Coup Topples Government

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Jerry J. Rawlings, a 34-year-old former air force lieutenant, staged his second coup in two years in the West African nation of Ghana, toppling the civilian government of President Hilla Limann, Accra Radio reported today.

The radio, monitored in the neighboring Ivory Coast, reported heavy firing early in the morning around Burma Barracks, the central military camp in Accra, the capital of Ghana. There were no immediate reports of casualties and no independent confirmation that Rawlings had taken power.

Ghana, a nation of about 11 million, is located just north of the equator on the West African coast and has a primarily agricultural economy.

In the broadcast, Rawlings appealed to Ghanaians not to harm Limann, whom Rawlings asked to remain in his presidential quarters.

"We are asking for nothing more than the right to assert the dignity of humanity," Rawlings said. "Fellow citizens, it is up to you to decide."

He called on all soldiers, officers and policemen retired or dismissed Sept. 24, 1979, the date of return to civilian rule, to report to their barracks.

Rawlings also said that other countries should "stay out of our attempt to rid this country of corruption."

It was the fifth military coup in the country since Ghana became the first black African state to win independence 25 years ago.

Rawlings deposed the military government of Lt. Gen. Frederick Akuffo in June, 1979, but handed power over to Limann after elections later in the year.

Rawlings was subsequently required to retire from the military.

When Rawlings took power in 1979, his stated goal was to clean up corruption and try to restore the Ghanaian economy. In a newspaper interview in April 1980, Rawlings said he wished Limann's government well but had his doubts.

Since Limann assumed power in September, 1979, the economic situation has gone from bad to worse. The cedi, the Ghanaian currency, is officially pegged at 2.75 to the dollar but easily reaches 35 cedis to the dollar on the flourishing black market

Ghana, once the world's leading cocoa producer, suffers from a serious balance of payments problem and what cocoa is produced is usually smuggled across the border into the Ivory Coast where it fetches a higher price.

YEAR END TAXES—The approaching new year has brought a large number of citizens to the Scurry County Tax Office to pay off taxes due before Jan. 1. Soviet Media Fire Blasts At Reagan

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet media fired new volleys today in the Kremlin attack on President Reagan for imposing trade sanctions to punish Moscow for allegedly masterminding the military crackdown in Poland.

Pravda, the nation's most authoritative newspaper and voice of the Communist Party, carried on its front page a dispatch from the official Tass news agency which accused Reagan of ignoring "the objective facts and falsifying the real state of affairs.

"Without any grounds, contrary to facts, the president of the United States ascribes to the Soviet Union responsibility for the introduction of martial law in Poland," the report said.

First Time Since 1978 No Minimum Wage Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since 1978, the dawning of the new year will not mean an automatic pay boost for the approximately 5 million Americans being paid the minimum wage.

Not only that, no efforts are afoot either within the Reagan administration or on Capitol Hill to increase minimum wage rates. Thus, the $3.35-an-hour minimum will be frozen indefinitely.

With the economy in a worsening recession, traditional labor allies have expressed concern that any upward pressure on the minimum wage could cost thousands of people their jobs as businesses cut back the number of employees to keep their labor costs stable.

At its centennial convention in New York City last month, the AFL-CIO approved a resolution reiterating its call for the minimum wage to be indexed to the average hourly earnings in the private business sector, giving those drawing the minimum wage some protection against inflation.

Specifically, the federation wants minimum wage increases amounting to 60 percent of the average annual hourly earnings of all workers in private business.

For example, if wages rose in the private sector in 1981 by an average of $1.00 an hour, the minimum wage would have risen from $3.35 to $3.95 an hour.

The AFL-CIO is urging Congress to enact legislation providing for such adjustments in the minimum wage.

There has been no effort to enact legislation raising the minimum wage because much congressional attention has been focused on proposals for a lowered minimum wage for teen-agers as a way to attack the problem of soaring youth unemployment.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, in testimony on Capitol Hill last March 25, maintained that those pushing for a sub-minimum wage "are fostering discrimination on the basis of age, encouraging school drop-outs and creating tensions in the work place."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, sponsor of legislation to lower the minimum wage for youngsters, said he felt such a move would be a constructive step for "unemployed teen-agers in this country who want but can't find jobs."

The minimum wage went from $3.10 an hour to $3.35 last Jan. 1, meaning a worker would receive $134 instead of $124 for a 40-hour week.

The minimum wage typically is paid to such workers as hotel maids and some people involved in retail business.

That increase was the final installment in a series of hikes approved three years ago by Congress and signed by then-President Carter.

Before the congressional legislation in 1977, raising the rate in four steps, the minimum wage was $2.30 an hour.

Martial Law Chief To Unveil New Program

By The Associated Press

Poland's martial law chief, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, is expected to unveil a program in early January that "would amount to a new model for social, political and economic life in Poland," a government official was quoted as saying in an uncensored dispatch from Poland.

But the report, which reached the West Wednesday night, said political observers in Warsaw were skeptical that any political solution put forth by Jaruzelski can win wide public support.

The observers said the martial law regime faced a fundamental dilemma: How to create a climate of national reconciliation at the same time as it maintains sufficient control to prevent unrest.

The uncensored reports quoted sources in Warsaw as saying Jaruzelski has set up at least three panels headed by top Communist Party leaders to revamp the country's social, economic and political programs.

One of the panels reportedly proposed scrapping the tattered Polish United Workers Party — the Communist Party — and replacing it with a new party incorporating Roman Catholic Church and Solidarity union representatives.

The Communist Party has been reported in disarray since martial law was declared Dec. 13.

Another committee, headed by Communist Party hard-liner Stefan Olszowski, reportedly proposed decentralization of the economy within tight political limits, according to sources in Warsaw. Economic reforms are likely to include autonomy for factories and other enterprises, but not the worker self-management proposed by Solidarity, the sources said.

The uncensored dispatch from Poland said the now-banned Solidarity labor movement was circulating a bulletin urging its members to resist what it described as "a Stalinist version of local terror which our generation has not previously experienced."

The bulletin, dated Dec. 28, told members to "work slowly, complain about the mess and the inefficiency of your superiors. Flood the army and commissars with questions and pretend to be a half-wit."

"At least passive resistance against the enemy is still possible," said a leaflet circulated with the name of Rural Solidarity said,

The government, in an apparent attempt to stem the tide of such leaflets, has banned the sale of paper, according to a Solidarity publication. Authorities outlawed private possession of duplicating machines and distribution of anti-government materials shortly after martial law was declared.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa, reportedly under house arrest since the start of the military crackdown, was said to have agreed to negotiate with the martial law regime. It was not known if the talks had started.

Warsaw Radio said the Polish Cabinet decided Wednesday to postpone local elections scheduled for February.

Woman Dies In Hunting Accident

Funeral arrangements were pending this morning at Bell-Seale Funeral Home for Glenna Dianne Mosley, 17, former Snyder resident who was killed in a hunting accident near Gainesville last night.

Details of the accident were not immediately learned. She was pronounced dead on arrival at a Gainesville Hospital.

She was born in Snyder on July 10, 1964.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Mosley of Snyder; two sisters, Angela Treat of Papillion, Neb., and Peggy Mosley of Abilene; a brother, Frank Mosley of Garland; and a grandmother, Pearl Sellars of Snyder.

The SDN Column

The first day of the year, if you are the least bit superstitious, calls for black-eyed peas to be on the menu, especially if you are a Texan and even more especially if you grew up in East Texas.

The black-eyed pea always has been a versatile legume. It is credited with seeing as many East Texans through the Great Depression as the jackrabbit did West Texans. The difference is that now, years later, the black-eyed pea still is considered a staple item of nutrition, even in West Texas.

In fact, East Texans nowadays do not actually consume a lot of black-eyed peas. They prefer various cousins of that variety, such as the purple hull pea, the silverskin pea, the crowder pea, the cream pea and various others that have been developed from the same basic stock.

But come New Year's Day, the black-eyed pea gets the center of the stage because this lowly product for some reason is credited with the power of bringing good luck for the year ahead if it is consumed on the first day of the year.

We have known Texans who vehemently denied that they were superstitious, but boldly demanded their black-eyed peas on New Year's Day--"just in case."

And you can get into arguments over the time the black-eyed peas should be eaten. Some maintain that they should be taken immediately following the stroke of midnight during the first minutes of New Year's Day. Others say that they should be a main dish for lunch on New Year's day. Others believe that anytime between midnight and midnight will suffice.

Also, there is disagreement over the status of the peas themselves. Some hold with the proposition that only dry black-eyed peas have the power. Others say that fresh frozen, or fresh canned black-eyed peas are required. And then there are those who accept either type.

