Shrimp to be farmed: 300-acre facility planned in Aransas County

By BECKY WERHAN
Staff writer

A 300-acre shrimp farm, to be located on Port Bay approximately two miles northeast of the 881 bridge, is now in the planning stages. Project construction is pending issuance of a Corps of Engineers permit. The farm is slated to be operational by the first months of 1983 and should produce more than 3,000 pounds of shrimp per acre.

Loren Terry, a retired Corpus Christi businessman, is the owner of the property and developer of the farm, which he refers to as a "pretty good business prospect." Terry, in an interview Monday, said that the Corps of Engineers permit application was made last month and that he expected word back sometime soon.

He explained that following issuance of the permit, construction on a shrimp hatchery and three sets of two ponds each for shrimp cultivation will begin. The hatchery and ponds will take up 200 of the 300 acres on the farm property.

Terry is at present the sole financial backer of the project and he terms the farm "a large scale project." The farm will employ more than 20 workers, he estimates. Among the employees already hired on the project is a full-time manager who will control production.

Terry would not divulge the name of his chief employee, but indicated that he had extensive experience in shrimp farming and research.

When the farm is operational, shrimp will be hatched on-site, then moved through a series of ponds as they mature. Six ponds, two of them nursery ponds, two intermediate ponds and two grow-out ponds, will be situated southeast of Copano Bay and Swan Lake and west of Port Bay.

The nursery ponds, side by side, will be some 12 and one-half acres in length each. Intermediate ponds length will be 25 acres and the grow-out ponds, 50 acres each. Pond depth will be from three to four feet, with ponds bounded by a seven-foot dike.

A concrete bulkhead some 200 feet long will be the border between the grow-out ponds and Port Bay. Outflow channels will run from the tanks to Port Bay. Outflow channels will be dredged to the bayshore. No dredging will be done in Port Bay.

A series of pumps will constantly be circulating water from Port Bay into a water supply channel servicing the three sets of ponds. The water supply channel will run

Berwick manager cites problems

Cove Harbor too shallow

By TED NORMAN
Staff writer

According to Tony Williamson, manager of the Berwick Oil Company operation at Cove Harbor, many of the offshore supply boats that use the harbor are having trouble because the harbor is too shallow in many places.

Williamson says he isn't trying to make waves or cause trouble but says the shallow water is costing jobs and money.

He said the Aransas County Navigation District made Berwick build a new retaining wall last year and said, "We got forced into doing some things by the navigation district and I think they need to reciprocate by doing their share by keeping the harbor up."

Williamson said the ACND forced Berwick to build a new $200,000 bulkhead in December 1981 and then started assessing a one cent a gallon tariff on fuel in the harbor in January.

He says that Berwick dropped the price of its services to get the business in Cove Harbor and now they might lose the business because the harbor isn't dredged. "Everybody loses if we don't keep these boats coming into this harbor. All these people live in Rockport, they buy their groceries there, they buy their gas there. I've had people tell me this is the best place on the coast, if they could get the boats in and out of this harbor," said Williamson.

Williamson says the captains of the supply boats like the harbor because it isn't busy but he says Cove Harbor has a reputation of not having enough water.

He pointed to the supply boat Marsea Seventeen, a 175 foot offshore supply boat that was taking on supplies and water at the Berwick docks. The captain of the boat said the city didn't have enough water pressure and the harbor didn't have enough water under the boats.

He said that Berwick has bent over backwards trying to keep the captain and engineers of the boats happy but most of them feel it would be an easier job for them if they used another harbor. He said then they wouldn't have to make so many runs and they could load the boat up heavier.

Williamson said Berwick had to lay off one worker because of a lack of big boats in the harbor. He also said another supplier in the harbor is using only a skelton crew because there haven't been any big boats in the harbor until just a few weeks ago.

He said in January the suppliers at Cove Harbor were being charged one cent a gallon for all diesel fuel transported from the harbor but he said that Berwick hasn't sold as much diesel fuel this year as they sold in one good month last year.

Williamson said that the supply boats were having to leave only partially loaded because they would run aground if they took on a full load.

He said the Marsea Seventeen could hold enough supplies to make her draw around 13 feet of water but the last time she came in

Ramirez, Kovacs seek city charter commission

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

Candidates for Rockport's city charter commission jumped to three this week with the filing of Marcelino Ramirez and Dr. J. Curtis Kovacs for the 15-member board that will draw up a city charter if Rockport voters approve such action on Aug. 14.

Dr. Kovacs became the most recent to file for the charter commission, on Monday, June 21. Ramirez, who served on the home rule steering committee appointed last month to determine if Rockport had sufficient population to adopt a charter, filed last Thursday, June 17.

The third candidate for the commission — the first to file — is Ed Armstrong who served on the 1979 city charter commission. Armstrong filed on June 15, one day after Rockport's city council officially called for the Aug. 14 city charter election and declared filing open for charter commission candidates.

Deadline for filing is July 14 and the place to file is at Rockport's City Hall between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Voters in the Aug. 14 election will be asked to cast a two-part ballot with the first part being a "yes" or "no" answer to the question, "Shall a commission be chosen to frame a new charter?"

City officials emphasize that a voter who wants to vote for a city charter for Rockport must answer this question — it will not be sufficient merely to vote for charter commission candidates, they say.

The reason is that, when the voters are canvassed, the responses to the question will be counted first. If one of the boxes — "yes" or "no" — is not marked on the ballot, that ballot will not be counted. "And if that question doesn't pass," said City Administrator Herman Johnson, "the rest of the ballot doesn't matter."

Those who vote "yes" in response to the question on the ballot will be asked, as the second part, to cast votes for 15 candidates for the charter commission.

The charter commission will be charged with actually writing a charter if voters give their approval.

The charter, when completed, will then be submitted to Rockport voters who will make the final decision on whether it will be adopted and the city will become a home rule entity.

