

Oilmen potential war profiteers, Carter says

Nation headed for 'biggest ripoff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Describing oilmen as potential war profiteers in the energy crisis, President Carter said today the nation will risk "the biggest ripoff in history" unless energy program. Carter said if he doesn't gain passage of an acceptable energy bill, the White House has other options — and gasoline rationing is one of them.

The President also told a nationally broadcast news conference that his forthcoming tax reform program will include tax reductions. He didn't say what they would be or how much they would save the taxpayer. Carter said the administration won't know until January or February exactly how far it should go in seeking tax reductions. "The rapidity with which tax cuts will be instituted will be determined by the state of the economy," he said.

He defended anew the treaty to yield U.S. control of the Panama Canal at the end of this century, but acknowledged that it needs clarification. Carter said there is no need for amendment of the treaty. But he said that he and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos may issue a clarifying statement on canal neutrality and defense after they confer at the White House Friday.

"I don't think there is any need to amend the treaty language," Carter said, insisting that as it stands, the pact will keep the waterway open and neutral after it is turned over to Panama. That has been a major point of attack in the Senate, where treaty ratification is in doubt, because of Panamanian statements that the United States would not have the right to intervene militarily to keep the canal open to all nations.

"Both Gen. Torrijos and I are faced with a difficult political problem," Carter said.

The energy question was threaded through the news conference, which Carter began with a tough, nine-minute statement assailing the industry for what he said were efforts to grab excessive profits.

Carter said he expects to spend most of his time on energy in the next few weeks. He acknowledged that the issue had not caught on nationally, but noted that it did in the days when there were long lines at gasoline stations. Carter said he doesn't want the American people to have to suffer such a crisis again.

"I am not trying to put all of the blame on the oil companies," Carter said. "Part of the blame falls on the American people. We are wasting too much energy."

At the same time, Carter left open the possibility that he might seek to break up the giant oil companies. "I'm not trying to threaten anybody or use a club," he said. "Whether or not divestiture is needed is a matter which I've not decided."

Carter said his energy program is "fair, it's well-balanced. It assures that the American people are not robbed."

Carter said his visit last week to the South Bronx slums in New York "certainly did have an impact" on his thinking about a new urban policy.

"It's important for me to demonstrate my deep concern about urban deterioration and to inform the American people that these places exist in our country," the President said of the tour.

Regarding full employment legislation, Carter said his aides have been working with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., "to evolve a full employment bill we could support without reservation or hesitancy."

"I would expect within the next few days we would be prepared, if things go well, to announce our approval of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill," he said. On unemployment problems in the steel industry, Carter said "steel imports are just one part of a fairly large number of problems that affect the U.S. steel industry and which affect the steel industry all over the world."

To release financial info

Smith challenges Hill, Briscoe

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Preston Smith issued a challenge today to Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill to file information on their complete financial holdings, as Smith has done.

"I have filed a complete, public financial disclosure statement with the secretary of state this morning," Smith told a news conference. "I also have filed a copy of my personal tax returns for the past two years.

"Texans have a right to know, and in my opinion, all the candidates for governor have an obligation to reveal all information concerning financial holdings, business interests, sources of income, debts, financial dealings and business associates."

Asked if he seriously believed

Briscoe would make public his income tax returns, and if not, would he make it a major campaign issue, Smith said he really didn't know if Briscoe would do it, but said, "I'm going to call it to the attention of the people."

Briscoe generally is believed to control more land in Texas than any other person, with ownership of more than 300,000 acres and leases of around 700,000 acres.

Smith said his net worth was a little over $300,000, but the market value of his holdings, mostly land, would be in excess of $800,000.

Smith repeatedly attacked Briscoe in a written statement for lack of leadership.

Asked why he made so little mention of Hill, Smith said, "I think John Hill is going to have many problems because of his inexperience in government."

Hill has served only as attorney general, he said, and has no experience in the legislative or executive branches of government.

Forsan Oil Well Co. sale told

Damson Oil Corporation has completed the purchase of Forsan Oil Well Service, Inc. from the Bob Wash family of Forsan.

Wash had purchased the company in 1975 from his father, C.V. Wash, who founded it in 1942, and from his brother Charles.

The company is one of the oldest well servicing companies in this part of West Texas. Bobby Wash, C.V. and Charles still own Forsan Oil Company, which handles their oil and gas operations.

Damson is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company listed on the American Stock Exchange. Its oil and gas division is headquartered in Houston, but the company maintains district offices in Lake Charles, La., Oklahoma City, Okla., Browning, Mont. and Venice Beach, Calif.

T.J. Wall, of Forsan, has been named manager of operations locally by Damson. Robert Wash and Dub Clinton, Wash's son-in-law, will continue to work for the company.

Tom Casey was in Big Spring Wednesday to sign the sale papers for Damson. He is director of corporate development and general manager of oilfield development for Damson.

In January 1976, Damson diversified into the oilfield services industry with the acquisition of Coahoma Contractor, Inc. of Coahoma which is engaged in oilfield transports and construction.

Since that time, Damson has expanded CCI, opened a new facility in Sonora and purchased two similar companies, including P&R Transports of Coahoma and Smith and Sons of Sheffield, which have been merged into CCI's operation.

Damson contemplates further growth for its oilfield services division, according to Casey, "through a combination of expanding the companies it already owns and acquiring additional companies that have established themselves as quality operations with proven profitability."

Casey also said that he expects the facilities to be changed around with considerable expansion planned in 1978.

Damson has its corporate headquarters in New York City with its basic operational headquarters in Houston.

Temporary injunction issued

A restraining order against Minnie Linda Jones Newbill was made a temporary injunction by Judge Ralph Caton in a 118th District Court hearing Wednesday.

The restraining order was filed in relation to misdemeanor assault charges filed against Mrs. Newbill in county court. She did not appear at the hearing.

The alleged assault involved Ms.

Linda Alexander, 29, formerly a first-grade teacher at Bauer, now teaching fourth grade at Moss.

Testimony was heard from Ms. Alexander, Herman Smith, principal of Bauer, and Lynn Hise, superintendent of schools.

According to the testimony given in the trial, Mrs. Newbill threatened Ms. Alexander repeatedly before striking her.

Under examination by school district attorney Mike McKinney, Ms. Alexander said that Mrs. Newbill had threatened to kill her.

"Was there anyone with her when she returned to the classroom (after removing her child)?" asked McKinney.

"Yes," replied Ms. Alexander, "and they made it clear that I was in a two-on-one situation, and I couldn't do anything but what they wanted."

She continued to say that one of the women blocked the doorway to the classroom while the other broke a two-inch stick across Ms. Alexander's mouth. The blow killed one of Ms. Alexander's teeth, and produced a wound that required seven stitches to close.

Also revealed in this testimony was that Mrs. Newbill's daughter was one of 10 children kept after school to complete their work for the day.

Smith told the judge that he felt the restraining order was a help to the teachers at the school, because Mrs. Newbill's daughter was still in the first grade there, as well as two additional Newbill children in the fourth grade.

The temporary injunction may become permanent upon completion of a lawsuit filed in 118th District Court.

Tax reappraisal discussion continues

Possibility of a general reappraisal continued to be discussed Wednesday by the Howard County Tax Appraisal Board. Earl Dean, appraiser for the board, was asked to draw up a schedule of work he believes is necessary for the county tax appraisal office to perform the service, also to break down cost to each participating agency.

The board had a long discussion at the previous meeting but reached no consensus.

At the Wednesday meeting, Tom Ferguson was elected president of the board; Don Green, vice president; Zirah Bednar, secretary. Green succeeds Harold Davis as vice president.

According to Dean, the first procedure would be to obtain aerial photographs of the county, followed by mapping and drafting. This would be followed by the remaking of cards on property, and then, if approved, conversion to a rate schedule based on fair market value. Dean had estimated the minimum cost of such a project at $200,000.

Expenditures on the estimated cost sheet would be labeled under personnel, supplies, additional office space, and travel. The cost per agency would be listed under four separate methods: parcels, assessed local value, square miles per agency, and tax levy.

J. F. Poyner, superintendent of Forsan Schools, told the board that he felt anything done at all should be done well.

"At the last meeting," said Poyner, "it was remarked that we had very little to show for the years of work performed by our county appraisers. I believe that there was never enough money spent to insure that a good job was done."

"I think we ought to be prepared to do a Class A job and maintain it. If we have the need and we have the man we think can do a good job, then we ought to spend the money to do it right."

At issue briefly was the argument that work done now could be invalidated by the state legislature. Ferguson replied for the board a tape recording quoting Wayne Peveto, whose bill would propose changes in the next state legislature. On the tape, Peveto assured Carl McMillan, KBST news reporter, that his intention was not to spur reappraisal on a statewide basis.

In his report to the board, Dean said that he had hired a junior appraiser, Marvin Rowe. Rowe started work in the office Monday.

Dean said that he had gone through 20 to 30 per cent of the building permits, which had not been touched this year. He had also travelled over the country, familiarizing himself with the towns and agencies.

Lower increase suggested by consultants on rates

City Manager Harry Nagel and City Attorney James Gregg met with consultants in Abilene Wednesday to discuss rate hike proposals for electric service to the city.

Consultants with the Toots-Ross Company offered a breakdown of expenses supporting their suggestion of an 8.3 per cent rate hike for Texas Electric Service Company.

"We will just present the consultants' proposals to the city council and let them (council members) make a decision on it," said Gregg.

The consulting firm has been contracted by a number of area cities to represent the cities' interests in the rate dispute. The original request by TESCO was for a 23 per cent hike; The Texas Public Utilities recommended a 13 per cent hike.

If the Big Spring City Council decides to grant less than the 13 per cent hike, TESCO may appeal to the PUC. Then if the PUC overrides the council, granting the 13 per cent hike, the city may appeal to 118th District Court to again lower the rates, Nagel indicated.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: No blood worms

Q. Friends of ours told us that they had a company come into their home and show them underneath a microscope that Big Spring water contained blood worms. Is this true?

A. "There are no 'blood worms' in the city water," said Bill Brown, assistant city manager. "And should someone be told that he does have such nuisances in his water, the city should be contacted immediately. The one who spreads such misinformation may have less than honorable motives for doing so," he added. All city water is treated to assure bacterial purity.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bulls, cheerleaders for the Buffalo Bills football team, challenged the Dallas Cowboys' cheerleaders to a race to prove who had the best legs in the National Football League.

Dallas said no.

"I guess they feel they've got everything to lose and nothing to win," said Chris Sullivan of the Buffalo squad. "They've got a winning team and great uniforms and they feel pretty comfortable as things are without taking risks."

Suzanne Mitchell, director of the Cowboy cheerleaders, said the foot race would merely prove who had the strongest legs.

"We never claimed to have the strongest legs," she said. "We do think we have the prettiest, but we never claimed that either — people just told us that."

How you look at it

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has heard oral arguments in the Bakke case, which may determine the course of the nation's race relations. During the arguments Wednesday, Justice Thurgood Marshall interrupted Allan Paul Bakke's attorney with an assessment of the precedents setting "reverse discrimination" case: "You're arguing about keeping somebody out," Marshall said. "The other side is arguing about getting someone in. It all depends on how you look at it."

Love letters embargoed

LONDON (AP) — Britain has ordered a four-month embargo on the export of 35 love letters between poet William Wordsworth and his wife.

The Seven Gables Bookshop of New York bought them for $61,250.

The government has also temporarily halted the export of a Thomas Gainsborough painting bought by Yale University for $787,500.

A spokesman who reported the orders Tuesday said Lord John Donaldson, Minister for the Arts, imposed them under Britain's laws to preserve its cultural heritage.

Nixon's birthplace honored

YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — A non-profit group wants to buy Richard Nixon's birthplace from the Yorba Linda School District and make it a historical site.

The Nixon Birthplace Foundation, a group of eight local Nixon supporters, plans to offer the district $125,000 for the house and 1.3 acres of land.

"It's anticipated the board would respond favorably to the offer," school Superintendent Sterling Fox said.

The home is now rented to the district's maintenance foreman.

Meanwhile, the Chamber of Commerce in nearby San Clemente says it is expanding plans for bus tours of Nixon's La Casa Pacifica estate.

Alex Goodman, chamber manager, said the Nixons agreed to open the gates to the public Feb. 28 to raise money for the city's 50th birthday celebration.

The chamber had expected about 4,300 persons to pay $2.50 for the tour, but it now says a heavy early response means that figure could double.

Stanton Oks school jobs

STANTON — Construction will begin soon on a new foyer for the junior high school gymnasium. To be located on the east side of the gym, it will contain restroom facilities and a new concession stand. The school's building trades classes, assisted by several independent contractors, will build it. Russell McMeans, superintendent, cautioned the board, which approved the project Monday after months of discussion, that the cost may exceed the $17,432 estimate.

The board also approved a new girls' dressing room at the Stanton High School, gym. Cost was pegged at $70,000. Included will be repair to existing dressing rooms.

Tom Miller, a representative of Pritchard and Abbott, the school's oil and mineral tax evaluation firm, reported to the board and received a new two-year contract for the firm.

Miller reviewed the district's tax structure for the past seven years. The report showed that the number of oil wells in the district have increased from 174 in 1970 to 694 in 1977, a 272 per cent gain.

'Integrity' of Davis bullets questioned

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for millionaire murder defendant Cullen Davis challenged the "integrity" today of five bullets recovered from the scene of a shooting last year at his Fort Worth mansion.

A Fort Worth criminalist testified the bullets were placed in an evidence locker that was left "open and unattended" for an indefinite period of time.

Prosecutors said,

however, the bullets were not disturbed and that the defense arguments were merely a "tempest in a teapot."

And the witness was prepared to provide perhaps the most important testimony in Davis' capital murder trial.

Frank Shiller, director of the Fort Worth crime lab, was expected to tell the jury the bullet that killed Davis' stepdaughter was fired from the same .38-caliber pistol used in the slaying of Stan Farr.

Andrea Wilborn, 12, and Farr, 30, died in the midnight carnage last year at the $6 million hilltop mansion Davis built for his now-estranged wife, Priscilla, 36.

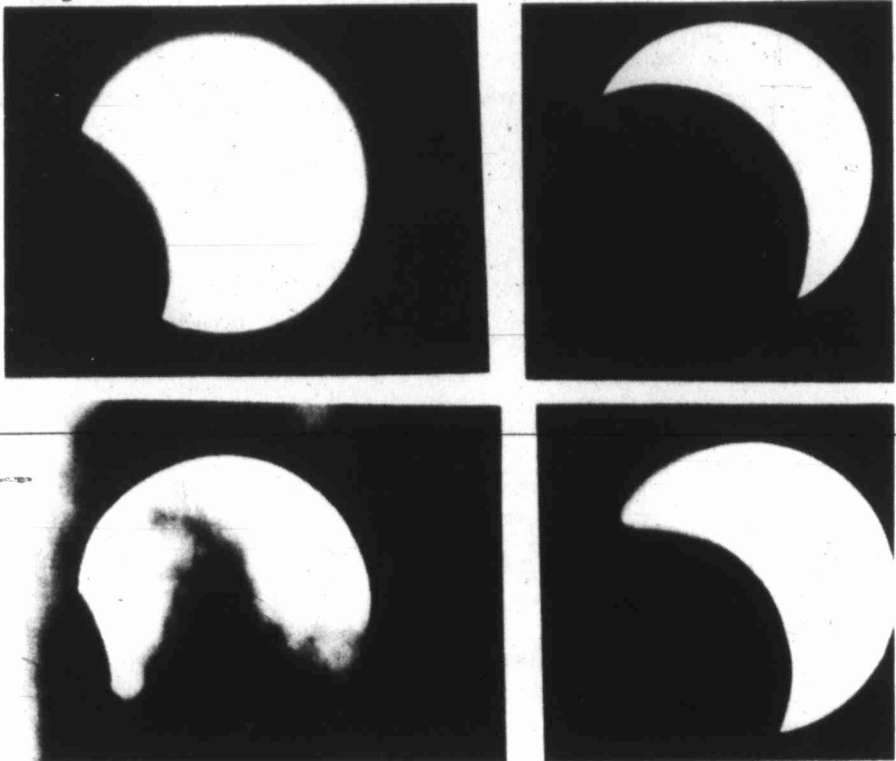

Mrs. Davis, who was wounded in the shootings, testified nearly two months ago she saw her husband, dressed in black and wearing a woman's black wig, kill

Furthermore, the murder weapon was never recovered. Therefore, Shiller's testimony is critical to the state's case, which is technically circumstantial.

