Houston Ave. right-of-way extension secured

The City of Snyder has obtained a right of way from a local property owner which will determine the route of the proposed extension of Houston Ave.

This plan would extend it to the Big Spring Highway.

This information was offered as part of an update on the project given Tuesday night at the March city council meeting.

The goal of the plan is to offer another traffic route from the developing southwestern residential area of Snyder.

At least two residents at Tuesday's meeting had questions and reservations about the proposal, however.

One of these series of questions related to a requirement that the Snyder city limits be extended to take in all property bordering the proposed city street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bethel, who live in an area now just south of the city's southern boundary, questioned what this annexation would mean to them as property owners.

The annexation is required since funding for the project — which is expected to cost as much as $750,000 — is coming primarily from Federal Aid Urban funds.

Since these federal dollars are aimed at urban street projects, one requirement is that the project be located within the city limits.

Regarding this annexation, the Bethels were told that two public meetings will be required before the action can be legally completed.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kidd, 3311 48th St., expressed concern that construction of the street would create a traffic hazard for residents like themselves who live adjacent to Houston.

"If you build the street, I'd like to see more speed control there," Kidd told the council.

Ed Vernon, head of the local office for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, said that a public meeting will likely be required before the state gives a final approval for the highway funding.

If enough dissention is shown at this meeting, a public hearing will then be scheduled, he said. If a hearing is required, comments from individuals would be solicited and these recorded.

These comments would then go to the Federal Highway Commission for a final decision regarding the urban street funding.

Regarding the most recent development in the project, the city has acquired a right-of-way agreement across property owned south of Snyder by Mrs. Annette Smith.

This right-of-way line — which the street construction will follow — heads south from the intersection of Houston and 48th St. for approximately 900 ft.

It then curves back to the east to intersect with the Big Spring Highway. This intersection is located between the entrance to Towle Park and the entrance to the Cogdell Memorial Hospital complex.

The exact location is approximately 600 ft. south of the Towle Park entrance.

The configuration of the street extension has been described as "essentially a rectangle with a rounded corner."

In addition, council members noted Tuesday there are still negotiations ongoing to obtain a two-block strip of Houston from 30th to 32nd St.

If a right-of-way can be secured through this area, the extended Houston Ave. would offer a new route connecting 30th in the approximate middle of Snyder all the way to the city's southern city limits.

In other agenda items related to the Houston Ave. project, the council voted to accept a bid of $2,888 to purchase material to construct a

El Salvador...

Aid debate warms up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, refusing to rule out emergency military aid to El Salvador, says restrictions proposed by House Democrats are so stringent that "we would be better off just saying, 'Forget it.'"

"I really don't understand you people," an exasperated Shultz told the Democrat-dominated House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations Tuesday during a sometimes heated grilling on the administration's plans for increased Central American security assistance.

Arguing that Central America is "right next to us" and that a presidential commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger concluded the region "is vital to our interests," Shultz told Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill.:

"You tell me, 'Because we have a problem, let's walk away.'"

Yates, in an exchange in which he and Shultz each raised his voice to be heard over the other, denied saying this and argued, "As far as I can see the attitude of the administration is that El Salvador will receive as much money as it requires from now until eternity."

President Reagan is asking $178.7 million, in addition to $64.8 million that was approved last fall, in assistance to El Salvador in the current fiscal year. He also seeks $132.5 million in Salvadoran aid in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is considering a proposal by its Western Hemisphere subcommittee to deny additional funds.

Mapping decision delayed

Scurry County Appraisal District directors have opted to wait for two more weeks before opening bids on an automated mapping system for the district.

The decision came Tuesday at the March meeting for the board.

The delay will insure that all possible firms who would like to bid on the system have sufficient time to offer estimates, district staffers say.

A second meeting is now planned March 22 to open bids. Those received as of Tuesday were left unopened.

The equipment uses computer technology to create three-dimensional map graphics.

In other business Tuesday, the board awarded an insurance bid to Boren and West Insurance of Snyder. They were the lowest of four local bids submitted, estimating a yearly premium of $1,000.

The coverage entails contents of the appraisal district building, property records, plus liability insurance for privately owned vehicles driven by the chief appraiser and assistant appraiser.

Mobile home double-wides...

Council drops zone category

An adjustment in a new city zoning ordinance was approved on first reading Tuesday by the Snyder city council — a change that reduces the number of residentials zones from three to four.

Essentially, the council eliminated a residential classification set aside specifically for double-wide mobile homes.

Under the zoning plan approved last July, there were only two such R-3 areas in the entire city — a 12-block area located in far north Snyder and a equally small area just south of 32nd St. to the east.

Double wide mobile homes will now be allowed in all areas previously designated as R-4 — the first classification where any type of mobile homes are allowed.

The two areas previously designated R-3 will change to the more restrictive R-2 classification. The classification allowing both mobile homes and double-wide mobile homes is how labeled R-3.

Tuesday's March meeting of the council included a lengthy agenda list. All council members were present to include Mayor Rod Waller and council members Gale McPherson, Ed Thrift, Truett Bryan, Don Gressett, Mickey Nunley and Don Osborn.

In other city business, the council voted to:

—Accept the low bid for a 1984 pickup for the animal control department. The bid was let to Brown and Gray Motors, estimating $8,397. A second bid was submitted by Wilson Motors for $8,615.

—Pass on second reading an ordinance prohibiting buildings classified as "dangerous" inside the city limits.

—Authorize city staffers to seek bids for 137 tons of liquid alum for the water treatment plant; 20 tons of chlorine and three 150 pound cylinders; 2,700 tons of grade No. 4 sealcoat gravel; 61 tons of asphalt; and a year's worth of

Snyder school kids had the right to protest Monday. If you remember, the weather was sub-zero during the Christmas holidays.

Monday, on the first day of spring break, there was snow in the forecast. Happy with the cold weather would be those planning a ski trip to the mountains.

If you think the kids were unhappy about being kept indoors by the elements, you should have talked to some mothers.

Like most major companies, Sun Gas does not encourage long lunch breaks. The attitude generally is to eat lunch, recharge and get back to work.

Former Snyder resident Tom Woolley, district gas engineer now living in Abilene, Friday had lunch with his former boss, Jack Denman, superintendent of the Sun Gas Plant in Snyder.

As they were being seated, Woolley noticed that the zipper in his pants had broken. Later Denman noticed that his luncheon companion was working discreetly to repair the problem.

Denman has a sense of humor about the size of his physical stature, and he soon added to the senior gas engineer's problem. Denman offered a solution, "Don't worry Tom, we'll stay until everyone leaves the restaurant."

