PAMPA AND VICINITY — Fair and cooler today and tonight. Partly cloudy and warmer Monday. High today around 48 and the low tonight around 30.

Commission Meets Monday

Petitioners Due 'Check-In' Today

Interest in the Junior Chamber of Commerce recall movement, directed at the ousting of Pampa's mayor and four city commissioners, will be centered on a called meeting of the commission at 9 a.m. tomorrow in City Hall.

The session was scheduled for Monday at an informal conference of the mayor and ward commissioners held last Thursday. Tomorrow's meeting will take the place of the regular Tuesday session.

It is understood the commission will consider routine business and then take any action deemed necessary on any other developments that may arise at the meeting.

In an announcement at the conclusion of Thursday's conference of the city commissioners, Mayor E. C. Sidwell issued a statement which declared:

"The called meeting Monday is for the purpose of discussing situations that have arisen and, if necessary, to take action to clear them."

The current City Hall controversy burst into full bloom after the commission voted at its meeting last Tuesday to oust City Manager John Koontz. Koontz was asked to resign by March 15. The following day the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce met and voted to initiate petitions for the recall of Mayor Sidwell, Commissioners Lloyd Simpson, Newt Secrest, Leon Holmes and L. P. Fort.

Wednesday night the Jaycees held an open meeting at Coronado Inn and the membership voted to accept the board's action. Another meeting was held Thursday night in the Palm Room of City Hall and the Jaycees announced a 4-point policy report setting up their reasons for seeking the recall and placed more than a score of recall petitions in circulation.

Friday, petitions began to circulate in other circles seeking a vote of confidence in the mayor and commissioners and decrying the move of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Ken Dunn, one of the leaders in circulation of petitions expressing confidence in the city commission, said Saturday afternoon that 17 petitions were in circulation in all sections of the city.

Navy's Fallout Shelter Test Ends For 100

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sporting new beards and wearing wide grins, 10 Navy men emerged from two weeks in a cramped nuclear radiation fallout shelter Saturday. Doctors reported they got along fine by doing the twist, playing checkers and talking about food and girls.

The 96 enlisted men, one officer, a Navy doctor and two medical corpsmen gave out sighs of relief as they came blinking out of the tiny shelter below the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Center.

They had proved that underground shelters such as the steel-arch type in which they had lived do not need artifical heat. They also had proved that morale can remain high for 10 men who endure two weeks together in a 25 by 48 foot underground chamber not much bigger than a king-size living room.

The sailors, nearly all right out of boot camp at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center in Illinois, averaged about 18 years of age.

The experiment was a "definite success," said Capt. David Minard, the group's commandant and a medical corps physician.

The men were so isolated that they didn't learn until Saturday that astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had orbited the earth three times.

What do 10 men do for two weeks in a fallout shelter? Minard said the chief topic of conversation was food, plus "a great deal" of talk about girls.

Conference On Disarmament, Summit Hinge On Khrushchev

Soviets Call US Test Plan 'Blackmail'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Official Soviet propaganda organs accused President Kennedy Saturday of "atomic blackmail" and warned that Russia would take all the necessary measures" for its security when the United States resumes nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

"Now as never before, it is "necessary measures" for its sesome immeasurably hot champions of the arms drive," commentator V. Matveyev wrote in the official government newspaper Izvestia.

It was believed Premier Khrushchev would reply in person to President Kennedy's speech when Khrushchev goes before a meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting in Moscow on Monday.

Earlier, the official Soviet Tass News Agency said "Kennedy has tied up the forthcoming United States nuclear tests in the atmosphere with disarmament negotiations...thus making a clumsy attempt to justify himself before the world. Moreover, he made use of maneuvers strongly reminiscent of blackmail."

Reaction Is Expected To Follow 'Tough' Line

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fate of the Geneva Disarmament conference and a possible summit meeting hinged Saturday on Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's reaction to President Kennedy's decision to resume above-ground nuclear weapons tests.

Khrushchev's response was expected to be tough, expanding on the "blackmail" and "aggression" charges already voiced by the Russian press. Officials said his political position required the most vigorous reaction.

The premier is under fire from the Chinese Communists and some elements at home for taking a too-soft attitude toward the West. But there was some doubt here that he would go so far as to torpedo the 18-nation disarmament meeting scheduled to begin March 14.

Officials said they thought it more likely he would want to use the conference—to be attended by five Communist, five NATO, and eight neutral nations — as a sounding board to rally world opinion against the resumption of U. S. tests.

There was even a revival of speculation that Khrushchev might go to Geneva himself despite the refusal of most other heads of state to accept his recent proposal to turn the meeting ino a summit session.

Khrushchev late Saturday had still not replied to the message Kennedy sent him a week ago rejecting the idea of opening the conference at the summit but offering a top-level session later if developments warranted.

Officials here expect that a definite clue to Khrushchev's intentions would emerge Monday in his opening-day speech to the Moscow meeting of the Russian Communist Party's Central Committee. While the conference is billed as being devoted primarily to agricultural problems, U. S. officials said they did not see how the Soviet leader could ignore major cold war problems in his speech.

Meanwhile, officials of the five Western countries to be represented at Geneva — the United States, Britain, France, Canada, and Italy—pressed ahead with work on the three - phase disarmament proposal they plan to present. The proposal is based in general on the plan the United States laid before the United Nations last September.

City and school officials in Pampa have joined in a city-wide observance of Texas Public Schools Week Monday through Friday.

Gov. Price Daniel has issued a proclamation designating the period as Public Schools Week in Texas and Mayor E. C. Sidwell Saturday proclaimed the week in Pampa.

The outstanding purpose is to encourage parents to visit the schools at any time during the school week and to urge all citizens, through special programs to recognize the importance of education.

Mayor Sidwell's proclamation follows:

"WHEREAS, Texas Public Schools Week, since its inauguration by the Texas Citizens Committee for Public Schools Week in 1951, has become an outstanding observance which attracted well over a million visitors to Texas Schools each year; and

"WHEREAS, Since the administration and operation of the public schools of Texas constitute a public trust which has been delegated largely to local boards of education, it is desirable that citizens who elect the local boards be well-informed concerning their schools; and

"WHEREAS, The provision of planned opportunities for citizens to visit in the schools offers a suitable means of encouraging their participation in the contin-

'She Would Have Wanted It That Way'

Mrs. Call's Students Presented Play 2 Hours Before Her Funeral

By TEX DeWEESE

Members of the Downtown Kiwanis Club saw a segment of Pampa's Young America in action in a patriotic play at Stephen F. Austin elementary school Friday.

The service club held its weekly luncheon at the school in connection with the upcoming observance of Texas Public Schools Week March 5-9 in Pampa.

Pupils of the sixth grade class of the late Mrs. W. L. Call staged the play, "Birth of Our Nation," for the Kiwanians. They put on the production, which Mrs. Call had written and directed, just two hours before funeral rites for the teacher were held in First Methodist Church.

She died suddenly in a local doctor's office Tuesday morning, after being stricken ill in her classroom.

Members of the cast conferred with school officials and Principal D. V. Biggers said the students decided to go ahead with the staging of the 45-minute play because they thought it would be the wish of Mrs. Call who had worked so hard with them in rehearsals.

It was lavishly staged for a school presentation with authentic colonial costumes and scenery, prepared for the production by teachers and parents. Principal Biggers said most of the scenery had been designed by Mrs. Call.

The cast of children was given an ovation by the Kiwanians at the play's end and they were forced to take an extra curtain call.

An hour and a half later many of them, accompanied by parents, attended the funeral of their teacher who had directed and rehearsed them for their big moment Friday.

At the close of the play, Principal Biggers addressed the Kiwanians briefly. He spoke of the hard work Mrs. Call and the children had put in on the play.

The production was the story of our founding fathers, the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and the fight for freedom and victory.

"I think this production is an example of some of the work of dedicated teachers in America," Biggers said. "You can bank on it that every boy and girl in this cast knows his early American history just from taking part in this play."

The sixth grade pupils were letter perfect in their lines. There wasn't a bobble in the entire production.

James Maule, who had the longest lines as he gave Patrick Henry's famous "give me liberty, or give me death" speech, was excellent in his part, as were others in the roles of historically-known patriots and colonial ladies.

The play will be repeated again at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the school auditorium for parents and the student body.

Town Crier, Dinah Elder; Reader, LaGaylia Williamson; Reader and Patricia Carter, Candy Forkel; First member and Carroll, Larry Turcotte; Second member and John Hancock, John Marsh; Third member and Robert Livingston and Mr. Wythe, Steve Sumners; Richard Henry Lee, Terry Denny; Mrs. Wythe, Lynda Gunn; First girl, Glenda Lockhart; Second girl, Gail Cradduck.

Soldiers: Gary Richardson, Randy Hall, Dinah Elder, Karen Matheny, Barbara Smith, Renee Secrest, Debra Nichols, Janet Swanson.

Butler, Steve Grady; Waitresses, Penny Nichols and Beverly Stephens.

Operetta At Lefors Called Off

LEFORS (Spl) — Due to the large number of grade school students who have been absent due to illness around Lefors, Superintendent Jerry Jacobs and Principle Alex Swenn have decided to call off the children's Operetta which was scheduled for The Texas Public School Week program on March 5th.

Bill McGowan, music director, will go ahead with the same type program presented last year. A boys and girls chorus will present musical numbers. The girls are asked to wear white blouses and dark skirts, and the boys dark trousers, white shirt and bow-tie.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—J. R. Williston & Beane believes savings & loan holding company stocks remain attractive for above average medium and long-term appreciation.

Although it is expected that their rate of earnings growth in 1963 may be retarded by the imposition of new taxes, the brokerage house anticipates that once a new earnings base has been established, "the rapid growth rates some S&L's have exhibited will be resumed."

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. says for the time being he expects a narrow type of see-saw movement in the market which sooner or later will result in the formation of a base from which "a really strong upturn will occur."

At this juncture, Eldon A. Grimm of Walston & Co. says the "bulls" are hoping that the pace of trading will continue to "dry up." He says this is one of the two ways (the other being a sharp selling climax on heavy trading) in which the market bottoms out and starts up again.

Technical thinker Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co. says the technical position of the present market "appears stronger than at any time during January, and in our opinion, there is no change in the bullish market outlook."

Two Roosevelt Era Books Recommended

WASHINGTON WINDOW
By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Recommended for reading today are "The Cardinal Spellman Story" in the current Look magazine and a 50-cent paperback published by they Henry Regnery Co. of Chicago, titled "Roosevelt's Road to Russia."

The cardinal's story relates FDR's idea that the postwar world would be divided in four parts with the Soviet Union dominant in Europe. Great Britain, the United States and China each, were to be top dogs in three other areas: Africa, the Pacific and Asia.

The new Regnery paperback was written by George N. Crocker. It is fierce and bluntly worded. The book will be offensive to FDR's defenders because it challenges their hero as the architect of World War II strategies that left the world in the now-prevailing condition, which is a mess. The theme of Crocker's book is that FDR was a gullible stooge for J. V. Stalin's master plan to dominate the postward world or as much of it as possible. The cardinal's story seems to tie in there.

"Roosevelt's Road to Russia" is a chronicle of the men around FDR and of the wartime conferences at which these men matched wits, notably with Stalin and V. M. Molotov. Crocker finds the U. S. team out-played and overmatched. He especially tags the late Harry Hopkins as a safety man who forever was dropping the ball for lack of the will to catch it.

"That a web of subversion was spun over Washington during Roosevelt's administration is now beyond question," Crocker writes. "J. Edgar Hoover's 'Masters of Deceit' is but one of many authoritative sources which verify that the government was infiltrated by both Communist agents and Communist sympathizers and that U. S. plans, policies and official attitudes were not only influenced by these infiltrations but also promptly reported to Moscow.

"If Franklin D. Roosevelt became, as war went on, Stalin's favorite fellow-traveller, it was not necessarily because any ideological conversion occurred.

"The pro-Russian atmosphere in Washington . . . was galling to many, including the frustrated secretary of Navy, James V. Forrestal. His diaries reveal that in September 1944 he had written that 'If any American suggests that we act in accord with our own interests, he is apt to be called a . . . Fascist or imperialist, while if Uncle Joe suggests that he needs the Baltic provinces, half of Poland, all of Bessarabia, and access to the Mediterranean, all hands in Washington agree that he is a fine, frank, candid and generally delightful fellow.' Such was the frame of mind Roosevelt took to Yalta."

The publishers believe that many people will be made angry by this paperback. This is a reasonable expectation.

Look should do well with the cardinal's story, too. It relates that FDR told Spellman in 1943 that at the least Stlain would gobble up Finland, the Baltic states, half of Poland and Bessarabia. FDR expected Stalin to appoint Communist governments for Germany and Austria. No countermove was contemplated.

The Untried Obstacle Course Would Have Been Easy For This Writer

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Take it from me, editors are a sadistic lot. They enjoy dissecting live hyperboles and pulling wings off helpless little metaphors.

But what gives them their greatest pleasure is thinking up horrendous assignments for reporters.

Keeping that in mind, consider next that I get my daily exercise by hoisting cigars to and from my chops.

And then be advised that the President's Council on Youth Fitness is setting up a pioneer program here with a view toward developing a national physical fitness test.

Lumped together, these three items explain why a raw, windy day this week found me out on an athletic field facing an experimental obstacle course that will be used in the pilot program.

The obstacle course, please understand, was designed for youngsters. Assigning an adult newspaperman to give it a trial run proves nothing. But such are the workings of the editorial brain.

The course, not yet completed, requires the participants to jump hurdles, handwalk a horizontal ladder, swing on parallel bars, scale a wall and engage in other simian pursuits.

I arrived on the premises in the company of a Recreation Department employe, who had agreed to serve as my instructor. Adroit questioning brought out that he weighed 242 pounds.

We began at the wall. My instructor grabbed the top with his hands and tried to swing his leg over. Then he took off his top coat and tried it again.

The demonstration ended with him in his shirtsleeves but still on the same side of the wall.

"I'm just showing you the technique," he said when his breath returned. "Go ahead and try it."

"I get the idea," I said. "Let's move on to some of these other things."

"Maybe it would be better if you came back some day after the course has been completed," he said, still puffing slightly. "Then you can get a real workout."

I agreed to a postponement, but I wouldn't want you to think that I couldn't have made it if I had tried. In fact, I'm in pretty good condition now that I've changed cigars.

I switched from panatellas to coronas, which are bigger and require more muscle to lift.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Bridge Across the Golden Horn links the new or European city of Istanbul with the old and in a way is symbolic of all of Turkey.

On the one side is a Turkey striving to accelerate its pace into the 20th century. On the other is antiquity.

There is aniquity in the narrow, winding streets of the old city and in the ruins of the Roman aqueduct which runs down from the nearby hills and cuts across the broad, modern highway leading from the airport.

The Golden Horn is an arm of the Bosphorus, the narrow waterway which divides Europe from Asia.

The summer villas of foreign diplomats line the western shores of the Bosphorus and, in times like these when the war between the Comunist, and democratic philosophies is merely cold, Soviet shipping streams through the Bosphorus on its way from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean.

But just above the summer villas, with their pleasant view of the close-by Asia mainland, are secret installations of the Turkish military.

These are the installations which in time of hot war would draw tight the submarine net across the Bosphorus and bar the way to Soviet attack by way of the Mediterranean.

This, then, is Turkey. The Turkey of the Ottomans, of Ataturk and today of Premier Ismet Inonu.

It is the Turkey which is the eastern anchor of NATO defenses, a nation which at one and the same time must face modern perils and lift itself upward through centuries of backwardness and under-development:

World War I brought about the collapse of the already tottery Ottoman empire and from it emerged Kemal Ataturk, the general who is the hero of modern-day Turkey.

Ataturk sought to catapult Turkey into the modern age by sweeping reforms, abolishing stifling influences of the past.

His mantle passed to Inonu who in turn passed it on to the late Adnan Menderes in free elections.

Under Menderes, and despite some $3 billion U. S. military and economic aid, the vision somehow lost its way.

After an army - led revolution and trial, Menderes died last year at the end of a rope.

Last week, Turkey emerged from another attempted military revolution.

Inonu, once more Turkey's premier, emerged with prestige unscathed.

'Confetti Barometer' Shows Space Hero Led Them All In Parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paper is the bizarre barometer by which they measure hero worship along the Canyon of Heroes and in terms of sheer volume, John Glenn surpassed them all.

The astronaut broke all existing records. No hero from the past who preceded him in the triumphant journey up Tickertape Alley was showered with as much confetti and scraps of just plain paper as was Glenn in Thursday's parade.

The city's Sanitation Department, the final voice of authority in such matters, has proclaimed him the winner and new champion.

But in one provocative area, a tickertape hero from another age still remains unchallenged.

The achievements of the jet age and now the space age may have reduced the magic of Charles A. Lindbergh's ocean-conquering flight to the level of quaintness, but there's one thing that "Lucky Lindy" had that Glenn was unable to match.

The girls went wild over Lindy.

Adrian Donahue, a deputy police inspector, Thursday recalled that when Lindbergh paraded up Broadway in 1927 he so inspired the women of New York that "any girl who was able to get here go here."

"Some of them even fainted," Donahue said.

Lindbergh had all the ingredients to stimulate such adulation. He was only 25, he was handsome and he wore the mantle of courage like no one else in his generation. And most significant of all, he was single.

Glenn, for all his appeal, has one serious drawback which the young ladies were apt to take into consideration before going all a-flutter. He is married and the father of two children.

The astronaut seemed to inspire a more general jubilation from everyone of all ages and all sexes. City officials estimated the gigantic crowd at "over four million."

But the Sanitation Department proudly claims its figures on trash collecting are the most accurate way of gauging crowds at a tickertape parade.

By late Thursday, the department already had hauled in 3,474 tons of scrap paper and harried officials predicted they will be collecting more "for several days."

The final figure is certain to double the 1,750 tons of confetti hurled at Lindbergh and already has eclipsed the previous single day record of 3,249 tons tossed on Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1951 when he returned from Korea.

The end of World War II in 1945 touched off a paper-throwing flurry that dumped 5,438 tons on city streets, but that was over a two-day period.

MONDAY

Tomorrow will be a busy day at the stock show with the judging of both swine and steer divisions. Robert Totusek, associate professor of agriculture at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Okla., will judge both divisions. The swine will be judged in the morning beginning at 9 a.m. and the steer judging is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. All judging will be done in the main arena of the community building at Recreation Park. Comfortable seating arrangements are available and the public is invited to attend all judging. There is no admission charge.

High - lighting Monday's activities will be the Exhibitors Barbeque at 7 p.m. which is held annually in the Sale Barn at Recreation Park, and is sponsored by the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association. The Rodeo Association will furnish free tickets to all exhibitors of livestock. Anyone else wishing to attend should purchase their tickets at the show grounds before noon, tomorrow.

TUESDAY

Approximately 45 FFA Livestock judging teams will compete for top awards at the anual Top O' Texas Livestock Judging Contest beginning at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday. Judging teams from throughout the Texas Panhandle, which is designated as Area 1, will be in Pampa for the day.

Official judging of the contest will be done by Myron McCarter, associate agriculture professor at Panhandle A & M College, Goodwell, Okla. Section leaders will be provided by Juniors and Seniors of Panhandle A & M College.

Quentin Williams is serving as general superintendent of the contest and J. P. Smith of Pan-Tech farms is assistant superintendent. This judging contest was started in 1946 and has advanced to one of the outstanding events of its kind in the Southwest. The Frank M. Carter Scholarship Award will be presented to the outstanding agricultural student in the area. The award is a $300 scholarship at Texas Technological College. The recipient is selected by a review board which evaluates each contestant's qualifications, personality, and other factors.

