Philip Musica Fires Gun As Officers Rap

Officials Were To Re-Arrest President Of Vast Drug Firm After Identity Revealed

(By The Associated Press)

FAIRFIELD, Conn., Dec. 16—F. Donald Coster, indicted president of the vast McKesson and Robbins drug corporation who had been disclosed as an ex-convict with a criminal record going back more than a quarter of a century, shot and killed himself today at his country mansion near here.

Federal authorities were on the way to the luxurious Coster home to re-arrest him at the time.

Fully dressed, Coster went into the bathroom, pressed a pistol to his right ear, and pulled the trigger.

First reports indicated that Mrs. Coster had seen her husband with the pistol but had been powerless to restrain him. She collapsed afterward.

Samuel Reich, an attorney, rushed from the home as soon as he had heard what had happened, put his hand to his head, pointing with a finger as though it were a pistol, and shouted:

"He shot himself! He shot himself!"

Had Made Indication

Investigators were told that three weeks ago Coster — who formerly was Philip Musica, an ex-convict, until he made an almost incredible change in his name, his associations and his whole life—had indicated an intention to take his own life and that his three pistols had been

PLENTY OF VICE PRESIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Securities commission records indicated today that affairs of McKesson and Robbins, were under the supervision of 82 vice-presidents; 46 assistant vice-presidents and 115 assistant secretaries.

Commission records showed Coster received aggregate remuneration of $161,378.96 in the four years ended 1937.

Man Who Cast His Past Aside

F. Donald Coster, shown below left, was today revealed as Philip Musica, ex-convict and swindler, who as president of McKesson and Robbins, inc., was charged this week of violating the securities law of 1934. With him is George S. Dietrich, right, assistant treasurer, and Samuel Reich, center, their attorney. The picture was made shortly after their arrest at Fairfield, Conn.

Musica's Brother Identified As One Of Three Indicted In Giant Drug Firm Scandal

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. — George Vernard, representative for one of the firms listed as doing business for McKesson and Robbins, inc., has identified from fingerprints today as Arthur Musica, brother of Philip Musica, better known as F. Donald Coster, president of the drug firm.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Irving R. Kaufman announced at the same time that he had telephoned the department of justice at Washington to get a copy of the fingerprints of George E. Dietrich, assistant treasurer of the drug concern.

Indicted With Coster

Kaufman said he wishes to determine if Dietrich also were a brother of the financial wizard whose fingerprints, dug from a file of 25 years ago, revealed him not as a Heidelberg graduate but as a former immigrant boy from Italy—Philip Musica, ex-convict and swindler.

Other directors whose terms expire next month and whose reappointments are being sought are Mrs. John A. Haley, Midland; and Charles Thompson, Colorado City.

A step-daughter, Dorothy Love, is a second year arts and sciences student at Tech. She lives at 2211 Broadway.

Tension Is Mounting Between U. S., Nazis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. (AP) — Diplomatic tension between the United States and Germany mounted today with hints that retaliatory measures might be invoked if American property rights in the reich are jeopardized further by anti-Jewish and other confiscatory decrees.

This possibility came to light as the United States renewed its seven-months-old quest for adequate, written assurances from Germany that American citizens will not be discriminated against because of their race or creed. The request was so drawn as to cover the rights of both Catholics and Jews.

Meanwhile, Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London, arrived in the United States to confer with President Roosevelt. He expressed himself in New York yesterday as being "not particularly optimistic about the outlook for peace in Europe—but I don't think that's any reason for not trying."

Kennedy left at once for Washington to report on the general European situation.

The council finance committee will meet from 5 to 6:30 o'clock with representatives from 10 counties present. J. Edd McLaughlin of Ralls is chairman. The budget committee will submit the 1939 budget. James Harley Dallas of Brownfield is chairman.

Tavernkeeper Gets More Than He Asked But Learns Buyer Suffers Slight Deafness

WATERTOWN, Wis., Dec. 16. (AP)—A traveling salesman with a yen for a mounted black and white squirrel on the backbar of a tavern decided that despite several rebuffs from the tavernkeeper, he would try to buy it.

"How much will you take?" he began, tentatively.

"Fifteen dollars," said the tavernkeeper, wishing to change the subject.

"That's too much. But I'll give you twenty-five."

"Sold!" exclaimed the tavern keeper—who found out later the salesman was slightly deaf and though the asking price was $50.

TRADE WAR IS PLANNED

Groundwork For Program Being Laid

Export Guarantees Bill Is Presented As Possible Aid To British Trade Efforts

BY RADER WINGET
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 16 — Great Britain laid the ground today for a trade war—if necessary—against the totalitarian states.

Backed by Prime Minister Chamberlain's new forceful attitude toward Nazi Germany, the export guarantees bill, seen as a possible aid to British exporters in meeting Germany's barter trade system, was given second reading by the house of commons.

Would Increase Guarantees

The measure would increase from 50,000,000 pounds ($235,000,000) to 75,000,000 pounds ($352,000,000) the total export guarantees which the board of trade could grant. It also contains a provision whereby material assistance could be sent to China.

R. S. Hudson, secretary of the overseas trade department, described the bill as one of the methods "without precedent in our history" which Great Britain might be required to use in fighting "unfair foreign competition."

Avoid Direct Reference

Members of parliament carefully avoided direct reference to Germany whose political leaders were warned by Chamberlain yesterday to beware of Britain's financial power in any war.

Hudson linked the export drive with rearmament when he declared that "in the world of power politics, undoubtedly the trade of this country to a very large extent is dependent on the question of whether or not the world believes we are in earnest about our schemes of rearmament."

The major points of Hudson's speech defending the bill were approved by the government opposition, especially when he indicated the government was going into the fight on a long-term basis to build lasting goodwill through the extension of credits to those countries

Man's Wives Live Together

Three wives are too many for any man, San Jose, Calif., police decided in filing a bigamy charge against 25-year-old Boyd Burke, a milkman. The two, Evelyn Hopping (right) and Lillian Olivera, have been living together, police said, trying to settle the marital scramble, in which it is charged still a third wife is involved.

Argentine Suspicion Of U. S. Crops Out

(By The Associated Press)

Members of the Argentine delegation insist the United States should be considered a potential aggressor,

U. S. PRESENTS RESOLUTION

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 16 (AP)—The United States, after obtaining the unanimous consent of the other 20 American republics, today presented to the Pan-American conference a sweeping resolution calling for reductions of barriers to international trade. The resolution is expected to receive speedy formal conference acceptance.

The United States obtained this show of unanimity at a time when Argentine suspicion of Washington's future foreign policy appeared likely to become a strong factor in conference developments.

and they want a resolution to provide for defense against incursion by any nation.

Consideration of a cooperative defense plan so far has been concerned mainly with the possibility of attack from nations outside the Americas, and delegates have said they had in mind the dictator, authoritarian regimes of Europe.

The Argentines said they feared a change of administration in Washington might bring an end to or alteration of the present good neighbor policy. There was little indication of support for this thesis by other delegations.

Stricter Laws To Be Sought

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. — The house committee on un-American activities will recommend to congress next month a five-point program designed to control subversive influences in the United States.

The committee, which has been embroiled in controversy throughout its existence, ended four months of testimony yesterday. Informed persons said today it would suggest:

Would Require Statement

1. Stricter immigration laws, with requirements that aliens entering the country say whether they believe in the American form of government.

2. Strict enforcement of the deportation laws.

3. Regulations that organizations shown conclusively to be "un-American" file with the government an accounting of their finances, activities and directors.

Would Outlaw Organizations

4. Outlawing of all such organizations as soon as possible.

5. Regulations that persons who join political organizations use their real names; that a list of members be kept available for possible government inspection.

The committee members, headed by Rep. Dies (D-Tex), have started summarizing the testimony of about 150 witnesses. Their report probably will be issued just before congress meets Jan. 3.

German Steamer Returning 200 Empty Helium Bottles Today

HOUSTON, Dec. 16. (AP)—The German steamer Idarwald sailed today with 200 empty helium bottles —containers which the nazis hoped would come back filled with noninflammable gas for dirigible use.

The shipment, a portion of the 2,000 containers sent here two years ago, was taken here as an indication that no helium will be forthcoming from the Amarillo field for use abroad.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes opposed exportation of the gas.

FDR Gives No Indication Of Choice

But WPA Administrator Is Concided To Have Inside Position For Selection

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 —Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator and an intimate presidential advisor, received frequent mention today in capital discussion of a successor to Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper.

In accepting the resignation of 71-year-old Roper, President Roosevelt gave no indication of who would get the post.

Many politicians, however, expressed belief that he would take advantage of this vacancy and the

MIND NOT MADE UP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP) — President Roosevelt said today, amid talk that Harry Hopkins might be the new secretary of commerce, that he had not yet made up his mind on cabinet replacements.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not tell when cabinet appointments or an appointment to the supreme court might be expected.

There have been rumors for several weeks that still other members of the president's official family might retire or be shifted to other positions. Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary Swanson of the Navy have been mentioned in that connection.

Has Attended Meetings

Reports that Hopkins would replace Roper had been current even while the latter was denying he would withdraw. Hopkins has been attending cabinet meetings in his capacity as relief director, and is one of the most regular White House conferees.

If he is appointed, one Democratic senator who asked anonymity declared it would be a "build up"

Retail Buying Jumps 10 To 30 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—Stimulated by Christmas shopping, retail buying at leading centers of distribution this week jumped 10 to 30 per cent over last week for the country as a whole, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Night openings in big stores in many cities helped boost business. Dollar aggregate ran 1 to 4 per cent under a year ago at this time, due chiefly to this year's lower prices, for the volume of goods flowing over store counters in most trading centers toppled last year.

"Accelerated gift buying disclosed large gaps in retail stocks," the credit agency said. Buyers attempted to fill out lines, only to find that in many instances warehouse stocks were exhausted and manufacturers were turning away rush orders.

Mighty Little Masons Given Perfect Weather For Try To Upset Westerners

By R. C. HANKINS

North Texas assaulted the "West Texas football capital" early this afternoon with noise and numbers, when a grid special drew up at Santa Fe depot and formed its numbers into a colorful parade in downtown Lubbock.

Almost two hundred jittery football fans here to boost the stock of Masonic Home and school doughty little cleated warriors—made up of 34 members of the famous Moslah Shrine drum and bugle corps, 40 of the 250-member ROTC unit from several Fort Worth schools, Masons from Fort Worth, Dallas, Arlington and other scattered places—buzzed a speculative comparative strength undercurrent against the blare of band music and the roll of drums.

Parade Is Staged

The South Plains public, which had spilled into Lubbock streets well in advance of the 2:30 o'clock kickoff of the semi-final game, Tech's giant horseshoe, was nudged back against business establishments by numbers that gathered to witness the parade.

The special arrived at 12:30 o'clock and found the Westerners busily blowing it up fit to kill. Hundreds of well-wishers for both sides were in the press. Courtesy cars were parked conveniently for transporting visitors to and from the game.

Drum and Bugle Corps Here

City and state police, joined by several members of the traffic detail of the Fort Worth department, blew whistles and the parade formed. The Moslah Shrine's drum and bugle corps behind the motorcycle escort, followed by red-fezzed Shriners marching under impost of music instruments, Lubbock and other South Plains Shriners, Fort Worth school cheer leaders, the ROTC, the Westerners band and courtesy cars.

The parade unreeled down Main to Texas, over to Broadway and to Lubbock hotel, invading team headquarters.

They Laughed When He Sat Down To Tap Out News Of 'Flying' Machine 35 Years Ago

The Wright brothers' airplane as it got off the ground at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903

(By NEA Service)

MANTEO, N. C., Dec. 16.—Thirty years ago newspapers refused to accept telegraphed stories about the doings of the crazy Wright brothers on the sand dunes of outer North Carolina.

Practically every piece of press copy brought scorching replies from editors who were too "smart" to be hoaxed by tall yarns concerning the Wrights' "flying" contraption. Some publications even fired their correspondents for reporting such fantastic things as an EIGHT (!) mile flight.