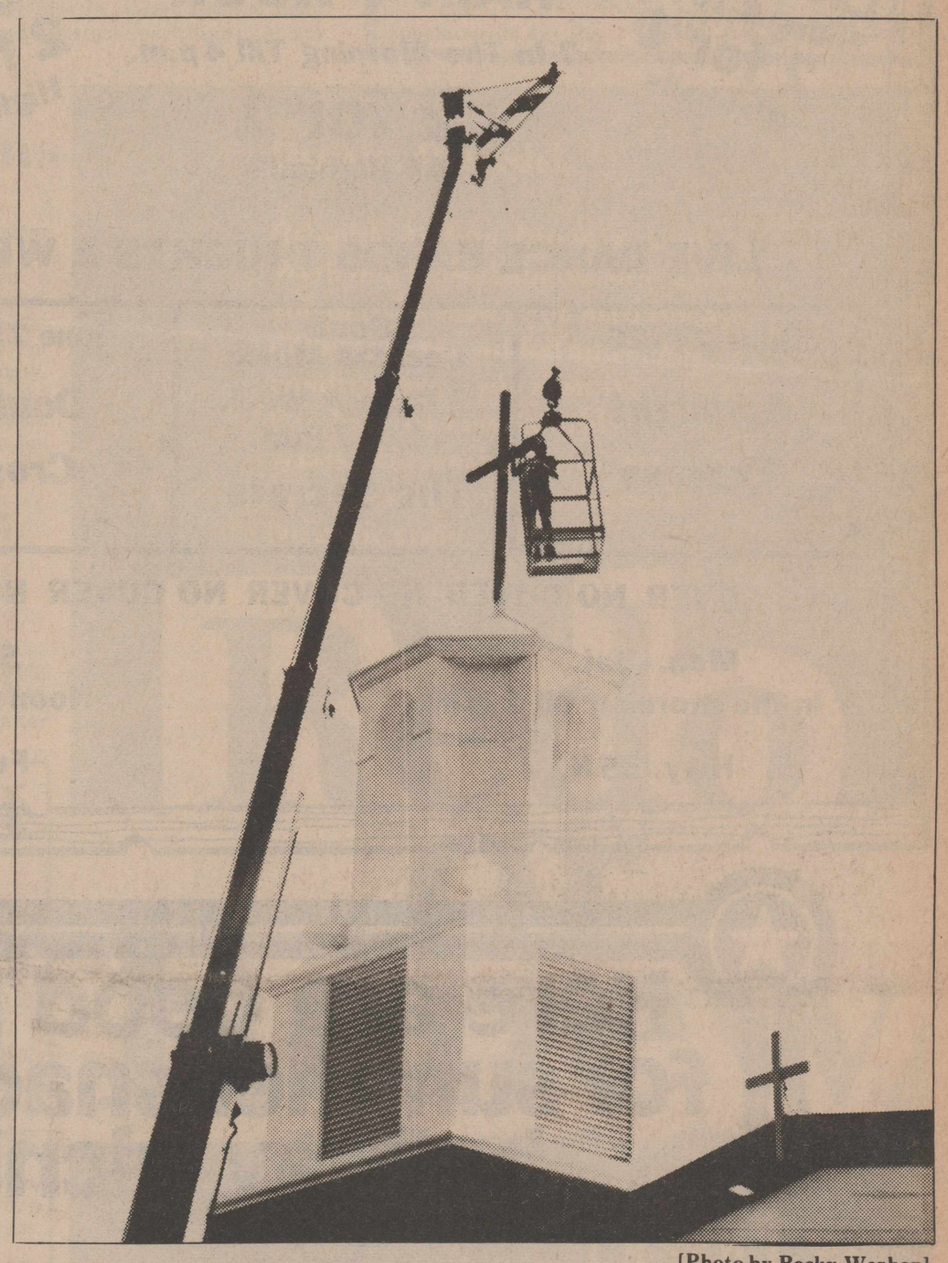

In the city's last attempt at home rule, a charter commission was elected in January, 1979, and worked for more than a year on a charter which was subsequently rejected by city voters in a 1980 election.

Rockport presently does not have a city charter but is governed by general law statues set up by the Texas legislature designed to regulate cities of populations between 500 and 5,000.

In its report to the council on June 14, the seven-member home rule steering committee responsible for determining whether Rockport had sufficient population to go home rule announced that, according to its findings, Rockport's population as of May 1 of this year exceeds 6,000 people.

ROCKPORT VOLUNTEER FIREMEN make short work of a trash fire that got out of hand on Moline Street Monday afternoon, June 21. The fire was out within minutes after a Rockport unit arrived at the scene. Fire Marshall Elva Mullinax said no permit had been issued for the trash burn and emphasized that no one should burn any kind of trash or brush without the fire marshall's permission. Stolen boat recovered here

A suspicious marine yard owner and a lot of investigative work by an Aransas County sheriff's deputy and a Texas Parks & Wildlife officer led to recovery of a $10,000 boat, motor and trailer stolen nearly a year ago in Dallas County.

Aransas County Chief Deputy Doug Carroll said the case is still under investigation "and there may be some charges filed here in the county" before the case is officially marked "closed."

It began last month, Carroll said, when a boat, motor and trailer were brought to Coastal Marine for repair work. The boat, a 21-foot Mako, had been painted to look like a Bayliner, Carroll said, and the disguise was so crudely done that Coastal Marine owner Clark Collins became suspicious.

In addition to the paint job on the boat, Carroll continued, the serial numbers on the trailer had been welded over and the trailer had been painted blue. All the serial numbers and Mako decals had been removed from the boat and a Bayliner decal had been applied to both sides of the craft.

Collins called TP&W official Doug Parker and Parker contacted Carroll. "We worked together on it," Carroll said. He added, "It took about 10 days before we determined it had been stolen."

From that point, tracking down the owner was even harder. "I made some long distance phone calls to the Mako people in Florida," Carroll said, "as well as to the Johnson people" — manufacturer of the boat's 200-hp motor.

Then, Carroll took a closer look at some items he hadn't really paid much attention to earlier — some personal belongings that

Filing to begin July 1 for posts on Holiday Beach water board

HOLIDAY BEACH — Filing for two positions on the Aransas County Water Control and Improvement District, set for election on Aug. 14, will get under way around July 1, according to Freddie Lingner, secretary of the ACWCID board of directors.

Filing will be in the water board's temporary office, the Lingner Real Estate Building on Highway 35 North in Holiday Beach, during office hours, 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Up for election this year are seats now held by Lingner and by ACWCID Director L.E. Pettus. Elections are for two-year terms.

Candidates may file for up to 20 days prior to the election.

The water control and improvement district was formed about three years ago to study the existing water system in Holiday Beach, alternative water systems and ways to provide — in the words of Water Board President M. Joan Nish — "good water at reasonable prices."

Under terms of its organization, the board was given five years to meet those goals and become operational.

Holiday Beach residents are presently served by a privately-owned company, Baumgart Water Supply Corporation, over which the control and improvement district has no authority.

In a meeting last May, Kyle, Johnson & Associates, an engineering firm retained by the district to study possible methods for providing water to the community north of Lamar, reported on a preliminary plan that called for bringing water across the Bay and would cost an estimated $2 million.

At that time, the plans were turned back to the engineers with instructions to cut the costs. No date was set for the engineers to come back to the board with a revised plan and no plan can be adopted without a vote by residents of Holiday Beach.

Also serving on the ACWCID are Jane L. Kemmerer and Wilson R. Burns.

Con man takes two women for $60

A man promising to deliver shrimp for payment in advance reportedly took $60 from two Rockport women last week.

The two women were contacted in separate incidents between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 15, by a man who was described as an Hispanic male about five feet eight inches tall, slender and wearing a moustache.

One woman said the man offered to buy shrimp for her and the other said he was offering to sell her shrimp, but both said the man asked for cash in advance — $20 from one and $40 from the other — and said he would have to go get the shrimp.

One of the women described the man's hair as being ''medium-lenght'' and black and the other said it was long and wavy and added the man was wearing a blue headband and had tattoos on both arms.

In other action during a busy week, police were called to investigate an auto burglary that resulted in the loss of $35 in tools, a $350 camera and case and five cans of beer between midnight and 2:30 a.m. Saturday, June 19.

The car and stolen items belong to Lawrence Meister.

Tool boxes were taken in two separate thefts from pickups last week.

A metal tool box was taken from a pickup belonging to Bill Compton about 4:30 p.m. Thursday, June 17, while the vehicle was parked in downtown Rockport.

And on Tuesday, June 15, a tool box was taken from a truck belonging to Bill Oliver between midnight and 8 a.m. while the truck was in an apartment parking lot on Magnolia Street.

A mercury outboard motor valued at $600 was taken from a boat belonging to H. Dickson Hose while the craft was docked in the bay off Water Street. Theft occurreed some time between 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 18, and 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

A 1970 Chrysler Newport was stolen from a downtown Rockport parking lot between 10 and 10:30 p.m. June 11. Owner of the vehicle, Harry D. McKnight, said the car was unlocked and the keys in the ignition.

F.B. Miller called from a local convenience store to report that four white females in a car put $11.68 worth of gas into the vehicle's tank and drove away without paying for it.

Hanging plants and baskets, valued at $30, were taken from the Merle Mahaney residence between 7 a.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Saturday. The plants and baskets were suspended from a tree in the front yard.

