Reagan names Baker chief of staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan recruited former Sen. Howard Baker as his new chief of staff on Friday as he bid to rebuild an administration badly damaged by the Iran-Contra affair.

Baker replaced Donald Regan, who quit after weeks of pressure and a day after a critical report by the Tower commission. In Congress, Reagan's nominee to become head of the CIA was apparently in trouble, another potential casualty.

Even before the White House announcement late Friday afternoon, word of the replacement of Regan by the popular Baker spread from Capitol Hill. Baker said later at a news conference that in accepting the job he was ending his efforts to win the Republican presidential nomination in 1988.

Earlier in the day, Republican congressional leaders had met at the White House with Reagan, saying afterward that the commission's sharp criticism of the president's arms-length management style had left him with a new awareness that he must take charge more aggressively.

■ Vice President George Bush reiterates that trading arms for hostages is "clearly wrong" — 5A

Regan's departure had been rumored for weeks, for reasons ranging from his handling of the aftermath of the Iran-Contra disclosures to reported disagreements with first lady Nancy Reagan.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who replaced Baker as Senate Republican leader when Baker left in 1984 to pursue the presidency, called the Tennesseean "the right man at the right time at this critical period for the White House."

Others on Capitol Hill said the appointment was a wise move at a time when congressional unhappiness about the White House handling of the Iran-Contra affair was rising.

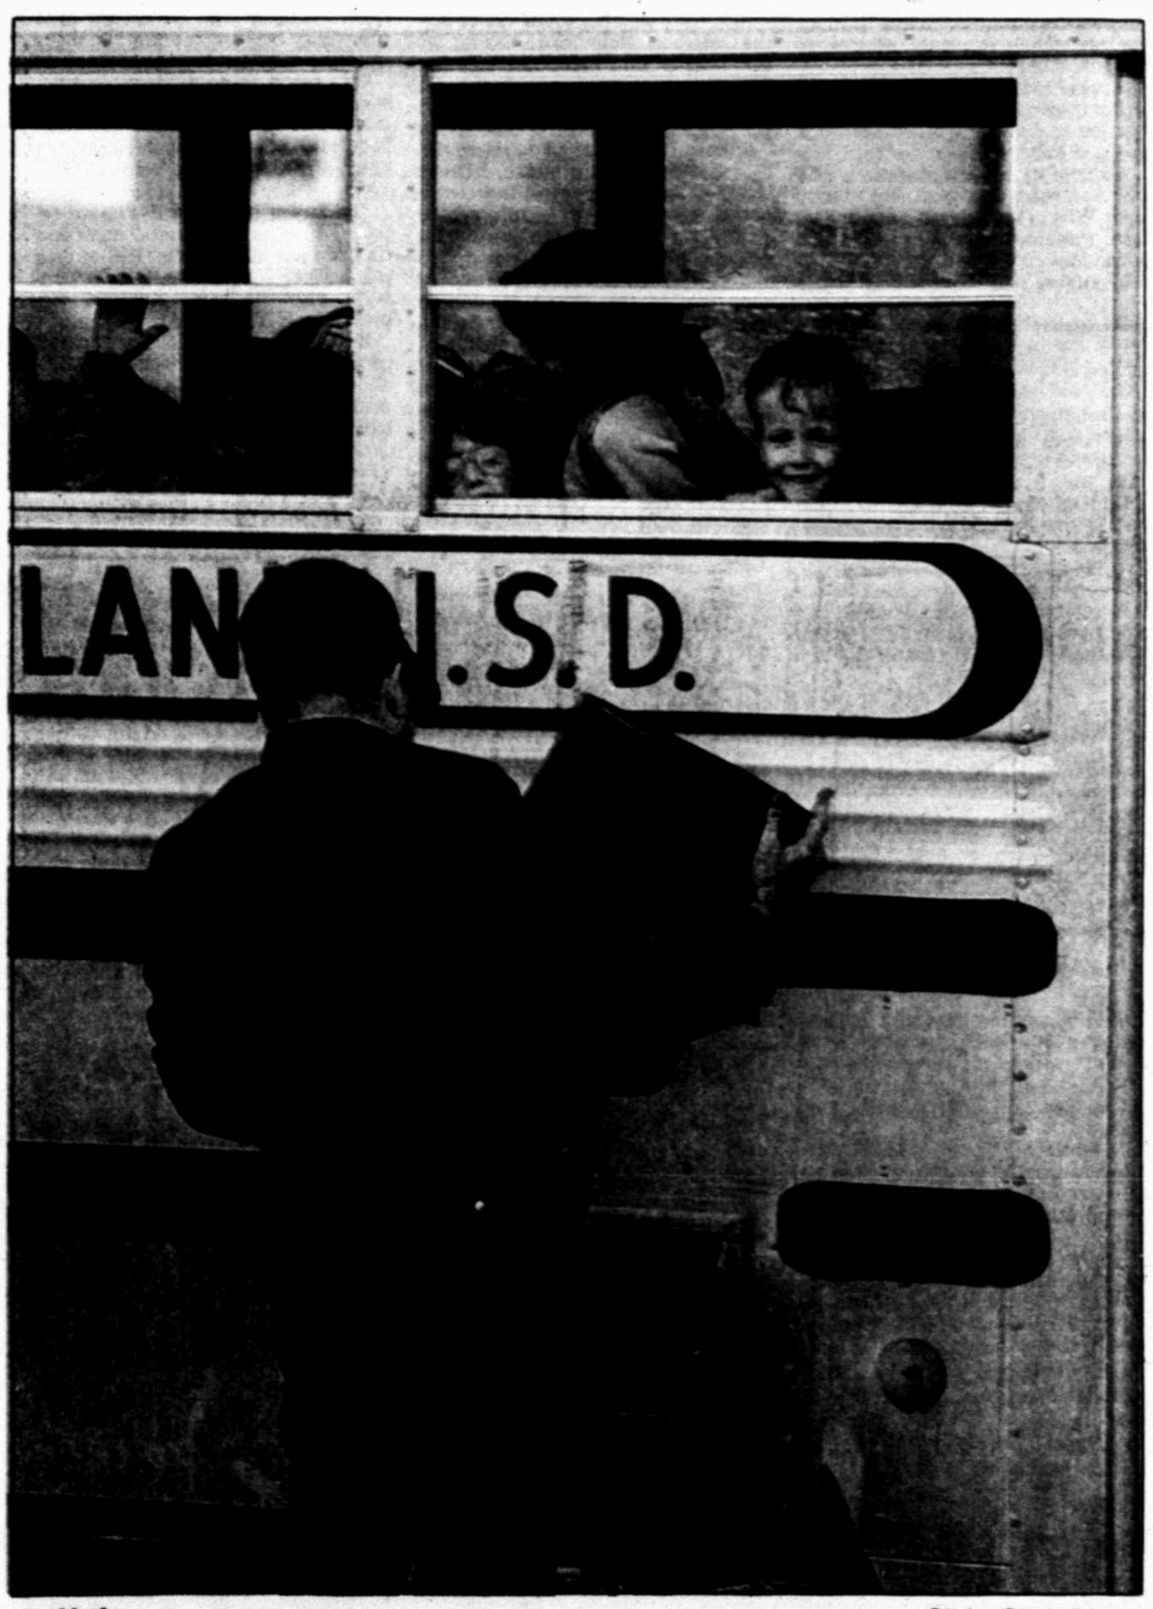

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said earlier in the day that his informal survey of 20 or 30 senators indicated Reagan's nomination of Robert Gates to be CIA director was "in deep trouble" because "a lot of senators feel they've been lied to by this administration in this whole Iran affair and Gates will pay the price."

And Dole said he had told Reagan concerning Gates, "I think if there's an early vote he's in trouble."

Reagan has yet to comment on the report and was said by Dole to be one-quarter of the way through it.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "The president is rightfully angry about the mismanagement described in this report and he intends to take action as soon as possible...I would say he is determined and eager to set the administration back on course."

Lawmaker: Baker could give boost to oil industry

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

HOBBS — Bringing the dire consequences facing the U.S. petroleum industry to the top of the national agenda is the biggest challenge facing oil men, Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., said Friday night.

It's a challenge that could get a boost from former Sen. Howard Baker's appointment as White House chief of staff, Bingaman told members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. "This appointment may open up the possibility of new ideas gaining acceptance within the administration," the senator said.

His comments came as a preview of today's U.S. Senate Energy Oversight Committee field hearing that is expected to draw more than 4,000 attendees to Hobbs High School's Tasker Arena.

A rally, including a motorcade of hundreds of pieces of idled oil field equipment, was scheduled to coincide with the Senate hearing as a means of drawing attention to the plight of petroleum and associated industries.

Bingaman, New Mexico's junior senator, attended a similar hearing in Lafayette, La., last month. He said that event "galvanized support for the industry within the community and around the state as well as serving as a step in building a national constituency for energy issues."

Bingaman will preside over the committee hearing, which also will include Sens. Pete Domenici, D-N.M., and Bennett Johnson, D-La. Witnesses are expected to include Reps. Joe Skeen and Manuel Lujan — both New Mexico Republicans — as well as industry leaders and regulators from New Mexico and Texas.

PBPA president Charles Perry, who will testify this morning on behalf of area independent operators, said of Bingaman Friday night, "We have no better friend in the U.S. Senate."

Bingaman outlined his plans for introducing a package of four oil and gas relief provisions within the next two weeks. His proposed legislation would:

Clements says Texas in third place in race for coveted supercollider

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, who just returned from a five-day lobbying trip to Washington D.C., said Friday that Texas is in third place in the race for the multi-billion-dollar atom smasher project.

Clements, who met Monday with Energy Secretary John Herrington, said California and Illinois are ahead of Texas for the coveted Supercolliding Superconducter, or SSC.

"At this point it looks to me like we're No. 3 on this list, but we are on the final list," the governor said, noting that California is first on the list. "I think it has to do with the availability of federal laboratories out there that have existed for 40 or 50 years, and they're trying to make the case that what we need to do is just add to what we've got. And I think that we can counteract that."

The governor, however, would not reveal exactly what Herrington told him about the contest for the atom smasher, saying, "I'm not going to share a privileged discussion about who shot John with any of the press."

Clements remained optimistic that Texas can move up the list and lure the atom smasher. "There's a lot of conversation about the advantage that California and Illinois have over us," he said. "But you see, I don't have to believe that."

Murderer gets 99-year sentence

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A Midland prosecutor said Friday that the book on a brutal ambush and slaying almost five years old is "written" and "closed" after a jury Friday handed down a 99-year sentence to the killer of a 45-year-old furniture salesman.

Midlander Jackie Dorn, 32, was the last of four men tried for the robbery and murder of Wylie Randolph Wilson by District Attorney Al Schorre, who said he was "tired and relieved" after the seven-man, five-woman jury delivered the sentence.

Dorn also received a 20-year-sentence for the robbery of Wilson, who was found dead June 10, 1982, on a southeast Midland County lease road.

Dorn will not be eligible for parole until 2007, Schorre said. The convicted murderer showed no emotion when the verdict and sentence were read by 142nd State District Judge Pat Baskin.

"It's taken a long time and a lot of hard work by the sheriff's office and other people who worked on this case," Schorre said outside the courtroom. "We're extremely pleased that we got the maximum punishment on both cases, but we felt the facts warranted it."

After the jury took less than 90 minutes to find Dorn guilty, defense attorney Allen McFall said, "In spite of the verdict, in which I'm disappointed, I still support the jury system."

Dorn was accused of smashing Wilson's skull with a tire tool or other metal weapon June 9, 1982, after he, James Chambers, and twin bothers Elroy and Leroy McKee carried out a plan to rob the salesman of jewelry and cash.

The attack occurred outside the now-demolished Kingsway Motel, 3801 W. Wall St., according to testimony.

Nineteen-year-old entrepreneur discovers success can be sweet

CHICAGO (AP) — When she was 11, Kim Merritt's grandmother bought her three $1 chocolate molds. At 19, her Kim's Khocolates factory is projecting gross revenues of nearly $250,000 on her custom-molded chocolates.

"I don't consider this so successful. I'm nowhere near where I plan to be," she said Friday.

Ms. Merritt is part of a new wave of young entrepreneurs using energy and pluck to turn their ideas into profitable businesses. One-third of all new companies started in 1985 were owned by people under 30, government figures show.

Ms. Merritt was one of 100 young entrepreneurs honored Friday, the opening day of a convention of the Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs and the Young Entrepreneurs Organization.

The convention has attracted about 1,000 people, said Verne Harnish, the organization's national director.

Among those attending are "your T-shirt manufacturers, your pin companies. They run the gamut," Harnish said.

The most successful of the 100 young honorees, 20-year-old Barry Minkow, had to leave the conference for a business trip to New York, he said.

Minkow was 15 when he founded his Reseda, Calif.-based carpet-cleaning company, ZZZZ Best Co., Harnish said.

The company is expected to gross $40 million this year, he said.

ZZZZ stock rose to a new high Thursday in the New York over-the-counter market, from $8.87 to $10.

As far as most of the young superachievers are concerned, success is no secret. In the words of Ms. Merritt: "Never give up. Plan out your goals. And never take 'no' for an answer."

Ms. Merritt divides her time between the factory in her hometown of Cumberland, Md., and nearby Washington, working a 9 a.m. to midnight schedule.

"We're developing a gourmet line. And I'm looking into franchising retail stores. You know, a McDonald's-type situation," she said.

The candies are sold at supermarkets and candy stores, she said, and also are catching on with corporations as special executive calling cards or souvenirs.

IRS will introduce second W-4 form

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service plans to introduce a second W-4 form, giving taxpayers two choices of how to calculate the amount of federal income tax withheld from their paychecks, an IRS official said Friday.

The IRS, peppered with complaints since unveiling a new four-page W-4 package last November, promised that the second form, to be introduced on Monday, will be considerably less confusing.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said every employee would be allowed to choose which form to use.

For millions of taxpayers, the longer form would increase chances that the taxes withheld would be close to their actual tax liability.

The shorter version would be much easier to calculate but, the official said, there would be a greater chance that too much or too little tax was withheld, especially for those with non-wage income.

Under the 1986 tax overhaul, every person who works for another is required to file a W-4 by Oct. 1. The IRS has cautioned that a worker who waits until the deadline to fill out the form risks underwithholding, which could result in having to pay a penalty.

IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs, in answering complaints from Congress about the W-4 problems, promised to look for a way to waive those penalties for taxpayers who conscientiously try to have the right amount withheld but fail because the form is too confusing.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee that oversees the IRS, had said, "The new W-4 form is a disaster."

Man gets probation for embezzlement

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 31-year-old former Midland letter carrier, who maintained that he was a "victim of circumstances," was placed on probation Friday for embezzlement of a letter

"I'm just sorry that it happened," the ex-carrier, Gary A. Thomas, told the sentencing judge, U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

Thomas was convicted of the offense by a federal jury in Midland.

In other court proceedings, Bunton sentenced an admittedly guilty armed robber to 30 years in prison, ordered a 26-year-old Midland bank embezzler to serve six months in a jail-like facility, sentenced a convicted dope dealer to 12 years in prison, and ordered an illegal alien to one year in prison for possession of a firearm.

Thomas, who maintained his innocence, was convicted of opening a first-class letter, which United States postal inspectors had planted in his mail last Sept. 18. A mini-transmitter, designed to go into an "alarm mode" when money was pulled from the letter, was placed in the envelope by inspectors.

Bunton, who sentenced Thomas to five years probation and fined him $1,000, said he recognized that Thomas' "fellow church members and family have all written glowing letters" on the convicted man's behalf.

But Bunton told Thomas that had he been on the jury, "I, too, would have found you guilty."

The judge noted that Thomas' record was "excellent."

In the armed-robbery case, Bunton sentenced Shelby David Shifflett, 36, of Maryland to 30 years in prison for holding up West Texas savings and loan associations last December and January.

In exchange for his guilty pleas, the government dismissed an indictment against Shifflett for the armed robbery of the San Antonio Savings Association in the San Antonio suburb of Helotes last Nov. 17.

Shifflett was arrested by the FBI in mid-January in his Odessa motel room. He was charged with taking at gun-point $1,186 from the Odessa Savings Association on Dec. 19 and with taking $3,900 from the Andrews Savings Association on Jan. 9. Shifflett claimed that he used a "toy gun" in those armed robberies.

"There's no reason for me to try to debate the charges," Shifflett told the judge. "I did them, and I'm ready to be punished."

Bunton reminded Shifflett that "this is not the wild West. Your past record indicates that you cannot stay out of prison."

A 28-year-old drug dealer, Ralph Falcon Jr., was sentenced to 12 years in prison. He was convicted by a federal jury for using a telephone to facilitate possession of the hallucinogen, LSD, possessing the drug with intent to distribute it, and conspiracy to possess LSD.

Court testimony indicated that Falcon had been commissioned to set up a Midland "branch" for a San Francisco-based LSD manufacturer.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, which investigated the case, said Falcon worked for an organization that "encompassed seven states" and was expanding its operations in Texas.

Falcon, who admitted he dealt in drugs "because of the money," said those who deal in drugs for the money "have lost their whole self-worth, their whole self-esteem."

His attorney, H.W. "Woody" Leverett of Midland, noted that Falcon had a "rather troubled childhood" and was "shuffled from relative to relative."

Rickey Dean Campbell, 26-year-old former vault teller at Texas American Bank in Midland, was sentenced to six months to Alternative House II, an jail-like facility in Odessa, after pleading guilty to a charge of embezzlement.

Campbell, convicted of embezzling $18,000 from Texas American Bank between October 1982 and January 1986, was ordered to pay restitution for his actions.

He said he had stolen because he "couldn't handle the bills" on his bank salary. He indicated that he had "just married" before the embezzlement started.

"I'm sorry for what I have done," he said.

The shortage was uncovered in an internal bank audit.

Campbell said he had planned to pay back the money, but didn't.

The judge noted that Campbell was $4,000 behind in child-support payments.

An illegal alien, Jesus Manuel Sauceda-Vega, 31, of Andrews, was sentenced to one year in prison for possessing a .3030-caliber carbine. Federal law prohibits an illegal alien from having a firearm in his possession.

Sauceda-Vega told the judge he had moved to the United States from Mexico to "do better in your country."

Said Bunton, "I have sympathy for your position and even greater sympathy for your wife and children."

TRIAL

In his brief, but animated closing statement, Schorre said Wilson did not deserve "to be taken out, and slaughtered, and dumped like trash on a county road."

Schorre attacked defense attorney McFall's attempts to discredit the state's witnesses — Leroy McKee and his now-estranged wife, Patricia, who were living at the Kingsway at the time of the murder.

Leroy McKee testified Wednesday that Dorn was the man who killed Wilson outside the Kingsway. He told the court that Elroy McKee and Chambers then went through his pockets.

State's witness Leroy McKee previously pleaded guilty to robbery in the case and was sentenced to 20 years in state prison.

Patricia McKee, now living in Odessa, corroborated much of her husband's testimony and told the jury that Dorn appeared at her apartment wearing clothes soaked in blood.

"The great conspiracy theory" was Schorre's characterization of the defense case. "But it doesn't compute — Mr. McFall can't sell it to us," the district attorney told jurors.