Awards will be made at a banquet at 5 p.m. in the Senior High School cafeteria, annually sponsored by the First National and Citizens Banks, along with the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Judging of the registered Hereford cattle will take place on Tuesday at 1 p.m. with Otis Kimbell, prominent commercial rancher of Alpine, Texas, doing the judging. Fifty-four serviceable bulls and three females have been consigned to the show. Of this number, there will be 6 pens of twos and threes with 37 bulls selling as individuals.

The Hereford Breeders banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, with a buffet dinner in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn. One of the largest crowds in the history of the show is expected to hear Reagan Brown of Texas A & M College, College Station, Texas, who will be the speaker.

WEDNESDAY

Wednesday will be another busy day at the show grounds with the sale of Junior Livestock scheduled to get under way at 9:30 a.m. Colonel Walter Britten, Texas A & M College will be the auctioneer. Britten has sold livestock at the Pampa show since 1945 and is one of the country's finest auctioneers. Pampa business and professional people have been urged to support the sale which is expected to be the largest consignment of animals in its history, with 107 fat steers and 200 hogs to be sold.

The Hereford Breeders' Sale, scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday, will wind up activities of the 1962 Top O' Texas Stock Show, with Walter Britten again serving as auctioneer. Paul Dauer, president of the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association, stated that practically all of the bulls consigned in this sale are of servicable age and ready for work. Representatives from practically all of the major livestock publications are expected to be in Pampa to assist with the sale.

Recall

All were taken out by volunteers, she said.

"The response in opposition to the Jaycees' recall efforts have been wonderful," she said.

Mrs. Dunn said the first count of signatures would not be complete until a meeting of the circulators late this afternoon.

The Jaycees Saturday opened a "recall headquarters" at 108 N. Russell, across from City Hall.

Doug Halley, Jaycee member and chairman of the publicity and advertising committee for the recall movement, said the headquarters will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. today and starting tomorrow will be open from 6 p.m. to 9 pm. daily through Friday.

He added that anyone who wishes to sign a petition and does not have transportation may call MO 5-4481 and a petition will be sent to their home for signing.

Halley said a check - in report meeting of petition circulators is scheduled for 7 p.m. today at the recall headquarters.

"The response has been good both with the ward circulators and at headquarters," Halley said.

He added that in one ward the recall petitions received one-third more signatures than were required.

It was agreed that when Koontz leaves, Cooke will take over the city manager's duties on a temporary basis until a replacement is found at which time Cooke would return to his regular job as public workes director.

Police Captain Resigns; Plans TV Repair Firm

Police Captain Floyd (Denny) Roan resigned from the Pampa police department late Friday afternoon, according to an announcement Saturday by Police Chief Jim Conner.

The resignation becomes effective March 17.

Captain Roan said he had been considering for some time to enter the television repair business and he plans to engage in the new endeavor on a full - time basis in a shop at his home, 205 Miami St.

The police captain said he wished to make it clear that the resignation is in no way connected with tthe current upheaval at City Hall.

"I had been planning the move for some time," he said.

Police Chief Conner expressed regret over Roan's resignation.

"I believe I can speak for the entire department," Conner said, "in our regret at losing a fine and faithful officer."

Chief Conner said no replacement had yet been selected to take Captain Roan's place in the department. The chief said he planned to discuss the replacement with City Manger John Koontz this week.

Captain Roan, who has been with the department since Aug. 15, 1947, is now on two week's vacation. The resignation will become final at the end of the two-week period, Chief Conner said.

Big Grass Fire Near Canadian

CANADIAN (Spl) — A spectacular, all-day grass fire charred from 25 to 30 sections of grazing land on the Urshel and I. V. Ranches near Canadian Saturday.

The fire, which started about 8:30 a.m. apparently from the backfire of a ranch vehicle, was brought under control at 4:30 p.m. Fire departments from Canadian, Higgins, Miami, Wheeler, Allison, Arnett, Okla., and Shattuck, Okla., as well as bulldozers and road grading equipment from the Hemphill and Lipscomb County road departments, were put into the fight.

The fire started about two miles south of Glazier and burned to the Lake Marvin area, 10 miles southeast of Glazier. It burned to the Canadian River on a front about seven miles wide.

Smoke from the blaze swirled up to an estimated altitude of 9,000 feet and could be seen for 15 to 20 miles.

Threatened by the fire were Camp Kowa Boy Scout Camp and the Texas Game and Fish Department headquarters in the game management area near Lake Marvin, six miles east of Canadian. Sixteen head of cattle were lost by Charlie Hyde of Higgins, who had to destroy the animals after they had suffered burns.

Weekly Message Of Inspiration Reprinted

In Friday's News, the "Weekly Message of Inspiration" written by the Rev. Russell Greene West, pastor of The Church of the Brethren, contained some transposed lines.

For that reason, the message is being reprinted in full below.

CHRISTIANITY VS. COMMUNISM
By Russell Greene West
Pastor of The Church of the Brethren

"Then, and not until then, comes the End when Christ having abolished all other rule, authority and power, hands over the Kingdom to God the Father. Christ's reign will and must continue until every enemy has been conquered. The last enemy of all to be destroyed is death itself.

He hath put all things in subjection under His feet, but in the term "all things" it is quite obvious that God, Who brings them all under subjection to Christ, is Himself excepted. Nevertheless, when everything created has been made obedient to God, then shall the Son acknowledge Himself subject to God the Father, Who gave the Son power over all things. Thus, in the End, shall God be wholly and absolutely God." — 1 Corinthians 15:24-28 (Phillips' Translation)

Two conflicting powers have set out with the avowed purpose of conquering the world. And while their ultimate objective is the same, their inward nature, and their methods of working are totally different. The two powers of which I speak are Christianity and Communism. And while each of these opposing powers will win and lose many battles, the ultimate victory is described in the above Scripture. Not just because this statement is in the New Testament. It is in the Bible because it is God - inspired and utterly true. Nations may rise and fall, the heathen may rage, our human systems will have their day and pass on, but God, all-wise, all-powerful, everlasting will have the voice of the final Outcome.

1. Communism is fighting against God while Christianity is cooperating with God. Communism is atheistic, anti-God, totally depending upon human wisdom and cunning and the might of man. Christianity is wholly, and completely centered in God, depending entirely upon divine wisdom and guidance, while working in full harmony with the nature and will of God. Communism may spread itself over the world, but a few dedicated men working with God always make a majority. "Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the Throne, But the scaffold sways the future, And beyond the dim unknown standeth God within the shadows keeping watch above His own."

2. Communism advances by outside force and compulsion, while Christianity spreads by inner conviction and transformation.

That which is forced upon people against their will and better judgement is doomed from the beginning to utter failure. Changes brought about by an inner transformation of the human heart are permanent and triumphant. Communism employs instruments of hate and deceit. Christianity, when true to its nature, spreads itself by love, the open truth, and positive good will. Love is more powerful than hate, and every form of deceit must parade itself in the garments of Truth, else it would never deceive. Deception is sham — only the truth is real.

3. Communism enslaves the individual, while Christianity exhalts the worth and dignity of each human being.

Communism makes the individual subservient to the state, the Communist party. Under their economic and political systems man is virtually a slave. Even in the intimate and personal matters of religion, education, and family life, a man's freedom of choice is curtailed and ofttimes completely controlled. On the other hand, Christianity teaches that man was made in the image of God and holds a position just a little lower than the angels, and from the very beginning he was crowned with glory and honor. Man, every man, each separate man, is worthy of dignity, honor, integrity, justice, love, respect, equality and freedom of self-determination under the wisdom and the guidance of God!

Some years ago I attended a fiercely contested game of football between Pampa and Amarillo. At the game there were three kinds of people: Some were yelling for Pampa, some for Amarillo, while others were moving through the crowds yelling, "PEANUTS, POPCORN, CANDY." They had no interest in the outcome of the game. Well, here in Pampa, Texas, we have three kinds of people in this world-wide struggle.

I venture to say that a city the size of Pampa has a few out and out Communists or fellow-travelers. At the same time, thank God, we have thousands of citizens who are loyal, devoted consecrated members of the Church who are yelling their hearts out for the world - wide cause of Christ! Then, of course, we have that large group of people who apparently have no interest in the final outcome of this universal struggle — just so long as they are free to sell their "Peanuts, Popcorn and Candy!" Whatever else you can say about them they will not be at church this Sunday! Apparently they have "sold down the river" this One Nation Under God, and the cause for which it stands!

Inflation Is Entering The World Of Words

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — C. Northcote Parkinson, the noted author and word-watcher, has devoted much time to observing the behavior of the English language in its natural state.

In the course of his studies, he detected a verbal phenomenon which appeared to be forming a fixed, or constant, pattern.

This led to the formulation of Parkinson's Law on gobbledegook, stated as follows: "The printed word expands to fill the space available to it."

This type of inflation was defined by Parkinson as "too many words chasing too little meaning." As examples of how it occurs, he cited the terms "dog catcher" and "dishwasher."

Give them enough space, he said, and they will expand into "canine control officer" and "utensil maintenance man."

Parkinson's Law kept coming into my mind as I was reading the transcript of a military budget hearing released today by the House defense appropriations subcommittee.

The testimony of Pentagon witnesses provided several specimens of language expansion — or so it seemed to Rep. Daniel J. Flood, a Pennsylvania Democrat who usually knows an inflated word when he sees one.

After first voicing bewilderment over the term "percentile limitation," Flood discovered that the Air Force was seeking a special clothing allowance for some 2,000 "recruiting salesmen."

"What in the world is a recruiting salesman and what do you want with 2,000 of them, anyhow?" the congressman inquired.

He said "It reminds me of what the Irishman said about the giraffe—"there is no such animal."

An Air Force spokesman, proving Parkinson's Law, then sent too many words chasing too little meaning.

"We use the term 'recruiting salesmen' to describe those members of our recruiting force who contact directly potential enlistees as opposed to the remaining members of the recruiting service who perform support duties," he explained.

A few pages later, Flood stumbled across a budgetary item proposing an increase from $201,100 to $994,000 for "prefabricated meat."

"...This I do not believe," said Flood. "What in the world is prefabricated meat? Is it edible?"

It turned out that prefabricated means the meat has been boned.

Lucky Conversation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arnold Michaelis, producer - host of "Adlai Stevenson Reports" on ABC-TV, began his adventures with public conversation by accident. While producing classical records for Columbia, he taped a conversation with Bruno Walter on the conductor's 80th birthday and it came off so well they issued it as a record.

Since then Michaelis has recorded conversations with Rodgers and Hammerstein, Adlai Stevenson, Eleanor Roosevelt, Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Maurice Chevalier.

Camel to Rescue

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A camel may have saved the life of actor Peter O'Toole while he was filming "Lawrence of Arabia."

The camels of the Jordan Desert Patrol are trained to protect their riders. When O'Toole was thrown in the path of 500 Arab horsemen, the animal stood over O'Toole and prevented the horses from trampling him.

Sun and Culture

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Miami has even more offer than its famous beaches, night spots and racetracks. Visitors often are surprised to learn the city schedules a full slate of opera and symphony orchestra programs. Two local fixtures are the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra and the Opera Guild of Greater Miami.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER'S NEW MACHINES FOR 1962

Among the new machines International Harvester Company introduced at a sales meeting in Chicago's International Amphitheatre for its 5,000 farm equipment dealers throughout the United States were the new McCormick International 303 combine, upper left, the No. 50 field harvester, upper right, the Farmall 504, lower left, a new power size in farm and industrial tractors; and the International 3414 loader-tractor, lower right, a new concept of integral tractor and loader combination offered for the first time in the low price field.

International Harvester Offers Wide Selection Of 1962 Machines

Wayne Rogers, 2212 North Dwight, store manager of International Harvester Sales-Service recently returned from a two-day sales meeting in Chicago where he witnessed a presentation of new products just introduced by International Harvester Company for 1962 and heard a reaffirmation of higher standards in engineering and manufacturing to provide greater performance and product reliability by company officials.

Among the new tractors shown at the Chicago meeting in the 35-hp class were the "404 series" of Farmall and International tractors and the International B-414, the later available in gasoline or diesel engine models. The "404 series" replaces the 240 and 340 series, while the B-414 replaces the B-275. Also included in this grouping was the "504 series" of Farmall and International tractors in the 45-hp class, a new power size.

Featuring new speeds, hydraulics, and operator comfort, all of these tractors have a new three point hitch with position and draft control to automatically transfer weight for increased traction, maintain uniform draft load in varying soils, and maintain constant depth in even terrain.

Other machines presented at the meeting included the International 3414 loader-tractor, a new concept of integral tractor and loader combination in the low-price field; a new line of industrial tractors in three power sizes; a diesel and gasoline version of the 47-hp International T-340 and TD-340 "A" series crawler tractors; a complete new line of farm and industrial loaders; and, two big-capacity field harvesters, the No. 16 and the No. 50, the latter a two-row harvesting unit that can chop a record 65 tons per hour in corn silage.

Three new combines were highlighted in the second day presentation of the two-day sales meeting. They were the 65-hp McCormick International 303 in the 10 to 14-foot size, which replaces the 101; the 90-hp McCormick International 403 in 12 to 16-foot size, which supplants the 151; and the 106-hp McCormick International 503 in 12 to 20-foot size, which displaces the 181. Replete with a new low silhouette, bigger grain tanks and greater operating ease, these new units offer exclusive full-width threshing.

Equipped with this new confidence in selling, the Harvester dealer now is better equipped to serve his farm customers and provide them with their new equipment needs.

Approximately 5,000 dealers attended the Chicago meeting, which was segmented into five two-day showings. About 1,000 dealers participated in each of the showings, which were divided among the company's five geographical sales regions in the U.S.

All of the two-day sessions were staged at the International Amphitheatre in Chicago.

Says Group Backs All Oil Industry

Ralph E. Miller, president of the Texas Independent Petroleum Association, said this week that the organization he heads has been formed to promote interests of all segments of the Texas petroleum industry.

He said, "the oil industry is not only a vital cog in our national economy and security, but has been a major source of tax revenue to our State of Texas.

"Petroleum is a natural resource — a national heritage essential to our national security— and a prime duty of our State and Federal Governments should be to zealously prevent it from being dissipated at low prices which in turn means lower tax revenues to our State and Federal Governments. These low prices necessitate a corresponding increase in other taxes and contribute to uemploymennt and economic losses, not only to our petroleum industry but to related activities, thereby pretty much including directly or indirecly everyone.

CRIME ON INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Preliminary figures compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) show that crime increased 2 per cent last year in U.S. cities with more than 25,000 population.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Wednesday night that the increase was "significant" because it came on top of a 14 per cent jump the previous year. Increases were reported for all crime categories except robbery.

Impact Of Texas' First Big Oil Gusher Still Felt Today

By CARLTON WILSON

AUSTIN (UPI) — The first great oil gusher in Texas created a sensation that has repercussions today for everyone who uses an automobile or heats his home with oil or gas.

Although oil flowed from Texas wells since 1859, the greatest single impetus to the state industry came at Spindletop Jan. 10, 1901.

There, near Beaumont on the Gulf Coast, the first salt - dome discovery made by Capt. Anthony F. Lucas, It launched a campaign of drilling that increased state oil production from 836,039 barrels in 1900 to 4,393,658 in 1901 and 892 million in 1961.

In 1902 the Spindletop well alone produced 17,421,0000 barrels, or 94 per cent of the state's production. Prices dropped to three cents a barrel, an all - time low.

The search for oil and gas continued until its peak year of 1935, when some 21,500 wells were drilled by a billion dollar industry. High costs, disappointing results and relatively low oil prices have led to a decline in drilling since then.

Nevertheless, about a third of the wells drilled in the United States during 1960 were in Texas. There have been some 470,000 holes punched down into Texas soil seeking oil in the last 94 years. The deepest of these went down 25,340 feet in 1958 — and yielded nothing.

The deepest Texas producer is a gas well at 16,680 feet — more than three miles into the ground.

Since Spindletop's fabulous find, only about one out of 60 wells has discovered enough oil or gas to be profitable. The average cost of an oil well is about $47,600, the Texas Mid - Continent Oil & Gas Association reports.

Gas wells, which are generally deeper, cost on the average $112,000 plus. The cost may run as high as $1 million for a gas well drilled in the Gulf of Mexico, at about $88 a foot compared to a per - foot cost of around $11.40 for an inland oil well.

Natural gas is produced in Texas by about 18,500 gas wells and about 121,000 oil wells, for there is some gas in every oil field. About six trillion cubic feet of gas was marketed from Texas wells in 1960 and reserved in the state total about 119.5 trillion cubic feet, or about 46 per cent of the U.S. reserves.

"Wildcat" wells drilled in untried territory or unexplored depths discover new fields and producing formations. About 3,166 of these were drilled in Texas in 1960, but more than 90 per cent were dry holes.

Few of the wells that do produce oil are financial successes.

Another 12,415 Texas wells were drilled in 1960 to develop oil and gas fields which already had been discovered. In all, some 66 million feet of hole (15,581 wells) were drilled in Texas that year—enough to reach through the earth one and a half times.

The result of all this exploration is a present total of more than 200,000 oil wells in Texas that produced $2.8 billion worth of crude oil last year.

Much of this crude oil is processed into automobile and aviation gasoline at the 59 refineries in Texas. A large portion, depending on the quality of the crude, goes for kerosene, other fuel oils and lubricants.

The amount of Texas oil production is limited by the three-member state railroad commission to conserve the resource, keep supply and demand in balance and stabilize the market — which now finds oil selling for $3 a barrel.

Production was held to eight days during eight months of 1961, nine days for three months, and one month of 10 - day production. Total 1961 production of 101 days was an all-time low and compared to a record 366 days during 1948, a leap year.

If commission controls did not exist, Texas wells operated at maximum efficient rates could produce an estimated 4.7 million barrels daily, some 2.4 million barrels a day more than present production. In an emergency, Texas could produce more than six times as much oil as last year.

The supply of Texas oil will last about 20 years at the present rate of production, based on industry estimates of known reserves totaling more than 18 billion barrels. But exploration and development have uncovered oil sources during the last 10 years at a rate of more than one billion barrels a year, faster than oil is now being produced.

A little less than half the oil reserves of the United States are in Texas, counting only the oil which can be recovered under present methods. Additional billions of barrels of oil in these same Texas fields can be produced with the development of better mining methods and higher prices.

Vigorous Petroleum Industry Said Backbone Of National Security

By KYLE THOMPSON

HOUSTON (UPI)—Are increasing amounts of oil imports posing a treal threat to the economic soundness and to the national security of the Unied States?

This is the position taken by a growing number of persons close to and within the oil industry. They generally maintain that a healthy, vigorous petroleum industry is the very backbone of the national security.

One point of view is that the nation that controls, or has available for conrol,, the greater part of the world's energy potential will always come out on the winning side of a war.

And, since oil is the basic element of the world's energy supply, the availability of a plentiful supply is essential to survival.

And what are the economic impacts of oil imports?

This, too, is a topic of considerable discussion. Some experts contend that the state of Texas alone is losing $50 million a year in tax revenue because of excessive petroleum imports.

The fact of the matter is that petroleum imports have continued to grow over the past several years while domestic production has remained static. Imports now account for 26 per cent of the production in the United States.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America is backing a limited quota of imports to 14 per cent of the domestic production, or about the domestic-imports ratio of 1956.

Since 1956, when imports began to increase, IPAA says the oil industry has seen a gradual economic deterioration. As an example, it states that a total of 58,160 wells were drilled in this country in 1959, but this total has dropped until only 46,751 wells were drilled in 1960 and about the same number last year.

"Yet, during this same period, total imports have gone up from 1,436,000 barrels per day in 1958 to 1,890,000 barrels per day in 1960," IPAA points out.

The question of imports vs. domestic production is far from settled. But most everyone agrees that from a standpoint of survival, this country must be prepared to take care of its essential military and civilian requirements in case of national emergency.