Gene McElveen called police after someone tore the screen in an apparent attempt to gain entry into his residence about 1:55 a.m. Saturday.

Richard Heman Simpson, 20, of Rockport was charged with felony driving while intoxicated and possession of less than two ounces of marijuana after he was arrested by police about 6:45 p.m. Friday.

Bond was set at $500 on the possession charge and $5,000 on the DWI charge.

Police also made one arrest on a warrant for theft under $5 and an arrest on charges of public intoxication and resisting arrest this past weekend.

Overpayments to go to states

WASHINGTON — States will now be able to keep 25 percent of the money they recover from people who've received too many food stamps, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Mary C. Jarratt said today.

''This is designed to encourage states to recover money that's been overissued because of mistakes recipients make when filing for food stamps,'' Jarratt said.

It is estimated by the Department that this change, which was authorized by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981, allows states to keep about $1 million this fiscal year because of their efforts to collect overpayments made because of these mistakes, which are termed ''no-fraud recipient errors.''

Since January 1980, states have had a similar financial incentive to recover money over-issued to food stamp clients who committed fraud against the program. States already are keeping 50 percent of the money they recover from food stamp recipients who have received food stamps fraudulently.

Rangers capture title with 5 - 2 win over the Pirates

A somewhat nervous Ranger team held their composure Monday night to come from a first inning 1-1 tie to forge ahead and beat the Pirates 5-2 in the championship Tee-ball division of Aransas County Little League.

Jr. Martinez got the Rangers on the board in the first inning to take the lead over the Pirates.

Pirates' pitcher Curtis Herron scored for the Pirates in the bottom of the first to tie the game up 1-1 then Ranger pitcher Eric Flores retired the remaining Rangers in order.

Ranger pitcher Eric Flores put the Rangers ahead by one when he scored in the top of the second inning but Pirates' lead off batter Shannon Johnson tied the game at 2-2 in the bottom of the second inning.

Both teams were held in check in the third inning and the Rangers and Pirate batters were retired in order.

The Rangers, playing with a 14-1 record began to worry even more as they failed to break the tie in the top of the fourth but they retired the Pirates in order once again with some outstanding pitching from Eric Flores.

Then things began to go right for the Rangers in the top of the fifth as Flores and Rios found their way across the plate to break the game open and go 4-2 over the waining Pirates.

The Pirates went down in order in the bottom of the fifth and a somewhat confident Ranger team came to bat in the top of the sixth and Tim Horton added a run on the board to give the Rangers a three-run lead over the Pirates.

Flores, rallied by an eager group of Ranger supporters fine-tuned his pitching game in the bottom of the sixth and retired the Pirates in order and the Rangers won the game 5-2 and the division championship 15-1 over the Pirates.

ACLL closing ceremonies scheduled for July 2

Aransas County Little League president Allen Lee has announced that the closing ceremonies, announcements of team and division winners and awards presentations will be held Friday, July 2 at 7 p.m. at Memorial Park.

Lee said he hopes everyone will attend the ceremonies and come to the park for the closing of the 1982 ACLL season.

TP&W adopts new regulations

AUSTIN — New regulations on taking red drum (redfish) in both fresh and saltwater and numerous modifications of deer hunting regulations highlighted action by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

The commission adopted 1982-83 hunting and fishing regulation changes for counties under its regulatory authority. However, sportsmen are cautioned that in some counties, the adopted regulations are subject to approval or disapproval by county commissioners courts. Hunting and fishing laws in non-regulatory or "general law" counties remain the same.

The adopted regulations will go into effect Sept. 1. Hunters and fishermen should consult the Parks and Wildlife Department's 1982-83 hunting and fishing regulations digests and supplements which will be available from license outlets in August, officials said.

The commission adopted a regulation prohibiting the retention of saltwater redfish and spotted seatrout taken by nets, seines or trotlines. Exceptions are dip nets and sail lines.

Another regulation prohibits the use of nets by sport netters. Only holders of commercial fishing licenses are permitted to use nets.

New regulations also established a daily bag limit of 10, possession limit of 20, for introduced redfish in Texas' freshwater impoundments. A minimum length limit of 16 inches and maximum length limit of 35 inches also were adopted.

A revision of the method for controlling the harvest of antlerless deer in counties which have an either-sex deer hunting season was one of the major hunting law regulation changes adopted.

In those counties, the department will issue special antlerless deer tags to landowners in areas having a surplus of antlerless deer on an unlimited basis. Last season, hunters were required only to attach tags from their hunting license on antlerless deer taken. Most Texas counties have the standard anterless deer permit system, wherein landowners are issued a specified number of permits, based on deer populations in the county or compartment of the county.

In most counties, the white-tailed deer season will be Nov. 13, 1982 to Jan 2, 1983.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective July 27, 1982, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 13.4 percent increase in the company's intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell's rate application.

Notice to El Paso Area Customers

Effective January 1, 1982, Southwestern Bell adopted the Mountain States tariffs in effect for El Paso County. Southwestern Bell proposes to merge the separate El Paso tariffs with its tariffs applicable to the rest of Texas. The resulting new rate schedule is on file with the PUC and the El Paso area municipalities served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection at our El Paso business office.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

The filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) service. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide interexchange private line and foreign exchange service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs. While Southwestern Bell has proposed no increase in long distance rates, any change in those rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel para servicio de teléfono en Texas con vigencia a partir del 27 de julio, 1982, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel que se ha solicitado rendirá un aumento de 13.4 por ciento en los ingresos intraestatales de la compañía.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y servida por Southwestern Bell, y cada una de las oficinas de la compañía para negocios con el público en Texas tiene una copia para lectura pública. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa está sujeta a cambios que resulten de la manera en la cual Southwestern Bell aplique sus tarifas.

Aviso a Clientes en la Región de El Paso

Con vigencia a partir del 1o de enero de 1982, Southwestern Bell ha adoptado las tarifas de Mountain States efectivas en el condado de El Paso. Southwestern Bell propone unir las tarifas de El Paso con sus otras tarifas que se aplican al resto de Texas. El nuevo arancel que resulta de ésta union se ha archivado en la Comisión de Servicios Públicos (Public Utility Commission), al igual que en las municipalidades de la región de El Paso servidas por Southwestern Bell, y está disponible para inspección pública en nuestras oficinas de El Paso.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

El registro incluye, pero no se limita a, propuestas para aumentar las tarifas para servicio de línea privada entre centrales telefónicas (interexchange private line) y servicio de central telefónica extranjera (foreign exchange FX). Cambios en dichas tarifas de servicio tambien afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen los servicios ya mencionados en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell. Aunque Southwestern Bell no ha propuesto un aumento en las tarifas para larga distancia, cualquier cambio en las mismas tambien afectaría a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono.

Rockport HAMs to give demonstration

The Rockport HAM operators will participate in a 24-hour nationwide field day from 12 p.m. Saturday, June 26, to 12 p.m. Sunday, June 27.

The field day operations are designed to allow local HAMs to set up and operate in an emergency situation similar to that after a hurricane.

All operating is done from power that is provided by emergency generators and antennas.

Included in the activities is a contest to see how many HAMs may be contacted in the United States and other countries.

Participating in the field day events are Dwight Edens, Jack Evans, Bob Roberts, Delores Roberts, Frank Connaly, Glen Shaw, Jim Trank, David Tiner, Les Newhouse, Charles Gillingham, Peter Verbeck and Ed Thomas. Also with the group will be Allan Gilchrist from Houston.

The location for the field day is an open field on FM 1781 about one-half mile from 881.

The public is invited to attend and watch the HAMs operate. The HAMs will also be available to answer questions.