"My job, my oath, is to see justice is done, not simply to secure a conviction," Schorre said.

Elroy McKee was tried in March 1986 and is serving a life sentence for the crime. Chambers was tried five months later and received a 50-year sentence for the murder and 20 years for the robbery.

In his argument, Schorre described the circuitous route authorities had taken to bring the case to trial.

"Jackie Dorn is the final chapter," he told jurors. "Y'all get to write it. You get to finish the book...We hope you are good authors."

According to investigators, the case had reached a dead end shortly after Wilson's body was found. The case remained dormant, but was never closed.

In August 1985, Sheriff's Sgt. Monnie Weddell and Texas Ranger C.J. Havrda discovered that Leroy McKee had lived at the Kingsway at the time of the murder.

Both McKee brothers subsequently signed sworn statements about their involvment in the murder in early August, but they referred to their accomplices only as "James" and "Jackie."

State Investigator J.D. Luckie followed up the information, finding Dorn and Chambers in the spring of 1986.

A Midland County grand jury handed down indictments of the men April 23 of that year.

BAKER

Sen. Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming, the assistant Republican leader of the Senate, said after the meeting with Reagan that the president had a "sense of acceptance and reality and pragmatism" concerning the report.

Simpson said this had not been the case before, and he added, "There was not a defensiveness, there was not a willingness to scapegoat, to shift off the blame and the responsibility."

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., vice chairman of the House committee that will investigate the Iran-Contra affair, said, "I think the president has a much more realistic view of what went wrong now" than when the GOP leaders had talked to him before.

"He wants to move forward," said Dole. "I think the president feels there may be a perception out there by some that he is not in charge."

Two prime candidates as Regan's successor, former Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, declined the chief of staff position before Baker accepted it.

The Tower board, in its report, rejected Reagan's oft-stated assertion that the overriding principal of selling arms to Tehran was to make contacts with moderate political elements in Iran.

It blamed the president for not controlling National Security Council aides in Iran-Contras activities. And it also said Regan and others had not served the president well.

DEATHS

Louie Barron

Louie "Al" Barron, 66, of Midland died Thursday evening at a Big Spring hospital.

Services are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. today at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Harold Quarles of the First Church of the Nazarene officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Barron was born April 13, 1920, in Mount Vernon and moved to Midland at an early age, attending schools here. During World War II he entered the Army and was discharged in 1945. He returned to Midland at that time and was engaged in several businesses. Later, he was a police officer for several years before becoming an ironworker. Before retiring in 1982, he had worked as a leasing agent for Mackey Motor Co. for 15 years.

He was a member of the First Church of the Nazarene.

Survivors include his wife, Helen Barron of Midland; one daughter, Mrs. Marie Niehouse of Oxnard, Calif.; one brother, Edwin Barron of Dallas; two sisters, Mrs. Lorraine Majors of Paris and Mrs. Ruth Huggins of Midland; and four grandchildren.

Espanola Jones

STANTON — Esponola Jones, 81, of Stanton died Thursday evening at a Stanton nursing home following a lengthy illness.

Services are pending with Gilbreath Funeral Home.

"We've made a special chocolate lollipop for Apple Computers," Ms. Merritt said. "It's the Macintosh computer in chocolate, stuck on a lollipop stick. We also did the Macintosh computer mouse for them in chocolate...It's real cute."

Kim's Khocolates became a reality 14 months ago, when Ms. Merritt's parents put up their home as collateral so their daughter could obtain a $75,000 loan to buy the factory. She now owns her own house on the same block as the family home.

"My parents have supported me all the way," she said.

Another of the top 100 young entrepreneurs, clothing manufacturer Joanne Marlowe, 20, got her start at age 12 with a mail-order crafts company based in her suburban Skokie home.

She expects to gross $2.2 million this year with her Joanne Marlowe Designs, which produces women's clothing at a 7,000-square-foot factory in the neighboring suburb of Evanston.

Ms. Marlowe just received $130,000 in federally sponsored loans from local sources and the Small Business Administration to expand her operation.

"You've got to walk into business with the attitude that it doesn't matter that you're a woman or you're young. Because if you're good, it doesn't matter," she said.

Ms. Marlowe turns 21 today, a milestone she said she was trying to ignore.

"At this convention, it doesn't pay to be a year older," she said.

Ruling may save girl's life

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A federal judge's ruling may save the life of a 6-month-old Andrews girl who needs a liver transplant, the Texas Legal Services Center announced Friday.

Late last week, U.S. District Judge Walter Smith Jr. ruled that the Texas Department of Human Services' recent decision to limit annual inpatient Medicaid payments to $50,000 would deny the infant "medically necessary treatment." Liver transplant costs are estimated at $200,000, and hospitals will not place possible recipients on an "active transplant list" without either a $100,000 deposit or a Medicaid guarantee to cover the expenses.

Smith's decision applies to 6-month-old Janette Montoya of Andrews as well as 6-year-old Jenny Blizzard of Brownwood. Both children suffer from end-stage liver disease, which is treatable only with a transplant.

"Without the surgery, Janette's chances of survival are zero," Dr. Jane Goldthorn, Janette Montoya's physician, stated in an affidavit in the case. "If Janette does not receive a liver transplant...she will die."

Following guidelines set out by federal court precedents, Smith ruled that liver transplants are "medically appropriate" and not experimental and thus meet federal guidelines as "medically necessary treatments" which Medicaid must cover.

The Department of Human Services placed the $50,000 yearly cap on Medicaid hospital payments on July 1, stating that that would allow the program to use its limited funds for "less risky and more beneficial uses as far as total recipients are concerned." But Smith found that in recent years only 95 out of 1 million Medicaid patients in Texas needed more than $50,000.

"It would appear that exceeding the limit in plaintiff's cases would only have an extremely minimal effect, if any, on the funds available for other recipients," Smith wrote.

DHS spokeswoman Cheryl Rummel said the department told the state's Medicaid carrier to release the funds. "We are complying with the court order," she said.

Police Roundup

Lawmen are investigating a rash of residence and vehicle burglaries, including one resulting in the loss of items valued at more than $2,000.

According to police reports, a camera valued at $600, two videocassette recorders valued at $600, two cable television converter boxes valued at $500, a tape deck valued at $130 and other items valued at $800 were stolen from a residence in the 400 block of East Dormard Avenue. Reports said the items were stolen Wednesday between 7:15 a.m. and 11:50 a.m.

Police also are investigating the burglary of a vehicle while it was parked in the covered lot of Midland Regional Air Terminal. According to reports, a car stereo valued at $200, two speakers valued at $100, a citizens band radio valued at $50, a jack valued at $25, a fire extinguisher valued at $20 and jumper cables valued at $15 were stolen.

Police late Friday said five other burglaries were reported. Among items stolen were a handgun valued at $500, an AM-FM cassette stereo valued at $600, a radar detector valued at $150, and six tire and wheel sets valued at $1,000.

The Midland County Sheriff's office is investigating the burglary of a trailer home. Reports said a 21-inch television valued at $400, a microwave oven valued at $385, a stereo valued at $100 and a jewelry box containing jewelry valued at $100 was stolen from a residence at Country Village.

Teachers honor two Midlanders

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Midland school administrator and a radio reporter Friday received awards from the Texas Classroom Teachers Association.

The 25,000-member TCTA named Jack Gordon Stone, director of staff development for the Midland Independent School District, it's 1987 administrator of the year for school districts with 15,000 or more students.

Stone, who has spent his entire 28-year education career at MISD as a teacher, coach, principal and administrator, challenged Gov. Bill Clements to "rally" the education community. "Put aside all political entanglements and bring this state to a position of No. 1 academic preparation in this nation," Stone said as Clements watched during the awards luncheon.

Stone was principal of Midland High School from 1978-83, Alamo Junior High School principal from 1974-78, assistant principal at Lee High School from 1969-1984, Burnet Elementary School principal from 1967-69, Austin Junior High School assistant principal from 1964-67 and a teacher/coach at San Jacinto Junior High School.

He received a bachelor of science degree from Southwestern University and a master's degree in Secondary Administration from Southwest Texas State University.

The association also gave Jodi Ann Victor, a reporter with KCRS radio in Midland, its 1987 Silver Apple Award for excellence in education reporting. Victor won the award for a feature on teacher reaction to the controversial Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) last year.

— decontrol wellhead natural gas prices;

— provide a limited antitrust exemption for independent oil and gas producers so they could participate in cooperative marketing programs;

— enact pipeline transportation charges on imported Canadian natural gas equal to domestic rates as provided in a recent Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ruling; and,

— require the Secretary of Energy to work with other energy-consuming member nations of the International Energy Agency to set a "minimum safeguard price" for worldwide oil imports.

"We need to update the 1976 minimum price of $7 per barrel, to at least $18 to $20 per barrel," Bingaman said.

And he likened the administration's role in recent petroleum issues to a Tower Commission criticism of Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger and Secretary of State George Schultz in the Iran-Contra affair.

"They (administration oil experts) have been distancing themselves from the march of events which are destroying the domestic industry."

Clements doesn't get too specific when telling teachers about issues

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, whose budget proposals have upset some teachers, drew a warm response Friday from the Texas Classroom Teachers Association with a speech that included few specifics.

The governor was the featured speaker at TCTA's award luncheon.

"We're in the first inning of a long ballgame. So I can't give you conclusions, but I want you to know what are the issues before the Legislature," he said.

He listed the issues, but, on many, said little more than that they are issues.

Clements told the teachers some lawmakers are talking about dipping into the Permanent University Fund and Permanent School Fund to help get the state through the budget crunch. He said Texas should "at least investigate how some other great institutions of education in the county have used their funds and take lessons from them on how we might better use our funds."

"No one is going to violate the fiscal fiduciary responsibility of those funds. Those are precious funds. They are terribly important to you and to the future generations of Texas, and they will be properly protected," Clements said.

He drew applause by adding that teachers' retirement funds also would be protected. The teachers also applauded when Clements said the appraisal system used in the career ladder is not working properly.

"How exactly that is going to be modified, I'm not sure, but it's an issue," he said.

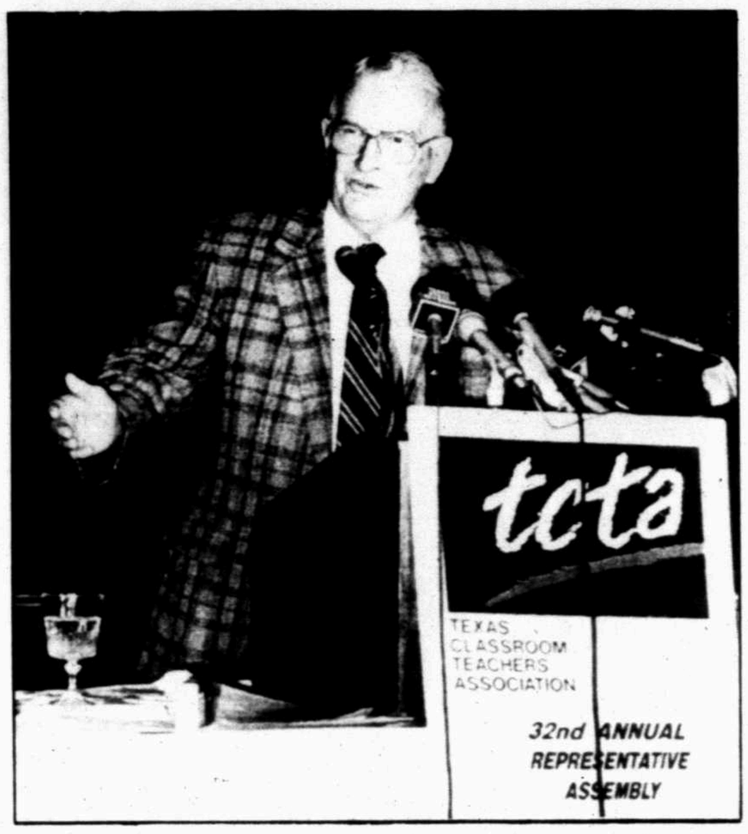

Clements did not mention a plan, presented to a House panel Thursday by his top budget aide, that could cut by $1,000 a year the pay given to outstanding teachers under the career ladder. The Texas State Teachers Association has criticized that plan and other portions of Clements' education budget.

About class size limits now in place, Clements said, "That is going to come up for discussion."

After the speech, Thomasine Sparks, of Kingsville, TCTA past president, said the teacher group gave Clements a warm reception because "we were glad to hear that he is concerned."

Ms. Sparks said, "One thing we appreciate is he does listen to us."

Asked about Clements' lack of specificity on his position on some issues, Eva Jo Kasinger of Abilene, TCTA president, said, "The way he is approaching this is he is not saying absolutely anything. He is saying he will work with us. He is saying it in a way we can understand it and work with him."

TDC still above legal capacity

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Parole officials Friday authorized the release of 186 prisoners who normally would be ineligible for parole, but even with the releases, the Texas Department of Corrections should remain above its legal limit of 95-percent capacity.

Besides the 186 inmates released under a law approved last week, the Board of Pardons and Paroles released 161 prisoners who would have been released under normal circumstances. The mass releases, however, probably will not ease TDC's overcrowding problem enough to allow the system to accept new inmates on Monday.

"The chances of being open Monday are slim," said TDC spokesman David Nunnelee. Friday's prison population, based on a count taken at midnight Thursday, shows the system reached 95.34-percent capacity, or 139 inmates more than the legal limit.

"It didn't exactly put a huge dent in the population, but it'll let them breath for a few days," said parole board spokesman Mike Roach.

Gov. Bill Clements, who returned to Austin Friday from a Washington D.C., lobbying trip, declared the prison situation an emergency crisis so TDC could begin processing parole certificates. As a stipulation to their release, Clements ordered that the inmates would spend 45 days in a halfway houses after leaving TDC.

Clements contended that the law did not provide for an "early release program" because with the time the released inmates will serve in halfway houses, the sentences actually will be longer. But the governor said he expects to sign emergency release papers on "multi-occasions on a continuing basis...for probably the next year" while TDC struggles to manage its growing population.

Because it takes TDC time to review parole certificates, prison officials said inmates will not be released until at least Sunday.

The law passed last week allows non-violent prisoners who are serving a sentence of 10 years or less to be granted extra "good time" credit when the TDC population tops 95 percent. Lawmakers said the new law will create a larger pool of inmates for the parole board to review and should result in fewer dangerous prisoners being released.

"There very well may be times when our anticipation of the incoming inmates is not in sync with what actually happens," Clements said, "but (the new law) gives us the tools to properly manage the situation."

Employers could pay additional $240 million for jobless fund

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials say Texas employers could pay an additional $240 million a year for unemployment benefits unless the state's jobless rate improves later this year.

Bill Grossenbacher, Texas Employment Commission administrator, said the state's unemployment trust fund will be in the red by $700 million by January 1988 if the high unemployment rate remains unchanged and no action is taken.

He said a proposal being prepared by the employment commission staff calls for a special surcharge called the "deficit tax' which would be charged next year to employers not now paying it.

TEC chairman Nancy Barnes said Thursday the three-member commission has not approved the proposal or any other. She said she expects the commission to consider staff recommendations and submit a request to the Legislature next month.

The staff proposal estimates the "deficit tax" would bring in an additional $200 million a year.

If the current unemployment rate of 9 percent remains unchanged, the unemployment tax itself would go up about $40 million a year.

Currently, the unemployment tax does not bring in enough money to pay the state's 804,000 unemployed workers their average monthly check of about $156, Grossenbacher said.

To make up the difference between the current tax renenue and what the commission pays out, the TEC must borrow from the federal government.

The federal government charges 10 percent interest on the loans.

However, Grossenbacher said the TEC is considering asking the Legislature to allow it to issue "cash anticipation notes," for short-term loans, which would require only about 4 percent interest.

Under present law, the deficit tax has been charged mostly to employers who, because of layoffs, have cost the TEC the most money.

However, Grossenbacher said the unexpected long and heavy drain on the unemployment fund, largely because of the collapsed oil drilling industry, has left those employers unable pay much more.

By extending the deficit tax to the other two-thirds, the 325,000 employers who represent the healthier segment of the state economy, the fund could start back to financial health, Grossenbacher said.

Doctor who allegedly spanks woman for research loses license

AUSTIN (AP) — A doctor who allegedly spanked a female patient after offering her "easy money" for a pain research program has lost his license, state regulators said.

The Texas State Board of Medical Examiners voted unanimously Thursday to cancel the license of William Michael Clark, 35, an obstetrician-gynecologist from Prairie View who had been practicing in Bay City last year.

Paul Gavia, chief attorney for the medical board, said Clark has a history of "preying on poor women" who need money. He said the woman "was a poor lady on the verge of being evicted from low-income housing for non-payment of rent."

According to the medical board complaint, Clark spanked the Bay City woman on 17 occasions with his hand, a board, a belt and an extension cord. He told the woman he was conducting a research project for the makers of Tylenol, the complaint said.

Clark told the woman she would get $2,500 "easy money" for participating in the fictitious project, which would require her blood pressure and pulse rate to be measured after pain was inflicted, the complaint alleged.

The spankings "were extremely painful and resulted in severe bruises which (Clark) offered to treat by providing (the woman) with samples of ointments," the board's findings said.

The sessions occurred in Bay City last April to June, and included one attempt by Clark to have sexual intercourse with the woman, according to the findings.

The sessions ended when the woman complained to the Matagorda County sheriff's office, the document said.

Gavia said the woman's car had been repossessed, her husband was out of work and her child was sick. She met Clark when she went to his office to apply for a job.

The medical board's complaint against Clark also said the Lousiana State Board of Medical Examiners suspended the doctor's medical license in April 1986 for luring women to participate in a non-existent drug research project in exchange for payments.

Ohioan charged with mailing bomb

DALLAS (AP) — A postal inspector said Friday an Ohio man was charged with mailing a pipe bomb that exploded in a bulk mail sorting center, causing damage but no injuries.

Inspector S.P. Hunt of the Fort Worth divisional office of the Postal Inspection Service was quoted earlier as saying the suspect had mailed the bomb to a former girlfriend near Waco who had rejected him. The bomb exploded prematurely last Saturday.

"It's what we call your love triangle," Hunt had said, but on Friday, he would only say such cases are "usually family-related."

Hunt identified the suspect, who was arrested Thursday, as Dennis Oliver Fraley, 33, formerly of Waco and now living in Sciotodale, Ohio. Fraley was charged in Dallas with mailing an explosive device.

He appeared before a U.S. magistrate in Cincinnati who set bond at $5000, Hunt said. He said Fraley was released on bond Friday.

If convicted, Fraley faces up to a $10,000 fine and a possible maximum prison sentence of 20 years.

