If the speaker that was here Thursday night was not paid by TAP, who does pay his salary and finance his way to come give his opinion?

TAP (Texans Against Pollution) paid for Dr. Paul Connitt's plane ticket to West Texas. Connitt is an associate chemistry professor at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y. He plans to teach only part-time next year in order to travel and talk about the problems of hazardous waste projects.

Incineration concerns aired at meeting

An expert in the hazardous waste incineration industry said Thursday that Colorado City is becoming a "dump" city and that by allowing a proposed hazardous waste incinerator to be built in Mitchell County, "you are advertising that you are desperate."

Dr. Paul Connitt, an associate professor of chemistry at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., was featured speaker at a meeting attended by some 300 people Thursday night in the Colorado High School auditorium.

The meeting was sponsored by Texans Against Pollution (TAP), a Mitchell County citizens group opposed to a proposed hazardous waste incinerator.

National Waste and Energy Development, Inc. of Pittsburgh, Penn. has proposed building a hazardous waste incinerator, landfill and municipal waste landfill in the Iatan Flats area in southwest Mitchell County. The Mitchell County commissioners' court has signed a host agreement with the company agreeing not to fight the proposal in exchange for fees to be paid to the county per ton of waste dumped.

Prior to the meeting, Connitt said that high-tech technology is not the solution to hazardous waste, adding that there is a "world of difference in theory and practice" when it comes to incineration and how it's regulated.

Connitt charged that Mitchell County has been "sold out" by its leaders, adding that the county was sold out "incredibly cheap."

He said the Pennsylvania company stands to make hundreds of dollars for each ton of hazardous waste material it incinerates. The county will be paid $2 for each ton.

"It's going to make a lot of money for a few and a lot of misery for the many," he said.

He said county residents should be allowed to vote on whether the company will be allowed to develop the landfill south of Interstate 20 near the Howard County line.

"Make your agencies and politicians respond to you, the citizens," he said.

County officials have said they received majority support from residents informally polled after three public meetings on the proposal earlier this year.

Connitt said if the incinerator is allowed to be built, the county's residents will suffer from respiratory problems and eye irritation when the incinerator is not working properly.

Long term affects will be buildup of toxics in the food chain.

Board, commissioners meet with Connitt

By ETHELYN LANCASTER

The Colorado City Board of Economic Development and several Mitchell County Commissioners met with Dr. Paul Connitt, Thursday afternoon, Sept. 9, to hear excerpts of his symposium planned for the public that night.

Dr. Connitt said that in this informal meeting he was going to address the economic aspects of commercial hazardous waste incinerators how citizens feel about such incinerators. After he told his audience that the building of a commercial hazardous waste incinerator or a landfill in the town (Colorado City) was not the beginning of economic development, it was the end of economic development.

Part of his summation to his statement was that the regulatory agencies (Environmental Protection Agency and various state agencies) would not honestly protect the businesses of the community which might be damaged by pollutants from incinerator or landfill.

Still referring to the end of economic development, he said "This is undoubtedly big money for a few people...I'm sure the banker is interested in this, because we are talking about very, very big money that is going to go through the bank. The banker will be delighted to handle that money. The person that owns the land will also make a formidable amount of money. And maybe other people who are shareholders in the company will also make money. A few individuals will make out like bandits on this project." (Two people connected with the banking business are on the Board of Economic Development.)

Write-in candidate files

County Judge Mac Morris Friday filed as a write-in candidate for county judge in the Nov. 6 general election.

Morris was defeated in the March Democratic primary by Ray Mayo by over 500 votes. There was not a Republican candidate for the office.

Morris joins Barbara Green as the only other write-in candidate. She announced her candidacy several months ago for the office of county clerk. County Clerk Joan Beach was unopposed in the Democratic primary election.

"After receiving encouragement from many people throughout the county, I am announcing as a declared write-in candidate for the office of county judge of Mitchell County," said Morris.

"I have begun many programs and projects that I want to continue to work toward completion," he said.