Average fed worker costs $241

According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, it cost the government an average of $241 in 1979 to insure each employee under the Federal Employee Compensation Act (FECA), which provides cash benefits for workers injured on the job, compared with a cost of $139 in the private sector. No wonder. A study by the General Accounting Office (GAO) showed that under the generous terms of FECA:

Compensation was granted a worker who was injured while "goofing off" on a tractor.

Payments were made to a women who lost the tip of her thumb while closing the car door. She was on her way to work.

Payments were made to a worker whose knee locked when he arose from a toilet.

A similar investigation by the Veterans Administration disclosed that a worker claimed back injury in July, 1972, from lifting a four-ounce salt shaker — and the government paid benefits based on 10 percent disability. The worker, a woman, was still receiving benefits in 1981.

TAP selects participants

AUSTIN — Twenty-three organizations and individual artists have been selected as participants in the 1983-84 Texas Touring Arts Program, sponsored by the Texas Commission on the Arts.

Performances vary from ballet and post-modern dance to opera and jazz, performed by some of Texas' most noted artistic talent.

The Arts Commission is able to provide up to 50 percent of the company fees to organizations who present these performances as long as the touring company or artist is performing at least 30 miles outside the city limits of their home city.

The exact amount of funding available for presenters, however, is contingent upon TCA's appropriation for the next biennium, which will be reviewed during the 1983 Legislative session.

Dance-A-Thon scheduled

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Lone Star Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation has scheduled a 12-hour Dance-A-Thon to take place in Corpus Christi on June 26. The event will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the Center Court of the Sunrise Mall. The Dr. Pepper Bottling Company of Corpus Christi and KZFM radio station are sponsoring the event. Stan Pence, who is a cystic fibrosis parent, is the Corpus Christi chairman for the event.

KZFM will provide the music for the event. In addition, a top disc jockey will act as the master of ceremonies for the Dance-A-Thon.

The "Great Dr. Pepper Jailbreak" will be an added attraction to the day's events. A disc jockey from KZFM will become incarcerated in 2,000 cases of Dr. Pepper. The disc jockey can only be released when all the Dr. Pepper has been sold. The product will be sold slightly above production cost and therefore a great savings to the consumer. All proceeds on the "Jailbreak" will go to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Dance entry forms may be picked up at local Maverick Markets.

THE ROCKPORT AREA BOARD OF REALTORS celebrated their fifth anniversary at their June Luncheon meeting. Louise Wilken, one of the original organizers and a two-term President, was honored for her perfect attendance at every board meeting during this time. The first members consisted of 13 Real Estate Companies. These companies felt that they could better serve Aransas County by forming an association which would promote as a medium for better communication and provided a basis for higher educational opportunities. Through the Board's Multiple Listing Service, property owners are better serviced and facts and figures are now readily available for the public. Shown with the anniversary cake for the celebration are Juanita Wagley, Board President and Louise Wilken, Director.

You'll need $80,000 in 2002 just to survive

In 1974, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce came up with a set of predictions about inflation. Based on continued deficit spending and inflation, the dollar, which had shrunk in value by 60 cents in purchasing power from 1946 to 40 cents in 1974, would further shrink to 16 cents in purchasing power by the year 2002. Federal government spending would rise to $762 billion a year, and the federal debt would rise to $1.2 trillion. A car costing $3,000 in 1974 would cost $7,500 in 2002; a $25,000 home would cost $62,500, and a $4,000 college tuition would cost $10,000.

"Well, we are often accused of being alarmists, and in fact our chief economist at that time did get a chuckle out of such speculation," Senior Economist Martin Leflowitz recalls.

What did happen?

Well, the 40-cent dollar of 1974 is now worth 20 cents. Federal spending in fiscal year 1983 may be kept down to $785 billion. The federal debt, based on optimistic forecasts, will be $1.2 trillion by the end of fiscal year 1983. The median house now costs $68,400.

So what of the year 2002? If things continue the way they have gone from 1974 to 1982, here are the Chamber's revised predictions. In 2002, the 1946 dollar will be worth four cents; a $68,000 house will cost $363,000; the federal budget, which grew at a 13.3 percent annual rate from 1974 to 1982, will be $8.8 trillion, and the federal debt will be $9.5 trillion. The average worker, who now earns $15,000 a year, will have to make $80,000 a year just to stay even.

Don't forget. You read it here first.

Texas has best draft registration compliance

The Selective Service System today released updated statistics showing the compliance rates for registration of young men both at the national and state level. These statistics include the total results of the grace period registration granted by President Reagan and reflect registrations as of March 31, 1982.

At the national level, there is a 93 percent compliance with registration for all age groups — men born in 1960, 61, 62, 63, and the first three months of 1964.

Montana leads the nation with a compliance rate of 97.5 percent. At the median level are states like Texas and Indiana both at 91 percent. California has the lowest compliance rate in the nation at 83.4 percent. Other examples — New York 86 percent, Ohio 95 percent, Illinois 88 percent, Florida 94 percent.

By law, young men are required to register with Selective Service as they reach their 18th birthday — either 30 days before or after it. The registration requirement applies to all men born in 1960 and later years. Failure to register is a felony, carrying a maximum penalty of $10,000 and/or five years in prison.

Later this month, Selective Service will cross-reference the computer tapes containing the names of men who have registered against Social Security files to identify those who have not registered. Those failing to register will be reported to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Paul D. Aikin, the Selective Service State Director of Texas, is urging those who have not already registered to go to the Post Office at once and do so.

"It's an easy process — all a young man must do is fill out a simple form which asks only for his name, address, telephone number, social security number and date of birth. He should take some form of identification with him to show the postal clerk when he signs the registration form.

Taxpayers worry about Internal Revenue Service

Unfortunately, many taxpayers have come to believe as fact some misconceptions about the Internal Revenue Service, and because of this, have caused themselves needless worry and apprehension. To clarify some of these issues, and hopefully to allay the doubts these misconceptions may have caused, the IRS has prepared the following questions and answers:

Q. Is is true that if I use the peel-off address label, my return will more likely be examined?

A. No. The coded symbols on the address label have nothing to do with the examination process. They simply speed up the processing of the return.

Q. My tax return was examined last year because of my large medical bills. Does that mean I can expect my return to be examined every year?

A. Not necessarily. IRS has a program called the Repetitive Examination Procedure, the purpose of which is to see to it that a taxpayer's return is not examined two years in a row on the same issue when there was no change.

Q. I've heard that I can claim more deductions if someone outside IRS prepares my return. Is that so?

A. IRS Taxpayer Service personnel will give taxpayers the benefit of every allowable deduction made known to them by the taxpayer.

Q. Is using my correct Social Security number all that important? After all, my name and address are on the return.

A. The correct Social Security number IS that important — it is the principal means of identifying taxpayers.

Q. Does it really matter which Social Security number appears first on the return?

A. Yes, it is very important to show the Social Security number in the same order you show first names. Failure to list them in that order can result in a delay in processing the return.

Parrots may be an endangered species

In biblical times, Hebrew sailors would bring macaws, the brightly-colored parrots of the tropics, to the Court of Solomon.

Were Solomon as wise as he is purported to be, he might have discouraged the practice, because today the very survival of these birds is threatened by their increasing popularity as pets in America.

They bring high prices — some sell for $30,000 apiece — but the birds themselves may be paying the highest price of all. Faced with continued raids on their populations by fortune-hunters and increasing losses of habitat to development, many species are in trouble, according to the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Distinguished from other parrots by their bare facial skin, large beaks and long tail feathers, macaws are now found throughout parts of the tropics from Mexico to Argentina. One species of macaw, the hyacinth, measures 40 inches from head to tail. In the nineteen century flocks of more than 300 macaws, which tend to roost in groups, were commonplace. Today a flock of more than three dozen macaws is a rare sight.