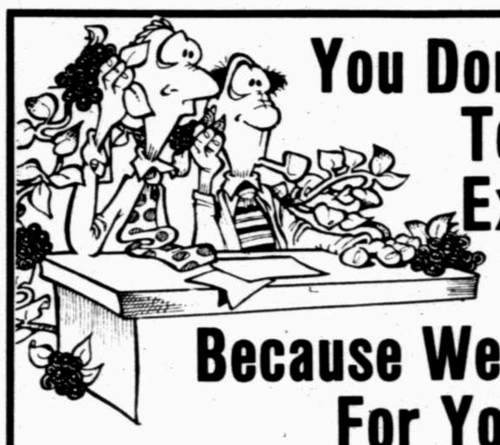

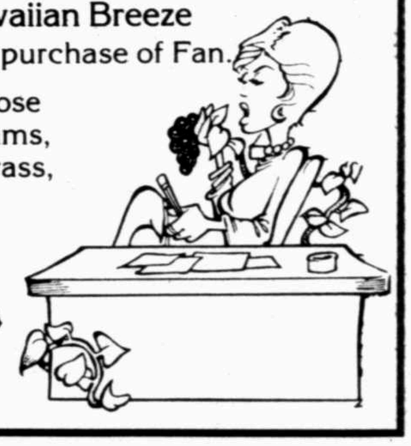

Hunt said the intended recipient of the bomb had recently remarried and the suspect "was having a little trouble coping with that."

Postal officials believe the 40-pound package containing the bomb flipped on the conveyor, causing the explosion.

The mailing label, parts of which were still readable, gave the Waco woman's address. The return address was that of a friend of the suspect.

Bush reiterates trading arms for hostages 'clearly wrong'

Bush

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Vice President George Bush, apparently accepting the Tower commission conclusion that the administration traded arms for hostages, said Friday the effort was "clearly wrong."

Speaking to the North Suburban Chamber of Commerce the day after release of the commission's report on the secret arms sales to Iran, Bush insisted that the policy began as "an effort to reach out to factions in Iran that would further the security interests of the United States."

Bush added that "efforts in 1985 and 1986 did not work, and, in some cases, were clearly wrong."

He quoted the Tower commission report as saying "a pattern of successive bargained exchanges of arms and hostages was quickly established."

Apparently accepting that finding, Bush went on to say, "I've said it before and I'll say it again,arms for hostages is wrong; and at this stage the implementation of the policy failed. It failed the American people and it failed the president."

Bush was the highest-ranking administration official to comment so far on the commission report which was highly critical of how the White House became involved in the secret arms sales.

Bush was one of the few officials spared severe criticism.

NATION

The vice president flew to New England accompanied by Gov. John H. Sununu of New Hampshire, who endorsed Bush Thursday for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination.

Bush was the principal speaker Friday night at a Lincoln Day dinner in Manchester, N.H.

Bush also used the Tower commission's language to attribute Reagan's acquiescence in the policy to compassion for the Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

"I have watched the president day by day, proudly sitting at his side, as he's agonized over our hostages," said Bush. "The greatest burden is his. I think it's fair to say he cares the most."

Then Bush quoted the commission again when it cited Reagan's "intense compassion for the hostages."

The vice president recalled that he headed the president's Task Force on Combating Terrorism. He said that group recommended that the government "make no concessions to terrorists. It will not pay ransoms, release prisoners, change its policies or agree to other acts that might encourage additional terrorism."

He said that was the policy in February 1986 and "this is the correct policy now. It's going to continue to be our policy."

Bush praised the Tower commission for doing "an outstanding job. They captured not just the facts. They captured the challenges our administration faced in 1985 and 1986 concerning Iran and the hostages."

Two weeks ago, at a news conference in Lansing, Mich., Bush said that if the Tower commission concluded that "the United States swapped arms for hostages, I would be the first to say that is wrong. That is not the policy of the U.S. government."

Bush devoted most of his Massachusetts speech to a defense of the Strategic Defense Initiative, Reagan's proposal for a space-based missile defense system, also known as "Star Wars."

"I am convinced SDI is not only technically sound, but it is morally sound," he said.

He referred to his experience as director of the Central Intelligence Agency in the mid-1970s and said, "I know what the Soviet Union is doing and we would be dumb not to be going forward" with SDI.

Socialist mayor faces tough race

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Mayor Bernard Sanders, the three-term socialist whose confrontational manner has angered business owners but won a loyal following among the voters, faces his toughest re-election battle next week.

Sanders, believed to be the only socialist mayor in the country, is in a one-on-one race for the first time. His challenger in Tuesday's election is Paul Lafayette, a 36-year-old Democrat.

The biggest issue in the race, analysts and the candidates say, may be Sanders' pugnacity.

"I don't think many people are unhappy with Bernie's policies, but many are just burned out on Bernie's confrontational style," said Tom Rice, a University of Vermont political scientist. "They're tired of all the fighting."

Sanders, 45, acknowledged that his frequent clashes with utility executives, hospital administrators and University of Vermont officials have antagonized many voters in this college town.

For example, over bitter protests from officials, Sanders last year held up zoning approval for the university's business school until the officials agreed to construct more student housing.

"If they ran King Kong against me, 40 percent of the people would still vote against us," he said.

Sitting in his office in front of a portrait of his hero, Eugene Debs, he added, "I don't think people understand that when you take on the establishment, it's a big fight. You don't bring about change for the working people without struggle."

Lafayette, who has been an alderman for three years, has stayed away from arguments with Sanders. He said he agrees that "there's a large anti-Sanders sentiment out there."

"About 30 percent of the people love him and about 30 percent hate him," he said. "I'm not one of the people who hate him, but I do have a problem with his style."

Though not a native of Vermont, Sanders is a veteran of state politics. He ran for statewide office five times as a third-party or independent candidate, including an independent bid for governor last year that brought him 15 percent of the vote.

He was elected to his first two-year term as mayor in 1981, ousting a long-term Democratic incumbent by 10 votes in a three-way race that included a second, dissident Democrat. Sanders runs as an independent but calls himself a socialist.

SUNDAY, MARCH 1, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This can be an enormously happy year for both romance and business. Get your thoughts in order before plunging into battle. Your current labors will not go unrewarded. Do not be in too much of a hurry to change jobs. Children adore a parent who is supportive and affectionate. Family squabbles will be strictly temporary.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: "The A-Team's" Dirk Benedict, singer-actor Harry Belafonte, actor Robert Conrad, actor-director Ron Howard, poet Robert Lowell, bandleader Glenn Miller, actor-author David Niven, singer Dinah Shore, composer Frederic Chopin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The emphasis today is on family, home and relaxation. Communication picks up and has a positive effect on domestic harmony. Share confidences and make vacation plans. Home entertainment is great fun. Invite neighbors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Anticipation of another family celebration makes this a happy day. You enjoy an unusual social encounter. Singles find romance when they least expect it. Do your best not to ruffle a parent's feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid sticking your neck out in finance or business. You need to think an issue through before making an important decision. Domestic and professional affairs mesh nicely today. Consult mate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A change of scene appeals to many. Rely on public transportation whenever possible. A favorite fantasy could come true. Someone you meet today sets your heart racing. Play a waiting game.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A chance to travel adds excitement to your day. Your rapport with loved one is at an all-time high. A puzzle is solved. Those searching for new homes find just what they want!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Creative efforts can boost your career. Buckle down to work. An influential person is impressed and offers to open doors for you. Follow up and you will climb higher on the ladder of success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A good day to stay home, entertaining family and friends. Children are a special source of happiness during the afternoon. Relax and enjoy. The generation gap is bridged. Good will abounds!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friends and siblings may be extra sensitive now. Avoid hurting their feelings. Strive for harmony. An attractive real estate proposition deserves careful investigation. Consult someone with more experience. Be a good listener.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Try seeing things from the other person's point of view. Use your charm to smooth over a difficult moment. A change of scene provides a welcome break in routine this afternoon. A romance deepens.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone at a distance contacts you. Bring this person up to date. Happiness is yours, as friends and relatives shower you with generosity and affection. Share the limelight with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Tact and patience will help you solve a communication problem with a loved one. Avoid getting involved in the get-rich-quick schemes of friends or relatives. Settle in with a good book tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are able to fulfill a secret ambition now. Put your thoughts on paper — you could have the plot for a play or novel. Money matters are sensitive; avoid people who tempt you to overspend.

Singer Marian Anderson receives human rights award

AP Laserphoto

NEW YORK (AP) — Contralto Marian Anderson, who in 1955 became the first black woman to debut with the Metropolitan Opera, received a human rights award Friday from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Fellow singer Roberta Peters presented the award to Miss Anderson, who celebrated her 85th birthday at the luncheon ceremony.

The Honorary Fellowship Award cited Miss Anderson for "her lifelong struggle for human rights, her deep sense of justice, her caring for people and her avowed friendship for Israel."

Miss Anderson served as U.S. delegate to 13th General Assembly of the United Nations in 1958 and won a Congressional gold medal in 1978.

She began her singing career in 1924. In 1939, she sang on the steps of Lincoln Memorial because the Daughters of the American Revolution would not let her perform in their Washington concert hall.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Author Louis L'Amour, who has written many books about the Old West, says he has no longing to live in that era.

"The best time to live is right now," he said recently. "This is a much more exciting time."

One of his current best sellers is a contemporary story called "The Last of the Breed." It tells of an American pilot who escapes from a Soviet prison camp and uses his Indian heritage to trek across Siberia.

"I'm really concerned with the frontier," L'Amour said, "whether it's the American West, Siberia or even outer space."

L'Amour turns out about three books a year typing with two fingers.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Ryan O'Neal's son, Griffin, was sentenced Friday to 18 months' probation because of an accident that killed the son of director Francis Ford Coppola.

O'Neal also was fined $200 plus $245 court costs for negligent operation of a boat in the accident last Memorial Day that killed Gian-Carlo Coppola.

The judge, who warned O'Neal that if he violates his probation, he'll be jailed for 30 days, lectured him from the bench, saying he could find nothing good about his character.

"You have a history of lying, with little respect for others," said Judge Martin Wolf. "Your driving record is horrid. You drive with speed and disregard for others."

Wolff also reviewed O'Neal's use of drugs, which he said began at the age of 12.

He said one of his options was to send O'Neal, 22, to jail and "hope that that will be a shock treatment."

"You would not survive too well in there. It's a pretty stark place," he said, adding that O'Neal would not find the expensive cars and fancy meals he is accustomed to.

One of the conditions of probation imposed by Wolff was that O'Neal undergo periodic testing to assure that he does not use drugs.

He also ordered the actor to perform 416 hours of community service, continue psychiatric counseling, and either attend school or hold a job during the 18-month probation period.

Asked after the sentencing in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court if he believed he could obey the conditions of the probation, O'Neal replied, "I can handle anything at this point after what I've been through."

O'Neal, Coppola and Coppola's girlfriend, Jacqueline De La Fontaine, were in Washington last spring working on a movie, "Gardens of Stone," for Francis Ford Coppola.

The three came to Annapolis on a Memorial Day outing and rented a 14-foot powerboat. Late in the afternoon, with Ms. De La Fontaine on shore, O'Neal cut between two powerboats that were connected by a tow rope.

Coppola, 23, suffered fatal head injuries when he was hit by the rope and thrown to the deck of the aluminum boat.

At his trial in December, O'Neal was acquitted of manslaughter by Wolff, who said he believed O'Neal's testimony that he did not see the rope until the last second.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Delta State University pompon girls, who were suspended for three weeks for performing in their skintight outfits, gave a national television audience a look at what shook up the Cleveland, Miss., campus.

"I see people jog in these all over L.A. — women, too," said Joan Rivers, who invited the nine-member squad to appear on her show Thursday. "What are they upset about?"

The nine-member squad was suspended Jan. 20 from performing at basketball games for three weeks after the dancers wore the one-piece outfits that Athletic Director Brad Hovious had labeled "uncollegiate."

Squad members gathered around Rivers after performing their first dance routine, and an employee of the talk show modeled one of the cheerleader-style uniforms the pompon squad must now wear in order to perform at Delta State basketball games.

KEMPTON, England (AP) — Princess Anne, an Olympic equestrian rider and veteran flat-race jockey, will venture into another realm today when she rides in her first hurdles race.

The daughter of Queen Elizbeth II is scheduled to ride her own horse, Choc Na Cuille, in the Portlane Handicap Chase at Kempton Race Course.

The princess has ridden in 15 flat races, with her lone victory coming on her 14th try in an amateur event at Redcar last August.

Jack Klugman, left, and Tony Randall, will perform in a salute to Neil Simon Sunday at New York City's Schubert Theater. The event will feature excerpts from many of Simon's plays and musicals and will benefit YIVO Insitute for Jewish Research.

Clear skies in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Clear skies are expected this weekend, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Today will be partly cloudy with a high in the low 50s. Winds will be from the northwest 15-25 mph and gusty.

Tonight will be clear with a low near 30, and Sunday will be sunny with a high near 60.

The record high for Friday's date was 82 set in 1950, more than 30 degrees warmer than the day's high of 51. The record low was 14, set in 1962, 25 degrees cooler than the low of 39 Friday.

STATE

Large hail, strong winds and heavy rain accompanied thunderstorms Friday night in north-central Texas and parts of South Texas.

Two storms, one in southern Wilson County and another in southern Guadalupe County, were moving to the northeast shortly after 8 p.m. as part of a line of storms that produced wind gusts to near 60 mph and hail as large as golf balls in northern Bexar County, the National Weather Service said.

In Bell County, in central Texas, another severe storm 20 miles southwest of Killeen was moving east at 45 mpy about the same time, according to NWS radar.

Another intense storm crossed the western part of Palo Pinto county, and another over the northwest part of Eastland County, with both moving to the northeast, the weather service said.

A flash flood watch was posted for the eastern part of North Texas, east of a Clarksville, Athens to Fairfield line.

In West Texas, showers it will be windy and brisk east of the mountains today with a slight chance of snow eastern Panhandle, but clear tonight and sunny and a little warmer Sunday, the weather service said.

NATION

A major storm brought heavy snow to the northern and west-central Plains on Friday, while another system brought rain and snow to the Southeast, where up to a foot of snow had fallen in western Virginia.

Winter storm warnings for heavy, blowing snow were posted over central South Dakota, where 12 to 18 inches of snow had fallen.

Up to 3 inches of snow was expected in portions of central and eastern North Dakota, where winds of about 20 mph were causing some drifting snow and freezing rain and snow for north-central and southwestern Nebraska and northwestern Kansas.

Andrews has a 'Gym' dandy time

Mustangs defeat Estacado in bi-district

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

BROWNFIELD — When your first name is spelled G-y-m, you can expect a lot of pressure to perform on the basketball floor.

And when your last name is Bice and you play for Andrews, where head coach Frank Bice has been a fixture for over a decade, the pressure would seem doubly tough.

But Gym Bice stood up to that pressure, scoring 12 fourth quarter points and helping Andrews stave off a charging Lubbock Estacado for an 82-74 first round playoff win Friday night.

"The only thing I've ever asked of my players is effort, and Gym personifies effort on the basketball court," Bice said. "Whether he scores or not is secondary, because the effort is always there. And to go with that effort, he's a pretty fair country ballplayer."

The younger Bice, who is just a sophomore, has refused to let little things like pressure bother him in his second season on the varsity.

So when the Matadors poured on the pressure in the second half, it was Gym Bice and point guard Louis Clay that kept the Mustangs cool. Even as they watched a once-formidable 19-point-lead dwindle to five, the Mustang guards were nearly unflappable.

"The play of our guards was critical because of the pressure they put on us in the second half," coach Bice said. "A lot of inferior ballhandlers would have folded under it. I was on the verge of passing out."

But not the Mustang's backcourt. Clay, the senior playmaker, was too busy dishing off assists, 10 in all, and Bice was sinking 20-foot jumpers. His 20 points were second for Andrews to fellow sophomore Damon Clay's 21.

"We expected to run up-and-down the floor with them," said Gym. "And when their star, Ryan Davis, got hot, we got a little cold and they came back on us."

Davis, who averaged more than 29 points a game to lead Estacado to a runner-up finish in District 1-4A, scored 28 second-half points for 34 on the game.

But Andrews matched that with balance. In all four Mustangs hit double-figures as Estacado put the clamps on high-scoring Bernard Williams. Williams, averaging more than 26 per game, was held to 17. Mike "Moose' Moisant added 14, eight of them in the first quarter.

The Bice father-son combination didn't hurt, either.

"The reason this father-son, player-coach relationship is so much fun, is that Gym likes to compete - and so do I," coach Bice said.

With Friday's win, Andrews, 29-3, is showing that it can compete on a higher level. But the Matadors didn't make it easy.

After trailing by 15 at the half, 43-28, Estacado staged a comeback that nearly floored the Mustangs. Davis, the Matadors' all-everything 6-4 forward exploded for 16-third quarter points and at one time had Estacado within five, 57-52 with :59 to go.

But Louis Clay came out with a pair of scintillating drives to the basket to open the final period and put Andrews back in command.

Davis wouldn't quit, however, and was in the middle of hitting 10 straight field goals when Bice popped a pair of long jumpers to go on top 71-60. From there, the Mustangs converted 7-of-9 free throws to hang on for the win.

"We had a chaser on him all night, and it worked real well in the first half," said Louis Clay, who was doing most of the chasing. "But I guess it's less effective as time goes on, because it's a lot of wear and tear on you."

Now the Bices, and the rest of the Mustangs, can get ready to play the winner of the Cleburne-Mineral Wells game, most likely Tuesday in Abilene.

Estacado ends the season at 19-13.

Plainview, AHS in Region finals

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

District 3-5A owns the 1987 Region I girls basketball trophy and a final four berth in next week's 5A state playoffs in Austin. The only question is, which team will go?

The Plainview Lady Bulldogs and Amarillo High Sandies will meet today at 11 a.m. for the right to advance to the final four. They've played twice before this season with the Bulldogs grabbing both victories, 61-39 and 61-52.

To gain the championship game of the tournament, Plainview was in a slugfest for three quarters against District 7-5A champion Richland. The Lady Bulldogs broke a 42-42 early fourth quarter deadlock and went on to a 64-52 victory.

For Amarillo High, things weren't very difficult. The Sandies jumped on 6-5A champion Fort Worth Dunbar quickly, running to a 23-9 first quarter lead and kept on going until the 88-59 final.

PLAINVIEW AND Richland were tied six times in the game with the last coming with 7:51 left to play. Richland's Jenna Hawkins scored from inside for the 42-42 deadlock. The rest of the game belonged to the Lady Bulldogs.

Lisa Riggins started a 19-4 Plainview run with a 12-footer followed by long range shots by Becky Remington and Ramona Black. Remington worked inside for a second-bucket in the run, Elayne Caruthers added 1-of-2 free throws, Rhonda Springer hit from 10 feet and Joy Webb hit 1-of-2 free throws to turn the once close game into a 54-43 Plainview advantage.

The difference in the game, at least in the eyes of Plainview coach Kathy Harston, was the Bulldog press defense.

"I know at the end of the third quarter their post girls started dragging," said Harston. "We came out and scored some quick points and that picked us up. Our feet were dragging also at the end of the third."

Richland coach Bobby Ray saw a different telling statistic.

"I don't think their press hurt us at all," said Ray. "Making 16-of-27 free throws, that what hurt us. We let down a little at the end when they got a couple of rebounds and that also hurt us."

AMARILLO HIGH was in a no-contest situation almost from the start against the Dunbar Lady Cats. The 23-9 first quarter lead gave way to a 39-27 halftime score and 60-44 after three quarters. A 28-15 fourth quarter provided the final margin.

