Aransas County Library Praised

The Aransas County Library is highly praised in this month's issue of TELE-LINKS, the monthly publication of the Corpus Christi Major Resource Center Area.

Following is the article: "The Aransas County Public Library, though founded in modern date of 1956, was full of long pioneer skirts and old-fashioned beards as it welcomed Rockport and other residents celebrating the county and city centennial. The library also participated with a display of pioneer cabins, tools and furniture. More up-to-date displays featured models of the White House, Capitol, the Statue of Liberty and a mold of the Astrodome.

"The library began in a grocery store, with apple crates for shelves. Originally a Woman's Club project, it was turned over to the county a year later in 1957, and operated within a small room in the courthouse. In 1964 the library moved into its own building. So quickly has the collection

Fulton Fire Dept. Hosts Convention

The Fulton Volunteer Fire Department was host to the third quarterly meeting of the South Central District Firemen's Association on Sunday.

Registration at the Fulton Fire Station was handled by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fulton Fire Department. After registration, the firemen and their families went to the warehouse building, owned by George Sanders. Firemen from 17 cities registered.

At the business session, First Assistant Chief Harrison Hunt of Fulton gave the invocation. The address of welcome was given by Fire Chief Leslie (Googles) Cole. The guest speaker was Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell.

Among distinguished guests were Gordon Fulbright, San Antonio, president of the state association, and Mike Perez, fourth vice president of the state association.

Following the business meeting, the firemen and guests enjoyed a fish fry at Fulton Beach. At 1:30 p.m., the Ladies Auxiliary held its business meeting.

At 2:30 p.m., the pumper races started. There were two ladies' teams entered: Rockport with a time of 31.1 seconds, and Portland which had the misfortune to have a hose blow off from a fire plug.

In the men's division, six teams entered. Taft finished first at 23.5 seconds; Robstown second, 24.3; Kingsville third, 25.1; Portland fourth, 27.4. San Diego and Alice also competed but were unable to finish the race.

Following the races, the guests attended a dance, with Jimmy Chittenden and his band furnishing the music.

Approximately 350 persons attended the convention and each was presented a brochure printed by the Rockport Pilot and distributed by the Chamber of Commerce, illustrating and describing the attractions of this area.

"We received a lot of compliments about the brochures," Googles Cole said. "Everyone really enjoyed them. Everytime you would look, the people were reading these brochures."

The Fulton Fire Department and the Ladies Auxiliary want to thank everyone who helped make the convention a success.

SPEECH WRITER FOR V.P.

Election Judges Are Approved

Aransas County Commissioners Court this week approved the following election judges for the Nov. 2 general election and for any elections the county might hold between now and July 1, 1971:

Precinct 1: Mrs. Fay Henderson, presiding judge; Mrs. Vicente Corpus, judge.

Precinct 1-A: Mrs. Hazel Ellis, presiding judge; George Sundin, judge.

Precinct 2: Mrs. James Bart Jackson, presiding judge; judge to be named later.

Precinct 3: Mrs. T. M. Rogers, presiding judge; Mrs. R. D. Mosier, judge.

Precinct 4: Mrs. H. J. McDow, presiding judge; Col. H. J. Harrison, judge.

Precinct 4-A: Mrs. L. V. Clark, presiding judge; Mrs. L. A. Hagy, judge.

Attending the meeting of Commissioners Court were Judge John D. Wendell, Commissioners W. B. Allen, Mrs. Wanda Sparks, Raymond Owens, and Mrs. Ludene Wofford, and Mrs. Ettil "Duck" Harriett Eller, county treasurer; Bob Mosier, county auditor; Bob Hewes, sheriff; and Mrs. Thelma Barber, Judge Wendell's secretary.

Other actions taken by the commissioners included:

—Approved the following monthly fee reports: Justice of Peace Lawrence Miller, $906.50; Sheriff Hewes, $320; County Clerk W. E. Beasley, $1,819.15; and Justice of Peace J. Paul Rogers, $233.

—W. C. Walker, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game warden, asked the commissioners to consider purchasing and installing radio transmitters and receivers in two state game warden cars to establish better communication with the Sheriff's Department.