The people down at Athens in Henderson County have capitalized on the popularity of the black-eyed pea, and the various legends have not escaped their attention. They have come up with ingenious uses for the black-eyed peas, even promoting their use as a substitute for olives in martinis. This, of course, is designed to attract consumers attending New Year's Eve parties.

Yours truly is among those who denies any form of superstition, but he usually takes his New Year's black-eyed peas at the lunch hour, and preferrably accompanied by a chunk of cornbread.

Snyder Police To Enforce Law

The Snyder Police Department this morning announced their plans for enforcing the new law requiring all drivers to be able to show proof of liability insurance coverage.

Beginning at midnight tonight, local drivers will be required to show some proof of insurance coverage when they are stopped by the local officers.

Those drivers who are involved in accidents and fail to have proof of coverage will be issued citations for the offense.

Drivers who are unable to furnish proof of the required coverage during routine, non-accident related, traffic stops will, however, be given only a verbal warning during the first 90 days of 1982.

The new state law requires all motorists to carry liability coverage of at least $20,000 for medical expenses and $5000 for property damage.

The law also provides penalties of $75 for the first time a motorist is caught without proof of insurance. Fines for subsequent offenses are to be no less than $200.

State troopers will follow basically the same policy for issuing citations as the local police department.

Motorists travelling around the state should, however, be aware that some cities, including Dallas and Houston, will begin issuing citations to all uninsured motorists after midnight tonight.

Ask Us

Q.—Why does the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific Railroad have the word "Pacific" in its name when it only goes from Roscoe to Snyder?

A.—Back in the railroad-building era, most of the builders intended to extend their railroads all the way to the West Coast and that was the original intent of those who built the RS&P. They hoped it would rival the Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, etc., but it never got that far. However, the RS&P did go as far as Fluvanna prior to World War II.

Resume Diplomatic Relations

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya and Saudi Arabia today agreed to resume diplomatic relations severed a year ago, Libya's official JANA news agency said.

In a joint statement issued in Tripoli and Riyadh, the two governments said the decision reflected a desire to avoid "a useless rupture of the Arab unity" and to press for a unified Arab action "against the common enemy," JANA said.

In Kuwait, the official government news agency reported that the Arab summit conference that collapsed in November will reconvene in the Moroccan city of Fez next April.

The developments were the most recent signs of Arab efforts to unify their position following Israel's annexation of the Syrian Golan Heights Dec. 14.

Saudi Arabia severed relations in October 1980 after Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy criticized Saudi Arabia for bringing in four U.S. AWACS surveillance planes following the outbreak of the Iraq-Iran war.

Soviets Jam Broadcasts

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. said today that its Polish language radio broadcasts are being jammed by Soviet transmitters "somewhere near Moscow."

A BBC World Service report from London said that at least two of the five short wave frequencies used to broadcast in Polish were being jammed.

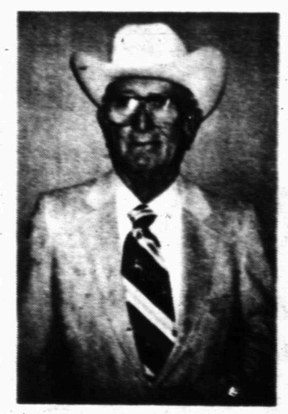

World Service duty editor Roy Haynes told The Associated Press that BBC engineers had established that transmitters "somewhere near Moscow" were the source of the jamming.

He said it was the first time in 18 years that the BBC's Polish service, which currently comprises five hours of programs a day, had been jammed.

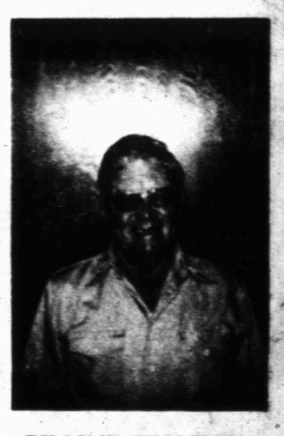

Ten Agents Swapped

BERLIN (AP) — East and West Germany have secretly traded 10 accused spies, apparently as part of a major agent exchange begun in October, the Berliner Morgenpost reported today.

Three agents convicted by the East Germans were traded on Dec. 15 to West Germany for seven accused East German spies held in the West, the newspaper said.

Wilson, Thompson Seek Re-Election

Two more candidates announced for Scurry County public offices as the New Year approached.

County Judge Preston Wilson and County Treasurer Billy Wayne Thompson both announced that they would be candidates for re-election, subject to action in the Democratic Primary.

The primary elections are set for May 1.

Candidates may file for places on the primary election ballots from Jan. 1 through Feb. 1.

Democratic Party candidates will file with Tommie Mills, County Democratic Chairman, and Republican Party candidates will file with Roy Baze, County Republican Chairman.

Four candidates have formally announced their intentions to run for Scurry County offices., all seeking the Democratic Party nomination. Dan Callaway, justice of the peace in Precinct No. 1, and T. E. Shelburne, justice of the peace in Precinct No. 4 (Hermleigh) announced their intentions to seek re-election earlier.

Russian Parents Win Custody

CHICAGO (AP) — The parents of a Soviet boy who refused to leave the United States with them have won a custody suit here, but the youth's fate is far from being decided because of appeals and another, possibly more important, lawsuit.

Walter Polovchak became a permanent U.S. resident after a juvenile court granted custody to the state of Illinois. But the Illinois Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday the state had no custody rights.

The parents' lawyers interpreted the ruling as saying that Polovchak, 14, must be reunited with his parents, who will decide where he lives. Lawyers for the boy say the appeals court merely struck down custody rights for the state without extending the rights to anyone else.

Henry Holzer, one of Walter Polovchak's lawyers, said the decision was therefore meaningless and it would be appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which represents Michael and Anna Polovchak, hailed the appeals decision and said the parents will come back to the United States to get their son and will then leave the country again.

Walter Polovchak, now lives in Chicago with foster parents. He was vacationing in Jamaica when the ruling was issued.

Walter Polovchak sparked an international controversy in July 1980 when, at the age of 12, he ran away from his parents as they prepared to return to the Soviet Union after a six-month stay in the U.S.

A younger child went back to the Ukraine with the parents. An older sister also stayed behind. Her refusal to return to the Soviet Union was not an issue, however, because she is an adult.

U.S. immigration officials granted the boy asylum and permanent residency, and the juvenile court gave the state custody. The ACLU went to court against both actions.

In the 2-1 ruling Wednesday, the appeals court said juvenile courts have no jurisdiction in asylum cases, and Judge Helen McGillicuddy, who wrote the decision, questioned the juvenile court's political motives.

Ali Agca Had 2 Accomplices

NEW YORK (AP) — Italian authorities believe Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca had two accomplices when the tried to assassinate Pope John Paul II, ABC News reports.

A man photographed standing next to Agca at the time of the shooting in St. Peter's Square has been identified as Oemer Ay, a Turkish terrorist and an associate of Agca, the network said Wednesday.

The second alleged accomplice, ABC said, was a man photographed by Lowell Newton, the editorial director of an ABC-owned television station who was at St. Peter's Square as a tourist the day of the shooting.

Newton, of WXYZ in Detroit, said he saw a man run from the crowd after the shooting with a gun in his right hand. His two photographs were shown on the ABC News program Wednesday and they show a rear view of a man running. The face is partly visible in one of the pictures, but no gun is visible.

"Turkish authorities and the American FBI are investigating the possibility" that the man was a member "of a Libyan hit squad sent to America to kill President Reagan," according to the ABC report. Wiley Thompson, an FBI spokesman in Washington, said he could say "absolutely nothing" about the report.

Agca, who has maintained he acted alone, was convicted and is serving a life sentence.

Limit Federal Judges Power?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should consider limiting federal judges' power to set aside state courts' criminal convictions, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says in his annual "Year-End Report on the Judiciary."

Although Burger previously has advocated such limits for lower federal courts, this is the first time he is suggesting specifically that Congress should impose the restrictions.

Copies of Burger's 30-page report were sent to all members of Congress.

Federal court dockets are often crowded with state prison inmates looking for a constitutional error in hopes of having their convictions overturned.

Burger, who is head of the federal court system, cited as his reason for requesting the curbs: "The administration of justice in this country is plagued and bogged down with lack of reasonable finality of judgments in criminal cases."

I don't know how a car knows when you're ready to sell it, but it knows.

We bought a four-wheel drive about seven years ago and there is nothing you can say to me that will convince me that car didn't understand every word we said.

A lot of marriages between new cars and owners are made in heaven. Maybe that's why we couldn't get parts. The honeymoon lasted exactly three hours. Then the light knob fell off in our hand, the rear window went down automatically and stayed there, and the floor burnt our feet up.

We didn't talk trade-in in front of the car for almost a year. Then one day my husband said, "Maybe we should trade in this clinker while it is still running."

We climbed in the car and the motor refused to turn over.

