By VIRGIL E. MOORE

Believe It Or Not Department: Eastland Junior High Tri-Hi-Y girls voted—on their own free will—to quit wearing bluejeans to their club meetings. Dresses and skirts from now on out, they ruled.

We offer the following joke with due apologies to Milton Fullen and Jack Muirhead: The sweet young thing was upset when her boy friend did not help her into his car. "Where," she asked, "is your chivalry?" And the young man replied, "Didn't you notice? I traded it for a Buick."

—vcm—
Which reminds us of what happened the other day at Rotary Club. Muirhead was program chairman, and he was showing a General Motors film on the need for better highways. Suddenly one car shot around another on the screen and Larry McGraw jumped to his feet and shouted, "Jack, did you see that Plymouth shoot around that Buick?"

Placards started going out this week to golf courses all over the state booming the seventh annual Lakeside Country Club to be held here June 21 through 23. From all indications this year's tourney should be a dandy. The course caught more water during the recent rains than it had in many a moon, and it is the greenest this dunder has ever seen it. W. A. Ball, grounds keeper, has been hard at work this week getting the tall grass mowed. He hopes to have the layout in near perfect shape by the time tourney play begins.

When a town has something it often fails to realize its true value. We thought of this when we read the following story which appeared in the local paper back in 1946.

"A subscription campaign was underway in Eastland this week to raise $7500 to $10,000 for reconstruction of the Eastland Golf Course, which has been dormant for a number of years.

"Chief promoter of the project is Garland Poe, Lone Star Gas Co. employee, who has been pushing for the subscriptions of 75 to 100 shares in the organization at $100 per share.

"The sum to be raised would be used for reconstruction of the nine hole golf course only, and the project would not include a clubhouse."

Note From the News: "The House post office and Civil Service committee today voted in favor of raising the postal rate on first class, or letter mail, from three cents to four cents."

The Eastland High homecoming got a good plug by Marvin Garrett, Fort Worth Press state editor, in his daily column, "The Westexan," yesterday. Here's what Garrett had to say:

"For students of Eastland High School are planning a 'Texas style' homecoming.

"They're billing their homecoming, set for June 6-9, as the biggest ever held in Texas.

"And they expect a lot of people who attended school there during the boom-town days to be present. They've been planning the homecoming for many months, so the many former students have been contacted.

"Terrell Coleman of Waco, general chairman of the homecoming activities, announced today that final plans have been made for the all-class homecoming of former Eastland High School students.

"He said the planning officers have already received assurances from former Eastland students from Europe, Asia, the Middle East, the Arctic Zone, and from the Antarctic Zone, and that they plan to be in the old home town for the June homecoming.

"The four-day affair will be climaxed Saturday with a program and barbecue in City Park, recognizing all famous ex-students, and (Continued on Page Five)

Eastland Area Gets Two Inch Rain

Lake Leon Level Is Expected To Rise

The heaviest rain of the year dumped 1.91 inches more moisture on an already wet Eastland here this morning, pushing the total for the year to 13.96 inches.

The rainfall began falling at approximately 1 a.m. today and continued for about four hours. Unofficial measurements were as high as 2.30 inches. The official reading was 1.91 but a smaller gauge within three feet of the official gauge showed 2.30.

Rainfall was extremely heavy all along the Lake Leon watershed and the Eastland-Ranger lake is expected to reach a new all-time high late today. This morning water was already running approximately one foot above the cloverleaf, and predictions are that it may rise still another foot. At least one road to the lake was partly inundated this morning, and rising waters may push the water over more roads. Residents of Staff could get marooned.

Cisco reported 2.02 inches, and the lake there rose to 45 feet at the spillway. Ranger and Olden (Continued on Page 7)

Desdemona Man Gets Promotion From Oil Co.

G. L. Hamilton has been named district clerk in the Roswell district producing office of Pan American Petroleum Corporation, announced E. V. Hewitt, Pan American's North Texas-New Mexico Division Production Superintendent.

He succeeds Montie S. House, who has been transferred to the company's general office Tulsa. D. R. Morehead, who comes from Pan American's Canadian Division office in Calgary, replaces Hamilton as field clerk in the Hobbs area office.

A native of Dewey, Okla., Hamilton was educated at Bartlesville, Oklahoma, high school, and Bartlesville junior college. He joined Pan American (the Stanolind Oil and Gas Company) in 1953, as an accounting machine operator. From 1943 to 1952, he served as assistant field clerk at Pampa, Texas, and Elk Basin, Wyoming, and as plant clerk at Elk Basin, and at Levelland and North Cowden in west Texas. In 1952 he was made field clerk at Hobbs.

