country faces an energy crisis, partly because of this.

And as many millions now understand, it is still very difficult to battle inflation and unemployment in tandem because of the tendency of one to roar off in its own direction, to react on the other.

How will the big budget deficits be reduced? Financed? Those who have looked into the situation see little prospect for the administration to avoid a tax increase, distasteful as it is to everyone.

In fact, the probability of a tax increase arises at the very time Americans are expressing repugnance against overspending and reportedly are seeking tax reforms or reductions instead of higher taxes.

How do you keep those budget deficits within manageable proportions? Republican presidents traditionally have claimed to be against deficits, but Nixon nevertheless has been in the red every year but one since taking office.

That question becomes even more complex when you consider that while it is the President's budget he doesn't necessarily control it, especially when another party controls Congress, which passes on appropriations.

The difficulty in resolving any of these huge domestic issues that Nixon must face during the next four years is exemplified by the measures he felt were needed to restrain rising wages and prices.

The President claimed to be both politically and ideologically opposed to direct intervention in the market. Yet he was forced to do a complete about-face, not only for himself but for his party.

DAVID POLING, D.D.

The Baptist Secret Weapon: the Youth

By REV. DAVID POLING

Since the early 1960s, student Christian work within the major denominations has been in decline. Some denominational apologists argued that small groups were the way to reach young people and hastened the decline of large student conferences and conventions. Other churchmen seemed confused by the generation gap, bewildered by sexual liberation and wavered when it came to setting down the Christian verities. College Christian programs suffered, and high school materials were lost in the educational surf between adolescence and adulthood. It has been a lost decade for many, many churches.

But not the Southern Baptists. Aside from a traditional affirmation of Christian theology and values, they have grown and expanded and grown again in almost every realm of their youth activities. At a recent statewide convention held in Baton Rouge, La., this reporter and others saw first-hand the skills and enthusiasm of college-age young people caught up in the Christian life. The Southern Baptist experience has generally been considered a regional phenomenon—but in reality it is supporting global outreach, with new positions of strength in many northern and western cities.

But back to the state student convention at Baton Rouge. The three-day program was almost entirely directed, planned, funded, and publicized by student leaders from 12 colleges and universities. Overnight housing, food planning and transportation—all had youth participants. This is not to say that chaplains, pastors, and state directors have nothing to do—it does mean the result of their efforts is fulfilled in the intense involvement of young people in all phases of church life. And it is the secret of great success. For instance, the convention program was tightly planned, with each agenda item (a report from overseas, a musical group, a major address) held to a printed timetable. No rambling remarks, no wandering prayers and everyone on time for meetings.

Another major factor in the success of Southern Baptist youth is their control and support of missionary projects. The young people from Louisiana send nearly a dozen students into overseas ministries—elected from their own ranks and funded by their own giving. This means assignments in places like the Bahamas, Alaska, Hawaii, Germany, Ghana and the Philippines. When these kids return, their reports are personal and inspiring, building up interest in further participation in mission and expecting fresh recruits to join the effort. It works. Anything that is youth supported, fired by youth response and fulfilled by youthful enthusiasm is going to take off like a big bird. And in Biblical terms, the descent of the Dove is the sign of the Holy Spirit. The Baptists are a clear example of a religious community built on that belief. Yes, there are professionals around like state director Udell Smith and campus pastors and advisers like Frank Horton and George Haile, providing balance and perspective in this 13 million member denomination.

Success May Spoil African Christianity

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Will success spoil Christianity in Africa? A forthcoming report on churches in Kenya suggests that the problem is more acute than many clerics have believed.

Figures compiled for the first time in the Kenya Churches Handbook for 1972, to be published in a few weeks, are expected to show twice as many church members as had been estimated and an unexpectedly deep church involvement in social development projects.

David B. Barrett, an Anglican missionary who helped prepare the handbook, says it's like that nearly everywhere in black Africa.

He estimates that the more than 100 million Christians on the continent are increasing at the rate of 5 per cent a year — double the population growth. By the year 2000, he says, African Christians could total 350 million and exceed the number of African Moslems for the first time.

The demand for thousands of additional churches, ministers and lay personnel, and church-aided agencies is overwhelming.

Some in the Roman Catholic church, the biggest Christian group in Africa, foresee a complete administrative breakdown within a generation, with the hierarchy becoming hopelessly decentralized.

"We had thought that the crisis lay between Christianity and anti-Christian forces, like communism, but now we have an entirely unexpected crisis," Barrett said in an interview. "It's the exact opposite of the crisis of faith in the West. Growth is almost out of control.

"Africans are the most religious people in the world. Christianity is a religion of development and human rights and Africa was ripe for it."

Much of the growth has been within independent or separatist movements outside the historical church organizations. There are more than 5,000 such movements, including some 3,000 in South Africa, with a total membership of about 15 million.

African church leaders see the boom as foreshadowing the development of Christanity from a largely white-and Western-centered religion into a religion dominated numerically, at least, by non-white, Third World peoples. Some predict that Western Christians will double during the 20th century to 800 million but Third World Christians will increase from 67 million in 1900 to more than 1 billion.

"Is our generation given the task of preparing a new millenium of world Christianity? I believe so," said Canon Burgess Carr, general secretary of the All Africa Conference of Churches, recently.

The 10-year-old conference represents some 45 million Christians in 103 Protestant and Orthodox churches in 34 African countries.

Weatherfords To Appear At Fellowship

The Weatherfords, recognized as one of the foremost gospel music groups today, will be featured in concert Monday night at Fellowship Baptist Church, according to the Rev. Earl Maddux, pastor.

Rev. Maddux said the Weatherfords were selected for the appearance because music is a ministry with members of the group rather than a commercial enterprize.

However, the sincerity that audiences describe when they sing has made them successful in the fields of television and recordings.

The unusual sound of this gospel music group is made up of Earl and Lily Fern Weatherford, Haskell Cooley, Billy Brisandine and Tracy Dartt.

Rev. Maddux extended the invitation to hear the Weatherfords to all of Pampa. Fellowship Baptist Church is located at E. Francis and Warren Sts.

Members of the Junior and Senior Lutheran Youth Fellowship will attend an area Youth Service, Sunday at 7 p.m. at Christ Lutheran Church in Amarillo. Featured in the Service will be the singing group, "Joyous Celebration" affiliated with the Lutheran Youth Alive organization.

The Junior Lutheran Youth Fellowship will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. for a short business meeting followed by a "Good Samaritan Seals Party."

Church Panel Sets Meeting Wednesday

Two important meetings are scheduled this week at First Christian Church including a session of the church cabinet at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The high school group of the Christian Youth Fellowship will have a planning meeting this week which will include the program for Sunday and an ice skating party in Amarillo the following Sunday.

The Chi Rho Fellowship comprised of Junior High students has scheduled as a part of their program Sunday, a "Parent Panel". Members will be Mr. and Mrs. Gary Clark, Mrs. Ralph Palmer, George Gamolin. They will be joined by students Eddie Keller, Jim Slack, Robin Breazeale and Cheryl Green.

First Christian Bazaar Ready

The annual Bazaar sponsored by the ladies of First Christian Church is set for Nov. 17, according to Mrs. Jim Osborne, chairman.

The ladies have planned for a lively day of shopping unique handmade articles, homemade "goodies" and unusual Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Osborne noted that a delicious stew and pie will be served for lunch. This will be served from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Bazaar hours will be 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

NEW SIRENS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP) — Metro Niagara police cruisers are being equipped with new type sirens and red and white flashers to make the cruisers more noticeable when they are responding to emergency calls.

The new electronic siren can easily be heard by a motorist with his windows up and radio on, police spokesman said.

FIND BURIAL GROUND

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (AP) — City engineering crews uncovered an Indian burial site in July while developing a new subdivision. Police inspector Wes Stubbs said a hatchet, hand-made tools and beads were found in five shallow graves. Anthropologists will examine the remains, which will be reburied in a proper grave.

MY EXPERIENCE OF DIVINE LOVE

When the Apostle Paul said, The Son of God "loved me, and gave himself for me" (Gal. 2:20), he emphasized one of the grandest truths in his Epistles. With remarkable insight and triumphant certainty he pointed out the personal application of our Lord's unfathomable love.

He loves me if I were the only one to be loved. As we consider what these words mean to us in 1972, our hearts are filled with joy.

As we think of the large number of the redeemed, the very thought that the Lord Jesus has an individual acquaintance with each of us separately is bewildering in its magnitude. General Grant once said that when he was Colonel of a regiment he knew every man of his command by name, but as he rose in command he found it necessary to dimish the scope of his knowledge of individuals, until, when he was at the head of the entire army, he gave little thought to individuals before the rank of a divisional commander. Does the Lord know each of our names? Does He think of us? When He was on earth, He made the most astounding statement concerning himself: "He calleth his own sheep by name," (John 10:3).

Let us look at this divine knowledge for a moment. "He knew what was in man," (John 2:25), and this is a knowledge that includes our thoughts (Acts 15:8). Our Lord knew where there was a fish with a coin in its mouth and the exact value of that coin. He knew where there was an ass when he wanted it. He knew where there was a man who would lend Him his upper room for the Last Supper. He knew exactly when Peter would deny Him.

