

Inflation fight plan drafted

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's one thing to recognize that the government itself is a major cause of inflation in the economy. Nearly everyone recognizes that, including President Carter.

But it's a different matter altogether to do something about it. And Carter hasn't yet found the answer.

Carter's recognition of the problem was reflected in his special economic message to Congress on Jan. 20. "The government has an obligation to set an example for the private sector," he said then, "and we can play an important role in moderating inflation by reducing the effects of our own actions on prices."

But in the few months preceding that statement, he approved an increased minimum wage, higher Social Security taxes, a $60 billion budget deficit and aid for farmers, all of which push up prices.

Arthur M. Okun, an economist at the Brookings Institution here, estimates that government actions last year may add as much as 1.5 percent to prices this year.

The energy bill, welfare reform, more farm price legislation — all still pending — also would have an inflationary impact. The energy bill, for example, would add 0.3 percent to the Consumer Price Index at the least, officials say.

The major dilemma for Carter, and for Congress and the country, is that inflation is just one of the problems the government has had to address.

Unemployment has been the second major problem. Carter promised to fight both simultaneously. But he has — until recently, at least — leaned more toward fighting unemployment, and the jobless rate has dropped sharply while inflation has not.

With inflation apparently nearing 7 percent, many of Carter's key economic advisers are encouraging him to take a tough stand against government contributions to increased prices.

Carter is scheduled to make a major statement on inflation next week that will include some new actions by the government.

BILL SIGNING CEREMONY — President Carter shakes hands with 10-year-old Kathryn Morse of Brookline, Mass. in the Rose Garden at the White House today, after signing a new law barring mandatory retirement before age 70. Morse attended a meeting in her home town that dealt with problems of older Americans who wanted to work past the age of 65 and reported on her impressions. Identified on right are: Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Florida, sponsor of the bill, and Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., upper top right.

Montezuma's Revenge can be prevented, doctors insisting

BOSTON (AP)—A seldom-used antibiotic will soon be routinely prescribed to prevent Montezuma's Revenge, the intestinal misery that afflicts legions of Americans traveling abroad, doctors say.

Baltimore researchers have found that the drug, called doxycycline, will give most people at least one month's protection against this illness. The malady has various names around the world and is also called Delhi Belly or simply traveler's diarrhea.

"This is the first drug that has really been shown to be highly effective," Dr. R. Bradley Sack, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The researchers predicted that taking the antibiotic will become a routine precaution for Americans traveling to under-developed parts of the Middle East, South America, Africa and Asia.

The drug was tested on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya by doctors from Baltimore City Hospitals. Their findings were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Sack said Americans have a 50 percent to 60 percent chance of getting travelers' diarrhea if they go to countries where it is prevalent.

The doctors gave doxycycline to 18 American volunteers for three weeks, and only one of them contracted the illness. Twenty-one others got inactive pills, called placebos, and nine of them became sick.

The protection lasted for one week after the medication stopped, but then it wore off, they said.

The volunteers took one pill a day, and the researchers cautioned doctors against prescribing the drug for longer than three weeks until more tests are done.

Doxycycline is a form of tetracycline, a commonly used drug. It is sometimes used to treat cholera and Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

The doctors said the medicine fights a disease-causing variety of the common microscopic organism called Escherichia coli.

"If there are geographic areas where these organisms are resistant to the antibiotic, we would not expect it to be effective," Sack said. "So far, none of these areas have been reported."

'Pollster' pulls fast one

Political analyst fired

By the Associated Press

A political analyst whose poll showed Attorney General John Hill ahead of Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the Dallas-Fort Worth area in the race for the Democratic party's gubernatorial nomination has been fired by a television station after it was discovered the man was a campaign coordinator for Hill.

WFAA-TV News Director Marty Haag said the station learned Wednesday that Dr. Del Taebel, a University of Texas-Arlington political scientist, works as a Hill volunteer at Arlington. Dr. Taebel, he said, told him that the poll was taken and prepared fairly by five of his students.

The poll, aired Tuesday night, showed Hill comfortably ahead of Briscoe in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

The poll was taken in his role as a political scientist, not in his role as a Hill volunteer, Taebel said.

"There are a lot of candidates I support who are behind in my polls," he told The Associated Press Wednesday night.

Haag said Taebel told him the poll was taken fairly by the students and that their information was fed into a computer. Taebel said WFAA-TV had known that he was a Hill supporter at the time the station asked him to conduct the poll.

He added that he had never been paid by WFAA-TV, but that he had paid his students to conduct the poll.

Gov. Briscoe and members of the Texas Deep Water Port Authority met with Washington officials to discuss "the most expeditious way" to build an offshore docking facility for supertankers.

Two boys charged with arson, assault

HILLSBORO, Ore. (AP) — Two boys aged 4 and 5 have been charged with arson and assault after they were spotted stuffing paper against the wall of an apartment building as if to start a fire, authorities say.

County juvenile officer Jerry Harkins said the manager of the building, a 60-year-old woman, saw the boys but when she tried to stop them, one bit her and the other kicked her with his roller skate.

The youngsters were referred to the Washington County juvenile justice system Wednesday.

GYPSIES IN TOW — Two women among 13 gypsies jailed in San Diego, Calif., after what prosecutors call nationwide looting of stores wave in their handcuffs Wednesday. The group entered United States from Mexico in 1974. A deputy district attorney said they've been arrested 500 times but never held long enough for arraignment, set next Wednesday.

COLLISION — A tank truck is shown teetering on the rail of an overpass at the intersection of U.S. 321 and Interstate 26 near Cayce, S.C., after it collided with a garbage truck, which fell off the overpass, Wednesday. The frame of the garbage truck and the tanker cab are shown dangling from the bridge. Henry Love and David Saxon, occupants, of the sanitation truck, died.

Triplets born in Lubbock to Mr., Mrs. John Best

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Best of Coahoma are the parents of triplets born Tuesday at the New Health Sciences Center Hospital in Lubbock. All are boys.

The first birth occurred at 1:17 a.m. The others followed at one minute intervals.

One weighed 4 pounds 6½ ounces, another 3 pounds 7 ounces and the third 4 pounds 6 ounces. Mrs. Best's physician had told the couple about three weeks ago they could expect triplets.

The boys are the couple's first children. Mrs. Best said her side of the family had a history of twin births.

The mother and the three children all appear to be in good condition.

The three have been named Jeremiah Daniel, Jonathan Eugene and James Michael and are said to be identical. The mother will be allowed to come home after ten days but the babies will be retained in the hospital until each weighs five pounds.

The father, son of Mr. and Mrs. V.E. Best of Coahoma, is employed by a farm equipment firm. Mrs. Best is the former Holly McCutchan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McCutchan, also of Coahoma.

The family was featured on a five-minute television program in Lubbock Wednesday.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: It's true

Q. Last night, I called the police department to report a suspicious person, but was told that there were only two units on duty, so they did not know when they would get to my report. Is this common for only two units to be patrolling, and if so, do they consider it sufficient for a community the size of Big Spring?

A. Yes, they are often only two units patrolling the city, and no, it is not sufficient for a city the size of Big Spring, according to Police Chief Stanley Bogard.

"The problem is manpower. I am operating three men short right now. That means that if someone calls in sick or goes on vacation we just don't have enough people," said Bogard.

The chief explained that although two patrolling units is common practice, there are always six cars working on the weekends, and an average of three patrolling during the week.

Offbeat: Another barrier tumbles

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — You would think that the downfall of 127 years of male domination on the Albany police force would be accompanied by fanfare and speeches. Rena Bussman apparently believes actions speak louder than words.

Police Officer Bussman was sworn in Thursday in a back room of Public Safety Commissioner Francis Hanley's office. A spokesman would only describe the first female officer on the 400-man force as "in her early 20s." She declined to talk with reporters.

The department made no public announcement of the swearing-in ceremonies. Seven men also took the oath later in a more public ceremony.

Why the secrecy over her commissioning? "It's her wish, not ours," said Lt. William Murray who accompanied the new recruits.

Tops on TV: Singing actor

Peter Frampton, singing star, tries his hand at acting on "Black Sheep Squadron" at 8 p.m. on channel two, for one of the few shows not listed as a rerun. Channel Seven also has a non-rerun show at 8 p.m., "Mitzi," a musical-variety special starring Mitzi Gaynor.

Inside: School problems

THOUSANDS OF South Texas students are attending school in buildings apparently built in violation of state laws insuring structural safety, building records show. See p. 3A.

Police sentencing slapped

HOUSTON (AP) — A week after a federal judge assessed three former Houston police officers a 10-year suspended prison sentence with five years' probation and a one-year term in connection with the death of Joe Campos Torres, the U.S. Attorney's office here has filed a motion calling on the judge to correct the controversial probation sentence.

The motion, filed Wednesday in federal court here by chief of the U.S. attorney's civil rights division Mary L. Sinderson, was the first public reaction by the prosecution since the March 28 sentencing.

The motion says the probation sentence on the law excludes probation as a penalty for offenses punishable by death or life imprisonment.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling could have sentenced Terry Wayne Denson, Stephen Orlando and Joseph James Janish to life imprisonment for conspiring to violate the civil rights of the 23-year-old Mexican-American whose body was found in a bayou running through downtown Houston following his arrest by the former officers. Instead he imposed probation and assessed them one year in prison on the misdemeanor beating conviction.

"The United States has grave concern that the imposition of probation in this case will cause citizens of all races and backgrounds to believe that the sentence was a result of the continuing inequality of treatment accorded to minorities," the motion said.

In handing down sentence Sterling said punishing the men, who would never again be police officers in a position to abuse their power, would serve little purpose. He said the problem lies instead with the police department.

The motion argued that because the probation did not stipulate that the men be prohibited from serving as police officers in the future, they could conceivably join a police department somewhere else.

Voters to okay more taxes?

CLEVELAND (AP) — With powdery else to turn for financial relief, Cleveland's embattled public school system asks voters today to increase property taxes by $30 million a year to keep schools open.

Passage of the 25 percent tax boost would enable the district to use the anticipated tax revenue as collateral for loans.

Efforts over past weeks to borrow from banks failed. As a result the 113,000-pupil school system could not meet last Friday's $5 million payroll for 11,000 full-time employees, including 5,400 teachers. In addition, the district has outstanding debts of almost $7 million.

Only limited funds will be available from the state between now and the end of May, not even enough to meet the biweekly payrolls.

Old age dooms firm

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Old age, not financial illness, doomed the tiny health insurance company Paul Clement ran for 51 years.

"At 85 I ought to let go a few things," Clement said Wednesday as he watched state examiners haul away records of the remaining 200 policyholders, who average 71 years of age.

The American Benefit Association never raised its premium of $12 a year — or increased its benefits, which included a maximum payment of $150 for brain surgery and weekly disability pay of $25 for 26 weeks.

State Insurance Commissioner Berton Heaton, calling the company an "anachronism," seized control to ensure the remaining assets of $100,000 to $200,000 are equitably divided among the policyholders.

Philippines election

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines is holding its first election in 5½ years Friday, but President Ferdinand E. Marcos will remain in firm control of the government no matter what the outcome.

The voters will elect 165 of the 200 interim National Assembly members, including 21 in Metropolitan Manila, where an eighth of the 25 million eligible voters live. Marcos will appoint 20 members as his cabinet, and the remainder will be chosen later to represent youth, labor and other sectors of society.

School apparently built in violation of state laws

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Thousands of South Texas students are attending school in buildings apparently built in violation of state laws aimed at insuring structural safety, building records show. A state board of engineers confirmed that the Associated City-County Economic Development Corp. here did not use registered engineers on school and city projects in the area. "You'd think it was a sad state of affairs," Stan Gilbert told newsmen for The Associated Press and the Brownsville Herald. Top elected officials — including Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Attorney General John Hill, U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza of Mission and U.S. Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen — were notified of the apparent violations by the Harlingen chapter of the Associated General Contractors beginning in 1974.

The anti-poverty agency's records list "unknown" as the engineer on many of projects. The records also include names of non-engineers as engineer on some projects.

Luis Ramirez, acting director of A CEDC, provided names of engineers on several of the projects but had no comment on the matter.

The records list Homer Elizondo of Harlingen as engineer on a City of Mercedes project. Elizondo said Wednesday he is not an engineer and does not know why his name was listed.

A plaque on the La Joya city hall built by ACCEDC lists Aaron Sandoval as architect for the building. Gilbert said Sandoval, an ACCEDC employee whose name is misspelled on the plaque, is not an architect.

TREATY TALKS — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.; Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.; and Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., confer in Washington Wednesday in an attempt to reach an agreement on ending debate on the Panama Canal treaties. The treaties have occupied virtually all the Senate's time since early February.

Trull lays claim to $10,000

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The kidnapping trial of Don Trull has ended with the Mississippi promoter's acquittal, but the unfinished business is to determine who gets the $10,000 he received during an alleged abduction last August.

Trial Judge Glen Phillips said he will conduct a hearing to determine who will get the cash and a promissory note for $750,000. He did not set a date.

Trull, 40, had been charged with holding Bill May, an employee of Tyler millionaire Billy Pyron, for ransom. Trull received the cash and the note from Pyron during a four-hour standoff with police here in an office building.

The promoter had several conversations with police and Pyron during the standoff, while the office was soaked with gasoline. Trull was charged with threatening to ignite it.

Now both Trull and Pyron say they want the money, which was in the possession of the court as evidence after Trull had surrendered to authorities.

The Mississippi promoter claims Pyron and paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes bilked him out of $1.5 million, and the note and cash were partial payment. He said he never intended to harm May.

Aspiring rodeo clown given ride by Dobbs

"I want to be a rodeo clown and I can't get a decent bus connection to Mesquite, Texas," a voice on the phone told Quail Dobbs of Coahoma.

Dobbs, who has become world famous as a rodeo clown after appearing in "The Great American Cowboy," is conducting a school this week in Mesquite to train rodeo clowns.

The art of being a rodeo clown includes bull fighting, as well as presenting humor, in the dual role of protector of the cowboy and entertainer of the crowd.

Dick Hilliard, a 19-year-old youth from Escondido, Calif., read about the school and wanted to take it badly enough to ride a bus all the way. However, he discovered that the bus would get into Dallas in the early morning hours with poor connections to Mesquite.

He telephoned Quail his problem and Dobbs told the youth, "If you want to take the course that badly, just take a bus to Big Spring and you can ride with me to Mesquite."

Saturday night, the young clown hopeful arrived. "Whatever else he was, he was the hungriest clown potential I ever ran across," Quail's wife laughed as she told about "how that boy did eat."

On Sunday, Hilliard left with his hero, Quail Dobbs, to go to Mesquite to learn to be a rodeo clown.

Weather Forecasts call for clear skies

By the Associated Press
Thunderstorm activity in North Central and East Texas died out during the night and forecasters predicted clear to partly cloudy skies and slightly cooler temperatures for much of the state today.

Skies in the northwestern half of the state were generally clear while cloudy skies were the rule over the remainder of Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the chilly upper 30s in the Panhandle to the lower 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Extremes ranged from 36 at Dalhart to 72 at Brownsville.

Forecasters called for clear skies in northern sections and partly cloudy skies in South Texas. Highs were expected to range from the middle 70s in the Panhandle to the 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas and in inland portions of South Texas.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are forecast today for the Southwest and Northeast. Cool weather is expected from the Rockies through the Midwest but the rest of the country is expected to be mild.

Both men testified at Trull's trial last week, as did about 25 others. Many of the witnesses have claimed previously they too were cheated in Estes-promoted schemes.

Defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin of Longview said he plans to try and get the cash and the note for his client.

During the trial, suggestions were made that Pyron and Estes may have committed perjury. However, Smith County District Attorney A.D. Clark III said Wednesday he has no plans to pursue those allegations.

Phillips said he considers any such charges a matter for a law enforcement agency. "My job is judging, not bringing charges," he said.

Meteor illuminates sky over Southern California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A meteor illuminated the sky over much of Southern California, prompting thousands of telephone calls to authorities, officials said.

The calls began pouring in around 7 p.m. Wednesday, just after the meteor passed through the sky on an east-to-west trajectory. Some reports said the meteor actually struck the ground near the Palos Verdes Peninsula just south of here, but a police search failed to find any trace.

Witnesses reported seeing the object as far as Lancaster, 50 miles north of here. Coast Guard officials reported the meteor was sighted as far south as San Diego, 120 miles away.

David Kennedy, 20, who saw the object from Lancaster, said the meteor stayed in the sky at least five seconds, flashed two times and then gave off a "gigantic" third flash.

A private pilot flying near the coast said the meteor passed near his plane.

