Call Off Water Bond Vote

NEW SURVEYS OF NEEDS WILL BE AUTHORIZED

City Commissioners Cancel Call for Vote on Proposed Securities

DUAL SYSTEM

Engineers Discuss Feasibility of Using Lake Kemp for Sprinkling

Cancellation of orders calling for a $1,450,000 bond issue June 15, and announcement that another thorough survey would be made of the city's water distribution needs were made Wednesday afternoon at a called meeting of the city council. Acting on a request from Mayor R. E. Shepherd, the commissioners nullified the bond election, and later it was informally stated by the mayor that a further engineering investigation would be conducted to supplement that of Dean T. U. Taylor of the University of Texas.

In connection with this latter, it was indicated, a survey would be made on the feasibility of a dual water system here, one of the regular high pressure type such as is now in use; and the other a low pressure type for distribution of unfiltered water for irrigation purposes.

Survey Is Made.

The bond issue cancellation comes as the result of considerable agitation swirling around the water situation in Wichita Falls. Following a lengthy survey made by Dean Taylor, who was secured by the city to make such an investigation. He submitted a report recommending practically a complete overhauling of the existing system of pipes and mains; extension of these; moving of the pumping plant and filter beds; construction of a high pressure main from Lake Wichita into the city; installation of a water softening plant at the lake, and numerous other features. The entire cost was estimated at approximately one and one-quarter million dollars.

Directors of the chamber of commerce approved the report and recommended its favorable acceptance by the city. This was done, but vigorous opposition appeared and ultimately the chamber of commerce, acting on a recommendation of the business council, passed further recommendations asking the city council to postpone the bond election until some more surveys and reports could be made.

Needless Expense.

Opponents of the issue contend that it is a needless and excessive expense which the bond issue will inflict on the taxpayers. Admitting that the water distribution system is in need of repair and expansion, they maintain that it can be done at a fraction of the total called for in the Taylor report.

The dual water system which is being advocated contemplates the installation of low pressure mains throughout practically all of the city, these to tap Lake Kemp through the irrigation canals, and thus make available at an exceedingly low rate, ample water for use on lawns, gardens, etc. By doing this and lifting the drain of irrigation water from Lake Wichita, it is held, this body of water will be sufficient to supply the domestic needs of the city with soft water. The lake is a soft water body, but has been converted to a hard one through introduction of Lake Kemp water.

Approximately $200,000 of the total involved in the proposed bond issue was to have gone for street improvements and extension of the sanitary sewer lines. Under the latest action of the council, these must wait.

Court Lauds Newspapers For Enforcement of Laws

Court Rules Mistakes Not Libel Basis

Errors Often Occur In Newspapers; Are Not Intentional Wrong

AUSTIN, June 9.—(AP)—Errors are frequent in newspapers the third court of civil appeals declared here today in rendering an opinion reversing and remanding for a new trial the libel suit of Mrs. Gertrude Isensee from Hays county, against the Express Publishing company, of San Antonio, publishers of the San Antonio Evening News.

Mrs. Isensee sued the company for the printing of her picture under a caption "Held in Death" and over a story relative to a beauty specialist in Los Angeles, Mme Electra Lynne, being held in connection with the reported death of Mrs. E. B. Gilchrist while undergoing a face lifting."

"In the necessary haste and volume of detail required to issue the editions of daily newspapers mistakes in the placing and arrangement of type forms, captions or pictures are not infrequent," the opinion read. "Readers of large dailies are no longer surprised at seeing a caption or headline on one subject followed by an article tirely foreign to it; or even to see entirely foreign to it; or even to see panied by the pictures of some one else," inserted by mistake."

The court reversed the judgment of $7,500 awarded Mrs. Isensee.

Sweeping Decision In Favor Of 'Publishers, Praises Fourth Estate

AUSTIN, June 9.—(AP)—One of the most helpful means of aiding in law enforcement is "the recognized right of the press to publish a reasonable and fair criticism of crime," the Texas supreme court said today. "It is a public service and makes for order."

The court reversed judgment of a district court and court of civil appeals and decided in favor of the Express Publishing company and the Light Publishing company, both of San Antonio, in libel suits brought by Claude A. Keeran, prominent Victoria cattleman and banker.

By the lower courts, Keeran was awarded $15,000 from each publishing company, because the Express Light published a story indicating Keeran was involved in a widespread liquor law violation conspiracy.

"It is too late to quibble over the wisdom of our prohibition laws. All good people, irrespitive of their views as to their original wisdom, respect them for the law's sake," the opinion, written by Judge Ocie Speer of section B, commission of appeals said.

The newspapers following arraignment of Keeran before United States commissioner at San Antonio, published a prediction from Captain B. C. Baldwin that a number of arrests in a "giant booze conspiracy" soon would be made. The story printed in July, 1924, carried news of the seizure of a ship at Port Lavaca and of the seizure of large stores of liquor in San Antonio.

In the trial of the libel suit in district court Keeran told of making the acquaintance of Bert Barkley, who furnished the liquor for a party given at a San Antonio hotel by oil operators. A few nights later Barkeley and others appeared at Keeran's ranch home and asked permission to land a ship of liquor in the bay on Keeran's property. Keeran assented and went to the beach and watched operations.

Barkeley and others made a number of trips conveying liquor from Keeran's property. Finally Keeran was informed that 50 cases of choice liquors had been stolen from a cache on his property. Keeran suspected a certain negro, and went to the negro's home to attempt to recover the liquor for Barkeley and the others. He was arrested as he was transporting in his automobile three cases of gin.

Defense Complete

The opinion pointed out the story was true, as the ordinary reader would construe the facts, and that this is complete defense.

The pictures published were of proceedings authorized by law in the administration of the law," and newspapers have the right to publish "a fair, true and impartial account."

The court pointed out the story was of public concern, because the public is greatly interested in the enforcement of prohibition laws which affect so directly public morals.

"The right of a citizen to have his good name protected from libelous publications is indeed a valuable one, not to be legally discounted; but upholding the law is likewise sacred, and the right of a newspaper to make reasonable and fair comment and criticism upon matters of public concern for general information is at all times to be protected and never to be denied."

Hospitality Ceases

The court pointed out the defendant doubtless had been chafed and embarrassed "but if his conviction is just, he has no just complaint.

The court of civil appeals has in a measure palliated defendants in errors by referring to it in some of its parts "as homely hospitality." But hospitality to one's friends ceases where hostility to law and society begins.

"There is no more sacred right of government or duties of citizenship than the observance of law and one of the most helpful means of cultivating a loyal observance and aiding in the enforcement thereof is the recognized right of the press to publish a reasonable and fair criticism of crime. It is a public service and makes for order."

'MA' TO WAIT FOR BOND MEET

Writes J. A. Kemp She Must Have Time to Study "Sufficiency"

AUSTIN, June 9.—(AP)—Hasty action on the "important question" of validating the $82,000,000 of Texas road bonds effected by the Archer county road district bond case decision by the United States supreme court "is not conducive of proper action" and Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will take sufficient time to get approval before committing herself further, she wrote J. A. Kemp of Wichita Falls late today.

"I am in receipt of your favor of the fifth by letter and by wire. I note that you call attention to the fact that I did not signify a day for the convening of the legislature in special session. I believe if you will read again my answer to your original letter you will find that it is responsive to your request in so far as I felt justified in committing myself at this time. In view of the fact, I again call your attention to my statement that there is a difference between reputable lawyers in Texas as to the sufficiency of the bills submitted by you and your committee, and I wanted to have that matter fully determined before convening the legislature. You will remember that it has taken time for the bond attorneys to submit a bill which they claim will meet the situation, and I therefore know you will be liberal enough to grant the governor the same time and opportunity to have the sufficiency of these bills determined.

Will Act Promptly.

"I am frank to say that the inclination upon the part of your committee for hasty action upon this all important question is not conducive to proper action. I did not want to place myself in the attitude of recommending a bill to the legislature which I might later determine was not legal or constitutional. This would be bad faith with the legislature, as well as embarrassing to me. I therefore, am going to take sufficient time to get the approval, if possible, of reputable lawyers as to the sufficiency of the bills submitted by you, and I sincerely hope my advisors will agree with you and your attorneys that the bills are sufficient. As soon as the matter is determined, I will act promptly in the premises, and I trust that I may have your co-operation in bringing about a determination of this question on bond validation in a way that will protect the interests of all parties concerned, and with due respect to the constitution and laws and laws made and provide.

Winning Poker Hand Approved By High Court

Husband And Wife Play Cards to Determine Division of Property

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—(AP)—A winning poker hand was given a legal rating in the superior court here today.

Mrs. Wright won the family percolator and her wedding ring. Wright won the family automobile.

Today Mrs. Wright obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce. The court recognized the property division as it had been determined by the poker series.

BROWNWOOD IS 'SOLD' ON LAKE

Visiting Business Men Are Convinced Irrigation Will Pay

Brownwood's caravan of seekers after water information left for home Wednesday night, apparently convinced that a water impounding and irrigation project can be made and has been made a success. They returned to Wichita Falls Wednesday evening after an all-day tour through the Wichita irrigated valley under the escort of officials of the chamber of commerce and others interested in the project.

A party of 62, of which 43 were visitors from Brownwood and San Saba, left Wichita Falls early Wednesday morning, proceeding through the valley to the diversion dam and up the river to Lake Kemp. An hour's boat ride was taken over the lake and lunch followed at the Point Breeze hotel where addresses were made by J. A. Kemp, head of the Wichita Falls project, and a number of the Brownwood men. These addresses told of what had been done here and what it was intended to do on Pecan Bayou in Brown county.

Burkhart Guilty Of Osage Murder

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 9.—(AP)—The first of the Osage murder cases ended today in a complete victory for the state.

The clearing up of this case, authorities claim, strengthens their theory of the existence of a huge conspiracy which involved the killing of rich Osage Indians for their property. Smith's murder had been linked with a series of other slayings.

WICHITA FALLS TAX VALUATION $43,000,000

TO SET RATE

Officials Checking up Rendition Sheets, Filed By Owners

A valuation of city property for tax purposes of approximately $43,000,000 will be submitted to the city council next Monday by Tax Assessor and Collector W. R. Hyer, the latter announced Wednesday. This is an increase of about $1,000,000 over the figures for last year, which brought a tax roll of approximately $42,000,000.

Work is now progressing at the tax office on adding up the rendition sheets as rendered by property owners and approved by the board of equalization. This will be finished by Monday at the latest.

Setting of the city tax rate for 1926 may be made by the council Monday, it has been indicated. Officials have intimated that an increase will be made in this for the coming year, necessitated by an increase in the municipal bonded debt and an increase also in budget requirements for the city's operation during the year.

A tax rate of $1.30 is now in effect with prospects that it may go to $1.35 or above.

Welfare Secretary And Red Cross to Control Milk and Ice Expenses

With $125 already in the coffers and the summer season advancing daily, arrangements are being made whereby this year's Record News Milk and Ice fund will be distributed so that a maximum amount of good will inure to those who need it most.

