Gatlin sister kicks off new chamber year

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

She sang on her brothers' first hit record, "Broken Lady," which went on to win a Grammy.

But former Odessan LaDonna Gatlin, baby sister of the Gatlin Brothers — Larry, Steve and Rudy — went on to sing a different song while her brothers became a famous singing group.

Ms. Gatlin, the keynote speaker — and singer — at Thursday's annual meeting of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, shared with the audience how she found her own song.

During the recording of that first hit song, she said, she got married "and it changed my perspective. I loved making music, but I loved making out with my husband more, and being on the road 260 days a year pursuing music didn't seem as important. I followed my heart. I followed my own song — God had a different song for me to sing. I've sung with the greats like Tammy Wynette, Charlie Pride, Neil McCoy, Johnny Cash and LeAnn Rimes. I've sung in the Crystal Cathedral and I've sung my own songs in the form of lullabies to my two babies as I rocked them to sleep as a full-time mom like my mother was with us. I've even sung inside prison walls."

Though not everyone sings into a microphone, she said, "Each of you has your own song. You sing it through your words, your deeds, your actions, who you are and how you live your life."

The theme of the annual meeting was "We're Building Midland" and as chairwoman Linda Foster turned the gavel over to new chairman Buddy Sipes, she said it was clear to her during her tenure that building a better Midland will be under way in the next millennium.

"Through the Midland Vision 2000 and Beyond initiative, hundreds of volunteers gave of their time and talents to dream of a better Midland and to set priorities. The message throughout all nine task forces has been crystal clear: Hundreds of Midlanders care deeply about the well-being of Midland. And with Midlanders' can-do attitude and planning, Midland will not only survive but prosper."

As chairwoman, she said, "it was a wonderful vantage point to observe the spirit of Midlanders. This year was a year many could have thrown in the towel, said business was too bad to care and

Senate OKs oil royalties amendment

■ Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's bill locks out higher royalties until June 2001.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

The oil industry won't have to pay higher royalties on oil produced on federal land or offshore until at least June 2001.

Thursday night, the U.S. Senate narrowly approved, by a vote of 51-47, an amendment by Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison (R-Texas) that would bar the implementation of new regulations pegging the royalties closer to market prices for crude.

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, says she is "proud that the Senate ... did the right thing."

"This is a victory for all Americans who are tired of paying excessive taxes every time they visit the nighborhood gas station," Ms. Hutchison said in a statement released after the vote. "I am proud that the Senate stood tall and did the right thing."

The amendment was attached to a $14.1 billion bill funding the Department of the Interior for the next fiscal year. Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt and other department officials have claimed that the current regulations, a 12.5 percent royalty fee, allow oil producers to underpay by as much as $68 million a year.

"This is a bill that affects the industry significantly, especially that portion of the Permian Basin in New Mexico," said Jim Henry, president of the independent oil company Henry Petroleum and president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

The new royalties were formulated by the Minerals Management Service and would be implemented in southeastern New Mexico, where a number of operators have leases on federal land, by the Interior's Bureau of Land Management.

"If the BLM is interested in getting the best price, they should sell the oil themselves," Henry said. "If they think they're being taken advantage of, that's what they should do instead of trying to use a fictitious price based on a fictitious number."

The department wants to receive royalties based on the futures or spot price set by traders daily on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

"The futures price has nothing to do with the actual price we get in the field," he said. "The price most producers get is the posted price, plus a bonus, but that bonus is never equal to the spot price. I'm not sure of the logic behind this."

WHEN DUTY CALLS

Below, Dick Wilson proudly dons his Silver Star. Wilson received the award on Thursday, 55 years following his heroism during World War II.

Vet awarded Silver Star half-century after war

Simply put, it was just "one of those things." At least to Richard E. "Dick" Wilson, a World War II Silver Star winner 55 years after his heroic acts.

"Things happened so fast, ... doing what I had to do, ... what I was called on at that time."

He saved lives at his own peril.

His B-17 Flying Fortress, on a daylight bombing mission to Berlin on March 22, 1944, was hit by anti-aircraft fire. Flak crippled the four-engine bomber, which peeled out of formation, dropped its bombs and tried in vain to return to home base in England.

More anti-aircraft fire hit the bomber, disabled it and killed or wounded most of the crew members, including the aircraft commander.

"When (the enemy) finally got us, we were flying about 9,000 feet," recalled Wilson, then a 23-year-old staff sergeant. He was a waist gunner and flight engineer on his 21st mission over Europe with the United States Army Air Forces' Eighth Air Force.

He rendered first aid to the surviving injured crew members. Five of the 10 crew members, including the pilot and co-pilot, were killed.

Wilson helped his crewmates bail out of the aircraft. He pulled the turret-gunner free and helped him abandon the Flying Fortress. He also aided another wounded waist gunner.

Tail gunner Alex Grant's parachute had been destroyed by flak, which also wounded him. Wilson fitted Grant with a parachute from the aircraft stores and guided him to the bomb bay so Grant could bail out.

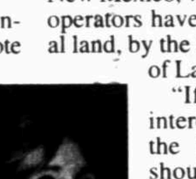

"Only after all surviving crew members were out of the aircraft, Dick Wilson bail(ed) out," Grant, who has since died, recalled in a 1997 letter which he had written to nominate Wilson for an award

Oil companies get access to new loans

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

Federal low-cost energy loans could be available to Permian Basin producing and service companies by the first of December, said Morris Burns, executive vice president of Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Details of the proposed lending program, which was designed to help oil industry companies injured by the price downturn of 1998, were discussed at a meeting attended by industry and banking individuals in Hobbs, N.M., earlier this week.

Two weeks ago, President Clinton signed into law a bill approving $500 million in loans for oil industry companies who were affected by an employee loss or financial loss during the price downturn. Sen. Pete Dominici of New Mexico was successful in having the funds added to a $1 billion bill to assist steel companies injured by foreign imports.

Burns said approximately 12 steel companies would benefit from the $1 billion in loan funds, and 300-400 oil-related companies would benefit from the $500 million in federal loans. The loan program will be administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture because of their experience in loan guarantees. In the event of default on the loans, the federal government will guarantee 85 percent of the loan and lending banks will guarantee 15 percent.

There was talk among many attending the Hobbs meeting that banks should not package and roll their high risk loans into the program but, leave funds available only for new projects designed to repair or advance oil-related firms.

Among the issues discussed at the Hobbs meeting, which was monitored by Bob Gallagher, special advisor to Secretary of Energy Bill Richardson, were the lowering of the loan amounts, collateral and terms of the loans. Contractors may pledge equipment as collateral and producers can pledge only proven reserves.

Most of those present at the meeting said the loan amount should be lowered to $100,000 to assist small producers and service companies.

Department of Energy officials said it hoped the loan proceeds would be evenly distributed throughout the nation's producing areas.

Burns said the loans would be funded in the order they were received and loan applicants would not "lose their place in line" if lengthy environmental studies were required. If environmental studies are required for projects receiving loans, the cost will be borne by the USDA.

Individuals or companies interested in applying for the low-cost government loans are urged to contact lending officers at their local bank.

Some Days Are Just Special

Every year they come around to remind us, and to rekindle those sweet memories. Today, September 24, 1910, was the day my beloved mother came to life in a small rural home at the hand of a mid-wife aunt. Today I think of her love and blessings, and it is indeed special. Marion Ed Lobaugh wrote, "There's a garden that grows in the hearts of us all, where memories bring gentle tears, I love to go there and stay for awhile, for there I can roll back the years!"

Can I share the picture with you? Widowed at 36, she became the all of life to four children. Young and determined, she charted a course that would not fail. Hard work, God's rules, and a sense of personal worth and respect for self and others. She put it in our hearts to stay, and it's still there. Her Irish spirit will always be. Maybe, just maybe there's a special day coming in your life. Like David in Psalms 118:24, let's learn to say, "This is the day which the Lord has made; We will rejoice and be glad in it."

As I look back, my "garden"is full of the flowers of memories. As I reflect on this day, they seem to be in full bloom. Thank you, Mother.

OIL: Prices have more than doubled

(From 1A)

One of the most vocal opponents of the amendment was Sen. Barbara Boxer (D-Calif.) who had blocked consideration of the a endment for a week. A vote to limit debate last week failed by five votes but succeeded Thursday morning.

During the debate, Ms. Boxer said the new rules would impact only the 5 percent of the oil industry that is comprised of the largest most integrated oil companies.

Those companies are the most guilty of undervaluing their oil, she said, "while 95 percent do the right thing. Ninety-five percent pay a fair royalty."

Responded Henry, "Integrated oil companies may make up 5 percent of the industry but have half the production in the United States. So it's misleading to say only 5 percent of the companies would be affected. This affects the lives of their workers. They depend on the companies and how much money they have to put into drilling and working over wells. Rig activity is down because companies haven't had the money to invest in wells."

Although prices have more than doubled since the beginning of the year, he said "we're still a hurting industry."

The efforts of Ms. Hutchison and other industry supporters like Sens. Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman of New Mexico, Sens. John Breaux and Mary Landrieu of Louisiana "tell me the oil industry is not dead yet. We do have some friends in Congress and Ms. Hutchison is one of them. We have a number of oil state senators working very hard for the industry," Henry said.

VETERAN: He never sought recognition

(From 1A)

for gallantry.

Wilson had not sought recognition.

"You do what has to be done," Wilson, a 77-year-old retired weatherman from the National Weather Service in Midland, recalled Thursday from his wheelchair at the Confederate Air Force hangar. "You weren't going to jump out and leave somebody. You took care of everybody. It was that simple."

For his gallantry, Wilson was awarded the Silver Star by the U.S. Air Force for his "selfless act of courage" which "directly resulted in the saving of another crew member's life while adding to his own immediate peril," the citation reads.

"By his gallantry and devotion to duty, Sergeant Wilson has reflected great credit upon himself and the Army Air Corps," continues the citation, which was presented to him by his nephew, John Wilson, a colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserve in Ohio.

John Wilson cited his uncle's patriotic role as a citizen-soldier called to duty along with 16 million other Americans in World War II.

His uncle modestly accepted the award.

"There were thousands of guys on that same day, probably, that deserved an award for something," Dick Wilson said after receiving the medal, which his family had sought for him. "It wasn't a big thing. It was just doing your job."

He bailed out at an altitude of about 400 feet, before the B-17 crashed into German soil, Grant had recalled.

Wilson served 14 months as a prisoner of war, "shuffled around from stalag to stalag, kept in solitary confinement, was in intensive interrogation ... and was kept as a trump card by the Germans," John Wilson said.

"There were some pretty rough times," Dick Wilson said of his months as a POW.

"I am very proud of my father," said Wilson's daughter, Terri Barnes. "He never talked about it. I knew he was in a prisoner-of-war camp for 14 months. I think what he did was tremendous — saving lives. I think it was heroic of my father to see a wounded crew-member and save his life — to risk his life to save another."

Her husband, Mark Barnes, said that "all of these guys who have performed heroic acts need to be recognized for what they have done. They don't think it's a big deal. They think it was just doing their job," just like that of his father-in-law, he said. "They need the recognition."

Jean Wilson said that she was proud of her husband and his bravery. "I think it (the Silver Star) is just great."

Midland County Commissioner Randy Prude presented Wilson a Commissioners' Court certification of appreciation for gallantry. "Scripture says to 'give honor to whom honor is due,'" Prude said.

