OFFICIAL RETURNS OF DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY IN CALLAHAN COUNTY

Below is given the total county vote on all state and county offices. The county vote is short something like five hundred votes, counting exemptions and voters over 60 years of age, the total county vote cast being 2733.

For the first time in the history of Callahan county since the primary system was inaugurated, there will be no run-off in the county offices. There were only three county offices and four precinct offices where there was opposition. In the Floterial Representative race, the runoff will be between Cecil A. Lotief, present incumbent and Tip Ross. All contestants for the office live in Eastland county.

The total vote in Eastland county on these candidates was Lotief, 3053; Ross, 1863; Curry, 1870.

Senator Wilbourne B. Collier has a clear majority over all his opponents.

The congressional race in this district in which Thos L. Blanton ran second to Clyde Garrett, is the most interesting race in the run-off primary. This is the first time Mr. Blanton has failed of a majority in the first primary in the 20 years he has held this office and friends of the veteran congressman are organizing for a strong fight in the run-off campaign. Fred O. Jaye of Comanche county, third candidate in the race, has announced that he will take the stump for Judge Blanton. Jaye charges that he was offered $25,000 to withdraw from the race. Judge Blanton challenged Judge Garrett for a joint debate in the county seat of the twelve counties composing the 17th congressional district, but as yet Judge Garrett has not accepted or rejected the challenge.

Speaking of the organization of his friends to help in the run off, Judge Blanton says:

"For 20 years I have spent my all in service to the people, over a bare living wage, and when I leave congress I will be broke. I expect to thoroughly cover the district in the run-off with my loud speaker and one of my boys as my driver, and nobody is going to assist me financially."

"That is as far as I can go. I cannot afford to borrow any more money for campaigning, and if my friends go out and make speeches for me, it will have to be at their own expense."

"I would not be human if I did not feel deeply grateful for this unsolicited expression of confidence," he said. "If the people of my district do not want me to represent them in congress and longer, I will step down cheerfully, but in this campaign they have been misinformed and I have been misrepresented and lied on. If this race were a clean-cut test of strength and fitness between Clyde Garrett and myself, I would have no fear of the outcome, but it is not insidious influences from the outside have been brought to bear on the good people of the district, and large sums of money, direct from Washington, have been sent here by interests that have openly and repeatedly threatened to defeat me because of the fight I have made to block forays on the treasury. The fight I have made against a campaign financed from Moscow to commimize our school teachers, and because I voted for the death sentence clause in the utility holding company bill."

"I can win this run-off if my friends will become active and go out and counteract the underhanded tactics brought to bear against me. Whether I am to remain in congress or be defeated through unfair means is up to my friends now."

JOHN NANCE GARNER

A special proclamation by Governor Allred has proclaimed August 5th as John Nance Garner day, and the distinguished Vice President will be honored on that day by a tumultuous demonstration at the Centennial Exposition in Dallas. Mrs. Jarrett Attends Family Re-union

Mrs. O. B. Jarrett went to Rochester Saturday, July 25th where she joined her five brothers, D. R. Brown and E. W. Brown of Rochester, I. L. Brown of Slaton, J. L. Brown of Ranger and J. R. Brown of Hot Springs, Ark., the reunion being held at the home of D. R. Brown.

The one sister and five brothers were seated at the dinner table together for the first time in more than fifty years. It was the first time Mrs. Jarrett had met her brothers, I. L. and J. R. Brown in forty-five years.

The day was pleasantly spent, many incidents in the lives of the participants being recalled as the sister and brothers talked of bygone days. D. R. Brown, in whose home the re-union was held, is recovering from a long illness which also lent pleasure to the meeting.

J. R. Brown of Hot Springs, who was accompanied by his little granddaughter, came home with Mrs. Jarrett and spent Saturday and Sunday night with Mrs. Jarrett and family, leaving in the afternoon for Ranger where she will spend the night with her brother, J. L. Brown, leaving Monday for home.

WITH BAIRD BAPTIST

The meeting is going over in a fine way up to date. There have been 21 additions since Tuesday noon and the attendance has been excellent and the interest as shown on the part of the church has been gratifying. Brother Bates has done himself credit in his leadership of the meeting, the preaching has been up to the standard, his tactics are as safe and fine as I have ever seen. He always keeps us doing something and it is always just a little different. We are having a good meeting largely because he, by the Lord's help is leading well.

Now for our best the remaining time of the meeting, we are to pray and work as we pray everyone of us doing our best. We will have the Baptismal service Sunday night. Let's every one work hard to make it the greatest baptizing we have ever had. The Lord is graciously blessing us here at Baird. Let's honor Him for it. Let's make next Sunday the greatest day of our lives by everybody in Baird going to church. We want 200 in Sunday School so we are asking you to come and be of that number. We want the house filled for the preaching service so come to Sunday school and stay right on through the preaching service.

THIS WEEK

Paris: Of Many Newspapers
Surprise for Karl Marx
Mr. Eden Was Tired Out
A Big Somersault

This week is really no bigger, now, than the palm of your hand; wherever you are, news comes pouring in—a Pullman car on the Mohave desert has the "Examiner"; flying across, the Levant brothers hurry to the airfield at Wichita with the latest "Beacon"; and on the ocean, a newspaper appears every day; the radio feeds it; in Paris, ten times as many newspapers are published in New York tell you anything you choose to believe, from editorials written by men who do not know that the royal and imperial French families died and were buried after the war of 1870 to fiery-eyed moderns who think they can graft Karl Marx and Lenin on Jacques Bonhomme, the French peasant, and produce a French Utopia, with a Russian accent and a pair of high boots.

They do not know Jacques Bonhomme, who bought his land in the revolution at bargain prices with inflated assignats, and means to keep it, nor do they know the small-sized French bourgeois, who thinks more of one four-cent franc than some of our governing geniuses think of a billion 50-cent dollars.

The Marx-Stalin-Lenin brotherhood in America, by the way, does not understand the inside feelings of the U. S. A. citizen, with his bungalow, automobile, radio set, washing machine and furniture, all "nearly paid for."

Send HIM, instead of a bill for his last installment, the statement, "No more private property," and see what he says and does.

You take your choice of dozens of Paris daily newspapers; the wild kind, that say anything and lose money; the tame kind, that say nothing and make money, but very little of it; the mummified kind, that still take "Madame La Marquise" seriously, and think themselves back in the days of old Madame De Deffand and Lord Bolingbroke.

You have, also, newspapers from all the Lilliput countries nearby—English, Italian, German—and the news is in them, only you must know how to extract it. They are queer little newspapers, and if that be provincialism, make the most of it.

In London, for instance, Lord Rothermere's newspaper tells you that Mr. Eden, British foreign secretary, has gone to "a secret destination" in the country for a week's rest.

English statesmen always go to "a secret destination," for reasons unknown to Mr. James Farley, who relaxes at the seaside, or President Roosevelt, who rests fishing, on a battleship, with fifty reporters on another ship, nearby.

You wonder that a man as young as Eden should need a rest. Gladstone, at nearly twice his age, was talking in the Commons at four in the morning—but Gladstones are few, Tim Heals also.

Rothermere's writer thinks Eden is all tired out after his Geneva speech, telling just why England lifted the Italian sanctions. It was he who made a speech recently, just as earnest and much louder, telling why those sanctions must NEVER be lifted. That was turning a big somersault. The English know how to do that, and you are supposed not to laugh.

Eden told Baldwin what the doctor said, and Baldwin said, "By all means, my boy, hurry off to a secret destination," and Eden hurried. In America, the businessman would say, "Doctor, there are a few things that I must settle first," meaning, perhaps, his income tax. He would hang on and on, and finally go to a really secret destination, in the Bayveyard.

Driving through Normandy, from Havre, where the ships land, would interest American farmers, especially any whose lands are "worn out" after comparatively few years of cultivation. On lands in this part of the world, wheat has been grown for three hundred years, and today yields better, bigger crops than ever.

In Rome, as in other places on the earth's surface, one city is piled upon another. Dig down through one and the other appears. Invasions, plagues, famines and the grinding ice have wiped them out.

Those that read this today are the descendants of men such as the inhabitants of the Stone Age village. And still we are worried, looking down at the enemy, poverty, that may climb up and attack us in old age.

Governor Landon Accepts Republican Presidential Nomination—Organized Labor Schism Widens—Spain Torn by Bloody Civil War.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

GOV. ALF. M. LANDON now knows officially that he is the Republican nominee for President of the United States. Before more than 100,000 of his fellow citizens he stood at the south entrance of the Kansas capitol in Topeka and received the formal notification from Congressman Snell of New York, who was permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention. Around him were grouped a thousand leaders of the party, and in front of him were the throngs of his supporters and admirers who had gathered from far and near to do him honor and to witness the ceremonies. Trains, automobiles, buses and airplanes had been pouring them into Topeka for several days and the gaily decorated little city was crowded to the limit. Everyone was happy and enthusiastic and everyone appeared confident that Landon would be the next chief executive of the country.

Gov. Landon

The nominee's speech of acceptance was the plain spoken, outright kind of talk his hearers expected. Asking divine guidance to make him worthy of the faith and confidence shown in him, he said: "This call, coming to one whose life has been that of the everyday American, is proof of the freedom of opportunity which belongs to the people under our government."

Here, briefly, is what Mr. Landon had to say on some of the more vital issues: Recovery—"The record shows that these (New Deal) measures did not fit together into any definite program of recovery. Many of them worked at cross-purposes and defeated themselves. The nation has not made the durable progress, either in reform or recovery, that we had the right to expect. . . . We must be freed from incessant governmental intimidation and hostility. We must be freed from excessive expenditures and crippling taxation. We must be freed from the effects of an arbitrary and uncertain monetary policy, and from private monopolistic control."