After we bought the new battery, we figured we might as well use up our investment. So we hung in there until seven months later when my husband said, "As long as we've got the original tires, we might as well turn it in." At that precise moment, the left rear tire expired.

With four new tires, the car bought itself another year of residency. It was not ready to let us go. The least little thing could set it off. One day I just got out of my side of the car in a parking lot and remarked what a good-looking compact was parked next to us. Our car would not go into reverse and we had to have it towed to a garage where they duly recorded on our bill, "Stubborness: $65."

We never knew why the transmission went out suddenly the way it did. We had been very discreet in placing the ad for the car in the paper, being very careful never to mention it within hearing distance. But by the time the first caller inquired as to when they could see the car and we told them they could view it from a rack at Ed's garage, they backed off.

When we decided to trade the car in, we pretended we were going to the grocery store. Then, at the last minute, we turned into the car lot. The salesman said he had never seen a car with the motor off and the emergency brake on roll uphill to smash into a guard rail before.

I cannot believe he was that naive.

Fireworks Stands To Be Visited

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says his enforcement officers will visit fireworks stands this week to check on sales tax permits and collections.

"There will be plenty of fireworks for operators who don't have sales tax permits or haven't been filing their reports," Bullock said Tuesday.

The statewide canvass of fireworks stands will be completed by 5 p.m. Thursday.

"We want to make sure these places are competing on an equal footing, with no operator gaining a competitve advantage by pocketing the 4 percent sales tax," Bullock said.

Fireworks stands spring up across Texas during the Christmas and New Year's holiday season, and Indepedence Day, he said.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

January 1, 1982

This coming year you could be luckier than usual in enterprises or ventures you personally conceive. Don't discount your bright ideas for moving up in the world.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally you're good at remembering what you have to do, but today it will prove helpful to make a written list. Your memory might be unreliable. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Look gift horses in the mouth today. Another could offer to give you something, or do something for you, with many strings attached.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your expectations will be high today. Unfortunately, you're apt to talk more about reaching your goals than you're prepared to do to pursue them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There is a chance you may be more of a daydreamer today than a visionary. Recall: Ideas must be practical as well as clever.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today is not the time to enter into any schemes which may be of dubious merit. Double-check all ramifications instead of hastily agreeing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you really aren't up to participating in an activity with another today, speak up. His or her disappointment will be greater if you go along, but show no enthusiasm.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're far better at rationalizing today than you may be at performing. Excuses come easy to you, but the energy to do the task won't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If an opportunity today can be had only at the expense of another, turn your back on it. Your nobler instincts won't let you enjoy it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A close associate may lead you to think too negatively today. You must be able to distinguish between fact and illusion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you agree to do something today solely to get another person out of your hair, chances are you'll bungle the job anyway. It's best to find a way to put it off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're likely to be a trifle restless today and will want to break your customary routine. This is a good idea, but steer clear of expensive activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to be very sharp today in evaluating things which could contribute to your material security, but you might not be too keen at judging the character of others.

Heavy Floods Kill Several

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Flooding from five days of heavy rainfall forced the evacation of about 60,000 people from Jakarta and its suburbs, officials said today.

One man was killed Sunday by electrically charged floodwater in the capital, and a teen-ager was reported missing, police said.

In Bogor, two people were killed and three others injured by landslides caused by the heavy rains, officials at the Department of Social Affairs said.

Chores Can Give Your Environment An Uplift

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

There is no place like home, especially in the winter time. These days when darkness sets in at 6 p.m. are perfect for making a list of things that need doing around the house and then performing chores, one by one.

What sort of projects? Here are several ideas culled from the thoughts of home furnishings decorating professionals. Some or all of them are bound to make your home a more comfortable or organized environment.

—Take an inventory, room-by-room, of furnishings and accessories, including appliances and home electronics by brand, model and serial number, as well as silver, artwork and other valuables.

Estimate the cost of replacement and make sure your insurance is adequate to cover it. Instant photographs of valuables like antiques and artworks are useful in case of fire or theft. Keep two copies of the list — one in your possession at home and one in a place outside the house.

Making up such a list is also a good method of taking stock. Perhaps you have something valuable that you never use and could sell.

—While you're getting your house in order, find a place to centralize home office chores such as bills paying and storage of papers.

You will need a used or new file cabinet, a desk or table to write on, some drawer space to store writing utensils and other supplies, a source of light and an office chair. Keep all family records including warranties, bills and receipts, tax records and birth certificates in the file cabinet, arranged alphabetically.

Spots for a home office include foyers, the master bedroom, a corner of the dining room or family room, the kitchen or even a walk-in closet if you have one to spare.

—Refinish or repaint an attic "find." If you don't have something with character in your own attic or cellar, go shopping for one at a rummage sale or second-hand shop. Some possibilities — a mirror with an ornate frame, a clothes tree, an old dry sink or a small table. You can get a book out of the library to learn how to do it. (Isabel O'Neil's "The Art of the Painted Finish for Furniture and Decoration" is a good one.) Or take an adult-education course that allows you to work on your own piece in the classroom.

—Rearrange your books according to subject. While you are at it, take all the books out of the bookcase, dust thoroughly and examine their condition.

—Redo the worst closet in the house — the one you can hardly open. If that is too big a challenge, choose the closet in the foyer or hall where company coats are hung.

Replace the tiny dark fixture with one that provides better light, or change the bulb. Repaint the closet or, better yet, wallpaper it in a pattern compatible with the room.

Buy some matching storage boxes for the closet shelf or do it the inexpensive way by covering plain boxes with decorative stick-on paper. Coordinated hangers also give the closet a pretty look.

If you've no mirror in the foyer, mount one on the interior of the closet door. Below the mirror, try hanging one of the new wire storage bins for guests' gloves and scarves.

—Reframe some pictures, or frame something you have been meaning to hang for a long time. Investigate the do-it-yourself frame shops which are open in many localities.

—If you have a fireplace or wood stove, cook a meal on the fire and dine by candlelight. A pot of soup or stew, bread baked ahead of time and fresh fruit are simple and delicious.

—Straighten out your kitchen drawers, discarding anything you haven't used for six months. Jar lids for which there are no jars, toothpicks, parts of appliances long gone, pieces of paper containing messages and unexplained keys can be discarded out of hand. Utensils you rarely use, extra pots and serving dishes and unused electric appliances may require more thought. Try giving these items to a friend who will lend them back if you ever need them.

—Repot some plants. Choose one kind of pot — a traditional red clay is inexpensive and widely available in many sizes — and group all the plants together, if possible, on a tray covered with pebbles. The pebbles absorb excess moisture after watering. The water slowly evaporates, keeping plants comfortable in the dry heat of winter homes.

—Go hunting for new table accessories already in your possession and stored perhaps in a closet or drawer. An interesting accessory is a mirrored perfume tray. Set it on the dining table with a collection of bud vases or spice jars, each with a single flower. Miniatures also make excellent table decorations grouped together on a mirrored surface. Or put a collection of marbles in a glass dish or jar.

Boston Cream Pie: Great Cake

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

No wonder Americans have continued to bake Boston Cream Pie since the middle of the past century. It really is one of the best desserts in our cuisine. There are of course a number of versions of the dessert; in concocting the following recipe we used an old-fashioned cake and filling but added our own modern chocolate glaze.

Does anyone know why this cake, from its beginning, was called a pie?

BOSTON CREAM PIE

1 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 large eggs, separated
1-3rd cup water
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Cream Filling, recipe follows
Chocolate Glaze, recipe follows

Line the bottom of two 8-inch round layer-cake pans with wax paper; butter paper. On a sheet of wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a large bowl beat together the egg yolks, water, lemon rind and vanilla to mix; gradually beat in the sugar, then the lemon juice, until smooth. With a spoon, gradually fold in the flour mixture just until smooth after each addition. In a medium bowl with a clean beater, beat the egg whites until they hold stiff straight peaks when the beater is slowly withdrawn; fold into the flour mixture. Turn into prepared pans. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 35 to 40 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges and turn out on wire racks; strip off paper; cool completely. Sandwich cake layers together with the Cream Filling. Frost the cake as directed in the Chocolate Glaze recipe. Store in the refrigerator.

CREAM FILLING

1-3rd cup all-purpose flour
1-3rd cup sugar
Salt to taste
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 egg yolks, from large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a 1½-quart saucepan stir together the flour, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in the milk, keeping smooth. Add the butter. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbling. In a small bowl slightly whisk the yolks; vigorously stir in a few spoonfuls of the hot mixture; whisk back into the remaining hot mixture and, stirring constantly, cook over low heat for a couple of minutes. Off heat, stir in the vanilla. Without pressing down, place a sheet of saran over the filling to keep a "skin" from forming; cool completely.