Midland County Judge Bill Morrow praised Wilson for the "courage, bravery, and perseverance" that are "greatly needed in our society today and exhibited so many times by our veterans."

Texas Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland and State Sen. Teel Bivins of Amarillo noted the role World War II veterans played in serving their country and preserving America's heritage of liberty and justice. The Texas legislators were in Midland to be honored for their support of the American Airpower Heritage Museum at CAF headquarters at Midland International Airport.

In recognizing Wilson's heroism, Midland City Councilman Jose Cuevas said that in wartime ordinary people often are put in perilous situations and become "heroes at times. And at other times, they come home with a broken heart because their friends didn't make it."

Veterans, both alive and dead, kept "this country free and strong ... and "courageously served this country with pride.

"I know this Silver Star brings tremendous pride and honor to Mr. Wilson's family," Cuevas said. "And may we never forget the price they paid for freedom for Americans."

CHAMBER: Sipes hopes for economic diversity

(From 1A)

kept their noses to the grindstone. But Midlanders didn't do that. They rose to the occasion and put forth the effort to plan for the future and say 'Not only will we survive, but we'll prosper.'"

Sipes said he hopes to build on the foundation Ms. Foster and her fellow board members established during his year as chairman.

One goal during his year, he said, will be to help complete the Advanced Technology Center, a joint venture of the Midland Independent School District, Midland College and the chamber, to train not only students but members of the work force to provide the skilled employees so desired by companies looking to relocate to this city.

Another goal is to work toward economic diversification, a task he said won't be easy or inexpensive.

"People think the chamber can work for economic development within our normal budget, but it costs money and a lot of time and effort, and takes three to five years to begin seeing results," he said.

Cities like Abilene, Lubbock, Amarillo and Odessa, who have economic development funds and are able to offer incentives to attract new industry, will make it difficult for Midland to compete, he said.

"We'll try to complete, probably with one hand tied behind our back, because we just can't offer the incentives these other cities can, but we will have diversification."

That diversification won't come at the expense of the oil industry that has built the city, he said. Because a lot of oil and gas properties will be changing hands in the next few years, Sipes said, the city is challenged to provide a headquarters for the independents and entrepreneurs who will buy and manage the properties.

"Are we up to the challenge?" he asked. "I believe we are."

Senate plan to abolish INS gets bipartisan backing

'We cannot expect the INS to be the good service provider by day and the tough cop by night.'

— Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Mich.

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Senate proposal to abolish the Immigration and Naturalization Service and replace it with a new, reorganized Justice Department agency got a cautiously positive reception Thursday from the head of the INS.

Doris Meissner told the Senate Judiciary Committee's immigration panel that she agrees her agency needs an overhaul, even though she disagrees with some details of the proposal. She said the current INS structure that blends keeping illegal aliens out and processing legal immigrants is "a strained structure designed for a different era."

"I am committed to change," she said.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Mich., is sponsoring a bill that would replace the INS with a new Immigration Affairs Agency that would have two bureaus — one to enforce immigration laws and patrol the borders and another to handle the cases of legal immigrants.

The new agency's leader, and the heads of both bureaus would be appointed by the president and approved by the Senate.

Abraham said his proposal was meant to solve longstanding problems with the INS. The agency's unwieldy management structure has contributed to lengthy backlogs in processing immigration visa and citizenship requests, as well as overcrowded detention centers and other lapses as it tries to block illegal immigration.

"We cannot expect the INS to be the good service provider by day and the tough cop by night," Abraham said.

He cited the case of suspected serial killer Angel Maturino Resendiz, who was apprehended at the border and released to Mexico even after police alerted the INS this summer that he was a murder suspect. Resendiz surrendered in July.

Abraham and other backers of the bill said reorganizing the INS alone would not solve the problems if the new agency lacks good management.

"None of us believe that reorganization is a panacea," said Sen. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz.

Abraham's proposal has bipartisan support — a co-sponsor is Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. — and backing from groups representing INS agents, immigration lawyers and legal immigrants.

"What we presently have is similar to expecting one manager to oversee the operations of the FBI and the Social Security system at the same time," said Paul Berg, a Border Patrol manager who heads the Chief Patrol Agents Association.

Several of those groups are critical of a House proposal sponsored by Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky., that would split the INS into two separate bureaus within the Justice Department. That separation "would make it virtually impossible to articulate or implement a coherent, unified immigration policy," said Warren Leiden of the American Immigration Lawyers Association.

Backers of the House bill said they were encouraged the Senate was tackling the issue, noting that both measures have a long way to go before they can come to a final vote.

"Anything that advances the cause of immigration reform is a good thing," said Dan DuBray, Rogers' spokesman.

Mechanic charged in Valujet crash a fugitive

MIAMI (AP) — A mechanic charged with allowing mislabeled oxygen canisters to be loaded onto a Valujet flight that crashed, killing 110 people, is on the run and facing new charges, authorities said Thursday.

SabreTech Inc. mechanic Mauro Valenzuela has been charged with contempt of court for failing to comply with his conditions of pretrial release.

"Valenzuela is presently a fugitive. A warrant has been issued for his arrest," U.S. Attorney Thomas E. Scott said Thursday.

Valenzuela, former SabreTech mechanic Eugene Florence and Daniel Gonzalez, SabreTech's former vice president of maintenance, are charged with conspiracy and making false statements. All three were indicted in July. They have pleaded innocent.

Investigators allege SabreTech took oxygen canisters from another ValuJet plane, mislabeled them as empty, packed them up and delivered the carton to ValuJet's ramp, where it was loaded aboard the May 1996 flight.

The canisters ignited in the cargo hold of the DC-9, transforming the jet into an airborne inferno that nose-dived into the Everglades northwest of Miami.

The three men — who could face up to 55 years in prison each and fines as high as $2.7 million, if convicted — were permitted to remain free on bond.

There was no response Thursday night to a message left for Valenzuela's Miami attorney, Norman Moscowitz, seeking comment.

Texas Tech spirit organization denies excluding woman because of gender

LUBBOCK (AP) — They hoot when the Red Raiders win and holler like maniacs after a loss.

For 64 years, the rowdy and raucous Texas Tech Saddle Tramps have been known across West Texas as a famed and exclusive spirit club. And as far back as anyone can remember, they have included only men.

Then came Jennifer Slattery, the first woman ever to apply for membership. The Saddle Tramps say she wasn't denied admission this spring because she's a woman, but the 50-member group has applied for male-only legal designation that would exempt it from an anti-discrimination law.

The controversy has evolved into a case of tradition versus tolerance.

''I don't know why they can't just go on like they've been going on,'' said Rick Murray, a member of the organization in 1957. ''I'm not sure why this issue always has to come up. It even comes up with the Boy Scouts.''

Tramps executive board member Matthew Hines wouldn't comment on why Ms. Slattery was kept from joining but said the group doesn't keep women out. He said the group's meeting are private and that he is ''not allowed to discuss what goes on.''

''We have never discouraged females from coming to rushes,'' Hines said. ''I have not noticed a lot of females ever being interested in joining. We're a spirit organization here and we support male athletics. We have our own section in Jones Stadium provided by the athletic department. We ring bells, do chants and get everyone spirited.''

None of which can't be done by a woman, Ms. Slattery argues.

''There really is no reason why a woman shouldn't be able to join,'' said the Tech junior. ''If they get single-sex status, I don't think it's fair they get my money or other females' money.''

The Saddle Tramps receive about $2,000 a year in student fees, Tech officials said.

School officials say the group may not discriminate against women — or anyone else — but added that there is no evidence Ms. Slattery was excluded because of her sex.

''Apparently there had been some incidents that occurred in which the female student made comments about the organization that made them feel she wasn't interested or didn't think much of the group,'' said Mike Shonrock, Tech's dean of students.

''If we had found they had discriminated ... they would no longer be considered an official organization at Texas Tech. We take this very seriously.''

Hines said the group has asked the Internal Revenue Service to officially recognize it as an all-male organization, exempting it from the Title IX anti-discrimination law. The designation would allow the group to continue receiving public money.

Jay Jacobsen, president of the American Civil Liberties Union, says the group being historically male is no basis for an exemption.

''There has always been slavery. There has always been segregation,'' Jacobsen said. ''Those same arguments have always been made. The idea that a public group's history will allow them to be exempt from discrimination laws is ridiculous.

''If they receive public money and make use of public resources then they will have to let women join. Title IX specifically says you cannot exclude a student from a student activity on the basis of gender.''

Hines said the only requirements for joining are school spirit, leadership skills and a 2.0 grade-point average.

The Saddle Tramps, who wear red and black garb and have special permission to be on the field when the football team runs out of the lockeroom on game days, are named after the colloquial expression for traveling ranchers for hire.

Big Spring city taxes up, school taxes down

By Art Sinclair
MRT Correspondent

The city of Big Spring has a new tax rate for the coming year. Councilmen took less than 10 minutes to approve a new city budget, which included unanimous approval of the Moore Development Inc. of Big Spring budget.

Questions about the economic development agency's requests for a $35,000 CD-ROM to be used for promotional purposes, a $250,000 item including money for possible land purchase for a new industrial park, and a $7,000 request for Moore staff salary increases, had caused councilmen to table the budget at last Tuesday's council meeting.

At Thursday's meeting, there was not one word of discussion, after the Moore board had removed the request for salary increases.

Members of the Big Spring City Council and representatives of the Moore board both extended olive branches at the council meeting.

"At times we have treated you like mushrooms, but I assure you in the future we will try to approve communications between our governing bodies," Mayor Tim Blackshear said.

A spokesman for the Moore board told the city council that the board would make sure that they received minutes and reports from the Moore board and invited council members to join them at their board meetings.

The new tax rate raises taxes from 61 to 62 cents per $100 valuation. Fuqua told the council the tax raise was necessary to generate the same tax revenue as last year.

At another noon meeting Thursday, the Big Spring Independent School District voted to lower the school tax rate from 1.5763 to 1.5663. The action came despite the loss of $62 million dollars in tax values due to depressed oil and mineral economy.

Two factors go into the setting of the school tax rate; the maintenance and operation rate and the rate for retiring school debt. The board raised the maintenance and operation figure from last year's rate of $1.4413 to a $1.50 per hundred dollar valuation. The Texas Education Agency has suggested that it might cut state funds to any school district that did not raise the figure to $1.50. On the other side, the board reduced the rate from 13.5 cents to 6.6 cents per hundred dollar valuation for retirement of debt. The reduction came when the Texas Legislature passed a bill authorizing additional aid for debt retirement in Texas schools. Assistant School Superintendent Ron Plumly said following the meeting, "We appreciate the additional funding from the legislature. These funds made it possible for us to the lower the tax rate."

Potential puts Midland, area in great position

The announcement late last week of what has been termed a "significant gas opportunity" within view of Midland's downtown by CMS Energy Corp is one of a number of signs indicating that Midland and the Permian Basin are on the way back as an oil and gas "hot spot" in the United States.

Of course, that is to be expected here. It is the geologic fact of life that sets Midland apart and will keep the life of the oil and gas industry foremost in the mind of most Midlanders. As the past couple of years have illustrated so graphically for those living in this community, the fortunes of Midland and those living here are inextricably tied to oil and gas — whether they work in that industry or not.

Midland has potential and that becomes significant when one recognizes that not all the places around this globe do.