"During the 21 months that I have served you as your county judge, I have gained a great deal of knowledge and experience in county government operations and I would sincerely like to continue to put this experience and knowledge to work in your behalf," he said.

Morris was appointed to the office by the commissioners' court following the retirement of longtime judge Bill Carter.

Friday was the last day for anyone to declare themselves as a write-in candidate.

Old Timer's Reunion set Sept. 29

Earnest Porter of Jackson, Miss., grandson of Mitchell County pioneers Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Earnest, will be featured speaker at this year's Mitchell County Old Timer's Reunion on Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Civic Center.

He is the son of Jeannette Earnest Porter and was born in Memphis, Tenn. He lived in Colorado City and graduated from high school in 1940. He then worked at the municipal swimming pool and at the local theaters until he entered the University of Texas at Austin in 1941. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942 and received his pilot's wings in 1943. Returning from the service, he re-entered the university in 1945, graduating with bachelor's and master's degrees in geology in 1951.

He began work with Shell Oil Company as a petroleum geologist, spending time in Kansas, Colorado, Texas, Alabama and Mississippi. Following his stint with Shell, he worked with IBM as a systems engineer, with DeSoto as a systems analyst and with Trendline Corporation as a project leader. He retired in 1986, but continues to do some part-time consulting work.

While working in Alabama, he met and married Zada Littrell of

Annual farm tour scheduled Monday

The annual Mitchell County farm tour will get underway Monday morning.

The tour will assemble at 8 a.m. in the Colorado City Civic Center.

This year's tour is sponsored by the Mitchell County Extension Service, the Mitchell County Soil and Water Conservation District and the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce.

"The day will begin with coffee and conservation session followed by an 8:30 a.m. address by State Rep. Rick Perry," said Bryan Limmer extension agent.

At 9 a.m., the group will board buses for the tour. The first scheduled stop is a test demonstrating the use of pearl millet for windstripping on the Curt Shaw Farm. The next two stops will be on the Todd Shaw Farm and will feature a cotton growth regulator demonstration and cotton variety trial planted to demonstrate fiber strength.

The tour will then move to the Wayne Oliver Farm to view several cotton varieties involved in a yield test.

Custom Ag Services at Loraine will host the next stop where watermelon donated by Travis Turner will be served.

Following the break, the tour will conclude with stops including a look at grass variety progress on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) lands, cotton variety tests on the Alton Raschke Farm featuring early maturing types and cotton fertilization and plant population trials on the Gerry and Ray Ritchey Farm.

Following the demonstration tour, a dutch treat barbecue lunch will be served at the Civic Center. The day's activities will conclude with a presentation by Charlie Rogers on pesticide safety as it relates to underground water and proper disposal of chemical containers. Rogers is the Texas Water Commission's Austin-based program administrator for pesticide safety.

Tips given for fair's horticultural entries

Again this year, members of the Colorado City Garden Club will be present to place entries in the Horticultural Section of the Mitchell County Fair, Sept. 27-29.

"If you have a plant at your house that you have watched develop into something beautiful and interesting, bring it to the fair Sept. 27 from 7:30 a.m.-noon. You may win some blue ribbons," said Garden Club member Dorothy Johnson.

Following are guidelines prepared by the Garden Club to help prepare plants so they will look good for the duration of the fair.

1. Most important, bring the plants you have. If you enjoy them, others will enjoy them, also. Persuade your friends and neighbors to do the same.

2. Most any kind of plant is acceptable.

- Container Grown (potted) plants
- Hanging baskets
- Cut flowers
- Cut wildflowers
- Foliage plants (or foliage cut specimens)
- Dried plants

(The rules of the fair are not strict, so feel free to show any kind of plant you choose.)

3. Entries may be made from 7:30 a.m.-noon, Sept. 27. The fair will furnish large green bottles of water for the plants. If you are showing short-stemmed or dwarf plants, you should furnish your own small bottles of water.

4. Have your plants clean. No dirt. No insects. Wash your plants in tap water. Gently shake off excess water and dry with a soft cloth or tissue. Handle gently. No bruises.

