Auto Hits Roaten Drug, Driver Flees

Wesley Woodrow Wilson, Jr. of 1509 S. Church Street, rammed his car into the side of Roaten's Drug Store Friday night and then fled from the scene of the accident, according to Chief of Police Bob Hewes.

Hewes received the call on the accident as he was chasing a speeding automobile down South Church. The chief stopped his chase and went to the scene of the accident. At Roaten's after talking to several witnesses, Hewes found out that the car he had been chasing was the one that had the accident.

Immediately a call went out to all units to be on the look-out for the man. Responding to the call were Patrolman Joe Dominguez, Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt and Deputy Sheriff Joe de la Garza.

The car was finally located abandoned and the man returned to it shortly. The officers talked to Wilson and he stated that his wife was driving and had run the car into the side of the drug store. A further check of the witnesses placed Wilson behind the wheel of the car at the time of the accident.

Chief Hewes filed a complaint with Judge G. D. Johnson on Wilson for violation of Section 40 of the Uniform Traffic Laws leaving the scene of an accident without complying with several rules. Numerous checks of Wilson's residence showed the police that Wilson was not coming out of his house.

He was finally contacted by telephone and gave notice of his appearance in court on Sunday.

During the time Wilson was home he once called a TV station in Corpus Christi and told them to come to Rockport as the police had his house surrounded and he was not coming out until they got to take pictures of it. Chief Hewes stated that Wilson pleaded guilty as charged Sunday and was fined $50.00. Hewes also stated that it was only through the good cooperation of the City Police Department and the Sheriff's Department that this case was handled as quickly as it was.

INVASION OF THE BUSH. Once this spread in New Mexico was good grazing land, but now it has been invaded by the mesquite bush, and the soil has been turned into a semi-desert. COUPLE FROM NEW YORK OBSERVE WHOOPING CRANES

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eales are a handsome young couple from New York City where Mr. Eales earns his living working for an oil company. Both are enthusiastic bird watchers.

Every year during Eales' vacation they load up their equipment—a powerful telescope and binoculars—for bird watching. Then they head for some area noted for its birds.

This week they are in Rockport to observe the whooping cranes. They saw 21 whooping cranes and were well pleased with their bird watching.

Whenever they are in this area they get in touch with Mrs. Jack Hagar of Rockport, who is an internationally known ornithologist.

$300,000 City Revenue Bond Election Tuesday

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT REVENUE BONDS

The City Council held a special meeting Wednesday morning to discuss some of questions which have arisen in regards to the forthcoming Water and Sewer Revenue Bond Issue.

The first article carried by the Rockport Pilot on Nov. 18, set out the details of the issue and the voting requirements. Mayor Hollis Collum believes that this article was not read by some of the citizens and the Council thought they would present some of the questions being asked in case some of the interested have not been able to talk to their Alderman in regards to this matter.

Q. Will this Bond Issue affect valuations and taxes?

A. No. This is strictly a Revenue Bond Issue and no tax money can be used to retire these bonds.

Q. Why were the plans for spending the "Water" portion of the Bond Issue not detailed as were the "Sewer" portion?

A. The plans for the sewer improvements had already

State Tourist Official Views Places of Interest

Keith Elliott, chief of the News and Features Bureau of the Texas Tourist Development Agency, spent the past few days in Rockport viewing the facilities which make this city an ideal place for tourists, retired people and others.

He went through the famous Fulton mansion, visited the Key Allegro development, observed the beauty of Aransas Bay and Copano Bay, saw the numerous fishing areas, went through the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge with Bob Shields as his guide, and took the regular four-hour cruise on the 65-foot motor vessel "Whooping Crane," based at the Sea Gun Sports Inn. This took him through the Wildlife Refuge where he observed 21 whooping cranes.

Elliott explained that the Texas Tourist Development Agency was organized two years ago by the State. Keith's job is to travel throughout the state, particularly in the resort areas, and get information for articles to be sent to the travel editors of about 500 newspapers throughout the nation and also to hundreds of radio and television stations.