The defense contends the shootings evolved from a "society drug caper" that went awry and that investigators overlooked, obliterated or disregarded evidence crucial to Davis.

A Fort Worth medical examiner testified on cross-examination Wednesday he did not perform tests that might have pinpointed the times when Farr and Miss Wilborn died.

ALMOST, BUT NOT QUITE — Residents of Honolulu got this view of a 70 per cent eclipse of the sun Wednesday. About 7:45 a.m. local time, the moon had taken only a small bite out of the solar disk, to left. At the bottom right, a crescent sun appears at 9:10 a.m. and develops to its maximum as seen over Hawaii. The total solar eclipse could be seen only from a point in the Pacific Ocean about 600 miles north of Honolulu.

Police beat Vandals pick on cars

Vandals were on the prowl in Big Spring Wednesday. Cars belonging to three teachers were damaged in the Big Spring High School parking lot sometime between 7:30 and 10 a.m. Wednesday. Two tires valued at $100 were punctured on a car belonging to David Reynolds, 4109 Parkway.

Vandals punctured two whitewall, radial tires on a car belonging to Deborah L. Cornell, 1700 Laurie, sometime between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. The car had been sitting in Birdwell Park. No value was estimated.

Coy A. Reagan, Quail Run Apartments, reported that vandals poured paint thinner on his 1968 Chevy Corvete around 12:20 a.m. today. Reagan told officers that this harassment has occurred before.

A 1966 Ford Mustang belonging to Sonya G. Worthan, 2908 Cactus, met with a similar fate, 12:33 a.m. today. Vandals poured green paint over it.

Two mag wheels and two tires were stolen from a car belonging to Orville D. Bland, 102 Carey, sometime between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. The equipment was valued at $120.

Car burglars lifted an eight-track tape player and three tapes from a car belonging to Lupe V. Molina, 411 Owens, sometime between 7:45 and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday. Value of the items was estimated at $75.

Sneak thieves ripped off a 16-gallon Coors beer keg from the back of a pickup belonging to Joe Martinez, Ponderosa Apartments. According to witnesses, the keg was heisted by two men driving a 1960's model, red pickup. Loss was estimated at $137.

Three Big Springers were treated and released from local hospitals following a collision at Grata and FM 700, 11:58 a.m. Wednesday.

Both cars were westbound on FM 700 when the accident occurred. One was Phyllis Hogan, Gail Route, the other by Gilbert Garcia, also of Gail Route. Mrs. Hogan and her one-year-old daughter, Dolly, were treated and released from Hall-Bennett Hospital. Garcia was treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Three other mishaps were reported Wednesday. Vehicles driven by Doris P. Crane, 1400 Runnels, and Mary J. Olivarez, Sterling City Route, collided at Sixth and Bell, 12:32 p.m.

Short seeks senate post

TAHOKA — E. L. Short, former state representative, entered the race for the Democratic nomination for the 28th Senatorial District on Wednesday.

Short, who is a farmer-rancher-businessman, served eight years in the State House.

"Because I believe the experience I have in Austin will provide this area with an effective voice in the Senate, I am seeking the seat being vacated by Sen. Kent Hance who is running for Congress," Short declared.

There are 13 counties in the 28th Senatorial District, including Martin, Borden and Dawson in this area.

Short served as vice-chairman of the Agriculture Committee in the 63rd Legislature and was chairman of the Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs during the 64th Legislature.

Record reading

Although the mercury fell only to 37 Wednesday night Big Spring set another record for a 24-hour period with Wednesday morning's reading of 33. That was because the lower reading occurred after 8 a.m. Thursday. This broke the former record which has stood since 1969, when the thermometers got down to 35.

Free on bond, man held on new count

A 22-year-old Borger man is in custody in the Howard County jail on charges of burglary.

Sheriff's deputies responded to a phone call Wednesday night concerning a possible burglary at the Fina station on east I-20. Two deputies responded, along with game warden Roger Carlisle, who had the man in custody when deputies arrived. A door to a store room had been forced, but no items were missing.

The case will be taken to the district attorney's office today, according to Chief Deputy Bill Whitton. The man is currently under $3,000 bond, set by Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena.

Farmers in worse shape this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can expect a lot of grumbling about the shape farmers are in during his westward swing across the country later this month. Carter is scheduled to visit Detroit, Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha, Neb.; Denver, and Los Angeles, Oct. 21-22.

A protest group that mustered 2,000 angry farmers at a meeting with Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland last month in Colorado says it will do the same thing when Carter visits Denver.

The group, called American Agriculture, has threatened to strike Dec. 14 and refrain from producing crops and buying machinery and other materials used to produce the nation's food supply unless the government acts to improve their financial situation.

Results of a telephone call-in survey conducted last week by the Agriculture Council of America show that most farmers say they are financially worse off than they were last year.

The survey, however, was not purported to be a scientific sampling of farmers nationally. The council, as it does periodically, offered toll-free telephone service to those who wanted to call in and talk about their problems and views. About 400 callers responded during the call-in Oct. 5.

According to the council, which describes itself as "a nonpolitical and nonlobbying organization" formed in 1973 to improve relations between farmers and urban consumers, most of the calls originated in Texas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas and Washington state.

Miracle needed for gas deregulation

DALLAS (AP) — A Washington oil lobbyist says it would take a miracle for Congress to give final approval to the natural gas price deregulation bill passed by the Senate.

Dan Prescott, legal counsel for the General Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, said the Senate measure, however, strengthens the bargaining position of decontrol advocates when the matter goes to conference committee.

The House has rejected decontrol and President Carter has indicated he would veto such a bill. The House bill also would extend controls to intrastate markets.

"I think the Senate bill is the high water mark for gas decontrol but it would take a miracle for it to become legislation," Prescott told the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association on Tuesday.

"I think the ultimate goal in conference committee may be some form of deregulation and to achieve this there could be interstate price controls for a period of time, Prescott said.

"But we will vigorously oppose extending controls to intrastate markets in any way."

Jack Blanton, president of the Texas trade group the past two years, said today the role of Texas as a state of the future shows some storm clouds.

The Houston independent said proposals for a state refinery processing tax and for federal control of intrastate natural gas prices have tremendous implications.

"Both of these issues, one state and one national, vitally affect our ability to protect our petrochemical industry as well as our ability to utilize our own resources in all manufacturing processes upon which our economy is based," Blanton said.

Otherwise, Blanton said, Texas continues to have a climate that encourages in every way the state's potential for energy production.

Deaths

Willie Joiner

W. P. (Willie) Joiner, 75, who died Wednesday morning at a Kermit hospital, will be buried at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Coahoma Cemetery, with graveside services conducted by Rev. George Harrington, Highland Church of God.

Burial will be under direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born April 25, 1902, and came to Howard County with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Joiner.

He was a retired farmer and rancher, and lived in Kermit for the last three years.

He was a Baptist, and is survived by a son, Robert Joiner, Odessa; a daughter, Mrs. Zola Bedell, Oklahoma City, Okla.; six grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

Grandsons and nephews will be pallbearers.

Seal-coat program to cover 178 blocks

A total of 178 blocks of Big Spring streets will be seal-coated during 1977 at a cost of about $116,200.

Bill Brown, assistant city manager, said that 3 of a gallon per square yard of OA-175 bituminous asphalt emulsion, a tarry substance, is applied to the streets. This is covered with No. 4 mesh gravel, pre-coated to adhere readily to the street surface. After an initial rolling, the contractor relies on traffic to press the gravel into the emulsion. Pre-coating, he explained, reduces the chance that the rock aggregate will fly up onto other cars.

"But if drivers spin their car wheels on the gravel, they will ruin a spot of the patch," he said. "The gravel in that spot will be stripped away."

In many cases, passing traffic will force piles of gravel to form along the side of the road. The contractor returns several times to each with hot patch," said Brown.

The following is a list of streets re-coated under the 1977 seal-coating project. Of these, only the one-block project on Lancaster and the projects on Stadium and San Antonio have yet to be completed.

Three Americans get medicine Nobels

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Americans won Nobel prizes for medicine today, bringing to five the Nobels awarded this year to U.S. citizens.

Dr. Roger Guillemin, 53, of the Salk Institute in San Diego, Calif., and Dr. Andrew Schally, 50, of the Veterans Administration hospital in New Orleans, La., share one half of the $145,000 prize for their discoveries on peptide hormone production.

The other half went to Dr. Rosalyn Yalow, 56, of the Veterans Administration hospital in the Bronx, New York City, for her discovery concerning peptide production of the brain.

Two Americans and a Briton shared the Nobel prize for physics, awarded Tuesday.

The Americans were John H. Van Vleck, 78, of Harvard University and his former student, Philip Anderson, 55, of Princeton University and Bell Laboratories. The third recipient was Sir Nevill F. Mott, 72, of Cambridge University in England.

The physics winners, who will share equally a $145,000 prize, Americans collected all five of the Nobels awarded last year. No peace prize was announced last year, but it was awarded belatedly to two Northern Irish women Monday.

Amnesty International, the London-based organization that seeks freedom for political prisoners, won the 1977 peace prize.

The 1977 prize for literature was won by a Spanish poet, Vicente Aleixandre. The award for economics will be announced Friday.

The medicine prize has been dominated by Americans and Britons since World War II. This was the third consecutive year that the prize went to the United States.

The 1977 Nobel laureates in physiology or medicine made their discoveries within the field of peptide hormones. Peptides are the substances built up by chains of amino acids. Many hormones in the body belong to this group, produced by the hypothalamus, the thyroid gland, the parathyroid glands, the placenta, the gastro-intestinal tract and other tissues. New such hormones are still being discovered, the faculty of the awarding body said.

"The important discoveries by the 1977 laureates have led to a formidable development of their own fields of research. Further, they have opened new vistas within biological and medical research far outside the borders of their own spheres of interest," a spokesman said.

Rosalyn Yalow's prize was awarded for discoveries concerning the peptide hormone production of the brain and for the development of radio-immune assays of peptide hormones.

Guillemin and Schally helped lay to rest the long-held misconception that the pituitary was the body's "master gland." They did this by showing conclusively that the brain and central nervous system regulated the pituitary by secreting hormones.

They developed the scientific methods for isolating these hormones and their research made it possible for three of these hormones to be synthesized artificially in a laboratory.

The ability to synthesize the hormone that stimulates the thyroid gland has helped doctors to diagnose thyroid disorders.

Dr. Yalow had worked more than 20 years with Dr. Solomon Berson to develop a new, more sensitive way of measuring how much of various hormones was present in the body.

An early use of their technique showed that diabetics, who had been thought to lack insulin altogether, actually had some insulin but were unable to use it because their bodies resisted its action.

The measuring technique involves combining a natural hormone in the human body with its antibody, which results in a competition between the two substances. Then a small amount of a radioactive form of the hormone is introduced, and by measuring how much of that radioactive form survives in the competition with the antibody, researchers can tell how much of the natural hormone was present in the body to begin with.

Berson died 5½ years ago, and Nobel prizes are given only to living persons.

Rosalyn S. Yalow, born in 1921 in New York City, received the Gairdner Award last year and earlier the Gairdner Foundation International Award in 1971 and the Koch Award of the Endocrine Society in 1972. She is a member of the National Academy of Sciences.

Roger C.L. Guillemin, 53, was born in Dijon, France, and received his first degrees at the university there. He became a medical doctor at Lyon in 1949, went to Canada and stayed in Montreal working with Dr. Hans Selye from 1949 to 1953. In 1953, he went to Houston and in 1970 to the Salk Institute in San Diego as a professor. He has served as dean since 1973.

As early as 1961 he received a gold medal at the First International Pharmacology Congress in Stockholm and he has since received a number of awards, including the French Legion of Honor in 1974. He got the Gairdner Award in 1974 and the Lasker Award the following year. Guillemin is the father of six children.

PBC approves projects

A grant request for the Human Potential Center at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin for use in mental health services to business and industry was turned down Wednesday at the monthly meeting of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council board of directors.

The screening committee on alcoholism and drugs had recommended denying the request because of a duplication of services with the Texas Commission of Alcoholism, which sent a worker Oct. 1 to begin working with business and industry.

The request was for a total grant of $43,245 with $32,435 to be furnished by the TCA. Another reason given was that TCA funds are short at this time and that there were two other requests for funding from this agency on the agenda.

The other two requests totalling $40,633, were approved, one was for $17,565 for the Big Spring State Hospital to continue to upgrade the skills, techniques and competence of the staff of the Alcoholism and Drug Treatment Unit. The Big Spring State Hospital will put $33,068 with this grant. The continuing education program will be made available to Outreach, Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Halfway House, Detoxification and Vocational Rehabilitation personnel.

The other grant approved for the agency was a request from the Permian Basin Community Center for Mental Health and Mental Retardation for $70,833 for a drying-out program in Ector County. This request will see the Permian Basin centers pay an additional $60,127.

JACK BRYANT, Odessa city councilman, objected to the request for the Human Potential Center being denied. He wanted instead to delete the grant request for the Big Spring State Hospital and grant two for Odessa.

The new Ector County Judge, Gerald Watkins, joined with him in voting for both Odessa grants, but he also voted for the Big Spring grant request. All other judges and councilmen on the board voted with the screening committee to approve the Big Spring grant request and the Permian Basin MH and MR request for Odessa.

It was discovered by the board that it did not have a director serving on the Alcoholism and Drug abuse screening committee. Judge Darrell Glover, Pecos, asked for a volunteer and Bryant offered to serve on the screening board.

This makes a total of 11 persons from Ector County on the screening committee. Howard County has four in Jack Stoval, Bob von Rosenberg, Shelby Parnell and Pew Broughton. Mrs. Broughton is a new member of the committee, having been appointed last month. Part of the Big Spring delegation misses many of the session, it was reported.

Harold Hall, one of three municipal elected officers who are members of the board, represented Big Spring's interest at the meeting Wednesday. Judge Bill Tune is also a member of the board, but was unable to attend this meeting.

OTHER GRANT requests approved included a head start grant of $107,947 for West Texas Opportunities, Inc. for the program in Stanton, McCamey and Lamesa. The board also approved a request for $91,748 from the Community Services Administration for administrative expenses of the community centers in Lamesa, Stanton and McCamey. Mrs. Janet Eberhart of Lamesa was on hand to explain these programs. Clyde Alsop from Big Spring attended the meeting to answer questions on the state hospital grant.

A new member of the PBRPC staff, John Van Veen, assistant planner, was introduced by Ernie Crawford, executive director.

Neighbor boy arrested for murder of girls

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Stuart Kreiner's little sister was a Brownie Scout with the three murdered neighbor girls. His mother helped cook for the grieving parents. Police, who had suspected the killer lived nearby, have charged the 16-year-old Kreiner with the stabbing deaths.

Kreiner was to be arraigned today in Harundale District Court on first degree murder charges. Authorities said they proposed prosecution as an adult.