5. As a general rule: no leaf is better than a bad leaf. Carefully trim away (with sharp scissors) brown or insect-eaten part of the leaf. If the leaf is badly discolored or has insect holes, discard the whole leaf.

6. Bad parts of the bloom may be trimmed away also.

7. Have your container grown plants clean and free of insects and water spots on leaves. Take out leaves and blooms that are not

As an enterprising home gardener this past year, I decided to try my hand at composting. Composting has been called the wave of the future and I decided I might as well compost some of the leaves, yard clippings and other materials (weeds) that seem to accumulate in the back yard each year.

I'll admit that my compost heap didn't turn out to be what I expected. I had been told that all I had to do was rake everything into a pile and keep it watered every so often. By the time spring rolled around, I was to have a nice compost heap, ready to be tilled into the soil.

When spring rolled around, my compost heap could be described more as a vile smelling, soggy mess.

Since then, I've read that much time and money has gone into researching the chemistry and dynamics of composting - mainly because the landfill crisis is forcing many cities to begin composting lawn and garden wastes instead of hauling them to the dump.

Entire books have been devoted to composting, although the process isn't that complicated. In fact, the average gardener can produce useful compost every year. There are no set rules. You can find as many ways of making compost as there are gardeners making it.

I was interested to find out what makes a compost heap work...

- First, it's hot in there, roughly 115 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit. The reason for the heat is the activity of organisms busy decomposing raw organic matter down to fine humus.

- The microorganisms prefer green material for lunch: lawn clippings, leaves, vegetable refuse, weeds and such.

- But they will decompose a certain amount of such dry material as shredded leaves, rotted hay and lawn that if you mix it in roughly equal parts with the green material.

- Simply making up the right mixture of dry and green matter is not enough. Plenty of oxygen is needed in the heap to keep the composting organisms fired up. If the heap gets too dense or wet, the chemical situation may change from oxygenation to fermentation and the vile smelling, soggy mess results. Additionally, a pile too loose and fluffy will not stay moist enough to fire off the oxygen-fed decomposition.

Even though my compost heap turned out to be less than desired, I decided to use part of it in one of the flower beds this year. The flowers didn't grow so well, but I did have a healthy crop of young pecan trees that rooted from pecans that fell from my neighbor's tree into the compost heap which ended up in the flower bed.

MEETING

dioxin buildups and contamination of the soils, he said.

"There is no reason why Colorado City and Mitchell County should go down on its knees and say to a Pennsylvania company, 'rape us,' he said.

Connett met earlier Thursday with the Mitchell County Economic Development Board and said he came from the meeting "appalled" by the members' reactions. "I got the feeling they didn't want to listen to me," he said.

And, he called a citizens advisory committee formed to answer questions about the proposed landfill a "public relations ploy."

Thursday's night meeting not only focused on concerns of the possible effects of hazardous waste incineration, but offered alternatives, as well.

George Ellis, deputy commissioner of the Texas Agricultural Commission, said his office has "grave concerns" about the proposal's affect on cattle, water and the food chain. He said Agricultural Commissioner Jim Hightower is willing to help Mitchell County develop alternative plans to obtain "sound" economic development.

Barret Lyne of Bryan said he wants to discuss with city officials the possibility of establishing a regional recycling center in Colorado City to help the town solve its waste problems while at the same time boosting the economy.

He said the recycling center would employ 33 people per eight-hour shift and would be operated around the clock.

Lyne said there are funds available to buy the city's existing landfill and to put in the recycling center.

Former County Judge Bill Carter, who retired after serving 18 years in that office, commended TAP members and others instrumental in organizing Thursday night's meeting.

Carter said it is always good when people seek the truth, adding "this evening, you've heard the other side."

Carter noted that in July of 1987, when he was still in office, that the Mitchell County received notification it was no longer being considered as a site for low level radioactive waste because of the close proximity of the Iatan Flats area to the water shed of Lake Colorado City.

"The Iatan site did not meet state and federal guidelines," he said, adding that "Lake Colorado City is still there and rain water still flows in the same direction."

He urged those present to continue on seeking the truth.