He explained that for promotional purposes the state is divided into 12 sections, each of which is visited by Elliott who writes articles for news media in all parts of the country. These news releases describe the many reasons why Texas is a good place to visit.

While being interviewed, Elliott often referred to a research project conducted by Belden Associates research organization to study the American public's attitudes on Texas as a vacationland.

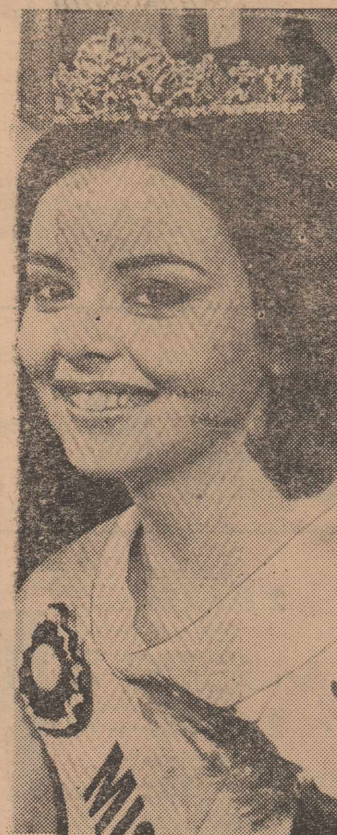

Some of the chief findings were: Out-of-state people see Texas quite differently than do Texans.

Many Texans, themselves, are not much help in correcting a general image of Texas as a bleak place in which to vacation.

The research firm polled people nationwide in lengthy depth interviews. Its findings were then confirmed statistically on a broader population base by the Gallup Poll. By and large, the picture proved less than good, according to the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

Most people described Texas as big, hot, dry and barren. Even many out-of-state people who have driven across the state believe this, and the

Mrs. Gayna Pridgen, owner of the "Flowers by Gayna" shop, will be a guest on a popular television program, "On Camera," on KIII (channel 3), Corpus Christi, at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 21.

YOUTH BOARD MEETS

The Aransas County Youth Board will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m. All board members, student officers and class representatives to the Youth Board are urged to attend.

Rockport residents will vote Tuesday, Dec. 7 on the $300,000 water and sewer revenue bond election. The bond issue is designed to produce the necessary funds to expand the city's water and sewer systems.

Voting will take place only at the City Hall. The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Mayor Hollis Collum stated recently that the $300,000 water and sewer bond issue will not affect local taxes in any way.

"It will be strictly paid off from the revenue from the combined water and sewer systems. Based on a report from the First Southwest Company, the city's financial advisors, there will be no necessity to increase water and sewer rates at the present time to meet the obligation for this bond issue."

Director of Public Works Tom Shults and Consulting Engineer McClendon and Associates have already met with State Health Department officials and have filed an application for a 30 per cent grant under Public Law 660. They also presented detailed plans and specifications for the sewer plant improvement.

"When this application and plans are approved," Mayor Collum said, "they will supplement the $125,000 sewer bond proposal, assuming that Rockport voters approve the bond issue."

The revenue bond election will consist of voting on two propositions as described below:

Proposition Number 1
"FOR the issuance of $175,000 revenue bonds for waterworks improvements and extensions and pledging the revenues of the city's combined waterworks and sanitary sewer system to the payment thereof."

"AGAINST the issuance of $175,000 revenue bonds for waterworks improvements and extensions and pledging the revenues of the city's combined waterworks and sanitary sewer system to the payment thereof."

Proposition Number 2
"FOR the issuance of $125,000 revenue bonds for sanitary sewer system improvements and extensions and pledging the revenues of the city's combined water works and sanitary sewer system to the payment thereof."

"AGAINST the issuance of $125,000 revenue bonds for sanitary sewer system improvements and extensions and pledging the revenues of the city's combined waterworks and sanitary sewer system to the payment thereof."