The temptation was too great for Denman. He soon invited folks over to the table and starting introducing Woolley. If he didn't rise to greet you, he wasn't been rude.

Denman operates one of the largest and most complicated facilites in West Texas. From time to time, visitors arrive at the site for a tour of the plant.

A few weeks ago, Sun's president, Bob McClements, flew in from Radnor, Pa., for an afternoon show and tell. Denman was pleased with the way the afternoon was handled, and had nothing but praise for his staff.

The next day, Denman was scheduled to be in the Abilene offices where the company brass would be further briefed on regional and district activities. Because of the success of the previous day, Denman was even looking forward to again seeing the company president.

Arriving early for the session, Denman stuck out his hand to greet the president. "Good morning, Charlie," the president said.

"I didn't make as big of impression as I had thought," Jack mused.

Alleged attack prompts arrest

A 36-year-old North Carolina man was being held in the Scurry County Jail Wednesday morning in lieu of $5,000 bond following a reported attempted rape incident.

The incident allegedly occurred around noon Tuesday near Inadale.

Jimmy Lee Hart, a cross-country truck driver from Fairview, N.C., was arrested at 12:16 p.m. Tuesday by sheriff's office personnel, who spotted his truck parked east of Snyder at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop.

Charges against the suspect involve assault with a deadly weapon. These stem from an allegation that he attempted to force a 20-year-old Snyder woman into the sleeper of his truck with a knife while both he and the victim were stopped beside U.S. Highway 84 just northwest of the Scurry-Nolan County line.

Investigators said Wednesday that the victim had apparently met Hart earlier Tuesday morning when he stopped to help fix her pickup which had broken down just east of Roscoe on Interstate 20.

After the repairs were made, reports indicate the woman was following the man's truck while both headed toward Snyder. She said he later indicated for her to stop, and at this point the suspect allegedly attempted to force the woman into the truck.

The woman managed to escape from the scene unharmed and called authorities.

Air France jet is hijacked

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A lone hijacker diverted an Air France plane with 68 people aboard en route from Frankfurt to Paris today and forced it to land in Geneva, police said. Nearly five hours later, he was arrested by Swiss police.

The hijacker, who was armed with a knife, had demanded that the plane be refueled to go to Libya.

Fifty-four passengers and six crew members aboard the Boeing 737 were freed unharmed at 1:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT), Justice Ministry spokesman Ulrich Hubacher said. Seven other passengers — six women and one sick man — were freed earlier.

Hubacher said the hijacker was in custody in a police car at the airport.

Swiss officials said only that the man was about 30 years old and spoke several languages. The hijacker was not immediately identified.

Official demoted not fired

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas prison officials who announced last month that Maj. D.D. French was fired for brutalizing inmates now say the officer was merely demoted.

French, 33, is now a lieutenant and has been transferred from the Darrington Unit at Rosharon to the Pack 1 Unit at Navasota, prison spokesman Rick Hartley told The Houston Post Tuesday.

"That was a mistake," Hartley said of the firing report. "We received some bad information from one of our colleagues and his name (French's) was inadvertently placed on the list as being terminated when in fact he had been demoted and transferred."

Hart campaign says...

Vermont vote is 'threat' to Reagan

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Gary Hart has completed an astonishing week with a better than three-to-one win over Walter Mondale in Vermont's Democratic presidential primary, a victory the Colorado senator's campaign manager says offers a fair warning to President Reagan.

"If I were in the White House tonight, I would be very concerned about the Hart candidacy," said Oliver Henkel, Hart's national campaign manager. "He represents a far more significant threat to the president than does Walter Mondale."

Hart, whose campaign snowballed through northern New England in the past week, captured 71 percent of the vote in Vermont's non-binding primary Tuesday. He won the Maine caucuses on Sunday and the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 28.

Mondale, once the frontrunner, looked south for his comeback, campaigning today in Georgia, Alabama and Florida — three of the nine states holding Democratic presidential primaries and caucuses on "Super Tuesday" next week.

"This is not just a horserace," Mondale said Tuesday night in Tampa, Fla. "This has become a battle for the soul of the Democratic Party and the future of our country."

Hart also watched the returns while in the South, and he immediately embraced indications there was a Republican crossover vote in Vermont. "I intend to defeat Ronald Reagan," he declared.

Although no delegates were at stake in Vermont and the outcome was mainly symbolic, the depth of Hart's victory was dramatic.

Hart appeared to have won every precinct in the state, an accomplishment that not even former President Jimmy Carter achieved in 1980 when he captured 73 percent of the state vote in a Democratic primary against Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Polling conducted of voters by CBS News indicated that Hart drew support from voters under 30 years of age by an 8-1 margin. He also outdrew Mondale among elderly voters by 2-1 and carried the union vote, despite the former vice president's AFL-CIO endorsement.

Despite three successive victories, Hart shunned the front-runner label.

"I've been the dark horse for a year and a half, so why start now," Hart said in an interview.

For Mondale, the loss had not been unexpected, and he sought to put the best face on it, saying he had not really contested Vermont.

"New Hampshire, Maine has hurt. I assume Vermont will hurt," Mondale said.

Mondale said he would now focus exclusively in the South, adding, "We were really not contesting Vermont. We spent little or no money there ... this was one we just couldn't afford to be in."

Henkel said Mondale's statement "flies in the face of reality. They were here and they played hard."

Mondale said Vermont would give Hart momentum, but contended, "You don't elect momentum to the White House. You elect a human being."

With all of Vermont's 264 precincts reporting, Hart had 51,703 votes, or 71 percent, to Mondale's 14,896 votes for 20 percent.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson had 5,677 for 8 percent. By failing to gain 10 percent of the vote for the second straight primary, Jackson now faces the prospect of losing federal matching campaign money in 30 days. To regain eligiblity for federal money, he must win 20 percent in an upcoming state contest.

"If we don't get national funds it would not stop our campaign," Jackson said in Michigan.

Ohio Sen. John Glenn and former Sen. George McGovern weren't on the ballot in Vermont. Glenn kept up a southern campaign schedule while McGovern remained in Massachusetts, where Democrats also hold their primary Tuesday.

In the uncontested Republican voting, President Reagan had 33,132 votes.

McGovern waged a last-minute write-in campaign and hoped for at least 5 percent of the vote. Write-in votes had not been tallied in the unoffical count by the News Election Service.

You and I have dared to pooh-pooh a lot of the alarmists.

