Registration Deadline Jan. 31

Mrs. Margaret Weber, Aransas County Tax Assessor-Collector, reminds all qualified voters that they must register by Jan. 31 and receive voter registration certificates to be eligible to vote in future elections.

Only 838 voters had registered through Jan. 2 out of an estimated 3,500 potential voters in the county, Mrs. Weber said. "Apparently a lot of people, whether they are 21 or 101, don't realize that they must come to the tax collector's office in the Courthouse, register and receive a certificate to be eligible to vote," she added.

South Texas Lawn Care Problem Under Study

Weslaco—Many home owners and gardeners who strive for attractive lawns are being faced with a relatively new problem, says Dr. Jose Amador, area Extension Service plant pathologist.

After battling chinch bugs, white grubs, brown patch, fade out and other lawn problems, the newest problem confronting home gardeners is a yellowing or mottling (mosaic) striping pattern in St. Augustine grass, Dr. Amador adds. "Where this problem is present, the grass will not respond to fertilizer, additional iron, or any other treatment," the specialist says.

In many places, Bermuda grass is taking over because of lack of competition from the infected St. Augustine grass. The lawn condition appears to be widespread in South Texas.

Specimen of St. Augustine grass with the yellowing condition have been submitted to Texas A&M University's Plant Science Department for investigative study. Dr. Robert Toler, plant pathologist who specializes in viruses, is conducting the study in an effort to learn more about the problem.

"The condition resembles a virus disease, although this fact has not yet been determined. Attempts are being made to isolate the disease, and transmission studies are being made to determine how it is spread," Dr. Amador explains.

He pointed out that there are no control practices being recommended at present. Until more can be learned about the problem, recommendations cannot be made. "In the meantime, home owners should maintain their regular program of fertilization, insect and disease control. Although these measures will not get rid of the problem, they will make the grass have a better general appearance," Dr. Amador adds.

A survey conducted in Corpus Christi on Dec. 11 indicates that the condition is widespread over all of the city. Inspections were made of 20 yards that were suspected of having the condition, and all were found to have the same grass problem.

Nueces County Agent R. E. (Bud) Nolan called a recent meeting at the request of nurserymen and pesticide applicators of Corpus Christi. At the meeting Dr. Amador explained that the condition was believed to be a virus, although this has not yet been determined. Thus, if a fertilizer, fungicide or insecticide is used, it will not get rid of the problem. It was agreed that normal lawn care programs should be followed, pending development of more information about the problem, the specialist adds.

The city made one sewer connection and no water connections during the month of December.

Security Real Estate Reorganizes

Emory M. Spencer, oil operator, land owner and founder of Security Real Estate, Inc., in 1964, today announced the reorganization of Security in which John A. Lewis becomes president and Ed Harper vice president.

Lewis is the owner and developer of Peninsula Oaks subdivision here and the developer of a number of other subdivisions throughout the country.

Harper, who becomes full time manager of Security, formerly was general manager of the Jack Sanders Enterprises in Texas including the Sandollar Motel. Previously he was sales manager of Key Allegro Development & Sales Co.

Harper said plans of the new management "call for providing complete real estate sales and service for Aransas county. With spacious facilities including four closing rooms, Security is equipped to offer full service."

"I see great potential for future development in the Rockport area," Harper said, "and the new management of Security realized the need for a real estate firm to provide the type of services we intend to offer."

"We will provide all types of real estate service and will have a complete sales force," he added.

"There are no real estate transactions too little or too large to interest Security," Harper continued.

SHARING FISHING SPACE near St. Petersburg, Fla., are two characters with expensive poles, reels, and other tackle, and a third making his point with merely a sharp bill and a keen eye.

The Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday noon selected as one of its main objectives for 1968 "doing everything possible to help bring about improvement in the appearance and atmosphere of the downtown business district."

As its initial step, the Board of Directors of the Chamber at a luncheon meeting at Key Allegro, voted to pay the cost of approximately 3,000 feet of plastic tubing to be laid under the center of Austin Street. The tubing will protect special wiring making it possible to bring wired music to the business area, amplified through a number of speakers along Austin Street.

The ditch will be dug by the city, and Central Power and Light Co. will place its power lines and the plastic tubing in the ditch. CP&L also will install new street light standards in the new center medians to be laid by the Texas Highway Department.

The Highway Department is busy now removing the old "teardrop" medians to make way for the new 6-foot medians which will be topped with a coating of sparking rock aggregate.