Kreiner, tall, slightly built and a junior at Martin Spaulding High School in nearby Severn, was arrested Wednesday for the murders of 10-year-old Deborah Anne Hogan, her sister Theresa, 8, and their playmate, Ann Marie Brzezickiewicz, also 8.

The girls, who were to be buried today, were found stabbed to death Monday morning in a shallow creek near their homes in this Baltimore suburb.

Authorities, who would not disclose whether they had a motive for the killings, said two of the girls had been stabbed through their parkas at least 40 times each.

Although police had said earlier that they suspected the killer was someone in the victims' Southgate neighborhood, news of young Kreiner's arrest shocked neighbors.

"I knew they were looking for someone in the neighborhood, but I never dreamed it could be Stu," said C.G. Morningstar, who lives across the street from the Kreiner family.

"He's a good kid," said Morningstar. "He works hard and doesn't run around like some teen-agers. He used to cut our grass. I don't have a son, but if I had one, Stu's the kind I would pick out."

Robert Wilkes, a next-door neighbor of Ed and Leona Kreiner, said his family had known the Kreiners since 1965, when they lived near each other in Falls Church, Va. Until recently, the elder Kreiner was director of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, a state labor union.

"Our kids grew up together," said Wilkes. "Ed was always strict with his children. You'd never see them standing out on a corner after dark like other kids. Stuart just rode his bike up and down the street."

The Kreiners have two other children, a son in college and a 9-year-old daughter, Karen, who was in the same Brownie troop with the victims. Mrs. Kreiner cooked meals for the stricken families on Monday. Police said later that the Kreiners had cooperated in the murder investigation, but no details were given.

The case was "a tragedy for both the families of the victims and the family of the defendant," said deputy police chief George Wellham.

Adults described Kreiner

as quiet and polite. Some neighborhood children said Kreiner usually kept to himself and was sometimes taunted.

"He was different than other kids. There's always somebody on the street that kids like to pick on," said one of several boys who asked not to be identified, "and around here it was Stu. Kids used to yell at him when he rode past on his bike."

Back-up water supply sought

Need for a pipeline from Gail to Lake J. B. Thomas as a back up water supply for Gail and the Borden School was explained Wednesday at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council meeting at Terminal.

One of the grant requests from the board of directors of the PBRPC was an asking for $180,415 from the Farmers Home Administration drought relief program to improve the Gail Water System.

The 50 per cent grant would be matched by local funds, bringing the total to $360,830.

The pre-application was given instant approval by the board of directors. Harold Hall, Big Spring councilman, pointed out that "this is only the second time that Borden County has ever asked for anything. It is in desperate need for this pipeline."

The improvements proposed involve the construction of approximately 23 miles of pipeline to transport water from Town Lake and Lake Thomas to the community of Gail and the Borden County school system, and filtration and treatment equipment.

The pump would only be turned on when the Town Lake and County Reservoir get too low, according to Judge Jim Burkett, who represents Borden County on the board.

The watershed has recently become smaller due to individuals putting much of the land into cultivation. If the community runs all the way out of water, it would be forced to close the schools, according to the report given to the board.

House bill is wrongly named

One has to stand in line these days to get his turn as a critic of the various energy bills Congress is literally kicking around up there on the Hill.

The lines of criticism are long. They form wherever politicians gather, wherever blue collars discuss the world over a beer, wherever long underwear is sold for the winter ahead.

I WONDER sometimes if anybody likes anything about the Carter Administration's proposal (except perhaps for the tax credits for insulating your home).

The debate on the energy bill even comes in the mail from Texas Electric Service Co. TESCO's president, W.G. Marquardt, has taken the unusual step of writing TESCO customers (not at ratepayers' expense, he notes at the bottom). Marquardt writes:

W.G. MARQUARDT

"THE HOUSE (passed energy) bill is 'bad news' for all electric ratepayers — and especially for those of us in Texas. It's a tax bill — not an energy bill. It will produce little additional energy, is needlessly inflationary and adds more Washington bureaucracy and red tape."

So what doesn't he like about it? Marquardt lists four specifics:

—The bill requires that natural gas stopped being used to produce electricity by what he calls the "impossibly early date of 1980."

—It imposes severe tax penalties on the use of natural gas and oil to produce electricity "penalizing Texans more than anybody."

—It gives the federal government power to force TESCO to interconnect and ship lower-cost electricity to other states.

—It gives the federal government control over utility rate regulation.

MARQUARDT CONTENTS that the energy bill provisions would, by themselves, increase the average electric bill by $280 a year by 1990.

"Texas Electric is reducing its dependence on natural gas by building coal and nuclear plants," the president wrote. "And we're doing it as fast as our finances will allow. This bill can do little to make us change fuels any faster. It would just raise rates unnecessarily and reduce reliability."

What Marquardt is describing is a coming event the Dallas Morning News calls "a national power grab." I'm afraid there is little Texans can do to prevent it, but we had better try.

Or to paraphrase an old bumper sticker: "If you liked being in the Army, you'll love nationalized energy."

Carter crisis

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, the miracle worker of 1976, is now marked by critics as the political incompetent of 1977 whose compulsive industriousness has produced a swirl of confusing objectives and made him an easier prey for the vultures in Washington's power centers.

That a crisis now exists cannot be denied. The hope of Carter insiders that the President's popularity would survive in the countryside while his status fell in Washington was shattered by the NBC poll putting his approval rating at 46 per cent. What makes this descent alarmingly different from past presidential crises is that it comes from no war, no economic collapse and no major scandal.

Rather, its source is deep inside the methods and procedures of the Carter presidency. Although the President's popularity will surely rally, he is liable to stay in trouble so long as he conducts his office as he does now. Thus, the most distressing fact in Washington today is that there is no signal yet pointing to any significant changes in the way Jimmy Carter functions as President.

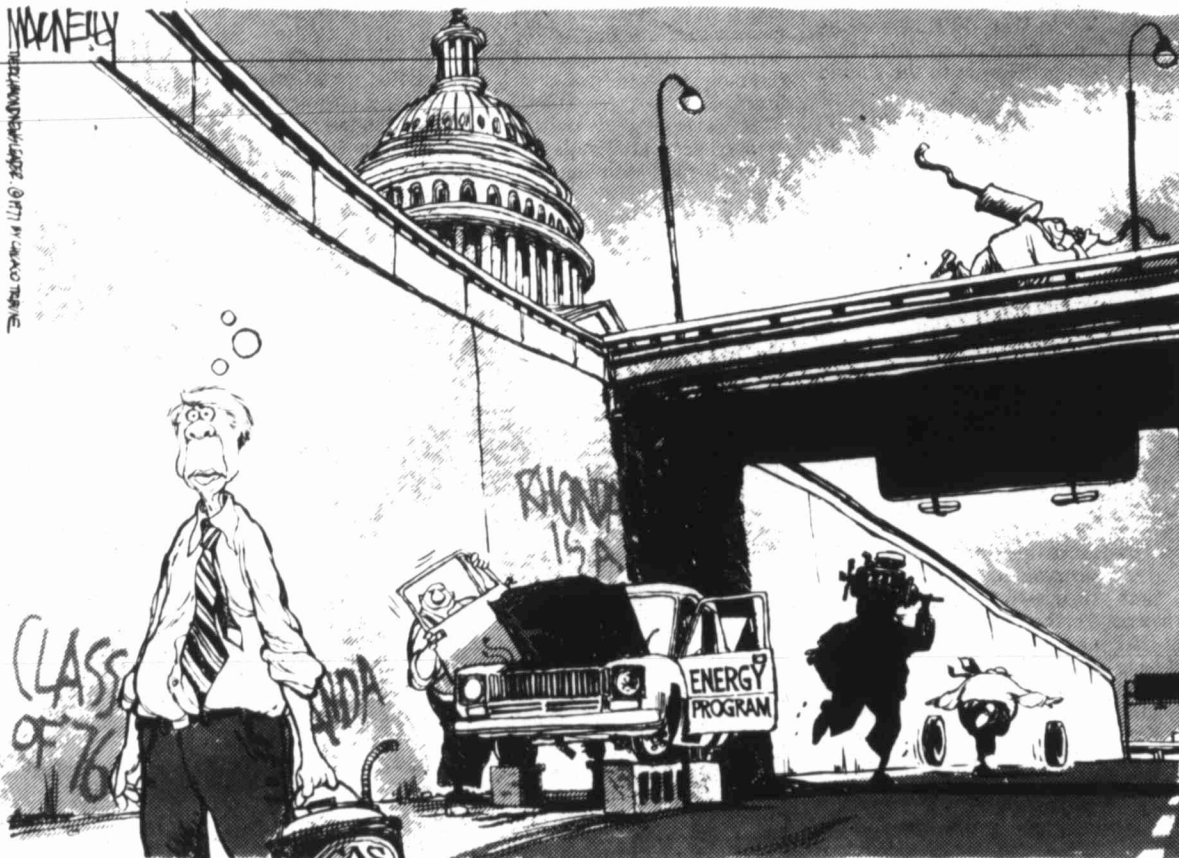

ALTHOUGH MANY Democrats blame Mr. Carter's problems on the profusion of leftist appointees pushing policies not compatible with his own, the criticism comes equally from left and right. Indeed, part of his troubles may derive from a deficit, not a surplus, of ideology. Not linked to a philosophy other than an obsessive work ethic, the President has forged ahead with overambitious programs, both domestic and international, many parts of which relate to no overall theme.

Voters expected a President bringing calm and stability. Instead, confides one middle-level administration official, "they got a Lyndon Johnson over-achiever" just as the presidency was entering a dangerously weakened state induced by Vietnam and Watergate. Mr. Carter seeks to be a strong President in the Rooseveltian tradition at a time when the spirit of Congress makes that goal unreachable.

THE INEVITABLE defeats suffered in the collision between a massive program and an independent Congress with the bit in its teeth are compounded by the fact Mr. Carter not only is an outsider but came here boasting about it. Lacking real friends in Congress intimately tied to his fortunes, the President was set upon by Congressmen acting like vultures sniffing blood from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

There are also vultures in his own administration. No recent administration has evidenced less personal loyalty to the President within the departments. Officials at the assistant secretary level, picked by heads of departments in Mr. Carter's "cabinet government," owe their loyalty to the secretary rather than the President and show no hesitancy about criticizing the President. Lobbying on Capitol Hill, usually a source of White House power, is also diffused within the departments.

In this situation, the President himself — whose political assessments on the road to the White House seldom have been matched in shrewdness — might be expected to assess the situation and change it. Some senior aides believe the prodigious output of domestic and foreign initiatives must be slowed.

Is thyroid related to breast size?

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do thyroid tablets have anything to do with increasing the size of one's breasts? I have taken thyroid for over a year and my breast have increased considerably. — Mrs. M.I.H.

Thyroid medication should not be a direct cause of this. Weight gain can be whether you are on thyroid or not. However, with medication to reduce thyroid activity there may be a slower metabolism (body utilization of nourishment) and some inordinate weight gain. Have you gained generally? If so you may need an adjustment of your medication.

In another thyroid-related question, Mrs. M.P. writes:

"I'm 41. Eleven years ago I had my thyroid gland removed because of tumors. I take two grains of Proloid daily. What is it? I have had problems with thinning and graying of my hair. This started years before my operation. Is this due to my condition? Will the Proloid help?"

Proloid is purified extract of animal thyroid glands, containing the hormones. Mrs. M.P.'s hair thinning could have been due to her thyroid condition, but not necessarily. There are other non-gland causes. Among them are defects of the hair follicles, faulty nutrition, tight coiffures, too vigorous brushing, high hair dryer settings, etc.

If the thinning was related to her underactive thyroid gland, the Proloid replacement hormones should give some improvement.

My mail indicates a tendency for patients to think of the thyroid gland in very simple terms. You're losing hair, so get some thyroid supplement. It's not that simple. Most often problems lie, as with hair loss, with much less complicated practices, such as hair grooming, etc.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You've mentioned that weight reduction can result in lowering cholesterol, which we know is part of the arteriosclerosis problem. But you also mentioned recently that there are drugs one can use to lower it in the blood. Which is the best way to do it — by drugs or by weight loss? How effective are the drugs? — Mrs. U.L.

It's always best to try weight reduction (if one is overweight) before trying drugs. The chief drug is clofibrate, which is marketed under various trade names.

Doctors prescribe it very cautiously, especially for patients who may be on anticoagulant drugs. Nor should it be used by those with liver problems or in pregnancy.

It has been known to lower cholesterol and triglyceride levels by as much as 35 per cent. A copy of my booklet, "Control Cholesterol Sensibly," should answer most of the other questions you have on the subject, which I couldn't go into here because of space limitation. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to go to my doctor and talk this over with him. But I am too embarrassed. So I turn to you, hoping you can help me out.

I'm a 17-year-old girl, and am very small on top (29 in my measurement). But what worries me is that about two or three months ago I was 31, and it seems like I'm shrinking. My mother doesn't know why. Could you tell me what you think of this situation? I want to know before it's too late to do something. — Worried.

It is possible that the "31" measurement was made at the time of the menstruation or just before it, when the breasts normally enlarge. Confine your measurements to mid-cycle and see if you are not "holding steady."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What's the difference between megavitamins and minivitamins? — H.L.

In the dosage. Normal dosages (I suppose that could be called "minivitamin dosages") would be measured in milligrams, or thousands of grams. Megavitamin therapy involves whole grams at a time, sometimes hundreds of times greater than required by the normal body.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of The Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Some young people I know talk of things I'm ashamed to listen to. What causes this? Is it education or the so-called "new morality"? Maybe I'm an old fogie, but it worries me that these kids are tomorrow's leaders. — G.L.

DEAR G.L.: Be sure you have all the evidence before you make a judgment on America's young people. I realize that the conduct of many may be alarming to someone of an earlier generation. We stand aghast at their restlessness in the modern classroom, reckless conduct in the face of authority, and unorthodox dress.

What is encouraging, however, is the younger generation's effort to identify irresponsible behavior, and to avoid it in the future. We all profit when our adolescents become sensitive to projects that are useful, community-centered and patriotic.

I tell you, young people today are searching for individual identity. In our hostile world, their search is often traumatic, noisy and crude. While youth movements of the past have often been led by dictators and demagogues, perhaps the current movement will be captured by Jesus Christ. Adults need to set a good example themselves, instead of remaining critically aloof.

One of the most dramatic moments in our Lord's ministry came when He imparted new life to someone outside the city of Nain. His direct and exciting command was simply, "Young man, wake up" (Luke 7, Phillips). If young people today have a similar spiritual renewal, you won't have to worry about tomorrow.

More to it Around the rim

A tiny fish darts quickly from rock to rock, seemingly unaware as a giant blue shadow glides noiselessly behind. Jaws gape open, crushing the helpless fish instantly and ending its futile struggle. Then the predator swims, sated, into the inky depths.

A scene from "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau"? No, a scene from "My New Aquarium" where the Blue Gourami enters left and eats $3 worth of Neon Tetras.

All this started last weekend when my wife and I decided on the spur of the moment to set up housekeeping for a bunch of fish in a ten-gallon tank. It would be simple, we thought, just like the aquariums we had when we were kids.

BUT WE HAD grown romantic in our old age and had forgotten what a project setting them up can be. As my wife, Gretchen "Jacquie Cousteau" Werrell put it in a moment of scientific ostentation: "This certainly is a precariously balanced life control system."

Quite a mouthful. And yes it is! After we were lured into the store with the sign, "Aquarium and equipment — $13" we found there was a little more to it.

"I would suggest a heater and a fluorescent light," said the friendly salesperson.

"OK," we replied in unison. "And you will need two bags of gravel and this dechlorinator for the water," she said.

"OK," we smiled back.

"And if you want a clean tank, I think this type of filter is better than this less expensive brand. And don't forget plants!" she urged.