Morehead joined Pan American in 1941, starting in field producing operations. He held successive clerical and supervisory positions in west Texas, New Mexico, and in the Fort Worth division office through 1954, when he transferred to Canadian operations.

Morehead, who hails from Desdemona, received the B.B.A. Degree in accounting from Texas Tech College at Lubbock in 1940.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Good ground cover such as dead litter and growing vegetation continue to prove to be the most effective conservation practice for control of wind and water erosion. This is true on all types land. Conservation farmers on deep coarse textured "peanut" sands realize that a complete vegetative program is their only means of controlling erosion from wind and water. A good vegetative program on deep sands include a combination of winter cover crops, crop residue utilization and strip cropping on land planted to peanuts.

Winter cover crops of small grain with vetch seeded last fall have given excellent protection against high winds this spring, as well as conserving maximum rain fall. Recent good rains have produced excellent cover crop growth. Many cover crops will be harvested for grain, others particularly on peanut land the residue will be managed for continued soil protection and improvement.

Residue management on cropland is the plowing operation on grain stubble, stalks, and other crop aftermath so that they are only partially covered or left lying on the surface of the soil. Benefits from this practice include reduction of erosion by controlling raindrop splash, reduction of evaporation, reduction of runoff, increased water holding capacity of the soil, as well as greatly lessening wind erosion. Farm equipment most commonly used for crop residue management includes sweep type tillage plows, chisel plows, tandem disks and stalk cutters, and one way plows operated shallow and at slow speed to not bury residue. Some farmers return peanut hay to their field to further reduce wind and water hazards.

Strip cropping has become a common conservation practice with most peanut farmers. Strip cropping used in conjunction with peanuts provide a barrier against wind erosion. They act as wind brakes, being close enough together to break the effects of wind at the surface of the ground. Strips fit well into a system of crop rotation alternating from year to year. They provide organic material which helps hold water, plant food, and air. Deep rooted crops used for strips will open up the soil where it will catch and store more water. Crops used for strips must be adapted to soil conditions and should be fertilized the same as clean tilled crops. Strips left in the field will prevent sanding of peanut in the windrow during harvest and are helpful in the establishment of winter cover crops. Best results are obtained when strips are planted on the contour or across the prevailing winds, and not less than four rows of grain sorghum or two rows of sudan alternated with not more than eight rows of peanuts.

Supervisors of the Upper Leon Soil Conservation District realize that many farmers are now destroying their cover crops in preparation for planting strip crops and peanuts. Farmers are encouraged to give maximum protection to their land throughout the year with the above three practices, namely winter cover crops, crop residue utilization, and strip cropping on peanut land. "Conservation pays dividends in dollars and cents."

WINS — Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland has won a state nomination for a position on the General Federation of Women's Clubs Executive Committee it was learned here today. She will now be a candidate for the state of Texas to be presented to the General Foundation voters, a national organization. Mrs. Perkins spoke at the Texas Pioneer Dinner at the 60th annual convention of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs in Waco yesterday.

The purpose of the contest is to stimulate individual farm and neighborhood effort toward farm, house and neighborhood improvement.

Bids Asked On Lake Leon Road From Ranger

Sealed bids for construction of approximately 3 1/2 miles of hard surface road from Highway 80 south to Farm Market road 570 have been called for by the Texas Highway Department.

Bids of the work will be opened in Austin May 24 and the successful bidder is expected to begin work immediately.

The road to be hard surfaced is Farm Market road 2461. It is the dirt road now being used by Ranger citizens to get to Lake Leon. The road will be hard surfaced to FM road 570 leading from Eastland. The road from the FM 570 and FM 2461 cutoff on to the lake will not be topped at this time.

The work is all in Precinct 1. Fences were being moved back this week and the right-of-way cleared.

Seniors Feted At Around The World Breakfast

By Ellen Whitley

The Seniors of EHS took a trip around the world Wednesday morning, May 8. They saw China, Japan, Mexico, Nicaragua, and other foreign countries through the efforts of the "Around the World" breakfast given by the Methodist Church. The invocation was led by Richard Smith and the group all sang "America."

