Jerry Mennenga/Midland Reporter-Telegram

Jose C. Correa, a Midland maintenance technician with the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, posts the 65 mph speed limit on a "rural" stretch of Interstate Highway 20 near Midland. The 65-mph limit on federal interstate highways goes into effect today. The upper-speed limit on other highways remains at 55 mph.

Bill benefits workers in oil-related fields

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Thousands of laid-off workers in Texas' oil-related industries would be eligible for weekly benefit checks, training, job search and relocation assistance under a major trade bill approved Thursday 19-1 in Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's Finance Commiteee.

Current law provides money and training only to oil field production workers who lost their jobs because of the impact of foreign oil imports.

The pending bill would extend benefits to workers in firms that provide essential parts or services for the oil and gas industry — defined to include firms engaged in exploration, production or processing of oil or natural gas.

Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okla., authored the amendment that included workers from the oil and gas industry in the category of those harmed indirectly by imports.

Under current law, only workers directly affected by import competition are eligible to apply for money for retraining and for weekly cash allowances that pick up where regular state unemployment checks leave off.

The committee lengthened by six months, to 78 weeks, the maximum period in which displaced workers may draw special weekly allowances and authorized up to $4,000 per worker to pay for retraining.

An oil rig manufacturing firm in Beaumont, which laid off workers when orders ceased, recently was rejected by the Labor Department for certification as an import-damaged company, according to Ray Taylor, international representative of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union in Beaumont.

In a telephone interview, he said he knows of no oil-industry related workers who are receiving benefits under the current Trade Adjustment Assistance Act of 1974, designed to cushion the impact of foreign imports on U.S. industries and workers.

If the bill becomes law, benefits would be retroactive and oil rig manufacturing workers probably would be eligible to draw them, according to state and federal officials interviewed Friday.

Patricia Roberts in the Texas Employment Commission in Austin, said approximately 10 percent of those laid off because of the downturn in the oil fields after the OPEC cartel lowered the price of oil a year a half ago are eligible for extended unemployment compensation, training, and other benefits under the Trade Readjustment Assistance program or the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act.

She said she was unable to estimate how many thousands of people could be added to the benefit rolls if eligibility is expanded.

In Washington, Marvin Fooks, administrator of the TAA program, said the number of workers drawing federal assistance because of the effect of foreign imports on their jobs has sharply increased in recent years.

In this fiscal year, he said, approximately 80,000 workers so far have been judged eligible, and of that number approximately 6,000 are Texans.

To measure the increase in the number receiving aid, he said 19,000 workers nationwide were eligible in 1984.

The comprehensive trade bill (S.B. 490) cleared Bentsen's committee 19-to-1, reflecting the consensus the Texas senator built around the measure. He said his goal was to "approve a positive trade bill that the president would sign."

It now must be welded together with other trade measures from seven other Senate committees, approved by the full Senate, be reconciled with the House-passed version, and signed by the president before becoming law.

Reagan administration officials said, however, they strongly oppose extending and broadening retraining and other benefits.

Training money and weekly cash allowances would be transformed into entitlements under the bill, jointly sponsored by Bentsen and Sen. John C. Danfort, R-Mo.

That means all eligible applicants would be entitled to receive benefits, under present law, some workers are left out after yearly appropriations are depleted.

DPS troopers will strictly enforce 65 mph speed limit

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The real difference between 55 mph and 65 mph is not just 10 mph.

It's in more stringent enforcement of speed laws by troopers of the Texas Department of Public Safety and in the likely increase in traffic injuries and deaths.

"We are going to take a very aggressive approach in enforcing speed laws," said Major Dudley Thomas of the DPS regional office in Midland.

And, said Thomas, DPS troopers will not cut any slack in enforcing the new 65 mph upper-end speed limit on rural stretches of Texas' interstate highways.

The new speed limit goes into effect today.

"There is no fudge-factor built in, it's clear-cut," Thomas said. Interstate motorists exceeding the 65 mph limit will be violators of the law.

Beginning at 12:01 a.m. today, the speed limit on 2,422 miles of the state's 3,147 miles of interstate highways was raised 10 mph to 65 mph for automobiles, motorcycles and light trucks, such as pickups. The legal speed limit for trucks traveling the interstate highways is 60 mph duriung the day and 55 mph at night.

However, the maximum legal speed limit on all other highways and roads remains at 55 mph except where the legal speed limit is lowered because of curves, dips, population centers and other safety-centered reasons.

Midlanders divided on necessity for higher highway speed limit

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Some Midlanders feel the number of serious accidents will jump now that the speed limit on Interstate 20 has been raised to 65 mph. But those in favor of the new law feel it's overdue.

The new speed limit, which went into effect at midnight, will not affect the driving habits of most of those who commented.

Grace Charuk, who held her infant as she talked about the new speed limit, said she does not appreciate the new law.

"No, I don't like it," she said. "There are too many wrecks as it is, and now there are just going to be more accidents."

Ms. Charuk said that, as a mother, she is concerned about the safety of her child on highways where many drivers may be exceeding the new limit.

"Right, that's exactly what I was telling my husband. A mother is always worried about her children in car seats, what might happen, the impact, the speed limit is just too high."

Dale Brost said when he is driving on an interstate highway, he sets cruise control on his automobile at 60 to 62 mph. He disagrees with the new law, and said he will not drive any faster.

"I can't imagine a decent reason for (the change)," he said.

Brost said he feels those drivers who exceeded the old 55 mph speed limit won't stop now at 65.

Texaco's stock rises amid rumors of aggressive buying

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc.'s stock rose sharply in heavy trading Friday amid market rumors that Australian financier Robert Holmes a Court was aggressively buying the energy giant's shares.

The common stock of Texaco, which is operating under bankruptcy court protection, climbed $1.87½ a share to close at $35.50 on the New York Stock Exchange after having been above $36 earlier in the session.

The stock was the Big Board's most heavily traded issue, with 7 million shares changing hands.

The speculation, first reported in Friday's editions of USA Today, could not be independently confirmed and Holmes a Court could not be reached for comment.

Oil analyst Sanford Margoshes of the investment firm Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. said he understood that Holmes a Court has accumulated a maximum of 3 million shares, not a rumored 8 million shares.

"Also, I think his purchases would be for investment purposes, not a takeover of Texaco, which would require upwards of $17 billion," Margoshes said.

If Holmes a Court bought 3 million shares, it would represent about 2 percent of Texaco's 242 million total common shares outstanding. Investors are not required to publicly disclose their holdings until they buy 5 percent or more of a company.

Another oil analyst, Bruce Lazier of Prescott, Ball & Turben, said he considered any takeover attempt of Texaco extremely unlikely, in large part because of its bankruptcy reorganization.

Holmes a Court, a reclusive Perth-based businessman thought to be one of Australia's wealthiest men, triggered takeover speculation about USX Corp. last August when he told the Pittsburgh-based steel and energy giant that he planned to buy up to 15 percent of its stock.

Holmes a Court reportedly bought and then sold a much smaller position in USX. But his actions attracted others to USX, including New York financier Carl C. Icahn, who later launched an unsuccessful bid to acquire USX.

Holmes a Court is best known for his unsuccessful efforts in recent years to take over Australia's biggest publicly held company, Broken Hill Proprietary Co., which also is a large energy and natural resources concern.

Texaco, although solvent, filed under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws on April 12 to forestall enforcement of a $10 billion judgment against it that was awarded to Pennzoil Co. by a Texas court in 1985.

Under Chapter 11, a company continues operating but is protected from creditor lawsuits while it works out a plan to reorganize its finances. Accordingly, Pennzoil's claim against Texaco has been frozen.

The judgment was awarded after a Texas state jury found that Texaco had wrongly interfered with Pennzoil's proposed 1984 merger with Getty Oil Co., which Texaco acquired instead.

Texaco is appealing the judgment following failed attempts by Texaco and Pennzoil to settle the matter out of court.

The stock-buying rumors surrounding Texaco also triggered a sharp rise in Pennzoil's stock, which climbed $2.87½ a share to $84 on the NYSE.

Texas supporters upset over Hart quitting race

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gary Hart's decision to abandon his run for the White House left his Texas supporters upset Friday over the loss and, in several cases, fuming over the reason his campaign had to end.

After the Democratic front-runner officially announced the end of his campaign because of revelations about the his extramarital affairs, Hart's supporters basically agreed that the campaign faced trouble overcoming the allegations. Even if Hart stayed in, they said, constant questions about his womanizing would have taken the focus off his campaign and left him constantly on the defensive.

A story that appeared Sunday in the Miami Herald and later reprinted and followed by most U.S. media concerning an alleged affair with 29-year-old model Donna Rice forced Hart's early retirement from the presidential contest nine months before the first primary election.

"After that whole episode, he didn't have any choice — for himself, his family and his country," said Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace, who endorsed the former Colorado senator primarily for his stand on energy issues.

Other candidates "saddened, regretful" about Gary Hart's decision to withdraw from race — 6A

Clayton Williams Jr., owner of ClayDesta Communications, rode into Austin to oppose the proposed deregulation of AT&T.

Williams: Bill deregulating AT&T would be 'bum steer'

AUSTIN (AP) — Midland oilman and cowboy Clayton Williams Jr. galloped up to the Capitol steps Friday to warn the Legislature that passing a bill to deregulate AT&T would be a "bum steer."

"Only a fool would deregulate a monopoly, and that's what Texas would look like if this bill passes deregulating AT&T," Rep. Pat Hill, R-Dallas, told a crowd after Williams' horseback group came whooping up the main sidewalk.

"AT&T wants to change the rules," said Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi. "They want this bill because Clayton Williams brought in competition."

Williams, a native of Alpine, also is owner of ClayDesta Communications, a microwave long-distance company that competes with AT&T.

AT&T spokesman Steve Parrino said AT&T would have no immediate comment on the rally.

The bill to deregulate AT&T passed the Senate but only after it was amended to require Public Utility Commission approval to raise rates.

However, the House State Affairs Committee has approved a bill that would free AT&T from regulation, as originally proposed, and the bill is ready for debate.

Williams, wearing Western hat, boots and chaps, leaped from his horse and ran up the Capitol steps carrying a Texas flag.

"We're doing this to bring before the folks of Texas what we think is a pretty bad bill in the House. We whipped them up in the Senate, and our belief is that a real monopoly has no business being decontrolled," Williams said.

"We continue to oppose the bill because it will hurt residential customers," Carolyn Barger of the Consumers Union said at the rally.

"The House State Affairs Committee removed an amendment that would protect consumers from price gouging. If this bill passes, AT&T will be able to charge rates as high as it wants to residential ratepayers and as low as it wants to businesses in the lucrative urban markets."

Williams was asked if he thought the bill could be amended in the House.

"I'd just as soon it walked off somewhere and died," he replied.

School chaperone dies during demonstration

Durand

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An off-duty jail guard trying to demonstrate to school children how to escape from a burning building fell and broke his neck as the youngsters watched in horror, authorities said.

But school officials said Friday that William Durand fell from equipment that was not intended to be used for such demonstrations.

Durand, 38, was one of several chaperones who accompanied about 125 middle school students on a field trip Thursday to the Madla ranch outside San Antonio. Durand's 12-year-old daughter was among the children on the field trip, but Northside School Superintendent Jack Jordan said she didn't witness the accident.

STATE

Durand, who weighs about 300 pounds, got on top of a large wooden spool to demonstrate how to get out of a burning building, witnesses told sheriff's Deputy R.V. Lujan.

The spool, similar to those used for telephone wiring, was one of several rustic items the children used as playground equipment, said Bonnie Ellison, a spokeswoman for the school district, which uses the ranch for field trips.

"He got up on the spool. The spool began to move and quickly he went over the top and landed on his head and shoulder blades."

The report said Durand began vomiting when someone tried to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation. He later died at Medical Center Hospital.

Jordan disputed the report that Durand was attempting a safety demonstration.

The purpose of the demonstration was "to use deductive reasoning on how to go over first," Jordan said. "If the purpose of that is to escape from a burning house, it is a figment of somebody's imagination.

"The challenge involves more than two people. He was trying to demonstrate that he could do it basically by himself," he said.

Ms. Ellison said the students in the "gifted and talented program" taken on the field trip were involved in "play activities that can be transferred to problem-solving activities."

Senate OKs issuing bonds to build prisons, mental health facilities

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An ambitious $1.1 billion public works program got another boost Friday when the Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment allowing the state to issue $500 million in bonds for prisons and mental health facilities.

The bond bill joins two others the Senate approved Thursday that propose constitutional amendments authorizing the sale of up to $800 million in bonds for public works and water development projects.

The proposed bond sales are contained in the "Build Texas" program, which Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby hopes will help get the ailing Texas economy back on track. The program is designed to provide low-interest loans and matching grants to local governments for construction projects.

Voters would have to approve the bond sales in the upcoming November elections.

The $500 million in bonds would help alleviate some of the state's budget shortfall by providing funds to build prisons, correctional facilities for youths and mental health and mental retardation hospitals.

"This is by far the least expensive to the Texas taxpayer as far as interest costs," said Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington and sponsor of the proposal.

Thursday, the Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment allowing the state to issue $400 million in bonds for building county prisons, libraries and airports. Another proposal approved by the Senate would authorize a $400 million bond sale for water development projects and flood control.

Also Friday, the Senate approved a constitutional amendment authorizing the sale of $500 million in general obligation bonds, to be matched by $500 million in revenue bonds, to help lure the superconducting super collider project to Texas.

"This is vitally important because it helps us compete with other states," said sponsor Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville.

The state would issue the bonds, whose sale must be approved by voters in November, only if the $4.4 billion atom smasher comes to Texas. Various regions throughout the state, including areas in Southeast Texas, West Texas and South Texas, are vying for the project, which could mean an additional $270 million a year to a regional economy.

The House approved a similar bond proposal earlier this week.

The supercollider is a planned 52-mile tunnel that scientists will use to study particles at high speeds to learn more about the origins of the universe.

In other action, the Senate tentatively approved a bill that would strengthen state regulation of trains that carry hazardous materials.

The bill by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi would require railroad companies to notify the Texas Railroad Commission before transporting hazardous materials. Railroad companies also would have to provide the commission and the rail line's dispatcher with 24-hour telephone numbers of emergency response teams within the area the train travels through.

Boy dies after stepfather allegedly beats him, forces him to eat pizza

HOUSTON (AP) — A 2-year-old boy who had just been returned to his mother after being taken away by child welfare authorities died early Friday after being beaten and force-fed pizza, authorities said.

Jesse Warren died at 1 a.m. Friday at Texas Children's Hospital, said spokesman Fred Rhodes, who added that authorities had asked the hospital not to release any other information about the boy.

The boy was hospitalized Wednesday night after his stepfather allegedly shoved pizza in his mouth, forced his head against the floor and stepped on his stomach, Harris County sheriff's officials said.

The stepfather, Thomas Lynn Warren, 43, and Jesse's mother, Jacqueline Annette Warren, 32, were charged with injury to a child before the boy died. They were in jail Friday in lieu of $100,000 bond each, jail officials said.

Sheriff's Sgt. J.J. Freeze said the alleged beating occurred Wednesday after the boy refused to eat.

Freeze said the child's mother watched the beating, then carried him to another room where she took the food out of his throat and gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation before calling an ambulance.

Jesse, his sister and three brothers had been removed from the home in August 1985, while Mrs. Warren was still married to the children's father, Harris County Children's Protective Services spokeswoman Judy Hay said.

Ms. Hay said the children did not appear to be abused but were removed because of neglect. The other children range in age from 4 to 8.

The agency decided to let the children visit their mother and stepfather and work slowly toward returning all of them to the home, she said. Jesse returned home March 24.

The other children remain in foster homes.

A social worker last visited the home Monday and noticed fading bruises on the boy, which the parents said were caused by a fall or by blows from the child's siblings.

Ms. Hay said two follow-up visits were postponed because of bad weather and another visit had been planned Thursday.

The case worker was very clear that while she was alarmed Monday, she didn't suspect that 48 hours later, the child would be attacked like that, Ms. Hay said.

Black council members battle with NAACP

CROCKETT (AP) — The black majority City Council is locked in a battle with the local NAACP chapter over minority hiring practices.

At stake is a $2.3 million downtown civic project, which contains a covered livestock pavilion, a 1,000-seat auditorium and a new city hall.

To maintain construction contracts, the city needs approval in the next two weeks of a loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

But the Rev. Harry Fred Scott, legal redress chairman of a local NAACP branch, asked that the city's application for a $1.4 million loan be put on hold until after an investigation of possible discrimination in hiring and in the treatment of black city employees.

The city then filed a lawsuit against the NAACP to stop it from blocking federal loans to the city. A May 15 court hearing has been set.

Scott wants the city to improve its minority hiring, integrate the all-white volunteer fire department, reinstate two black employees fired last year, and give back pay to a third black employee.

Crockett's mayor pro-tem, one of three black city councilmen and a member of a separate NAACP branch, said he disapproves of Scott's tactic.

"He could have come to us earlier about these other things," Elmer Murray said.