"If you say so," we agreed. But in the end it was all worth it. The tank is in place; the fish (except for the Tetras, may they rest in peace) are happy; and we have a fascinating precariously balanced life support system in our living room.

AND THE NEW equipment for aquariums is much more advanced than that of my childhood. It is also more cleanly and stylishly fashioned.

When we were kids, my brother and I wrapped pairs of pants around the filter pumps of our aquariums so that we could sleep at night. Now the pumps are small and quiet, offering only a slight therapeutic hum.

Also the lights on my aquariums of yesteryear would have looked more at home in a garage. Today's lights come with complete wood-toned covers for your tank.

It gives the tank the look of a piece of furniture.

In short, I would urge anyone who is looking for something new to add to his living room to try an aquarium.

What goes on in one is usually better than what's on TV anyway.

Also, a small plug: The people at both the Woolworth Store downtown, and the new aquarium store on the 200 block of Main were a great help in supplying information, the right equipment and fish for us. If you think about inviting fishy friends into your home, you could do worse than visit these places.

Group probed

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Postal inspectors are quietly digging into the records of the nation's largest senior citizens group, the nine-million-member American Association of Retired Persons.

They suspect the non-profit group may be a front for improperly peddling insurance to the elderly by using mail subsidies that cost the taxpayers an estimated $10 million a year.

A similar question has been raised in a New York lawsuit which charges the association and its insurance company with fraudulent activities. The company, Colonial Penn, has sold hundreds of millions of dollars worth of insurance through the association.

The association and its sister group, the National Retired Teachers Association (known together as NRTA-AARP) vehemently contend that they keep a proper distance from the insurance firm and strictly comply with postal rules.

Colonial Penn has the exclusive right to market insurance through NRTA-AARP under a long-standing agreement devised by insurance man Leonard Davis, who is also honorary president of the senior citizens groups.

AT LEAST 70 per cent of Colonial Penn's insurance for the aging is now sold through NRTA-AARP mailings and through ads and promotions in their publications. The association, in turn, receives income from the arrangement.

It is this alliance which is under attack. Much of Colonial Penn's profits have depended on NRTA-AARP's non-profit mailing rates. These are about one-quarter of the rates charged to commercial mailers, including insurance firms.

Postal inspectors were called into the case on September 27. A preliminary civil study by postal authorities found that "NRTA-AARP do not qualify (for non-profit status) as charitable, educational or philanthropic organizations."

An internal memo added bluntly: "The primary purpose of the organizations could very well be to serve as the marketing agents of Colonial Penn Group." Another memo said their relations are "less than arms length" and do not "comport with accepted standards of business practice."

The New York suit by two dissident AARP members, meanwhile, charges the AARP with being "nothing more than an elaborately disguised merchandising showcase for Colonial Penn Group," designed to make money "at the expense of AARP members." The suit alleges that Colonial Penn's insurance rates are "exorbitant" and its profits "unconscionably high." Davis, his family and his trusts have made $81 million by selling Colonial Penn stock, it says.

The efforts by NRTA-AARP and Colonial Penn to maintain their ties and the mailing privileges are costing a fortune in fees paid to three prestigious law firms.

When we sought comment, the firms referred us to their legal briefs which vigorously contend their clients were helping to insure the elderly when no one else would take the chance. The AARP says the charges are "mistaken and unfair" and that the current alliance is "highly advantageous" for members.

In hundreds of pages of exhibits, the NRTA-AARP insist that their non-profit status is justified and their ties with Colonial Penn are legal and above board. Sources close to Davis say he has never hidden the fact that his fortunes have grown along with Colonial Penn. The endorsement of Colonial Penn in the senior citizen publications, they argue, is no different than any other company's endorsement of its group insurer. Footnote: It should be pointed out that Davis promoted insurance for the elderly at a time when they were considered uninsurable. Recent studies, however, indicate that other firms now offer better insurance rates to senior citizens. But these firms cannot advertise in NRTA-AARP publications.

URANIUM FIX: A small number of greedy speculators are helping to drive the cost of uranium through the roof by tying up millions of acres of Western land.

THEY HAVE teamed up with oil companies and utilities to hoard the nation's uranium. Like the old-time gold diggers, these speculators have staked hundreds of thousands of claims on uranium-rich land. They are legally required to spend at least $100 a year on exploration.

But congressional investigators have learned that many speculators have not lifted a finger in search of uranium. "They're just sitting on the land and waiting for the price to go up," one told us.

They haven't been disappointed, because demand for uranium for use in electric power plants is skyrocketing. The price of $6 or $7 a pound a few years ago has now jumped to over $40 a pound. It could go as high as $100 a pound in the next decade.

Dear Editor:

As a member of the Big Spring Holdup family of September 9, I would like to express our sincere appreciation for a memorable experience.

After traveling thousands of miles across the United States, our stay in Big Spring was definitely the highlight of our trip. It left all of us with a fond memory of a place which we might otherwise have passed by and never have known its history.

When we tell of our experience to friends and relatives, they are amazed at the generosity and hospitality which was shown to us.

Caroline Rekooff was not only charming and helpful, but also proud and informative of the area she represents.

So, thanks again Big Spring, Texas, your Chamber of Commerce, and your merchants, for an unforgettable time in the lives of the Richard Habermehl family, Eden, New York.

Bureaucracy nettles GOP

"If elected as Congressman in this district, I would be very concerned with halting the powers of government bureaus that are taking away our freedoms," Bill Fisher, Republican candidate for Congress announced at a luncheon meeting here Tuesday.

"The United States Department of Agriculture tells school lunch programs how many times a week they can serve eggs. OSHA tries to run the cotton gins. Another bureau tells us what kind of material we can use in pajamas," Fisher pointed out to a group of Republicans at La Posada Restaurant.

"Some way, some time, somebody needs to convince the government that it's all right to warn people of things but that they shouldn't be regulating what we eat and what we wear and where we go. That is not freedom," Fisher added.

He talked briefly to a group of active local Republicans in connection with the coming campaign. Fisher added, "Almost all of the announced Democrat candidates are claiming to be conservative, but they are running in a liberal party."

McManus won't testify

HOUSTON (AP) — The trial of a woman charged with helping Vernon McManus flee from prosecution was expected to go to a district court jury today.

Attorneys for Betty Plaskett, 46, said Wednesday they would rest their case without calling any witnesses after McManus, assessed a death penalty in the death of a Baytown couple, refused to testify.

McManus, dressed in his prison clothes, told State District Judge I. D. McMaster he would take the Fifth Amendment if called to testify. He said he did not want to testify because his case is on appeal.

Mrs. Plaskett, a convenience store employee, is accused of providing McManus with a car and a fake driver's license used in his flight to Jacksonville, Fla. last April on the weekend before his scheduled trial. The trip delayed his trial two weeks before authorities picked him up in Florida.

McManus was convicted in the trial of the deaths of Baytown contractor Paul Cantrell and his wife. He was assessed the death penalty. Paula Cantrell Derese, the couple's daughter, was assessed a life prison term after pleading guilty to murder.

Driving course due for adults

The Continuing Education Department of Howard College is offering a course in driver's education, primarily for adults.

This course includes six hours of lecture (required for student permit to drive), six hours of observation, and six hours of one-to-one driving. A total of 18 hours for the course. The registration fee is $45.

The organizational meet was Monday with the time for future classes to be announced.

All persons interested in learning how to drive may pre-register with Dr. Bobby R. Wright, or Ms. Barbara Stroud, or obtain additional information by calling 267-6311, ex. 70.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A Jackson man has been arrested and charged with manslaughter in connection with the hit-and-run death of a Dallas policeman who was in Jackson for a shooting contest, police said.

A spokesman for the Jackson Police Department said officers, after two days of investigation, determined that the make of the car involved in the accident was 1972 Ford LTD. Officers found the car allegedly involved and later arrested the car's owner, Roy L. Brown, 26, while he was at work.

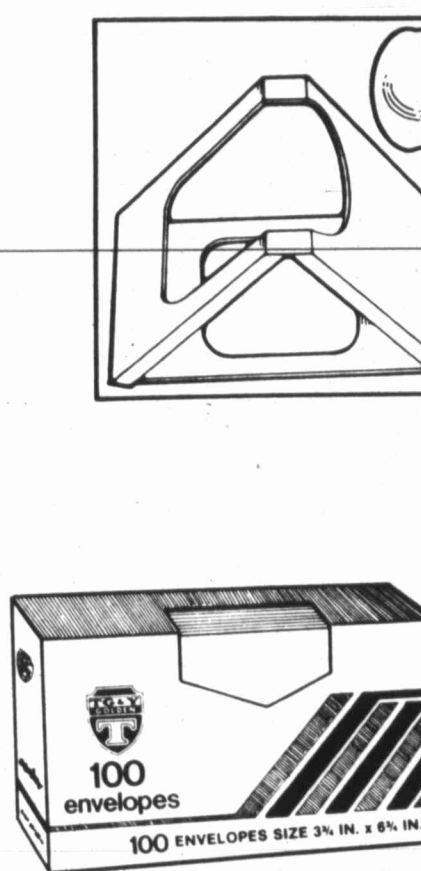

Brown was charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident in connection with Wednesday's death of Dallas policeman Max Countryman, 27, who was struck and killed while standing by his van alongside Interstate 55 in Jackson.

Countryman was in Jackson to participate in the National Police Combat Pistol Championships.

Posse hunts down accused rapist

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP) — More than 60 Bisbee, Ariz., men, including the mayor, mounted horses as a special posse to hunt a manhunt after a Bisbee woman told authorities she had been raped and robbed.

Mayor Charles Eads and merchant Jim Sill, on horseback, cornered a 17-year-old illegal Mexican alien in a field of weeds Wednesday, said Sheriff Jim Judd.

But authorities said that was the extent of frontier justice and the alien, who did not resist arrest, was informed of his civil rights and held in the county jail.

The arrest came less than a week after two area men were acquitted of the alleged torture of three Mexican farm workers, creating a climate of racial apprehension in this border town.

Police Chief Nick Lombardini said Carlos Cano of Chihuahua, Mexico, was arrested in brush behind a restaurant about two hours after the alleged assault Wednesday morning. He said a gun was recovered from where Cano had been hiding.

A Superior Court jury acquitted Thomas Hanigan, 20, and his brother, Patrick, 23, of nearby Douglas on Friday. The men had been charged with 22 counts, including kidnapping and robbery of three Mexicans who said they were tortured while looking for work on the Hanigan ranch.

Mexican Consul Raul Aveleyra of Douglas said the verdict shook his faith in the U.S. justice system and "opened the hunting season for every illegal alien who comes into the United States."

The verdict also prompted several community leaders to call for a U.S. Justice Department probe of alleged mistreatment of Mexican nationals in southern Arizona.

According to Lombardini, Canos was being held in the Cochise County juvenile center rather than at the Bisbee jail for "security reasons." He was being held without bond on charges of rape, armed robbery, aggravated assault and burglary.

Faye Reed is new treasurer for Museum

Faye Reed has been elected treasurer of the Heritage Museum.

Mrs. Mary Nell Mansfield, president, said Mrs. Reed was named at a meeting of the board to name a successor for Dan Allen, who resigned when he moved from the county.

The board also talked about resuming a series of spotlight exhibits to augment the core exhibit.

Gerri Atwell, curator, said that Ladies Auxiliary of the VA Hospital toured the museum. Also, 25 Coahoma elementary pupils sent letters saying they enjoyed their tour. Each mentioned listening over the telephone party line.

The 1978 Historical Souvenir Calendars are moving well, she added.

The 1978 renewal and new members are coming. Recent additions are: Jo Cole, Sue Ruse, Frances Greer, Ruby Billings, Mrs. E. H. Hatch, Mrs. Clara Johnson, Mrs. Gen Schaefer, Mrs. W. B. Hardy, Pauline S. Petty and Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Griffin II.

County clerk has record receipts

County Clerk Margaret Ray reported record earnings for the county clerk's office over the past fiscal year. Mrs. Ray reported $60,983 received in fees by her office.

That figure tops the former record by $5,000. Fees since Mrs. Ray took office have climbed from $47,230 to the present figure.

Revenues from county court added another $25,897 to the income for a total receipts of $86,881.

Mrs. Ray said she expected the fees to rise significantly next year also due to an increase in charges approved by the state. Mrs. Ray said that the new rates, which went into effect Aug. 29, should raise as much as $10,000 additional revenue.

Stockholder's meeting slated

Big Spring Exploration, Inc. will hold its annual meeting of stockholders at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18.

The meeting will be held at the company offices at 611 Gregg, according to Ted Groehl, president. Holders of shares of common stock of the corporation of record at the close of business Aug. 31 will be entitled to vote at the annual meeting.

Stockholders who execute proxies retain the right to revoke them at any time before they are voted, Groehl said.

Action asks to revoke probation

Lester Fred Lang, 20, of 1002 N. Main, is being held with out bond under revocation of probation charges. Lang was transferred to the Howard County jail Tuesday on charges of burglary and misdemeanor possession of marijuana. The burglary charges were filed in justice of the Peace Lulu Adams' office.

Lang had been placed on 10 years probation in April, 1977. Bond had been set at $11,000 on the two offenses before the revocation motion was filed in 118th District Court.

Widow not bitter toward Communist soldiers

EDITORS' NOTE — AP Pulitzer Prize winning photographer Horst Faas, who covered the Vietnam war for 12 years, recently revisited that country with a German tourist group and met a former Vietcong commander who remembered the death of an American officer. Here is a report by AP Pulitzer Prize winning writer Peter Arnett, who worked extensively with Faas, on the widow of that American officer.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Her officer husband was the first of his West Point class to die in Vietnam, and she was left alone to bring up their four children, but Harriet Linnell says she bears no bitterness toward the communist soldiers who killed him.

"George wanted to be a military man, he was trained for it, and we have always been proud of what he did," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Beaufort, S.C.

Mrs. Linnell has remarried, but memories of the death in battle of her late husband, Lt. Colonel George Eyster, returned with the Associated Press interview of the commander of the Vietnamese unit that killed him.

AP photographer Horst Faas was with Colonel Eyster in January 1966, when he was fatally wounded by sniper fire from a hidden tunnel complex northwest of Saigon.

The dying commander of the 2nd Battalion, 28th Regiment, 1st Infantry Division, whispered to Faas, "Before I go I'd like to talk to the guy who controls these incredible men in the tunnels."

While on a two-week return trip to Vietnam with a COLONEL'S DEATH REMEMBERED — Mortally wounded Lt. Col. George Eyster of Cocoa, Fla. is placed on a stretcher after being shot by a Viet Cong sniper at Trung Lap in January 1966. Associated Press photographer Horst Faas, who was with Eyster at the time he was shot, returned to Vietnam recently to interview the commander of the Vietnam unit that killed him.

German tourist group early this month, Faas met that man, Capt. Nguyen Thanh Linh, who gave Faas the inside view of the fantastic tunnel octopus that took 30 years to dig and stretched 150 miles, with tentacles sometimes winding right under the chairs of U.S. commanders as they sat in their headquarters.

The slightly built, 45-year-old Captain Linh said he was commander of the Cu Chi Liberation Battalion at the time of the American colonel's death, and recalled receiving intelligence reports about it.

Faas reported that Linh spoke in French with grudging respect and almost without hatred about his former enemies, the Americans.

Eyster's wife said Wednesday she held no bitterness toward the communist soldiers "because they were doing their duty, too, as they saw it." But she remains unhappy about the complete collapse of the Saigon government in 1975. "I don't pretend to know the political subtleties, but we could not help asking ourselves what was all that loss of life for. Yet I hate to say George's life was wasted," she said.

The military tradition of the Eyster family is being maintained by his two sons, both in uniform. The eldest, George Eyster 4th, is a helicopter pilot in the Army, his younger brother is in the Air Force and both his sisters have married Army officers.