Bars, Bathing, Beauty Set Pace For Integration In So. Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Sothern Rhodesia (UPI) — Multi-racialism no longer is just part of a political speech in Southern Rhodesia. It is a fact.

With a rush that would have been unthinkable only a year ago the mingling of races here has taken giant steps forward in recent weeks.

What is more, the mingling has taken place with an ease that has surprised everyone, black and white.

In the luxury hotels and bars of Salisbury, parties of Africans now move freely and already their presence seems to be taken for granted. This freedom for Africans arose from amendments to the Southern Rhodesian laws making it legal for all races to purchase and consume alcohol in all forms.

Prior to these amendments, introduced in January, with few exceptions Africans were allowed to buy and consume only beer and light wines.

In what government and private circles here agree was a surprisingly moderate step, African nationalist groups have made no attempt to force their way into working class European bars, where reactions might have been violent.

For the time being at least, the two major groups pressing for multi - racialization — European liberals and African nationalists —appear to have agreed that the changeover has in general gone so quietly that it is better to accept the adoption of the principle in a wide sector rather than seek its 100 per cent enforcement immediately.

Small white groups have sought to spread multi - racialization into the bars in African townships surrounding Southern Rhodesians cities, but there has been no attempt to enforce the point when service has been refused to them.

This refusal has been made on grounds that all profits from liquor sales in these townships go toward development of the townships themselves. It is, therefore, felt to be inappropriate to open the township bars to Europeans.

The issue of multi-racial swimming pools which appeared last November to be likely to spark off major troubles, now is apparently also accepted (if hardly approved) by the majority of Europeans.

European attendance at the main Salisbury municipal pool has fallen off sharply and. today, Asians are likely to form the majority of swimmers. But municipal officials report that gradually the number of Europeans is increasing.

In a recent Salisbury city council debate, councilmen who last November bitterly opposed the opening of the pools to non-Europeans sharply attacked as "irresponsible" proposals for a new last-ditch stand to reimpose segregation.

The latest field into which non-Europeans are beginning to edge, one which would appear to follow almost logically from desegregated swimming pools, is beauty competitions.

The fate of the "Miss Federation" contest appears momentarily to be in the balance.

The European beauty specialist who organized the competition on European-only lines for several years has now surrendered control to an African, who has flatly announced that starting this year the contest will be multi-racial.

Whether this will prove true remains to be seen, since a last-minute bid is being made to send two girls — one European and one representing the African, colored (mixed blood) and Asian groups to London for the "Miss World" finals.

Despite this move, a number of European girls have made it clear they have no objection to taking part in the competition with non-Europeans.

All these fields — bars, bathing and beauty — are merely symptomatic of the changes taking place in Southern Rhodesia.

These changes have been firmly outlined by the Southern Rhodesian premier, Sir Edgar Whitehead. He said in January that some alternative had to be found for the future development of Southern Rhodesia other than either African nationalism or white supremacy, "either of which could wreck the country."

Whitehead called on African nationalists to abandon their announced hope of seizing full power in Southern Rhodesia this year, but also told Europeans: "You must be prepared to recognize Africans as full citizens — there can be no second-class citizens here if we are to build a nation."

QUIET WEEKEND—There is the church and there is the steeple, but where are all the people? Trinity Church stands guard over Wall Street in New York on a quiet Sunday.

GIFT FROM THE PAST—In the course of municipal road repairs in Aeolau Street, one of the busiest thoroughfares of Athens, 15 graves of the classical Greek and Roman period were discovered. This decorated pyx of the Fifth Century B.C., the only one of its kind in existence, was among the beautifully preserved pottery found in graves.

ONLY A ROSE—In a demonstration at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, Birny Mason Jr., president of Union Carbide, dips a rose into a container of liquid nitrogen whose temperature registers 384 degrees below zero. The rose froze solid and became fragile as glass.

GREENHOUSE MERRY-GO-ROUND—This rotating greenhouse was built by scientists at the University of California to pin-point the damaging effects of air pollution on plants. The unit circles 15 times per hour, insuring the same light conditions, while the seedlings in each of four compartments are exposed to synthetic air pollutants.

BUT THEY WON'T TALK POLITICS—Rabid political foes when on loan to their respective parties to dramatize election battles, donkey George and elephant Baby Sherma enjoy each other's company at breakfast at the Hamid-Morton Circus winter headquarters in Trenton, N. Now Hot, Now Cold—That's The Pattern For Jimmy Durante

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterpr se Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Jimmy Durante wore the patched and tattered clothes of a tramp clown. On his face was a seriousness no audience had ever seen in all of his 52 years in show business.

He tiptoed out on a taut steel wire, rigged a foot above the sound stage floor, and balanced himself with the long pole of the circus wire walker he will be in MGM's "Jumbo."

For the long shots the wire will be high above the sawdust ring with a professional doubling for Jimmy. For the close-ups, on the wire a foot above the floor, the man would be the indestructible, 69-year-old Jimmy.

As he lost his balance, stepping down off the wire and then going up to try again, his agent remarked, "He's lucky. He's got a great pair of legs. Keeps himself in wonderful shape."

Jimmy Durante's ups and downs on the rehearsal wire for his role of wire walker as well as circus owner in "Jumbo" reflected his life as an entertainer. Jimmy has always needed strong legs — for his personal ups and downs.

At 69, "Jumbo" is a movie comeback for him. It has been 13 years since he last starred in "The Milkman." Yet he had been a star at MGM twice before, in 1929 and again in 1944.

Now hot, now cold — that's the pattern of Durante's career. He was one of the giants in live TV 10 years ago. With the coming of film, he faded away, going back to the night clubs where his star was born. There had been Broadway musical comedy stardom, too, just before he came to Hollywood in 1929.

From producer Joseph Pasternak, who starred Jimmy in 1944's big hit, "Two Girls and a Sailor," and who again insisted on Jimmy for the father - daughter story of "Jumbo," comes an explanation for those ups and downs.

About the kindly, beloved man with the oversized nose and the rasping voice, Pasternak speaks with great affection and with personal indignation, saying:

"People always took advantage of his nose — not of his talent."

For "Jumbo" Jimmy's wondrous talent as a clown with the soul of a poet will be on display. For Pasternak's understanding, which first materialized in "Two Girls and a Sailor," Jimmy is grateful. He came down from the wire to tell us: "Joe Pasternak is one of the three most important people in my life."

Jimmy had been overseas, paged by Vittorio De Sica for the Italian movie, "The Last Judgment," since last we talked. Jimmy Durante in an Italian movie must have been a panic — and it was, he grinned.

"What did a do in the fillum? I still don't know what I did. I spoke English. At least they thought it was English and De Sica called me 'Mr. Jimmy.'

"But get dis. I'm on top of de woild about seeing the word 'durante' all over Italy. Den I'm shook up. Its not for me. I learn 'Durante' in Italian means "during alternations, and we're still open for business. I'm mortified."

Jimmy returned to the task at hand — rehearsing on the wire for his role of the small - time circus owner with a daughter (Doris Day) who means more to him than applause or fame. His balance improved, his feet were less cautious.

As we watched him, Pasternak said something else. "Making 'Jumbo' without Jimmy Durante," he said, "would be like going to church without praying."

'Car 54' Will Be Back Next Fall

NEW YORK (UPI)—Car 54 has been put in the barn, officer Gunther Toody is working the night club circuit using the somewhat less exotic name of Joe E. Ross, and officer Francis Muldoon has dropped his badge and nightstick and picked up the brushes and chisels of painter-sculptor Fred Gwynne.

And producer - director - writer creator Nat Hiken has absolutely nothing to do for three and a half months—except to plan and help write the mischief that will keep Car 54, Toody and Muldoon busy for another 30 television shows next season.

"Car 54, Where Are You?" NBC's affectionately humorous series about a couple of fictional New York City police auto patrolmen who are always in trouble, wound up the filming of 30 half-hour shows for the 1961-62 season last week at the Biograph Studios in the Bronx. It is one of the first television series to complete its seasonal quota.

The show is one of the few of the numerous new shows that went on the networks last fall to turn into a big success, following the pattern set by Hiken's long-run "You'll Never Get Rich" series starring Phil Silvers as Sergeant Bilko.

"Yeh, but we were a little nervous back there last fall," Ross said on the last day of filming. "The reviews on our first show weren't so hot, and for a couple or three weeks we didn't know whether we would or wouldn't. But we began to click with the second episode, and from then on we kept getting stronger."

'Dr. Kildare' Star Dick Chamberlain Big Reason For Show's Success

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Why does my wife watch Dr. Kildare and then laugh at me?

Why does she wear a white coat and rubber gloves around the house, sterilize the dishes and call the kitchen "the operating room?" Why can't we use knives and forks any more instead of sutures and scalpels?

These questions took on a new urgency Thursday night when the wife invited a few girlfriends over to watch Dick Chamberlain as Kildare on television, and they all oohed each other as "nurse." Well, it's about time to face up to the question. What has Chamberlain got?

The best answer I've heard on this crucial issue came from Carol Burnett one lunchtime at MGM as her mouth dropped every time she stared at Chamberlain across the commissary.

"He's got quiet virility," she said. "Quiet virility. Quiet virility. . . I guess you could say he's a gentleman. . .say he's a gentleman. Wow! I'd like to meet him!"

The late Fred Allen once defined a gentleman as a fellow who would never hit a lady with his hat on. And watching Chamberlain Thursday night, I could see that the girls have a point.

In this particular show on NBC, Chamberlain tried to persuade a distant cousin, suffering from arthritis, to quit the rodeo circuit for the sake of his three children to whom he was father and mother.

He played it soft, understating all the way. That happens to be the way he is. He is not a great talent, but an intuitive one with an attractive personality — the pattern of the old stars.

The show is no great shakes, but is slick, no pretending to be a world - beater, and benefits strongly from MGM's famous production finesse. There is no slop piness about it.

To adults who flip the television dial in search of relief, Chamberlain is a pleasant reminder that not all young actors belong to what may be termed the punk generation.

With all due respect to the co-star, Raymond Massey, Chamberlain is the main reason for the success of "Dr. Kildare." If you doubt that, ask the secretaries who are sorting the kind — and amount — of fan mail that Clark Gable used to get at the same studio.

The latest word is that Chamberlain is moving into Robert Taylor's old dressing room. He can thank the ladies. They like him.

The ladies also like "Ben Casey," Vincent Edwards.

And if you doubt that too, I can refer you to the flood of mail I have received suggesting that I be drawn and quartered — preferably by Edwards — because of some remarks I made about his show last week.

Most of the men who dared sneak an anti-Casey letter past their wives sympathized with me. But for the ladies, who get quite emotional about handsome actors, we elaborate thus:

"Ben Casey" is a good show, better than most. But it pretends to more than that. It is supposed to be "significant." It is not. It is slick in a Hollywood way. It is frustratng to this viewer to see such an adept show settle for being merely good entertainment.

With the courage to say important things, rather than just present interesting characterr, "Ben Casey" could be as good as "The Defenders." "Ben Casey" satisfies, "The Defenders" exhilarates. One stays put, the other leads. That is the difference between good and excellent drama.

The Channel Swim: CBS-TV has renewed "Dobie Gillis" for its fourth season. ABC-TV plans daily five-minute newscasts of Jacqueline Kennedy's visit to India and Pakistan, starting about March 12. Lucille Ball's new CBS TV show is scheduled for Sundays next season.

Shirley Jones will emcee NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour" March 3. Rod Serling's dramatic debut on CBS-TV's "Ichabod and Me" has been rescheduled for March 20 instead of March 13. Ann Margret joins Andy Griffith on Andy Williams' NBC-TV special May 4.

NBC-TV "Bonanza" star Dan Blocker, injured when his horse fell last week, will be in a cast for three more weeks. He suffered a fractured left clavicle and shoulder separation. Bob Hope visits CBS-TV's "Danny Thomas Show" April 2. Bill (Jose Jimenez) Dana guests same show March 26.

The Pampa Jaycees Urge You To Take A Stand For Good City Government By Signing A Petition For A Recall Election Of The City Commission And Mayor.

"We, the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, have no specific objections, necessarily, with the discharging of the city manager by our present city commission and mayor, but we feel that their actions have been unbecoming to good managers of our government, bringing unnecessary notoriety to insignificant items of business and taking lightly some of the more important items, such as the Master City Plan, and have severely criticized past commissions unnecessarily. We feel that it would be in the best interests of the entire community if we circulated petitions for a recall election."

The Pampa Jaycees Oppose The Action Of The City Commission In:

1. We are opposing the action taken by the present City Commission in breaking a contract with an engineering firm employed by the previous commission to draw up a Comprehensive City Plan. We are not opposing this on the grounds of their refusing federal aid, but on the grounds of failing to provide other financing to complete a Master City Plan for the growth and developm ent of our city.

2. We are opposed to positive and public accusations by the commission against individual Pampa businesses without substantiating facts to corroborate such accusations, and after finding themselves in error, they have failed to rectify the situation and repair the damages to the City's name .

3. We are against false economy measures that reduce the effectiveness of important public services, by indiscriminately cutting needed operating expenses.

4. We are opposed to the public relations policies of the commission which has resulted in making Pampa less and less attractive to outside as well as local investors, thus effecting our entire economy and national credit rating. Continuation of such irresponsible action could, in effect, leave us with a dormant city void of progress.

Petitions Are Being Circulated In Each Ward For The Recall Of The Ward Commissioner And Mayor.

In order to be successful, the petitions must obtain the following numbers of the city's four wards and city-wide in the case of the mayor:

Ward One – 311 Signatures.
Ward Two – 288 Signatures.
Ward Three – 53 Signatures
Ward Four – 93 Signatures.

To get a recall vote on the mayor, 743 signatures will be required on the city-wide petition.

Ward 1—John Osborne Phone 4-4128
Ward 2—Richard Cooke Phone 5-4409
Ward 3—James Malone Phone 9-9263

Matson Breaks Shot Put Mark Once More

Randy Matson set another shot put record again Saturday afternoon and stole honors in the discus throw for the second time in as many meets in the Snyder Relays.

Pampa finished ninth in the meet with 12½ points. Odessa Permian won the meet title with 44 points.

Matson tossed the iron ball 58 feet 8 inches to eclipse the old meet record of 56 feet 11½ inches set by Emery Martindale of San Angelo in 1959. Matson, in the Harvesters first meet threw the shot 55 feet 10 inches in the Ft. Stockon relays, thus bettering his initial mark.

Matson also won the discus for the second meet in a row with a heave of 15 feet two inches.

Bill Martin tied for third in the broad jump with Richard Moya of San Angelo.

The Harvesters next outing will be in the Graham Invitational meet next Saturday.

Royal Attack Winner Of Santa Anita $152,100 Race Classic

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI)—Royal Attack made no mistakes Saturday as he came up strong in the final stages to capture the $152,100 Santa Anita Derby by about a length.

Sent off a slight favorite by the biggest crowd of the winter, some 55,000 fans, Royal Attack stayed close to the early pace. He moved up on Admiral's Voyage going into the stretch and then put on the pressure to win by enough margin to demonstrate he was the best colt in the big field of 15 starters.

Admiral's voyage did his job well in catching the speed and then taking the lead in the final quarter but he was no match for the winner in the final stages. Sir Ribot was third and Doc Jocoy finished fourth.

Although it had been considered a wide open race, the crowd installed Royal Attack a 3-1 favorite and he lived up to that faith with his victory to return $8.20, $4.40 and $3.20 across the board. Admiral's Voyage paid $6.20 and $4.00 for place and show, and Sir Ribot paid $4.00 to show. The time for the 1¼ miles was a creditable 1:49 3-5.

Royal Attack was sent to the races by veteran California turf patron Neil S. McCarthy who many times in the past has had winners of $100,000 races in his lengthy span as a thoroughbred owner. And McCarthy went along with little Eddie Burns as the jockey because the boy knew the colt and had handled him in his previous stakes races.

Balgers Spring Upset In 86-67 Defeat Of Buckeyes

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Amazing Wisconsin, the cinderella team of the season, Saturday defeated the nation's top ranked team, Ohio State, 86-6, and made the upset look easy.

The Badgers handed the Buckeyes their first loss in 13 conference games this season and snapped their overall win streak a 22 game. Wisconsin ranks second in the Big Ten with a 10-3 mark and is 17-6 overall.

Sophomore guard Don Hearden poured in 29 points and junior forEKdawr dee2dl 2dl oae enShi ward Ken Siebel added 22 to lead the Badgers. Wisconsin took the lead midway in the first half and held it the rest of the way, most of the time by a comfortable margin over the conference champs.

Everybody's all-America, Jerry Lucas, led the Buckeyes with 23 points.

It was only the second loss in 51 games for the Bucks, whose last defeat was at the hands of NCAA champ Cincinnati in last year's tournament.

Wilt Sets New Mark With 100

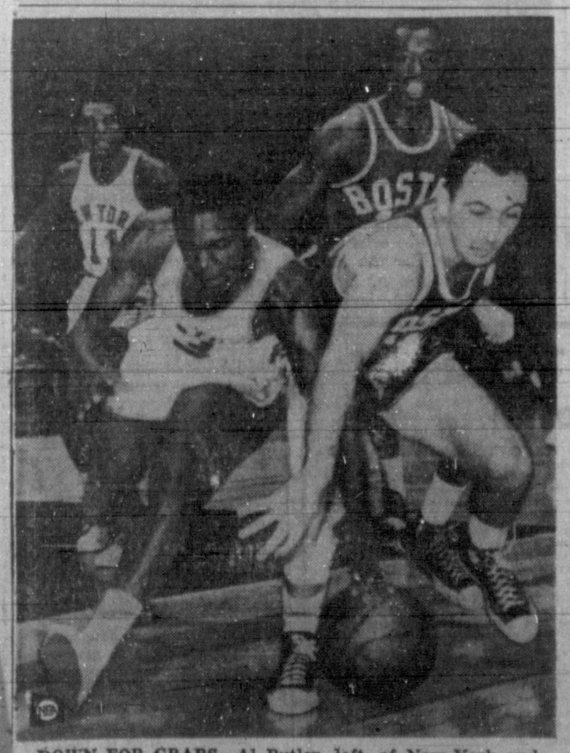

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—"Triple figures. Wow."

That was Wilt Chamberlain's reaction to his history - making 100 point spree against the New York Knickerbockers at Hershey, Pa., last night.

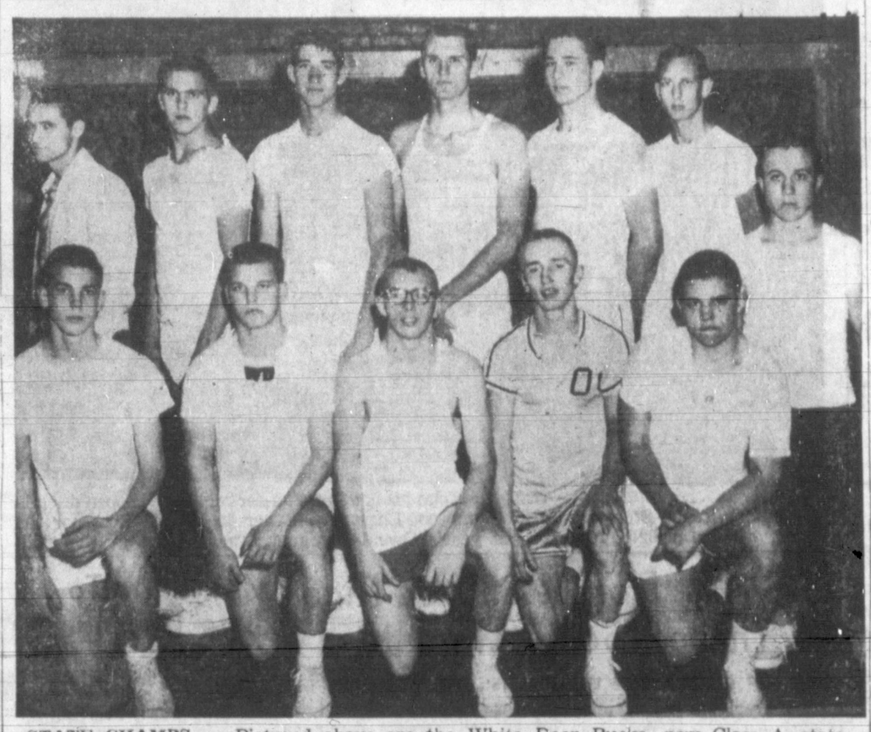

"Honestly, I never thought I could do it," the fantastic 7-foot-1 Philadelphia Warriors' star said. "Never in my life."