Murray said he and fellow blacks on the council aren't going to force a pro-black point of view on the city just because they hold a majority of the council's seats.

"I don't play ball that way," Murray said. "This is 1987. I want to work with people."

City Manager Philip Cook and other officials declined to discuss any of the employee cases, citing state laws against divulging personnel matters. Thirty percent of the city's 70 employees are black, Cook said.

Census figures show Houston County, where Crockett is located, has a population that is 45 percent black.

Murray said charges of racial discrimination are groundless. The city has been trying to attract qualified black employees, especially in the police department.

Money for the new program would come from a new trust fund established by imposing a fee of 0.1 percent to 1 percent on items previously imported duty-free. Some committee staffers and senators said including that provision could be considered another act of defiance toward the White House.

In a conciliatory move, however, the Finance Committee did not include the Gephardt amendment in its bill. The president has promised to veto any trade bill that carries with it the measure sponsored by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo. that was attached to the House bill by a narrow margin a week ago.

However, when the bill moves to the Senate floor, some senators will attempt to attach a provision identical to Gephardt's, requiring the president to take action to reduce trade surpluses accumulated by foreign trading partners.

The Senate Finance version also forces the president to retaliate against countries found to be violating trade agreements with the United States, but it allows the president more flexibility in negotiations.

Last year, Bentsen-sponsored legislation to impose a surcharge of up to 25 percent on imports from certain countries if they did not open their markets to U.S. goods, but backed off after it was widely criticized as protectionist.

The committee also included a Bentsen-sponsored amendment designed to limit oil imports to 50 percent of the U.S. market.

Bentsen said approval of his "energy security" amendment "is the first concrete step by Washington to protect this country's national security in the wake of rapidly-rising dependence on foreign oil."

"It was a tough fight, and a close vote (12 to 8) and we will have more tough fights to keep it in the bill," Bentsen added.

"This legislation caps our dependence on foreign oil at the 50 percent level to reduce the chances we will be standing in gasoline lines, as we did in the 1970's."

LIMIT

"The person who is violating the 55 mph limit will violate the 65," said Thomas, who said DPS troopers, though in relatively short supply for the number of violators, would be enforcing — and aggressively so — the speed limits.

"WE DON'T want people to start out believing they can drive 75 and 80 mph," he said, just because of the selected speed increase. And "the problem" with the 55 mph speed limit was that "so many people" were violating it that it become almost unenforceable because of the limited number of DPS troopers patrolling the highways.

In the 49-county West Texas area — called DPS Region IV, overseen by Thomas — there are 315 DPS troopers. Of those, 12 are assigned to the Midland area, and 12 are assigned to the Odessa area. Statewide, DPS has slots for 2,006 troopers, including those assigned to highway patrol.

The nation's scrapped its 70 mph speed limit in 1974 as a result of the fuel crisis and theoretically slowed traffic to 55 mph, conserved fuel and cash, and, as a by-product, cut down on highway fatalities by 20 percent. The action was in response to a federal highway fund cutoff threat.

But this year, the U.S. Congress allowed each state to increase the speed limit on rural segments of interstate highways by 10 mph without the states jeopardizing their federal highway funds.

"They (motorists) were so conditioned to driving 70 (prior to 1974), and it's hard to un-condition yourself," Thomas said. "People are creatures of habits."

The speed limit had been 70 mph daytime and 65 night-time since 1963. Between 1941 and 1963, it was 60 and 55. And in 1928, the upper limit was 45 mph.

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE," Thomas said in giving suggestions to motorists, "with the increased speed, don't drink and drive. And buckle up your seat belts. It's just an established fact that buckling up decreases chances of serious injury or death in the event of motor-vehicle accidents."

Thomas advocates a safe and uniform speed.

"Whatever the speed limit," he said, "we need everybody moving the same speed. We don't need some going at 40 and some going 70."

Thomas noted that rural interstate highways affected by the 65 mph limit in Texas accounts for about 3 percent of the state's 78,000 miles of rural highways.

"We know the varying speed limits will be somewhat confusing for awhile," Thomas said. "Our best advice is to pay close attention to the posted speed limit signs. As in the past, highway patrol troopers will be watching for clear violations of the speed limit. Not knowing the speed limit is not a defense if you get stopped for speeding," he said.

And Thomas noted that "the higher the speed of a vehicle involved in an accident, the greater the chance of injury or death for the occupants." The objective of speed limits is public safety.

"If a person exceeds the speed limit, he is doing more than merely trying to get somewhere in a hurry. He is endangering his own life and the lives of others."

Lt. Jimmie Rhoads, DPS safety-education officer, noted that DPS troopers would be "enforcing all the laws." And he noted that "so many" people — about 50 percent of the motorists — were violating the 55 mph speed laws that troopers couldn't stop and ticket all violators" and focused more on the faster speeders.

IN ADDITION to obeying speed laws, maintaining their cars, bucking up and driving defensively and soberly, motorists should "stay alert" to increase their chances of accident-free driving.

Midland County Justice of the Peace Robert H. "Bob" Pine surmised that the increased speed limit "primarily is going to increase our death tolls on highways. That's what I'm afraid of."

The National Safety Council in 1975 reported that nationwide the highway fatalities dropped 20 percent in the year following the reduction of the speed limited by 15 mph — to 55 mph from 70. The death toll dropped from 55,600 in 1973 when the speed limit was 70 mph to 44,500 in 1974 when the limit went to 55 mph.

"We feel that the reduction in 1974 traffic fatalities is a direct result of the fuel shortage," NSC President Vincent Tofany said in January 1974. "People are driving more carefully, more responsibly, and at a lower rate of speed."

Pine, who handles state speeding violations in his court, said that under the 55-mph limit, the lower end of speeding violations cited by DPS troopers was 65 mph, and the high end was about 85 mph.

"You know," he said, "they can't catch everybody. They've got to work the faster traffic."

Pine said that ticketed motorists often complain about "the other cars" that were passing them moments before they were pulled over by DPS troopers and ticketed.

Even with the more stringent enforcement of speed limit laws, motorists "still are going to fudge," Pine said. "They're going to say, 'I was in a hurry. I had to get on that well' and stuff like that."

And Pine noted that motorists who get four speeding tickets in a year's time are subject to an administrative court hearing and possible lost of their driving privileges for a year.

TODAY, the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is putting up new 65 mph speed-limit signs along the interstate highways, including Interstate 20 in the Midland-Odessa area. And, according to Richard Phillips, the department's public affairs officer in Odessa, the department will bear the cost of posting the new speed limit on interstate highways. Where interstate highways pass through metropolitan areas of 50,000 or more population, the speed limit will remain 55 mph. About a nine-mile segment of I-20 between Midland and Odessa is in a "rural" 65-mph zone.

Bo McCarver, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, noted that "one reason" the speed limit was raised was because "there is no energy crisis."

There's "no doubt" that the increased speed will result in more highway deaths and injuries, he said. However, he noted that the interstate highways were designed for faster speeds and cited their "good lines of sight and good grading. Most Interstates in Texas were designed to do the 70-mph speed."

The Texas Highway Commission passed a "minute order" in setting 65 mph maximum speed limit on rural interstate highways and a 55 mph limit on "all (other) highways" to comply with federal guidelines. The Texas Legislature already had approved the measure.

Texas was "threatened" with the loss of federal highway funds if it did not comply with the federal speed-limit guidelines.

The federal government essential told the states, McCarver said, "You go ahead and drive as fast as you want to, but you are going to lose your federal funds" if you don't comply with the 55 and 65 rules. For Texas, the loss in federal highway funds would have amounted to multi-millions of dollars: 5 percent of the current $850-million for the currently fiscal year and 10 percent of the 1988 fiscal year, which begins Sept. 1.

"You just can't exceed that speed limit," McCarver said. "You're looking at a big incentive to keep your speed down. That's easier said than done."

DEATHS

Rodrick McClure

Services for Rodrick McClure of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home. McClure died Friday afternoon at a local hospital.

Helen Giffert

Giffert

Services for Helen Giffert, 81, of Midland will be 5 p.m. today in The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity with the Rev. Allen Whitman and the Rev. Marshall Mason officiating.

Arrangements are under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Miss Giffert died Thursday in her home.

She was born on Dec. 28, 1905, in Chicago, Ill. In 1906, she moved to Tulsa, which then was in Indian Territory. She attended public schools there and attended the University of Chicago and the University of Missouri. She received the master's degree in education from Peabody, a part of Vanderbilt University. Afterward, she taught in the public-school system in Tulsa for 44 years. The city of Tulsa honored her with the Helen Giffert Day for her public-school service. She moved to Midland in 1979.

Miss Giffert was a member of The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, the Pi Beta Phi Sorority, Travelers Aid, the Daughters of the America Revolution, and the All Saints Guild at The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. She also was active in the Meals on Wheels program in Midland.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Edwin Alstrin of Midland; a brother, Franklin Giffert of Norman, Okla.; a niece, Mrs. Ron Britton of Midland, and a nephew, Giffert Alstrin of Midland.

Pallbearers will be Jim Boldrick, Dan Black, Budge McDonnald, Bob Swanson, Gene Schafer, Bob Pollard, Ed Runyan and Dr. Richard Reese.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland Inc., P.O. Box 2621, Midland, Texas 79702, or to The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, Midland.

HART

Other prominent Texans who had endorsed Hart echoed Wallace's sentiments, saying the controversy was too much to overcome. Some, however, placed the blame on the tactic of the Miami paper, which secretly watched Hart's Capitol Hill home last weekend.

"I thought it was despicable," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who has endorsed Hart and also has extensive holdings in media outfits, including some in Florida. "It's hard for me to imagine how the editors who offer that or the reporters who participate in it look themselves in the eyes," Hobby said.

While Hobby said "the scandal is Gary Hart's fault," he argued that the Miami Herald went "way beyond any bound of propriety."

Some of Hart's followers, though, placed the blame solely on the press and urged him back into the race. "He was too harsh on himself," said Rep. Hugo Berlanga, a Hart backer and the House speaker pro tem. "I don't think he should have withdrawn."

Berlanga and some Hart loyalists involved in the organizational aspect of the campaign said candidates will be reluctant to run for the presidency or other high office out of fear that the media will watch their every move and candidates will lose any semblence of privacy.

"I don't think there's any question that he was treated unfairly," said Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi.

Said Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon and a Hart supporter said "All politicians should know they live in a glass bowl."

Sen. Ray Farabee, who backed Hart in 1984 when he was a dark-horse candidate and also endorsed him this year, said "it's sad" when a personal issue stemming from "clandestine" media observation causes a candidate to withdraw. But, he said, Hart probably would have been unable to run on the issues with the womanizing issue over his head.

"It's such a petty thing," said Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

HIGHER

"I think for sure if it's 65, people are going to drive 70 — it's always five miles over.

"And I think it's going to make more accidents. I don't think there's much doubt about that."

Jim Arnold, who said he usually drives at 55 on the interstate, might drive faster with the new law, but he disagrees with it, he said.

"I think it ought to stay where it was," he said. "People drive too fast anyway."

Arnold said he also feels many drivers will exceed even the new limit.

"I think they probably will, yes. I might even do it myself, but I do think it's more reasonable to keep it at 55."

Cheryl Morin said she was delighted with the new speed — but she didn't know it applies only to I-20.

"I think it's fine," she said. "I like to drive fast to work, and now I can on Loop 250."

Ms. Morin said the old speed limit didn't make sense, especially to her.

"When they moved it to 55, it was hard to keep it there," she said.

"I'm a leadfoot anyway."

Teresa Lindsey said she was unaware of the change, but she will drive at her usual speed — 65, she said.

"I think it's better now. No one drives 55 anyway."

Ms. Lindsey, though, said she thought the higher speed should be allowed on all roads that now allow a 55 mph speed limit.

Howard Schmitt, a salesman, said frequent trips between Midland and Dallas soured him on driving 55.

"I think 65 is about fast enough," he said. "And I think a lot (of drivers) will take advantage of it. I've seen a lot of people traveling 70 already."

Julie Turocy said she liked the old law, but she said 65 mph is not unreasonable. But, she agreed with most who said many drivers will drive over 65.

Therma McCracken, who is from Detroit and is visiting Ms. Turocy, said her state will also have the new speed limit soon.

Megan Morris and Michael Hughes, both 18, said they welcome the new law.

"Yes, they needed it," she said. "It was taking people too long to get places anyway."

Ms. Megan has driven as fast as 75 or 80 mph on the interstate en route to Austin, "because there's nothing out there," she said, adding, "I buckle up, though."

Hughes said he normally drives about 60 mph, and now that it's legal to drive faster he and a lot of others will do it, he said.

"Everybody always wants to go about five miles over anyway," he said.

Girl abused by trucker released from hospital

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The El Paso mother and daughter who were physically and emotionally abused and then shot following their kidnapping by a truck driver March 12 near Colorado City apparently have returned home.

Both the mother, Gail Amos, 35, and her 9-year-old daughter, Angelice, had undergone treatment and therapy in a Dallas hospital.

The daughter was released Friday. The mother had been released earlier.

And, according to Capt. Gene Kloss of the Ector County Sheriff's Office in Odessa, their whereabouts had been kept secret primarily to protect them from their assailant.

"They are with their family now," he said Friday night.

Kloss said he and Texas Rangers have talked to Ms. Amos several times in trying to find more clues to their would-be killer. However, he said that the daughter's psychiatrist has not given permission for investigators to interview the girl.

Kloss indicated that her emotional state is so delicate due to the trauma caused by the truck driver's abuse that an interview might be damaging in her recovery process. He said that the "kind of ordeal" she and her mother went through was traumatic.

"We've like to talk her, but the doctor won't give us permission," he said.

The "ordeal" which Ms. Amos, an El Paso letter carrier, and her daughter underwent started on March 12 after their car broke down on Interstate 20. They were en route to El Paso from Fort Worth. They were picked up by a truck driver, who, wielding a handgun, forced the mother and daughter into the tractor-trailer he was driving, abused them and then stopped his tractor near Penwell west of Odessa. According to accounts, he pushed the mother and daughter from the truck and shot them. Ms. Amos was shot in the neck. The bullet struck her spine. The daughter was shot in the head.

Kloss said the mother seems to be recovering well. The daughter, who uses a walker to move, may suffer blurred vision to left eye and slight loss of hearing in the left ear. "There's not going to be any paralysis," Kloss said.

Kloss said investigators in Texas and elsewhere are working on the case. He said he is following up leads from numerous sources.

When life's balance no longer is healthy

Like so many people, Carol successfully learned to juggle career, home and personal relationships. She also found the mounting stresses to be overwhelming. Office pressure and deadlines made her tense and irritable, and the weight of tending alone to many domestic matters brought on uncontrollable anxiety. Emotional balance was difficult and, at times, impossible.

Missing work on a regular basis, lack of concentration and errors caused her employer to question her judgement and ability. Her job was in jeopardy. Withdrawing from family and friends only enhanced Carol's feelings of hopelessness and rejection. She felt out of control.

If you or someone you love needs help, call us. We want to help people learn to cope with life and its problems. For more information, call (915) 563-1200.

AIDS-infected prisoner returned to Amarillo

PAPILLION, Neb. (AP) — A prisoner infected with the AIDS virus is on his way back to Texas, Sarpy County Jail authorities said.

Gary Robinson, 24, was picked up Thursday for return to Amarillo for parole violation, said Chief Deputy Sheriff Lee Polikov.

Robinson's return will mean an end to special precautions the jail had been taking since his drunken-driving arrest by the Nebraska State Patrol two weeks ago.

It was learned then that Robinson was infected with AIDS but has not developed the disease.

Sarpy County officials isolated Robinson from other prisoners, destroyed his clothes, fed him on disposable plates and wore surgical gloves to touch him.

Robinson, who has been convicted and served prison terms for burglary, said in an interview that he thinks he got the virus three years ago when he was using a syringe to take drugs.

Cisneros forms PAC

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros has formed a statewide political action committee and the group has already scheduled its first fund-raiser.

Cisneros said the Committee for Texas Progress was formed to raise money for other campaigns and issues such as education, highways, and science and technology.

"And perhaps down the road an exploration of an elective political office," Cisneros said.

He said 1990 is the first election year that offers an office he might be interested in.

The group reportedly will have a fund-raiser May 20 in Austin at the home of political consultant Roy Spence.

Cisneros said he has strong support in Austin, Houston and Dallas for his PAC, which is headquartered in Austin and is registered with the secretary of state.

Cisneros, who is co-chairman of U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's 1988 reelection effort, is expected to contribute some of the funds generated by his statewide PAC to Bentsen and other Democratic candidates.

City has first murder of '87

PLAINVIEW (AP) — The stabbing death of a 75-year-old antique dealer marks the first murder this year in this Panhandle community, authorities said.

Fern Laird was found dead Thursday afternoon in a back room of her antique store by two customers, police said. An autopsy said she died of several stab wounds to the chest.

A 27-year-old man who lives about six blocks from Laird's Colonial Antiques was arrested in the case and was being held in the Hale County Jail, authorities said.