The funds this year will be turned over to Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, secretary of the Municipal Welfare board, who, working in co-operation with the local Red Cross, will expend them for milk and ice in behalf of the families here who have come to be dependent to a large extent on this annual summer institution.

Mrs. Gorsline is in closer touch, perhaps, than any other person with those families where suffering and privation are by-words. She is also in a position to make investigations of all cases in which aid is sought and to determine whether or not it is justified.

In this work she will be assisted by nurses of the Red Cross who, too, are in daily contact with those for whom organized welfare work is designed.

Groomed In Gossamer Gowns Bejeweled and Plumed, Debs Make Bow To British Royalty

LONDON, June 9. — (AP) — Plumed, bejeweled and groomed in gossmer court gowns of dazzling beauty, fifteen American women of social and political prominence were presented to King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham palace tonight at the first of the season's royal courts.

The king and queen entertained nearly 900 guests, mostly drawn from official and diplomatic circles, as is the custom for the first court. About a third of those attending were debutantes and older women who were ushered into the presence of royalty for the first time.

Mrs. Haughton, wife of the American ambassador, presented seven Americans in the diplomatic circles. They were: Miss Meline Avery, Farmington, Conn., sister of the London military attache; Mrs. John Biard of Philadelphia, wife of the assistant military attache; Mrs. Roberta Burg of Boston, wife of the assistant naval attache; Miss Lindsay Beach of Rochester, N. Y., a friend of Ambassador and Mrs. Haughton; Mrs. William Carleton Watts and Miss Emily Watts, wife and daughter of the naval attache; Mrs. Charles Mettler, of Atlanta, Ga., wife of an assistant military attache.

In the general circle Mrs. Haughton presented Miss Mildred Tytus, Miss Alice Lee and Miss Eva Wise of New York; Miss Caroline Patterson of Dayton, Ohio; Miss Lorraine Liggett of Boston; Miss Henrietta Johnston, daughter of the naval attache at Paris; Mrs. Wilson Pritschett of Philadelphia and Mrs. Curtis Brown of London.

The great doors of the palace were thrown open at 8:30 for those "commanded" to attend the privileged holders of cards formed in two lines in the drizzling rain before the gates.

Nervous debutantes hid themselves in the shadowy corners of their limousines or drew the shades of their carriages to escape the stares of the straggling crowds curious which can always be depended upon to assemble in the Mall, rain or shine, when ever there is a great function at Buckingham palace.

Within the palace the guests were directed to the grand stair case and thence proceeded to the ball room to await the brilliant spectacle of the entrance of the king and queen and the royal entourage.

The royal party clustered around the throne and the presentations were made by the Lord Chamberlain.

The husbands and fathers of the Americans presented experienced a new thrill when another tradition was shattered, the Lord Chamberlain having granted permission to the men to accompany their wives or daughters and get an idea of what it was all about.

The American men were not formally presented at court, of course, but a number of them took advantage of the invitation to see the inside of Buckingham palace and see the guests in all their finery. The men had a little palace ante-room to themselves.

Manuscript Bonds Are Ruled Illegal

AUSTIN, June 9.—(AP)—It would violate the state constitution to issue a so-called manuscript bonds and exchange them for the permanent Texas university fund, or a portion thereof as proposed by Governor Miriam A. MAN RECEIVING LIFT USES GUN ON BENEFACTOR

Shooting Takes Place Between Henrietta-Wichita Falls

VICTIM BADLY HURT

W. D. Smith, Traveling Man, Drives Car Toward Home Afterward

Wichita Falls city officers and members of the sheriff's department of Clay county were searching around Jolly in western Clay county late Wednesday night for a young man who shot and seriously wounded W. D. Smith of Bowie earlier in the night on the road from Jolly to Wichita Falls. Smith himself was in the hands of Dr. H. L. Reed of Henrietta, with two bullet wounds in his chest and another in his abdomen. He was to be taken to his home in Bowie early this morning. Dr. Reed did not believe the wounds would prove fatal.

Offered Him a Ride

According to the story told officers at Henrietta, Smith, a traveling man out of Bowie started at dusk for Electra in a Chevrolet coupe. When just out of Jolly he saw a man standing by the side of the road and picked him up to take him on into Wichita Falls. The man was affable enough, according to Smith, and when he picked up a pistol in the receptacle back of the seat which Smith had placed there for protection's sake nothing was thought of it. When the man did not replace the gun, however, Smith says that he told him to hand it over. The man, a young fellow described about 25 years old with a prominent front tooth and a scar on his forehead, aimed at him and shot three times. All the bullets taking effect as noted.

Car Approaches

Another car was approaching about that time and the assailant opened the door to the car and jumped disappearing in the darkness. Smith, although badly wounded and bleeding, profusely turned his car about and drove back into Henrietta, without further aid before seeing a doctor, giving as his reason that he wanted to get as near home as possible. This action was described by Dr. Reed as displaying almost superhuman nerve and grit.

Clay county officers immediately notified the police at Wichita Falls and two plainsclothes men were sent to the ground to see if they could find the man.

Supreme Court Says Col. Crawford Influenced Will

AUSTIN, Texas, June 9.—(AP)—In reversing the judgments of the lower courts and remanding the Lucy Craycroft et al, vs. Kate Lamar Crawford, et al case, the supreme court indulged in a classic analysis of the courtship and married life of the late Col. William L. Crawford of Dallas, and based its decision on the probability that undue influence was brought on him in making of a will making his second wife, Kate Lamar Crawford, the sole beneficiary.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

John Parrish is irritated by frequent reminders from Audrey, his rich young wife, that it is her money that supplies the household and pays his salary. They have taken Marcie Allen into their household, whom her father puts her out of her home because of her very free views on what rights for women mean. She is dark and beautiful. Before she has been in the Parrish household a week she has kissed Parrish twice, and called him endearing names. She keeps Audrey's friendship, however. Finally, at a jarring reminder from Audrey of his own poverty, Parrish leaves the house, and does not return that night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(Names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XIV.

Marcie arose early and went floating around the house in her gauzy morning robe. A rattle of pans and crockery from the kitchen told her that the cook was astir.

"I'd like my fruit and coffe and eggs and becon now," she told the maid who answered her ring.

Sitting alone in the breakfast room, she consumed her food with hearty appetite, opening the screen now and then to throw crumbs to the birds that chittered in the vines. For a time after she had eaten, she sat, musing, over her coffee. Then she stole upstairs, and listened at Audrey's door. There was no sound.

She sped down the hall to Parrish's room, and placed her ear at the keyhole. Only silence rewarded her.

Nodding her head, as if confirmed in a personal belief, she trotted down stairs, and out onto the rear lawn. A quick glance inside the garage showed her that Parrish's small car was not there.

"Wonder where Mr. Parrish's flivver is," said the chaffeur, coming around the corner of the building. "It hasn't been in since yesterday morning." Encouraged by Marcie's attentive smile, he grinned and continued: "If he's smashed it up, it'll be like a funeral around this house. He sure thought that was the boss tin lizzy of the world."

"He might have left it down town to be repaired," hazarded Marcie.

"It needed it." His grin was broader. "If he gets a new engine, and a new body, and new wheels installed, it ought to be a pretty good car for a while yet."

Marcie returned to the house thoughtfully. Once inside, she ran up to Audrey's room and listened. Satisfied, she descended the stairs, and called Parrish's office on the telephone.

It was his own voice that answered.

"Yes," he said, gruffly.

"I didn't expect to find you there so early," Marcie said.

"Is that Marcie?" he demanded.

She gave an assenting "um-hum," and he went on: "I've been here since seven. No place else to go."

"Are you coming home?" she asked.

"Don't know." He was silent an instant, and then went on. "As a matter of fact, I think I won't."

He hung up the receiver abruptly, and Marcie, with a quiet smile, put down her own instrument.

Audrey appeared an hour later, her face pale, and her lips set determinedly. (She did not mention Parrish's absence.

"I think I'll have my father's dressing room and bedroom cleaned today," she said. "He ought to be coming home soon."

Marcie, who sat with her at the table, observed that she took only a nibble of toast and a sip or two of coffee. The omelet that the maid set before her remained untouched.

"You do whatever you please today," Audrey went on, after a long silence. "I'll be busy around the house."

Marcie retreated to the study, where she rummaged among the books that Audrey's father had left there. In a separate case, with a padlocked glass door, was a row of novels in French, and a few volumes of translations from the ancients—translations of works that Harry Morton had seen fit to lock away from his daughter.

With infinite patience, Marcie managed to remove the hinges of the glass door. She drew forth the books one by one. Some of them were illustrated. With a sigh of content she selected a volume whose illustrations were daring in the extreme, and settled herself to read.

Parrish did not come home to luncheon nor to dinner in the evening. Audrey, white but grim, superintended the thorough cleaning of her father's rooms; attended to her ordinary household routine, stopped to chat with Marcie a few times on indifferent topics, and after dinner strolled out on the lawn, alone.

Marcie was sitting on the porch. Both girls had dressed themselves carefully, but Audrey's gown was more of a type for a ball than for a quiet night at home.

"Why all the fixings, Audrey?" called Marcie.

The other girl shrugged her shoulders. "I always dress in the evenings," she said.

Marcie's active eye caught a detail of Audrey's finery. Descending the steps to the lawn, she sauntered to where her hostess stood, gazing intently the while at Audrey's left hand. Apparently Audrey had not seen her, yet, without turning her head, she lifted her hand.

At last Audrey came, slowly. Her head was erect, and her face composed, but an instant buzz arose from the guests on the lawn.

"Yes, I left them off," she said.

The engagement ring, with its little diamond, and the wedding ring were missing.

"Oh," said Marcie. She walked on past Audrey, and seated herself on the stone bench a dozen yards away.

Audrey silently walked around the house, pausing to inspect a plant here and there, and finally came and sat beside her guest.

"I feel restless," she said, at length. "Let's take a drive."

With light capes over their bare shoulders, the girls entered the big town car, as it was driven to the curb, and at a brief direction from Audrey the chauffeur started away.

They returned at 10 o'clock.

"I'll bet I haven't talked so little in so long a time since I was born," Marcie said, as they entered the house.

"I didn't feel conversational, either," Audrey said. Then, she added, absently: "I'd be glad if daddy would come."

The next day passed as uneventfully and the next, and the next.

Audrey made no mention of Parrish whatever. On the third day of his absence, Marcie noted that the engagement ring and its plain platinum companion had reappeared on Audrey's finger. The fourth day, though, the rings were gone again.

Marcie, unused to inactivity, grew restless. Twice she dressed and went down town. On one of these occasions she called Parrish by telephone, but on his assurance that he was well, she hung up again without asking him further questions.

"Why don't you call up some of the boys, and ask them to come over?" Audrey asked, on the fourth evening.

"Don't want 'em," Marcie replied. "If they find out where I am, they'll be hanging around here all the time."