And sure enough, Love Canal, dioxin, DDT, and EDB were not the health hazards they were first feared to be.

The National Academy of Sciences in 1970 sounded an alarm about "the green house effect," theorizing that our aerosol spray cans were depleting the earth's ozone layer and we'd shortly be cooked by X-radiation from the sun.

That same National Academy of Sciences now says sorry — false alarm.

Having said that ....

Acknowledging that our media frequently overworries you about the wrong things ....

There is one "poison gas" in many or most American home basements that we should at least know about.

Radium, natually occurring in soil, decays over the years, giving off an invisible radioactive gas called radon.

Enough radon, inhaled with dust particles, can cause lung cancer.

In our drafty houses of yesteryears, most polluted air was constantly swept out and away.

In our modern energy efficient houses there is much less exchange of indoor and outdoor air.

A Wall Street Journal survey of scientists came up with this number: between 2,000 and 20,000 Americans die each year from radon-related lung cancer.

Let's neither ignore nor exaggerate this. The average America home contains only enough radon to reduce the life expectancy of the occupants by 25 days.

Nonetheless, Dr. Bernard Cohen, physicist at the University of Pittsburgh, says: "The average indoor radon dose does five times more damage than all other radiation combined, ten times more than medical X-rays, thousands of times more than the nuclear industry."

That's the "average" home.

Some baements have 200 times that much radon; that's like smoking up to ten packs of cigarettes a day!

Radon levels vary from house to house and place to place. They are so high in the Butte-Anaconda area of Montana that you can't get an FHA loan if indoor radon levels are excessive.

What can you do about it: In a word, ventilate.

Also ...

New foundations should be sealed on the outside; old foundations can be sealed on the inside with epoxy.

Opening doors and windows in summer helps. In winter a heat exchanger exchanges inside and outside air.

Some of us have always preferred sleeping with the bedroom window open; now we know why.

Lost the memories?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 56-year-old woman in perfect health. I maintain a well-organized home and a position as head bookkeeper in a busy office. I'm by no means inactive mentally.

However, I've been noticing my memory is beginning to fail me in the most routine matters. Recently I heard about choline and its benefits for memory loss. Please comment on how it works.

DEAR READER — Don't jump to conclusions. The reason many people start having problems in remembering routine things is because they're not able to concentrate. A person's concentration may decrease because of too many distractions or preoccupations.

A person's memory often will improve remarkably if he starts practicing concentration. Get a good book on "memory" from a book store. It will have a number of exercises to train your memory and concentration to lock your thoughts into your mind rather than rushing through things.

Now, about choline. It's present in your food. Meat is a good source. So are soybeans and soybean products. Your brain uses acetyl choline in the chemical process of memory. But — here's the catch — the choline you swallow may not get through the blood-brain barrier to enter your brain. Unless it gets into the brain it won't help you, even if your memory is deficient because of inadequate amounts of acetyl choline in the brain. Therefore, studies of choline for memory improvement have been disappointing. Scientists now are working on ways to increase acetyl choline within the brain itself. This includes pioneering efforts to transplant tissue such as the adrenal gland into the brain — but I don't think you're quite ready for that.

Meanwhile, I'll try not to forget to send you the Health Letter 14-2, The Aging Mind. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several friends of mine are are taking selenium capsules in addition to vitamins and minerals.

The dictionary says selenium is the byproduct of copper and is used mainly in solar cells and semi-conductors. What do you think of selenium?

DEAR READER — Selenium appears to be essential to many animals and probably to human beings, too. But its exact role hasn't yet been defined. It apparently has some of the same actions as vitamin E. They may be able to substitute for each other in some of the chemical reactions that occur in processing food and in other body chemical actions.

According to some studies, adult humans should take no more than 200 micrograms (mcg) a day if they wished to avoid overexposure. The mixed diet in this country ought to provide a completely adequate amount of selenium. Seafoods, kidney and liver followed by meat are all good sources.

Selenium is one of the basic chemical elements. Like other trace elements, we do need a small amount. But I'm concerned about the habit of consuming mineral supplements. We need so little of these that it's easy to take more than we need. Until we know more about trace metals, I think it's unwise to supplement a normal balanced diet with trace minerals.

Inspector says track used by Amtrak safe

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A former railroad track inspector who was demoted following an Amtrak trail derailment that killed four and injured 69 passengers said he did not slow the train down because he "knew in my mind the track was safe."

Glenn Stafford, at the time a Missouri-Pacific rail inspector, testified Tuesday before investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board. The four-member panel will call 10 witnesses during its two-day investigation which concludes here today.

Stafford's testimony opened the hearing at a Marshall hotel, about 10 miles south of the derailment site in a wooded area of East Texas near the Louisiana border.

Lester Reingold, NTSB public information officer, said the investigation would focus on a section of shattered rail which investigators believe might have caused the derailment.

He said five other employees of Missouri Pacific also testified Tuesday, including track foreman Gradis Devance, trackman Jimmy Jenkins, roadmaster Thomas Chapman and District engineer Jerry Heavin.

"The next step will be the actual accident report, which will be out in three or four months," Reingold said, adding the report will include conclusions from the laboratory report and the investigation at the scene of the accident.

Expected to testify today are C.D. Barton, the chief engineer for track with Missouri-Pacific; Donald Bolt, Director for Standards Research and Tests for Union Pacific; Kenneth Milan, superintendent with Missouri-Pacific; and Dr. Roger Steele, director of metallurgy with the American Association of Railroads, Reingold said.

In his testimony, Stafford said his instincts and 13 years experience as a foreman told him a section of the track still under repair was safe. It was the same section that collapsed under the Amtrak "Eagle."

Stafford said no instructions were given to the Amtrak train to slow its speed because, "in my opinion there was no need. It was safe. It was a judgment factor on my part, but in my 13 years as a foreman, I'd learned the difference between good and bad track."

He added, "I knew in my mind the track was safe."

Stafford said only three of the four bolts needed to secure an "angle bar" brace on the replaced section of rail were in place when the train passed.

Stafford said he watched a freight train pass safely before the passenger train, and saw the track was functioning properly.

Alcoholic chooses own life

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA)—Thirty years ago when she was 14 and failing to be perfect as her father wanted her to be, Karen Casey (a pseudonym) became an alcoholic. "Drinking helped relieve the pain of being human," she says, "but I must stress that my family didn't cause my drinking. The choice to cope that way was mine."

In any case, alcohol didn't dim her efforts to achieve. She did well in high school. Went to Purdue University. Graduated. And along the way, she says, "I married a rip-roaring drunk because people seek others at the same level."