Yet surely such personal knowledge is just what we might expect from the One who died to save all. A father knows his children as individuals. He does not deal with all of them by one and the same rule, but with each child individually. The delicate one is the most shielded; the timid one is the most encouraged; the infirm one is the most helped; the dull one is the most taught; the tempted one is the most prayed for; and the returning one is the most rejoiced over. It is this specialty and the appropriateness of His care which is the great characteristic of our Lord's love. He sees my weakness and tenderly guards me. He knows my capabilities and uses them in love.

Our Lord's is an omnipotent love, and the gates of hell cannot prevail against it. It is an omnipresent love, and there is never a condition of life in which it does not show itself. It is an omniscient love, and it reaches down to the unknown wants of my innermost being.

Duck-McGahen Vows Said In Double-Ring Ceremony

Miss Talonye'Kay Duck became the bride of Lionel Fran McGahen recently, in the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Duck, 1005 S. Dwight, Pampa, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lucille McGahen, 705 E. Denver, Pampa, and C.R. McGahen of Vega.

THE CEREMONY

Rev. Gene Allen officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with three-tiered brass candelabra entwined with greenery, and two urn arrangements of bronze mums and yellow pom-pon mums.

Mrs. Estelle Malone, organist, accompanied Mrs. Sue Klepper, as she sang the theme from "Love Story," and "True Love."

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Chantilly lace over bridal satin. The fitted bodice was styled with a Sabrina neckline, natural waistline and long, fitted lace sleeves that ended in points over her hands.

Her veil of imported illusion was edged in lace and fell from a seed pearl tiara.

She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses centered with two cymbidium orchids.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Jean Allen, Pampa, served as matron of honor, and Renel' Tigrett, Pampa, was bridesmaid. They wore princess styled, identical, floor-length gowns of gold double-knit, and carried yellow and bronze pom-pon mums attached to a wide moss green velvet arm band.

Wyatt Earp served as best man, and Johnny Clark was groomsman. Ushers were Ronnie Duck, brother of the bride, and Lakan Mariano, of the Philippines.

Becky Thurman and Mark Box lighted the candles and ringbearer was Steve Thurman. Heidi Allen served as flower girl. She carried a basket arrangement of yellow and bronze pom-pon mums.

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a navy blue, floor-length knit gown trimmed in white lace and wore white accessories. Her corsage was white French mums.

The bridegroom's mother wore a beige, brocade street-length dress with matching accessories and a gold French mum corsage.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's Fellowship Hall. The table, covered with a floor-length beige lace over a gold cloth, was centered with a candelabra holding gold candles and arrangements of gold snapdragons and pom-pon mums.

The four-tiered white wedding cake was topped with a cluster of yellow roses.

Presiding at the punch bowl and serving the cake were Mrs. Debbie Clark, Miss Karen Baird, and Miss Karen McGahen. Registering the guests was Miss Debbie Humphrey.

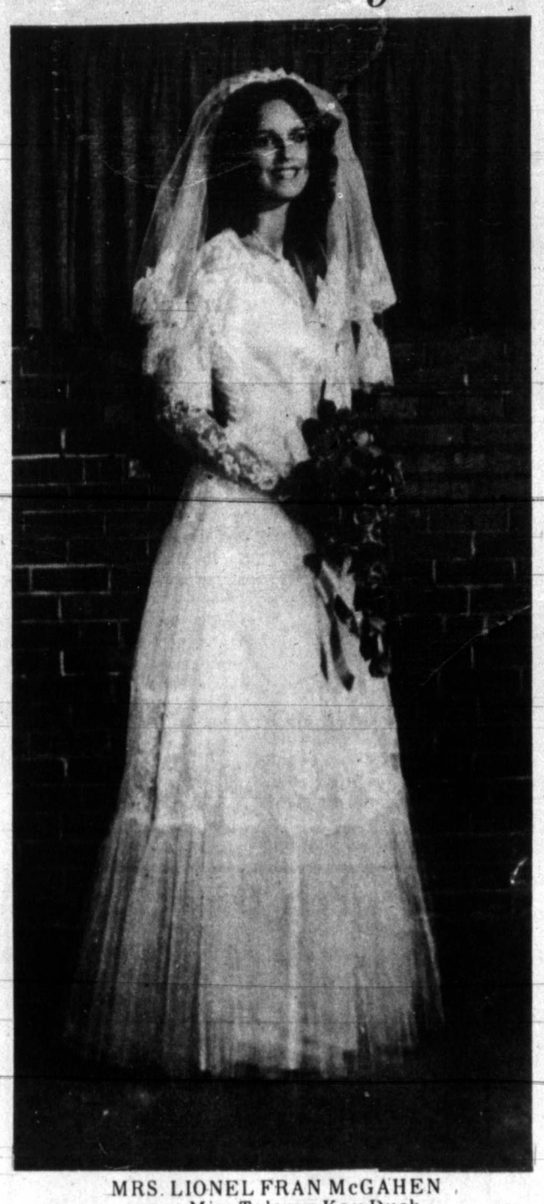

The couple will be at home at 419 E. Kingsmill.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Pampa High School and is employed by the First National Bank.

The bridegroom is a 1968 graduate of PHS and is employed by Phillips Petroleum Co.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McGahen, Vega, Tex.

MUSIC SURVEY RESULTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has released the results of a survey sent to 500 music critics and publishers.

In response to the question, "What do you consider the most significant work of the past 25 years?" the work receiving the most votes was Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem." Then, in order, came Krzysztof Penderecki's "St. Luke's Passion," Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" and Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's "Jesus Christ Superstar." There were 76 replies to the survey.

Igor Stravinsky received the most votes in two categories, most influential composer and the person whose works are predicted to be performed 50 years from now.

Most influential composers, rated following Stravinsky, are Karlheinz Stockhausen, John Cage and Pierre Boulez. Other composers whose works are expected to be heard in 50 years are Aaron Copland, Benjamin Britten, Serge Prokofiev and Leonard Bernstein.

Facing Winter

Winter weather is hard on most complexions, so be extra careful to keep your face moist and smooth. A hot towel applied to the face will open pores. Then apply your favorite cream (mayonnaise is a good moisturizer), massage upward, then tissue off excess. Start your face-saving program before the wrinkles set in.

Wife jealous over mate's girlie pictures

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My marriage would be perfect except for one thing. My husband likes to look at girlie magazines. It's the only thing we ever fight about. He's 36 and I'm 34, and I'm not all that bad.

I actually get jealous when I see him enjoying those pictures. I can't help it. I know I can't compare with the well-endowed girls in the magazines and it makes me feel so inferior.

Abby, why would a man who is satisfied with his wife want to look at such pictures?

Is it immaturity? JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Immaturity? Hardly. Admiring beautiful undraped females has long been a source of pleasure among normal men. But because our Puritan "code of morals" has made nudity a "no no," grown men are made to feel like naughty little boys if they are caught enjoying it.

It does not necessarily follow that a man who likes to look at girlie magazines is dissatisfied with his wife. But the wife who makes her husband feel guilty for responding normally to an erotic picture could be cheating herself.

DEAR ABBY: What is this world coming to? Mothers putting their daughters on birth control pills at 14 and 15?

Next month I am marrying an unwed mother with a little boy. She isn't on birth control pills, and as far as I'm concerned, she doesn't have to be.

I am 26 years old and have been around a lot. Before I met this little jewel, every time I took a girl out, after the first kiss she would say, "You don't have to worry, I'm on the pill."

I thought all the girls were alike, until I met this one, but she set me straight right off. I got fresh [all guys will try], and she said, "If you want an affair, go somewhere else because I'm holding out for marriage. I made one mistake, and I made a promise to myself, to God, and to my little boy, that I'll never make another!"

We're very much in love, but if she can wait to make it legal, so can I. ARKANSAS SALESMAN

DEAR SALESMAN: The moral to that story is, experience is the best teacher, and judging from the cost, it ought to be.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with my husband's people. I have been in this family for 35 years and every time there is a death in the family, his relatives show up at the funeral parlor with their cameras and they take a picture of the deceased lying in the casket.

They mail these pictures to all the out-of-town relatives who couldn't attend the funeral. They think they are doing them a big favor. When my husband's mother passed away recently, he made it clear that he didn't want anybody taking any pictures of her in the casket. She lived in another city, and my husband was sick and couldn't go back for her funeral, so wouldn't you know a few weeks after the burial he gets all these pictures of his mother laid out in the casket! He was so furious he almost had a spell because he wanted to remember her as she was when she was alive.

Are we crazy for not wanting to see such pictures? Or are they? They've got us thinking that maybe we're the crazy ones.

Please put your answer in the paper as we want to buy about a dozen copies and mail them around. Thank you.

HATES THOSE PICTURES

DEAR HATES: To each his own, but I agree with you and your husband. And since his people know how you feel, they should respect your wishes.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Rock Garden Program Highlights Pampa Garden Club Meeting

Rock gardens can be indoor, outdoor, formal, or informal, stated Dr. Jerry Cronister in his program on rock gardens at a recent meeting of the Pampa Garden Club. The speaker emphasized that such gardens should contain living plants or they aren't "gardens."