Walker said the radios would have a 10 to 15 mile range and would "be a big help when our services are needed to rescue people stranded in boats in the bays and the gulf. He said the service is needed on Saturday, Sunday and at nights especially. He said the radios would cost about $600 each and the state would expect the county to maintain them except on those occasions when a state technician from Austin happened to be in this area.

Judge Wendell emphasized that the county definitely has no money budgeted for the purchase of this type of equipment.

The commissioners authorized Sheriff Hewes to investigate the possibility of converting the radios in both the county and state game warden vehicles to accomplish the desired purpose at a modest cost, without purchasing additional equipment.

—The Commissioners Court also received copies of the report of County Treasurer Mrs. Eller for the month of June showing receipts and expenditures.

New Canal Path Is Advocated

Whooping Crane Boat Rescues Five Persons

After spending 9½ hours in 16-foot-deep water in Aransas Bay after their boat was swamped by waves, two local men and three youths are alive today because they had the presence of mind to hang onto the boat seats and because people on the Sea Gun Sports Inn's Whooping Crane motor vessel spotted them and rescued all five.

Those saved from drowning and now in good condition were Vernon Hinze, 35, his son Ronnie Lee, 17, Tom McNutt, 44, his son, Tommy McNutt, 17, and Kenny Howland, 16.

They had gone floundering last Friday night (July 10) when their boat sunk after getting filled with water.

Meanwhile, Capt. F. M. "Brownie" Brown, operator of the 65-foot Whooping Crane boat came along at 7:30 a.m., Saturday, with about 45 persons aboard for a fishing trip. This was about half way between Rockport and the ranch house on St. Joe Island.

Brownie had turned the wheel over to Chuck LaBounty, a deckhand, while Brown was doing a chore on the boat.

"All of a sudden, Chuck yelled, 'Come quick. There are some people in the water in trouble.'"

Brown told Chuck and Joe Brown, Brownie's son who is a deckhand, to get life jackets to throw to the five who were keeping their heads above water by holding onto their boat seats.

Young Brown and LaBounty got six life jackets and tossed them to the nearly exhausted five men in the water, and also threw out lines to haul the men in.

All five were rescued with the help of Brownie, his son, LaBounty and many guests aboard the Whooping Crane. Brownie notified the U. S. Coast Guard and the five rescued men, though extremely tired, said they would be content to "come on in" on the big boat and would be O.K.

They were given coffee and food and a comfortable place to lie down and rest, and "come on in" they did—safe and sound.

The Good Lord was "super-vising" this operation.

Popular Restaurant Has New Owners

Charles and LaVerne DeForest have purchased and are now operating the popular Yacht Haven Restaurant on Fulton Beach Road, which was operated for 16 years by Mrs. Gladise Thomson and her late husband, Charlie.

DeForest was born here but moved to Houston when he was a boy, spending most of his life there until the last three years which he spent in Beirut, Lebanon.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForest will work together in operating Yacht Haven until August, when DeForest will return to Lebanon to work there for 1½ years after which he will move back to the Rockport area. During this period, Mrs. DeForest will be in charge of running Yacht Haven.

This restaurant has long been famous for its seafood and the DeForests plan to continue this policy. In addition, they will serve steaks, chicken and a wide variety of foods, maintaining the high standard of quality set by the Thomsons.

Jim DeWhitt who underwent surgery for a Pacemaker for his heart, is in Room 256 at Spohn Hospital and is doing as well as can be expected.

Highway Dept. Man Get Driving Awards

Three local employees for Texas Highway Department have been honored with "no-accident" truck driver awards. They work under the supervision of maintenance construction foreman Karl Kutzer.

Marvin E. Brunson has compiled 16 years of no-accident driving; Valdemar Torres, 11 years; and Mervin J. Bright, six years.

The driving records of these men have been kept by the insurance division of the Highway Department and awards are made to the men who regularly operate vehicles in maintaining the travel lanes and right-of-way in District 16.

Safe driving awards are made on a yearly basis and during the year the trucks were driven free from injury to the driver or passengers, accidental damage to his vehicle or cargo and other vehicles or property.