BOARD

Finally, a Mitchell County commissioner posed this assessment to Dr. Connett.

"I infer from your statements that entire authoritative or regulatory bodies everywhere are inadequate."

"True," replied Dr. Connett.

healthy. Suggestions for conditioning plants so they will look good for the three-day duration of the fair:

1. Cut flowers in late afternoon (about sundown). The sugar in the plant is highest then. The sugar is the "keeping power" of the plant. Helps (with water) to keep the plant fresh.

2. Take a bucket of tepid water

(it will feel warm to your hand) with you to your yard or garden. Immediately place cut plants into the water up to their necks (area just below the bloom). Completely submerge ivy and other foliage plants.

3. Cut stems on a slant and pull off two leaves at lower end of stem.

4. Place container or containers in a cool place (not refrigerator) away from drafts until water cools, preferably all night. Just before taking to fair, transfer to smaller container.

5. Have your plants named (not a requirement - but nice to have). Botanical names are not necessary. People like to know common names of plants they are enjoying.

Garden Club members will be present Thursday morning, Sept. 27, to assist exhibitors any way possible.

"1990 has been a good year in Mitchell County, so let's all share our goodies," said Johnson.

IN MEMORY OF LINETTE WILSON FOX SAWYER

A year has past since Linette went away
To live up on a better shore.
But we shall meet her there on day,
And live together again forever more.
Her heartaches and pain are gone, she's at rest,
Her trials and troubles are forever past.
She is now in that city, Blessed,
And rapture fills her soul at last.
At heaven's gate, with her loving smile,
Her tender voice and outstretched hand
She will greet us in a little while
And welcome us to that happy land.
Oh, let us lean upon that grace
Of her God and trust His love,
Until we reach that resting place
Where sweet Linette waits for us above.

Special program set at Wallace

"Dropping-In" is a special project of the Wallace Community Education Center.

Classes will begin on Monday, September 10.

The program is for persons 17 and over who are interested in basic education, English as a second language, or GED studies. All classes are free and are held on an on-going basis in room 7 at Wallace Center Monday nights from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Registration can be made any time during the year.

Instructors are Bob Reily and Orphie Conner. GED tests can be taken at Snyder High School or Howard County College.

Many persons in Mitchell County dropped out of school and later discovered they are shut out of better jobs and make less money than high school graduates. Some have later discovered that they are interested in attending college but cannot enroll without a high school diploma. The GED can be the stepping stone to a better job, a better education, and the feeling of accomplishment that comes with a diploma.

The most recent census in Mitchell County revealed 1,600 people over 25 who had completed only one through eight years of school, and only 1,500 who had completed four years of high school.

High school graduates make 30 percent more salary during peak earning years. The less schooling a person has, the more likely it is that person will be unemployed. In competition for jobs, better educated persons are hired first. It makes sense to "Drop Back In School." Employers are urged to sponsor their employees to sign up for the GED and other educational opportunities offered at the Wallace Community Education Center.

NOTICE

While lots of people are fighting to keep regional dumps out of their towns, a few municipalities are more than happy to take other people's garbage, for the right price.

yes, in my backyard

By Ruth Simon

WERE GOOD CAPITALISTS, we realized there was money in garbage," says Fred Darden, administrator of central Virginia's Charles City County (pop. 6,700). Situated midway between Williamsburg and Richmond, the county has been taking in about $5 for each ton of refuse dumped in its landfill. That's more than $1 million a year, enough to cut the county's property taxes nearly 20% and rebuild its ailing school system, too.

There are other benefits. Chambers Development Co., Inc., the Pittsburgh-based firm that operates the Charles City dump, has agreed to pick up the county's garbage for free and pay for environmental monitoring at the dump site.

While most towns howl in protest at the thought of hosting a regional landfill, others are taking Charles City's approach. They have decided it makes sense to accept an environmentally sound landfill, provided they get some economic benefits in return. The main benefit is money, in the form of royalty payments known as "host fees." These are paid by the landfill operator to the host city or county.