"I thought you liked them to do that," Audrey said, with an attempt at a smile.

"I do, usually. But it'll be good for them to wonder where I am. They'll love me more if they miss me a little."

Audrey stood up, and went to the dining room window. They had just finished the evening meal, and Marcie was toying with a small cup of coffee.

"I think I'll call up some of the girls and have them in to tea tomorrow," Audrey said, abruptly.

"All right with me. Will you serve cocktails?"

"If they want them," Audrey said.

She went to the telephone, and half an hour later, had completed her list of calls.

"Fourteen of them will come. I've decided to have bridge. With you and me, that's four tables," she said, coming out on the porch where Marcie was swinging.

"That's the advantage of being the richest girl in the crowd," Marcie commented. "You crook your finger, and they all flock in. Most of us have to give a week's notice to get fourteen other idle girls together."

"You never had any trouble getting them to your house," Audrey said.

Marcie made an impish mouth. "That's because they're afraid of what I'll say about 'em, if they don't come."

The afternoon of Audrey's bridge party was the fifth of Parrish's absence. She dressed herself with great care, and added a touch of rouge on control the pallor of her cheeks. She wore the wedding ring and the tiny diamond, and on the other hand the three pearls her father had given her.

Her voice was calm and cheerful as she greeted the flock of young women that gathered in twos and threes. She moved among them as they gossiped and touched up their lips and cheeks, prattling with them casually.

Marcie had put on her hat, and conducted herself as the others did, without telling that she was staying in Audrey's household.

"No sense in setting that gang of gossips babbling," she had confided to Audrey.

When they were ready, Audrey called them to come to the rear lawn. She had ordered a tent-maker to set up a canvas marquee there, that morning.

"It will be pleasanter outdoors," she explained.

"You expensive thing!" cried one of the girls.

Audrey had begun a smiling rejoinder, when she was interrupted by the appearance of the downstairs maid. The girl bore a telegram. Audrey remained behind, as her guests trooped onto the lawn, and tore open the yellow envelope.

The girls, seated at the tables under the canvas roof, started to play except the three who were at Audrey's table.

Five minutes went by; ten minutes; fifteen.

At last Audrey came, slowly. Her head was erect, and her face composed, but an instant buzz went through the tent.

"Something wrong," said one girl, aloud. "She's been crying!"

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

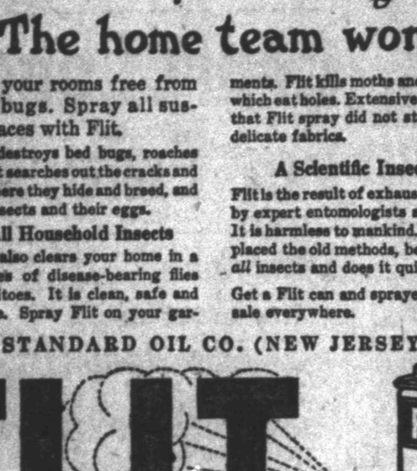

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women who tell of returning health and energy.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

THE KATY IS YOUR RAILROAD

MKT
Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines

Wage Bill Largest Expense

Government statistics show that the largest item in the operating expense of the railroads is the wage bill. In 1900, the railroads had 1,000,000 employes at an average compensation of $567 per year; in 1924, they had 1,777,000 employes at an average compensation of $1,613 per year—an increase of 400% in the total annual compensation of employes.

THE PUBLIC
The Employes
The Investors

THE three interests most vitally concerned in the operation of the railroads today are—the public, requiring adequate and convenient service at fair rates; the railroad employes, entitled to good wages and fair working conditions; and the investors, equally entitled to a reasonable return on their investment.

Permanent solution of the railroad problem is possible only through an equitable treatment of each interest—the maintenance of economic justice between the public who pay rates, the employes who receive wages and the investors who put their money into railway securities. Disregard of the rights of any one of these three determining factors necessarily injures each of the others.

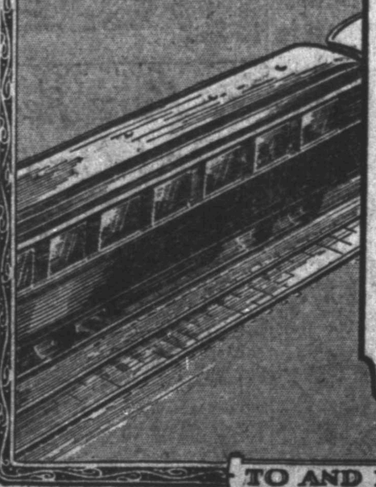

From the standpoint of each interest, there has been a steady improvement in American railroad conditions since 1922. Railway service today is better than ever before, and a continuation of the conditions under which this service has been built up will assure permanent solution of the railroad problem

Through lower rates the public paid $105,000,000 less for the service performed in 1925 than they would have paid for the same service at average rates charged in 1923. ¶ Employes received $26,000,000 more in wages than they would have received for the same number of hours work at the average rates of 1923. ¶ The railroads, too, earned increased return on investment, although they still fell short of earning 5¼%.

At the same time, Katy shippers paid the railroad $3,549,291 less for freight service in 1925 than they would have paid for the same service if charged for at the average rates in 1923.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas—the pioneer railroad in its distinctive territory, and the only system serving all the more important centers in Oklahoma and Texas from both St. Louis and Kansas City—solicits your support in maintaining conditions under which it may continue to improve its service and facilities, further stabilize relations with its employes, and entrench itself more deeply in the confidence of its investors. This co-operation the Katy management desires to the end that Katy service may be distinguished always, as now, for its dependability, convenience, comfort, safety and dispatch.

VICTIM TELLS OF 'HANGING'

Bandits String American Up Force Him to Write For Ransom

SAN ANTONIO, June 9.—(AP)—Captured at the bottom of an abandoned mine by a polite bandit, forced to write a letter for his own ransom and behold his fellow captive strangled into submission at the end of a rope, Jules B. Gallagher, 34, was home here today to tell of his experiences in the hands of Mexican bandits.

He was captured with C. C. Braden of Laredo near Descubridora, Durango, and held for 10 days, being rescued by Mexican federal troops.

Gallagher and Braden were inspecting an old mine when Galindo and his band came upon them, said Gallagher. Galindo, he related, invited them to become his "guests" and they were taken to an old Spanish hacienda in the mountains.

After several days Gallagher said Galindo mentioned ransom.

"I'm asking 12,000 pesos ($6000) for your lives,'" said Galindo.

"'We're not worth that much,' I told him and Braden and I tried to laugh it off.

"'But your families probably think so,' Galindo replied laughingly.

"The bandit then ordered us to write our families, telling them that we were his guests and would remain so until the money was received. After protesting I consented to write, but Braden refused. Galindo then called a guard.

"'This gentleman,' he said, 'does not like our hospitality. He has decided he wants to take a long trip instead.'

String Him Up.

"The bandits brought some rope, tied Braden securely about the body, hands behind him and then slipped a rope about his neck, hangman fashion, ut there was no noose in it. Braden told him he did not have the nerve to kill him as he knew the whole United States army would be after them as soon as it was known. Galindo smiled and seemed as calm as a comic opera hero. He gave the order and they swung Braden up, while two of them held me.

"The rope not being noosed, did not quite strangle him, but after a while his face grew red and he began to struggle. Finally he murmured something and Galindo ordered him cut down. He then wrote the letter.

"The surprise attack by federal troops was made possible because one of the guards fell asleep. Galindo and Corral, his aid, were standing by us when the attack began. He ordered the men to hold on and began firing with revolvers, standing in the open in the center of his band. Corral fell dead. Two other men were killed. Galindo himself was wounded when he turned to us and said:

"'Good bye, my friends. We'll meet again, I hope,' and then escaped."

Hi Puts it Over On League Council

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—(AP) Friends of H. A. "Hi" Binder here were laughing today over his exploit in Geneva yesterday when he walked in on the league of nations with credentials purporting to be those of envoy extraordinary to that body from San Francisco. Meanwhile they were trying to figure out some explanation of it.

As Associated Press dispatches from Geneva said that Binder, on arriving at the league place asked to see Rt. Austen Chamberlin. That could not be arranged, but officials ushered him into the conference on opium and other open meetings.

Edward Rainey, secretary to Mayor James Rolph, sai dthat San Francisco issues no designations as envoy to any official body, but that the mayor some times does issue to well known and reputable citizens traveling abroad letters of identification and it was Mr. Rainey's opinion that it was such a document Binder had.

Acquaintances of Binder believe he merely ran up the idle day to the league to slap the backs of some of Europe's leading diplomats after the manner of the Iowa millionaire who some months ago shook hands with the king of England and is reported to have said: "Howdy, king, meet my son."

Binder is local manager for a large life insurance company. He is prominent in lodges and clubs, especially the Kiwanis club. The "boys" are expecting a full report of the episode on his return. Meanwhile they accept the view that he was merely "up looking 'em over."

Bread and Water Diet Constitutional

LINCOLN, Neb., June 9.—(AP)—Bread and water diet for the first and last 20 days of the 60-day jail sentence constitute such cruel and unusual punishment as to be forbidden by the United States constitution, the Nebraska supreme court has decided.

Ray Carson and Thomas Nelson appealed such a sentence, given by County Judge Chatt in Burt county for violation of the liquor law. A habeas corpus action freed the men while the supreme court considered their appeal. They must serve sentences.

MORGAN CITY, La., June 9.—(AP)—Crawfish moving across the highway in such numbers that automobile traffic is interferred with, were reported today by person arriving from Burwick on the banks of the Atchafalaya river. The situation was partially relieved, it was said, by motorists scooping up scores of the crawfish for conversion into creole bisque.

Lutherans Warned Not to Interfere With Volstead Law

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—(AP)—Urging no compromise with the liquor traffic, Dr. G. A. Brandelle, Rock Island, Ill., president of the Lutheran Augustana synod, presented a report to the sixty-seventh annual synod convention today, calling on the Christian forces of the country to "stand by the laws of the land." Dr. Brandelle said he was unalterably opposed to modification of the prohibition laws.

He said that there was "still some drunkenness" in the country, but added that there were a great many persons who were "exceedingly anxious to increase it."

Disastrous Ride Fails to Win Him Large Damage

SAN ANTONIO, June 9.—(AP)—Though his wild ride on a dilapidated engine of the Southern Pacific railroad caused R. B. Ford "severe and permanent injuries to his back, head, spinal column, spinal cord and limbs; entire nervous system shocked, sustaining injury and impairments to plaintiff's eyes, ears, kidneys, bladder and heart and the use of both arms and legs," on October 21, 1922, he will not receive the money for which he sued the National Insurance company.

Since the insurance policy stated that the person suffering the accident should be "immediately, wholely and continuously" disabled and that after making several riades, Federal Judge Duval West instructed the jury to find a favorable verdict for the defendant in federal district court.

For the disastrous ride in engine No. 822 he was suing the insurance company for the total of $5,958.34 plus 6 per cent interest and $3000 attorney's fees.