At the C of C directors meeting, John E. Ross was appointed project chairman to spearhead the campaign to improve the looks of the business district to the extent that it will make a favorable impression on people coming to Rockport for the first time.

In accepting the appointment which was unanimously voted by the directors, Ross said, "If any progress is made, I will have to have the cooperation of every member of the Chamber of Commerce and all the downtown business people."

In another action, the directors voted to have the Chamber sponsor a program of training youths to learn all phases of lawn care—mowing, care of mowers and other equipment, proper use of fertilizers, weed killers, etc.

J. D. Gray, a board member and superintendent of schools, explained that such a program is being aimed from an educational standpoint by Texas A&M.

Attending the Board meeting were Chamber directors Ed Harper, Mrs. Anita Wagley, John E. Ross, R. L. Eckman, Port Little, John P. Mitchell, Jr., Gray, Ray Longino, J. W. Stevens, Roy Rogero, Charles Roe, Gabe French, manager John Kinsey and secretary Mrs. Loyce Landrum.

WHAT CAUSES RAIN?

This fellow on educational TV the other day was talking about the technicalities and the science of weather. Without a doubt he was a pretty smart guy on weather and he said scientists don't know what makes it rain.

Right there he showed his excessive book-learning. He showed how stupid science can really be.

Why heck, just about everybody knows how to make it rain. There's nothing to it. Don't listen to the scientists; they're all wet, speaking of rain.

One of the best of all known methods (to the layman) to bring on rain is to march right out to one's favorite automobile dealer and select a spic-and-span new model with white sidewall tires. By the time you get home it will be raining, dirtying up the new vehicle and getting the sidewalls looking like they've been run through a cornfield.

There are numerous ways to make it rain. A new dress, a new $40 hat, or plan to paint the house, or play golf.

Everybody takes pride in a new pair of shoes. So if you want it to rain, just plank down $85 for a new pair and take a walk. It'll rain before you get home.

Or buy a new suit. The chances, or odds, of getting through the first day of wearing it without it being soaked are also slim, indeed.

If none of these methods work, don't give up. Take the family on a picnic, or a motoring trip, or plan months ahead to attend a big football game.

There are many, many methods to cause rain. Those are merely the more common ones.

Those scientists are lost in their books. They don't know what causes rain. But we do, don't we?

THEY KNEW!

The town council at Bloemfontein, South Africa, has decreed that sunbathing couples must lie at least a foot apart.

The ruling came after parents complained that children were spending more time watching neckers than they were devoting to swimming lessons.

How did the parents know what the kids were watching?

Doctors say they aren't sure what causes ulcers and our suggestion would be to ask the Internal Revenue Service.

When the government gets through pursuing greater safety of automobiles it might take a look at supermarket shopping carts.

EDITOR'S VIEWPOINTS

NOW COMPUTERS, NEXT

Barring the unlikely repeal of Parkinson's Law, the outcome of an inquiry by the Federal Communications Commission into computer rentals can be predicted with virtual certainty.

The FCC is examining the need for government regulation of the computer renting business. The commission doubtless will find that yes, indeed, the rentals should be regulated by the FCC.

If by its investigation the FCC can convince Congress of that necessity, a lot of new employees would be added to the FCC payroll many of those on the job would get promotions and raises, and the agency would gain new power.

With all that at stake, it is not likely that the FCC will find that computer services should be left alone. The FCC betrayed its intentions by the frail excuse it offered for initiating the investigation in the first place.

When various organizations share a computer on a rental basis, information usually is transmitted between the customer's office and the computer on leased telephone lines. Since the FCC already regulates those lines, it says that maybe it should regulate the computer services, too.

By that same reasoning the FCC could regulate almost every business in the United States, since most firms use long distance lines. Congress should view any FCC proposals to regulate computer services with skepticism. Computer regulation might be only a beginning.—Phoenix Gazette.

PROGRESS IS WONDERFUL

Man, who figured out how to travel faster than the speed of sound, now is working on a theory of how to stop tornadoes by electrocuting them—that is, by firing lengths of wire into the eye of the tornado clouds to short out the natural electric field. The rate of progress is such that, it it keeps up, someone may yet discover a way to get rid of the common cold.—Sacramento Bee.

WE CAN HANDLE IT

A fugitive from a major "think tank" has come up with some rather far-out predictions of his own. He is Herman Kahn, who spent 12 years with the Rand Corp., before helping found the Hudson Institute in New York, which he now directs.