It's no coincidence that the decline in macaw populations parallels an upturn in their popularity as pets. Forty million Americans keep birds in the offices or homes; parrot sales along account for $300 million in sales a year. Consequently, the volume of parrots imported into the United States has double in the last decade, according to TRAFFIC, a World Wildlife Fund-sponsored group that recently completed an extensive study on macaw trade. And as imports have increased, so has smuggling.

More than 90 percent of all birds seized by U.S. customs officials are parrots. Smugglers, who can avoid the red tape of legal importation, are tantalized by the high price-tags macaws carry. In pet stores, their brightly colored plumes bring prices that range from $500 to $30,000.

"Pound for pound," said one customs agent, "a parrot is worth more to a smuggler than marijuana."

Current means of trapping macaws in the wild inflict their own damages on these birds. When nesting trees are cut down to retrieve baby parrots, valuable and increasingly scarce nesting sites for other birds are destroyed. Young birds are often killed when their nests crash to the ground.

For the birds who survive this kind of treatment, more abuse awaits them on their travels to the United States. To quiet these natural talkers, smugglers feed them tranquilizers, chloroform or corn meal mixed with tequila — so that border officials won't be alerted by the bird's squealing and squawking.

The irony of all this "macaw madness," as National Wildlife calls it, is that macaws don't make great pets. They have been known to use their powerful beaks, which help them to feed on nuts in the wild, to tear apart cages and even furniture in private homes. Many pet-owners aren't prepared to deal with the macaw's constant banter — in the form of loud screams that can rouse an owner from a deep sleep in the early hours of the day.

All in all, macaws would be better left in the tropics, according to the magazine. The birds would be happier — and so would their potential owners. Even Solomon, had he known better, might have chosen a dog or a cat instead of a macaw.

Calling card service now offered here

Rockport telephone customers can now take advantage of Calling Card Service, a feature that permits placing credit card calls without operator assistance.

Using the new system won't require many changes for customers, according to Dutch Koppenhaver, customer services supervisor for residence installation and maintenance in Rockport for Southwestern Bell.

"Users will still dial zero-plus the telephone number as they do today," he said. "After the caller has dialed the zero-plus number, a tone will sound indicating the credit card number — now called a calling card number — should be entered. Billing will be handled quickly and automatically without operator assistance."

If the caller doesn't enter a calling card number, an operator will come on the line to assist in completing the call.

Calling Card Service is set for full-scale introduction in Rockport on June 28. The service will be available statewide by January, 1983.

"Users will find the service helps speed their call along," Koppenhaver said. "In public places, it insures privacy as the number does not need to be quoted aloud."

Calling Card Service is available only from residence, business or public coin telephones equipped with Touch-Tone. Customers without Touch-Tone service can continue to place calling card calls with operator assistance.

"Calling card users should find the new service a fast and convenient way to place calls," Koppenhaver said.

Female vets on the increase

HOUSTON — The total number of female veterans climbed to 742,000 by Sept. 30, 1981 — an increase of 26 percent during the last five years alone, according to a Veterans Adminstration report.

Women now total 2.5 percent of all living veterans.

The report, "The Female Veteran Population," noted that while the number of male veterans has declined recently, the female veteran population is growing rapidly.

The report, which didn't give a breakdown by states of residence, is the first in a new series of brief studies being prepared by the VA's Office of Reports and Statistics.

However, another recent VA report, "Women Veterans' Use of Educational Benefits under the GI Bill," noted that a total of 9,766 women veterans had trained in Texas institutions of higher learning or other residence schools by Sept. 30, 1978, the latest figure available. Nearly 62 percent of them were fulltime students. That report also showed 2,074 women veterans were in training in institutions of higher learning in Texas as of 3½ years ago, said Ted W. Myatt, director, Houston VA Regional Office.

Those studies are essential in allowing the VA to address the needs of all veterans, said VA Administrator Robert Nimmo, since "effective management of the wide range of VA programs is greatly enhanced when a detailed profile of the veteran population is available."

According to "The Female Veteran Population" study, the number of women on military active duty is also on the rise, indicating a continued increase in female veterans in the coming years.

The ratio of male veterans to female veterans stood at just over 50 to 1 during the first half of the 1970s but dropped to 39.5 to 1 by the end of last September.

Other findings:

Myatt stressed that as the number of female veterans grows, an increasingly vital aspect of VA's mission will be the special consideration given to the problems of female veterans with respect to the administration of various types of veterans' programs, such as medical care, counseling, loan guaranty and education.

Stay alert and stay clear—

Avoid Contact With Power Lines

Think twice about your clearance overhead—and check it out carefully—anytime you're operating high-rise equipment around electric lines.

Cranes, drilling rigs, cotton module builders, hay balers and other big equipment become dangerous conductors of electricity if they contact power lines. Any contact could result in serious burns (or even death) for the operator and others nearby.

Although electricity performs valuable services for us every day, it must always be treated with caution—especially if you're working with equipment tall enough to tangle with electrical wires.

Stay alert—and stay clear of power lines!

Violence number one cause of death

Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

We are hardly aware of changes occuring around us until something calls a change to our attention and we find it startling. This was the case when Dr. C.M.G. Buttery, a public health physician in the Coastal Bend, gave figures to show that we are no longer dying of the acute, infectious diseases which were the causes of premature deaths 50 years ago. We are dying instead as a result of violence and excesses.

There were only 30 cases of measles in the United States last year. Not too many years ago, there were hundreds of cases of measles in the Coastal Bend alone during each week of several spring months. Dr. Buttery says it is going to be much harder to change the habits and behaviors which are causing unnecessary deaths today than it was for scientists to develop the antibiotics which kill bugs and eliminate infectious disease.

In the 15 to 25 age group in the Coastal Bend, violence has become a major cause of death in this area. "Violence" includes automobile accidents, drownings, homocides and suicides. You can't go into the laboratory to look for a major break-through. Dr. Buttery believes there is only one way to start saving lives of younger people. That is to stop talking about rights and start talking about responsibilities.

The doctor can quote computers full of numbers that print out the conclusion that other premature deaths in middle years are related to smoking, alcohol, poor nutrition and overeating.

If the individual were paying the cost of the illnesses which result in these deaths, then the doctor says it would be a matter of personal choice. But he says we are all paying the cost in Social Security disability benefits, Workman's Compensation, welfare, insurance premiums and other ways. So he considers this to be of community concern.

He says there are no easy answers. That doesn't mean he is saying there are no answers and we should just give up. The judicial system is one place he looks for dealing with violence. He points to ideas being discussed such as taking away the person's automobile when he has driven it while intoxicated. He can keep driving with his license suspended but buying a new car each time may present more of a problem.

Another suggestion he makes is the taxing of cigarettes and alcohol at a rate that will provide money to pay for the medical costs of the victims of disabling illness or injury.

Dr. Buttery says insurance companies may adjust their premiums to reflect costs. He asks why a person who doesn't smoke, drink to excess and is not overweight should have to pay premium costs to cover the illness of those who run these risks. He thinks premiums could be a big percent lower for those who do not smoke, wear seat belts, maintain weight and have other good health habits.

Industry may be leading the way. The doctor says that any company with 50 employees can produce a high cost benefit by making good health habits worthwhile to the employees. This includes counseling for those whose work is below standard and may have such problems as alcoholism; exercise programs and educational programs that are strong enough to make people believe they can stay healthy and it's worthwhile.

Dr. Buttery says for young people, the role model is the most important. Physicians, parents, teachers can't tell them one thing and do another. He says we are all going to die from the day we are born, but we don't have to destroy the quality of life, be disabled, or die prematurely.