CHOCOLATE GLAZE

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
3 tablespoons boiling water
1 cup confectioners' sugar

In a small saucepan over low heat, melt the butter. Off heat, stir in the cocoa until blended, then the butter. Gradually stir in the sugar until smooth; continue stirring until thick enough to spread around the sides of the cake; then, if necessary, continue stirring until thick enough to pour over the top of the cake and add a second coat around the sides.

Except for Edith Kemp the only living woman to have won the Spingold is Margaret Wagar of Atlanta. Maggie won it in 1946 and 1948, but her string of women's and mixed victories started in 1940.

She has stopped serious play the last few years, but still appears occasionally to lend her charming presence to Atlanta tournaments.

Her 1948 win came with a pretty good team consisting of Sam Stayman, George Rapee, John Crawford and Howard Schenken.

We are not going to name whether Howard or John was the North player who put her in seven hearts in this hand from one of the early matches. Suffice to say, that if she had gone down the team would have been eliminated right then and there.

As you can see, there is no serious play for seven. Maggie studied dummy for a couple of seconds, but no one could tell from her expression that she was in trouble.

She took her ace of diamonds and led a trump to dummy's king. She returned to her ace and then led the queen of spades.

West ducked quickly and was conspicuously unsuccessful since Margaret let the queen ride and had stolen the grand slam.

We still sympathize with poor West, but still must give our lady from Atlanta greatly deserved credit for devising and executing the lucky play.

"Captain Justice"

Napoleonic Historic Thriller

CAPTAIN JUSTICE. By Anthony Forrest. Hill & Wang. 307 Pages. $13.95.

The writers of those popular entertainments known as thrillers are market-wise. They've begun to realize that the fans of their genre of fiction are growing restive.

The wiser of these writers, sensing the public has had a surfeit of thrillers set during World War II in which the good guys are pitted against the Nazis or set in more recent times with the good guys tangling with Russia's KGB, have gone in for a change of scenery. The plot is still much the same, only historical time has been changed to protect the sated.

"Captain Justice" is an example, and a pretty good one, of the historical-thriller. It's set in 1804, neither the best of times nor the worst but somewhere in between.

Master of a good bit of what he surveys, Napoleon is getting restless. The military leader feels the need for a bit of action and what better place to look for it than in England. When it comes to Napoleon, the thought really is the father of the deed, and the French quicky assemble a huge armada and prepare to sail across the channel and invade England.

Militarily, England isn't in too good a position to hinder, much less stop, this aim with armed might. However, it does have an excellent, albeit tiny, intelligence group, the Board of Beacons, Bells, Buoys, etc. It's going to be a superhuman job to stop "Boney," and a superhuman agent is needed. No problem. A fellow named Captain Justice is ready, willing and able.

Justice's job is to get into France, find out what Napoleon is up to, and, if possible, stop him. It goes without saying that Justice indeed gets into France and the story is off and running.

It has all the required thriller elements — lots of action, a bit of violence, a dash of superfluous sex — but is superior to the usual thriller because of its well-done historical settings that indicate author Anthony Forrest took the time to bone up on the period. Phil Thomas AP Books Editor

"NEW YEAR'S EVE ISN'T SUCH A BIG DEAL FOR MILK-DRINKERS."

Sideline Glances...

Ken McAllister

By BILL McCLELLAN

I don't remember Ken McAllister. He left this community before I arrived, but apparently the man remembers Snyder well. He was recently named the United States Professional Tennis Association's Pro of the Year for 1981, and he credits his background for a great deal of his success.

We received a letter from Ken the other day. He writes:

Dear Editor,

I hope it is not too immodest of me to share this honor, but I feel that the Snyder Public Schools and the city of Snyder contributed to my winning the National Pro of the Year title.

This award is for teaching professionals and is based on tennis accomplishments throughout my career. The program at Snyder was part of that list and definitely the basis of my tennis life.

The encouragement and support of the people of Snyder was a positive start for me. I especially would thank Dr. Robert Clinton (former president at WTC), who first hired me, R.E. Cooper (deceased), Horace Bostick, Bob Womack, and my state champs John Phillips, Max Falls, Ronnie Maddux and all the parents who supported the tennis programs.

I shared in sorrow the loss of my friend and colleague Bill Boles, who was a special contributor to tennis is Snyder.

Thank you for any help you can give me for passing this on to the people of Snyder.

Sincerely yours,
Ken McAllister

I'm more than pleased to pass along this information concerning one of Snyder's former coaches. Ken was tennis coordinator here from 1964-70. He is currently the head professional at Lakeside Country Club after serving as coordinator at Deer Park from 1970-74 and as director of tennis at Walden on Lake Conroe from 74-77.

Among his other achievements were Texas Pro of the Year in 1976 and 1980.

Fiesta, Cotton, Rose, Orange & Sugar

New Year's Day traditionally is a televised feast for football fans, and Jan. 1, 1982 will provide a new course as well as an old favorite moved to a different spot on the menu.

Starting with the Fiesta Bowl in Phoenix, and ending with the Orange Bowl in Miami and the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, football will be host of the airwaves Friday.

The three networks have spent millions of dollars for the rights to carry every down of all five New Year's games, with airtime - counting pregame shows - likely to stretch from 12 p.m. to close to the second day of the new year.

All times are local (Texas). Here's a rundown of the matchups:

FIESTA BOWL

The new kid on the New Year's bowl block, the Fiesta Bowl was moved to Jan. 1 with the help of a multimillion-dollar infusion from NBC, which will have veteran Charlie Jones doing play-by-play and Len Dawson and Mike Haffner splitting the color commentary.

The matchup could be the most intriguing of the day. The game, with a 12:30 p.m. kickoff, pits Penn State against Southern California, two teams which held the No.1 spot for a time during the regular season before finishing with 9-2 records.

COTTON BOWL

A coach is the star of the Cotton Bowl, with a 1 p.m. start on CBS. Lindsey Nelson, the network's dean of announcers, will handle play-by-play. Roger Staubach will do color and Frank Glieber will work the sidelines for interviews.

The Cotton Bowl has lacked a truly big game in recent years, and this meeting between Alabama and Texas, both 9-1-1, follows that course. Both teams have shots at the national title, depending on upsets.

ROSE BOWL

The first of the bowl games is still the biggest, as far as TV is concerned. NBC is doing three New Year's contests; but it's throwing its top talent, production crew and hardware into the 3:45 p.m. kickoff between Iowa and Washington, two also-rans in the race for the national title.

NBC may be hindered this year by a matchup of teams with Iowa, the Big Ten champion, 8-3 year season, and Washington, the Pacific-10 champ, at 9-2.

ORANGE BOWL

The Orange Bowl, the first of the New Year's games to switch to nighttime, often has been the spot where the national champion is crowned, and this edition could maintain that trend.

The 7 p.m. telecast on NBC features Clemson, the nation's No.1 team and the only unbeaten, untied school among the nation's major-college football powers, and Nebraska, 9-2, winner of the Big Eight.

SUGAR BOWL

At ABC's behest, the Sugar Bowl follows the Orange Bowl into prime time with an 7 p.m. start.

As in the Orange Bowl, this game could produce the national champ. Pittsburgh, unbeaten until a final-week loss to Penn State, and Georgia, a loser only to Clemson, are leading candidates to take over the top spot if the Tigers fall in Miami. Georgia features sensational running back Herschel Walker.

Bryant Still Thinking Alabama Can Be No. 1

DALLAS (AP) - Alabama's Bear Bryant insists his heart and mind are on the Cotton Bowl and the Texas Longhorns, but he's not ruling out football's national championship.

"If we win the game, we'd still have to be very lucky," said Bryant, assessing the Crimson Tide's chance at the national crown. "But it could happen."

A victory by third-ranked Alabama Friday, coupled with bowl losses by No. 1 Clemson and No. 2 Georgia, would propell the Tide into the championship picture.

A similar scenario occurred after the 1965 season when Alabama, 8-1-1, rode a 39-28 Orange Bowl victory over Nebraska to a leapfrog Associated Press title.

The Bear pondered that possibility and then concluded with a growl that, aw shucks, "I'd say we'd just have to be real lucky to win this game."

The professional oddsmakers disagreed. They installed 'Bama as two-point favorite to beat the sixth-ranked Longhorns in the nationally televised New Year's shootout.

That goes against 80 years of Texas-Alabama tradition.

In 1902, the Steers beat Alabama, 10-0. The series now stands at 6-0-1.

Texas and Alabama last clashed in the 1973 Cotton Bowl, with the Longhorns winning a 17-13 thriller. Texas coach Fred Akers was a Longhorn assistant at the time.

Says he: "I think this Texas team compares very favorably to past Texas teams I have had. We had a fine team last year, but injuries killed us. We had a chance to have a top team this year, until we lost the defensive linemen."