Was Very Puzzling

To Alpheus Drinkwater, whom Fate had chosen to be the operator of the only telegraph station connecting the Outer Banks of North Carolina with the sophisticated outside world, this was all very puzzling, even irritating. For Alpheus was a simple man who had eyes to see. And he had seen the Wrights fly.

On December 17, 1903, he had watched open-mouthed as they made their first test. He had seen their plane slide unsteadily down a dune, sputter frantically into the air and alight a quarter of a mile away on higher ground than the takeoff point. He had seen the distance grow and grow in subsequent flights. To Alpheus Drinkwater, the humble telegrapher, the miracle of man with wings was an accomplished fact.

Hence, he shared the futile anger of the correspondents, whose copy he transmitted, at the world's skepticism. And he believed the predictions of the newspapermen that the Wrights would eventually make a long flight—yes, even as far as Cape Henry, 5 miles away. Alpheus know in his heart that someday Kill Devil Hill, scene of the first flight, would become a place of pilgrimage.

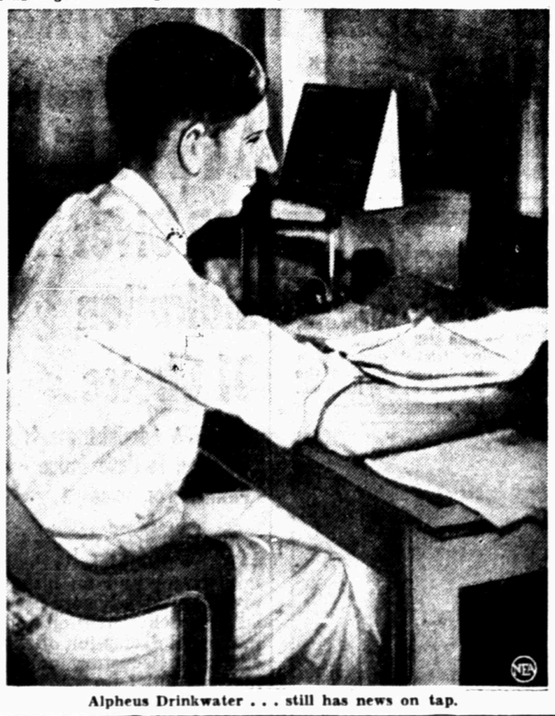

Still At His Post

Three decades have passed. The newspapermen have long ago left the sand dunes to follow the big stories elsewhere. But Alpheus Drinkwater's home is still the goal of the occasional correspondent who comes to the dune country. Alpheus still handles infrequent press dispatches which tell of coast guard matters, of wrecks and rescues, of the famous Lost Colony drama at Fort Raleigh.

Now, after many years, Alpheus Drinkwater's faith in what he saw will be vindicated. For on December 17, 1938, ceremonies at Kill Devil Hill will celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Wright brothers' flight. The beautiful Wright Memorial beacon tower on Kill Devil Hill will be the scene of the celebration. Aviation notables from all over the nation will gather. There will be speeches. There will be a duck dinner. Alpheus Drinkwater and some of the grizzled coast guardsmen who also saw the first flight will be there as guests and will rub shoulders with the notables.

Afterwards, Alpheus will go home and send over the wires the dispatches which will tell of the latest pilgrimage to this place, and of the 200 mighty war planes which flew in formation around the ancient heap of sand.

Not a newspaper will reject his telegrams.

Alpheus Drinkwater . . . still has news on tap.

Father Decides Death Better Than Cripple

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—A decision that death was better than the life of a cripple was reached today by William Lewis in determining the fate of his cancer-stricken daughter, Dorothy, 8.

Inundated by letters from all over the country, citing pro and con arguments by those who had read of the little Brooklyn cripple's plight, the distraught father made his choice—

"She will live or die on both legs."

Surgeons have told him the daughter, afflicted with sarcoma, or cancer of the thigh bone, must die within 8 or 10 months unless her leg is amputated.

On the other hand, an operation would give her one chance in 10 of living—healthy, but a cripple.

"I have made up my mind," Lewis said. "I have gone through torture, but in the end I knew I could not consign the child to a cripple's life.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Great Tragedy Is Recalled

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 16. (AP)—Texas' most tragic disaster of modern times—the New London school explosion—was called to mind again today with completion of a report and recommendations by a joint legislative investigating committee.

The explosion occurred on the afternoon of March 18, 1937, and resulted, the committee said, in the death of 284 pupils and 14 teachers. Countless others were injured. Parents and oil field workers dug frantically in the ruins throughout the rain-drenched night and next day recovering mangled bodies.

Question Expert Witnesses

Rep. Robert M. Leath of Henderson, committee chairman, said the group had questioned expert witnesses in every field of construction work, studied building codes of many municipalities and had been present at a military court of inquiry.

"Based upon a thorough and comprehensive analysis of the information gathered," the report said, "the committee reached the same conclusions and recommendations arrived at by investigators of the bureau of mines."

Urge State Inspector

The committee urged establishment of the office of state plumbing inspector under the board of health, recommended the present law requiring a malodorant in natural gas be amended to include all manufactured gases and advocated a state supervisory body to inspect public buildings which would consist of the state fire marshall, the director of the school plant division of the education department and the state building inspector of the board of control.

The bureau's report said the cause of the explosion was ignition by an electric switch in the school's manual training room of a large volume of highly explosive natural gas-air mixture which had accumulated in an inadequately ventilated basement of the main building.

Preventive measures recommended included construction of buildings so there would be no unventilated spaces, use of strong malodorants in gases and alarm systems, installation of utilities only under strict adherence to national construction codes, entrusting the proper use of the systems to qualified persons, and other precautions.

Aristotle Slips, In A Word In Civil Appellate Court Ruling In Austin This Week

AUSTIN, Dec. 16. (AP)—Aristotle, the immortal Greek philosopher, got a word into a civil appellate court decision here Wednesday.

Ruling on a case involving a doctor, Associate Justice M. B. Blair of the third court of civil appeals, quoted the famed philosopher to the extent:

"As a physician ought to be judged by the physician, so ought men to be judged by their peers."

Justice Blair ruled that since no expert medical testimony was introduced in support of J. J. Kaster's contention an allegedly unsterilized hyrodermic needle caused an infection in his arm, Kaster was not entitled to damages for which he sued.

The decision affirmed a Bell county trial court's ruling.

ELGIN MAN DIES

ELGIN, Dec. 16. (AP)—James A. Walling, 83, retired farmer and business man, dropped dead on a street here Wednesday. He was active in civic, church and American Legion circles. He was survived by his widow and four daughters, Mrs. James Schermerhorn, Mrs. C. W. Bickley and Mrs. Amy Williams, all of El Paso, and Mrs. Kittie Silliman of Fort Stockton.

Border Inspector Didn't Take Any Chances In This Situation

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 16. (AP)—Reasoning the child of an undesirable alien born in this country would be an United States citizen, Carson Morrow, chief border patrol inspector, acted swftly when a physician informed him one of his charges was about to become a mother.

The woman, one of 26 Mexican aliens being deported from California, was bundled into a patrol car and rushed at top speed to the border.

The story had not arrived when the driver left to report back to Morrow.

Coster Bared As Ex-Convict

secreted in the family garage by a chauffeur.

The investigation into the $87,000,000 drug firm which Coster headed had not begun at that time —an investigation of an apparent $18,000,000 overstatement of assets.

Art Gorman, an assistant federal attorney in New Haven, Conn., arrived at the front door of the Coster home only to hear the shot that ended Coster's life.

In routine fashion, Inspector John J. Donovan announced yesterday that the fingerprints, discovered in old files of a side-street station, showed Coster to be Musica, twice convicted, once pardoned by President Taft.

Cast His Past Aside

Coster, now facing federal charges with two of his drug firm aides, thus stood revealed as a man who cast his past aside, and fictionized a new, more brilliant background for himself, when fortune once again decreed — as it had before — his position to be a commanding one in the world of money.

For Musica was an immigrant boy, but Coster in his own version, written for "Who's Who in America," gave himself American birth, in Washington, D. C., new parents, and a background of culture and foreign education.

New Robes Are Stripped

But yesterday only a few hours after he, with George Dietrich, assistant treasurer of McKesson and Robbins, and George Vernard, agent in charge of sales, had been arraigned on federal charges of conspiracy and filing false statements with the New York Stock Exchange, his new robes were stripped from him and he stood revealed as Musica, the man who was:

Convicted of grand larceny 25 years ago in the collapse of the million-dollar United States Hair company;

Convicted in federal court of customs duty fraud, in 1909 fined $5,000, sentenced to a year in prison, then pardoned by President Taft after serving six months;

Investigators Move Ahead

Arrested in 1920 on a charge of perjury, growing out of a notorious murder case investigation, released on bail, later discharged.

With these revelations to guide them, investigators moved ahead today in their attempts to discover what happened to $18,000,000 of McKesson & Robbins assets which their search has thus far failed to disclose.

As four investigations went on, from Washington came an announcement from Assistant U. S. Attorney General Brien McMahon that the justice department was investigating leads indicating that Coster "had engaged in shipping arms and munitions to belligerent countries in cases labeled 'milk of magnesia'."

"Just Scratches The Surface"

In New York, U. S. Attorney Gregory Noonan declared the indictment against Coster and his companions "just scratches the surface."

From James J. Caffrey, regional administrator of the securities exchange commission, came the assertion that seven sellers carried on the books of the firm's crude drug department did not even exist, and that the company had never had dealings with several reputable London firms, listed on the corporation's books as heavily indebted to it.

Coster, his Fairfield, Conn., house guarded by a police patrol car after "prowler" complaints, said nothing.

The mystery of Musica's "transition period" — two years when he dropped from sight, then reappeared as "F. Donald Coster," in the drug business at Mount Vernon, N. Y. — it was hoped might be cleared today at a hearing called by Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall.

Only a single witness is scheduled to testify at the hearing. McCall would not identify the person.

One opinion that the "principal motive for filing of false statements" in behalf of the firm was "the mulcting of the company by certain persons of about $150,000 annually as commissions on sales which were never made" came from Robert Kline, assistant general counsel for the SEC.

Was Great Scandal In 1913

Failure of the United States Hair company was a great scandal of 913.

Philip Musica then 36, was highly respected as the son of a man who had been dealing with the city's top bankers for 30 years.

Suddenly, he was accused of negotiating $300,000 to $500,000 in fraudulent bills of lading and worthless drafts.

Investigators who sought 700 cases of human hair supposedly imported by Musica found nothing but "rubbish" hair, and lead to add weight to the packing cases.

Banks Had Been Duped

Detectives learned Musica and his family had fled, headed for Honduras. They learned likewise that banks both in this country and in foreign countries had been duped by fraudulent invoices of what was generally estimated at more than $1,000,000.

At New Orleans the detectives found the Musicas on board ship. Returned to New York, they were indicted. Philip insisted he alone was to blame. He pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and was given a suspended sentence.

Philip Musica was born in 1877 in Naples, son of Antonio, the barber, whose people were of peasant stock.

In 1883—Philip then was 6—Antonio loaded his family into ship's steerage and came to New York.

Began Importing Business

On the teeming East Side he opened a barber shop. He prospered moderately, and began a small importing business.

Dealing chiefly in cheeses and other foodstuffs demanded by the fast-growing "Little Italy," he listened finally to the impatient, ambitious voice of his son, Philip, who had grown into a sharp, shrewd lad, and the business suddenly boomed.

The Musicas, including two brothers, Arthur and George, and two sisters, Louise and Grace, moved to a handsome home in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn.

Became Man About Town

Philip moved in wealthy Italian circles. Only the best places saw him. He became a figure, a man about town.

Curious government investigators halted the rising fortune in the spring of 1909. Customs weighers were questioned. Investigators learned the Musicas had escaped heavy duty charges by bribing weighers to mark down the weights on invoices for cheese imports.

Philip and his father were charged with fraud, but Philip dramatically told the court the fault was his, that his father was blameless.

He was sentenced to serve a year in prison and to pay a $5,000 fine. On Oct. 29, 1909, he went to Auburn State prison, which then received federal prisoners. The charge against his father was dismissed.

Pardoned By Taft

In the spring of 1910 a pardon from President Taft opened the prison doors, and Philip walked out, free.