Within 20 years, he says, three-day weekends and vacations lasting three or four months may be commonplace. "People will live in 10-room houses with three cars in the garage and a helicopter on the lawn," he says.

Shades of the 1930s! When the five-day week became standard, some persons, used to working six or seven days a week, found themselves disoriented—but not long. Americans already have proved their resiliency in adapting to such changes. We're confident they will have no trouble getting used to three day weekends and three-month vacations, if Kahn's forecast comes true.—Miami Herald.

CHEESY TRIP

The first Americans who take a roundtrip voyage to the moon will be plunked into quarantine for three weeks upon their return. Scientists fear they may bring back some harmful organisms along with 60 pounds of moon rock. Those old-fashioned folks who still believe the moon is made of green cheese will be blue when their theory is found to be full of holes. But they're all for the quarantine idea, in case we receive a shipment of limbo limburger.—Dallas Times Herald.

Letters

Dear Mr. Kinsey:

As Ohio visitors here for the past three winters, we have, and, continue to enjoy using the public library in Rockport. In telling some of our fellow tourists about your nice library facilities we have discovered that quite a few out of state folks staying in this area for extended periods have no idea where the library is located.

Wouldn't it be helpful, and advantageous, to have "This way to the Library" signs at strategic places in Rockport? And perhaps a little more library privacy.

Very truly yours,

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

From his perch in a fire tower, a crowder with the Texas Forest Service can, on a clear day, scan an area of about 150,000 acres.

There are 98 towers used by the Service to spot forest fires as they occur in the pine-hardwood area of East Texas. By triangulation from two towers a fire is located and a two man crew rushes to suppress it in a radio equipped truck-tractor unit. Airplanes are also used by the Service, as a supplement to towers, to locate fires.

PROTECTIVE HEADGEAR FOR MOTORCYCLE OPERATORS ESTABLISHED

Austin—The Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., reported today that protective headgear standards for motorcycle operators and passengers have been established.

The DPS is currently testing headgear and issuing approval certificates to helmets meeting the prescribed standards. The Department was delegated the responsibility of establishing standards by the last Legislature. Enforcement of the law becomes the duty of all police agencies.

Effective Jan. 1, 1968, all motorcycle operators and passengers will be required to wear approved protective headgear whenever riding a motorcycle. The law provides that any person convicted of riding a motorcycle without protective headgear may be fined not less than $10 nor more than $50.

Garrison cautioned parents and youngsters against rushing out and buying one of the cheaper helmets appearing on the market at the present time until it is certain that the helmet will receive safety approval.

"These purchasers are looking for an opportunity to both comply with the law and to save money," Garrison said. "But many of these helmets may fail to meet the medium standards and will not provide for the safety of the wearer. These will have to be discarded and new helmets purchased."

"The Department will have a list of approved helmets available about Oct. 1. This list will be furnished to all police agencies, to headgear wholesalers and retailers, and to news agencies. The list will be updated as needed to include any headgear which is granted approval."

UNCLE SAM'S SELECTIVE SERVICE

Editor's Note: Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Col. Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Service Director, 702 Colorado Street, Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q—I'd like to appeal my classification. How do I do it?
A—All you need to do is write your local board and request an appeal within the time specified following your classification, normally 30 days.

Q—Somebody told me there's a shortage of tool and die makers and this exempts tool and die makers from the draft. Is that right?

A—No, they're not exempt. An individual tool and die maker may be deferred, but a blanket deferment of all tool and die makers is not permitted by law. Draft boards have authority to defer all kinds of persons employed in industry, farming, or other occupations if they find the action necessary in maintaining the national health, safety, or interest. But each case must be considered on its individual merit.

Q—Can men go to Canada to evade the draft ever return to the United States without being prosecuted?

A—The Department of Justice will have to decide in each individual case, since prosecution is a function of the Justice Department and not of the Selective Service System. Failure to send an address change or to obey a lawful draft order in Canada are violations subject to prosecution.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

Along the 88,633 miles of U. S. coastline, population growth and land development are killing off estuaries that took nature millions of years to provide.

Texas' coast totals some 600 miles. But counting the back bays the area is about doubled. This is the portion of the coastline where the rivers meet the sea, create a breeding ground for marine life, and furnish feed for fish farther out in the ocean.

All this now is in danger. People who have been around for some time can look back on clean coastlines, where waterfowl flourished and where fishing was good. It was so because this was the nursery grounds.

Conditions are changing too fast today for comfort.