For 12 years, they shared turmoil. "Looking back, I realize I battered him emotionally as much as he did me, but at the time I saw myself as the perfect martyr," she says. He was the one with the blatant drinking problem, she says; she, the pitiable wife whose own drinking appeared mere social. He was unfaithful, she says; she, forebearing. He, the graduate student who, she says, "in his struggle for self-esteem never let me forget I was just a second-grade teacher. I can remember with such pain how totally ignorant I'd feel when we'd get together with his friends. I'd drink desperately to feel better about myself."

Ultimately, to prove she was something, she went back to school for a Ph.D in her husband's own field, American studies, and she did well. So well, she says, in fact, that he fled with another woman. "I used to think my problems would be solved if he were out of my life, but when he left I was reduced to shambles and dove into the bottle," she says. She also lost herself in speed, acid, almost anything she could get her hands on in the street, and started a double life reminiscent of "Looking for Mr. Goodbar."

"Here I was, during the day getting A's in graduate school and teaching courses, while at night I was hanging around bars, getting involved with unsavory men who were great contributors to my alcoholism," she says. "But because I functioned sucessfully during the day, I felt my life was together. And in a crazy way, I felt accepted among the night crowd that was probably having a good laugh about this swinging instructor with the long hair and cowboy boots who got loaded every night."

She functioned like that for three years, despite blackouts and what came to be a "perpetual state of anxiety" that sometimes threatened to keep her housebound. Then, in 1976, a boyfriend wound up in a drug treatment program and she found herself in an allied group for "significant others." "The counselor quickly recognized that I needed Alcoholics Anonymous and at first, I was stunned," she says. "But I was also relieved that maybe there was something wrong that could be helped."

A week later, she joined AA and she's been with it — and sober — ever since. What's more, in December, 1982 she became an author. Her first book, "Each Day a New Beginning" (paperback $5.95), was published by Hazelden, a well-known "chemical abuse treatment facility in Center City, Minn.," which is also, she says, "the largest publisher of literature for people with drug dependencies."

"Each Day a New Beginning" is a daily meditation book designed specifically for women, something no one had ever done before," she says. Although meditation books are common tools of drug recovery programs. In it, each page chronologically represents a day of the year. At the top is a quotation by anyone from Eleanor Roosevelt to women you've never heard of. Then there are some thoughts interpreting the quote and finally, a pertinent maxim.

"So far, the book has sold 120,000 copies to drug treatment centers, AA groups and others, by mail through the publisher and through B. Dalton bookstores," she says. Its success got her thinking about doing another meditation book, only this time for the general public since drug abusers are far from the only people in need of bolstering. The result, "The Promise of a New Day," written with a callaborator from Al Anon, was recently published by Hazelden ($5.95). It, too, contains a year's worth of meditations to be mulled over one-a-day to "help you feel you're not alone and that you really are like all those people on the bus or subway you feel you're not as good as," she says.

The quotes in the new book come from Aristotle, John Lennon, unknowns and some of the sources used in the first book, among others. In all cases, Ms. Casey chose "whatever jarred my feelings when I came across it in the newspaper or in my own library of books." For instance, Oliver Goldsmith is represented on Oct. 24 of the new book with, "The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them." In his case, as in all others, the follow-up interpretation was written "from the heart," she says, and her "bottom lines" are meant to spur and inspire: "Asking for something is risky: I might be refused. But if I don't ever ask, I'll never hear 'yes'"

Each morning, Ms. Casey reads from both her books, meditations on how to confront change, how to live in the present, on all kinds of things. "They help me feel good and get in touch with my personal power," she says. "They're all intended to make you believe you really can make healthy choices for yourself. In fact, my greatest hope is that these books will give hope to people who essentially have none."

Women should know disease

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 77 percent of American women know nothing about osteoporosis even though the degenerative bone condition affects 5 million women in the nation, according to a recent study by R. H. Bruskin Associates.

Osteoporosis is the progressive thinning and weakening of the skeleton which is often characterized by height loss, hip fractures and spinal compression fractures which may result in "dowager's hump."

According to the National Institute of Health, the disease affects 1 out of 4 women after menopause and is associated with some 200,000 hip fractures that occur annually.

Two for one

NEW YORK (AP) — A new book has been published which lists hotel and motel accommodations for two which are available through the country for $35 a night or less.

The Rand McNally book, "Lodgings for Less," also rates the accommodations along with some of the nation's more interesting inns, resorts, cottages and guest ranches.

Kelsey titles today's hand "The Van Winkle Syndrome." The maxim is: "Keep awake on defense."

The hand decided an important team match. The bidding was the same at both tables and both Wests led the spade queen, ducked in dummy. At table one, East sleepily signaled comeon.

West came on, but the boat had sailed. South won that second spade in dummy, drew trumps and played ace and 10 of clubs. West could score only one diamond, one club and one spade, and game was made.

At the other table East was wide-awake. He put his king of spades on West's queen and returned a diamond. West took two quick diamond tricks and waited to score the setting trick with his king of clubs.

I like Kelsey's title even though Rip Van Winkle is a New York state character and Hugh Kelsey is a Scot who probably has never been in the Catskill Mountains.

East should have seen exactly what would be coming if he ducked that first spade and also that there was no danger in playing his king. West clearly needed the Q-J of spades for his double of one heart.

MINI HOT CROSS BUNS

They're the quick-bread variety.

2 cups well-stirred all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground allspice
1-3rd cup butter
½ cup currants
1 large egg
½ cup milk
Confectioners' Sugar Frosting

Stir together flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and allspice. Cut in butter until it is fine. Add currants. Beat egg and milk to blend; stir into flour mixture to form a rough dough. Turn out on a pastry cloth; with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out to an 8- by 8-inch square. Cut into 1-inch squares. Place slightly apart on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until golden brown — about 12 minutes. Mark a small cross with the frosting on top of each. Makes 64.

Pet Adoption Fund Pays For Pooch Protection

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: If you're not an animal lover, skip this letter.

Every year, millions of dogs and cats are abandoned because they're either too expensive (or too much trouble) to keep. A few of the more appealing strays are taken in by kindhearted strangers; the rest are picked up by local animal shelters, or the city or county animal regulation department, and taken to the pound where they are eventually destroyed.

I recently learned about the Pet Adoption Fund, a charitable non-profit California organization that takes in homeless dogs, cats, puppies and kittens, and cares for them until someone adopts them. It never puts an animal "to sleep," and many animals have been rescued from shelters and pounds.