Again, he urged his father into business. This time, the importation of hair, since high coiffures of women boosted the price of false hair, often as much as $800 a pound.

The United States hair company was formed. Fortune smiled again. An even more imposing home was purchased in an exclusive section of Brooklyn, with stables and a great, sweeping lawn.

Once more Philip was the dashing man of society. He affected high heels to give him height and topped his dressing with jewels. Credit was extensive at the city's banks. His company's stock sold on the curb.

Then, in the spring of 1913 he appeared in the offices of a Manhattan bank, asking a loan of $370,000 on 216 cases of human hair. The bank, however, advanced only $25,000.

A clerk, glancing at the bills of lading, discovered what appeared to be tampering with the figures. Detectives found the boxes contained only "rubbish" hair and lead.

The beautiful home, they soon discovered, contained virtually nothing. It had been stripped. The Musicas had vanished.

The trail led to New Orleans. Arrested aboard a vessel headed for Honduras, the Musicas were found to have secreted on them nearly $80,000 in cash. A paid-up insurance policy for $225,000 in Philip's name also was found.

Philip again pleaded "I am to blame." He offered restitution, declared the family had sought flight only because they were "embarrassed" by failure of three large hair firms in Europe, two in France and one in England.

Philip pleaded guilty to grand larceny, aided the district attorney to clean up the case while he was a prisoner in the Tombs for three years, and finally was discharged with a suspended sentence, March

In Formal Dress

The entire house party which included, in addition to those already named, Mrs. Bill Buford who presided at the tea table with Miss Brown and Mrs. E. D. Kelly who assisted in the dining and living rooms, wore formal evening dresses.

Decorations in the living room were featured on the mantel where there was a "snow" scene, white tree with red ornaments and reindeer. Above the mantel was a lighted red cross, and lights above the mantel were decorated with pine burrs and spruce. Also in the room was a poinsettia, a gift from Mrs. Tyner to the Brown family, and an arrangement of greenery and fern.

The dining room table was laid with a white hand-made cutwork cloth. Red satin ribbons extended from the centerpiece of holly and red candles to each corner of the table where there was a red ribbon basket filled with holly and silver bells. Tea and coffee were served with a variety of cakes, nuts and mints.

The associational W. M. U. presented a gold W. M. U. pin to Mrs. Tyner.

'Pa' And The Boys Do Their Christmas Shopping In Peace This Year In Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 16 (AP)— "Pa" and his sons did Christmas shopping in peace in Johnstown this year.

No bargain counter rushes, no tramping of toes, and plenty of time to stop and study what they want, even time to read the poems on the pretty framed pictures.

The reason: a department store started "men's night." A sign at the entrance boldly proclaimed: "No women allowed."

Gasoline consumption in Great Britain during August totaled 137,968,000 gallons, compared with 138,401,000 in July and 129,725,000 in August 1937.

English Hitch-Hiker Pays Visit To Tech's Campus And 'Bunks' With Raider Players

Here today, gone tomorrow.

That is the story of Howard Bruce, 19, of Lands End, England. Young Bruce turned up in Lubbock this week looking for Jodie Marek, Texas Technological college football star.

According to Bruce, he is slowly hitch-hiking to Hollywood where he will attempt to "crash" the pictures. So confident of doing this he has already selected his stage name, Lawrence Evers.

He landed in New York City Aug. 3 and started westward, coming through the Southern states. He has worked at various jobs through the South including picking cotton, "butling," and he even enrolled for a short time in a CCC camp in Louisiana.

While in Louisiana he decided to start visiting the football squads of different schools for two reasons. It afforded an excellent opportunity to learn American life, and the members of the teams would let him stay with them in their dormitories, thus his problem of eating and sleeping would be solved.

Visit Southwest Schools

The first college he visited was Louisiana State university where he was cordially welcomed. Next he stopped at Centenary college in Shreveport, La. At Southern Methodist university at Dallas he was the guest of Harold Fleming and Joe Pasqua, grid stars. From there he went to Texas Christian university where he stayed with Russell Hensch and Davey O'Brien. He stayed there six days in order to see his first football game.

Baylor was his next stop where he met Joe Corneilson. At Texas A. & M. he met Dick Todd, F. M. Wood, and Owen Rogers. While at A. & M. he was given a hair-cut by Todd. F. M. Wood told him to contact Marek if he should come to Texas Tech. Before he came here he also visited on the campus of Texas university and Rice institute.

While here he was allowed to stay with the football squad and was shown around the campus by Marek and Charles Dvoracek. He was amazed at the size of the campus and the school. He was plied with various questions by the squad and he, no doubt, learned much while here. The friendly spirit of the students "astounded" him.

Speaking in his clipped English accent he said that T. C. U. was the most friendly school he had visited, and A. & M. was, by far, the most spectacular. He didn't offer an opinion of Tech because he had not been here long enough.

He was born in Toronto, Canada, but has spent the past 10 years in England.

He left Lubbock Thursday morning for Midland, where he is to work on a ranch. From there he plans to visit the Texas School of Mines in El Paso.

Relief Awaited By Oil Industry

(By The Associated Press)

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 16.—Oildom sat on the edge of its chair awaiting developments at the two-day oil compact commission meeting opening at Fort Worth.

Hope of a definite program to relieve the industry's uncertainty was seen, as the struggle for favorable balance between consumption and production went on with processing the vital third side of the triangle.

An expressed desire of the independent producer and refiner to be given the power to "work out their own problems" emerged as the Independent Petroleum Association of America committee of 36 met just ahead of the compact group.

Increased Consumption Seen

The Texas railroad commission hearing the same day, drawing an unusual representation of major oil executives, prompted reports by the industry's chiefs of good prospects for heavier consumption of oil products in 1939.

They said, as they had before, that the industry's statistical position was firm but crude production should not be increased until perhaps April 1, when the winter slack in gasoline consumption usually ends.

Last week's crude flow for the nation curved upward 21,450 barrels daily to 3,245,100 barrels, the institute estimated, as against 3,414,450 barrels a year ago.

Refining Dip Continues

A down-dip in refining continued with runs-to-stills totaling 3,150,000 barrels a day as compared with 3,175,000 barrels the week before and 3,173,000 a year ago. The institute reported. A dip of 568,000 barrels in stocks of finished and unfinished gasolines resulted.

Adverse weather slowed some field operations. Completions last week numbered 25,278 as against a comparable 1937 total of 29,976, the Oil & Gas Journal reported. Illinois finished 84 wells, Texas 182 and Oklahoma and California each 29 of the week's total of 526 in the nation, 18 more than the week before.

Area Pioneers To Be Saluted In Series Of KFYO Programs

Pioneers of this area will be saluted in the first of a series of programs at 4:15 o'clock Sunday afternoon over KFYO.

The Texas Technological college speech department and the West Texas Museum association jointly are sponsoring the series.

The program, directed by Robert Flowers of the college speech faculty, will pay tribute to the late Rev. Robert Franklin Dunn, pioneer circuit rider.

The script was written by students in a Radio Speech class. A group of students will present the play.

Tech's Library Of Films Gains

Among films being added in the visual education library at Texas Technological college are several appropriate for showing at meetings of organizations such as Parent-[illegible] associations, Boy Scouts [illegible] clubs.

"[illegible] Child and You," a film recently ordered and especially appropriate for showing before Parent-Teacher associations, was previewed this week before a group of women representing Lubbock P-TA groups. The women were Mesdames C. V. Cook, Marshall Harvey, O. W. McLeod, O. L. Peterman, W. H. Younger, and S. B. Haynes.

For 4-H Club Work

"Partners Three," ordered for use in connection with 4-H club work, was previewed before Miss Margaret W. Weeks, dean of the home economics division, and Miss Mabel D. Erwin, head professor of clothing and textiles, Thursday morning.

Earl M. McClure, Boy Scout executive, saw a preview Wednesday afternoon of films on "Control of Bleeding" and "Care of Minor Wounds."

The motion pictures were screened in the visual aids office on the third floor of the administration building.

Number Increased

Number of motion pictures on literature and music is being increased, said Mrs. R. L. McDonald, secretary in the visual education library. An order for literary films has been placed and included in pictures ordered are those on Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," "Othello," "Hamlet," "King Lear" and "Macbeth," Scott's "Lady of the Lake," and Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

Number of films in the library, which was established in September, totals more than 200, about half of which are sound and half silent, said J. F. McDonald, director of extension. The film library is a part of the extension department.

Approximately 15 films are rented each week. The films are used principally in class room instruction in public schools.

Ivan Shiller, Man Who Discovered First Pink Bollworm In U. S., Lives In Lubbock

Discoverer of the first pink bollworm in the United States, Ivan Shiller is a Lubbock resident.

He has been here since September working out of the Lubbock office of the United States department of agriculture. He offices with H. B. Prickett, of the U. S. department of agriculture of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine in the federal building.

The first pink bollworm in the United States, Shiller said, was found at Hearne, Tex., more than 21 years ago, specifically, Sept. 6, 1917.

Shiller began working for the department of agriculture that year and has worked with the department at intervals since then.

"The worm is of Indian or Egyptian origin, more probably Indian," he said. "In 1913 or 1914 it was taken to Old Mexico in shipping of seed there.

"The worms came to Texas in 1916 when 90 carloads of seed were imported from Mexico and distributed throughout Hearne, Dallas, Austin, San Antonio, Paris, towns in the neighborhood of Waco, and other Texas territories.

Found In Other Areas

"Soon after they were found at Hearne, they were found in Trinity Bay section, including Chambers, Liberty, Harris, and Galveston counties."

The pink bollworm has become prevalent in the lower Rio Grande valley, near El Paso, in the vicinity of Presidio, the Salt river and Gila river valleys, and parts of Arizona and Florida.

"The methods generally used by the department, especially in sections of Texas where the worms are most damaging, are to sterilize seeds," he said. "All cotton mills sterilize the seed and gins in many sections also sterilize it.

"On the Plains the worms are not numerous enough to cause great damage and gins of this area do not always sterilize seed.

"The probable reason for the scarcity of the pink bollworm on the Plains is the climate. This climate is 'hard on them.'

"In the Presidio area the cotton stalks are cut down immediately after harvest in order to keep the worm damage to a minimum."

Tech Band Stages Christmas Concert

Approximately 1,000 persons attended the annual Christmas concert presented by the Matador band of Texas Technological college Thursday night in Senior High school auditorium.

The concert was dedicated to Coaches P. W. Cawthon, Russell T. Smith, and Berl Huffman, and the 1938 Red Raiders.

Highlight of the program was the presentation of a Christmas gift to D. O. Wiley, director, by members of the band. He was also presented with a large scroll with Christmas greetings.

The program included a solo, cornet trio, and was closed with several well known Christmas carols. The first half of the program was broadcast over KFYO.

After the scheduled program was over the band played numerous popular college numbers preparatory to the Cotton bowl game.

Reductions Made In Key Fire Insurance Rates In Territory

Key fire insurance rates have been reduced in Hale Center and Olton, according to announcement Thursday from Marvin Hall, member of the state fire insurance commission.

Rate at Hale Center has been reduced from 56 cents to 54 cents due to waterworks improvements. Enforcement of a fire marshal's ordinance was given as reason for a reduction from 69 cents to 57 cents for Olton.

Hall praised officials of those and four other Texas towns for improvements in fire-fighting defenses which made reduced rates possible.

Sonora, Round Rock, Luling and New Braunfels also received rate slashes.

A new Diesel engine that is air-cooled is being perfected in France.

Annual Performance Of 'Los Pastores' Features Pre-Christmas Activities Of Mexicans In Many Texas Communities

BY ERNEST FISCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 16.—Throughout the year he may be a sheep-shearer, onion planter or humble cotton picker, but when he puts on the costume of "El Diablo" for the annual performance of "Los Pastores" he is the man of the hour in many Mexican communities in Texas.

The play, originating with the distant inception of Christianity in the new world, is a dramatization of the birth of Jesus performed in the pre-Christmas season by primitive actors in the tradition of the generations. The fellow who plays the part of the devil has his moment in number one place in the communities.