"I didn't think we'd beat them that bad," said Amarillo coach Rosemary Jackson, who saw defense as the key to the Sandies' victory.

"I think we created turnovers with our press and were able to capitalize by turning the turnovers into points," said Jackson. "That's why we were able to win by 30 (29). We did a very good job of handling the ball and handling their press.

Jackson spent the remainder of the evening scouting the second game between Plainview and Richland, mostly watching Richland because the Sandies already know how the Lady Bulldogs play.

"Either team will be hard," said Jackson. "I know Richland's kids are a lot bigger than Plainview but Plainview's kids are quick."

And, about Plainview facing archrival Amarillo High again, Harston said, "Our kids have just got to be prepared, go out and play hard. I don't think our kids will come out dragging. They know Amarillo High. They've seen Amarillo High come out and blow people out and are a hot team right now."

Greenwood girls nail Comanche in overtime

From Staff Reports

LUBBOCK — Just when all seemed lost and defeat was at hand, the Greenwood Rangerettes rallied from a nine-point fourth quarter deficit to gain a 63-59 overtime victory over Comanche in the Region I girls 3A tournament here Friday night.

Comanche, which owned a 45-42 lead after the third quarter, built the margin to nine "with four and a half minutes left ot play in the game and the kids did a heck of a job coming back," said Greenwood head coach Terry Crocker.

"We took the lead with 17 seconds left to play and they brought the ball down, took the shot and got one of those funny rebounds. She (Sheila Riewe) picked it up and shot a turn around jumper along the baseline to tie the game. There was no time left on the clock when it went in."

Clutch shooting from the line in the extra quarter gave the Rangerettes the victory.

"We were 6-for-6 from the line, Cheryl Martin was 4-for-4 and Stephanie Smith was 2-for-2," said Crocker. "In the fourth quarter and overtime combined, we were 11-of-12 from the line. I think we missed seven in the first half and three in the third quarter. We'd missed 10 and it was about time we made one."

Throughout the night Martin had the range from the line, hitting 9-of-10 to lead the way to a 23-point night while Smith was 6-of-10 for 20 more. For Comanche, Michelle Montgomery also scored 20 points.

"The kids did a real good job coming back and it took several outstanding performances, too many to name really," said Crocker. "They just kept coming, kept thinking they could and sure enough they did."

In other tournament action Friday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, Slayton advanced into the championship game with a 63-37 victory over Waco Robinson.

Slayton and Greenwood meet at 1:30 p.m. today for the regional title and a final four berth in Austin next week.

"They're excellent," said Crocker of Slayton. "They've just got an excellent ball club. They've been playing well lately. They're well coached and have got a lot of tradition behind them."

The victory improves District 4-3A champion Greenwood's record to 27-4 on the year while Comanche of District 8-3A exits at 27-4.

The Rangerettes, who weren't ranked very high in state polls this year, are now among the state's final eight teams.

"The only team left in the rankings ahead of us is Slayton," said Crocker. "I think there were five or six others ahead of us when we started and they've all been beaten."

Bowa won't change as major league manager

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Larry Bowa was a tough field boss for years as a player, and he doesn't figure to change as a major league manager.

Bowa, 41, replaced Steve Boros as the San Diego manager after the Padres finished 74-88 last season, fourth in the National League West and 22 games behind the division-winning Houston Astros.

He earned his first big league managing assignment after leading the Padres' Las Vegas farm club to a Pacific Coast League title in his only year of managing in 1986.

A five-time All Star in 12 years with Philadelphia, Bowa fought to overcome his diminutive stature and make himself into a fine shortstop.

"I gave everything I had and I got out of baseball what I put into it," said Bowa, who finished his playing career with Chicago and the New York Mets. "I left my guts and blood on the field, but I have no regrets about the way it turned out. I hope I'm the same kind of manager."

Bowa said his philosophy as a player parallels his philosophy as a manager.

"Just go about your job, don't cut any corners, don't cut anybody short," Bowa told his players at spring training. "You practice the way you play. I'm a firm believer in that. If you go out there and screw around, there's a good chance you'll screw around during the games."

Managing, Bowa said, was something he thought about since his first playing days.

"When I first signed (with Philadelphia in 1965), everyone told me I wouldn't play in the big leagues because I was too small," said Bowa, who is 5-foot-10, 160-pounds. "So I said, 'If I can't play, maybe I'll become a manager.' "

He wound up playing 20 years of professional baseball, including four years in the minor leagues and 2,222 major league games at shortstop.

Managing also was a way for him to stay in the game.

"Everything I have I owe to baseball," Bowa said. "It's been a very good living for me. As I look back on it, even though it's been a long time, I feel like it was yesterday."

Bowa inherited a team demoralized by two years of failed expectations following San Diego's only NL pennant in 1984.

The 1986 season was marred by player dissension, poor management-player relations, a player drug scandal and a managerial change at the beginning of the year.

Bowa's first spring training task was to revive player enthusiasm and eliminate the complacency he believed contributed to the team's decline.

"What I try to do is get them mentally ready to play the game," he said. "I think it's a challenge to mold a team together and try to get the most out of everybody.

"You have a tendency sometimes when you reach the top of your profession to get a little complacent. Everybody does. Bankers do it. Lawyers do it. There's no reason why athletes wouldn't do it ... Basically, my job is to stay on them, and not let them get complacent."

Rain, gyms not made for baseball

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

For the second time this week — probably the third after today — Tall City baseball teams have been washed out. Friday, Midland Lee lost a home game against Pecos while Midland High was drowned out of a doubleheader in Monahans.

"We're going to try and play two Saturday," said Lee coach Ernie Johnson, whose Rebels were originally only scheduled for one game today in Pecos. "If we can play, we'll play two. But, it doesn't look like it. It's raining in Pecos, too."

SINCE FRIDAY'S game was canceled, Johnson decided to do the same with practice.

"If we don't get to play Saturday, it will be the first time in 26 years we've lost the first week of play completely," said Johnson. "I may be wrong, but I think there was a stretch of 15 years where we didn't even lose a game. This week last year it was in the 80s and we were setting records. I remember saying, 'what if the weather's like this for the tournament?' It wasn't, but it wasn't bad either."

For Midland High Friday, instead of the first game of the season it was another day in the gym.

"We're great in the gym," said Bulldog head coach Tim Whalen. "We might just play the Tournament of Champions in the gym. We know the way the ball bounces. Off the bleachers it's going to kick hard to the right. Anything else will play straight away."

DESPITE THE inability for either team to move outdoors and get in some real baseball, things can be accomplished on the hard wood floors. Among other things, baseball teams can cause other people some worry.

"You can work on basic fundamentals," said Whalen. "We hit in there, hit tennis balls. Some people were concerned after our interview on TV the other night. They thought we were hitting baseballs in there. I know I'm not too smart, but I'm smart enough to know you don't hit baseballs in the gym.

"You can work on bunting, pickoff moves and even sliding," continued Whalen. "Pitchers can throw some but they can't throw wide open. That's about all you can do in there other than run."

"We haven't been on our infield in a week," said Johnson. "We've been working out some on the grass in the outfield. We were in the gym Saturday and Monday and were outside Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. I canceled practice today.

"YOU CAN work on more than you think in the gym but it gets tiring. We set up 90-foot bases, work on rundowns, defense, it's a good place for catchers to throw. We do a lot of bunting. You can always work pitchers good. You just can't work on things like outfield.

"The worst thing about it is morale," continued Johnson. "You look forward to a game, work hard the day before and then you're back in the gym again."

Weather permitting, the Bulldogs and Rebels will open their seasons on Tuesday. Midland High will host Lubbock Coronado in a doubleheader at 5 and 7 p.m. at Angel Stadium. Lee will also be playing two, traveling to Lubbock for a 4 p.m. start against perennial District 3-5A champion Monterey.

The Bulldogs have scheduled a doubleheader makeup with Monahans for March 23 in Monahans at 4:30 and 7 p.m.

Today's Question: Indiana's last trip to the Rose Bowl was in what year and against whom did they play?

Friday's Answer: Before moving to Municipal Stadium after WWII, Cleveland's Indians played their home games in League Park. For several years, the Indians played weekend games at Municipal and weekday games at League.

Munroe has double win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Alrick Munroe of Wayland Baptist successfully defended his 60-yard dash title in the NAIA Indoor Track and Field championships Friday night, then discovered his wife had had a baby.

Alrick turned in a winning time of 6.32 and kept on going to the nearest telephone. The news back home in Plainview, Tex., was good.

"My father-in-law told me I had a healthy son, Alrick Munroe, Jr.," he said. "She had been due since Wednesday. I told my coach, 'How can I concentrate on the race?' I was out there running, but my mind really wasn't on it. This is better than winning."

Two meet records fell in the first night of the two-day meet as Wayland Baptist attempted to defend its mens and womens championships.

Christian Okoye of Azusa Pacific, Cal., turned in a distance of 66 feet, five and one-quarter inches to snap the meet record in the weight throw. He beat the record of an old teammate, Doug Barnett, who had a throw in 1983 of 65-2.75.

Beth Stuart of Kearney State, Neb., snapped the shot put meet record with a heave of 50-08, beating the 49-10 of Sharon Harrison of Prairie View in 1986.

Denise Williams got the Wayand Baptist women off to a good start by winning the triple jump with a recording of 39-8. Marcia Brown of Wayland Baptist won the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.98.

Melody Robinson and Sandy Andrews turned in winning times for the Midland Lutheran women's team. Robinson took the 60-yard hurdles with a time of 7.98 while Andrews won the high jump with a recording of 5.07.

In the men's 60-yard high hurdles, Kevin McKinley of Prairie View won with a time of 7.33. Azusa Pacific took the first three places in the shot put, led by Ade Olukoju with a distance of 57-07. Second was Christian Okoye while Steve Prokop was third.

Heading into Saturday's competition, the women's standings found Prairie View and Wayland Baptist tied with 56 points apiece. Midland Lutheran, Neb., was next with 26 points followed by Kearney State, Neb., with 16.

Azusa Pacific took a big lead over Wayland Baptist in the men's competition with 54.5 points. Wayland Baptist had 30 points, while Saginaw Valley State of Michigan had 16 and Prairie View had 12.

Southwestern, Kan., took the men's 2-mile relay. The team of William Carter, Dennis Smithhisler, Rick Kutt and Torey Keller took the title in a time of 7:42.49.

Aguirre's 30 ignites Mavs

NBA Roundup

Associated Press

DALLAS — Mark Aguirre scored 30 points, including 16 in a third-quarter run that put Dallas on top for good, to lead the Mavericks to a 123-110 NBA victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Friday night.

Aguirre and Rolando Blackman, who scored 29 points, sparked Dallas to a 35-point third quarter in which the Mavericks increased their 56-47 halftime lead to 16 points, 91-75. Blackman had 13 points in the quarter.

But Philadelphia, which was down 99-79 early in the fourth quarter, went on a 21-8 run to cut Dallas' lead to 107-100 with 3:33 left in the game.

Roy Hinson scored seven of his 21 points during the run to lead the 76ers, but Philadelphia could get no closer than five points, 113-108, during the rest of the game.

Center Tim McCormick led the 76ers, who have lost four consecutive games, with 26 points. Dallas rookie forward Roy Tarpley had a season-high 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Guard Derek Harper, who had missed five games because of an infected foot, ignited the Mavericks in the second period when Dallas overcame a 27-25 first-quarter deficit.

He scored 10 of his 13 points in leading Dallas on a 20-8 run to go from five down, 31-26, with 11:01 left, to seven points ahead, 46-39, at the 3:59 mark. Dallas has now won five straight games.

Julius Erving, who didn't play because of a broken finger, was honored by the Mavericks organization in pre-game ceremonies. Erving has announced his retirement after this season.

Hawks 115, Celtics 105

ATLANTA — Doc Rivers scored 12 points of his 21 points in the fourth period to help lead Atlanta over Boston.

Atlanta's third home victory over Boston this year kept the Celtics one game away from their 2,000th franchise victory.

Dominque Wilkins, who led all scorers with 36 points, gave Atlanta a 60-59 lead, its first, on a jumper. With 5:52 remaining in the third period Wilkins' lay-up gave the Hawks the lead for good at 72-71.

Boston pulled within 107-101 with 3:12 left in the game on a three-point play by Robert Parish. But Rivers hit three field goals to keep the Celtics at bay.

Larry Bird paced Boston with 34 points, 15 coming in the first period. The Celtics continued to toy with the Hawks in the second quarter, building a 43-26 lead on two free throws by Bird. But Atlanta pulled to 59-56 by halftime.

Boston's Kevin McHale scored 22 points and Danny Ainge had 20.

Nets 125, Pacers 115

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Buck Williams scored a career-high 35 points and combined with Orlando Woolridge for 30 points during a 46-11 second-half surge that carried New Jersey over Indiana.

Williams, who surpassed his previous career high by two, also had 18 rebounds for New Jersey. Woolridge scored 18 of his 20 points during the spurt that gave the Nets a 16-point lead after they trailed by 19.

John Long led Indiana with 23 points, while Vern Fleming and Chuck Person had 18 each.

Person, who was scoreless in the second half, hit three of his four 3-point shots during a 17-0 first-half spurt that gave the Pacers an 18-point lead early in the second quarter.

Trail Blazers 123, Pistons 111

PONTIAC, Mich. — Portland's Kiki Vandeweghe scored 35 points to lead Portland over Detroit and snap the Pistons' five-game winning streak.

Vandeweghe, who has scored 30 or more points in nine of Portland's last 12 road games, had 17 points in the first half as the Blazers built a 58-47 lead at intermission and were never in trouble the rest of the game.

With Portland in front 44-40 with 4:59 remaining in the second quarter, Vandeweghe scored six points during a 14-7 run that put the Pistons in a 14-point hole they never were able to escape. Detroit went scoreless for 2:28 of that Blazer run.

K-State rocks No. 12 Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Mitch Richmond's 15-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining capped a late rally that led Kansas State to a 90-89 victory Friday night over No. 12 Oklahoma, which lost at home for only the second time in four seasons.

The shot by Richmond, who finished with 23 points, culminated a comeback that saw the Wildcats erase a nine-point lead in the final 1:16. Oklahoma, which got 35 points from Tim McCalister, lost for the first time this season and only the second time in 65 home games.

Oklahoma, which led by 11 points on three occasions, took an 89-80 lead on Chuck Watson's free throw with 1:16 remaining.

Steve Hensen followed with a 3-point jumper to bring Kansas State within six, then Norris Coleman made a jump shot and free throw to bring the Wildcats within 89-86 with 50 seconds left. Coleman finished with 21 points.

After McCalister missed the front end of a one-and-one, Richmond followed a missed jumper by Henson with a shot down low to make it 89-88 with 16 seconds remaining.

Harvey Grant, who scored 26 points, missed the front of a one-and-one for Oklahoma with 13 seconds remaining, setting up Richmond's game-winner.

McCalister tried a desperation 3-point shot at the buzzer, but missed everything.

The loss dropped Oklahoma to 21-7 overall and 9-5 in the Big Eight. Kansas State is 8-6 in the conference and 18-9 overall.

Daniels best and worst

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Lloyd Daniels may have been the best high school basketball player to ever play the game.

But Daniels also may have been one the worst high school students to sit in a classroom — as well as one of the most traveled.

His basketball record brought college recruiters by the bunch; his academic record merely made most of them a bit more creative in their approach.

For despite his academic problems, the 6-foot-8 Daniels is a franchise player, that rare athlete who can lead a team to the promised land of the NCAA tournament's Final Four.

"Lloyd Daniels is the best basketball player I've ever seen," Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian said of the 19-year-old.

TARKANIAN, WHOSE team ranks No. 1 in the nation this season, thought he had pulled a coup by signing Daniels last year to a letter of intent to play for UNLV. Daniels enrolled at UNLV in January and Tarkanian hoped to have him on the court when he became eligible to play in December.

But any chance of that happening may have disappeared one night in early this month when Daniels was arrested, in full view of a waiting television camera, along with 59 others during a drug bust at a rock house taken over by police.

The next day, Tarkanian, who has a strong anti-drug stand, barred his prize recruit from ever playing for UNLV. He later softened that position.

"I should have never used the word 'never,' " Tarkanian said.

But now, more than ever, Daniels' place in any institute of higher education is being challenged. He himself is not too hot about the idea.

"I ain't allergic to no school, I just don't want to go," he told Newsday in New York last spring after quitting his fifth high school.

Critics, including those in the university, asked how a youngster could be accepted at UNLV after earning only about half the high school credits needed to graduate. They point to a system that allows semi-literate athletes into college simply because they can play basketball.

They ask how Daniels was able to record a B-plus average to earn 14 credits at a California junior college, enabling him to transfer to UNLV, while reading at a third-grade level.

"My personal feeling is that a school like UNLV made a mistake recruiting a kid that marginal," said Paul Burns, the university's faculty athletic representative. "In terms of the image we had been trying to remedy and build, that was not good for us."

"He's not suited for college and he doesn't have the background for college," agreed Steve Smith, who coached Daniels for two brief stints at the private Oak Hill Academy in Mouth of Wilson, Va. "Why force him to go to college? If he's going to go into the NBA he's got to take another route."

But Tarkanian defended Daniels' recruitment and said it offered an opportunity for Daniels to improve his non-basketball skills, a chance he otherwise would not get. He contended other schools are jealous because Daniels landed at UNLV.

"Half the schools in the Big East tried to get Lloyd," said UNLV recruiter Mark Warkentein. "A lot of schools acted like they weren't interested, yet their coaches and players and alumni were heavily involved in trying to recruit him."

WARKENTEIN BECAME Daniels' legal guardian last fall. There is an NCAA rule limiting contact with recruits. Warkentein insisted he did it because of a close relationship between Daniels and Warkentein and his wife.

"It started with my wife working with him on his reading last summer," Warkentein said. "He started having some success with reading and he seemed to get some confidence in his ability to learn. We drew pretty close to him. Most of all he needed people to lean on, people who didn't have an ulterior motive."

Warkentein denied he had such motives.

"A lot of my peers thought I'd ride Lloyd into a head (coaching) job," he said. "I considered that an insult. I don't need Lloyd; Lloyd is the one who needs Lloyd."

Warkentein now says he doesn't care if Daniels ever plays for the Rebels. His goal is to get Daniels to learn to read enough so he can get at least a two-year degree and have some form of independence.

"We've had five All-Americans here and they're not even in the same ballpark as Lloyd Daniels," Smith said. "If he put on a few pounds he could play in the NBA right now."

Daniels was the first player to ever make all-city in his freshman year in New York — not even Lew Alcindor did it. Deadly from the outside as well as intimidating inside, Daniels averaged 31.2 points, 12.3 rebounds, eight assists and five blocked shots a game last year before quitting school.

Daniels is scheduled to appear in court May 8 for a hearing on the charge of attempting to possess cocaine. While it's still possible he may play for UNLV eventually, there's also talk of his playing professionally in Europe for a few years and then going to the NBA.

"I hope Lloyd bounces back," Tarkanian said. "He had every opportunity. It was a beautiful situation for him. He had made great, great progress but he went the wrong way. It's unfortunate he made the wrong turn, but I think it was great that he had the opportunity."