Moeller to receive award for service

Rockport Hermann Sons Lodge No. 79 has selected Dorothy Moeller to receive the lodge's award for humanitarian service in the community.

Charlie Keller, lodge president, awarded the honoree with a certificate recognizing the contribution of time and talent Moeller has made during the year to the Council on Aging. The award was presented at the June 15 meeting of the lodge.

During the past year, Moeller has donated her services to the Council on Aging and tax service for the elderly.

Portrait added to museum collection

The Art Museum of South Texas announces the addition of a portrait by the eighteenth century French Rococo painter Jean Honore' Fragonard to their permanent collection. The oil painting, of the painter's wife Rosalie was given anonymously to the art museum. The portrait, painteed in the late eighteenth century (ca 1771s), depicts Fragonard's bride whom he married in 1769.

Typical of his style, the painting reflects Fragonard's loose and painterly brush work and captures a romantic quality found in his later Rococo works.

Born in Southern France in 1732, Fragonard became one of the last proponents of the Rococo, a style noted primarily for its highly decorative and sensuous qualities which depicted the amusements and pleasures of the Parisian nobility of the eighteenth century. Reaching its zenith under Philippe Duke of Orleans, Parisian Regent after the death of Louis XIV, the Rococo style lost official sanction during the French revolution and was subsequently replaced by Neoclassicism, as exemplified in the work of Jacques-Louis David.

Fragonard studied with Francois Boucher and Jean-Baptiste Chardin, learning from these masters the ability to transform nature into a celebration of the senses which delighted the eye with natural gaiety and exquisite finesse of technique. Perhaps best known for his painting of 1767 "The Swing," which was commissioned by the Baron De Saint Julien, Fragonard continued the subjects and style of the Rococo until his death in 1806 by which time they were out-moded.

He died impoverished and forgotten. Later generations have re-evaluated Fragonard's graceful and decorative renderings of the elegant life style of eighteenth century Parisians and his career is now viewed as a response to that society.

The Art Museum of South Texas is located at 1902 North Shoreline Drive. Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 to 5, closed Monday.

Interest is growing in earth sheltered housing

COLLEGE STATION — Energy as well as environmental concerns have increased the interest in alternatives to home construction in recent years. Earth sheltered or underground housing is one such alternative.

Earth sheltered housing describes a wide range of home designs which use natural terrain and earth to provide partial cover of the structure, explains Dr. Bill R. Stewart, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The amount of cover may range from as little as 50 percent to as much as 80 or 90 percent of the wall and roof envelope.

Homes may be constructed below natural grade, above natural grade, in a hillside or partially below grade. Some homes have walls partially earth covered while others have walls and roofs covered. Designs are usually adapted to the site and are as innovative and varied as the designer's imagination.

A major reason for this housing alternative is to reduce energy use, notes Stewart. Some proponents have indicated the potential for substantial savings in heating and cooling energy costs. However, little published data from controlled tests is available to indicate the energy performance of underground homes.

Underground homes that are well designed, constructed and maintained will show substantial savings when compared to poorly constructed conventional homes, contends the engineer. Earth is not a good insulator, but if thick enough it can moderate rapid temperature fluctuations. This principle was recognized in the use of thick adobe or rock walls in homes of the desert southwest. Superinsulated homes above ground with a minimum of window space also show excellent energy performance.

Perhaps the major advantage of underground homes is the soundproofing provided by the earth cover. This may be important in noisy urban areas.

Another advantage is the dual use of land area. Lawn and green areas can be developed over the home to enhance the overall landscape with minimum intrusion of surface structure, says Stewart.

The engineer cautions against viewing underground home construction as a cost-saving technique. Most cost reports indicate that proper construction to prevent water problems and to provide adequate strength and good maintainability will be significantly higher than conventional above-ground construction. Many 1980 costs are indicated to be more than $55 per square foot, not including land prices or other fees. Cost escalations since 1980 may put the figure around $65 to $70 per square foot today.

Earth pressures on walls and roof require careful consideration in selection of materials and construction technique, emphasizes Stewart. Concrete, either cast-in-place or precast, has been used in underground home construction. Timber or wood construction is suitable when properly protected against deterioration from moisture or insects. Concrete block or other masonry must be adequately reinforced. Metals, if used in contact with the earth, must be protected against corrosion.

Earth sheltered housing construction and design require certain special skills and knowledge, says the engineer. Most individuals contemplating this type of housing should plan to engage an architectural or engineering firm experienced in residential and commercial construction.

Lending agency policies, building code requirements and insurance costs should all be considered before making a final decision on earth sheltered housing. County Extension agents can assist in locating additional information, notes Stewart.

Schaefer is Non-com of Month

OKINAWA — Sgt. Melinda E. Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jowell M. Hearn, was designated the Non-commissioned Officer of the Month for May. Sgt. Schaefer was the only Marine from a squadron of more than 400 to receive the honor.

This marks the second time she has received the NCO of the Month award, the previous designation made while she was on duty in Spain a year ago. At that time, Schaefer was also named Marine of the Year in Spain.

In a congratulatory letter from the Marine Corps, the NCO's parents were told that she was given the award for "her professional attitude, character, discipline, loyalty and devotion to duty."

Schaefer is stationed with the First Marine Airwing in Okinawa.

Shrimp

down the center of the six-pond set-up, with three ponds on each side.

Shrimp will be fed commercially-produced food by either a blower mechanism or an electronic feeder, said Terry.

The farm backer said that optimum shrimp production is hoped to be some 3,000-4,000 pounds of shrimp per acre, harvested every four months. According to Terry, the estimate was reached in light of the output of the Texas A&M Research shrimp farm in Port Aransas run by Dr. Addison Lawrence. Lawrence has produced up to 4,000 pounds per acre. He is serving as an advisor to Terry's crew on the new farm set-up.

Terry foresees production by contract for seafood companies and other interests. He says the shrimp farm in no way poses a threat to local shrimp operations. "Thre is no way we would ever be able to produce enough to take over their quota," said Terry. "We don't have that much land. We're just one operation."

Terry said that after the series of once every four month harvestings, the farm will shut down for three to four winter months, depending on the weather. During the shutdown time, pond bottoms and other areas will be maintenanced.

Terry said that the shrimp produced at the farm would be a large white South American variety. "They're very hardy shrimp," he said. He added that orders for smaller shrimp would be filled by harvesting the shrimp earlier, before full maturity.

The South American shrimp types used in other shrimp farm setups have been of the genus "Penaus." According to spokesmen from the Texas Parks & Wildlife marine lab, South American shrimp varieties will breed in captivity. Local Gulf shrimp will not and in order to farm them, larvae must be harvested, then brought in and raised, an unsuitable situation for a maximum production farm set up.

Said Terry, "We need to have the hatchery. We can't be dependent on an outside supply."

According to marine lab biologist Bill Mercer, the South American shrimp has only slightly different characteristics than the local shrimp. Mercer added that most people would be unable to distinguish between the two types and that no difference in quality or taste exists.

Harbor

she ran aground drawing only 10 feet of water.

The supply boats carry water and fuel to the offshore drilling rigs and if they can only draw 10 feet, with a partial load, they have to make two runs instead of one, Williamson said.

According to Williamson some of the platforms are as far as 60 miles offshore and one run can take a full day.

"There is no reason why the navigation district can't make enough money to pay for the dredging and some for the projects they want to do. They get about $48,000 a year off of the leases out here," said Williamson.

"We aren't trying to make waves, we all just want to get along together out here," Williamson said. "I know it's an expensive thing to pump (dredge) the harbor but it has never been done. And all the other harbors, Fulton, and Rockport have been dredged," he added.