Awards are made on a continuing basis. Should a driver or vehicle be involved in an accident or the driver suffer a personal injury in the operation of the truck, he is disqualified for an award for that particular year.

Local Man Files Vessel Injury Suit

John D. Odums, Jr., of Rockport Monday filed suit in federal court in Corpus Christi, against the Ocean Bounty, Inc. of Aransas Pass, owner of the vessel Cape Foulweather.

In his petition, Odums alleges he was injured aboard the Cape Foulweather April 30 and asks $60,000 in damages.

WYNNE ARMSTRONG AT CAMP GREEN HILL

Cadette, Junior and Brownie Girl Scouts from throughout Paisano Council, including Wynne Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Armstrong, have been participating in the last 1970 session of Girl Scout Camp, Green Hill.

A specialized sailing unit is also being taught this session. The girls have planned a Sports Day theme for their all camp party. Game competitions are to be set up between teams.

Campcraft skills are stressed for all girls.

As Girl Scouts grow older, outdoor skills and efforts become progressively more difficult.

The Cadette Scouts (ages 12-14) will spend two days during the last week setting up their own campsite, including building latrines and showers.

Next Friday, the last campfire of the 1970 camp year will be held. Each girl will make a wish and ceremoniously burn a symbolic stick. Afterwards, ashes from the campfire will be mixed and passed on for the coming years with ashes from campfires of years past.

An officer in the Coast Guard's captain of the port office in Corpus Christi, has recommended that 18 miles of the Intracoastal Canal be rerouted away from the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

The purpose would be to protect the habitat of rare and endangered species there from the danger of oil and chemical spills.

Lt. Craig F. Eisenbeis, port operations officer in the captain of the port office and a zoologist, last week submitted to his superiors in New Orleans a voluminous paper dealing with the threat to the Aransas refuge posed by the present location of the canal, and suggested realignment of the waterway.

He estimates the total project would cost $2 million.

The new route would veer east from the present canal at about the extreme southern tip of Blackjack Peninsula, near Pelican Reef. It would be cut north through Carlos and Mesquite Bays, skirting the western tips of St. Joseph and Matagorda Islands.

After clearing the refuge's feeding grounds for the whooping crane, the new route would veer west again through Panther Reef Cut to rejoin the present canal at the northern edge of San Antonio Bay.

Eisenbeis estimates that the increased length of the canal would be negligible.

He said the plan may be opposed by some shippers because the present canal which has land on both sides is more protected than the new route through Carlos and Mesquite Bays would be.

The Eisenbeis report identifies the Aransas refuge as a "hypersensitive refuge area" vulnerable to "inevitable pollution which could bring the highest level of national and international concern ever expressed over a single pollution case."

The report states that there are more than 300 species of birds in the refuge, that duck populations reach 60,000 and geese may number 20,000.

"But one of the most striking facts," the report states, "is that this unique area harbors the largest number of rare and endangered species of wildlife of any single region in the U.S. today." Among the rare species, Eisenbeis lists the whooping crane, peregrine falcon, bald eagle, American alligator, and red wolf.

In the United States the whooping crane is found in the native state only at the Aransas refuge.

While the numbers have increased from a low of 14 birds in 1938 to 56 in 1969, Eisenbeis states that the number "is still too small to consider that the whooping crane has re-established itself; . . . a single incident could effectively remove this magnificent bird from the face of the earth."

The whooping cranes, he stated, are carefully watched by air, water, and ground patrols, but "at this writing are extremely vulnerable from the water."