Relief—"Let me emphasize that while we propose to follow a policy of economy in government expenditures, those who need relief will get it. We will not take our economies out of the allotments to the unemployed. We will take them out of the hides of the political exploiters."

Agriculture—"We shall establish effective soil conservation and erosion control policies in connection with a national land use and flood prevention program—and keep it all out of politics. Our farmers are entitled to all of the home market they can supply without injustice to the consumer. We propose a policy that protects them in this right. . . . We propose to pay cash benefits in order to cushion our farm families against the disastrous effects of price fluctuations and to protect their standard of living."

Labor—"The right of labor to organize means to me the right of employees to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry. It means that, in the absence of a union contract, an employee has an equal right to join a union or to refuse to join a union."

Constitution—"It is not my belief that the Constitution is above change. The people have the right, by the means they have prescribed, to change their form of government to fit their wishes. . . . But change must come by and through the people and not by usurpation. . . . The Republican party, however, does not believe that the people wish to abandon the American form of government."

State Rights—"There has now appeared in high places a new and dangerous impulse. This is the impulse to take away and lodge in the Chief Executive, without the people's consent, the powers which they have kept in their state governments or which they have reserved in themselves. In its ultimate effect upon the welfare of the whole people, this is the most important question now before us. Shall we continue to delegate more and more power to the Chief Executive or do we desire to preserve the American form of government?"

FATHER COUGHLIN, the Detroit "radio priest" who in a speech before the recent Townsendite convention called President Roosevelt a "great betrayer and liar," has realized the impropriety of his language. He has published an open letter to the President offering his "sincere apology." The priest also says: "As my President I still respect you. As a fellow citizen and as a man I still regard you highly, but as an executive, despite your excellency's fine intentions, I deem it best for the welfare of our common country that you be supplanted in office."

Dispatches from Rome said Father Coughlin's speech caused a "painful impression" at the Vatican, and Bishop Gallagher, the priest's ecclesiastical superior, leaving for a visit to the Vatican, intimated he might report on the incident.

IT SEEMS at this time that nothing can prevent the great schism in the ranks of American organized labor. John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, and his followers in the industrial union movement, are determined to go ahead with their plans for the organization of steel workers into a mass union, and now have expanded their program, proposing to unionize thus the employees of steel fabrication and processing plants.

Moreover, Lewis and his associates have declared they will not appear before the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to stand trial on charges of "fomenting insurrection," so it appears the council can do nothing but suspend the rebels and their unions, these constituting about one third of the federation's membership. If this is done, the final decision as to expulsion of these unions will be made by the national convention in Tampa in November.

The members of the Committee for Industrial Organization, the Lewis group, assert the contemplated proceedings of the council are unwarranted by the constitution of the federation.

Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, gave out the news of the CIO drive to gather in the steel fabricators and processors, who number between 300,000 and 400,000 men. As there are about 446,000 employees in the steel mills, the goal of the CIO is now the organization of more than three quarters of a million steel workers.

SPANISH Fascists and royalists, in rebellion against the leftist government, were temporarily in control of most of the northern part of the country and were moving on Madrid from Burgos and Segovia, threatening to bomb the capital from the air if the government did not capitulate.

C. G. Bowers

In Barcelona, capital of Catalonia, fierce fighting was reported, and at the request of the Washington authorities a vessel of the American Export line was hastening there to evacuate Americans, whose lives were in danger. Catalonia had declared against the rebels.

The rebels gained possession of San Sebastian, near the French border, and the loyalists were said to be making a desperate attempt to recover that town. This is the place where Claude G. Bowers, American ambassador, is in summer residence, and as communications were completely disrupted there was much anxiety in Washington as to Mr. Bowers' safety.

Socialists, Communists and workers in large numbers were joining the loyal troops for the defense of Madrid, and also helped in crushing the rebellion in several towns, according to the claims of the government.

In the south, where Gen. Francisco Franco commanded the revolutionaries, there was almost continuous fighting, and in the engagements between rebel planes and shells struck the Rock of Gibraltar and others fell close to a British destroyer. The latter fired warning shots and the acting governor of Gibraltar protested to General Franco.

THROUGH an executive order of President Roosevelt, all postmastership appointments in the future are to be subject to civil service examination. The order affects 13,730 postmasterships of the first, second and third classes as vacancies occur. Incumbents chosen for reappointment must pass a non-competitive examination, as must employees promoted to postmaster. In other cases the examinations will be open and competitive. Fourth class postmasters already were under civil service.

COL. AND MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH flew in a borrowed plane from London to Berlin, and were given a big reception by high Nazi officials, the press and the populace. The colonel was the guest of the air ministry at a luncheon attended by Germany's best aviators.

EXPLANATIONS and apologies are not enough for J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation, who was angered by the revelation that the doings of his "G men" had been under investigation by secret service men of the Treasury department. His strenuous protests started an inquiry that at this writing is still going on. Mr. Hoover also heard a rumor that some one was probing his "brokerage accounts," and this didn't help to calm him. Said he: "Anybody making such an inquiry is wasting his time. I have no brokerage accounts, so any effort to find them will be futile."

It is admitted by the Treasury that the secret service has no legal right to investigate the actions of any other government department.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE, addressing the International Baby Chick association in Kansas City, discussed at length the drought situation and the measures taken or contemplated for relief. He suggested this four-point program for the protection of both farmers and consumers:

1. Judicious commodity loans, especially in years of excessive supplies.
2. The ever normal granary.
3. Crop insurance.
4. Government purchase of land which definitely never should have been plowed.

SCATTERED rains over limited areas brought only temporary relief from the heat and drought, and then warm weather started a new advance over the corn belt.

M. L. Cooke

The federal crop reporting board in Washington said the drought was as severe as that of 1934 and worse than any previous droughts since the western country was settled. The serious conditions prevailed over practically the entire area from the Rocky mountains in Montana to the Hudson valley in New York and southward over western Pennsylvania, central Maryland, the Ohio valley, parts of Arkansas, and most of Oklahoma.

It was announced in Washington that President Roosevelt had created a national committee to study measures for remedying conditions in the drought region through utilization of natural resources. The committee is headed by Morris L. Cooke, rural electrification administrator. Other members are Col. Richard C. Moore of the army engineers; John C. Page, acting commissioner of the bureau of reclamation; Frederick H. Fowler of the national resources committee; Rexford G. Tugwell, resettlement administrator, and Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

IN OLYMPIA, Greece, scene of the first Olympic games, a torch was lighted by the rays of the sun and a Greek runner seized it and started it on a 12-day relay to the sports field in Berlin where the Olympic flame is to be lighted on August 1. Five thousand distinguished persons were selected to carry the torch, these including King Boris of Bulgaria, King Peter of Yugoslavia, and a long list of princes, statesmen and sportsmen. On the last leg it was to be borne by S. Loues of Greece, winner of the marathon in the games of 1896. A hundred thousand youths will accompany Loues in a parade to the stadium.

UNLESS the protests of Poland are effective, all opposition to Nazi power in the Free City of Danzig is due to be crushed. Dr. Arthur Karl Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, which is controlled by Nazis, has issued administrative decrees ordering:

1. Dissolution of any organization whose members, with knowledge of its executive board, spreads news "endangering the state interest."
2. Prohibition of review by the courts of police measures of a political nature, including those aimed at the right of assembly, the press, and free speech.
3. Prohibition of Jewish ritual slaughtering for food purposes.
4. Imposition of three month protective custody on persons declared to be "endangering the public peace."

Thus the city's constitution is virtually set aside, and the Poles especially, having extensive economic interests there, are indignant.

REVOLT of the Cantonese against the Nanking government has collapsed and latest reports say government troops have entered Canton and taken over maintenance of peace and order. There was no opposition and the city was quiet.

Chen Chi-tang, the Canton war lord, deserted his followers and fled to Hongkong on a gunboat. There was a scramble to find Chen's alleged silver hoard, said to amount to many million dollars, but much of it is believed to be deposited in foreign banks.

EIGHT signatories to the Lausanne post-war treaty have granted to Turkey the right to remilitarize the Dardanelles, and they, with Turkey, have signed a convention covering the matter. Only Japan made slight reservations because it is no longer a member of the League of Nations.

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneth, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, is in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Jeb. Rod plans work in Rochester. Jeb suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate decency than in Jeb. Rod visits Agnes and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes' mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what attracts her father in New York. Jeb tells Agnes he is going to marry her, and together they view an apartment in Chicago. Jeb asks Agnes to set an early date, but she tells him she cannot marry him. When the agent, Mr. Colver, offers to show them a furnished apartment, Jeb asks Agnes to see it alone, saying he must return to his office. Agnes consents and Jeb leaves. A radio is blaring terrifically from one of the apartments. Colver raps upon the door, which is opened by a scantily clad girl, who draws Agnes into the room. Colver finds her husband, Charles Lorrie, fatally shot. He calls the police. Myrtle Lorrie asks Agnes to phone Cathal O'Mara, a lawyer, to come at once. Agnes does. The police take charge. O'Mara arrives. The officers are antagonistic to him. Agnes sides with O'Mara. Agnes is to be a witness at the coming trial. Cathal's grandfather and father had lost their lives in the line of duty as city firemen, and his grandmother, Winnie, has built her all around Cathal, who, being ambitious, had worked his way through law school. Thoughts of Agnes disturb Cathal. Mr. Lorrie had cast off the wife who had borne him his daughter to marry Myrtle, and after two years of wedded life she had killed him. The coroner's jury holds Myrtle to the grand jury. Agnes promises O'Mara to review the case with him. When Cathal calls Mrs. Gleneth asks questions regarding marital problems, in the hope that she might get a solution to her own problem. Cathal wins them over to Myrtle's cause. Jeb tells Agnes that O'Mara is seeking to profit on the insurance money Myrtle will collect if acquitted. Mrs. Gleneth finds canceled checks made out to "Cash" by Bob, and realizes "Cash" is her rival in New York. Bob admits "Cash" exists. They decide to leave things as they are.