In mentioning types, he included the Alpine rock garden in which coniferous plants are used, the hidden spring where rocks are piled in a grotto effect for a gushing spring, the waterfall with the number of cascades adding interest, and the modernistic with the sharply cut rocks.

Cost and time are two factors to consider in planning this type of landscaping. While acquiring native rocks, making ones own ornament, and doing ones own work can cut costs, the project can be time consuming. However, time required for upkeep is minimal.

Placement of this interest area is important and should be in the corner of the yard opposite the house where it can be viewed and enjoyed from within. The background should be as natural as possible, framed by a fence, bamboo, or taller plantings. The garden itself must be high enough that the background doesn't dominate.

The general effect of the rock garden, Dr. Cronister designs, is a natural mountainous area in miniature. Height levels are irregular, as is the foreground. The ornament or main interest is placed just below eye level. Rocks are larger at this point and then graduate in size as the ground slopes downward.

Dr. Cronister uses broken concrete to form the screen, a sturdy base mound, and usually builds a retaining wall to help secure the mound. For his garden ornaments of castles, forts, Japanese lanterns, etc., he uses sacrete mortar mix prepared to a thick consistency. He shapes it, presses rocks into it, lifts out sections for doors, window openings, etc. The finished ornament is durable and has withstood hail storms.

In addition to the ornament for the garden, he selects plant materials and rocks to compliment it. Rocks should be of similar texture as all sandstone, all lava, etc., but must be different in size for graduation and interest. Plant materials include the ground covers, bonsai for Japanese, desert plantings of cacti and succulents for southwestern, etc.

Lighting and water are features that can enhance the garden setting. Dr. Cronister suggests that any lighting be subtle and well planned. A water pump can be acquired for about thirty dollars, but filtering must be done regularly. Besides having an aesthetic appeal, water will also attract birds to the garden.

Including the program was a horticulture display of succulents and sumpervivums.

During the business session reports were made on the fall convention of the Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., by Mrs. James Malone, district director. Mrs. Joe Curtis, district one treasurer, also attended the Brownsville convention.

The club voted to purchase daffodil bulbs for the environmental garden at Lee Junior High school, the Rosebuds, and Junior Rosebuds, junior garden clubs.

They will assist the junior clubs in planting bulbs at Austin and Lee schools.

Mrs. A.J. Mitchell announced the work schedule for the club booth at the Fine Arts Fair this weekend. BETTY CANARY
With Children, Tell It Like It Is

By BETTY CANARY

Experience says that with children, honesty is the best policy. I'm not sure all psychiatrists will agree with me, but, so far, I've gotten good results with it.

For example, if sounds that are curiously like Hannibal crossing the Alps with his elephants are emanating from an upstairs bedroom, I don't coyly ask, "What are you doing up there—imitating Hannibal crossing the Alps?" Instead, I scream, "Stop that! You're driving me crazy!"

I am constantly being amazed at how some mothers control tongue and blood pressure when "kids are being kids."

I keep remembering the young woman I once saw in a department store. Her little boy ran between the counters, grabbing at lamp cords, and she followed him, asking sweetly, "Now, honey, you don't want to play with the lamps, do you?"

Of course he wanted to play with the lamps. The real question here was whether or not she wanted to pay for broken ones.

Many mothers feel that only a stream of explanations is acceptable when a child is acting in an unacceptable way.

The woman, for example, whose child keeps moaning monotonously, "Gimme a quarter, Mom, gimme a quarter, why won't you gimme a quarter?"

The woman who gives him a stream of reasons, including such facts as, "I haven't a quarter until I get change for this 10-dollar-bill," and, "You've already spent 50 cents on hotdogs," and, "We're going home in a minute and you'll spoil your appetite," is copping out.

Probably the real reason she won't give him a quarter is that she has to save the money to pay her analyst in order to find out why she has these miserable recurrent dreams about kids standing over her whining for quarters.

Don't misunderstand me. I give my children explanations. But, I try to make them honest explanations.

Just yesterday I told my son he had to get his hair trimmed. And I told him why. Because I'm tired of explaining to the animal shelter people why I don't have to buy him a license, that's why.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOV. 11

Your birthday today: Brings in a year beyond all previous plans, full of diversions, experiments, people, abrupt episodes in long-stable relations. Today's natives are usually well-liked, thrive better far from birthplaces.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Collect all that's coming to you while it's feasible. Domestic incidents require extra time to deal with contradictory opinions.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Almost any group effort encounters discussion, bickering. You've started expecting too much, neglecting the needs of others.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your resources aren't enough for some of today's well-offered speculations. Leave loved ones space for several changes of mind.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Endless rounds of conversation settle little or nothing. Doing essential chores quietly establishes a context which will contain differences.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Pride leads you into taking on more than you can manage. The rest of the weekend is spent disentangling yourself from results.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Ventures run head-on into difficulty, delay. Use your ingenuity to work out an alternate pathway. Switch programs for the week-end.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You have potential special favor, promises of support, but let well enough alone wherever you can. Don't rush.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Take advantage of probable interruptions to ask questions, learn why formal or official matters go as they do.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Your approach to money and its applications is strewn with undue optimism, impractical ideas. Acquaintances are not much help.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Squabbles arise over almost any little gesture, can go on to quarrels if you let them. Show your most peaceful side.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: First see that you expect too much, on too short notice. Then seek a more direct approach involving fewer people.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Fresh contacts inspire rethinking of old schemes, basic changes which open previously closed doors. Finance nobody but yourself today!

Opening lead—♠ 10

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The nothing play is a play that can lose or break even, but can't possibly win. Every one of us has made them on occasion.

Some nothing plays are more expensive than others and here is an example of a rather expensive one.

North's 10-point opening bid is not recommended and he wasn't at all happy when South bid game. South's game bid was an overbid in itself. A conservative bidder would have passed to two diamonds; a normal bidder would have tried just two no-trump.

South looked over the dummy unenthusiastically. There was one legitimate play for the contract and South tried it.

He won the spade in his own hand; led his deuce of diamonds and played dummy's eight. East took his king and returned a spade.

Now South led dummy's queen of diamonds. If West had started with jack and one diamond the queen would bump the jack and South would have four diamond tricks.

As you can see the diamonds broke 3-3 and South had no chance. That is, he had no chance except that East came up with a nothing play. He let the queen of diamonds hold!

There was no way that play could gain. Once East ducked, his side could never take more than two diamond tricks.

South was grateful. He led a third diamond and claimed his contract.

Short Cut

Short hair is back in fashion. Chin-length cuts are especially appealing with classic clothes, snug hats and high fur collars. The most important ingredient, of course, is the cut. Spend the extra money getting a good, professional cut, because you'll spend less time and money keeping your hair in shape.

Pampa Civic Ballet To Audition Dancers Sunday

The Pampa Civic Ballet will hold auditions Sunday, Nov. 12, at 2 p.m., at the Beaux Arts Dance Studio, 315 N. Nelson. All area dancers, aged 10 or older, who take a minimum of two ballet classes a week from a qualified instructor, are eligible to audition. Dancers between the ages of ten and thirteen will audition for the junior company, while dancers older than 13 will audition for the senior company.

The artistic director of the Pampa Civic Ballet is Jeanne Willingham.

MRS. LILLIAN STOVALL
Ballet Adjudicator

Mrs. Lillian Stovall of Shreveport, La. will be the adjudicator for Sunday's audition. She has taught ballet in Shreveport for the past 34 years and is a Regional Director for Southern Dance Masters Association and Chicago National Association of Dance Masters.

Mrs. Stovall inaugerated "The Evening of Ballet" programs for the Shreveport Symphony Orchestra and choreographed a number of ballets for the Shreveport Civic Opera including "Aida", "Faust" and "Lucia".

Last spring she was a judge for the Regional try-outs for SMU scholarships.

She has trained many professional dancers including Harvy Jung of the Metropolitan Opera Ballet and Ray Chabeau, who has just finished an act in Las Vegas with Debbie Reynolds and is now staging, "Sweet Charity" for Juliet Prowse which is opening in Chicago this week.

Half-Time Winners

Want to win points, and compliments, from the football fans around the TV set? Pass around these banana chiffon cup cakes, at half time.

HALF-TIME CUP CAKES

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1½ tsps. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
1 cup commercial sour cream
½ cup fully ripe mashed Chiquita banana (one medium banana)
¼ cup butter
2 eggs
confectioners' powdered sugar

Blend dry ingredients. Add sour cream, banana, butter and eggs. Mix at low speed of electric mixer until blended, about one minute, or mix by hand with a spoon. Fill paper or foil-lined medium muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake in pre-heated 350 degrees oven for 25-30 minutes. Cool.

Natural Styling

Hair styles should look natural. Hair should be cut the way it grows. Don't fight it. If you have straight hair have it bluntly cut into a sleek, easy-to-care-for style. And if your hair is curly, show it off, by having it cut in a flattering layered look.