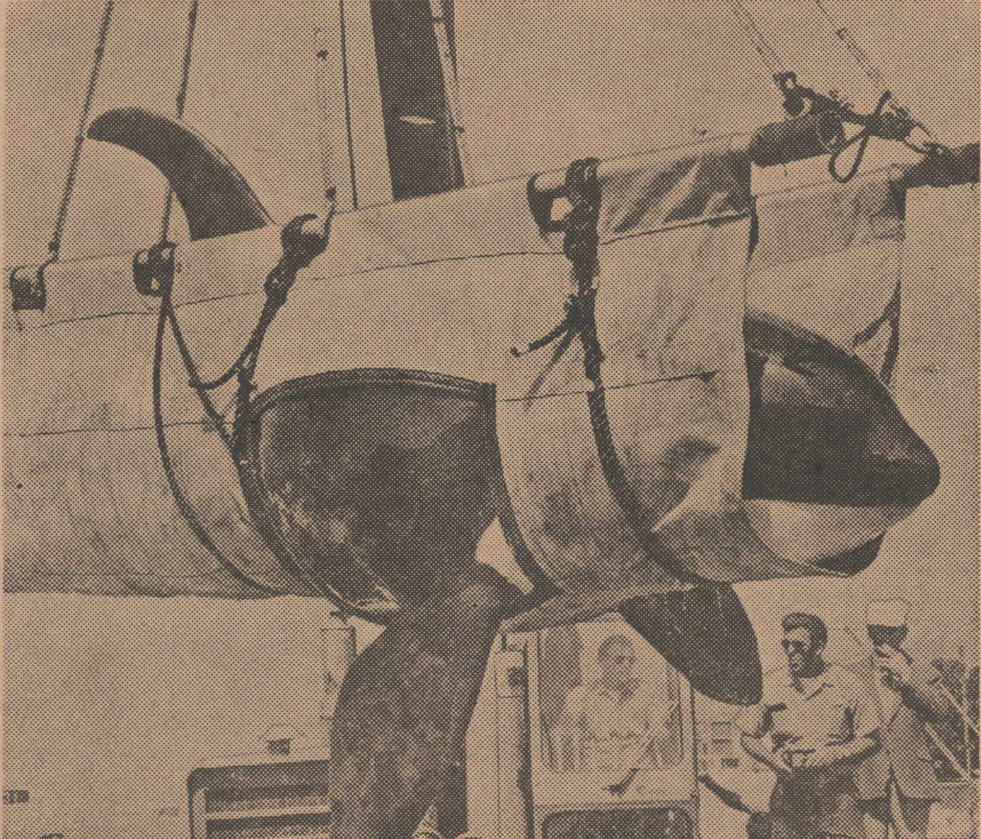

Dangers to the cranes mentioned in the Eisenbeis report include:

1. Oil or chemical spill in a portion of the canal where "hazardous turns and frequent fog present problems to navigation." Spill could damage or destroy whooping crane feeding areas.

"This delicately balanced ecological system is traversed for approximately two-thirds of its length by the Intracoastal Waterway. Each year millions of barrels of petroleum and petrochemical products are transported directly through the prime productive area of this extremely valuable region.

"Increased accidents and equipment failures seem to be an unavoidable facet of the rapidly increasing barge traffic on the Intracoastal," the report states.

2. Pollution of habitat from (Continued on Page 8)

Trash hauling has become one of the biggest headaches the City of Rockport has, largely because many people in the city are disregarding the ordinance involved, according to city officials.

The ordinance says that tree limbs and trunks shall be cut into lengths of four feet or less, and bundled, and that no garbage can or trash set out for pickup shall weigh more than 100 pounds.

Letter to the Editor

I see by the Caller-Times Sunday paper the Port Officer of the Coast Guard has decided (with a lot of outside help, no doubt) that we need a new channel around the Aransas Wildlife Refuge.

To a lot of people, this sounds good, but what of us, the public it will hurt?

Lt. Craig F. Eisenbeis says it will endanger the whooping cranes' feeding grounds if we have an oil or chemical spill. (This is probably true.)

But on the other hand if you go east to Carlos and Mesquite Bays and have a spill or accident, the wind and tide will do the same and carry it to the area anyway, through the small inlet that will have to be left open to furnish feed for the cranes.

Seems to me the big word here is IF.

Here are a few reasons why it will hurt more than do good:

1) Mr. Eisenbeis said the project will probably cost only $2 million, give or take a few thousand. Now you and I know this figure will not cover it. All it does is get started. We are probably talking about from 5 to 8 million before it is finished.