Most notably, Texas lost defensive tackle Kenneth Sims, injured in the ninth game of the season. He still won the Lombardi Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman.

Sims will miss Friday's contest.

Akers was no doubt as mystified as most of the Cotton Bowl writers at the Bear's latest proclamation.

"I don't think our team this year is a great one or that it ever reached its peak," Bryant said. "We were very young early in the year. I really don't know how good or how bad we are."

Akers says he does.

"You don't have to look at films to know that Alabama is a fine team," he said. "They deserve to be rated as high, or higher, than they are."

Like Staubach, White Consistant, Not Flashy

DALLAS (AP) - Danny White has had a Roger Staubach-type year, meaning the Dallas Cowboys won but their quarterback didn't make All-Pro or the Pro Bowl.

"Roger never made All-Pro, which is ridiculous, but his strong suit was being consistent," said White. "This is the kind of team that thrives with a consistent quarterback. We just don't run that wide open."

White, in his sophomore season as a starter for the Cowboys, said "I'd like to think I'm more disciplined, more consistent. It was Roger's greatest asset and I'd like for it to be one of mine."

Going into Saturday's National Conference divisional playoff game in Texas Stadium against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, White has completed 57 per cent of his passes. He has cut his interceptions in half from last season with just 13 on 391 passing attempts.

White is averaging 7.92 yards per pass and has thrown 22 touchdown passes.

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana and Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski were chosen to the Pro Bowl on the NFC team ahead of White.

"There's only one bowl I mind missing and it isn't being played in Hawaii," said White.

White said it was difficult getting honors on a team that wins year after year.

"(Tom) Landry never makes Coach of the Year and it's because he never has a bad year," said White. "How do you compare great years? He always has them."

Landry said of White: "Normally, you get a drop off the second year a quarterback is a starter in the National Football League. That didn't happen to Danny. He's had a pretty amazing year."

White, who dislikes being compared to Staubach, has even pulled off two Staubach-style come-from-behind rallies this year.

On a recent talk show, White mentioned the name "Roger" in a conversation.

Show host Brad Sham, with tongue-in-cheek, asked "Roger? Roger who?"

White replied "That's the nicest thing you've said to me all night."

The Cowboys' quarterback torch has been successfully passed. It's strictly the Danny White show now for Dallas.

QBs Spotlighted In Bluebonnet

HOUSTON (AP) - Steve Smith of Michigan and Tom Ramsey of UCLA, promising quarterbacks with checkered 1981 seasons, will be in the spotlight and on the hot seat tonight when the 16th-ranked Wolverines meet the 19th-rated Bruins in the 23rd annual Bluebonnet Bowl.

Kickoff is at 7 p.m. in the Astrodome.

UCLA's impressive defense will be trying to shut down Michigan's running game fueled by All-America running back Butch Woolfolk and force Smith to test his passing arm.

Michigan also would like to see the Bruins throwing with Ramsey, who set a school total offense record this season but also threw 15 interceptions.

"I hope they do force us to throw because I feel if I am playing right we can complete some passes," said Smith, a sophomore, who recovered from a slow start to lead the Wolverines to an 8-3 record. "With our receivers we can move the ball."

Ohio State Edges Navy In Liberty

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Jimmy Gayle, Ohio State's No. 2 tailback, has a bone to pick with the oddsmakers for the Liberty Bowl.

The Big Ten football co-champions, favored by 14 points, narrowly staved off a Navy rally to win the postseason classic 31-28 Wednesday night.

"Actually," said Gayle, "we were the underdogs because of everything that was written about the game. That helped Navy."

Gayle's touchdown runs of one and two yards earned him the honor as Ohio State's top offensive player in the game. His last score put the Buckeyes ahead to stay 24-20 late in the third quarter.

The Buckeyes, 9-3, shattered a four-game bowl losing streak without much help from their principal weapon, Art Schlichter.

Starting his 48th straight college game, the Buckeyes' senior quarterback managed only 11 completions in 26 tries for 159 yards, although he did throw touchdown pases of 50 and 9 yards to Gary Williams and Cedric Anderson, respectively.

In fact, Navy sophomore quarterback Marco Pagnanelli outdueled his more heralded opponent. Pagnanelli, despite suffering a head injury, hit 14 of 27 pases for 201 yards and two touchdowns, each for one yard to tight end Greg Papajohn.

The last came with eight seconds left. The same combination clicked for two extra points, but the rally died when Ohio State recovered the following on-side kickoff.

George Welsh, Navy's winningest coach ever who is heading for the University of Virginia next week, said: "I'm a little disappointed we couldn't do it. I wanted the upset. I don't think there's such a thing as a moral victory."

Tailback Eddie Meyers, the game's Most Valuable Player with 117 yards rushing, conceded Navy's underdog status aroused the Midshipmen.

"I think that we proved to everyone that although you're an underdog on paper, paper does not measure the will, the power, the strength of a man's heart, his ability to come back, his desire to win," Meyers said.

Rice Upsets Again

HONOLULU (AP) - Ricky Pierce, the tournament's most outstanding player, scored 23 points and pulled down seven rebounds as the Rice Owls completed a wave of upsets that marked the 18th annual Rainbow Classic with a 51-47 victory over previously undefeated and 20th-ranked North Carolina State Wednesday night.

The Owls upset host Hawaii, 69-59, in their opener, then knocked off No. 6 San Francisco, 78-66, before besting the Wolfpack at its own game of ball control.

With Pierce scoring 16 points in the first half, the Owls took a 29-22 lead at intermission.

Rice maintained that advantage until late in the second half when Sidney Lowe's bucket and two by Dereck Whittenburg, who led N.C. State with 18 points, knotted the score at 39-all.

Pierce then hit two free throws but Whittenburg scored again on a six footer.

Pierce responded with a beautiful baseline move for a left-handed layup putting the Owls ahead 43-41. Kenny Austin, who had 11 points and seven rebounds, followed with two free throws and the Owls never lost the lead again.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

McDonald Welding Supply Has Gained Reputation For Service

McDonald Welding Supply has gained a reputation for service, and for good reason. The staff at McDonald Welding comes early and stays late.

This is especially important to the area's busy oil fields, and this is why so many concerns have depended on McDonald Welding for their supply needs.

The firm serves an area bounded by Sweetwater to Loraine to Colorado City and Big Spring and back to Snyder. The company has two 18-foot bobtail trucks for delivery to farms, businesses and well locations.

McDonald Welding has all types of gasses for any use. Some gasses you will find are breathing air, medical air, helium, aragon, acetylene gas, industrial oxygen and liquid nitrogen. McDonald can fill your large tanks or your child's balloon.

In this area, liquid nitrogen is used by the telephone company for drying telephone lines following a rain storm.

In stock at McDonald's is the Miller Big 20 D. C. welder for the oil patch. It has a built-in A. C. power plant and can furnish electricity for any device that runs on household current. The welder runs on regular gas or can be purchased to operate with a diesel engine.

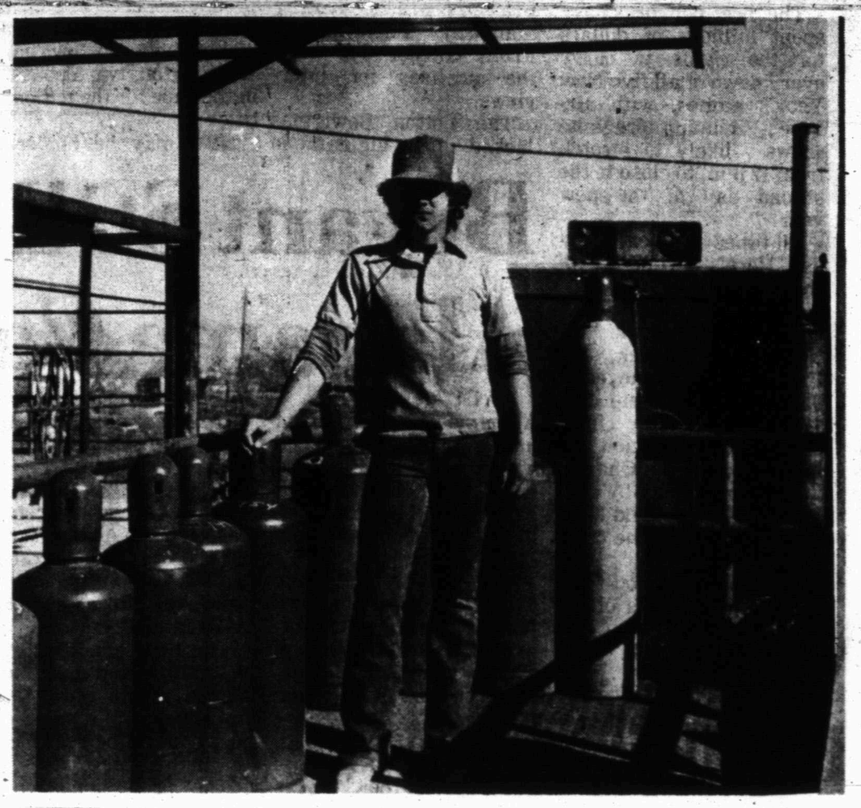

McDonald's also has a large stock of smaller welders. They vary in size and can fit in the rear of a foreign truck as well as a two-ton truck.