SMU trustees OK plan for new board

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University's board of trustees approved a plan Friday to overhaul the school's governing structure in a bid to prevent a repeat of the scandal that killed the Mustang football program for two years.

As part of the plan that calls for a 40-member board of trustees instead of the current one of 75, 16 trustees resigned during the meeting.

Chairman Edwin Cox, one of those who resigned Friday, called it a "momentous day in Southern Methodist University's history. The SMU trustees took a quantum leap forward."

Friday's action is the latest in several steps the board has taken since February, when the National Collegiate Athletic Association banned SMU's 1987 football season and limited it to seven road games the following year.

In March, the board abolished its smaller, elite board of governors, which had controlled the daily operations of the university and included some of Dallas' most influential businessmen.

That was done after Gov. Bill Clements, former chairman of the board of governors, revealed March 3 that he and other members knew of improper payments to players and allowed them to continue. Clements resigned his post on the board when he was inaugurated governor in January.

The trustees' new plan calls for board members to be more diverse and gives more authority to the university president. Dr. William Stallcup has served as SMU's interim president since the Nov. 21 resignation of L. Donald Shields, and a new president still is being sought.

Shields, who cited health reasons, stepped down during the NCAA investigation into payments made to Mustang football players.

The new SMU organization will be phased in over a year and includes electing a trusteeship committee to oversee further changes. The transition is expected to be finished by July 1988, when a completely new board will be elected by the South Central Jurisdiction of the United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Leighton Farrell, chairman of the 10-member trusteeship committee that will oversee the changes, said four other trustees will serve on the panel along with the school president and representatives of the Methodist bishops, faculty, students and alumni.

Other trustees on the panel are Charles M. Harmon Jr. of New York, Ray L. Hunt of Dallas, Charles H. Pistor Jr. of Dallas, and Richard Ware II of Amarillo.

Bishops and the student, faculty and alumni groups will each elect their representative to the committee, Farrell said.

Farrell was chairman of the committee that studied and recommended changes in the SMU governing structure.

When the transition is complete, another trusteeship committee will be formed to nominate trustees, ensure diversity of members on the panel and oversee both the board and individual trustees, Farrell said.

"I'm enthusiastic about its future," Farrell said. "The best is yet to come."

SMU's president would make all administrative appointments and would be given a clear statement of the board's performance expectations.

Farrell said the trustees would not interfere in the day-to-day operations of the college and that those responsibilities would be left to its president.

The upheaval at SMU began Feb. 25 when the NCAA banned the 1987 football program. More recently, Stallcup said the school also would drop football in 1988 because the school would be unable to rebuild a team that year.

Candidates 'sad' about Hart's decision

NATION

Hart

WASHINGTON (AP) — The candidates who sought to derail Gary Hart's front-runner status expressed regret Friday that the race for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination would have to continue without him.

They spoke of sadness and sympathy, and predicted a campaign to the finish as each sought to emerge from the back of the pack. But most withheld comment on how their campaigns would be aided by Hart's decision.

"It's the worst of times for Senator Hart but perhaps the best of times for a lot of other candidates," said John White, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

An angry and defiant Hart, though not mentioning the relationship with a Miami model that led to his downfall, said the events of the past week had made it impossible for him to continue his campaign.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who with Hart's departure becomes the only Democratic holdover from the 1984 campaign, expressed "a sense of profound personal loss...a sense of agony that I share with his family."

"We cannot lose the legacy of his direction and his ideas," Jackson said, mentioning South Africa, defense, Central America and the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law.

Jackson said he wasn't the front-runner but that because of his second-place showing in the polls, some are bound to label him as such. "It puts an awesome burden and responsibility on me, and I feel the weight of it already," he said.

"Gary Hart's withdrawal from the race today is saddening," Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said in a statement. "The ordeal he, his family, staff and supporters have gone through now ends and my personal sympathies are with him and them."

Gephardt, the first Democrat to formally announce his candidacy, said, however, that Hart's decision to withdraw for personal reasons was understandable.

"No one likes to see a campaign end this way," said Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee.

Gore, who has not yet officially announced his candidacy, offered his sympathy to Hart and his wife, Lee. "He presented many constructive ideas which will continue to enrich America's political dialogue. Gary Hart was a good senator and will always be a good friend," Gore said.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis also spoke of the ideas that Hart brought to the campaign.

"Gary Hart has raised some very, very important issues that face this country and these are issues that must be discussed and must be debated, not just during the course of this campaign but they're going to be faced by the next president of the United States," Dukakis said.

"Obviously the campaign will have to go forward," said Dukakis, who announced his candidacy April 29. "I for one regret very much that Gary Hart will not be part of it."

Dukakis likened the campaign to a marathon. "The front-runner is undecided with a capital 'U,'" he said. "We have many, many miles to go before the Iowa caucuses and many other primaries which will determine just who is the nominee."

Sen. Joe Biden, campaigning in Des Moines, Iowa, had little comment about Hart's withdrawal and what it meant for his chances for the nomination. "Well, first of all I'm not sure, and even I was I don't think it would be appropriate to comment on it," the Delaware Democat said.

Speaking at his campaign headquarters in Washington, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois told reporters, "Certainly our heart goes out to Gary and Lee and the family.

"My hope is that many of the people who shared the dreams and hopes of Gary Hart who were in his campaign will now be coming aboard with the Simon campaign, that is fighting for the kinds of things that our Democratic Party has traditionally stood for," Simon said.

Simon said some Hart people already were coming aboard his campaign but said that it was too early to tell what effect Hart's decision would have on the race. "We're not changing any of our scheduling. We're not changing any of our tactics. We continue to emphasize the same issues," he said.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who officially entered the Democratic race on March 10, called Hart "a pioneer for our party's new generation. The ideas and causes his campaign set in motion in 1984 will be very much a part of our debate in 1988."

Workers didn't know about inmate's past

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Workers at the Center for Psychiatry at Ypsilanti told a court they didn't know about the violent past of inmate William Scott Day, who escaped with the help of a center employee and is accused of six killings.

"I believe it is criminal that ward staff members did not have access to Mr. Day's full history," staff member Mark Bartow wrote to Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Edward D. Deake.

On Thursday, Deake sentenced Thomas Fortunato to 2½ to 7 years in prison for helping Day escape Dec. 4. Fortunato hid Day in a laundry cart and wheeled him through a security gate. The two fled the state in a rented car.

Fortunato surrendered to the FBI in Florida and Day was arrested Jan. 12 in West Texas after criss-crossing the South on buses for five weeks.

Day is accused of killing six people during that time in Texas, Arizona, Tennessee, Florida and Louisiana.

Last year, Day, who was serving time at the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for kidnapping, was transferred to the center outside Ypsilanti for treatment of depression.

Forensic Center Director William Meyer said the Department of Corrections provided little background on Day, including three past escapes.

"We did get very scanty information from them," he said.

Meyer said there are no specific rules on what information is passed along from the prison to the Forensic Center. "It's up to them," he said.

"I firmly believe that had Tom (Fortunato) known of Day's past criminal activities, he would not have done what he did," said coworker James McCaffery.

Steve Spurgeon of Odessa, Texas, an attorney for the family of one of the Texas victims, said Thursday that officials in Michigan didn't do everything they should have to prevent Day's escape.

"It's incredible that the state of Michigan did so little to protect all the citizens throughout the U.S. from an individual with a history of violent crimes — kidnapping, assault, attempted murder — and who had escaped previously from other institutions," he said.

"My clients know no amount of money can bring loved ones back, and this case has little to do with money. It has everything to do with safety."

Treasurer disappears after being accused of taking funds

Poder

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP — The city treasurer hasn't been seen since he rode off on a moped two hours after the FBI questioned him about an unauthorized, one-day investment of $20 million in village funds that netted more than $68,000.

"If he jumped a plane he could be anywhere. He's being treated as a fugitive now," FBI spokesman Bob Long said Friday in Chicago.

Lee L. Poder disappeared Monday, two days before federal agents accused him of pocketing nearly $10,000 from the transaction.

But village officials say they don't know if any money is really missing, and credit Poder's skillful financial work and investments with helping keep down taxes.

"I just want him to come home. This whole thing has just been blown out of proportion," said Poder's wife, Joanne.

Mrs. Poder believes her husband took a .22-caliber handgun from their home in nearby Clarendon Hills, said police Lt. Phillip Olszewski.

An FBI bulletin issued Thursday said the balding, gray-haired Poder may be "armed, dangerous and suicidal."

Poder was last seen driving away from a motorcyle dealership on a moped he had taken in earlier for repair. That was shortly after FBI agents interviewed him at his office, said police in this northwest Chicago suburb.

Poder, 42, was charged in a federal complaint Wednesday with one count of fraudulent use of financial wires, Long said. He is accused of using money from the Fire Department pension fund to buy U.S. Treasury bonds in a unauthorized transaction that resulted in a profit of $68,750.

Federal authorities say Poder pocketed $9,680.

"Right now we know that he pocketed the money and bought something with it at a coin shop," Long said. "We're still looking at all the things he's been involved with."

But Arlington Heights officials say they believe most, if not all, of the profit went into the pension fund.

Auditors working for the village had not yet completed their check of municipal accounts.

"In order to determine if any money is missing and how much, you need to have a complete picture, and we are far from having a complete picture," said John Gross, the village financial director and Poder's boss.

"We are not in any position to say if we have made or lost any money."

Gross said Friday he had no idea when the village audit would be completed.

Poder has been suspended without pay from his $37,385-a-year job because of the unauthorized transaction, he said.

Poder had been treasurer for four years, he said.

"He has made quite a lot of money for the village, considerably above what was expected in the budget," said Gross, who credited Poder with helping to hold down local property taxes.

"He just wanted to be loved and respected by everybody," said Assistant Village Manager G. Frank Charlton.

The federal complaint said the bond transaction took place on April 15.

On April 22, the profit was wired to the Bank of Hinsdale, where Poder had an account that had until then contained $50, according to the complaint.

Most of the money subsequently was deposited into the village pension fund account.

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Weather: 55, wind still, one inch rain.

In today's edition of The Pennsylvania Gazette, the discussion of state certificates continued. The payment of interest on these certificates had emptied the state's treasury.

In a letter, Noah Webster vehemently denied authorship of a previous article. Threats having been directed at that, Webster wrote: "I have only to inform the public that threatening is thrown away on me. I live in a free country — and claim the privilege of thinking and speaking as I please — a privilege I shall resign only with my breath."

In today's Pennsylvania Herald, Peter Gallaudet advertised a new shipment of cloth for sale at his shop in Second Street below Chestnut.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Congress assembled with nine states fully represented and two partially so. The ordinance for the government of the western territory, introdueed in September 1786, was read for the second time.

Today the state treasurer of New York paid two of the state's representatives to the Annapolis Convention, Egbert Benson and Alexander Hamilton. As the convention had been held in September 1786, eight months had passed in settling these accounts.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington departed this cloudy morning from Mount Vernon en route to Philadelphia. The general crossed the Potomac and lodged with Maj. Thomas Snowden at Montpelier in Prince Georges County, Md. He ordered a new plow of Snowden for delivery to Mount Vernon.

William Samuel Johnson wrote Connecticut Gov. Samuel Huntington, inquiring about that state's representation in Congress. Johnson had been selected to attend the Convention in Philadelphia and his absence left Connecticut unrepresented in Congress at New York.

LOOKING BACK
The Family Gallaudet

Peter Gallaudet, a Philadelphia merchant of Huguenot descent, advertised a new arrival of cloth in today's paper 200 years ago. Gallaudet's wife, Jane Hopkins, in December 1787 gave birth to a son, Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, who moved with the family to Hartford, Conn., as a teen-ager and graduated from Yale in 1805. While studying for the ministry, Thomas encountered a deaf child and became intrigued with teaching. The Royal Institute in Paris aided him and in 1817 he and Laurent Clerc opened the first free school for the deaf in Hartford. In addition to the deaf, Gallaudet believed firmly in educating women and teaching manual training.

Thomas married Sophie Fowler, one of his first students at Hartford.

Both the youngest and eldest sons carried on their work with the deaf.

The youngest son, Edward, established with Amos Kendall a school for deaf children in Washington. Congress in 1864 granted the school, Columbia Institution, the right to confer college degrees and funded faculty and building. In 1894 it became Gallaudet College.

Thomas, the eldest son, established a Bible class for the deaf at St. Stephen's Church in New York City. Ordained in 1851, he began St. Ann's Church for Deaf Mutes, which met at the University of the City of New York. In 1898 the congregation erected a new church and parish house at 148th Street.

NATION in brief

Teen saves girl's life

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A week after he learned mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in his eighth-grade health class, Chris Lippard saved the life of a 21-month-old girl, her father says.

Chris, 14, was visiting a friend Tuesday when they heard David Applegate yelling.

"We went over to see what it was," said Chris. "At the time, she was breathing, but then she started turning blue, so I gave her mouth-to-mouth."

Applegate said his daughter, Corie Dawn, was gasping for air when Chris arrived.

"She stopped breathing. She was purple. I was panicking. I didn't know what to do. If someone hadn't been there and known what was going on, she'd have been dead," the father said Thursday.

Chris said he doesn't remember deciding what to do. "It just came into my mind. I just did it," he said.

By the time firefighters arrived, she was breathing again. Fire Lt. William W. Hiteshew said, "I heard them all complimenting the boy."

Doctors said strep throat had caused a high temperature, which resulted in a seizure. Corie left the hospital Wednesday and was feeling better, Applegate said.

Hollings backs Webster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ernest F. Hollings said Friday that he would no longer block Senate confirmation of FBI Director William H. Webster to head the CIA because Webster had promised to investigate civilians working at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Hollings, D-S.C., said he made the decision after a meeting with Webster on Friday at which the director told him a probe would be made of the workers at the embassy, which has been plagued with security problems.

The senator had said Wednesday that he would hold up Webster's nomination until he was assured that the FBI was investigating State Department officials in Moscow.

The Navy has been investigating reports that Marine guards at the embassy gave away American secrets after socializing with Soviet women. Until Friday, FBI officials would only say that they were monitoring the Navy probe.

Microwaves common

NEW YORK (AP) — Microwave ovens have become more common than dishwashers in U.S. households, according to a survey.

Nearly 60 percent of American homes had microwave ovens last year, while about 50 percent had dishwashers, according to MRCA Information Services, which surveyed 2,000 homes nationwide.

"More than 55 million servings pass through microwave ovens each day, ranging from beverages to baby food, popcorn to potatoes," Elaine Howard, the editor of the market research report, said.

Ownership of microwave ovens was up sharply from 44 percent in 1985 and 26 percent in 1982, the only other times the survey was conducted.

Usage was highest among households of young people without children, at 76 percent, and households with teen-agers, at 73 percent.