Lucifer Heads Cast

Often the determinedly grim person in the role of Mestopheles is the leader of a company of players that includes several assistant devils, a bevy of shepherds, a hermit, the archangel and a cook who stage the drama in Mexican villages. Like the Christ in the Oberammergau Passion Play, Lucifer is the head of the cast. He taught the players, some of them illiterate, their lines and cues, and upon him rests the responsibility to find quickly a substitute should one of the assistant devils, or even a shepherd, become "Muy Boracho" (over-liquored) during the performance.

Versions of the play by the numerous companies differ somewhat and the dialogue varies materially. The general theme, however, is the shepherds' celebration of the birth of Christ and the attempts of Lucifer and his crew to dissuade them by flattery, bribery and cajolery. The climax is reached when the Archangel Michael, usually played by a girl armed with a toy sword, fight a duel.

Time For Applause

Equipped with cellophane wings, the girl pierces the fierce demon and places her foot on the head of the prone foe in a "Thus-always-to-tyrants" pose. This is the time for applause.

(Sometimes, in the fringe of the crowd there is real drama with a blade or bullet. Several years ago, one season's presentation of "Los Pastores" in Bexar county yielded three corpses among spectators).

To the play there is a happier ending. Good triumphs over evil. The seven Cardinal sins are represented by the seven devils, who, with popping firecrackers attached to their tails, flee from the scene, leaving the shepherds to proceed to the crib.

Humor is furnished by "El Hermitano," (the hermit), whose wooden cross and the rosary of empty spools give him immunity while he taunts the devils, and by "Bartholo," the lazy shepherd. This is the type of humor. Bartholo sits down and refuses to budge while his companions are desirious of pressing on to Bethlehem. To break his sit-down strike the shepherds tell him that a little farther on is a river that flows milk and honey.

Spectators Join In

"Bring me a cupful" retorts Bartholo.

Frequently spectators join in the repartee and the chants. There are ribald parodies on some of the lines. If a player forgets his part or acts poorly it is cricket for the spectators to chime in with some parody on his lines.

The stage may be a householders' backyard with a few lanterns strung along a clothesline. The scenery is simple. A screen of canvas or oilcloth with some artist's conception of fire forms a hell-mouth from which the devils emerge and to which they retreat. At the other end of the stage is a manger scene. Spanish moss makes good hay.

The costumes are more elaborate, depending upon the players resourcefulness and ingenuity. Knee breeches of blue silk and pink blouses of sateen are in highfavor among shepherds. Devils may wear black alpaca and animal masks. The stoop-shouldered hermit is dressed and masked as an old man. The cook and the Archangel are in white satin or muslin, sprinkled with tinsel.

The "Pastorela," said to have been produced first by Saint Francis of Assisi, was brought to this country by the Franciscan monks, who used the drama to teach Christianity to the Indians. Four hundreds of years "Los Pastores" has entertained and awed those of humble birth while "Los Pasados," another commemcration of the birth of Christ, has become a socio-religious function among the more fortunate.

For many centuries both these functions have lacked any mercenary suggestions. At "Los Pastores" for years the candy vendor's cry of "dulce, dulce!" as he hawked sweets among the audience was the only commercial aspect. Today, in some places, reserved seats may be had.

Slow Down And Dim Your Lights Is Advice Given To Motorists By Engineer

AUSTIN, Dec. 16. (AP)—Slow down and dim your lights when meeting other motor vehicles on the highway after dark, Harry S. Phillips, traffic engineer for the Texas Highway department, warned motorists today.

Asserting night travel would increase in the holiday season, Phillips declared most headlights provided only 200 feet of adequate visibility and such visibility was reduced 50 per cent on wet and foggy nights.

Consumption Of Possums In East Texas High, Survey In Negro CCC Camps Reveals

AUSTIN, Dec. 16. (AP)—Add economic surveys:

The game, fish and oyster commission reports a questionnaire answered by negro enrollees at the Lufkin and New Waverly CCC camps shows that 57.6 per cent of 2,098 negroes living in East Texas eat an average of 4.9 possums to the family a year.

And urban families are not much below rural families in possum consumption, the figures reveal.

Of those in towns of 10,000 or less population 49.1 per cent eat an average of 3.4 possums a year while 76.2 per cent of farm families average 5.6 possums annually.

On July 1, 1938, North Carolina had 39,442 families being served on rural electrification lines and 45,425 families on lines being built or authorized.

Threat Of Second Strike In Chicago Stockyards Is Noted

CHICAGO, Dec. 16. (AP)—The threat of a second strike at the Chicago stockyards emerged today after CIO live stock handlers demanded speedy settlement of negotiations for a contract.

The handlers, who recently forced the stockyards to close for 13 days, last night authorized its strategy committee to call a strike if necessary.

A 10 day period set by the union for negotiation of a contract expired at midnight Tuesday. Union spokesmen said they were pressing for an eight hour day, 40 hour week, seniority rights, and time and a half for overtime but had dropped demands for a checkoff and a closed shop.

MEETING DATE SCHEDULED

FORT WORTH, Dec. 16. (AP)—The tenth annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America will be held here in October 1939, it was decided today by the association's executive committee.

New Mexico's Famed White Sands One Of Nation's National Park Monuments Now

(Special To The Journal)

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., Dec. 16.—White Sands National monument in Otero county, south central New Mexico, was established Jan. 18, 1933, by proclamation of President Herbert Hoover. It is an area of 233.66 square miles which contains 176,000 acres of crystallized gypsum, and is the only area of its kind in the world.

Ordinary silica or quartz sands are not to be found in the White Sands. The crystallized gypsum is constantly in the process of making. To the west of the Sands and about 10 miles from the picnic ground is an old lake bed which is drying. The gypsum is carried down from the surrounding hills in solution and when the water evaporates it leaves tiny white chrysals. Rippled dunes formed by the prevailing southwest wind are as high as 75 or 100 feet. The 30 mile front of sand is moving at the rate of 8 inches a year toward Alamogordo.

Mineral water is available, though not pleasing to the taste.

Protective coloration is given to insects and animals that live on the Sands. The pocket mouse that frequents the fringes is a gray-brown, but the same mouse that lives in the mid area is almost white. Lizards and many insects also have the light color to match the surroundings in which they live. This is nature's way of letting them escape notice of enemies.

Tom Charles, custodian, says photographs have to be taken with light coming from the side rather than from directly behind cameras. This is to show the shadows and provide contrast; otherwise photographs will appear "flat".

The fame of the White Sands has spread far. In an effort to keep pace with the heavy travel and provide information for visitors, the United States Department of Interior has established a modern headquarters area. It is under the jurisdiction of the National Park service.

Charles asks cooperation in keeping the Sands clean and protecting every vestige of life. He says the white lizards are pets and look to the visitors for protection. He also urges that everyone see White Sands if they have the opportunity.

Andrews Says Congress Might Consider Overtime Provisions For Some Workers

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, suggested today congress might consider exempting employes receiving a certain guaranteed salary from overtime provisions of the fair labor standards act.

The sort of employe he had in mind, he made clear, is the chap getting around $150 to $300 a month or more who is not an executive, or a professional worker, but can take a little time off or a fishing trip whenever he wishes without having his pay docked.

Andrews said at a press conference some business men found overtime payments to this type of employe "the most difficult part of the act to understand."

The act limits the work week to 44 hours and requires payment of time and one-half for all hours worked over the maximum.

The wage-hour administrator emphasized that he was not proposing amendment of the act to cover that situation. He said, however, that the way business men regard it "may lead to the suggestion that possibly that ought to be clarified by congress."

Three Former Presidents And Others Defendants In Suit

SAN LUIS, Colo., Dec. 16. (AP)—Three former presidents of the United States, pioneer Indian scouts and many others long since dead were named defendants in a suit on file in district court here today to quiet title to the 285,000 acre Trinchera ranch.

The suit was begun on behalf of Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms, who purchased the huge ranch, part of an early-day Spanish land grant, last spring.

The 400 defendants in the action, most of them dead for many years, including Presidents Chester A. Arthur, James Buchanan, and William McKinley, all of whom once had claims of some kind to portions of the estate of more than 375 square miles.

Kit Carson, famed pioneer Indian scout; William Gilpin, first territorial governor of Colorado; and General William Palmer, pioneer railroad builder of Colorado Springs also were among the defendants listed.

One of Mrs. Simms' attorneys in the action is Ralph L. Carr, Colorado governor-elect.

Masons Face Greatest Battle Of Careers Today

Westerners Are Heavy Favorites

Masonic Home's mighty little Masons face the greatest battle of their football careers at Tech field this afternoon as they attempt to stop the powerful charge of Lubbock's Westerners who have been favored to blast their way to the state championship.

A crowd of more than 10,000 was expected for the classic which will determine one of the two teams in the state title clash.

Sparked by the brilliant passing of 150-pound Gene Keel the Fort Worth lads were to enter the game as underdogs but with the respect of the Westerner squad and its record following. The "mighty mites" consistently have been picked to lose but they have written one of the amazing chapters in Texas schoolboy football by advancing this far with an "iron man" squad that boasts few substitutions.

Russell Hopes For Best

Coach H. N. "Rusty" Russell of the Masons hoped for the best today but agreed with the critics that his team was seemingly at the end of their spectacular season. The highly polished Westerner machine has steadily improved with each game and has shown flashes of even greater power in workouts this week.

Add to those odds against the Masons the fact that Coach Weldon Chapman has a reserve squad capable of holding its own in rough company and the "mighty mites" task looks dark indeed. Lubbock has a forward wall that can not be compared in the state. Its backfield of Captain Walter "Jumbo" Webster, Quarterback Harold Parsons, Left Halfback Wayne "Rusty" Johnston, and Right Halfback Leete Jackson is perhaps the most versatile to gallop over a high school gridiron. That quartet has crossed opposition goal lines for 91 points the last three games.

Webster's Playing Praised

Capt. Webster is being boomed for all-state honors. His powerful running has brought praise from all coaches, critics, and fans who have seen his spectacular performances. Also a candidate for an all-state position will be Keel. It is his passes to Miller Moseley, left end, and Norman Strange, right end, that have struck fear in the Masons' opponents this season. His aerials are so accurate and speedy that few come near being intercepted.

And with all that ability is added a fighting and determined attitude unmatched anywhere. The Masons keep playing with their hearts and souls in the game until the final gun. That has been an important factor in their winning streak. They came from behind last week to even the count with Highland park and win on penetrations. And it is an established fact that the "giant killers" play their best in the last half.

Should Coach Russell's team be able to stop the Lubbock powerhouse then they would rule heavy favorites to cop the state pennant. And a Lubbock victory would only carry out the experts' predictions that the Westerners are the team to beat for the Interscholastic league championship.

The starting lineups:

Masonic Home	Pos.	Lubbock
Moseley	LE	Hill
Holmans	LT	Parris
McHam	LG	Pytell
Torres	C	Pipes
Bates	RG	Sanders
Brown	RT	Nash
Strange	RE	Foster
Keel	QB	Parsons
Hudgins	LH	Johnston
Bonds	RH	Jackson
Stephens	FB	Webster

Officials: Referee, Curtis (Texas); umpire, Higgins (S.M.U.); head linesman, Medley (McMurry); field judge, McCullough (T.C.U.).

Opening Dates Are Arranged For Big Leagues Next Season

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—The American and National leagues decided to open the 1939 season on April 18, with Washington and Cincinnati doing the honors a day earlier. The campaign will end Oct. 1, one day earlier than this year.

The World Champion New York Yankees drew the much-desired April 17 opening at Washington against the Senators. The next day, for the eight-club getaway, Boston opens at New York, Washington at Philadelphia, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at St. Louis.

The National league, in agreeing to have Cincinnati at home against the Pittsburgh Pirates on April 17, settled a problem that presented itself during the magnates' deliberations. The Reds traditionally start the season at home, but that policy conflicts with the loop's preference for home openings to alternate annually. So, to satisfy everyone, the league decided on the preseason date.

On April 18, St. Louis starts at Pittsburgh, New York at Brooklyn, Philadelphia at Boston and Cincinnati at Chicago.