If you need steel for oilfield fabrication, you can find exactly what you need at McDonald's. In addition, the firm has a complete line of Milwaukee heavy duty electric tools and grinders. They also have Williams hammer wrenches and heavy tools, Victor and Uniweld welding and cutting equipment and Wilton vises.

Safety equipment of all types is stocked including goggles, first aid kits and refills, arm guards, hard hats, liners and fire extinguishers.

The popular business also stocks chains, cable, tubing and chain hoists. Blocks as well as all types of pulleys may be added to the list.

The available list of supplies is almost endless, just ask for it. Stop by and see Gayle McDonald and the staff at McDonald Welding Supply, 1110 College Ave.

Hinshaw's Is The Place To Go For All Your Lawn Care Needs

It's not too early to be thinking about Spring. Hinshaw's is one step ahead of you. They are expecting everything you need to make your lawn a beautiful place.

Tommy Johnson, in the nursery, is expecting five hundred fruit and shade trees in the middle of January. They include peach, apple, plum, nectarine, pecan, Arizona ash, fruitless mulberry, cottonless cottonwoods, etc. Tommy can help advise you on how to handle most of your problems with garden and nursery work.

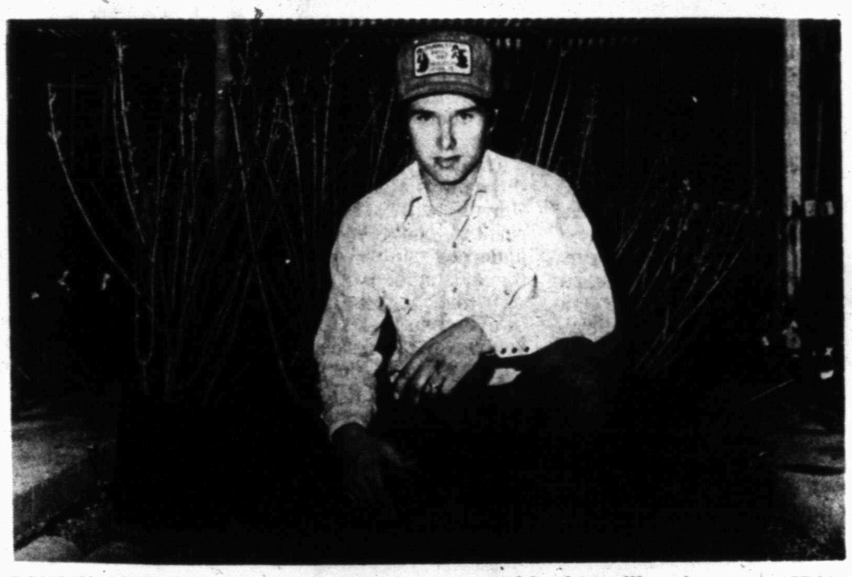

Tommy can also handle landscaping jobs. He is expecting four hundred rose bushes in January. The nursery stock of multiple trunk red oak and a good selection of live oaks should be in in February. As you choose your selections let Tommy place them in your yard to make it the beautiful yard you have always wanted.

Hinshaw's also carries all those garden supplies you may need including insecticides, fungicides, fertilizers, pre-emergent herbicides, as well as garden hoses and stepping stones. They also will have their vegetable seeds within the month.

Tommy also reminds you that it's time to use dor-mant oil spray on pecan and fruit trees. It is also a good time to prune trees.

All of the wicker baskets are on sale in the garden center and if you don't find what you want there, the flower shop, gift shop, or greenhouse may have what you need. Pay them a visit——you'll be glad you did.

Linguists estimate that more than 1,000 languages and dialects are spoken in Africa.

Dear Abby

New Year's Resolutions: One Day at a Time

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of these resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

I hope you will repeat that column every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

NEVER TOO OLD

DEAR NEVER: By popular demand, my "resolutions" column has become an annual tradition, and here it is:

DEAR READERS: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Just for today I will try to live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will try to be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will try to change those things that I can change and accept those things I cannot change.

Just for today I will try to improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do a good deed for somebody — without letting him know it. (If he or she finds out I did it, it won't count.)

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise — even if it's only walking around the block, or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, I will not try to bluff; I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet, or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll not try to improve anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will try to get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what is right and take the responsibility for my own actions. I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

P.S. Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace!

LOVE, ABBY

But No Sanctions...

West Germans Demand End To Martial Law

The Associated Press

Polish Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski leaves West Germany today after receiving the Bonn government's demand that Poland end martial law.

Meanwhile, the Kremlin, reacting to U.S. trade sanctions, insisted no country interfere in the Polish crisis.

Rakowski is the first high-ranking Pole to travel abroad since martial law was declared Dec. 13. He talked with West German officials for four hours Wednesday in an apparent attempt to convince them that Poland's military repression is not as drastic as Western nations contend.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said he told Rakowski that Bonn wanted Poland's military regime to stop the crackdown, free political prisoners and resume negotiations with the Solidarity union and Roman Catholic Church. Genscher did not mention possible West German sanctions. Rakowski declined to comment.

Bonn has the most to lose from joining in U.S. sanctions against Poland or the Soviet Union. West Germany is the major Western trading partner of both Communist nations and holds much of Poland's $27 billion foreign debt. West Germany is also working on an ambitious gas pipeline project with the Soviets.

President Reagan on Tuesday banned exports of technology and pipeline parts to the Soviet Union, suspended commercial airline flights and imposed other sanctions, claiming the Soviets were responsible for Poland's repression.

Polish Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski contends his military council acted alone in announcing martial law, suspending the Solidarity labor movement and jailing political dissidents. Western news reports say repression is harsh and widespread, but many reports cannot be confirmed because of Polish censorship.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass called the U.S. sanctions "provocative" and told other countries to stay out of Poland's domestic problems.

"No one should tell the Polish leadership how it should decide its internal affairs," Tass said.

Reagan had asked for cooperation from America's European allies, but they gave no indication Wednesday that they would go along. Many said such measures do not work and would only hurt the Polish people. West Germany also disagreed with the U.S. position that the Soviets instigated the Polish crackdown.

Tass said Reagan's decision "virtually demanded that the U.S.S.R. interfere in Poland in order to lift measures taken by the government of the Polish People's Republic to stabilize and normalize the situation in the country."

Survivors Of Mountain Ordeal Recuperating

SALIDA, Colo. (AP) — Four survivors of a Christmas Eve plane crash read the Bible as they huddled in the snowbound fuselage for five days, and just after they read about why God lets man suffer, a rescuer walked up to the plane, one survivor said.

"It was remarkable. We never gave up hope. Never," said Steve Smart of Dallas.

The arrival of the searcher at the crash site on a mountain ridge began a daring rescue that saved four of the five people who were flying from Texas for a ski weekend in Aspen when the single-engine Piper Cherokee crashed.

The pilot, Gary Meeks, walked away from the wreckage Christmas Eve to search for help and hasn't been found.

Smart, the last of the four rescued, was brought down from the 11,600-foot-high crash site Wednesday. He was carried through deep snow for several miles by toboggan, and then moved by snowmobile and four-wheel drive vehicle.

"I enjoy snowmobiling, but not quite like this," he said.

The other survivors — Meeks' wife, Patricia Meeks of Dallas, and her two step-sons, Gary Meeks Jr., 18, and Darren Meeks, 15 — were airlifted from the crash site late Tuesday night by helicopter.

Smart had stayed behind with rescuers Tuesday night because authorities feared an approaching winter storm would strand the helicopter during the time needed to get Smart on board.

Outside the fuselage, hurricane-force winds stirred up blinding snow and the temperature, with the wind-chill factor, was estimated to feel like minus 60 degrees.

All four survivors were taken to Salida Hospital, where doctors said Mrs. Meeks was in stable condition suffering from a fracture of the spine. Smart, 33, a business associate of Meeks, and the two youths suffered frostbite and exhaustion.

GRADUATES—Maria Ruiz, assistant manager of Allsup's store at 3911 College Ave., receives her diploma from Gary Whittington, instructor, for fulfilling requirements of Allsup's Assistant Store Manager Course, which is held at the firm's home offices in Clovis, N. M. The training covers proper food handling, cooked food procedures, store cleanliness and maintenance as well as public relations, said Whittington.