Seve Ballesteros gestures as he watches birdie putt drop during Doral Open play.

Ballesteros eagle crowds Doral field

MIAMI (AP) — Spain's Seve Ballesteros opened with an eagle en route to a bogey-free round of 66 and moved into a five-way tie for the lead Friday after two rounds of the $1 million Doral Open Golf Tournament.

Ballesteros, who has won two Masters and a couple of British Open titles, completed two trips over the windswept Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club in 137, seven under par.

"I feel like I played very good," said Ballesteros, who was suspended from PGA Tour activity last year and is restricted in the number of American tournaments he can play this season.

"I have my game almost there. Not quite, but almost," he said.

He was tied for the lead with Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Fred Couples, Lennie Clements and Larry Rinker.

Rinker had an erratic round of 71 that included five bogeys, four birdies and an eagle.

Langer, the first-round leader, could do no better than match par 72 in the strong, gusty winds. Clements closed up with a 68. And Couples got his share of the top spot with an 8-under-par 64, the best round of the tournament.

"Overall, my best round in a long time," said Couples, whose last victory came in 1984.

Bill Rogers, a former British Open champion attempting to dig his way out of a lengthy slump, had a 67 that lifted him to within a single stroke of the lead at 138.

The group at 139 included Tony Sills, Tom Sieckmann, Don Pooley and Mark Calcavecchia. Pooley and Sills had 69s, Calcavecchia 70 and Sieckmann a 71.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus shot a 74 and reached the tournament halfway point at 143.

Tom Watson had a scrambly 72 that put him at 142. Also in the large group at that figure were U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd and PGA titleholder Bob Tway. Each had a second round 70.

Andy Bean, the defending champion and a three-time winner of this title, had a 74 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 149. That's four shots higher than the 145 cut-off score.

Ballesteros, Europe's leading player, is not a member of the American PGA Tour and is restricted to five American Tour events plus the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA.

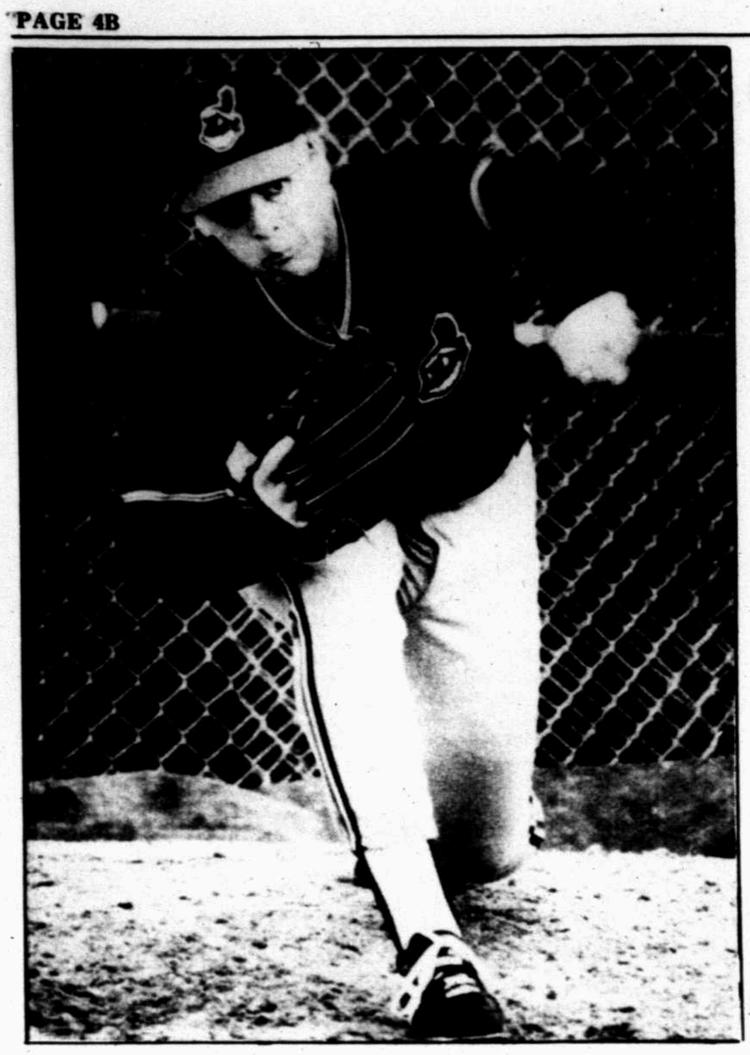

"My best round of the year," said Ballesteros, who is playing in his third consecutive tournament.

Ballesteros needed only a 5-iron second shot to reach the green on the 514-yard first hole and dropped a 10-foot putt for an eagle. He rolled in a 20-footer on the sixth and got his other three birdies after hitting short irons inside of four feet.

Gerring takes lead

PRINCEVILLE, Hawaii (AP) — Cathy Kratzert Gerring overcame strong gusty winds and a rally by Jane Geddes on Friday to build a three-stroke lead midway through the $300,000 LPGA Women's Kemper Open golf tournament.

One week away from baseball TV

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Only one week to go before 40 percent of the nation's homes can start watching baseball again. Set the dial to WTBS on March 7 at 12:35 p.m. CST for Atlanta vs. Montreal. ... Minnesota rookie Gene Larkin is the first player from Columbia University on a big-league roster since Lou Gehrig. Larkin, a 1b-DH, has hit over .300 with 100-plus RBI in each of his two full minor-league seasons. He's expected to start the year in Triple-A. ... The Milwaukee Brewers, trying to find a replacement for injured shortstop Earnest Riles until he returns in May, are considering Dale Sveum. The move might help Sveum, who made 26 errors in 65 games at third base with the Brewers last season. The American League single-season record for errors at third base is 64, set by Sam Strang of the White Sox in 1902. If Sveum kept making miscues at the same rate for 162 games, he would have committed 65

Rumors: Tim Raines could be playing left field for the San Diego Padres on Opening Day. Raines and Padres may be close to a three-year, $4-million agreement ... The Houston Astros are talking about trading Jose Cruz to Minnesota ... Dusty Baker's agent asked the New York Yankees if they would be interested in the veteran DH. They weren't. ... The management of the Cleveland Indians has asked former first baseman and current minor-league manager Mike Hargrove to see how the Tribe would react if popular center fielder Brett Butler was traded, probably for a top starter. The Indians are worried about breaking up team chemistry and alienating fans, the same thing that happened when Von Hayes was traded away.

Bad Precedents: The Texas Rangers went from seventh place in the AL West in 1985 to second last year. There have been 28 other teams in major-league history that have improved by at least five places in one season, but 20 of them had worse records the following year. ... Prior to 1986, the Boston Red Sox had won their previous three AL pennants in 1975, 1967 and 1945. The years after those championships, they finished an average of 15½ games out of first place.

The Twins re-signed pitcher John Butcher eight months after trading him to Cleveland, where he went 1-8 with a 6.56 ERA. "This is why they have the comeback of the year award," Twins executive vice president Andy MacPhail noted. "He's demonstrated the talent to win it." ... The Rangers, still getting organized at their new training complex at Port Charlotte in southwestern Florida, are selling tickets out a trailer parked on the premises. But the small, hand-lettered sign taped to the side advertising "Tickets" seems to be working — so far, the Rangers have sold more than 1,800 season tickets for spring games, compared to 174 last year in Pompano Beach.

Vida Blue's abrupt retirement from the Oakland A's left teammate-for-a-month Joaquin Andujar as the only current major leaguer with at least 100 career strikeouts who has fanned in more than half his at-bats. Andjuar has struck out 52 percent of the time, while Blue was slightly lower around 51.6 percent. Andujar, it should be remembered, hurt his hamstring early last season while taking batting practice — despite playing in the DH league. ... The Elias Sports Bureau, which comes up with neat numbers like those on Andujar and Blue, will keep statistics for both the AL and NL this season. It will be the first time in history the same place has kept stats for both leagues.

Believe It or Not: A video rental store in suburban Boston filed its copy of the 1986 Red Sox highlight film under "Science FictionHorror." ...

Profit-loss shock causes salary lids

Associated Press

Edward Bennett Williams, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, said Friday that it wasn't collusion among owners that ended baseball's bidding war for free agents, it was the shock of seeing their own profit-and-loss statements.

That came in 1985, just prior to settlement of the two-day players' strike. Since then, high-priced free agents have had a hard time getting bids for their services.

"The whole exposure of the books had a very chilling effect on the ownership," Williams told a news conference at Baltimore's spring training camp in Miami. "They realized they'd gone awry in their expenditures and one of the most significant places was in outbidding each other in the free-agent market."

The Major League Baseball Players Association, however, maintains it was collusion and has filed two separate grievances.

An arbitrator is conducting hearings in a case involving 1985 free agents. Last week, another grievance was filed after such big-name 1986 free agents as Tim Raines, Andre Dawson, Lance Parrish, Ron Guidry and Rich Gedman remained unsigned.

"I'm on the Player Relations Committee which deals with these issues," said Williams, "and I've never heard one word about banding together in concerted action to depress prices of talent."

"I heard a lot of people bemoan the fact they're in the red," he said. "But we were going crazy spending and spending — including myself — in an effort to improve our ballclubs.

The Orioles signed free-agent infielders Rick Burleson and Ray Knight during the offseason. But talks with Guidry apparently have come to a dead end.

"I don't think there's much prospect of our signing Guidry at this point," Williams said. "We are pretty much tapped out budgetwise, and payrollwise. I don't want a budget in the red. That's a bad posture."

Money Matters

Thirteen-year veteran Robin Yount, who led the Milwaukee Brewers with a .312 average last season, signed a multi-year contract, reportedly for $1 million a year.

Cincinnati general manager Bill Bergesch plans to meet this weekend with agents for the six unsigned Reds — outfielders Kal Daniels and Eric Davis and pitchers John Franco, Ron Robinson, Tom Browning and Frank Williams.

The New York Mets and relief pitcher Roger McDowell may be near agreement on a contract but the team is farther from agreement with several other key players, including center fielder Lenny Dykstra and pitcher Sid Fernandez.

The Seattle Mariners signed pitcher Mark Huismann, outfielder Mike Kingery, shortstop Rey Quinones and second baseman Harold Reynolds. That leaves third baseman Jim Presley and first baseman Brick Smith as the only unsigned Mariners.

Spring Training

Arrivals and Debuts

Bo Jackson, the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner who chose baseball over professional football arrived two days ahead of schedule at the Kansas City Royals training camp, as did shortstop Buddy Biancalana. Jackson, called up in September after three months in Class AA, hit .207 in 25 games for the Royals, hitting a 475-foot home run in one game that was the longest in the history of Royals Stadium.

Outfielders Rickey Henderson and Claudell Washington arrrived in the New York Yankees camp after missing the first two full-squad workouts. "It seems like I'm ready to win. I've been here two years. I hope this year we win it. That's why I came here," Henderson said.

The Mets greeted their major off-season acquisition, outfielder Kevin McReynolds. "No one has to have a great year for this team to win," obtained in a trade with San Diego by the defending world champions. "The players told me to relax and do what I can do. I don't have to carry this team, just be part of it.

Roger Clemens, the American League MVP and Cy Young Award winner, threw the first pitch as the Boston Red Sox officially began spring batting practice. Manager John McNamara said Clemens would throw 50-60 pitches in the exhibition opener agaist Detroit March 7 with Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd due to go the next day.

Darrell Evans arrived at the Detroit Tigers camp for his 19th big league season but declined to talk about his new contract, which at $550,000 is nearly $250,000 less than he made last year. Evans, who led the American League with 40 home runs in 1985, will turn 40 on May 26

The Houston Astros, at an impasse in negotiations with starting first baseman Glenn Davis, invited free-agent first baseman Dan Driessen to training camp. Driessen, 34, hit .292 in 17 games for the Astros last season after being called up from Houston's AAA Tucson farm club where he hit .295.

Weighty Matters

Greg Swindell weighed in at Cleveland's camp at 225 pounds, midway between his 230 pounds at the end of last season and his 220-pound goal. Swindell, drafted out of the University of Texas last June, had three minor league starts, then joined the Indians, for whom he posted a 5-2 record.

Astros' Kerfield threatens walkout

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros relief pitcher Charlie Kerfeld says Astros General Manager Dick Wagner is more interested in pinching pennies than winning a World Series and that he may walk out of camp.

"There's a stick about 6 feet long, and so far I'm getting one foot of it," Kerfeld said Thursday at the Astros' training camp at Kissimmee, Fla. "He (Wagner) doesn't seem to want to budge for me or Glenn (Davis) or any player with less than three years in the big leagues."

Wagner was attending a meeting in Dallas and unavailable for comment.

Davis, runnerup as the National League's Most Valuable Player last season, currently is a holdout in his contract squabble with Wagner.

Davis and Kerfeld, key figures in Houston's NL Western Division title last season, have less than three years of major league services and are ineligible for salary arbitration.

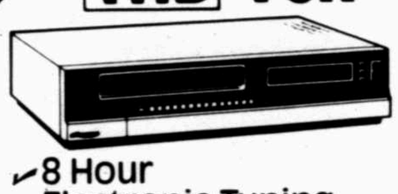

"Obviously, he's (Wagner) worried more about pinching pennies than he is about winning the World Series," Kerfeld said.

Kerfeld, in his second season in the major leagues, finished with an 11-2 record and 2.58 earned run average last season as a middle reliever.

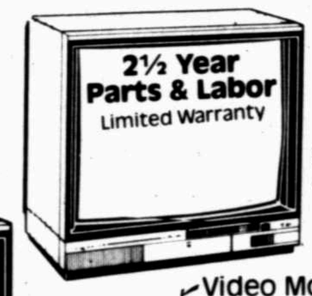

"I'm not saying I'm bitter, but I'm very disgruntled," Kerfeld said. "Glenn Davis is a NL super star of the future. There are no more Glenn Davises in the Astros minor leagues and there are no more Charlie Kerfelds either."

Davis declined to report to training camp with other veterans and says he'll hold out for the rest of the season if he doesn't get a satisfactory contract offer from the Astros.

Paper says Blount controlled SMU slush fund

DALLAS (AP) — A self-made millionaire had little to say about published reports linking him to cash payments to Southern Methodist athletes, but friends described him as a die-hard Mustangs supporter.

Sherwood Blount Jr. declined comment Thursday on a copyright story in the Dallas Times Herald quoting sources who identified him as the banned booster who controlled a slush fund used to pay athletes.

The NCAA Wednesday suspended SMU's 1987 football program, put the school on probation until 1990 and limited it to only seven games, none at home, in 1988. The NCAA cited $61,000 in cash payments as the basis for the penalties.

"I appreciate that opportunity (to respond), but I have no comment," he said about the Times Herald story.

Blount, a Dallas real estate developer and sports agent, was also tight-lipped about his business activities.

"Through the years I've tried to be cooperative. You see the kind of thing that you see in the Dallas Times (Herald). I really don't have any comment."

Blount's acquaintances described him as a hard worker and an enthusiastic football fan. He played college football at SMU from 1969-1971 and high school ball in Dallas in the late 1960s, said former teammate Paul Goodrich.

"He was a good old boy as the jargon goes. Always smiling, always had a crack, always had a joke," said Goodrich, now pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Rockwall.

Goodrich said when he heard radio reports naming Blount, "I didn't crash my car into a tree" because the developer's name had been mentioned in the past in relation to the SMU affair.

But he said he doubts the reports are true.

"I would be surprised if he would do something that is as flagrant as that. That is not Sherwood," Goodrich said.

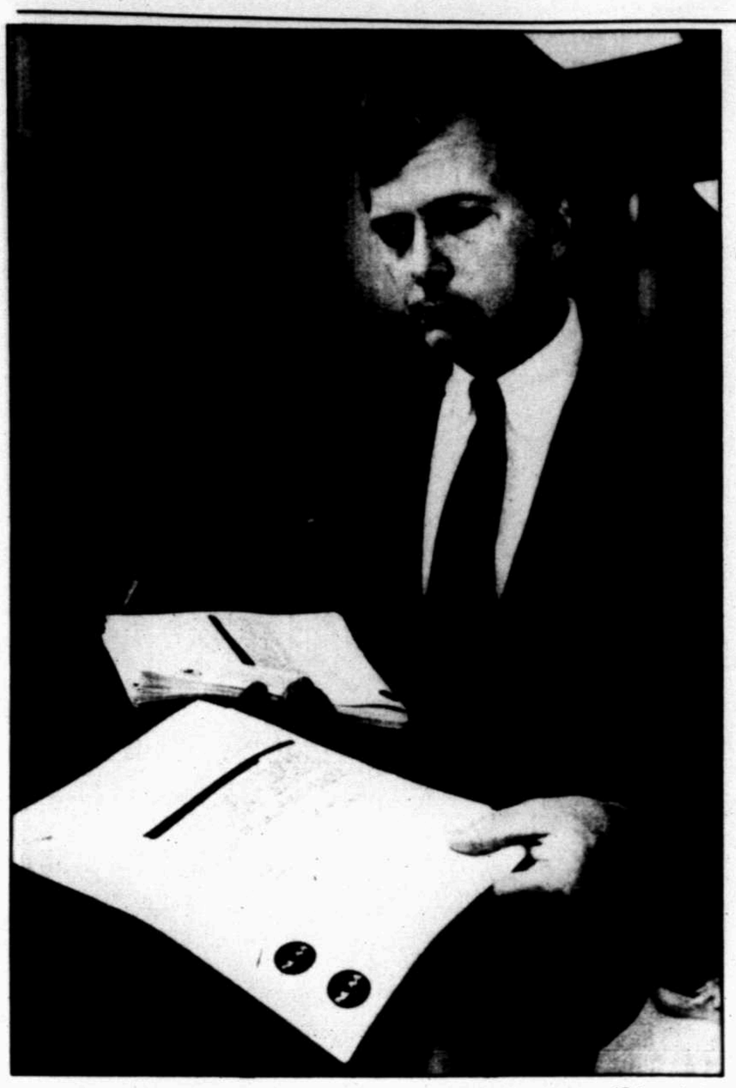

At 29, Blount was worth $2.5 million, according to a 1979 article by Texas Monthly magazine. The profile, titled "Sherwood Blount's First Million," dubbed the developer a "true self-made millionaire."

Although Blount did not have a high public profile, he was well-known in Dallas real estate circles.

"Sherwood did an outstanding job as a broker," said a Dallas real estate agent who asked that his name not be used. "He's a great salesman and a hard worker and a guy that arrives at his office at 7 a.m. in the morning. He's just a hard-charging guy.

"I know he's a major-league SMU supporter," he added.

The businessman said he was surprised when he heard of the allegations against Blount: "His name wasn't one that crossed my mind."

SMU sports information director Larry White takes a look at the NCAA memorandum that bans football during the 1987 season.

NCAA yields intriguing solution

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

An AP Sports Analysis

Faced with the dilemma of how to deal with Southern Methodist University's outlaw football program, the NCAA infractions committee came up with an intriguing solution.

Let them play.

Or rather let them try to play with their hands tied behind their backs, a most fitting way for convicted repeat rule-breakers to spend their time.