New York City built its first airport on an estuary. The site of LaGuardia once was a stinking, murky swamp, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

In 1914 Connecticut still had some 26,500 acres of tidal marshes. Today that has been reduced almost 50 per cent—to 14,839 acres.

On the Gulf Coast, the five bordering states, and this includes Texas, once had 14,- 000,000 acres of estuaries and marshlands. A recent survey shows that more than a half-million acres no longer remain biologically productive for our wildlife.

In each of the 26 states which have estuarine areas, it is much the same story: Urban sprawl, industrialization and pollution are destroying the coastlines.

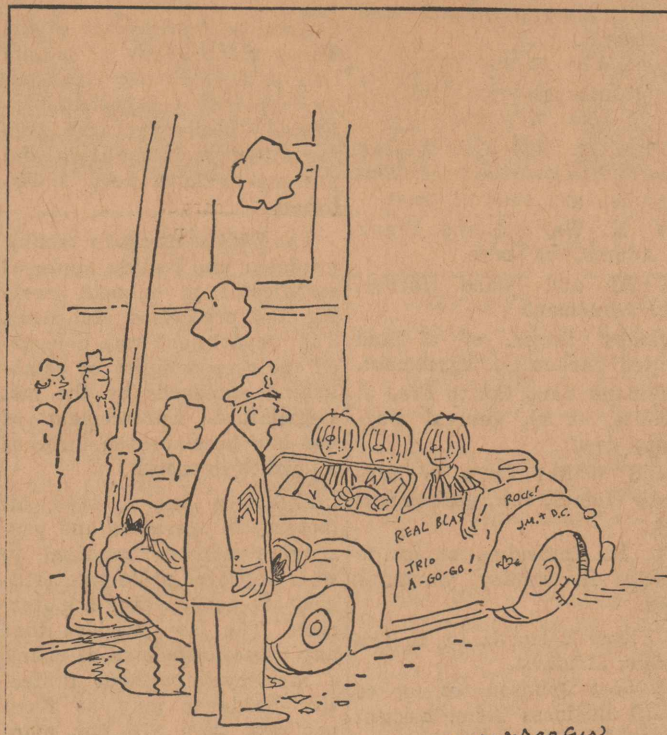

Where, then, will our future supply of fish come from? Trout, shrimp, red fish and other species that spawn and make their homes in our coastal waters, may disappear much quicker than sports fishermen think.

According to Richard H. Stroud, executive vice president of the Sports Fishing Institute, a price tag can be put on this destruction. He cites experiments which resulted in "annual harvest of shell fish that were worth up to $26,850 per acre in the market place."

"Applying economics to the Galveston-Trinity East Bay of Texas (one of the state's most important estuarine areas), Stroud estimates the loss of biological productivity there could mean a loss of $19,200,000 annually in benefits generated by sports fishing for the present harvest of 116,000,000 pounds of fish and shellfish," says the Federation report.

"Thus," Stroud says, "the total value derived from utilization of the biological products that are directly dependent on this critical Bay-estuary complex is about $44,822,000."

There was no suggestion of the economic loss annually from recreational use of the areas. Certainly if fish are destroyed, and the water becomes more polluted than it is today, there will be little recreational value left in that area.

Today it is one of the chief play areas of the United States, summer and winter.

There is no denying that today there is heavy economic benefits from shell dredging and even urbanization of this area. However, there is the constant question of whether we are killing the goose that laid the golden egg.

There are substitutes for construction material. But there can never be a substitute for loss of our water resources.

In our own state planning it might be well to take another look at potential dangers, not only along our Texas coast, but also in modification of stream flow.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Glenn and Mike of Fulton during the holidays were Mr. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis of Wray, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sauce, Franklin, La., Miss Barbara Davis of Houston and Butch Warden of Rockport.

This and That *

In October the Chamber of Commerce planned and conducted a tour of this area for delegates to the district convention of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The tour was an outstanding success as evidenced by the many compliments made by the B&PW ladies.

On the assumption that many winter visitors might like to take this tour in their own cars, the Pilot offers the following guide prepared by the Chamber:

Aransas County, though small in area and population, having 470 square miles of which 194 are water, and a population of about 12,000, is the center of varied interests and industry.

1. As we travel along the beach road you will notice the homes nestled among the live oaks and sweet bays. Many of these homes are summer residences.