THANKSGIVING SPIRIT FULTON MANSION

The true spirit of Thanksgiving was seen this year at the Old Fulton Mansion. The owners, Felix and Gladys Boldin, decided several years ago to observe Thanksgiving by having a covered dish dinner for all their guests and friends.

This year 67 people from different parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Canada gathered to give honor to this special day. Rev. U. S. Lucky gave the invocation, then all repeated the Lord's Prayer.

A number of people choose this particular time to come to our area in order to really have a "get-together" with friends from all over the USA. Each lady delights in preparing her own special dish, many quite new to Texas.

This year the most interesting dish was prepared by a lady from Canada. She used plain grits, garlic butter and herbs, mixed all and baked it in a casserole and it certainly tasted like anything but grits.

She also made a sauerkraut salad that was excellent.

Jack and Helen Cook from Ardmore, Okla., decided that cooking on their small trailer stove was a chore and decided to make a large salad tray.

After trying to borrow a large tray they decided to use their stove top. They carefully concealed it with aluminum foil and filled it with all sorts of good things, then discovered it could not be taken out the trailer door.

Jack looked the situation over, got out the screw driver and other needed tools and removed a window—so the salad tray arrived without even a tomato out of place.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Rush from Lubbock observed their 51st wedding anniversary and the Stewart and DeJong's from Canada ate their first cornbread dressing and pecan pie but assured Mrs. Boldin that it would not be their last when she gave them her recipe.

It is unlikely that Col. George Fulton ever thought that almost 100 years after he built this home that people still be enjoying the large cheerful rooms and the beauty of the bay from its front porch.

The three-story structure is now open to visitors and a tour carries one back to the flourishing shipping days.

Mrs. Marcy Hoffman and children, of Victoria, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ingle Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude F. McCown of Austin visited Mr. and Mrs. George Smith over the weekend.

EDITOR'S VIEWPOINTS

NO MORAL?

An article on President Eisenhower's 75th birthday recalls that he almost left the army to become a newspaperman in the first world war. We hope, for the sake of newspapermen everywhere, that there is no moral to be drawn from this.—Petersborough (Ont.) Examiner.

DECEMBER CALL TO ARMS

The Defense Department announced the other day that December's military draft call would be more than 45,000 men, the largest since the Korean War. The announcement implements an earlier presidential warning that draft calls would increase sharply and has, in a way, elements of raw justice.

The draft itself, of course, is repugnant to American ideals of individual freedom; it can force men to do what otherwise they may not want to do. But in times of war, and in this period of prolonged cold war crises, it can be considered essential to the national security. And although this nation's increasing involvement in Vietnam may be opposed by reasonable men, the nation is engaged in war there. Rising manpower requirements exists.—Detroit Free Press.

EDITOR'S LAMENT

We give up. If we print jokes, people say we're silly; if we don't our readers say we're dull. If we print original matter, they say we lack variety; if we "lift" articles from other publications, they say we're too lazy to write. If we stay on the job in the office, we ought to be out hustling news. If we're out hustling news, we're not attending to business or answering the phone.

If we use copy as is, we lack education; if we change the copy, we're spoiling a "hot" story. If we select certain articles over others, we're too critical; if we don't, we're asleep. If we're scanning newspapers or magazines on the job, we have too much manpower; if we don't read other publications, we're not up on the news.

If we publish a pinup, the women complain; if we don't, the men complain. If we print more civilian news, the military complains; if we print more military news, the civilians complain.

If we misspelled a name, the person and his regiment of friends complain. If we spell 99,999 names right, no one comments.

Like as not, someone will say we stole this item from another publication.

They're right. We did.—Elizabethtown (Ky) News.

THE OTHER 'MARCHERS'

It takes little effort and even less courage to take part in a Viet Nam protest march. The march lasts only a few hours. It can be done without the sacrifice of even a weekend's pleasure. And every marcher knows the police are there to see that no harm befalls him.