National Riding Honors Are Virtually Cinched By Longden

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16. (AP)—A couple of dead heats at Tanforan race track this week virtually clinched this year's national riding honors for Jockey Johnny Longden of Canada.

By participating in both dead heats Longden increased his lead to 16 over his nearest rival and the defending champion, Johnny Adams of Iola, Kas. Adams had mounts in seven races yesterday, but didn't boot home a winner. Longen's total for the season is 226 victories and there are only eight days of racing left on the coast this year.

McKnight Picks Lubbock And Corpus Christi In Finals Of Interscholastic Grid Race

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 16.—Blindfold test: Lubbock to overpower those grand little rascals, Masonic Home, and Corpus Christi's magicians to score a shade more points than Temple's Tom Pickett . . . Incidentally, will Pickett, perhaps the finest chimax runner in Texas schoolboy football, follow Sam Baugh and Ki Aldrich to Texas Christian?

Loftiness gets the play in Southwest conference basketball this season . . . Tops is Arkansas' Freiberger at 6'4" . . . Mabry at T. C. U. measures 6'6" while the "midget" 6'4"-inch class holds such stars as Dewell and Wilkerson of Southern Methodist and Bryski, Baylor sophomore.

Tickets Going Fast

Seventeen days before game-time and the folks are eating up those Cotton bowl tickets . . . Down close to the goal stripes already and West Texans, some 10,000 already to their credit, are clamoring for more . . . St. Mary's holds a slight betting edge of 9-20 over Texas Tech's Red Raiders . . . Officials predict 45,000 for the game.

If you didn't keep books, Texas Christian's defense permitted only 1778 yards in ten games—less than half the yardage they consumed . . . Add too-tall basketballers: Charles Halbert, West Texas States freshman and former New Mexico all-state schoolboy performer . . . Just a cool six feet, nine and a half inches, boys!

Had Light Schedule

The St. Mary's Rattlers of San Antonio, who played a light schedule of only 15 games the past season, have a new bus for their educational tours of the nation next fall . . . Flippin' Foster Watkins, the West Texas State forward passing sensation who has too many amateur press agents, didn't make Little All-America but he deserves special mention . . . All he did was personally score six touchdowns, kick 22 conversion points, hurl 17 passes for touchdowns and set up 90 per cent of his team's scores . . . Take that, Davey O'Brien.

Not the referee but the timekeeper, will be on the spot in Southwest conference games next year . . . Entrusted with operating the official scoreboard out in plain sight of all the wolves, he'll have to click a quick watch to keep the stands satisfied . . . Its the most notable improvement of the year, however.

Had Good Season

Football season's over out at Hardin-Simmons university, but maybe enough hasn't been said about Coach Frank Kimbrough . . . In four years, he has won 31 games, lost seven and tied two for a percentage of .815 . . . In 1936, 1937 and early '38, he had a run of 18 straight victories . . . He won eight of ten this year.

Remember the bear stories in early summer about Davey O'Brien's football career threatened by a baseball injury that some felt could lead to ossification of his arm? The only thing stiffened was his opposition.

Cubs Sell Two Of Minor League Outfield Holdings In Session

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs have sold two of their minor league outfield holdings, Jim Asbell and Coaker Triplett, to farm teams of the St. Louis Cardinals, and immediately reports popped up that the transactions were forerunners of a deal involving purchase of Enos Slaughter from the gas house gang.

All hands denied any such deal, however.

Asbell was sold to Houston of the Texas league and Triplett went to Columbus of the American association.

Nova And Farr Fight Tonight

BY DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The most significant heavyweight fight of the apathetic indoor season will go on in Madison Square garden tonight between Lou Nova, a promising youngster from Alameda, Calif., and Tommy Farr, a doddering ancient of 24 from Tony Pady, Wales. The prize is the doubtful pleasure of fighting Joe Louis for the heavyweight title sometime next year.

The only obstacle between tonight's victor and the stiff left jab of the champion is Max Baer. The unpredictable one beat Farr last winter and if Tommy wins and gets another shot at Louis, there will be plenty of hollering from Baer. But there has been something less than a universal demand for another Louis-Baer fight.

It is a sad commentary on U. S. boxing that two years of beating the bushes for a white hope has produced only Nova. He is pretty fair but the fortune that awaits the man who eventually beats Louis should have attracted an army of good young heavyweights.

Nova is a handsome young fellow whose most convincing Eastern win was against Gunnar Barlund, a victory dimmed by Barlund's defeat at the hands of the inept Roscoe Toles.

Nova's chief stock in trade is a good short right. He also has a fair left but that shouldn't bother Farr, as Tommy took the Louis jab. Lou is fairly fast, smart and strictly a boxer.

The bookmakers do not think this is enough. They have made Farr the favorite and five will get you seven if Nova wins.

Lubbock Rifle Enthusiasts To Talk Club Here On Sunday

A group of Lubbock sportsmen have called a meeting for Sunday afternoon, 3 o'clock, with the object of organizing a rifle club. The meeting will be at the American Legion hall.

Interest in the rifle club is being aroused by certain Legion members, and all sportsmen are invited to attend the Sunday gathering. Dr. E. F. George of Texas Tech's faculty has been appointed temporary chairman of a committee working on organization plans.

Officials say that site of the range probably will be in the vicinity of the City incinerator, and if enough interest is shown a more suitable site to accomodate a 1,000-yard range will be found.

LSU EVENS SERIES

HOUSTON, Dec. 16. (AP)—The Louisiana State cagers counted 12 points in the last nine minutes of play here last night to catch up with and defeat Rice institute 30 to 27 and even the pre-season series.

Raiders Work In Earnest For Jan. 2

Tech's colorful Red Raiders, preparing for the Cotton Bowl classic, crashed into each other with determination yesterday afternoon in a tough scrimmage between regulars and second team squad men and regulars and freshmen.

Another workout is scheduled today and another Monday. The squad leaves Tuesday night for Dallas where they will put finishing touches to their offensive and defensive tactics on the Southern Methodist university field.

Backs Looking Good—

In the "rockem and sockem" affair yesterday the backfield combination of Ray Flusche at quarterback, Jodie Marek at full, Barnett and Elmer Tarbox at halfback positions looked very good. This quartet alternated with a backfield made up of Dudley Akins at quarter, Charley Calhoun at full, C. L. Storrs at left half and Billy Dodd at right half.

Another outstanding thing was noted in the scrimmage. It was Barnett and his running game which was attracting almost as much attention as his famed passing attack. He probably will see much service against 'Slip' Madigan's Galloping Gaels. Only in the last few games did Barnett run with the ball to any extent. His perfection of the ground game may be a great help in the Cotton Bowl classic.

Singletary Elected Captain At Rice; Schedule Is Heavy

Clyde Hubbard Is Named Head Footba'l Coach At Denver U.

DENVER, Dec. 16. (AP)—Curly-haired Clyde (Cac) Hubbard, who looks as though he could play a hard game of football any day in the week, is Denver university's new grid coach.

He was named to succeed William H. (Navy Bill) Saunders, whose resignation, announced yesterday, caught Rocky Mountain grid followers by surprise.

Hubbard will become head man next fall after seven seasons as assistant to Saunders and Percy Locey, Saunders' predecessor. The genial "Cac" also is basketball and baseball coach.

Carnegie Tech's Victory Over Pittsburgh Is Rated No. 1 In Year's Upsets In Sports

(NOTE: This is fifth of a series analyzing results of the eighth annual Associated Press sports poll. It deals with replies of the nation's sports editors to the question: what was the most surprising sports result of 1938?)

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Carnegie Tech's football victory over Pittsburgh was ranked officially as the No. 1 upset of the 1938 sports season by the 70 sports experts participating in the Associated Press' eighth annual poll today, but analysis in the returns reveal that the outcome of the heated National league pennant race actually was the biggest surprise.

This apparent paradox was brought about the fact that the sports critics who mentioned the National league race approached it from two directions. One group suggested that the Chicago Cubs' fast finish was the biggest surprise. Another group took the position that it was the collapse of the Pittsburgh Pirates which was most astonishing.

Cubs Are Second

With points awarded on a 3-2-1 basis as each expert made three nominations to the "upset" list, Carnegie Tech's 20-10 triumph over Pitt was given a total of 55 1-2 points to top the list. Thirty-one points went to the Cubs for their pennant victory and 25 to the Pirates for their collapse.

Joe Louis' one-round knockout of Max Schmeling was rated as the next biggest surprise. Then followed the Cubs' pennant victory; Seabiscuit's victory over War Admiral in their match race; the Cincinnati Reds' fine showing in the National league race; the Pirates' collapse, and the Chicago Blackhawks' triumph in the Stanley cup hockey playoffs.

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—The good folks of Texas, betting commissioners report, are hocking the family jools to get aboard Texas Christian and Texas Tech in the Sugar and Cotton bowls. . . . Jim Carroll puts these late prices on the favorites: T.C.U. and Southern Cal. 2 to 5 over Carnegie and Duke, Tennessee 1-3 over Oklahoma and Texas Tech 8-5 over St. Mary's.

The Bees and Pirates may still do business on a trade, even though "the baseball meetings are over . . . Latest is Al Todd to Boston for Ray Mueller, with other ivory tossed in . . . The Cubs insist they'll start the season with Phil Cavaretto back on first base instead of Rip Collins . . . But how about that tremendous .239 batting average Phil had last year? . . . The Cubs, incidentally, were willing to give the Cardinals just about everything but Wrigley field and Gabby Hartnett for Johnny Mize, Ducky Medwick, Enos Slaughter and/or Don Padgett . . . But Branch Rickey said strictly no-dice . . . For which St. Louis fans should hand Branch a vote of thanks . . . Now that the Red Sox-Tigers deal is settled, look for Brooklyn and Detroit to do some talking—and maybe acting.

Just to keep the ball rolling, here's Greensboro Larry Leonard's reply to Texas Christian's latest crack at Duke: That so-called TCU schedule wouldn't even include good scrimmage for the better ball clubs in this neck of the woods . . . Keep it up fellows, this is getting good . . . The National semi-pro baseball congress sent Monty Stratton a ball autographed: "Best wishes for a speedy recovery—from the 400,000 semi-pros."

Toledo of the American association, and San Antonio, Oklahoma City and Tulsa from the Texas league will all train down in the lower Rio Grande fruit belt valley in Texas . . . And several Texas loop outfits have their eye on the Texas valley circuit for farm clubs . . . Congrats to Harper Gault, Rock Hill (S. C.) Herald sports ed—Mr. Story just dropped in with Harriett Willette . . . Doc Parshall, the year's No. 1 trotting hoss driver, tabs his Peter Astra as the '39 'Hambletonian winnah . . . Those who've looked him over say young Selvin Walton, a welterweight out of Tyler, Texas, now fighting on the Florida circuit, will be heard from—but plenty . . .

Clark Griffith swears he'll never make Al Simmons a free agent. . . . If Griff can't swap for Aloysius, he'll give him a contract for '39—which should make things just lovely after that row they had the end of last season. . . . Oklahoma definitely will be minus three first-stringers for the Orange bowl fuss with Tennessee. Halfback Bill Jennings, the top pass catcher, has a broken ankle; Jerry Bolton, the left-guard who's tossed the other guys for more than a hundred yard loss, has a split knee, and Red McCarty, the veteran left half, will be in a hospital four months with a broken thigh.

Ambitious Schedule Is Lined Up By Centenary Gentlemen

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 16. (AP)—Letters were awarded 31 Centenary college football players at the annual Gentlemen football banquet here.

One of the most ambitious schedules ever attempted by the Gentlemen was announced tentatively by Coach Curtis Parker. Contests have been arranged with: Louisiana Normal, Texas Christian, Rice, Mississippi, Texas School of Mines, Arizona, Texas Tech, Baylor, Southwestern of Memphis and Louisiana Tech.

Negotiations for other games are pending with Texas A. and M., Hardin-Simmons, Oklahoma City U. and Tulsa U. The Texas Aggies contest is considered certain and a game will be booked with one of the other three teams.

LOBOS IN COLORADO

COLORADO SPRINGS, Dec. 16 (AP)—New Mexico of the Border conference will invade Colorado Springs tonight for a two-game basketball series with Colorado college of the Rocky Mountain circuit.