Then the breakfast was served by the women of the WSCS consisted of Succo, Pancetta, Strapazzetti, Brot, Jelle, Cafe, and Lait (orange juice, bacon and eggs, hot biscuits, apple jelly, coffee and milk).

Mrs. Collie, the Toast Mistress of Cemerones, led the seniors in several games. One of the games was a very patriotic game. Everyone was given a list to fill out. On this list he was to write as many things that were red, white, or blue as he could think of. P. A. Cox and Jean Edwards won the individual prizes. The items on their lists ranged from white sheets to red lipstick. Next a quiz was given that was as "brain racking" as any they might be given in school. The quiz concerned the abbreviations of the states in the U. S. for instance they were asked which was the state that never said "can't". The answer was Kan.

—Kansas. Gene May and Sandra Curtis won this game. The Methodist preacher, Richard Smith, conducted several foreign games and an old U. S. game, —Musical Chairs.

The tables were decorated with foreign dolls and beautiful spring flowers (that Eastland now has an abundance of). Each senior had a foreign flag and a booklet to keep as a souvenir of his "trip around the world."

This was one of the most unusual parties that the seniors had ever attended and it was enjoyed by everyone.

Three Small Steps Help Tree Growth

An extra 20 minutes spent at tree-planting time is worth an extra year's growing time.

It takes about that long to dig the planting pocket a little larger than you have to, and to mix in 50 cents' worth of peatmoss or some compost. If you're in a hurry for shade, 20 minutes is well spent, says an article in the May issue of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

Once the tree is on its way, you can do three things to speed up its growth. First, see that it gets a deep soaking at least twice a month during the first three or four summers. Turn the hose on slow and leave it. Water in the top foot of soil doesn't count—it's the moisture in the second foot that stimulates the most growth.

Second, feed every year with a regular plant food designed for grass, such as 6-10-4 or 5-10-5. Mix it half and half with one of the new, long-lasting ureaform plant foods for extra nitrogen. Apply at rates recommended on the 6-10-4 package.

Children of D. C. Frosts Honor Parents on Golden Anniversary

In honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Frost, their sons and daughters entertained with an open house at the Frost residence recently.

Guests were greeted by the honorees. Miss Barbara Norris of San Antonio presided over the guest book and little Miss Bobbie Kay Sneath of Odessa displayed the lovely gifts. Both are granddaughters of the couple. The house was attractively decorated with beautiful gold colored mums and many other flowers and pot plants which were gifts from callers.

The table was decorated with a gold luncheon cloth overlaid with lace. The three tiered cake, decorated with pink and white roses and linked together with bows, was baked by Charles J. Frost, son of the honorees. Another cake was an open Bible, decorated with gold roses, first names of the couple and the years, 1907-1957. Mrs. C. J. Frost of Wichita Falls, Mrs. R. A. Sneath of Odessa and Mrs. A. B. Norris of San Antonio assisted in serving the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Frost were married in Cisco April 17, 1907. Mrs. Frost was Fannie Lou Hatten before her marriage. She was born in Eastland June 21, 1892. Frost was born in Johnson County, Arkansas October 20, 1887. They have resided in Eastland county during the entire 50 years of their marriage.

The couple has six children. C. J. Frost, Wichita Falls; Major D. C. Frost, Jr., Washington, D. C.; J. F. Frost, Odessa; Navel Cadet Bobby E. Frost, Milton, Florida; Mrs. R. A. Sneath, Jr., Odessa; and Mrs. A. B. Norris, San Antonio. They have eleven grandchildren.

Special Program Is Planned for Children's Hour

Fun and excitement has been planned for those who attend the from 10 to 11 a.m. in the Woman's Club. This being the last story telling hour until September, a special program has been planned with the names of the entertainers being kept secret.

Face Covering On Sheep Worth Up to $5 Per Head

SONORA — Face covering has long been an important selection factor in breeding fine wool Rambouillet sheep. Now, Animal Husbandmen at the Sonora Experiment Station affix definite values up to $5.00 a head for sheep with medium face covering over those with near-complete coverings which pose serious wool-blindness threats.

Proper selection of ewes with an intermediate amount of wool-covering on the face can mean a difference of 5 to 9 pounds more lamb weight than either those heavily covered or open-faced. The extra weight is due almost entirely to a higher percentage of weaned lamb crop.

Ewes with an excessive amount of wool on the face also tend to be much more susceptible to screw-worm strikes in lachrymal pits below the eyes. It's a good management practice therefore, to cull potentially wool-blind sheep at birth or as found in the flock.