But there is another "march" that calls for both effort and courage. This is an individual march—a young man going up to the recruiting station and saying he's ready for military duty. It takes a minimum of three years out of his life and means leaving job, home and family. As for courage, this "marcher" knows Viet Nam may be only a few months away.

So far this year more than 200,000 young men have volunteered for military duty. And as danger to our country has amounted so has volunteering. September's volunteers were the highest of the year—50,093.

An organizer of the Viet Nam protest marches said he thought "Washington got the message." And there is danger that the bosses of North Viet Nam and Red China may be interpreting these marches as a signal of our dissension and weakness. The marches could encourage them to hold out a little longer in what they must be seeing is a losing game.

We hope that Red leaders also get the message of those 50,093 September volunteers. If they do, we'll let the Reds in on a little secret—

Those volunteers are far more representative of the mood of our country than are the anti-Viet Nam demonstrators.—New York World-Telegram.

CORNY SYSTEM

A meter is one one ten-millionth of the distance from the equator to the true north. On the meter is based the metric system, by which weights and measures are indicated and understood by an estimated nine-tenths of the world's population.

On the other hand, America has the inch. It is the length of three barley corns laid end to end. America also has the acre. It is the amount of ground medieval man was able to plow in his day.

The metric system was developed by French scientists. It was sponsored by Napoleon at the height of his power and adopted by all Europe, except Britain.

In this country, Thomas Jefferson tried to get us to go metric in 1790. A lot of trouble would have been saved if he had.—Dayton (Ohio) Daily News.

"Been thinking of writing one of them politicians fella to put a ban on snow . . . but don't know whether it'd be State or Federal jurisdiction."

Editorials

HUBBY LOSES AGAIN

A poor husband just can't win when it comes to matching wits with the Little Woman.

Fellow said he read the warning of the St. Paul police and planned a lazy weekend, doing nothing. No leaf-raking for him. The St. Paul police said leaf-rakers are leaving their houses unlocked while they are out in the yard piling up the leaves and thieves have been slipping inside to do some raking up of valuables.

The fellow said he explained all this to the Little Woman, suggesting it might be better to hire a yardman to do the work. The scheme didn't work.

"I'll stay in the house and guard things while you do the raking," the Little Woman said.

SPARE THAT TREE, WE WANT WATER

When New Yorkers get enough blaming politicians for the water shortage, here's hoping they'll put part of the blame where it belongs, on the shoulders of those who have ravished this nation of trees.

Removal of trees, of course, is not the sole reason for water shortages, but ask a trained forester how trees save water, and he'll tell you they are an important factor in water conservation. Trees hold back water. They also retard soil erosion and help prevent pollution of streams.

It's a shame the way we have gone through our forests, cutting down millions of trees without a program of replacement. It's a shame too the way cities have disregarded the assets of trees, removing them to make way for the asphalt and concrete jungles.

Europeans long years ago learned the lesson we're just getting.

REVENUE BONDS—

been made ready upon the recommendation of the State Health Department. An application for Federal Grant has been applied for on this project. These plans had to be complete in order to make the grant application.

The detailed plans for the "Water" portion have not been completed. The engineers and city fathers are making surveys and plans for extending and improving the system. The water wells are a necessity and plans for these have been completed. The survey to determine the water line extensions will be made so that as many areas and as many people can be served as possible. Other factors in the expenditure of this money are Health Department requirements and Fire Insurance Commission requirements. The City Council and engineer are working closely with all these departments to plan the most benefit to the City for every dollar spent.

Q. If the bond issue passes, would all the bonds be sold immediately?

A. The bonds would not be sold until the financing was needed for the different phases of the project as they were completed.

Q. Would any part of this money be used to make individual water or sewer line extensions outside the City?

A. No. It is the policy of the City Council not to pay for any water or sewer extensions outside the City. Any individual outside the City Limits who applies for water or sewer service, has to pay the entire cost himself.