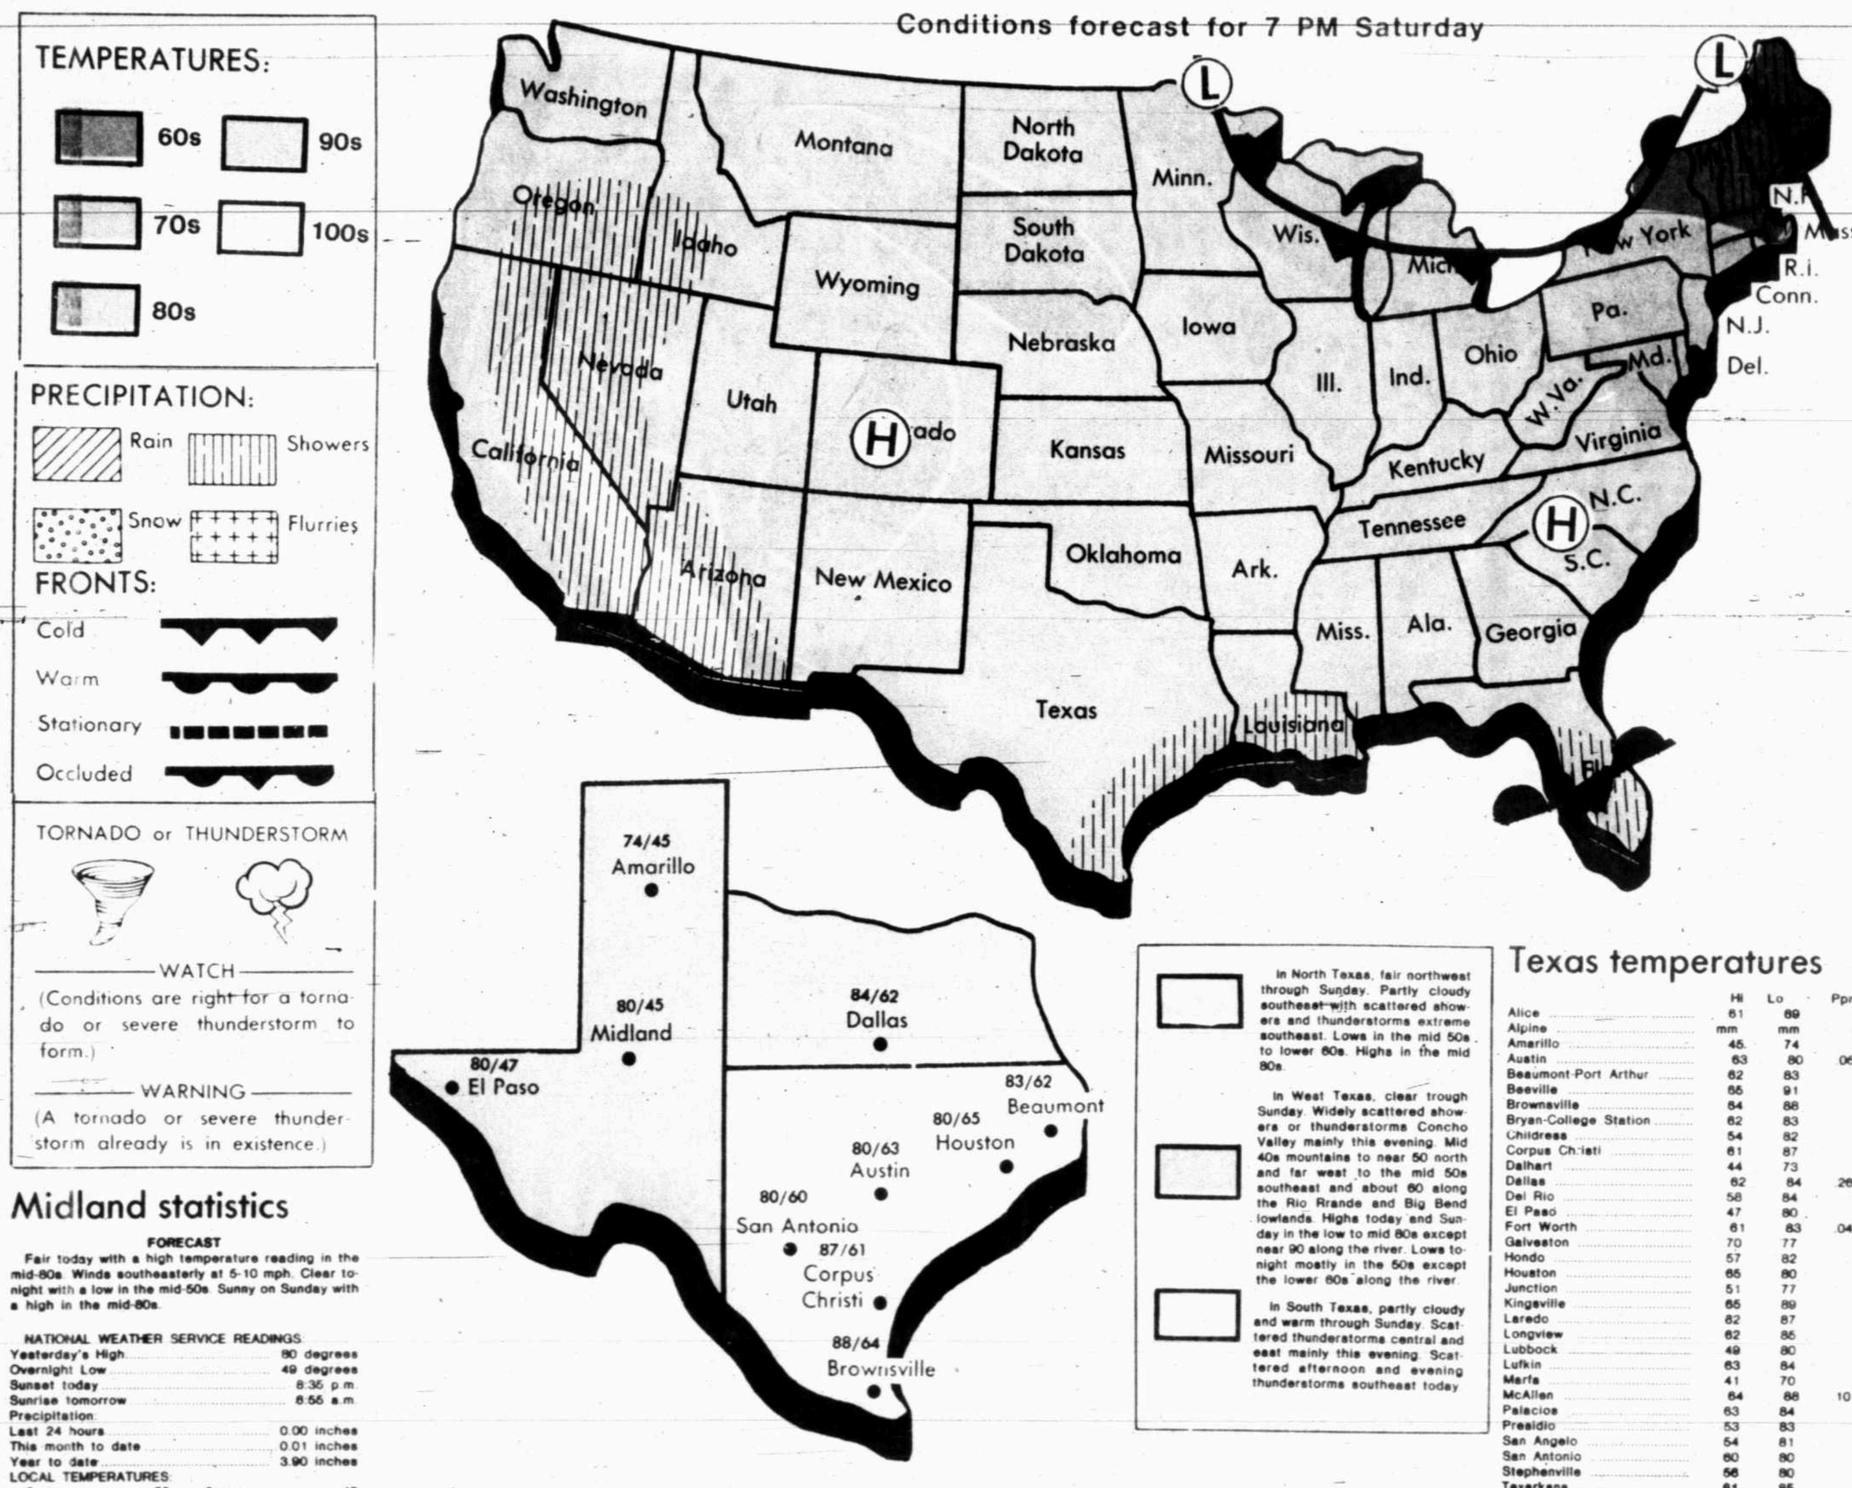
WEATHER SUMMARY



Warm weather in area forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

The high temperature today is to be in the mid-80s, and winds are to be southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

For tonight, the weatherman is calling for a low in the mid-50s. Sunday is to be a sunny day, boasting of a peak temperature reading in the mid-80s.

The high temperature Friday was 80 degrees, and the record high for a May 8 is 103 degrees in 1947. The overnight low was 49 degrees, and the record low for a May 9 is 42 degrees in 1969.

STATE

Late-afternoon showers and thunderstorms dampened much of Central, north Central and East Texas Friday, and a line of showers extended across the upper coastal plains into the northwest Gulf of Mexico.

Showers were also reported over parts of south Central and Southeast Texas, according to the National Weather Service.

Most of the showers and thunderstorms were triggered by afternoon heating and a weak upper-level low-pressure system moving across Southeast Texas, the weather service said.

The weather service said skies should be fair to partly cloudy over most of the state today. Highs will be mostly in the 80s, but along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend, the highs will be in the 90s.

NATION

Most of the nation had sunny skies and pleasant temperatures Friday, with some record highs in the Northwest, but showers and thundershowers were scattered over the South.

Very warm weather was reported over the West with temperatures in the 80s and 90s.

But in the East, a frost warning was posted into this morning across West Virginia's northern mountains and Greenbrier Valley, where temperatures were expected to dip into the upper 20s and lower 30s.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered from central and southeastern Texas across southern Louisiana into the northern Gulf of Mexico, over sections of Florida and along the coast of the Carolinas.

Elsewhere, a few rainshowers lingered over southeastern Massachusetts. And scattered showers and thundershowers developed over the West, mainly over the mountains.

For today, showers and thunderstorms were forecast over Florida, with a few rainshowers extending from western New York to northern Vermont. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast over the Plateau, the Sierra Nevada of California and the Rockies.

Midland statistics

FORECAST

Fair today with a high temperature reading in the mid-80s. Winds southeasterly at 5-10 mph. Clear tonight with a low in the mid-50s. Sunny on Sunday with a high in the mid-80s.

Brady's 'lost' home run foils Angel comeback

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Angel Brian Brady lost sight of the ball he hit off Jackson pitcher Jose Roman in the bottom of the eighth. All he knew was it was gone. It was over the left field fence and the game was tied, 7-7.

Brady celebrated his success by going into his home run trot. He'd just hit a pinch hit homer, his second of the year, and everything was great. Or, so he thought.

Rounding second base, Brady looked up and saw the ball come sailing in from the outfield. He had been mistaken. It hadn't gone out. The ball had hit the top of the fence and he was trapped between bases, caught in a no-win run-down.

Jackson second baseman Steve Phillips eventually applied the tag to end the inning. The Mets went on to claim a 7-6 Texas League victory.

"I thought it was a home run," said Brady. "It was the most embarassing thing I ever did. The way the outfielders stopped at the wall, I thought the ball had disappeared behind the fence. My head was down after that and I went into my home run trot. The next thing I knew they were throwing it in. It took us out of the inning and it took us out of the game.

"I should have seen it," continued Brady. "A good hitter, a good base runner will watch the ball. I was totally caught up in the situation. I was all pumped up, pinch hitting in a key situation, and with the way the ball came off the bat, I thought it was a home run. I nearly lost my mind when I got back to the dugout. I was so embarassed."

Embarassed enough to promise his mistake would never be repeated.

WHILE BRADY made a mistake that could have cost a run, Midland pitchers weren't exactly helping a winning cause. The Mets were on the base paths all night.

Starter Chris Collins was rocked despite nine strikeouts, giving up 10 hits, a walk and six earned runs before being relieved in the seventh.

Phillips broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning with his RBI double to left, the eventual game winner, and Joaquin Contreras made it 3-1 with a double up the middle for the only multiple run inning the Mets had all night.

Solo tallies in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth kept the Angels at bay. Midland's big rally, three runs, died when Brady was caught between bases.

"We just didn't get the timely hit, we left too many men on base," said Angel manager Max Oliveras, who added about Brady, "That was a mental mistake for Brian. He should look for the umpire's signal. I heard and saw the ball hit the top of the fence. I saw him in his home run trot and started yelling."

THE GAME was the first of five the Angels have against Jackson in this home stand and Oliveras knows what his team has to do if they are going to claim some wins.

"To beat them, you have to take their first two runners out of circulation," he said.

Midland catcher Edwin Marquez rolls into Steve Phillips of Jackson in an effort to break up the double play at second base in Texas League action Friday night at Angels Stadium. Jackson won, 7-6.

Leadoff hitter Marcus Lawton was not only 2-for-4 with a double and triple but also walked, stole a base and scored three runs for the Mets. No. 2 Phillips only got one hit, but scored one and drove in the game winner with his double.

The third Jackson batter is also someone to keep an eye on. Gregg Jeffries was 4-for-5 with three RBI and two stolen bases.

"They like to run, especially Jefferies. He looked pretty good," said Oliveras.

ANGEL NOTES: Midland turned the best defensive play of the night, overlooking three Jackson double plays. With reliever Miguel Garcia facing his first batter, Met Contreras stole second. Jeffries, who was on third, waited for the throw and headed home. Midland second baseman John Hotchkiss took the throw, was too late for the tag, but still had time to return the ball to Marquez, who trapped Jeffries. He was put out by Joe Redfield in a rundown. Tonight, Midland will start left-hander Mike Romanovsky, 2-1, while the Mets counter with Kyle Hartshorn, 1-2.

Atlanta's Kevin Willis looks for the pass as Detroit's Joe Dumars defends in NBA playoff action Friday.

Isiah puts charge in Piston offense

Hawks-Pistons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Isiah Thomas, angered and frustrated by taunts from the Atlanta Hawks, responded the way basketball players understand best.

Thomas scored an NBA playoff-record 25 points in the third quarter Friday night, lifting the Detroit Pistons to a 108-99 victory over Atlanta and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven playoff series.

"They said some very unkind things about our basketball team in the newspapers," Thomas said. "Some things we don't deserve. We have a good basketball team. We work very hard. We didn't deserve that."

Thomas wouldn't say specifically what it was that angered him, but teammate John Salley said Thomas was stung by a report that indicated Detroit's guards had been outplayed during the first two games.

In addition, Thomas said, he just plain wanted to pump some fire into the Pistons' offense.

"I felt I had to do something to spark our team," Thomas said. "We needed points. They wouldn't come from our set offense. We tried that in the first half. So, we had to more or less free-form, a free style of play to get us going."

Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said Thomas was unstoppable once he got going in the pivotal third quarter.

"He's not a normal player," Fratello said. "You're talking about an unusual player, a great All-Star."

Game 4 is scheduled for Sunday at the Silverdome.

Thomas, who finished with 35 points, broke the NBA playoff record of 23 points in a single period shared by Bernard King of New York and Gus Williams of Seattle, both in 1984.

Thomas also led Detroit's pick-pocket defense as the Pistons broke away from a 41-41 halftime deadlock. The biggest lead in the first half was only four points, but with Thomas leading the charge, the Pistons outscored the Hawks 38-23 for a 79-64 advantage with 3:13 remaining in the third quarter.

Atlanta closed the deficit to 85-75 at the end of the third quarter, but then Dennis Rodman took over, scoring nine fourth-quarter points for the Pistons to the roaring approval of 24,544 fans, the largest crowd in Pistons' playoff history.

The game was free of the body-slamming, elbow-throwing tactics that marred Game 2 until Wilkins got scissored between Thomas and Rick Mahorn and fell to the floor while soaring in for a layup with 1:20 remaining in the second quarter.

Wilkins, feeling he'd been pushed by Mahorn, came up swinging and both benches emptied immediately. No punches landed during the pushing and shoving that followed, although the 6-foot-1 Thomas jumped up on the back of 7-foot Willis and hung there for a few seconds.

Mahorn was assessed a personal foul and Wilkins sank both free throws for a 41-41 tie that stood for the remainder of the first half.

Scott fans 12, two-hits punchless Expos

NL Roundup

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Mike Scott tossed a two-hitter and struck out 12, tying his season high and leading the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

Scott, 4-2, who one-hit the Los Angeles Dodgers on April 15, walked two and snapped a two-game losing streak. The Houston right-hander had a no-hitter going until Casey Candaele tripled off right fielder Kevin Bass' glove with two outs in the sixth.

John Stefero singled in the eighth for Montreal's other hit. Scott also struck out 12 against Cincinnati on April 24.

The Astros took the lead in the first inning when Phil Garner homered into the left-field bleachers off Neal Heaton, 3-2. It was his third home run of the season.

Houston, which has won three straight games, added two runs in the eighth. Alan Ashby reached first on catcher Stefero's interference. Ashby went to second on a single by Scott and scored on a base hit by Bill Doran, chasing Heaton. Billy Hatcher's single to left off reliever Andy McGaffigan scored Scott.

Reds 4, Phillies 3

CINCINNATI — Eric Davis' two-run double highlighted a four-run third-inning that carried Cincinnati to a victory over struggling Philadelphia.

Left-hander Tom Browning, 3-4, gave up seven hits — three of them solo homers — in 6⅔ innings. Two of the home runs were by Luis Aguayo, who now has five for the season.

John Franco pitched the ninth for his sixth save, retiring all three batters. Franco has gotten out 31 of the last 32 batters he's faced.

Davis again was the biggest nemesis for the 8-18 Phillies, who have lost their last four games. Davis is 10-for-17 — a .588 average — with five homers and 13 RBI in four games against the Phillies this season.

Braves 4, Mets 3

ATLANTA — Graig Nettles drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly with one out in the 10th inning as Atlanta edged New York.

Dale Murphy walked with one out, stole second and advanced to third when catcher Gary Carter's throw bounced into center field for an error. Nettles then flied out to medium right field, with Murphy scoring after Darryl Strawberry made a weak throw.

Ozzie Virgil had tied the score 3-3 when he opened the seventh inning with his sixth homer of the season, a shot into the left-field seats off Ron Darling.

The Braves hit two other homers off Darling, who had entered the game with a 6-0 lifetime record against Atlanta. Albert Hall hit his first homer of the year leading off the Atlanta first, and Murphy got his sixth of the season to open the fourth.

Foursome tops Nelson Classic

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING (AP) — Seven groups had to finish their second rounds today in the storm-delayed $600,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic, but none of the 20 players could catch leaders Ben Crenshaw, Bob Lohr, Tom Byrum and Donnie Hammond.

The low-shooting foursome was tied for the lead at the 36-hole mark with a tournament record 9-under par 131.

