Nichols Worth

by Nanalee Nichols

Is there anyone else out there that's nearly blind? I've always been glad for glasses. They have corrected the world for me, and since the age of seven I have been adjusted to the fact that in order to see, I would have to look through heavy lens.

But after all these years I don't think my husband realized just how poor my vision was until the other night when we were watching TV.

On a movie a man removed his glasses and the camera showed the scene before...blurry, fuzzy and totally indistinguishable.

"You're n ot THAT blind, of course", laughed my husband.

I just gave him a funny look.

"Well, you aren't ARE you?" he queried.

My only reply was...yes, I am that "blind" and yes that was just exactly what the world looked like to me.

He couldn't believe that the world was that furry and blurred to me.

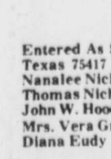

But for all the rest of you spectacle wearers out there, you know, don't you.

You know what it's like to go swimming with your glasses on because it's the only way to recognize your friends in the pool. And what it's like to go for an eye test at the driver's license office and when they ask you to read the lowest line you can reply "the E at the top" (I have memorized that one!).

Of course, many folks have the opposite problem. What is far away is sharp and clear, it's what is near at hand that creates a problem. Newspapers, books and hand work are totally blurry.

And then, there are those folks with bi focals...neither near nor far works right.

So, even though contact lenses have made tremendous strides, even though glasses themselves have made progress...I suppose all of us with visual problems owe the original Chinese who invented the first crude eye glasses century upon century ago a heart felt vote of thanks...because I for one, wouldn't be able to do more than sit home and crochet by feel without them!

Talco-Bogata Enrollments The Same

The Talco-Bogata CISD has released the figures on first day enrollment at the high school and both elementary schools.

Rivercrest high school listed a total of 227 students attending last Thursday, the first day of the 1983-84 school year.

At Bogata Elementary School 330 youngsters started the first day, and at Talco 203 students began.

These figures will be slightly higher when the total of students that have trickled in over the first week are added in.

According to school official Kay Kennedy, these figures are almost the same as last year, showing no significant drop or increase.

Other than work on play grounds and minor repairs at the three school complexs, no major work was done to the schools over the summer months.

The athletic training programs are underway, the football season will open against Prairiland High School on September 2, and all school organizations are busy forming, electing officers and generally preparing for the school year.

Students are reported to be adjusting to the school routine well, and the 1983-84 school year at Talco-Bogata is expected to be a good one, both educationally and athletically.

TIME TO GO AGAIN- Bogata Elementary opened its doors last Thursday morning for another school year. These kindergarten and first grade students seem very eager to get inside. There were few tears, but mostly wide-eyed smiles. (Staff Photo)

Butter, Cheese To Be Distributed

Processed cheese and butter from the Texas Department of Human Resources will be distributed in the Bogata area by the United Methodist Churches of Bogata, Cuthand, Lone Star and Rosalie, according to Rev. David Rucker, pastor. The distribution will begin Friday, August 26, at 9:00 a.m. at the basement of the Bogata United Methodist Church.

According to the new guidelines, all receipients must fill out and sign an application indicating the number of persons in their household and the total gross income from all persons. In the case of farm families and self-employed persons, the net income will be used. The income must fall within standards set by the Texas Department of Human Resources. For example, a single person living alone must have less than $405 total gross income per month. For each additional person living in the household, the income level is raised by approximately $140 per month.

According to information released by the T.D.H.R. some surplus food stuffs will be available each month, but receipients must be residents of Red River County in order to receive surplus food from one of the county's approved distributors. For more information contact Rev. Rucker, Mable Hale, Blanche Chirdress, Elma Chaloner, or Wootie H arville.

SENIOR CITIZEN'S CORNER

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR SUCCESSFUL RETIREMENT

Have a Will?

A surprising number of people, at all ages, will absolutely balk at the mere suggestion that they should make a will. They don't want to think about dying, much less get serious enough about the idea to sit down and actually put down on paper how they would like things to be once they are gone.

What they fail to understand is that there is no death wish connected with the preparation of a will. The fact that you have one does not indicate that you are ready to meet your maker. There is no finality about a last will and testament; it is, instead, a testament to the realities of life.

Who knows better than you the disposition that would be made of your possessions if you personally were to dispose of them? Who knows better than you the value — monetary or sentimental — that is placed on what you own — not just your home or property, your car and the visible things, but the assets that are stored away somewhere, or placed in a bank vault that no one else knows about?

Preparing a will is not complicated. All one needs to do is put down in writing what they have, what disposition is to be made of the estate, who is to administer that disposition and then, preferably, have the will properly prerared by an attorney.