Q. What will be the maturity date of the bonds?

A. Twenty-six years from the date of sale.

Q. What is the maturity date of the present Revenue Bond obligation, and how many years would this issue extend the obligation?

A. 1989, and in the event the bonds were sold in 1966, the bond obligation would be extended to 1992.

Q. Will the City have to pay 5% interest as shown in the Notice of Election?

A. No. This is a maximum amount of interest that the City could pay, it is not a set amount.

Q. Will this Revenue Bond Issue necessitate a rate increase?

A. The financial advisors of the City have assured the City Council that the present rate will satisfy this obligation. This does not mean that the water and sewer rates will never be raised. No one can predict the future and things could happen in the future to necessitate a rate increase.

GET READY! COAST GIRLS FOR BONANZA

Coastal fishermen can expect good catches following the first several northers of the season, reports the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Usually on the second or third days of the earlier cold spells, the deeper basins and channels become the hot-test fishing holes of the season.

The reason for this, say the coastal biologists, is that the deeper water cools more slowly than that over the shallow flats where trout and redfish feed during the summer and fall months.

The fish, seeking relief from the sudden cold, move to the warmer water of the harbors and canals. The natural food supply of these normally un-productive pockets is soon exhausted, and fishermen willing to brave the cold find no difficulty in tempting the hungry fish with baited hook or lure.

Piers and boats provide dry access to anglers, but many prefer to wade the shoreline in waterproof waders.

Trout and redfish are most commonly taken in these winter runs.

One bonus feature, say the biologists, is that the bait-stealing catfish are usually not around. "Hardheads," as they are called in polite company, are more sensitive to cold and leave for the warmer Gulf waters at the first approach of winter.

FINANCIAL STUDY OF RETIRED COUPLES IN TEXAS SHOWS MANY WITH PROBLEMS

Whooper Goodies Awaiting Them

Austwell—If those wayward whooping cranes only knew about the goodies awaiting them at their Gulf Coast wintering grounds they would flap on down and relieve some of the tension locally.

Because unusual fall tides have stimulated marine fauna on the salt flats at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, and that means the equivalent of caviar and roast pig around the clock.

But nobody's complaining at the refuge since all signs indicate a record whooper population for modern times.

When 41 of the giant cranes, including eight young, were present and at least three adults had been spotted en-route on a leisurely, off-course sojourn.

The count last winter was 42 cranes, all of which departed for the northland nesting areas last spring.

One adult crane was a migration casualty in Kansas where it struck a power line in foul weather. The huge birds, with a seven-foot wing span, have had their ground-level troubles before, since a young one splintered a wing practicing takeoffs in far north Canada last summer. It was rescued and has recovered in confinement.

Refuge authorities believe "the blue-bird weather" is responsible for the trio's tardiness, first noted in the Texas Panhandle. This observation increased the mystery of whooper migration since it was several hundred miles west of the presumed flight pattern.

But the same "blue-bird weather" has featured the unusual south winds, skirting ordinary island tide barriers, and providing so much natural food that the whoopers to date have not had to patronize special inland delicacies created by the refuge.

"Doodlebug" was a name given to Hitler's pilotless planes during World War II.

STATE TOURISTS—

belief is fortified by Holly-wood and TV, and by people who haven't seen Texas.

Few of the people interviewed were aware that Texas offers attractions like forests, lakes, water sports, hunting and fishing or ocean beaches. Asked to reveal their feelings about Texas mountains, many people responded, "what mountains?" Not one was aware that Texas has 90 peaks more than a mile high. A big majority believed Texas to be flat, with only oil wells and ranches relieving the monotony.

What's more, Texans seemed to be paying lip service in citing the attractions they deemed as being worth a look. The poll showed that fully 40 percent of the Texans interviewed vacationed outside the state.