What the gas discovery underscored is a fact that is well known but forgotten all too readily by Midlanders. Although much oil and gas has been found here — and in this sense here means the Permian Basin — there still is a lot to be found. As the oil industry gets back on its feet after the devastating price disaster, the increased activity in the Basin will result in even more discoveries. Activity in the oilfield will increase with additional discoveries, adding fuel to the fire for drillers and speculators.

The point, of course, is that the potential for another significant oil or gas discovery is always just one day away here. Behind the scenes landmen, geologists, drillers and others are in that continual quest for another strike! It is an exciting industry, when one thinks about it.

And what makes it all worthwhile is the occasional announcement by CMS Energy Corp. or some other firm that, yes indeed, there still is oil and gas to be recovered out there amid the prickly pear and mesquite bushes.

Midland has potential and that becomes significant when one recognizes that not all the places around this globe do.

Today in History

Today is Friday, Sept. 24, the 267th day of 1999. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 24, 1789, Congress passed the First Judiciary Act, which provided for an attorney general and a Supreme Court.

On this date:

In 1869, financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk tried to corner the gold market, sending Wall Street into a panic and leaving thousands of investors in financial ruin.

In 1896, author F. Scott Fitzgerald was born in St. Paul, Minn.

In 1929, Lt. James H. Doolittle guided a Consolidated NY-2 Biplane over Mitchel Field in New York in the first all-instrument flight.

In 1948, Mildred Gillars, accused of being Nazi wartime radio propagandist "Axis Sally," pleaded innocent in Washington to charges of treason. (Gillars ultimately served 12 years in prison.)

In 1955, President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while on vacation in Denver.

In 1957, the Brooklyn Dodgers played their last game at Ebbets Field, beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0.

In 1960, the USS Enterprise, the first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, was launched at Newport News, Va.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear testing.

In 1969, the trial of the "Chicago Eight" (later seven) began. (Five defendants were convicted of crossing state lines to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic national convention; the convictions were ultimately overturned.)

In 1976, newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was sentenced to seven years in prison for her part in a 1974 bank robbery. (She received clemency from President Carter and was released after 22 months.)

Ten years ago: Residents of Charleston, S.C., attended church services as they faced a third day of recovering from the devastation of Hurricane Hugo.

Five years ago: A firefight erupted between U.S. Marines and a group of armed Haitians outside a police station in the northern coastal city of Cap-Haitien; 10 of the Haitians were killed.

One year ago: Hurricane Georges was charging toward Florida Keys, after killing hundreds of people in the Caribbean. The government began releasing the new, harder-to-counterfeit $20 bill.

JACK ANDERSON

Ranks of bigger vehicles cause highway anarchy

WASHINGTON — Bigger is better when Newton's Second Law (for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction) is at play. And it is at play every day on America's highways, where anarchy reigns.

The problem started becoming acute when sales of sport utility vehicles (including minivans) joined with pickup trucks to swell the ranks of big, heavy vehicles. It was a matter of taste, efficiency and safety — safety, that is, for their occupants.

Anderson

Baby boomers became more interested in inside size and comfort than outside looks as their families grew. At the same time, fuel efficiencies made the SUVs socially (and environmentally) acceptable. And safety was found in size and steel.

But SUVs did not make the roads safer for drivers of smaller vehicles. In fact, the statistics are both startling and socially revealing. Most Americans could not afford the bigger, safer vehicles. Worse still, the typical car's weight went down to accommodate aerodynamic, fuel-efficient designs, increasing the weight gap.

To ascertain the risk larger cars, specifically SUVs, pose to passenger-car drivers, the Department of Transportation commissioned a survey of highway fatalities, taking the make of the cars involved into consideration. The survey covered relationships between vehicle size and fatality risk in model years 1985-1993. Here are the facts:

■ SUVs appeared on the road more than twice as often as they did in 1985.

■ In the last years, 80 percent of highway fatalities resulted from a collision between an SUV and a passenger car.

■ Eighty percent of deaths in these accidents were occupants of the passenger car.

The weight statistics are equally revealing:

■ Between 1975 and 1985, new model U.S. cars were built twice as fuel efficient as previous models and also dropped 1,000 pounds in weight.

■ The weight and size reduction increased fatalities by nearly 2,000 percent per year.

■ Between 1985 and 1993, passenger cars remained about the same size and weight, but the average weight of the SUVs rose 340 pounds.

SOME PROPOSED SOLUTIONS

■ Reduce the weight of SUVs. If the manufacturers could, they would.

■ Increase the weight of all other cars. Ridiculous. Costs would rise; fuel efficiency would fall; the public would scoff.

■ Enforce the highway laws. The simplicity of the logic is jarring and bears repeating: Enforce the highway laws. For more than a decade we have urged the placement of more police on the beat on the street to rein in crime, and now it is time to do the same thing on our highways, where speeders, sleepers, drunks and dolts are running amok. It's not Newton's Second Law causing the carnage. It's Darwin's survival of the fittest that rules our asphalt jungles. It is time to stop the anarchy.

The Baptists go to war against evil

FORT WORTH — On the assumption that Satan, enlisting the help of Larry Gene Ashbrook, set out last week to intimidate Christians ... well, did this unholy pair pick the wrong church!

Murchison

Liberal Protestants of hazy theological outlook — that might have been one thing. But Southern Baptists! No one in his right mind would put forward the Baptists as subject matter for spiritual intimidation.

Confronted, menaced, jeopardized, Baptists reach for a familiar object — the Holy Bible. They open it, they brandish it, they thrust it right in the Devil's face. Just how heart-warming it was to see them do so on a sun-splashed Sunday afternoon, in Texas Christian University's football stadium, I beg here and now to report.

The official Baptist position on gun control? I've no idea. We all know, nonetheless, the Baptist position on evil. It is that Evil, resulting from the Fall, warps and corrupts human nature, turning it from God toward actions violative of His love and trust.

The Baptists, to every appearance, have it right: Spiritual warfare rages in our midst. The president of the United States (himself a Baptist, if not one in high favor with his co-religionists), insists that a deadly combination — evil and guns — is in fact at work. Addressing the Black Congressional Caucus immediately after the Fort Worth shootings, the president urged collective efforts "to make America a safer place." Translation: Let's control more guns.

The official Baptist position on gun control? I've no idea. We all know, nonetheless, the Baptist position on evil. It is that Evil, resulting from the Fall, warps and corrupts human nature, turning it from God toward actions violative of His love and trust.

Some of these actions, as per Larry Ashbrook, one commits with a gun, certainly. One commits a far larger quantity with hand, eye, tongue, brain. Hence repentance and conversion, much more than legislation, are the essential remedies.

The difficulty comes with conveying such a message to a society which polls say is religious in a broad sense, but which all the same is deeply immersed in secularism.

Secularism — a wholly new creed, alien to the American, as to the Western, tradition — is often put forth as the foolproof response to modern "pluralism" and "diversity." It serves, just as likely, as a handy excuse for sleeping in on Sundays. The Baptists know all this. Their most engaging trait is that they don't care. They set forth the Truth as they have received it, that Jesus Christ died for your sins.

Case in point: the Fort Worth commemoration. The occasion is ostensibly civic. The mayor is a speaker; Gov. George W. Bush and other office-holders have come as non-speakers just to reinforce the sense of public outrage and grief. A rabbi prays. I spot Moslems in the crowd. Yet the occasion is saturated with Christian joy.

There's an odd word — "joy." What's joyous about the desecration of a house of worship and the slaughter of teenage worshippers and counselors? Nothing is "joyful" about evil.

Joy, as the Baptists of Fort Worth would make known, comes with God's response to evil. Does He leave it to fester? Hardly. He points to the victory already won, and in the end to be lastingly consummated, through His son's death and resurrection. It's right there in those Bibles waved under Satan's snoot. Nor does it stop even there, you dumb lunk with the pitchfork! Christians inside and outside the Southern Baptist Convention would affirm this reality.

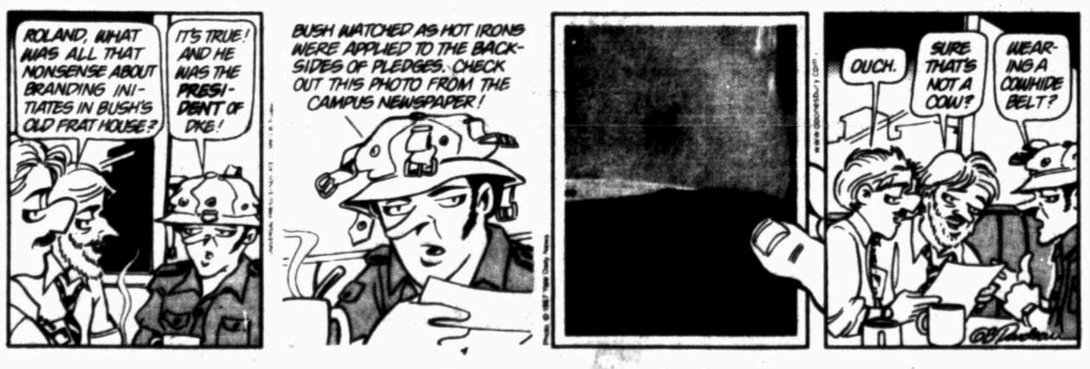

Affirm? A mild word for what goes on at the stadium. What about the father of one of the victims, leading the audience/congregation in the singing of a song his murdered daughter had loved? What about the pastor of the desecrated church, the Rev. Al Meredith, whomping up a classic Baptist revival on the spot — a call to fasting and repentance and prayer? "Raise your hand if you want the killing to stop, if you want to see the spirit of the living God sweeping over our land like wildfire." Up in the air, a forest of affirming arms, one of them attached to an Episcopalian journalist.

Bad news for Satan. He's stirred up the Baptists — folk who take him with the deep seriousness his malice deserves. The culture wars may have taken a decisive turn.

CHARLEY REESE

Carter's folly soon to come to full fruition

One little Y2K surprise for many Americans, I suspect, will be to wake up and find out the Panama Canal is completely out of American hands and control.

Reese

This is a belated gift of the Jimmy Carter administration, which obligingly signed away America's rights to the canal. The final transfer takes place Dec. 31.

According to Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., and several others, the Panamanian government has contracted with a Chinese company to administer the canal. Those who think the Panama Canal is no longer important may find out if they are right or wrong if we have military trouble with China one day.

The importance of sea transport is one more of the basics of life that has slipped off the American media's radar screen. Nevertheless, despite the big birds the Air Force has, most heavy stuff for military operations still travels by ship. And, if the Panama Canal should not be available, it's a long trip around the South American continent. Avoiding that long sea voyage was the justification for building the canal in the first place.

Reducing the size of the American Navy, which is also being done, makes the canal even more important. While the big carriers can't squeeze through the canal, most of the fleet's ships can.

Most Americans opposed the Panama Canal giveaway, but Carter negotiated the treaty, and the Senate ratified it anyway. I've noticed that, since the 1940s, what the American public thinks has slim-to-no influence on foreign policy, the president or Congress.

The canal is what is known in think-tank jargon as a strategic choke point. The Suez Canal is another. So are the Dardanelles, the narrow strait separating Asia from Europe. It's true that the airplane has made sea routes relatively less important -- but only relatively. I don't think the United States, relying entirely on air, could mount any sizable military operation, such as the Gulf War.

There is no point in rehashing the canal giveaway. It's a done deal. The same combination of lack of foresight and backbone that gave it away will make sure it isn't retaken.