Everyone who adopts a pet must sign an agreement stating that if, for any reason, he can't keep it, he will not give it to another party, take it to the pound or offer it for medical research—he will return it to Pet Adoption.

All Pet Adoption animals will have been spayed or neutered, and they leave with collars, identification tags and specific instructions for care and feeding. Although some animals are purebred, none have price tags, but any size donation is gratefully accepted.

This organization is staffed entirely by dedicated volunteers; every dollar contributed goes for caring for the animals.

If you live in the Los Angeles area and want to adopt a pet, visit: Pet Adoption Fund, 7515 Deering Ave., Canoga Park, Calif. 91303.

If you live elsewhere and want to start a similar humanitarian agency (every city should have one), write to the above address for the fund's booklet. It's free, but please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

And when your ship (or your horse) comes in, be a sport and send a few dollars to this wonderful agency. Like the animals whose lives it saves, it can't live without people who care.

DEAR ABBY: Assuming you were correct in stating that a pet takes on its owner's religion, you advised a cat owner who was half-Christian and half-Jewish to have her cat cremated, then divide the remains equally, giving one half a Jewish funeral and the other half a Christian funeral.

Abby, you should know that cremation is prohibited by Jewish law.

LIVING AND WELL IN INDIAN WELLS, CALIF.

DEAR LIVING: Although Jewish law prohibits cremation, only Orthodox Jews (who constitute a very small percentage of the Jewish population in this country) adhere to that law.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the man who didn't know how to handle his bigoted father-in-law who enjoyed telling "jokes" that put down some ethnic group:

Whenever I hear an ethnic "joke," I say, "That's very funny. I heard the same joke, only the person was ( )," then I insert the ethnic background of the person who told it.

It works every time.

C.G. IN HARTLAND, MICH.

Man thought he was killing mom

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A man on trial for murdering a woman who was found shot to death on a Padre Island National Seashore testified that he killed her because he thought she was his mother.

The defense for David Alan McClure opened its case Tuesday afternoon with McClure's court-appointed attorney, Shannon Salyer, contending McClure is innocent by reason of insanity. In his opening remarks, Salyer said McClure's testimony would show he is "troubled ... with pretty deep problems."

Lynette Thaxton's partially disrobed body was found March 7, 1982. She was 29.

Man sues city over mishandled call

DALLAS (AP) — There is "absolutely no rationale" that would explain why a Dallas Fire Department nurse delayed ambulance service to a dying woman, according to a department supervisor.

Billie Jane Myrick, 42, was taken off dispatch duty and reassigned to clerical duties Tuesday.

Section Chief Mike Jones said Ms. Myrick, one of five nurses who screens calls for the city's Emergency Medical Service, was reassigned because media attention to the incident "has created unbearable pressure on her."

Jones also said the January incident, in which Ms. Myrick argued with the caller before sending an ambulance, was the second time in 10 months a complaint against her was found to be valid.

Both Ms. Myrick and her immediate supervisor violated departmental policies in the Jan. 5 incident, Jones said. The taped conversation was made public by the department this week following a request by Dallas television station KDFW.

The nurse was handling emergency calls when she argued with Larry Boff, who requested an ambulance for his dying stepmother.

Ms. Myrick admonished Boff for "cursing" and demanded to speak to the sick woman before dispatching an ambulance. Officials said the call lasted about eight minutes, and by the time paramedics arrived, 60-year-old Lillian Boff was dead.

Boff has filed a claim against the city asking for $15,000 in compensatory damages and $300,000 in punitive damages.

"I sure as hell hope this isn't a common thing. God forbid I have to use it again ... It cost my mother's life," Boff told The Dallas Morning News on Tuesday.

Ms. Myrick refused comment Tuesday, the Dallas Times Herald reported. Attempts by The Associated Press to reach the nurse were unsuccessful.

The incident was the second in Ms. Myrick's 10 months with the department in which she refused to send an ambulance, Jones said.

"That number, in that amount of time, is a problem," Jones said. "We're betwixt and between on this. When she's good, she's great. When she's not on, we all pay."

Although officials acknowledged that Ms. Myrick and her immediate supervisor, Donald Greene, incorrectly handled the call, they said that does not mean the city is responsible for Mrs. Boff's death.

"Even if we had been there sooner I don't know if anyone could have saved her. We'll probably never know that," said Bobby Moore, head of the city's ambulance service.

Earlier, Ms. Myrick was placed on two days administrative leave and received counseling on appropriate department policies, Jones said. She returned to her job after a one-week vacation "because I believed she was ready to do her job," Jones said.

Jones said Ms. Myrick probably will be reassigned to her job as a screener "when the publicity dies down.

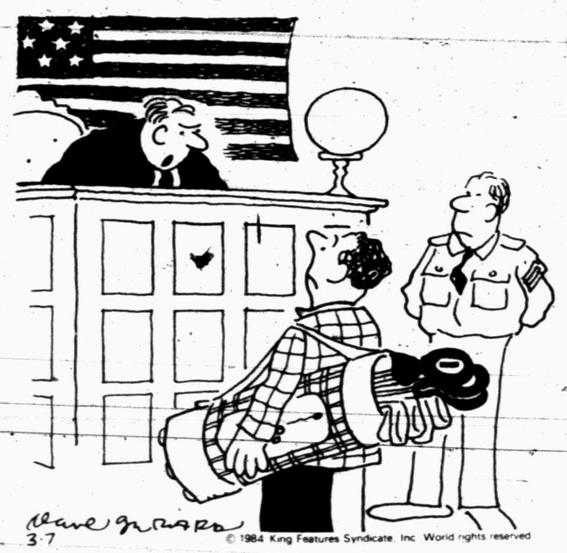

"It is a stressful job to begin with and certainly the media attention has introduced a lot more stress into the situation. We don't feel comfortable right now putting her back on the job," Jones said.

One prior complaint involving Ms. Myrick was determined to be valid after it was investigated, Jones said.

In the incident in December, a barber shop employee called and requested an ambulance be sent to aid a man unable to get up from a barber chair. Ms. Myrick did not send an ambulance, Jones said.

After a complaint was lodged with the department, an investigation revealed the man had had hip surgery a short time before the incident and required additional surgery after the incident, according to Jones.

States checking doctors' credentials for fakes

By The Associated Press

Several states are checking physicians' qualifications and others are re-examining their medical licensing procedures following published reports that up to 3,000 doctors nationwide may be working under phony credentials.

"I think it's fair to say we'll approach this a little more cautiously in the future," Delaware Deputy Attorney General Edward Kafader, counsel to the Board of Medical Practice, said Tuesday.