Wilt said that early in the game he had no idea he would reach the century mark and topple records like tenpins in the Warriors' 169-147 victory over the New Yorkers.

The towering center said that when he made 10 free throws in a row at the start "I thought I could set some kind of a foul record. I wasn't thinking of the game record then."

Ticket Sales Good For Cage Banquet

Ticket sales for the annual Harvester basketball banquet to be held March 13 were reported as "very good" according to chamber of commerce officials, who are sponsoring the affair.

With still nine days to go before the banquet, it is expected that the cage fete will probably be a sellout. The banquet will be held in the Starlight room of the Coronado Inn starting at 7:30 p.m.

E. O. "Doc" Hayes, head basketball coach at Souhern Mtethodist University, will be the principal speaker at the dinner which will honor the Harvester and Shocker basketball teams as well as the two coaches, Terry Culley and Roy Kieval.

One of the highlights of the dinner will be the presentation of the Hustling Harvester award to the player showing the most hustle and determination during the past season for the Harvesters.

Hayes is completing his fifteenth year as head coach of the Ponies and has been a leading coach and official in the Southwest for more than a third of a century.

Before coming to SMU, Hayes coached at Crozier Tech high school in Dallas for 17 years, winning nine city championships and tying for two others. Seven of these combinations won regional titles, four of them went to the state quarter-finals, two to the semi-finals and one team won the state championship.

Prior to coaching at Tech, "Doc" was an all T.I.A.A. forward for three seasons at North Texas State College in Denton where he graduated in 1927.

During his tenure at SMU,

MUSTANG MENTOR

Hayes annexed the Southwest Conference basketball championship from 1955-57 and then tied with Arkansas for the title in 1958. The following year, the Mustangs finished second and then tied for that spot in 1960. Last year, the Ponies fell down the ladder to sixth place.

This year, however, the Mustangs are tied with Texas Tech for the title and are given an excellent chance of taking all the marbles again under the crafty coaching of Hayes.

Tickets may be obtained for $2.50 in the office of the chamber of commerce or from any member of the chamber sports committee, under the direction of Tom Snow.

The Viking, Sir Royal In Main Event Tag Team Win

The Viking and Sir Nelson Royal took an unpopular tag team decision in the main event Friday night in the Borger wrestling arena over Dory Funk and Rickey Romero.

The Viking and Royal took the first and third falls while the team of Funk and Romero took the middle fall.

In the semi-main event, Dandy Dan Miller won over Johnny Como with two straight falls in the best of three falls.

Royal and Romero battled to a 15-minute draw in the opener.

Next week, Funk and Romero will defend their Texas tag team championship against the Viking and Royal in the best two out of three falls with a one hour time limit.

Evelyn Stevens will meet Jessica Rogers in the semi - main event in the best two out of three falls with a 45-minute time limit.

Romero and the Viking will vie in the 15-minute opener.

INDOOR WINS

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Jimmy Rayl outscored Terry Dischinger 38 points to 21 Saturday to lead Indiana to an 88-71 Big Ten basketball victory over Purdue.

Dischinger's total was well off his 34-point per game average, but it was enough to break two Big Ten scoring records.

The big Boilermaker center boosted his three-year scoring total to 1,218 points to esclipse the old conference high of 1,207 established by Indiana's Don Schlundt in 1953-54-55.

The Hoosiers, avenging an early season setback by Purdue, jumped in front in a hurry, leading 8-0 in the first two minutes of play and never trailed.

FROGS WIN

FORT WORTH (UPI)— Texas Christian catcher Ken Anderson powdered a grand slam home run in the bottom of the 10th inning Saturday to give the Horned Frogs a 9-6 baseball victory over Baylor.

The win evened a two-game non-conference series between the teams. Baylor won at Waco 11-4 Friday in the first game of the season for both clubs.

TCU rallied twice late in the contest, scoring three runs in the last of the ninth to tie it up 5-5. The Bears again went in front 6-5 in the 10th on a triple by John McEldowney and a single by Ken Marshall.

Palmer Is Pro Golfer To Beat

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sports of all sorts:

Gary Player led golf's money winners last year but wherever he plays Arnold Palmer still is the one the other pros regard as the "man to beat" ... "In fact," says ex-PGA champ Jay Hebert, "Palmer may win the Masters championship six or seven times before he's through" ... Palmer, 32, won it in 1958 and 1960, lost it on the last hole in '61.

Manager Fred Hutchinson of the Cincinnati Reds tells why you rarely find a hog-fat ball player now showing up for spring training ... "Modern players report in condition. They are all business and know if they come to camp out of condition and have to spend too much time losing excess poundage they could easily lose their jobs."

Horse players in the big town are getting frantic ... First race for Thoroughbreds and first for the trotters don't go off until Mach 20 at the local parks ... To the rabid betting brigade, that's an eternity to wait.

The 11th annual Biddy Basketball Tournament is scheduled for Lakewood, N.J., April 4-7 ... Height limit for the youngsters is 5 feet, 6.

The Houston Colts, joining the National League this season, have nearly 150 players under contract ... They've been beating the bushes for prospects of all shapes, sizes and ages almost from the day they landed a big league franchise.

Wayne Hardin, Navy's football coach is the first to come in with a claim to a tough '62 playing schedule ... The Middies open with Penn State, close with Army and in between face Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Southern California, Boston College, William and Mary and Cornell ... That's rugged, all right, but Wayne will get an argument if he insists it's the toughest of the year.

Richie Guerin has been voted the most popular player on the pro basketball New York Knicks by some 250,000 youngsters in the Catholic Youth Organization ... Well, maybe he only was the least unpopular, considering how the Knicks have been floundering.

Red Hickey of the San Francisco Forty-Ninres thinks there's still some life left in his "shotgun" offense that caught National Football League foes by surprise in the middle of last season ... Red says his club will be basically T-formation in '62 but there'll be some shotgunning "to keep defenses honest."

The Pirates report 21 of their 40-man roster in spring training are graduates of American Legion Junior Baseball ranks ... Among them are old-timers Bob Friend and Smokey Burgess.

Bucks Annex Crown In Basketball Tournament

White Deer's Bucks stood atop the state Class A basketball ladder today as a result of their smashing 59-39 victory over Woodsboro Saturday afternoon in the state finals in Gregory gymnasium in Austin.

The Bucks, coached by Wayne Tipton, would not be denied as they took an early first quarter lead and then roared on to win all the marbles by 20 points and emerge as the new kingpin in Class A play. It was their first Class A cage title.

The Bucks lost out in the state tourney last year to James Bowie in the first round, but belted West Sabin of Pineland Thursday to move into the finals with their surprise win over Bowie, 56-38.

Bowie was the tournament favorite.

For Tipton, it marked a successful climax to his freshman year at the helm of the new state champs. Tipton took another team, Sunray, into the state tournament two years ago only to lose out in the finals. The Bucks finished the season with an overall 32-5 record.

For awhile, it looked like the Bucks might falter in the stretch as they did Thursday in winning by a single point margin, but an 18-point burst in the final period of play iced the contest away and left Woodsboro with a second-place finish in the tournament.

Gerald Bichsel, Carl McAdams and Carroll Russell stole scoring honors for the Bucks, but the overall determination of the entire White Deer squad made it possible for them to emerge as "king of the mountain."

Bichsel fired in 20 points while McAdams, the all-stater popped in 16 and Russell poured in 13 points. Curtis Campbell scored six points and Jimmy Thurmond and Coleman each chipped in two apiece to wrap up the scoring for White Deer.

McAdams fired in six field goals and four from the line; Bichsel had eight field goals and four from the line and Russell had six two pointers and one from the charity mark to pace the rampaging Bucks into the throne room.

Tipton cleared the bench with some 30 seconds remaining on the clock with Coleman the lone reservist getting into the scoring column with two free throws to his credit.

The lead exchanged hands nine times in the first quarter before the Bucks could draw ahead, 14-11 at the end of the quarter. From that point on, however, the boys from White Deer bombarded the baskets with a vengeance and held a 7-17 lead at the half. At the end of the third quarter, the Bucks still had an eight point margin, leading 41-33.

Then came the big fourth quarter, with Tipton and his cagers sensing victory in the offering. The screaming White Deer fans could also sense their team's victory and yelled their undaunted enthusiasm until the final gun went off and White Deer was the new state champion in Class A basketball.

The team is expected to arrive back in White Deer about 5 p.m. tonight. Monday morning a rousing celebration will be held in front of the white deer in the square starting at 10:10 a.m. in honor of the team's winning the state title.

The celebration will be spearheaded by the Lions club and the junior chamber of commerce.

Baseball Briefs....

Konstanty Signs To Manage Minor Club

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The Yankees Saturday announced they had signed Jim Konstanty, former Phillie and Yankee bullpen ace, as a minor league pitching coach.

Konstanty will work with the main squad of Yankees at their training camp here for one week and then will depart for Lake Wales where he will devote all his time to minor league pitchers.

Manager Ralph Houk said Mickey Mantle would see limited action in the early stages of the Grapefruit League schedule.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) New York Mets manager Casey Stengel scheduled a second squad game for Sunday afternoon and nominated Jay Hook, Bob Miller, Al Jackson and Sherman Jones to do the pitching.

First baseman Gil Hodges and second baseman Charley Neal, who missed the first squad game on Friday, will play in Sunday's game.

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—First baseman Bo Osborne of the Detroit Tigers will be given a shot at catching this spring, manager Bob Scheffing said Saturday.

Scheffing plans to go with only two regular catchers—Dick Brown and Mike Roarke—but would like a third player ready to catch in case of injury.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) Manager Johnny Keane of the St. Louis Cardinals stressed the importance of smart base running in an hour-long clubhouse meeting Saturday, held while the field was drying after a rainy night.

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) Manager Mickey Vernon Saturday divided the Washington squad into two teams, the blues and the grays, in preparation for the first intra-squad game of the season Sunday.

Vernon picked three right-handers, Jim Hannan, Ray Rippelmeyer and Joe Schaffernoth, to pitch for the blues. Carl Bouldin, Tom McAvoy and Carl Middledorf will go for the Grays.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Sam McDowell, the $75,000 bonus baby of the Cleveland Indians, Saturday was the choice of manager Mel McGaha to pitch the first game of the exhibition season here next Saturday against the San Francisco Giants.

McDowell came to the Indians camp 10 days before the regulars reported and quickly worked himself into condition. After watching the youngster throw, McGaha said McDowell was ready to pitch right now.

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Big Frank Howard was stationed exclusively at first base Saturday while the Los Angeles Dodgers practiced cutoff and rundown plays, a good indication that Howard will be the regular first baseman.

General Manager Buzzie Bavasi went so far as to say that if Howard and Ron Fairly are in the same lineup, Howard should be the first baseman.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—After sending his squad through an abbreviated workout Friday, manager Hank Bauer of the Kansas City A's went back to his customary four hour drill Saturday.

Bauer announced that the A's will play three inter squad games before the exhibition season opens on March 10 when the A's journey to Vero Beach to oppose the Los Angeles Dodgers. Intra - squad games are slated for March 7, 8, and 9.

Yorktown Winner Of Annual New Orleans Race Handicap

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— Yorktown, benefited by an early pace, came on in the stretch Saturday to upset heavily-favored Carry Back and win the 35th annual $50,000 added New Orleans handicap at Fair Grounds.

Hillsborough was second, followed by last year's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Carry Back.

Tollway set the early pace. George D. Widener's Yorktown, under a good ride by Jimmy Nichols, made his move as the 12-horse field entered the final turn of the mile and one-eighth race. Yorktown slowly pulled away from the field.

Hillsborough challenged Yorktown in the stretch but the 5-year-old chestnut from Florida failed to weaken. Carry Back made a belated move in the stretch, but the little horse finished three and one-half lengths behind Hillsborough.

Yorktown, an 8-to-1 shot, won by a length and a half. The victory earned $47,000.

Orleans Doge, a favorite of many, finished seventh and never threatened.

The second largest crowd of the season, 18,175, turned out to watch the feature ninth race under ideal weather conditions. Light rains the previous two days did not affect the track, which was termed good and fast.

Yorktown's time at the historic a record.

Sunrise County Wins Flamingo

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—Robert Lehman's Prego finished a length and a quarter back of Sunrise County Saturday but took the rich 33rd running of the $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes when the winner was disqualified for bearing out in the stretch.

Sunrise County, which covered the mile and one eighth in 1:49—two seconds over Bold Ruler's 1957 track record—bore out badly in the stretch and was placed third behind Ridan. The disqualified winner interfered with Ridans stretch drive as Prego slipped in along the rail for a second-place finish by a nose over the onrushing Ridan.

It was a costly defeat for Sunrise County, which lost the $88,530 first-place money. For Prego, a nearly black colt which came from far back, it was sensational win.

Dallas Jeff Wins AAAA Cage Title

AUSTIN (UPI)—The runaway rebels from Thomas Jefferson of Dallas won the Class AAAA championship of the state high school basketball tournament Saturday with a two-platoon 69-46 victory over Jefferson Davis of Houston.

White Deer loped past Woodsboro, 59 - 39 to win the Class A championship and Huntington fought off a Roxton rally to win the Class B title 60-56.

In night games, Buna defended its class AA title against Jacksboro and Dumas played Waxahachie for the Class AAA crown.

Consolation titles went to Lubbock, in Class AAAA, with a 51-42 victory over Bryan; and Clear Creek (League City), a revenge winner by 66-56 over South San Antonio in Class AAA.

Striking on fast breaks and controlling the backboards, the Dallas school ended the season with a 32-2 record and proved itself one of the best teams in Texas schoolboy history.

Dallas hit 60 per cent of its shots.

Dallas Jefferson stormed into a 13-5 first quarter lead over Houston Davis, and opened the throttle to go ahead 33-13 at the half. The Panthers began connecting on their long shots in the second half and all but matched the Rebels in point production, 33-36, but they found the range too late.

The winners were led by Bob Glover with 16 points and Dexter Marble with 12.

Houston's Darrell Hardy paced his team with 12 points. The losing Panthers connected on 34 per cent of their shots and held a 35-33 edge in rebounds, with Hardy grabbing 13 of them.

Coach Archie Porter of the Class AAAA champions cleared the Rebel bench with 1:25 left in the game, but by then his reserves had seen as much action as he starters.

Jefferson's 69 points constituted the highest winning score in a Class AAAA championship, and the 23-point spread was the widest margin in a title game since the division began play in 1952.

Tale Of The Tape Is A Big Bit In Sports, Including Judging

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The tale of the tape is a big bit in sports.

Before any championship fight, the boys whip out their muscle measurers and give you the analytical analysis. These comparative figures usually do little more than confuse the issue if, by chance, you have ever seen a jockey-sized gub clobber some behemoth with an elan that would shame David when he went up against Goliath.

But it's all good clean fun and Fearless Fraley has done his share.

Old Fearless has tape measured a lot of muscles in his time; Namely the size of Joe Louis' biceps, the stratospheric altitude of Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, the elongation of Primo Carner's feet and the words and inches of Mickey Mantle's homeric home runs.

But I got a new racket going now.

Old Fearless has moved into the beauty queen business and the likes of Roger Maris, Floyd Patterson, Arnold Palmer, et al, may never see me again.

Let me tell you, this is a lot more fun than tape measuring a home run and if you think that Whitey Ford can throw a curve you haven't seen anything yet.

"Bring your tape measure," said Don Clayton, president of putt-putt golf, "and be one of our beauty judges."

When Old Fearless got through with all that measuring, and naturally those 34-23-34 figures had to be double checked several times, the title of putting queen of America went to a flashing-eyed heart-breaker from Sarasota, Fla., named Sue Scarborough.

Maybe you sports buffs are kinda like me, but I never knew that a girl had to do anything more but fill a bathing suit to win one of these things. But, if anybody's interested, they also have to have talent. This department favored a little gal from Cleveland, Ohio, named Nancy Nabinger, who made Helen Hayes look like she was straight out of triple A ball.

Oh, yes, there was a putting king, too. A young fellow from Massapequa, N.Y., named Charley Schafer. He's 22 years old and a student at Augusta, Ga., College. In a matter of about four hours, Cyarley picked up $1,200 by setting an all-time low putt-putt golf score of 245 for 144 holes. If you are bad at mathematics, too, that means he was 43 strokes under par—and dropped 47 aces on putts of from 3 to 4 feet.

Charley's score shattered the old record of 246 held jointly by Neil Connor of Greenville, S.C., Lee Weldy of Savannah, Ga., and Charles McIntosh of Birmingham, Ala.

Griffith, Paret In Third Title Match

NEW YORK (UPI)—Emile Griffith says his third title fight with welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret must be called a "rubber match" because of the long stretch between the purses of champion and challenger.

Paret of Cuba gets a $50,000 guarantee with the privilege of 40 per cent of all net receipts, according to contracts just signed for their 15-round title fight at Madison Square Garden, March 24.

Griffith of New York and the Virgin Islands receives only a $10,000 guarantee with the privilege of 20 per cent.

"That's a long, long stretch," said 23-year-old Griffith, the pride of New York's millinery trade. "And it seems longer to me because I thought I beat Paret in our last fight, and so did the sports writers."

In their first two title bouts, Griffith wrested the 147-pound crown from 24-year-old Paret on a 13th-round knockout at Miami Beach last April 1; but busy Paret recaptured the diadem on a split decision over Emile at the Garden, Sept. 3.

Many of the 6,072 fans booed the September decision, and a poll of 22 sports writers at the ringside favored Griffith, 18-4.

Swatter

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rogers Hornsby, who started his major league career with the St. Louis Cardinals and ended it with the old St. Louis Browns, won the National League batting championship seven times and had an all-time high of .424 in 1924, still a modern record.

SCOTTISH FLIGHT II is all upset after missing the open ditch in the James Edgar Steeplechase in Plumpton, England. Neither jockey W. Rees nor the horse, which finished fourth in last year's Grand National, was injured in the spill.

Wayt Is Iron Man At Rice As Three-Sport Athelete

HOUSTON (UPI)—At Rice University, where one out of every 14 male students is on the varsity football squad, it is not unusual for an athlete to play two sports.

But a rugged young freshman named Russell Wayt from White Oak, Tex., has already won a name for himself at the school as a solid competitor in three sports.

The other evening, Wayt scored 12 points for the Rice freshmen basketball team, then got his sleep, attended classes the next morning, put on football togs and led all ball carriers during an intrasquad game and then finished the day by dumping in 14 points for the frosh cage team that night.

His other sport specialty is track. Wayt holds the Texas high school discus throw record at 175 feet, set last spring at White Oak. He'll start track and field work as soon as spring football drills are ended.

This versatile 19-year-old athlete is serious about his classroom work too. He just missed making the dean's list of superior students last semester. Wayt plans to major in business administration.

He wasn't exactly an unknown when he came to Rice. Russell's 21-year-old brother, Bob, lettered three seasons as halfback for the Owls.

But Bob quickly was labeled as Russell's "little brother." The younger Wayt is 6-foot, 4-inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. The Rice athletic department calls him a "brilliant prospect" as fullback and linebacker.