Just remember the next time you see him hammering nails on a Habitat for Humanity house that, while he may be a fair-to-middling carpenter, Carter was a lousy president. Carter pardoned Vietnam draft dodgers, gave away the canal, caused the Iranian disaster by pulling support from the shah, stood around with his thumb in his mouth while Fidel Castro instigated the infamous Mariel exodus, actually defended Pol Pot (the murderous dictator of Cambodia) and cut the American military back so much that ships had to meet on the high seas so the ship coming off patrol could transfer its ammunition to the one going on patrol.

In regard to Mariel, where Castro dumped more than 100,000 people into the United States, including criminals and the insane, a former Carter aide cracked that if Carter had been president during the Falklands War, "there would be 600,000 sheep in Miami.Personally, I don't think we've had a president with a good grasp of strategy since Dwight Eisenhower. Eisenhower was so smart, he easily convinced the Washington press corps that he was a bumbling old man. But behind the scenes, he ran a tight ship. His covert operations succeeded, and his administration created the nuclear deterrent that we still rely on.

Somehow I don't think the next century is going to be called "the American century."

Gorbachev gives wife a final kiss

AP Photo
Former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, his daughter, Irina, left, and granddaughter, Ksenia, foreground, say a final goodbye, to Gorbachev's wife, Raisa, who died Monday. She was 67.

MOSCOW (AP) — Bidding farewell to the woman who was his soul mate, former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev bent slowly over wife Raisa's open coffin today and gave her a final kiss goodbye.

As hundreds of well-wishers clustered outside Moscow's Novodevichy cemetery, priests swinging censers of incense chanted the burial service. Gorbachev bent low, and kissed his wife one last time, just below the traditional Russian Orthodox burial scarf wrapped on Mrs. Gorbachev's forehead.

Gorbachev appeared healthy, but clearly worn down after sitting with his wife for two months in a German clinic as she lost ground in her struggle with leukemia.

Mrs. Gorbachev's death Monday at age 67 ended a 46-year marriage that many saw as profoundly symbiotic. "They were a real pair," said former German chancellor Helmut Kohl, one of the mourners at the cemetery. "Much of what he achieved is unimaginable without his wife."

Although Mrs. Gorbachev's professorial intellect and stylish dress seemed to outsiders to complement her husband's epochal reform policies, she was regarded with suspicion by many Russians used to Soviet leaders' wives being unseen and unmentioned.

But eyes that may once have narrowed in suspicion brimmed with sympathy on Thursday as crowds of ordinary Russians clustered outside the cemetery, and the building where an earlier memorial service was held, for a glimpse of the funeral cortege.

"She was a good woman for Russia," said a woman outside the cemetery who gave her name only as Irina. "We just want to show (Gorbachev) we're sorry for him."

A few minutes later, the procession drove past, some mourners in sleek modern limousines and others crowded into battered Soviet-era buses. The mourners attended a private service in a chapel of the Novodevichy convent, adjacent to the cemetery that holds the graves of luminaries including Anton Chekhov and Nikita Khrushchev.

Nine bells in a convent tower rang in descending minor intervals as the requiem ended. The open coffin was carried into the cemetery on the shoulders of six pallbearers following a paved path strewn with red flowers.

Earlier Thursday, a stream of ambassadors, foreign guests and prominent Russians including President Boris Yeltsin's wife, Naina, brought wreaths, bouquets and words of condolence to Gorbachev and other family members as they sat with the coffin in the Russian Cultural Foundation, which Mrs. Gorbachev founded.

A small delegation of students from the philosophy department at Moscow State University, where Mrs. Gorbachev used to teach, brought a large wreath of white roses and fir fronds.

Gorbachev, his daughter and two granddaughters walked behind the open coffin as it was carried out of the Cultural Foundation, where mourners offered condolences Wednesday and Thursday morning, for the journey to Novodevichy.

A large picture of Mrs. Gorbachev and a wreath from Yeltsin — one of Gorbachev's biggest rivals — were carried in front of the coffin. A large bouquet of white roses lay in the coffin at her feet.

Russians' views of Mrs. Gorbachev changed markedly once she was hospitalized in late July. She and her husband — whom many Russians revile and blame for the country's problems — were inundated with letters offering support, advice and money.

Indonesia soldiers seem to be testing peacekeepers

DILI, East Timor (AP) — Gunfire crackled across East Timor's chaotic capital Thursday, sending civilians scrambling for shelter and peacekeepers for their rifles in what was seen as a test of multinational authority in the province.

Though the shooting was not an attack, it prompted the commander of the peace mission, Maj. Gen. Peter Cosgrove, to warn that his men would use "lethal force" against anyone who even pointed a weapon at them.

Three truckloads of Indonesian soldiers, apparently resentful at losing East Timor in a referendum on independence, unleashed bursts of automatic fire as they drove through the Australian- and British-controlled sectors of Dili.

No one was hurt, and the soldiers were not caught. But the incident demonstrated how jittery the multinational troops are as they face the prospect of deadly confrontations with anti-independence militias.

The body of a Dutch journalist was found in a Dili suburb on Wednesday, the first foreign casualty since the multinational force began arriving.

The Indonesian army, which invaded East Timor in 1975 after Portugal abandoned its former colony, is now evacuating and handing control over to the multinational force.

The peacekeepers began entering East Timor this week, with about 3,000 soldiers on the ground as of midday Thursday and 4,500 yet to come.

Cosgrove warned the militias against provocation.

"If they carry those weapons openly, if they point them at any other East Timorese or at my soldiers, then we will use lethal force against them," he said bluntly. "That time is possibly not far away."

Cosgrove said he would try to speed up deployment of troops still at the staging point in Darwin, Australia. He has admitted that he does not have enough troops to secure all residential areas of the capital.

Brig. David Richards, commander of the British contingent, said the men who fired their weapons in the air wanted "to see what our response drills are like. They are probing our responses. It is a test."

They also wanted to create fear and show that the peacekeepers have less control over the city than the Indonesians did, Richards said.

In Jakarta, the Indonesian Justice Minister Muladi announced Thursday that martial law had been revoked in East Timor and the responsibility for security would be handed over to the multinational force. The government had imposed martial law on Sept. 7 after the rampage began.

In Geneva, the U.N. Human Rights Commission held an emergency meeting Thursday to discuss alleged abuses in East Timor. The European Union called on the session to send an international commission to the province to gather evidence of war crimes.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people were killed when the militias went on a rampage of killing and looting after the referendum on independence, in what human rights groups say was an operation orchestrated by the Indonesian military to annul the vote.

U.N. personnel took a two-hour helicopter tour Thursday of the towns of Ainaro, Same, Suai, Ermera, Liquica and Maliana, and found them almost completely deserted and half destroyed, U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhard said in New York.

U.N. workers warned Thursday that the international community has only a few weeks to get food to starving refugees before the rains ground flights and bog down roads.

'Good Will Hunting'

Faces of Robin

By Georgia Temple

Although each of his parents had a grown son from a previous marriage, Robin Williams grew up as an only child. Much of his childhood was spent recreating the routines of his favorite television comics, especially Jonathan Winters, as he played alone in his family's 40-room home in the affluent suburb of Detroit, Mich., known as Bloomfield Hills.

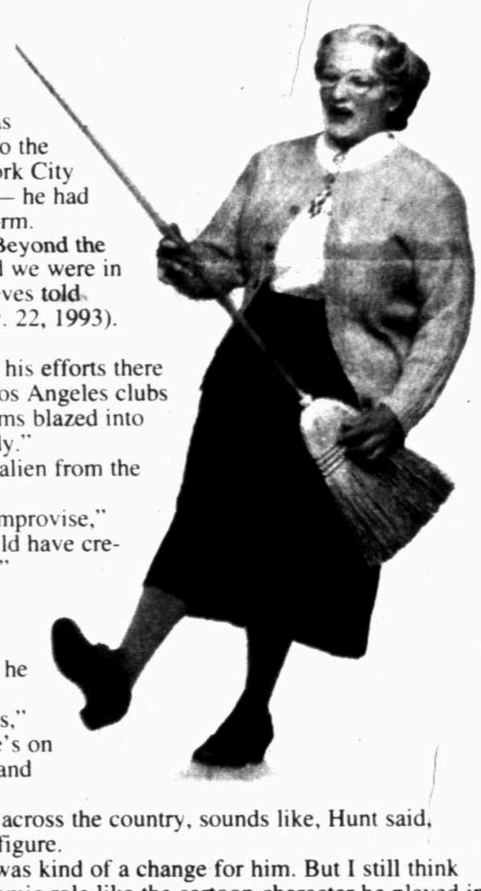

"My childhood was kind of lonely," he told Lisa Grumwald for Esquire (June 1989). "Quiet. My father was away. My mother was working, doing benefits. I was basically raised by this maid, and my mother would come in later, you know, and I knew her, and she was wonderful and charming and witty.

"But I think maybe comedy was part of my way of connecting with my mother. 'I'll make Mommy laugh, and that'll be OK,' and that's where it started."

Calling himself a "closet comedian" until his college days, Williams told New York Newsday in 1991 that his comedic ability "didn't just happen. It seemed to come naturally once I found it, but I created it through experimentation and playing with different things as a kid."

By the time Williams was admitted on a scholarship to the Juilliard School in New York City — his third college home — he had reached a no-holds-barred form.

"He did a monologue from 'Beyond the Fringe' that made us laugh so hard we were in physical pain," actor Christopher Reeves told Jesse Kornbluth for New York (Nov. 22, 1993).

Yet, what he really desired was to become a dramatic actor. When his efforts there failed, he turned to stand-up comedy and became a regular at such Los Angeles clubs as the Improv and the Comedy Store. Then, in the late 1970s, Williams blazed into the American home via the popular television sitcom "Mork & Mindy."

Midlander Jackie Hunt has been a Williams fan since the amiable alien from the planet Ork arrived.

"'Mork & Mindy' was one of those vehicles that allowed him to improvise," Mrs. Hunt said. "I'm sure there's no way a committee of writers could have created Mork. It all came from his instant spontaneous comedic genius."

Her husband, Rob Hunt, also called Williams "a brilliant comic genius" and cited his roles in "Good Morning, Vietnam (1987)" and "Mrs. Doubtfire (1993)" as among his favorites. In the latter film, Williams portrays a divorced father who poses as a British nanny so he can spend more time with his children.

"'Mrs Doubtfire,' my goodness, what a great vehicle for his talents," Hunt said. "The sheer virtuosity that his brain exhibits even when he's on the David Letterman or Jay Leno shows, the quickness of his recall and association are always astounding to me."

His latest project, "Jakob the Liar," which is being released today across the country, sounds like, Hunt said, "The kind of character he has played several times, an inspirational figure.

"I loved 'Dead Poet's Society.' I thought that was kind of a change for him. But I still think he's at his best when he's doing the ad-libbing comic role like the cartoon character he played in

'Jakob the Liar' opens today

A whisper of hope leads Jakob Heym to participate in a terrifying and courageous lie. He has a radio.

To the 1990s American reader or movie fan, the possession of a radio seems a small matter and odd perhaps in that he has one and not more stashed around his place. But to the Jewish prisoners in a ghetto in 1940s Nazi-occupied Poland, the possession of a radio is punishable by death. Even a radio that doesn't exist.

And Jakob's radio is a figment of the imaginations of his fellow prisoners and himself. Like thousands of other Jews, Jakob is cut off from all news of the war.