"I had a letter this morning from Mrs. Lorrie."
"Oh!" So it was the case, of course; no more than that. "What did Mrs. Lorrie say to you?"
"She asked if I would come visit her."
"In the fall, she meant."
"Yes. Should I, Mr. O'Mara?"
He was slow to reply. Say yes, and he would see her. She would come to town by appointment with him, and he would see her to the jail; and then, Braddon not interfering, he'd see her to her train again. Fool—oh, fool! How his pulses were pressing him!
"You should not," he said, controlling himself. "Mrs. Lorrie had neither right nor need to ask it of you."
"You do not ask it, then?"
"I? No." And now, having downed one temptation, another which he had refused before, got the better of him. "Miss Gleneth?"
"Yes."
He proceeded, recklessly. "That is, of course, your brother-in-law, Mr. Davis Ayreforth, that makes the new firm with Collitt and Remble?"
"Yes," said Agnes. "Why?"
"Has he been long a friend of this Collitt?"
"What do you mean by that, Mr. O'Mara?"
"Has he? That's just what I mean, Miss Gleneth."
"I don't know."
"Then I'd ask him."
"I will," said Agnes; and she thanked him and hung up.
Very slowly he returned his receiver to its hook. Perspiration stood on him. Now why had he let himself do that? He knew very well.
Agnes arose, a bit breathless, and decided to go at once to her sister's. She got out her roadster, and as she backed from the garage, Baskerville half blocked the driveway as he offered himself for company. To the great hound's lumbering delight, she leaped down, opened the rumble, and Baskerville clambered in, seating himself sedately upright. He was absurdly solemn and supercilious-looking when he was riding, holding his huge muzzle high in the air, and sniffing the rushing wind.
It was lunch-time for the children at Bee's, and Agnes knew that on such a fine, sunny day; Bee would have had a table set in the orangerie which edged the circle of the driveway before the house. From far off Agnes spied the table and the little heads in the sun, and somebody serving; so she sounded her horn, and sped dashing thrice about the loop of the drive to display Baskerville to the children before she halted, and the big hound, with the economy of motion by which he accomplished all things, slid to the gravel.
The Black Watch, meanwhile, had been doing its deafening best to tear the house down. The Black Watch was the closest and most completely cooperative of canine companions—two Scotties, Biff and Bing, who tumultuously defied Baskerville when behind the pane of glass. Once they were let out, as now they were, they ran to the hound in utmost friendship. Baskerville never paid them the slightest attention.

The children were banging their spoons on the table with eyes only for Baskerville; they scarcely noticed Agnes when she kissed them. She kissed her sister, and took the chair placed at the table for her, and they both watched Baskerville and the boys.

The dog carefully established himself between them.

He was so huge that, when he sat on the floor, his tawny head was above the board and almost as high as Davy's dark little head on his right. Davy was in his high-chair with a tray before him and fastening him in; Bobby also was in the high-chair, but he sat proudly at the table. Neither boy feared in the least the great hound. They were delighted when he came to lunch; and they—and also Baskerville—knew the rules about him. When a boy finished a dish, he could give the last lick of his spoon to Baskerville.

Each boy got an extra arrowroot cracker for Baskerville to crunch; then Bobby and Davy gave him the last of their dessert.

The Black Watch, noses in the sun, lay side by side assuming slumberous indifference to this rank favoritism.

Agnes, oblivious of her errand, sat beside her sister and watched them all. She felt relaxed and grateful and very content; she had no desire to end this interlude. Bee had none. Here with her children, she was happy. Why did time have to run on? But after dessert, for little boys there must be naps.

Selma, their nurse, had taken them away. Side by side, with ears cocking at the slightest alarm, the Black Watch slept in the sun; and the great hound lay asleep, head on his forepaws. The luncheon table had been cleared away.

"Sometimes," said Bee from her wicker chaise-longue, "sometimes I think I—well—Dave and I—have done something." And she passed her hands down over her slim figure as though she could not always believe, herself, that she had borne two sons.

"I think you've done a lot," Agnes cried. "Oh, Bee, they're what count!"
"I guess they do—a little," admitted Bee, and shook out a cigarette. "So I'm not sure I won't have another."

"You want a girl?" asked Agnes.
"I guess so," said Bee, after she had her light. "But I really don't care. I'll love the result; and I'm one of those women, I guess, that get a kick out of the bearing, too."

"You do it beautifully, certainly."
"You don't get me, Agnes. It's occupation, and—" She stopped. Then: "And the wife's anesthetized against—"

"Against what, Bee?"

"See here," said Bee sternly, and sitting up, "don't you ever find out!"
"Bee," said Agnes suddenly, "tell me about Mr. Collitt."

"What about him?"
"How much does Davis know concerning him?"

"Oh," comprehended Bee, relaxing, "probably nothing at all. He's gone into partnership with him; but as you know, Davis is a trusting soul as to people. I believe he trusts practically everybody—but God."

Agnes had to laugh. "How do you mean?"

"I mean it," assured Bee. "Regard the record. He's insured everybody and everything, everywhere, against fire, flood, storm, pestilence and disaster—all acts of God, but he'll take any mere mortal on faith. After he embraced the burning idea of giving up a salaried position to go in with Collitt and Remble, he couldn't wait for Father to return from New York before he signed the preliminary agreement with them. They're going to make Davis several millions—which is certainly very nice of them, since up to now they've refrained from showering themselves with money. Of course, they've got Davis' capital now."

"Then you doubt them, Bee?"

"Not in the slightest. They'll take Davis for what he's put up; but we can stand it. I mean the family can. Father's rolling it up—ain't he? He'll give it to me, if I need it—as he would to you, Agnes. So what's the harm in letting Davis learn he's not a financier? All that can happen is—he'll lose."

"Yes," said Agnes; and she thought that was all that could happen.

"Davis is out, you see," added Bee, "to make a few millions for me—as though I hadn't any trouble that another baby or a million dollars couldn't cure."

With this, Bee dismissed the matter; so Agnes was not obliged to disclose the source of her concern over Collitt. But when she made inquiry of Jeb that evening, he extracted it from her.

"Collitt?" said Jeb. "He's been in jams, I hear; but nothing that he did has ever come to court. He's a trader—one of the cleverest traders in town; and straight enough now."

"But what is against him?"

"Nothing I know, except that he hasn't always been—well—solid. But Davis is solid; he's that sort."

"Yes," said Agnes.

"So together, they ought to be all right. Then they'll be helped by the natural assumption that your father'd see Dave through—if he needed more capital. Also," continued Jeb after a moment, "it doesn't exactly hurt Collitt, Ayreforth and Remble that everybody knows we're marrying, and so I'd see him through, if it came to a pinch."

"Jeb, we're not marrying."

"You just think so! . . . Glen! Oh, Glen, you drive me crazy! . . . Kiss me! . . . No! As if you meant it! And mean it! . . . Oh, damn us, Glen, what's the matter? What got you bothered about Collitt today?"

Agnes told him it was O'Mara, and Jeb held her tighter.

"Was he here again?"

"No. It was over the phone."

"What was he calling you about?"

"He didn't call me, Jeb; I called him."

And she told him about Myrtle's letter. "So I called Mr. O'Mara to find out if I should go to the jail to see her."

"What did he tell you?"

"That I shouldn't."

"That's right, but why didn't you call me? I'd have told you. . . . What else did that shyster say to you?"

"He mentioned Mr. Collitt, and asked how well Davis had known him."

"Tell that Irishman to mind his own business. I'll watch Davis' partners for you. They're backing now; they'll be all right. . . . Glen, why do you let O'Mara play you?"

"Play me?"

"For a mark. Do you mean to be her—and his—witness at the trial? You've got to realize what you're doing. Her trial isn't going to turn on her; it's going to turn on you. He knows it. You're just God's gift to the defense attorney, if you let him make a mark of you. They're playing you for quite a stake, between them. They're not only after you to get her off, but also they're after a hundred and fifty thousand dollars in life-insurance alone which the companies will have to pay her, if she's acquitted. Half of that goes to him, you may be sure. Remember that, when he talks to you. For God's sake, Glen, come to!"

Agnes lay awake long that night, with one wonder, one bother, one doubt and perplexity following another through her thoughts and feelings. She had never felt so confused.

What did love—or desire, if you call it that—do to you in these days?

For a while, it might make you happy, as it had made Mother and Father happy together for many years, and as it had made Bee happy for a while, at least, before she found out that she was—what? Bored? Was it mere boredom that Bee would escape, for a while longer, by having another baby? Was it that which neither the baby nor a million dollars could cure?

After you married, and no matter whom you married, you went on living; you and your husband, both of you. You did not cease to be human beings; you became more human, having babies. Love, whatever that might be, could not possibly be a panacea against all ills and troubles.

Yet you wanted to believe it to be. Jeb did not even pretend that he thought it was. Jeb was utterly honest and practical, for all his impetuous and violent feelings. He offered you in marriage all the excitement and sensation that a man and a girl could give each other. With him, you'd tip up the cup and empty it to the last drop. You'd have a lot of love with him. He'd hold you against all the world, his strong arms about you. You liked his strength; you liked more. . . . But it would not endure. He did not even try to tell you it surely would endure. For he didn't believe in love everlasting—"tepid, tasteless stuff you can bear to sip and never need to gulp."