"Love Me Less or Love Me More"

Certain it is that today we are out of favor with Europe—and no dislike is so difficult to cure as an unreasonable and unreasoning one. What can one say to a lady who merely reiterates, "I no longer love you"?

Patience—and good will, and good sense are the only weapons that can serve us. And how skillfully President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg are employing them is outlined in Richard Washburn Child's salient article, "Patience Our Policy," in The Saturday Evening Post, now on sale, five cents.

PASSING OF TOM TAGGART

FOR many years Colonel Tom Taggart, has been the leader or the boss of the Indiana democracy. For many years he sat in with Roger B. Sullivan of Illinois and Charles Francis Murphy of New York. They were together at Baltimore when Woodrow Wilson was nominated for the presidency. Roger Sullvan nominated Wilson when he threw the vote of Illinois to the man who became the president.

Sullivan is dead. Charles Francis Murph is dead. Woodrow Wilson is dead. William Jennings Bryan is dead.

Col. Taggart isn't dead, but the Hoosier democrats who are on the inside say that Taggart is dead politically as for the first time in 30 years he lost control of a state convention the other day, and young men were responsible for his political dethronement or defacement.

It came after a deadlock on the senatorial nomination when Albert Stump of Indianapolis was selected for the six-year term. Stump is a World war veteran, never held public office, is a gifted orator, a graduate of Indiana university and the University of Chicago law school and as a school teacher, and as school and as a school teacher earned enough money to pay for his education. He serve dwith gallentry in the World war and where he won the rank of captain.

Colonel Taggart and his lieutenants had planned the nomination of John E. Frederick and were jockeying for the nomination of Frederick on the fifth ballot. Before the fourth ballot was taken the ambitious young leaders of the party got in behind the World war hero and orator and won the nomination for him.

Then these young leaders had a hand in the making of the platform, a document of less than three thousand words, which asks enactment by the federal government of appropriate legislation to place the farmer on the economic parity with other industries; sought repeal of the state-wide feature of the primary law; expressed belief of the democratic party in freedom of religious worship; re-affirmed the policy of tariff for revenue only and deplored unlawful searches and seizures in violation of the federal and the state constitution.

Colonel Taggart was in evedence in 1920 at the San Francisco convention when James M. Cox won the nomination. He was in evidence at the Madison Square Garden convention and there he played fast and loose with George Brennan of Illinois, Frank Hague of New Jersey and the spokesman of the New York democracy. He was emplored to furnish a few votes to bring about the adoption of the minority plank proposed dealing with religious intolerance and those who championed it.

He sidestepped for the first time in his political history and veteran politicians predicted at the time that his leadership was over. Now it has come to pass. He has been side-tracked by the young warriors of democracy in the Hoosier state. They named their candidate for senator. They drafted their platform of principles. They placed a gallant soldier in the field against James E. Watson, the republican boss who is an excellent type of the stand-pat politician who serves all the interests, is as unstable as the wind and has never met with a waterloo in his life.

If the voters of Indiana dearly love the heroes of the world war, they have a splendid opportunity to show it at the polls when election time comes. There will be many new faces in the democratic national convention picture gallery in 1928. Taggert is among the last of the old guard. His political machine has broken down. His history has been written. His political glory has departed. New leaders and perhaps new issues on the national stage are visible to the naked eye of a close observer.

DOWN IN THE MAGIC VALLEY

A TOTAL of 496 cars of miscellaneous vegetables were shipped by express from various points in the lower Rio Grande Valley from November 1 to May 1, 1926. This is an increase of 94 cars over the same period a year ago.

Not many years ago the stage coach and the buckboard were the vehicles of transportation in the Magic Valley.. Now the water of the Rio Grande river is used for irrigation purposes. Now the citrus industry is everywhere in evidence. Now the growers of vegetables are increasing in number daily and in wealth as well.

There is a new civilization in the making in Texas. Why should damagogues rule the commonwealth or mossbacks block its progress?

END OF A PERFECT DAY

AND now Harry K. Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit are to remarry and live happy and after. Evelyn Thaw wa ha beautiful model, a mere child when Harry Thaw crossed her path. She had fallen by the wayside and the most famous architect in America, who had a wife all his own at the time, was responsible for the downfall of the beautiful artist's model.

Thaw, a rich young wastrel, met the girl and married her. What happened is ancient history. This famous architect boasted of his conquest and persued the artist's model who had become the wife of a millionaire. He not only boasted of his conquest but determined to bring about a separation of the couple.

Harry K. Thaw shot and killed him. It was an international sensation for the architect was as widely known in Europe as in America. He was rich and popular and his influence had been widespread. He was a man of the world, an intellectual of the highest type and his artistic achivements had won him a high place on two continents.

There were a number of trials, insanity was the defense, and Martin W. Littleton finally saved Thaw from the gallows and had him committed to an asylum for the incorrigible insane. Thus it was that the son of a Pittsburgh millionaire, whose sister had married a British lord, found himself incorrisated behind the bars of a sanitarium where mad lunitics are the inimates. This was years ago.

Evelyn Thaw had a rocky road to travel just as she had a rocky road to travel in her girlhood and wifehood, and when the man who had offered her his protection escaped the gallows only to be remanded to an asylum. She drifted from place to place, a dancer and a vaudeville artist, fighting for means to provide for roof and shelter and food, and to educate her boy. He is a handsome youngster of 15.

Thaw won his release from the asylum. He won control of his own fortune. He buried himself in the valley of the Shenandoah, in old Virginia. Less than a year ago Evelyn swallowed poison. Physicians saved her life. Thaw at intervals visited New York and made the rounds of the great white way. Now after all the tragedies in the life of the beautiful artist's model as well as in the life of the Pittsburgh millionaire, they have agreed to trot in single harness and await the revolution of the wheel of fortune as it goes round and round.

First it was the Stillmans, after allegations and a court record that was a stench in the nostrils of decent people. Now it is the Thaws and those who know the history of the woman from childhood to the present, should be willing to agree or rather to admit that she has been more sinned against than sinning.

As for Martin W. Littleton, the Texas lawyer, who saved the neck of Thaw from the hangman's noose, he became the leader of the New York bar and is a power in democratic politics until he attempted to throttle the Tammany Tiger. This was his finish in politics.

MONEY FOR THE DEMOCRATS

JESSE H. JONES is a Texan. In 1924 he was made director of finance of the democratic national committee. It was a tough job for a Texas democrat or any other kind of a democrat. After the slaughter of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, there was a campaign deficit of $350,000.

Jesse H. Jones did not welch. He did not resign. In 1925 he raised $100,000 and applied it on the deficit. In 1922, just the other day to be exact, he sent another $100,000 to James W. Gerard, treasurer of the national committee. This has reduced the deficit to $150,000 and Director Jones is confident that it will be wiped out long before the campaign of 1928.

According to press reports, the director is hopeful, too. And looks for democratic success in the national campaign to come. He predicts that the democrats of all the states will get together, that they will forget the prejudices of the past, that they will avoid issues which are not issues and unite upon standard bearers.

This cannot be done by discarding the two-thirds nominating rule unless the unit rule is as obnoxious and as undemocratic as the two-thirds rule. It should be made impossible for the political boss or political bosses of a state to impose the unit rule upon the delegates to a national convention.

If the democrats are for local self-government and the rule of the people, then they must discard both rules. If they are for the slaughter house every four years, then they should cling to these barbarisms of a dead age and a dead civilization.

Aunt Eppie Hogg, The Fattest Woman In 3 Counties

The Drum ---By Britten Austin

Without taking his eyes from his adversary, he felt with his left hand inside his shirt, extracted a small photograph from some inner pocket. Then, suddenly reckless he ignored his peril, gazed at it.

"God bless her!" he murmured, and kissed it.

"Drop that!" The doctor's voice was harsh.

Bull flung the photograph on the table.

"I give you the same privilege," he said. "You loved her too. Twenty seconds."

The doctor looked at it, made as if to touch it, drew his hand back.

"I don't kiss that photograph," he said, with a catch in his throat.

Bull shrugged his shoulders.

"Ten seconds."

The doctor took his gaze from the photograph.

"Ten seconds it is." He levelled his revolver again. Outside, the sentry challenged once more, unheard by either. They sat in silence filled only by that infernal reverberating tattoo. "By God," he ejaculated in exasperation, "that drum will drive me mad!"

Bull flung his revolver with a crash upon the table.

"It's driven us both mad!" he exclaimed. "Raving mad!"

The doctor indicated the abandoned weapon with the muzzle of his own.

"Two seconds to pick it up," he said sternly. "It may as well be both of us."

"No," cried Bull, jumping up from his seat as though to fling off a spell. "Do you realise what we're doing, Steevens? We're throwing away the post!"

The doctor looked at him, lowered his revolver reluctantly.

"My God!" he said, appalled by this larger issue he had forgotten.

Bull smiled grimly at him.

"Steevens," he said, "I'd die happy if I had put a bullet through you—but if you go, if either of us go, I wouldn't give tuppence for the chance of this post. We can't do it."

The doctor continued to stare at him. The drum throbbed madly.

"And I've waited six years—six years of hell—for this minute," he said.

Bull shrugged his shoulders.

"There's time enough," he replied. "That charming Juju-man spoke the truth. There's a dead woman between you and me. When we're relieved we'll settle our account."

"You mean," said Steevens, with bitter incredulity, "that you and I are to sit here side by side for a week—and keep our hands off each other?"

The grim smile came again on Bull's hard face.

"Just that," he agreed. "It's what the newspaper johnnies call shouldering the white man's burden."

The doctor jumped up.

"No!" he cried. "I'm not going to be tricked like this! One of us might be killed. I haven't waited six years for this minute to be balked now! You have still your two seconds to pick up your gun—or die like a coward!"

Bull looked at him coldly. With an effort only observable from a tightening of his lips, he cleared his senses from the confusion of that incessantly throbbing drum, fought back, just in time, a demon that leaped in him to run amuk. It was not good to call Bull a coward.

"Very well, then, doctor. Just go outside and shoot or poison your patients first. They can't fight for their lives, and it's torture for them in the morning when the post falls. We'll quit our job as decently as we can."

The doctor wavered.

"Bull," he said, "that's fiendish of you."

"Not at all," was the grim reply. "I'm saving what I can of your professional honor. Run along and kill your patients. I'm ready for you when you're done it."

The doctor sank down into his camp-chair, hid his face in his hands.

"You know I can't," he said, miserably.

Bull shrugged his shoulders.

"There you are!" he commented. "We happen to be white men."

Steevens looked up with a haggard face.

"We'll stick to it," he said, "until we're relieved. And then God help you!"

At that instant, with a slight slip of pierced canvas, a spear came hurtling through the tent, stuck quivering in the table. It was the attack.