2) The new channel will go through some of the best redfish, trout and flounder fishing grounds on the Texas coast. This area is also the breeding ground for shrimp, crab and countless other species that it takes to make for good fishing.

3) Now this is the big question: where are they going to put the spoil that is dug up? Remember we are not talking about a little spoil. We are talking about 18 miles of it—tons of dirt, clay and shell.

If they come through the middle of the bay they will have to run a spoil dump line for at least a mile, on either side at times. But you put it to the west you will have to put it back on the refuge and that is out.

If they put it to the east, that will be on privately owned land, another doubt. Where then? You guessed it—right out in the middle of Mesquite and Carlos Bays, right on top of the reefs, thereby silting and ruining forever our fishing ground, not to say the oysters it will kill, and silt that will finish off the rest, besides, the bay will be a sea of muddy water for years to come.

4) Now when the reefs are silted and killed, the mud shell dredges can get the state to declare this a non-productive area and sell the shell to a shell company.

So there you have one big, neat package: Save the cranes' feeding grounds. MAYBE, but lose this area for good fishing, oystering and breeding grounds, lose millions of dollars in years to come from people who fish and relax in this area, both sport and commercial.

Some people will say that it is not so, that the people who look at the cranes pay their way. This is true, but who do you pay? The U. S. Government, to help pay for something the taxpayer has already paid for.

5) The new route will be rougher and silt faster than the one we have now, therefore costing more in the long run to maintain.

6) I think the simple way would be to enforce the law we now have on pollution, condemn leaky barges, broken towboats, pumping of bilge wastes overboard. Spend the 5 or 6 million to keep this from happening.

I have taken the time and effort to ask the people to help stop this project from ever getting started. I have lived in this area for 40 years and have seen reef after reef and good fishing grounds disappear forever. And, believe me, if this comes to light you will see it happen to some of the best fishing grounds on the Texas coast.

Will the Corps of Engineers in New Orleans protest this?

AMERICA'S OWN SHAME

There is in America a majority that has been deliberately and disgracefully abused. The American Indian who once owned this land, now lives for the most part in ghettos—called reservations—in poverty and ill health, condemned to a future without a hope.

About 72 per cent of the slightly more than a half million Indians still surviving live on reservations. Housing for 90 per cent of these is so bad that any urban ghetto dweller would shudder in distaste. Unemployment among Indians runs close to 70 per

Youths Are 'Tapped Out'

At the weekly "tapping out" ceremonies at Camp Karankawa last Thursday night, John Ledbetter, James Morrison and Robert Crabb were "tapped out" by Bobby Jackson, chief of the Karankawa lodge, Order of the Arrow.

The Order of the Arrow is a national organization of Scout honor campers whose motto is "cheerful service." Members of this organization are elected by the members of their own Scout troop or explorer post, and must be at least a First Class Scout in rank and have at least 15 days and nights of camping as well as being considered "first class" campers.

Many of the improvements at Camp Karankawa have been, and are, service projects of the Order of the Arrow, whose members have willingly and cheerfully given their time and energies to make these improvements possible.

The Karankawa Lodge draws its members from the fifteen counties that make up the Gulf Coast Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

C of C Happenings

The Chamber of Commerce wishes to thank Harbor Lodge for providing the refreshments this week for the hospitality program at the Chamber Building this week, which makes it possible for every visitor who stops by to have a cup of coffee or fruit juice and a cookie while visiting or getting information about the Rockport area.

Mrs. Loyce Landrum, C of C Secretary, is enjoying a well-earned vacation this week. Loyce does a fine job for the Chamber. Not only does she make friends for Rockport, Fulton and Lamar by the friendly manner in which she greets all visitors, but she also is efficient in sending out brochures and other material to people writing in from all parts of the country. Another service Loyce provides for the Chamber is keeping local Chamber members posted on the names and addresses of persons interested in coming here for a vacation or to look the area over as a possible location for retirement.

NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN

by VERN SANFORD

Once in awhile an outdoor writer gets an opportunity to fish with a top-flight, A-No. 1 prize-winning, bass-fishing champion. This was my good fortune and that of outdoor writer Earl Golding of the Waco News-Tribune on weekend at Toledo Bend.