Then he accidentally hears the following broadcast when he is standing in the German military office: "In a fierce defensive battle our heroically fighting troops succeeded in halting the Bolshevist attack 12 miles from Bezanika. In the course of the action our side —"

Jakob struggles to remember the distance to Bezanika. He also searches for a way to spread the news without appearing to be in collaboration with the enemy. Possession of a radio is the only answer.

Thus begins Jurek Becker's "Jakob the Liar," acclaimed as the most remarkable novel of the Holocaust written in Germany. A Holocaust survivor, Becker was born in Poland and spent most of his youth living in the Lodz ghetto and in concentration camps. He is one of few novelists of Jewish heritage living in Germany.

Midland Reporter-*Music*gram

By Emily Baker

People often ask if I know which country artist will be performing in the area next. The answer to that is Robert Earl Keen. He will be performing at The Ranch on Sept. 30. The next question I get after revealing that answer is, "Who is that?"

Baker

Keen is not an artist who receives a lot of air time on the radio in West Texas. The reason for that is his is not considered country by most Nashville critics. Usually it is assumed that if a performer does not receive air time, he or she must have really bad music. Not the case at all with Keen.

Keen mixes folk sounds, blue grass, and Hank Williams Jr. into a unique style that appeals to country fans as well as adult contemporary and easy listening fans.

"Most people consider the music I make as country," Keen said. "'Real' country music people in Nashville don't consider it country music. I like the instruments they use in country music, so I write these kind of songs. The reason people consider my songs country is because I like steel guitars and fiddles and mandolins and I use that kind of instrumentation."

Country music does not appeal to many people because of the two whiney characteristics: the whiney lyrics, and the whiney steel guitar. Keen does not over-do either of these but has enough emotion in his songs to allow for something to appreciate.

"Lyrically they (the songs) are not so much country lyrics," he said. "I don't ever talk about unrequited love, or just hanging out at the bar, 'I'm so lonely.' My themes always have to do with a lot more characters and either somebody gets killed, or somebody robs somebody, or somebody does something. My songs are kind of action songs."

Keen writes most of the songs he performs and feels that traditional country music themes leave something to be desired.

"Some people relate to a very simple, shy song," he said. "I do as well. But, I think there are a lot of people that want to hear more. I'm just more detail oriented a lot of times than other songwriters are. I know some just fantastic songwriters who are like Rembrants they way they paint a picture in their songs. Country songs are just more of a summary of what I touch on. I just try to get more information in my songs than a lot of country songs that you hear."

Keen's songs are the get-stuck-in-your-head type of song, and they have a relaxing, almost therapeutic edge.

After a hard day, I look forward to a good stress buster. I usually look to music but having the music taste I do, it can sometimes be hard to relax. I am a "hard country" listener and enjoy the likes of Chris LeDoux, Montgomery Gentry, Smokin' Armadillos, and the Thompson Brothers Band. I don't listen to Vince Gill or Steve Wariner as much because they are too mellow for my taste. But when I found Keen's CD "Walking Distance," I found the perfect combination of "hard country" and something softer to ease the mind.

The lyrics are honest and the music is catchy and comforting. Keen does not produce the kind of music one would pop in the CD player for a party, but is perfect for relaxing late at night.

If Keen's music is lower-key, he would put on a boring show, right? Nope. Keen has a bouncy personality. His impromptu nature makes him fun to talk to. He believes that if one pays money to see a show, one should see a great show, and he said that he would do his best to please everybody.

Tickets for this show can be purchased at The Ranch and cost $17.50. Doors open the night of the concert at 6 p.m. and the show is scheduled to begin at 9:30 p.m. with special guest Charles Robson.

OPEN: English version has taken years to bring to screen

(From 1B)

Robin Williams in the title role, the English-speaking version of "Jakob the Liar" (a Columbia Pictures Presentation of a Blue Wolf Production with Kasso inc.) has taken years to bring to the screen.

Written decades ago, "Jakob der Lugner," which received the Heinrich Mann Prize for fiction and Switzerland's Charles Veillon Award, was translated into English in 1990 by Becker and Lelia Vennewitz with its first U.S. edition ("Jacob the Liar") released in 1996.

The Hungarian-born director Peter Kassovitz, who lives and works in Paris, first came across the novel in 1990 when he was visiting his parents in Budapest. Born in 1938, Kasssovitz had, as a child, worn the yellow Star of David. When he was 5, he was hidden with a Catholic family and saw his parents being taken away to concentration camps. The story touched him, and he immediately contacted the author.

At the time, Becker was living in East Germany and writing for film, television and cabaret. "Jakob the Liar" was originally written as a screenplay, but when Becker's hopes of having it produced for German television didn't materialize, he wrote the novel. Once the novel achieved international acclaim, the German production company DEFA made the film which, in 1974, won the Silver Bear award at the Berlin Film Festival.

Encouraged by the prospect of an English-language version, Becker granted Kassovitz the rights.

"I got an option on the book with a French production company and quite an important producer, Ms. Gouze Renal, and we developed the script," Kassovitz said. "We tried to make it and almost did. There was quite a lot of interest. When she lost her rights to the book, I bought it back."

Kassovitz then worked with French writer Didier Decoin. Kassovitz's manager, Gary Ungar, thought of Robin Williams as the reluctant hero, Jakob Heym. He sent the new version of the script to Blue Wolf Productions where Marsha Garces Williams is the company president.

"Peter brought this project to me obviously hoping that Robin would like it also," said Mrs. Williams, who is married to the actor. "It worked out great for all of us because to me this story has universal appeal. ... The characters are good; it's a wonderful part for Robin."

Of his wife's selections in films, Williams said, "She just has amazing instincts. She's the one that found this piece, and she's the one that basically went out and got a lot of this cast."

That cast includes Alan Arkin, Bob Balaban, Michael Jeter, Academy Award nominee Armin Mueller-Stahl, Liev Schreiber and Hannah Taylor Gordon as Lina, the young girl befriended by Jakob.

"The time was right," Mrs. Williams said. "I knew that because of previous commitments on 'What Dreams May Come' and 'Patch Adams,' it would be a very long time before we could release the film. I had my dream cast together and couldn't count on them all being available at the same time again, so we went aggressively into production."

In the fall of 1997, the cast and crew were living in Lodz, Poland, the birthplace of Becker and the location of the ghetto where he spent the war years. In 1944, the year in which "Jakob the Liar" takes place, the town of Lodz had a Jewish community of 200,000. Today, there are fewer than 100.

Although the ghetto in the story is not identified, the shoot began on Oct. 12, 1997, in Piotrkow, Poland, the location of the first Jewish ghetto in that country.

The scene during which the Jewish population is removed from the ghetto was filmed in early October and employed 400 local extras. That same week more than 50 years before, 2,000 Piotrkow Jews were liquidated by Nazi troops in that square.

Williams recalled that fact as particularly meaningful, saying, "There's a very powerful feeling in those streets and in those buildings and in those apartments and in those hallways."

One Holocaust survivor, Janos Gosztony, who plays Samuel in the film, told Williams of people being forced to stand in line all day and night. To keep alive and awake, they would tell jokes to each other.

"That's how they survived," Williams said. "That's what makes us human beings."

In the book and the movie, Jakob begins relaying fictitious information about Allied advances against the Nazis. His lies help keep hope and humor alive among the inhabitants of the ghetto.

"Sometimes you can say it's a black comedy," Williams said of the movie's humor. "Sometimes it's very physical. Sometimes it's medicine. It's different types and all different forms. Sometimes it can be outrageous, and sometimes it's so subtle, just a look."

After two weeks of filming, the cast and crew moved to Budapest and the site of the ghetto there.

"The script has a certain power to it," Williams said. "It went back and forth between being very funny and very tragic and very brutal within moments. Most of the scenes were about everyday life — this interaction in the face of something quite horrific."

ACTOR: Midlanders list 'Dead Poet's Society' among their favorite Williams' films

(From 1B)

'Aladdin.'"

Midlander Pam Anthony isn't as big a fan as the Hunts.

"In some movies, I have thought he was silly," Ms. Anthony said, adding that "he's funny in a lot of movies. And I've seen him on talk shows, and he's funny."

Judy Coleman "used to not be" a fan but admires his work now. "I thought he was really crazy and not focused.

"I think a lot of what he does is just natural, but it's wonderful talent to have what he has." This Midlander finds the "scope" of what Williams is capable of amazing and listed "Good Will Hunting," for which he received an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor, "Mrs. Doubtfire" and "Dead Poet's Society" as among her favorites.

"Hysterically funny" were the words Midlander Paula Edwards used to describe Williams.

In the 1980s, Williams made such films as "The World According to Garp," "Moscow on the Hudson," and the less popular "The Survivors," "The Best of Times" and "Club Paradise." In the 1990s, in addition to the films previously mentioned and his children's movies, he made "Awakenings," "The Fisher King," "The Birdcage" and a Walt Disney remake ("Flubber") of "The Absent-Minded Professor." He also made cameo appearances in "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen," in which he played the King of the Moon; the thriller "Dead Again," in which he played a psychiatrist; and "The Secret Agent," based upon the Joseph Conrad novel.

Although Williams has had a few notable flops in the 1990s, among them "Cadillac Man" and "Being Human," five of his films, including "Hook," "Aladdin" and "Jumanji," have each grossed over $100 million domestically, making him one of this country's biggest box-office stars.

"'Jumanji' was exciting," said Midlander Jennifer Humphrey. "I thought it was good."

In "Jumanji," the action is the game. Young Alan Parker is magically transported, before the startled eyes of his friend, Sarah, into the untamed jungles of Jumanji, where he remains for 26 years until he is freed from the game's spell by two unsuspecting children. The four players must try to reach the end of the game and say, Jumanji, before the game captures them.

"And I liked 'Mrs. Doubtfire,'" Miss Humphrey said. "I thought it was funny."

Stephen Bitolas considers himself a Williams fan.

"I really like his work," said Bitolas. "Not only is he a good comedian but a good dramatic actor, very convincing. I have to say 'Good Will Hunting,' he deserved the Academy Award for that one. I think that role just came straight out of his heart."

The language in "Good Will Hunting" spoiled the movie for Mrs. Hunt. "Although I loved his performance, I was disappointed by the bad language. I thought it was totally unnecessary. When every third word is a bad word, it kind of destroys the art for me."

And, despite admiring his comedic genius, Mrs. Hunt's favorite Williams character is the charismatic, idealistic English teacher in "Dead Poet's Society."

"I love 'Dead Poet's Society,'" she said. "I think that's my favorite even though, oddly enough, that's not one of those where he's spinning that comedic talent of his. He's the kind of actor that can say a thousand things with just one expression like in 'Good Will Hunting.'

"In those movies, where he plays a more serious role, he doesn't even need a script. That's an interesting foil to the comedic side of him that is spewing words every which way like the genie in 'Aladdin.'"

Mrs Hunt laughed and asked, "Can you imagine him as your waiter?"

Hummm...

Oh, my.

Quick, while there's still time before the game's afoot, whisper or shout, Jumanji.

THE MOVIE GUYS'

Black Gold Review

By David R. Allen, MC drama instructor, and Tim Jebsen, MCT executive director

A gusher: good to excellent

Dry well: Fair to poor

DAVID: With the rush of summer movies behind us and the dog days of fall upon us, there aren't many worthwhile films opening right now in Midland. That doesn't mean you can't find a good movie to watch. "Cookie's Fortune," a fine film that got lost last spring, recently made its debut at your local video store.