The next half-hour was a wild chaos of surging tumult, of incessant detonations, of screams and wails in barbaric triumph or death-agony, a phantasmagoria of sudden perils where black men fought like demons in the light of blazing thatch. Twice Bull saved the doctor from a deadly spear-thrust by a timely shot. In an exultant release of all his faculties, he was everywhere at the point of most pressing danger, dominating the conflict, rallying his men, half-overwhelmed in the first rush, to a steady regularly-volleying discipline that beat back the enemy yard by yard. At last, by a superhuman effort where he killed hand to hand to protect the team hastily setting up the tripod, dragging out the ammunition-belts from the boxes, he got a machine-gun on to the flank of the mob of frantic savages who had killed the sentries and swarmed into the stockade.

That machine-gun settled the business. Ruthlessly served, it rattled out annihilation. A minute or two if it—and the remnant scrambled over the stockade and fled.

Bull re-established his guards, repaired his defenses, counted his casualties, and cleared the ground from the corpses that encumbered it. His men grinned happily as they showed him another fantastically-bedizened Jujuman among the slain.

These things took him some time. When he returned to the tent he found Steevens there before him, helping himself to a drink with hands still blood-smeared from his surgery. The doctor looked up as he entered, drew himself erect, took a step towards him, probing him with deep-set eyes.

"You saved my life," he said.

Bull smiled queerly.

"What did you expect?"

The doctor turned and poured from the whiskey-bottle into the other mug.

"Have a drink?" he offered curtly.

Bull reached for the mug, hesitated.

"It's unusual, isn't it?" he said, "in the circumstances."

The doctor looked at him.

"Have you got that photograph?"

Bull felt for it, produced it. Steevens took it, tore it up into small fragments.

Bull uttered an angry exclamation. The doctor held out his hand.

"I've torn up—" he checked for a word—"the circumstances. Will you drink?"

Bull gripped the outstretched hand. "Proud to," he said, simply.

With that assumption of nonchalance over deeper feelings typical of their breed, the two men raised their mugs silently to each other.

They listened to the challenge of visiting rounds. The last one ceased. Both were suddenly conscious of the silence.

"Thank God," said Bull, "that confounded drum has stopped!"

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

A Courageous Woman's Letter to Her Weaker Sisters Who Contemplate Divorce—Disgusted Miss Seventeen Whose Girl Friends Run After Her Brothers—Is a Girl Privileged to Misrepresent Her Age?

Dear Dorothy Dix—I had just and sufficient reason for divorcing my husband and I decided to do so. Then I considered my children. And I thought: They are not to blame because their parents' lives have not turned out all roses and sunshine. If I give up the fight and weakly flop into doing the easiest thing, how can I instill grit into them?

We can talk all we please about having our own lives to live. Our lives are irrevocably bound to other lives, and our business in life is to build up, not to tear down. By pulling away, freeing ourselves from an irksome condition, we are weakening our moral fiber. Because some one else does not live up to the letter of the contract does not make it right for us to fail.

But besides all that, we lose the faith of our children. To a child the father and mother are heroes. Haven't we heard them say, "My father can lick your father," "My mother is prettier than your mother. My mother knows everything?"

And isn't that pride, that trust, worth keeping? Our children are solely in our keeping for such a few years; why should we not make the supreme effort to make that time worth while?

And how can I teach my children to be good, strong men and women if I have not had the courage to endure? When the day comes, for them to exert all of their will and strength to straighten out the tangled web of their own lives how can I help them if I have set them the example of running away from trouble?

So I have reconsidered my steps about divorcing my husband. My life does not matter nearly so much as my children's lives. I do not want them to ever look back and know that I did not play the game. Life is difficult for the young now, when there are so many things to sweep youth off its feet. They need something and some one to anchor to.

And they cannot honor their parents if we are not loyal to a trust. They cannot think us wise unless we display wisdom ourselves. They cannot be truthful unless we are true. And so I shall carry on to the end for my children's sake.—CONSTANT READER.

Answer: This letter sets forth in more poignant terms than I can the one great argument against divorce. The children—the poor, little, helpless victims of every divorce.

The injury done them is not alone that they are half-orphaned and deprived of either a father's or a mother's care and guidance, and of the home atmosphere in which alone a child can properly develop. But it is the injury done to the child in the shattering of its ideals of its parents. It is the pulling down of its gods.

For how can you teach your children to fight if you have run up the white flag yourself? How can you teach them strength when you are weak? How can you teach them endurance when you have turned quitter? Of what avail are all your teachings when your example gives them the lie?

I commend this letter of a strong and noble woman to all the weak sisterhood who are trying to avoid the results of their mistakes in marriage by sneaking out of their obligations through the back door of divorce.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

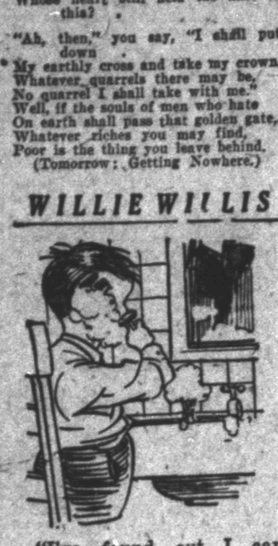

A QUARREL.

A quarrel is the saddest load
We try to carry on life's road.
God knows we have enough of care,
Of loss to feel, of grief to bear,
And yet upon our hearts of yesterday.
When each tomorrow we might start
With rested soul and lighter heart.

And then that last, last day of all,
When Summer ends, when shadows fall,
And heaven opens—what shall men
Do with the needless burden then?
For woh would care from life to take
To some new life some cold heartache,
And who would find a world of bliss
Whose heart still held the hate of this?

"Ah, then," you say, "I shall put down
My earthly cross and take my crown.
Whatever quarrels there may be,
No quarrel I shall take with me."
Well, if the souls of men who hate
On earth shall pass that golden gate,
Whatever riches you may find,
Poor is the thing you leave behind.
(Tomorrow: Getting Nowhere.)

"I've found out I can shave just as good with a safety razor as anybody if I had anything to shave."

What Do You Know About It?

1. Are orchids parasites?
2. What is a common decorative plant used at Christmas that is parasitic?
3. What is a dodder?
4. Are all bacteria parasitic?
5. What is a parasite?
6. What is a saprophyte?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

Artificial Fertilization of Orchids.

Orchids have generally an elaborate mechanism for fertilization. Their flowers are so constructed that they are adapted to fit the bodies of certain classes of insects that visit them, and in one way or another pollen is shed on the insect and carried to another orchid. As he enters the flower the pollen is scraped off on the stima and so fertilization takes place. But Darwin found that by merely touching the top of the stima the ovules would set seed just as well as if pollen had alighted on them. Modern research has discovered the fact that different classes of orchids may be artificially cross-fertilized, three or four different kinds going to form a hybrid. In this way have been developed the florists' orchids which have larger flowers in some cases, with stranger colors, than any found in nature.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. The principle of dry farming is frequent cultivating and harrowing, to keep the surface soil from packing and thus keeping the soil water from seeping to the surface and evaporating.
2. A silo is a container for keeping fodder in a beneficial state of fermentation.
3. Whole wheat is wheat containing the husks as well as the starchy kernels.
4. Durum wheat is used for macaroni.
5. Sorghum is a grass from which syrup sugar is obtained.
6. South Carlonia, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and California raise rice.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

The planetary aspects are exceedingly good throughout the entire day and it is very auspicious opportunity for the carrying out of changes, for the advancement of plans or for the accomplishment of useful work. No special sphere of endeavor is more benefitted than another, but success is assured for everything that savors of conservative thought and action. The reaction on the motions will be favorable, and the indications point to happiness for all marriages solemnized today. All such marriages will give the lie to Bacon who churlishly wrote that "He that hath a wife and children hath given hostages to fortune: for they are impedients to great enterprises, either of virtue or mischief."

Children born today are destined, according to the signs, to suffer from many minor ailments, as well as one or two serious ones, during their infancy. Much of the danger inherent to these illnesses can be eliminated by an abundance of outdoor air, and well regulated alimentation. They promise to outgrow all their early weaknesses, and attain, long before adulthood, physical normalcy. They will have pleasing mannerisms, but weak characters. They will be easily swayed by others—either for good or for evil. More than usual care should be taken to surround them at all times with a good environment, as they will be very impressionable, and susceptible, more to example, than to precept.

If today is your birthday, you have a very affectionate nature, which sad to relate, is marred by fits of jealousy. This, of course, entails endless worry and provokes a morbit condition of mind incompatible with either happiness or success. It would be wise to remember that "ealousy is said to be the offspring of love. Yet, unless the parent makes haste to strangle the child, the child will not rest till it has poisoned the parent." Apart from your jealous fits and these, if not curbed, increase in frequency, you are even-tempered, complaisant and unselfish. You possess a high degree of intelligence and have only a worthy purpose. It is most unfortunate that your aim is so often deflected by thoughts unworthy of you, and which are, in all probability, not deserved by the victim of your emotions.

You're a great lover of nature and are always happier, and saner, when engaged in outdoor work than when confined to toil of a sedentary character.

JONES DOES A LITTLE SHOPPING FOR HIS WIFE.
(Observed by Nan Freigau.)

Jones—Yes, I told the little woman I'd do her shopping for her today. Women are cleverer, but they lack men's sense and judgment. You say these socks are 27 cents a pair? Are they silk? Well, give me five pairs. She rolls 'em, so it won't matter about the length.

Salesman—What size?

Jones—Well, I wear 11's—better make 'em about a half size larger, I guess. She's got a corn. Let's see—she wants some underwear, and some of those silk vest things—chest sizer—I've forgotten. Well, make them forty eights, and if they're too small I'll bring them back. Lucille's a very small woman.

Salesman—Anything else, sir?

Jones—Have you any—(whispers).

Salesman—How do these look to you sir?

Jones—Don't—er—hold them up like that. I'll come around back of the counter and look at them. H'm, where is—Oh, that's right! They're not supposed to have belt loops, are they? No pockets? Well, I guess that's all right. What size? Don't get smart! That's none of your business. Tie 'em up and use heavy string. I've got to take them home on the street car and I don't want 'em to come unwrapped! (Mops face with handkerchief). Whew! That's over!

Road Association Resumes Meetings

FORT WORTH, June 9.—(AP)—Resumption of annual meetings of the Texas highway association with a convention to be held at the Galvez hotel, Galveston July 5-6, was announced here today by President W. E. Lea of Orange, through William T. Wheeler, secretary-treasurer. Official notice of the meeting is being mailed to the association's 7,000 members, representing more than 300 affiliated cities and towns.

In speaking of the platform and purposes of the association, Mr. Lea called attention to the fact that the association has never allowed politics to enter into its activities and that it never has been instrumental, directly or indirectly, in the designation of any roads, the material used, or the contracts for construction or maintenance of any highways.

The Texas Highway association was organized in 1922, the president's letter recalls, for the sole purpose of studying all highway laws of the several states and the federal highway act with a view of providing Texas with funds and authority to connect up and maintain all designated state highways.