Washington is giving Howard County the death sentence. Should we get a good lawyer and fight?

If you don't believe it, just look around you.

Our farmers are selling their products at 1951 prices, while their production costs have gone up 675% since then.

Housewives are being beaten to death by prices when they shop for food and clothing for their families. Nobody can believe what it costs for a bill of groceries today.

Are the merchants getting rich? Not on your life. Their profit margin, the thing that keeps them in business, is shrinking every day. All their costs are up, plus they have to wade through a deepening ocean of government red tape.

Does it sound to you like we may need some help? Does it sound like things may not be going our way? But, you say, maybe this is temporary. Maybe it is a passing thing. Maybe it will go away.

Stop dreaming. It not only is here to stay, it is going to get worse. Here's why.

The government controls our lives and our businesses. Congress runs the government. That means that congressmen in Washington control us. Now here is the sad part. Not many of those congressmen care about us. In fact, not many care about Texas—and most of those who do care and have some influence on other congressmen are about to retire.

That's right. Omar Burleson, Bob Poage, George Mahon, Olin Teague, men who have given Texas several decades of dedicated service as Congressmen, have chosen to retire.

So, at the very time when the men and women of our county are fighting for their economic lives, at the time their future is really on trial in Washington, a new man has to be put on their case.

That new man had better be a good man. He had better be one who can go into the courtroom of Congress and plead our case well. He had better be an experienced defender who can keep our citizens from being sentenced to more inflation, more red tape, higher costs, more government control.

For the future of your family, your friends, your neighbors, don't you agree?

We can have that kind of man in Washington fighting for us. Dusty Rhodes is a candidate for Congressman from the 17th District, of which our county is a part. Dusty is a lawyer. He is a trial lawyer—a good one.

That is why we need him in Washington. That is not the only reason. He is also a small businessman and he knows the kind of struggle they are having to make enough profit to stay in business.

He farms a little place and runs a few cows. You don't have to explain to him about the farm situation—he knows first-hand.

Dusty has a wife and four children. He can tell you about inflation and how the costs of providing for a family have skyrocketed.

He knows all that, but he also knows more. He knows how to defend someone. He knows what to do when the cards are stacked against him. He knows how to change people's minds. He knows how to handle a trial... and the people of our county are on trial. A trial for their livelihoods.

It is up to you. You can sit back and do nothing. Or you can do something about it. You can send Dusty Rhodes to Washington to defend you.

A lot of your friends and neighbors have already decided to vote for a good defense. Won't you join them?

DUSTY RHODES TO CONGRESS

Hustle 3 Work is unceasing

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

The British would say, "keep a stiff upper lip old chap." The French would say, "c'est la guerre" (meaning, "that's war"). Big Spring folks would say, "let's get to Hustlin' for the Big Spring Area."

The reason is—we haven't time to waste on anything that's less than positive. And that is exactly what is happening at your Chamber of Commerce — Industrial Growth and Development.

It's no secret that we haven't been idle during these past months of negotiation and waiting. We have been in contact with literally hundreds of industrial prospects by phone, letter and in person.

Naturally, we are intensifying our efforts and recontacting those firms who were placed on a waiting list for Webb facilities. The Chamber Industrial Team, Jack Redding, Chairman, has several "prime prospects" on the front burner and I'm sure you'll be hearing about some of them in the very near future.

Meanwhile, the positive attitude that has kept our economy flourishing in spite of a couple of set backs, is still the order of the day. I feel like we do owe Winston Wrinkle and Clyde McMahon an enormous vote of thanks for their tremendous efforts and also for the unprecedented successes measured in the industries already on board at the Industrial Park.

It is fitting that they have just been elected President and Vice President respectively, of the Industrial Foundation. They will continue to ably serve our community as they help to better Big Spring area.

Some of you may already have experienced a visit from the 'seasonal swindlers'. I'm talking about the 'quick fix artists' who will repair your roof or prune your trees or patch your driveway or anything else that needs to be done. Generally, he'll smooth talk a deal at reduced cost — require cash payment — provide shoddy service with below standard materials and be gone with your money before you can say 'fake.' Oh yes — most often they will be from out of town, but occasionally they will give a local address.

The best way to avoid this sad situation is to deal only with reputable people who will be around to answer any complaints.

If you have any suspicions regarding door to door peddlers or services, call the Chamber office, 263-7641. We'll be glad to check the record with the Better Business Bureau.

I'm really pleased to see the progress in beautification that's already taking place. Many old buildings are either being repaired and painted or removed. Abandoned and junk cars are being disposed of from yards and lots.

Fences are being repaired — curbs and gutters are being cleaned up and I've seen some improvement in the signs around the community — nothing makes business look worse than a dirty, faded broken-down sign.

Alleys are being cleaned up and yards are getting attention for the spring and summer season. Congratulations to everyone involved and especially to the Chamber Beautification Committee. Bob Hurt and his group are applying a lot of Labor may next seek job security

What's ahead in negotiations between labor and management, now that the ink on the miners' agreement is dry.

In many industries where great numbers of people are involved and which weakens the nation's economic structure when strikes occur, look for job security to become a prime union objective.

Union negotiators have invariably found they can get about what they want in wages, pensions and health benefits but they still have reason to feel some apprehension about job security.

With significantly more people available for work than there is work available, holding onto a job becomes increasingly important.

Work forces must be cut during periods of recession. Layoffs can become widespread where there is no job guarantee.

What good are fringe benefits and an increased hourly scale if there is no job available?

Security can take a number of forms, from job creation through shortened work days or weeks to "lifetime" job guarantees. In any form, it loses problems for both parties.

For management, guaranteeing employment stability could mean limiting competitiveness and ability to respond to economic trends.

For labor, the price of job guarantees may be much more flexible relationship with management in place of rigidly detailed contracts.

In industries like autos and steel, emphasis on job security is already apparent.

The coal contract recently signed could turn out to be a landmark event several times over, not only because of its length and impact on the economy but also as the best of its kind, at least for a time.

Labor must be asking itself: How far is too far? Look to England and its myriad problems for unions that can bring a nation to its knees by going too far.

Dead end on Rhodesia

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The newest rationale behind Carter administration preference for Soviet-supported guerrillas instead of pro-Western moderates to run Rhodesia is fear of yet another Cuban military operation, a rationale so clearly bogus that it brings the U.S. near a dead end in Africa.

While the British government gently nudges closer to supporting the internal (bilateral) Rhodesian settlement, the official U.S. line grew tougher last week. The agreement between white Prime Minister Ian Smith and moderate black nationalists, a feat beyond imagination a short year ago, gives hope for a Western-oriented Zimbabwe (the future name for Rhodesia) with the white minority retaining a vital role. Yet the State Department's official spokesman on March 27 branded that settlement "illegal."

SINCE IT SEEMS clearly in U.S. interests, why should the Carter administration denounce it? The State Department's private answer: fear of Fidel Castro's potent Africa corps, fresh from military triumphs in Angola and the Horn of Africa. Should the U.S. promote a moderate government for Zimbabwe, policymakers told us, the Kremlin might signal Castro to move into Rhodesia and, considering the mood on Capitol Hill, Congress would permit no U.S. response.

Yet U.S. intelligence considers a Soviet-Cuban intervention most unlikely and in no way influenced by statements out of Washington. Those few sturdy souls at State seeking rationality in African policy recognize the Cuban threat as a ploy of policymakers headed by Andrew Young, ambassador to the United States.

Young's policy is geared entirely to the desires of Nigeria and the "front-line" states, bordering Rhodesia. These nations have no interest in Rhodesia's white minority and are the patrons of Soviet-backed guerrillas in the Patriotic Front. Thus, the U.S. enters a policy dead end contrary to its own interests.

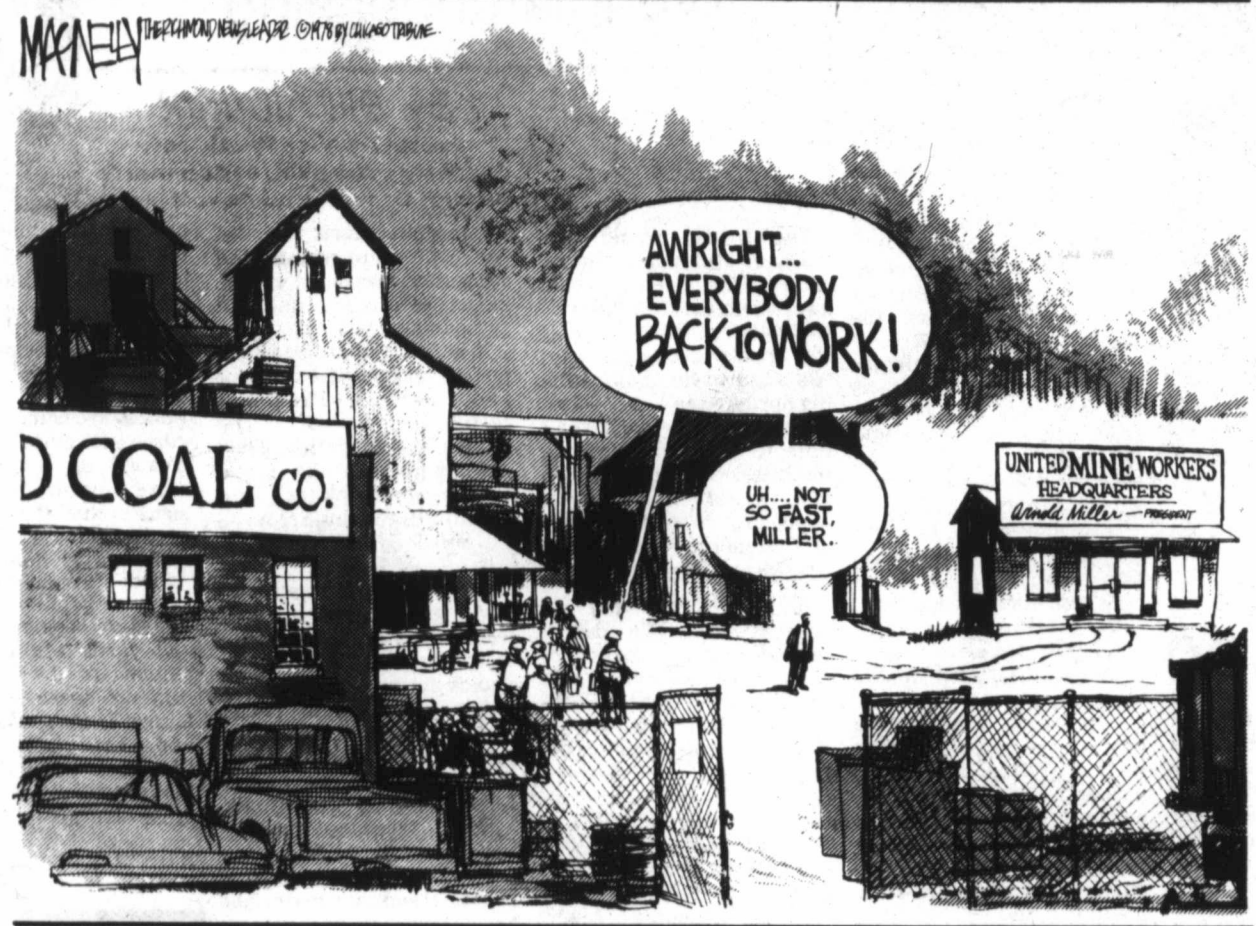

But support for the internal settlement is rising among the anti-Communist black nations of French-speaking Africa (reflected by Gabon's March 24 statement expressing "optimism"). Once elections install black majority government with a black prime minister in independent Zimbabwe starting in 1978, world support would move toward the moderates. The one potential obstacle: a military takeover before then.

THAT IS easier said than done. Guerrilla activity is tepid. Base camps in Mozambique have been cut up by cross-border raids, and barely 1,000 guerrillas now operate within Rhodesia. So the Patriotic Front's only certain way of preventing elections would be intervention by Cuba's well-armed Africa corps.

But U.S. analysts regard such a move as most unlikely, partly because Moscow knows it would bring in the South African army (which, of course, needs no authorization from the U.S. Congress). Although outgunned and outnumbered, white South African troops handled the Cubans in Angola two years ago. This time they would attack in force.

What is truly involved in U.S. policy is not fear of Cubans so much as desire to please Nigeria and other black African states. That this British policy was pointed up in London during secret talks Feb. 20-23 between Foreign Secretary David Owen and the Rev. Ndabinghi Sithole, a principal black nationalist leader in the internal settlement.

While calling that settlement "a step in the right direction," Dr. Owen repeatedly expressed his need to follow "the opinion of the world," adding: "We can't isolate ourselves from the rest of the world." By "world opinion," Owen clearly meant black African opinion.

Sleep problem can mean lung disorder

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Five or six times in the last few years I have been aroused in the middle of the night gasping for air. I have to sit up in bed and take several deep breaths, by which time I am awake and frightened. I can't remember any dreams associated with the incidents. I am often under a lot of pressure from my work. I am 26, moderately active, of normal weight, have a good diet, and love to sleep. Any suggestions? — Miss J. J. C.

Sounds as though you have hyperventilation, which can be created by anxiety related to work pressures or from those of extracurricular activity.

There is a special problem called "sleep apnea," in which breathing stops momentarily during sleep. But this is usually found in older people with lung disease, such as emphysema. In this respect, one might suspect overuse of tobacco. More on this later. Another factor related to tension is a drop in blood sugar (hypoglycemia). This could be remedied by taking a light snack (a glass of milk or a meat sandwich) before retiring.

Try to recall the pattern of your activities on the days preceding the sleep disturbance. If it was a hectic day, suspect the tension factor and take steps to reduce it.

While emphysema (which I mention as possible cause) does not usually occur in one as young as you, it might not be a bad idea to have a chest X-ray. Also, have your thyroid gland function evaluated.

Young single women frequently experience a variety of emotion- and tension-related symptoms like yours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I fall asleep very easily (one time in the shower standing up) and had wondered if I have narcolepsy. A counselor mentioned that my symptoms indicate low blood sugar. I am tired in the morning when I wake up, but manage to get through long days at work OK. I'm 28. Can you comment on this? F. S. K.

It's possible for you to be both hypoglycemic (have low blood sugar) and be narcoleptic. Certainly, anyone who falls asleep in the shower would be considered as having narcolepsy. You should have had other episodes of falling asleep involuntarily. Be examined. Proper drugs will help you during the day.

For the hypoglycemia aspect, see my booklet on the subject, "Help for Hypoglycemia." Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Big Spring Herald. Tiredness in the morning upon awakening is a symptom of this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This might sound silly to you, and I really don't know if there is any truth in it. Are there some kind of shots for people who are short and still under the age of 21? — Still Small.

You are referring to injections of HGH (human growth hormones), a substance extracted from human pituitary glands. It can and has been used successfully, but in carefully selected patients whose height growth has stopped prematurely.

The word "prematurely" is the important one. The hormone injections help only before the ends of the long bones have fused (closed off to further growth). After that the hormones have no effect. By age 21 a person's bones have usually stopped their natural growth.

Careful X-ray studies of the bones and glands involved must be done before a patient is selected for this treatment. The necessary short supply of the human pituitary gland hormone further limits use of this therapy. Man cannot manufacture it synthetically.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How effective is electrolysis? — J. W.

Never any more effective than the person performing it. Some are quite skilled at getting to the follicle of the hair strand and thus eliminating growth from that point. I suggest persons seeking this kind of hair removal ask a dermatologist in their area to recommend an electrolysis with whom he has experience among his own patients.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write for a copy of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," care of The Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor:

I think that Lloyd Bentsen showed very poor judgment when he voted FOR the Panama Canal Treaty. That indicated that he is not greatly concerned whether the United States survives or not. It does indicate that he is very much interested in aligning himself with the Carter-Mondale faction.

One of our former statesmen coined a phrase "give me liberty or give me death." Another one coined this phrase "millions for defense but not one penny for tribute."

I believe that these ideals are just as valid today as they were then. I spent 21 years in the service of the American flag, and my respect for it now is just as sacred now as it was while in the service. It is the only flag that I consider the defender and protector of human rights. But from many indications there are those in Washington, D.C. who have the unrealistic idea that we must bow to the demands of the likes of Torrijos and Castro.

To hold, defend and protect the canal and keep it under the American flag would be a far less expensive undertaking than it would be to try to take it back after the Marxist dictators have established their troops in that area.