Crenshaw's spectacular eagle Friday gave him a 5-under 65. Bob Lohr tied the course record with a 62, Hammond had a 63, and Byrum shot a 64.

"The greens are so soft it's like target practice and it probably will take some more good rounds to win," Crenshaw said. "Is this crazy or not?"

Lohr's 62 tied the competitive course record at the Tournament Players Course at Las Colinas set by Robert Hoyt in the 1986 North Texas PGA Tournament.

"I was hitting my drives longer than I know how to hit them," said Lohr, who is 157th on the money list. "I'm exhausted. I had a 40-minute wait under a bridge when the storm hit."

The storm delayed play for 2½ hours and the soft greens made iron shots and putting easier. Play was to resume at 7:30 a.m. today.

"You could just fire at the pins," Crenshaw said. "On the hole I eagled I hit a three-wood that stuck right by the hole."

AP Laserphoto

Greg Norman, one stroke back of leaders.

The 131 breaks the Nelson Classic 36-hole record of 132 which is held by Mac O'Grady, Bob Gilder, and Kermit Zarley. It ties for the low total on the PGA Tour this year which was shot in two tournaments.

Former Nelson champion Crenshaw hit a 3-wood just two inches from the hole for a tap-in eagle on the seventh hole, a 533-yard Par 5.

"It almost went into the hole," Crenshaw said. "It went about 250 yards. It was the best shot I hit all day."

Greg Norman, who shot a 68, and Fred Couples who had a 67 including a damaging double-bogey on the last hole, were at 8-under par 132.

Another shot back was Danny Briggs, the 1982 Southwest Conference champion from Texas A&M, who posted a 6-under 64 and was at a 7-under par 133. Briggs needed a sponsor's exemption to get into the tournament.

Norman began the day tied with Payne Stewart, who also had an opening-round 64. Stewart had a 71 and was at 5-under 135.

Barfield HRs rocket Jays past Rangers

AL

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Jesse Barfield hit two homers and drove in five runs Friday night, giving the Toronto Blue Jays a 7-4 victory over Texas, ending the Rangers' eight-game winning streak at home.

Barfield's three-run shot capped a five-run first inning against Jose Guzman, 1-2. Barfield hit a two-run homer in the third off Guzman for a 7-1 lead.

Barfield, who led the major leagues with 40 home runs last season, has nine this year. He has hit four against Texas, three of them off Guzman.

Jim Clancy, 4-2, won his third straight decision. He left with one out in the seventh inning after pinch-hitter Geno Petralli's three-run homer made it 7-4. Mark Eichhorn relieved and earned his second save.

Warm weather in area forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

The high temperature today is to be in the mid-80s, and winds are to be southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

For tonight, the weatherman is calling for a low in the mid-50s. Sunday is to be a sunny day, boasting of a peak temperature reading in the mid-80s.

The high temperature Friday was 80 degrees, and the record high for a May 8 is 103 degrees in 1947. The overnight low was 49 degrees, and the record low for a May 9 is 42 degrees in 1969.

STATE

Late-afternoon showers and thunderstorms dampened much of Central, north Central and East Texas Friday, and a line of showers extended across the upper coastal plains into the northwest Gulf of Mexico.

Showers were also reported over parts of south Central and Southeast Texas, according to the National Weather Service.

Most of the showers and thunderstorms were triggered by afternoon heating and a weak upper-level low-pressure system moving across Southeast Texas, the weather service said.

The weather service said skies should be fair to partly cloudy over most of the state today. Highs will be mostly in the 80s, but along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend, the highs will be in the 90s.

NATION

Most of the nation had sunny skies and pleasant temperatures Friday, with some record highs in the Northwest, but showers and thundershowers were scattered over the South.

Very warm weather was reported over the West with temperatures in the 80s and 90s.

But in the East, a frost warning was posted into this morning across West Virginia's northern mountains and Greenbrier Valley, where temperatures were expected to dip into the upper 20s and lower 30s.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered from central and southeastern Texas across southern Louisiana into the northern Gulf of Mexico, over sections of Florida and along the coast of the Carolinas.

Elsewhere, a few rainshowers lingered over southeastern Massachusetts. And scattered showers and thundershowers developed over the West, mainly over the mountains.

For today, showers and thunderstorms were forecast over Florida, with a few rainshowers extending from western New York to northern Vermont. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast over the Plateau, the Sierra Nevada of California and the Rockies.

Brady's 'lost' home run foils Angel comeback

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Angel Brian Brady lost sight of the ball he hit off Jackson pitcher Jose Roman in the bottom of the eighth. All he knew was it was gone. It was over the left field fence and the game was tied, 7-7.

Brady celebrated his success by going into his home run trot. He'd just hit a pinch hit homer, his second of the year, and everything was great. Or, so he thought.

Rounding second base, Brady looked up and saw the ball come sailing in from the outfield. He had been mistaken. It hadn't gone out. The ball had hit the top of the fence and he was trapped between bases, caught in a no-win run-down.

Jackson second baseman Steve Phillips eventually applied the tag to end the inning. The Mets went on to claim a 7-6 Texas League victory.

"I thought it was a home run," said Brady. "It was the most embarassing thing I ever did. The way the outfielders stopped at the wall, I thought the ball had disappeared behind the fence. My head was down after that and I went into my home run trot. The next thing I knew they were throwing it in. It took us out of the inning and it took us out of the game.

"I should have seen it," continued Brady. "A good hitter, a good base runner will watch the ball. I was totally caught up in the situation. I was all pumped up, pinch hitting in a key situation, and with the way the ball came off the bat, I thought it was a home run. I nearly lost my mind when I got back to the dugout. I was so embarassed."

Embarassed enough to promise his mistake would never be repeated.

WHILE BRADY made a mistake that could have cost a run, Midland pitchers weren't exactly helping a winning cause. The Mets were on the base paths all night.

Starter Chris Collins was rocked despite nine strikeouts, giving up 10 hits, a walk and six earned runs before being relieved in the seventh.

Phillips broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning with his RBI double to left, the eventual game winner, and Joaquin Contreras made it 3-1 with a double up the middle for the only multiple-run inning the Mets had all night.

Solo tallies in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth kept the Angels at bay. Midland's big rally, three runs, died when Brady was caught between bases.

"We just didn't get the timely hit, we left too many men on base," said Angel manager Max Oliveras, who added about Brady, "That was a mental mistake for Brian. He should look for the umpire's signal. I heard and saw the ball hit the top of the fence. I saw him in his home run trot and started yelling."

THE GAME was the first of five the Angels have against Jackson in this home stand and Oliveras knows what his team has to do if they are going to claim some wins.

"To beat them, you have to take their first two runners out of circulation," he said.

Midland catcher Edwin Marquez rolls into Steve Phillips of Jackson in an effort to break up the double play at second base in Texas League action Friday night at Angels Stadium. Jackson won, 7-6.

Leadoff hitter Marcus Lawton was not only 2-for-4 with a double and triple, but also walked, stole a base and scored three runs for the Mets. No. 2 Phillips only got one hit, but scored one and drove in the game winner with his double.

The third Jackson batter is also someone to keep an eye on. Gregg Jeffries was 4-for-5 with three RBI and two stolen bases.

"They like to run, especially Jefferies. He looked pretty good," said Oliveras.

ANGEL NOTES: Midland turned the best defensive play of the night, overlooking three Jackson double plays. With reliever Miguel Garcia facing his first batter, Met Contreras stole second. Jeffries, who was on third, waited for the throw and headed home. Midland second baseman John Hotchkiss took the throw, was too late for the tag, but still had time to return the ball to Marquez, who trapped Jeffries. He was put out by Joe Redfield in a rundown. Tonight, Midland will start left-hander Mike Romanovsky, 2-1, while the Mets counter with Kyle Hartshorn, 1-2.

Isiah puts charge in Piston offense

Hawks-Pistons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Isiah Thomas, angered and frustrated by taunts from the Atlanta Hawks, responded the way basketball players understand best.

Thomas scored an NBA playoff-record 25 points in the third quarter Friday night, lifting the Detroit Pistons to a 108-99 victory over Atlanta and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven playoff series.

They said some very unkind things about our basketball team in the newspapers," Thomas said. "Some things we don't deserve. We have a good basketball team. We work very hard. We didn't deserve that."

Thomas wouldn't say specifically what it was that angered him, but teammate John Salley said Thomas was stung by a report that indicated Detroit's guards had been outplayed during the first two games.

In addition, Thomas said he just plain wanted to pump some fire into the Pistons' offense.

"I felt I had to do something to spark our team," Thomas said. "We needed points. They wouldn't come from our set offense. We tried that in the first half. So, we had to more or less free-form, a free style of play to get us going."

Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said Thomas was unstoppable once he got going in the pivotal third quarter.

"He's not a normal player," Fratello said. "You're talking about an unusual player, a great All-Star."

Game 4 is scheduled for Sunday at the Silverdome.

Thomas, who finished with 35 points, broke the NBA playoff record of 23 points in a single period shared by Bernard King of New York and Gus Williams of Seattle, both in 1984.

Thomas also led Detroit's pick-pocket defense as the Pistons broke away from a 41-41 halftime deadlock. The biggest lead in the first half was only four points, but with Thomas leading the charge, the Pistons outscored the Hawks 38-23 for a 79-64 advantage with 3:13 remaining in the third quarter.

Atlanta closed the deficit to 85-75 at the end of the third quarter, but then Dennis Rodman took over, scoring nine fourth-quarter points for the Pistons to the roaring approval of 24,544 fans, the largest crowd in Pistons' playoff history.

The game was free of the body-slamming, elbow-throwing tactics that marred Game 2 until Wilkins got scissored between Thomas and Rick Mahorn and fell to the floor while soaring in for a layup with 1:20 remaining in the second quarter.

Wilkins, feeling he'd been pushed by Mahorn, came up swinging and both benches emptied immediately. No punches landed during the pushing and shoving that followed, although the 6-foot-1 Thomas jumped up on the back of 7-foot Willis and hung there for a few seconds.

Mahorn was assessed a personal foul and Wilkins sank both free throws for a 41-41 tie that stood for the remainder of the first half.

Scott fans 12, two-hits punchless Expos

NL Roundup

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Mike Scott tossed a two-hitter and struck out 12, tying his season high and leading the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

Scott, 4-2, who one-hit the Los Angeles Dodgers on April 15, walked two and snapped a two-game losing streak. The Houston right-hander had a no-hitter going until Casey Candaele tripled off right fielder Kevin Bass' glove with two outs in the sixth.

John Stefero singled in the eighth for Montreal's other hit. Scott also struck out 12 against Cincinnati on April 24.

The Astros took the lead in the first inning when Phil Garner homered into the left-field bleachers off Neal Heaton, 3-2. It was his third home run of the season.

Houston, which has won three straight games, added two runs in the eighth. Alan Ashby reached first on catcher Stefero's interference. Ashby went to second on a single by Scott and scored on a base hit by Bill Doran, chasing Heaton. Billy Hatcher's single to left off reliever Andy McGaffigan scored Scott.

Reds 4, Phillies 3

CINCINNATI — Eric Davis' two-run double highlighted a four-run third-inning that carried Cincinnati to a victory over struggling Philadelphia.

Left-hander Tom Browning, 3-4, gave up seven hits — three of them solo homers — in 6⅓ innings. Two of the home runs were by Luis Aguayo, who now has five for the season.

John Franco pitched the ninth for his sixth save, retiring all three batters. Franco has gotten out 31 of the last 32 batters he's faced.

Davis again was the biggest nemesis for the 8-18 Phillies, who have lost their last four games. Davis is 10-for-17 — a .588 average — with five homers and 13 RBI in four games against the Phillies this season.

Braves 4, Mets 3

ATLANTA — Graig Nettles drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly with one out in the 10th inning as Atlanta edged New York.

Dale Murphy walked with one out, stole second and advanced to third when catcher Gary Carter's throw bounced into center field for an error. Nettles then flied out to medium right field with Murphy scoring after Darryl Strawberry made a weak throw.

Ozzie Virgil had tied the score 3-3 when he opened the seventh inning with his sixth homer of the season, a shot into the left-field seats off Ron Darling.

The Braves hit two other homers off Darling, who had entered the game with a 6-0 lifetime record against Atlanta. Albert Hall hit his first homer of the year leading off the Atlanta first, and Murphy got his sixth of the season to open the fourth.

Foursome tops Nelson Classic

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING (AP) — Seven groups had to finish their second rounds today in the storm-delayed $600,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic, but none of the 20 players could catch leaders Ben Crenshaw, Bob Lohr, Tom Byrum and Donnie Hammond.

The low-shooting foursome was tied for the lead at the 36-hole mark with a tournament record 9-under par 131.

Crenshaw's spectacular eagle Friday gave him a 5-under 65. Bob Lohr tied the course record with a 62, Hammond had a 63, and Byrum shot a 64.

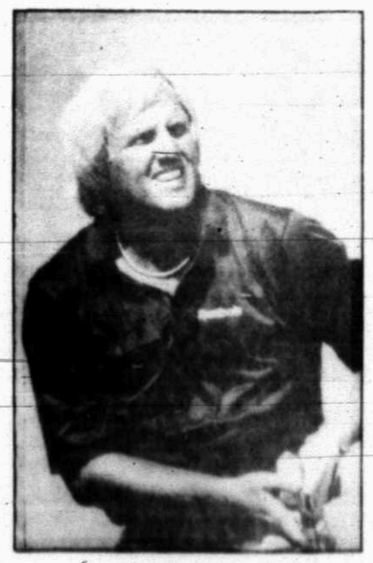
"The greens are so soft it's like target practice and it probably will take some more good rounds to win," Crenshaw said. "Is this crazy or not?"

Lohr's 62 tied the competitive course record at the Tournament Players Course at Las Colinas set by Robert Hoyt in the 1986 North Texas PGA Tournament.

"I was hitting my drives longer than I know how to hit them," said Lohr, who is 157th on the money list. "I'm exhausted. I had a 40-minute wait under a bridge when the storm hit."

The storm delayed play for 2½ hours and the soft greens made iron shots and putting easier. Play was to resume at 7:30 a.m. today.

"You could just fire at the pins," Crenshaw said. "On the hole I eagled I hit a three-wood that stuck right by the hole."



AP Laserphoto

Greg Norman, one stroke back of leaders

The 131 breaks the Nelson Classic 36-hole record of 132 which is held by Mac O'Grady, Bob Gilder, and Kermit Zarley. It ties for the low total on the PGA Tour this year which was shot in two tournaments.

Former Nelson champion Crenshaw hit a 3-wood just two inches from the hole for a tap-in eagle on the seventh hole, a 533-yard Par 5.

"It almost went into the hole," Crenshaw said. "It went about 250 yards. It was the best shot I hit all day."

Greg Norman, who shot a 68, and Fred Couples who had a 67 including a damaging double-bogey on the last hole, were at 8-under par 132.

Another shot back was Danny Briggs, the 1982 Southwest Conference champion from Texas A&M, who posted a 6-under 64 and was at a 7-under par 133. Briggs needed a sponsor's exemption to get into the tournament.

Norman began the day tied with Payne Stewart, who also had an opening-round 64. Stewart had a 71 and was at 5-under 135.

Barfield HRs rocket Jays past Rangers

AL

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Jesse Barfield hit two homers and drove in five runs Friday night, giving the Toronto Blue Jays a 7-4 victory over Texas, ending the Rangers' eight-game winning streak at home.

Barfield's three-run shot capped a five-run first inning against Jose Guzman, 1-2. Barfield hit a two-run homer in the third off Guzman for a 7-1 lead.

Barfield, who led the major leagues with 40 home runs last season, has nine this year. He has hit four against Texas, three of them off Guzman.

Jim Clancy, 4-2, won his third straight decision. He left with one out in the seventh inning after pinch-hitter Geno Petralli's three-run homer made it 7-4. Mark Eichhorn relieved and earned his second save.

Moncrief pulls one out in OT

Bucks-Celtics

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sidney Moncrief scored six points in overtime and Ricky Pierce hit the go-ahead basket with 1:16 left Friday night as the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Boston Celtics 126-121 for their first victory in the Eastern Conference semi-final playoffs.

The Celtics still lead 2-1, with Game 4 of the best-of-7 series Sunday in Milwaukee.

Pierce, who had 29 points, hit the go-ahead jumper from the left side and Terry Cummings added a free throw with 39 seconds left to make it 121-118.

Dennis Johnson, who led the Celtics with 32 points, missed a three-pointer with 27 seconds to go and Paul Pressey hit one free throw with 24 seconds remaining after he was fouled by Boston's Kevin McHale.

It was McHale's sixth foul and when he returned to the bench a scuffle with Milwaukee fans broke out. McHale had to be escorted off the court by security personnel.

Pierce and Moncrief made in two free throws each in the final 18 seconds to clinch the victory.

The Celtics tied the game at the end of regulation with six striaght points in the final 1:04.

Robert Parish's short shot with seven seconds left, after Milwaukee's Jack Sikma had thrown away an inbounds pass, tied the game at 114-114.