After a one-year shutdown, SMU will be permitted to resume a limited football schedule in 1988 with seven road games, none on television. That will eliminate meaningful gate and TV income and, at the same time, provide a fascinating experiment, not unlike plucking the wings off a fly and watching to see how far the little fellow gets in that condition.

"SMU has effectively been removed from Division I-A football permanently," said Chuck Neinas, executive director of the College Football Association. "I would be surprised to see them play that 1988 schedule. Who will they have to play? Freshmen? Walk-ons. It will be a club team. I do not believe they can come back and be competitive. They are in a situation where they have to start their program from scratch."

And that is not an easy assignment.

"They are in a highly-competitive conference and in football you need depth and a steady stream of players, building one class into the next," Neinas said. "They have 56 players on scholarship. They are all eligible to transfer and play immediately. Two years ago, they red-shirted their entire freshman class. Those players have three years of eligibility but that must be completed within five years. So they'll leave. They didn't recruit last year or this and they can only recruit 15 players a year for three years (as part of the penalty)."

And the NCAA tells them to go out and play. Good luck.

Some people argue that because the infractions committee did not use the maximum two-year shutdown available to them, they did not give SMU the death penalty. That is like saying getting shot by one barrel of the shotgun is preferable to getting hit by two.

SMU took a chance and got caught. The message from the NCAA cleanup committee to schools that might have a bit of larceny in their hearts was clear: "We mean business. Here is an example of what can happen to you. Don't cheat. Or if you do, consider the consequences. Consider SMU."

If anything positive can come from this mess, that would be it. "I personally have that view," said Wilford Bailey of Auburn, the newly-elected president of the NCAA. "Unfortunate as it was for the institution, the positive way to consider it is that it will have a salitary effect."

Each time college sports makes a move on policing its terrain, the reaction is usually skeptical. Certainly that was what happened when Proposition 48 — legislation setting minimum freshman academic standards — was adopted in 1983. The next thing the membership knew, a whole host of promising players were sidelined last fall, sent to study halls and libraries instead of practice fields and locker rooms.

The NCAA sometimes is dismissed as a paper lion. It seems now to be proving that the rules actually do have some bite. And, with a little ingenuity — how easy it would have been for the infractions folks to charge SMU with a kneejerk two years for the school's misdemeanors — that bite will leave some scars.

Sure, let them play — with whatever bodies they can find. The results may make more of a point than not playing at all.

"The death penalty is the gas chamber," Neinas said. "They're letting SMU starve to death. The end result is the same."

SMU may drop 1988 season, too

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University, its 1987 football season already canceled by the NCAA, may remain on the sidelines for the entire 1988 season as well because of the likelihood that any team fielded would not be competitive, school officials said Friday.

Sanctions imposed on Wednesday by the NCAA forbade the Mustangs to play football next season; limited the 1988 season to seven games, all on the road; and stripped SMU of any new scholarships this year and half of their 30 scholarships for 1988.

Also, interim athletic director Dudley Parker noted, players with remaining eligibility are free to transfer elsewhere to finish their collegiate careers, and the SMU campus was inundated this week with coaches from other schools trying to recruit them.

Parker said it would be inviting a series of humiliating losses if SMU proceeds with the away-game schedule in 1988 with a team that doesn't measure up to the talent of Southwest Conference opponents.

"We're not going to put a team out there unless we can really have a team," Parker said. "I'm sure the administration wouldn't want to just throw together a bunch of youngsters and send them out there if they aren't capable of competing."

Leroy Howe, president of the SMU faculty senate, said there have been some preliminary discussions about dropping the season. "It's ominous to think about sending these kids out to a slaughter every week."

Lonnie Kliever, SMU faculty representative for athletics, said it is "not out of the question" that SMU could voluntarily drop football in 1988.

"Every option will be looked at, certainly, but I think it's too early to speculate on 1988," Kliever said. "I know there is some concern over having a critical mass of players for competition."

Howe and other SMU officials said Wednesday's sanctions by the NCAA and the anticipated departure of most current players, could leave the school without enough players to field a competitive team.

"A lot of people have said we would have been better off if the NCAA had given us the gas chamber for a second year and I think they may be right," Howe said. "If we play (in 1988), it would be like meeting the lions in the Roman coliseum."

But if the Mustangs don't hit the gridiron in '88, the school may be forced to pay opponents a fee for voluntarily breaking existing contracts to play.

"My guess would be that the NCAA couldn't hold SMU liable for any games missed this year but they could next year," said Southwest Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby.

Meanwhile, several SWC schools have been able to fill the holes in their 1987 schedules left by SMU. Friday Texas Tech said it will play Lamar on Sept. 19 and leave Nov. 14, when the Red Raiders were scheduled to meet the Mustangs, an open date.

According to newspaper reports Friday, the University of Texas is close to an agreement to play Auburn next fall in the season opener, with North Texas State available if the Auburn plans fell through.

Baylor has agreed on a game with Southwest Texas for Oct. 10, New Mexico will play Arkansas Nov. 28, Texas A&M will face Louisiana Tech Oct. 31 and Rice will play Louisiana State Sept. 19. Texas Christian and Houston still are seeking opponents.

Football coaches shop for Mustangs' talent

DALLAS (AP) — Football coaches, more than 100 strong, rushed into the vacuum created by the cancelation of this year's football schedule at Southern Methodist to shop for players who will be idled by the NCAA edict.

The toughest sanctions ever imposed on a football program, the first under the "death penalty" for repeat violators, gave 52 of SMU's players the unusual chance to go to another school without having to sit out a year.

Arizona, Tulsa, Alabama, Kansas, UCLA, Oklahoma and Houston were among the schools who sent talent-hunters and their sales pitches to hover outside the locker room of SMU's Ownby Stadium.

"Got a minute? I'd like to talk to you about coming to our school," was a typical line from talent scouts approaching SMU players Thursday.

"It's incredible. They're like vultures," said linebacker Ricky Roden, who will be a sophomore next season.

"My phone started ringing about 12 last night," said defensive tackle Robert McDade, a starter last season as a sophomore. "And it hasn't stopped ringing this morning. It all makes your head spin. Some of these guys have films of me. I don't even know how they did that."

Quarterback John Stollenwerck, who will be a sophomore in eligibility next season, gave five interviews in 20 minutes to recruiters within a five-foot radius.

Scouts spoke of facilities and opportunities, some for a few seconds, others for several minutes. The players circled the room past scouts who handed out business cards as they talked.

Some schools had planned part of their recruiting season around the SMU situation by leaving a few of their scholarships open.

"We kind of expected it from what we had read in the papers," said Bill Rees, recruiting coordinator for the University of California at Los Angeles.

The University of Houston launched the most intensive recruiting effort, sending four assistant coaches to the SMU campus, and it may be rewarded for its efforts.

Franky Thomas, the Mustangs' starting free safety, was wearing a Houston cap Thursday afternoon and said he will likely be a Cougar next fall. Several other players said Houston would be one of their top considerations.

Some were overwhelmed by the attention.

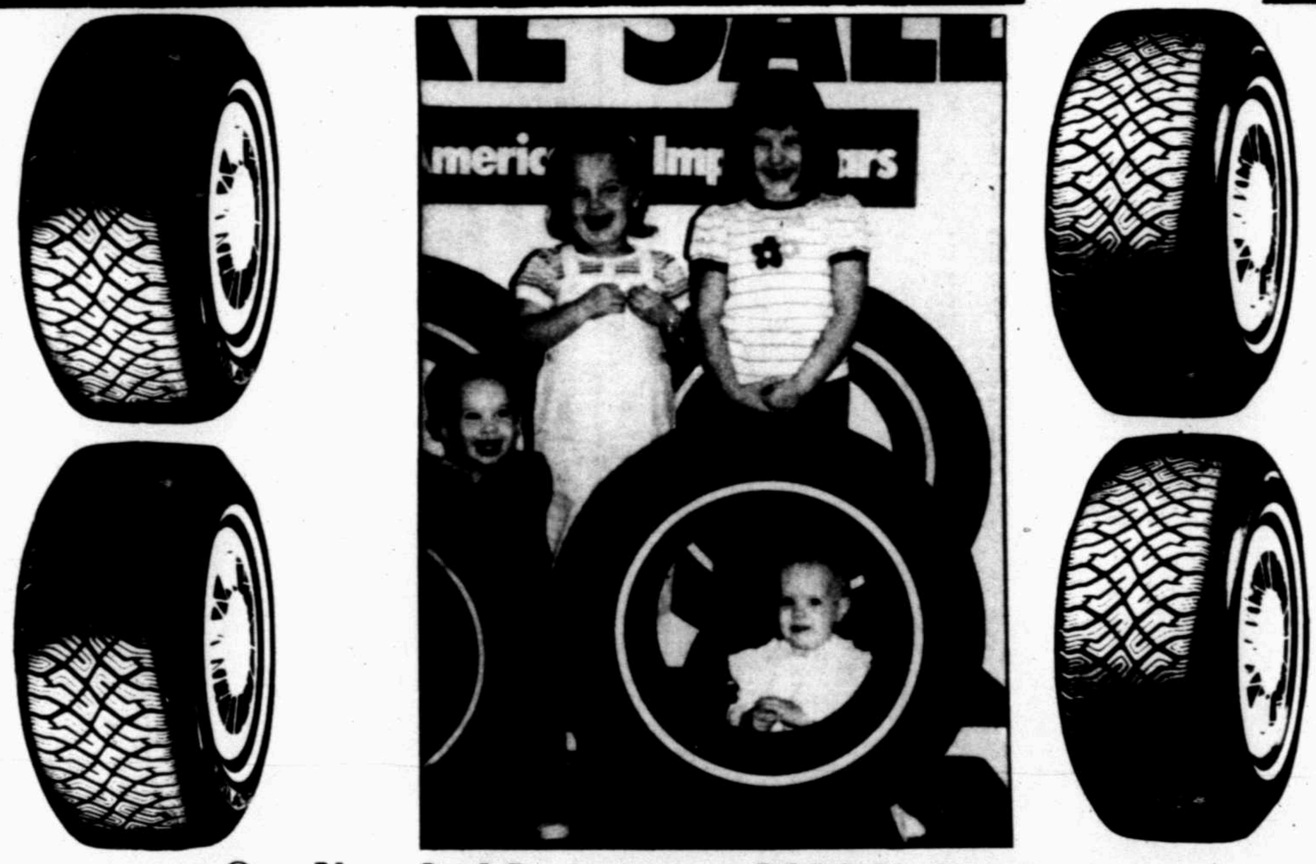

"One good thing that may come of this," said Kevin McKinney, a starting offensive tackle. "There are some awesome schools in there talking to us."

Faced with the transfer of so many players and restricted by the other provisions of the penalties, SMU officials were contemplating calling off the 1988 schedule as well. The Mustangs were limited to seven games, all on the road, next year.

The NCAA cited illegal booster payments to players as the reason for the penalties, which also include a reduction in scholarships and the number of assistant coaches, bans on televising games and playing in bowl games, and a probation that will last until 1990.

Sabatini sets tennis pace with victory

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina crushed Peru's Laura Gildemeister 6-1, 6-2 today to move on the fourth round of the $1.8 million International Players Championships.

Sabatini, seeded 10th in the women's draw at the two-week tournament, will face either Martina Navratilova or Halle Cioffi in her next match.

Eighth-seeded Kathy Rinaldi, meanwhile, was added to the list of upset victims. She lost to Nathalie Tauziat of France 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

In other early matches on the fifth day of the tournament, Mary Joe Fernandez beat Susan Sloane 6-1, 6-1, West Germany's Silke Meier defeated Marianne Werdel 1-6, 6-2, 6-3 and Thomas Muster of Monaco whipped Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

THE FOURTH day of the tournament offered a little of everything.

Like easy second-round victories for eight of the top 10 women's players. Like 15-year-old Mary Joe Fernandez's stunning upset of No. 5 Pam Shriver. Like Boris Becker's withdrawal with a stomach disorder. Like Hamilton Jordan being named executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

And, like John McEnroe being fined $1,000 for his behavior during a doubles match he and Matt Mitchell lost to Ivan Lendl and Bill Scanlon.

Thursday was indeed a full day at the International Tennis Center. The first matches began around 9:30 a.m. and the last of them ended nearly 14 hours later.

In between, Martina Navratilova , Chris Evert Lloyd, Steffi Graf and Hana Mandlikova won; Pam Shriver fell in the major upset of the day, and Yannick Noah overcame a shaky start to avoid becoming a major casualty in the men's draw.

And then there was McEnroe, who teamed with Mitchell in a 6-4, 6-7, 6-4 doubles loss to Lendl and Scanlon. The three-time Wimbledon champion was given a code violation for arguing a line call during the match and slapped with an automatic fine for unsportsmanlike conduct.

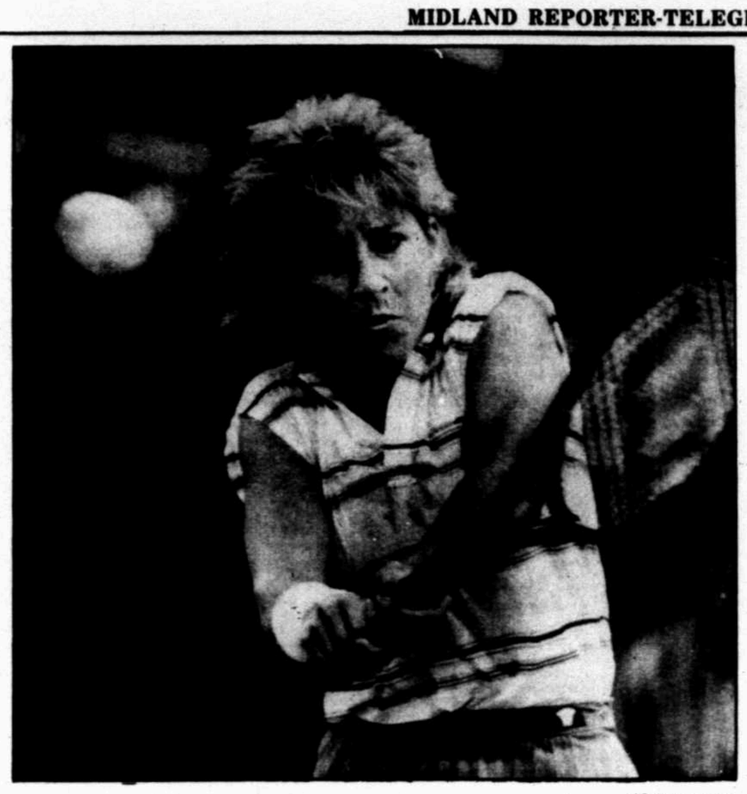

A penalty point also was assessed, costing McEnroe and Mitchell a game that gave Lendl-Scanlon a two games to one lead in the decisive third set.

McEnroe, who didn't enter the singles draw after having some teeth pulled last week, came to the tournament hoping to play enough doubles matches to get a better idea of where his game stands at this stage of the season.

He answered questions afterward, but was in no mood to discuss the match.

"There's really not much to talk about. I think it speaks for itself," he said. "It was a good match and it was entertaining. I just wish the outcome would have been different."

Shriver, the women's fifth seed, was searching for answers after her match with Fernandez. She lost 6-3, 6-4.

Class of 48 hitting books

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

They are the missing men of this college basketball winter, highly recruited, hotly pursued high school hotshots who dropped through the NCAA's trap door of academic standards into a season on the sidelines.

Call them the Class of 48 — Proposition 48.

They have been absent from action throughout the winter, spending their time hitting books instead of jump shots, squirming in the stands instead running the court. And now they have to endure one last tough stretch — the NCAA tournament, their sport's March showcase.

How much better would Michigan have been with Rumeal Robinson and Terry Mills in the lineup? Coach Bill Frieder, whose team has struggled through a tough season against powerhouse Big Ten Conference opponents, salivates at the thought. "Much better," Frieder said. "We would have been much better."

And how about Illinois with Nick Anderson, or Syracuse with Earl Duncan, or Notre Dame with Keith Robinson? Cincinnati, with five members in the Class of Proposition 48, got a taste of what kind of difference they might have made for the Bearcats.

LEVERTIS RIBINSON, Kevin Williams, Chip Givens, Louis Banks and Keith Starks got together and formed an intramural team, calling themselves the Inforcers. "We'll just run a bunch of picks and things," Givens explained, perhaps not wanting to scare off opponents. Nothing fancy, you understand. They merely won their first game 124-12. The next two were forfeits.

The Inforcers were 5-0 going into the playoffs before being upset in the quarterfinals when they dropped a two-point decision in overtime. They had an excuse though. The other team had two ex-varsity players, including the Bearcats' starting center from last season.

More importantly, the Cincinnati five had an aggregate grade point average of 2.86 for the fall semester, compared to the 2.44 aggregate GPA for the university's male freshmen class.

Frieder had the same positive scholastic report on Robinson and Mills.

"Rumeal had a 2-plus and Terry a 3-point for the fall," he said. "They're doing a great job. They've handled the situation extremely well and with great maturity. They've concentrated on studies and not played a lot of basketball. They go to class and they don't miss study table."

Frieder said Michigan did not consider withdrawing scholarships for the players in this season, a tactic that would have given them four years to play under terms of the Proposition 48 legislation. "Some of those players bought a year of eligibility by paying their own way," he said. "I'm a little suspicious of that. I wonder if someone else is paying."

Mills and Robinson, rooming together, took basic freshmen courses, including English, math and anthropology. "We purposely started them with harder, required courses because they had a lot more time without the pressures of basketball," the coach said. "They will be eligible next year and they will graduate with degrees from the University of Michigan."

THAT, OF course, is the whole idea of the legislation, which set minimum admission standards for freshmen athletes. It forces those with academic shortcomings to concentrate on their studies and earn at least a 2.0 grade point to play as sophomores.

"I got into classes more than I ever had before in my life," Illinois' Anderson said. "I'm a basketball player. I think basketball, basketball, all the time. It's been pretty hard, but I learned to cope day by day. Watching the guys play got me down but I had to pick myself up."

Anderson's fall class program included English, astronomy, biology and Afro-American history. "I did good," he said. "I had a 3.1 on a 5-point scale."

It has been tough for him to keep his basketball edge, though. "Not playing organized ball, I picked up some bad habits," he said, "taking bad shots, doing things a coach wouldn't let you do. I've been playing with some football players. They're really physical and I've gotten more physical, too. You're banging with a lot of meat against those guys. It's hard. I'm just hanging in there."

Duncan's basketball these days is played in an intramural league in Syracuse's elderly Archbold Gym, next door to the modern Carrier Dome where the Orange varsity play. The two facilities are light years apart aesthetically.

"I see myself out there," Duncan said. "I wish I was out there. I just didn't do well enough in the SATs. I came up short. But I'm not worried. I'll be all right."

Duncan's first semester was spent in courses like psychology, algebra and speech communications, and produced a 2.5 grade point average. He goes to games in the Dome and tries not to squirm too much. "It's tough. The other guys are contributing and I'm watching," he said. "I just try to analyze the games and get a better insight into them."

As difficult as this season of idleness has been, Duncan sees some benefit to his situation. "Not playing helped me get acclimated to college life," he said. "It's a case of budgeting your time."