Agnes began to be sleepy. . . .

"Turn, thou, and look to me:
Seven long years I've followed thee,
Over the fiery mountain."

Who followed whom? And why? What was that? It was the Princess who followed over the fiery mountain; and for love of him, she followed, though he had been bewitched and never once looked back at her.

Agnes didn't believe that O'Mara was playing her just for a "mark" to make for himself money. She did not want to believe it.

Burned Temple to Gain Fame

Erostratus was the Ephesian who set fire to the temple of Diana on the day that Alexander the Great was born (B.C. 356). This he did to make his name immortal. In order to defeat his object, the Ephesians forbade his name ever to be mentioned.

Lesson for August 2

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:5-40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.—Acts 8:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Philip Tells the Glad News.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Philip Tells the Glad News.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Pioneering for Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Crosses the Frontier.

Evangelism is the work of every follower of Christ, and primarily the work of the layman. This duty cannot be delegated to the church as an organized body or to its official servants.

Philip was a layman, a deacon in the church by office, but an evangelist by the gift and calling of the Holy Spirit. His experience in leading the Ethiopian eunuch to Christ demonstrates that one who is yielded to the Spirit—

I. Will Find Opportunity for Soul Winning (v. 26). Most unexpected places will afford opportunities. Philip was in the midst of a great revival in Samaria when the angel of the Lord sent him to Gaza—a desert place. Who would he meet here? Remember that the great world-evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, was converted in a humble shoe store by the earnest approach of a Sunday school teacher.

II. Will Respond Immediately to the Spirit's Leading (vv. 29, 30). The Spirit said "go." Philip "ran." The fundamental of fundamentals in God's children is obedience. The opportunity, the inquiring soul, the equipped personal worker, all were prepared by God for just that moment. All would have been lost had Philip failed to obey.

III. Will Find That Men and Women Are Ready to Receive the Truth (vv. 28, 31-34).

God prepares souls, and more are willing to be saved than we think. Whether it was through his experience at Jerusalem, his spiritual hunger before he went up, or the reading of the Word, or all these together, the eunuch was ready.

Neighbors, schoolmates, tradespeople, fellow workers—they may present God's opportunity for us.

IV. Will Find That God Honors Men by Using Them to Win Others.

He could "save a man all alone on the top of the Alps," but he doesn't ordinarily do it. Remember it was "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon" that wrought a victory. The eunuch needed an interpreter of the truth. Philip was God's man.

V. Will Know God's Word (v. 35). We cannot interpret what we do not know. One who is not personally acquainted with the Living Word by regeneration, and the Written Word by diligent study, is not able to help others. Could you begin (as Philip did) at Isaiah 53:7, and lead a man to Christ? If not, should you not begin to study your Bible with such an end in view?

VI. Will "Carry Through" to a Decision (vv. 36, 37).

A salesman may be brilliant, cultured, and persuasive, but what counts is the signature on the dotted line at the bottom of an order. Philip pressed for and obtained a decision.

VII. Will Follow-up His Convert (vv. 36, 37).

Much so-called evangelism fails to go beyond a mere profession—a declaration of faith. The eunuch and Philip both knew that an inward faith declares itself in an outward act—and he was baptized.

VIII. Will Recognize That the Message Is Important, Not the Messenger (v. 39). When the work was done the evangelist was carried away by the Spirit. God's work goes on. His workman we set aside. As an advertising company has well-expressed it, "The purpose of advertising is to impress the product upon the reader's mind, not the medium."

It is a fine testimony to the effectiveness of Philip's ministry that although he was gone his convert went "on his way rejoicing." His faith did not rest on the evangelist nor any human fellowship—he knew God. Let us be sure to win souls to God and not simply to a personal allegiance to us or to a religious organization.

Why not be a Philip? Any man or woman who knows the Lord Jesus Christ as personal Savior can be a winner of souls. It has well been said that all that Philip had was "a love for souls, a knowledge of the Word and a sensitiveness to the leading of the Lord. That is all we need. If every Christian were a Philip the world would be won for Christ in ten years."

Count Your Blessings

He is a wise man who does not grieve for the things which he has not, but rejoices for those which he has.—Epictetus.

Self-Knowledge

Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control; these three alone lead life to sovereign power.—Tennyson.

Center of Selfishness

Selfishness is the making a man's self his own center, the beginning and end of all he doth.—John Owen.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

There are few village smithy shops today under the chestnut trees. One reason A Village is that there aren't Blacksmith any more chestnut trees. Another is that the motor car is rapidly driving horses and vehicles drawn by horses out of business.

I used to think that in fifty years or more practically all the village smithies would disappear. But lately I have learned better.

Here in a little coast town in Maine is a village blacksmith who has more work than he can do, though he has probably not shod a horse or repaired an agricultural implement in twenty years or more.

For a time after the "devil wagons" began crowding horses and horse drawn vehicles off the road, he had little to do.

Then one day he saw some ornamental grill work that had been sent to his town to be used as an adornment on a new building.

He examined it carefully, then went home and thought a little.

"There is no reason in the world why I cannot do that kind of work," he said to himself. "I will do it, by Gosh."

Today the children still "love to see his flaming forge and hear the bellows blow."

Over the anvil on which he used to fashion horse shoes he makes beautiful things of steel and iron.

Visitors seeing him at work have come in to inquire if his handiwork was on sale.

He assured them that it certainly was, and that more of the same kind of work would be in evidence as soon as there was a demand for it.

He is known today all over the state, and in many other states, whose residents have bought his work.

And if he had the advertising gift that some people have he would have a wide reputation.

But not, I am sorry to say, a great business.

For his work is artistry, and cannot be done in quantity over a single anvil.

It cannot be said of him that he is another Benvenuto Cellini. He works in iron, not in silver and gold.

But he is a master craftsman, which he never might have become had he not been forced by changing conditions to become something besides the village blacksmith.

I saw him at work the other morning on a pair of beautiful andirons.

I asked him what they cost.

"A lot of time," he said.

"Yes, but how much money?"

"Oh, not so much. But the fellow I'm making them for isn't rich so I wouldn't like to charge him too much."

And there was proof that he really had the soul of an artist.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Julian Capers Jr.

Austin.—In Texas' political hall of fame this week, Gov. James V. Allred took his niche as one of the Lone Star state's most effective campaigners of all time, as political observers paid tribute to his amazing performance of winning re-election over a field of four opponents without a runoff. The experts had conceded at least three of Allred's opponents a good chance of running it out with the governor, and few of them failed to discount pre-election hopeful state ments of the governor's campaign organization, expressing the expectation of a clear majority over the field. The amazing performance of the Centennial Governor, when he went into action only three weeks before the balloting, after his opponents had been hammering away at his record for many months, stamped him as the equal of the great men of the "good old days" whose names have gone down in history as towering political giants of Texas.

Early analysts, begun here before the votes were all counted, credited the voters with approval of Allred's policy of fewer and lower taxes, creation of a sound and workable old-age pension system, and gave him apparent carte blanche authority to crown all the tomato queens, cut all the ribbons, and make all the Centennial booster speeches he wants to.

His victory, on the other hand, indicated to observers here that Texas is neither ready for a sales tax, nor willing to throttle her great oil industry with taxes that would destroy it. It further demonstrated the state is willing to meet its obligation to needy aged persons, but is unwilling to "run wild" on the pension question, and does not countenance wild promises of "pensions for every body." The election apparently marked the collapse of the myth that a substantial number of Texas voters are ready to embrace the fantastic scheme of Dr. Townsend and others for "something for nothing."

WHAT NEXT?

The outcome of the election immediately raised speculation among the politically-minded here as to the outcome of apparently unprecedented situation concerning run-off elections. With no runoff in the governor's race, and second primaries indicated in only two state offices—one of these of minor importance—the question rises as to what will happen in many counties where no local run-off elections are in prospect.

Rail Commission Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, on the face of returns available as this is written, decisively defeated four opponents, but failed to obtain a majority by a few thousand votes. Incomplete returns failed to reveal whether the second man would be Carl Hardin of Stephenville or Frank Morris of Dallas, but both ran on identical platforms of wide open flow of oil, as opposed to Thompson's pledge of continued conservation of oil resources.

If local races do not require run-off elections in many Texas counties—as indicated on early returns—many observers here believed no elections will be held in many such localities. This would leave the state's most important offices to be decided in a run-off in which thousands of voters would have no opportunity to express themselves, and a majority of those voting in the first election would have the privilege of participating, despite Thompson's apparent lead of over 200,000 votes over his nearest opponent, and nearly 2 to 1 ratio over his two nearest opponents.

ONE OTHER RUNOFF

An echo of the legislative investigation which resulted in official reprimand for Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald, was seen in the only other indicated runoff contest, Mc-Donald ran second to George B. Terrell of Alto, former holder of the place, and excongressman, in a field of four candidates.

POLITICAL PINWHEEL

Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas, only woman district judge in Texas, appointed by Gov. Allred while she was a member of the house, was elected to a full four-year term by a decisive margin over her one opponent, a man The constitutional amendments, including proposed salary increases for the governor and other constitutional state officers, and the proposal for state monopoly of liquor sales, to be voted on at the November elections, are now the next state issues for Texas voters to pass upon. . . . Worse upset of the political posters quoted last week in this column was in the race for Commissioner of the general land office, where Bill McDonald of Eastland county rode a high tide of votes to victory of the veteran chief clerk, Maj. J. W. Hawkins. Hawkins' defeat was ascribed here to over confidence and a lethargic campaign, as contrasted to McDonald's vigorous speaking program. A substantial "sympathy vote" for McDonald, injured the last week of the campaign in a motor accident, also was credited as a factor in his victory. . . . To Marvin Hall of Brownville, campaign manager for Gov. Allred, went the tribute of the experts here this week, for a large share of the governors victory. Hall modestly gave all the credit to his candidate, but insiders claimed Hall timed Allred's efforts perfectly, and handled an enormous volume of campaign detail with smooth efficiency that counted heavily.