The operator makes his money by collecting "tipping fees" from neighboring communities that dump their trash in the landfill. The host fees can range from 25 cents a ton to more than $10, depending on the size and location of the landfill, the kind of garbage it accepts, and the community's negotiating skills.

With some landfills in densely populated parts of the country charging tipping fees of $100 a ton or more, rather than the $10 a ton of a few years ago, it's getting easier to charge host fees. A slice of landfill revenues can make a big difference to rural communities like Gilliam County, Ore. (pop. 1,900), which depends on wheat farming and cattle ranching for its livelihood. Last January Waste Management Inc. began hauling garbage to Gilliam from Portland, 150 miles to the west.

Wasn't the not-in-my-backyard

Fred Darden at Charles City landfill. Trash means a 20% tax cut and new schools.

syndrome a problem? "Maybe in the whole county there were five families opposed to the landfill," recalls Judge Laura Pryor, who chairs Gilliam County's Board of Commissioners. "In all the hearings, no one testified against the landfill or wrote a letter opposing it."

Why so little opposition? One reason is that Waste Management earned the county's confidence with its handling of a hazardous-waste landfill in Arlington, less than 2 miles from the new site. But the clincher was a host fee that ran as high as $1.25 a ton, depending on volume. The county will get a minimum of $300,000 annually. The money will be split between the county budget, a property tax cut, and efforts to spur additional economic development.

Residents of East Carbon City, Utah were so eager to get a new landfill that James Robertson, then the mayor, made a special trip to the governor's office to speed the process. East Carbon City fell on hard times when U.S. Steel closed its coal mine there in 1982. As employment shrank, so did the city's budget, forcing it to lay off its entire police force. Says Robertson, "We needed some thing to start revitalizing the city."

Construction on a new 2,400-acre landfill, which will take incinerator ash shipped by rail from the East Coast. The city will get a 50-cent-per-ton host fee, with another 50 cents going to the state and a further 25 cents going to the county. The landfill meets its goal of 1 million tons of ash per year, the host arrangement could mean 40 jobs and as much as $500,000 in revenues for the hard-pressed town.

The garbage companies forced to pay the host fees don't mind. They see the fees as a small price to pay for avoiding the hassles and legal battles normally associated with setting up a landfill. "It's something the utility companies and the railroads have done for years," says Christopher White, president of Mid-American Waste Systems, which is paying a host fee of nearly $2 per ton at a landfill in Westmoreland County, Pa., just outside Pittsburgh.

But the clearest sign that host fees are here to stay may be a proposal made in July by waste giant Browning-Ferris. After spending three years and more than $3 million on an unsuccessful effort to open a new landfill in upstate New York, Browning-Ferris announced it would provide a package of benefits—including host fees—to any New York community that came forward with a suitable site.

"We see host fees coming into play from now on into the future," says Browning-Ferris Vice President Robert Wasserstrom. "It's a business proposition. We're not unhappy to do it."

Ballinger beats Wolves, 26-12

Under the light of the moon, the mighty Wolves and the fighting Bearcats began their seasons; however, the Ballinger with a win and the Wolves with a defeat.

As both teams had their initial drives, both ended up in a punting situation. Ballinger then got a break as Wolf RB, Robbie Smith was stripped of the ball on their own 42.

The Bearcats began their second drive with a fairly even balanced offense. Standout RB Jaime Gibbs saw limited action in Friday night's game, but did manage to score on two different occasions, as his first came a 12 yard route with 7:45 left in the first.

Again, the Wolf offense could not get the ball rolling and for the second time, the Wolves had to punt. The punt by senior Robbie Smith set the Bearcats up at the Wolf 48 to begin the second quarter.

Ballinger QB Gilbert Gomez connected on 48 yard bomb to Zack Farr. Farr got behind defensive back Greg Parker on the pass which was good for 6 points and a 13-0 lead at the half.

The first possession by the Wolves in the third resulted in a three down series, then punt. Smith's boot put the Bearcats at the their 40 yard line, but to FB Michael Thornhill, the ball was only 60 yards away from the end-zone. On the first play, those 60 yards resulted in the third touchdown for the Bearcats, 20-0.