What does the phrase "in perpetuity" mean? My dictionary sums it up in one word, thus: in perpetuity, forever. To me FOREVER means just that, there is no end until THE END OF TIME.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it is wrong for a Christian to grieve over the death of a loved one? I lost someone very close to me not long ago, and I grieve a great deal. — B.H.

DEAR B.H.: It is perfectly natural for you to grieve over the loss of someone you loved very much. Death is final, and you know that in this life there will never again be the close fellowship and joy you once experienced with this person. Jesus wept at the tomb of his friend Lazarus (John 11:35).

At the same time, although there may be sorrow, there should never be despair over the death of a loved one who knew Christ. We may weep for ourselves, because we know we will miss a loved one very much. But we do not weep for those who died, because we know that they are now with Christ. In fact, we can rejoice because we know that loved one is now free of the burdens and pain of this life. We have certainty about this, because Jesus Christ rose from the dead and conquered death for all who put their trust in Him. "Brothers, we do not want you to be ignorant about those who sleep, or to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope. We believe that Jesus died and rose again and so we believe that God will bring with Jesus those who sleep in Him" (I Thessalonians 4:13, 14, New International Version). While you may see the loss of a loved one as a tragedy for you, death is not a tragedy for that person if he knew Christ.

It is strange how often people never really think about the fact of death, although death is all around us and everyone will face death eventually. Death has come because the human race has rebelled against God. I believe that Jesus wept not primarily because His friend was dead — for Jesus would raise him to life again — but because Jesus knew the awful tragedy of death. However, Jesus Christ met death head-on, and defeated it. We can have the hope of eternal life if we put our trust in Him. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

The Oscar-winning movie was in town, but where were all the people?

The movies, of course, are big business, but they are also an art form. And whether the form flourishes or stagnates depends entirely on the response of the patrons.

And the response in Big Spring to this year's Oscar winner, "Annie Hall," was pitiful. I saw the movie during opening week and shared the theater with three other people. Another couple I know got an exclusive screening.

That opening week was the only one for "Annie Hall" in Big Spring. But across town, the latest Clint Eastwood opus, "The Gauntlet," played to packed houses for five weeks. Trash sells in Big Spring.

THIS, HOWEVER, is not a plea for Big Springers to stay away from trashy action movies, but rather to give movies such as "Annie Hall" a fighting chance for survival in this city.

At $2.50, the risk is small even if the movie is a loser. That's only about a penny a minute for potentially fine entertainment.

Besides, big city movie fanatics (you have to be a fanatic to pay the prices) give twice that and more for a night at the flicks.

Big Springers can usually count on being able to see the Hollywood blockbusters, the sure money-makers. But scores of other notable American efforts such as "The Late Show," "Welcome to L.A.," "Hester Street," "Bound For Glory," "Night Moves," "Slap Shot," "The Last Tycoon," and Robert Altman's "Three Women," never hit the screens here.

And speaking of Altman, only about five or six people bothered to see his "Buffalo Bill and The Indians" when it touched down briefly in Big Spring.

And what is the fate of the foreign film in Big Spring? Put it this way: If someone were to yell "fire" at a Big Spring Bergman Festival, your chances of getting trampled would be slim.

THIS YEAR Marcello Mastroianni was nominated in the Best Actor category for his work in an Italian movie, "A Special Day." Most Big Springers will never have a chance to see it because it is subtitled.

The German directors such as Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Wim Wenders, and Werner Herzog are making what some critics call the freshest, most important films of the decade. No way will they grace Big Spring's theaters.

What is maddening is that many foreign films such as "A Special Day," "Cousin, Cousine," "That Obscure Object of Desire," "Swept Away," "1900" and many others are financially successful and popular entertainment. Foreign does not necessarily mean dull.

A whole new world of film experience awaits. But it would involve some risk taking on the part of both theater owners and moviegoers.

Owners would have to gamble on a movie that hadn't already made a bundle everywhere else. Viewers would have to be willing to watch someone on the screen for a couple of hours who isn't Clint Eastwood.

Crooks and Medicaid

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Late last month, Eugene Zipperstein, a pharmacist, was abducted from one of the many clinics he owns in Chicago and shoved into the back of a panel truck. An hour later, he was dumped in the street his face and body viciously slashed and punctured. He was rushed to the hospital where, at this writing, he remains in critical condition.

It was the fifth violent incident surrounding an investigation of what may be the most profitable Medicaid operation in the country. Four other principals in the case either have been murdered or have died under suspicious circumstances.

Some sources suggest their deaths may mark the beginning of open warfare for the billions of federal health dollars pouring into programs to aid the poor and elderly. Others believe the crime lords are jockeying for even bigger stakes. If they can get their hands on Medicaid money, they will be in a position to siphon off even more staggering sums from the national health insurance program, which is expected to pass Congress in the future.

WE PRESENT our findings as part of our continuing investigation of the mob's bold tampering with federal funds. There was a time when the criminal godfathers took pains to avoid stirring up the federal government. But the new breed, who are have their eye on the most bounteous money tree of them all: the U.S. Treasury.

The first to die in the Chicago case was Allen Zipperstein, father of the kidnap-knifing victim. In late 1974 a stranger walked into the pharmacy and asked for Allen Zipperstein. When Zipperstein identified himself, the man raised a shotgun over the counter and pulled the trigger. Zipperstein's death was instantaneous.

Three months later, his Medicaid partner, Robert Fields, was murdered in a similar manner as he closed up shop for the night. A shotgun blast out of the dark caught him in the chest and nearly blew him in half.

At the time of their deaths, the partners controlled a multimillion-dollar medical syndicate which had gained a virtual monopoly over welfare medicine on the south and west sides of Chicago.

According to Chicago police, the shotgun hit-man was William Roderick Hill who has confessed to the killings. He is now awaiting execution.

But here's where the story gets curious. He is said to have told authorities he received $25,000 for the double killings from Dr. Max Kaye, an aged dentist, who owned the Medicaid clinic where Hill was employed as a security guard. The dentist is described by police as a former associate of the dead partners.

"Zipperstein and Fields were making millions," Chicago homicide chief Joseph DiLeonardi told our associate Bill Halamandaris, "and Kaye wanted a piece."

But other sources close to the murder investigation tell us a different, more seamy story. They say the partners received an offer from the mob they were not supposed to refuse. The murder of Allen Zipperstein was intended, they say, not only as a warning to Fields but also as an object lesson to other health care providers. The late Fields refused to cut the mob in on his Medicaid windfall.

DiLeonardi admitted underworld elements "control a lot of the pharmaceutical business and are probably heavy into Medicaid in Illinois." But he insisted the police had no information linking the mob to the deaths of the two partners.

UNFORTUNATELY, THE witness who might have established that connection is no longer around to tell his story. Dr. Kaye died shortly after a murder warrant was issued for his arrest. His death is said to have been caused by cardiac arrest.

"I have never been able to buy Kaye as the mastermind of the operation," Mike Stein, a spokesman for the Illinois State Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Aid, told us. "He was over 80 and nearly senile. He hardly knew what was going on."

The link between Zipperstein and the mob, Stein told us, was Irwin Weiner. He is thought to be the underworld's major financial figure in the Midwest.

Texas water: Bold scheme unveiled

EDITOR'S NOTE — In updating the state's farflung water plan experts added this cryptic note: "To fail to plan well, and to fail to develop water resources according to schedule ... has social and economic costs of practically inestimable magnitudes."

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — On an otherwise humdrum day in 1968, the Texas Water Development Board unveiled a broad, bold scheme to meet the state's long range water needs.

It was called, simply, the Texas Water Plan. "There is not a water resource plan of this magnitude or complexity in the world today," the board said in releasing the 50-year water document a decade ago.

"Yet Texas' water needs for the future can be met with nothing less sweeping,"

Seldom, it was noted at the time, had such a document, so vital in nature, so painstakingly conceived, been understood by so few.

"A lesson in frustration," snorted one water planner.

Responding to the challenge, Texas voters rushed right out and rejected a $3.5 billion bond issue needed to help finance the plan. Many voters thought they shot down the plan itself. They were wrong. The plan lives. It is still the blueprint for meeting the state's projected needs.

But it is not easily recognizable.

In a remarkable document released last year, the water development board spelled out a number of proposals designed to revise and update the plan.

"There are two compelling reasons to maintain a current statewide comprehensive water resources development plan," the board said in a prelude to its report.

And then James Rose, the former executive director,

Energy

Import fee on crude oil would cost consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — An import fee on crude oil would cost consumers billions of dollars, possibly hitting New Englanders hardest of all, new congressional studies claim.

Administration officials have indicated that President Carter may impose a tariff of as much as $5 a barrel if Congress fails to pass his proposed crude oil tax.

A Library of Congress study released Wednesday by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said such a step could cost consumers an added $33.8 billion a year in higher fuel costs.

He said there might be an immediate increase of gasoline prices of from 7 cents to 12 cents a gallon.

A separate study prepared for the New England congressional caucus said such a tariff would cost that region $2.6 billion over the next five years, largely in higher heating oil bills. New England relies heavily on imported heating oil.

Meanwhile, Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., says Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger is trying to make a new deal with the oil industry in exchange for its support of the tax.

Fire scorching Davis Mountains

FORT DAVIS, Texas (AP) — Volunteers combating a five-day-old range fire in the Davis Mountains stood by their lines Wednesday night, fearing the morning would see the fire move toward a resort area.

Fire lines about 10 miles long were set up on both sides of the mountains.

About 20,000 acres of grassland and timber had been destroyed, mostly within the McIvor Ranch about 16 miles west of here.

No homes in the Davis Mountain Resort were immediately threatened Wednesday when the fire moved out of the ranch's boundaries. Volunteer quietly disclosed those two reasons:

"First, the quantity of water necessary to meet Texas' large and growing needs is not available from most ground water aquifers and undeveloped flowing streams.

experts admit, are impractical if not impossible, and the requirements have been revised downward. But for the purposes of comparison, the 33 million figure is roughly twice as much water as the state will use this year.

Water

"Secondly, the time required to find, develop and deliver additional quantities of suitable quality water exceeds the length of time that any areas of the state can survive a severe drought.

"The state's population, currently about 12 million, is expected to be more than 18 million in the year 2000, 25.5 million by 2020 and 30.5 million by 2030."

Although Rose laid out the situation quite clearly, one might paraphrase his analysis this way:

"Texas does not have enough water, a drought would be disastrous and the population explosion is compounding the problem."

Rose said Texas, to meet its economic and environmental needs, which includes water for agriculture and the bays and estuaries, must have 33 million acre-feet of water in 2000, 41 million acre-feet by 2020 and 48 million acre-feet by 2030.

Those estimates, water

An acre foot of water is 325,850 gallons and represents the amount of water it takes to cover an acre of land a foot deep.

In its revised and updated report, the water development board disclosed these facts.

—The major areas dependent on ground water are the High Plains, Trans Pecos, El Paso and Winter Garden areas.

—Without imported water, irrigated acreage on the High Plains is expected to decrease to about 58 percent of the current 6.4 million acre level by 2020. The figure would be 41 percent by 2030.

—Other regions of the state will be limited in terms of growth potential, including jobs, unless water supplies are available.

—The major areas where long range water shortages are projected include the Dallas-Fort Worth Region and all regions west including the Wichita Falls, Abilene, San Angelo, High Plains, Trans Pecos, El Paso, Lower Rio Grande Valley, Middle Rio Grande, Corpus Christi and San Antonio regions.

—The areas capable of meeting their longrange needs—if reservoir sites are developed on a timely schedule—are the Middle Gulf Coast, Houston, Beaumont, East Texas, Northeast Texas and part of the Dallas-Fort Worth and Central Texas regions.

—A number of out-of-state sources of potential water supplies are now being studied for the import to water-deficit Texas areas, primarily the High Plains. The No. 1 target is Arkansas.

Water experts, on the brighter side, believe Texas can through proper development of all its available sources meet its needs for municipal and industrial water.

And with importation, the rich agricultural potential could be reaped for years to come. The questions that must be answered involve monumental political and economic hurdles jeopardizing importation schemes.

"The failure to plan and implement timely water resources programs, with today's large population and elevated economic level," the development board warned, "is to invite economic and social crises that have a high probability of resulting in disaster for Texans."

And that is why the experts are breathing new life into the Texas Water Plan.

Colombians infuriated by charges

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Relations between Colombia and the United States have been hurt by American charges of Colombian laxity toward the drug traffic and corruption resulting from it.

"I think relations between the two countries are now at their lowest level in recent years," one diplomat said.

The Colombian government was infuriated last week when the U.S. General Accounting Office said government corruption has helped make Colombia the chief supplier of marijuana and cocaine to the United States.

Following the GAO charge, CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" alleged that a memorandum sent to President Carter linked three leading Colombian politicians to the drug traffic. They were Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, candidate of the dominant Liberal Party who is favored to win the June 4 presidential election; Gen. Abraham Varon Valencia, the defense minister; and Labor Minister Oscar M. Montoya.

ANNIVERSARIES IN APRIL — Actress Terry Davis, who plays April Cavanaugh, and Tony Craig, who plays Draper Scott, in the ABC-TV serial "The Edge of Night," pose in wedding costumes they wear Friday when the characters they portray are to be married. That way, the characters can observe their anniversary in the same month as the series, which premiered April 2, 1966.

Edinburg mayor changes mind about prison land

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Edinburg Mayor Ronald Case — who previously said a state prison near here would be an economic blessing for his city — now says he would "hate" to see the facility constructed.

"Personally, I just hate to see it. I just don't think we need to become known as a prison town. The connotations are not too good," Case said Wednesday.

The mayor said he originally favored the proposed prison because of the sorely needed new jobs it might bring. But now he fears the state facility might hurt another local industry.

"If we have a prison of that magnitude it may deter some of our tourists. At first I favored it from an economic point but the more I thought about it..." Case said.

Tuesday night the mayor asked city commissioners here to approve a resolution to Gov. Dolph Briscoe to note the city's opposition to the prison.

"Each of the commissioners said 'yes,' Case said, adding however, that the commission could not act because the topic was not on the agenda.

Case said the commission will seek comment from citizens at the next meeting. The mayor added that he has had many phone calls from local people who oppose the prison.

The state had tentatively agreed to purchase an 8,000-acre tract for $8 million. However, an okay from a three-member approval board was postponed.

The proposed purchase was further clouded by reports that Big Five Farms Inc. of Edinburg, current owners of the land, bought the acreage from a convicted felon.

Preston Henrichson, attorney for Big Five, said Wednesday that the state may "possibly" have to pay more than $8 million if it still wants the land. An April 1 deadline passed with a contract being signed, the lawyer said.

"My clients are showing the land to other prospective buyers," Henrichson said.

He added that a sale to the state "would be negotiable" and that the state is still "way ahead" of other prospective buyers in the negotiating process.

'Hot plates' crunch noted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Apparently some Austin motorists would rather steal their new vehicle license stickers than stand in a long line to buy them.

Police said today that since the April 1 deadline for the new stickers, there have been 50 thefts of license tags reported.

"There's probably a third that many more that owners have not reported," said Police Sgt. Horace Hodges, "plus who knows how many that haven't been discovered."

Austin police have ticketed about 500 drivers since April 1 for driving with expired tags, which could cost each a fine up to $200.

Lamesa firemen get pay hike

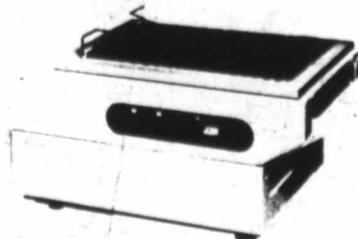

LAMESA — Lamesa city firemen are back on the job today, after submitting their resignations Wednesday over a salary dispute.

The city council has agreed to boost their monthly pay from $760 to $850. Lamesa policemen are paid $880 monthly and the firemen had sought vainly over a period of weeks to seek a salary adjustment.

Fire Chief Lee Thompson and a veteran of the force, Loy Phillips, had resigned formally Tuesday.

Thompson, who took the pay offer to the firemen for approval or rejection, said the firemen accepted it because "they all like their jobs." The decision to take the $90 monthly boost was unanimous.

College rodeo under way

The Howard College Rodeo will begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Other performances are Friday and Sunday nights at 7:00 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 2:00 p.m. Scene is the Rodeo Bowl.

Rodeo cowboys and cowgirls are a unique and special group of people as you will learn if you take the opportunity to go watch the rodeo. As a rule, they are tough, but gentle, dedicated and smart. The men and women's Rodeo Team of Howard College participants include:

Tere Teague — age 19, will participate in two events: goat tying and breakaway roping. She is winning the region in the breakaway roping and second in the nation. She's also won many awards over the past years in American Junior Rodeo Association. She is from a rodeo family in Crane, Texas.