The New York Times reported Sunday that federal and state officials have launched a nationwide investigation into reports that up to 3,000 people may be working as doctors or seeking medical certification with false credentials, many from Caribbean medical schools.

According to the report, the probe was sparked by the U.S. Postal Service's discovery last year of extensive trafficking in fraudulent credentials. Federal prosecutors recently disclosed that a Peruvian living in Alexandria, Va., had admitted taking some $1.5 million from 165 people in order to obtain fake documents for them, mainly from a school in the Dominican Republic.

An informal survey by The Associated Press on Tuesday showed that at least nine states have responded by checking to see if the individuals listed by the U.S. Postal Service have been licensed, by further checking credentials of foreign school graduates or by re-examining the thoroughness of evaluation procedures. They are Washington, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, New York, Illinois, Delaware, Minnesota and Massachusetts.

The most extensive investigation is taking place in New York, where officials said at least three psychiatric residents have already been fired for falsifying credentials. A resident is a medical school graduate in training to get a medical license, usually in a specialty.

Heroes honored with anniversary ceremony

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Almost 200 people crowded into an historic chapel to commemorate the 148th anniversary of the fall of the Alamo and remember the men "who died for freedom."

A pair of bugles blew a mournful "Taps," reverberating off the Alamo's pockmarked stone walls, and children lit candles to honor the 188 men who gave their lives for Texas' independence.

Before dawn on March 6, 1836, a force of 5,000 troops led by Mexican general Santa Anna stormed the mission fortress and killed the men, who had staved off the army for 13 days.

"Many words have been written about what happened here — some fanciful and most speculative," said retired Army Lt. Gen. John R. McGiffert.

"One thing is certain," he said during Tuesday's ceremony. "The mention of the word 'Alamo' to an American or a foreigner means an indomitable spirit of courage, devotion and selfless sacrifice."

The Alamo Mission Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas organized the 148th anniversary ceremony to memorialize the volunteers who came from 20 states and six nations to help protect the Alamo, known now as the "cradle of Texas liberty."

Members of an honor guard from Lackland Air Force Base carried flags representing each state and country as the roll call of the dead was read.

"Each of us value our freedom and, unfortunately, each of us tend to take it for granted in the course of our daily lives," McGiffert said.

"There are always those among us who proclaim loudly that neither freedom nor anything else is worth dying for," he said. "It seems almost sacrilege to even whisper here in the Alamo the words, 'Nothing is worth dying for.'"

McGiffert evoked the historic names — James Bowie, Davey Crockett, William Barret Travis — as he sketched the tale of the Alamo, told how men who could have run chose instead to take a stand.

11-year-old boy brings food to people on street

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In subzero temperatures and biting winds, the dark mass on the fire escape barely moved.

But when 11-year-old Trevor Ferrell approached, carrying a blanket and asking 'Want some soup?' the form became human, a thin man who stretched out his hand for the soup and then raised it to the boy in a respectful salute.

"He's shy. He doesn't like other people around too much," Trevor said later of the man he calls "Scape," one of the many street people Trevor visits almost every night.

The visits, which Trevor's father has nicknamed "Trevor's mission," started with an evening news program in early December that showed the plight of street people scrounging for food or camping atop the meager warmth of street vents.

Trevor, who lives comfortably with two sisters and a brother in Gladwyne, a well-off suburb of Philadelphia, wondered how those people could survive.

"I wasn't sure he knew they really existed," said his father, Frank, 43, who owns a small electronics firm. "So we decided to take him into the city to show him."

A few days later the family piled into their station wagon and drove into Philadelphia, bringing a blanket to give to the needy. When Trevor spotted a figure lying in a doorway, his father stopped.

"My dad went with me," Trevor recalled. "I was kind of scared. I didn't know what would happen." His mother, Janet, said she and the other children stayed in the car.

"I remember he had white socks," Trevor said of the man. "We gave him the blanket and a pillow. He said, 'God bless you.'"

At Trevor's insistence, the station wagon returned to Philadelphia for another visit that week, and another the next week. The visits grew more frequent, and now Trevor and his parents come almost every night, searching the streets for people who need help.

"It isn't always easy to get going," Mrs. Ferrell said, "but we're always glad we came."

Instead of one blanket, they now bring dozens of blankets and pillows, coats and jackets, large thermos bottles of soup and coffee.

Hub caps said stolen

Snyder police are investigating a misdemeanor theft report involving stolen hub caps filed Tuesday.

James Tully of 3606 Jacksboro Ave. called police at 1:43 a.m. to report four wire-type hub caps had been stolen from his daughter's car. The hub caps, valued at $180, are thought to have been taken between 7 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

City officers also arrested a 20-year-old man on a misdemeanor theft warrant issued in connection with the Dec. 13, 1983 theft of a water bed from the Margaret Arriga residence.

Three subjects were jailed for public intoxication Tuesday evening.

wire fence on either side of the street extension while it is under construction. The bid was let to the local firm of Betco Supply Corp. It was some $61 higher than the low bid, submitted by Bloxom & Son of Breckenridge. Due to the small bid difference, the council opted for the local estimate.

The council also authorized city staffers to seek bids to have this fencing built, although council members instructed the staff not to initiate this work until the actual street construction phase was near underway.

Reach regional semifinals...

Duster defense comes through

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

MIDLAND – Western Texas College's Dusters had their problems here Tuesday, but it might be hard to convince Cisco of that.

Despite the lack of a consistant outside shooting game, the Dusters methodically ran up an 18-point lead on the Lady Wranglers, then coasted to a 62-55 victory in the first-round of the women's Region V Tournament.

The Dusters, who set a school record of 27 wins with the victory, are slated to take on McLennan Community College in the semifinals at 7 tonight. McLennan, the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference top seeded team, defeated Amarillo 75-72.

McLennan was the only Northern Conference team to survive the first round. In other games Tuesday, Howard defeated Cooke County 83-71 and Odessa drilled Ranger 77-45. Howard and Odessa play in tonight's other semifinal at 9. The championship game is slated for 7 p.m. Thursday.

Despite having beaten Cisco on three earlier occasions this season, the Dusters came out looking tight and tentative, and it especially showed in their outside game. Sophomore standout Mary Nell Clayton was just one of 12 from the floor in the first half while freshman guard Rhonda Hoelting was two of five. That would have devastated many teams, but Western was able to rely on its inside game offensively and a total team defensive effort.