As the fourth quarter rolled around, the Wolves looked as if they might be shut-out, but on a poor punt by the Bearcats, the Wolves were at the 48 of Ballinger.

With 9:10 to go, Ramsey dropped back and hit R. Smith who came out of the backfield which was good for 27 yards. On the next play, Ramsey then met up with WR Kevin Green which killed another 14 yards.

The ball then rested on the 5 yard line but was moved to the 2 yard line because of a Bearcat penalty. At that time, FB Mark Smith capped off the drive with a touchdown which eliminated the chance of a shut-out by the 'Cats.

The Bearcats were not finished on the night, however. A controversial late hit was called and cost the Wolves 15 yards and put the Bearcats on the 38 yard line.

A run by FB Thornhill moved the ball to the 9 and from there, Gibbs picked up his second TD of the game to leave the score, 26-6.

With 3:12 left in the game, the Wolves mounted one more attack. The offense began the series at their own 16, but a 36 yard pass from Ramsey to Green put the Wolves at the Bearcat 36 with 1:57 to go.

FB Bobby Silva moved the ball to the 21 with a 15 yard romp and the race was on between the clock and the Wolf scoring threat.

With 1:30, Ramsey dropped back to pass but was sacked. Ramsey again had pressure on the next play but scrambled out of the mess and gained 21 yards to set the Wolves up for the last score of the night. With :24 seconds left in the game, Silva carried the ball for the final score of the night, 26-12.

Ramsey was 7-17 for 107 yards and no interceptions while Robbie Smith carried the ball 15 times for 66 yards.

HUT! HUT! - Freshmen QB Steve Payne, #2, hands the ball off to RB Richard Gomez, #44, during the game against Ballinger. Blocking for Gomez is Frank Perez, #64.

DOWN THE SIDELINE - Junior Varsity RB Tracy Lentz, #40, gains 40 of his 96 yards against Ballinger on Thursday night. The Wolves were defeated, 18-22.

Freshmen, JV squads lose

The Freshmen and Junior Varsity Wolves had their season opener against the Ballinger Bearcats on Thursday, September 6 at Wolf Stadium, and if excitement is what football is all about, then these two games lived up to that assumption.

On the opening drive of the Freshmen game, the Bearcats moved the chains 55 yards for a first quarter score. The two-point conversion was good and the Bearcats took the early lead, 8-0.

For the remaining half, neither the Wolves nor the Bearcats could get the ball rolling as each team suffered turnovers which included an interception by Wolf, Marcus Aguilar, to end the half.

As the Wolves began the second half, the Bearcat defense held their ground and forced the Wolves to punt. The punt by Richard Gomez put the 'Cats at their own 30 yard line.

Two plays later, the Bearcats executed a reverse which resulted in a 63 yard touchdown to increase the lead, 14-0.

The Wolves then managed to move the ball on the ground and get all the way to the Bearcat 10 before a Wolf lost the ball to the opposition. With the Bearcats at their own 10, they went to the air and into Aguilar's hands for his second interception of the game. Aguilar returned the turnover for a touchdown, but due to a penalty, the play was brought back to the 25.

With less than 5:10 to go in the game, the Wolves were on the prowl. On third down and long, QB Brandon Oden let an 18 yard pass fly. The pass was tipped up by a Bearcat defender but fell into the hands of Greg Gaona for the Wolves in the end-zone. Along Gomez's two-point conversion, the score was 14-8.

With a little less than two minutes to go, Ballinger coughed up the ball on the Wolf 30 yard line. An Oden 37 yard pass to Gomez put the Wolves in excellent field position at the Bearcat 38. Behind solid blocking, the Wolf RBs carried the ball to the 4 yard line which allowed Gomez to tie the game up, 14-14, with :26 seconds left.

Unofficially, the Wolves gather 264 yards of total offense to Ballinger's 283.

As the Junior Varsity athletes took the field, the Wolves wasted no time in getting on the board first.

QB Kelly Ramsey hit WR David Castillo down the sideline which covered 74 yards for 6 points, but the conversion was no good.