Davidson Stealing Her 'Stuff' Woman Candidate Asserts

DALLAS, June 9.—(AP)—Men candidates for governor are stealing the women's thunder, Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas, candidate for governor declared here today in a speech before Dallas county women who are supporting her.

She charged that her platform plank advocating primary election reform had been appropriated by Lynch Davidson.

Mrs. Wilmans said that she sent her platform out as early as August 1925 and that among those replying was T. Whit Davidson of Marshall, former lieutenant governor, who commended her primary stands in a letter, she said. "Now despite this letter," said Mrs. Wilmans, "Mr. T. Whit Davidson in introducing Lynch Davidson at Marshall June 5, gave the Houston candidate credit for being the first to come out squarely for primary reform."

Mrs. Wilmans said several of the candidates were using her planks and to this extent had endorsed her stand.

MARLIN, Texas, June 9.—(AP)—Lynch Davidson told a Marlin audience today that he is "determined to give Texas such an administration as will bring capital back to Texas in the great amount needed for the unprecedented business expansion that we confidently expect." He said that two things have brought Texas to national attention recently, good business and bad government. "Before we can feel the full benefit of the business expansion that is slated for this section, we must restore confidence in our state administration; not only for amensity but also to efficiency," he said, but he vigorously asserted that it is "monopolistic propaganda" to advocate surrender of our natural resources entirely to the hands of the Standard Oil company."

Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. Water Pollution By Oil Is Object Of World Parley

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—Delegates from 12 maritime nations assembled by invitation of President Coolidge to work out international prohibition agreements against oil pollution of navigable waters, were welcomed today at the initial conference by Under Secretary Grew of the state department.

"Your presence here," Mr. Grew said, "evidences the interest of the governments which you represent in working out practicable means for preventing pollution of navigable waters by oil discharged from vessels. The resulting evils are widespread and serious. Beaches and harbors are polluted; healthful water and shore recreation is discouraged; fire hazard is increased and fishing and wild life injured or even threated with destruction.

"Nearly all maritime nations have adopted laws or regulations to control oil pollution. While these national laws and regulations are helpful, the problem is one which can not satisfactorily be dealt with by national law alone. Oil or oily mixture discharged on the high seas may be carried to and pollute territorial waters and shores. Moreover it is obviously desirable that any laws or regulations enforced by maritime nations be uniform so far as practicable. An adequate solution therefore must be not only national, but international in scope.

"The summoning of this conference bears witness to the earnest desire of the government of the United States that a basis be found on which maritime nations may agree to control oil pollution. In your endeavors to that end you may be assured of the fullest interest and co-operation on the part of the government of the United States."

The grand jury in questioning prisoners and others relative to conditions at the farm indicated that they did not intend to stop short of a thorough investigation. They also indicated that they are not stopping at the death of Ziegler but are going back some months past in their inquiry.

Coolidge Overrides Senators' Protest

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—Over the protest of both Georgia senators, President Coolidge today nominated William J. Tilson of Atlanta, a brother of the republican leader of the house, to be a federal judge in the newly created middle district of Georgia.

In anticipation of the president's action a genuine fight against confirmation has been promised by southern members of the senate, which must approve the nomination before Mr. Tilson can take office.

Representative Tilson is from Connecticut and Georgia members of congress have charged that the selection was an attempt from New England to meddle in southern patronage.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 89

A Child's Laxative which Mothers Can Rely On

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he constantly advised mothers to give only a harmless laxative which would help to establish natural bowel "regularity."

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin mothers have a regulative laxative which they can depend upon whenever a child is constipated, bilious, feverish or sick from a cold, indigestion or sour stomach. All children love its pleasant taste.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself how perfectly it cleanses and regulates the bowels of infants and children.

HOW A BARGAIN WAS DRIVEN

In the old days a newspaper writer in Chicago fell heir to a pass good for four on the opening day at one of the race tracks. He invited three friends to accompany him. They made the trip in a decrepit automobile of ancient vintage which the journalist had acquired a few days earlier in part payment of a debt.

At the gate a ticket taker examined their credentials and permitted the party to drive in. They were just inside the fence when the attendant remembered he had forgotten to collect for parking space.

"Hey! Wait a minute!" he called, and our hero halted the machine.

"It's one dollar for the car," said the man.

"How's that?" inquired the driver.

"One dollar for the car."

"Gimme the dollar," said the journalist, "the car is yours!"

EASTLAND BUYS LAKE

City Purchases Reservoir Put in By Oil Companies

EASTLAND, June 9.—(AP)—Purchase of the Eastland lake by the Eastland city commission for $225,000 was confirmed here Tuesday night.

The lake was built by private speculators during the oil boom at a cost said to be much beyond what the city paid.

With present contracts from major oil companies for water from the lake, the investment is expected to pay itself out in 13 years, while allowing all the needs of the city as other profits.

Sentiment Shifts Toward Berlenbach On Eve of Title Match

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Crost.

MR ROBERTS, HIS UMPS AND OFFICIAL SCORERS

Speaking of Texas league arbiters, which if we weren't we should have been, the postman has just brought us a message from the sanctum of none other than J. Doak Roberts touching on the subject more or less. The epistle follows:

"Mr. Blondy Cross,
"Wichita Falls, Texas.
"Dear Sir:

"You will find enclosed check No. 2843 etc., etc., covering your scoring for the month of May, etc., etc. * * *

"I am going to take this opportunity of advising you that some of your recent articles published in your paper in regard to the umpires who represent the Texas league, whether calculated by you to make trouble for this office and the Wichita Falls club, I do not know, but it is surely having that effect. These articles of yours are uncalled for and are unjust to the umpires of the Texas league.

"Every man on my staff is a high-class, clean-living man, and was selected by me for his ability to fill the most difficult position in baseball. Their lives are hard enough at best. It is very seldom that they receive any praise or a kind word.

"You have made conditions at Wichita Falls so that not an umpire on my staff desires an assignment to work in your city.

"As you are an official scorer of the Texas league, I am greatly surprised at your attitude toward the umpires, and any more of this kind of trouble making from your pen, your resignation will be asked for as official scorer of the Texas league. And further, President Gardner of your club will be held responsible by this office for any more trouble made by you.

Yours truly,
"J. DOAK ROBERTS,
"President.

"P. S. I fully intended to ask for your resignation, and doubtless would have done so if President Gardner and Manager Brainard had not interceded in your behalf. I went over the situation with them last night and fully convinced them of the serious situation that you are responsible for. They promised to take this matter up with you to the end that your comparisons will be discontinued. They do not think that you, when you wrote your opinion of the umpires' staff, realized the possible result of injury to the Wichita Falls club. And after talking to them I am of the same opinion. If you will go over this matter with them I think that you will realize that you have made a serious mistake."

NAUGHTY! NAUGHTY!

That, figuratively, is quite a cruel slap right between the eyes, coming from such a great and, no doubt, liberal minded person as the Texas league's chief executive surely must be. This writer has been allowed the privilege, if such it could be termed, of scoring a number of Texas league games in an official capacity. But in the contract, if any, whereby the writer was extended this privilege, if any there are no clauses to effect this writer in particular must report Texas league games and events related to such as the Texas league president would have it done. In other words, the sports editor of The Record News writes for The Record News and not J. Doak Roberts.

ALL WRONG, DOAK

Doak is "surprised" that a Texas league official scorer would display such an attitude" toward the league's umpires. That has nothing to do with the situation, if there is a situation. The "attitude," if any, surely would be the same whether the writer happens to be an "official scorer" or just a scorer. Certainly Mr. Roberts does not imagine for a moment the meager remuneration extended Texas sports writers in payment for statistical work daily done is to have any bearing on these sports writers' operation in the capacity of newspaper reporters???

* * *

The scoring officially of Texas league games is an item done for and paid for by the league. The reporting of Texas league games and the carrying of other comments thereof in these columns are done for the Record News and its readers, and are paid for by The Record News and its readers, not J. Doak Roberts and the Texas league.

* * *

Incidently, did the writer score Texas league games as inefficiently as some men we have in mind umpire these same games, the writer's "resignation" would would have been copped off long ago.

* * *

THAT'S NICE

"You have made conditions at Wichita Falls so that not an umpire on my staff desires an assignment to work in your city," says Doak. That's great news. Now, if Doak would only quit sending 'em up here.

* * *

But seriously, we believe Mr Roberts has exaggerated the "conditions" just a wee bit. If appearances don't belie, there's none of the present crop of Texas arbiters who has any qualms about where he performs. And, surely, Henry Fanning and Pat Donohue, the best pair of umps in the league, don't care either way unless it be Wichita Falls as a city merely doesn't appeal to them. Of course, it can't be correct.

* * *

Anent Mr. Roberts' remark that every man on his staff is a high class, clean living man. No disparagement of any umpire's character has been carried in these columns.

* * *

ONE FOR THE BOOK

Doak displays a rather unusual idea as to the connections of a sports writer with a club owner when he writes, "President Gardner of your club will be held responsible by this office for any more trouble made by you!" That's a new one. Gardner does not dictate to this sports writer, nor any other. Nor does Gardner control the policies of The Record News and its sports pages.

* * *

Jabez Alvin apparently has more than enough troubles of his own these days. Doak makes it another tough break.

* * *

And after all, Mr. Roberts seemingly has become very excited over very little. What does it matter, albeit quite truthful ones, a few cracks taken occasionally at the astigmatized boys? We all get our bumps, and if we can't stand the gaff we can get out, can't we?

* * *

Whenever an umpire deserves praise this writer gives it to him. We all make mistakes, the writer perhaps, many of them, but possibly not as many as several umphs we have in mind.

* * *

The umpire has the most difficult job in baseball. It is presumed he realizes this before taking the position. Need anything else be said?

Startling Piece Of Fielding In Ninth By Windle Robs Spuds Of Win Over Cats

Domestics Forge Ahead In Sixth and Seventh, But Panthers Come Back In Eighth

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Wayne Windle, the shortstopper who boots 'em all over the lot except when playing against Wichita Falls, beat the Spudders yesterday on the home diamond with a spectacular meat hand stab of Turgeon's hair-raising bounder between short and third in the ninth round. Jim Roberts was on second base. There was one away. Turgeon biffed Jimmy Walkup for a drive past the short field that 99 times out of 100 is a base hit in any man's ball game. But Windle dived over, speared the hopping sphere with his bare hand and although almost standing on his head, heaved to Ezzell in time to catch Roberts on the slide. The Spudder hit the ground hard, collided with Ezzell and the two rolled over twice like wrestlers in the throes of a heated mat battle, but the Cat retained his clutch on the pill and Jim was called out.

Fort Worth won the game, 8 to 7. That startling play by Windle and Ezzell, backed by an eighth-inning rally that overtook a two-run lead, scoring three, netted the rejuvenated Feltne crew a victory.