Their grandfather, George Eyster 2nd, was chief of information in the European theater in World War II. The commander of the U.S. Army's 1st Infantry Division at the time of the colonel's death in Vietnam, Lt. General Jonathan Seaman, said Wednesday that Eyster would have been a general like his father had he lived.

Many more Americans were to die in the tunnel complex after Eyster, but casualties were crippling in communist ranks, too. Captain Linh said that of the 600 men in the Cu Chi battalion when the American colonel was killed, only four survived the war, two officers and two non-commissioned officers.

AP photographer Faas reported that the former battlefield where Eyster died now looks lush and sleepy. Deep B52 bomb craters are still visible, retained as fish ponds or wallowing holes for animals.

The vast tunnel complex, now part of the tourist route for visitors to Vietnam, lies one, two and three levels underground. The routes were marked in black lines on a 12-by-12-foot map hanging from a briefing room wall at the Cu Chi district headquarters.

Faas's first reaction was that it looked like a map of the New York or London subway systems, with dots not for stations but for fighting positions and secret entrances and exits.

Faas was told the complex

ONLY SEVENTY CENTS — Junior Girl Scouts Shawn Keys, standing, and Kim Sutton, sitting, sell 1978 calendars to Mrs. Becky Pope, left, and Mrs. Jonell Kelly, right. The girls plan to use the money they collect to go on a camping trip sometime this year. The senior scouts are planning a skiing trip to Ruidoso with their profits. Of the money they collect for the calendars, one-half goes to pay for the calendars and half stays with the troop to be used for projects and trips. Kitty Reynolds is the Field Executive for the Area 4 Girl Scouts in Big Spring.

She stays up with him Candidate always 'on go'

Life with Charlie is life on a tight schedule, says Cindy Stenholm, wife of the Stamford farmer who wants to be Congressman.

"He's always had a very tight schedule. He's always had a very tight schedule. He's always been on the go," she says, "but he finds time to stick me in there somewhere."

Mrs. Stenholm, mother of three, admits that the fast pace that Charlie insists on living "took some getting used to."

Ever since the couple has known each other, he has gone to work early and come home late, she says.

"It's taken me a few years, but I decided the sooner I accepted it the better."

CYNTHIA ANN (Cindy) Watson was raised in Dumas, the daughter of a butcher. Her mother runs a dress shop where Mrs. Stenholm says she grew up.

She met her husband at Texas Tech University her junior year as she was earning a bachelor of science degree in elementary education.

Her senior year, she ran for class secretary, and she had a little help from a young man named Charles Stenholm who had a knack for politics.

"Charlie helped me a whole bunch, and I won," she recalls. "I didn't realize then that he was a politician, but I should have known."

Stenholm announced in Big Spring last week that he will be a candidate for the 18th Congressional seat now held by Omar Burleson of Anson who is retiring. The 18th District reaches from Cook to Howard County, and includes Abilene and Stamford. Stenholm will face Big Spring's Jim Baum, Abilene's Dusty Rhodes and Tye's Jim Snowden — and perhaps more — in the Democratic Party primary next spring.

STENHOLM married Cindy while they were in Lubbock, and she taught one year there before they moved to Stamford where Charlie was a vocational agriculture instructor in the high school, and farmed on the side.

Then he worked for the Rolling Plains Cotton

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN — Mrs. Charles Stenholm, wife of the Stamford farmer running for Congress, says she should have realized Charlie was a politician when he helped her get elected senior class secretary at Texas Tech.

Growers Assn. and traveled 29 counties, so Mrs. Stenholm says his time was even tighter.

Next he worked for the Stamford Electric Cooperative.

"He would rise early and do his farming," she says, "and then we would work at Stamford Electric. He worked two jobs always, always, always."

When he began farming full time, Mrs. Stenholm thought he might have more time to be home, but even then he took on extra duties that kept him on the go, she says.

Mrs. Stenholm says she will do what she can to return the favor of Charlie's help her senior year, but her main contribution to the campaign will be manning the homestead.

"I'll do as much as I can, but somebody has to hold the home front down," she adds that Charlie will feel better if he knows everything is okay at home.

Husband Upsets Wife By His Indifference

DEAR ABBY: I am 40, and have been married for 20 years. For some unknown reason my husband has lost all interest in sex. I told him in a very nice way that I missed his loving, and he just laughed and said, "Oh come on, we're both too old for that kind of stuff." (He's 42.) We get along fine, but it's like living with my brother. He always come right home after work and never goes anywhere without me, so I'm sure there's no other woman. I can't understand his indifference. I keep myself neat and clean and I never nag him.

Our four children will all be gone and on their own soon, and if this is any sample of what my life will be like when they're gone, it won't be worth living. Sign me... UNDERLOVED

DEAR UNDER: Please read the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: How do you convince your husband that you still love him, but you aren't as young as you used to be—if you get what I mean?

After 20 years and five children, shouldn't there be more to marriage than sex? If I don't feel like making love every night, he pouts and says I don't "love" him anymore. Am I abnormal or is he? I always thought a man got less passionate after 40. Mine is unbelievable. Please help me, Abby. I do love him, but I think he is expecting too much from a 40-year-old woman. PAID MY DUES

DEAR UNDERLOVED AND PAID MY DUES: I don't know what's "normal" and neither does anyone else. Each person has his own emotional temperature, and what is "normal" for one could break someone else's thermometer. Both of you should insist that your husbands be examined by physicians to rule out the possibility of physical deficiencies.

Then I suggest you consider seeing a qualified sex therapist. (If your physician can't recommend one, inquire at the Medical Department of your nearest university.)

Pity PAID MY DUES isn't married to UNDERLOVED's husband and vice versa. But that's just another of life's inequities.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

She knows the shopper

Passing lessons along

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After eight years of representing consumers in the White House, Virginia Knauer is trying to teach businessmen some of the lessons she learned about the American shopper.

She has opened a Washington-based consulting agency to help companies and individuals deal with the demands and needs of consumers in areas ranging from product complaints to environmental worries.

In a recent interview, Mrs. Knauer said businesses are concerned primarily with "how better to communicate with the consumers. Banks are interested in how better to explain to women depositors how to take advantage of the new laws (on women and credit) ... The utilities are interested in how to get consumer reaction on variable rates. ..."

Mrs. Knauer said the attitude of business has changed since she joined the federal government. She said there was an "early resistance ... to changes to accommodate the consumer point of view." During her time in the White House, she said, "I saw a complete coming around to the realization ... that the smart businessman, when he used consumerism as another innovative marketing tool, would find it financially beneficial."

While inflation is still the single most important concern of consumers, Mrs. Knauer said there have been some changes in attitude. There is "a growing sophistication," not only in terms of buyers' rights, but in terms of what those rights will cost, she said. "Consumers are becoming sophisticated enough (to know) that when they ask for certain new protection, they're going to pay for it, not manufacturers (who) pass on these costs."

Mrs. Knauer, whose government title was director of the Office of Consumer Affairs and special assistant to the president for consumer affairs, was criticized during her tenure for what some felt was her favoring of the voluntary approach to consumer protection while the time has come and gone as far as the agency bill is concerned," she said, noting that proposals for such an agency — supported by President Carter — have run into unexpectedly strong opposition this year.

Mrs. Knauer also contended that while the Carter administration has the image of being more attuned to consumer interests than its predecessors, consumers actually have less of a voice than before.

She noted that she served on several Cabinet-level bodies such as the Cost of Living Council and said her successor, Esther Peterson, does not seem to have that kind of input in policy making.

not pushing strongly enough for legislative action.

She said she still believes in encouraging businesses to act on their own to protect consumers, although "the goad (of possible legislative action) always should be there."

Mrs. Knauer also came under attack from some activists for switching her position on an independent agency for consumer affairs. She supported such an agency, then, when President Ford proposed instead the creation of consumer representation divisions within existing departments, changed her view.

She said she is convinced that Ford was right. "I think

Come-and-go tea held

The Newcomers Bridge and Newcomers Handicraft Clubs sponsored their annual Newcomers Tea Wednesday at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

The tea was come-and-go from 10 to 11:30 a.m., and Mrs. Oleta Rose, president of the Bridge Club, considered it a success, due to the many newcomers who attended.

Members of the clubs welcomed guests at the door, where they were given a name tag and a bag of goodies. The gifts were donated by local merchants, including "Merle Norman, First Federal Savings and Loan, the Chamber of Commerce and State National Bank," said Mrs. Rose.

Silver appointments were used on the beverage table, where coffee and punch were served guests by Elizabeth Phelan, secretary of the Bridge Club.

An assortment of finger foods were placed on another table to be enjoyed by guests, and a table displayed handicrafts made by members, such as a corn husk wreath and an ink-on-glass painting. Handicrafts also served as centerpieces on the guest tables.

The centerpiece of the beverage table, an arrangement of dried fall flowers, was donated for use by Quigley's Flower Shop.

All refreshments were furnished by members. Although the clubs are for newcomers to Big Spring, "membership is not limited to newcomers," said Mrs. Gayle Cavnar, vice president of the Bridge Club and secretary of the Handicraft Club.

The clubs were formed in 1963 by Mrs. Joy Fortenberry and Mrs. Ellen Ezzell.

They are presently having a membership drive. "The clubs have lagged in membership since Webb closed, but we are getting it built back up," said Mrs. Fortenberry, sponsor of the clubs and official Big Spring newcomer welcome.

The clubs are planning many civic projects for the year. Among those planned by the Handicraft Club are making cookies for the Big Spring State Hospital, making slippers for the VA Hospital and making projects for the BSSH Craft Bazaar. The club has already taught patients of the Park View Nursing Home to make fabric flowers.

The Bridge Club project is providing Christmas stocking stuffers to the BSSH this year.

The clubs will also provide a needy Big Spring family with a basket of food in-

Officers for this year are: Bridge Club president and treasurer, Oleta Rose; secretary, Elizabeth Phelan; vice president, Gayle Cavnar; and Handicraft Club president, Jackie Zimmerman; secretary, Gayle Cavnar; and treasurer, Theresa Lewis.

Anyone interested in joining either club is asked to call Mrs. Oleta Rose, 7-1306, or Mrs. Gayle Cavnar, 7-3443.

Corn husk dolls Austin speaker made by group heard by club

Members of the Creative Homemakers Home Demonstration Club learned how to make corn husk dolls after a short business meeting Tuesday night.

The 1930 Hyperion Club enjoyed a salad luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Malcolm Patterson.

A program on "Texas Women in Literature, History and Folklore" was presented by Mrs. Dean Mansfield-Kelly of Austin.

Mrs. Kelly's research of Texas women developed a humorous but well-documented presentation of the almost total lack of recognition by both men and women writers, of Texas women's contributions to the state of Texas.

Hostesses of the meeting were Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. C.H. Rainwater, Mrs. W.J. Currie, Mrs. Marvin M. Miller and Mrs. Ralph Gossett.

Mrs. E.L. Powell, president, was in charge during a brief business meeting.

The meeting was at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. Clay Thompson, 421 Hillside, and hostesses of the meeting were Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Gary McLeod.

Mrs. McLeod, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting, during which plans were made for members to participate in an all-day bake sale Nov. 5 in the Highland Park Mall.

In other business of the meeting, members were asked to donate Christmas stocking stuffers to Big Spring State Hospital, and Mrs. Dan Johnson was elected secretary and Dusty Richard was elected reporter.

Mrs. McLeod then taught members to make the dolls, which can be used as Christmas tree ornaments or gift decorations.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 Nov. 8 in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room, at which members will have a program on Christmas cooking. New members are invited to attend.

White House worker commutes 220 miles daily

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

MIDLOTHIAN, Va. (AP) — One day Charles O'Keeffe needed to see a man in Afghanistan.

He got aboard a jet airplane and rode it as far as it could go. Then he got in a little, single-engine plane and rode it as far as it could go. Then he rode a jeep for eight days, for as far as the jeep could go. Then he took a camel, then a yak. He found his man.

If it's important, Charles O'Keeffe is willing to take a little trouble getting there.

That is why every morning, six days a week, sometimes seven, he gets in his car and drives 110 miles to work. At the end of a long day he drives 110 miles back home. He has to be the world champion commuter.

Charles O'Keeffe is a drug abuse specialist. He works in the White House, for President Carter, clearly an important job.

"The drive isn't really as bad as it seems. It's private time, a chance to think things out, things I'm going to have to decide the next day," O'Keeffe said. "I also get all of my dictating done. It takes about two hours, but it isn't wasted time."

No, but it's still quite a grind.

He lives in this quiet little

LONG DISTANCE COMMUTER — Charles O'Keeffe stands beside his car in Washington Wednesday before beginning his 110 mile home from work. He commutes 220 miles a day to reach his job with the White House as a drug abuse specialist.

town outside Richmond and usually leaves about six or seven in the morning after a good breakfast and a visit with the four kids.

He takes a cup of coffee along with him, stops at the 7-Eleven for another cup and goes across the street for gas.

Gasped up, he pulls onto I-95, flips on his CB radio and heads north. At Thornburg, and again at Dumfries, two Virginia towns on the interstate, he stops for more coffee.

What Charles O'Keeffe contributes to the Carter administration is significant. He is on the staff of Peter Bourne, the President's assistant for health issues, and his specialty is south Asia.

Charles O'Keeffe is 37. He was in the pharmaceutical business in Richmond when he became interested in drug abuse problems. That led him to Peter Bourne, who was running a narcotics treatment program in Georgia and was a close friend and adviser of Jimmy Carter.

Bourne and O'Keeffe went into business together in Washington, working as consultants on international aspects of drug detection and treatment.

Both men left that business to work full-time in the Carter election campaign. When O'Keeffe was asked to join the administration he did not refuse, but he wasn't inclined to move to Washington.

"My wife, Ann, has a half dozen horses and is involved in horse shows and that sort of thing. The kids like their schools. We just like the area. We both grew up here. It would be hard to match what we have in the Washington area."

"Besides, when I worked in Washington before I tried living in an apartment and coming home on weekends. That's no way to live. I was a stranger to my family."

So the solution has been to hit the road, 220 miles a day. At that, it beats riding a yak.

Passive restraints due in 1984

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, refusing to override the Transportation Department, has opened the way for mandatory air bags or other passive restraints in all new cars by the 1984 model year.

Votes Wednesday in the Senate and in the House Commerce Committee mean the safety devices will be required for some cars as early as the 1981 model year.

The Senate, 65-31, and the House panel, 16-14, voted to block any congressional attempt to override last June's decision by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams making the devices mandatory.

Both houses of Congress would have had to act by Friday to prevent the new policy from becoming law.

By the 1982 model year, all full-sized cars must be equipped with passive crash-protection devices. All other new cars will have to meet the new standard by the 1984 model year.

"No single action taken by the Congress this year holds out more promise for saving lives and alleviating needless suffering," Adams said after the Senate vote.

"This is a victory for us, but even more for our children, because highway accidents are the single greatest killer of American youth," he said.

Supporters of requiring passive restraints contended in the Senate debate that the devices will save lives, prevent injuries and significantly reduce insurance costs.

But Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., one of the major Senate opponents of Adams' move, said the only passive restraint system now generally available is the air bag, which he said is unreliable and needs more testing.

Griffin and other air bag opponents said drivers should not be compelled to pay higher sticker prices for cars equipped with a safety system that may not work.

The opponents said some air bags may inflate accidentally, and that replacement models could cost three to four times the original.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said that if he were compelled to buy a car with an air bag, he would have it removed.

He said drivers should be able to decide for themselves whether to buy a car with such a device.

"We elected a President who said he was going to get the federal government out of our hair, and now, by golly, he's got it in the driver's seat," Goldwater said.