"We have a lot of confidence in our defense," said Coach Joe Cushing. "Offensively we weren't shooting real well early. We certainly didn't play as well as we'll have to tomorrow (Wednesday) night. But I was pleased. We played good defense and they weren't able to do the things they wanted to do either."

Western held Cisco's 5-10 Barbara Williams to just 11 points - almost half of her average - and virtually took away the Wranglers' inside game.

Meanwhile, the Dusters went inside to 6-2 freshman Clara Campbell, who had 20 points on the night, and to 5-11 Renvy Evans, who scored 14.

"We were able to get the ball into Speed (Campbell) and she had a real good game. Renvy also had a good game and I'm real glad to see that," said Cushing.

Cisco led only once in the game, 7-6, and was dominated throughout the second half. The contest remained close through most of the first half, until Evans and Lyndy French scored the final two buckets of the half to put WTC up 37-28.

Cisco cut that to seven points early in the second half but Campbell came up with a three-point play and Evans added another bucket as Western took a 12-point advantage. The Dusters slowly pulled away, and when French and Campbell popped the hoop for six unanswered points with 6:30 to go, the lead reached 18.

"I guess we were just trying too hard," said Hoelting of WTC's first half problems. "The second half we got some quick buckets and that got us started. We've been more of a second half team all season. It was the first game of a big tournament and it's always hard until you get the feel of a place."

"I think we'll respond Wednesday. I think we'll rise to the occasion; I really do," added Cushing. "We had the jitters. Our freshmen were having some problems adjusting and I think that's why Mary Nell (Clayton) was having a tough time. As a sophomore she was wanting to lead and she was pushing too hard."

Western was led by Campbell's 20 points and 9 rebounds. Evans had 14 points while Clayton scored 10 and had 6 boards and Karen Kuykendall added 6 points and a 8 rebounds. French came off the bench for 8 points and 5 rebounds. Hoelting scored 4 and had 6 assists.

The Dusters were 26 of 71 from the field and 10 of 18 from the line.

Cisco, 20-12, got 11 points each from Williams and Nena Barber. Williams also pulled down 13 rebounds. Nancy Butler had 8 points and Ester Mendez 7. The Lady Wranglers were 20 of 61 from the field and 15 of 18 from the stripe.

DUSTERS ADVANCE – Coach Joe Cushing's Western Texas College Dusters turned in a fine defensive performance to stop Cisco 62-55 in the first round of the Women's Region V Tournament Tuesday. The Dusters, now 27-7 on the season, will take on McLennan Community College at 7 tonight. See related article, this page. Davis' Westerners set MIDLAND -- Coach Barry Davis won't come out and say it was home cookin' but the last time his Westerners played McLennan Community College the Highlanders made 31 freethrows. Western, which outscored the opponent 33 field goals to 20, only stepped up to the line five times.

The result was an 81-79 victory for McLennan. Understandably, Western is looking forward to playing the 'Landers again Thursday when the Men's Region V Tournament tips off at Chaparral Center here.

Davis said the Westerners aren't looking for revenge, but they are glad to get the opportunity to play McLennan again.

"It always is nice to get a chance. MCC has improved a lot. We've improved a lot. I think right now the biggest motivation for us is we're still playing basketball in March and we want to keep playing," said the coach.

No one expects McLennan to go to the line 31 times but "If they do I hope we'll at least get a chance to shoot 32," Davis laughed.

Western takes on McLennar at 2 p.m. in Chaparral Center, following a noon contest which pits Amarillo and Ranger. Winners of the two contests vie again at 7 p.m. Friday. In other regional action Thursday, Odessa plays Texas State Technical Institute at 5 and Howard College takes on Grayson at 9.

The Women's Region V Tournament championship game game falls in between, at 7 o'clock.

The regional appearance is Western's first since the 1979-80 season when Western went on to win the NJCAA National Tournament.

Starters for WTC will be sophomores Fred Johnson (6-7), Larry Banks (6-5), Richie Fells (6-3), Eugene Lewis (6-7) and Billy Chambers (5-10).

Golfers ready for tournament

SAN MARCOS -- Western Texas College will join some tough company in the Southwest Texas State University Invitational Golf Tournament, scheduled to begin here Thursday.

The 36-hole tournament will continue through Friday. The tourney will be held at Woodcreek Country Club.

"It will be a real tough field," said WTC Coach Dave Foster. "McLennan, Sam Houston, Southwest Texas, Stephen F. Austin and Texas Wesleyan all have real strong teams."

Other teams entered include Angelo State, Temple, San Jacinto North, Mary Hardin Baylor, Paris Junior College, Abilene Christian, South Plains and Jacksonville Junior College.

Tigers stumble; host Steers today

SAN ANGELO -- Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers suffered their second loss of the 1984 season here Tuesday, falling to San Angelo Central 3-1.

The Tigers, now 2-2, will play their first home game of the season today at 4, hosting Big Spring at the SHS practice field. Moffett Field, undergoing extensive renovation, is not yet ready for play.

"We did a good job everywhere but at the plate," said Lewis of Tuesday's loss. "We just didn't have the sticks."

Paul Tate took the loss in four and one-third innings. William Cotton relieved for the final one and two-thirds. The Tiger pitchers allowed only five hits and recorded eight strikeouts, but didn't have the offense to back them up.

San Angelo got all of its runs in the fifth inning. Snyder got its run in the seventh. The Tigers, who got two of their three hits in the first stanza, left men stranded in the first, third, sixth and seventh innings.

Charles Bollinger rapped two singles for Snyder. Norman Malone got the other.

Lewis said he would start Bollinger (0-1) on the mound today.

Tech, A&M and Rice win

by The Associated Press

Rice Coach Tommy Suitts says everything from here on out is just "icing on the cake."

Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Rice iced first-round comers in the Southwest Conference post-season tournament Tuesday night, sending Baylor, Texas and Texas Christian home from the party early.

Rice used a second-half slow-down game to defeat TCU 64-52 in Houston, Tech overcame a shaky first half to down Baylor 63-48 at Lubbock, and Texas A&M got a career-high 25 points from freshman Winston Crite in its 75-54 win over Texas in College Station.

In the second round Friday night in Houston's Summit, A&M meets Southern Methodist, which took a bye through the first round of the tournament. That game will be followed by a matchup between Tech and Rice.

The Owls, 12-16 for the season, were leading the Frogs 47-44 with 8:54 to play when they went into a slowdown offense and gradually pulled into a commanding lead.

Tyrone Washington, who had 14 points for Rice, hit a bucket, Cunningham added two free throws and Tony Barnett completed a slam dunk and free throw to spurt the Owls to a 54-48 lead with 4:21 to play.