New Program Of Tex. Relief Commission

C. J. Sweeney, District Administrator of District No. 13, Texas Relief Commission with headquarters at Abilene gives the following information in regards to the new Intake Program of the Texas Relief Commission and Federal Progress Administration:

"Under an arrangement entered into between the Federal Works Progress Administration and the Texas Relief Commission, applications will be taken from NEEDY unemployed persons for employment with the WPA Applications will be taken at the various County Welfare offices and passed on to the WPA District office for final acceptance or rejection. This last duty is one that will be handled by a special staff of workers who will do nothing else—from the blanks they will gather data that will establish the actual need of applicant—and when accepted, the person will be advised directly. Calling at the local or district offices to find out what is being done, or what will be done, is discouraged—the applicant is urged to await notification.

"The employment of a person is based upon NEED—this fact has been overlooked by many persons who think the new program is to give employment to everyone needing a job. The quota of jobs in Texas has been set at 81,000—and it is anticipated that at least 165,000 applicants will have applied for them.

The Texas Relief Commission is placing seven full time case workers back and in the smaller counties where the local welfare workers have been working part time, their present salary will be supplemented and full time allowed. The taking of applications which will be followed by home visits and other procedure to verify statements will naturally be slow due to the limited personnel but everyone will be allowed to make application, sooner or later, as the program will last several months—and there is no need for crowds to assemble at the various offices.

All County Judges have been fully advised of this new program and it is felt that through their cooperation and assistance the work will be accomplished with the least delay—we now request the general public to bear with us while we are endeavoring to place at work the most needy of its citizens. Direct relief, in the form of money or groceries or rents, is not contemplated, although Surplus Commodities will be distributed to those whose applications are accepted until their first month's checks arrive.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

Ross B. Jenkins, Co. Agt.

Callahan Farmers Receive About $6000 Per Month AAA Checks

Since Congress voted to pay the farmers for their cooperation for crop adjustments during the years of 1934 and 1935 Callahan farmers have received, beginning March 1, 1936, an average of $6,000 per month or a total of $30,000 has been distributed since payments were resumed in March. The payments as listed in the county agent's office show cotton, rentals and parity, $2500; Peanuts, $537; Corn-hog, $1212; Wheat, $3750; 2 cent subsidy payment, $22,001 which gives an average of $6,000 per month that has come at a time the farmers were in real need of ready cash. It is estimated that some $6,000 more will come before the final payments have been made on the old AAA contracts.

Trench Silos

Callahan county has undoubtedly produced and is producing the greatest feed crop in her history. There has never been a time when farmers should consider so seriously the question of preserving and keeping this feed as this year. For four years Callahan County, as a whole, has produced as much or more feed than she needed. Farmers who have lived in West Texas know that this bountiful condition will not continue very much longer before a serious drought will be upon us. Always the thing that makes a drought so dreadful is that the farmers do not have enough feed to maintain their livestock.

Bankers have told the county agent that if the farmers could take care of their feed problems that it would be a small matter for the banks to be able to feed the farmers' families during the days of drought but when the farm animals must be fed as well as the family from the bank that was the condition which caused real hard times.

It has been proved beyond all contradiction that the trench silo will keep the farmers' feed over an indefinite period of time and will keep it in almost as valuable condition as when it grew in the field. In other words feed put into a silo is worth two-thirds more than the same feed that is cut and cured in the field and later put into stacks or if it be headed grain, maize especially, loses much of its value after one year. But maize, when placed in a trench silo will keep as many years in perfect preservation as the farmer needs to keep it. The ordinary farmer should build his silo just wide enough at the bottom that he can back his wagon or truck into the pit. Recent experiments show that it is better to build the silo shallow and narrow but make it as long as is necessary to handle the tonnage on the farm. This county agent suggests that farmers intending to build a silo should build it 4-1-1 feet wide at the bottom, 51-2 feet wide at the top and not more than 4 feet deep. The smaller farms probably should not be dug more than 3-1-1 feet deep. This size trench silo will permit driving in at one end of the pit, unloading the green tilage, driving right through and out the other end. This makes ease in filling the silo, makes ease in supplying to water, if it is necessary for it to be hauled, and at the same time the driving of the wagons and the teams will pack it, thus eliminating air space. Silage can never be wet too much. Water does not spoil feeds but the air spoils silage. Air spoils the women's fruit that is canned, when any is lost. No man criticizes his wife for placing water in the fruits that are being canned as he knows this liquid is necessary to make the fruit palatable. The same thing is true for silage. The more water that is in the silage the more palatable and the better silage it becomes.

There are free bulletins that give many helps to farmers interested in a trench silo that the county agent will be pleased to mail to anyone who is interested or if you are in the office they are for your use absolutely free.

Worm The Poultry Now

Poultry growers who have been watching the outlook for this Fall will notice that the north and the extreme southeastern portions of the United States have been extremely hard hit by drought and in some sections by severe floods. These calamities have greatly reduced the foods and feeds available for poultry and in all such disasters people sell the poultry from the farm first. This fact coupled with the rising in groceries throughout to United States makes most important that every poultry grower sees that his or her flock produces to the maximum this Fall. Egg prices have held a very high level for the summer and are due to go beyond the average this Fall. Every chicken, therefore, should be treated for worms during this month. Most of the trouble in this section is caused by round worms (ascarida). This worm is effectively controlled through a capsule containing tetrachloroethylene. This will eradicate the round worms. If both the round worms and tape worms are known to be present then a combination capsule that contains kamala and tetrachloroethylene should be given. Birds should be kept up over night and the capsule should be given time individually in the morning. They should be kept up, at least, until noon after the treatment is given. It is useless to offer them any food but put out plenty of clear water. If tetrachloroethylene is not given a very good substitute is nicotine sulphate which is also put up in capsule form. This writer does not believe in giving chickens the flock treatment because the most vigorous birds sget the most while the weaker birds probably need more of the treatment will necessarily eat the lesser amount. It is always advisable to give the individual treatment. It is cheaper to buy these capsules in packages of 100 Smaller birds should be treated also but with a proportionate size according to their weight.

Soil Conservation Worksheets Sent To The State Board

The Soil Conservation work sheets which the farmers have been signing for the past 5 months have been finished and sent to the State Board for a preliminary tabulation and examination. These worksheets were essential if any farmer expected to cooperate in the soil improvement program for 1936. Many farmers were not able to cooperate this year because they had made their plans and had sown grain either last Fall or early Spring and were not in position to enter the program but are planning to get on the ground floor for 1937. This new program assists farmers in improving the fertility of their farm lands by subsidizing them for each acre to a fair average of the amount that the acres so diverted from the basic crops to soil improving would have produced under normal conditions. July 31st, was the dead line in which compliance could be made by planting crops such as sudan or peas.

In an article of some two weeks ago it was pointed out that farmers that have Johnson grass, tread selves or other obnoxious weeds may kill these weeds by plowing them regularly during the hot months of August, September, and October provided they file with the county committee a plot of the land and the exact position to be treated provided no crop has been harvested from that land this year. If oats or wheat have been harvested from that land this year compliance cannot be made by killing out to weeds or grass. The county committee and the community committees have examined each work sheet separately and where the records showed that a producer had a yield below his true average the various committees have asked that he be adjusted upward and in like manner if his yields showed that he had been allowed too much they have asked that he be adjusted downward. Such cases, however, were of the rarest nature and very few came in that last class.

However, the county agent would like for each farmer to understand that even though the various committees ave asked that most of the worksheets be adjusted upward the county as a whole will receive no more than her average as computed by the crop reporting board. If the committees have allowed too much the overplus will necessarily be sent back to the county for the committees to adjust. It is hoped that very little, or none, of this will have to be done.

County Agent Back On The Job

The county agent has now sufficiently recovered from his recent illness and injuries to be back on the job. Of course, it will be sometime before his physical condition will permit him to be out over the county but he can be found in the office most any time. He feels so improved that permission has been granted to Mr. A. L. Cook to take the first vacation he has had since coming to Callahan county over two years ago. Mr. Cook and wife will go for an extended fishing trip to the Coast from August 1st to the 15th.

Considering how fine this railroad transportation is nowadays, you can't travel any cheaper. Fares lowest in history—substantial savings on round trip tickets. So why not take the train? It's safer. It's more dependable.

You can't beat the improved travel comfort in coaches and sleeping cars. It's a good thing movies don't have such restful seats—most folks would sure fall asleep.

Ever hear about the new Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight? It's a great convenience to shippers and receivers alike. Western railroads pick up at the door, ship by fast freight, and deliver to door at no extra charge.

Railroad trains are running on faster schedules these days. Seems like the iron horse wants to show these new streamlined diesels that he can step out, too. Both passenger and freight schedules have been speeded up.

What's more, the railroads believe in "safety first." Last year not one passenger was killed in a train accident on western railroads.

Talk to your local railroad agent. He's full of information about traveling and shipping.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

Rubinoff Holds World Record for Broadcasting

Rubinoff and his violin—and Chevrolet—are a combination that few, if any, radio listeners in the United States have not received in their homes via the air. The famous violinist and his Stradivarius, stars of the Chevrolet Musical Moments programs, have the distinction of going on the air from more broadcasting stations than any other program in the history of radio. Three hundred and seventy-eight stations broadcast Rubinoff three times a week, a total of 1134 fifteen-minute programs. That figures out at 283 hours, and if one week's programs were broadcast one after the other, day and night, it would require 11 days. The illustration shows Rubinoff, carrying his precious violin, posing with his car after a special appearance at Detroit.