2. The first colony to be established in Aransas County was made up of a group of Irish settlers, most of whom were brought direct from Ireland by James Power in 1843. After Col. Power settled his colony, he established his home on the high bluff at the extreme north end of Live Oak Peninsula overlooking both Copano and Aransas Bays.

3. As we approach the new causeway you will notice to your left, the longest lighted fishing pier in the world. This was formally the Old Copano Causeway which has been converted into a pier by the Parks and Wildlife Dept. The $2.5 million causeway which replaced it has been named the Lyndon B. Johnson Causeway and was dedicated in November 1966.

4. During the revolution and the war between the States, a settlement was established in Lamar, named after President Mirabeau B. Lamar. An earthen dyke, was constructed from the shore to the channel for convenience of shipping and Lamar was considered an important import and export center.

5. An early Catholic church chapel still stands in the heart of Lamar. This church was built by an old Frenchman, Dabberder and a slave in 1855. The original part of the Chapel was completed in 1858. It was constructed of concrete made entirely of shell from the bay. The church bell has the inscription: James Pallatren York.

6. One of the chief attractions in the county is the Big Tree which stands in the State Park. It is over 2,000 years old and has been publicized by the late "Believe it or Not" Bob Ripley. Recently the Big Tree was awarded a certificate as a national champion. It is the 28th and newest addition to Texas' Registry of National Champion Big Trees. The tree measures more than 421 inches in circumference, is 44' tall and has a crown of 89'.

7. Beginning the last of October the boat "Whooping Crane" at Sea Gun Sports Inn takes excursions into the Aransas Wildlife Refuge to view the Whooping Cranes and other wild life.

8. Notice the monument on your right as you approach the airport. It was erected in memory of Col. Powers.

9. You now approach the Aransas County airport.

10. The Paws and Taws building was built by a group of people who needed a place for square dancing. It is one of the few privately owned buildings by a square dance group in the U.S. The local club rents the building for other uses, such as the Junior-Senior Prom, Girl Scout gatherings, etc.

11. The Fulton Mansion was erected in 1875 by Col. George W. Fulton, a cattle baron of that day. His wife was the daughter of the first governor of Texas, Henry Smith. Such dignitaries as Lee and Jefferson Davis visited the mansion.

12. As you travel through Key Allegro, notice the unusual mail boxes. And of course the Polynesian style homes are quite an attraction to visitors.

13. The mile long public beach is maintained by the Aransas County Navigation Board. It is quite popular with water skiers, people with small sail boats and swimmers, from all over South Texas. The world's largest salt water pool is at the very end of the beach.

14. The marine laboratory is maintained by the Parks and Wildlife Department which has their regional office in Rockport. This is one of the favorite spots of tourists and especially children.

15. Rockport Yacht and Supply is the builder of some of the largest shrimp trawlers in the world. They have built steel trawlers for a Japanese firm as well as local and area firms.

16. Simon Michael, who came to the Coast in 1948, from the East, is director of the Rockport School and Gallery of Fine Arts. His students have sold hundreds of paintings. The Gallery displays tapestries, paintings, sculpture, iron and tile work and other art objects.

What are your plans for 68?

Maybe you'll build a new home or remodel your old one. Maybe you'll expand your business. You could be one of the thousands of South Texans who will begin a new career in industry, agriculture or the various professions. But one thing is certain — any job you undertake in 1968 will be made easier and more productive by dependable, low cost electric service.

You'll have all you need, because CPL also has some plans for 1968. We're in the middle of a big expansion program which looks ahead to the continuing growth of South Texas and the ever-increasing use of electricity for work, play and all-around better living. This year CPL will spend more than thirty million dollars to complete one large power plant addition, continue construction of another, enlarge transmission and distribution systems and provide all the modern facilities necessary to make sure you always have the best possible electric service at the lowest possible cost.

"I've always known that the people of Rockport are behind our effort here in Vietnam and that alone has made me feel privileged to serve my part in the long untiring struggle for freedom in South Vietnam as my forefathers did before me. To receive a letter from you, Mr. Harper (Chamber of Commerce president), telling me this, is something that I'll always cherish as a memo, of the many unselfish men and women in my country. With people like you, there can be no room for forced aggression in this world.

"I would like to say that my Christmas was a very pleasant one considering my position. Again, this was accomplished by the people back home.

"A plaque with the names of the men and women from our area serving in the Armed Forces is very nice and considerate—something to be very proud of.