TIM: It's surprising how many good movies our local theatre chain fails to bring to Midland. You would think that with 14 first-run theatres and 8 second-run theatres, we would see more movies that people around the country are seeing. Fortunately, the Century Theatre in Odessa provides Hollywood Theatre with a little competition. "Cookie's Fortune" played this summer at the Century in Odessa, and is now available, on videotape, in Midland.

DAVID: "Cookie's Fortune," directed by Robert Altman and starring Glenn Close, Charles Dutton, Liv Tyler, and a host of wonderful actors, follows the eccentric shenanigans in Holly Springs, Mississippi following the suicide of Jewel Mae "Cookie" Orcutt (Patricia Neal).Upon discovering the body, her niece, Camille (Close) cooks up a story to protect the family name and to claim Cookie's "fortune," a beautiful old house filled with antiques. Although the plot may seem thin, the gentle performances make this movie a delight.

TIM: Aristotle provided us with the original elements of drama — at least for Greek theatre. One of these important elements is character. "Cookie's Fortune" focuses on the characters. This has always been a trademark of Robert Altman films — "The Player", "Nashville" and "Kansas City". Thus, although the plot of "Cookie's Fortune" may be thin, the depth of these characters, and the success of the actors playing these characters, make this movie very worthwhile. Special kudos go out to Charles Dutton, a fine theatre actor turned character movie actor, and Ned Beatty. Both play their parts simply, yet with strength and conviction.

DAVID: Close is nearly perfect as the scheming niece. Charles Dutton is wonderful as Cookie's friend and live-in handyman, Willis Richland. His calm befuddlement at being accused of her murder is at the heart of "Cookie's Fortune's" warm tone. The tone of the movie is best summed up by Deputy Sheriff Lester Boyle (Ned Beatty) when he tells the district attorney that he knows for a fact that Richland didn't commit the murder because "I've gone fishin' with him." So, if you like character-driven movies that show small town America with all its peccadilloes as well as with all its warm neighborliness, go see this gusher. Watching "Cookie's Fortune" will definitely make you a wealthier person.

TIM: I have to agree with you on this one - "Cookie's Fortune" is a winner for a video rental. Two gushers.

DR. PAGE

Deep-seated problem can be solved in the end

By Henry F. Page, M.D.

Dear Reader: If perchance thou art outrageously delicate and sensitive to the seamy side of life, read no further because we are about to discuss a deep seated problem that involves 75 percent of Americans at one time or another — namely hemorrhoids.

Page

A large number of people older than 50 require some type of therapy for this condition, which while harmless is bothersome and sometimes painfully disabling. For example, George Brett, that all-pro third baseman, was forced to withdraw from a World Series game because of inflamed "piles."

Personally, I remember a patient who survived a prolonged episode of double pneumonia at home in pre-antibiotic days, and in follow-up a year later thanked me profusely and with great emotion for my wonderful care. On inquiry as to why so fervent he replied, "You removed my hemorrhoids (done for comfort during convalescence)."

Hemorrhoids are engorgement and dilation of veins normally occurring above and below the ano-rectal juncture, and are termed internal or external depending on which side of the line they lie. They frequently thrombose — that is swell with clotted blood sometimes the size of grapes — and can become exquisitely tender. They may cause the emissions of small amounts of bright red blood, which if noted, particularly in persons over 50, warrants investigation for other possible bowel pathology. Straining at stool can push a hemorrhoid through the anal opening, causing a prolapse that aches or itches.

Since hemorrhoid veins have no valves, they are vulnerable to heavy lifting and straining, which causes the above-mentioned dilatation. At least we older folk don't have to worry about pregnancy!

In diagnosis, internal hemorrhoids cannot be felt digitally, so a proctoscopic exam is necessary. External ones are open to public scrutiny, depicted as rose-buds or grapes. If problems persist, both colonscope and X-rays are indicated.

Treatment consists of the addition of fibrous food softeners to the diet, thus reducing strain. If one protrudes, push it back and apply local analgesic for temporary relief.

The physician can tie tiny rubber bands around the base of internal hemorrhoids, causing them to shrink and shrivel. Warm sitz baths (soaking in warm water three or four times daily) bring considerable relief. Coagulation with infra-red lights or bi-polar electricity is accepted therapy, but the results are not any better, just more expensive.

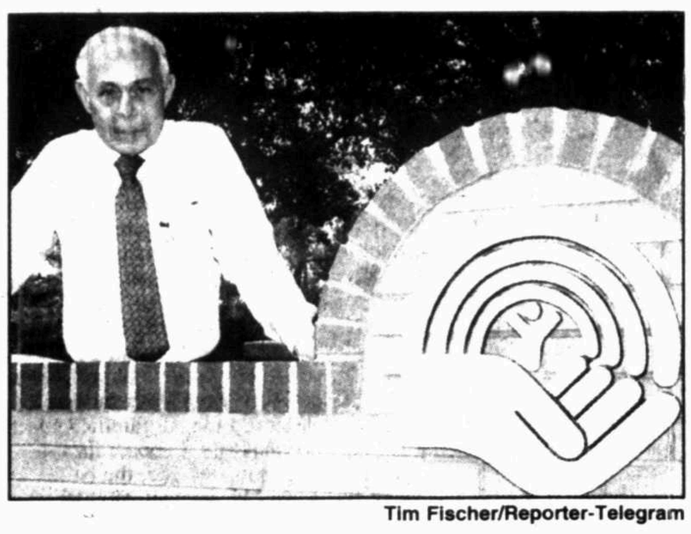

Actually, the old tired and true surgical hemorrhoidectomy may be the most effective therapy, but does demonstrate the need for post operation analgesics.

Thanks to the dramatic advances in modern medicine with reports of improvement mounting up pile upon pile, it is not longer necessary for life to have a painful end.

'Retirement' does not compute

By Lana Cunningham

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Percy Symonette, 66, doesn't believe in retirement. Instead, after already serving in two careers, he has started a new one with Midland's United Way.

Percy Symonette doesn't believe in "retirement." He prefers to "change jobs." After two careers in state and federal government, the Florida native selected Midland as the site for his next career and moved here in late 1993.

It wasn't long before he was launched into the limitless field of volunteerism, and now has worked his way into a part-time job at United Way of Midland.

"This has been the most enjoyable time in my life," Symonette said of his life in Midland. What he discovered was that Midland people are "caring, sharing, giving, friendly and warm. Everybody has the time to at least be an acquaintance, if not a friend."

He had spent 20 years in the U.S. Air Force and was winding up 20 years in the Governor's Office when he picked Midland as the place for his next address. "I didn't have a long-range plan for retirement. I was simply going to change jobs," he said of plans to do consulting work for the city of Midland. However, the consulting job didn't materialize.

"I found I had time to do volunteer jobs, and I discovered how much I enjoyed it. The constraints I'd had before (as a state employee) didn't exist anymore. Suddenly," he added with a slight smile, "I had the freedom to do whatever I wanted to do, and to serve the community."

That service began at First Presbyterian Church, which he had joined, with the construction of easels for the new Arts and Crafts Program. Then he worked on a house with Habitat for Humanity and later volunteered with the church's Christmas in April project.

"I wouldn't call myself skilled," Symonette said of his woodworking skills. "But I understand all the principles."

He shifted over to St. Andrews' Presbyterian Mission where he drew on his auditing background to work on the accounts payable once a week.

"There are a couple of other things I'm proud of," he said, listing his election as a deacon at First Presbyterian Church; his membership on the Midland Presbyterian Corporate Ministry board, which coordinates activities of the three Presbyterian churches; and his appointment to the City Crime Prevention Commission.

He also found romance in Midland and now is married to the former Carole Burrow.

Along the way, he met Linda Foster, who was serving as chairman for the United Way campaign three years ago. She talked Symonette into volunteering as a Loaned Executive. With a background in state and federal government, he was placed in charge of what is called the State and Federal Campaigns.

When he talks to these groups of employees, which can be anywhere in a 10-county area, Symonette speaks from experience. "Their biggest complaint is they don't think they make enough money to contribute." He knows what it's like to live on their salaries. He did it for 40 years.

Symonette grew up in Miami and, after receiving his draft notice, opted to join the U.S. Air Force. Instead of serving a few years, he made a 20-year career of it. During those years, he studied accounting at various colleges and worked as an auditor. He was stationed in England, Holland and Vietnam and also served at bases in the States ranging from one coast to the other. Upon returning from a year in Saigon, he was asked where he wanted to be assigned. Symonette, laughing today about it, recalled listing several sites along the East and Gulf coasts. What came back was a list that included none of his choices, but cities in places like North Dakota. He opted for the best choice on that list — Austin.

"I remember my biggest pleasure came the day I drove into Austin and said, 'Wow, this place has trees.' And I remember the beauty of the place." Austin then was the home of about 200,000 people; today, it has grown to more than 600,000.

Symonette retired from the Air Force in 1973, but his accounting background lead him to the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice. "I started as an auditor, then went into program management and, finally, worked as administrator for the federal grant program."

Unknown to him, that state role would guide him to Midland and the United Way. "I traveled the state extensively," and that included many trips to West Texas. Compared to Austin, Symonette decided he would like the open spaces. While working with organizations applying fo justice grants from his depar ment, he learned much abo agencies also affiliated with Uni ed Way, such as the Rape Cris Center and Battered Women Center (now Safe Place). Worl ing under four governors (Dolp Briscoe, Bill Clements, Mar White and Ann Richards), he al learned to be a diplomat.

His assignment to the Feder and State Employee Feder Campaigns was a perfect f according to Cindy Benson, Un ed Way's executive directo "With his experience in gover ment, Percy is such a compleme to our team," she said.

When the campaign end Symonette's work isn't ove "Percy works through all t paperwork these governmen require," said Ms. Benson of h work distributing the funds to a the designated agencies. "H doesn't leave anything out. H dots all the i's and crosses all t t's. Last year, his region poste the largest increase in the sta employee campaign."

Last month, after being cour ed for two years, he final agreed to take the part-time pos tion at United Way. He cited thr reasons for officially going bac to work: "The mission of t United Way; the people I wo with; and the way in which t community embraces Unite Way."

Symonette said he often asked why he would leave Aust for Midland, especially when h had no family here: a daught lives in Lubbock and another the Florida Panhandle. "I like t quiet, the tranquility, the feelin of openness as opposed to Austi which has grown much too rapi ly for me. It's not even a plea ant place to visit."

The young 66-year-old cor fessed he hated the label "senior.

"It implies you've finishe your productive years. I want t feel I'm still very productive."

Could this be the start of a 2(year career for United Way? h was asked. "Sounds good t me," came the reply.

Red Cross worker buried 54 years after disappearance

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP) — The last of the 82 Red Cross workers lost in World War II was buried here last month, more than a half-century after she disappeared in the South Pacific.

Harriet Gowen, a 28-year-old Stillwater native, was last seen alive when she went on a May 1945 joyride with Lt. Harold Wurtz, a young pilot from Dearborn, Mich. Both were stationed at a U.S. base in New Guinea.

The plane crashed in a once-inaccessible swamp and jungle only five miles from the base. A Minnesota father-and-son team — intrigued by wartime crash mysteries — provided definitive proof of the Americans' fate when they inspected the wreckage two years ago. Natives hunting wild pigs had earlier stumbled upon the airplane's tail in the now-dry swamp.