HENSHAW IS TRADED

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 16 (AP) — Roy Henshaw, the pint-sized lefthanded pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, was traded today to Rochester of the International league for Kenneth Raffensberger, also a lefthander. Rochester is a Cardinal "farm."

Tech Cagers Will Improve

By Collier Parris

BUTCH SACHSE is ineligible, Coleman Williams is home with a finger in splints, and Coach Berl Huffman has been helping with varsity football.

So the Red Raider basketballers failed to make an auspicious start last night against New Mexico University Normal at Las Vegas.

But you should not take that first defeat as a criterion of the 1938-39 varsity cage team and season. Potentially, the Red Raider cagers are fairly great.

Huffman's Tech basketeers will be utter strangers to local citizens when they play their first home series with the Texas Miners Jan. 6 and 7. Only two lettermen supposed to return—and nearly every player last year won a letter—were Sachse, the sharpshooting forward, and Williams. Border conference officials ruled out Sachse on a technicality, a very finely drawn, unimportant technicality at that, and Williams jammed a finger into the concrete wall the other day.

So at the moment, the Tech varsity is made up entirely of sophomores and junior college transfers. They are good boys, tall, lean and with eyes for the iron hoop, but they have been handicapped by lack of full time coaching. Later on, they'll look much better. Tech will have a good basketball team.

It was a blow indeed when Sachse was declared ineligible, a blow to Sachse himself as much as to the team. But he took it like a little man, and vowed he'd stick around until he could "paint Sachse all over the Border conference." He also means to play a lot of football next year, when he will report as a sophomore.

What Sachse's absence from the basketball team means may be figured by his performance last season. He scored an average of 16.8 points per game, a record seldom achieved by any player in the league.

It has been suggested to Coach Huffman and the Tech athletic council that they devote considerable time to studying the past histories of the boys on hand to see that none of them ever played marbles for keeps at the Little Red Schoolhouse, so Border conference officials won't kick them out of competition.

SHORT, SHORT STORIES: Leading the vanguard of talent scouts into town yesterday for today's game was our brunet friend, Blair Cherry, of the University of Texas coaching staff . . . "But don't get us Texas coaches mixed up with the ordinary garden variety of winning football team producers—we're character builders," explains the former Sandie administrator, "and

COACH IS ANNOUNCED

MONTREAL, Dec. 16. (AP)—Burleigh Grimes, new manager of the Montreal Royals of the International league, announced last night the appointment of Red Rawlings, former major league infielder with the Baston Braves and the Boston Red Sox, as coach of the club.

The raccoon washes its food in water before eating it.

besides, we won a game, didn't we? . . . There was no comeback for that . . . "I think we'll be about 2 per cent stronger next year," he answered a question . . . "We have some pretty fair sophomores coming up, especially some good ends; we'll have good end play for the next three years, at least . . . And these Westerners better be good, or those impish little Masons will rough 'em up in a big way."

It was nice of the Tyler folks to invite the Red Raiders to train there before the Cotton Bowl game . . . The wire they sent Coach Cawthon brought out some good points:

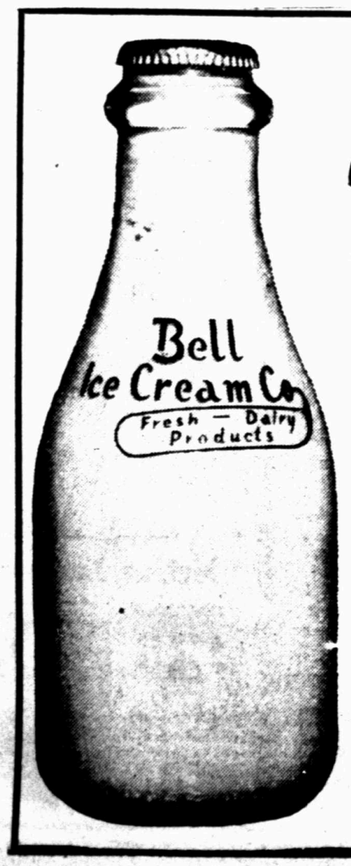

"This is formal invitation for your Red Raiders to train in Tyler for game with St. Marys in the Cotton Bowl classic . . . Invitation carries free use of athletic field which is in excellent condition, passes to all picture shows for coaches and squad, free taxi service, greatly reduced hotel rates, and many other things to make your stay enjoyable . . . Athletic field here only short distance from hotel, and you, of course, can understand advantage this offers over city accommodations where long trips are necessary before each practice session . . . Climatic conditions in Tyler and Dallas are practically the same . . . Further, may we point out that by Texas Tech selecting Tyler, the heart of East Texas, for training quarters, you give this section of the state a chance to become enthused over the game. Cotton Bowl officials have advised us that they are heartily in favor of this plan. We believe your acceptance of this invitation will increase East Texans' attendance at the game by fifty percent."

Had the telegram arrived sooner, Cawthon might have accepted the Tyler offer, but he had already committed himself to Dallas and S. M. U., had arranged for hotel accommodations and other things . . . An old East Texan himself, Cawthon would have gone out of his way to increase his "following" in that region. . . .

Interested in target practice and rifle shooting? . . . Then you should attend Sunday's meeting of sportsmen at the American Legion hall where it is proposed to organize a local rifle club . . . Dallas and Fort Worth cameramen here to "shoot" the Masons and Westerners are not perturbed over action of the Southwest conference in voting to bar photographers from snapping action shots between the two 35-yard lines . . . In the first place, this was too drastic a move for the conference or for any individual school to take if it hoped to remain in the good graces of the press, and the cameraman do not think the rule will "stick" . . . In the second place, few action shots are snapped between the 35-yard lines, in the first place, these being snapped as a rule near or behind the goal lines. . . . It is true that conferences, schools and fans suffer from "too many cameramen of all descriptions cluttering up the sidelines," but the Southwest body could remedy this by permitting only bonafide newspaper photographers on assignment to enter the field. . . .

Detroit Tigers And Boston Bees Make Best Deals In Ball Trade

Pinky Higgins To Detroit

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 — The baseball men have left this old trading post after three riotous days during which the conversation went round and round, and in calm retrospect today it looks like the Detroit Tigers did more good for themselves than any other club.

In landing Third-Baseman Pinky Higgins, a proven star, in yesterday's major trade with the Boston Red Sox, the Tigers finally managed to board up their blind spot, a pronounced weakness at third base. Now all Manager Del Baker has to worry about is where to play Rudy York.

Must Choose The Yankees

Neither the Boston Red Sox, who finished second in the junior loop, nor Cleveland, which staggered in third ahead of Detroit, appears to have benefitted materially from what small trading was done, so Detroit must automatically become the choice to chase the Yankees to the wire next year. They won't, of course, catch the Yankees.

Cleveland acquired the veteran outfielder, Ben Chapman. The Red Sox got three fair-to-middling pitchers in Elden Auker and Jake Wade from Detroit and Denny Galehouse from Cleveland. The Sox were in desperate need of mound replacements, since old Lefty Grove finally has pitched his arm away. Chapman adds temperament to Cleveland, a club which already owned more than its share.

Bees Trade Smartly

Over in the National league, the consensus seems to be that the Boston Bees did the smartest bit of trading when they got First-Baseman Buddy Hassett from Brooklyn. Hassett is a fine tenor singer and a .300 hitter, neither of which the Bees possessed before. That little extra bit of hitting, added to their great pitching and fine defense, might make Casey Stengel's boys very troublesome.

In exchange, they parted only with Gene Moore, an outfielder who was of little use to them most of last season, and Ira Hutchinson, a pitcher they didn't need. Brooklyn gained, too, because it didn't have any use for Hassett as long as Dolph Camilli keeps his health.

Significant was the fact that the Cincinnati Reds didn't attempt a deal of any kind.

Olie Erickson Downs Kallio In Match At Abilene Last Night

ABILENE, Dec. 16. (AP)—John Halvard, young Abilene Swede who wrestles under the name of Olie Erickson, last night administered the second defeat suffered by Gus Kallio, since he won the middleweight championship eight years ago. The bout was at catchweights.

Halvard won the first and third falls in 23 and eight minutes, respectively; lost the second in 16.

Bill McKechnie Has Reason For Refusing To Predict On His Cincinnati Reds In '39 Season; Has Bunch Of Youngsters

BY WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 — He's in the position of a father who isn't quite sure whether his adolescent son will become a man to be taken as a fine example or just a man to be taken, so Mr. William Boyd McKechnie has some excuse for refusing to predict whether his youthful Cincinnati Reds will finish on top of the National League or the National League will finish on top of the Cincinnati Reds.

Many experts are seeing Red these days, picking the Cincinnati club to finish first, but McKechnie will go only part way with them. He is picking them to finish.

"Ask me next August," he replies.

Don't Know What To Expect

"Yes, we don't know just what to expect from the youngsters. We have a couple of Syracuse boys coming up, and a couple who played with Kansas City."

He finally admitted the outfield looked pretty good, that Ernie Lombardi will do as a catcher, which is something like saving a chair will do to sit on, and that the hurling staff doesn't look so bad.

Grissom To Be Better

"Lee Grissom can't help but be better," he pointed out.

It was recalled that Grissom was out with injuries most of last year, and that Paul Derringer and Johnny Van Der Meer are pretty fair country hurlers. He has a Syracuse lad named Earl Cook coming up who may or may not deliver.

Although he did not say so, the roster of newcomers indicates he might be a little worried over second base and third base. Eddie Joost, from Kansas City, and Charley English, who batted in 140 runs on the coast last season and who incidentally played for Kansas City in 1937, are on the list, and Al Glossop, Syracuse second baseman, and Einar Sorenson, who hit .326 with Waterloo, Ia., last summer is another keystone sacker who will be given a chance.

Finally, McKechnie got around to agreeing that Wally Berger, Ival Goodman and Harry Craft were not so bad as outfielders and that Frank McCormick was good at first base and better at the plate.

Davey O'Brien's Sweetheart To Be Queen Of New Orleans Ball

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16. (AP)—The Mid-Winter Sports association announced last night that the sweetheart of the nation's No. 1 gridiron hero of 1938 will rule as queen of the second annual Sugar Bowl ball here New Year's night.

The football hero is Davey O'Brien, backfield ace of Texas Christian university who will play Jan. 2 in the Sugar bowl football game against Carnegie Tech. The queen-to-be is Frances Buster, junior student at T. C. U.

Twenty-one beauties from various universities of the country will form her court.

Precautions On Unnecessary Accidents During Christmas Season Are Issued

Christmas should be a festive, and not tragic, holiday. Precautions should be observed to avoid unnecessary accidents that accompany carelessness.

J. E. Maisen, chairman of the chamber of commerce fire prevention committee, suggests the following rules:

1. Drive carefully when you go visiting or shopping. Roads are slippery and pedestrians are hurrying. Don't drive if you drink.
2. Prevent falling on icy sidewalks and steps by using salt and sand.
3. Do not use cotton, pyroxlin plastic, paper or other inflammable objects in trimming the Christmas tree.
4. Use safe ladders—not chairs, boxes or table tops — to stand on when hanging decorations.
5. Do not burn candles near flammable materials.
6. Don't use faulty electric wiring or makeshift connections.
7. Tissue paper or other wrappings should not be allowed to collect outside of regular containers.
8. Loose paper or excelsior should not be burned in an open fireplace.
9. Be careful that toys are not left on stairs or on the floor where they may cause a fall.
10. False whiskers and cotton disguise suits are very flammable—take the tip and don't smoke in them.

Did you ever know a redheaded woman who would admit she is redheaded?

ABLE and affable Col. Tom Boles, superintendent of Carlsbad Caverns National park, was in Lubbock yesterday on one leg of a one-man goodwill tour he is making over West Texas in the interest of his pride and joy, the great caves just over the line in New Mexico.

That Carlsbad Caverns have grown by leaps and bounds in public interest is not alone due to the fact that the caverns are nothing short of marvelous.

A lot of the credit is due Colonel Boles, who works like a trooper not only at his job, but at selling the public on the caverns as an outstanding spectacle.