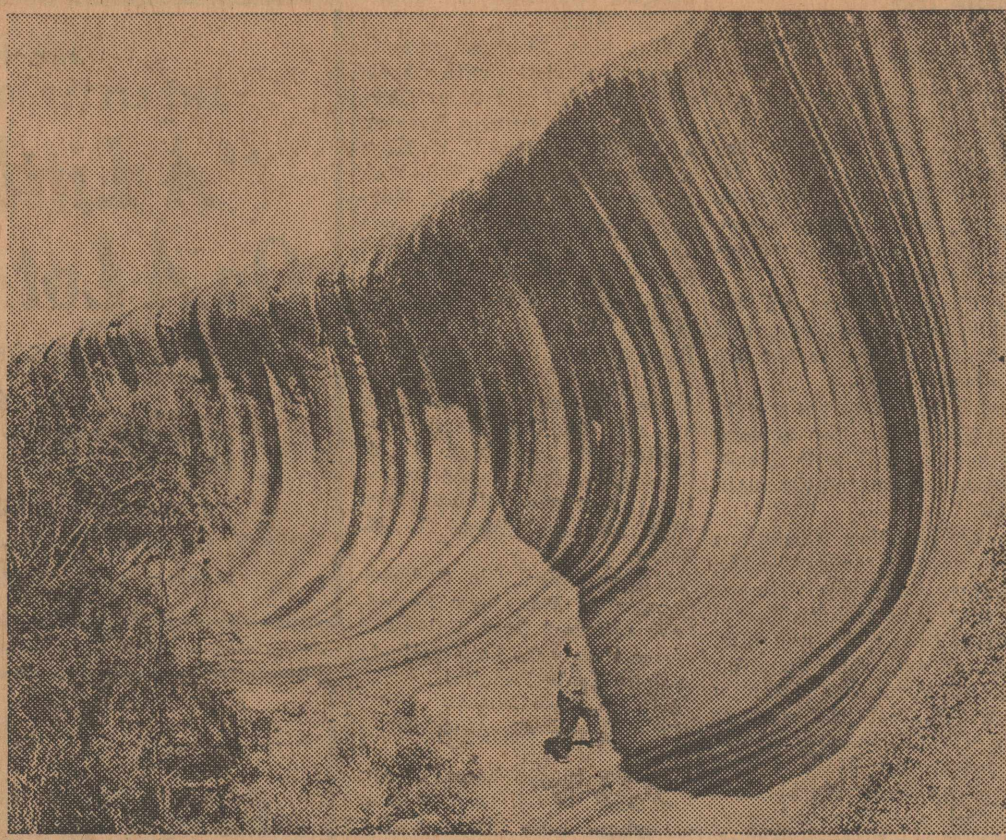

"Well, Mr. Harper, it's getting dark and I have to rush this letter along because reports have been received that the Viet Cong will be staging another attack tonight on this command. Again thank you and all the people of Rockport for your unselfish deeds.

"God bless y'all."

Major Kent Odom, commander of the South Texas Region of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced that a new drivers license program went into effect when the drivers license offices opened on Jan. 2.

"Anyone desiring to obtain a drivers license, renew a license or get a duplicate license must appear in person at one of the local drivers license offices," Major Odom said.

He further stated that persons desiring a new or original license should bring a birth certificate and those desiring to renew a license should present their old license and renewal card.

In order to renew a license the applicant will have to pass an eye test and the Department will make a color photograph which will be attached to the license when it is issued. Application for a duplicate license will have to be made at the local office.

Major Odom emphasized "no person should make application by mail to the Austin office for original license, renewal or duplicate license after Jan. 1, as the whole license process will be handled through the local offices and the Austin office will no longer handle any of these processes by mail."

Drivers license offices are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday of each week, except on legal holidays. The drivers license office in this area is located at the county courthouse.

Rebekah Lodge Holds Meeting

The Rockport Rebekah Lodge met in regular session Dec. 28 following the family night supper. Mrs. Della Scott, past noble grand, presided.

On Dec. 22 the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges and their families and friends enjoyed one of the nicest parties they have ever had at Christmas.

The program was presented by the children and grandchildren of lodge members.

The following children took part in presenting their version of the Christmas story: Stephanie, Denise and Kay Prescott, Belita and Bettina Bass, Karen Sue Lawson, Craig and Brett Ashley, Dorothy Lynn and Barbara Brown, Sherry Lynn and Kathy Ivey. Stephanie Prescott read various parts about Christ's birth and the other children sang a carol.