Williamson said he doesn't know what kind of plan the Navigation District has but he said if they could just dredge the middle of the harbor it would help a lot.

He said that with the money the navigation district gets on leases and the one cent a gallon on fuel they should be able to maintain the harbor.

"If we sell 100,000 gallons a month that's a hundred thousand pennies that they would get and that's $10,000 a month just from our dock and they might get an equal amount from another dock," said Williamson. "And I don't know if they are charging the co-op. Seems like if they are going to charge us out here they would have to charge them."

Williamson said that many of the sub-lease holders also ask that a sign be placed at the entrance to the harbor and the commissioners had a sign installed that is so small it can't be seen.

He said the truckers delivering supplies can't see the sign until they are past it and then they have to turn around and that creates a hazzard on the highway.

Williamson said one company has already moved out of Cove Harbor and another one is thinking about moving. He said, "If we could find another place we might move out too."

Boat

turned out to be owned by a salesman for an electronics company in Garland.

"I called the company," he said. He learned that one of their salesman had been out fishing on the boat with a couple of employees of Southwestern Bell Telephone with whom the electronics firm does some business.

The next thing Carroll knew, he received a telephone call from a Southwestern Bell employee named Don Glockel who said, "You've got my boat."

"I described the boat to him," Carroll said, "and when I said the lower unit was defective, he said, 'You've got my boat'."

It turned out, Carroll continued, that the boat had been parked in a Dallas service station — awaiting repairs to the lower unit — when it was stolen. Date of theft was June 27, 1981.

Texas gas production down in March

AUSTIN — Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent announced that Texas oil and gas wells produced 528,665,528 Mcf of gas in March 1982, down 7.83 percent from field runs a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 444,846,804 Mcf and reflected an 8.67 percent decrease from the March 1981 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in March totaled 285,447,556 Mcf. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America was the month's largest exporter, moving 78,655,772 Mcf of gas of which 36,887,447 was Texas-produced gas.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in March totaled 209,704,969 Mcf, and reflected an 8.32 percent increase from the year-earlier month.

Texas gas production in March came from 224,904 oil and gas wells.

In February 1982, Texas wells produced 490,786,592 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in February totaled 418,038,592 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in February totaled 418,038,756 Mcf. February exports of Texas-produced gas totaled 196,879,171 Mcf.

'Reform' law could raise new problems

If you run a small business, shop or office, or happen to know someone who does, this is the time of year you are likely to hear from friends who have a son or daughter looking for a summer job. Typically, many high school and college students land their first jobs this way.

But this commonplace activity would become illegal and subject an employer to a $500 fine if the hiring did not conform to certain government regulations that would be drawn up under new legislation being considered by Congress.

What is Congress up to anyway? Strange as it may sound, it is considering the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1982. "According to sponsors of the legislation, the purpose is to prevent illegal aliens from entering this country," says Christopher Luis, a labor law attorney for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "Their method apparently is to regulate the hiring practices of virtually all employers in the United States and to penalize those not following the procedures."

But in the process of attempting to weed out illegal aliens, all U.S. workers would be required to prove they are American citizens or legal alien residents and to establish their identity. The employer, in turn, would be required to verify this information by checking Social Security cards or birth certificates and a driver's license. Without the documents, a person could not be hired.

Within three years, a much more elaborate and costly new bureaucracy would be set up. Most likely, some form of national identification card would be issued and a federal computer bank would be established, probably in Washington. Employers would have to ask each job applicant for their identification card, check by telephone with the computer to ascertain if the applicant may legally be employed and register the job transaction. These requirements would cover all employers with more than three employees.

While condemning the hiring of illegal aliens, the U.S. Chamber opposes the regulation of hiring practices and the penalties, or sanctions, against employers. It also maintains the system is too costly, burdensome and workable. Everyone knows how easily Social Security cards, for example, can be forged. Not even the government can guarantee their authenticity. The cost, according the Chamber estimates, would run from $860 to $2 billion for the nationwide I.D. card system and $2.5 billion for the telephone and computer network.

With some 70 million job changes occurring each year in the United States, the gigantic proportions of the bureaucratic task are easy to visualize.

Illegal immigration involves serious enforcement problems which the government has failed to meet head-on. For instance, it employes more police officers to guard the Congress than it does to patrol our national borders. Congress needs to re-examine its options.

Bob LePree — Fine Carpentry to suit your needs

"I do carpentry — it's my profession," says Bob LePree.

Fine Carpentry is the name of LePree's business, which he opened eight weeks ago. Prior to opening his own carpentry business, LePree worked as head finish carpenter of the Port Aransas Civic Center project done by the Braselton firm out of Corpus Christi. He also worked for Don Douglas on the Little Bay condominiums.

"I opened my business eight weeks ago and I've been kept pretty busy," says the carpenter. LePree is convinced of the market for his services — good quality carpentry backed up by sound knowledge and years of experience.

"People want that professional communication and knowledge of the job to be done," he says. "I'm happy to do consultations. I talk to people, help them, listen to them, give suggestions. I know the business and I have ideas."

LePree says that he keeps a line of communication open between him and his customer. "I'm always open to their changing needs. They see a job get going and they decide that they want a change, that's great, I want to do the kind of work that leaves them happy. When I'm through they've got exactly what they want."

"It's a pleasure for them and a pleasure for me," he adds.

Of his prices, LePree says, "My prices are more than fair, but they're not those of a laborer. They're professional prices, for a professional job."

LePree came to the Rockport business scene two and a half years ago from a Florida based background which includes consultation work, lumber production, door building and more. His decision to do fine carpentry work in Rockport is simply explained: "I'm doing exactly what I want to do. People get down here and they like to slow down and do what they feel like doing. That's me."

He doesn't slow down on the job however. LePree is on every job site himself and he says, "People know they can get the job done faster and with better quality with me working on it!"

For fine quality carpentry backed by knowledge and experience, call Bob LePree at Fine Carpentry, 729-9674.

Most candidates want to reduce federal tax, according to Gallup survey

Why would a member of Congress facing reelection in 1982 favor an increase in federal taxes?

In simpler times, of course, it would be unthinkable for a candidate facing voters to suggest raising taxes. But proposals to raise taxes, as a way to hold down the size of the federal deficit, are being taken seriously these days in Wahsington. Why?

It is possible, of course, that the Congressman who insists on higher taxes is not sincere, and that, as the election gets nearer, he or she will have a change of heart.

But what about those brave souls who genuinely support higher taxes? Perhaps they believe they have a mandate from the people. Is that possible?

Hardly. If there is any public clamor for raising taxes, it's barely audible outside Washington. Public opinion polls clearly show the public is opposed to increasing taxes.

According to the most recent poll, a nationwide Consumer Opinion Survey by The Gallup Organization for the Survey Research Center of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, consumers, when given a choice, strongly favor reducing spending as the preferred method of cutting the size of the deficit.

Here is a key question and the responses:

"The Reagan Adminstration has estimated that the deficit in the federal government budget in the next three years will add to a total of 246 billion dollars. Which of the following would you favor — raising taxes, reducing spending, both raising taxes and reducing spending or doing neither and leaving the deficit as it is?

Four percent said they would favor raising taxes, 47 percent said they would favor reducing spending and 20 percent said they would favor both raising the taxes and reducing the spending. Eighteen percent said leave things as they are and 11 percent didn't have an opinion.

Perhaps the legislator favoring higher taxes feels beholden to labor unions because he represents an industrialized district, hard hit, say, by the recession?