Russell says growing up in the White Oak community of East Texas just naturally leads a fellow to become a multi-sport athlete.

Plainsmen Win In Consolation

AUSTIN (UPI)—Lubbock Monterey defeated Bryan, 61-42, in Class AAAA and Clear Creek of League City toppled defending division champ South San Antonio, 66-56 in Class AAA today to win consolation titles in the state high school basketball tourney.

Monterey led Bryan all the way behind the one-two punch of Jerry Morgan and Russ Wilkinson. Morgan scored 23 points and Wilkinson hit 16. The West Texans ran up a 31-19 halftime margin and were never in trouble. Bobby Seale led Bryan with 11.

Miss. State To Slate Training

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State opens spring football training Monday under its new head coach, Paul Davis.

The Bulldogs will drill four times a week for five weeks with the climax coming in the annual intrasquad game April 7.

Davis, successor to Wade Walker, said his chief problem was "finding 33 men willing to pay the price it takes to play Southeastern Conference football."

Specifically, he is looking for talent at the guard and quarterback positions. Charlie Furlow, a good passer but average runner, is a letterman quarterback. Tommy Ranager, 201, is the only letterman guard.

Putting Proof Of Golf Difference

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Chunky Lionel Hebert, U.S. PGA's last match play champion made a scholarly analysis of tournament golf today with the final conclusion that putting is the only answer.

"Jack Nicklaus in five amateur years never changed his putter once," Hebert explained. "Three weeks on the tour and he changed his putter."

All of the other shots must be there, of course, but it's the work around and on the greens which spells the difference between winning and losing.

"If you can't putt," says the sun-tanned bayou boy, "there's absolutely no way you can play winning golf. Because you don't realize how good you are playing until you start putting badly. And when a man shoots a 68 or a 69 he's got to be holing more putts than he should."

The fairway longevity of Slammin' Sammy Snead, says Hebert, is a tribute to the West Virginian's short game—even though the 49-year-old Slambo is noted primarily as a man who can swat the ball prodigious distances.

"There are eight guys who hit it better than Snead," explains Lionel, whose brother, Jay, also won the PGA title. "Fellows like Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Tommy Bolt and Nicklaus can really bang it out there, just to name a few.

"So what keeps Snead up there?" he says. "His chipping and his putting. Snead is one of the greatest bunker players and chippers, so while his rhythm isn't as pure as it once was, he stays a winner because he still can putt with the best of them."

Losing that putting touch, although he still had everything else, is what ended the top-flight career of the mighty Ben Hogan.

"He couldn't get the putter back anymore," Lionel insisted. "It gets to be a menal problem with all of us on the tour. Today you have it, tomorrow it's all gone. For two years I was a helluva putter. Then for two years I lost it."

The pros can't ever lay off because that errant touch with all their clubs is lost easily, too, Heber points out.

"I took a week off," he groaned, "and didn't play once. Oh, I hit a bag or two of balls every day, but I didn't play. It took me two months to get my game back together and, as I said, longer than that to find my putting touch again. And when you don't get any birdies because something has gone wrong, it really starts bugging you."

Yet, even when all the other shots are in the bag, that elusive, here today and gone tomorrow putting touch is the nerve-shaker.

"In a tournament," Lionel related, "a tough putt for a par can be much more inspiring than a four-foot putt for a birdie. That trouble putt for a par makes you a tiger because when you miss that par you're really hurting. In this game you go for the pars and hope that the birdies will take care of themselves.

"If you're putting well, they will," he concluded. "If you're not, you might as well go home. Playing great from tee to green, and then chopping it up on the carpet, is a sure way to drive a pro to the nuthouse."

And, he might have added, to the poorhouse, as well.

Cardinals Will Rely On Vets For 1962 Diamond Campaign

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Youth may be served almost everywhere else but with the St. Louis Cardinals it will be the veterans on the firing line at the start.

Johnny Keane, starting his first full season as a manager, emphasizes that he will concentrate this spring "in getting the players in shape who are going to be playing for us this year."

He isn't discounting youth.

"But we only have a few kids whose records indicate they may be ready," he explains," and I'm not going to waste my time or use up other players' time working with kids who are a year or more away.

"Maybe the youngsters will not like my system, but they can wait — just like I did."

Keane waited 30 years before he got the job he wanted — manager of the Cardinals. And he doesn't mean to let the job slip away from him.

"We just have to get off to a better start this year than we have the past few seasons," Keane reasons. "I think the best chance we have of doing that is to play from the start the players who we know are going to be out there for us this year.

"They are the ones we are going to concentrate on.

"We only have a few jobs open on our club and we will watch the candidates for them closely. At the positions at which we are set, those players will be out there in almost all of our exhibition games. I want them to be ready when the season starts."

Not even the veteran Stan Musial is ing to be allowed to take it easy.

"Stan has always done his own pacing in spring training, but this year he is going to play in exhibition games so he will be in shape for the season's opener. I talked with Stan about it and he is agreeable. I pointed out there was no use saving him or our other veterans until later in the season — for then it might be too late."

Another player who is going to get a lot of spring work is pitcher Lindy McDaniel, head of the St. Louis bullpen corps.

"He pitched only 16 innings in spring training last year," Keane points out, "so he wasn't ready when the reason opened. This spring I am going to start him a lot to make sure he has enough work.

Light Might Be Shed On Fixes In SWC Basketball On Tuesday

DALLAS (UPI) — Southwest Conference basketball fans may get a clue in Tuesday night's season-ending games to the identity of officials who are being investigated by the FBI and state police for alleged game fixing.

The suspect officials will probably be held out of the games.

Howard Grubbs, Executive Secretary of the Southwest Conference, said Saturday such action will probably be taken. The conference has 25 officials available to work the games.

"Since it is now obvious that we have exchanged information with authorities," Grubbs said, "I think it also follows that we naturally would not use anyone in these final games who might be under investigation."

Two or three officials are reported under suspicion.

Tuesday night's wind-up will find Arkansas at Southern Methodist, Texas Tech at Rice, Baylor at Texas A&M, and Texas Christian at Texas.

If SMU and Tech win, they will share the conference co - championship and will meet in a one-game playoff to determine who goes into the NCAA playoff series.

"We would like to do everything possible," Grubbs said, "to ease the tasks of these officials working these final games."

"Until this thing is proved or disproved everyone is under suspicion. It's a tremendous burden for a man to call a game under these circumstances."

News of the investigation came as a shock to Grubbs and a surprise to Southwest Conference basketball fans.

"I still believe none of our officials is guilty," Grubbs said. "But if this proves to be a mistake, I know only a few would be involved. One of the terrible consequences of these rumors is that all officials are being tarred."

The first hint of the investigation came Thursday in a sports column by Gene Roswell of the New York Post. He said "there is so much going on in the Southwest Conference it would make the Eastern scandals look like kid stuff."

Friday, Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety and chief of the Texas Rangers, acknowledged that his department was making an investigation "as a matter of course."

The FBI has declined comment on its role in the investigation. But it was learned that state and federal agents have talked to league officials, coaches and players. They were reported screening films of at least six conference games this season.

All reports have emphasized that no players or coaches are involved in the alleged game fixing.

In his column, Roswell said the situation came to light because New York bookies had taken a financial beating on some Southwest Conference games.

Other sources report some bookies refuse to take bets on games in which certain basketball referees are officiating.

Koufax Hoping For Big Pitching Year

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI)— This may be the year, Sandy Koufax hoped today, that he pays off on the patience with his promise.

It's been a long road for the kid from Brooklyn. The Dodgers signed him when he was 19 and toted him west to Los Angeles like an extra piece of luggage.

They were bitter years because wildness idled his fast ball and without work he couldn't hope to win the control he so desperately needed.

"I didn't feel that I was being held back," explained the handsome, deeply-tanned young man in a low voice. "I did feel that I wasn't doing the job."

He wasn't. They used him in spots and through five of those first six years he could do no better than break even once.

"I needed a chance to start and stay in rotation," he said quietly as he warmed up in the Dodger training camp. "I had to have that steady work. Finally, last season, they gave it to me. It was the first time I pitched more than 175 innings."

The job he did was clear cut evidence as to why the Dodgers had stayed with him so long, afraid to use him but afraid to give him up. Despite the fact that for a month he didn't win a ball game, Koufax won 18 games against 13 losses.

But even more indicative of his skills was the fact that he wiped out a record which had been in the baseball history books for 58 years.

The six foot, two inch, 220-pounder set a National League record of 269 strikeouts, breaking by two the mark set by Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants in 1903. Mathewson needed 367 innings to set his mark of 267. Koufax broke that in 256 innings.

Which means that Koufax has the highest per game strikeout average in baseball annals with a total of 952 strikeouts in 948 innings. That comes out to 9.04 per nine inning game.

But even more important to the Dodgers was the fact that Sandy pitched 15 complete - games. Because in six previous years he had managed a total of only 22 complete games.

"Sure, it was nice to break the record," he smiled. "But now I'd rather win 20 games. I'll still probably strike out a lot of hitters because that's the way I pitch. But it's games I want most of all now. And I think I can get them if I can keep my control. The only way I know how to do that is to keep throwing."

How he goes could mean a pennant for the Dodgers, a big payoff on perseverance and a gamble that someday he would find that control. As for Sandy, at 26 he feels he's about to come of age on the mound.

ACC Winner In Cinder Tourney

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Pat Clohessy and Laurie Elliott, the University of Houston's Australian-bred mile-run duo, raced to new meet records Saturday, but Abilene Christian walked away with the University honors in the Southwestern Recreation track meet.

Clohessy won the University Division mile in 4:12.3 to better the old meet record of 4:13.3 set two years ago by North Texas State's John Cooper, and then Elliott, younger brother of four-minute miler Roger Elliott, came along to post a 4::12.7 in the Junior College Freshman class.

Dexter Elkins of Southern Methodist set the only other meet record with a vault of 14 feet 8½ inches, well below his indoor season high of 15-6 but better than the record of 14-6 held here by Olympian David Clark of North Texas since 1960.

Jerry Dyess, who won the out standing athlete award with two first places in the javelin and broad jump and a second place in the shot put, led ACC to a repeat team championship. ACC scored 81 points to 5 for Baylor, 32 for SMU, 25 for Houston, 24 for Texas Christian, 19 for Texas Tech, 14 for North Texas and 4 for Tulsa.

Four Stars Repeat On Cage Team

DALLAS (UPI)—Four familiar faces from the past and new comer Phil Reynolds, of Texas Christain won berths on the United Press International's 1962 all-Southwest Conference basketball team today.

All four junior members of the 1961 UPI team maintained their all-star place and won repeat honors—Southern Methodist's Jan Loudermilk, Texas Tech's Harold Hudgens and Del Ray Mounts and Texas A&M's Carroll Broussard, who made the honor five for the third successive season.

Loudermilk, the 6 - 6 forward who led the conference in scoring going into next Tuesday's final game, was the only unanimous choice, polling all 60 possible points from the votes of college sports publicity directors and UPI representatives.

Broussard, Hudgens and Mounts, who were unanimous a year ago, came close again, but the 6-5 Broussard and 5-10 Mounts each were placed on the second team by one balloter and the 6-10 Hudgens by two voters.

Reynolds, a six - foot outside shooter, whose steady sniping made TCU a constant threat to the leaders, won out in close voting in a three-way scrap with Arkansas' twin terrors, Jerry Carlton, and Tommy Boyer.

The TCU pepperpot polled 47 points to 41 for Boyer, the nation's No. 1 free throw specialist, and 40 for Carlton, who ranked No. 2 at the foul line.

The Arkansas hot-shots headed up a second team that also included Rice's 6-10 sophomore center Kendall Rhine, the Dupo, Ill., transient who led the league in rebounds and SMU's 6- 7 Dave Siegmund and 6-2 James Thompson.

Rhine didn't get a single first-team vote, but he was a second-team choice of all but one voter and had 33 points to 21 for Thompson and 18 for Siegmund.

Loudermilk, with a 21-1 -point average, was the keystone around which SMU rallied from three successive losses at mid-term to go into the season's final game tied for the lead with Texas Tech.

With Reynolds' 20.5-point average aiding considerably, the first-team boasted a potential of 91.6 points per game with Mounts' 16-point average the smallest. Broussard, crippled much of the early season, averaged 17.2 and Hudgens 16.8.

The first team was an all-senior crew, but Boyer, Thompson and Siegmund (juniors) with soph Rhine give the second unit plenty of returning potential.

Federal Highway Program Tainted With Scandal

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the nation's biggest public works projects — the multi-billion-dollar highway building program—has been tainted with scandal in some states. Abuses have ranged from kickbacks on land purchases, the most costly, to under-the-table payoffs from contractors to engineers supervising road construction. This in-depth examination of some of the abuses includes information gathered by United Press International correspondents across the nation.

By FRANCIS X. BRENNAN
United Press International

These are harsh words:

"Waste . . . collusion . . . misuse . . . bribery."

In some states, these words have been linked to one of the greatest public works projects in history, the federal government's $41 billion highway program.

Local and federal grand juries, state legislative committees and commissions, and Congress itself have taken hard looks at highway scandals in such states as Florida, New Mexico, North Carolina, Michigan, Oklahoma and Indiana.

Their findings found a pattern—collusion and bribes in the sale of land for rights of way, misuse of funds, payoff, use of inferior materials.

The scandals have stretched over periods of months and years. They form the sorry exceptions to the overall record of the federal-state highway building program.

As one investigating congressman put it, the faults, when they turn up, "deal with the human element."

The congressman is Rep. Robert E. Cook, D-Ohio, member of a House highways investigating sub-committee which began looking into highway scandals almost 18 months ago.

The investigation has exposed abuses in highway construction programs which forced many other states to take another look at their own programs.

Cook feels present laws are probably adequate to deal with abuse and waste in the federal highway program. The U. S. Bureau of Roads, he said, has power to correct procedures which may have resulted in the various abuses in the program under which the federal government shoulders 90 per cent of the cost.

If new laws should be needed, Cook said, they probably would be in the area of strengthening the bureau's present enforcement powers.

The most costly abuses uncovered, and the most lucrative for those seeking easy profits, have involved land purchases. Such deals usually involved prior knowledge of a route location for a new highway, and the opportunity and ready cash to buy the desired land at low rates.

In Florida, a legislative interim committee on roads and highways turned up a payola scandal and numerous irregularities involving rights-of way. Figures involved were in the millions of dollars.

The investigation began during the administration of former Gov. LeRoy Collins in his final year and carried over into the new administration of Gov. Farris Bryant in January, 1961. In all instances, the irregularities covered the period before Bryant's administration.

The legislative committee said a road board member held a financial interest in a tract of land bought for right-of-way and that the chief appraiser for the road department had indulged in land speculation.

This land speculation occurred in Florida's Brevard County, home of Cape Canaveral. Investigations revealed right-of-way costs in Brevard County spiraled to more than 100 per cent of original appraisals over a 6-year period.

State and U. S, committees cited mismanagement in disposition of improvements on rights-of-way. They charged that contractors used houses, fruit trees, and other items as gifts to Road Department personel. One contractor testified he charged the state $82,000 to remove structures on a right-of-way. A few days later, he said, he paid a house mover $45,000 to actually do the work, setting a $37,000 profit.

Charges were aired of under-the-table payments of cash from contractors to Road Department engineers. As a result, eight contractors, including some of the state's largest road builders, were suspended from bidding on contracts. Of the 26 road engineers involved, 4 were suspended and the rest fired. But all except 10 have since been reinstated.

In Michigan, the threat of a scandal popped up in 1958.

Charging corruption, State Sen. John H. Stahlin moved against the State Highway Department's activities in biddings, bond issues, hiring practices and other areas of programming.

Stahlin, a Republican businessman, accused the department of spending too much money unnecessarily. He also accused the state administrative board of acting illegally on large highway bond issues.

Stahlin succeeded in getting a committee named to investigate. Two years later he submitted the committee report to the State Senate. His conclusions amounted basically to the belief that there was a "pattern of corruption" in Michigan's highway dealings.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie labelled the Stahlin corruption report as absolutely false. The report, Mackie said, was "full of weird reasoning, wild assertions and wrong conclusions." The matter rested there.

In Massachusetts, the highway scandals moved through indictments to convictions.

A total of 10 persons and two corporations were indicted. Of the 10, four were tried and convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government by means of bloating land appraisals. All four are appealing. Nine other individuals named co-conspirators weren't indicted.

Among those convicted was Boston attorney James S. O'Connell, a brother of Superior Court Judge Daniel J. O'Connell Jr. At the time of the alleged conspiracy, Daniel O'Connell was chief secretary to then Democratic Gov. Foster Furcolo.

It was testified at James O'Connell's trial that a landowner accepted a $60,000 settlement from the Department of Public Works (DPW) for land taken for a highway and for which he originally was willing to sell for $30,000. There also was evidence aimed at proving that Francis L. Harney Jr., a DPW right of way division negotiator on trial with O'Connell, induced the landowner to engage O'Connell to negotiate the settlement. The landowner was advised of O'Connell's connection with Furcolo's chief secretary, it was charged.

The landowner testified he received only half of the settlement —the other half going to James O'Connell.

Since then, Gov. John A. Volpe has filed legislation to abolish the offices of the DPW commissioner and two assistants, replacing them with a $20,000-a-year "career" man. Volpe, who headed the department himself from 1953 to 1956 and was the first federal highway administrator, under former President Eisenhower, believes the revamping should create efficiency.

One of the biggest highway scandals broke in Indiana. It, too, involved purchase and sale of right-of-way land prior to public knowledge of where routes would be located.

A dozen persons were arrested indicted and tried. Nearly all were found guilty. Some are now serving prison terms, while others have been appealing.

Among those sentenced was Virgil (Red) Smith, former chairman of the Indiana Highway Commission. He was accused of accepting kickbacks from persons who bought land cheap and sold it to the state for right-of-way at profits.

There were other states, too, which had highway troubles. Some of them:

—Oklahoma: The Skelly bypass in Tulsa on Interstate 44 drew the attention of both state and federal auhorities.

A Tulsa county grand jury returned indictments against several persons in early 1960, including three partners of a Tulsa contracting firm. Both the grand jury and the House highways investigating subcommittee alleged the government lost more than $500,000 through use of inferior materials on the bypass.

After months of litigation, the charges were dropped and there wasn't a single conviction. Oklahoma's federal road funds, suspended during the controversy, were restored.

—Ohio: Some contractors have been cited for faulty workmanship. Officials noted these contractors were ordered to repair their mistakes before payment was made.

Nixon Suggests GOP Get Out Of Birch Society

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said last week Republicans should get out of the John Birch Society—or the group's founder, Robert Welch, should quit.

Nixon predicted that Welch would never quit and pointed out that the Blue Book, which sets forth the principles of the society, gives him "totalitarian powers."

"That leaves no alternative," the former vice president told newsmen. "That means that I think all Republicans should get out of the John Birch Society."

Nixon appeared before the California Republican Assembly (CRA) in his role as one of two candidates for the GOP nomination for governor. He urged the CRA to adopt a strongly worded resolution condemning Welch.

He was particularly critical of statements attributed to the John Birch Society leader describing former President Eisenhower as a "dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy."

Nixon said many people joined the society in search of a strong anti-Communist program, but "you can't fight communism unless you get off our backs the demagogues and nuts who cast doubt on all anti-Communists by what they say and do."

Barefoot Children Are 'On The Right Track'

ON RAISING CHILDREN
By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barefoot boys—and girls—are on the right track.

By shying from shoes when weather and propriety permit, they seem to be following in the footsteps of the caveman's offspring.

But they're really being quite kind to their feet.

Down-to-earth, they're giving the foot bones a chance to develop in an uncramped way. For feet's sake, they're developing agility and strength.