Pam Mitchell — age 19, will participate in three events: barrel racing, goat tying, barrel racing, goat roping. This is Pam's first year at Howard College. She is winning the goat tying in the region and third in the nation. She was the New Mexico High School All-Around Champ 1976 and has won awards in the NIRA. She is from Tularosa, New Mexico.

Margo Powell — age 21, works four events: barrel racing, goat tying, breakaway roping and team roping. She's setting third in the goat tying in the region. She went to the NIRA finals last year and this is her third year at Howard College.

Jess Knight — age 22, works three events: bareback riding, saddle bronc riding and team roping. Setting first in regional standings in saddle bronc riding, Jess won first at the first two shows and has been in the money at two other rodeos. He is originally from South Dakota, but has been living and working in Justiceburg near Post. He was just recently married to a girl from Andrews.

Joe Martinez — age 19, works two events: team roping, calf roping. Joe is setting second in team roping for region. Joe is from Pecos and has one brother and one sister. This is his second year at Howard College. He and his brother, Jimmy, won the champion team roping saddles from SWTTA Southwest Texas Team Roping Association.

Ken Smith — age 19, works two events: team roping, calf roping. Ken is from Carlsbad, N.M. and the oldest of four. This is his second year. Ken went to the high school national finals in '75 and went to NIRA national finals in Bozeman, Montana in 1977.

Mack Altizer — age 20, works three events: calf roping, team roping, bull dogging. He is setting within the top five in the regional goat m roping. Mack is from Del Rio and has one younger sister. He won the national high school calf roping in 1976 at Sulphur, La. He went to Bozeman for the NIRA national finals. Mack is now student rodeo president at HC.

Guy Miller — age 19, is participating in three events: calf roping and bull dogging. Guy is from Lamesa and this is his first year at Howard College. He has one brother and one sister older than him. Guy has won numerous awards in the American Junior Rodeo Association.

Hank Adams — age 19, is participating in three events: bull riding, calf roping and bull dogging. Hank is from Forsan, and he has two younger sisters who rodeo too. Hank has been a member of the American Junior Rodeo Association for years and has won quite a lot of titles.

The girls' team is winning the region with Eastern New Mexico and Texas Tech. Sul Ross is winning the boys' team with New Mexico State and Howard College behind them. Other schools participating are: University of Albuquerque, Weatherford College, Western Texas College, New Mexico Junior College, Hardin-Simmons, Tarleton, San Angelo State, TSIT at Amarillo, Cisco Jr. College, and Ranger Jr. College.

Biggest birthday card

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's largest greeting card is on its way around the globe to help celebrate the centennial of the Berlitz Schools of Languages.

The birthday card, measuring 12 feet, 4 inches by 8 feet 2 inches, contains 100 different congratulatory greetings representing languages spoken all over the world. Although both card and envelope together weigh some 600 pounds, when shipped in a specially-built crate, the total weight exceeds 300 pounds.

Small East Texas town gets $500,000 grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small East Texas town imperiled by a leaky natural gas system and plagued by bureaucratic red tape has received a $500,000 grant to alleviate its potentially explosive problem.

The community of Huntington will use the HUD funds to replace the city-owned natural gas system that has leaked thousands of dollars of gas while creating a hazardous situation for the nearly 2,000 residents.

The announcement of the grant — that had been stalled while federal officials sought for ways to skirt their own regulations — was made Wednesday by a spokesman for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

HUD regulations specify a ceiling for community development grants. The normal ceiling for a town Huntington's size is $250,000.

Huntington officials estimate the cost of replacing the leaky gas lines at $1.2 million. The other $700,000 needed has been requested in the form of a Farm Home Administration loan.

Nursing school taking applications again

The Howard College School of Vocational Nursing is accepting applications for the next class which will begin in September.

This class, which will be limited to 30 students, is a 12 month course including 584 classroom hours and 1250 hours of clinical experience.

On successful completion of the course, the student and school faculty will submit a completed application for State Board examination. On passing the State Board examination, the applicant will be a licensed vocational nurse as registered in Texas.

Applicants for this one-year LVN program must be 17 years of age or older. Student must be 18 years of age to take the State Board examinations. The applicant must have completed at least two years of high school or its equivalent and are required to submit a transcript.

Any applicant not having two years of high school or unable to furnish a transcript, will be required to take the GED Test which is given at the College.

The first step for a prospective applicant is to call the LVN office at 267-6311, extension 74, for an appointment at which time complete details and applications will be discussed, and arrangements made for the pre-entrance test to be given by the guidance and counseling department.

The Howard College School of Vocational Nursing is accredited by the State Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners and approved by the Texas Education Agency and the Veterans Administration. All hospitals affiliated with the school of vocational nursing are accredited hospitals.

These include Cowper's, Hall-Bennett and Malone-Hogan hospitals. Mrs. Johnnie Amos and Mrs. Ramona Harris are instructors and supervisors for the program. There have been about 400 students graduated since the school began operation in 1958.

Deadline for applying for the September class is June 15.

New trustees due welcome

Outlook for grocery shoppers improve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for grocery shoppers improved slightly as wholesale prices rose at a slower rate last month than they had earlier this year, the Labor Department said today.

Wholesale prices rose 0.6 percent in March, which could lead to an annual inflation rate of just over 7 percent if such prices increase at the March rate for the rest of the year.

There was a 1.1 percent increase in wholesale prices in February, the biggest rise in more than three years.

Wholesale food prices rose 0.8 percent in March after jumps of 1.1 percent in January and 2.9 percent in February, the Labor Department said. The price of other consumer goods rose 0.5 percent last month.

Economists watch the monthly wholesale price report closely because price increases are usually passed on to consumers. Consumer prices increased 1.4 percent during the first two months of this year.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices for pork, processed poultry, refined sugar and fresh fruit turned downward in March after going up in the previous month. And the rate of increase in prices for beef and veal, eggs and dairy products was less in March than it was in February.

Prices turned up in March after February declines for vegetable oil products, flour-based mixes and milled rice. Candy prices increased. Coffee prices went down.

Prices for long-lasting goods, such as autos, furniture and jewelry, went up 0.6 percent in March. Higher prices were recorded for cosmetics, alcoholic beverages and luggage. Prices of gasoline, home heating oil and tires went down.

The Labor Department calculates these prices by surveying manufacturers and finding out what they have charged retailers, processors and others for goods that are ready for the consumer. It is called the producer price index for finished goods, and it now stands at 189. That means that producers are charging $189 for products that cost $100 in the base period of 1967.

In a preview of the March wholesale price report, the Agriculture Department said prices received by farmers rose 4 percent in the month ending March 15 after going up 3 percent the month before. The biggest increases were for cattle, hogs, soybeans and oranges.

Wholesale and farm price increases are usually passed on to consumers. Economists say some of the food increases show up at supermarkets almost immediately.

Last month, the Agriculture Department raised its 4 to 6 percent estimate of consumer food price increases for this year to 6 to 8 percent.

President Carter told a reception for union members Wednesday that "we are going to have to do something about inflation."

Noting last year's decline in the unemployment rate, the president said that, unless inflation is contained, "We are all going to be robbed of the improvements we have made."

Congressmen who met earlier with Carter described him as adamantly opposed to a bill to increase farm price supports because he thinks it will boost food prices even further.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will deliver a speech next week about "inflation, the dollar and energy."

Powell said Carter probably has not decided on all the specifics of the anti-inflation plan, but that holding down this year's annual federal pay hike is under consideration.

The government has switched its emphasis from the unemployment problem to inflation since the jobless rate has fallen from 7 percent to 6.1 percent in the last year.

Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller estimated last week that inflation will be from 6.5 to 7 percent this year, a higher rate than the 6.3 percent the administration forecast in January.

Welding course opens Apr. 17

Farmers, ranchers, and other interested adults are reminded on the farm arc welding short course to be held April 17-20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sands Voc. Ag. Building-Ackery.

Royce L. Hart, farm arc welding specialist with the Texas Education Agency and Texas A&M University, will conduct the short course.

Subjects to be covered in the short course are: basic arc welding, welding in all positions, types of electrodes, pipe cutting and welding in fabricating farm structures, and hard-structure farm equipment.

Further information may be obtained from Lon McDonald, vocational agriculture instructor.

Military

George Morales is graduate

WICHITA FALLS — Airman George M. Morales, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armando Morales of 502 S. Avenue F, Lamesa, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for carpentry specialists.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Lamesa High School.

Rivera back from Lejeune

Marine Cpl. Jesse L. Rivera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rivera of Route 2, Box 65, and whose wife, Irma, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Martinez of 1441 Pine St., all of Colorado City, has returned from a five-week Caribbean deployment.

He is serving as a member of Battalion Landing Team One Slant Two (BLT 1/2), home-based at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Rivera joined the Marine Corps in September 1975.

Deployment is ended by Ewing

Navy Electrician's Mate Fireman Apprentice Richard L. Ewing Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Ewing Sr. of Gall Route, Box 39C, Big Spring, has completed a two-month deployment in the Western Pacific.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the store ship USS White Plains, operating from Yokosuka, Japan, while permanently deployed to the Western Pacific as a unit of the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

David Bradford on top team

MINOT, N.D. — Capt. David G. Bradford, son of retired Air Force Major and Mrs. L. Galen Bradford of 2602 Carol, Big Spring, is a member of the best missile operations unit in the Fifteenth Air Force for 1977.

Captain Bradford is a missile combat crew commander at Minot AFB, N.D., with the 91st Strategic Missile Wing, which received the Colonel John W. Carroll Award.

Competing against nine other missile wings within the 15th AF, the 91st was selected on the basis of outstanding ratings on higher headquarters inspections, operational readiness inspections and successful Minuteman III missile operational test launches.

The award commemorates the late Colonel John W. Carroll who commanded the 341st Strategic Missile Wing at Malmstrom AFB, Mont., from July 5, 1966 until his death March 13, 1968.

The captain, who graduated from high school in 1966, received his M.A. degree in 1974 from the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley. He was commissioned through the Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Captain Bradford's wife, Irene, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Boenning of Rt. 1, Hankinson, N.C.

Jose Munoz ends training

Engine course is completed

Navy Airman Recruit Neal A. Sisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darryl F. Sisson of 805 E. School, Stanton, has completed the Aviation Machinist's Mate Basic Jet Engine Course.

He joined the Navy in September 1977.

Monkey making life miserable

GROVE CITY, Ohio (AP) — Charlie Brown, a pet monkey, is making life miserable for Madge Taynor.

The 5-year-old, 70-pound primate has even thrown a knife at her minister, Mrs. Taynor says.

Lately he has been escaping from the house and pestering the neighbors. One of them went to the Grove City council meeting earlier in the week seeking a solution to the problem.

Mrs. Taynor said she can't seem to find the monkey a good home.

"The Columbus Zoo doesn't want him. I don't want to sell him because he does bite and I don't want anyone to mistreat him, either," she said.

"He's learned how to slide the windows back and get out. He escaped again Tuesday morning but he came back when it started to rain. He doesn't like the rain."

Man, 106, takes 'one shot' daily

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Jay Percy Zachary says his daily breakfast fare is a shot of whiskey with bacon and eggs on the side. It seems to agree with Zachary, who celebrated his 106th birthday last month.

Zachary says he tasted his first liquor when he was 9, but has never been more than a moderate drinker.

"I take just one shot a day," he said recently with a chuckle. "Just one shot, some bacon and eggs and I'm set for the day. Whiskey is medicine. It's not made to get drunk on."

Zachary admitted, however, that the "one shot" taken about 6 a.m. before he eats, almost fills a coffee cup. "I drink only 100 proof," he added.

Betterton ends basic drills

SAN ANTONIO — Airman George A. Betterton, son of Arthur J. Betterton Sr., of Rt. 1, Stanton, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training.

Airman Betterton attended Stanton Senior High School. His mother, Eleanor E. Betterton, resides on Rt. 1, Midland.

Kent Hamilton ends course

WICHITA FALLS — Air Force Capt. Kent M. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hamilton of Rt. A, Lamesa, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force medical service of officers orientation course at Sheppard AFB, Tex.

A 1970 graduate of Lamesa High School, the captain received his B.S. degree in 1974 from Texas A&M University and his D.D.S. degree in dentistry this year from the University of Texas Dental Branch in Houston.

Danny Reagan
Willie Dixon wrote it.

"If it wasn't for bad luck, we wouldn't have no luck at all," Steer baseball Coach Tommy Collins might be singing this afternoon if he knew the words to "Born Under a Bad Sign."

The local diamond men, currently on the skids of a nine-game losing skid, try to bust up the pack of dirty little error gremlins that have been hovering around them for the past few weeks, as they travel to Snyder today for a non-conference breather.

The consensus of opinion is that "they just can't get the hit when they need it." This also seems to be the problem with the junior varsity.

Despite their 0-5 league record, the locals haven't played that badly in district confrontations. An non-committed error or realized hit here or there and they would be right at the top of the pile.

That's the convenient advantage of having a two-half system in sports such as baseball and basketball. Allowing that the Universe is indeed an ordered system, then everything evens out in the end. And a team that may be left in the clubhouse because of "back luck" during the first half, has a chance to shoot out of the starting gate ahead of the pack with just a little luck in the second half of play.

Just to emphasize the kind of luck the locals have been having, "Photolab Danny" Valdes, (baseball is his sport), said, following the game, "I never lost a game in that situation." That "situation" was: Steers had the bases loaded in the bottom of the last inning, behind 3-2, no outs and the fourth batter was ahead of the enemy hurler with three balls.

Two strikeouts, a lost contact lens and a line-out to center later, the Steers had their 9th straight loss. No one deserves luck like that.

THEN THERE'S THE CINDERMEN

Taking up the slack for the home crowd during the baseball drought is Jerry Carter's track squad. Talk about making your own luck.

In winning their second meet in a row last week, the Steer thinclads caused even more rumblings around the District 5-4A encampments, and shored up a few more potential points in various events, just a week and a half before the district meet.

Mercurial Bobby Huff chopped excess tenths of seconds off his 100 and 220-yard dash times. He now holds down a tie for both events in the league. His 100 time is 9.7, and he blurs through the 220 in 22.2. Eugene Boadle also trimmed his 220 time to a 22.9.

Robbie Wegner improved his vaulting skills to 13'9", and with Rusty Braun's ABC Relay winning clearance of 13'6", the Steers should nail down some points there. Meanwhile, 440-yard relay, etc., are doing just fine.

INDISCRIMINATELY SPEAKING

In reference to Dr. Floyd Mays' 1932 World Series ticket stub that appeared in Wednesday's Sports section, "Photolab" said that he had no luck in securing similar souvenirs at this year's Super Bowl game.

"After the game," explained Valdes, "I went up to the stands and looked around for 20 minutes. There wasn't a ticket stub in the whole place." Fifty years from now, one of those little beauties will be scarce.

YMCA's Jan Smith called in her concern about lack of participation in the Y's Tee-Ball program that runs from 10 a.m. until noon on Saturday mornings.

The program is for pre-little league youngsters, and the action includes hitting the ball from a tee, discussing the rules of the game, practicing same and garnering a working knowledge of the sport. Pitching techniques are not delved into, and understandably so. There's already enough kids who throw their arms out by the time they reach high school.

Smith emphasized that the program offers something that could turn a small bench-warmer into a participant of the game. "No one likes to see their kids sit on the bench the whole season," she said, "and I feel very strongly that this teaches the kids how to play baseball."

Tony Dorsett said recently that his brushes with the law have cost him several lucrative contracts, including one with NBC television for the 1980 Olympics, and the other with Fabergé.

TONY DORSETT
"I've learned my lesson"

"I came here from a northern city and sometimes I have to remind myself. I'm in the South now. I don't want them going up the side of my head."

The Dallas running back also suggested that "there are probably some people who would love to make a name for themselves by sticking it to me."

REMARKABILITIES

"He's never known what a hangover feels like." — SONNY JURGENSEN, explaining why he thinks Roger Staubach will certainly be playing quarterback for Dallas after he's turned 40.

Bob Hayes busted on coke charges

DALLAS (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Bob Hayes and another man were arrested today on drug charges in an early morning raid in the North Dallas suburb of Addison.

Addison police said the arrests of Hayes, 35, and Bob Adler, 29, followed a three-month undercover investigation.

Hayes, vice president of Dycon, Inc., was charged with two counts of delivery of cocaine, and one count of delivery of marijuana. Adler, a Dycon salesman, was charged with one count of delivery of cocaine.