The cost will be reasonable and, despite any preconceived notions, nothing happens after a will is made except that a feeling of satisfaction comes with knowing one has prepared for the future.

HARRIS CHAPEL Church of God of Prophecy at Wilkinson (Sugar Hill) has changed a lot during it's fifty years of existence. The new, brick structure has replaced an old, small frame church which originally housed worship services. (Staff Photo)

Harris Chapel Church To Observe 50th Anniversary

The Harris Chapel Church of God of Prophecy at Wilkinson (Sugarhill) will observe their Golden Anniversary with services beginning at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, August 26. On Saturday night, at 7:30 there will be a gospel singing and Sunday services will begin at 10 o'clock with a covered dish lunch being served at the noon hour and service will resume at 1:30 p.m. with a history of the church. Several former pastors are expected to be in attendance and will give brief reports in the afternoon service.

The first Holiness Preacher to come to this area which at that time was known as Pad's Chapel was James E. Smeltzer. He and his young bride, the former Margaret Lois Cheek of Cookville, conducted an open air revival which was then followed by the late T.P. Cotnam who organized the church in 1933. The first pastor of the church was Jessie Mae Elder and she is expected to be present for this 50th anniversary as well as several other charter members. Today, fifty years later, the Smeltzer's son-in-law, Elmer Whaten, is pastor of the church and he invites all former members and friends to attend this Golden Anniversary celebration.

Travel In Britain, There Are Many Small Differances

By Nanalee Nichols

After commenting on a few of the language and attitude differences we discovered between Americans and our cousins over in Britain, I'll attempt to mention a few more.

Wash cloth s come to mind immediately. Why? Because in England there is no such thing! They have the most marvelous bath towels...about (no kidding) six feet long, three feet wide and very fluffy. They have hand towels as large as our bath towels...but no wash cloths anywhere.

The British bathtub is delightful, very deep, very big...and stoppered with an old fashioned rubber plug no matter how new.

Shopping for food can be another experience. Except in the very large cities, there are no super markets.

One goes from vegetable and fruit shop to the meat market...which displays cuts of meat, fish and poultry from hooks or shelves.

Then a trip by the bakery and sweet shop, or a tiny store which handles canned goods.

There is no such thing as a pre-sliced loaf of bread that we found. But oh, is that bread fresh and good!

Every bed as two pillows per person...but no hotel room has an ice bucket or ice machine.

That's because they don't drink water. They just don't. Not in restaurants, not at home. Nor do they drink iced tea

In stores, wire racks will be sitting out stocked with canned soft drinks, all well known brands and some Americans aren't familiar with. The catch is that they aren't chilled at all!

Hot tea or coffee is always available. But not ice water.

We quickly learned and purchased a thermos which we had the restaurant at our hotel fill with ice each morning. Then we would fill it with water from whatever tap we managed to find!

That way we could make it through a warm summer day without dehydrating!

Speaking of warm...the weather isn't. For them a 90 degree day is a ten or fiftee year rarity. So is bright sunshine. Most nights we ended up with a heavy blanket before morning.

There is no air conditioning...not in cars, not in buildings. Of course, there is no need for it.

Another thing there is no need for...window screens. We were startled when we found our first hotel room with huge wide open windows without screens. We were more startled to realize that the reason is simple....there are no bugs!

During our whole trip we counted two flies, one at the airport (probably hitched a ride from the States) and one, naturally, at our picnic!

Otherwise, no mosquitoes, flies or moths.

As an East Texan, the lack of blazing summer heat and crawling summer insects (they have no ticks, no chiggers to speak of) was perhaps the most astonishing and pleasurable fact we discovered.

All in all, we were confronted with a wide array of trivial differences, but none that mattered much!

OUTSIDE VEGETABLES——In England, vegetables and fruits are sold from stores like the one shown here. For meats, one goes to a meat market, which is similiar to the fruit stands, and for bread a bakery must be sought out. (Staff Photo)

BILL STEWART of Cuthand caught this rattlesnake in Cuthand bottom. The snake was 42 inches long and had seven rattlers still intact. The rest of the rattlers were broken off and Bill wasn't able to determine how many there should have been.

Nichols Worth

by Nanalee Nichols

Is there anyone else out there that's nearly blind? I've always been glad for glasses. They have corrected the world for me, and since the age of seven I have been adjusted to the fact that in order to see, I would have to look through heavy lens.

But after all these years I don't think my husband realized just how poor my vision was until the other night when we were watching TV.