When you are making French toast, add a little nutmeg to the egg-and-milk mixture.

GI Insurance Betters a Bargain

By CARLTON SMITH

"Probably the best insurance bargain of your lifetime" is a strong statement, but that's what it is—the new dividend option that has just become available to holders of converted (permanent) "G.I. life insurance."

Veterans holding these policies can now use their dividends to buy paid-up additional insurance, each year increasing the face amount of the policy. With $1 worth of dividend buying as much as $2.50 of additional insurance—paid up for the rest of your lifetime—it has to be one of the best investments of this or any other year.

The new option applies to both whole life policies and endowment policies—the two choices veterans had when it was possible to convert to permanent policies the term insurance that covered G.I.s during active-service years.

The amount of additional paid-up insurance your dividend dollars will purchase depends on your age. It varies from $25.77 (per $10 of dividends) at age 45 to $17.57 at age 60.

As an example of how good an insurance bargain this is, veteran Joseph J. Kilroy, carrying a $10,000 whole life National Service Life Insurance policy, pays an annual premium of $197.60. This year his dividend was $128.40.

By using it to buy paid-up insurance, he adds $242 to the amount of his death benefit. For comparison, if he put his dividend money into a savings account paying 5 per cent, compounded annually, it would take 13 years for the account to grow to $242.

Joe probably will live that long, and longer—according to the mortality tables—but maybe he'll be one of the 13 in every thousand who'll die this year, at his age. If he wants to make sure that his family gets that $242, he'll invest in the additional insurance.

And to make the bargain even better, this extra insurance will have its own cash value (Joe can borrow against it, if necessary), and will also be eligible for dividends.

The Veterans Administration says that any dividends will be small, at the beginning, because of the small amounts of insurance involved. Nevertheless, the N.S.L.I. policies have proved to be generous dividend payers, and the ultimate cost of Joe's insurance will undoubtedly make it the bargain of a lifetime.

Since the new option has just become available, many vets with N.S.L.I. policies will already have received their 1972 dividend. But they needn't wait until next year to start adding to their insurance.

Write the V.A. center that maintains your insurance records and ask what the amount of your 1972 dividend was. When you get the answer, send it back along with a check for the amount of your dividend, and you'll immediately own the proportionate amount of additional paid-up insurance.

Newhart Has Fingers Crossed

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(N E A)—The jury is still out on whether or not The Bob Newhart Show will be a hit on CBS. Newhart hopes it is because he doesn't feel like dropping $100,000 for nothing.

He's figured out that it's cost him that much in canceled nightclub bookings to do the show. Anytime a man turns his back on $100,000 he'd like it to be for a good cause.

"I didn't take the show for the money," he says. "I took it for the long-term investment."

He's finding it tough in one area. He has to memorize a whole mess of lines. In his nightclub act he just sort of talks it. He's been doing it so long it's all second nature. But on the TV show he has lines to learn and he has to stick pretty close to what's in the script.

He says at first he pasted them up on convenient spots on the set — behind chairs, on the back of lamps, anywhere the camera wouldn't show them. But he found that looked kind of awkward. He'd be supposed to be talking to his costar Suzanne Pleshette and on the screen there he'd be, talking to the back of a lamp. So now he's doing it the hard way—committing every line to memory.

On the set he's not above a little kidding around. When the director Alan Rafkin suggested he back up a hair, he pulled out a hair from his head and backed up.

Later, Rafkin focused on Marcia Wallace, who plays his receptionist, and Newhart, with mock sarcasm, said, "If I'm getting in Marcia's picture, just tell me."

But he had his lines memorized. He'd check with the script girl—"Is that right, Rosemary?"—and 9 times out of 11, he was right.

It's not like his nightclub act. There he can play around. He has his stock bits and he tells them in whatever order he thinks will suit a particular audience.

"It's like going down a long corridor with many doors leading off it," he says. "Sometimes I walk straight through, sometimes I take one side door, sometimes another."

Here, though, he's trapped by the script. So far, he's enjoying it and he thinks the show is coming together. There's one big plus. He's home most of the time and spends more time with his family.

For one member of the Newhart clan—Robert, 9—the series has another big plus. Young Robert is a big fan of the reruns of I Dream of Jeannie, the Barbara Eden series. One of the stars of that show was Bill Daily, and Daily is now on Newhart's show.

"He thinks it's great," Bob says, "that his Daddy can introduce him to Bill Daily."

Newhart says one of the big drawbacks is the all-too-real problem of raising children while being a celebrity.

"Timmy, who is 5, goes up to people in supermarkets," Bob says, "and says, 'My Daddy has a TV show.' He knows his Daddy is different from other Daddys, from the lawyers and the garagemen.

"But we're aware of the problem and trying to do something about it. I think being aware of it is half the battle. It's part of the price you pay for being a star."

Newhart is a family man. One of the big things in his life is the every-Monday-night dinner out with the whole crowd—his wife, Ginny, and his two sons and little Jennifer, 1½.

"They don't like to see us coming," Bob says. "It's a little bit noisy with the Newharts there. So we go to a different restaurant each week. That way, we divide up the disaster."

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Nov. 10, the 315th day of 1972. There are 51 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1483, the leader of the Protestant Reformation, Martin Luther, was born in Eiselben, Germany.

On this date:

In 1674, the Dutch surrendered New Netherlands to the English.

In 1775, the Continental Congress, sitting in Philadelphia, established the U.S. Marine Corps.

In 1871, explorer Henry Stanley located the missing Scottish missionary, David Livingston, in central Africa.

In 1918, at the end of the first World War, Kaiser Wilhelm crossed from Belgium into Holland and asked for asylum.

In 1928, Hirohito was enthroned as Emperor of Japan.

In 1944, in the second World War, it was disclosed that a new German weapon—the V2 rocket bomb—had been used against England.

Ten years ago: Eleanor Roosevelt was buried beside her husband at Hyde Park, N.Y.

Five years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson launched a coast-to-coast tour of military installations.

One year ago: Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba arrived in Chile for a visit, his first trip to Latin America in 11 years.

Today's birthday: Actor Richard Burton is 47.

Thought for today: The world war after the next one will be fought with rocks—Albert Einstein.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.

Dorothy didn't realize her boy friend was merely testing her when he demanded sexual liberties. And he poured on the usual "true love" sales palaver. Yet after she succumbed, he dropped her. Note the similar testing attempt by the older male!

CASE V-541: Dorothy J., aged 19, is the unhappy coed who succumbed to the seductive sales talk of her sweetheart.

"Dr. Crane," she wept, "it was against my principles to spend the night with him at the motel.

"But he pleaded and said he loved me truly.

"And he also told me that it made no difference since we would get married, anyway.

"But he broke our engagement after that night together in the motel.

"On the way back in the car, he said he couldn't respect a girl who slept with a man before marriage!

"But, Dr. Crane, it was all his idea!

"He not only had suggested it but he beat down my objections till I finally gave in to him.

"So why should he then blame me for our affair?"

MICROPHONE TECHNIQUE

You readers have doubtless attended banquets where a speech was to follow.

And the chairman usually tests the microphone at the podium to make sure everything is in order.

"Testing-testing- testing," he may utter into the mike.

Well, that's what Dorothy's sweetheart was doing to her.

And thousands of other males do the very same thing.

Although they protest undying devotion and thus high-pressure their girl friends into an affair, it is similar to that "testing" technique employed by the chairman at the banquet.

Except that if the microphone works, then the chairman stays with it.

But many of these sexually infatuated males find that if their sexual super salesmanship wins the girl's consent to an affair, then they may drop her!

Although this seems eminently unfair, you girls might as well get wise to this trick so widely employed by the male sex.

And it is not limited just to immature teen-agers and college boys.

Many men past the age of 40, who are widowers and shopping around for a new mate, will do the very same thing that Dorothy's boy friend demonstrated.

"Dr. Crane," an attractive widow, aged 51, recently phoned me, "I met a charming man through the Scientific Marriage Foundation.

"We had corresponded for 6 weeks before he called on me in person.

"And that first date was delightful, for we had so many things in common to talk about.

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long, stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

North Sea Oil Reserves Enough To Help Feed European Industry Well Into 1980s

LONDON (AP) — Build an oil rig nearly as tall as the Eiffel Tower. Stand it in the Alaskan cold of the storm-tossed North Sea. Secure it so that men can work safely there against waves 90 feet high and winds of 100 miles per hour. And one more thing. Make it pay.

This tall order is already off the design boards, being readied for 1975 for the North Sea oil boom, Europe's biggest energy bonanza, reaching ever more dizzying heights.

Drilling tests during the past decade lost 13 lives to the hazards of one of nature's cruelest seas. Investment costs ran into billions of dollars. But the rewards are now there for the taking. More than 200 companies have proven the funnel-shaped sea to be one of the dozen or so richest oil sources in the world.

Six major new fields were discovered in the last three months alone in seabed probes to depths of 500 feet or more by leading international companies, among them Shell, Esso, Phillips and Mobil.