"Jim" Farley Is Square Shooter

Never Has an Alibi for Any Mistakes; U. S. Finances Hard to Comprehend

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON—"Jim" Farley steps out of his job as postmaster general to pay exclusive attention to his job as chairman of the Democratic National committee and the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I like Farley. He is an open-faced character and strictly on the level. If he makes a mistake he takes the punishment, and takes it without a whimper. Many men in his position deny they said the thing which has been their undoing. They say they have been "misquoted," or they adopt some other device to squirm out of the consequences of their own misdeeds; but Farley stands still and "takes it on the chin." Roosevelt likes him for that.

The administration's opponents have been delivering a pitiless attack on Farley. Sometimes it has been a brutally unfair attack, but as the late Huey Long said personally to him once: "Jim, I like you; and the reason I am attacking you is because when I am in a fight I always throw a rock at the biggest man." There you have the reason why the Republicans and the anti-New Deal editors have been trying to tell Roosevelt to get rid of Farley. . . . But Roosevelt doesn't let the opposition tell him what to do, so Farley merely takes a vacation as Postmaster General and stays with the shock troops during the campaign.

Admires Roosevelt.

Farley has always been a deep admirer of Roosevelt. He has fought the old-line organization New York state Democrats to a finish in Roosevelt's behalf. He is a nominal member of Tammany Hall in New York, but he has led the fight against Tammany for Roosevelt, whom Tammany does not like. A lot of squawking and uninformed editors complain that Farley has Tammanyized national politics, but in New York city Tammany wouldn't throw Farley a rope if he was drowning. They would, however, be delighted if they could draw Jim into their ranks so they could use his political skill, but inasmuch as he remains with the progressive Roosevelt on the honest side of government, the Tammany Hall boys look on Farley as someone to be jumped on as soon as he is down—but no sooner!

Farley scored a victory for good government in 1930, when he was elected chairman of the New York State Democratic committee, and by 1932 he had the whole country lined up with enough delegates to nominate Roosevelt. He was at that time not only opposing the Al Smith sentiment and its great element in the party, but he also had to fight the unseen, underground opposition of the old guard Republicans who hated and feared Roosevelt (and for good reason, as it now appears). . . . In that year when Farley went out to Seattle ostensibly to attend an Elks' convention, he started his cross-country trek to nominate Roosevelt. He began to talk Roosevelt at a time when Roosevelt appeared to be a rank amateur in contrast to the Big League Al Smith. He was so successful that his opponents credit him with a victory; but are cowardly enough to ascribe to him pork barrel, dark lantern and illicit methods. I think this aspect of the fight hurts Jim Farley, who is, I believe, about as honest a man as ever fought his way to the top in politics.

One wholesale charge against Farley is that he has used the entire administration of government for political purposes, and his accusers back it up with the fact that there are now a huge number of government employees appointed politically and not taken from the civil service "merit" list. The figures covering the number of employees appear to bear this charge out, but the facts are, as I have related several times, that the great emergency required an immediate drafting of several thousand clerks, administrators and specialists, and the civil service could not meet the demand for the simple reason that there were not enough people on their qualified list.

Federal Finances.

It will be hard for the public to get a clear view of government finances this summer. The government's bookkeeping is vast and intricate; difficult to understand. Mix the natural confusion of large figures with the noise of a political campaign, and it will be an exceptional person who can comprehend it all. There is no dispute as to the wisdom of balancing the budget and paying out less than we take in—but it must be remembered that our present deficits in the bookkeeping at the U. S. Treasury are caused solely by the tremendous and generous policies of this administration in providing humane and necessary items of relief, payment of the soldiers' bonus, and loss of the processing taxes by the Supreme Court's decision against AAA.

In counting up the appropriations of the session of congress just closed, it is impossible to apportion it off into calendar years and cover many situations not generally understood. For instance, congress appropriates for the Post Office department what looks like a huge expenditure—the public forgets that this sum is practically covered by the postal receipts—cash taken in for stamps at the post office windows.

So, when the orators charge that this last congress appropriated the unheard of sum of $10,300,000,000, don't think it was for one year. It covered at least two fiscal years, and many items were spread farther. The objects which predominate are veterans, relief and unemployment, and assistance to agriculture. Nearest I can come to the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year which began July 1 and ends June 30, 1937, is $6,817,000,000. The foundation stone of the new social security policy is included—a matter of $475,000,000 to start off the fund which eventually will be made up of contributions from employers and employees for old age and unemployment insurance.

The largest item is, of course, relief, $1,400,000,000. This government is committed to the policy of not permitting anyone to starve. Relief expenditures will probably dwindle with the betterment of business, but does anyone expect the existing industrial policies to absorb the slack in unemployment? I'm sure I don't. I think the machine age has perfected mechanical devices to the point where machinery will take the place of more human beings. This means we will have to adopt shorter work days and shorter weeks, and that we must adopt an all-inclusive nationwide policy of cooperative industry so that the army of the unemployed can be put to work in the industries which supply them with their necessities of life.

Unemployment.

We have been promised an end to unemployment on various occasions. The brewers said that beer would end unemployment; that we would raise a billion dollars in taxes and put every jobless man to work if we could have the return of beer. Well, we now have beer, and also unemployment. Then we were promised an end to unemployment with the payment of the bonus. This bonus is a sort of midsummer Christmas. Business is getting those millions now and will continue to get more this summer and fall, and if this unprecedented expenditure does not provide sufficient increase in industry and commerce to furnish jobs for the workers now unemployed, then, in my personal opinion, we have come to the end of waiting for industry to make good.

The next step is a permanent policy of jobs by government enterprise—either conservation work and great public projects—or cooperative industry where the workers make their own goods.

As It Looks.

Political prophets take their reputations in their hands, but there's no harm in reporting the consensus as to how various sections of the country stand right now. "If the election were to be held today" I would say that Roosevelt has more than a mere majority of the popular vote, but that it is so distributed as to make it necessary for him to fight vigorously in some of the large pivotal states. I'd give the Republicans New England—but remember that the lower economic order the country over is going to vote for Roosevelt for the things he is doing for social justice. John Hamilton's statement that Roosevelt cannot carry six states is childish, as everyone knows. The solid South—11 states—is always for Roosevelt.

New York state was 400,000 to the good for the Democrats a year ago, but the Republicans claim the vote has shifted. Maybe so, but don't bet too heavily on it. Governor Lehman running again is a sure-fire vote-getter for the New Deal. Pennsylvania belongs to anybody . . . things are confused there . . . but Republican claims for Illinois based upon the grass roots ebullience are not verified by the younger crowd of newspaper men covering politics, who give Roosevelt the state by 250,000.

Michigan interests me. It went Democratic for Roosevelt, then came back strong G. O. P. for Vandenberg. The Democrats think they can take it by running Murphy for governor—I doubt it. Minnesota is Democratic now. California will go for Roosevelt by half a million; Washington and Oregon are safely Democratic. Idaho will see a fight. It seems Democratic enough to give its electoral vote to Roosevelt, but Bill Borah is out there and he's always a disturber. Oklahoma is Democratic despite the defection of Alfalfa Bill Murray. The Democrats have the nerve to say they can take Kansas from Landon . . . I wonder. Nebraska appears to be a Republican state, but the chief Republican there is Senator George W. Norris, who is Roosevelt's strong-supporter.

It all adds to this: Roosevelt can win, but his crowd must fight unrelentingly in every pivotal state.

Hello Everybody!

"Too Much Courage"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

SOMETIMES it's a fine thing, boys and girls, to have one of those cast-iron, copper-plated nervous systems that don't get all in a jitter the minute something happens.

Steeplejacks have them—and so have structural ironworkers who spend most of their working day twenty stories above the street, balanced on a ten-inch iron beam, playing baseball with red hot rivets. I've always sort of envied birds like that for their courage.

And again, at times, I've been glad I don't have nerves like theirs. After all, our nerves are about the best warning signals we have—and you know what usually happens to the guy who doesn't pay any attention to the signs.

Take the case of Bill Woods, for instance—William H. Woods of Brooklyn, N. Y. Bill isn't an ironworker, but he's got an ironworker's nerve. Put him in a burning building, and my guess is that he wouldn't begin to get excited about it until the fire actually began creeping up his coat-tails. I'm judging him now from the way he acted in that restaurant in Brooklyn on April 30, 1934.

This Adventure Starts With a Cup of Coffee.

It's quite a story, boys and girls—a story that starts out with a walking tour through the streets of Brooklyn. Bill and his friend, Charley Young, had been taking an evening stroll, and eleven o'clock found them at Boro Hall park. Charley suggested that they drop into a cafeteria for a cup of coffee before they hit the hay. Bill agreed, and they crossed the street.

They went into the cafeteria, took their checks from the machine at the door and went over to the long counter. They ordered coffee, and the counterman turned to get it. But no sooner had he turned than he swung back toward the door and said: "What's the matter over there?"

That's the first intimation Bill and Charley had that anything was wrong. They looked in the direction in which the counterman was staring. Several men were scuffling over near the door. Then, suddenly from the center of that milling group came the sound of a shot!

Bedlam Breaks Loose in Cafeteria Following Shots.

"In the moment that immediately followed," says Bill, "no one stirred. Everyone in the place had stopped eating and all eyes were turned toward the door. That moment of indecision didn't last long, however, for suddenly another shot rang out, loud and deafening in that enclosed space. No one knew what had happened, but you couldn't mistake that sound."