Charges Dropped Against Moore

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors have dropped the charges against the last defendant in an alleged scheme to bribe Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton to use his influence to reopen bidding on a lucrative state health insurance contract.

The charges were dropped Wednesday against Deer Park labor leader L.G. Moore, who had been indicted along with Clayton and Austin attorneys Randall Buck Wood and Donald W. Ray following the FBI's Brilab investigation.

Clayton, Ray and Wood were acquitted of all charges in October of 1980, but Moore had been granted a separate trial.

Moore still faces a Jan. 11 trial on racketeering, conspiracy and wire fraud charges in connection with an alleged kickback scheme involving a health insurance contract for Houston municipal employees.

Port of Houston Commissioner John Garrett also will be tried on the same charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald G. Woods said Wednesday the government wanted to drop the charges against Moore to avoid prejudicing the case against Garrett and shorten the trial.

Wood said in Austin that the government's decision to drop the charges was a final vindication of the Brilab defendants.

"The Justice Department and the United States attorney have finally admitted that they never had a case against anyone in the so-called Brilab indictments against Billy Clayton, Buck Wood, Donald Ray and L.G. Moore.

"For those of us who were forced to go through the horrors of the Brilab prosecution, this admission that there was not a case is sweet indeed," Wood said.

During the investigation, two FBI undercover agents acted as business associates of informant Joseph Hauser, who posed as an insurance company representative offering kickbacks and payments to labor and political leaders who helped him get contracts.

Derailed Cars Force Flight

GLEN FLORA, TEXAS (AP) — Three tank cars carrying highly flammable liquified petrolium gas derailed forcing the evacuation of this Wharton County community of about 300 people, officials say.

The three cars were part of a 25-car Santa Fe freight train which jumped the tracks at about 10:15 Tuesday morning.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Diabetes criteria changed

DEAR DR. LAMB — Years ago I developed cataracts. Because of that our internist suggested I have a glucose tolerance test. I was told the results were "almost normal." The final test did not quite reach the original normal level.

Consequently, my doctor decided I had diabetes. But, in all these years I have never had anything but a normal urine analysis and a blood sugar in the normal range. I have high blood pressure and have had blood chemistries done every three months.

Is it possible to have diabetes and never have sugar show in your urine or have a high blood sugar? I am now 72 years old.

DEAR READER — Your story suggests that you do not have diabetes. That does not mean that your doctor was wrong several years ago in thinking then that you were a diabetic. The truth is that until very recently many people with some elevation of blood glucose levels were said to be diabetic on the basis of the blood test alone. Too many of these people never developed diabetes at all so in more recent times the criteria have been revised.

If you have normal kidneys you will not have glucose sugar in the urine unless the blood level reaches about 180 (plasma level of 200 mg). Above this level you will start spilling some sugar. Since you have not had any sugar in your urine, we can pretty safely assume that your blood glucose level never gets that high. Using today's criteria, unless your glucose level does reach that high or higher, you would not be diagnosed as having diabetes. So today you would not be considered a diabetic.

The criteria for making a diagnosis and even our understanding of what causes diabetes have undergone marked changes. To bring you up to date I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-10, Hyperglycemia: The Diabetic Problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Nevertheless, try to keep from developing any extra body fat. That will help ensure that your glucose sugar levels stay normal and will help to control your blood pressure.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have very noticeable dark hair on my thighs. Some of my friends shave their whole leg but my mom says you shouldn't or the hair will grow back darker and thicker on the thighs. Is it bad for you to shave your thighs?

DEAR READER — Not unless you cut yourself. The idea that shaving stimulates hair growth or makes it coarser seems to be widespread. There is nothing to it. When you shave hair you leave a bristle as it grows out. That is just the strongest part of the hair and it is there even in long hair.

There is nothing wrong with having hair on your thighs. If its dark color bothers you, think about bleaching it.

Some people use chemical depilatories. Most of these create problems. To be chemically strong enough to dissolve hair, they can be irritating to the skin. They may also dissolve fabrics. They are increasingly popular but they also result in a lot of consumer complaints. I would prefer to see you shave your thighs rather than coat your skin with such harsh chemicals.

Adopts New Oil, Gas Form

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission said Tuesday it has adopted a simpler form for reporting oil and gas production that will cut out 150,000 forms and save the state $25,000 a year.

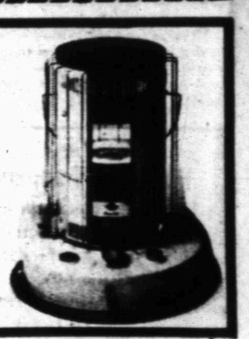

The first report with the new system will be for production during January 1983, after the Oil and Gas Division has explained the forms at seminars next year.

Christmas Fun For Siblings

There is nothing quite like children playing with a puppy, especially if the puppy is a Christmas gift. The energetic youngsters caught playing Wednesday afternoon are Kandy Guard, 5, and her three-year-old brother, Brock. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Guard. Oscar, the equally energetic puppy, also seems to be enjoying himself as he romps with the youngsters, chases them and, last but not least, engages in a bit of playful wrestling. Young Man Is In Custody

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A 20-year-old man was in police custody after a chase during which police riddled a stolen ambulance with bullets.

A police officer from Merkel, 17 miles west of Abilene, was injured slightly in the chase on Interstate 20 between the two cities.

Pursuing officers fired more than two dozen shots at the ambulance's tires in an effort to stop it, then continued shooting as the vehicle rammed squad cars, witnesses said.

The chase began after the ambulance was taken from the Hendrick Medical Center emergency entrance at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday. Abilene Emergency Medical Service attendants said the ambulance had been parked there while they treated a patient.

AEMS officials said the ambulance is still usable, but they will cover bullet holes with duct tape until the vehicle's body can be repaired.

Merkel police officer Lewis Britton Jr. said the ambulance rammed his car, causing more than $200 damage. He was treated for a minor leg injury at Hendrick and released.

Police said they plan to file felony charges against the ambulance's driver.

Case Still Unresolved

By The Associated Press

The trial of three men accused of murdering W.R. Richey and his wife at Haughton, La., during a 1964 holdup now stands as a wretched legal botch.

In the latest development, Floyd E. Cumbey, 46, was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty and a district court judge canceled both of his 21-year prison terms for manslaughter.

At least the Cumbey case didn't wind up with a financial loss — like the $55,000 that had to be paid to former rodeo star Jack Favor in 1976 when he sued on a claim that he was railroaded into prison in the Richey killings.

And though the recent court action cleared Cumbey on the Richey charges, he did not go free as a result.

In 1967, the last time Louisiana law had a grip on Cumbey, officers escorted him out of the state and let him loose. He headed for Tulsa, Okla., and is now serving two life sentences for killing Sheila Farley and Opel Richter in Tulsa two days after he was freed.

District Judge Monty Wyche of Benton granted Cumbey's plea that his Louisiana convictions be canceled.

Cumbey claimed his constitutional rights were violated because a lawyer was not appointed to represent him before he pleaded guilty, and because he was not advised of his rights to appeal.

Bossier-Webster District Attorney Henry Brown did not oppose the claim when it came up in court in early December. He also did not contest Cumbey's claim that "evidence exists that the plea may have been the result of improper inducements."

The action means Cumbey could be eligible for parole earlier than his tentative parole date of October 1992, and his chance of release might be improved.

Three men were charged in the Richey killings: Favor, Cumbey, and Donald Lee Yates.

In 1967, when Louisiana let go of him, Cumbey was supposed to have been sent to Angola Prison to begin serving the 21-year sentences after pleading guilty to manslaughter in the Richey killings.

Instead, Bossier Parish Sheriff Vol Dooley, then chief deputy, took him to Texarkana and freed him. Dooley, who acted at the direction of then-Sheriff Willie Waggonner, later testified that he thought Cumbey's sentence had been suspended.

In a 1973 federal court hearing in Shreveport on Favor's claim that he was railroaded, Cumbey testified that Louis H. Padgett Jr., who was the Bossier Parish district attorney at the time, bargained with him to testify against Favor.

Cumbey said Padgett, later to become a district judge, told him: "Floyd, I can't give you immunity but if you will help us in this case, I'll make sure you never do a day in the Louisiana penitentiary."

Cumbey was the state's key witness against Favor, who wound up with two life sentences. The Shreveport hearing resulted in a U.S. District Court order that Favor be freed or given a new trial.

Federal court intervention in the case set off fierce state court resistance. The Louisiana Supreme Court contended the feds overstepped their authority in telling state courts to hold a hearing on whether the prosecutor and judge were involved in illegal collusion.

However, federal courts had the last word.

The second time around, the state district court jury found Favor innocent in 1974. The third man charged in the Richey killings, Yates, testified that he and Cumbey robbed the Richeys, that Cumbey pulled the trigger on the gun hat killed them, and Favor was nowhere around.