Woman held, but escapes

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers and sheriff's deputies were searching late Wednesday for a man who reportedly commandeered a car near Dallas and forced a woman at gunpoint to drive him to the Lake Murray area near here.

The woman, identified as Karen Ann Adcox, 20, of Farmers Branch, Tex., told authorities she had stopped at a drug store and when she got back in the car there was a man inside it.

She said he leveled a gun at her and said, "I'm not going to hurt you. I just want to talk to you."

She said she was forced to drive to the Buzzard Roost area of Lake Murray, where she escaped by hitting the man with her shoes and then scrambling away.

En route to Oklahoma, the woman was quoted as saying the man twice put a gun to her said and told her to slow down or he would fire.

National health insurance testimony both pro and con

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas hospital officials have told a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare-sponsored public hearing that comprehensive health insurance provided by the federal government could bankrupt the United States.

However, their statements were countered Wednesday by pleas for total health care through National Health Insurance (NHI) by Texans claiming to be poor, sick, handicapped and old.

Some 73 speakers had their say, and dozens more submitted written opinions, at the all day meeting so HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano can obtain Americans' views on NHI before submitting a proposal to President Carter early next year.

The unofficial count after the hearing was 32 for NHI and 22 against and the others favoring some type of expanded government help, especially to cover dental and eye care and a long list of catastrophic and chronic illnesses.

Health care consumers from the Lower Rio Grande Valley, several speaking in Spanish, told of the miseries of being poor and sick.

"There are at least 7,000 patients from our area (the Valley) who have to travel long distances to get any type of health care," said Rogelio Martinez, representing the Committee for the Betterment of Health in Brownsville.

Most of those opposing a complete NHI program cited what they called phony expectations and soaring costs to be borne by the taxpayers as their main objectives.

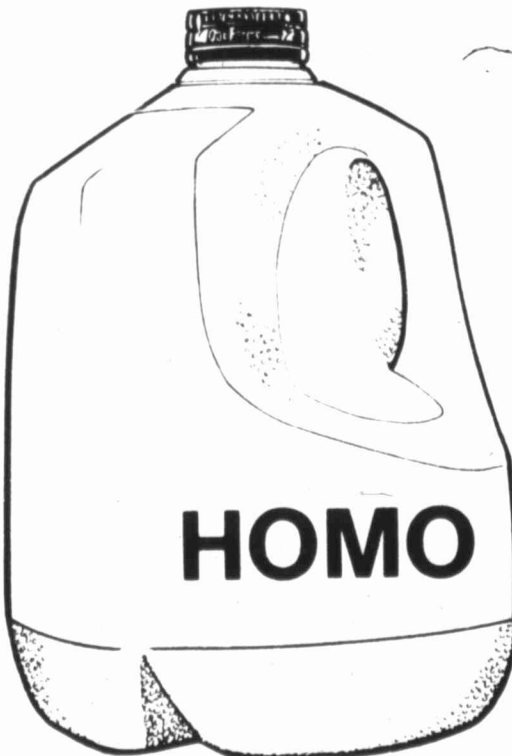

John C. Gavras, executive director of the Dallas Hospital Council, cited a recent national study which showed NHI would cost $90 billion to implement. He said that would mean an additional $1,455 in payroll taxes to each American earning $15,000 annually.

"It is time to cut the rhetoric about National Health Insurance," he said. "It is time to be truthful to the American people."

Dodgers blitz Yankees to pull even

NEW YORK (AP) — It was an explosive combination that should protect New York City from power blackouts for a long time. Catfish Hunter, a home run pitcher, was throwing big, hanging baseballs to the Los Angeles Dodgers, home run hitters, and the results were predictably powerful—particularly since Hunter hadn't pitched since Sept. 10.

The Dodgers walloped four homers, three off Hunter in the first 21-3 innings, and blasted the New York Yankees 6-1 Wednesday night, evening the 1977 World Series at one game apiece.

The ninth matchup of these historic baseball rivals now shifts across the country to Los Angeles for Game 3 Friday night, with Dodger left-hander Tommy John, a 20-game winner, hooking up with big Mike Torrez, a right-hander with 17 victories in the regular season.

Meanwhile, Wednesday night, the Yankees fell meekly to right-hander Burt Hooton's baffling knuckle-curves with just five hits, saving their best hitting for the locker room, as has been their custom for much of their wacky, but winning season.

"What's he doing starting Catfish?" wondered Reggie Jackson, second guessing his manager, Billy Martin. "He hasn't pitched since Sept. 10. 'This is the World Series,' Jackson said, lacing his remarks with a more-than-occasional epithet. "It's not fair to the Cat and it's not fair to us."

The Dodgers, lambs in the locker room, were lions on the field, as has been their custom all season, when they belted a National League-leading 191 homers. Four Dodgers — Reggie Smith, Ron Cey, Steve Garvey, and Dusty Baker — smashed 30 or more homers, the first time that has been accomplished in the major leagues.

"This team did something Murderer's Row and the great Red Sox teams with Bobby Doerr, Vern Stephens and Ted Williams couldn't do," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "They consistently hit with power, and that's what they did tonight."

"Our guys are capable of hitting them out of the Grand Canyon."

Martin agreed with that assessment. "There were no cheap homers," said the fiery Yankee skipper. "They hit 'em a long way." The first one that went the distance came off the bat of Ron Cey, who slugged 30 homers in the regular season. After Hunter got the game's first two batters on fly balls, Smith doubled and Cey laced Hunter's two-strike pitch over the left field wall.

"It was a mistake on his part," said Cey, who carried the Dodgers' to their early-season surge, batting .425 with nine homers and 29 runs-batted-in during April. "It was a breaking ball and he didn't get away with it. I challenged Death Valley again and won this time. Last night I tried twice and lost."

Hunter, sidelined the past

32 days with a urological disorder after sporadic shoulder aches all season, got a pair of groundball outs to open the second before throwing a hanging curve to Steve Yeager.

"A hanging curve around the eyes is the easiest pitch to hit out," said Yeager, who launched the pitch over the left field wall. "Our ball club is very explosive. The long ball threat is always there, especially the heart of the lineup."

Yeager, the No. 8 batter, had 16 homers, half the total of Reggie Smith, the third stick in the Dodgers' potent lineup. After Bill Russell singled in the third, Smith pounded a low fastball over the right field fence. It was Smith's third World Series homer. He hit two in 1967, when he was with the Red Sox, one coming on the day when Boston slammed four homers — the last time that had been accomplished in the Series.

"These are the things we've been doing all year round," said Smith. "Hunter might think it was a good pitch for him, but it was a good pitch for me. I'm a low ball hitter."

Smith's smash finished Hunter, who allowed 29 homers in 1431-3 innings in the regular season.

Catfish may have sung swan song

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Catfish Hunter through?

It was a question that had to be raised after the once-brilliant pitcher was pounded for three booming homers and five runs in just 2 1-3 innings Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers trounced the New York Yankees 6-1 and evened the World Series at one game apiece.

"Do you think I might think about that sometimes?" Hunter wondered after his first outing in more than a month turned into an embarrassing shelling. Manager Billy Martin mercifully lifted him after Ron Cey's two-run homer in the first inning, Steve Yeager's solo shot in the second and Reggie Smith's two-run blast into the center field bleachers gave the Dodgers a 5-0 lead in the third.

"Once in a while I think that this season might be the end, but my wife talks me out of it. During the off-season I'm not gonna worry about next year. I'm just gonna worry about hunting deer. I hope I don't have a bad year doing that."

Hunter's 1977 numbers were a 9-9 won-lost record, 4.71 earned run average and a whopping 29 home runs — not including Wednesday night's trio — in just 143 1-3 innings. His season was interrupted by a spell on the disabled list when he caught a line drive on his foot during an impressive opening-day performance. He was sidelined the last month by what was thought to be a hernia but later was diagnosed to be a urinary tract infection.

"When I think about being through, I only think about farming," said Hunter, a farm boy from Hartford, N.C. "I think about enjoying farming as much as playing baseball. My dad used to tell me to get an education because there's no money in farming."

"I didn't get an education. I made my money in baseball. And when I'm through, I'll go back to the farm just like him."

Even if Hunter can become an effective pitcher again next season, he says he will pack it in when his five-year, $3.5 million free agent contract runs out in 1979.

If this was Hunter's swan song, he went out with tons of class, patiently answering waves of questions from hordes of newsmen. He even managed to joke, as he usually does, about some of the long shots hit off him.

"How did you throw?" was the first question. "Right-handed," was the reply, a faint smile tracing Hunter's lips. "I let the people back home know. I still give up home runs." Hunter, winner of 210 regular-season games, was sacrificed to give the Yankees' ailing pitching staff some much-needed rest.

'They're animals!'

NEW YORK (AP) — "These people are animals," Mike Garman, relief pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said of the unruly Yankee Stadium crowd after the Dodgers had leveled the World Series at a game apiece with a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday night.

"I hope we can win the next three so I won't have to come back to this place. We are sitting ducks out there. I'll tell you the truth — I was scared to death," Garman added.

The game came close to turning into a fan uprising in the latter innings with a half-dozen spectators at various times running onto the field and being chased by security officers.

A smoke bomb, which trailed streams of green smoke, was tossed into right-center field near the 385-foot mark, obscuring outfielders from the crowd of 56,691.

Outfielder Reggie Smith of the Dodgers was struck on the head by a hard rubber ball as the game ended, and he went to the locker room complaining of "spasms down my neck and back."

"They were throwing apples, beer cans, rubber balls and anything they could get their hands on," Smith said. "It was ridiculous." Yankee Stadium security officers announced that nine people had been arrested for "criminal trespass," an offense which carries a maximum fine of $100.

Horns building roadblock for Mojo convoy

By DANNY REAGAN

Sports Editor

The Permian Panthers have scored more than four times the points the Big Spring Steers have this year, 200-48, and they have held their opponents to almost six times as few points as the locals, 13-77.

Permian is riding high in District 5-4A warfare, sporting a spotless 2-0 record, tied with San Angelo for the lead. Big Spring, on the other hand, with an 0-2 record, shares the loop cellar with Midland Lee.

To the uninitiated, it sounds as if the Steers don't have much of a chance. But there are two important factors that give the locals a fighting chance against the black kitties from Odessa and the Mojo-crazy throng that will follow them to Big Spring Friday night.

1) Pride. "Permian is going to try to pour it on us, going after that top ranking in the state," said Steer Coach Don Robbins. "There's a big pride factor involved here. I think our kids have more character than to just throw in the towel. I expect 'em to suck up their guts and go after 'em."

2) Intangibles. In the terminology of Jimmy the Greek, Permian is a prohibitive favorite over the Steers. Big Spring should have an easier time getting mentally prepared for the contest, because Permian thinks of the Steers as a push-over.

While, on the other side of the ledger, the Bovines know beyond a doubt that they are facing one of the best teams in the state of Texas. The difference in motivation alone should keep the Steers even for the first half. Which brings up an interesting point.

Even though PHS erased the locals 53-0 last year, the Horns kept the game even until near the end of the first half. The Steers always seem to hold their own against "mighty" Mojo in the early going. "We've played well in the first half of all our ballgames this year," said Robbins. "And we've been in every game until the last quarter."

"There just seems to be a mental letdown or lack of concentration in the second half. In those games we lost, we made mistakes, costly ones, and the other teams made scores they didn't deserve. We'll just have to make that intensity carry over to the second half this week," Robbins concluded.

Physically, the Steers are weathering nagging injuries and the flu bug as well can be expected. Of course, defensive stalwart Sam Ortega is lost for the season with broken leg, and Johnny Hardeman will be taking his place.

The game begins at 8 o'clock and a large crowd from Odessa is expected to follow Permian over. Even though there will be a World Series game played Friday night, a sizable local following is also expected. All fans are reminded to dress warmly.

Indicative of the toughness of the game was a comment Robbins made Wednesday: "Today is usually the day we look at our opponents' goal-line defense on films, so we can adjust our offense accordingly. Permian has only allowed two touchdowns this year, and those came from somewhere near the middle of the field, so we don't know what to expect."

Permian doesn't like anyone coming close to its end-zone. Hopefully, the Steers will show Permian that they don't care what Mojo likes.

STICKY RICE — Midland Bulldog receiver Steve Cole (21) may have caught this pass last Friday night, but Steer defensive secondary standout Kent Rice made sure he didn't go far with it. Midland only completed three passes against the Steers. The Bovines host the Permian Panthers this Friday in Memorial Stadium.

Volleyball teams end 1st half race

The Big Spring High School volleyball team took second place in the first half of the District 5-4A whiteball wars Tuesday night by virtue of a 15-11, 15-4 win over San Angelo in Steer gym.

The win gave the local feds a district record of 6-1, and a season reading of 19-4. Leading scorers included Rose Magers (11), Casie Green (8), Karen Tibbs (4) and Sherri Kelley (4).

"The girls played a good ballgame," said Coach Nancy Deason, "and Becky Ragan, Magers, Johnson and Green had a good offensive effort, while Tibbs and Green had a good backcourt game."

The Junior Varsity squad also defeated Angelo 15-12, 15-13 to win the first half conference race. The JV's finished 7-0 in district and 14-2 overall. Brenda Bell was high-point with 12, and Salina Harris accounted for seven.

Permian, the only team to beat the Big Spring varsity took the first half crown. All three high school teams will see action tonight in Denver City, in non-conference bouts, with the freshman game beginning at 5, the JV's at 6 and the varsity at 7 p.m.

Gentleman Bob Breunig is most serious Cowboy

DALLAS — When you spot him on Sunday morning in the hotel, standing in a brown, three-piece suit ushering teammates into devotional services, handsome Dallas Cowboys middle linebacker Bob Breunig looks every bit the part of what he is — a friendly, outgoing gentleman.

When you catch him at the practice field clubhouse, he's often strumming his guitar. He and fellow third-year man and linebacker Thomas Henderson recorded a soulful version of "Ain't Too Proud to Beg" last week, to the delight of a local radio man.

At one time, while in college at Arizona State, Breunig earned spending money by playing and singing in a supper club. His Elvis Presley renditions are always in great demand at dinner during summer training camp. And Breunig's musical talents lend plenty to his church choir and to Sunday devotions on the road.

But once he steps into his silver-blue and white Cowboys uniform on Sunday, the new man in the middle for Dallas is such a competitor that the adjectives fierce, intense or tough are trite when used to describe Breunig.

"He is without question the most intense, hardest-working, serious football player I have ever seen," says Jerry Tubbs, the Cowboys linebacker coach and original Dallas MLB in the expansion season 1960. "He comes to practice every day with blood in his eyes," says Henderson.

"Bob is totally committed to performing even the practice drills as hard as he can," Tubbs went on. "He's doing such a great job for us this year, not just tackling and playing pass defense, but he's learning rapidly about calling audibles, the ones he calls himself and the ones (pertaining to pass coverage changes) he relays from Charlie Waters."

Naturally the comparison to retired Lee Roy Jordan, who replaced Tubbs in the middle in 1963 and remained there until he retired at the end of last season (when Breunig was a starter at strongside linebacker), comes up every time Breunig is discussed this year.

"When Lee Roy first joined us, he had great quickness and retained that throughout his career," Tubbs related.

DALLAS COWBOYS

"He was smart and a hard hitter, although a little light at 215 pounds."

"Where Lee Roy had the good quickness, Bob has excellent speed, better than Jordan's. And Breunig is smart — not just football smart, he has total smarts — about everything. He's a very solid, complete young man."

After racking up 63 tackles and 33 assists and recovering three fumbles last year, Breunig is enjoying himself more than ever this season as the axis of Domesday II, the new moniker for Dallas' famed defensive tradition.

"Yes, I'm making progress at middle linebacker," Breunig replied to the obvious question following the 30-24 Cowboys' win in St. Louis last Sunday, a game in which Breunig was credited with six tackles, giving him better than 40 total takeaways for the year, tops on the club.