Following the children's performance, all present led by C. S. Heath and Mrs. Alice Ballou sang Christmas carols.

Stephanie, Denise and Kay Prescott and Belita and Bettina Bass presented some 1920 costume dances exceptionally well.

Sherry Lynn and Kathy Ivey played beautiful piano solos. Dorothy Lynn and Barbara Brown, Sherry Lynn and Kathy Ivey, Karen Sue Lawson, Belita and Bettina Bass entered the contest for "Miss Rebekah." Karen Sue, dressed as a little bride, was crowned "Miss Rebekah." The other girls each received a red carnation as runners up.

Santa came with fruit and candy for everyone. After the exchange of gifts, home-made cookies and punch were served from a table covered with an ecru embroidered cloth with a wreath of holly and fern on the edge.

At the meeting on Dec. 28 it was reported that Mrs. Annie Weber's sister had passed away in Port Lavaca. The flu bug has hit some of the lodge families, but Mrs. Leatha Bell is feeling better.

INCOME TAX RETURN FILING REQUIREMENTS

Farmers, ranchers and fishermen were reminded today that Monday, Jan. 15, is the last day for filing their estimated Federal income tax returns for 1967, unless they plan filing their final return on or before Feb. 15.

Asa L. Crow, administrative officer of Internal Revenue Service in Corpus Christi, explained that those farmers, ranchers and fishermen who file an estimated return on Jan. 15 and pay the tax due thereon have until April 15 to file their final return and pay any balance of tax due. Otherwise, the law requires that they file their final return and pay the full amount of the tax due by Feb. 15.

The IRS representative cautioned that this option is available to farmers, ranchers and fishermen only. Tax law defines these taxpayers as those who earn two-thirds or more of their gross income from farming, ranching or fishing. He said if these taxpayers filed a Federal income tax return last year the necessary forms for this year will be mailed to them. For those who did not file, or for some other reason did not receive their forms in the mail, blank forms are available from any Internal Revenue office or from post offices or banks.

Farmers, ranchers and fishermen must file an income tax return and pay a self-employment tax, if net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more. However, only farmers and ranchers who have actual net earnings from the operations of their farms of less than $400 may, under certain circumstances, elect to pay a self-employment tax and may qualify to receive benefits under the Social Security System.

Many taxpayers can complete their own tax returns by using the helpful free booklet "Farmer's Tax Guide," which can be obtained from IRS offices and agricultural agents.

Early Detection Will Help Defeat Cancer

What is cancer? All of us are well aware that cancer is a serious health problem, one of the major killers. But how many of us really know what cancer is?

A pamphlet of the American Medical Association explains that during the process of cell division—the basis of normal body growth and repair—cells become differentiated into the specific kinds needed for each organ or body function.

Each kind of cell divides into its own kind, equipped to do the job it was designed to do. Under certain conditions not yet completely understood, some cells do not differentiate in this way. They multiply in irregular and disorderly fashion and compete with normal cells for nutrition and space. These cell masses are called tumors.

Tumors that remain localized are benign tumors and may not be troublesome unless they mechanically interfere with some body function. Tumors that grow rapidly and destroy tissue are known as malignant tumors. These are called cancers.

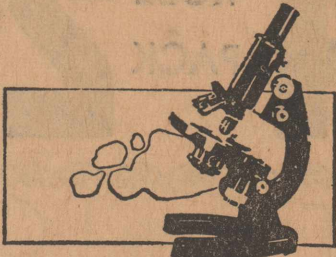

Cancers may affect any part of the human body. They also attack animals and even plants.

In man (and most animals) the unrestrained growth of cancer cells will infiltrate vital organs and destroy them if not checked.

Cancers spread by infiltrating adjacent tissue, by traveling through the circulatory system and lymphatic system, or by any combination of these.

The cause of cancer in man is not known. If treated promptly and properly, some cancers are highly curable. One-third of all cancers in the United States are being cured today. Cancers are most readily curable before they have spread from their original locations. To be cured, they must be found early.

More than 300,000 persons will die of cancer in this country this year. About one-third of these might have been saved through earlier detection and treatment.

1968 RETIREES SHOULD CHECK SOCIAL SECURITY

The beginning of the New Year is a good time to pause and do some planning for the future. This is especially true for a person who will reach retirement age in 1968, according to George Miles, Field Representative of the Social Security Administration in Corpus Christi.

"The Social Security office hopes that everyone who expects to apply for benefits will resolve to obtain necessary records early in the year," Miles said.