Favor had already spent seven years at Angola Prison, where he founded the prison's annual rodeo.

The $7 million lawsuit filed by Favor was against Dooley, Padgett, District Judge O. E. Price and Waggonner. It accused them of conspiring against him in dealing with Cumbey.

Favor, 66 and ailing, was philosophical about the $55,000 settlement in 1976.

"I took the best I could get," he told a reporter at the time. "Sometimes you don't get what you want."

Two principals in the prosecution, Price and Padgett, were indicted on a charge of perjury, accused of lying to the grand jury that investigated the handling of the case.

However, a series of unusual legal wrinkles developed.

First, on Sept. 18, 1972, Judge David T. Caldwell, assigned as a special judge, dismissed the indictments on a legal technicality.

Then another district court judge, Enos McClendon Jr., extended the deadline to Nov. 31.

Then the whole thing wound up in the state Supreme Court, with the defense contending the state filed too late in appealing Caldwell's action.

The high court ruled that McClendon had recused himself from the case earlier and therefore he could not extend the deadline. Furthermore, there was no Nov. 31, since the month had only 30 days in it.

Caldwell's dismissal was upheld.

Yates' role in the Richey case also is a curious history.

First he pleaded guilty to murder without capital punishment and was sentenced to life on Nov. 27, 1967. Records show he was then turned over to the federal government to serve a prior 20-year term for bank robbery, with his state sentence to be served at the same time.

On Feb. 1, 1971, a judge granted a writ bringing Yates back to court, the then-District Attorney John Benton amended the murder indictment to manslaughter. Yates immediately pleaded guilty and drew a 17-year sentence.

Then in 1974 a motion to "correct an illegal sentence" had the sentence wiped out on the ground that state law does not allow a prisoner to serve his state sentence at the same time that he serves a federal sentence.

Released from Leavenworth on parole in 1979 after serving 12½ years, Yates since has been arrested by Florida authorities on a charge of robbing a bank at Bristow, Fla.

Rebel Forces Surround Unit

PARIS (AP) — Libyan state radio reported that Chadian rebels forces surrounded a unit of an African peacekeeping force in Chad and told the men to disarm or face attack.

The broadcast, which could not immediately be confirmed, said Wednesday that forces of former Defense Minister Hissen Habre had pinned down the Organization of African Unity peacekeeping unit at Ati.

Obituaries

Mrs. Koster

She was a former resident of Fluvanna.

Surviving are her husband, John Dietrich Koster of Yuma; two daughters, Betty Jim Farris of Houston and Kimberly Koster of California five sons, Michael J. Breen of California, William Dan Breen of New Mexico, Steve Koster, Adams Koster and Clinton Koster, all of California; and her mother, Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna of Fluvanna. Rites were held in Yuma.

C. W. Crews

Funeral service was set for 2 p. m. today at the McCoy Funeral Home in Sweetwater for Carl W. Crews, 79, of Trent. He died Tuesday in Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring.

Mr. Crews was the brother of Lillian Crews of Snyder.

The Rev. Charles Reece, pastor of First Christian Church in Sweetwater, was to officiate at the funeral service, and burial was to be in the Garden of Memories Cemetery.

Mrs. Spencer

Mrs. R. W. (Annie) Spencer, 90, died at 11:45 p. m. Wednesday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p. m. Friday at the Blair-Stubbs Funeral Home in Mexia. The Rev. Charles Hartsfield will officiate, and burial will be in the Hope Cemetery near Otto, Tex.

A former resident of Mexia, Mrs. Spencer had lived here for the past three years.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Dan Russell of Snyder; two sons, L. L. Spencer of Mexia and R. L. Spencer of Springdale, Ark.; a sister, Mrs. T. L. Day of Marlin; a brother, Woodrow Powers of Marlin; six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Burney Rites

Funeral service was set for 3 p. m. today in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Doug Burney, 70, who died Wednesday morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The Rev. Bob Rhodes, pastor of Northside Baptist Church, was to officiate. Burial was to be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

He was married on May 5, 1933, in Colorado City to Della Mae Austin. She survives.

Also surviving are two sons, Bob Burney and Wayne Burney, both of Snyder; three sisters, Ruby Barnett of Friona, Oneta Goar of Andrews and Annabelle Howard of Fort Worth; a brother, Ernest Burney of Tatum, N. M.; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

1978 Card Arrives Here

Murtis Thomas of Snyder Oaks Nursing Home received an unusual Christmas Card just prior to the holiday. The card in itself was not unusual, but the date it was mailed—Dec. 19, 1978—was.

The card, bearing a 15-cent stamp, was apparently mailed from Longview, Tex. sans zip code.

Mrs. Thomas said the card arrived in good shape and had been marked "Delayed due to no zip code."

"I never realized how delayed it was until I read the date," Mrs. Thomas said.

Arrests Made In Disturbance

Snyder police officers answered a disturbance call in the 1700 block of 17th St. around midnight last evening.

One subject at the scene of the disturbance told officers that another subject in a car had tried to kill him.

Local officers made three arrests at the scene. One male subject and one female subject were booked into the city jail on charges of public intoxication.

One other male subject was booked on charges of driving while intoxicated and unlawfully carrying a weapon. No injuries or property damages were reported in the incident.

A new device known as the "wireless" was used in a rescue at sea for the first time in 1909, after the steamship Florida rammed the liner Republic during a thick fog. The accident occurred at Nantucket, R.I. Six persons aboard the Republic were killed, but the distress calls sent by the ship's operator brought help and prevented further loss of life.

1981 Was Eventful Year For Space Exploration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The launch and return of the space shuttle Columbia heralded a new era in manned spaceflight.

A flight in April and another test seven months later highlighted a busy 1981 in space — a year in which Voyager 2 transmitted spectacular photos of Saturn and the Soviet Union continued aggressive manned and unmanned programs in space.

For the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Columbia's maiden voyage was one that long had seemed almost unattainable, as engineers struggled for years with the technology needed to get a reusable spaceship off the ground.

But for 54 hours in April, those problems were mostly forgotten as astronauts John Young, making a record fifth space trip, and Robert Crippen rode the shuttle into orbit, guided it flawlessly through its paces and brought it home. It was the first time men have landed a winged spacecraft on Earth like an airplane.

Columbia was designed to make 100 or more round trips. Proof of its reusability came in November, when the 100-ton craft roared off launch pad 39A at Cape Canaveral, Fla., carrying astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly on a planned five-day test.

Trouble struck when a power-producing fuel cell went bad, and Mission Control halted the flight after a little more than two days.

By cramming their work schedule, Engle and Truly were able to achieve about 90 percent of their goals, including successful tests of a 50-foot mechanical arm that will deploy and retrieve satellites.

The shuttle journeys ended a six-year drought in U.S. manned spaceflights. If plans hold, 1982 will be busier — with Columbia and its sister ship, Challenger, beginning cargo-carrying missions.

American experts estimate the Soviets are at least 10 years away from developing a reusable spaceship as sophisticated as the shuttle. But, using well-tested hardware, the Soviets launched 43 men into space during the past six years, and sent six cosmonauts aloft on three flights in 1981 to link up with the Salyut 6 space station.

After the last 1981 mission, the Soviets said they were retiring Salyut 6, which was home for 16 crews over 44 months. They indicated a Salyut 7 station would be orbited in 1982 and that it could form the nucleus of a 12-to-14-person laboratory by 1985.

American analysts believe the large Soviet station will be used as a military command post for surveillance and weapons testing.

After the final cosmonauts left Salyut 6, the Soviets linked the unmanned Cosmos 1,267 satellite to one of its docking ports. Defense Department sources reported the satellite is the prototype of an anti-satellite battle station that could be equipped with weapons capable of blasting U.S. spacecraft out of the sky.

The United States also is developing killer satellite weapons, and the Pentagon is working on designs for a manned orbiting command post.

The Soviet Union maintained a vigorous unmanned space program in 1981, launching nearly 100 satellites compared with about 20 for the United States. Among them were two ships destined for March landings on Venus.

Voyager 2 was the year's most productive spacecraft, swooping within 63,000 miles of Saturn in August and relaying startling pictures and information.

Among its tentative findings:

—The environment of Saturn, a giant 700 times the size of Earth, is so complex that it is producing phenomena that cannot be explained. Instead of a few rings as was once believed, the planet is circled by uncounted thousands. The planet's moons total at least 17, and scientists suspect there are more.

—Puzzling forces on Saturn seem to keep the rings and moons in foment, producing unexplained gaps and spokes.

—Golden clouds on the gaseous body are whipped by 1,000 mph winds.

After Saturn, Voyager 2 sailed on a path that will permit it to explore Uranus in 1986 and Neptune in 1989.

Voyager 2 marks an end to an era of U.S. planetary exploration.