Jumpers leap to magical world marks

NEW YORK (AP) — East Germany's Heike Drechsler, restricted by what she called a short pit, nevertheless became the first woman's long jumper to exceed 24 feet indoors Friday in the Mobil Track and Field Championships, while American Mike Conley became the first triple jumper to exceed 58 feet indoors.

The long-legged 22-year-old Drechsler leaped 24 feet, one-quarter inch, breaking the world indoor record of 23-11 she had set Jan. 15, 1986 at Berlin, and shattering the meet record by nearly one foot.

Conley sailed 58-3¼, shattering the world indoor record of 57-11¾, set earlier this year by Oleg Protsenko of the Soviet Union.

The remarkable performances by Drechsler and Conley highlighted an afternoon program that also included two other marks.

Dreschler's countrywoman, Cornelia Oschkenat, orginally was given credit for a world indoor best time of 7.22 seconds but later the clocking was revised to 7.48, well above the mark of 7.36 by American Stephanie Hightower-Leftwich. A malfunction of the photo timing equipment caused the error on Oschkenat's original time.

Diane Dixon lowered her American record in the women's 400 meters from 52.13 to 52.00 during a trial heat, and Clarence Daniel of the U.S. set a meet record of 47.27 during a trial heat in the men's 400.

The 5-11¼ Drechsler had set the championship record of 23-0¾ last year.

This time, she surpassed that with her only two legal jumps. Four of her attempts resulted in fouls, and the other legal jump was 23-7¼.

Drechsler, ranked No. 1 in the world in the women's long jump for the past four years, also owns the world outdoor record of 24-5½, a distance she reached twice last year.

In addition to her record jump Friday, she had two tremendous leaps, on her first and last tries, but both were fouls.

After the first attempt, in which she landed near the back of the pit, she said through an interpreter, "I was afraid."

"The pit could have been longer," she added. "I think my landing was restricted because of the shortness of the pit.

"That (the record jump) was not my optimum performance."

The powerful and fast Drechsler, who also is ranked No. 1 in the world in the women's 200 meters, in which she twice equaled the world record last year, said she thought she would be able to jump farther next week during the inaugural World Indoor Championships at Indianapolis "because the track there is better."

"But there, the victory is what matters, because it's the world championships," she said.

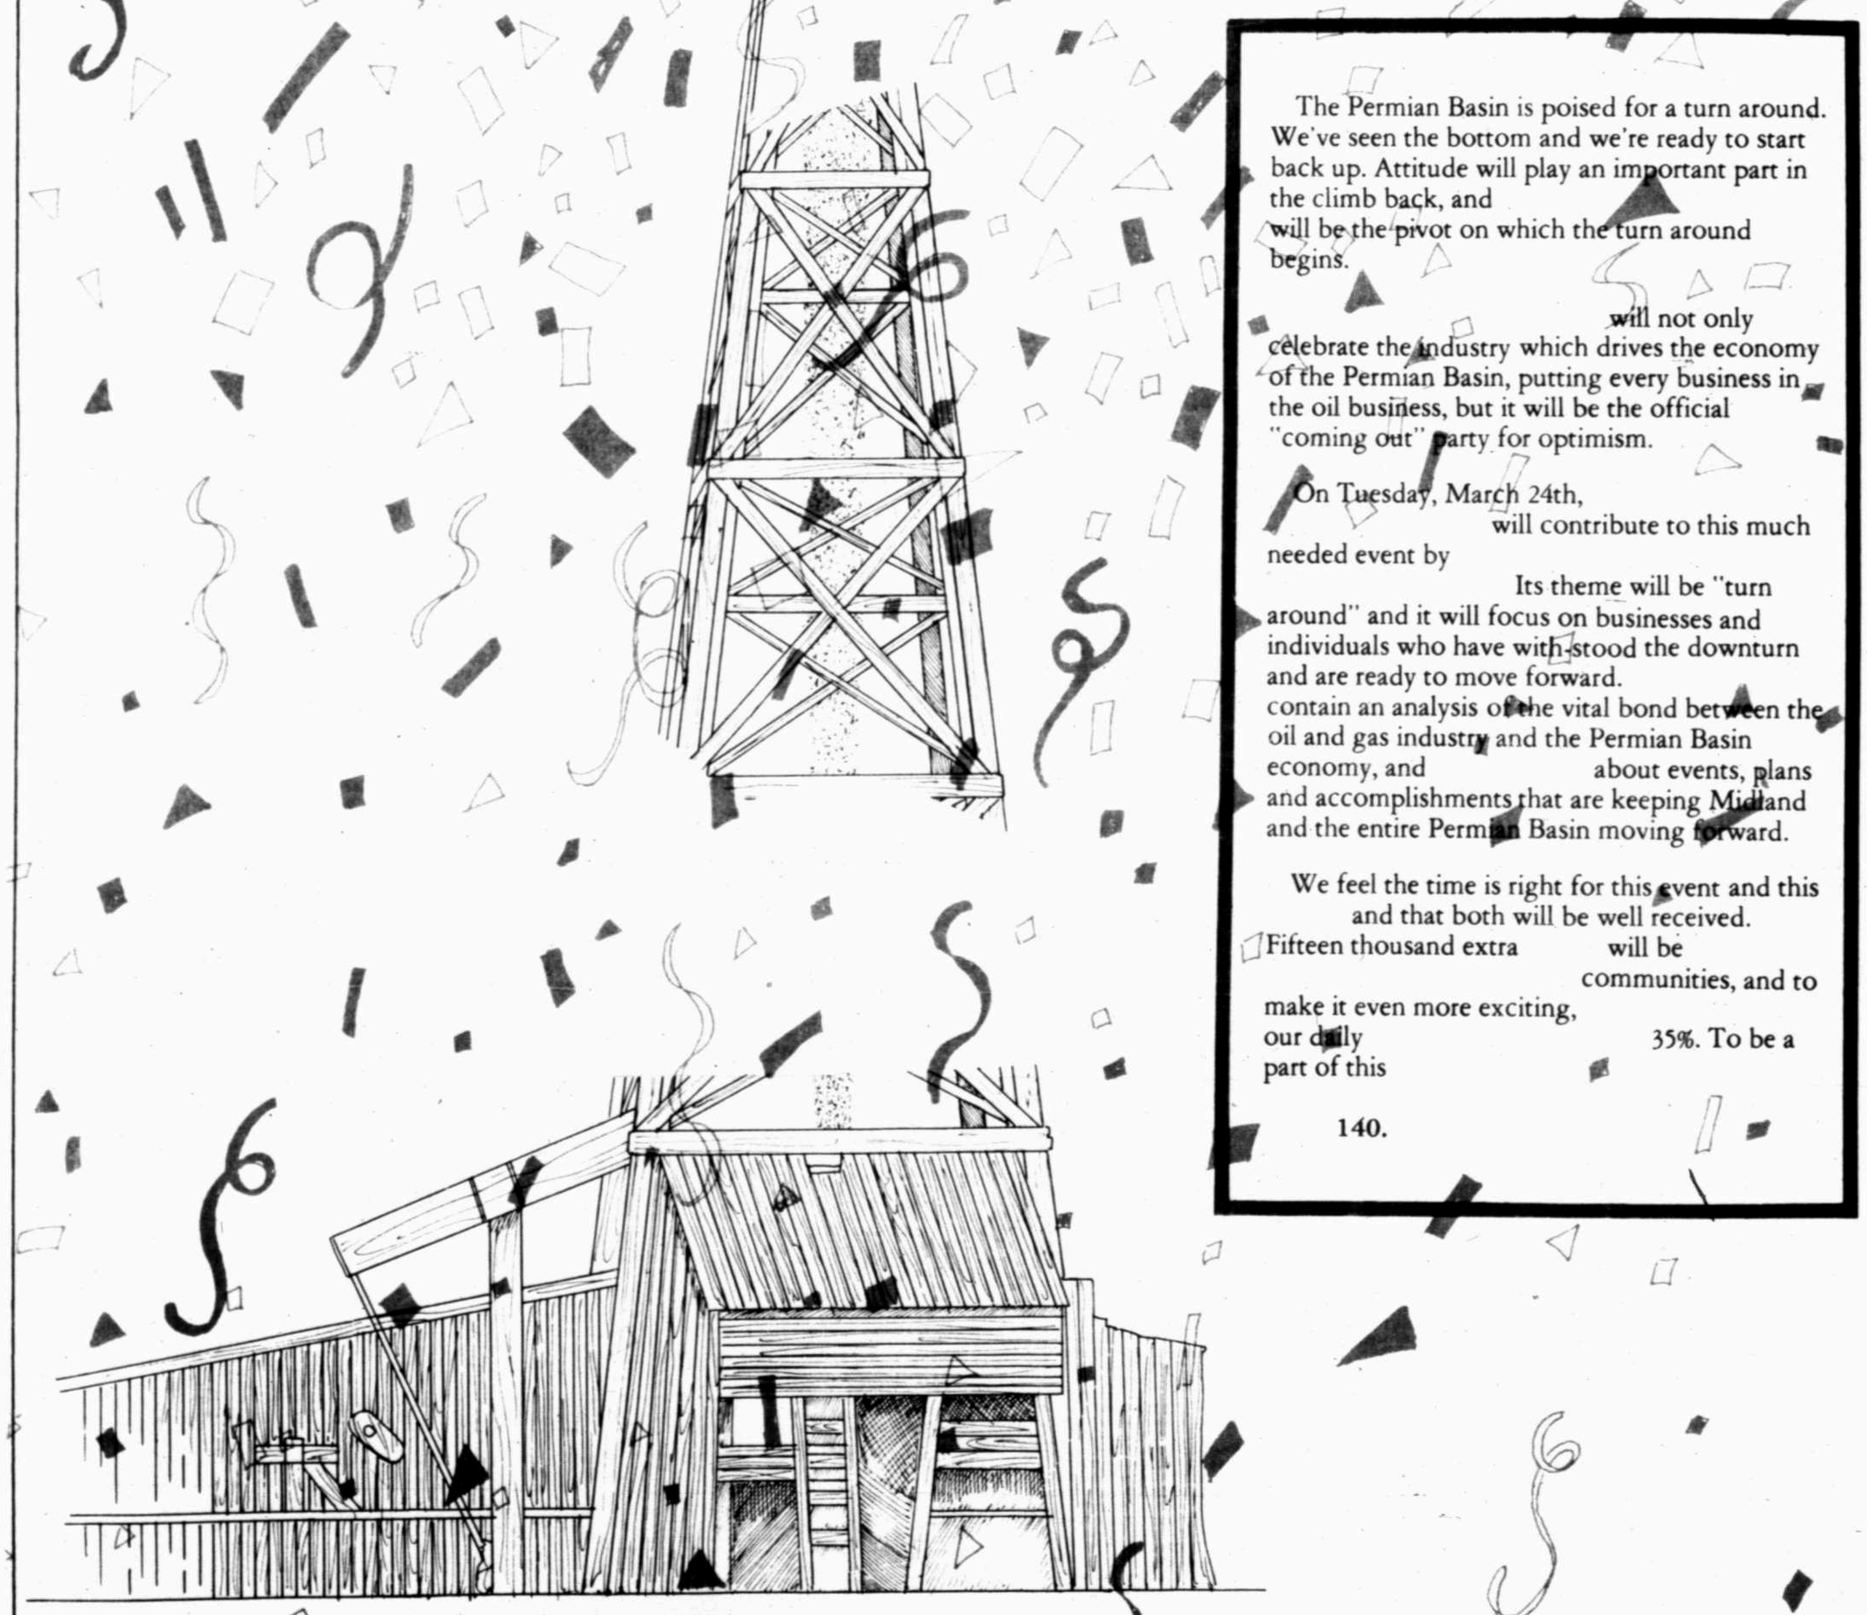

After the first jump "scare," Drechsler adjusted her run-up, moving back slightly, then nailed the record on her second try.

In addition to having to adjust her run-up, she was forced to fix her jumping shoes because the surface at Madison Square Garden was "too smooth."

Drechsler's efforts were watched by only about 200 spectators, mostly coaches and athletes, who were in attendance for the meet's early session.

"I'm a little sad not to have had spectators," she said. "If there were more spectators, I might have jumped longer."

In comparison to Drechsler's 24-foot jump, no American has yet to reach 23 feet indoors. The best American jumper, Jackie Joyner-Kersee, skipped the long jump to concentrate on the 55-meter high hurdles. Joyner-Kersee's U.S. indoor record is 22-10.

Proper gemstone care prolongs life, luster

DALLAS (AP) — Treat your gemstone jewelry with tender, loving care and it will sparkle forever.

This advice comes from the American Gem Trade Association (AGTA), a non-profit organization representing suppliers of colored gemstones throughout the United States, and the International Colored Stone Association (ICA), an organization of gemstone suppliers representing 29 gem-producing countries.

One of the most important aspects of keeping your jewelry dazzling is proper storage. Each piece should be stored in a separate cloth or plastic bag, notes AGTA, because even the most durable gemstone can be damaged when rubbed against a harder one.

A practical way to store pierced earrings is to hook the posts together, with the earring fronts facing opposite directions. This method prevents damage and keeps pairs together.

A gemstone's beauty is derived from its ability to reflect light. Just as a dirty mirror projects a marred reflection, so does a dirty gemstone. Therefore, it is most important to clean gemstones regularly, giving special attention to the back of the stone, which attracts dirt and grease like a magnet, the ICA points out.

Most crystalline gemstones, including diamond, ruby, sapphire, quartz, citrine and amethyst, are easily cleaned by soaking overnight in a commercial cleansing solution available at most jewelry stores, and gently brushing grime from the facets and prongs the next morning.

If a commercial cleaning solution is not available, make your own by mixing together one-half cup water, one drop liquid dish detergent and one tablespoon of a grease-cutting agent such as ammonia or rubbing alcohol, suggests the AGTA.

People Are Looking Up!

Optimism is a joyous emotion. Yet, what a ridiculous phrase we coined for expressing it:

Things are looking up

Things can't look up. Only people can.

Across much of the world today there is a resurgence of religious interest. Some think it a reaction to materialism. Folks are discovering what one believes can be more important than what one has.

Others say it's the quest for values that endures in a changing world. Values to be cherished today—and passed on to future generations.

People are looking up! Finding in God's Truth the blessed Hope that inspires life here, and promises life hereafter. Optimism never had a more joyous foundation.

Shared language leads to 'spiritual harvest'

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Whatever their nation or tongue, farmers understand a common medium — the voice of the soil, its produce and secrets of coaxing it to yield its best.

That is the universal language that a Florida couple, Doug and Evelyn Knapp, used in establishing rapport with a remote African tribe in mission work hailed for its bumper spiritual harvest.

Yet they had been feared and shunned until that agricultural mutuality took hold. It became so firm that before a recent home leave, Knapp was armed by tribesmen for protection from "dangerous" Americans.

"Take this spear," said native pastors he had trained, "to protect yourselves from the 'wahuni' (hoodlums). We have heard on radio that there is much crime in America."

As agricultural missionaries for Southern Baptists, whose 3,700 foreign missionaries outnumber those of any denomination, the Knapps have been on the job 22 years in a tropical, mountainous part of southern Tanzania.

Their impact "has permeated the whole 1,000-square-mile district" of Kyela, says the Rev. Clell Coleman of Hollywood, Fla., who briefly worked with the Knapps there.

It was kinship with the land, Knapp says, that forged his ties with the people.

"Their shamba (farm) is their life," he relates in a new book about his experiences, "Thunder in the Valley," as told to Robert O'Brien and published by Broadman Press. "An improved shamba means an improved life...

"One thing is universal. When farmers see something they think will help their farms, they've got to have it."

Knapp, 59, once an "intensive farming" horticulturist of Socrum, Fla., and later assistant Dade County agent in Miami, says when he and his wife took up their mission post in 1964, the Nyakyusa tribesmen would flee in fear.

They treated "us like the plague," he says. "We couldn't seem to get to first base." He says he learned that tribal witch doctors had spread a story that the couple sought to take blood to get power by black magic.

"Now that is a hard thing to overcome," he says.

He proceeded to clear an undeveloped valley area of tropical forest for a demonstration farm, initially of 10 acres, but since grown to more than 100 acres.

"It was backbreaking labor to clear out the underbrush, cut trees, dig the stumps out by hand, fence the raw land and begin contruction of buildings, first a tool shed, then a barn," he says.

But once his "shamba" started producing its abundant fruit and vegetables and big-eared corn, and its cows and chickens yielding much milk and many eggs, the tribesmen got interested.

"The Nyakyusa could see our fast-growing corn prospering across the fence with great big ears, and their eyes got bigger and bigger the more they looked," he says.

Eventually, some began sidling up to the fence, guardedly keeping their distance, but asking questions in Swahili, which the Knapps had learned early in their assignment.

Soon Knapp was sending out seeds and hatching eggs. That "began to break the ice," he says, and gradually many changes in farming practices were introduced that have improved the people's eating habits, nutrition and health.

Altogether, he says, it took 16 years before those agricultural relationships began to produce spiritual bonds, with Knapp blending talks about Christian faith with his farming tips.

That combination has brought a growing wave of Christian baptisms, 14,409 of them in 1986, an eighth of all baptisms projected for the denomination's entire missions corp, according to the denomination's Foreign Missions Board.

In the past nine years of the Knapps' ministry, baptisms have totalled 40,212, with about 270 churches and preaching points established.

The work has "laid the groundwork...for a spiritual breakthrough which will have an enduring impact on the history of African missions," says a former Southern Baptist president, the late Owen Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss.

Knapp, a layman, credits the Nyakyusa people and eight tribal farmer-pastors he trained and provided with motorcycles to fan out over their assigned sectors of the district to preach.

He also minimizes the impression that "chalking up numbers is the way to prove the authenticity of a particular ministry." Simply "sowing the seeds" is what counts, he says, leaving results to God's timing.

In the Knapps' years on the field, they've endured many difficulties, he relates, bouts of hepatitus, typhoid fever, malaria and other ailments, spent nights in mosquito-infested swamps, been dumped from a capsized canoe, held at spear-point by drunk tribesmen, thwarted attempted robbery, been marooned by floods, and repeatedly stuck in mud.

But they see "many beneficial things we've helped introduce," he says, but what's more, he adds, the people "look on us as friends, not strangers. That goes a long ways."

Ash Wednesday marks protests to rebel aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Ash Wednesday, March 4, leaders of the nation's mainline religious bodies are to begin a series of noon prayer vigils at the nation's Capitol protesting U.S. military support of Nicaraguan rebels.

A religious coalition, including Protestants and Roman Catholics, plans daily worship each Wednesday of the 40-day Lenten period on the Capitol steps, with prayers for a change in U.S. policy and for the sufferers in Nicaragua.

The Rev. John O. Humbert of Indianapolis, president of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) said some participants plan to move into the Capitol rotunda for prayer, an action that could result in arrests.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

UMC offers Lay Academy to Midland-Odessa adults

Abraham

Holbert

The United Methodist Church of the Midland-Odessa area, in cooperation with Perkins School of Theology, SMU in Dallas, is offering the Lay Academy to all adults of the community March 6-7. The courses will be held at First United Methodist Church of Midland, Main and Illinois streets.