While specialists believe it may be possible to develop a sheep which will breed true for an intermediate amount of face covering, present recommendation center around culling out potential wool-blindness and selecting open-faced animals on the basis of individual production records.

Complete details of the experiment are in PR 1929 available from your county agent or the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

Beachcombing Recommended As Interesting and Profitable Hobby

AUSTIN.—A woman biologist who follows beachcombing both in line of duty and for personal pleasure recommends this custom to Texans seeking new fields to conquer.

The opportunities are described by Patricia Pew, member of the Game and Fish Commission's Marine Laboratory staff at Rockport, in the May issue of the Game and Fish Commission magazine.

Boiled down, Miss Pew writes: "Beachcombing is like fishing or playing bridge; not until you make your first find (catch in the case of the former, or grand slam in the case of the latter) will you become an ardent advocate. And it has its advantages. It doesn't take as much money and equipment as the former, or as much brains as the latter."

Miss Pew, herself a comparative rarity in a profession ordinarily held exclusive for men, contrasts the seclusion of beachcombing to clogged highways, overcrowded lakes and rivers which, she states, creates noise and human congestion comparable to city life scenes.

But beachcombing stands out like a beacon of hope for the actual and potential psychiatry patients. Miss Pew adds: "You'll need no tackle; no bait; no license; no special clothing (in fact very little clothing at all most of the year); no open and closed seasons; no size limits; no closed areas; no crowds; no tangled lines; no hooked fingers."

Depicting the several degrees of seriousness associated with beachcombing, Miss Pew describes herself as "the spasmodic lazy type", goes on to relate: "I make occasional trips to the beach, usually have a picnic, go for a swim, dry off in the sun, then mozy along the water's edge enjoying the sky, sun, sand and waves, and occasionally pick up a shell or piece of coral which is later thrown away by the gasoline station attendant when he washes the car and sweeps out the sand."

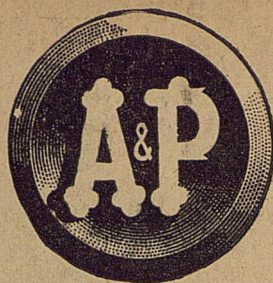

Miss Pew's article describes the other extreme—the serious or the professional beachcomber: "This type devotes more time and money to the perfection of beachcombing as a science or vocation. He travels great distances to unexploited beaches where there are no tourists or amateurs to spoil the pickings. He works generally after storms, high tides, and strong southeast winds. One professional beachcomber I know has built a house out of driftwood and parts of wrecked ships. The curtains are of fish and shrimp net; shells serve as dishes. It is painted with ship paint which was washed up on the beach in sealed cans. Another serious beachcomber has built a restaurant out of material collected from the beach and from wrecked ships, and appropriately calls it "Driftwood Inn." Each year he takes a two or three week vacation and makes an excursion up the beach to get the material for enlarging his establishment, which is continually growing in popularity."

Miss Pew's article naturally is slanted toward her own personal domain which is the six hundred miles of Texas coastline. But the vast inland waters of Texas likewise provide ample roaming areas for the fresh water type of beachcomber.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

Hick Halcomb's name really was Hick. He had it changed by legal action from Wilbert.

First I heard of him, he was writing a column which he entitled "The World's Worst Hick" in a small paper out in West Texas. His observations were so amusing that they were widely republished. Later he moved to Austin.

Hick liked to joke and play harmless little pranks. It used to be that you could buy a cup of coffee for a nickel at the hotel coffee shop at the counter but it was a dime at a table, unless you also ordered food. Hick delighted in rounding up three or four friends, seating them at a table and then ordering coffee and one doughnut. He would solemnly call for a knife and cut the doughnut into a small chunk for each individual. Five coffees alone would have been 50 cents; but, by ordering "food", the five coffees and the doughnut came to only 30 cents! Hick would have his chuckle at the waitress—and then leave a tip that was as much as the check.

A politician whom Hick did not exactly admire, was going to make a speech. Hick took a place right up front and listened with a completely blank look as he stared up at the speaker. After several minutes, Hick said, "I'll be damned!" and walked away. It is hardly necessary to say that the speaker was disconcerted.

There was another politician whom Hick didn't exactly admire either. The man was governor at the time and, in tribute to him, one of the Austin hotels featured a "hillbilly dinner" on a sheet which was attached to the menu. Knowing Hick's view, the waitress would detach this sheet before handing the menu to Hick.