Who says so is Dr. Simon J. Wikler, a podiatrist from Miami Beach, Fla.

"Take off your shoes and walk" is the edict he would like to see the parents of toddlers follow in child raising — at least until the child goes to school.

Wikler does his saying in a book about foot care. The title—no surprise—is "Take Off Your Shoes and Walk" (Devin-Adair).

"For Toddlers," he reported, "shoes should be worn outdoors only during inclement weather and indoors only for infrequent dress-up occasions."

What kind of shoes? Wikler said the ideal children's shoe allows the toes to spread out in the shoe without deforming pressures.

Here's what Wikler says about room to spare in children's shoes:

"Fitting the shoes large, as it should be, will provoke comments and advice from older people about a loose shoe being bad for the foot.

"Do not believe them. They think feet need shoe support because their own feet are so weak—a tight-fitting shoe must serve as a brace for them to walk at all.

"Children whose feet are healthy do not need a shoe for support. They need a shoe only for protection."

Going barefoot doesn't always mean naked feet. Wikler said an equivalent for going barefoot is wearing slipper socks, booties, or flexible thong sandles.

"Fortunately," he said, "children can go barefoot most frequently in life during the first five years, while they do not yet attend school.

"These years are the most important in foot development. Children under five, if watched closely by their parents, are unlikely to walk where they will cut their feet or do themselves harm.

"Moreover, if they go barefoot frequently, they will soon develop tough, protective skin on the bottom of their feet. Skin thus developed is soft and has no callus but will give much protection."

If you have your child follow the barefoot path frequently, Dr. Wikler says you will find that by the time he is five he will have perfectly functioning and almost entirely unimpaired feet.

Crowd Protests History Book Used In Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas School Board unanimously adopted 36 textbooks last week after protests from a crowd at the meeting about a fifth grade history book already in use.

R. L. Dillard Jr., president of the board, said the board would ask school principals to take another look at the book, "The Story of American Freedom," and give the board their recommendations.

"In my judgment," school Supt. W. T. White said, "the author was inaccurate and should be corrected."

"There is nothing subversive about it," he said.

Several persons objected to the book because it referred to the allies in World War II as the United Nations.

Now is the time to get rid of that old-fashioned clothesline that sun-fades your clothes, lets dust, wind, dirt and sudden Spring rainstorms spoil a fresh, clean wash.

Now is the time to get a modern electric clothes dryer that keeps clothes clean, makes 'em soft and fluffy, protects them from sun-fading, keeps out dust and dirt — and, best of all, lets you dry clothes when YOU want to dry them — the word is convenience, and that's what an electric clothes dryer gives you!

Modified Debate Concerning Africa's Independence Given At TC Club Meet

A modified form of debate on the question "Africa Is Ready For Independence?" was presented by Mrs. L. M. Hicks taking the affirmative and Mrs. Jack P. Foster taking the negative view at the Twentieth Century Club's meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. F. M. Culberson.

Mrs. R. H. Sanford introduced the speakers. Mrs. Hicks, the affirmative, opened her remarks with quotes from Norman Cousins concerning his trip to Leopoldville "that conditions change daily," Mrs. Hicks said, "the people of Africa want the dignity of adulthood and the freedom to make their own mistakes and to suffer and die for them."

She continued, "Independence does not lead to easy living in the process of achievements. They have been completely governed by others and that now they must have the opportunity to practice what they have learned about freedom.'

Mrs. Foster, taking the negative view, emphasized the importance of "Time and Conditions." She used as an important factor the lack of unity of the people as to language, purpose and equality of the people; also, the lack of judicial and economic stablity. "Public health is a vital factor as all kinds of diseases are uncontrolled. Tribalism is still paramount, because of lack of understanding of all these processes of development in the self-government. Africa is now in secession." She concluded "Time and conditions are of the essence in determining their readiness for independence."

Lively discussion concerning the pros and cons of the question were engaged in by the members present, Mmes. W. R. Campbell, J. W. Gordon, Paul Harbaugh, Albert Knox, R. E. McKernan, Fred Neslage, Tom Rose, H. E. Stanfield, Jack Stroupe and G. F. Branson.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. R. W. Stowers, president, Mrs. Raymond Harrah of the Fine Arts committee reminded members of the opportunity to attend Metropolitan Opera Week in Dallas May 13-18.

The education committee recommended continuing the scholarship for a qualified graduate of Pampa High School and to support the "Opportunity Plan Fund" for students at West Texas College at Canyon.

In giving a Public Affairs commitee report, Mrs. Culberson urged members to read the United States News and World Report which contains the article "Man's Finest Hour" by David Lawrence.

Miss Papathanasopoulou Tells B&PW About Life And Customs In Greece

Miss Cathy Papathanasopoulou, American Field Service student from Greece, who is making her home with Dr. and Mrs. Julian Key, was guest speaker at the Business and Professional Women's International Banquet held Tuesday evening in the City Club Room.

Mrs. G. E. Tinnin, president, introduced the guest speaker and extended the club's welcome to her.

Miss Papathanasopoulou, who is a student in Pampa High School, told of her native country's customs, schools and colleges, their industries and native costumes.

She stated that Greece is about one third the size of Texas. "However," she said, "the population is almost as great as Texas. Three-fourths of the country is mountains and all of the population is in the other one - fourth of the country."

"The population is so great that it is difficult to get into either of the two colleges in Greece. Sometimes it takes years and years."

"The schools in Greece," she continued, "have 12 grades as they do in the United States, but they do not have a choice of the subject, which they will take, because they must take all of them."

"Instead of the students changing classes in Greece, the teachers do. School is held six days a week instead of five; however, they go home at 1:30 in the afternoon, because they do not have a cafeteria; therefore, they turn out early for all to go home to eat. They do not have school activities as we have here; nor do they have cars and there is no television in Greece."

One of the things which has impressed Miss Papathanasopoulou is the friendliness of the people here and also the participation of all in the churches.

"They have a King and Queen in Greece," she related. "However, they have a parliament representative, who is elected by the people, who helps govern them." Her interpretation of American people is much different than it was before she came to the United States.

Mrs. Claude Rhodes, International chairman, closed the program with an International Prayer.

Preceding the program, Mrs. Charles Ford extended a greeting. Mrs. F. J. Worrell introduced Mrs. Jeaneane Thornburg, who sang "All The Things You Are" and "You Will Never Walk Alone," accompanied by Miss Elaine Hawkins.

'Home Frontiers' To Be Pictorialized By Scouts

The judging of District II entries in the Quivira Girl Scout Council's "Picture Your Home Frontier" contest will be held March 8, according to Mrs. John Holt Jr., district contest chairman.

Deadline for turning entries for the contest to the Girl Scout office, City Hall, is March 5. Entry blanks may be obtained from the office and must be attached to the back of the picture.

The contest is a nation - wide project to encourage all Girl Scouts to draw, paint, sketch, to take photographs and make prints at the same time they are learning about their own communities and the places, people and activities that have fashioned their home frontiers, past and present. It gives any girl, from Brownie through Senior, a chance to take part in the National Girl Scout Roundup, to be held in Button Bay, Vt., in July, even though she does not attend in person.

Entries must depict activities, natural resources, people, places or things that typify our community or area and have helped to make it what it is today or will be in the future, Mrs. Holt explained.

The four graphic arts media to be represented by the entries are paintings (oil, tempera, water color); prints (blocks, etchings); photographs (black and white or color prints); and drawings (charcoal, pencil, crayon, chalk, scratchboard).

Winning entries will be chosen by a panel of impartial judges on the basis of subject matter that is representative of the home fronier, old or new; and art work or photography that is most commendable for the age and experience of the girl who did it.

Six entries will be selected from each of the Council's three districts for the Council-wide contest, from which six entries will be chosen to send to the National Roundup exhibit. Following the Roundup, pictures will be shown in national and regional exhibits, with a traveling arts caravan in museums and other art shows.

Girls from Pampa, Lefors and Miami are expected to submit entries in the District II contest. All entries in the Distric II content will be exhibited at the Girl Scout Fair, to be held March 17, in the Pampa Junior High Gymnasium.

ASK THE DESIGNER by gaile dugas

Dear Gaile: This is really catching the bird early, I know. But last year, when a group of us went to Europe, you so graciously helped us with our travel wardrobe. And, believe me, we followed your advice to a T.

Now, we are planning another trip. And again, what shall we take is the important question. Will you help us a second time? The trip is almost six months away but there is nothing like being prepared in time. Thank you so very much.—Mrs. W. A. K.

Dear Mrs. W. A. K.: Indeed, I will be glad to help you again. And I'm so glad hat everything worked out last summer. The circular you enclosed shows that you intend visiting Italy and Spain in the midsummer. This time, advice on what to wear comes from designer Ben Barrack, who says:

"Dry cleaning, laundry and pressing facilities will be very bad in the spots you plan to visit so concentrate on easily cared for dresses. The dress with the separate jacket will prove very useful, as will those jersey sheaths in a synthetic.

"Carry one large black or natural straw bag everywhere. Take scarves instead of hats for they can be used to dress up simple, slim jersey sheaths as well. Knot the scarf in a triangle with point hanging over one shoulder so that it creates a bit of protection. Take a print cotton raincoat and one simple, neural cardigan.

"For the heat in both Italy and Spain, take sleeveless dresses, dresses with the easy A-line or permanently pleated skirts. Shorts are worn only on the Riviera. Thong sandals are worn for sightseeing on the streets of Italy and are very comfortable.

"Take a short silk chiffon dress for dinner and evening wear as the fabric is packable and will hang out easily. A bathing suit for Ostia (Rome beach) and another for the Riviera would be a good idea."

Dear Gaile: I read your column with interest every week. Perhaps you can help me plan a wardrobe for a trip to Europe. What would be the minimum amount of clothes to take for a nine-week trip by car in Europe? We will fly to London on June 18th and leave Paris on August 25th for the return flight home.

I have a navy blue, three-piece knit suit trimmed in white or a gold wool suit for the plane. Which would be best? What other clothes should I take? Is it necessary to wear a hat? I do not like to bother with them ordinarily. I will not need evening clothes since my husband and I do not night club or go dinner dancing. I am 45, medium build and wear my gray hair quite short.—Mrs. T. M.

Dear Mrs. T. M.: Since you live in California, I have asked a West Coast designer, Miss Elliete of California, for advice on your fashion problem. This is what she suggests:

"Remember that London at all times is about ten degrees cooler than it is here at home. I'd wear the navy blue suit on the flight. You WILL need a hat in London so I'd make it a small, soft one in silk or ribbon and in a bright color.

"When you reach Paris, you'll find lighter colors in keeping with both the mood of the city and the season. A hat is not important for Paris but I'd take along a hat-shaped veiling. You'll need one wool suit with a washable print blouse in a synthetic jersey.

"Rose Culture" Forms Afternoon Topic For Top O' Texas Garden Club Meeting

Top o' Texas Garden Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. R. E. Anderson, 1818 Chestnut during which plans were discussed for delegates of the club to attend the District One Spring meeting to be held in Lubbock Mar. 19-20.

Mrs. Kenneth Osborn presented a program on "Rose Culture." She emphasized that "good drainage is most essential in producing beautiful roses. This can be accomplished by application of any good organic matter in the planting. We are fortunate that no lime is needed in the soil in this area."

"At least once a year," she said, "a good rose food should be applied to the soil. A good mulch, such as straw or cottonseed hulls, which are easily obtained in this area, helps to control weeds as well as holding the moisture in the soil. It also will prevent disease spores from coming up from the ground to the roses."

Mrs. Osborn also pointed out "that a good time for pruning is when the Forsythia is in bloom. A good soaking of the ground is much better for providing adequate moisutre than the spring kling methoo, which is apt to cause dark spots to appear on the leaves. For the amateur rose-grower there are prepared mixtures available for the control of rose petals."

Mrs. Albert Kouri was welcomed as a new member.

Guests were Mrs. Margie Mack, Mrs. Bennie Holland and Mrs. Pauline Caudill.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

It was announced that Mrs. L. B. Robertson will be hostess for the Mar. 13 meeting at 1:30 p.m. in her home, 2339 Navajo.

Joe Riordan of Lubbock, ABWA guest speaker with Mrs. Clemon Herd, "ABWA Woman of the Year" (Photo, Kenneth Butler)

Mrs. Kenneth Butler crowns Hugh Peeples as "Boss of the Year" and presents him with a ABWA trophy.

'Canada, First Hand' Described By Speaker

Civic Culture Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. K. A. Sorenson for a program on "Canada, First Hand" presented by the hostess.

"Canadians and Americans," she said in opening remarks, "take common pride in many substantial accomplishments. They have tamed the North American wilderness and created incomparably productive economies, which ran well ahead of all others in terms of per capita wealth. Their 4,000 miles of common frontier are a world - famous symbol of peaceful relations between neighbors. The greatest of these accomplishments is one, however, which Canadians and Americans take so much for granted. The fact is that Canada and the United States, each in its own way, have engaged in one of the world's most successful experiments in democracy. At a time, when the values of democracy are increasingly prized, this political accomplishment may well be the true miracle of North America."

"Canadian history," she stated, is unspectacular, mainly because it was brought about largely by constitutional rather than revolutionary means."

Mrs. Sorenson briefly traced Canada's history from the time it was peppered with names of men of different races. "But these names were merely symbols of things to come and it was the French who first took up the formidable challenge of this new land and Canada's first 150 years belong exclusively to them."

"A furry native of the wilds played quite a part in the story, too, and won himself a place on the Dominion's coat of arms for his reward, . .the beaver. For the beaver's pelt was the prize of the fur trade and it was the fur trade that spurred on the explorers."

"Oddly enough," Mrs. Sorenson said, "the English acquired their first serious interest in Canada at the instigation of two Canadians, Pierre Radisson and Medard Des Groseillers. Returning from their journies with a record load of pelts and a new idea that the long canoe haul from the interior could be avoided by shipping furs to France by sea through Hudson Bay. When the Governor of Quebec flatly ordered the pair to forsake the hinterland, they headed east across the ocean instead and were soon captivating court circles in London with tales of great wealth to be won in Canada's far North. The result was the formation in 1670 of the since world-famous organization, "The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading Into Hudson's Bay." This organization has come down through history as trading posts until today it is the greatest chain store in Canada, "The Hudson's Bay Co." or just "The Bay."

"Canada has five years to go before it reaches its hundredth birthday," Mrs. Sorenson said in closing remarks. "The ambitious idea of a united nation caught the imagination of a group of men later known as the "Fathers of Confederation" and in 1867, the British North America Act was passed and became law on July 1, which is still celebrated every year on July 1 as a national holiday. Canada is a constitutional democracy, the Prime Minister and Cabinet are and always have been the truly responsible figures in Canadian politics."

To illustrate the program, Mrs. Sorenson showed slides taken on a recent trip to Canada last summer.

Members present were Mmes. Katie Vincent, H. W. Waters, Willis White, Emmett Gee, Louise Sewell, W. J. Morris, C. F. Penington, W. C. Scott, George Neef, A. D. Hills, R. E. Dauer, Stanley Brandt and Carl E. Axelson.

Mrs. Castenien Is Feted With Party

Refreshments were served from a table appointed in a green and white motif with crystal appointments.

Attending were Mmes. Lee Jackson, Gene Hollar, Duggan Smith, Ken Peeples, John Osborne, Bob Blakeney, A. J. Carubbi, Eddie Chatlin, Carl Barnett, Charlie Wilkerson, Gary Grazier, Jimmie Hayes, Richard Cooke, and R. F. Macdonald.

'Boss Of Year' Named At ABWA Annual Fete

Hugh Peeples was named "Boss of the Year" for 1962 and Mrs. Clemon Herd was recognized as "Business Woman of the Year" at the American Business Women's Association's annual "Boss Night" banquet held Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in the Pampa Hotel.

Annually ABWA selects a "boss" and singles him out for special honor with the presentation of a trophy. Mrs. Kenneth Butler crowned Mr. Peeples as the "Boss of the Year for 1962". He has resided in Pampa for. 23 years and has been manager of Ideal No. 1 for 22 years. He and his wife, Mamie, reside at 707 N. West. They have two sons and five grandchildren. He is a member of the First Baptist Church and is an active member of the Rotary Club.

A patriotic theme was carried out in the table decorations with a traditional hachet and cherry trees with flags displayed.

Invocation was given by Wallace Bruce.

Mrs. Ted Mastin, as toastmistress, introduced Joe Riordan of Lubbock as the evening's speaker.

Mr. Riordan discussed "Effective Living" and stated "The penalty of leadership is responsibility." He stressed that the attitude of the employer towards worthwhile community projects is reflected in the cooperation of employes.

He mentioned that "we are prone to be envious of our neighbor or fellow workers' lot in life, when in reality we hold a position equal to theirs."

He also pointed out that the mood in which an employee arrives on the job was either an asset or a discredit to the company for which he works.

Mrs. Lois Fagan provided dinner music on the Hammond organ. Miss Jean Holman, vocalist, sang "Getting To Know You", "My Heart Reminds Me", "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing" and "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

Early American, Present Day Authors Sketched By TC Culture Club Speakers

Twentieth Century Culture Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. R. Donaldson with Mrs. Ronald Merrill as co-hostess.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. R. E. Dobbin, vice president in the absence of the president, Mrs. Phil Gates, plans were announced by Mrs. J. W. Edminister for the Husbands' Night party, which will be held Mar. 13 at 7 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Jeff Bearden.

For the afternoon's program, Mrs. Ross Buzzard discussed "Early American Authors". She stated that the "earliest American writings were not literature but actual accounts of events in the lives of pioneers such as the account of Pochahuntas and John Smith; stories of the lost colony; fights with Indians."

Benjamin Franklin and Washington Irving were cited as the first real authors Mrs. Buzzard pointed out that Washington Irving was known as "The Father of American Literature."

The speaker also sketched the interesting lives of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Edgar Allen Poe, Walt Whitman and others. As a conclusion, Mrs. Buzzard read the poem "Alone" by Poe.

Mrs. Michael Wilson in discussing "Present Day American Authors" stated that "American literature began to catch up with European literature at the beginning of the 20th century. She discussed outstanding drama, poetry and fiction of America flavoring her discussions with interesting facts about the authors.

Included in her discussion were T. S. Eliot, Archibald McLeish, Thornton Wilder, Eugene O'Neil, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, John Steinbeck and Ernest Hemmingway.

Mrs. Wilson gave special attention to the poet, Robert Frost, four times a Pulitzer prize winner. She described Frost as "a man with warmth and humor" and concluded her discussion by reading from his famous poem, "The Death of the Hired Man."

Refreshments were served during the social hour to the 17 members present.

MATURE PARENT

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Since Thanksgiving our 16-year-old daughter has been dating a boy we have never met. All we know about him is that he is 22, lives in a neighboring town and works in his father's insurance office. He meets our daughter away from the house and when we ask her to invite him home, she always has some excuse. My husband thinks that something must be going on between them to make her so secretive and wants to forbid her to see him. Do you advise . . .

ANSWER: What's going on is not necessarily what you fear is going on.

Isn't it possible that you daughter has confused your concern with her happiness with intrusion on her privacy?

This is not a rare adolescent confusion. Sex feelings are an intimate part of their lives which self - respecting young people need to keep private and away from parents. If we are always asking questions about their dates, they start protecting their privacy by telling us nothing.

They make mysteries of telephone calls, of letters, the backgrounds of their boy and girl friends. When this happens, we can get panicky and "forbid" relationship with the unknown friend — or we can try to clarify the child's confusion about our interest in his life. We can say:

"Look here, you've got us all wrong. We're not asking to meet your friend in order to tear him apart, you know. We want to meet him because we want a chance to get to like what you like."

You see, a young person who gets the idea that our interest in his sexual feelings is prying and critical is often driven to exaggerating the importance of an attachment. He loses the ability to really look at his feelings about the boy or girl he is dating to start fighting us on the issue of his "independence" — his right to be different from us.