Justice of the Peace Robert Cole set bond at $10,000 each. Hayes and Adler remained in the Dallas County jail this morning. A third suspect was being sought.

Hayes won two Olympic gold medals in 1964 and wore the label "the world's fastest human" throughout his career with the Cowboys.

He was a favorite target of then-quarterback Don Meredith and ended his career after being traded to the San Francisco 49ers. He retired from the league in 1975 after playing one season with the West Coast club.

Mariners win first game of 1978 season ...

By the Associated Press

They cried, "Play Ball!" Glenn Abbott wound up and fired a hard, high pitch to Hosken Powell — and the 1978 major league baseball season was under way.

...and you'd think they won the Series

SEATTLE (AP) — Glenn Abbott was grinning over how well he'd done, Dave Goltz was shaking his head over the pitch that got away and Gene Mauch was muttering something about his grandmother.

That's how the 1978 major league baseball season began Wednesday night as Abbott scattered five hits over 6-13 innings to help the Seattle Mariners trim the Minnesota Twins 3-2 in the Kingdome.

"I'm looking for a really good year," the big right-hander joked, "between 35 and 40 wins."

Abbott, who led Seattle's pitchers with a 12-13 record last season, got relief help in the seventh inning from Enrique Romo, who quelled a dramatic Minnesota rally in the ninth to preserve the victory.

"I got a little tired and started getting my pitches up," explained Abbott, who was greeted by a standing ovation from the crowd of 45,235 when he left the game with Seattle ahead 3-1.

"But I'm really glad about this. I'm usually an awfully slow starter," he said.

Abbott was buoyed by shortstop Craig Reynolds' two-run homer in the second inning that staked the second-year Mariners to a 3-0 lead.

"For a Punch-and-Judy hitter like me, that's mind-boggling," said Reynolds, who hit just four homers last season. "I was just trying to meet the ball. The pitch was something up and, for me, I hit it good."

Goltz, the Twins' ace righthander, went the distance Wednesday night but knew he had made a mistake with Reynolds.

"The first two innings everything I threw was up," said Goltz, who was 20-11 with 19 complete games last season. "I threw Reynolds a nothing fastball. Anybody can hit those out. The rest of the way I was okay."

Minnesota Manager Mauch was generally pleased with his club's showing.

"It took Goltz a while to get settled down," Mauch said. "He threw three straight balls and then laid one in (to Reynolds). My grandmother could hit a home run in this ballpark."

"Abbott pitched very well, the best I've ever seen him pitch. He threw a lot of ground balls. Some of them were hit pretty hard, but they were ground balls nevertheless."

The Twins threatened in the ninth when Glenn Adams blasted a leadoff double off Romo. Bombo Rivera, who came in to pinch-run for Adams, moved to third as Butch Wynegar's grounded out. Dan Ford then flew to Ruppert Jones, and the center fielder's perfect throw to the plate held Rivera at third.

Romo then got Mike Cabbage to pop out to catcher Bob Stinson in front of the Seattle dugout, ending the game.

Minnesota had closed to within 3-2 in the seventh on Cabbage's hit-and-run single that scored Dan Ford from first base.

Actually, Abbott started fast before running out of gas after 6-13 innings. Then Manager Darrell Johnson took him out of the game.

"Abbott had thrown 100 pitches and that was enough," Johnson reasoned. "For this early in the year it was a very good game, a heck of a ballgame."

Craig Reynolds hit the first home run of the season, a two-run blast off Dave Goltz that provided Abbott with an early 3-0 cushion and the Mariners with their eventual winning run.

"For a Punch-and-Judy hitter like me, that's really something," said Reynolds, who hit just four homers last year. "It was a hit-and-run play. I was just trying to meet the ball. The pitch was something up and, for me, I hit it good."

The Mariners and Twins continue their series tonight, along with three other contests in baseball. In American League day games, Toronto played at Detroit and Baltimore was at Milwaukee. The Cincinnati Reds met the Houston Astros in the traditional National League opener.

Abbott, who led the Mariner pitching staff with a 12-13 record last season, allowed two earned runs while walking two and striking out two. Enrique Romo, who led Seattle's relievers with 16 saves in 1977, came on for Abbott in the seventh inning and set down the Twins on two hits the rest of the way to the cheers of 45,235 at Seattle's Kingdome.

Nicklaus sees 50-50 shot at Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — By his own calculations, Jack Nicklaus figures to have a 50-50 chance of winning the 42nd Masters golf tournament.

But young Jerry Pate, still thankful that he ignored a doctor who wanted to extract a rib and outdueled a hypnotist over a steak last year, was among 77 challengers anxious to test Nicklaus' prediction as the tournament opened today at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Nicklaus is not one to make rash statements, even though he has won this event a record five times and is the favorite virtually every time he plays in one of the four major tournaments.

On the eve of this event, though, he offered this careful assessment: "In the last 15 Masters, excluding my first one as a pro and my three as an amateur, I've felt probably 10 times that I've come in here playing as well as I can. I won half of those times."

"Now my game is better than it ever was and I'm as well prepared as can be."

There's more. He is off to his best start ever, having won twice and finished second twice in his last four starts. He is rested yet tuned, having bypassed the last two tour events and played several practice rounds at Augusta. He is driving the ball 10-15 yards farther, having returned this year to a driver with a smaller angle on the club face.

And, perhaps most important, he is hungry.

He points toward the major tournaments (the others are the PGA and the U.S. and British Opens). He was beaten by Tom Watson twice last year, here and at the British Open. It has been two years since he won the last of his 14 "Big Four" events.

drop on the Twins and the Seattle Mariners got the jump on the rest of the American League with a 3-2 victory Wednesday night.

"I wanted to go just six innings," said Abbott, which is just about what he did in the first Opening Day assignment of his life in the major leagues. "I'm really glad about this. Usually, I'm a slow starter."

Actually, Abbott started fast before running out of gas after 6-13 innings. Then Manager Darrell Johnson took him out of the game.

"Abbott had thrown 100 pitches and that was enough," Johnson reasoned. "For this early in the year it was a very good game, a heck of a ballgame."

inning that just cleared the right field fence, scoring Bob Stinson ahead of him. Goltz, Minnesota's 20-game winner in 1977, later worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the inning after Bruce Bochte and Dan Meyer singled and Lee Stanton walked.

Minnesota closed to within 3-2 in the seventh on Mike Cabbage's single off Romo that scored Dan Ford from first base with one out.

A PLACID PLAYER — Gary Player yawns Wednesday as he sits on his golf bag during break in practice session for the 1978 Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga. Things were not so placid nine years ago at the PGA Championship in Dayton, Ohio, when the South African golfer faced demonstrators protesting racial segregation. But Player has won over the most severe critics and the ugly specter of apartheid no longer skulks on courses where Player is golfing.

Player survives 'apartheid' years

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The ugly specter of apartheid no longer lurks behind every tree as Gary Player plies his trade on the American pro golf tour.

The gutsy little guy from Johannesburg, South Africa, has met the test head-on and survived it, establishing himself as one of the most respected overseas athletes to invade our shores.

"Good guy" is the appellation pinned on him by moderates and militants alike.

It has been a tough, uphill fight all the way. There has been torment, pain and disappointment. Player managed to keep a stiff upper lip. He won over his severest critics. He has become an example of international goodwill.

The early days were horrendous.

Nine years ago at the PGA Championship in Dayton, Ohio, demonstrators protesting South Africa's racial segregation ran onto the green while he was attempting to putt.

Telephone books were thrown at him. A ball was rolled between his legs.

Walking from the ninth green to the 10th tee, Player had a paper cup of ice cubes flung in his face.

Taken aback, Player just stared at the offender. "Sir," he said in a quiet tone, "why did you do that? I have never done anything to you."

The demonstrator, ashamed, slid back into the crowd. At the Masters here and at the Tournament of Champions in Rancho La Costa, Calif., the 41-year-old Player had to be guarded by armed security men.

It didn't make for comfortable golf. But Gary never wavered.

Today, teeing off in his 21st Masters and seeking his third title, Player was reluctant to talk about his vicissitudes or to mount a political platform.

"I am opposed to apartheid (separation of the races) in sports," he said resolutely. "Every sportsman I know of in my country is just as against it as I am."

"I see no purpose in mixing politics with sports." Player has tried to express his principles through action instead of words.

A few years ago, before the racial barrier was broken in the Masters, he invited Lee Elder, the outstanding black player on the American tour, to be his house guest and play on the South African tour.

The gesture had tremendous impact on the country.

"The golf tour in South Africa today is more integrated than on any tour I know," he said. "We have 15 or 20 blacks competing."

Player also hired a black, Rabbit Dyer, to carry his clubs on the U.S. tour and flew the flamboyant caddy to Royal Lytham in 1974 for the British Open — the first black caddy in the tournament's history.

Gary won.

Player is disinclined to criticize his own country.

"Ours is a great country," he said. "I wish people would give us a fair chance to work out our problems."

Effect of Title IX discussed

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The federal government's Title IX guidelines on equal athletic opportunities for both sexes has helped girls' sports, but "there's an awful lot to be done," according to a University of Iowa instructor.

Peg Burke, assistant professor of physical education, said three out of four participants in high school athletics still are boys.

But Burke disagreed with a state athletic official who said Title IX has hurt the growth of girls' sports. Pam Erwin of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations said the growth of girls' athletics was greater before Title IX was put into effect.

Burke disagreed, saying before Title IX, only 7 percent of participants in high school athletics were girls. That increased to 28 percent for 1976-77.

Burke said 48 percent of sports participants in Iowa are girls. She said she sees a continued increase in the number of female participants and a "dramatic increase of skills involved."

Miracle! Coliseum talks!

OAKLAND — The Oakland Coliseum announced it would not release the Oakland A's from their lease and expected the team to play throughout the 1978 baseball season.

In a special meeting, the Coliseum board of directors voted to end months of negotiations with team owner Charles O. Finley over the possible sale of the team to Denver.

Graham wins par 3 event

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Veteran Lou Graham won the par three tournament among players in the 42nd Masters Golf Tournament.

Graham won the event in a playoff after tying 1977 Masters champion Tom Watson at 5-under-par 22.

There was a three-way tie after Watson among Jerry Pate, Dave Hill and Danny Edwards, all at 22.

Grouped at 24 were Gene Littler, Ron Funseth, Jim Colbert, Terry Diehl, Andy North and Jerry McGee.

Net seeds plant foe weeds

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands — Kim Warwick of Australia upset fifth-seeded Sandy Mayer 6-3, 6-3 in second-round play of the $175,000 World Cup tennis tournament.

In other second-round matches, Raul Ramirez of Mexico downed Vijay Amritraj of India 6-2, 6-2; Jimmy Connors stopped Kjell Johansson of Sweden 6-3, 6-1 and Vitas Gerulaitis beat Chile's Jaime Fillol 6-0, 6-1.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Billie Jean King and Martina Navratilova, the top-seeded team, scored a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Greer Stevens of South Africa and Mona Guerrant in the first-round of the Bridgestone World Doubles Tennis Championships for women.

In another opening-round match, Evonne Goolagong of Australia and Betty Stove of The Netherlands defeated Trish Bostrom and Marita Redondo 6-3, 6-1 while Virginia Wade of Britain and Francoise Durr of France posted a hard-fought 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 victory over Rosie Casals and JoAnn Russell.

Aggies show no respect

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Houston Astros hope they have more success today against Cincinnati in a National League opener than they did Wednesday against six Texas Aggie pitchers in an exhibition game.

Rodney Hodge singled in the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning as the defending Southwest Conference baseball champion Aggies defeated the Astros 1-0. Houston faces Tom Seaver of the Reds today.

Hodge's pinch-hit single came with one out after Aggie catcher Buster Turner singled and advanced to third on a single by Gary Bryant.

Astro reliever Tom Dixon, who stepped in for starter Floyd Bannister in the eighth inning, received the loss. Freshman Perry Swanson, the last of the Aggie pitchers, was credited with the victory.

Cesar Cedeño, Houston's millionaire centerfielder, collected two hits off the stingy Aggie pitching.

Rangers brand Longhorns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Catchers Jim Sundberg and Bill Fahey had two hits each as the Texas Rangers wound up their exhibition baseball season with a 7-2 victory over the University of Texas Longhorns here Wednesday night.

Doyle Alexander took the victory, giving up only four hits in seven innings.

The Rangers had four hits off five Longhorn pitchers. An intrasquad game was to be held at Arlington Stadium today as the Rangers prepare for their season opener at home Saturday against the New York Yankees.

Top prep talent on view

HOUSTON (AP) — The pick of the crop of local, state and national high school basketball all-stars will be on display tonight at The Summit for the Big Brothers Roundball Classic.

The Greater Houston All-Stars will meet the Houston Independent School District All-Stars at 7 p.m. followed by the U.S. All-Stars against the Texas All-Stars at 9 p.m.

The U.S. team will be missing two players — 6-foot-7 forward Leonel Marquetti of Los Angeles and 6-foot-3 guard Dwight Anderson from Dayton, Ohio. But fans will still get a look at 6-foot-5 guard Kevin Stallings of Collinsville, Ill., who says he has received anywhere from 75 to 100 firm college basketball scholarship offers.

ROTH IN ACTION — Werner Roth of the New York Cosmos, right, heads off the ball from Dennis Vaniger of the Ft. Lauderdale Strikers in a recent game at East Rutherford, N.J. Roth says he's a little apprehensive about his new job as captain on a team which has so many superstars.

Ali, Spinks rematch is tentatively set

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A group of New Orleans businessmen and officials has pledged a record sum of money and landed a tentative agreement to hold the Leon Spinks-Muhammad Ali heavyweight championship rematch in the Superdome in New Orleans Sept. 15.

Both Spinks and Ali must approve the agreement-in-principle before it becomes final, Bob Arum, president of Top Rank Inc., said Wednesday. The New York-based promotions firm holds exclusive rights to the rematch.

"We are meeting with their representatives tomorrow, and we don't anticipate any problems," Arum said at a hastily called news conference Wednesday.

Although no precise figures were announced, Arum said the new sports group put up "a very substantial deposit, which we are taking back to New York with us." He said the total sum pledged was a record for live gate rights to a boxing match.

One of the parties in the negotiations said the actual deposit was 10 percent of $3 million.

"The current record is $2.5 million put up by the Philippine government for the Ali-Joe Frazier 'Thrilla in Manila,'" Arum said. "This exceeds that amount. We will talk about the numbers when heavyweight champion Spinks and former champion Ali are in New Orleans for our official press conference."

Arum said he expects the preliminary fights to consist of two more championship bouts in lighter weight classes, a bout featuring at least one leading contender in an unspecified weight class and one or two bouts for local favorites.

Putting up the guarantee was a 2-week-old group called Louisiana Sports Inc.—a union of area businessmen, quasi-public figures and city officials.

Butch Lewis, vice president of Top Rank, said it is now up to the local group to iron out such details as the availability of hotel rooms, a waiver of the city's 2 percent amusement tax and percentages from concessions.

"The fight is ours, provided this city does everything it did for the National Football League in getting the Super Bowl here," said Jake DiMaggio, treasurer of LSI.

"If this city can put the week together, it will make Super Bowl weekend look like tiddlywinks," he said.

Lewis said that after reaching agreement-in-principle Wednesday, Top Rank cancelled plans to take bids from other cities wanting to land the fight. Arum mentioned Tuesday that he planned to visit St. Louis, Montreal and Mexico City during the week. Also Tuesday, Spinks' attorney said in New York that Las Vegas and Detroit were being considered as possible sites.

DiMaggio said that although the Superdome will seat close to 100,000 for an event like a prize fight, seating for the rematch will be restricted to about 85,000. "We want to make sure that everybody has a good seat," he said.

The Tyler Rose will be a Ram?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas has taken a Los Angeles Rams physical examination, and it's a strong possibility the running back will wind up with the Rams in the National Football League draft, Campbell's agent Mike Trope said Wednesday.

Tampa Bay has the first draft pick, but might deal that selection to the Rams for some quality players and multiple draft picks, Trope told the Los Angeles Times.

That's because Campbell wants to play with the Rams, Houston Oilers or Dallas Cowboys, Trope indicated.

Campbell, a 220-pounder who gained 4,443 yards in college, talked with Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom two weeks ago when he took the team physical, Trope added.

"It's a masterpiece of conjecture," was the brief comment by Rams' General Manager Don Klosterman, relayed through a team spokesman.

"It's baseless," Tampa Bay player personnel director Phil Krueger told the Times. "Sure we've been contacted by about a half-dozen clubs about our first pick. But we aren't close to a deal with any of them."