It happened when a bunch of outdoor writers were fly-in guests of Hide-Away Harbor, Holiday Inn and the San Augustine C of C.

The expert was John Fox, National Bass Champion for 1968 . . . and an expert he is!

Like most bass champions, Fox began making his own "bait" immediately after winning the national honor.

Fortunately for us John's trip out this time was to test his newest product, not yet on the market.

We were in John's own rig, designed strictly for fishing. All of the other ten host's boats went out about the same time and most stopped at the first likely point—about a half-mile from the launching ramp. John did, too.

With the wind rather calm, none of the boats anchored—just floated where they stopped and cranked up the wicker only to come closer to shore when need be.

John brought in a half-dozen small bass before either Earl or I caught any. It wasn't long, however, before most of the boaters scattered for different areas. This was when John said "Now, I'll take you where the big ones are" . . . and that he did in short order.

Where did he go? To the brushiest area! But to him the brushiest area was the thickly wooded section where the "Iron Trees" were so close to each other that we could only reach his choice spots by pulling and pushing the boat from tree to tree, sometimes lying almost prone in the boat to clear the overhanging limbs.

Finally he found a spot that looked good. There he settled down to serious fishing . . . with plastic worms, of course. You'll be interested in how John rigs up his gear.

To begin with, John uses a heavy bass rod designed especially for worm fishing. It's a five and one-half footer, real thick at the handle and slowly tapers off to the end. Only really flexible part is the tip . . . for about the final 12 or 16 inches.

His choice is 20-pound monofilament line and a not-too-heavy, cone-shaped slip-sinker. He runs the line through the sinker's pointed end, first, then ties on a large and very sharp 5/0 drop-shaft hook. After inserting the point of the hook through the nose of the worm, about an inch or so, John turns the hook over so that he can imbed the point into the worm. This makes it weedless, without the use of a metal weedguard.

Naturally, he uses the Flut-tail Worm . . . his own brand . . . with a thin, flat flexible tail.

In this case, John's experimental worm had a white tail. At its nose the work was solid black, but it was lighter and lighter in color as it tapered to the end, becoming light gray as it reached the white tip.

That, and his Ambassador reel, comprised his fishing gear.

With no luck at the first spot, John moved to another, saying "Well, I know we'll get some lunkers now." And that he did and so did his two companions . . . thanks to him.

Here's how John did it. He dropped the worm lightly into the water, keeping the line tight as he slowly released it straight down alongside one of the multitude of "Iron Trees" that clutter the area. When the worm hit bottom, 30 feet down,

John slowly began to retrieve it. Following his instructions, we did the same alongside other nearby trees.

Now, warned John, when you think you have snagged the hook, set the hook as hard and as fast as you can—because it's almost impossible to snag that hook if you have imbedded in into the body of the worm, properly. So, set it HARD!

Meanwhile, John pointed to small bubbles rising from the water where he had let down his lure. "See those bubbles—that's a sign the old hoss has opened his gills and about to strike." And strike the bass did . . . but ever so gently. John set his hook so hard that we thought he'd go overboard. A fast reel-in brought up a beautiful four-pound black bass.

After stringing that one, he led down the bait for another try—in the same spot. Shortly he had another of identical size. Within a period of 20 minutes he boated four, four-pounders. Same spot, mind you.

Then he said, Vern, you try it . . . the same way, in this same spot . . . and we came up with three three-pounders. Meanwhile, Earl was doing well, too.

So, that's how Fox does it. First he finds them; then he works the same hole again and again. Some say you can't catch more than one bass in the same spot. But not John. He figures that when one lunker leaves the throne another moves in and takes over.

Who's to argue that point when seven good ones came out of the same hole 30-feet deep and in an area no more than three feet in diameter.

John made a believer out of us!

New Assistant Dean of Women

Mrs. Donald (Sue) Blair—Soon to assume the duties of the assistant dean of women at Southwest Texas State University. Mrs. Blair will be replacing Miss Carmelo Madden, SWT's first assistant dean of women.