An Army forensics team recoverd the remains of Gowen and Wurtz last year. Remains known to belong to Wurtz were buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Jan George, chief executive of St. Croix Valley chapter of Red Cross, said Gowen's burial means that all of the service agency's World War II casualties will have been laid to rest.

The Red Cross sent Gowen to New Guinea in 1945, where she organized recreation for troops stationed on the island, now called Papua New Guinea.

So, You Want HEALTHY TREES?....
The '99 Fall Season is upon us and with it comes an opportunity to do good things for Tree Health Care. Certified Arborist Arlen Fisher says that when the dormancy reaction occurs, growth systems within the plant turn to root production, to the extent that there is actually a hyper growth period. Generally speaking, trees and shrubs produce the majority of their non-woody root extension during dormancy. Application of winterizer, with much needed potassium will maximize this root development & assist your trees at surviving a cold winter & long stressful West Texas summer.
Further, Fisher states that out of over 2,500 "sicktree" call outs this year alone, over 80% of the disease & insect invasions were directly related to "poor Tree Health." (Lack of water, poor nutrition improper pruning, etc...)

FAMILY MATTERS

ADD can affect child's social, academic life

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: My son is in the second grade at (elementary school), and his teacher thinks that he has ADD (Attention Deficit Disorder). She wants me to have him tested, but I wanted to ask you what you thought first.

May

He has always been a very active boy. He's done fine in school for a boy, but he does talk a lot in class. His first-grade teacher was wonderful and worked with us to help him do better. His new teacher complains that he talks out in class and bothers the other children. He does talk all the time and is always doing something, but I think there are a lot of boys like that.

He has lots of friends and I think he's very popular in the class. I will agree that his work is pretty sloppy sometimes and he does lose his work. I am trying to help him with getting more organized but he's not too interested.

Do you think we should have him tested or just ask to move him to another class? TO TEST OR NOT TO TEST

DEAR TEST: Based on what his teacher has observed, I believe you should have your son tested for ADD. If he is tested properly by a qualified clinician — preferably a clinical psychologist, psychiatrist, or pediatrician — you can have confidence in the results.

Many articles and research journals warn of over-diagnosis of ADD that lend support to your concerns. However, if a child does have ADD and goes undiagnosed, he or she often has frustrating and difficult educational and social experiences.

The diagnostic criteria for ADD in children includes some of the observations your son's teacher has made. Also, read about ADD to educate yourself to the disorder and its characteristics. One of my favorite books on the subject is "Driven to Distraction," by Drs. Edward Hallowell and John Ratey. In addition to describing the disorder, they give suggestions on coping with and managing ADD. These options include (but are not limited to) medication, behavioral modification, family therapy, coaching and remedial education.

In my work with many ADD children and their families, I have learned that the sooner the correct diagnosis is made, the better. So often there is confusion between those behaviors that are due to the biological malfunctioning of the brain and acting out. A complex and adversarial relationship is often created between the child and parents, teachers, and siblings, which can lead to an angry child who seems to have little interest in cooperating with anyone.

I believe that ADD can destroy the spirit of the child, as people tend to focus on all the things he or she does wrong. I like Dr. Hallowell and Dr. Ratey's metaphor of ADD of being "nearsighted" as a handicap that can be overcome. It is no one's fault. Parents must encourage and help their children overcome the handicap, instead of add to it.

DEAR FAMILY: Just a quick note on what you might have told "The Unknown Wife" whose husband never bought her birthday, Christmas or anniversary presents.

My husband used to be that way, so I just stopped buying him anything. I told him just what he told me: "Just go get yourself what you want." I stopped giving him any cards just like he did me.

It took about one year, but he did notice that I had stopped doing for him too. Then he appreciated what I had been doing for him the first time in his life and started giving me really nice cards and presents. I was so pleased that I responded back. We've never been happier. A KNOWN WIFE.

DEAR ABBY

Buckle up kids in airplanes too

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter from the Los Angeles plastic surgeon regarding facial disfigurement of children who are allowed to stand in a moving car, may I add my 2 cents' worth?

Van Buren

I am a flight attendant for a major airline, and while the captain does not usually "jam on the brakes," we DO hit unexpected turbulence. Planes can drop 500 feet in a matter of seconds. Guess where a small child who's not in a seat-belt goes? To the ceiling!

I write this out of sheer frustration with uneducated — or perhaps lazy — parents. The FAA does not mandate that a child UNDER the age of 2 be in his or her own seat. This is shameful and absurd.

We, the flight crew, are required to ensure that all carry-on luggage is safely stowed, yet our most precious cargo, these little human beings, can be on an adult's lap.

I applaud parents who pay the extra money and purchase a seat for the child, and extra kudos when they bring along a car seat. If there is an extra seat available, I ALWAYS move other passengers so "lap baby" can have his or her own seat, explaining to parents that it is safer. Guess what? They give me a blank stare and say: "Oh, she won't sit still in her own seat. She'll cry. I'll just hold her."

Let me offer this graphic thought: Parents, if the plane DOES crash and your baby is on your lap, the baby becomes a human air bag for you. Your baby will die instantly. I had a passenger tearfully tell me that this happened to her. She is now crippled, and her only child (who would be 9 now) was killed.

I urge all parents and grandparents to write to Congress and insist that every passenger — even babies — be in a seat.

The FAA's argument that families will not pay for the extra seat because the cost is prohibitive is unfounded. Most airlines offer a lower rate for children.

The FAA says that people will turn to driving, which will cause more road accidents. This is conjecture.

I know this letter is long, but please pass along this important message. Believe me, it will be clipped by thousands of airline crews and shown to passengers. — A CONCERNED FLIGHT ATTENDANT

DEAR CONCERNED: You have issued a chilling warning to the parents of small children, and I sincerely hope it's one that will be heeded.

A plane hitting an air pocket and suddenly losing altitude is not something we hear about every day. However, I recall that it happened to Air Force One a year or so ago, and to a commercial flight just this month — so it's something that should be taken very seriously.

ALL passengers should stay buckled up while they are in their seats.

DEAR ABBY: I have been involved with a nice gentleman for more than a year now. I'm a single parent and own my own home.

My problem is that he still lives with his ex-wife and children. He says that because of the child-support payments he has been unable to get a place of his own. I love him very much and suggested he move in with me — but he never responded. This has stressed our relationship.

Abby, should I continue to wait for him, or should I cut the ties? He's told me for more than a year that he's been looking for a place of his own, but his pride won't let him move "just anywhere." He says, "Be patient — good things come to those who wait." — J.Y.V., TAMPA, FLA.

DEAR J.Y.V.: Perhaps, but not always. I vote to cut the ties. I strongly suspect that the "nice gentleman" you are involved with is still married.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447.

Law protects elderly, disabled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Criminals who prey on the elderly or disabled would face stiffer penalties under legislation signed by Gov. Bob Taft.

"There are so many people out there who are trying to financially exploit the elderly," Taft said after signing the bill into law recently. "We need to send a strong message that we don't want that here in Ohio. If you do that, prey on the elderly, you are going to face some very serious consequences that could mean substantial time in prison."

The law prohibits using deception or intimidation to try to obtain for personal gain the money, assets or property of a person 65 or older, or who has a physical or mental disability

China's foreign minister turns press conference into lecture

NEW YORK (AP) — Even as the Clinton administration sought to improve relations, China on Thursday condemned a widening U.S. inquiry into allegations of nuclear espionage and insisted anew that NATO intentionally bombed the Chinese Embassy in Yugoslavia.

Turning a joint news conference with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright into a public lecture, Foreign Minister Tang Jiaxuan said he hoped the United States would take ''effective measures'' on the bombing.

Ms. Albright seemed at a loss to counter Tang's rejection of the U.S. explanation that the embassy bombing was a mistake. ''I must say it's difficult when one is giving the true explanation for a situation when the other side does not accept it,'' she said.

Tang also assailed the president of Taiwan, Lee Teng-hui, as a troublemaker for trying to promote a special state-to-state relationship with China.

''We hope the United States will face the dangerous nature of his separatist remarks squarely and do nothing to puff him up,'' Tang said. ''For instance, no arms should be sold to Taiwan.''

The Chinese official's jabs at the news conference with Ms. Albright contrasted with announcement in Washington of a renewed effort to bring China into the World Trade Organization and Albright's own emphasis on U.S.-Chinese cooperation on East Timor, North Korea and in Asia generally.

The United States last month gave China $4.5 million in compensation intended for the families of the three people killed and 27 injured in the bombing, which occurred May 7 during NATO's conflict with Yugoslavia that forced Serb troops and special police out of Kosovo.

''I can only repeat the true story that it was a mistake and make very clear how sorry we are about it,'' Ms. Albright said. State Department lawyers will be sent to Beijing to discuss compensation for the damage and also for damage caused by demonstrations against the U.S. Embassy in the Chinese capital, she said.

The two then met for 90 minutes and Tang did not repeat his accusation privately to Ms. Albright, a senior U.S. official said. Indeed, Tang and Ms. Albright agreed there was a need to build up momentum toward stronger ties, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The trade talks will be held in Washington on Monday and Tuesday, with U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky and Chinese Trade Minister Shi Guangsheng heading the delegations.

House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, welcomed the news, although he and Senate Majority leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., said this week there was little or no chance that Congress would vote this year for China's admission to the 134-nation WTO.

''When these negotiations are completed, I look forward to working hard, on behalf of the Chinese people, to ensure congressional approval of WTO accession,'' Armey said Thursday in a statement.

Tang took the offensive in an opening statement at the news conference, even before reporters asked him about the spy inquiry and the embassy bombing.

While there are opportunities in the U.S.-Chinese relationship, he said, ''there are obstructions that should not exist.''

Then, in response to a question, he rejected as ''extremely irresponsible and false'' any allegations the Chinese may have obtained secret information about the design of the most advanced U.S. nuclear warhead, the W-88.

Attorney General Janet Reno and FBI Director Louis J. Freeh have expanded an inquiry that was centered on mishandling of classified material at the Los Alamos National Laboratory.

Tang also lit into the United States over its explanation that the embassy bombing was a mistake.

''We cannot accept the explanation,'' he said.

Tang welcomed moves by the United States to compensate the families of the victims, but he insisted ''the United States is obligated to offer a more satisfactory explanation.''

Faulty maps and other errors were said by the United States to be the reason for the attack.

George C. Scott dies at age 71

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George C. Scott, the forbidding-looking, gravel-voiced actor who turned in an Oscar-winning performance as the profane and patriotic Gen. George S. Patton then declined the honor, has died at 71.

Scott died Wednesday of a ruptured abdominal aortic aneurysm at his home 40 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

With his imperious presence, curled lip, animated eyebrows and the broken-nose profile of a Roman consul, Scott seemed born to play the role of the legendary World War II general in ''Patton'' in 1970.

But his memorable roles also included Gen. Buck Turgidson, the fatuous blowhard in Stanley Kubrick's ''Dr. Strangelove''; the pool-hall bookie who menaces Paul Newman in ''The Hustler''; the high-powered ringer who worked to destroy small-town lawyer James Stewart in ''Anatomy of a Murder''; and the dedicated doctor surrounded by incompetence in ''The Hospital.''

''He made every actor proud to say that they were in the same profession,'' said actor Jack Lemmon.