Joe Kiefer, the Harlem pitching wonder, was just a bit off color. Harlem Joe hurled comparatively effective ball through seven stanzas although an error by the crippled Mule Washburn, a bit of wildness plus several solid and not near-solid punches scored four runs. Eddie Moore opened the eighth by combing a double from Joe's delivery. A drive to right center that Metzler snared after a stiff gallop sent Eddie to third. Sears poked a double to right center, scoring Moore. Then Jim Roberts was rushed to the knob but Koney doubled, Lindemore singled and Calvo hoisted a sacrifice fly to center, accounting for two runs.

The Spudders pecked Ralph Head, the right-hander from the box in the seventh, but were silenced by Walkup after threatening seriously in both the eighth and ninth.

Those Breaks

The game was just another one of those things, an orgy of the tough breaks that have beset the Spudders practically all season. Washburn endeavored to play ball with a badly injured hand. The big fellow is just recuperating from rib injuries received while on the road week before last. Keifer fouled a ball that knocked the nail off the big toe of his left foot, could hardly walk thereafter and was in pain throughout, nonetheless continued to flog 'em in there until taken out in the seventh. And in the last analysis, had hop bounders that went for base hits, two of them for two bases slithered in at timely moments for the Cats. The Spudders couldn't get any breaks like that. Distel poked one to left field that would have gone for two bases had it not fallen foul by an inch or so. At that, the ball looked suspiciously like it had stirred up a bit of the lime when it hit the turf, but the umps ruled it a foul, so such it must have been. This break came at a pinch stage.

Pete Homers

Matters were complicated in the opening round when Wash dropped DeFate's fling on Eddie Moore's bounder. Ezzell advanced the runner with a sacrifice tap, but Joe lost control and walked the next two batters. Lindemore fouled out to Lapan, then Calvo coaxed a pass forcing Moore. Home. Windle floosed out to Turgeon. The run was recovered in the same stanza when Turgeon lined Head's initial offering to him whistling over the left field fence.

The second inning was slick, snappy and scoreless, but the Cats manipulated a marker in the third, Calvo whipping a double to center that scored Sears. The latter had been issued a four-ball coupon. There were two away when the Cuban stepped in with the unkind sock. Windle outfooted a bounder to second, but was forced by Smith. A two-base bad hop roller to short put Koney on second in the fifth and a shot to center by Windle sent the big fellow home.

Coming up in the latter half of the fifth two runs in arrears, the Spudders charged Head with sufficient gusto to balance accounts. A walk to Metzler and a one-base rift to the mid sector by DeFate sent Alex on a nimble canter to third Lapan swished a flopping roller into a double play, but Metzler checked in. Then Kiefer himself doubled to left center and scored on a two-bagger to port driven by Lamb. Turgeon retired with an aviation to Moore.

4 Homers in Sixth

Somebody must have rubbed four bats with a stick of dynamite between innings, for a quartet of baseballs thundered out of the park in the sixth. Home runs sprang from the bludgeons of Ezzell, Head, Jenkins and Metzler, and five runners crossed the dish. Metzler's four-bagger, a tornadic thump high over the left center palings found Distel on first by virtue of a walk. The other clouts were lambasted over empty hassocks. All four smashes went to the left.

The Cats menaced in the seventh with a lead-off single by Lindemore, but tight pitching and fielding held 'em away, whereas the domestics routed Head and punched over another run, making it 7-6. Wichita Falls. Lamb opened with a single and legged it to third while Turge was beating out a bunt. Jimmy Walkup appeared and southpawed Jenkins into forcing Pete at second. Lamb scored on the play. Distel filed to Moore and Brainard forced Jenkins.

Mother Love At Its Best in New Olympic Picture

A woman's most despised enemy re-enters her life, after thirty years, as her daughter's suitor. Can you imagine the dramatic intensity of such a situation as that? That's but one of a number of highly gripping episodes in "Time, the Comedian," Robert Z. Leonard's production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer which starts today at the Olympic theater.

"Time, the Comedian" is possibly one of the most powerful society dramas ever depicted on the silver sheet. Moreover in its development is showing the evolution of woman's and men's clothes as well as the transition between modern and early twentieth century conditions.

The plot is a satire on life It centers around an unhappy small town wife. A visit to the city leads to an affair with a worldly friend of her husband, the consequent suicide of her spouse, and the flight of the philanderer after settling an annuity on her head in reparation for tragic outcome of his attentions.

Time has but seemingly little effect on the beauty of the woman, for 20 years later she is as attractive as ever and equally as charming in the eyes of the stronger sex. Her daughter now grown up into young womanhood had been receiving with favor the attentions of a young painter, when the blighter of her mother's home comes into her life. She falls desperately in love with him. Alarmed, the mother sums up courage to expose the leech of happiness, telling the girl that it is through his charity that they are able to enjoy the luxuries that surround them. How the mother gives up the allowance, the daughter the man, and the mother realizes that she is, after all, old, brings the story to a dramtic close.

Vaudeville Bill Of Value on At Olympic Theatre

The Olympic vaudeville program for the remainder of the week through Saturday together with the motion picture "Time, the Comedian," starring Lew Cody and Mae Busch, offers a splendid arrangement of numbers for snappy entertainment.

Johnny Wise and Company present a novelty musical and dancing oddity act that holds the admiration of the audience unbroken.

Al and Jerry Kimble in "Nonsensical Nonsense," are a clever comedy couple of big time timber. They have the knack of delivering their songs and stories in an inimitable manner that causes much laughter and enjoyment.

Wellbaum and Cruze are the "Elite Entertainers" of the bill and live up to the title of the act with a display of pep and art unusual for a couple of their style. They have musical comedy and radio reputation that needs no recommendation. They have broadcasted in a recent engagement from station WFAA.

Kimball brothers are harmony singing comedians who sing with voices that blend perfectly. They have a well selected repertoire of songs that appeal to all classes. Mr. Jules Kimball has a robust lyric tenor voice of a large range and quality. It is an act that will always register and is constructed so that laugh follows laugh. As an amusing and entertaining number, it will always be in front if applause is a criterion.

Dura Cross and Renee in "Sensational Novelty Oddity," have unusual degree of amusement.

Marriage Trouble Basis of Picture Showing at Mission

Severing the chafing chains of matrimony with one bold stroke of his dramatic sledge-hammer, C. Gardner Sullivan steps defiantly forth in "If Marriage Fails" and crucifies upon the altar of decency the theory that the bonds of matrimony are forged of deathless steel. Not for this pioneer writer and producer is the "Till death do us part" phrase, according to his most recent production which comes to the screen of the Mission theatre today, and which bids fair to prove the sensation of the motion picture year. "If Marriage Fails," smashes out with tremendous power, lashing the conventions, the bigotry and the narrow-mindedness; yet without proving a whit salactious. It is a picture that no one will fear to take the family to see, but it is as different from the conventional society-drama flub-dub as day is from night. Jacqueline Logan, Belle Bennett, Cissie Fitzgerald, Clive Brook, Donald McDonald and Jean Herscholt play the leading roles, and do an extremely good job of it. The work of Director John Ince is a noteworthy example of what can be done with adroit direction.

CLOSE CHURCHES

MEXICO CITY, June 9.—(AP)—President Calles has ordered three Catholic churches, one each in the cities of Frontera, Morelia and Jalapa, closed. One has been abandoned in protest against the religious clauses of the constitution. The other two are said to be in excess of the number permitted in their respective localities.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP)—More favorable weather or crop advices appeared responsible for moderate declines in the cotton market today, October contracts sold off from 17.43 to 17.31 and closed at 17.31 compared with 17.40 at the close yesterday. The general market closed steady at net declines of six to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of one point to an advance of one point except for the last month of September, which was 16 points lower. Early selling on relatively easy Liverpool cables and talk of increasing mill curtailment both at home and in Lancashire was observed, and prices showed net advances of about three to five points shortly after the opening on continued covering by near month shorts.

Demand for July was readily supplied at a premium of 99 to 100 points over October, however, and the market turned easier later on a favorable interpretation of the weekly report of the weather bureau. This emphasized the lateness of the crop and the need of additional rain in parts of the Carolinas but was evidently regarded as indicating that the crop elsewhere was making holding progress. July eased off after the early demand had been supplied selling down to 18.27, while December declined to 17.20, net losses of about nine to 12 points on active positions. The volume of business tapered off around these figures and last prices showed rallies of three or four points from the lowest.

Private cables reported liquidation and heavy selling in Liverpool and said while there was a good inqtiry for cotton cloth from India, many offers were unworkable. The forecast for fair weather in the eastern belt was not considered altogether favorable, but the prediction for the southwest which is supposed to have had enough rain, was more encouraging.

Exports today 6,735, making 7,565,822 so far this season. Port receipts 9,316; U. S. port stocks 8,822,489.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 9.—(AP)—There was a moderate degree of activity in the cotton market today but price fluctuations were not very wide. The trend of values was moderately downward owing to the many favorable reports received from the interior as to the progress of the crop, unfavorable cables and a weekly weather report which was construed as generally favorable, and therefore bearish. After opening steady and gaining a point or two in early trading, prices turned easier and gradually eased off during the greater part of the day with occasional trifling rallies until they showed losses from the early highs of eight to 11 points. All months rallied mildly in the late trading, led by July. The close showed a net loss for the day of only two points on July but new crop months were six to seven points net lower.

The market experienced a steady opening despite the fact that Liverpool cables were lower than due and early trade showed gains of one to two points with July at 17.71, October at 17.05 and December 17.07. These prices proved to be the highs of the day.

The subsequent decline due to favorable weather and a favorably construed weather report eventually carried July down to 17.63, October to 16.95 and December 16.91, or eight to 11 points down from the early highs. July rallied almost to the high in the late trading and closed at a net loss of only two points. The later months made smaller rallies and closed a little save the lowest.

Exports for the day totalled 6,735 bales.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, June 9.—(AP)—Influenced more or less by correct assertions beforehand that the government crop report this afternoon would prove bullish, the wheat market averaged higher today. Government figures on the condition of spring wheat turned out to be the lowest ever on record for June. Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ¼c net lower to ⅛@⅜c advance, with corn ⅛ to 1c down, oats ⅛ to ⅛c up and provisions unchanged to 22c off.

Corn demand flattened out today. Profit taking sales were in progress and more than counterbalanced reports of dry weather west of the Mississippi and in parts of Illinois. Oats were relatively firm all day. Provisions reflected weakness of hog values and of corn.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP)—Opposing speculative forces struggled for control of the price movement in today's stock market with the day's advantage on the side of those working for hither prices. The market sold off during the morning when bear traders attacked the motors and a few specialties, but it turned upward later in the day when bullish operations were resumed in U. S. Steel common and other standard industrials. Total sales were 1,535,000 shares as compared with 1,662,100 yesterday and 1,107,900 the day before.

The day's business news was largely constructive in character. The weekly steel trade reviews were optimistic in character with the president of one of the largest independents reporting that buyers were demanding prompt shipment, an indication of the low stocks.