Most significant item to be drawn from the poll, in the opinion of the Tourist Development, is the fact that Texans tend to remember only a handful of big-name attractions when telling out-of-state people about Texas' vacation appeals.

Clearly, the TTDA feels, too many Texans simply don't know enough about their state to be of much help in during visitors, or guiding them when they get here.

Belden Associates believe that the negative attitude about hot Texas weather can be offset in stressing by advertising, publicity and word of mouth that:

1. Virtually all vacation facilities in Texas are air conditioned.

2. Texas autumns, winters and springs are generally balmy compared with the rest of the nation.

3. There are parts of Texas that are delightfully cool all year long. The Hill Country and the mountain areas, for instance.

Texas has great diversity of vacations charms. It seems to lack only winter sports, and even these are convenient to some of Texas to match California's natural assets. The story needs to be told forcefully to the world, in the opinion of the researchers.

At the same time, while correcting the misshapen image that most Americans seem to have of Texas, the state has some excellent positives to sell.

People outside Texas were pretty much agreed that they could find these things in Texas:

—Good food, hotels and motels.

—Air conditioned accommodations.

—Excellent highways.

—Friendly people.

All in all, the Belden organization concluded that Texas has excellent potential in luring new visitors since it is blessed with many of the allures they seek. The product is a good one, but a wide-spread mistaken notion of what Texas is really like must be corrected.

The sweeping variety of Texas attractions—uncluttered beaches, magnificent mountains, sylvan forests and un-celled inland waters—is almost unknown to outsiders.

At the same time, another impression needs softening: The image of Texas as just a cowboy state. The American vacationer today is going West not Western, according to Belden. It is the scenic grandeur of the West that attracts visitors, much more than do cowboys, Indians and rodeos.

TTDA says the outlook for increasing Texas tourism is bright. True, there is room for product improvement. More private development of things to do for tourists is an urgent need.

Also, Texans could and should be better spokesmen for the Texas vacationland by enlarging their knowledge of what their state has to offer, according to the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Jackson had as their guests on Thanksgiving day their children, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Corbin and family of Ingleside; Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Abrahams and family of Taft; and Mrs. Norvell Jackson and family, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Jackson and family, of Rockport.

Jim Dietrich, formerly of Rockport and now living in Port Lavaca, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with the Dr. Elliots as the guest of Denny Elliot.

Outdoors in Texas

By Vern Sanford

Smart hunters travel light! But they don't overlook the essentials.

One of the most essential of essentials is a good compass with the know-how to use it.

A topographic map is helpful in deep woods because it shows tote roads, swamps and other details, thus making travel easier.

A waterproof case of emergency matches is a very definite must.

Handy, too, is some nylon parachute cord.

But the essential most hunters forget, or ignore, is a good pair of binoculars.

Some hunters feel that a scope is sufficient to do the binocular's job. It isn't. A scope is designed for sighting not searching. Its one purpose is magnification of a limited area . . . better sighting for more accurate shooting.

And we highly recommend use of a scope.

But a scope is not designed for searching an area any more than the binocular is designed for sighting the gun.

Is it the breeze that makes those bushes move? Is that brown spot a deer or a stump? Is that a doe or a buck? How many points on his rack? How many deer are there? Is that hunter across the valley my buddy or someone else?

There's only one sure way to answer such questions and that's by using a good pair of power-packed binoculars. They have many uses and broad coverage.

Too bulky, you say? Not any more!

My hunting companion has a pair that can be hidden in the palm of his hand. They take up very little room in his pocket or hanging inside his shirt. They are only three inches high and weigh 11 ounces.

And believe it or not they are 6x25 power with a full field of 420 feet at 1,000 yards.

Being six power they bring distant objects close and clear. They have made many a deer hunt a success for him.

In buying binoculars, never go by price. Never look for bargains in binoculars. When a hunter buys binoculars he wants brilliant, full-field glareless magnification. He won't get it unless he pays for a precision optical instrument. And, whether we like it or not, they cost money.