Soon keeping us in the dark about his sexual activities has become the prime concern — and his feelings for the boy or girl a minor one. But so long as all his energies are given over to defensive warfare against our prying and suspiciousness, he can't discover that the person for whom he's fighting isn't worth it.

I myself don't respect young men very much who meet 16-year-old girls on the sly.

But this young man is not your problem. Your problem is detachment from a fight with you daughter so that she gets a chance to steady her own judgment of sneakiness.

Sixth Annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper Will Have Mardi Gras Theme

The sixth annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper will be held Tuesday in St. Matthews Parish House, 727 W. Browning, sponsored by the Men's Club of St. Matthews with their wives assisting.

Pancakes with bacon, hot syrup and coffee will be served by candlelight in a Mardi Gras atmosphere from five o'clock until 7:30 p.m.

Tickets will be $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children 12 and under and may be secured from members of the Men's Club, Youth Groups, Church Office or at the door. The public is cordially invited. There will be prizes awarded to the four persons selling the most tickets. A King and Queen will be crowned for the two selling the most tickets and two attendants will be selected from the next two high ticket sellers.

The history of the traditional pancake supper, which is held locally each year, goes back many centuries, when it was designated as a time to use up all the leaven in the house before the meatless Lenten Season began. The custom of meeting in the church for a pancake supper grew with everyone attending services afterward.

Shrove Tuesday is the last day before the beginning of Lent on Ash Wednesday. Its religious use, from which the name was taken, was to make confession and be "shriven." Later the Mardi Gras developed around a simple congregational gathering.

Clem Followell, general chairman, has appointed the following committees: Messrs. and Mmes. Carl Thomas, procurement; James Hart, coffee; Carl Thomas, Lance Kenner and Lewis Belanger, bacon; Fred Richmond, batter; Bill Ragsdale, Jim Dailey, C. R. Howard, Carl Thomas, pancake flippers; Walt Jordan, Clem Followell, Bill Dingus, food serving; The Rev. and Mrs. William E. West, tickets; Al Knox, and Horace Watkins, tablesetting; Jack Cooper, syrup and butter; Paul Hinton, Bob Fugate, Mrs. Sally Hamlett and Senior High Youth Group, clean-up; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Root and the Junior High Youth Group, cleaning tables; Dr. and Mrs. Felix Vendrell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reeve and Senior High Youth Group, decorations; and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ragsdale, publicity.

Idaho Included In Study Of 'Our Fabulous Fifty'

Twentieth Century Forum Club, in pursuing its current study of "Our Fabulous Fifty" concerning the various states in the United States, met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Frank Kelley for papers on "Idaho" presented by Mrs. D. M. Lawrence.

To begin the sketch of Idaho, Mrs. Lawrence said "The name, Idaho, is derived from the Indian words "Ee-da-how," meaning "light on the mountains." Idaho's past and present, its attraction for early day miners, its great forrests and its vast network of irrigation canals are all a result in one way or another of the mountains. In doing research for these articles, Mrs. Bourland and I found that there are practically no famous people from Idaho. That with 83,500 square miles of territory, the population of the entire state is about 600,000, same as the city of Dallas."

She continued, "Come with me to one of the most fascinating tourist spots in Idaho, "Craters of the Moon National Park," which is in many ways the strangest 75 square miles on the North American Continent."

"Looking through the picture window in one of the large rooms, you can observe some of the weird lunar landscape. Only about half a mile away smooth cones of reddish black rise hundreds of feet to the horizon. Three dark square monolithes stand like crumbling watch towers in the middle of the distance. The foreground is even more curious. A black sea of sharp angled shapes, many as big as a man, looking as if they had been dug up and turned over by a spade of some tireless giant. All of this is the result of volcanic activity over many thousand years."

"There is really no single volcano here," Mrs. Lawrence said. "It is something even more remarkable. This is a gigantic wound in the earth called "The Great Rift." It is a series of fissures at least 16 miles long that have opened time and time again. This patch along the great rift offers a rare chance to contemplate the awesome powers within our globe. The concentration of volcanic phenomenon is matched in few other places in the world."

"Area Space Laboratories of North American Aviation, an organization concerned with designing equipment for landing on the moon by instruments and eventually by men, send geologists to Dr. Jack Green in "Craters of the Moon National Park" to study."

"One of the most spectacular areas in the park," Mrs. Lawrence continued, "is the cave area, which is laced with a veritable subway system of lava tubes. Even though the temperature outside may be in the high eighties, these caves are always glazed with ice."

Mrs. Lawrence continued with the afternoon's program by reading a paper prepared by Mrs. Roy Bourland concerning "Idaho, the state where you can meet nature face to face, fill your eyes with grand and lovely scenery; hook a 30-pound trout, or pit your boat against terrifying rapids in the deepest gorge in North America."

"Here is a land wrought by fire and ice by the slow force of glacier and the eruptive energy of volcano; a land of rivers and of deserts; of forests and barren land; of mountains and flats; of sterility and fruitfulness; of growing settlements and eternal wilderness."

"Rugged is the term that promoters use for Idaho," Mrs. Bourland's paper read. "It fits but it doesn't suffice. . .add majectic to it. . .add magnificent; add incredible. . .you might add undiscovered."

"Lewis and Clark came here, not without chagrin. Lemib Pass over the Continental Divide was easy enough, but west and north of it, real trouble arose. Salmon River trouble. West lay the Pacific, but before it such a madness of chasm and climb that even the dedicated explorers turned away."

"Idaho," Mrs. Lawrence concluded "is still a youthful state in point of exploitation of her resources and the prospects for a continued growth may be seen on every side. The population is steadily growing and there is no prospect of saturation for many years."

Heavenly Sauce Tops Fragrant Spice Cake

You'll delight one and all with a dessert of warm and fragrant spice cake topped with sliced bananas and a heavenly Honey Custard Sauce. To make the sauce, first beat 2 eggs in the top of a double boiler. Add 1-3 cup honey and ⅛ teaspoon salt and blend well, then add 1 tall can evaporated milk. Stir in 1 cup boiling water.

Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a spoon, about 4 to5minutes. Remove from heat and place top of double boiler in cold water. Stir frequently while custard is cooling. When cool, stir in ½ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Makes about 3 cups sauce.

Dear Abby....

Not Enough Boy, And Too Much Man!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior in high school and have become attracted to a young man of 19 who has known nothing but children's homes and juvenile courts from 4 to 18. He hasn't learned to read or write very well, which makes it difficult for him to get a permanent job. No one is willing to help him get ahead. His background is constantly brought up so he finds it hard to make a new life for himself. My parents tell me I should leave him alone or he will drag me down to his level. Please tell me if I should go against the advice of my family and friends and be kind to a boy who has no one to care for him. I think I can change him. What do you think?

DEAR HOPEFUL: I think the job you would like to tackle is too big for a high school senior. The "boy" you hope to change is a man. And perhaps a worldly and experienced one at that. Spare yourself the heartache, disappointment (or worse) and listen to your parents.

DEAR ABBY: My 8-year-old son is absolutely crazy about the color green! His clothes have to be green or he won't wear them. When he gets a chance to select his toys, he always looks for the green ones. He loves green foods and neglects everything else. He hopes that because I shampoo his hair with green shampoo his hair will turn green. I love my son very much, but we don't see eye-to-eye on this green business. He doesn't do this just to bug me. He is really gone on green. Is this problem serious enough to consult a child psychologist?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Maybe. The boy's perference for green can't do any real harm unless you allow him to carry it to extremes. Perhaps it is only a phase. If he doesn't outgrow it, by all means take him to a child psychologist.

DEAR ABBY: I have two children by a former marriage, if you could call it that. It was a pretty confused mess involving a Mexican divorce. I still don't know if I was ever really married or not. Anyway, these two children had the name of the man who told me we were legally married, but it turned out that he was the only one who thought so. I got rid of him by hiring a lawyer who proved to me he graduated from Law School and passed the bar exams, and now I am married to another man. This marriage is 100 per cent okay. Can I just give my children my husband's name or do I have to go through some more legal red tape?

THE LEGAL MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: Any name change, in order to be legal must be sanctioned by court order. You can't "just give" your children your second husband's name.

Still worrying about the same old problem? Write to Abby for a personal reply. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Footsaving Education

By FRANK D. SMITH

Why are children's shoes so expensive?

The correct answer to this question amuses some people, angers others and doesn't help the budget a bit. It might save a pair of feet if Mom can use it to convince Dad that shoe prices are not bad.

The real reason that shoes are expensive is because we have to have TWO of them. When we look at a pair of five dollar shoes we should think of them individually as two-fifty each. That is how the manufacturer must look at them when he figures his cost of material and labor.

A single shoe at two-fifty, three or three fifty is a far better value than a hat, a purse or a necktie at the same price. The shoe must withstand grinding on sandstone and yet not blister little feet. It wades through puddles, kicks cans, shinnies up trees and comes up smiling with a little polish.

With the exception of glasses, nothing that we buy for a child can affect his future happiness as much as the footwear that protects the very foundation of bodily health.

Expect Funds For Tourist Advertising

AUSTIN (UPI)— Texans want an adequate tourist advertising appropriation from the state and may get one in the next regular session of the Legislature, Texas Tourist Council president James M. Gaines said Saturday.

Gaines, writing in the council's newsletter, said a $200,000 appropriation for tourist advertising was making headway before a last-minute deadlock killed it in the special session of the legislature that ended last month.

Gaines said tourist advertising proposals have found "tremendous response from across the state." He pledged that before the legislature convenes in regular session in January 1963, committee and delegation strength will be marshalled "to further prepare the ground" for an advertising program.

Gaines said an executive committee meeting has been called for Austin March 7 and a full board hearing for Dallas April 5.

Horse Feeding Rule

A general rule in feeding a horse is 1¼ pounds of hay and ½ to ¾ pounds of grain for every hundred pounds of the horse's weight. By this standard a 1,200-pound horse would be fed 16 pounds of hay and 9 pounds of grain every day.

Aviation Industry Facing Strongest Foreign Threat

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. aircraft industry faces its strongest foreign competition since before World War II, experts said last week.

The revival, with considerable government aid, of the aircraft plants of Britain, France, Germany and Italy, does not yet seriously challenge the free world market dominance of the U. S. industry.

But with the help of the tariff-free internal conditions of the European plane makers should be come more robust year by year.

This is likely, particularly in military fighter planes, lighter transport craft, executive and private planes and even in the field of medium range jet transports. And the British continue to hold a paramount position in making jet and turbojet aircraft engines. But in very large transport aircraft, Europe in general still lacks the facilities and capital to compete with the U. S. industry.

As the industrial and military markets improve, the Europeans also are likely to become important factors in the helicopter industry, which didn't even exist before the war.

The famous names of German aviation, Dornier, Heinkels and Messerschmitt, are being heard from once more, although, for the most part, they are building Italian Fiat and American Lock-heed fighter planes for the new German air force, under government orders totalling about $625 million.

But Dornier is becoming a factor in a burgeoning European-designed and European-made executive plane industry, which also includes Piaggio in Italy, Breguet and Holst Potoz in France and Beagle in England.

Lefors Optimists See Gas Film

LEFORS (Spl) — The Optimists Club met Thursday night in the civic center.

Chestine Dunn officially assumed the office of president to fill out the unexpired term of Leonard Cain who resigned recently.

Five visitors from the Pampa Breakfast Optimists Club along with Lt. Governor of Optimists, Newt Secrest, Pampa, were present.

Jimmy Pennington and F. M. Cox presented the program of the evening, showing a film on the production of gas.

The Board of Directors met following the regular meeting. F. M. Cox and Ed Brock were officially appointed to the board of directors.

Discussions concerning the Cub Scouts and a report on the building committee consumed the time of the directors.

Members attending the meeting were Gene Robbins, Ed Brown, George Duncan, Ben White, Ed Brock, Grady McCool, Les Smith, Ralph Hix, F. M. Cox, and Jim Pennington.

NO GUN MOLL

PACOIMA, Calif. (UPI)—Police yesterday picked up a petite blonde wandering aimlessly down a Pacoima street and the pert 2½-year-old stroller charmed the officers on the spot.

Asked what her name was, the youngster either could not or would not tell officers so they searched her for identification.

As the officers were going through her pockets, the little miss said innocently, "I don't have a gun."

Group Reports Drug Reduces Blood Pressure

CHICAGO (UPI)—The American Medical Association has reported on a new drug which effectively reduced high blood pressure in 31 of 33 severe cases.

The drug, alpha-methyl DOPA was described by Drs. Paul J. Cannon, Robert T. Whitlock, Marielena Angers and John H. Laragh, all of New York City, and R. Curtis, San Francisco, Calif.

They reported the mode of action of the drug has not been fully defined, but it is believed to affect one of the hormones secreted by the adrenal glands, which has been linked to the development of high blood pressure.

The doctors, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said the new drug, unlike other drugs used to lower blood pressure, produced few side effects. They said the drug also lowered blood pressure in patients with kidney damage without apparently producing further kidney deterioration.

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilites in harmony with the above moral principles.

Romney's Impact

The projection of American Motors' President George Romney onto the national Republican political scene is a development virually without parallel in this century.

Comparisons with the Wendell Wilkie phenomenon of 1940 are not really exact. Willkie's climb to national attention took place in those critical few months just before his nomination for president at the GOP convention in late June.

Romney's rise is occurring two and a half years before the 1964 nominating convention.

Should he fail to gain the governorship of Michigan, his star would of course fade as swiftly as it has risen.

Moreover, much of his current appeal appears based on his general attractiveness, without regard to his specific views. These are little known today. Since they are unorthodox, they could diminish his appeal.

As an example, several top Republicans with the national party organization privately say they had a strong adverse reaction to Romney's first national television exposure. Their chief complaint: what they regarded as his insistence on downrating the party and elevating himself.

Coming from party loyalists, this is perhaps no great surprise. But it does suggest that many obstacles may stand between Romney and 1964.

Nevertheless, his entry into the political arena can alter the relative positions of the presently leading 1964 GOP prospects—Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Richard M. Nixon of California.

The judgment of one hard-bitten GOP professional in Washington is that a Romney success in Michigan would elevate his national candidacy at the expense of both Goldwater and Nixon.

Goldwater's problem today is no different from what it has always been. The big - city, big-state professionals do not believe he can carry their territory in a presidential election.

The professionals never have taken Nixon's disavowal of 1964 interest at face value. But they do regard him as something of a tired image. What position he has he owes to his enduring stattus as an available middle-roader.

The evident disenchantment of many party leaders with Nixon goes far to explain Romney's leap to attention. Without knowing too much about him, they believe he belongs somewhere in the political center. And many feel he could fill what they see as a serious void in that sector.

Rockefeller is believed tarnished by his marital difficulties, but the seasoned pros are not writing him out. A big re-election win for him in New York would tend to wash away some fears regarding his divorce. His pulling power is still highly respected.

The Romney phenomenon may at this stage be overblown. But it provides a healthy boost of interest in the minority party.

To Be A Man

To be a man is the right of every man. But man can only be what he is when he lives, when he has liberty and when he is able to own and control that which he has produced. Actions which deprive men of their lives, their liberties or their property are in contravention of the functional rights of every man.

Real Free Trade

It is somewhat difficult to make sure of all that is going on in the current negotiations between the nations of the European Common Market and the United States relative to reductions in tariffs.

As free traders from away back, we will welcome genuine reductions in tariffs, which are nothing except an interference with free trading among individuals.

We have found no objections to the fact that European nations have formed a common market whereby people of the different nations can trade freely amongst themselves. We in the United States have enjoyed great prosperity because there have been few interferences in trade between the peoples of the different states. And in the long run, the whole world would benefit from free trade between free individuals of all nations.

Americans who generally believe in individual freedom are concerned at the present trend in Washington and proposals for extending the power of the administration to reduce tariffs under the so-called reciprocal trade act. Some of them are concerned from a protectionist viewpoint, while others are more upset because the act seems to be an abandonment of a constitutional requirement that Congress set tariffs, rather than the administration.

Others believe that the principle of handling the administration whether Democratic or Republican—the right to raise or lower tariffs arbitrarily is wrong because it places too much power in the hands of the administrators. We believe this is a valid criticism.

Congress should use its constitutional power to lower tariffs under some systematic program.

We do not hold with those who insist on tariffs as a protection against competition from outside labor. It is true that some American business and industry would not be able to compete with European and Japanese and other producers — under the present inflated prices, which are largely caused by high taxes and unearned wage increases.

If Americans could produce without being loaded down with taxes to support every good scheme of the fabian socialists and if workmen were to let everyone help establish the true value of what each person's wages or services should be worth, there would be no problem of being unable to compete with workers of other nations.

A free people will always outproduce those who are not free. It is true that in some fields workers of one nation may excel over workers of another nation. In some cases there could be dislocations in the labor market because of reduced or eliminated tariffs. But if Americans ever are able to regain their freedom from government regimentation, they again will show their versatility and ability to change to a field where they can compete.

And the whole world will benefit.

Bid For A Smile

A German and Russian were fishing on opposite sides of the river. The German caught fish after fish while the Russian couldn't even get a bite. Finally, the Russian yelled across:

Russian — Why is it you catch fish, and I get none?

The German thought a minute and then replied:

German — I guess on your side they are afraid to open their mouths.

The Doctor Says:

URINALYSIS GIVES CLUE TO BODY'S MALFUNCTION

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Analysis of urine is an important part of every carefully conducted physical examination.

Here are some significant facts about collection of the specimen and the results of analysis:

The specimen casually passed before or after the survey may give highly misleading results. Even a diabetic has periods during the day when urine is sugar-free. Conversely, under intense emotional strain, sugar may appear in specimens of husky athletes, such as players in an exciting football game.

You may therefore save yourself worry and expense by collecting a 24-hour specimen the day before an anticipated physical survey. To do this, thoroughly clean, rinse and boil a pair of quart containers and a 4 to 8-ounce bottle that can be securely stoppered.

Begin the collection with the second voiding of the day. Collect all through the rest of that day and night. Include the first voiding of the day of examination. Overnight, store specimens in the ice box. When the collection has been completed, note the approximate amount in quarts and fractions of a pint. Then, fill the small bottle with a mixed sample. Label clearly. Stopper tightly.

The report you receive may seem needlessly complex, since entries such as color, reaction, specific gravity, amount of sediment and appearance indicate variables that usually have little significance. For example, if you drink a lot, the specific gravity will be lower than if you drank less. If you went heavy on dairy products and meats, the specimen might be alkaline and quite turbid.

Of important significance, under any conditions, are the findings of albumin (albuminuria), sugar (glycosuria), blood (hematuria), pus (pyuria) and casts of kidney tubules. Also the presence of acetone (acetonuria) and bile jaundice).

Albuminuria points to a loss of vital blood proteins through the kidney filter. While it may be temporary as a result of overexertion, chilling or fever, it may be persistent and indicative of kidney trouble (nephritis), heart failure or infection of the urinary tract. In any these instances, it suggests real difficulty with which your doctor will have to deal promptly.

Glycosuria, as previously suggested, also may be temporary and of little significance. But most often it indicates the presence of diabetes mellitus provided that the sugar is not milk sugar that's often passed during pregnancy and lactation and provided that glycosuria is accompanied by a rise in the sugar level of the blood (hypeglycemia).

Hematuria means bleeding somewhere along the line, perhaps as part of a nephritis, perhaps due to irritation by gravel or a stone or the presence of a growth.

Pyuria points to infection. Maybe high up in the kidney as in the pyelitis of female infants and children or perhaps lower down in the bladder as in adult women and in elderly men with prostatic involvement.

Casts in the urine are a sign of undeniable irritation of the second most important elements of the kidney. They suggest that the linings of the tubules are being shed like a snake's skin.