SAN MARCOS—It's a far jump from the position of a student to that of an administrator. But in August, Mrs. Donald (Sue) Blair will take a giant leap from a student in the counseling and guidance program for masters' credit into the position of assistant dean of women at Southwest Texas State University.

Mrs. Blair is a former Chi Omega, Strutter, dorm counselor, and member of TSTA, Pi Omega Pi and Kappa Delta Pi while she was SWT undergraduate before earning her B. S. in Education in 1967. She will assume the job of counseling and dealing with the varied aspects of coeds' lives after Miss Carmelo Madden vacates the assistant dean of women's position in September.

Now fulfilling the practicing course, Mrs. Blair is familiarizing herself with the SWT dean of student's office. She is having ample opportunity to learn the workings of this complex office before she begins her official duties this fall.

Explaining her reasons for going into the field of counseling, Mrs. Blair remarks, "I think that people need someone to turn to with problems of any type. I want to be able to help." She will have many chances to help, since some of her responsibilities will be working with Mrs. Lunelle Anderson, dean of women, with Panhellenic, Associated Women Students, hosting visitors and acting in the capacity of an advisor to coeds with problems.

Mrs. Blair calls her original home Rockport, but adds that she taught in Midland for a year, was married in Midland, and moved back to San Marcos so that her husband, Don Blair of Monahans, who will graduate in May, could finish his degree in business administration at SWT.

Since the Blairs have been in San Marcos she has taught algebra at San Marcos High School for a year and a half and at Owen Goodnight Junior High for one year.

The job of assistant dean of women will be her first position on the college level.

"Just a cat" is all the family the Blairs have living with them in their mobile home off the Wimberly highway.

Mrs. Blair is the former Miss Sue Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Johnson of this city. She graduated from A.C.H.S. in 1963.

Cancer Puzzle

Breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among American women. Yet it is rare among Japanese women. Why? That's part of the cancer puzzle American Cancer Society research seeks to solve.

Eisenbeis notes that Texas has the largest system of coastal estuaries of any state in the union. Half of the Texas estuaries are located between Galveston and Corpus Christi, an area described as sparsely settled but heavily used, "in which the oil, gas, and chemical industries are firmly established."

The Corpus Christi captain of the Port Office, charged with investigating incidents of oil pollution, coordinating cleanup operations, and generally enforcing anti-pollution laws, is responsible for the area around the Aransas refuge.

The absence of cities in that region and its remoteness from Corpus Christi are cited by Eisenbeis as reasons the federal government should stock pollution control devices, such as booms and suction equipment, near the refuge.

Eisenbeis suggests that the present canal be permitted to silt up to a depth of about six feet, which would be sufficient for tourist boats to enter the area to observe the whoopers. He quotes the Army Engineers as saying such a depth could be maintained by dredging as seldom as once a decade.—Callertimes.

195 High Number In August Draft

AUSTIN — The August draft call for Texas is 560, and no man will be selected and ordered for induction with a random sequence number higher than 195, Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said Friday.

The August quota is down from 817 in July, which is being filled with men having random sequence numbers no higher than 190.

The state quota for pre-induction physical and mental examinations in August is 1,490, down from 1,601 in July. Men sent for these examinations will be limited to those with random sequence numbers 1 through 215.

Deferred or exempt men, such as teachers, college students, and vocational or trade school students with random sequence numbers 1 through 215 may be forwarded for these examinations if they are likely to lose their deferred or exempt status during the next six months, Colonel Schwartz said.

No men with random numbers above 215 will be forwarded for examination until further notice. No authority has been received to examine men born in 1951, whose random sequence numbers were established by the drawing in Washington July 1.

All volunteers at the draft boards must be inducted ahead of the non-volunteers selected and ordered to report for induction by random sequence number.

The Texas induction quota of 560 for August is the state's share of a national call for 10,000 men, all for the Army.

The Kinsey Report

Edwin Way Teale, renowned naturalist, writer and Pulitzer prize winner, visited here a month or so ago. He had been here before and knew Connie Hagar, Sybil Means, Virginia Miller and some others. Following his most recent visit, additional local people had come to know, admire and like him because Teale is a very likable, down-to-earth man.