Responding to the same question, union households (one or both spouses belonging to a labor union) gave these answers:

Three percent are in favor of raising taxes, 50 percent are in favor of reducing spending and 20 percent said we should both raise taxes and reduce spending. Twenty percent said they felt things should be left as they are while seven percent didn't express an opinion.

Certainly, no mandate for raising taxes there. Unionists favor the spending route even more strongly than the general public.

The survey involved 1,580 face-to-fact interviews by the Gallup Organization with a representative sample of the U.S. public, 18 years and older.

The answer to the question of why some legislators favor raising taxes lies in their political philosophy. They believe that the more money that is raised by taxes, even if done stealthily by inflation, the greater role the government can play in people's lives and possibly gain them votes for the hand-out kind of social programs these candidates favor.

Raising taxes does not lower or eliminate deficits. In the last decade, government spending has tripled, yet our deficits are growing larger.

Why would Congressmen seeking re-election want to raise taxes? They simply want more money to spend. It's as simple as that, isn't it?

Success formula outlined for youths at State 4-H Congress

COLLEGE STATION — The formula for personal success was outlined here recently by Ola B. Madsen in an address to some 600 4-H club members and their leaders.

The 4-H'ers and leaders were representing their counties from throughout Texas at the 1982 State 4-H Congress on the Texas A&M University campus.

Everyone has a chance to succeed in life, Madsen said. All it takes is the right attitude, enthusiasm for life, goals to work toward and the persistance to stick to it.

Make your attitude positive, said the president of Adventures in Total Development from Nicholasville, Ky. Believe that you were created for success and endowed with the seed of greatness.

Enthusiasm is the second ingredient in the formula for success, Madsen said. Get excited about school, work and challenges in the future.

"Goals give you a sense of direction," Madsen said. "It's easy to get excited when you know what the future holds."

Writing out goals on paper will clarify them. Figure out the cost to achieve each goal. This cost may be loyalty and time instead of money, he said. Finally put a date on each goal and work to accomplish it by that date.

"Don't be afraid to dream big," Madsen said, "but be realistic."

To make the formula work, one must have the persistance to stick with it like a postage stamp until it's finished, he said.

"No matter what happens, don't ever quit."

The 4-H Congress is a part of the educational programs for youth arranged by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Texas 4-H Council and other groups.

Be careful about jogging

Out of shape? You may have been active in high school athletics, but now all that remain are the memories and the extra pounds. You decide to get back into shape by jogging.

Before beginning, candidly assess your physical condition, advises the Texas Medical Association. If you are over age 30, are overweight, or have a history of health problems such as heart or lung disease, high blood pressure or diabetes, a medical check-up is important.

A person who plans to jog regularly should buy a pair of running shoes that fit well and absorb shock adequately. Because they are designed for running, they will be noticeably more comfortable than other athletic shoes.

Set up a carefully controlled running program by initially jogging only a short distance, combined with walking. Gradually increase the jogging distance when you feel comfortable. How often and far a person should jog depends on the individual. Many physicians agree that about 15 minutes of jogging three or four times a week is adequate to provide a "training effect," according to the National Jogging Association.

Your jogging speed is another consideration. One way joggers determine a suitable training pace is by checking their breathing with the "talk test". If you are out of breath and cannot talk comfortably while jogging, you should slow down. Other signs of overexertion include dizziness, tightness in the chest and nausea. Jogging, particularly at first, will include many small aches and pains. If any become pronounced, stop immediately.

With the arrival of summer, heat has become a factor. Jog early in the morning or late in the day.

The main thing to remember is not to overexert yourself. And take it slow and easy at first.

Collins suggests selling surplus property to ease federal debt

WASHINGTON — Selling surplus Federal property would cut waste and help reduce the national debt while encouraging community development and creating jobs, according to Texas Congressman Jim Collins. The surpluses include abandoned military bases, deserted Federal buildings, vacant urban lots, and hundreds of other unused properties.

"The Federal government, with 744 million acres of land — one third of the land in the United States — is the largest and most inefficient landowner in the nation. In some western states, the government owns as much as 86 percent of the land area, compared to 3.8 percent in the north. ITs massive holdings also include 405,147 buildings with more than 2.65 billion square feet of floor space. Yet only one percent of those holdings have been labeled as surplus, and this is an unrealistically low figures," according to Collins.

The General Services Administration has already listed over 546 unused and surplus property holdings. These include two parcels of land — one in Nantucket Island, another in the Washington suburb of Fairfax, Va. (purchased at $14,465) both bought in 1917 and not used for the last nine years. The Federal government has maintained another site in Kekaha, Hawaii, a former Radio Noise Test Site, valued at $1.2 million. The site has been closed since 1965. Another site in Hawaii, 17 acres of beachfront property currently valued at $13 million per acre, has been held by the Federal government since 1975. The sale of this land could give the government $221 million to apply to the $1 trillion debt.

Collins is cosponsoring legislation directing the President to prepare an inventory (excluding national parks and wilderness areas) of Federal assets based on current market value, with recommendations to Congress for the sale of surplus property.

"Under our current haphazard system, there has never been an audit to pin down this property and no agency has authority to order one. A recent General Accounting Office (GAO) report listed total 'recorded' costs of Federal property at $104.9 billion. But, this figure is based on acquisition costs, and only represents eight percent of the value of Federal holdings.

"With a complete inventory of Federal property holdings based on current market value, and a sale of surplus properties, the Federal government will be cleaning house and reducing the national debt at the same time," prompted Collins. Statistics show that this legislation would yield at least $2.2 billion annually to be applied to the national debt.

Broadway is my beat

Razor-honest comedian Pat Cooper blasts some of Las Vegas' top stars in an acerbic interview with fellow comic Steve Rossi, exclusively in "Oui" Magazine.

Pat Cooper, a 20-year Vegas veteran, accuses many of the superstars of having little or no talent, of being egotistical, insecure monsters and greedy hucksters. Among the performers he skewers in the May issue of "Oui" are: Don Rickles, Shecky Greene and Allen King: "...childish...big babies"... in their demands. Jerry Vale: He's "not a star. Jerry Vale is a recording artist." Dionne Warwick. "...not a star...She comes on like Madame Queen... She's a boring, boring woman and a non-talent. She just sings and that's it. She moves her arm, and that's choreography."

My pal Ed Wynn, and a great host at the famed Gaslight Club, overheard one of the guests — "I know she hasn't got much upstairs — but, boy, what a staircase."

Bruno, one of New York's premier Italian restaurants, located at 240 East 58th St., between 2nd and 3rd Avenues, is presenting a special Champagne & Caviar After Theatre Supper. The gourmet supper is served from 10:30 p.m. to Midnight Monday through Saturday at the elegant Italian restaurant.

The Champagne & Caviar After Theatre Supper begins with champagne and is followed by one full ounce of Beluga Caviar, soup, Veal Scaloppine and a choice of coffee or expresso. The price is $35. Bruno, noted for its unique Italian cuisine, features superb dishes and specialties. The restaurant is noted for its warm decor with soft lighting, fresh flowers and country atmosphere.

Sirocco, 29 E. 29th St., the Greek-Israeli nightclub, effective immediately is offering a six-course dinner for $11 nightly between 6 and 11 p.m. except Saturday evenings. Included in the price of the dinner is the two-hour Mediterranean revue headlining Aris San.

Carolyn Rose explained her divorce from baseball superstar Pete Rose to Lynn Swann, celebrity correspondent on the ABC show Dick Clark's "Inside America." Mrs. Rose said: "When I married Pete I was his third love. First there was baseball, second there was his car, and third there was me. That was okay because all I wanted was to be was a good wife and mother. Then our daughter, Fawn, was born and I was relegated to fourth place. Then our son, Petey, was born and I was in fifth place. Fifth place was too low in the standings."