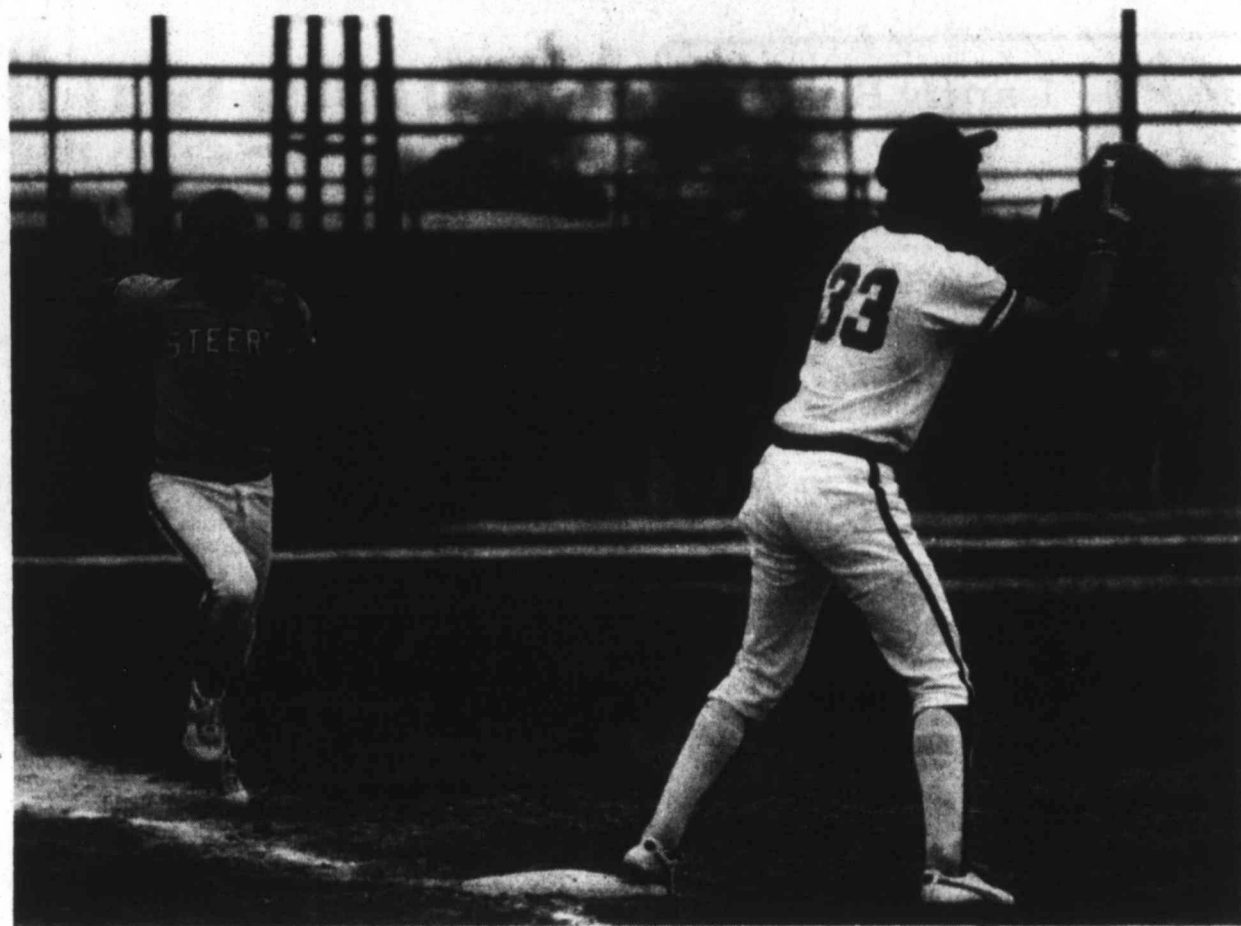

Trope, who is from Los Angeles, said that the Rams have offered Tampa Bay tight end Charlie Young, reserve guards Greg Horton and Dennis Hickman, the Rams' draft pick late in the first round and two second round picks in the 1978 draft. Dallas negotiated a similar deal with the Seattle Seahawks a year ago. Then Dallas used the Seahawks' second choice in the draft to get Tony Dorsett, the previous year's Heisman winner.

U.S. blasts Cuba in World Invitational

ATLANTA (AP) — Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall wore a smile for a change but still admitted to that same old feeling — pressure.

The coach of the NCAA basketball champion Wildcats was in high spirits Wednesday night after his Kentucky-dominated U.S. national team overpowered outmanned Cuba 109-64 in the nightcap of the first annual World Invitational Tournament.

In the opener of the three-day round robin tournament, Yugoslavia continued its domination of the Soviet Union, defeating the Russians 97-79 before an Omni crowd of 6,612.

Hall, who admitted to the pressure of winning the national collegiate title this year and rarely smiled en route to that triumph, was beaming continually Wednesday night.

He was afforded the luxury since his squad completely dominated the smaller Cubans from the outset. Kentucky's Jack Givens led seven scorers in double figures with 17 points.

"It's a different kind of pressure," said Hall. "We feel it as representatives of the United States. We haven't had adequate time to prepare for the games but we made up for it with hustle and spirit."

He should have added talent. The Americans were awesome, racing to a 16-3 lead in less than five minutes and had the game sewed up at halftime as they led 56-21. All 12 players, including five from Kentucky, saw action and all scored except Jay Shidder of Kentucky.

Sidney Moncrief of Arkansas added 15 points while Kentucky's Rick Robey and Kyle Macy, Darrell Griffith of Louisville and David Greenwood of UCLA had 12 apiece. James Bailey of Rutgers had 11. Alejandro Urgelles led Cuba with 16 points.

"We recognize, however, that Yugoslavia and Russia will be on a different plateau," said Hall as the series moves to Chapel Hill, N.C., Friday night and Lexington, Ky., on Sunday.

In the opener, which was televised live by satellite to Yugoslavia and Russia, the Yugoslavians went in front to stay on a 12-0 lead midway in the opening half. Drazen Dalipagic scored 28 points, Dragan Kicanovic 26 and Kresimir Kosic 20 for Yugoslavia. Vladimir Zhigili led Russia with 18 and Anatoly Mishkin added 16 for the losers.

Martina still waits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative Republicans are taking positions on opposite sides of the net in the match to decide whether top tennis star Martina Navratilova becomes a U.S. citizen ahead of schedule.

Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, is sponsoring a bill that would waive the customary five-year wait for citizenship in Navratilova's case. She defected from Czechoslovakia in 1975.

Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., one of three Republicans that screen private relief bills, blocked discussion of Collins' bill Tuesday, which could hurt his chances to pass this session.

At stake is Navratilova's participation on the U.S. team in certain international matches. The U.S. Tennis Association would like to see her on the U.S. team this year in the Wightman and Federation Cup matches.

Collins calls his fellow conservative "bullheaded" for opposing the bill.

He said, "There were, three conservative Republicans on one side (himself and Reps. Hamilton Fish and Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.) supporting the bill and three conservative Republicans (the screening trio) on the other side working to kill it."

Besides Rousselot, Reps. Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, and Robert Bauman, R-Md., look at all private relief bills proposed by Republicans. The House Immigration subcommittee and the House Judiciary Committee have already approved it, and the matter is scheduled to reach the House again April 18.

"Listen, nobody in this Congress is more conservative or any more anti-Communist than I am," Collins said. He said a refugee from a Communist nation should be aided.

Rousselot has said, "I think Communism is a serious issue." However, he said he is not basing his stand on anti-Communism, but on whether an exception should be made when granting citizenship.

My friend Monroe

with Marj Carpenter

Monroe may be the unofficial mayor of Luther. At least he knows enough people out there to win an election.

He often looks like a movie star—sort of Iggy and in disguise. He usually wears his sunglasses. More often than not he wears a cap.

After all, he lives in a farming community and also is around oilfield workers. And almost all those guys wear caps.

He saw Lassie in a television program one time and thought folks might think he was the movie star. So he started going around in disguise.

His real home is in his pickup. All of us kickers ride around in pickups. And he definitely is a kicker when it comes to his pickup.

When he is left in the pickup to guard it, you better not try to get into it.

He's not too fond of people that try to take off his car or sunglasses either.

Unless it's his owner. Now if R.W. Harrison wants to take off his glasses and cap, that's all right. But the rest of you had better beware.

After all, Monroe maintains that a dog has as much right to wear glasses to protect themselves from West Texas glare as any man.

In fact, Monroe claims, "A dog's best friend is his man." Monroe started wearing the sunglasses during the dog days of summer. I beg your pardon, Monroe. I meant the man days of summer.

There's gold in that trash

WASHINGTON (AP)—A trash plant operated by the Bureau of Mines in suburban Maryland consumes five tons of garbage a week and transforms it into reusable aluminum, glass, steel and tin, reports National Geographic.

The bureau's plant, constructed from off-the-shelf mineral processing equipment, was made to show city governments and private industry that trash can be an untapped resource that can be recycled economically.

In most cities, it costs an average of $6 a ton to dispose of a ton of trash, but certain cities have tighter pollution controls and fewer landfill area, resulting in disposal costs of up to $20 a ton.

If the Bureau of Mines prototype were duplicated by the commercial sector, it could process 1,000 tons of trash a day, says Geographic. It would cost about $8 a ton to operate at that rate, but the sale of its recycled products would bring $12.60 a ton, officials say.

Are you too rich to qualify for aid?

College financing quiz

NEW YORK (AP)—You have got an income of $25,000 and two kids to put through college. You are too rich to qualify for financial aid. Right?

Wrong. A new study of the 1977-78 academic year shows that families earning $25,000 to $30,000 were eligible for an average of $835 to help meet expenses at a college with annual costs of $5,000. As college costs went up, so did the amount of aid the families were eligible for.

"Many families wrongly assume they can't afford certain colleges because they think only of rising costs and don't understand that financial aid can offset those costs," said Elizabeth Suchar, director of financial aid services for the College Scholarship Service of the College Board.

Whether you qualify for aid usually depends on financial need—the difference between what a college costs and what you can afford to pay. You may have a financial need at a prestige college where costs are high, while you would be ruled out for help at a less expensive school.

"Students, including many from middle-income families... should apply for funds to help them attend colleges which they may not be able to afford on their own," Mrs. Suchar said. She made her comments in connection with the release on Tuesday of a College Board report that showed the cost of attending college will increase an average of 6 percent from this year to next. The average cost for a resident student at a four-year, private college for the 1978-79 academic year will be more than $5,000; costs at some of the more expensive private colleges will top $8,000.

Municipal women's toilet saved

JACKSON, Minn. (AP)—One of the major attractions in this small southwestern Minnesota town—the municipal women's toilet and lounge—has been saved.

An informal survey that showed about 300 women had used the restroom during the past six weeks persuaded the six-member city council to keep the facility open. The vote Tuesday night was unanimous.

"They want it open, so it's open," Mayor Arvin Schultz said of the little cubbyhole next to the movie theater on Jackson's main street.

City fathers had voted in January to close the toilet and lounge area, hoping to save about $4,500 a year in operating costs for the town of 3,550 residents.

But the people did not like it. The mayor got phone calls, the local newspaper editor got letters and 344 people—men and women—signed a petition to keep the restroom open.

Older women said they meet in the lounge area of the restroom every day to knit and crochet. Some said they like to stop there for a rest while they are downtown. And some women said it was a good place to wait while they have their cars serviced.

A woman from Sioux City, Iowa, who visits Jackson frequently wrote that the restroom is "one of the nicest things the town has to offer."

When the furor grew, the council decided to have women who visited the restroom sign a guest list to determine whether there was enough business to justify keeping the facility open.

Faced with results of the survey, council members agreed they had made a mistake. But they only went so far.

Schultz said the council did not plan to take up a second petition that was circulated demanding a similar facility for men.

"That was done largely in jest," Schultz said, "and we don't plan to do anything about it unless someone brings it up again."

Honk hassle heating up

KENT, Wash. (AP)—The picket sign might have read more aptly, "Honk If You're Looking For Trouble."

Rosie Wiemes' wasn't, of course, the day she was arrested for illegally honking her horn.

She was driving by a struck auto dealership in Kent when a picket sign saying "Honk If You Hate Scabs" caught her eye. Not being particularly sympathetic to one side or the other, Mrs. Wiemes' decided to honk anyway.

That's when the Kent police officer pulled her over for violating state law, R.C.W. 46.37.380, which limits "tooting" to reasonable warning honks.

Thinking she may have been the target of an anti-union policeman, Mrs. Wiemes and her lawyer, Alva Long, went to court.

The state law against honking, the judge said, was not valid in Kent. An assistant city attorney meekly told the court the city had forgotten to adopt it.

"They adopted the drunk-driving law, the reckless-driving law, but they forgot to adopt the state Don't-Honk-If-You-Hate-Scabs law," said Long. "It's not only a foolish law to begin with, but she didn't break it. She couldn't. Because there isn't one."

Long hardly had time to absorb the case of Mrs. Wiemes' because he was busy with another one.

It was the case of Everett Allen, 74, of Seattle, who was arrested March 26 by a King County policeman—for a horn violation.

Allen wasn't in his car at the time of the arrest. He was on the sidewalk outside an auto dealership, carrying a picket.

It said, you guess it, "Honk If You Hate Scabs."

There, of course, was no horn on his picket. So he wasn't honking it.

The policeman nabbed him for the next closest thing: Making someone else honk the horn illegally. The actual charge is "aiding and abetting" the illegal honking of a horn.

Comment from capital

Ludicrous arrangement

By JIM DAVIS

AUSTIN — The president of Common Cause thinks it isn't enough for U.S. Sen. John Tower to separate himself temporarily from the Senate Ethics Committee. He wants a divorce.

David Cohen of Washington, D.C., says it is ludicrous for the Texas Republican to serve on the committee enforcing the new Senate Code of Conduct. He bases the belief on Tower's opposition to the code when the Senate considered it.

"He has neither the interest nor the commitment to make this important ethics code work," Cohen told a journalism seminar at the University of Texas.

Tower was withdrawn from the committee while it investigates possible South Korean influence-buying in Congress.

He said he took the action because of social connections with some Koreans in Washington. There has been no indication that Tower is directly involved in the scandal.

Cohen said the "Korea-Gate" investigation has nothing to do with his call for Tower's resignation. He said he just doesn't believe Tower should be on the committee.

Cohen was non-partisan in his criticism or Texas representatives in Washington.

With a hint of disbelief in his voice, he told of the negative vote of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels on the public campaign financing bill.

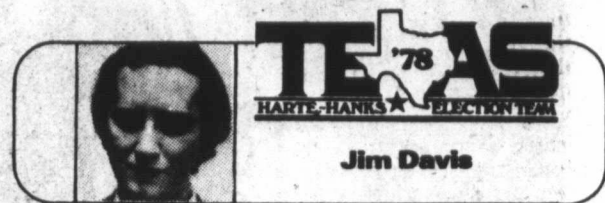

The vote was on whether to debate the issue, and 14 Texas congressmen said they didn't want to.

Majority Leader Jim Wright (D-Fort Worth) was one of six Texans supporting the proposal and made a strong plea for support.

"Krueger was the first guy to jump up and shake his hand, and with his right hand he shook Wright's hand and with his left hand he put in the red card and voted no," Cohen said.

He said this is a natural thing when a candidate is faced with seeking campaign funds from special interest groups.

Krueger is seeking the Democratic nomination to run against Tower in November.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals has taken note of the May 6 Primary and reset arguments on Attorney General John Hill's fight with the old Texas Water Quality Board.

Hill is opposing a loosening of regulations protecting the Edwards Aquifer, San Antonio's underground water supply.

The TWQB approved the changes before it was consolidated into the Department of Water Resources last year, and Hill filed suit.

The attorney general lost in district court and appealed the case. Oral arguments had been set for May 3, but Hill asked for a delay because of his race for governor.

The appeals court justices, who have to run for reelection themselves, were understanding and approved the delay.

Several hundred persons, including two former governors, turned out last week for a luncheon honoring Jess M. Irwin Jr., a state employee for 41 years.

Irwin is retiring as commissioner of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission, but only to become executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association.

Apparently, Irwin will have lots of friends in the employees association.

Speakers at the luncheon said he found state jobs for many people while he was an aide to former Govs. Allan Shivers and Price Daniel Sr.

"I don't think anyone has found more jobs for people," Daniel said.

Shivers said Irwin was "the only thing Daniel and I ever agreed on."

The Texas Aeronautics Commission staff has heard that an application for a new intrastate airline is on the way, but nothing had arrived early this week.