Also, he came to be known by a great deal more persons in this area as a result of news articles and photos published in both the Rockport Pilot and The Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

He first became interested in being a naturalist at the age of nine when he lived in Joliet, Ill. In the summers, he spent three months at his grandfather's farm in the Indiana dune country. His early interest in bugs and butterflies was the start of his decision—and moves—to become a naturalist.

Teale attended Earlham College in Richmond, Ind. He got a master's degree at Columbia University in New York. Believe it or not, before Teale decided to devote all of his time to studying and writing about various aspects of nature, he was a staff writer for POPULAR SCIENCE MAGAZINE and also assisted Dr. Frank Crane, spiritual pep-talk writer, in writing Crane's daily "editorials."

Philosophers and theologians have been telling people for years they can lead happy, worthwhile lives by thinking right and doing right.

In my opinion, a person can attain happiness if he really practices the simply expressed philosophy of the noted theologian, Reinhold Niebuhr, which goes as follows:

"God grant me the serenity to accept things I cannot change, courage to change things I can, and wisdom to know the difference."

In the past two weeks I've had occasion to try hard to practice this basic truth. It has helped. I sure have not attained complete serenity, but at least by thinking of Niebuhr's advice I have been better equipped mentally to face a little problem that has arisen in my life.

Vital Volunteers

What do a beautician, a college student, a yoga expert, a housewife, and a minister have in common?

They are all volunteers at a community mental health center in Boise, Idaho, where a novel volunteer program is representative of a growing trend in the network of community mental health centers spreading across the Nation.

The volunteers not only lend helping hands needed to augment the center's staff, but also supply the extra ingredients of special talent and community caring which can assist people with mental problems in improving.

The beautician, who volunteers her services once a week, gives women in the center's daycare program hints on good grooming and helps them style their hair. Giving attention to their appearance helps these patients gain self-esteem and sociality. This is a mark of progress in their treatment.

College students from nearby Boise State College became interested in serving at the center and this had led to a unique "pre-term" program under which they can get college credit for work and training at the center. Other college students have volunteered to act as "Big Brothers" for young patients.

Former patients and patients themselves also serve as volunteer workers. One woman leads a weekly class in music appreciation. Another leads the group in yoga.

A housewife, who came to the mental health center accompanying a friend, wound up leading a weekly group therapy session for patients, under the supervision of staff. She enrolled in group therapy to experience a patient's role herself, then took a course in group therapy.

Several ministers were drawn to the center in their work as pastoral counselors through a discussion series on the principles of mental health. They continued to work with the center, volunteering their services.

Each week they give some time to the mental health center by participating in group sessions, working with parents of children who are receiving treatment at the center, and counseling.

Known as the Region III-B Community Mental Health Center, the Boise program covers several Idaho counties and serves a population of about 150,000.

Uncle Sam's Selective Service

Editor's Note: Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Col. Morris S. Schwartz, State Selective Service Di-rector, 209 W. Ninth Street, Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q—I understand another draft lottery was held July 1. One was held last December. Why have another one?

A—The one for the past December was for men born from 1944 through 1950. The one on July 1 was for men born in 1951.

Q—Will there be a new lot-tery each year?

A—Yes. In 1971 a lottery will be held for men born in 1952.

Q—Will all men be drafted by lottery?

A—No. Men who volunteer for the draft are ordered in the sequence in which they volun-tee—and ahead of the men who are ordered by the ran-dom sequence (lottery) num-bers. There are others who could be drafted in the fu-ture other than the lottery or random sequence numbers.

Q—Who?

A—One group is the men in I-A, examined and acceptable, who have reached age 26 and who have a liability for ser-vice until age 35.

Q—How would this group be ordered?

A—In the order of their dates of birth, youngest first, but these men would not be ordered until all men 19 through 25 were drafted, either by random sequence number, or in the order of their dates of birth, oldest first. Those who could be ordered by dates of birth, oldest first, would be 19-year-olds without a lot-tery number because no draw-ing had been held for them.