On a movie a man removed his glasses and the camera showed the scene before...blurry, fuzzy and totally indistinguishable.

"You're n ot THAT blind, of course", laughed my husband.

I just gave him a funny look.

"Well, you aren't ARE you?" he queried.

My only reply was...yes, I am that "blind" and yes that was just exactly what the world looked like to me.

He couldn't believe that the world was that furry and blurred to me.

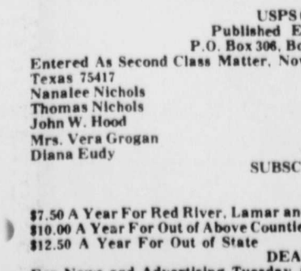

But for all the rest of you spectacle wearers out there, you know, don't you.

You know what it's like to go swimming with your glasses on because it's the only way to recognize your friends in the pool. And what it's like to go for an eye test at the driver's license office and when they ask you to read the lowest line you can reply "the E at the top" (I have memorized that one!).

Of course, many folks have the opposite problem. What is far away is sharp and clear, it's what is near at hand that creates a problem. Newspapers, books and hand work are totally blurry.

And then, there are those folks with bi focals...neither near nor far works right.

So, even though contact lenses have made tremendous strides, even though glasses themselves have made progress...I suppose all of us with visual problems owe the original Chinese who invented the first crude eye glasses century upon century ago a heart felt vote of thanks...because I for one, wouldn't be able to do more than sit home and crochet by feel without them!

Talco-Bogata Enrollments The Same

The Talco-Bogata CISD has released the figures on first day enrollment at the high school and both elementary schools.

Rivercrest high school listed a total of 227 students attending last Thursday, the first day of the 1983-84 school year.

At Bogata Elementary School 330 youngsters started the first day, and at Talco 203 students began.

These figures will be slightly higher when the total of students that have trickled in over the first week are added in.

According to school official Kay Kennedy, these figures are almost the same as last year, showing no significant drop or increase.

Other than work on play grounds and minor repairs at the three school complexs, no major work was done to the schools over the summer months.

The athletic training programs are underway, the football season will open against Prairiland High School on September 2, and all school organizations are busy forming, electing officers and generally preparing for the school year.

Students are reported to be adjusting to the school routine well, and the 1983-84 school year at Talco-Bogata is expected to be a good one, both educationally and athletically.

TIME TO GO AGAIN- Bogata Elementary opened its doors last Thursday morning for another school year. These kindergarten and first grade students seem very eager to get inside. There were few tears, but mostly wide-eyed smiles. (Staff Photo)

Butter, Cheese To Be Distributed

Processed cheese and butter from the Texas Department of Human Resources will be distributed in the Bogata area by the United Methodist Churches of Bogata, Cuthand, Lone Star and Rosalie, according to Rev. David Rucker, pastor. The distribution will begin Friday, August 26, at 9:00 a.m. at the basement of the Bogata United Methodist Church.

According to the new guidelines, all receipients must fill out and sign an application indicating the number of persons in their household and the total gross income from all persons. In the case of farm families and self-employed persons, the net income will be used. The income must fall within standards set by the Texas Department of Human Resources. For example, a single person living alone must have less than $405 total gross income per month. For each additional person living in the household, the income level is raised by approximately $140 per month.

According to information released by the T.D.H.R. some surplus food stuffs will be available each month, but receipients must be residents of Red River County in order to receive surplus food from one of the county's approved distributors. For more information contact Rev. Rucker, Mable Hale, Blanche Chirdress, Elma Chaloner, or Wootie H arville.

SENIOR CITIZEN'S CORNER

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR SUCCESSFUL RETIREMENT

Have a Will?

A surprising number of people, at all ages, will absolutely balk at the mere suggestion that they should make a will. They don't want to think about dying, much less get serious enough about the idea to sit down and actually put down on paper how they would like things to be once they are gone.

What they fail to understand is that there is no death wish connected with the preparation of a will. The fact that you have one does not indicate that you are ready to meet your maker. There is no finality about a last will and testament; it is, instead, a testament to the realities of life.

Who knows better than you the disposition that would be made of your possessions if you personally were to dispose of them? Who knows better than you the value — monetary or sentimental — that is placed on what you own — not just your home or property, your car and the visible things, but the assets that are stored away somewhere, or placed in a bank vault that no one else knows about?

Preparing a will is not complicated. All one needs to do is put down in writing what they have, what disposition is to be made of the estate, who is to administer that disposition and then, preferably, have the will properly prerared by an attorney.

The cost will be reasonable and, despite any preconceived notions, nothing happens after a will is made except that a feeling of satisfaction comes with knowing one has prepared for the future.