To be called San Country Airlines, Inc., the new firm wants to fly between San Angelo, Houston and Midland-Odessa.

Its brainchild of Dr. B. C. Hall II, a San Angelo chiropractor who is faced with mostly trips to Houston for a five-year orthopedics certification program.

Big drug bust in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Law enforcement officials fanned out across Bexar County Wednesday night in search of 108 alleged drug dealers indicted by a grand jury.

At least 50 had been apprehended by midnight, including six already in the Bexar County jail, authorities said.

The coordinator of the multiagency dragnet, Lt. John Smith of the San Antonio Police Department's narcotics bureau, called the operation a success.

"No one resisted, and there was no violence," he said.

The indictments alleged a variety of drug offenses, including the sale of heroin.

Carriers, to the head of the Class!

Big Spring Herald

IT'S SMART to be a newspaper carrier!

We always knew it. A new study of our schools now tells you why.

It's not that youngsters aren't learning today. It's just that they don't know how to use in everyday life what they learn in the classroom.

That is the conclusion of the National Assessment of Educational Progress after a massive study of schools. It is the problem every parent must take seriously. But less so the parent of a young newspaper carrier.

A carrier applies the knowledge and skills he or she gains in the classroom every day on the route.

One example, arithmetic. The youngster who makes change and keeps records and does the bookkeeping for the thriving business which a newspaper route can be, knows how to use arithmetic.

And a carrier makes practical use of other classroom studies. Writing orders, communicating with customers, reading instructions from the office. Which may be the basis for the conclusion of another survey we have seen: Successful carriers do better at school.

Learn Business Methods

Your carrier has another advantage. This young person gets guidance from specialist people in this newspaper's circulation department and the benefit of their knowledge and help. In short, a course in business practice. Which can be useful all through life, whatever field the young person enters.

Almost nowhere else we know of, except in managing a newspaper route, is such an opportunity for training with profit (which can be saved for college tuition) available to a youngster today. It makes today's carrier brighter. And sharper. A special to a youngster, whom we salute on International Newspaper Carrier Day, this Saturday.

Planning boosts garage sale profits

If the weather's nice, there'll probably be two of them in your neighborhood this weekend. And whether they're called garage sales, yard sales, porch sales, tag sales or house sales, they could mean a tidy bit of cash for the sponsoring families and a source of great bargains for budget-conscious shoppers.

The backyard boom known as the garage sale is a phenomenon of the 1970's. Some sociologists claim that garage sales fulfill a profound human need to socialize that's been thwarted by American society's ideal of the tight nuclear family withdrawn behind its crabgrass and carefully draped picture windows.

Most observers agree, however, that what really kicked off the outbreak of weekend free enterprise was the late unlamented recession and the wave of inflation that accompanied it.

People began to see sorely needed cash in the assorted castoffs that used to go to the Salvation Army or church rummage sales.

Until recently, garage sales were pretty much limited to small towns and suburbia, but now city dwellers have adapted the backyard bazaar to city living. The result: "garage" sales in apartment house lobbies.

But whether your "store" is in your garage or a space near the elevators, the mix is the same: no longer needed items and the urge to turn them into cash.

The trick of turning junk into greenbacks has a few twists to it. Running a garage sale is, after all, a little like going into business for yourself, so a certain amount of planning is required. The better planned the garage sale is, the more profitable it will be.

One of the most informative "how-to" guides to a successful garage sale is the free booklet titled "A Garage Full of Fun and Profit" published by Johnson Wax.

It covers in detail such questions as when is the best time to hold your sale, what records should you keep, how should you advertise and should merchandise be displayed as is or spruced

(AP WIREPHOTO)

WEEKEND FREE ENTERPRISE — As long as prices continue to go up, so will garage sale signs, according to Pat Portco, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax. She says notices on public bulletin boards in supermarkets, drug stores and laundromats, plus advertisements in local newspapers and shoppers, in addition to display and directional signs around the neighborhood will help spread the message of your garage sale. More tips on how to have a successful garage sale are available in a free booklet from Johnson Wax.

The first step in planning a garage sale, according to Johnson Wax, is to make sure you don't violate any local laws. Some communities have ordinances restricting garage sales and similar events. A call to the authorities will determine whether your community forbids such sales or if a permit, generally ranging from $1 to $5, is required.

An investigation by U.S. News and World Report revealed that the Internal Revenue Service does not consider profit from an occasional garage sale as taxable income. Most states hold a similar view on sales tax, the magazine reported, but their views change if you make the garage sale a regular business.

After making sure that you comply with local and tax laws, the next step is to set a date and place for the sale, allowing yourself enough time to plan and prepare for it. Check for conflicts such as long holiday weekends or local events that may cut attendance.

Weekends are usually the best time to attract men, the best buyers of tools, machinery and appliances, and women who work outside of the home. Notify your neighbors in advance so they won't be surprised with a lot of street parkers. They may even want to join you in your venture, making the garage sale a "neighborhood sale."

Go through your house from attic to basement to garage in search of garage sale items. The most popular items are used furniture, tools, sporting goods, garden equipment, books, toys, dolls, kitchen utensils, electric appliances and children's clothing. Adult clothing items are often poor sellers because of changing styles and personal tastes.

Among the current best-sellers are collectors' items such as old jewelry, bottles and glassware.

Should Uncle Henry's newly fashionable brass-and-leather 1920's smoking stand be restored to its jazz-age splendor, or should it just stand there, honorably displaying the marks of its 15-year exile in your attic?

According to Ms. Portco, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax, "The real question is in what condition will the item fetch a better price. In general, spotless merchandise in good repair is more valuable, but, where furniture and collectibles are concerned, it's the challenge of restoring or refinishing the object that often brings a gleam to a buyer's eye."

If you are the buyer, keep in mind that a little surface shabbiness may conceal real value that a little touching up will bring out.

Asparagus is April treat

Fresh asparagus is as much a part of spring as green grass and warmer temperatures. Harvested just once a year, asparagus is available for market only in the spring. Fresh asparagus appears on the market in February and gradually disappears in late June. The peak of the harvesting season is in April.

Asparagus is a nutritional treat which is low in calories. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reports that one cup of asparagus contains only 35 calories and offers 2-3rds of the daily recommended allowance (DRA) of vitamin C, 1-3rd of the DRA of vitamin A, and 1-10th DRA of iron.

USDA reminds you that fresh asparagus deteriorates rapidly. Therefore, when buying, watch for smooth, round and fresh-looking spears that have closed, compact tips. Most of the stalks should be green and tender. Avoid stalks which have open tips and show signs of decay.

Once you have your asparagus home, the secret to keeping it fresh is temperature. Store your asparagus at temperatures below 40 degrees and wrap the bases of the stalks with a damp cloth. This will keep the vegetable crisp and fresh until it is ready for use.

When fresh asparagus is not available, canned and frozen supplies of the vegetable can satisfy your craving for this mouth-watering delicacy throughout the year.

Preparing asparagus is easy. Just wash the spears and place them in boiling water. Cover and cook for 10 minutes. It's that simple.

Advertising, pricing, arranging items and staffing your sale are all aspects of a garage sale where success and profit depend on planning.

According to Johnson Wax, a good rule of thumb is to price items below reason — at a level where you'd be interested if you were the buyer instead of the seller. Secondhand equipment is reasonably priced at between 25 and 50 per cent of the price of its new equivalent.

Be ready to "mark down" items quickly if they aren't moving and the sale is coming to an end. If the sale runs more than one day, this should be done at the end of the first day and again as necessary until the item is sold.

Veteran garage sales watchers say that people are attracted to small, inexpensive items and will often spend more money to purchase several small things than one expensive item. Having a selection of items priced $1 or under will pay-off.

If all sales are final, you should display a large sign saying so. In addition, make several attention-getting directional signs to tack up early the day of your sale around the neighborhood if the law permits. Be sure to take them all down when the sale ends.

For more suggestions and tips on how to have a successful garage sale, send your name and address to Pat Portco, Johnson Wax, 4615 Southwest Freeway, Suite 135, Houston, Tx., 77027, for your free booklet.

Money Doesn't Grow In Fridge

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a refrigerator is a good place to keep money stored? My husband keeps all our savings in our refrigerator, and when I think of all the interest we're missing out on, it's very upsetting to me. Don't tell me to try to convince him to open a savings account, because he'll only say he wants his money where he can get it in a hurry.

Any suggestions you have will be greatly appreciated. WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: A refrigerator is a poor place to store one's savings—whether it's hot money or cold cash. Aside from the interest you're losing, you risk being robbed. Tell that lunkhead you're married to to do himself a favor and put at least part of it into a savings account!

DEAR ABBY: When I got home from work last evening, my wife said to me, "Rory (our 15-year-old son) sassed me back so I am giving him the cold, silent treatment, and I want you to do the same."

Abby, I told her that I was not going to go along with that kind of stuff—that if the boy sassed her back, it was HER problem. He never sasses ME BACK.

The wife got mad and now she's giving ME the silent treatment, too. Was I wrong, or was she?

ATLANTA QUERY

DEAR ATLANTA: She was wrong for demanding that you punish the boy per her prescription. And you were wrong, too, for letting her down. Although Rory wasn't guilty of sassing YOU, his rudeness to his mother calls for some kind of punishment. And since his mother appears unable to discipline the boy, it becomes YOUR responsibility.

A few well-chosen "hot" words from you could have accomplished more than the cold, silent treatment. Unless you want a father-son team versus mother, try to develop better communication with your wife.

DEAR ABBY: I have just observed a group of "unselfish" church women preparing for a church rummage sale, the proceeds of which will go to charity. Almost every good item donated by someone from this group was snapped up by another member of the group. Of course, they pay for these items, but a typical conversation was, "Say, who marked this lamp five dollars? The shade is soiled!"

Then someone would reply, "I did. I paid $65 for it new—but mark it whatever you want and take it."

Then the other woman would mark it a dollar and promptly cart it off to her car. Understand, Abby, these volunteers are not charity cases themselves. They are well-to-do society women. Do you think it is fair of them to skim the cream off the top that way? Hundreds of dollars could have been added to the proceeds if it weren't for this kind of thing. I welcome your remarks and you may sign me...

APPALLED IN OMAHA

DEAR APPALLED: The volunteers should have been told that such shenanigans are tantamount to taking money out of the cash register. Why didn't you speak up? Silence implies approval.

Miss Medlin and Anderson will be married June 17 in Portland.

Tote a soup and sandwich picnic

When spring fever hits you, look to your bike or go on a hike. It will do more to dispel cabin fever than the sulphur-molasses treatments of yore.

After energetic biking or hiking, and to eliminate getting home for lunch, imagine sitting against a big shady tree and munching contentedly on a tasty lunch carried in your tote bag. There's hearty tomato-bean soup in a thermos, a Muenster-Salami sandwich of hero-like proportions and taste and some chocolate chip raisin bars.

Soup's on easily enough if you open two cans of condensed soup, mix them with milk and heat. For the sandwiches, be prepared with good tasting sandwich fixings such as Muenster cheese that goes well with spicy salami, a flavorful rye bread and butter deftly seasoned with mustard and onions.

Everyone's favorite ingredients are in the cookie bars which travel easily. Raisins, chocolate pieces and nuts are stirred into a butter-based dough for this bar-type cookie. Although milk goes into the soup, it's nice to have milk to drink with the bars for dessert. On your jaunt it may be possible to pick up the milk at a store.

TOMATO-BEAN SOUP

(Yield: 5 cups)
1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed tomato soup

1 can (11 1/2 ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
2 1/2 cups milk

Combine soups and milk in medium-sized saucepan. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally.

MUENSTER-SALAMI SANDWICHES

(6 hearty sandwiches)
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter

1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard

1/4 cup chopped green onions with tops

12 slices rye bread

1/4 cup chopped parsley

12 slices salami

6 slices (1 ounce each) Muenster cheese

Cream butter with mustard; stir in onion.

Spread on one side of bread; sprinkle with parsley. On 6 slices buttered bread add slice of salami, slice of cheese, slice of salami; top with remaining slices of bread.

CHOCOLATE CHIP RAISIN BARS

(Yield: 16 bars)
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter

1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1 egg

2 tablespoons milk

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup all-purpose flour

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon soda

1/2 cup raisins

1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces

1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Cream butter;

gradually add sugar and beat until fluffy. Beat in egg, milk and vanilla. Combine flour, baking powder, salt and soda; gradually add to creamed mixture. Stir in raisins, chocolate pieces and nuts. Spread in buttered 8-inch square baking pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes. Cool on wire rack. Cut into squares.

Nurses combat sleep problems of children

Difficulty in sleeping is an almost universal problem among pre-school children in the two to five-year age group. It may be bedtime fears, a reluctance to sleep alone, an inability to fall asleep, the need for a complex bedtime ritual, nightmares, continued walking or even night terrors.

Parents often overreact, a combination of being tired at the end of the day and the tendency of children to act less mature at bedtime. The sleep problems of one child can create distress for the entire family when they lose their own sleep says the Better Sleep Council.

Even though these sleep problems generally stem from normal situations, most parents do have difficulty in managing them. Nurses at the University of Washington's Child Development and Mental Retardation Center have developed an approach for parents.

This approach, combining principles of behavior modification and environmental change, is designed strictly for children who show no sign of any emotional disturbances.

Susan Inglis, a clinical nurse specialist at the center, says that a child's undesirable behavior continues because it is reinforced. For example, demands and crying at bedtime usually will bring increased attention from the parents. Waking up during the night results in parental soothing.

In order to change a child's negative bedtime behavior, parents must refrain from reinforcing it. At the same time, appropriate sleep behavior should be encouraged through genuine praise or even a material reward.

Nurses at the center rely on three important strategies:

• Parents are heavily involved in planning the solution to their child's problem, and are thoroughly counseled as to the difficulty of the task and the understanding required.

• The importance of record-keeping is stressed, so parents can clearly see when their child's negative behaviors decrease and the positive behaviors increase.

• Encouragement for parents, including telephone calls every morning during the first week, is reassuring and helps to reinforce the parent's behavior.

A typical case handled by the center involved three-year-old Rhonda, who had not slept an entire night in her own bed for six months. The problem had begun when she had experienced a nightmare and awakened screaming. Her mother had carried Rhonda into bed with her for the rest of the night.

Every night thereafter she had screamed and cried when put in bed. Her parents were afraid that letting her scream too long would cause emotional disturbances, so they always allowed her to sleep with them in their double bed.

The parents were first assured that Rhonda's psyche would not be scarred from prolonged crying and her parents' behavior actually would be more detrimental.

Together they devised the following program:

1. Rhonda would be told a story and receive attention from her parents at bedtime.
2. She would be told good night at her regular time and also be told that she was to sleep in her own bed.
3. The door would be left open so she could hear sounds of people.
4. In the morning she would be praised for sleeping in her bed, if she had.
5. If Rhonda awakened screaming, her mother would go in and reassure her and even sit quietly in the room until she went to sleep. However, Rhonda was not to be removed from her crib.

The first night Rhonda cried for one hour and then went to sleep. Her mother was distressed and went to a neighbor's house until it was over. On the second night Rhonda cried for 45 minutes and by the end of the week, it was down to 15 minutes.

After two weeks, she began to go to sleep immediately. Her parents were elated and considered the problem solved.

Padre Island Sand Dollars

- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
- 1/2 cup Imperial 10X Powdered Sugar
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Imperial Granulated Sugar

Beat butter or margarine and Imperial 10X Powdered Sugar until creamy and fluffy. Gradually mix in flour. Stir in vanilla and salt and mix well. Using level tablespoonsful of dough, shape into balls, press one side of each ball into Imperial Granulated Sugar and place sugar sides up on ungreased cookie sheet. Cookies can be rather close together because they do not spread when cooking. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven about 10 minutes or until done but not browned. Remove from cookie sheets and cool completely on wire racks. Makes 3-1/2 dozen cookies.

Stiffer penalties for dope traffickers urged

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A meeting of some 200 state and federal law enforcement officials opened here with calls for stiffer penalties for narcotics traffickers and better organization to hunt them down.

Officials from the federal government, Mexico and the border states of New Mexico, California, Arizona and Texas are attending the third Southwestern States Conference on Crime and the Border, a three-day meeting that began Wednesday.

Federal Drug Enforcement Administration Director Peter Bensinger and Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt were the primary speakers Wednesday.

Bensinger said stiffer prison sentences and tougher bail provisions are needed to win the war against narcotics trafficking.

"We need to have availability of prosecution and surety of punishment," Bensinger told the conferees.