"I'm getting plenty of help from Coach (Ernie) Statner on the sidelines and Coach Tubbs in the press box upstairs," reported Breunig. "They call the defense, which I relay in the huddle. I'm responsible for the audibles. In our flex defense, we read and play the gaps. It's a coordinated defense so it takes considerable concentration and our guys are playing smart defense this year. That's important in what we're trying to do."

"Thomas and I are young linebackers, and we require and are getting considerable help from the secondary. All our linemen are playing well and D.D. (Lewis) is playing the weakside linebacker superbly." (Lewis had eight tackles against the Cardinals.)

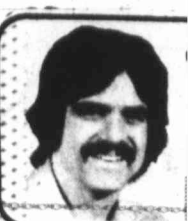

"Mostly, though, I'm really having fun out there this year, enjoying football and the early success we've had," Breunig concluded.

Asked about a square-off the seemingly mild-mannered Breunig had in the first half with Cardinals middle linebacker Tim Kearney, who was in the game for a St. Louis field goal attempt, Breunig shrugged and said, "He swung around at me after the play was over so I decided we'd better talk about that. There was a lot of talking out there today. I kept wanting to say 'okay, but let's just play football.'"

"Old 'Brug-Dog' was a little upset on that one," said close friend and fellow defender Randy White, who tried to play peacemaker between Breunig and Kearney but was rebuffed by Breunig. "Bob can take care of himself." That he can. And he also adds so much to any church

'UH railroaded'--Shepard

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston freshman quarterback Darrell Shepard refuses to name names but he says he was offered a lot "under the table" by some schools.

The former Odessa high school standout said Houston was not among them and that UH "has never given me anything."

He said UH was the victim of "a railroad job" in being assessed a one-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) in connection with alleged recruiting violations in signing him.

"I know today that I haven't done anything wrong," Shepard said. "And the University of Houston has never given me anything. But I was offered a lot—and I mean a lot—under the table by some other schools."

"I was offered cars and money, mostly by alumni of schools. But one coach made an offer that was under the table."

He said if it were up to him he would elaborate but UH Coach Bill Yeoman had told him not to say anything about any other schools.

"He feels it wouldn't do any good," Shepard said.

In addition to Houston, Shepard visited SMU, Baylor, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

Shepard admitted he did say yes to Texas but changed his mind after visiting Houston.

He said he feels some animosity toward Texas.

"They're trying to make me ineligible just because I didn't go to school there," he said.

He said the NCAA investigators visited his home about three times during the summer and that each visit

Bears will start Smith

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Scott Smith has been given the starting quarterback assignment for Baylor Saturday against Texas A&M in Waco.

Coach Grant Teaff said the freshman looked better in practice this week than sophomore Greg Wood, although Teaff said Wood will see plenty of action at Smith's backup.

The quarterback shuffle was necessary because Sammy Bickham underwent knee surgery this week and is lost for the season.

When Simpson asked to be traded, he cited as one reason his wife Marquerite's aversion to living in Buffalo. That and earlier deprecatory remarks didn't sit well with residents of the city.

"I think most of those things were grossly misinterpreted. I'm from the West Coast, and that's where my interests are. I don't have anything against Buffalo. I just have other preferences," he said.

Many fans suspect Simpson of having an overinflated ego, a charge refuted by those who work with him behind-the-scenes.

Simpson thinks "it will take a miracle" for him to play in a Super Bowl now, but takes consolation in others' high esteem for him.

'They never took the time'--Simpson

BUFFALO (AP) — O.J. Simpson is second cousin to retired baseball star Ernie Banks, a relationship in which he sees some irony.

Noting Banks played 19 seasons for the Chicago Cubs and never got in a World Series, Simpson said he didn't make trip

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The stories continue on the amazing circumstances that enabled third baseman Randy McEachern to lead Texas to its first victory over Oklahoma in seven years last Saturday.

McEachern guided Texas to a 13-6 victory after Texas' No. 1 and No. 2 quarterbacks were lost to injuries within a few minutes of the first quarter.

As late as the Wednesday before the game, McEachern confided to friends, "They might as well not even take me to Dallas. No third team quarterback ever got to play against Oklahoma."

Series, Simpson grinned and said, "I guess it just runs in the family, huh?"

In eight-plus seasons, Simpson's Buffalo Bills are 40-74-2, and are currently saddled with a 14-game losing streak. They seem light years away from making the Super Bowl, Simpson's great goal as a player.

This summer a frustrated Simpson verbally blasted the Bills management for its failure to build a contender. More recently he said, "I can't be second-guessing Ralph (Bills owner Ralph Wilson)."

But then he added, "After last season I thought it was apparent that some changes needed to be made. But they didn't make any. Instead they let two players (offensive linemen Donnie Green and Mike Montler) who had helped the team go."

Simpson also pointed out that several former Bills, such as wide receivers Ahmad Rashad and J.D. Hill, are now mainstays on other teams.

"They never took the time to develop players here. If a player didn't look good at first, he was gone. You have to give players time. Look at New England. They've got

Erleben bugged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Freddie Akers hopes the bug that hospitalized kicker Russell Erleben Wednesday is not going to affect his performance in Saturday's Southwest Conference showdown game with Arkansas.

Halfback Johnny Ham Jones, who injured an ankle in Texas' 13-6 victory over Oklahoma, ran at near full speed in the practice.

basically the same players now that they had three years ago when we were running all over them."

Simpson believes the Bills are currently building a potential winner under coach Jim Ringo, but he said, "I'm not going to see it. It takes time to build a young team like this."

The club failed to work out a requested trade last year that would have sent Simpson to a West Coast team, a contender, he hoped. The Los Angeles Rams actively pursued Simpson but felt Wilson's asking price (reportedly defensive end Jack Youngblood, back Lawrence McCutcheon, tackle Mike Fanning and two top draft choices) was too high.

Simpson now is certain he will end his career in Buffalo.

"It's never even crossed my mind that I might be traded after this season. I'm not going to ask for it."

THROUGH the fieldglasses

By Danny Reagan

Injuries plague Steers

The loss of Sammy Ortega last week to a broken leg sustained in the Midland game turned out to be a harbinger of more black clouds on the Big Spring horizon.

Ortega was one of the main links in the defensive chain fence for the Steers. It now appears that the locals will be without the services Friday night of three very important offensive links.

Billy Johnson, the leading stat-maker at quarterback, will definitely be out of action Friday against Permian with a separated shoulder, an injury also resultant of the Midland contest.

Leading rusher for the Bovines, Robbie Wegner, and punter Ricky Cluck are also doubtful for the game. Wegner has been hampered by a slight neck injury that has to be watched carefully. Cluck has been nursing a sprain.

Other members of the local squad have been flattened by the flu this week, but most are expected to be recovered sufficiently to participate Friday.

There is one football game in the city tonight. The Runnels White squad hosts Sweetwater at Blankenship Field. Kickoff is 5:30 p.m.

The BSHS junior varsity will travel to Odessa for a 7 p.m. meeting with the Permian subs, while the 9th grade will be traveling to Pecos for a 5 p.m. contest tonight. Runnels Red plays in Snyder at 7:30 p.m.

The Goliad White squad will journey to Lamesa Saturday for a 10:30 a.m. showdown. Goliad Black is open this week.

All three BSHS volleyball teams will be in Denver City tonight.

You'll notice in the scorecard today that A&I is still listed as number one in the NAIA top twenty poll. They nudged Abilene Christian out of the top spot by only eight votes.

Dewitt Jones, the coach of the ACU wildcats, is not going to be happy about the rankings at all.

Shortly after the game Saturday night, Jones said: "They (A&I) were supposed to win and we were supposed to lose, but they didn't win and we didn't lose. I think we should be number one."

The other two teams from Texas in the top twenty are Angelo State in San Angelo (4th), and East Texas State in Commerce (10th).

Upset special of the week in all of football will be SMU's over the Houston Cougars.

Both SMU's and Houston's last games were against Baylor and the results were different...but not that different. Last Saturday in Waco, Baylor edged SMU 9-6 with two fourth quarter field goals by Robert Bledsoe.

Two weeks ago, Houston rallied for a touchdown with 39 seconds left in the game for a 28-24 win over the Bears in the Astrodome. Baylor had gone ahead with 5:21 left.

SMU has never lost indoors, taking a 28-27 decision over Oklahoma in the 1968 Bluebonnet Bowl, and a 26-16 win over Houston two years ago.

That's not the main reason the Ponies will win, though. Throughout the season, SMU has remained relatively injury free. Coog quarterback Danny Davis heads the list of major injuries that plagues Houston right now.

But main factor is Uncle Moe Mentum. Since the opening win over UCLA, Houston's uncle has been slowly slipping out of sight. Despite the three losses on SMU's side of the ledger, the Ponies' uncle is hanging loose, ready for an upset.

SCORE: SMU 26, Houston 14.

Horns and Hogs are wide eye-openers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Coach Fred Akers says both Texas and Arkansas — matched in a nationally televised game Saturday — are eye-openers.

Neither was ranked among the top 20 college football teams in pre-season, but Texas has won four straight to vault to No. 2 and Arkansas, also 4-0, is No. 8.

They will play for at least a share of the Southwest Conference lead before a sellout crowd of 43,500 at Fayetteville, Ark.

"They — like us — have opened the eyes of people around the country," Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday.

"Offensively, they have a similar scheme," said Akers, a former Arkansas quarterback. "They have a running back who can break games open. Ben Cowins is third in the nation in rushing."

"They are balanced offensively with big-play potential, like us. On defense — like us — they count on quickness."

Texas' Russell Erxleben "has established himself as the best kicker in the country," Akers said, "and Steve Little (of Arkansas) is right behind him, in the same category."

Club members gave Akers a standing ovation in recognition of Texas' 13-6 upset of Oklahoma Saturday, and Akers said the "tremendous feeling" that comes from beating the Sooners lingers on.

He introduced his 10 assistants, who also were applauded.

"All of us share the great feeling we have from playing Oklahoma and defeating them for the first time in several years," Akers said.

"We expect to benefit many ways (from the victory)," Akers said, "not the least of which is our confidence as a football team. What we appreciate most is that we didn't have to have any gifts to win it."

Texas lost both its top quarterbacks for the season with injuries, and someone asked Akers if it appeared that Oklahoma had intentionally tried to cripple starter Mark McBath or sub Jon Aune.

"No," Akers replied, "They (the injuries) came strictly through aggressive football. It was just unfortunate."

McBath suffered a broken left leg, and an Oklahoma lineman stumbling into Aune's right knee "wiped his knee out," Akers said.

Offensive guard Craig Rider is "extremely doubtful" with a strained knee for the Arkansas game. Akers said it was not yet known whether halfback Johnny "Ham" Jones' sore ankle will respond in time for him to play. In addition, linebacker Mark Martignoni has strained abdominal muscles.

"The key to (winning) the (Oklahoma) ball game," he said, "was allowing them only three points in the third quarter when they had the advantage of the wind."

Arkansas, he said, "has renewed enthusiasm. They are a fine talented outfit" and to beat them "will require our very best."

Rice dismissed at SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Tailback Paul Rice, whose sparkling schoolboy career floundered amid injury and discipline problems at two other colleges, has been dismissed from the Southern Methodist football team for disciplinary reasons.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said Wednesday that he would not comment on the reasons why Rice was kicked off the team other than to say it was disciplinary in nature.

Rice, who galloped for more than 5,000 yards while at Lewisville High School, missed practice both Tuesday and Wednesday.

"I'm disappointed," said Meyer in a curt announcement.

Meyer had given Rice a spot on the Mustang team when the 5-foot-10, 190-pounder came to him during fall training. Rice was SMU's second leading rusher this year with 291 yards on 78 carries.

Rice signed a Southwest Conference letter of intent with SMU after becoming a schoolboy All-America at Lewisville High School, but inked a national letter with USC. He quit after an injury-plagued freshman year.

He transferred to Ranger Junior College and played three games last season before he was dismissed from the team after a dispute with some teammates. Rice enrolled in a local junior college, earned a degree, and came to SMU on the first day of fall practice.

Rice started for the Mustangs for the first two games at running back, breaking 38 yards for one touchdown, and had shared time with tailback Arthur Whittington for the past three games.

Allison begins rehabilitation

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech officials say Red Raider quarterback Rodney Allison will begin rehabilitation immediately.

Doctors removed the cast from Allison's broken leg Wednesday.

Coach Steve Sloan said Allison will have to stay on crutches for at least three days before beginning his full recovery program.

DRIVING DEFLECTION — Stanton's Todd Smith (10) came sailing through the air Friday night to deflect this fourth down Anson passing attempt, which killed the visitors' last potential scoring drive. Smith sparked the Buffaloes offensively, scoring on runs of 70 and 48-yards in the fourth period, as Stanton rolled to a 33-6 win. It was Stanton's last non-district game. The Buffs will be open this week and will entertain top-ranked Seagraves in their District 5-A opener next Friday.

Report release scuttles House reform plan?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prominent House Republican says release of a report showing congressmen spent tax money for bar association dues and staff parties scuttled the latest House reform plan.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said the report's release "pushed the buggy over the cliff." Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the House had been driven by "a wave of resentment" against reform.

The House voted 252 to 160 Wednesday against considering the reform package, apparently dooming the measure for this year.

The day before, the clerk of the House released a report detailing how congressmen spent their $2,000 annual "district allowance" in the first six months of this year.

The accounts are meant to pay official expenses outside Washington.

The report showed some congressmen used the money for concert tickets, bar association dues, car insurance and even a rented tuxedo.

(AP Wirephoto) OBEY ON HOUSE REFORMS — Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., faces newsmen in Washington Wednesday where he commented on proposals for reform in the House of Representatives. Obey chairs the commission on Administrative Review.

Three retire from Bell

Three Big Spring residents have retired from telephone careers with the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Lucille Long, a Bell operator for 31 years, has been a Big Spring resident since 1930. Before joining Bell, Mrs. Long worked as a desk clerk at the Crawford Motel and as an operator at the Settles Hotel.

A member of the Church of Christ and the Telephone Pioneers, Mrs. Long enjoys knitting, collecting books and taking care of her pet poodle.

After retirement, Mrs. Long plans to take a vacation to Minnesota.

Goldna Johnson, a native of Big Spring, has been with the company for 31 years. Mrs. Johnson is looking forward to rest and a possible vacation.

Bonnie Tubb has been an operator for 30 years. Mrs. Tubb began working for the company in 1944 in Abilene. In 1945, Mrs. Tubb moved back to Big Spring.

She is mother of three and a member of the Church of Christ and the Telephone Pioneers.

Quilting class is scheduled

A class in how to quilt with Mrs. Othelle Nichols and Ms. Katie Webber as instructors, has been announced by the Continuing Education Department at Howard College.

The six-week course is designed to appeal to persons wishing to learn the basic principle of quilt-making — making patterns for the top, piecing, preparation for quilting, and making the quilt. The size of the class will be limited to 12 participants, and registration is $12.00. Class sessions will be 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays in the Art Building.

Interested persons may pre-register with Dr. Bobby R. Wright, Dean of Occupational Education, or obtain additional information by calling 267-6311 extension 70.

After its release, one congressman said, legislators stood in the rear of the House chamber "and whispered among themselves (that) those reformers are always getting us in trouble."

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the commission that drafted the reform plan, said the vote represented a frustration with "the acid reign of criticism over the past number of years."

"People are tired of having this institution shot at, sometimes for good reason, sometimes for lousy reasons," he said.

"This was an opportunity to vent frustration," he said, and the resentment "just exploded. ... Members had just had it."