The American Petroleum Institute reported a reduction of 1,050 barrels last week in the daily average of gross crude oil production, which is now running more than 300,000 barrels daily below that of the corresponding period last year. Retail business, judging by the sales and earnings statements of the United Drug-ist and other chain stores companies is running well above last year.

Although consolidated April net earnings of the Class I railroads did not come up to earlier expectations, due to the relatively poor showing of some of the western roads, fresh buying was attracted into that group today by the announcement that the New York Central planned a consolidation of some of its principal subsidiaries.

Special strength again developed in Louisville and Nashville, which advanced nearly 5 points to 134½, closing within a point of the top. New York Central improved fractionally despite the announcement of an increase in capital stock.

United States Steel common crossed 132 to a new high on the current upswing with buying credited to a prominent automobile manufacturer. Crucible Steel was also in good demand, but most of the other independents were heavy.

With the exception of Pan-American B which touched a new high on the present move at 73⅛ on buying presumably influenced by the report that gasoline production of the company was running 25 per cent above that of a year ago. The oils failed to respond to bullish trade statistics. Atlantic Refining sold down more than three points to 115⅝ but recovered half its loss.

Call money renewed at four per cent and remained at that rate all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were easier. Demand sterling ruled just abov $4.86 and French francs around three cents. Most of the continental rates showed nominal recessions although Spanish pesetas ruled nearly ten points higher at 15.28 cents.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to summon C. D. Rubel, Mrs. C. D. Rubel, James O. Lyon and Emma Lyon by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 30th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in July, A. D. 1926, the same being the 5th day of July, A. D. 1926, Then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1926, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 18474-C wherein, M. Q. Wright, T. E. Wright and G. W. Wright are Plaintiffs and C. D. Rubel, Mrs. C. D. Rubel, C. R. Byrd, and Mrs. M. M. Byrd, wife of C. R. Byrd and James O. Lyon and wife, Emma Lyon are defendants and said petition alleging, That on the 29th day of September, 1925, the defendants, C. D. Rubel and wife, Mrs. C. D. Rubel, executed and delivered to the defendant, C. R. Byrd and wife, Mrs. M. M. Byrd, a certain tract of land in the County of Wichita, being described as follows, to-wit: The North 50 feet of the South one-half of Lots 9, 10 and 11 in Block B of the R. F. Carter Addition to the city of Wichita Falls, Wichita County, Texas, of the Northwest corner of Block 8, J. A. Scott Survey No. 10; That said deed was for a valuable consideration, to-wit: $3550.00 which said consideration was then paid; that the description contained in said deed, or the land intended to be conveyed, was erroneous and does not in fact describe the premises purchased by said Byrds and intended to be conveyed by said defendants. That whereas the said description describes the tract of land as being out of Block "D", the same should been described as follows: "Being Block B of the R. F. Carter Addition to the City of Wichita Falls, Texas." That on the 9th day of March, 1926, James O. Lyon and wife, Emma Lyon, deeded the above described land to the plaintiffs herein, and that by mutual mistake the same error was made in the description of the land as was made in the deed of September 29, 1925, from C. D. Rubel and wife to James O. Lyon and wife. And that in order to make said deed pass to plaintiffs the premises designed and intended to be purchased and conveyed and description should be amended by stubstituting clause last above for that inserted by mistake and that the whole description should read as follows, to-wit: The North 50 feet of the South 1-2 of Lots 9, 10 and 11 out of Block B of the R. F. Carter Addition to the city of Wichita Falls, of the Northwest corner of Block 8, J. A. Scott Survey No. 10 in Wichita County, Texas." Whereas plaintiff prays for a decree of this court correcting said deeds so that the same will express the intent of the grantors and convey the land intended to be conveyed and removing the cloud from plaintiffs' title.

Herein Fail Not, but have before said Court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return therein showing how you have executed the same.

Wichita Judge's Remark to Jury That Attorney's Feelings Would Be Hurt, Brings Reversal of Case

Judgment for Southern Casualty Company Against Wichita Valley Railway Remanded by Supreme Court In Austin Wednesday

AUSTIN, June 9.—(AP)—Because the trial judge told the jury their answer to a certain special issue "would cause the attorney for defendant some worry," the supreme court today remanded to the Wichita county district court the case of the Wichita Valley Railway company et al, against Southern Casualty company.

Judgment of the district court and court of civil appeals, finding for the Southern Casualty company, was reversed.

The Southern Casualty company sought recovery for damages to an automobile driven by W. R. Ferguson, contending negligence of the railway cause the collision.

The jury found the evidence sustained issues of negligence by defendants, and found against the plea of contributory negligence on Ferguson's part advanced by the railway.

A special issue submitted by defendants: "was the collision in question an unavoidable accident?" had been answered in the affirmative by the jurors; but upon the remark of the judge several of the jurors asked permission to return to the jury room, where they changed the answer on this issue to the negative.

BUFFS IN TOWN TODAY FOR TRIO

Mathes and his Houston Buffs are in town today for a three-game series starting this afternoon.

The Spudders, crippled up a bit, but still fighting have worked themselves into such a frenzy over the loss of the last four games that it's doubtful if anything can hold 'em now.

It wouldn't be a bit surprising to see them start off on another winning streak this afternoon, a victory rush similar to that which pulled Dallas out of first place last week when the Spudders took Sniper's team in four straight afternoons, making it five in a row over Dallas.

Carl Williams, the sidearmer, is Brainard's probable pitching choice for the opener.

Hatcher Visits In City Wednesday

W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, was in Wichita Falls Wednesday in the interests of his campaign for re-election to that office.

In discussing election issues Mr. Hatcher called attention to approximately $1,000,000 reserve state money on deposit at Wichita Falls banks, all of this placed here for the first time since the assumption of his duties as state treasurer.

Mr. Hatcher stated he had just authorized the transfer of $1,250,000 to the available school fund to permit payment of the $1 per capita due about July 1 for the public schools. This is done about 20 days in advance, according to Mr. Hatcher, to relieve a pressing financial situation, and brings the total per capita paid to $13, there being left just $1 out of the year's funds to be paid.

Mr. Hatcher was in Wichita Falls enroute from Amarillo, and left Wednesday afternoon for Fort Worth, via Archer City and Olney.

SUES ICE COMPANY

Damages in the sum of $5,764 are asked of the Wichita Ice company by Cecil Bailey, 13-year-old boy, as a result of an accident August 31, 1925. Bailey the petition alleges, had been asked by Blackie Dodson, driver of an ice wagon, to aid in the delivery of ice. The step on the back of the ice truck was insecurely fastened, it is stated, with the result that the boy, jumping onto it was thrown to the ground and his arm broken. He also sustained other injuries, it is alleged. The petition alleges negligence on the part of the defendant company as regards the alleged insecure fastening of the step.

Home Insurance Company Makes Marvelous Growth

The Wichita Home Insurance company, through its president, Edgar P. Haney, has announced the purchase of Electra Mutual Protective association, and the opening of an office in Electra. Since its organization four years ago, the company has taken over six large mutual insurance associations. During the past 60 days more than 3,000 new members have been received and the amount of insurance in force now exceeds $5,000,000. The company is steadily building up a reserve, and paying the face value of its policies. Its plan is life, health and accident insurance at cost. It eliminates the big annual premiums the high salaried officers, stockholders' dividends, collectors, commissions and renewal premiums. Only persons free from disease and passed upon by a physician are accepted. Texas insurance statistics show average yearly cost Old Line companies over $30. Mutual companies less than $12.

Lovely! not a Pimple

"Oh, what a beautiful skin! Not a pimple—not a blemish. Perfectly rounded shoulders and a venus-like back! No wonder she's popular.

"If I could only get rid of these ugly pimples, my skin would be clear and soft and dimpling, like hers—maybe people would call me lovely, too."

You're right! The only thing that mars your beauty are those unsightly skin blemishes. Clear them away and watch eyes full of admiration turn in your direction, wherever you go. "But how can I get rid of them?" you ask. What will drive the wretched things away so they won't come back?

Why, that's just exactly what S. S. S. helps Nature do. It's been clearing away pimples, blackheads and blotches for a century. S. S. S. helps Nature build up the blood to where it's pure and healthy—then these ugly things dry right up. And that's the only way you can keep the skin clear and unblemished. S. S. S. puts the blood back to where it can fight the impurities that get in your system and kills them off before they break out through the skin. You can't stop skin eruptions from the outside. You've got to get down underneath where the trouble is—down in the blood.

Begin taking S. S. S. and watch how quickly you get that skin beauty that belongs to you.

S. S. S. will charge your whole system so full of strength building, pure, healthy, red blood that you'll be simply brimful of new life and energy.

All drug stores sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

Lions Invade Chicken Farm and Have Plenty Of Fun for the Night

Lions invaded a chicken farm last night and, as might be expected, wrecked havoc among the feathered flock with all the abandon usually attached to such visitations.

It wasn't a case for sheriff, however, as it simply turned out to be a chicken dinner of the Wichita Falls Lion club at the huge poultry farm of Dr. R. H. Graham at the fair grounds. The club members and numerous visitors were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Graham at an event long anticipated.

With President Joe Hatchett presiding, a musical program and a number of speeches were presented following the dinner which was served in the open. Everything from fried and barbecued chicken to roasting ears and ice cream was served with Mrs. Graham hostess, Mrs. Chas. Pogenpohl, Lucille Estes and Thress Bowen acting as assistant hostesses.

Ira Brown read a paper written by Dr. Graham on "Chicken Culture" which revealed some surprising facts upon the successfulness of the venture started originally as a hobby. Dr. Graham has around 10,000 chickens on his farm with incubation capacity of 10,800. Plans are being made to enlarge this to 125,000 which will yield an excelent profit. He is president of the American White Leghorn club, a national organization, and holds membership in a number of national poultry associations.

Statistics show, according to Dr. Graham's paper, that the poultry industry has an enormous future in its stability and unceasing demand as well as the low amount of capital required.

Hubert Harrison expressed the appreciation on behalf of the club for the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Graham and told of the splendid example set by Lion Graham in showing what professional men can do with their leisure time.

Short talks were made by Judge J. W. Akin, Dr. C. R. Hartsook, Guy C. Raley, Wayne Sommerville, C. C. Cabiness, and Solon Featherstone, J. H. Allison, Dr. R. C. Smith and W. M. McGregor, guests of the club.

All Lions were urged to attend the Chamber of Commerce convention at Amarillo, June 22 and 23, a gathering that boasts the largest attendance of any in the state.

Music for the evening was furnished by Fiddler Tucker who played old time melodies.

An inspection of Dr. Graham's poultry quarters showed an approximate investment of $35,000 covering about 15 acres of land. A poultry house containing prize-winning White Leghorns raised for fairs and national shows is of the most modern structure with lighting, airing and housing facilities of the best. Running water is installed in all the houses. He is the owner of some very excellent fowls which have taken prizes at Kansas, Fort Worth and Dallas poultry shows.

Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Ferraline, then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For 50 years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and 50-cent bottles, any drug store.—Adv.