The production breakthrough, due next year, promises eventually to earn some $3 billion annually. The lion's share, in British-controlled fields, could help reverse this country's steep economic decline since World War II.

Government officials and oil men here agree the timing couldn't be better.

Europe's thirst for oil faces rapidly increasing prices from its traditional suppliers in the Middle East, both from the higher royalties demanded by producing countries there, and from long-distance pipeline or tanker charges.

Oil from the North Sea—bordered by Britain, Norway, Denmark, West Germany and the Netherlands—costs 10 times more to extract than the resources easily tapped under the Middle East sands. But it is virtually on Europe's doorstep, avoiding the royalties and limiting transport charges. Oilmen here estimate North Sea production should bring profits of $1 a barrel, against 30 cents from the Middle East.

They predict North Sea oil reserves should be at least 12 billion barrels, enough to help feed European industry well into the 1980s, when energy from nuclear power is supposed to be available.

North Sea oil, they concede, can never replace fully their reliance on the far vaster resources of the Middle East, some 370 billion barrels. The North Sea oil is also relatively light, and heavier crudes still will be needed from the Middle East and Africa.

But the North Sea strikes do strengthen the Western hand for bargaining with Arab oil producers. Perhaps more important, they offer some Europeans a new road to national wealth. By 1980 Europe is expected to need 23 million barrels of oil a day, and half of that should come from the North Sea alone.

Norway, a major beneficiary, starts production next year in North Sea waters off its coast and will tap 300,000 barrels a day from 30 wells. Denmark, West Germany and the Netherlands have smaller but still significant prospects.

American oil companies stand to gain both from their North Sea concessions and from their technical know-how.

British Petroleum, which has comparatively little experience in offshore drilling, estimates 85 per cent of the units working in the North Sea are American-owned.

It is the British, however, who probably stand to gain the most.

British oil from the North Sea is due to start reaching the country in 1974. By 1980, Industry Minister Tom Boardman predicts, "some 75 million tons of oil, or about half our estimated oil needs, will come from the British continental shelf." That means 1.5 million barrels a day.

By saving half its oil import bills, Britain should improve its long-troubled balance of payments with the rest of the world by $1½ billion a year, government sources forecast. Optimists here view this as enough for an eventual upward revaluation of the pound sterling, which has lost almost half its purchasing power in devaluations since World War II.

More immediately, the British see their North Sea oil savings as a counterweight to the added costs of joining the European Common Market. Later on, by 1990, they expect to be entirely self-sufficient in oil and able to export a surplus.

British Petroleum undertook an unprecedented financing program to back its North Sea hopes, an indication of the stakes involved. In June BP announced it had taken the largest private bank loan in history, 360 million pounds or almost $900 million from 65 institutions. The money will go into its Forties Field in the North Sea, which is expected to produce 400,000 barrels of oil a day.

Financial sources here estimate the several hundred oil rigs in the North Sea, together with other investments there, will cost $12.5 billion by 1980.

Some of the North Sea's energy benefits already have arrived. Britain has been tapping natural gas there since 1967, bringing in profound social as well as economic changes. Both the soot-faced coal miner and the damp, chilly home are becoming cartoon images of the past.

Whole industries switched to gas. British householders finally admitted that central heating, cheaper now that it is based on North Sea gas, was perhaps not all that unhealthy after all, and turned it on. By this year, 90 per cent of all gas consumed in Britain came from the North Sea.

More changes are coming from oil, much of which lives off Scottish shores. The prospective boom has revived the hopes of the independence-minded Scottish Nationalist party. It argues that the oil earnings should stay in Scotland, rather than go to Britain, a line of thought appealing to frugal Scots voters.

Aberndee, the Scottish jump off port for U.S. oilmen working the North Sea, shows signs of becoming Americani-ed into a "Texas of Europe." Restaurants serve "Dallas burgers," and the land of the most famous whisky in the world is bringing in Kentucky bourbon.

Sleepy Scottish towns face the prospect of booming populations from the oil strike and fundamental changes in their way of life.

Even by Texas standards, the sheer size of the activity is big, and growing.

Student TB Tests Now Required In Some Of 705 School Districts

Austin, Texas—Statistics may be misleading in some instances, but there's nothing deceptive with figures showing that a half-million persons are examined annually in the State Health department's Child-Centered Tuberculosis Program.

State law requires an annual tuberculosis examination of all school personnel--teachers, custodians, food handlers, etc. It also recommends the examination of all first and seventh grade students and transfer students. Student TB tests are required in some of the 705 school districts which took part in the 1971-72 screening.

The Child-Centered Tuberculosis Program has completed its sixth year, and another half-million examinations are expected during the 1972-73 school term.

During the past school year more than 108,000 first graders and 112,200 seventh graders were tested in the program. In addition, 100,000 other students were tested in public and parochial schools. Add more than 200,000 school employes and you exceed a half-million examinations.

Tuberculin skin tests are given by private physicians, at school and in Health Department clinics. Approximately 48 hours after being given, the tests are "read" to identify reactors.

Finding reactors is important, for a positive test indicates they have been exposed to someone with TB and have the TB germ in their bodies. Without treatment, these reactors could have unknown cases of TB or develop active disease at some future date. About four percent of first grade reactors last year were found to have the active disease.

While the child testing program isn't primarily for case finding--but to find children who need protection against tuberculosis--every reactor is followed up to determine if an active case exists. A reactor is urged to contact his family physician for an X-ray, or to attend a Health Department clinic. During the last school year there were 647 new reactors in the first grade and 1,505 in the seventh grade of the state's schools.

Once a positive reactor is found, another phase of the program begins, usually by a TB investigator. Since a reactor means the individual has had contact with someone who has the disease, it is important that an examination be made of household members in attempting to establish the source of exposure. Usually it is a family member, a relative or a close associate—such as a playmate or housekeeper.

First and seventh graders were chosen for the child-centered approach for a reason. First graders have spent most of their lives at home, or in close proximity to their families, and therefore have limited contacts. These contacts can be easily traced, and the probability is good that an infection was obtained in the home.

Seventh graders, on the other hand, represent a higher risk age. And, it is at this point that they begin to move around more and begin their social activities.

By testing youngsters, discovering reactors, and tracing their contacts, it makes possible the earlier discovery of those with active TB. Early diagnosis of tuberculosis makes the disease that much easier to treat--and cure. Unfortunately, most of the victims are in the moderate to far advanced stages of the disease when diagnosed. In 1966, 70 percent of new TB cases were in the moderate to far advanced stages. In 1971, this figure had dropped to 63 percent.

Another benefit of child testing is that it gives health authorities an index of the extent of the disease in each community. This is a meaningful indicator which can be used in followup activities.

Tuberculosis is an age-old disease, but it is responding to space-age treatment. People can be cured of TV, mostly without the long hospitalization of yesteryear. But, it is important to discover the disease early and begin treatment. This Child-Centered Tuberculosis Program is giving health authorjties a big lead on the disease in many cases. And, through testing of school personnel, the program helps assure that the school child is provided with an environment relatively free of the dangerous disease—TB.

Harvesters, Dons Do Battle Tonight

The Pampa Harvesters travel to Amarillo today for a game with the Palo Duro Dons which may very well decide the District 3-AAAA race.

Both teams enter the contest with 2-1 district marks and the winner will probably represent the District in bi-district while the loser will be completely eliminated from contention.

Pampa has beaten Caprock, 29-14, and Borger, 31-7, while dropping a close one to Tascosa, 15-14.

The Dons have beaten Tascosa and Amarillo and have lost to Borger.

Pampa goes into the game in good physical shape with only halfback Joe Curtis definitely out of the contest.

Curtis suffered a severe rib injury in practice this week. Sprinter Chuck Reeves will move into the starting slot, a position he has held at various times this year.

Only one other line-up change was announced by Harvester Coach Buddy Williams. Harmon Staus will start at offensive right tackle in place of Bill Cox.

Coach Williams had these comments on the game. "We're going to have to play real well to win--the whole ball game and not just the first half. We're also going to have to make the big play in the game."

Concerning practices this week Coach Williams said that the Harvesters have worked out well and are ready for the game.

After scouting the Don-Sandie game last Saturday, Coach Williams came back to Pampa with respect for the entire Palo Duro team.

Running backs Mike Smith (185), Willie Nash and James Tipton (190) and quarterback Mark Hall were particularly impressive.

Linebackers Tim Black (190) and Bill Clements (210) are as quick and tough as they are big. Coach Williams called them "outstanding" against the run.

Defensively the Dons use a five-man front and stunt quite often.

Williams added that the Harvesters were going to have to avoid turnovers--fumbles and pass interceptions--in order to win the game. He also expressed concern for the kicking game.