John Lucas led Milwaukee with 30 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter. Lucas hit four 3-point baskets in the game, including two in the final period. Milwaukee had an 85-84 lead after three quarters.

Lucas hit a 3-pointer with 4:05 left to gave the Bucks a 106-102 lead and then hit a layup after a steal by Pressey to make it 108-102.

The Celtics narrowed it to 110-108 on Parish's jumper with 1:53 remaining, but after a timeout, Lucas drove the middle for another basket with 1:43 to go. Following a Celtic miss, Sikma's bank shot with 1:16 to go make it 114-108.

McHale finished with 25 points, while Bird and Parish added 18 each for the Celtics. Moncrief finished with 20 for the Bucks and Cummings added 17.

J.C. Goosie notches course record 64

Seniors Golf

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — J.C. Goosie fired a course record 8-under-par 64 Friday to take the first-round lead at the $250,000 Vantage Dominion PGA Seniors golf tournament.

Goosie, of Plant City, Fla., played a bogey-free round with four birdies on on both the front nine and back nine. The seven-year veteran of the senior circuit has never won a PGA or a seniors tournament.

Bob Charles and Chi Chi Rodriguez, the top two money-winners on the seniors tour, are tied for second, three shots back at 67. Bobby Nichols heads a group of four tied at 69. Charles set the previous course record of 65 last year in the same tournament.

"I don't remember when I last led a tourney," Goosie said. "On this course, if you can keep the ball on the fairway, there's no reason why you can't play well."

The par-72 Dominion Country Club course plays at 6,814 yards.

Goosie, who began his round on the back nine, got off to a quick start with birdies on his first two holes.

The birdie on the par-5 11th hole came on a 50-foot sand wedge from a trap after Goosie also put his tee shot into a fairway bunker.

"That 50-footer got me started," Goosie said. "Everything feels better when you're 2 under after two holes."

On the 16th hole, Goosie used a nine-iron approach shot to pull within less than a foot of the flag and calmly rolled it in for his third birdie.

He closed out his first nine by reaching the green of the par-5, 545-yard 18th in two shots then two-putting from 35 feet.

Goosie birdied all four of the par-5s on the course. Currently ranked 54th on the seniors winnings list with $4,025, Goosie owns and operates the Florida Space Coast Tour from October through March.

Kerlin, Livingstone players of year

All SWC Baseball

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' Coby Kerlin and Texas A&M's Scott Livingstone are co-players of the year and Arkansas coach Norm DeBriyn is coach of the year in the 1987 Associated Press All-Southwest Conference baseball team tabulations announced Friday.

The squad, chosen by a vote of SWC coaches, features a 17-man selection along with DeBriyn. The Arkansas coach has guided the Razorbacks to a 43-10 record with three games remaining in regular-season activity.

Texas, the 1987 SWC champion who has been paced by league batting champion Kerlin (.453), has four members of the AP team, while Texas A&M placed five players on the squad.

Arkansas and Houston, the two other schools competing in the May 15-17 SWC post-season tournament in Austin to determine the conference's automatic representative in the NCAA baseball tournament, have two representatives each.

Included among the honor recipients is SWC newcomer of the year, Texas A&M designated hitter John Byington, a freshman from Baytown Lee High School.

The All-SWC baseball team includes two ties in addition to the deadlock for player of the year. Todd Haney of Texas and Terry Taylor of Texas A&M are tied for the second base position, while Omar Brewer of Houston and Chuck Knoblauch of A&M are co-utility outfielders.

Second baseman Kerlin, Haney and Texas A&M shortstop Ever Magallanes are the only repeating All-SWC players from the 1986 dream team. Livingstone is a third baseman.

FOOTBALL

AUSTIN — Former Texas Longhorn running back Edwin Simmons says he will sign a free-agent contract with the Indianapolis Colts of the NFL.

Simmons, 6-foot-4 and 235 pounds, has had four knee operations but says his knees are fine. He rushed for 204 yards and four touchdowns in 50 carries his senior year at UT, and completed his career with 205 carries for 936 yards and nine touchdowns...

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Former Tennessee quarterback Tony Robinson, sentenced on cocaine charges in November, has asked a judge for early release from jail so he can pursue a pro football career.

Robinson asked for early release to participate in pro football tryout camps. He is serving nine months of a seven-year sentence in the Knox County Penal Farm, with the remainder of his term on probation...

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State University wide receiver Cris Carter was reinstated to the team Coach Earle Bruce said.

Carter, a junior All-America, was suspended April 22 for what Bruce called a violation of team rules. Published reports later said Carter had failed a drug test.

The suspension was for an indefinite period, but Bruce said at the time that it would extend at least through the spring season. The spring season ended last Saturday, with an intrasquad scrimmage...

BASKETBALL

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Kansas basketball Coach Larry Brown ended speculation that he would leave the Jayhawks to coach the New York Knicks by signing a four-year contract extending through the 1991 season.

Meanwhile, All-American Danny Manning announced he would stay at Kansas for his senior year...

HOCKEY

Detroit defenseman Darren Veitch underwent arthroscopic surgery to repair torn ligaments in his left knee and is out for the season. Veitch was hurt in the opening game of the NHL semifinal between the Red Wings and Edmonton.

The Blue Jays scored five runs before Guzman retired a batter. Tony Fernandez and Rance Mulliniks led off with singles and Lloyd Moseby and George Bell followed with RBI singles. Barfield then homered into the left-field bleachers.

Orioles 7, White Sox 6

CHICAGO — Eddie Murray, locked in the longest slump of his career, hit two home runs, including a two-run shot with two outs in the ninth inning that powered Baltimore over Chicago.

With two outs in the ninth, Cal Ripken singled off Ray Searage, 0-1. Murray, who earlier hit a home run left-handed, turned around and connected from the right side. It was the fifth homer of the season for Murray, who began the game batting just .202.

Murray's game-winning home run came after Ivan Calderon capped a perfect night at the plate by putting the White Sox ahead 6-5 in the bottom of the eighth with a solo homer.

Royals 9, Indians 6

CLEVELAND — Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer and Thad Bosley, Juan Beniquez and Bill Pecota hit solo home runs as Kansas City beat Cleveland for its fifth consecutive victory.

Angel Salazar drove in three runs and Mark Gubicza, 2-4, allowed two runs over seven innings in sending Cleveland to its fifth straight loss. The Royals' winning streak is their longest since they won eight straight in September 1985, a month before they won the World Series.

Jackson hit his sixth homer of the season and Pecota followed with his first major-league home run in the ninth inning off Rich Yett, giving Kansas City a 9-5 lead.

Yankees 11, Yankees 7

NEW YORK — Mike Pagliarulo hit a grand slam, his second home run of the game, capping a six-run rally in the ninth inning as New York beat Minnesota and became the eighth team in major-league history to win its first 10 home games in a season.

Rickey Henderson hit a two-run homer off Minnesota relief ace Jeff Reardon, 1-2, before Pagliarulo connected.

The Twins led 7-3 on home runs by Tom Brunansky and Mark Davidson, both of which struck the left-field foul pole.

Red Sox 6, Angels 4

BOSTON — Dwight Evans' three-run homer broke an eighth-inning tie and Don Baylor hit a pair of solo shots, powering Boston to a victory over California, ending the Angels' four-game winning streak.

Evans lined his sixth homer of the season into the left-field screen after Jim Rice doubled and Baylor was walked intentionally by former Midland Angel DeWayne Buice, 1-1.

Athletics 7, Tigers 2

DETROIT — Rookie Mark McGwire homered twice and drove in four runs and Mike Davis also homered during a five-run fourth inning, giving Oakland a victory over Detroit.

McGwire connected for a three-run homer in the fourth and hit a solo shot, his seventh of the season, in the eighth off Detroit starter Frank Tanana, 2-2. Davis went 3-for-4, including a solo home run and double.

Curt Young, 4-1, gave up six hits, struck out five and walked one in eight innings. Detroit is now 0-8 against left-handers this year.

Mariners 4, Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE — Scott Bradley singled home John Christensen with two outs in the 12th inning giving Seattle a victory over Milwaukee.

Christensen opened the inning with a single off Chris Bosio, 3-1, and advanced to second on a sacrifice by Domingo Ramos. Alvin Davis, whose three-run homer tied the score in the eighth, was walked intentionally and pinch-hitter Ken Phelps struck out before Bradley greeted reliever Paul Mirabella with his winning single to right.

Dickerson declined $50,000

BOYS TOWN, Neb. (AP) — Eric Dickerson, the Los Angeles Rams' star running back, says he once turned down $50,000 in cash from a college that tried to recruit him.

"When I got recruited, I got offered a lot of stuff from a lot of schools," Dickerson said Thursday. "The things they offered, you're just amazed they could offer."

Dickerson, who holds the NFL record for most yards rushing in a season, spoke Thursday night at the Boys Town Boosters' athletic banquet in Omaha.

The former Southern Methodist University star said the school that offered him $50,000 brought it to his home in a briefcase. Dickerson said he didn't accept the offer because he didn't like the school.

Although the offer violated NCAA rules, Dickerson said he didn't report it.

"I've got to play against those guys," he said. "They're going to hate me. What's the sense?"

DICKERSON SAID he also received benefits in violation of NCAA rules when he played at SMU.

"Just like anyone else, I got it," he said. "If I asked for $50, if I needed some spending money, they would give it to me. I never got thousands of dollars or condominiums and all that kind of stuff."

Dickerson said it bothered him when the SMU football program received the "death penalty" from the NCAA earlier this year for violations that occurred while the program was already on three years' probation. SMU will not field a football team again until 1989.

"The things that have happened there since I left are unfortunate," Dickerson said. "But let's face the facts. Schools can sit there and say, 'We don't do it.' All of them can say, 'We don't do it.' But they're not telling the truth."

"NEBRASKA CAN say it. Oklahoma can say it. SMU can say it. All of them can say it. But I'm sure someone has. If it's only $5, if it's only $2, they're giving a guy something. Even if it's a pair of shorts, that's illegal to the NCAA."

Dickerson said it's difficult to turn down illegal payments.

"It's real hard for any athlete to live on the little money they give us," he said. "I'm not from a rich family. A lot of us guys were real poor. How are we supposed to make it? Go out and rob and steal at night?"

Dickerson said proposals to pay college athletes would help cut down on cheating, but not eliminate the problem.

Tall City Soccer kicks off

From Staff Reports

The first weekend of the two weekend long Fourth Annual Tall City Soccer Championship begins today with 34 teams from around the Southwest gathering at Hogan Park's soccer complex.

More than 1,200 youth soccer players are expected to participate in the tournament which will have three age divisions playing this week and three divisions playing next week, May 16.

Teams from El Paso, Albuquerque, N.M., Abilene, San Angelo, Lubbock, Odessa and Midland will form today's field in the following age groups: 8 & under mixed, 10 & under boys and girls, and 14 & under boys.

Next week, 40 teams in the 12 & under boys and girls divisions, 16 and under boys and 19 & under boys will participate.

Play begins this morning after opening ceremonies conclude at 8 a.m.

Marshall's back a pain again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Marshall will not require surgery on his chronic back condition, but neither he nor the Los Angeles Dodgers know when he will be able to play again.

Marshall took some tests this week under the supervision of two back specialists. The results did not show any significant change over the ones that were given to Marshall previously.

McKey loses eligibility, opts for draft

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama junior center Derrick McKey, the Southeastern Conference basketball player of the year, applied for the NBA draft by Friday's deadline after losing his senior season of eligibility because of dealings with an agent.

Athletic Director Steve Sloan disclosed the developments only five days after McKey said he planned to play for the Crimson Tide his senior season and not jump to the pros.

Sloan said McKey "made an error in judgment in dealing with an agent that affected his eligibility at the University of Alabama. We are in the process of reporting this to the Southeastern Conference office and the NCAA."

McKey, a 6-foot-9, 205-pounder who likely will play small forward in the pros, reportedly had dealings with New York agent Norby Walters, a key figure in recent accusations of underclassmen taking money from agents and athletes being threatened by agents.

"It's a sad day in college athletics when an athlete is so close to getting a college degree and is deprived of that opportunity as a senior, especially by those who have so little feeling for him and his family," Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson said.

"One of these days we are going to come up with an answer in college athletics to eliminate the problem of unscrupulous agents. Although everything is a two-way street, it certainly troubles me tremendously that people would take advantage of a 19-or 20-year-old college senior with a bright future.

"I'm heartbroken for Derrick, the basketball team and the university."

Walters' office said he was not available for comment. McKey also had no comment, leaving a prepared statement to the university's sports information office.

McKey, who led Alabama to a 28-5 record and the SEC regular season and tournament titles, said earlier this week he wanted to stay in school for his senior year to keep on track for graduation. Midnight Friday was the deadline for underclassmen to apply for the NBA draft.

There was no hint before Friday that McKey's college career might be over.

"We deeply regret this incident from an individual and university perspective," Sloan said. "We have previously taken steps to see that this incident will not effect another University of Alabama athlete."

Walters' name surfaced in the state earlier this year when he filed suit against Auburn University All-American tailback Brent Fullwood and four other college football stars — all now with the pros — claiming they accepted money from him as underclassmen but broke their contracts and signed with other agents.

The FBI also is investigating allegations that Lloyd Bloom, who is an executive at World Sports & Entertainment Inc. along with Walters, threatened a player.

McKey averaged 18.6 points and 7.5 rebounds per game last season.

Deaf in Chicago area have own Jewish congregation

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Behind a plain-looking storefront in this Chicago suburb is a tiny but dynamic community where the hearing and the deaf have become partners.

The Congregation Bene Shalom, the country's only full-time congregation for deaf Jews, began in 1972 with 11 families. Rejected by traditional synagogues, they were determined to form a congregation of their own.

The group asked a young rabbinical student, Douglas Goldhamer, to lead them, and he accepted in a minute. The move changed his life, and theirs.

"I just felt it was God speaking," explained Goldhamer, 41, a soft-spoken, intense man, in his study before a recent Sunday breakfast with the congregation.

Today, the Congregation Bene Shalom is a busy, friendly place where spoken words and sign language mix well. It is governed by a board of deaf members, although one-fifth of its membership, now about 145 families, can hear.

During Friday evening services, the rabbi delivers his sermons in English and in sign language. A cantor sings traditional Jewish prayers and a choir signs them.

On Sundays, the members come for Sunday School, sign language classes, and breakfast with the rabbi, where they discuss everything from spiritual concerns to world issues like the United States' dealings with Iran.

"They find ways of getting along, just like a family," said Lauren Troy of suburban Highland Park, a hearing member who teaches a Sunday School class of five, including two deaf children.

It wasn't always so pleasant. For years, Goldhamer said, rabbis have interpreted the Talmud, the book of Jewish law, as banning the deaf from worship. And deaf people did not have the money to start their own congregations.

"You can't just put an interpreter for the deaf in a traditional service," Goldhamer said. "The deaf feel very uncomfortable. They feel they're dressed poorly, and they feel people will judge them by their dress and their lack of voice.

"To have a rabbi is expensive, to have a building is even more expensive. And to establish a community, you have to be vocal. The loss of voice has made it hard for the deaf to do that."

But the Hebrew Association of the Deaf, formed in Chicago in the 1960s, persisted. Its members asked the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati to send a rabbinical student. The third student who came was Goldhamer, in 1969, first on a part-time basis and then to stay — even though he wasn't sure he'd get paid.

"In the beginning, I couldn't understand my parishioners," he said. "I stayed at different people's homes, but I couldn't just say, 'Can I have a glass of milk?' or something like that. Yet, wherever I was, they loved teaching me the language. Their encouragement spurred me on."

The Congregation Bene Shalom began as an orphan, borrowing basements and warehouses for worship. But the rabbi helped create a group of business leaders and others, called Friends of the Congregation Bene Shalom, to help provide support. Today that group numbers around 300, Goldhamer said, and covers a little less than half the congregation's budget.

Denomination asks for fasting, prayer

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Leaders of the Assemblies of God have called on its 2.5 million members to fast and pray this Sunday, May 17, about recent events involving TV preachers and others.

The church said the events, in which Jim Bakker quit his TV show after admitting an adulterous tryst and complaints against him by TV preacher Jimmy Swaggart, have caused "turmoil, dismay, misunderstanding and pain."

Both Bakker and Swaggart belong to the denomination. Executives of its general council urged members to pray in their homes and churches "to unitedly seek the Lord in fervent contrition and intercession."

Mother's Day Again ...

and time for us to tell our Mother all the things we didn't tell her during the past year.

Things like "Thank you," "I love you," and "Here, mom, let me help you." For those of us who are blessed with a close Mother-Child relationship, this day will give us a chance to say, in a very special way, the things we should have said by our words and actions all year long.

Those who are not blessed with this close relationship should try to accomplish in this one brief day, all the things they didn't do in the other 364. Sometimes we try so hard that we may seem insincere. But on this Mother's Day, make a conscious effort to repair all the neglect and broken relationship that may exist.