The Lay Academy is continuing education for laity that offers two courses, "The Triumph of Job and God," taught by Dr. John Holbert, and "Faith Sharing," taught by Dr. William Abraham. Both are faculty members of Perkins.

Holbert, currently assistant professor of homileticis, received his PhD in Old Testament from SMU. He delivered at the 1986 lecture series on Genesis at First United Methodist Church in Midland. He has served as a pastor and a college teacher.

Abraham is currently McCreless Professor of Evangelism and associate professor of philosophy of religion at Perkins. He is a native of Ireland and a graduate of Queen's University, Belfast; Asbury Seminary in the United States; and Regent's Park College, Oxford University, England. He has served as a pastor and teacher in Ireland and a teacher in the U.S.

The course schedule is 7 to 9:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

The registration fee is $30 per course and textbooks are available. Lunch will be available at the church on Saturday. Child care is also available. Advance registration is necessary and can be made by calling the church at 682-3701.

'Development' topic of study

"Ages and Stages of Development" is a new study being offered to single adults of all ages, each Wednesday March 4 through April 1 at First United Methodist Church. Steve Roberts, director of Family Services of Midland, will lead the course.

Bill Weir, minister of program and education at the church, says all Midland single adults are invited to participate and should register by calling the church office at 682-3701 before Wednesday. There is a $3 registration fee, payable Wednesday night.

The course is part of the church's "Wednesday Night Alive" program. A supper is available, for a nominal fee, at 5:15 p.m. Classes and choirs follow at 6:15 p.m. Child care is available for preschoolers.

'Mama Mary' to turn 100

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church will honor one of its members, Mary Dockett, on the event of her 100th birthday at the regular morning services today.

Mrs. Dockett was born March 1, 1887, in Marlin. She is known in her church as "Mama Mary," and she says she attributes her longevity to "a strong faith in God, gratitude, honest labor and a cheerful outlook on life."

'Focus on Family' to be shown

Greenwood United Methodist Church will show the James Dobson film series "Focus on the Family" beginning Sunday. The series will be shown over the next six weeks during the Sunday school hour each Sunday.

The congregation is currently meeting in the auditorium of Greenwood Elementary School. Morning worship is at 9 a.m. and the Sunday school hour begins at 10:15 a.m.

The public is invited to attend and the series will be repeated beginning in mid-April for those unable to attend the first time.

Altar Society meets, lunches

St. Ann's Altar Society will meet 1 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Hugh Munn.

Tuesday, the group will hold its annual spaghetti luncheon from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. It will be held at St. Ann's School cafeteria, 2000 W. Texas.

Tickets to the luncheon are $4 per person. Baked goods and frozen casseroles will also be for sale.

Shrove Tuesday supper set

The Chancel Choir of First United Methodist Church will hold its 26th annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday. It will be held in the fellowship hall of the church located at Main and Illinois in downtown. Tickets are $2.50 each for "all-you-can-eat pancakes and sausage." Preschoolers eat free.

According to Brad Kisner, this is the choir's only yearly fundraiser. In previous years, proceeds have been directed to various church projects including new vestments for the ministers, choir rehearsal room furnishings, the church robe fund, and toward the purchase of stereo equipment for the music suite.

Shrove Tuesday is the traditional day when all fats and oils are used up before the beginning of the Lenten season which begins the next day, Ash Wednesday.

The public is invited to attend. Tickets are available at the door.

LIFESCOPE

Who Me? Your Lifescope Says, "Yes, God Wants You!"

I sleep, but my heart is awake; it is the voice of my Beloved! He knocks, saying, "Open for Me, My love . . ."

"Behold, I (Jesus) stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and dine with him, and he with Me."

Once you were under God's curse, doomed forever for your sins. You went along with the crowd and were just like all the others, full of sin, obeying Satan, the mighty prince of the power of the air, who is at work right now in the hearts of those who are against the Lord. All of us used to be just as they are, our lives expressing the evil within us, doing every wicked thing that our passions or our evil thoughts might lead us into. We started out bad, being born with evil natures, and were under God's anger just like everyone else.

But God is so rich in mercy; He loved us so much that even though we were spiritually dead and doomed by our sins, He gave us back our lives again when He raised Christ from the dead - only by His undeserved favor have we ever been saved - and lifted us up from the grave into glory along with Christ, where we sit with Him in the heavenly realms - all because of what Christ Jesus did. And now God can always point to us as examples of how very, very rich His kindness is, as shown in all He has done for us through Jesus Christ.

The Lord has appeared to me, saying: "Yes, I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness I have drawn you." The man who finds life will find it through trusting God.

Taken from Song of Sol. 5, Rev. 3, Eph. 2, Jer. 31, Rom. 1.

AIDS crisis spurs religious teamwork in state

NEW YORK (AP) — A rare thing has happened in a southwestern city in the face of a strange menace. AIDS has drawn together religious forces of Houston, Texas, assertedly as never before.

They've joined hands to comfort the afflicted in what leaders consider their fullest ecumenical effort yet, a concerted approach which they believe is unmatched anywhere in the country.

"We think it is unprecedented," says the Rev. Earl E. Shelp, co-coordinator of the city's Clergy Consultation for AIDS, which has developed an extensive, interfaith operation of education and of care for victims.

"We don't know of any comparable broad-based organization in any major city to date."

Its objective, he said in a telephone interview, is to "comfort and care for people who are hurting, to educate our people about the expanding AIDS epidemic and to gear up to meet the ever larger crisis on the horizon."

Highlighting that purpose, more than 150 Houston congregations, Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish, last weekend observed a special "AIDS Awareness and Intercessory Prayer Sabbath."

At a Jewish temple, Roman Catholic parish and Episcopal church, combined ecumenical services — of healing, memorializing the deceased and of hope — dramatized the common undertaking.

But the basic work goes on in a wide and growing network of congregations, home-care teams, legal services and therapy sessions mobilized to advise, console and care for sufferers from the dread disease.

"It's a hands-on, parish-based form of ministry," said Shelp, 39, a Southern Baptist. He said it provides meals, practical nursing, bedclothes changing, cleanup tasks, transportation, friendship and encouragement.

At least 95 congregations are directly involved, a dozen of them intensively, dispatching 15 home "respite teams" totalling about 200 members. Other congregations do such chores as visiting and food provision.

"It's the largest interfaith organization of its kind on a citywide basis," says the Rev. Ronald H. Sunderland, a co-coordinator who with Shelp sparked its initiation in late 1985 among the city's clergy.

Both men are research fellows of the Institute of Religion at the Texas Medical Center, Shelp in medical ethics and Sunderland in pastoral counselling. Sunderland also is chaplain at the Institute of Immunological Disorders.

Churches name 'directors to legalization'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Churches across the country are helping guide undocumented aliens through the complicated process of seeking legal resident status under the new federal immigration law.

Monsignor Nicholas DiMarzio, director of the U.S. Catholic Conference's Migration and Refugee Service, says most of the nation's Roman Catholic dioceses have appointed "legalization directors."

He estimates that up to 3 million people will apply for legal status under the law, allowed for those who can prove they've lived in this country since before Jan. 1, 1982.

Episcopal President Bishop Edmond L. Browning has dispatched information on the new law to bishops across the country, and a national "working group on migration concerns" was set up to coordinate guiding of applicants.

Similar steps were under way by Church World Service offices, which handle refugee work for most major Protestant denominations.

Applications for legal residence are not to be accepted by the Immigration and Naturalization Service until May 5, but churches were recruiting volunteers and laying plans for aiding aliens involved.

Decision opposed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Union for Traditional Conservative Judaism says it "strongly opposes" the decision by the Jewish Theological Seminary to ordain women cantors, saying it flouts Jewish law.

Methodists urged to show compassion

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — Officers of the World Methodist Council have urged Methodists around the world to show compassion for victims of AIDS and to "affirm the love of God for all people regardless of condition of life."

The council includes 64 Methodist denominations totaling 52 million members in 90 countries.

Italy's Premier Craxi to offer resignation

ROME (AP) — Premier Bettino Craxi met Friday with leaders of his badly divided, five-party government coalition to tell them he would offer his resignation next week, Italian politicians and news media reported.

The move follows weeks of bitter squabbling. But it was not certain whether the expected collapse of the government would lead to a resurrection of the same alliance under a new premier or would force early parliamentary elections.

Craxi, Italy's first Socialist premier, has been in office since August 1983, longer than any other Italian premier since World War II. He heads the nation's 45th postwar government.

He told party leaders he would go before Parliament Tuesday to make a "political communication," a formal statement politicians say is tantamount to announcing he intends to resign.

The Christian Democrats, Italy's dominant party, say it's their turn to lead the government. They say Craxi agreed to turn over the reins in March in a pact that allowed the coalition to be restored last July a month after it fell. The Christian Democrat would govern until parliamentary elections set for 1988.

Under the accord, Craxi would resign to take back the leadership of his party at its congress in March.

Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, a five-time former premier, is considered a likely candidate should the prime minister's office go to a Christian Democrat.

The small Republican, Liberal and Social Democrat parties are the other members of the coalition.

The Socialist-Christian Democrat feud blew up last week when Craxi said the accord — called the "staffetta," or passing of the baton — was "nonexistent."

"His (Craxi's) resignation before Parliament is sure," said Sen. Francesco D'Onofrio, a Christian Democrat. "What's not sure is whether the coalition will stay together or whether there will be early elections."

Allies worry about commission report's effect

Associated Press

Iran and Nicaragua on Friday gloated over President Reagan's difficulties in light of the Tower commission report. Israel was relieved, and Europeans said the shadow of Iran-Contra arms deals could dim the rest of Reagan's presidency.

Israeli officials said they were glad the report did not make the Jewish state a scapegoat and blame it for dragging the United States into weapons deals with Iran.

Yossi Ahimeir, a spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said in a telephone interview, "Our impression is that indeed it turns out Israel was not the focus and that it is mostly an internal American matter."

Israelis were involved in the arms sales to Iran.

Iran's Parliament speaker praised the report and, clutching the barrel of an assault rifle as he delivered a sermon at Tehran University, said it demonstrated what he termed Reagan's dishonesty and incompetence.

"We are happy and feel proud before our nation because the same thing which the White House had denied at the beginning, has now been confirmed" said speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani.

The report, issued Thursday by a commission established by Reagan and headed by former Sen. John Tower, criticized the president for failing to exercise direction or control over the sale of arms to Iran and funneling of the proceeds to Contra rebels.

The Nicaraguan pro-government newspaper El Nuevo Diario printed a banner headling reading: "Reagan Is At Fault."

Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Angela Saballos said in a telephone interview that "the report confirms the illegality and the fanaticism that characterizes the politics of the Reagan administration...in its aggression against the Nicaraguan people."

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said the Tower commission report lacked conclusions on the president's precise role in the affair.

The commission "admitted itself that it had only touched the tip of the iceberg," the paper said in a report from Washington. Izvestia said the report "spread the blame in such a way that it would not touch the president."

In Japan, the report was front-page news. The Japanese Broadcasting Company dedicated more than a third of its 40-minute news program Friday night to the subject. But announcer Taro Kimura said the report was probably "hard for Japanese to understand," in part because it didn't seem to fix the blame on any one person.

The nationally circulated Asahi Shimbun, in an editorial in today's edition, said the report raised questions about Reagan's memory, ability to grasp and understand information, and his leadership.

The Czechoslovak Communist Party daily Rude Pravo said Reagan administration initiatives, including development of new arms programs, appears to have been relatively unaffected by the scandal.

"So why talk about (the administration's) weakness?" it asked. "There is more than enough action and capacity for action in Washington — it is merely continually being used for an evil cause."

Rome's moderate daily La Repubblica said: "The Tower commission describes a president who does not know much and does not want to know much...(it is) a pitiful picture, the image of an indifferent and manipulated president, a governnment gone crazy..."

In Zurich, Switzerland, the Tages-Anzeiger said Reagan "will never quite recover from this politically.

Britain's Independent newspaper said Reagan's predicament now "must be nearly intolerable....Most Americans, while still retaining feelings of affection for their president, regard him as either senile or a liar. America's allies stand by, appalled and fascinated in equal measure."

Vatican 'astonished' by warrants out for three bankers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican reacted with "profound astonishment" Friday to reports of arrest warrants for three Vatican bankers and noted that a longstanding treaty with Italy bars interference in its internal affairs.

The official Vatican statement also said Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus, American head of the Vatican bank, would cooperate with magistrates investigating Italy's worst post-World War II financial scandal.

A Milan judge investigating the 1982 collapse of Banco Ambrosiano and its dealings with the Institute of Religious Works, or Vatican bank, has said warrants were issued this month for the arrest of Marcinkus, longtime head of the institute, and two colleagues.

The 65-year-old Marcinkus, a native of Cicero, Ill., who was a bodyguard for Pope John Paul II, has denied wrongdoing throughout the 4½-year-old investigation.

The bank collapse cost the Vatican $250 million.

The warrants charge the three men as "accessories to fraudulent bankruptcy," or contributing to the failure of Banco Ambrosiano, according to the judge, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

The others named were Luigi Mennini, 76, a director of the Vatican bank, and Pellegrino de Strobel, 74, the chief accountant, authorities have said.

"Within the Vatican...one cannot but feel profound astonishment at the news of measures that are reported taken by Milanese magistrates against the president and two high officials of the Institute of Religious Works," the Vatican said Friday.

1787 Constitution Daybook

Associated Press

Wednesday, Feb. 28, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

This month's coldest temperature was 5 degrees, the warmest 54, the mean 33, prevailing wind northeast, with 3 inches rain, 3 inches snow.

The American Philosophical Society presented its annual oration tonight at 6 at University Hall. Dr. Samuel Smith, vice president of the College of New Jersey at Princeton, was the orator. It was expected that a large and venerable audience would attend to hear Dr. Smith's discourse on "The Causes of diversity of figure and complexion in the human species."

Today's Pennsylvania Gazette reported that several disciples of Jemima Wilkinson were in town. This religious sect believed that Jemima was Jesus Christ incarnate. Her followers called her the Universal Friend, rather than Jemimah, a convenience that avoided the apparent conflict of having Jesus in a woman's body.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

As there was no quorum present, Congress was not in session.

Gen. Henry Knox, secretary of War, wrote his Boston friend, James Sullivan:

"The late approbation of Congress of a Convention to be held at Philadelphia in May next will it is presumed remove all objections as to its legality. If men of truly great minds should compose the Majority of the Convention something of importance may be effected. But if a number of trifling Characters get together we shall only be deluded instead of being benefitted."

Sullivan was a former justice and late member of Congress from Massachusetts. After the death of his wife in January 1786, Sullivan was left in charge of six young children. In December 1786, Sullivan wed Martha Langdon, sister of John Langdon, merchant of Portsmouth, N.H., and delegate to the convention.

Today the Assembly of New York concurred with their Senate that New York should send three delegates to the Philadelphia Convention.

DELEGATES TODAY

Benjamin Franklin settled up his household accounts accrued since returning home from France in September 1785. The amount was 709 pounds, 11 shillings, 11 pence. This averaged at about 612 pounds per year.

Thomas Blount of Washington, N.C., was informed by his Philadelphia agents, Bryan & Willcocks, that his best tobacco was worth 13 1/2 cents per pound.

LOOKING BACK
Jemima Wilkinson, Our Universal Friend

Jemima Wilkinson was born in Rhode Island, circa 1752. Her parents were Quaker. Her father was an ambitious man and her mother a domineering woman, who died when Jemima was 10. Jemima lived on her father's farm with her brothers and sisters until 1776. In that year, she developed a fever, collapsed, and fell into a coma that lasted some 36 hours. But she regained consciousness and recovered her health. Jemima had survived. Or had she?

Jemima Wilkinson, 30, was a slim beautiful woman who came across as articulate and intelligent. She held that in 1776 she had not really recovered from her fever, but had died and gone to heaven. Her body then had been reanimated by Christ Jesus to spread God's word.

Understandably, Jemima was a controversial person. Her sect's claim that Jemima was the Messiah, the Second Coming of Christ, had never been directly acknowledged by Jemima, and to the shock of the religious community, it also had never been denied. Rather, she answered questions with questions. Her skills lay in the power of persuasion; her magnetic personality attracted crowds and followers in all cities she visited.

It was her followers, however, that attracted the attention of Philadelphians in 1787. After some of her group arrived in January, negative criticism was generated from their theological heresy. By the end of the month, the charge of attempted murder shadowed their cause.

One of her followers, Sarah Wilson, claimed that Abigail Dayton, another follower, had attempted to murder her to avenge some doubts she had voiced about supernatural events Jemima's Friends embraced. Miss Wilson charged that Miss Dayton tried to suffocate her with a pillow during the night after she'd spoken the supposed heresies. Abigail Dayton denied everything. The band of followers contended that what Sarah Wilson saw that night was the incarnation of the devil who had assumed the appearance of Abigail Dayton. Dayton then quickly returned to New Milford, Conn., home of Jemima Wilkinson, and by the end of April, most of the others had followed.

In a letter allegedly by the Universal Friend on March 6, 1787, Jemima accepted the vision that it was all the devil's doing. But the Universal Friend offered this insight to an otherwise grim story: "If Sarah would see it as it really was, the devil trying to destroy her soul and body, and pray, and try to make her escape from destruction, it might be as an advantage to her."

Toys-R-Us recalling musical toys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toys-R-Us is recalling Animal Voices Musical Toys because of small parts which may pose a choking hazard, the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Friday.

The company said there have been no reports of injuries involving the toys, but the recall was begun because tests showed that small parts could come off the toys and potentially injure children.

Some 56,500 of the toys were sold nationwide in 1985 and 1986, for about $1.48 each, the safety commission reported.

According to the agency, the toys are cardboard cylinders measuring about 1¾-inch long and 1⅝-inch in diameter. One end has metal holes in it and the other end is covered with green paper with the word Taiwan printed on it. Pictures of animals are printed on the side of the cylinder. When the cylinder is tilted it makes noises like a baby animal, the commission said.

The toys were packaged in pairs on a pink card labeled: "Recommended for ages 6 months and up 2 pc animal voices 1986 Summco International Ltd., P.O. Box 96-306 Taipei, Taiwan distributed by Lash Distributors, Rochelle Park, N.J., 07662 No. 670508."

Student sells condoms

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (AP) — A St. Olaf College student who sold condoms at a student coffee shop he managed says he has resigned under pressure from school administrators.

"I felt my role was to serve the needs of the students as best I could," said Paul Harder, a senior from Saginaw, Mich.

Harder said he was asked to resign because the Lutheran school did not authorize the sale of condoms at the Lion's Pause kitchen in a dormitory.

DOTSON NISSAN PRESENTS...

"Lucky" or "T.P." for "Tar Pit"

Animal Control personnel are divided on a name for this 4-year old black Labradar male. He was discovered in a tarpit near the control shelter on Orchard Lane with another dog that didn't survive. The two were discovered on Feb. 19 and shelter personnel spent several hours cleaning him. He is a lovable, friendly, gentle dog that would make a great family pet. See him today at the MAC on Orchard Lane.