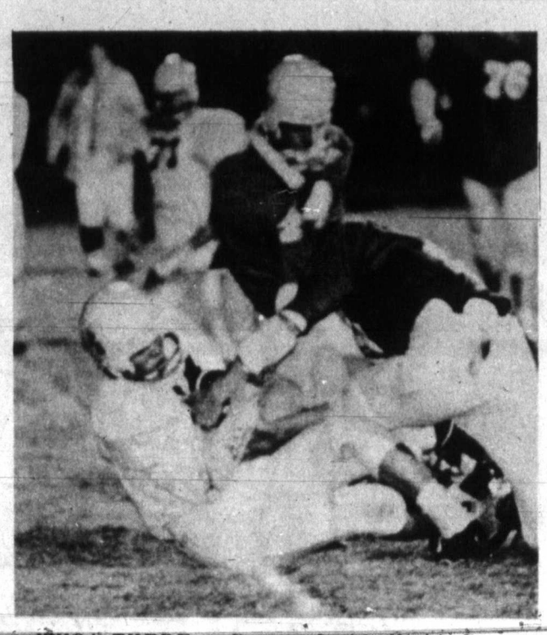

Neither Pampa's kicking or kick coverage were adequate in last week's game.

Pampa's offensive line starters are Jesse Hunnicutt and Rick McGuire at the ends, Staus and Larry Johnson at the tackles, Ed Townsend and Gary Jennings at the guards and David Lanehart at center.

In the backfield, Rick Leverich will be at quarterback, Richard McCampbell and Reeves will be the halfbacks and Steve Mathis will be the fullback.

Defensively, Jack King and Jody Johnson are the ends, Lemons and Staus the tackles and Townsend the noseguard.

The linebackers are Hunnicutt and Mike Robbins. In the secondardy, Mathis and Rick Smith are the cornerbacks while McCampbell and Carson Watt hold down the safety posts.

WHOA THERE — Pampa Junior High's Doug Lee didn't pay any attention to that request as he plunged over the goal line for the Reaper's fourth and final touchdown in last night's win over the Robert E. Lee Rebels, 28-0.

College Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alabama and Louisiana State are both unbeaten and untied but that situation won't remain after Saturday.

The two Southeastern Conference powers will play in a nationally-televised football game that may determine the conference champion and which team goes to what postseason bowl.

The Crimson Tide, 8-0, is ranked No. 2 in the nation. Its Wishbone offense, as run by quarterback Terry Davis, has rushed for an average of 278 yards and 33.1 points per game. Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's defense has allowed just 223 yards total offense and 9.7 points per game.

Louisiana State, 7-0 and sixth ranked, is best known for its tenacious defense, which this year has held opponents to 221.5 yards total offense and 8.3 points per game. It has given up 91.7 rushing yards per game.

LSU Coach Charlie McClendon played under Bryant at Kentucky. He has beaten his old coach twice, in 1969 and 1970, but has lost to him six times, including five straight. Alabama won last year's game 14-7.

Elsewhere in college football Saturday, No. 5 Ohio State, after key injuries last week, plays Michigan State, which goes for another victory for now-resigned Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Pittsburgh Steelers To Clip Kansas City Chiefs

NEW YORK (AP)—Pittsburgh's Steelers as hot National Football League contenders ... sounds strange, doesn't it? As unnatural as a Kennedy-Wallace ticket, or snow in San Juan, or scotch mixed with ginger.

But, there they are as No. 1.

When you're hot, you're hot and the prediction here is for the Steelers to overcome a stiff challenge Sunday and chop down AFC West kingpin Kansas City 24-17.

Pittsburgh shattered an American Conference Central Division tie with Cincinnati by bruising the highly-ranked Bengal defense 40-17. It was the fourth straight for the Steelers, now 6-2.

Kansas City got untracked to wallop Oakland 27-17 for the Chiefs' first-ever victory in Arrowhead Stadium. Kansas City, 5-3, stepped a half-game ahead of the Raiders.

Franco Harris is one prime reason Coach Chuck Noll's troops have resigned from the NFL also-rans. The former Penn State star topped 100 yards rushing in three of the last four games.

Ed Podolak, Kansas City's key man these days, streaked for 115 yards against Oakland and grabbed a touchdown pass from Len Dawson.

With a 36-of-50 prediction record and 72 per cent, here's a game-by-game look at this weekend's NFL menu:

Minnesota 20, Detroit 14: You don't win in the NFC Central, you survive, and the Vikings, 4-4, have rebounded from that miserable beginning. A victory over the Lions and a Green Bay defeat elsehere would tie them for the division lead.

Dallas 34, St. Louis 10: Cards' offense is superpuny and the Cowboys can't afford a letup en route to a divisional rematch with high-flying Washington.

Washington 17, New York Giants 10: Larry Brown shredded Giant defense for 191 yards two weeks ago. Redskins to keep rolling and maintain heat on world champion Dallas in the National Conference Central.

Los Angeles 30, Denver 17: With Roman Gabriel's arm remaining inconsistent, the Rams have turned to the ground, with Willie Ellison getting help from ex-Texas hero Jim Bertleson. Denver's problems are only beginning with a tough schedule ahead.

Cincinnati 17, Oakland 13: Paul Brown must still be fuming over the Bengals' defensive collapse at Pittsburgh and my guess is that it'll come back to haunt the unsure Raiders.

Miami 30, New England 14: What's there to say? Jim Plunkett isn't throwing like the super confident kid of a year ago and New England's line doesn't make the path too wide for nifty runner Carl Garrett. Earl Morrall isn't throwing too well, either, but who cares when he can spin around and hand to Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick or Mercury Morris?

Atlanta 27, New Orleans 14: Falcons have fallen to back-to-back NFC West opponents, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and realize one more stumble will send them home for playoffs as usual.

Green Bay 10, Chicago 7: Honestly, I think the Bears have had it. That short spurt of success with running quarterback Bobby Douglass lasted until the scouts caught up with them and Green Bay showed new offensive class in a 34-24 whipping of the 49ers.

New York Jets 38, Buffalo 21: Joe Namath is hungry after being wiped out by veteran Washington defense, but the Jets are vulnerable to all through the air. O.J. Simpson, new AFC ground king, will have it tough against New York's close-in defenders.

San Francisco 24, Baltimore 20: It's a must for 49ers, now two games behind Rams in NFC West. Colts, 2-6, are looking ahead to next year while San Francisco is alive for 1972.

Houston 10, Philadelphia 3: No comment. Why make more enemies?

San Diego 28, Cleveland 17: Second second-rater in a row for the Monday night TV audience, but Chargers can make it exciting if John Hadl has one of his good days ... make that nights.

Reapers Beat Lee, 28-0 To Share District Title

Pampa Junior High and Robert E. Lee met last night at Harvester Field in a game which decisively decided the city championship and threw the junior high district in a final three-way tie for first place.

The Reapers dominated every aspect of the game from kickoff to final whistle with Frankie Lemons doing yeoman work at half back in the 28-0 PJH win.

Lemons led the Reapers in rushing with 109 yards in 15 carries and three touchdowns as PJH rolled up 308 yards on the ground to 95 for cross-town rival Lee.

Pampa Junior High also led in first downs in the game with 11 to the Rebels' five.

The first score in the game came with 7:33 left in the second quarter when Lemons barreled across four yards out.

Larry Petty kicked the extra point and the Reapers led 7-0. Pampa Junior High led at the half time by that margin and it looked like anybody's game.

With only 2:56 seconds gone in the third quarter, Lemons scored his second TD on a 1-yard plunge. Petty again kicked the point and the Reapers' lead was stretched to 14-0.

Lemons' third and final score came with 9:42 left in the game on a fine second and third effort carry around left end from 14 yards out. The PAT attempt was wide and PJH led 20-0.

The Reapers third and final score came in the waning minutes of the final period with Doug Lee carrying the ball in from three yards. A pass to Doug Lee for the extra points was good and the Reapers had won the game, 28-0.

The victory gave PJH a share of the district title with Lee and Dumas; each team had a 4-1 district mark.

PJH's only loss of the year enroute to their 8-1 record was at the hands of Dumas, 18-16. Dumas came from behind in that game when two bad snaps from center on the part of the Reapers gave them great field position late in the game.

Lee's final record for the year is 6-2-1.

In an afternoon game yesterday the eighth grade Reapers beat the Lee Razorbacks, 15-0.

David Caldwell threw a scoring strike to B.B. Reeves on a halfback pass for the first score and quarterback Eddie Brown made the second TD on a keeper. Randy Britton added a 38-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to ice the win.

Unlikely Showdown Posed Between Texas And Baylor

Just call it "Wipeout in Waco"—an unlikely showdown for Southwest Conference football supremacy between a team which wasn't supposed to have a quarterback or a fullback and another outfit picked to finish dead last.

It's the Texas Longhorns, seeking their fifth consecutive SWC football title, against the cinderella Baylor Bears who haven't won one since 1924.

A sellout crowd of 50,000 is expected Saturday in Baylor Stadium for the collision between the ninth-ranked Longhorns, overlooked in the preseason by most experts, and Baylor which has undergone a tranfusion of football miracle proportions.

Texas is 6-1 and 4-0 in SWC play while Baylor is 4-3 and 2-1. Only Bayor—and Texas Tech which has already lost to Texas—stand in the path of the 'Horns and an unprecedented fifth straight trip to the Cotton Bowl.