Certainly, you may not be able to erase all bitterness and alienation in one day, but you can make a start. And once you start, continue to mend the fences on a daily basis. Then next year, when it's Mother's Day again, you can both celebrate the joy of having each other.

You can both honestly say, "I love you."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Betsy Brown will sing at ECW salad luncheon

Brown

Betsy Brown, the Midland woman who traveled around the country two years ago on a bicycle, will be the featured speaker Wednesday at the St. Nicholas Episcopal Church Women's general meeting.

The salad luncheon will start at 12:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall, 2900 Princeton St. It is one of four general meetings each year designed for inspiration and education for the Episcopal Church Women.

Ms. Brown was born and reared in Midland, graduating from Lee High School. She received a bachelor of science degree in elementary education from Hardin-Simmons University and then taught fifth- and sixth-graders at Eagle Nest Elementary School in New Mexico.

Since then, she has concentrated on developing her music ministry and has a company called Heartstone Ministries, Inc. She has performed throughout the United States and in Europe and the Middle East.

With her guitar, Ms. Brown will give a musical testimonial at the luncheon.

The event is open to the public. Any person interested in attending who is not a member of ECW may contact Sherry Malouf, 686-8497, by Monday to make reservations. Each ECW member is asked to bring a salad and those needing nursery should contact Mrs. Malouf.

Hageman appointed

Hageman

The Rev. Charles E. Hageman was recently appointed Priest-In-Charge of St. Paul's Anglican Church, an American Episcopal Church in Midland. Hageman also serves as Priest-In-Charge of Holy Trinity American Episcopal Church in Hobbs, N.M., according to the Rev. H. Edwin Caudill, bishop of the Southwest Diocese of the American Episcopal Church.

Formerly the Priest-In-Charge of All Saints of the Verde Valley in Cottonwood, Ariz., he recently returned from an 18-month leave of absence which he and his wife spent working and studying in Europe.

Hagemen is a native West Texan and, before entering the ministry, spent many years as a businessman in the finance and petroleum industries. As such, according to a church spokesman, he brings to the ministry a knowledge and understanding of the people of the area and their problems.

Services are conducted at St. Paul's each Sunday utilizing the 1928 Book Of Common Prayer. For further information on the services, questions may be directed to the Rev. or Mrs. Hageman at 684-5438.

Rev. London to be guest

The Rev. Holland B. London, evangelist and chancellor of the California Graduate School of Theology, Glendale, will be the guest speaker Sunday at Kelview Heights Baptist Church, off N. Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive.

London has spoken in churches, the Sunday Evening Club of Chicago, college commencements, conventions and at the National Religious Broadcasters Convention in Washington, D.C. He has also spoken for the Rev. Jerry Falwell at Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va., the first Sunday of May for the past 12 years.

According to the Rev. Jerry Berry, associate pastor of Kelview Heights, London has made five world tours, traveled in more than 150 countries, and preached in all 50 states. Berry also said that during one of London's visits in Ghana, Africa, more than 40,000 people attended a single service and more that 4,000 were converted to Christianity as a result of the week-long campaign.

The public is invited to the 9 a.m., 11 a.m., and 6:30 p.m. services, according to Berry.

Swain to lead revival

Swain

The Rev. Billy Swain of Tifton, Ga., will be the guest speaker in revival services at the Midland Church of God, 5300 Thomason, May 17-24 at 7:30 p.m. each day.

Swain, an evangelist for the Churches of God, has been engaged in the ministry for several years and is noted, according to a church spokesman, for his preaching on prophecy. In addition to preaching in the United States, he has ministered in the Middle East and has hosted tours of the Holy Land.

According to the Rev. M.R. Thompson, pastor of the local congregation, the public is invited to hear Swain speak on subjects such as the effect of the World Council of Churches on the individual, the meaning of the number 666, the sudden build-up of arms in the Far East, and the effect of the Tri-Lateral Commission on our economy.

Home Week nears close

The Mother's Day service at Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring, will bring to a close a week-long emphasis centered on "Christian Home Week" at the church.

In addition to recognizing parents with new babies since last Mother's Day and a baby dedication, couples who have been married 50 years or longer will also be recognized. According to the Rev. G.A. Magee, pastor, each woman will receive a Bible marker to commemorate the occasion at the close of the service.

The evening service will be centered around "Heaven." The music and preaching will follow that theme.

The public is invited to the services, according to Magee. A nursery is provided.

Youth to lead service

The United Methodist Youth of Greenwood will lead the service Sunday in a celebration of Mother's Day. The theme for the service, as chosen by the youth, will be "A Sacrificial Love."

Various members of the group will lead parts of the service, including the congregational singing, special music, prayers, Scripture readings, children's sermon, and the offering. Included in the service will be four testimonials from members of the group on the sacrificial love of their mothers.

The service will begin at 9 a.m. followed by Sunday school at 10:15. Greenwood United Methodist Church is currently meeting in the Greenwood Elementary School auditorium on Cloverdale Road, east of Midland.

Visitors and interest parties are invited to the service, according to the Rev. Dave Odom, pastor.

Annual program slated

The "Willing Workers" of Good will Baptist Church will hold their second annual day program Sunday at 3 p.m. The guest speaker will be the Rev. W.H. Bland.

Bland is pastor of the Ward Tabernacle Baptist Church in Roswell, N.M.

Guest soloists will be Cleo Bland of Roswell, Sue Roseberry and Herman Harvey of Midland, and Willie C. French and the Odessa Male Chorus.

The church, where the Rev. M.A. Brown serves as pastor, is located at 1508 S. Main.

Musical to be presented

The First Christian Church of Midland will be presenting the musical, "Singsational Servant," Sunday at 7 p.m.

Based on Mark 10:44, this musical gives a message on how to be a servant to all.

The church is located at 1301 W. Louisiana.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Jewish booklet issued

NEW YORK (AP) — Conservative Judaism has issued a new booklet for prospective converts, advising that becoming a Jew is quite different than changing from one Christian church to another.

"A convert to Judaism not only adopts a new theology and different ritual practices and customs, but also joins a different people," says the booklet, "Embracing Judaism," issued by the Rabbinical Assembly. The booklet adds:

"Judaism is a religion, but Jews also have many national characteristics — a relationship to a specific land, Israel; to a specific language, Hebrew; a special literature, a historic memory of national independence and kinship, and yet are citizens of many nations."

Heads chosen for ministries

SEATTLE (AP) — Working on a new unified design for the Presbyterian Church (USA), its general council meeting here elected heads of the denomination's nine ministry units and set their annual starting salaries at $52,000 each.

The plan for nine units, and their directors, are subject to confirmation by the governing general assembly June 8-17 in Biloxie, Miss.

Buddha's advice put to test on today's environmental ills

RELIGION

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Long ago, the "Lord Buddha" forbade monks to cut down trees, set rules for preventing water pollution and urged followers to co-exist peacefully with all living things.

The advice didn't seem particularly urgent when first given 2,500 years ago, but it has taken on a modern relevancy.

Today, Buddhists in several Asian countries are beginning to harness the old environmental messages to halt ravages of forests, wildlife and water resources across the continent.

Thai social critic Sulak Sivaraks says "a kind of Buddhist revolt against the deterioration of nature," has begun, still small in scope but with the potential to influence the religion's 500 million faithful in a dozen countries.

Efforts range from individual monks instructing villagers to plant trees to a regional organization like the Buddhist Perception of Nature, founded in 1984 by Thais, Tibetans and an American to link Buddhism and conservation through education programs.

The Buddhist stirring appears related to worldwide searches for a "conservation ethic" that could be added to the standard environmental arsenal of laws, technology, funds and education.

"A new and powerful alliance has been forged between the forces of religion and the forces of conservation," says Prince Philip, president of the World Wildlife Fund.

The Duke of Edinburgh spoke last year in the Italian town of Assissi where representatives of Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism and Buddhism each declared that practical care of nature was an important tenet of their faiths.

The Swiss-based WWF has ongoing projects to capitalize on religion's power to sway attitudes.

While Buddhists have been as wanton as any in wreaking environmental destruction, scholars note the religion is well attuned to conservation.

Buddhists, for example, release fish and birds into the wild to "make merit," hoping thereby to attain a higher status in future reincarnations.

Monasteries often become safe-havens for wildlife since killing is forbidden within their boundaries. Meditation among natural surroundings and the building of monasteries in forests are traditional features of the religion.

Monkeys, which dare not venture into the surrounding countryside where they have been hunted, stroll brazenly through the streets of Mount Popa, harrassing food-carrying visitors to one of Burma's major pilgrimage sites.

The WWF says open-billed storks might well be extinct in Thailand if they had not found a welcome at Wat Phailom on the outskirts of Bangkok. The temple compound is now Southeast Asia's largest breeding ground for these migratory birds.

Some abbots, like Pongsak Tajadhammo, have become conservation activists.

Shocked by the wholesale razing of forests in the hills of northern Thailand, Pongsak and his followers fenced off part of a 70-kilometer-square area which they are restocking with trees and indigenous wildlife.

The regenerated watershed zone, he says, will replenish dwindling streams and other irrigation sources at lower elevations, thus vividly demonstrating to farmers the need to preserve forests.

The abbot, who has gathered some grassroots support, speaks out against corrupt officials who engage in illegal logging as well as hilltribes practicing slash-and-burn agriculture which has stripped hill after hill of forest cover.

Six Midlanders completing LDS course

Six Midland students will graduate May 16 from a four-year Christian gospel study course conducted by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The graduating students are Sean Woodard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodard; Cory Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilcox; Mark Van Cott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Van Cott; Christy Heller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Heller; Rick Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Royce Griffin; and Rodney Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Clark.

"Those of us who are graduating from seminary feel a great sense of accomplishment and satisfaction from making it through four years of getting up so early in the morning to attend seminary," said Rodney Clark, seminary president.

"It has been a real challenge," he continued, "but we have benefited a lot from the experience."

The church-sponsored course involves high school students who study the Old and New Testaments as well as other scriptures and church history. Classes meet before school every weekday, 6:15-7 a.m.

There are 110 teenagers attending seminary this year in this Stake (area). The 48 students in Midland attend Lee or Midland high school.

The following students will be honored for perfect attendance: Rick Griffin, John McNeely, Delcie Belk, Delisa Bushmanm, Michelle Bushman, Makayla Gray, Scott Jensen, Travis Bushman, Tiffany Flournoy and Gary Griffin.

Three classes are taught each morning. The teachers are Ona Marie Snow, Phil Lundberg and Roger Lee.

LIFESCOPE

Reverence? Who Needs It?? Your Lifescope Says, "Pride Comes Before The Fall!"

Pride goes before destruction and haughtiness before a fall. So love the Lord, all of you who are His people, for the Lord protects those who are loyal to Him, but harshly punishes all who haughtily reject Him. So cheer up! Take courage if you are depending on the Lord.

Come and hear, all of you who reverence the Lord, and I will tell you what He did for me for I cried to Him for help, with praises ready on my tongue. He would not have listened if I had not confessed my sins. But He listened! He heard my prayer! He paid attention to it!

Blessed be God who didn't turn away when I was praying, and didn't refuse me His kindness and love.

The Lord is close to those whose hearts are breaking. He rescues those who are humbly sorry for their sins. The good man does not escape all troubles - he has them too. But the Lord helps him in each and every one. God even protects him from accidents.

For I cried to Him and He answered me! He freed me from all my fears. Others too were radiant at what He did for them. Theirs was no downcast look of rejection! This poor man cried to the lord - and the Lord heard him and saved him out of his troubles. For the Angel of the Lord guards and rescues all who reverence Him.

Oh, how great is Your goodness to those who publicly declare that You will rescue them. For You have stored up great blessings for those who trust and reverence You.

Put God to the test and see how kind He is! See for yourself the way His mercies shower down on all who trust in Him. If you belong to the Lord, reverence Him; for everyone who does this has everything he needs.

1987 Texas Mother of Year guest at fellowship meeting on May 1

Mrs. Alicia Casmus of Taylor Lake Village in Seabrook, chosen as Texas Mother of the Year, 1987, was guest of honor at Church Women United May Fellowship on May 1.

"The most important thing is to love them, and let them know it," said Mrs. Casmus, stating her method of parenting. "And never do what you've told them not to do, for children learn best by example."

She has served as a den mother for the Boy Scouts for eight years. Her husband, Mark, has been a Scout Master for 17 years. Married for 34 years, they are the parents of five boys, ages 24 to 33. All sons are Eagle Scouts and graduates of A&M University.

American Mothers, Inc., organized in 1933 as part of the Golden Rule Foundation, is responsible for the national celebration of "Mothers Day" each year. Its purpose, according to a spokesman, is to strengthen the moral and spiritual foundations of the family and the home.

Selection for State and American Mother of the Year (a registered title) is based on personal characteristics of the mother with exemplifying precepts of the Golden Rule; influence of the mother in the community, state and nation, and influence of the mother on her children in demonstrating the ability to guide each in achieving his or her potential.

SUNDAY, MAY 10, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Focus on your love relationships and contractural agreements and you will score high in both your personal and professional life. New financial stability will reduce stress. Family ties are strengthened. Travel adds to your happiness. Good luck will be with those who are willing to take some calculated risks. You will know the special satisfaction of having done an excellent job.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: "Hill Street Blues" actor Taurean Blacque, dancer-actor Fred Astaire, actress Nancy Walker, philosopher Ariel Durant, country singer Mother Maybelle Carter, "Gone With the Wind" producer David O. Selznick, sportscaster Pat Summerall, conductor-composer Dimitri Tiomkin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you are willing to play by the rules, a family relationship will grow more fulfilling. While a trip to the mountains proves very rewarding, even a walk in the park can be invigorating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A minor battle may clear the air, leading to new harmony within the family circle. Be accommodating. Family ties are what makes your world go round. Enjoy a good book or movie tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Children are willing to back you and your views if you are totally honest with them. Guard against other people's carelessness, especially if you take to the highway. Do not take unnecessary chances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put things into perspective and then make your choice. Daydreaming is not bad, but you must be practical when making important decisions. Consider how your actions will affect those you love. Show restraint.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your expectations may be too high. Learn to bide your time. You will reach the top more quickly if you take one step at a time. Your friendships are more satisfying than ever.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Contact family members and friends at a distance. You gain new insights when you listen more and talk less. You may rebel if you feel that you are being coerced. Keep your temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A small business deal may not materialize, but you will still come out smelling like a rose. Someone may tell you about a prejudice that doesn't exist. Conduct your own investigation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Something better is in store for those waiting for a job to open up. Give more thought to the importance of physical fitness. Romance is heating up. Be sure of your feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Deeply buried emotions surface today. Do not let them interfere with your duties at work. Your daily routine may be in disarray; reorganize for greater efficiency. Others will follow where you lead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your fairness inspires loyalty from those who work with and for you. Major developments behind the scenes will produce happy results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others may worry about some of your "eccentricities." Keep on doing your own thing. Success is near and changing course would postpone a triumph. A child may have a million-dollar idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Curb spending and the use of credit cards. You can straighten out whatever is interfering with a productive relationship. A good day to spend extra time with children. Encourage them to develop their talents.

Astronomers honor UT professor by naming asteroid after him

AUSTIN (AP) — To mark his 70th birthday, University of Texas professor Raynor Duncombe received a present that is out of this world.

Duncombe learned that his fellow astronomers have decided to name an asteroid for him.

"Naturally, I'm very pleased by it," said Duncombe, whose birthday was March 3. "Certainly I never expected to have one named after me."

Duncombe is a professor in the UT department of aerospace engineering and engineering mechanics.

The asteroid's official designation, recorded by the Minor Planet Center at Harvard University, is: "Minor Planet (3368) Duncombe." The number means the object is the 3,368th asteroid to be identified and named.

The name was proposed by P.K. Seidlemann, Duncombe's successor as director of the U.S. Nautical Almanac Office. Duncombe directed the office from 1963 to 1975.

Asteroids, which astronomers often prefer to call minor planets, are small bodies orbiting the sun, mostly between Mars and Jupiter in an area known as the asteroid belt. Most are metalic, with the largest about 490 miles across.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Harold Ford, the Tennessee Democrat facing federal fraud charges, was released from a Washington hospital Friday after being treated for an adverse reaction to antibiotics, his office said.

A statement said Ford was in good condition as he left Washington Hospital Center, where he was admitted Thursday after complaining of severe chest pains.

"The congressman was diagnosed as having a severe case of bronchitis and an adverse reaction to antibiotics he has been taking for the bronchitis," the statement said. "His doctors have asked him to rest at home for the weekend."

Ford and four other men were indicted April 24 by a federal grand jury in Knoxville. The 19-count indictment alleged that C.H. Butcher Jr. used loans from his banks to buy political influence from Ford. Butcher is awaiting sentencing for bankruptcy fraud, tax fraud and money laundering.

The indictment said $350,000 in loans went to a company linked to a Ford family funeral business and that the representative used the money to support a lavish lifestyle far beyond his means.

The congressman has denied the charges.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Roger Moens, a former world track champion, is now in charge of running after criminals.

He has been appointed commissioner general for judicial police in Belgium, a post comparable to director of the FBI in the United States, it was announced Friday.