In a great many respects he is New Mexico's No. 1 citizen and in all respects he is one of the outstanding men of the great Southwest.

The good Colonel is expecting numerous parties of school children to visit the caverns during the Yuletide vacation.

He is especially anxious that many West Texas school groups avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the caverns this month.

For the benefit of groups interested in going to the caves, here are some points:

It is just as comfortable to view the caverns in December as it is in June. Temperature in the caves is the same all the time. It never varies from 56 degrees.

Carlsbad's winter climate is rarely severe; usually it is very delightful.

For school groups there are no guide fees.

Every effort is made by Colonel Boles and his staff to make visits of school children unusually high in educational value.

There is practically no chance of accidents. Safeguards are as perfect as it is possible to have them.

BUBBLING over with enthusiasm, as he always is, Colonel Boles told The Plainsman yesterday that the caverns have been visited in recent months by an almost unending stream of celebrities.

Among the "big name" visitors have been Ty Cobb, greatest baseball star of all time; Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas; the Wilbert Lee O'Daniel family, of Texas; Rep. Sam Rayburn, of Bonham, one of the most powerful men in Congress, and last but not least, Robert Ripley, of "Believe It or Not" fame, who secured 16 or 18 "Believe It Or Not" items in and near the caverns.

Colonel Bowles is especially delighted with the reaction Ripley got from the scenic caverns.

"Ripley declares," Colonel Boles says, "that while he has been all over the world, time and time again, seeing everything of note everywhere, that there's nothing anywhere to compare with the grandeur and beauty of Carlsbad Caverns."

* * *

The Plainsman can't think of a better way for a group of South Plains school children to spend two or three days of their Christmas holidays than by going to see the caverns.

Such a trip would be a fine Christmas gift from parents to their children.

Teachers will be doing a good work by organizing and chaperoning such excursions.

COLONEL Boles has addressed at the caverns "Rock of Ages" well over 1,000,000 people and has been through the caverns more than 3,400 times and never fails to see something new on each trip. He says he doubts if there are any parts of the "lower cave"—those sections yet unopened and unexplored—which will compare with what the public now views.

"We don't know—nobody knows—how much more caverns there are," the Colonel says. "All we know is that we have over 30 miles of caves yet unopened to the public. But we feel that what we have now is "tops" and will not be surpassed, no matter what we find in new sections yet unexplored."

Those who have viewed the caverns will be prone to agree with the Colonel.

THE other day The Plainsman commented at some length regarding reports from Washington which argue that Mr. Roosevelt will expect his fair-haired boy, Harry Hopkins, to be his successor; that FDR has purposely let the word go around that he's for the WPA man so, when 1940 rolls around he can use Hopkins for trading purposes to forestall the right wing of the Democratic party in its efforts to nominate a dyed-in-the-wool conservative.

On the heels of this rumor comes another, very similar suggestion, although from the other side of the fence. The second rumor says Vice-President Garner is using Missouri's Senator Bennett Clark as a "stalking horse," just as Mr. Roosevelt is using Hopkins, and for identical reasons.

In other words, the battle of master politicians already is under way with left wing and right wing leaders, personified respectively by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner, jockeying for position at the rail.

Another current belief in Washington — and one which augers well for the good of the country and its average citizen is that the forthcoming session of Congress will be more of a work session, unmarked by strife and nervousness, than any recent gathering of the solons.

Few believe the President will seriously attempt to jam further left wing reforms down the throats of Senators and Representatives.

And many believe the subject of rearmament and the problems surrounding solidarity of the Americas—North and South—will hold the stage and will bring out the best thought and action of which Congress is capable.

If this belief is true, we may look for 1939 to be a good business year and for a further swing to normalcy in government and in governmental functions.

THE other night out at our house we were busily engaged in getting ready for the Glorious Yuletide.

We were putting up and decorating the Christmas tree and The Plainsman, as is his annual custom, was directing the proceedings from the sofa and from behind a copy of Blood Curdling Detective Story magazine. All the children were there, getting in the way, and The Little Woman was bustling about hanging doodads on the tree and stringing the light wires.

We didn't have the tree more than half readied when we disagreed over where something should hang.

And before it was over The Plainsman and The Little Woman were just about ready to hunt up Owen McWhorter and ask him to file joint divorce proceedings!

Of course, we got everything smoothed out (largely on acct. of The Plainsman's sweet disposition and his ever-present desire for Harmony in the Home!) But the writer couldn't help but wonder how many similar scenes and family arguments arise each Christmas over tree decorations, shopping, selection of gifts and that annual question of "Do you think we ought to remember Bill Zilch? He sent us something last year!"

Something like 130,000,000 Americans worry themselves nearly to death and wear their dispositions to a ragged edge every December so for a brief 24 hours they can bask in that otherwise foreign glow of Peace on Earth, Goodwill Toward Men!

* * *

SINCE we have statistics covering everything else, doubtless some enterprising firm keeps the figgers on Christmas Arguments and Their Effect Upon American Domesticity.

And The Plainsman sure would like an opportunity to look 'em over.

If the truth were known, we'll bet a lot of June and July divorces and May and October household murders get their start in the Jolly Old Yule season when men and women strive so hard to grab the Christmas Spirit that they throw themselves a little off balance.

Anyhow, it's something to think about!

Yesterday: Tait is introduced to glamorous Nelda Starr, who asks him why the swing band never plays "The Cat's Meow" any more.

CHAPTER XXII

"Do you mean," Nelda Starr asked, "that the band won't play 'The Cat's Meow,' any more?" She seemed genuinely affected by Tait's news.

"Perhaps in a year or two—but by that time, of course, it may not be popular at all."

"Oh, but it will!" The girl's eyes widened. "I'd like to hear it now. I've been wanting to hear it all evening." Her glance swept Archie Mackey and Tait. "I've a record of it at my apartment. Let's go there and have a cocktail and hear the song."

Mackey made a protesting gesture. "Listen, beautiful lady, I have to work. I've been to four night clubs already. It's almost midnight, and I haven't got material for a line! You take Bob and run along."

"Would you like to come, Mr. Tait?"

"Very much," Bob Tait said. But there was misgiving in his heart when he said it. Nelda Starr was a strange young woman. He could well imagine what worry and anguish she caused old and dignified Aaron Starr. Certainly they did not get along, else why would she forsake the Starr mansion for an apartment of her own? And her preoccupation with swing music and the song "The Cat's Meow" were almost abnormal. Tait's mind went back to his visit with Leonard Macy when the latter had insisted that the addicts of swing — the jitterbugs and the ickies — were a study in abnormality. Tait had scoffed at the notion then, because Macey's inference had been that Myna belonged to that classification. Yet here before him was a girl utterly different from Myrna Dombey. Here was a girl, neurotic and finely-spun, upon whom the world of swing had undoubtedly had effect.

Did she actually want to hear the record of "The Cat's Meow" so badly that she must leave the Golden Bowl? Or was the invitation, issued to a man she had never met before, simply a subtle build-up toward asking for a spot with the band? The questions swam through Tait's tired brain as he helped Nelda Starr with her luxurious evening wrap in the foyer of the Golden Bowl.

"I have a car outside," Nelda said.

That, Bob Tait was to discover, was a masterpiece of understatement. He followed her out under the spacious marquee of the Pacific-Plaza, saw the doorman fuss with his signal box the moment he recognized Nelda. Almost immediately there rolled to the curb a small car that was like a jewel in the world of automotive engineering. It was no larger than the smallest of light stock cars, but the body was of special make and the finish was bright and faultless. The attendant left the wheel and stood at attention while Nelda slid herself into the driver's seat. Slightly bewildered, Tait climbed in beside her.

"Some little bus," he said. "What is it?"

She told him the name of the engine and chassis, a name familiar to every driver in the world. "I designed the body myself — in the rough, of course. And Dad had it built for me. That was before we had our latest argument."

"I see . . ." Tait withheld a desire to turn her over his knee and spank her. The special body, which her father "had built" for her, must have cost several times the price of an average car. Surreptitiously Tait studied her profile, and when he did so he forgot his instinct to punish her as a parent might punish a child. This Nelda Starr was a grown and beautiful young woman. She was wise, too wise indeed for man, as Archie Mackey had hinted. And Tait felt sure, she was more than that. Nelda Starr was dangerous.

He could no longer detect the faint perfume which had revealed her to him among all that crowd in the Golden Bowl. His sense of smell had grown accustomed to it now. Yet, he told himself, it was Nelda who wore that perfume. It was that perfume he had caught on that night when death had missed him by the merest fluke—the anxiety of a taxi driver to be of service. Had the attacker been this slight girl beside him? And was even her seemingly harmless invitation tonight really another attempt to take his life? It was not a comfortable feeling, but it was with Bob Tait as he rode through town with the fragile, lovely Nelda in her car that had been built for her and nobody else.

"That perfume you use," he said suddenly. "It's—so unusual. May I ask what it is?"

Nelda Starr laughed. "If it isn't unusual," she said, "someone is going to get into a lot of trouble. It doesn't have a name — unless you want to call it Nelda Starr — because it was made especially for me."

"Somehow," said Tait, "it suits you. It's enticing and yet — well, dangerous."

She turned her gaze to him. "Dangerous?"

"Yes. Isn't that what you wanted it to be?"

Nelda Starr was silent a moment. "I suppose so." Then: "You know, that's curious that you should say that."

"Curious? You mean that I should think that your perfume gives a hint of danger?"

She nodded. "Yes. Lud Dombey told me that one day."

* * *

Somehow the remark startled Tait. Even though he told him-

LUBBOCK'S TRAFFIC PROBLEM

What's wrong with the method of controlling traffic in Lubbock?

Nothing, especially if one studies condition, say members of the Lubbock police department's traffic detail.

But there is plenty of trouble about which nothing can be done, they continue.

Too many persons drive automobiles in an area too small—and more cars are being bought in progressive ratio. This makes for congestion. Congestion slows traffic—especially at such intersections as Broadway and Texas avenue. Drivers circle, hoping for parking places, or slow up to discharge others from their cars.

That condition exists especially on Broadway from Avenue K east to Avenue H, according to Lewis Kittrell, police traffic sergeant. There also is considerable double parking by commercial vehicles, he said.

But on the brighter side of the picture he insists that speeding and careless driving have been lessened. He remarks, too, that serious injury accidents have been few and that there have been no deaths in automobile crashes within the city limits since one in which four persons were killed in 1934.

Contributing to that record, he believes, have been the police assigned to regular duty at busier intersections on Saturday afternoons and nights to keep traffic moving in an orderly procession.

Pay-As-You-Go- Armaments Plan Is Good, Flynn Says, In Approving FDR's Position In Matter

By JOHN T. FLYNN
NEA Staff Correspondent

The President has certainly struck a sound note in his statement that while he will press for a re-armament program he will not attempt to finance it with borrowed funds, but will put it on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The reports from Washington up to now and from responsible sources predicted armament production would be made part of the program of recovery and paying for armament part of the pump-priming plan.

The President puts these disquieting rumors at rest.

But he introduces another disquieting proposal. It is the so-called asset plan of treasury accounting under which the budget can be balanced by certain forms of trick bookkeeping — balanced without balancing it.

FLYNN

The idea is that the government should be treated like a private business. If a corporation spends several millions on erecting a new plant and gets the money for that purpose from a bond issue — going into debt—that is not considered an unbalancing of its budget provided its ordinary operating budget is in balance.

Why, then, should not a government operate the same way? The government should raise cash to pay its running expenses, but when it wishes to spend a billion dollars on soil conservation, that is an investment.

It is an investment in the national plant. Soil conservation increases the value of the land and makes it more productive.

Why should not the government borrow for that and why should that expenditure be put down as an expenditure and why should the money borrowed be considered as a deficit transaction?

Who Gets The Benefit?

The answer is simple. When a corporation borrows $10,000,000 and builds a plant, it has the plant and the plant becomes a source of revenue and profit to it. The revenue produced by the plant will pay the interest on the bonds and ultimately retire them if it is a wise corporation.

But if the government spends a billion on soil conservation, the soil does not belong to the government. It belongs to the individual farmers. They will benefit. And if the soil becomes more valuable they will get the values.