HARRIS CHAPEL Church of God of Prophecy at Wilkinson (Sugar Hill) has changed a lot during it's fifty years of existence. The new, brick structure has replaced an old, small frame church which originally housed worship services. (Staff Photo)

Harris Chapel Church To Observe 50th Anniversary

The Harris Chapel Church of God of Prophecy at Wilkinson (Sugarhill) will observe their Golden Anniversary with services beginning at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, August 26. On Saturday night, at 7:30 there will be a gospel singing and Sunday services will begin at 10 o'clock with a covered dish lunch being served at the noon hour and service will resume at 1:30 p.m. with a history of the church. Several former pastors are expected to be in attendance and will give brief reports in the afternoon service.

The first Holiness Preacher to come to this area which at that time was known as Pad's Chapel was James E. Smeltzer. He and his young bride, the former Margaret Lois Cheek of Cookville, conducted an open air revival which was then followed by the late T.P. Cotnam who organized the church in 1933. The first pastor of the church was Jessie Mae Elder and she is expected to be present for this 50th anniversary as well as several other charter members. Today, fifty years later, the Smeltzer's son-in-law, Elmer Whaten, is pastor of the church and he invites all former members and friends to attend this Golden Anniversary celebration.

Travel In Britain, There Are Many Small Differances

By Nanalee Nichols

After commenting on a few of the language and attitude differences we discovered between Americans and our cousins over in Britain, I'll attempt to mention a few more.

Wash cloth s come to mind immediately. Why? Because in England there is no such thing! They have the most marvelous bath towels...about (no kidding) six feet long, three feet wide and very fluffy. They have hand towels as large as our bath towels...but no wash cloths anywhere.

The British bathtub is delightful, very deep, very big...and stoppered with an old fashioned rubber plug no matter how new.

Shopping for food can be another experience. Except in the very large cities, there are no super markets.

One goes from vegetable and fruit shop to the meat market...which displays cuts of meat, fish and poultry from hooks or shelves.

Then a trip by the bakery and sweet shop, or a tiny store which handles canned goods.

There is no such thing as a pre-sliced loaf of bread that we found. But oh, is that bread fresh and good!

Every bed as two pillows per person...but no hotel room has an ice bucket or ice machine.

That's because they don't drink water. They just don't. Not in restaurants, not at home. Nor do they drink iced tea

In stores, wire racks will be sitting out stocked with canned soft drinks, all well known brands and some Americans aren't familiar with. The catch is that they aren't chilled at all!

Hot tea or coffee is always available. But not ice water.

We quickly learned and purchased a thermos which we had the restaurant at our hotel fill with ice each morning. Then we would fill it with water from whatever tap we managed to find!

That way we could make it through a warm summer day without dehydrating!

Speaking of warm...the weather isn't. For them a 90 degree day is a ten or fiftee year rarity. So is bright sunshine. Most nights we ended up with a heavy blanket before morning.

There is no air conditioning...not in cars, not in buildings. Of course, there is no need for it.

Another thing there is no need for...window screens. We were startled when we found our first hotel room with huge wide open windows without screens. We were more startled to realize that the reason is simple....there are no bugs!

During our whole trip we counted two flies, one at the airport (probably hitched a ride from the States) and one, naturally, at our picnic!

Otherwise, no mosquitoes, flies or moths.

As an East Texan, the lack of blazing summer heat and crawling summer insects (they have no ticks, no chiggers to speak of) was perhaps the most astonishing and pleasurable fact we discovered.

All in all, we were confronted with a wide array of trivial differences, but none that mattered much!

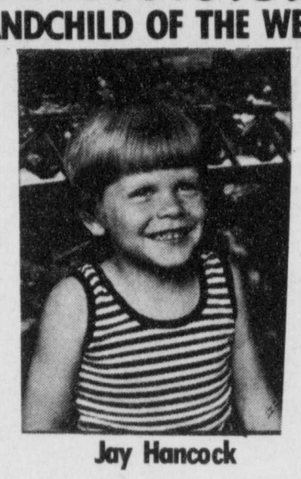

OUTSIDE VEGETABLES——In England, vegetables and fruits are sold from stores like the one shown here. For meats, one goes to a meat market, which is similiar to the fruit stands, and for bread a bakery must be sought out. (Staff Photo)

BILL STEWART of Cuthand caught this rattlesnake in Cuthand bottom. The snake was 42 inches long and had seven rattlers still intact. The rest of the rattlers were broken off and Bill wasn't able to determine how many there should have been.