Baylor hasn't beaten Texas since 1956 but if you think the Longhorns don't respect the battlin' Bears of new Coach Grant Teaff than lend an ear to Texas Coach Darrell Royal.

"They have the ability to jump in there and play hard, tough, aggressive football ... They really come after you ... I think Grant has done a great job in handling his public relations ... he hasn't been boastful, yet he has a strong, positive approach. They've got their student body fired up and their players are enthused ... they're in a fighting mood."

Teaff has a poised quarterback in sophomore Neal Jeffrey, a raging defensive end in Roger Goree, a slick junior college transfer split end in Charles Dancer, and tough, North-South runners in Gene Wilson and Gary Lacy.

Quarterback Alan Lowry and fullback Roosevelt Leaks have turned Texas into another championship caliber team which Royal says has had to "fight for everything we get."

Royal says "When you have to fight for things you appreciate them more. I was a lot prouder of that new pair of shoes when I had to work and scrape to buy them. Now that I can afford them, a new pair of shoes doesn't thrill me a bit.

"Those games where you have to work hard for a win ... the games that you could lose in the fourth quarter, mean a lot more ... and Baylor has done that more than we."

The oddsmakers have installed Texas a 15-point favorite.

Tech, which is 7-1 for the season and 3-1 in SWC play, hosts Texas Christiap in a regionally televised game at 11:50 a.m. in Jones Stadium before an expected 40,000 fans on homecoming.

The Red Raiders remember the thumping they took from TCU last year.

"They beat us worse last year than anybody we played," says Tech Coach Jim Carlen. "They just literally out-manned us. We are going to have to be ready for a top effort."

TCU will feature a new quarterback in the game, Terry Drennan who was moved from safety to juice-up the Horned Frog offense.

In other SWC games, Southern Methodist hosts Texas A&M and Arkansas entertains Rice. SMU and Arkansas are hoping to recover from losses last week to attract bids from postseason bowls.

Houston hosts Colorado State in a non-conference night tussle.

GOLF

MELBOURNE, Australia — Rain forced cancellation of play in the World Cup International tourney, causing the probability that the championship will be shortened from 72 holes to 54.

World Cup Postponed

MELBOURNE (AP) — All 86 international players from 43 countries competing in the World Cup golf team championship will be asked to speed up the game when the postponed second round is held Saturday.

Slow play, with some players taking 6½ hours for their first round Thursday, continued to concern officials, some players and spectators today after the second round was postponed because of a downpour of rain that flooded greens. The event was cut from 72 holes to 54.

"The game is dying on the putting surface," said Fred J. Corcoran, tournament director of the International Golf Association.

The decision not to play today was made by the match committee soon after 10 a.m., local time, one hour after the first scheduled tee-off time when the greens still were soaked.

By early afternoon the greens were dry, the sun was shining and conditions were good for golf, but everyone including some grumbling season ticket holders had left the course.

Pampa Colts To Play Borger Buffs

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 in Optimist Park the Pampa Colt pee-wee football team will take on the Borger Buffs in a game matching city winners before next weeks Leprechaun Bowl in Shamrock, Tex.

The Borger team is 6-1 for the season and are coached by Austin Casey. The Colts went undefeated and stand 7-0 after coming out with a 15-0 win over the Packers to settle the city championship tournament.

As yet the Colts have not had their goal-line crossed as they have shut out every opponent. They played tight defense-and are capable of making the big play to stop their opponents.

The Colts are the defending champions of the Leprechaun Bowl and have high hopes of bringing another title back to Pampa.

Borger will be making its first venture into the tournament this year and also has high hopes for their team. Their program is sponsored by the Optimist Club as it is here.

Fans are invited out to see the match. There is no charge and with a break in the weather, a good game should be in the offing.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Principle And Expedience

Probably one of the biggest mistakes we editorial writers make is not telling the difference between principle and expedience.

Sometimes we say a thing is wrong, and we may mean that it is wrong by reason of principle or by reason of expedience, not making clear which measurement we are applying to the problem at hand.

Now something may be right in principle, yet wrong expediently. For example, a man may decide to sell his car for $2,000 and buy another for $5,000. That is a legitimate decision. From the standpoint of morals, there is nothing improper about it. However, when he undertakes to perform on the decision made, he finds that his old car was not worth $2,000 and that the price tag on the new car that he wanted was $6,000, 20 per cent higher than what he thought he would have to pay. So although his idea was perfectly good so far as not being unprincipled, yet it proved to be impractical.

On the other hand, a thing can be wrong in principle, yet beneficial from the standpoint of expedience. Suppose, for instance, that a man has an uncontrollable urge to assist the victims of an earthquake in Iran. So he takes $1,000 of his employer's money, goes to the horse races and runs it up to $3,000, returns home re-deposits the $1,000, sending the remaining $2,000 to Iran and thereby helping scores of destitute victims. What he did essentially was to commit a crime to help others. But the fact that he was successful, and even restored the misappropriated funds, does not erase the fact that what he did was wrong. It was wrong in principle.

It is possible to conceive of a matter that is wrong both in principle and in practice, or is right from both standpoints.

Of course, if a potential course of action is wrong in expedience—that is, impractical—and you see that it won't work out, you have no trouble in rejecting same. The real problem comes when a matter is wrong in principle, but is correct expediently in that will bring desirable results, at least temporarily. What do you do with that kind of a situation? Do you overlook the principle involved and proceed on the basis of practicality? The News holds that it is immoral to adopt a course of action if it is wrong in principle even though such course may be commendable from the standpoint of expedience. Before a matter is right it must meet two tests, the first being the test of principle and the second being the test of practicality.

For that reason, we often reject proposals on public policy—bond issues, tax-supported schooling, the military draft—that many others are inclined to accept. The most common reason for our decision is that so many specific policy proposals involve the taking of property without the owner's consent. That equates to theft, a violation of the Human Relations Commandments. That such taking typically is performed by law and not by a gun is only a difference in instrumentation. The principle that is violated remains the same.

In a nutshell, we editorialists are under an obligation in each case to let you know on which level we are writing—on the level of expedience or on the level of principle. Otherwise how can you know? We will try harder.

First Good News, Then Bad

Snowmobile owners will be happy to hear that:

"Compaction of residual annual accumulations of plant materials caused by snowmobiles results in highly, beneficial conditions."

According to Dr. Dale Gleason, biologist at Lake Superior State College in Sault Ste. Marie, compaction speeds decomposition during winter months, providing a readier source of nutrients for the annuals that bloom in the spring, tra-la. This early greening in turn provides the first spring nutrition for grouse, deer and many small rodents.

Snowmobile haters will be happy to hear that:

"In addition to their noise and exhaust fumes, snowmobiles compact the snow. It is the last factor, mechanical compaction of snowfields, that can produce a stress upon subvinean (under-snow) organisms and thereby increase winter mortality rates."

So stated the "Proceedings of the 1971 Snowmobile and Off the Road Vehicle Research Symposium" held in East Lansing, Mich. Elsewhere, a Department of the Interior study has found that "compaction of snow from the use of vehicles...can cause a retardation in vegetative growth."

So what's a snowmobile lover, who also loves nature, to do?

Peace Draft Weak In Its Final Detail

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The draft agreement on peace in Vietnam is woefully weak in its details.

My own experience in negotiating with Communists, and in watching first-hand while others negotiated, has taught me that technical points—not overall principles—are the heart of success or failure. Neglecting details can be disastrous.

There is the danger that here, as in the grain talks with Russia, we negotiated so rapidly in our desire for a solution, and were so poorly informed on what the other side was doing that we have blundered in important respects on what should have been a magnificent coup.

Perhaps because the brilliant Dr. Henry Kissinger was tired—dead on his feet after weeks of heavy negotiating strain. Hopefully, renegotiations will correct these weaknesses before the pact is signed.

There is evidence that Hanoi's urgent demands for a quick agreement may be aimed at not giving us time to read the fine print.

There are two versions of the draft treaty—the English version interpreted by Kissinger, the Vietnamese version interpreted by Hanoi. The differences are not minor:

Item — Hanoi claims the document calls for a coalition government with considerable power. Kissinger, reading the English text and using words supplied by Hanoi in English, sees the same committee of the national concord as a powerless, advisory group. The difference is crucial. As history makes clear, a coalition would give Hanoi a sure-fire way to sabotage and then take power by coup.

Item — There is the matter of who controls what patches of territory, what the boundaries are for each patch, and how a local government is to be resupplied if its territory is a city island in a sea of enemy-held countryside. No detailed agreed-on maps show which side controls what land. Each side is free to interpret what is held.

Item — The problem of resupply has not been adequately defined. There is a definite but inexact limit on what arms can be sent from the United States for South Vietnam. There is no limit on the arms the Communist bloc can supply Hanoi. The United States is depending on the good will and verbal assurance of Peking and Moscow. Theoretically, Hanoi is not to supply its southern forces at a higher level than the level at the time of the cease-fire. But no one knows what that level is or how to define it within reasonable limits.