A new waitress did not know about this. As she handed him the menu, Hick was talking to friends, and, without skipping a word, he detached the sheet, crumpled it into a wad and dropped it on the floor, and kept right on talking.

He enjoyed needling his friends but did it in such a humorous fashion that they were amused, too. For example, he would pretend that he could not remember my name. He would greet me, "How are you this morning, Mr. Chouse, Brouse—", then he would pretend to catch himself as he was in the act of uttering "Louse" and would at last come out with the right name. I, in turn, would call him "Holbrook", "Howcome" and three or four more names before saying "Halcomb". Foolish? Of course, but we were amused and so were the bystanders—and that did not displease either of us.

One day, in the act of introducing Hick to a friend, I had to stop, then said, "Hick, you will love this; I've used our routine so much that I can't remember your right name unless I can go through the sequence."

Hick gave me permission to use one of his stories in a book and I promised him a copy. Each time we'd meet, he'd ask, "Where's my book?" But finally he quit asking for he knew I was dejected by the numerous rejections from publishers.

At last, the book, ("I Give You Texas"), came out but Hick had passed away. I drove from Fort Worth to Austin to attend the service and, as soon as it was over, turned around and drove back to Fort Worth.

Hick was generous and genial and he really only pretended to dislike anyone. Actually, he liked everyone. He was an individual. You would have enjoyed knowing him.

"Don't tell me
ANOTHER DRINK CAN MAKE ME A KILLER!"

Hold on, mister. We say "can." We don't know your capacity—but why take chances?

This we do know: The law says that, if your ability to drive has been lessened in the slightest degree by the use of alcoholic beverages, you're what the law calls "under the influence."

That one more drink can make you take chances you wouldn't otherwise—can make you react more slowly to traffic conditions—pay less attention to other cars and pedestrians.

Last year, 40,000 died in traffic accidents. Country-wide police records prove that drinking was a factor in 26 out of every 100 fatal accidents—in some areas, even more.

Need any more proof that excessive drinking and safe driving don't mix?

Here's how you can help stop traffic tragedies:

- 1 Drive safely and courteously yourself. Observe speed limits and warning signs.

Where traffic laws are obeyed, deaths go DOWN!

- 2 Insist on strict enforcement of all traffic laws. Traffic regulations work for you, not against you.

Where traffic laws are strictly enforced, deaths go DOWN!

TELEPHONE TALK

by W. H. McAnally, Manager

MOTHER'S DAY CUSTOM

Telephones will be ringing all over the country Sunday, May 12, when the annual custom of Mother's Day Long Distance calling is observed once again.

Nowadays, it seems almost every family has at least one "branch" separated from the rest by hundreds or even thousands of miles. A call home on Mother's Day is always a special event—even though reunions by Long Distance may be pretty frequent throughout the rest of the year, too.

If you're planning a call on Mother's Day this year, don't forget the money-saving way to do it: call station-to-station. Rates are approximately 1/3 lower than on person-to-person calls.

And as usual—to save time, call by number. Your Long Distance calls will go through twice as fast if you can give the operator the out-of-town number you're calling.

GIVE HER A TELEPHONE

While I'm on the subject, I'd like to offer another Mother's Day suggestion.

Additional telephones make useful gifts. They're decorative, too, when you select one of the eight available colors.

An additional phone for kitchen or bedroom, or next to the sewing table, is the kind of gift that will make sense to a mother or grandmother. She'll remember and appreciate it all year long, because it will always be as useful as the day it's installed.

It's easy to arrange gift service, even for someone who lives in another city.

Just call the telephone business office. We'll take it from there

DON DAVIS CALLING

Don Davis, our telephone news reporter (he writes the leaflet that comes with your monthly telephone bill), has received a number of letters telling of exciting, touching, or humorous real-life experiences in which the telephone played a major part.

Don is hoping to collect more stories like these. Are there any telephone calls you'll never forget?

If such an experience especially stands out in your memory, and you'd care to tell him about it, he'd appreciate hearing from you.

Just write Don Davis, care of the telephone business office, Eastland. We'll forward your letter to him.

... there seems to be no way of escaping the on-rushing tide of automobile collisions and other losses connected with moving vehicles. Statistics now available show a new record was topped for 1956, the highest in 20 years. Automobile losses are still climbing in 1957—all of which leads us to suggest that if you did not put full coverage insurance in your 1957 budget that you do so now.