The package drafted by the Commission on Administrative Review would have changed the way the House's $250 million operation is managed. The proposals would have streamlined day-to-day House operations by naming an administrator, auditor and comptroller and by establishing a personnel office.

The measure also would have created a three-member committee to screen personnel complaints. Congressional employees have complained they are not protected from race, sex or job discrimination because Congress exempted itself from civil rights laws.

All 139 Republicans present voted against the plan. Some 113 Democrats opposed it despite pleas for support from O'Neill, who said, "You'll have to answer to the public. The public wants this place cleaned up."

Some Republicans, noting that certain perquisites would be expanded under the measure, said the "reform" would cost taxpayers $6 million.

"The cynics were right," Anderson said. "This isn't reform. It's higher allowances, more perquisites, more spending."

Carter asked to intervene in dock strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey has asked President Carter to intervene personally to end the 13-day-old strike by 50,000 East and Gulf coast dockworkers before the walkout wrecks the progress the country has made toward economic recovery.

The request was telegraphed to the White House Wednesday evening by Alan Sagner, chairman of the authority, as some 90 ships carrying "containerized" cargo lay strikebound on three coasts.

The ships are stranded because Atlantic and Gulf Coast members of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) are refusing to unload cargo that is sealed and shipped in truck-sized steel vans. The vans have eliminated much of the need manual labor and has cost tens of thousands of jobs nationwide.

And on the Pacific Coast 12 ships are full and idle because the independent International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union is respecting the ILA's picket lines under a mutual aid agreement.

The appeal to Carter followed a hint from Labor Secretary Ray Marshall that the federal government might act if the strike worsens.

But the impact of the strike is already being felt in the maritime states, with one freight forwarder calling the strike "the worst in 20 years" and saying "at least 200,000" persons have been thrown out of work.

Under federal statutes the dock workers could be ordered back to work for an 80-day cooling off period. This would give negotiators and mediators time possibly to resolve the dispute.

But Marshall reiterated the Carter administration's wish to avoid interference if the dispute is confined to containerized shipping.

The strike at present is selective, with automated ships the target. But in New Orleans, the nation's second largest port after New York, there is a wildcat general strike against all shipping and a new effort is under way to end the walkout.

The selective strike here in the No. 1 port is almost as severe as the general work stoppage in New Orleans because 70 per cent of the cargo handled in New York is automated.

There have been threats of an expanded strike nationwide to completely paralyze the shipping industry until the ILA gets what it wants — increased job protection for dock workers.

ILA leaders believe federal intervention would merely delay an expanded dock strike.

In his message, Sagner told Carter that the strike against containerized cargo ships, including those carrying trailer trucks and loaded barges, involved issues "so complex as to cast doubt on the ability of the parties to come to any resolution quickly."

Sagner asserted that New York is "the premier container port of the U.S. and serves as the anchor for the economic well-being of the Northeast in international trade."

"I implore you to take a personal hand ... to get the ports back to work and avoid a most serious economic blow to the eastern half of the country, particularly the hard-hit Northeast," he told Carter.

Wayne L. Horwitz, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, maintained contact by telephone with Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the ILA, and with chief negotiator, James J. Dickman.

However, there appeared to be no prospect for an agreement as the various port managements resisted pressure to join in guaranteeing pay and benefits for longshoremen left jobless or whose jobs have been threatened by automation.

Meanwhile, Arthur C. Rutzen, district director here of the Domestic and International Business Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, saw a likely worsening of the record balance of payments deficit, already projected at $25-$30 billion, because of continuing oil imports coinciding with a halt in exports.

In addition, Rutzen estimated that business losses from the strike "could run into billions of dollars."

Freight forwarder James Evans, suddenly jobless in Manhattan, said over 200,000 along the east Coast were besieging unemployment offices as the dock strike curbed export production and visited disaster on shipping firms and trucking companies serving the waterfront.

The Port Authority estimated 400,000 jobs in this port alone were vulnerable in a shipping strike after a busy summer of stockpiling goods for Christmas, from electronic appliances to Scotch whisky.

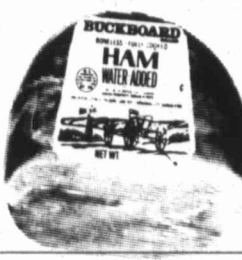

The dock strike has greatly benefitted international air carriers, including Seaboard World Airlines which developed a special 20-foot container for air freight.

The airlines are carrying capacity loads and adding extra flights to enable merchandise to reach stores ahead of the Christmas season. Airline spokesmen say transoceanic flights are fully loaded with high-cost, light and compact goods.

United Cargo Corp., which employs only ILA members to consolidate or unpack and sort multiple cargoes moved in a single-container, reported business was fine. The 200 or so containers it normally has in transit at any one time were removed from ships and piers before the strike began Oct. 1. Isaac Charchat, president of the firm, said shipments were continuing without trouble, using routes he declined to reveal.

Texas laws said inadequate to protect rights

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas laws are "grossly inadequate" for protecting the civil rights of the citizens of this state, says Attorney General John Hill.

Texas should lead the way in the South and Southwest on protecting civil rights and outlawing discrimination, Hill told the Austin Legal Secretaries Association Wednesday.

"Inadequate" state laws force state officials to ask the Justice Department to prosecute under federal law, he said.

Morales, "took him into an isolated country road, ordered his deputy and a companion away and then shot Morales," Hill said.

A San Angelo jury convicted Hayes of "the lesser included offense" of aggravated assault and gave him a 10-year sentence.

Hayes was tried in Waco under the federal civil rights law and found guilty. The maximum sentence under that law is life imprisonment, Hill said.

Two Houston police officers were convicted in Huntsville last week of criminally negligent homicide in the drowning death of Torres, who "allegedly either jumped or was pushed into the bayou."

Legislature should pass a bill similar to the one sponsored this year by Sen. A. R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, prohibiting discrimination in employment, education and real property transactions. The bill also would create a Commission on Human Rights.

Government retakes prison

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — The government has regained control of the Jalisco state penitentiary after a two-day uprising in which the rebels reportedly killed 14 trustees.

"Things are returning to normal," said Warden Pedro Parra after guards armed with nightsticks returned to the cellblocks Wednesday.

He did not indicate whether any action would be taken against any of the 400 rebels.

The warden announced earlier that he had agreed to the rebels' demands. The key one was abolition of the trusty system under which inmate "coordinators" helped the guards control the other inmates and also did thriving businesses in the sale of private cells, special meals and other privileges.

The rebels said the trustees who were killed had abused, beaten and threatened other prisoners. They also demanded better food, better medical care and more jobs.

Prison officials said 14 of the 30 guards resigned during the rebellion. The use of prisoners to control other prisoners is widespread in Mexican jails, but Parra said he had abolished the trusty system in his

Writers get 10 awards

NASHVILLE (AP) — Songwriters Jerry Foster and Bill Rice and songwriter-publisher Ray Griff have been selected for 10 awards each at the 14th annual Country Music Awards Banquet of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Griff won five awards as a writer and five as a producer.

Narvel Felts won four awards as the top recording artist.

Producer of the year honors went to Billy Sherill with eight awards.

At a similar banquet Tuesday night, "Misty Blue" was honored as the most performed Broadcast Music, Inc. country song of the year. It was written in 1966 by Bob Montgomery.

Lovers make suicide pact, found in lake

POTTSBORO, Tex. (AP) — An accused child molester and his married girlfriend found lashed together and floating in Lake Texoma died in an apparent lover's suicide pact, according to authorities.

Albert Max Lamb, 46, of Fort Worth, and Mrs. Jean Finlayson Clark, 53, of suburban Benbrook, "just walked out together, either until the water was over their heads or until they decided to sit down," Grayson County Sheriff Jack Driskell said after the bodies were discovered by three fishermen Wednesday.

Driskell said the bodies were bound at their waists by a four-foot length of nylon rope. He said two notes to authorities were found inside vitamin bottles placed in pockets and pinned shut by safety pins. He said a third note that read: "This is a suicide pact. Two bodies are in the lake. One was found in a vehicle parked on a nearby lake road."

Lamb was charged Saturday with the Sept. 9-11 rape and sexual abuse of a 12-year-old girl and sexual abuse of a 14-year-old boy. The flight simulator technician at the American Airlines Flight Academy near Fort Worth was released on $1,500 bond Monday.

James Clark Jr., identified his wife's body Wednesday afternoon, Driskell said. Lamb was identified through papers found on his body.

Driskell said Clark notified him of his wife's disappearance Tuesday afternoon. He said Clark told him he had found a note that said she and her boyfriend were going to Lake Texoma to kill themselves.

A spokesman for the Dallas County Medical Examiners Office said autopsies would be performed today on both bodies to determine cause of death.

No place for Raza Unida?

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe blames the Raza Unida political party for economic problems in South Texas.

In an exclusive interview with the San Angelo Standard-Times, Briscoe zeroed in on the Raza Unida party while commenting on the recent cutoff of gas to Crystal City, which is in Zavala County. The gas was shut off for non-payment of a bill.

La Raza Unida is a political organization of Mexican-Americans. The party is headquartered in troubled Crystal City, and most of its leaders live there, including Zavala County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez.

The theme was not an unfamiliar one for Briscoe, who has called a cooperative business project in Zavala County a "little Cuba."

Gutierrez has accused Briscoe of trying to block federal projects for economic development of the county.

Briscoe compared Crystal City, where Raza Unida won city elections, to nearby Carrizo Springs, where the party is not a dominant factor.

He said both cities were prosperous in the 1950s.

"Today, following the takeover by Raza Unida in Crystal City, Carrizo Springs remains healthy, but in Crystal City it is exactly the opposite," Briscoe said. "It is a sad commentary on what can happen to an once-thriving community. The fault lies with the dependence on federal funds encouraged by Crystal City leaders. "In practical terms there is no room in Texas for Raza Unida."

Briscoe's remarks came before he addressed the West Texas Conference on State Affairs at Angelo State University. The conference ended Wednesday.

Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., also spoke to the group and also hammered a familiar theme.

The announced candidate for Republican John Tower's Senate seat said that regulation of oil and gas would cost Texans jobs.

Ridin' fence

Horned toad squabble

with Marj Carpenter

The environmentalists got after the Ector County Fair Association because they were going to have a horned toad race. Nobody was going to hurt the horned toads. They were simply to be placed in a circle and the first one out was to win.

Gee whiz, Mark Twain wrote about hop toad races years ago. I guess those people were evil too. For that matter, horses race and so do people. Maybe the environmentalists will get after somebody for track meets. Only I have the feeling that they're trying to protect everybody except people. Now, I like streams and mountains and trees and grass as much as the next one. I think litter is ugly. But I think we're getting over on the other side of the pendulum with some of the environmentalist stuff.

Horned toads have always been a big attraction to Easterners or Damn Yankees or whatever you want to call them. But horned toads don't usually create much excitement in West Texas.

Children have caught them for years and played with them. They don't bite. One encyclopedia maintains that on rare occasions, they will bite.

Usually when severely provoked, two different encyclopedias report, horned toads will squirt blood from the membranes around their eyes for a distance as far as three or four feet.

This usually creates enough excitement to scatter everybody around. They are not toads at all, but are really a horned lizard. Encyclopedia Americana says there are 14 species of them while Collier's Encyclopedia says there are 27 species.

They prefer to eat ants and love red ants. Boy Scouts have for many years taken them to National Jamboree and traded them off. First thing you know somebody will be saying Boy Scouts are cruel.

Horned toads have the ability to flatten themselves and get through a very small crack.

About 20 years ago, there were a lot of stories circulated about a horned toad found alive in a cornerstone that was reopened after 40 years.

However, authorities declare that horned toads cannot live inside of stone and if one survived, he lived on insects which crept through the cracks. They didn't say what the horned toad did for water.

In Pecos, when they demolished an old school building, they thought they had trapped a horned toad in the cornerstone. But he was gone. Apparently, he slipped out the cracks when the foundation began to fall or he dried up and went away.

Come to think of it, putting those horned toads in cornerstones was probably crueler than letting them run out of a circle.

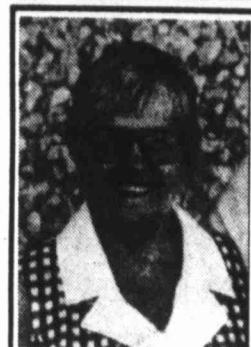

Horned toads use their head and short horns to burrow in the ground. They give birth to live young. They are found in Southwest Canada, Southwest United States and Mexico. They don't like it back east.

But they like it out around Big Spring and will clean up your red and bed if you let them. They'll enter a race and go back and eat some more ants.

Just don't hit them with sticks. They have been known to puff on cigarettes. I don't know whether that's cruel or not, but people do it.

And that's the way it is with the horned toads — and I know where there are lots of happy horned toads that race, eat ants and lie in the sun — but don't tell the environmentalists — out where I ride fence.

Weight-losing pills in short supply?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If a federal agency has its way, overweight Americans may find some of the pills they depend on to lose weight in short supply.

The Food and Drug Administration wants to curb production of amphetamines, the habit-forming "pep pills" that it says do little to curb hungry appetites.

"We intend to make them less available at the drug store for use in obesity control," FDA spokesman Jack Walden said Wednesday, adding that the focus will be on "housewife addiction."

"Our hope is they won't be available at the drug store for that purpose at all."

As part of its effort, the FDA has asked the Justice Department to use its authority to curb production. He said more effective and less habit forming weight-control drugs are now available.

The FDA has not asked the Justice Department for an outright ban on amphetamines, Walden said, because limited quantities are needed to treat hyperactivity and narcolepsy, a rare condition of uncontrolled sleepiness.

The agency is holding a public hearing Dec. 2 on a proposal, expected to become final by spring, to ban manufacturers from labeling or advertising the drugs for weight control.

Walden said past FDA control on amphetamine production were largely responsible for the number of prescriptions falling from 25 million in 1965 to five million in 1976.

But, he added, "the drug companies had been producing all they could sell."

79, completed his testimony. The legal action was filed by the survivors of Dr. John Hill, a plastic surgeon who was shot to death at his fashionable River Oaks home in 1972.

Robert Hill, 17, Connie Hill, 37, and Myra Hill, 75, the son, widow and mother of the slain doctor allege in the legal action that Robinson arranged Hill's death to avenge the death of Robinson's daughter, Joan Robinson Hill. She was Hill's first wife and Robert's mother.

When he was shot to death by a masked gunman, Hill was awaiting a second trial on charges he killed Joan Hill through medical neglect in 1969. A first trial ended in a mistrial.

No criminal charges have been filed against Robinson and he has testified he had nothing to do with Hill's murder.

After the defense rested, Ray Bass, representing the Hill family, used five rebuttal witnesses to conclude testimony in the case.

Raymond Wooderson, supervisor of records at the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville, testified Bobby Wayne Vandiver was in prison during a period of time a Robinson witness, Hedy Pustejovsky, testified she saw Vandiver in the Hill home.

Vandiver, charged as the triggerman in the Hill slaying, was shot to death by a policeman before going on trial. Two women were convicted as accomplices in the slaying and are serving prison terms.

Mary Ann Grimes, a doctor's wife, testified Hill regularly attended church and often brought Robert with him during his marriages to Joan Hill and later to Connie Hill.

Mrs. Grimes said Hill was not at church services during his nine-month marriage to his second wife, Ann Kurth.

Robinson and Mrs. Kurth had testified that Hill was not a good father and seldom spent time with his son.

Dr. Gerald Johnson and Dr. Tom Biggs, two plastic surgeons, testified they examined the eyelids of Marcia McKittrick and concluded she had not had plastic surgery to make the eyes appear more youthful.

Mrs. Pustejovsky, a former nurse for Hill, had testified that Miss McKittrick came to Hill's office after hours April 21, 1971 for such an operation. She said Hill carried Miss McKittrick out to his car