"It is never too early to start getting together the best proof of your age or date of birth. It takes only a few minutes to write a letter to find out if your birth was recorded. In case it was not, a letter to the church where you were baptized or to the school district where you attended will determine whether or not these records are available. You should try to obtain evidence from these sources even though you have a delayed birth certificate which was recorded later in life," he says.

"Some persons will have some records that show their age, but they wonder if it will be sufficient," Miles said. "A visit to the Social Security office to review the documents is wise even though you have not yet reached retirement age. Anyone who has difficulty in obtaining the required proof of age, may be able to get suggestions from sources that have not yet been tried. While it is desirable to obtain the best evidence of age which is available, no one should delay making an application just because he has not yet secured the necessary evidence."

Additional information about Social Security may be obtained by writing to the Social Security Administration, 1802 South Staples Street, Corpus Christi, Texas 78404.

Brief Articles On the Draft Law And Regulations

(Editor's note: This is one of a series of 10 short articles on the draft law and its rules and regulations.)

On a local draft board is placed the responsibility, under law and regulations, of deciding which men should be deferred because of their civilian activities for limited periods.

The three categories of men considered are: (1) farmers or farm workers, (2) college or university students, and (3) men in industrial and all other civilian activity.

In the case of students, deferment in Class I-S until the end of the academic year is ordered by law if the student is mailed an order to report for induction while he is in school satisfactorily taking a full-time course, provided he has never received I-S before, or has not received his baccalaureate degree after being deferred in Class II-S subsequent to June 30, 1967.

It is mandatory that any man who requests a Class II-S student deferment be given one if he is satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course, this to continue until he gets his baccalaureate degree, fails his course, becomes part-time, or reaches age 24. He should make normal progress. Satisfactory graduate students in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy, or optometry must be deferred. Others currently may be allowed, with local board judgment that it is in the national interest.

A board considers three things when it is considering possible deferment for farming or other civilian activity: (1) Is the man engaged, except for a seasonal or temporary interruption, in the activity? (2) Can he be replaced by persons with his qualifications or skills? (3) Would his removal cause a material loss of effectiveness in the activity.

In the case of farm workers, the chief question asked is: Is he employed in the production for market of a substantial quantity of agriculture commodities necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest?

Broilers Spotlight Foods Plentiful This Month

College Station — What's for January?

Lots of chicken, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Broilers top the foods plentiful list this first month of 1968. Adding to the bounty are potatoes, grape juice, fresh oranges and grapefruit, dry split peas and eggs.

Although broiler-fryer supplies are not expected to equal that of this time last year you can expect an abundance. Offerings have been running extremely high.

Potato production is also heavy — slightly above last year's crop and 16 per cent above average, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Although size of this season's orange and grapefruit crops is down from year-ago production, supplies will be plentiful all month, says USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Volume of dry peas during 1967 ran about 11 per cent above the previous year. Smaller exports also are to increase the available domestic supply.

January is National Egg Month. So it's a fine time to consider all the many use for eggs—and use them! Eggs add taste and nutrition to meal-time.

November estimates on Concord grape production indicate a crop of 3 per cent above last season and 1 per cent above average. Storage stocks are unusually heavy, so you'll find unusually good amounts of this tasty beverage available now.

UNCLE SAM'S SELECTIVE SERVICE

Editor's note: Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Col. Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Director, 209 W. Ninth Street, Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q—This my last year as an undergraduate student. I may need a deferment to receive my baccalaureate degree. I understand if I request deferment in Class II-S and it is granted after the effective date of this law, this will bar me in the future from deferment as a father. It that right?

A—Yes, if you request it and it is granted after June 30, 1967.

Q—I took my armed forces exam last summer and passed it and I'm presently in Class I-A. Will I be ordered for induction before this school year is over?

A—Possibly, but if you're a full-time, satisfactory student when you're ordered for induction, and you've never been classified in Class I-S(C), your order will be cancelled.

Q—I've never been in Class I-S(C). What will happen then?

A—You'll be put in I-S(C) if you're a full-time, satisfactory student.

Q—How long will I be deferred in that class?

A—Until the end of your academic year, or until you cease to pursue your course satisfactorily.

Q—Then I'd have the I-S(C) until I get my degree.

A—Yes, if you get it by the end of the academic year.

Q—Will this I-S(C) make me ineligible in the future for deferment as a father, like the II-S?

A—No, it will not. You'll be eligible for deferment in Class III-A.