Item — The English version of the draft, as Kissinger reads it, calls for evacuating all foreign troops, including North Vietnamese, from Laos and Cambodia. But to Hanoi, many North Vietnamese are not foreigners in Cambodia and parts of Laos. In some areas, Hanoi's cadres have adopted Lao and Cambodian names. A half-million North Vietnamese live in Cambodia; many serve as officers and recruits in Hanoi's local armies. The boundaries of some North Vietnamese tribal communities stretch well into Laos.

Some say such details can be worked out later; get the pact signed now. This is nonsense. In a cease-fire, as in an omelet, once the egg is broken, it is impossible to turn back.

Women Workers Moving Into High Salary Jobs

By PAUL HARVEY

Evolution, inevitable, is accelerating.

It has been just 20-some months since a black youngster saw a black person on a TV soap commercial and ran breathless to the kitchen to announce, "Mommy, hurry, we're on TV."

Just 20-some months ago.

And where blacks were conspicuous in their early TV appearances in commercials and newscasts, in choruses and chorus lines, now they are expected and accepted.

Now the chairman of the FCC says the ice is broken, the barriers are down, it's time to replace the quota system with the merit system.

Equally as fascinating to an anthropologist is the emergence of women from subservience to prominence.

Ladies, the Labor Department's Manpower Administration is watching you, right now conducting the largest survey ever undertaken of working women, involving in-depth interviews with 10,000 of you.

It will be most of a year before this report is complete, but I can give you an interim report now.

Women workers are moving up and into high-pay positions of authority heretofore reserved for men. Not just a token few.

Females now hold 18 per cent of all managerial jobs.

No, that's not "equality." But it's 18 per cent better than nothing. And nothing was your share of executive jobs just 10 years ago.

And the new federal regulations giving working women antidiscrimination protection just became effective during this past year.

Recruiters on college campuses are now seeking women graduates for prestigious jobs.

No, you don't yet get equal pay for equal work, but business and industry have increased starting salaries for women by as much as $2,000 just in this past year.

The opportunities for women have outdistanced their logistics. There are many more technical job openings than there are women to fill them.

Yesterday's women trained to be nurses are now prepared to be doctors.

Yesterday's coed enrolled in education, social science; she is not qualified in technical fields. But back down there at the undergraduate level other women are presently enrolling in professional and technical courses.

Just at the right time, when men workers were becoming increasingly complacent, spoiled, lazy, they've been shaken awake. At the Detroit GM headquarters suddenly 1,600 management, technical or professional positions are filled most adequately by women.

It took some retraining for all of us to accept black faces on TV. It will be impossible for some men willing to say "Yes, sir" to learn to say, "Yes, ma'am," but it's they who will get left behind.

H. L. Hunt Writes

THE BIBLE AND THE CONSTITUTION

There are many people in this country who are struggling to be men of God. There are more who are aware of God, but don't really relate to Him. Many more don't know how to relate to Him.

So are there many people in this country who are fighting to save the U.S. Constitution. More pay lip service to the Constitution, but don't really respond to it. And still more don't know what it's all about.

Struggling believers know of the love and sacrifice of God and they've dedicated their lives to Him. People aware of God, but with no relationship to Him, are often those who gather for teas and socials, but who never scratch the surface. The largest group are those who have heard the scriptures and read of the love of God, but who have known only social believers.

The one and only hope for all these people is God's book, the Bible. In the Bible are found the love, joy, greatness and forgiveness of God. The plan of salvation is crystallized for everyone.

Constitution-supporting people know that the outline contained there is our only hope for continued freedom. Many say they support the Constitution, but if they can get something for themselves, they don't care what the Constitution says. More people see that the Constitution has been turned every way but loose and so the Constitution means nothing to them.

The only answer is to search the Bible for salvation and to study the Constitution to remain free. The Bible and the Constitution: an unbeatable combination.

Antibiotics Useless In Viral Infections

Dear Dr. Lamb — Each winter I have one chronic sore throat after another. My problem is that I cannot take an antibiotic to clear up the sore throats. I have a reaction and break out for several days. My doctor has been giving me antihistimine with antibiotics for the last year and a half and has tried new drugs hoping I won't react, but so far I have always broken out in a rash. Now he is afraid to give me anything but antihistimine. My question is how dangerous is it to take an antibiotic and break out?

Dear Reader — Most cold and throat infections are caused by viruses. Antibiotics are of no value whatever in treating these ordinary virus infections. Antibiotics are helpful in eliminating some organisms that are much like viruses which is why it is useful in "virus pneumonia," which is not caused by a virus. Streptococcal sore throats (caused by bacteria not viruses) are properly treated with penicillin. Anyone who has an allergy reaction to antibiotics is doubly foolish to be taking these medicines. It is true that antibiotics help clear up secondary infections and doctors sometimes give them for that purpose.

Antibiotics can sometimes produce very severe reactions including joint pains and symptoms similar to rheumatic fever. I can understand why your doctor doesn't want to give you anything more than antihistimine. These won't cure your cold, but they may make you feel better. General symptomatic treatment is usually all that is indicated in most sore throats and colds. This may include aspirin and for a sore throat warm salt water gargles may help you feel better.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 14 years old and I am only four feet seven inches tall. I would like to know if it is possible to receive a hormone from the pituitary that would help me grow some more. I heard about it in my science class.

Dear Reader — One of the hormones from the pituitary gland that rests just under the brain is the growth hormone. It is essential for normal growth. However, at 14 years of age you can't be certain that your normal growth cycle has been achieved. You may simply be growing slower. If the rest of your development is still delayed by the time you reach 16, then you might want to have a careful evaluation by an endocrinologist (gland specialist).

Usually individuals don't stop growing until they are in their later teens or sometimes early 20s. Individuals have different rates of growth. Most people seem to have the idea that to grow rapidly is good. Apparently this is akin to the old American custom that being first is best, but that isn't necessarily true. In fact, in animal studies those who grow slowly during their developmental period rather than maturing early tend to have a longer normal life span.

TOM ANDERSON

Address Correspondence To
Pigeon Forge, Tennessee 37863

Tennessee's Senator Howard Baker says "revenue sharing" reverses the flow of power to Washington. Which ought to qualify him for the Liar of the Year award.

SAY SPEND AND THEY SALIVATE

Senator Proxmire, of all people, writes about "government waste" in a new book. He tells about the new Navy fighters that dump their missiles (valued at $2.4 million for each plane) in order to land on the carriers on which they are based; and about the new jet fighter that shot itself down by flying into shells it had fired just seconds before.

Proxmire comments on the farm insanity we have described in this column periodically over the past 25 years: about how Big Brother with one hand pays some farmers to withdraw production in areas of high rainfall, while with the other hand he subsidizes farmers in low rainfall areas to open up new lands for cultivation. On some upper Colorado River projects, it costs you taxpayers (or revenue sharers) more than $2,000 an acre to reclaim land for growing hay worth only $100 an acre. And Uncle Sugar subsidizes sugar growers to the tune of $700 million a year, or more than 3 cents per pound of sugar.

Proxmire reminds us that when Medicare was perpetrated on us in 1965, the costs for 1975 were projected at $4.3 billion, but that now the estimated cost for that year is more than $11 billion.

Surprisingly, liberal Proxmire concedes that "liberals have their pork barrels too." He quotes former Senator Paul Douglas' lament that most of his liberal friends react like Pavlov's dog: "Say spend and they salivate."

KILL THE PUSHERS!

The United States may not survive 10 years, says Retired Marine General Lewis Walt, unless the drug problem in this country is drastically dealt with. Walt, who has recently completed a worldwide study of heroin addiction and smuggling for the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, recommends the death penalty for heavy traffickers such as Louis Cirillo, who Walt estimates may have imported enough heroin into the United States for 50 million injections. He justifies the death penalty because large-scale trafficking in heroin is "genocide on a massive scale . . . a crime so heinous, a crime so damaging to so many people, and so hurtful to society, that it belongs in a category all by itself."

General Walt says America's heroin addict population is almost 10 times larger than in 1960, and almost double what it was two or three years ago.

I must confess that I don't remember the name of Louis Cirillo. But I do remember a name which makes him a piker as a pusher, a heinous criminal and a genocidal devil. That name is Mao Tse-Tung. And I know another name of a man who has given millions of dollars of our gold to this all-time genocidal murderer and heroin pusher. That name is Richard Milhaus Nixon.

And that, too, belongs in a category all by itself.

EQUAL FLIGHTS!

The other day, on one airplane, we were served by two of the most delectable stewardesses you could imagine. And I got to thinking—about Women's Lib. Why should those young, if not inexperienced, things, merely because of their allure, be serving us, when tired old men could do it as well or better? In a properly controlled society, as is Russia, they would be carted off to the fields each week, not in airplanes, but in open trucks, there to carry on the agriculture. There are virtually no men in the fields in Russia. The men are carried off in other trucks to spend the week in factories. The children are carted off in still other trucks to communal dormitories, to be raised by the One True Mother, the State.

So, let us liberate our damsels. Equal rights! Off to the fields! Away with protection, rape verdicts, alimony, chivalry, marriage. And maybe we men can recover the 72% of the national wealth the females — by FARE means or FOWL — have hidden away in their, er, panty-hose.