At that second shot, bedlam broke loose in the cafeteria. Women screamed. Men jumped up from their seats. Tables were overturned. Everyone thought of just one thing, and that was getting under cover. Everyone was running about in frantic haste to get a door between them and that revolver—everyone, that is, but Bill Woods. In all the hullabaloo he alone kept his head. And it nearly cost him his life.

Bill looked around for Charley. He was gone—evidently into a milling crowd of people who had run toward the back of the cafeteria and were trying to crowd into the washrooms. Those who weren't there were crawling on their hands and knees, trying to get under a table. Bill noticed that and decided to get under cover himself. There was a radiator with a screened grill in front of him and he dropped down behind that. There followed a brief silence punctuated only by the sounds of struggling men, then another shot reverberated through the room. That was when Bill's curiosity and his nerve got the better of his common sense. He stood up to take a look.

Bill Made a Fine Target for the Man With the Gun.

Over by the door, a man, gun in hand, was standing, back up against the cashier's counter, while half a dozen younger men tried to wrestle the gun away from him. "One of the younger men," says Bill, "picked up a heavy sugar container and hit the older man over the head. I saw the glass break and the sugar scatter over the floor, but the man with the gun seemed invincible. They couldn't beat him down. They were too many for him in the end, though, and finally he fell behind the cashier's desk. And then, thinking all danger was past, I walked over to the counter."

Bill walked over until he was within ten feet of the fallen man when, to his amazement, the man started to sit up. The gun, still in his hand, rose until it pointed straight at Bill's midriff. Too late, Bill began to wish he'd been one of those nervous individuals who had taken refuge in the washroom.

He stood petrified—afraid to move. He drew in a deep breath and waited to feel the bullet bite into his flesh. At that distance, the man on the floor couldn't miss.

Timely Arrival of Copper Saves Bill's Life.

Then, the only thing that could save Bill's life happened. Through the restaurant door came a police sergeant with a drawn pistol. He got the situation at a glance, took deliberate aim at the man with the gun, and shot him through the stomach. That was the end. The man fell over backwards and was still. A red circle of blood slowly widened beneath him.

More policemen came. They began asking questions. The cashier of the restaurant had been creased over one ear by a bullet, and one young man, shot through the shoulder, was leaning against the counter, trying to staunch the flow of blood.

They told the story. The man with the gun, they said, had been drunk. He had walked over to a table and accused another man of laughing at him. An argument started and the drunk drew a gun. That was when Old Lady Adventure stepped in and started shaking up thrill cocktails—one for everybody in the house, and a deadly one for the man with the gun.

Women Wore Men's Shoes

During Ohio's yesteryears the forests were so swampy that women could scarcely walk to church or to other gatherings in their pretty footwear. So instead they wore the rough heavy shoes used by the menfolk. Close to their destination they would deposit the rough shoes in a fence corner or some other near-by place and put on their dainty shoes to wear inside. Thus their Sunday footwear lasted years and years.

Montreal's Historic Crosses

Many of the historic crosses in Montreal were raised by the pioneer inhabitants to commemorate being spared from the St. Lawrence River's ravages before it finally was brought under control. Founded by the man who erected its first and most famous cross, Paul de Chomedey, le Sieur de Maisonneuve, Montreal is frequently called the "City of Crosses." Maisonneuve's cross was erected almost 300 years ago.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

THE death of Thomas Meighan may not mean very much to the younger movie-goers, but it will shock those who remember him as one of the big stars of the days of silent pictures. Like many stage stars, he was not too sure at first that he would like pictures.

But he did "The Miracle Man" and with it hit his stride. Oddly enough, Lon Chaney made his name in that picture too. And so did Betty Compson, who was finding it none too easy to climb the ladder of fame.

Nobody suspected that "The Miracle Man" would be such an epoch-making picture as it was. But it established its three leading actors as stars almost overnight.

And speaking of star-making pictures, see what's happened to the people who appeared in "The Private Life of Henry the Eighth," none of whom were well known in this country till it was released—and the rest of the world had acclaimed only Charles Laughton, of the cast.

But since then Laughton, Robert Donat, Merle Oberon, Wendy Barrie and Binnie Barnes have been welcomed by Hollywood. All have been extremely successful in American pictures.

Since her marriage Jean Parker has been luckier than many Hollywood brides; she has had assignments that provided a pleasant honeymoon. First they went to Texas, on location with the company that was making "The Texas Ranger"; now they're off to Mammoth lake and the mountains for "King of the Royal Mounted." Now all she needs is an engagement with some company that's headed for Honolulu, Hollywood's pet honeymoon spot.

Joe Penner is going to make that picture at last. And because children have become sure-fire hits on the screen, he'll be assisted by Patsy Lee Parsons, a five-year-old who sings and dances. The dancing teachers of this land ought to give Shirley Temple a medal or something. Everywhere—even out in the country where you wonder where and how they can take dancing lessons, you see little girls doing tap dancing nowadays. And Shirley is responsible for that!

Just one more story of the way things happen in Hollywood. Samuel Goldwyn wanted a German actress for a role in "Come and Get It." He was sure that none of the local talent measured up. So he had old German films run off for him, for days and days, in the hope of seeing exactly the right actress in one of them. If he found her, of course he'd have to find out where she was, and put her under contract, and have her brought to California at once.

He found the girl in a picture called "Frederika" and the wheels began to turn. Then it was discovered that she is Mady Christians, who has been right in Hollywood for two years, yearning to make a lot of pictures but not getting too many assignments.

Remember Joan Crawford in "Dancing Lady"? The picture is being re-issued, not because of Joan's popularity, but because Fred Astaire had a small part in it. Nelson Eddy had a bit, too—just a flash and he's gone. And now see what fame the gentlemen have attained on the screen! Fred Astaire has achieved an unprecedented popularity in the gay night club type of vehicle; Nelson Eddy has become the idol of millions of movie goers as well as radio listeners.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Don't miss "The Moon's Our Home" if you want to see a very funny picture . . . Richard Arlen has just entered the Vancouver $5,000 golf tournament; he'd rather golf than eat . . . Joe E. Brown and his wife went to Peoria, Ill., for the opening of his picture, "Earthworm Tractors," Peoria being the world's tractor center . . . This last year in radio has proved that the public doesn't care any more for programs that depend on gags instead of funny situations . . . And the fact that Ed Wynn failed to regain his former popularity is one proof of it . . . Rubino (and his violin) turned down an offer to reappear with Eddie Cantor . . . Constance Bennett, Simone Simon, Loretta Young and Janet Gaynor will work together in "Ladies in Love"—and Hollywood looks for displays of temperament from at least three of them before the picture's finished.

One More Drop and Man Should Be Out

The scientist, returning meditatively from a lecture, came upon the recumbent figure of a man in front of a house. He discovered that the man lived there.

He piloted him upstairs and, opening a door, pushed him in.

On reaching the ground floor again, another human being confronted him, and he also needed help to the first floor. But when the scientist found yet another fellow-creature in distress his curiosity was aroused, and he said, "This is very strange."

The prone figure spoke: "Mister, don't drop me down the elevator 'ole again."

"The Man Who O-O"
Tales and Traditions from American Political History
BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

DARK HORSE
WITH President Roosevelt's re-nomination by the Democrats a certainty for a long time and the selection of Governor Landon strongly indicated for several months before the Republican convention met, this wasn't a year for "dark horses." A "dark horse" is American political slang, applied to a man who is not generally mentioned as a candidate previous to a convention but who wins the nomination when the delegates fail to agree on one of the leading candidates.

The phrase started as English racing slang, originating in the practice by jockeys of dyeing black the hair of fast horses in order to enter them in races under another name and thereby being able to "clean up" in the betting. Gradually the use of the term was extended to apply to any horse, regardless of its color, which won unexpectedly and similarly it was applied to candidates for public office.

American political history affords a number of examples of dark horses capturing the Presidential nomination but only a very few of them have gone on to occupy the White House. In 1844 James K. Polk of Tennessee won the Democratic nomination at Baltimore when there was a deadlock between ex-President Martin Van Buren, and Lewis Cass. In the election he defeated Henry Clay, the Whig, and became the first "dark horse" President.

Again in 1852 the Democrats assembled in Baltimore and again Lewis Cass was a leading candidate with James Buchanan and Stephen A. Douglas furnishing the principal competition for the nomination. But again there was a deadlock and when the tide turned toward Franklin Pierce, again there was a stampede and this "dark horse" from New Hampshire was nominated. In the election he defeated the Whig candidate, Gen. Winfield Scott.

As for the Republicans in 1876 they passed up their strongest man, James G. Blaine of Maine, and his principal opponent, O. P. Morton of Indiana, and gave the nomination to Gov. R. B. Hayes, Ohio's "favorite son," who defeated Samuel Tilden, the Democratic candidate.

In 1880 they turned down Ex-President Grant's bid for a third term, again passed over Blaine, failed to rally to John Sherman of Ohio, another strong contender, and finally selected another Buckeye "dark horse"—Gen. James A. Garfield. The most recent Republican "dark horse" to win the nomination and election was still another Ohioan—Sen. Warren G. Harding, who was chosen after the Lowden and Wood deadlock at the Chicago convention of 1920 had been tied up in a deadlock between Gen. Leonard Wood and Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

G. O. P.

PERHAPS you never heard of a young printer named T. B. Dowden, but he was the man who was responsible for G. O. P. being synonymous for the Republican party. It came about in this way:

In 1884, the year that the Republicans finally nominated James G. Blaine for the Presidency, young Dowden applied for work at the Cincinnati Gazette and got it. About 2:30 o'clock one morning, just before the Gazette went to press, Dowden took from the copy hook a piece of copy marked "Must go in ten lines." He began setting it in type and, as he finished, found himself in difficulty. "My copy ends with 'Grand Old Party' and I have two words left over after I've set the ten lines," he told the foreman of the shop, "What shall I do?"