Moens, 57, set a world record for the 800-meter race in Oslo on Aug. 3, 1955, and held it for seven years. He also set in 1956 a world record for the 800-meter relay. He ended his track career in 1961.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Former Lynyrd Skynyrd guitarist Larkin Allen Collins Jr., paralyzed as a result of a car crash that killed his girlfriend, has agreed to make public service videotapes as a condition of probation.

In a plea bargain, Collins, 34, on Thursday entered a no-contest plea to driving while intoxicated and manslaughter.

Circuit Judge Louis Safer sentenced Collins to two years probation, revoked his driver's license for life and banned him from owning a vehicle. He also ordered the videotapes.

Collins agreed to the plea bargain "primarily because of his physical condition," defense attorney Ken Vickers said.

In the Jan. 9, 1986, accident Collins' girlfriend, Debra Jean Watts, 31, was killed. Collins, who had a blood-alcohol level of 0.12 percent, was left a paraplegic, Assistant State Attorney Wayne Ellis said. The legal blood-alcohol level is 0.10 percent in Florida.

Collins survived an Oct. 20, 1977, plane crash in Mississipi which killed six people, including three members of Lynyrd Skynyrd.

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Actor Richard Harris has established a scholarship fund for Irish students at the University of Scranton in memory of his younger brother, university officials said.

Harris, best known for his movie roles in "A Man Called Horse," "Camelot" and "Juggernaut," plans to spend next January teaching and performing at the university.

Dermot Harris died in Chicago on Nov. 12 while touring in "Camelot" with his brother. They had performed in Scranton, visited the university and "made a lot of friends here," said the university president, the Rev. J.A. Panuska.

The Dermot Harris Foundation will sponsor one needy student each year from the Harrises' native Ireland, Panuska said.

OVIEDO, Spain (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar received on Friday an annual award for Iberoamerican cooperation given by a foundation named for the heir to the Spanish throne.

A jury headed by former Spanish Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo voted unanimously to honor the career diplomat from Peru for "his efforts on behalf of peace, international security, human rights and cooperation between nations, especially those of the Iberoamerican community."

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II is to lead a royal invasion of Australia next year marking that country's bicentennial celebrations.

Buckingham Palace announced Friday that Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, will spend about three weeks in Australia in late April and early May.

Two of her four children also will visit. Her heir, Prince Charles, and his wife, Diana, will be in Australia in January and February, followed by Prince Andrew and his wife, Sarah, in mid-September to early October.

Australia is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the voyage of the first British colonials to Australia.

On Wednesday, Britain celebrates the 200th anniversary of the sailing of the ships that took convicts to Australia to found penal colonies and establish settlements there. The queen will be in Portsmouth to watch a fleet of tall ships depart in a re-enactment of the 12,500-mile voyage.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — William McGowan, chairman of MCI Telecommunications Corp., is recovering from heart transplant surgery at Presbyterian-University Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"Mr. McGowan has made steady progress in his recovery," Chris Shirer said Thursday in the first statement on the transplant.

McGowan, 59, received a human donor organ April 25, she said. He suffered a heart attack Dec. 21 at his home at Virginia Beach, Va., and was evaluated at the Pittsburgh transplant center and placed on its transplant waiting list.

Project Image seeks to turn negatives into positives

By JENNY NARKIEWICZ

BEAUMONT (AP) — The halls at Giles Education Center are quiet. But teachers, administrators and students know that at any moment, angry shouts of abusive language and flailing fists can shatter the silence.

For the 22 boys and girls enrolled in the Beaumont Independent School District's Project Image, aggressive behavior has disrupted their lives to the point they no longer can function in a normal school setting. The 10-year-old program hopes to turn their aggressive and sometimes violent behavior into positive behavior patterns.

BISD administers the multidistrict program that has students from the Beaumont, Nederland, Port Neches, Sabine Pass, Vidor and Gulf-Coast Cooperative school districts.

"We have students from all walks of life," says Suzanne Glenn, the program's director. "They are students who qualify under special education guidelines. They are either emotionally disturbed, learning disabled or mentally retarded. And they have one thing in common all have a behavior problem."

Many of the middle school and high school students are on probation because of some kind of illegal activity.

"We tell our kids, 'This is the last house on the road' before they're sent away," Ms. Glenn says. "Sent away" can mean many things, depending on the child. Some might go to the Texas Youth Commission, others to Mental Health Mental Retardation programs.

"It really depends on the child's history," Ms. Glenn says. "Yes, this is the last stop before that happens. We try to prevent that from happening by working with the kids to turn their behavior around."

The program, Ms. Glenn says, has children "who have been brow beaten by the best."

"Kids blame their behavior on problems at home," she says. "We tell them we're not interested in their home life. We tell them 'We care about you being in this school.' That may sound a little tough, but sometimes, you have to be tough."

The program stresses positive reinforcement for good behavior and a strong emphasis on academics.

"In the past, kids thought of Image as a kind of day care — the people here were more like babysitters than teachers," says Ms. Glenn, who is the program's first female director. "Now, they know being here is just like being at their home campus. They know they're in school when they come here."

Stressing academics also helps the students realize someone does care about them, Ms. Glenn says.

"They don't feel like they've fallen through the cracks," she says. "Our fundamental purpose, when the program was established, was to change the attitude of these kids who have lost faith in themselves and often, they've lost faith in others. That purpose continues today."

Even though Ms. Glenn was aware of the students' reputation before she became director this school year, she says she wasn't worried about taking over the position.

"I think being a woman has helped me here," she says. "I think it curtails a lot of physical aggression."

But she is no stranger to physical attack. Earlier this year, a 16-year-old girl assaulted Ms. Glenn, leaving her bruised and scratched.

"It was the first and only assault this year," Ms. Glenn says. "While this student was beating me, I wasn't terrified. I was more surprised than anything. I knew the girl and I didn't think she'd go as far as she did. When I fell to the floor, the girl stopped. I think she was surprised at herself about her actions."

Ms. Glenn also was surprised when several of the "big tough boys" came to her office to make sure she was all right after the assault. "I never once thought about quitting this job after the assault," she said.

Terrorists attack police station

WORLD

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Authorities said security forces killed eight attackers who rammed a bomb-laden earthmover into a County Armagh police station Friday. They reported a bystander slain and three officers wounded.

No one claimed responsibility but the outlawed Irish Republican Army has been active in the Armagh area, on the border with the Irish Republic, and has increased assaults on security installations recently.

The attack occurred at 7:20 p.m. at the station in Loughgall, five miles from Armagh city and about 30 miles southwest of Belfast. The bomb caused severe damage and three officers suffered slight head wounds, police reported.

The earthmover rammed the station gates just before the bomb went off, a Royal Ulster Constabulary spokesman said. He speculated that the explosives were carried in the vehicle's shuttle.

A gun battle began immediately. One unconfirmed report said there were indications the security forces had been tipped off and were waiting for the attack.

The British Broadcasting Corp. reported without attribution that security forces, apparently soldiers, had moved the local police out and put in their own units.

It was not clear if any of the attackers escaped. Roads were sealed off and police searched vehicles. Witnesses said several men were taken from cars and were being screened by security forces.

Britain's Northern Ireland Secretary, Tom King, announced Wednesday that the Royal Ulster Constabulary would recruit up to 500 new officers in response to the increase in IRA attacks.

The army in Northern Ireland will receive more helicopters and 600 part-time members of the army's Ulster Defense Regiment are being switched to full-time duty, he said.

King also said the governemnt had agreed to provide "certain additional support which would help to combat (terrorism) more directly," a statement taken to mean that the elite SAS anti-terrroist squad might play a bigger role in Northern Ireland.

The government announcement followed the April 25 killing of the province's second-ranking judge, Lord Justice Maurice Gibson and his wife Cecily. They were blown up by a car bomb as they drove across the border into Northern Ireland on their way home from vacation in England.

Loughgall is the latest in a series of police stations in the province to be attacked by terrorists.

Building firms that have won contracts to repair damaged police stations have been warned off by the IRA, and a number of builders who defied them have been shot dead.

In Dungannon on Thursday workmen repairing a court house bombed by the IRA earlier this year narrowly escaped injury when a grenade was lobbed into a back yard.

Sectarian violence broke out Wednesday and Thursday night in Belfast. Gunmen killed a 17-year-old Roman Catholic youth and gangs in Catholic west Belfast threw gasoline bombs at police and set hijacked vehicles ablaze.

A 14-year-old boy was shot and wounded in a Catholic area of west Belfast when he was caught in crossfire between IRA guerrillas and a police patrol.

No claim of responsibility was made, but the gunmen used a car hijacked in a Protestant district of Belfast, police said.

In another incident, a bomb was hurled over a perimeter wall and exploded outside a courthouse in Dungannon 35 miles west of Belfast but caused only minor damage, police said. The IRA claimed responsibility.

Ruling supports anti-apartheid groups

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Anti-apartheid organizations mapped out defense strategy Friday after President P.W. Botha served post-election notice that he planned to crack down on opposition groups operating outside Parliament.

The groups received some support from a ruling Friday in Natal province Supreme Court Justice John Didcott overturned Botha's declaration last Oct. 9 which barred the United Democratic Front, the nation's biggest anti-apartheid coalition, from receiving foreign funds.

His ruling came on a technicality, and the government has said it will appeal. But United Democratic Front treasurer Azar Cachalia said, "Certainly this must be seen as a setback to...(Botha) even if it's a temporary setback and the government reimposes the declaration or ultimately wins on appeal."

Previously the group received most of its funds from Scandinavian countries, Cachalia said.

In Wednesday's white parliamentary elections, Botha's National Party gained six seats for a total of 123. The pro-apartheid Conservative Party won 22 seats, at the expense of the liberal Progressive Federal Party, which lost seven and ended up with a total of 19.

A U.S. Embassy official said in Pretoria on Friday that the Reagan administration expects the South African government to produce "concrete measures" of reform after the election victory.

"President Botha said the election gives him a mandate for reform. We urge him to get on with it...Our policy will reflect our insistence that the government keeps its promise," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Washington favors lifting the ban on the African National Congress guerrilla movement, releasing former ANC leader Nelson Mandela from prison, ending detentions without trial, and steps to allow blacks to decide how they want to be governed, he said.

The World Council of Churches, meeting in Lusaka, Zambia, on Friday supported the use of force by foes of apartheid and condemned Western powers, led by the United States, for not supporting U.N. pressures on South Africa.

About 150 delegates ended five days of talks with a declaration that said South Africa's white-led government and its continued control over South West Africa, also known as Namibia, were "illegitimate."

Botha said Thursday night the government received a clear mandate to make security its first priority.

"There is a tendency in South Africa to organize extraparliamentary organizations to bring about change in South Africa," he said. "The country must know I am determined to see that the government takes a very strong stand on extraparliamentary actions of this nature as well as the financing of organizations from outside our country."

An editorial in City Press, a newspaper for black readers, said Friday: "Denied the vote with which we can adequately express our will as a people, our focus is definitely going to be on extraparliamentary action."

The Five Freedoms Forum, a coalition of civil rights groups that are mostly white, said, "We challenge (Botha's) statement that change will come through a Parliament that has received a mandate for war from its electorate. Extraparliamentary organizations are seeking non-violent solutions for South Africa."

The End Conscription Campaign, which advocates non-military service for draftees, said, "With 85 percent of the votes cast going to candidates who believe the Casspir (armored truck), sjambok (whip) and the jet fighter are the primary solution to our country's problems, the prospects for peaceful change look dim."

Business leaders urged the government to act quickly on Botha's pre-election promise that he wanted a mandate to negotiate further reform with black leaders. Statements urging such action came from Otto Scholtz, president of the Cape Chamber of Industries, and the Association of Chambers of Commerce.

However, Tony Bloom, managing director of the big Premier Milling company, said, "The government has been given a mandate for some tough-minded security action. I expect increased international pressure and escalating domestic polarization to result. Blacks have been sent an unmistakable signal and the possibility of a negotiated future becomes ever more remote."

Said United Democratic Front publicity secretary Murphy Morobe, from hiding, "Sooner or later whites will have to realize that the oppressed majority and their organizations...cannot be wished away."

The 600,000-member Congress of South African Trade Unions said the clamp-down had already begun, referring to police sieges of its Johannesburg headquarters building, arrests of union members, and government accusations that union members were responsible for arson and murder during a recent railroad strike.

A bomb exploded Thursday in the basement of the union movement's 11-story headquarters building Thursday, and it was declared unsafe Friday.

U.S. issues treaty that would reduce superpowers' long-range weapons

GENEVA (AP) — A U.S. delegate issued a draft treaty Friday that would reduce by half the long-range nuclear arsenals of the Soviet Union and the United States.

Ronald Lehman, the U.S. delegate, said the outlines of a pact "are obvious to both sides" and an agreement on the long-range, or strategic, weapons could be reached by year's end.

Lehman said he put forth the nearly 40-page draft text during a 1½-hour meeting with his Soviet counterpart Lem Masterkov at the Soviet mission.

The U.S. document called for "effectively verifiable 50-percent reductions" over seven years in long-range weapons — those that can travel more than 3,000 miles, or from one superpower to the other.

"We have already achieved much," said Lehman, adding, "We do not underestimate the difficulties that remain."

He said the U.S. proposal, first described by President Reagan last Monday, would leave each side with 1,600 strategic nuclear delivery vehicles and 6,000 warheads.

Lehman said a "major part" of the treaty deals with verification. It includes provisions for on-site inspection of missile sites if a party is suspected of cheating on the treaty limits, he said.

The main unresolved issue is whether there should be specific ceilings, or "sublimits," on land, sea and air-based intercontinental missiles, Lehman said.

Washington considers such curbs "necessary for deep reductions to take place safely," he said, adding that the Soviet Union has refused to consider them.

The Soviet Union relies heavily on land-based missiles in its nuclear arsenal, while U.S. forces are more evenly divided between land, air and submarine-based weapons.

"Seven years should give the Soviet Union the flexibility they say they need to agree to sublimits," Lehman said, adding that ceilings "would be in the interest of both sides."

Alexei Obukhov, deputy head of the Soviet delegation, last week criticized Washington's proposed timetable, saying it deviated from the five-year period agreed upon at last year's Reykjavik summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Lehman said the two sides also remain far apart on whether U.S. research into a space-based weapons system, the Strategic Defense Initiative, should be allowed to continue. But he said Soviet concerns were "unwarranted" and agreement in other areas should not be "held hostage" by the SDI standoff.

According to Reagan, Washington wants both sides to commit themselves to the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty for seven years, until 1994. The Soviets, who say SDI deployment would violate the treaty, have insisted on a 10-year commitment.

Tough high school dims bright students' egos

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Paul Capriotti is bright, one of the 200 smartest high school sophomores in Illinois. But he has found himself in the lowest academic level math class offered at his new high school.

That's because Paul decided to go to the new Illinois Math and Science Academy after finishing Kankakee Junior High School, and he's not alone in being brought down a rung or two academically.

Eugene Huang, accustomed to breezing through honors classes and practically bored with his easy As, found out quickly that he was going to have to learn how to take notes in class. Lots of them, and faster than he ever did at Bradley-Bourbonnais High School. At the academy, Eugene is averaging five hours of homework a day.

Amy Wirth, a rural Kankakee girl who says she used to "stress out" at the prospect of getting a B while at Kennedy Upper Grade Center and Kankakee Junior High School, said she had broken into tears this autumn when she got Ds in both chemistry and physics.

Paul, Eugene and Amy are not exceptions. The academy has knocked on their heels nearly all of the intellectual heavyweights who have entered its doors.

The philosophy behind the new school, the third of its kind in the nation, is to challenge the brightest students in a way that public schools cannot.

Classes are taught at a college sophomore level or higher, and homework comes in stacks, rather than in single assignments.

About 200 ninth-graders left the protected environment of home last summer to be challenged, and they were among the brightest in the state.

The best teachers available were brought in, as were textbooks written for college students.

The media converged with flashbulbs and questions, and once the hoopla was over, students who had never had advanced mathematics found themselves in trigonometry-based physics classes.

"There was really a lot of pressure at first," said Eugene, while lunching in the spacious cafeteria with other students from the Kankakee area. "It just seemed like too much. We're getting used to it now, though."

Across the table, Amy added: "I think I thought I could get by on the same study habits I had before. It's been a big change for all of us."

Although the place is still like a "mental pressure cooker" at times, Amy says she, Eugene, Paul and almost everyone else who stayed quickly bounced back.

Family Planner.

When planning a family, you never know what might turn up. You can depend on the Civic 4-Door Sedan to handle the unexpected. There's plenty of room for expansion.

Child-proof rear door locks and safety-seat anchors keep children out of harm's way. Rear seat heater ducts keep them warm.

There's something for adults, too. 5-speed manual transmission. Seats that keep you in your place. Comfortably. An adjustable steering column, tachometer and quartz digital clock. All standard. A 4-speed automatic transmission with lockup torque converter is also available.

The 1987 Civic 4-Door Sedan. It's a nice place to raise a family.