TCU freshman Carven Holcombe led his team, which ended the season at 11-17 overall, with 21 points, including 17 in the second half and eight in a row over the closing minutes.

Although the final margin wasn't close, Texas Tech struggled for three quarters against Baylor. After falling behind 19-15 with 6:33 remaining in the first half, Tech used six points by Bubba Jennings, who had a game-high 17, and a layup by Vince Taylor, who scored a season-high 16 to forge a 27-23 lead with 2:44 left.

Tech is now 17-11 overall. Baylor ended at 5-23.

"The next game will be totally different for us," said Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "We've got to start all over tomorrow."

The Aggies scored five quick points to open the second half against Texas, breaking open a tight contest on the way to their eighth straight win over Texas and their third for the season.

A&M is 14-14 for the year. Texas finished at 7-21.

Bass Club notes

Snyder Bass Club held its first tournament of 1984 at Lake Colorado City last month with Tommy Hood taking top honors.

The club will hold a regular meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Snyder National Bank community room. Everyone interested in bass fishing is invited to attend.

Tooter McClurg was the Big Bass champion of the tournament, sticking a four-pound, seven and one-half ounce bass. Hood had the top stringer, weighing 7-½. McClurg's single catch of 4-7½ took second honors in total weight also.

Other places were, 3. H.W. Cargile, 3-0; 4. T.C. Love, 2-1; 5. Larry Blumenstock, 1-13; 6. Rick Howard, 1-2; 7. Larry House, 1-1; 8. Bob Dennis, 15 oz.; and 9. David Gilliland, 12 oz.

This month's tournament will be held March 10-11 at Oak Creek.

THE COST OF CAR OWNERSHIP

Mid-size models show greatest decrease

(Source: The Hertz Corporation) NEA GRAPHIC Moffitt Cecil

To motorists the operating costs — including fuel, maintenance, and other expenses — fell last year for most new cars, especially for mid-size models. Only the largest and smallest new models — standards and subcompacts — experienced an operating-cost increase.

Prayer compromise is offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders, seeking to find a version of a constitutional school-prayer amendment that can win the needed two-thirds support in the Senate, are pushing a proposed compromise that would permit silent as well as public prayer in public schools.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., chief architect of the proposed compromise, said he would seek a quick vote on the measure. But opponents have vowed to block it.

Unanimous consent of senators would be needed to take up the new proposal. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., leading the opposition, said he would formally oppose Baker's attempt.

"I would certainly not expect to see a vote on any constitutional amendment for the next several weeks," Weicker said.

The offer of a compromise came late Tuesday in the second day of Senate debate on the emotionally charged issue.

The proposal now before the Senate, supported strongly by Baker and by President Reagan, would authorize institutional, spoken prayer throughout the nation's public schools. The new version, which Baker called "a synthesis of ideas," would also permit local school authorities to allow time for silent prayer — which Baker has opposed.

Joining Baker with the new version were Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who had earlier endorsed the silent prayer alternative, Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-Ga., and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

However, a GOP leadership aide, who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified by name, said it was still not clear whether the proposed compromise could muster the needed two-thirds votes — or 67 votes — to approve a constitutional amendment.

Aides to Baker said that, under the compromise, children would likely be responsible for saying their own prayers — whether spoken or private.

And, the new version states that the government could not compel local school authorities to have a prayer period.

Weicker said he will oppose all efforts to amend the Constitution to provide for prayer.

"A child is free to pray today — there's total freedom," Weicker said.

The new version of the amendment reads:

"Nothing in the Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group, vocal or silent prayer in public schools or other public institutions. No person shall be required by the United States or any state to participate in prayer. Neither the United States nor any state shall compose or mandate the words of any prayer to be said in public schools. The authorization by the United States or any state of equal access to the use of public facilities by volunteer religious groups shall not constitute an establishment of religion."

One fugitive gunned down

MARION, N.C. (AP) — One of two escaped Tennessee convicts who vowed not to be taken alive was shot and killed this morning after wounding a state trooper, officials said.

Ronald Lee Freeman, 41, a convicted double murderer, was killed, according to Forest City Police Chief Tom McDevitt and Russ Edmenston, a spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Bill inquiries 'up' for water

Snyder city staffers told council members Tuesday they are experiencing a substantial increase in questions from local water customers regarding "too high" water bills.

Carolyn House, who is in charge of the city's computerized water billing department, characterized these complaints as increasing "about 75 percent."

These incidents increased following a water bill questioned to the council at the February meeting.

Regarding that bill, which totaled for the month of December some $119, Councilman Don Gressett commented that he is "convinced the (water) meter was not at fault."

House said that many water customers have experienced higher billings lately, but she said many are linked to the period of harsh winter weather which occurred here during the holidays.

She pointed to water leaks caused from frozen pipes, saying "It's hard to imagine how much water can be lost with a leak."

During the discussion, local man Ronnie Anderson brought up another questioned bill, one totaling some $400 for water consumed during January.

House explained that the substantial water use was detected by city staffers, who in turn contacted the customer. House said subsequent readings indicated the residence had used 25,400 gallons in two days.

Anderson said he had experienced what he called a "small" leak in a toilet. Otherwise, he said he had been unable to find a leak in his home.

Council members asked Anderson to have his plumbing system further inspected — a check which they asked city personnel to participate in.

In addition, they said they would pull the water meter to Anderson's residence to be inspected by city staffers.

Lawyer, killer plead guilty

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP) — A young lawyer and the killer she helped escape from a psychologist's office before they spent nearly five months on the run pleaded guilty today to escape charges in a plea bargain.

Lawyer Mary P. Evans, 27, pleaded guilty to escape in return for a suspended sentence of one-to-three years. As a condition for probation, she must have psychiatric treatment.

Charges of aggravated kidnapping and armed robbery against her were dropped as part of the agreement.

Convict William Timothy Kirk, 37, pleaded guilty to escape and armed robbery and agreed to accept consecutive sentences of five and 35 years in prison. An aggravated kidnapping charge was dropped.

Criminal Court Judge James B. Scott scheduled a sentencing hearing for March 27 — the day the couple was to have gone on trial. He said the recommended sentences are "not binding on this court."

Reagan's son seeks record

SEATTLE (AP) — President Reagan's eldest son, Mike, will be gunning for another powerboat record — this time on a 700-mile endurance run from Ketchikan, Alaska, to Seattle, for the benefit of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Reagan, 38, a California businessman, told a news conference Tuesday he hopes to raise $500,000 during his "Assault on the Inside Passage" June 8.