On the kick-off, a Bearcat mishandled the ball and Gene Rogers for the Wolves came up the loose ball at the Bearcat 24.

Tracy Lentz, who had 92 yards rushing on 13 carries, made up the difference of 24 on first down to increase the lead to 12-0.

The Wolf defense forced a punt which set the Wolves on their own 28. Lentz galloped 40 yards that allowed Ramsey to hit Castillo for another touchdown pass on the next play. The 36 yard pass made the Wolf lead, 18-0.

With a little less than three minutes left in the half, Ballinger capitalized on a Wolf miscue. The Bearcats worked the clock and the ball nicely to set up their first score on a 1 yard run to make the count, 18-6 before half-time.

During the third quarter, each team's defense played well as no one could get across the goal-line, but on the first possession of the fourth by Ballinger, a 54 yard pass resulted in a TD to cut the lead 18-14.

With the clock winding down, the chances of a comeback by Ballinger were slim, but a turnover by the Wolves gave the ball to the Bearcats on the 11 yardline. With less than a minute to go, the Bearcats scored on a half-back pass to earn the victory, 22-18.

The Pack rustled up 131 yards of total offense while Ballinger had 174. Ramsey had a nice game of 110 yards on 2 completions on 5 attempts.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed an application with the Texas Public Utility Commission to introduce new optional services - Call Control Options. The initial service areas will be Laredo, McAllen and Austin. Expansion into other service areas will be based on availability. Customers in other areas will be notified when these services become available.

Call Control Options include six new services - Call Blocker, Call Cue, Call Return, Priority Call, Call Trace and Selective Call Forwarding. The features will be available to single-line residence and business customers.

Call Blocker - enables the customer to block incoming calls from a maximum of three specified telephone numbers and/or to block the last incoming call.

Call Cue - enables the customer to automatically redial the last outgoing telephone number dialed. If the recalled number is busy, equipment will monitor the line for a maximum of 30 minutes and will let the customer know when the call can go through.

Call Return - enables the customer to automatically redial the telephone number of the most recent incoming call. If the number is busy, Call Return will continue to dial the number for up to 30 minutes, or until it completes the call.

Priority Call - provides the customer with a distinctive alerting signal, ring or Call Waiting Tone (if the customer has subscribed to Call Waiting), when the customer is called from a maximum of three preselected telephone numbers.

Call Trace - enables the customer to initiate a trace of the last incoming call received. The number, date and time will be recorded by Southwestern Bell Telephone so that the call's origin can be identified.

Selective Call Forwarding - enables the customer to forward incoming calls from specified telephone numbers (maximum of three) to another telephone number.

Installation charges for residence customers will be $2.70 per feature, with a maximum installation charge of $5.40 per request per line. Installation charges for business customers will be $5.40 per feature, with a maximum installation charge of $10.75 per request per line.

The proposed date for Call Control Options to be offered is October 7, 1990. These services, however, will not immediately be available to all customers in all areas of the state. Customers in other areas will be notified when these services become available.

Call Control Options are projected to generate first-year annual revenues of $1,900,000.

Film to be shown at Plainview

Cry From the Mountain, a World Wide Pictures production by Billy Graham, will be shown at Plainview Baptist Church at 6:45 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 16.

The adventure film is set in the majestic wilderness of Alaska by screenwriter Daniel L. Quick. Scene after scene portrays the beauty and wildlife of this "last frontier" state.

The story centers around the Sanders family. Larry Sanders takes his 10-year-old son Cal on a camping trip where he is to break the news that he and his wife Carolyn are getting a divorce. Meanwhile Carolyn, filled with bitterness and unable to forgive her husband for an affair he has had with a woman in his office, considers the option of having an abortion. Through a life-threatening accident and an old hermit living in a deserted mining camp, the course of events is changed for the Sanders.

The principal roles in Cry From the Mountain are played by four outstanding performers - James Cavan as the old hermit, West Park as Larry Sanders, Rita Walter as Carolyn Sanders and Chris Kidd as the Sanders child.

Billy Graham appears as himself with a message of hope.