The government is a corporate entity and unless the expenditure it makes increases the value of its own plant, the value will not inure to it.

It may help the people and this may be a good reason for the improvement. But we ought not, for that reason, delude ourselves into supposing the government has had the same sort of gain that a corporation has when it improves its own lands and builds its own buildings and collects in cash the revenues set in motion by the improvements.

Soil conservation results in benefits to the people—money benefits and social benefits. And what helps the people helps the government.

But the government does not collect any revenues out of this. It ought not to be allowed, therefore, to put down in its account books the land values which have resulted from its expenditures. These belong in the account books of the farmers.

The bookkeeping of the government and the private-profit-making corporation cannot be compared in this respect.

Treat Expense As Expense

If the government borrows $10,000,000 and builds a toll bridge and sets up a plan for paying interest and amortization out of the tolls—revenues produced by the bridge—then it is on solid ground in treating its expenditure as an investment.

But the government has built no toll bridges on which it will collect the tolls.

On any expenditure which it must pay out of general taxes it must treat that expenditure as a definite one and the funds used in making it are part of the expenditures of the fiscal year in which they are made.

Murder To Music

self not to be a fool he experienced a queer chill. "It did prove dangerous, didn't it, for Lud Dombey?" That was, he knew, a reckless remark to make. But if Nelda Starr received any connotation beyond the words themselves she gave no sign of it. She only said, "Poor Lud."

"You liked him a lot, didn't you?" Tait asked.

"I was in love with him, if that's what you mean."

"Not with his music?"

She made a turn into another street with unnecessary vigor. "I don't care for men who treat me like a child, Mr. Tait. They remind me of my father."

"I'm sorry. But it does strike me that your father has been — well, rather lavish."

"That's all you know about it." She shrugged. "Of course he's given me things. Like this silly car. But when I really wanted to have something — something that meant everything to me, he'd never see it my way. When I told him I wanted to be a singer in a night club he practically died."

"I think that's a very normal reaction. Singing in a night club is a tough grind — and not all the patrons are the best, you know."

Nelda Starr didn't answer. She had slid the little car alongside a curb which fronted a towering apartment building. Silently Tait followed her inside, into the automatic lift. Since leaving the car she had said not a word and the next thing Tait knew they were standing in front of a door while Nelda Starr fumbled with the lock. At last she swung the door wide, and Tait looked beyond. There, past the little hallway, stood Harris Rogers!

Hopkins In Cabinet?

for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination.

Some who insist that Hopkins has the inside track claim the position would give him a chance to demonstrate that he could work as assiduously in behalf of business advancement as he has in behalf of the people on relief.

Must Overcome Opposition

But one of the obstacles he undoubtedly would have to overcome in winning senate confirmation for a cabinet post would be the opposition of various Republican and anti-administration Democratic senators who have disagreed sharply with his methods of administering the WPA.

Probably even before the commerce vacancy is filled, the senate will receive a report on the summer-long inquiry by its campaign expenditures committee into complaints of "politics in relief." Some administration critics were quick to relate to that report a possible transfer of Hopkins, which they said necessarily would temper the effect of any adverse findings by the committee.

Football Game

Andy Mauldin, Dick Shinkle, most of whom returned to Lubbock aboard the special.

Officials Are Present

Herbert Joseph, chairman, Elmo Renfro, 30 years treasurer of Masonic Home, and Mayo Bowen were aboard to direct the Masonic Home trip arrangements. Also, there were Jack Shytles, treasurer of the drum corps; Clyde Kincaid, president of the corps; Houston Hill, high priest and prophet and sponsor of the corps; Jack McGraw, oriental guide, member of the divan and of the corps; Campbell Smith, parade marshal for the trippers; Roy Naugle; Col. E. D. Crites, director of the ROTC band, which had members aboard from Paschal, Polytechnic, North Side, Arlington Heights and Riverside High schools, and numerous others.

That public schools of Fort Worth solidly were behind the Masons was evidenced by the fact that on the train were the following cheer leaders: Byron Billman of Polytechnic, Eugene Rich from Paschal; Elaine Montgomery from Arlington Heights; James Rhodes from Tech Vocational; Mary Nell Reynolds, Mary Martha Brice and Norman Cardwell, all of Masonic Home and School. A Riverside cheering leader was in Lubbock, but did not come with the special.

Six teachers from the Masonic Home and School were aboard.

Lubbock, already keyed to vibrancy by sucecssive triumphs of Tech and the Westerners, possibly exhibited no time in the past such mass jitteriness as this morning.

Merchants said they had delayed in several instances, looking over samples of spring merchandise.

"I heard a salesman say," said one of the Masons who was in Slaton to meet the train, "that Lubbock is the d--nest town he ever saw. A fellow told me in one store, 'You'll have to come back in January,' the salesman said.

Pre-game estimates of smoke and fire in offenses were dictated because of two reasons: the natural ability of the two squads and a perfect weather hint that would allow both squads to "open up and let th devil take the hindmost."

If anything the day was even better than that memorable day last week when 20,000 persons watched with amazement the last half surge that saw the Masons batter their way to a win on penetrations after trailing 12 points at the half.

Visitors Are Greeted

Jittery thousands peered out windows early today to watch for weather signs—hoping a crisp dawn would indicate quiet atmospheric conditions, the better to insure the Masons, pitifully outweighed, a perfect chance to unleash their passing game.

Lubbock greeters were at the station when, an hour late, Masonic Home boosters unloaded from an extra coach and a sleeper this morning at Santa Fe station.

Harold Ratliff, Associated Press sports writer, and Bill McClanahan, sports writer of the Dallas Dispatch-Journal, along with Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Kyle of the same Dallas paper, were among early arrivals this morning.

"I've seen those little boys (the Masons) in their dressing room," said McClanahan. They look like the B squad of the ordinary high school. Jeff Brown, tackle and captain, is the heaviest, weighing only 165. Don Stephens, the full, weighs 162. He is the hardest driving full per pound Rusty Russell, Masonic Home coach, ever saw, he told me. The rest of the team is under 157 pounds.

Great Second-Half Players

"But when they get on a football field! The toughest little aggregation of sweet gridsters I ever saw. The greatest second-half ball club in Texas, they deservedly have been termed.

"Gene Keel passes like no one I ever saw—he simply pegs the ball like a baseball. And receivers spring out of the ground like they had popped out of a trapdoor. Just at the second when it looks like no one is clear there's the pass and it's taken.

Civil Cases In Federal Court

Taking of testimony was resumed in federal district court here this morning in trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Samuel S. Rendleman against Kansas City Life Insurance company on policies had by her husband.

George Berry and W. D. Benson, jr., are attorneys for Mrs. Rendleman and E. L. Klett for the insurance company.

Indications were that the case would be completed this afternoon and that criminal cases then would be called. The criminal docket was virtually completed late Thursday after the grand jury had made its final report and had been dismissed.

Of five bills returned in connection with the investigation into the Jayton cotton warehouse case, only one so far has been contested. It is to be heard this morning following completion of a civil matter, which was uncompleted last night. Indictment was returned yesterday noon against A. J. Bell and J. P. Moore and they entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, presiding.

It was indicated that a change in pleas made by defendants in the Jayton cotton case, scheduled to come up today for hearing, might be made. District attorney Clyde O. Eastus said he heard of a change but knew nothing officially of it.

Frank Taylor, Fort Worth, defense attorney, had arrived this morning but was not available for a comment.

Foreman R. L. Durham of the grand jury made his final report. Judge Davidson expressed his appreciation for the "splendid work," of the investigating body.

In a statement made by the jury and signed by 21 members, reference was made to investigations in connection with loans from the Commodity Credit corporation on cotton in the warehouse at Jayton. They divided cases into two groups, producers of cotton which "involved waywardness which, while technically criminal, was not vicious in its inception and the offense was accompanied by extenuating circumstances mitigating the enormity of the crime." In other cases in which those "who were not the actual producers of cotton and who were not landlords."

Judge Is Commended

The report commended Judge Davidson for his "considerate action," and his "gracious leniency," towards the first group.

In another statement signed by Foreman Durham, Joe M. Peterson and John Heck, it was pointed out the CCC had ordered cotton stored in the Farmers' Cooperative gin at Bula moved out. A plea was made for its retention there.

Following close of testimony on a non-jury case involving eight farmer defendants and two ginners, W. P. Walker and W. P. Fonville, government attorneys, argued issues as did G. E. Lockhart, attorney for the ginners. Judge Davidson said he would take the case under advisement and that he wanted briefs filed by Jan. 16, 1939 before him in Fort Worth.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Lead stocks made a few feeble rallying gestures in today's market, then backed into a downward drift for losses of fractions to a point or more.

Utilities tilted upward at the last and handful of specialties and specialties resisted but most stocks acted tired throughout and the majority huddled behind minus signs after a moderate revival in the first hour. Extreme declines were shaded in some cases at the close, but buyers were notably indifferent.

The volume dwindled substantially on the reaction was seen as an encouraging factor. Transfers were around 1,100,000 shares.

A break of more than 4 points in Loew's was a bit unsettling. Doubts regarding outcome of the present stockholders suit and a second action filed yesterday against the film company's management, was said to have touched off liquidation in this issue.

Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Members had been requested to take either 50 cents or a toy of that value to their luncheon Thursday. Many took toys.

The big events of today are the all-day benefit at the Cactus theater and the toy matinees this afternoon at the Broadway and Lyric theaters.

Cactus Gives Receipts

Every penny taken in at the Cactus, 1814 Avenue H, will be donated by Manager M. A. (Tate) Sanders, to the fund. There will be no deductions of any kind for operating expenses. In addition, Columbia Pictures has contributed the feature film, "Come Closer, Folks," as a special attraction on this occasion.

At the Broadway and Lyric, Manager Andy Mauldin will admit every boy or girl who brings a new toy this afternoon. Feature film at the Broadway is "Perfect Speciman," starring Joan Blondell and Errol Flim. Chief attraction at the Lyric is "Anything for a Thrill," with Frankie Darro the star.

Traffic Signs Are Ordered On Streets Near Dunbar School

School traffic signs will be ordered at once to be placed on streets approaching Dunbar negro grammar school on Seventeenth street between Avenues B and C, according to information given at the city hall this morning.

The type of sign to be placed, however, is yet to be decided. Uncertainty existed as to whether signs buried in the pavement or at the edge of the street are preferred.

Patrons of the school had complained that slow signs now in position near the school are disregarded and that speeding motorists endanger the lives of negro pupils.

Suggestion On Negroes Made

(By The Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Dec. 16.—Suggestion that states provide scholarships for negro students has been offered by a negro educator as one solution of the problem raised in the South by the supreme court ruling equality of educational privileges must be accorded white and negro students.

The supreme court itself disregarded a scholarship plan for outside instruction for negroes provided by Missouri in passing on a case from that state in which a negro sought to gain entrance into the University of Missouri law school.

Varying Views Expressed

Varying views were expressed Southern educators regarding the best method of meeting the situation.

The negro educator, J. B. Watson, president of Arkansas Agricultural, Mechanical and Normal college for negroes at Pine Bluff said he believed the problem could best be solved by state scholarships in institutions that admit negroes to membership.

Among those questioned, only John Hugh Reynolds, president of Hendrix college, Conway, Ark., suggested negroes be admitted to white colleges.

Separate Schools Maintained

"Separate schools are now maintained in Arkansas for courses in which the negroes are largely interested," Reynolds said. "If any negroes wished to study law or medicine or such—and there would be few desiring this—they should be admitted to the regular classes at the university. There probably would be trouble at first — some hot-headed Southern boy might bash a negro's nose—but in a year or two we would get used to it."

T. H. Harris, Louisiana state superintendent of education said public sentiment in the South "is decidedly against negro and white students attending school together. . . . It would be unpleasant for both. It is not sensible."

EL PASOAN IS SELECTED

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Dec. 16. (AP)—Ernest Craige of El Paso, Tex., a student at the University of North Carolina, and Archibald M. McMillan of Wake Forest college, now studying at Harvard university have been selected as North Carolina's candidates for regional Rhodes scholarships.

MORE COTTON CHECKS