My hunting companion paid more than 60 bucks for a pair of custom compacts by Bushnell. He says they are the best investment he ever made. He contends that hunting trips cost money . . . the hunter wants to bring home a deer . . . so, if binoculars make a big difference (and they very often do), buying a good pair of binoculars is a pretty wise investment after all. Makes sense, doesn't it?

There are plenty of other makes of binoculars. He just happens to prefer his. The point is . . . before going afield make a list of the essentials that can make your hunting trip easy, safe, comfortable and successful. Near the top of the list put this 10-letter word . . . "binoculars."

They may very well prove the difference between failure and a truly successful hunt for you.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hewes, Mrs. Walton Haynes, Mrs. W. C. Stevenson and Mrs. Alpha Hardcastle, of Aransas Pass, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Williams, of Corpus Christi on Thanksgiving Day.

MRS. JERRY HARPER AGREES ROCKPORT IS FRIENDLY CITY

Mrs. Jerry Harper came to The Pilot office Nov. 29 with a news story about a meeting held by the May Badger Circle.

Before leaving she commented on an article which appeared in the Nov. 5 issue of the Pilot—a story by a newcomer expressing his impressions of Rockport and emphasizing that Rockport people are friendly people.

Mrs. Harper said that she and her husband have lived here just a short time and they, too, were pleased to find that the local people have a way of making the newcomer feel at home.

"I think all newcomers feel this way and I am glad that The Pilot published an editorial expressing the feeling of every newcomer my husband and I have met. They all agree that Rockport people are truly friendly and this is a fine place to live."

Killer Deer Tops Weird Hunt Tales

Austin—A deer that shot and killed a hunter with his own gun headlined bizarre outdoor recreational accidents as reported to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department during the last two weeks.

In other tragic incidents: An eight-year-old Fort Worth boy drowned when a boat containing five persons capsized in Lake Benbrook as it returned to a dock to obtain life preservers.

A Houston man was killed by his 21-year-old son on a deer hunting trip.

A Bryan man maimed his hand and arm when a rifle he was leaning on accidentally fired.

A Lufkin man told authorities he killed his wife when his shotgun was discharged as he prepared to go hunting.

The weird deer-triggered fatality victim was Roy Edgar, 32, of Albany. A ranch hand, he shot a deer, reloaded his gun and leaned it against a tree preparatory to dressing out the animal. The deer twitched and a hoof struck the rifle causing it to discharge.

Another self-inflicted gun death involved a 16-year-old Pearsall boy who was carrying a pistol grip .22 rifle while hunting rabbits.

In other hunt-related tragedies, a Round Rock man was killed enroute to his deer lease when he fell asleep at the wheel and a Brady man was killed in a traffic crash while returning from a deer hunt.

Apparent heart attacks killed deer hunters from Abbott, Fort Worth and Pearsall.

Outdoor recreational fatalities for the period included fishermen drowned at Longview and Palestine and two Louisiana fishermen off Sabine Pass.

On the credit side two off-duty Dallas detectives enroute to their lease, stopped to aid a motorist and recognized the man as being wanted in a murder investigation.

CARS CAN KILL. Traffic accidents take a heavy toll of lives every year, but some believe air pollution from exhausts on cars is even deadlier. Washington has put the pressure on the auto industry to produce "clean" cars. There's no deadline, but many hope exhaust controls will be wide-spread by 1968. — WFS Photo

WE WON'T GIVE YOU $15.00!

- we'll save you much, much more!

Sorry, but we can't give you a $15.00 coupon to induce you to buy a gas range, a gas clothes dryer or a gas water heater. Gas rates are so low and gas appliances operate so economically, we can't afford it. It costs so little to operate a gas clothes dryer, for instance, it would be over two years before we got our $15.00 back through your monthly bills.

It's good business for the electric people though. After all, it costs over five times as much to dry your clothes with electricity, over four times as much for water heating, over six times as much for cooking.