Bensinger expressed pleasure at recent severe sentencing of convicted drug traffickers, singling out one defendant who was sentenced for life imprisonment and fined $125,000.

"That is the kind of message the heads of narcotics organizations need to get," he said.

The DEA head praised work by Mexican officials for what he said was a 50 percent reduction in the death rate attributed to heroin overdose in the past year.

"The price of heroin is up, and the availability has gone

Lee Porter is hospitalized

Porter had been hospitalized last week for a pinched nerve and had been in traction in the hospital. Porter, a former county judge, is active in several of the current election campaigns.

Snake prank 'dumb stunt'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A mailman who was bitten by a rattlesnake coiled in a U.S. mailbox in Apache Junction says the apparent April's Fool day prank was no joke.

"It's a dumb stunt for anyone to pull," Robert Little of Globe said Wednesday. Little was bitten on the hand Saturday and spent two days in a Phoenix hospital for observation.

"He was in there when I reached in to get the mail," Little said. "He bit me and I jerked my hand back and he was still hung up by one fang."

Little said he "stomped" the snake to death, placed it in his mail truck and drove to Phoenix, where postal officials took him to the hospital.

There was no way the snake could have gotten into the mail box by itself, Little said, because the mailbox is the "letter drop" kind.

Milstead has heart attack

He is in intensive care at Malone-Hogan Hospital. Members of the family said that police in the courtroom rushed him to the hospital immediately following the attack.

Unable to cough up stolen gem

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — A Portsmouth man who has been unable to cough up or otherwise produce a stolen diamond ring he swallowed last week has been charged with grand larceny.

A detective who had assumed that a "bedpan watch" would produce the ring in a few days grew weary of waiting for the evidence and served the warrant Wednesday on David Abbott, 24.

The ring was taken from a Churchland area apartment early last week.

Detective Jim Widdifield said that when he approached Abbott to question him last Wednesday, Abbott swallowed the $1,500 ring.

down," he said.

He said the Mexican eradication programs had significantly cut the purity of the heroin available in the United States. "The heroin is less pure, less profitable and there is greater risk to the seller," Bensinger said.

Bensinger said there has been an avalanche of drugs and money pouring into this country and said part of the problem was the unwillingness of Americans to face the issue.

He said the tougher sentences and other efforts are indications this trend is turning around.

Babbitt told the conference Wednesday night the United States needs a federal border management agency to help coordinate the fight to stop the flow of narcotics into the country.

He said the current system with its duplication of effort and resources is no longer acceptable.

"We can no longer have customs patrols stumbling into border patrols," Babbitt said. "We must integrate the federal agencies and give the states a defined role."

Babbitt said law enforcement agencies have gone as far as they can in the war on narcotics trafficking with the current legal framework.

"I think we've gone as far as we can with an ad hoc, innovative, bootstrapping approach," he said.

Babbitt said the individual states must take on more responsibility. He said statewide intelligence investigation and prosecution capability is essential.

He said America traditionally had been a system of local law enforcement, a concept he said first changed in the 1920s.

"In the 1920s, law enforcement went straight from the county courthouse to Washington. Local police and prosecution were the first stage, with the next level 2,000 miles away," he said.

Babbitt said it has become clear that an intermediate level is needed to combat drug trafficking.

In-bond industries on border ire labor union bosses

g.

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — An international program is putting frijoles onto Mexican tables and cash into the tills of American firms. It's also putting a bitter taste into the mouths of labor union bosses.
It's called in-bond industry and it allows non-Mexican companies to assemble their products in Mexico, using cheaper Mexican labor, and then return the finished product to its home country. The sale of the finished product in Mexico is prohibited.

William L. Mitchell, director of marketing for the Antonio J. Bermudez

Industrial Park located here, says American labor unions are blind if they think the in-bond program is taking away jobs that might be done in the United States.
"Just one facility in our park is operated by RCA. It makes XL100 picture tubes. We have factual information that shows there are 28,000 persons in the United States working for companies that are supplying parts that are used in making these tubes," he said.

"Because RCA can assemble the tubes in Mexico, using cheaper labor, the company is able to compete worldwide with the Japanese electronics firms who can market their products at lower prices," he added.

Mitchell said the program is benefiting American labor as much as it is American business. "If labor ever is successful in killing the program I'm certain they'll regret it."
"It will mean that these same companies will be moving their operations to Taiwan or Singapore rather than having only one assembly plant in Mexico," he said.

The program has created industrial complexes that employ more than 60,000 Mexicans, mostly women between the ages of 18 and 21, in more than 400 plants located in border cities from the Gulf of Mexico to Mexico's west coast.

A total of 28,000 persons work in two industrial parks here, and that figure is expected to more than double within the next five years.
Both Mexican government and industry officials in the in-bond program has had a social effect on the country, especially in cities such as Juarez where unemployment is near 38 percent.

"We would like to have more industry here that uses more men, but the industries currently located here need persons who can do tedious, intricate work."
"Many men have been hired for various positions, but most of them find they don't have the nerves to keep up with the pace," said Mitchell.

The 90 percent female employment rate at the parks in Juarez may change soon, though, because General Motors is building a massive installation at the Bermudez park that will hire primarily men.

Jaime Bermudez, owner of the El Paso facility, said more heavy industry may come to the city if Mexico constructs a natural gas pipeline from southern Mexico through Juarez to the United States.

"Then we will have the fuel to handle heavy industry here. It will give us a chance to employ hundreds of men who now live here without work."

Another social aspect is the fact that in many homes the father is out of work while his daughters are supporting the family by working in one of the industrial parks.

"One thing the industry has done is keep young women single for a longer period of time, thus keeping the birth rate down," said Mitchell.

"Married Mexican women still generally follow the custom of staying at home and minding the house, although that custom is slowly changing."

"Many of these young women working here will work until the day they get married, but they probably will postpone their wedding until they can have a nice 'nest egg' to start off their married life," he said.

Ciudad Juarez Mayor Manuel Quevedo Reyes isn't that worried about the social problems the industries have caused.

"We will wrestle that problem when we have to, but what we have to combat now is unemployment. We would have a much worse social problem if the 28,000 persons working at the parks now suddenly were without jobs," he said.

Mitchell said there are several reasons American companies want to open in-bond plants in Mexico other than because the labor is cheaper. He says it has proven to be more efficient and reliable.

"When a person is fortunate enough to get a job down here, they want to keep it ... they sure don't want to be fired."

"Because of this, the turnover rate here is 1.5 to 2 percent and the absentee rate is 5 to 3 percent. More importantly, the production rate at many of our industries is more than 200 percent," he said.

Mitchell, a retired U.S. Army colonel, said he had become impressed with the output of the Mexican worker. "These people have the same work ethic that my father and grandfather had. I don't know when this ethic deteriorated in the United States, but I know it isn't the same as it was when I was a boy."

Alcoholism seminar set

The Big Spring State Hospital will conduct the 32nd alcoholism seminar on Friday, April 14 in the auditorium at the Big Spring State Hospital.

These monthly seminars are made possible through the Big Spring State Hospital and are held in conjunction with the Big Spring Veterans' Administration Hospital and Howard College. The theme for this seminar will be "Working With Drug Abuse". The consultant for this day long seminar will be Robert G. Meehan, Executive Director, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Houston.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m., with the general session starting at 9 a.m. and adjournment at 4 p.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive Continuing Education Units from Howard College. The persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.

Additional information may be secured from Clyde J. Alsop, training officer, alcoholism and drug abuse program, Big Spring State Hospital.

VANESSA BACK HOME — British actress Vanessa Redgrave who created a storm of controversy at the Academy Awards presentations in Hollywood Monday night with a fiery political speech, arrives at London's Heathrow Airport Wednesday. Redgrave won an Oscar for best supporting actress in the movie 'Julia' and in an acceptance speech of the award, she attacked a group of "Zionist hoodlums" protesting her involvement in a film about the Palestinian cause.

Recycle leftovers into side dishes

Few flattering words are said in defense of leftovers. But they can be the base for additional main dishes or recycled to make inexpensive side dishes. Thinking ahead is the key to making the leftovers into vital and appealing future meals.

For instance leftover meatloaf, in future meals can be: sliced for cold sandwich filling; crumbled and mixed with barbecue sauce for a hot open-face sandwich, and combined with cream of celery or mushroom soup for a sauce on vegetables.

Fruits and vegetables make great second appearances. Half a banana or a few pineapple rings can be blended in a milkshake; a sauce for ice cream; or combined with yogurt and cottage cheese. Remaining vegetables can be the primary ingredient in stews and chilis.

Bread and dinner rolls can be revitalized by sprinkling them with water, parmesan cheese and garlic salt and heated in an oven or microwave.

Small amounts of cottage cheese and yogurt make delicious vegetable dips when blended with dry blue cheese dressing mix. Pudding layered with canned pie filling or fruit, emerges as a parfait dessert. A few chocolate chips added to tapioca, banana or vanilla pudding produces a new taste and texture treat.

Free your thinking, use your own creativity and you'll find "leftover" food is as good as the original dish. You may even get requests for seconds!

LEFTOVER LIMAS WITH CHEESE

2½ cups cooked lima beans
½ cup chicken stock or 2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup minced onion
½ lb. grated cheese
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon thyme

Stir chicken stock or melted butter into beans. Add onion and saute for 3 minutes. Stir grated cheese into the stock or butter over low heat until melted. Add salt, pepper and thyme. Bake beans ½ hour at 350 degrees. Serve with tomato sauce. Serves 4.

CHOCOLATE CHIP PARFAIT

1 cup tapioca
1 cup chocolate pudding
¼ cup chocolate chips
Whipped cream
Add chocolate chips to tapioca. Layer tapioca alternately with chocolate pudding in parfait or stemmed glasses. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 4.

TURKEY LOAF

6 servings
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon cornstarch
4 chicken bouillon cubes
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
½ teaspoon pepper
2½ cups diced cooked turkey
2 cups soft bread crumbs
¾ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

3 eggs, slightly beaten
Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Blend cornstarch in ¼ cup milk until smooth; set aside. Dissolve bouillon cubes in 1½ cups milk over low heat. Add butter, salt, thyme and pepper; cool slightly. Meanwhile combine turkey, bread crumbs, celery, onion and parsley in a large bowl. Combine bouillon mixture, cornstarch mixture and eggs; add to turkey mixture. Mix lightly until blended.

Place mixture in 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pan. Place in pan of hot water. Bake in preheated oven 50 to 60 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Remove from water immediately; allow to stand 10 minutes. Invert onto serving platter. Slice and serve with hot Cranberry Sauce.

Pre-schoolers select 'yukky' looking new poison symbol

GALVESTON — A young mother leaves the kitchen where she is cleaning the floor to go answer the telephone in another room. She is gone less than five minutes before she returns to find her two-year-old child lying unconscious on the floor beside an open bottle of cleaning fluid — a victim of accidental poisoning.

Rare! Not at all. Last year in the State of Texas alone over 500 deaths were attributed to poisoning — more than two-thirds of these were children under five years old. Nationally, over 200,000 cases of accidental poisoning were reported, with the actual number of poisonings being estimated much higher.

To help combat this rash of needless tragedy, the Texas State Poison Center in conjunction with the Southeast Texas Poison Center have entered into an affiliation agreement with the National Poison Center Network (NPCN).

The NPCN is a new health service that provides product and treatment information, regarding poisoning, to both medical professionals and the general public through a network of Regional and Satellite Poison Centers located in strategic population areas throughout the United States.

All Regional and Satellite Centers are staffed by poison information specialists, with physician back-up, who answer Poison Center telephones 24 hours a day.

In an attempt to help

Local artists win ribbons

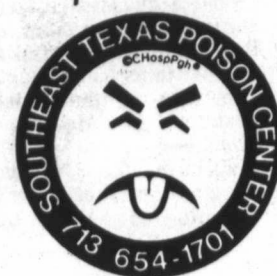

Three Big Spring artists walked away with ribbons and prize money, as well as purchase money, in the Brownfield Art Association show held there Sunday.

Martha K. Conway (Dalmar) won third place money with her pastel portrait, "Chip." She also took two honorable mentions for her paintings, "Trio" and "The Baithouse."

A third place ribbon and prize money went to Roberta Ross for her miniature pastel painting, entitled "Time for Lunch," and an honorable mention for "The Wary Ones." A second honorable mention went to Mrs. Ross for her oil painting, "Half Dugout."

Big Spring watercolorist Al Scott came home with the most money, garnering an honorable mention for his "Shade Tree Mechanic." An entry by Scott entitled "Still Hangin' On" was passed over by show judge Paul Milosovich, but a Brownfield attorney, Bill McGowan, liked Scott's paintings and purchased them both for $225.

There were about 185 entries from all over Texas.

prevent these needless tragedies, the National Center has launched a campaign to curb the incidence of accidental poisonings by promoting the use of a sticker, appropriately named MR. YUK.

The copyrighted sticker, which is designed to be affixed to dangerous products in homes and schools, portrays a green scowling face with a protruding tongue. Each MR. YUK sticker carries the emergency telephone number of the NPCN Poison Center that serves the area.

The National Center adopted this sticker as the national symbol for poisons because of research conducted in early 1971 which indicated that the old skull and crossbones used in the past to identify poisons had little meaning for children of today.

The old symbol had been used in recent years in motion picture cartoons, commercial products, and amusement parks to connote happy, exciting things like pirates and adventure.

In the testing program, children at day care centers were shown six symbols which were affixed to identical bottles of a harmless liquid mouthwash often found in homes. The symbols included a red stop sign, a skull and crossbones, and four others.

At the beginning of the test, each child was told that he might find bottles like this at home, and was asked to identify any bottle he would not like to play with.

The symbol that proved least attractive to the children was MR. YUK.

It is interesting to the researchers that the most popular warning symbol with children was the skull and crossbones.

One little boy declined to pick up a bottle marked with the NPCN warning symbol because, he said, "He looks yukky," and so MR. YUK not only was selected by children as an unappealing symbol, but he was named by one, as well.

A supply of MR. YUK stickers for use in the home may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped business size envelope to the Southeast Texas Poison Center, The University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, TX 77550.

If a poisoning emergency strikes your household before your supply of MR. YUK stickers arrive and before your children can be taught to understand the meaning of the green scowling face, or for later poison accidents, call the Southeast Texas Poison Center at (713) 654-1701.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Words of warning from former user

Dr. Wallace:

I'd like all of the teens who smoke pot now, or are considering starting, to read this letter and really think about what it says.

I started smoking pot when I was 18 and just starting college. At first, I just smoked on Friday and Saturday nights, at parties, and I really liked it. Pretty soon, I started smoking it almost every night after joining my homework. Then, I started smoking it while I was doing my homework because I had convinced myself that I could maintain pretty well when I was stoned and my thoughts actually seemed to improve.

However, homework didn't seem very interesting after a while and I quit doing it because I liked smoking pot better. To make a long story short, pot soon became the biggest part of my life. I started ditching classes to stay home and smoke. I called in sick to work to stay home and smoke.

At that point, I was smoking it "every minute of the day."

I stopped going out with my friends. I became very cynical, dull and boring. All I could talk about was where I got my last lid and where I was going to get my next one.

I lost all interest in school and it took me five and a half years to finish four years of college, and that was with a very low grade-point average. (I maintained straight A's in high school and my first year of college.)

Teens, what I want you to do is take a good look at your life, the way it really is. Do you know who you are? Do you know who you will be five years from now?

It doesn't really seem to matter right now, does it? You're having a good time, right now. You've got a date for Saturday night; things are pretty cool, right now.

Pretty soon, though, you'll have to earn your own living. What will you do? Get stoned every day? What will you do? Stay home and smoke. I don't want to be able to earn a decent living and smoke it as much as you want to at the same time. But if you choose pot because it's "more fun," remember one thing — every time you light up a joint, you are wasting your time. In essence, you check out of the human race.

Of course, it seems great at first. But pot, like anything else, gets old — and fast. It's not fun forever, and if you get to the point that I did, it turns out to be a drag.

I'm not kidding, I know.

When I think of all the time I wasted, I want to cry. (And when I think of all the money I wasted, I want to scream!) Take a look at the people at school. The straight kids may seem to be dull and not with it, but they are the ones that really make it in life.

Believe me, I know what I'm talking about. I could have graduated at the top of my class (like I did when I was dull and straight in high school) if I hadn't smoked pot.

If you're smoking it now, QUIT. If you think you want to, don't. You won't thank me now, but you will five years from now.

B.K., Oakland, Calif.

I usually don't devote this much space to one letter but an exception was made for B.K.'s message.