"Throw 'em away and use your intelligence!" exclaimed the foreman impatiently. "No, wait cut 'em short . . . get 'em in some way! Abbreviate 'em. . . use initials . . . do anything, but hurry up. This page is going to be late!"

So Dowden went back to his case and the next morning the Gazette came out with this sentence on the front page: "Th- Hon. James G. Blaine will address the meeting on 'Achievements of the GOP.'"

At the meeting that night the Republican candidate was concluding a two-hour speech when a voice floated down from the gallery: "Why don't you tell us something about GOP and what it did?"

"Why, my friend," retorted Blaine, "I've been talking about GOP all evening. The word GOP contains the initial letters of the Grand Old Party and that is its official and abbreviated name."

The audience roared with laughter but Blaine didn't crack a smile. He little realized that he had given currency to an expression which would become a familiar trademark to millions—a trademark attached to a major political party by a hurried young printer named T. B. Dowden.

Vogue of Black or Dark Silk Sheers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS to foremost fashions for summer, costumes of black or dark sheers such as silk chiffons, marisettes, organza and handsome nets are carrying first honors.

Your wardrobe may be as you supposed replete with chic, but if it be sans one of the beguilingly styled dark sheers better send an immediate S. O. S. call in to your dressmaker or to your smartest store in town or to whoever caters to your sartorial needs. Telling you, we are, that without a suit or a dress of some one or other of these silk sheers or nets in black or in brown, navy or dubonnet red or deep purple dye your summer dress program will be sadly lacking indeed. We might add that black is the favorite of them all.

Especially are fascinating things being done with redingote fashions made of silk sheers that are thin to the point of transparency since they are designed to be worn over either a dress or slip in a solid bright color or of gay print. See the charming and chic ensemble to the right in the picture. It conveys the idea most eloquently. Here a black silk chignon redingote with the new circular-cut hemline is posed over a pink silk moire slip. Very French in feeling is this most winsome 1936 afternoon dress. Note the black silk taffeta applique of roses on the redingote. The corsage of huge twin roses accurately repeats the pink tone of the silk slip. Narrow velvet ribbon ties about the waist and trims the very lovely pink panama hat worn with this costume.

While we are on the subject of black silk chignon and its importance in the summer style picture it might be well to mention the new skirts of black chiffon which are the smartest ever for evening, worn with a tunic or jacket-blouse done in flamboyantly colorful flowered print. These skirts are cut full circular and their hemline measures yards. Yet with all this fullness you are not made aware of the fact as the skirt is styled to fit about the hips in slenderizing sleekness gradually and gracefully leading into soft undulations about the hemline. You will find a skirt of this description to be a real asset in your summer clothes collection. Have a reserve a shirtwaist blouse of black net, also a decollete bodice of self black chiffon—an economical way to acquire a wardrobe of smart formals for varied occasion.

If you have an urge for color you will find joy in a costume that poses a redingote of dubonnet red silk chiffon or organza over a slip of gorgeous flower print. The color effect is beyond the telling in word or picture. It requires the evening lights to glorify it.

Could anything in the way of a daytime costume be smarter and more to be coveted than the jacket-and-dress twosome to the left in the illustration? If so we have not discovered it. You may be interested in knowing that this ensemble is of royal lineage in that it is a creation by no less a noted designer than the personal dressmaker to Queen Mary. It came over on the R. M. S. Queen Mary as did a whole fashion load of stunning modes. The dress is perfect for afternoon wear on warm summer days, made as it is of cool Tudor-brown twytex net. The finely pleated and tucked jabot is of white silk net, and the loose coat is of brown crossbar twytex.

The story of net as it unfolds in the summer style program is proving a most fascinating one. Nothing smarter or more practical has centered the style stage than the jacket dresses tailored of cool and comfortable and chic looking nets either in black or the stunning new rich dark colors.

DINNER SUIT
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The vogue for tailored clothes goes into the evening. Very stylish indeed is the young woman in the picture who wears a strictly tailored dinner suit with its 1890 jacket and buttoned skirt. It is fashioned of creamy white Mt. Airy cloth.

QUILTED COATS FOR BEACH WEAR LATEST

A coat which looks as though it were made from the family's heirloom quilt will go a long way toward creating a sensation on the beaches. Dressier versions that have intricate quilting patterns are destined for wear over summer formals.

Large floral motifs which have bright colors on white or pastel backgrounds are the most fashionable for beach wear. Some of these coats are made of printed cottons which have the designs outlined with quilting, while others are pieced together in the regulation quilt manner.

The quilted coat of plaid woolen, very light of weight and quite gay in its color combinations, is shown for vacation wear, while the taffeta and hand-blocked linen versions are evening favorites.

Flowers Are Dramatic

White flowers on a black gown are dramatic; and on a white gown they emphasize an effect of simplicity. A spot of brilliant scarlet on a white gown is gorgeous. Color harmony may be achieved by wearing flowers that blend into the general tone of the costume, or with a contrasting complementary color.

Flowers Deck Shoes

Shoes have become so fancy that one widely-known Paris house shows street shoes trimmed with applied flowers in contrasting colors and a belt and purse to match.

Always sweep rugs and carpets the way of the grain. Brushing against the grain roughens the surface and it tends to brush the dust in instead of out.

Partly cook cereal in a double boiler the night before using and leave it on the back of the stove, being sure to cover well with water. It will be well cooked in the morning.

Sugar sprinkled over the tops of cookies or sponge cakes before putting them into the oven forms a sweet crust and makes a richer cookie.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids and stored away in closets often cause fires through spontaneous combustion. Store the cloths in covered tin or galvanized cans.

Cocoa should always be cooked in a small amount of water before milk is added.

If you wish to avoid bean rust, do not pick beans when the dew is on them or after rain.

Look Outward On Your Vacation

There is no other rejuvenator equal to a vacation taken in the right spirit. If you go away with your mind filled with your business, your profession, your household cares, your studies, or your plans for the future, and if you keep thinking of those things, you might as well stay at home. If your eyes look inward instead of outward; if your ears still hear the hum of the factory and the noise of the busy streets; if you carry with you the burdens and perplexities which have been pinning you down and robbing you of sleep and comfort, you will gain nothing from your outing.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by striking out Section 20 thereof and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"Article XVI. Section 20:

"(a) It is hereby declared to be the policy of this State that the open saloon shall not be reestablished. The sale of spirituous liquors, manufactured in whole or in part by means of the process of distillation and/or liquors compounded and/or composed in part of such spirituous distilled liquors, for private profit, is prohibited within this State except when such sale is made to the State. The State of Texas shall have the exclusive right to purchase at wholesale and to sell at retail such distilled spirituous liquors. Such sale shall be made only in unbroken packages and no such liquors shall be consumed on the premises where sold. The Legislature shall pass laws to prescribe regulations relative to the manufacture, sale, transportation, and possession of such spirituous liquors and relative to the establishment of State dispensaries; provided, however, the Legislature shall have the power to regulate the sale for private profit and possession of distilled liquors for medicinal, scientific and mechanical purposes.

"The manufacture, sale, transportation, and possession of all liquors, the alcoholic content of which is entirely and exclusively the result of the fermentation process is hereby authorized under such restrictions as may be authorized by law.

"(b) The Legislature shall enact a law or laws whereby the qualified voters of any county, justice's precinct or incorporated town or city, may, by a majority vote of those voting, determine from time to time whether the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes shall be prohibited or legalized within the prescribed limits; and such laws shall contain provisions for voting on the sale of intoxicating liquors of various types and various alcoholic content.

"(c) In all counties, justice's precincts or incorporated towns or cities wherein the sale of intoxicating liquors had been prohibited by local option elections held under the laws of the State of Texas and in force at the time of the taking effect of Section 20, Article XVI of the Constitution of Texas, it shall continue to be unlawful to manufacture, sell, barter or exchange in any such county, justice's precinct or incorporated town or city, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication or any other intoxicants whatsoever, for beverage purposes, unless and until a majority of the qualified voters in such county or political subdivision thereof voting in an election held for such purpose shall determine such to be lawful; provided that this subsection shall not prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages containing not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight in cities, counties or political subdivisions thereof in which the qualified voters have voted to legalize such sale under the provisions of Chapter 116, Acts of the Regular Session of the 43rd Legislature."

Sec. 2. Such proposed Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at a special election to be held throughout the State of Texas, on the third day of November, 1936, at which election all voters favoring said proposed Amendment, shall write, or have printed on their ballots the words:

"FOR THE AMENDMENT TO THE STATE CONSTITUTION PROVIDING FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A STATE DISPENSARY SYSTEM HAVING THE EXCLUSIVE SALE OF DISTILLED LIQUORS, AND PROVIDING FOR LOCAL OPTION."

"AGAINST THE AMENDMENT TO THE STATE CONSTITUTION PROVIDING FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A STATE DISPENSARY SYSTEM HAVING THE EXCLUSIVE SALE OF DISTILLED LIQUORS, AND PROVIDING FOR LOCAL OPTION."

If it appears from the returns of said election that a majority of the votes cast are in favor of said Amendment, the same shall become a part of the State Constitution.

Sec. 3. The Governor shall issue the necessary proclamation for such election, and shall have the same published and such election held as provided by the Constitution and laws of this State.

Sec. 4. The sum of Eight Thousand ($8,000.00) Dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury to pay for the expenses of said publication and election.