That's not the whole story by a long shot. But perhaps it's enough to persuade you to collect and transport your specimen with the greatest care.

Stennis Subcommittee Demands 'Full Accounting' Of Americans Held by Reds or 'Missing'

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The headline-making swap of Soviet spy Rudolph I. Abel for U-2 pilot Francis Powers has triggered a quiet Senate inquiry into the fate of a number of U.S. military officers and civilians captured by the Communists since President Kennedy took office.

Senators probing the "muzzling" of military officers are demanding a "full accounting" from the Defense Department of U.S. prisoners taken by the Communists or listed as "missing" in the fighting in Laos, and South Vietnam.

The number of these Americans held by the Communists is estimated at from five to 15 and could be even higher.

In his unpublished letter to Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Senator John Stennis, D, Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee, seeks a detailed list of these "forgotten Americans."

He also is requesting a full report on what the State and Defense Departments are doing to obtain their release.

Senator Stennis' explosive letter, which has gone unanswered for more than a month, is making the full rounds within the Administration. From the Pentagon the letter was shuttled to the State Department; from there it was rushed to the White House where it was read by the President before being sent back to the Defense Department.

Still to be decided by Secretary McNamara is whether the information on the prisoners should be sent to the subcommittee as classified or unclassified material. A classified status would bar the senators from making the letter public.

PARTIAL LIST — Senator Stennis ordered the inquiry after Senator Strom Thurmond, D, S.C., presented to the subcomittee a partial list of Americans being held prisoner in Laos by the Communists, including:

John Shore, Jr., helicopter pilot, of Galloway, Tenn.; John B. McMorrow, a helicopter crewman, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Sergeant Orville R. Ballenger of Spring Lake, N.C.; Major Lawrence R. Bailey, Laurel, Md.; and Grant Wolfkill, NBC cameraman.

In all cases, except that of Major Bailey, these U.S. prisoners have been permitted to send out letters to relatives, according to data Thurmond gave the subcommittee.

The senators are also planning to fully investigate the fate of Americans taken prisoner during the Korean war who are still unaccounted for, and the Americans captured during the ill-fated Cuban invasion.

The number of "forgotten" Korean war prisoners total more than 375; prisoners taken by Castro's army total 1,189.

The investigators want to know how many of these POW are still alive and what the government is doing to obtain their release.

As reported exclusively on February 1, the senators plan to air long-suppressed evidence, gathered during the Eisenhower administration, that 200 of these prisoners were taken to Russia during the Korean war and may still be alive.

This unpublished information came from two widely different sources. The first informant was a Chinese Communist prisoner of war. The second informant was Yuri Rastvorov, a Russian MVD intelligence officer who defected to the West in 1954 while employed in the Soviet embassy in Tokyo.

The fate of these prisoners will be aired in public hearings next month after the Senators finish questioning State Department officials on the role they played in the censuring of speeches of military officers.

NOTE: Defense Secretary McNamara will use the U-2 spy plane incident to support his refusal to push the Air Force's B-70 super-bomber. In testimony to congressional committees, the Secretary is going to point out that it is just as easy for the Soviets to knock down the B-70 as it was the U-2, which can reach a higher altitude. McNamara is convinced the Soviets downed the U-2 with a missile warhead.

LISTENING IN — During his private trans-Atlantic phone call last week, Prime Minister Macmillan told President Kennedy that he plans to attend next month's Geneva disarmament talks — the same that President Kennedy wants to keep at the Foreign Ministers level—if Soviet Premier Khrushchev turns up as he says he will. However, the British leader made it clear that he would go not to conduct any summit talks with Khrushchev but to counter personally any propaganda maneuver by the Communist leader. He also informed the President that he will ask the British parliament in July for approval to join the European Common Market. President Kennedy and Macmillan agreed that the British should keep their troops at the present strength of 51,000 in West Germany for the remainder of 1962. Should the Soviets increase their military pressure on West Berlin, Macmillan said he would send additional forces. . .President Charles de-Gaulle is planning a major political shake-up of his top officials immediately after the signing of military and political accords ending the Algerian rebellion. Premier Michel Debre will be replaced by a French banker named Pompadou.

Today is Sunday, March 4, the 63rd day of the year with 302 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history:

In 1801, Thomas Jefferson, the third President of the nation, was the first President to be inaugurated in Washington.

In 1850, Sen. John Calhoun's bitter attack, on Henry Clay's compromise of 1850 was read to members of the Senate.

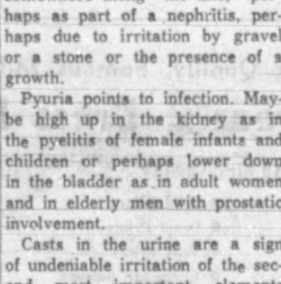

In 1896, Queen Victoria and her guests were startled to see a visiting rajah from India lift his finger bowl and drink from it. To save him embarrassment, the queen drank from the bowl, too, and so did the guests.

In 1917, Jeannete Rankin took her seat in the House of Representatives as the first woman to serve in either House.

A thought for the day: American statesman John Calhoun said: "Protection and patriotism are reciprocal."

Matter of Fact

Although the modern military tank is a direct outgrowth of World War I, the idea underlying its development had been used throughout history. The armored elephants of Hannibal and Kublai Khan were variations of the same idea —a protected and mobile striking power.

Edson In Capitol

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Styles in the conduct of international relations change like everything else. Where once, as in the days of both Roosevelts, the United States used to "show the flag" by sending a battleship into some trouble spot or around the world, today's presidents just send their relatives.

President Eisenhower sent his brother Milton hither and yon. His brother Edgar wasn't so cooperative.

But look at the Kennedys. His wife is going to Pakistan and India. If she is half as successful on this trip as she was in conducting that TV tour of the White House, the least to expect is that she will bring youth and beauty to Kashmir, if not peace. Recall how she charmed Khrushchev at Vienna. Consider how kind and sweet and reasonable he has been about relaxing tensions ever since. Oh, baby.

Brother Bobby is showing the disturbed youth of disturbed places like Japan and Indonesia how far a young man can go in a democracy if he just has the right connections.

Brother Teddy has gallivanted through Israel and points Middle East and it's getting so you can't look at a map anymore without finding some spot where a Kennedy is or was.

Sisters Eunice and Jean did Poland and Yugoslavia last year without upsetting Gomulka or Tito, or converting them from communism. Brother-in-law Sargent Shriver has been all over for the Peace Corps. And sister Jean and her husband Stephen Smith went around the world with Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Lady Bird. Remember what they brought back to improve international understanding? — a camel driver.

But as cultural relations, a phrase the two Roosevelts never heard of, consider how much cheaper all this is than sending a battleship, a ballet troupe, a symphony orchestra or even a puppet show. Or is it?

There has been a lot of serious, double-domed criticism lately about the President sending his kith and kin gallivanting around the globe as ambassadors. What do they know about diplomacy? Let 'em stay home. So go the arguments. But this misses a point.

All this business comes under the head of what President Kennedy has called "keeping open the lines of communications" with unfriendly, undecided or underdeveloped nations.

These family emissaries aren't envoys on official missions. They don't do the same things that Secretary of State Dean Rusk or Ambassadors Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman do with NATO, SEATO, CENTO, the U.N. or Latin America.

The president has a kind of bug on keeping open the lines of communication with other nations. With the Russians he handles it himself, not letting even Bobby go to Moscow.

Oh, he is sending his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, over there. But it isn't to try to solve the Berlin crisis. It's to open up communications some more as a follow-up to that full-page interview the President gave to Izvestia's editor, penetrating the Iron Curtain.

An exchange of television interviews between the President and Khrushchev is reported in the works to get the American idea across to the Russians a little more. A Khrushchev appearance on American TV is no longer feared, because this country has had so many shots of his needle and poison that it's immune.

Some Americans think their government should break relations with Russia. Get out of the United Nations. Stay out of entangling alliances. End all aid. Pick up the marbles and come home if the playmates don't behave right. Drop a bomb.

The President apparently isn't playing it that way because, as he says, in another war there would be no victor.

So the door was not slammed in Khrushchev's face when he proposed a Summit conference in Geneva to start off the March disarmament conference. Later, maybe, the President said in effect. To some it was a reversal of form. What he was particularly interested in was keeping open his lines of communication.

For there is still a lot of talking to be done with these persistent baddies. If one approach fails, try another. Anything that presents a good image abroad or reaches a new audience with a favorable impression may be a help later.

Pegler Says:

'Extreme Right' Is Smear Term Of Communist Origin

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The public understanding of the political term "liberal" is exactly opposite to the correct meaning of this word. The phrase "extreme right" is an improvised smear from the same quarter that gave us "McCarthyism." That quarter is the Communist movement directed from New York and Washington, where patriotism has been in bad repute for a quarter century. However, McCarthyism never was defined and it honestly should have meant a patriotic opposition to treachery by persons planted in the labyrinth of the Federal government, principally the State Department. That opposition to treachery was Senator Joe McCarthy's constant purpose and effort.

It has been charged, without particulars, that McCarthy smeared innocent individuals and ruined their careers. But the worst smear campaign waged during McCarthy's brave, patriotic fight was waged against him, personally, by Henry Luce through his magazine "Time," which villified him with distortions and insinuations and presented an ugly picture of Senator McCarthy by using such words as "burly" and "fury". He "raged." If Joe McCarthy took a dose of bicarbonate of soda, Luce would report that he poured the powder on his hand and popped it into his mouth. We do not know whether Luce himself popped bicarb into his mouth or licked it of the floor.

Many other publications and practically all of radio-teevy joined the campaign to destroy this enemy of Communism and of traitors in the Government. McCarthy's work called for courage. It took no courage to run with the mob, indeed to lead the mob.

The true meaning, the utmost meaning of the word "liberal" in the current political sense, is "radical Democrat." It would be more accurate to call Eleanor Roosevelt and Herbert Lehman members of the "extreme left" except for the fact that the farthest left is Communism. Many notorious, illiberal, intolerant persons in this large element of our politics profess to reject Communism. Taking them at their word, the constitutional Republican is compelled to resort to other descriptives. It would be fair to say that the "liberals" are just to the right of Communism. But it certainly is incorrect and wrong to call them liberals in any honest meaning of that word.

"Liberal" was foisted on us during F. D. Roosevelt's reign. But the Press has never had a legitimate excuse for complicity in this injurious hoax. The Press knows better. The true liberal honors the personal and political rights of his fellow man and adheres to the truth. "Liberal" in its true meaning is a contradiction of the hot-eyed bigotry of the typical unionist who calls for an economic death penalty against workers who refuse to join his union and lend his moral and violent physical support to criminal disorders and corrupt criminal conspiracies.

The late Pope Pius XII rebuked many of the American Catholic clergy in his Christmas message of 1952 by going over their heads directly to his Children with a warning not to delegate their conscience and moral responsibility to mass organizations of faceless men. The AFL-CIO of this country comes well within the intent of that warning.

The New York Herald Tribune, once a conservative Republican paper, bethought itself about 15 years ago to determine what "liberal" now meant to Americans. It consulted many individuals whose definitions followed the political line of the New Deal. To them and since then to the Herald Tribune, "liberal" means narrow-minded, intemperate and hostile to the rights of non-conformists. It is a laudable concept. Without frank announcement of its decision to change its colors, the Herald Tribune went over to the left.

There is no such thing as an extreme right wing in our politics. Those who are miscalled extremists of the "right" are merely uncompromising enemies of Communism and opponents of Socialism, whether Fabian or Marxian. They are devotees of the Constitution which all public employes and all members of the armed forces are sworn to uphold.

API Membership Drive Underway

The Panhandle Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute has started its 1962 membership drive and scheduled its Annual API Dance for Friday, March 9, in the Starlight Room, of Coronado Inn.

Paul M. Wiley, chapter chairman, said the local API Chapter has been the largest chapter in the Mid - continent area for many years and said it will continue to be the largest if the 1962 membership goal of 500 members is met.

Memberships, he stated, are available from any of the chapter officers who include Al Knox, Pampa, first vice chairman; Stanley L. Betzer, Borger, membership chairman and second vice chairman; Nathan Turnbo, Pampa, third vice chairman, and Leonard L. White, Pampa, Secretary - treasurer. Memberships also are available from a number of other Pampa oilmen.

The Annual API Dance Friday is the only social event scheduled each year by the local API. Commenting on other Chapter plans for 1962, Wiley said that a workshop program on salt water disposal problems had been scheduleed for 1:30 p.m. Thursday, March 15, at Coronado Inn. Purpose of this program he said, is to provide the opportunity to initiate solutions to the type of problems which can best be solved by intercompany cooperation. Representatives of oil companies in Hutchinson, Carson, Gray, and Wheeler counties are invited to take part in this program.

Another API activity is the sponsorship of a University of Texas Petroleum Extention Service short course titled "Foundation Course for the Study of Instruments". The course has been designed, Wiley said, especially for men actually working with electrical devices and instruments used in producing, pipelining, and refining operations of the oil industry.

The Spring session will start Monday, March 12, for two weeks in the evening and the second half will start April 9. Individuals interested in taking the course may contact Leonard L. White, API secretary, at MO 4-7437 or MO 4-4462 in Pampa.

Wiley concluded his remarks by saying the local API chapter has an active program planned for 1962 and that an API Membership which costs one dollar will be very worthwhile this year.

Amcel Propulsion Fifth Division Of Celanese Corporation Of America

Amcel Propulsion Inc., has been established as a fifth domestic operating division of Celanese Corporation of America.

The firm which develops and manufacturers explosives, explosive devices, propellants and propulsion systems will now be known as Amcel Propulsion Company, a division of Celanese. The company had been a separate corporate entity which operated as a wholly owned subsidiary of Celanese.

James H. Worth, president of Amcel Propulsion, said that as a corporate division, the company will benefit more fully and directly from the extensive technical, financial and management resources of Celanese.

Amcel propulsion, he said, is well established in the defense dustry. The company currently has contracts with Prime missile contractors and with government laboratories and agencies.

"We are now conducting an aggressive program directed towards acquisition of new contracts," Worth said. "This will result in further expansion of our development and manufacturing facilities at Asheville, N.C. Closer association with Celanese will help Amcel Propulsion to reach more rapidly its full growth potential in the defense and space business."

Celanese has four other domestic operating divisions which develop, manufacture and market diversified product lines in organic chemicals and polymers and the synthetic fibers and plastics made therefrom. The four are Celanese Chemical Company, Celanese Polymer Company, Celanese Fibers Company and Celanese Plastics Company.

Amcel Propulsion Company's operations are based primarily on chemical and mechanical technology and currently include development and fabrication of rocket motors, explosive devices and manufacture of incendiary materials. The company also manufacturers high temperature explosives and coated high energy chemical materials which are sold to other propellant contractors.

Worth, with offices at Celanese world headquarters in New York, will continue as president of Amcel Propulsion. Fredric M. Cooper will continue as vice president and general manager at Asheville.

1 Card of Thanks 1

Howard Dean Hughes Jr.

I think that God is proud of those who bear
A sorrow bravely — proud indeed of them
Who walk straight through the dark to find Him there.
And kneel in faith to touch
His garment's hem.
Oh, proud of them who lift their head to shake
Away the tears from eyes that have grown dim,
Who tighten quivering lips and turn to take
The only road they know that leads to Him.
How proud He must be of them—
He who knows
All sorrow, and how hard grief
is to bear!
I think He sees them coming,
and He goes
With outstretched arms and hands
to meet them there,
And with a look, a touch on hand
or head,
Each finds his hurt heart strangely
comforted.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard wish to thank their many friends, relatives and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy and for their many beautiful floral offerings. Special thanks to Rev. John Dyer for his consoling words during our recent bereavement.

Also our thanks to Dunkel-Carmicheal Funeral Home and Dr. R. M. Hampton and nurses.

Mr. & Mrs. Howard Hughes
Sharon and Janie

Church Heads Ponder Whereabouts Of Millions Of Sabbath Absentees

NEW YORK (NEA) — The big question before America's church leaders is, "How many sheep have strayed from the fold and where are they?" The question is prompted by latest figures on church membership which show tha the widely heralded back-to-church movement apparently has slowed to a near halt.

In past years membership has increased at a faster rate than the general population. Now the rates are nearly even.

Two major groups are at this time beyond the reach of pulpits across the land. They could be defined as those:

— Missing, whereabouts unknown, about 70 million persons who do not claim membership in any organized church. Deducting about 13 million children too young to be counted gives a figure equal to the combined population of six large states, Pennsylvania, New York, Texas, Florida, Illinois and Massachusetts.

— AWOL, admitting church membership but nowhere to be seen on Sunday morning, between 30 and 40 million more persons. Add to the above list of states the rest of New England plus California, New Jersey and Maryland.

The 1962 Yearbook of American Churches counts 114 million Americans as members of some religious group. This is an increase of 1.9 per cent over the previous year's figure. Within that increase the Roman Catholic numbers grew by more than 3 per cent. The general population rose 1.8 per cent.

According to official estimates, the Catholic population now stands at better than 42 million; the Protestant, at 63.6 million. Jewish synagogue membership is about 5.3 million.

While these statistics may sound solid, the real picture is one of confusion for church leaders responsible for building churches where they are needed, for collecting revenue to keep the organization running and, generally, for bring the Word to those who are spiritually deaf. To do these things they must know who is in church and who isn't.

A recent survey by the National Council of Churches indicated that about half of the Protestant membership attended church regularly. The same sampling indicated that about two-thirds of the Catholics attend Mass on a regular basis.

A sample poll by the U.S. Bureau of Census in 1957 showed about 96 per cent of the population had a religious preference. Questioners did not inquire into attendance.

Accurate figures on church attendance or membership are difficult to come by for several reasons.

In the first place, some religious denominations count as members only those who have passed their 13th birthday. Others, like the Roman Catholics, list all baptized faithful.

The federal government, sensitive to the church - state separation principle, has not brought its full resources to bear on the question of church attendance. Queries on religious practice were omitted from the 1960 census.

Another element upsetting accurate head - counting is mistaken reporting of membership and attendance by local pastors. Such mistakes could add "several million" more people to the Roman Catholic rolls, according to the Rev. Joseph F. Scheuer, head of the Fordham Univ. Research Laboratory. His group's detailed surveys of Catholic church membership are supported by the Le Play Research foundation.

Father Scheuer points out that Catholic membership figures are compiled yearly from reports of every church pastor in the nation. The current total of 43,104,900, this priest says, is "underestimated." He explained a possible reason for the error of "several million":

"Since parish priests are assessed a tax — called a cathedraticum — by the diocese on the basis of local membership, their figures naturally tend to be conservative.

"The Protestant faiths—and we work closely with them — have a problem as great. Protestants tend to cross freely to churches out of their neighborhoods as they acquire an affiliation with a particular preacher. The more rigid parish structure in the Catholic church simplifies head counting."

Church membership has risen in the suburbs, says the Fordham priest, often because it is the "socially correct" thing to do as people acquire more money.

"Of course," added Father Scheuer, "I won't criticize people for moving into a middle class environment. The important thing is that this new wealth must be used to help others."

A Lutheran minister, The Rev. Frederick R. Wentz, is distrubed by the vast numbers of "lost sheep" and by the "AWOL" group.

"The trouble with corporate worship in our day, said the theologian, "is that it utterly fails to be a convincing sign to unbelievers."

Dr. Wentz, a professor of theology and ethics at Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary, warned:

"No one is looking at us any more when we dress up on Sunday and parade into the building and sing our hymns. And if they do they think it's just a parade of righteousness and dismiss it as fraternal pageantry or playing at medieval knighthood or simply calculated hypocrisy."

The way for the U.S. religious movement to regain its strength, Dr. Wentz said, is for the church to "rediscover the ministry of laymen, a Christian style of life that will provide God's signs for this secular age."