Scott dismissed moviemaking as tedious and said he only made films for the money. ''I have to work in the theater to stay sane,'' he once said.

He made his Broadway debut in ''Comes a Day'' in 1958, quickly earning his first of four Tony nominations. The others were for ''The Andersonville Trial'' in 1959, ''Uncle Vanya'' in 1974 and ''Death of a Salesman'' in 1975.

He also won three Emmys — the most recent last year as a supporting actor in a remake of ''12 Angry Men'' — and was nominated for four Oscars.

It was the award he wouldn't accept, the Oscar for ''Patton,'' that cemented his reputation as a Hollywood outsider.

He had been nominated for ''Anatomy of a Murder'' in 1959 and said nothing about it. But then he tried to decline the nomination for ''The Hustler'' in 1962, calling the Academy Awards a meaningless popularity contest.

When he was nominated for ''Patton,'' he again tried to drop out, dismissing the awards as a ''meat parade.''

Despite his very public snub, Scott was nominated the following year for ''The Hospital.'' He didn't win.

In private life, Scott was a bellicose drinker whose nose was broken five times in four barroom brawls and one mugging. He was married five times — twice to actress Colleen Dewhurst.

Interviewers told of meeting a loud, intimidating man who could be friendly one moment and dismiss a question as idiotic the next.

When he appeared in the play ''Plaza Suite'' in 1968, co-star Maureen Stapleton reportedly told director Mike Nichols at rehearsal: ''I'm so frightened of George, I don't know what to do.''

''My dear,'' Nichols replied, ''the whole world is frightened of George.''

The actress, contacted Thursday, said she was too shocked by the news to talk about him.

Born in Wise, Va., on Oct. 18, 1927, Scott was raised in Detroit. After joining the Marines in 1945, too late for action in World War II, he spent the next four years burying the dead at Arlington by day and boozing at night.

''You can't look at that many widows in veils and hear that many taps without taking to drink,'' he once said.

After the Marines, he enrolled at the University of Missouri, intending to become a journalist. But he was captivated by acting after he tried out for a school play.

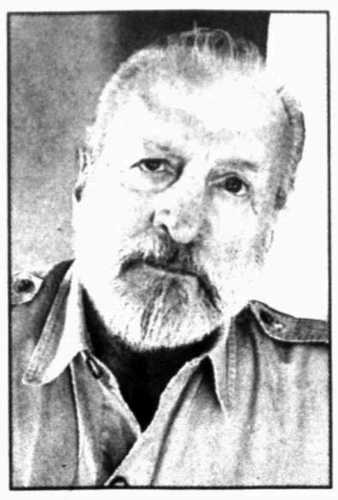

''I'll never forget that day,'' he said in 1985. ''I was terrified when I went on, and I was certain I'd been terrible.'' Then, as he was leaving the stage, the head of the drama department approached and said, ''You're good. Where have you been?''

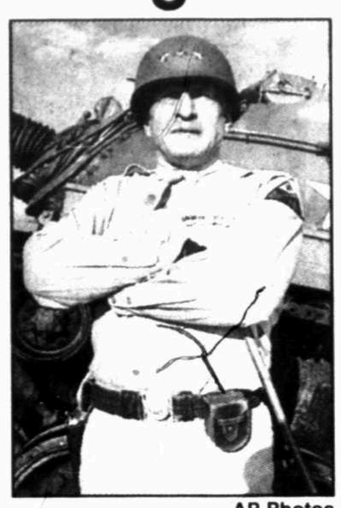

He later came to the attention of Joseph Papp, the impresario of the New York Shakespeare Festival. In rapid succession in 1957-58, he appeared in ''Richard III,'' ''As You Like It'' and ''Children of Darkness.''

For his work in all three productions he received the off-Broadway best actor Obie.

Marriages to Carolyn Hughes and Patricia Reed produced two daughters, Victoria and Devon, and a son, Matthew. Scott also acknowledged a child born out of wedlock during his school years.

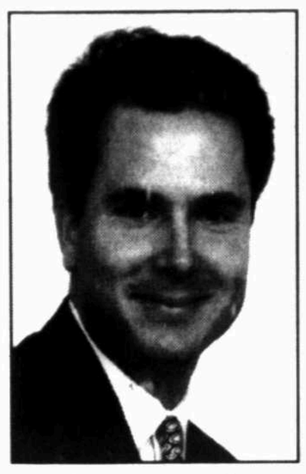

He met Ms. Dewhurst when they appeared together in ''Children of Darkness'' and they were married in 1960, divorced in 1965, remarried in 1967 and divorced in 1972. They had two sons, Alexander and Campbell, who is an actor. Scott then married actress Trish Van Devere in 1972.

Actor George C. Scott, seen in a 1996 file photo, left, and as Gen. George S. Patton, the role he portrayed in the 1970 film, "Patton," died Wednesday. He was 71.

3-0 Bulldogs face toughest test yet

Mustangs bring bruising fullback to face MHS 'D'

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

Two 3-0 squads will put their perfect records on the line at 7:30 p.m. tonight as Midland High will host Lubbock Coronado at Memorial Stadium.

4-5A Standings

	District W	District L	Overall W	Overall L
Midland High	0	0	3	0
Midland Lee	0	0	3	0
Abilene High	0	0	3	1
Odessa High	0	0	3	1
Abilene Cooper	0	0	2	1
Odessa Permian	0	0	1	2

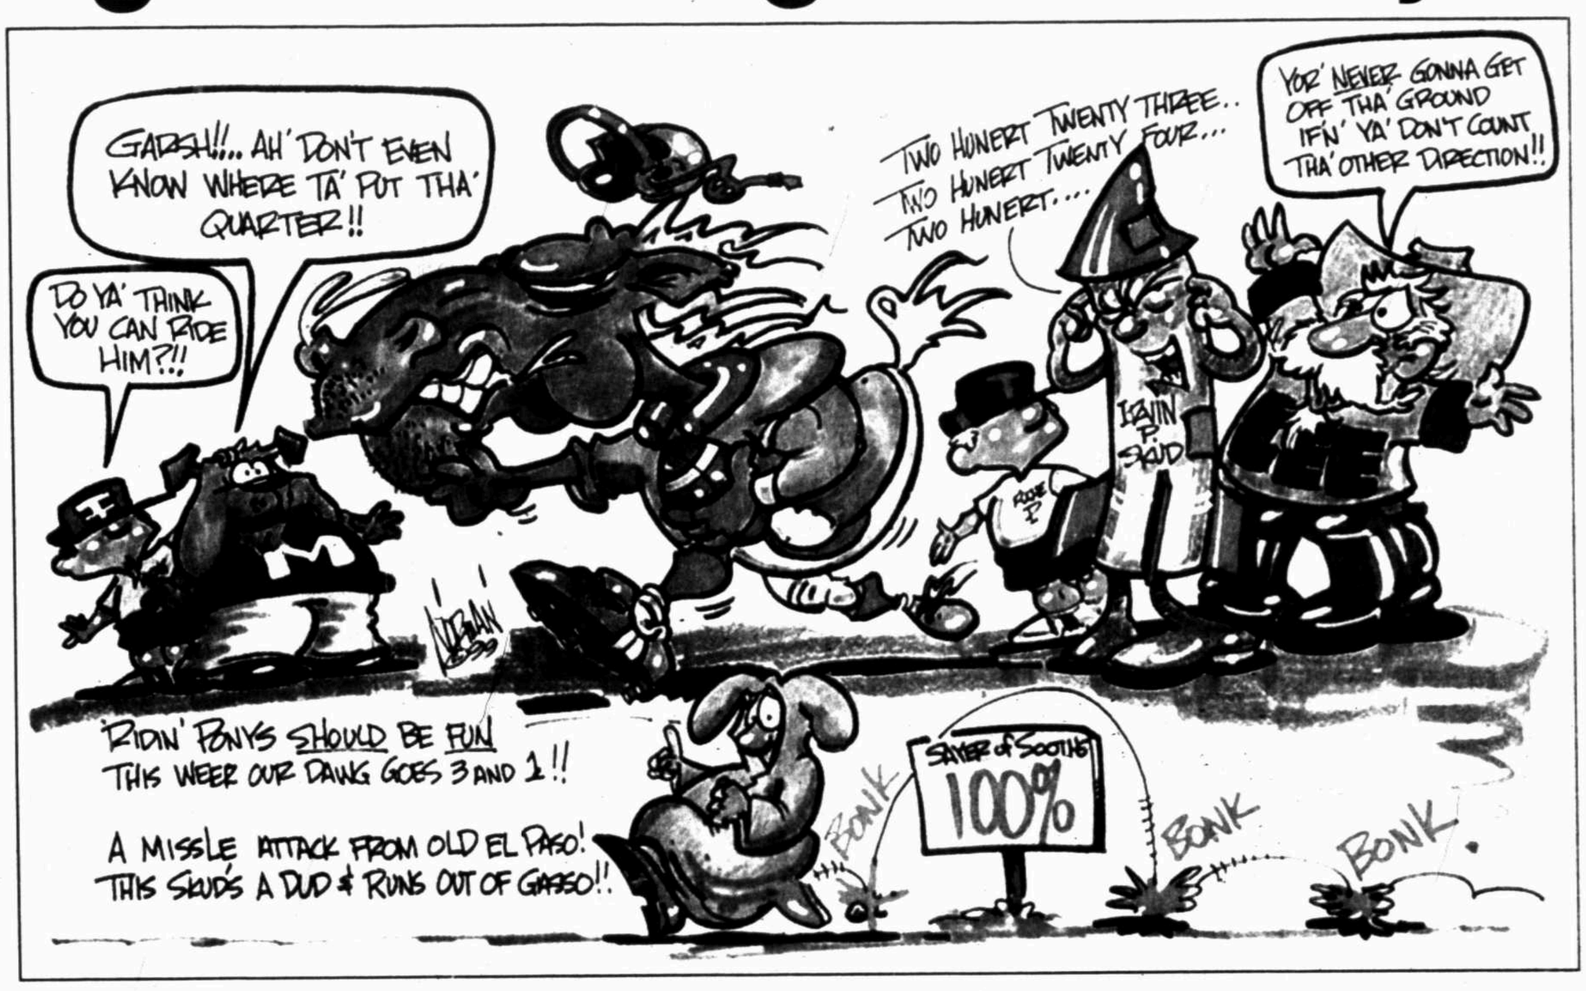

For the Bulldogs to come out of this head-knocker with a fourth win, they will have to win the ground game. Against the Mustangs, that means stopping running back Quentin Shields.

Before the season, the MHS defense was called the best in David Browning's four years as head coach of the Bulldogs.

To this point in the season, the "Dawg D" has lived up to the early billing, leading the District 4-5A in most major categories.

Stopping Coronado's Shields, though, will be its biggest challenge to date.

Midland fans get bonus football this weekend

Double Dip Weekend. Two for the price of two.

By now you've got the high school football shakes since Midland High and Midland Lee were both off roaming the state last weekend.

Williamson

But they make up for it this weekend with MHS hosting Lubbock Coronado at 7:30 p.m. today and Lee taking on El Paso Irvin at 2 p.m. Saturday. Old Memorial Stadium is back.

In addition to double dipping, this has been a long anticipated weekend. We should have a lot more answers about Midland High after this week. If you could pick one game to see on the Bulldogs' pre-district schedule at the beginning of the year, this would be the pick.

Coronado has become an annual playoff team from 3-5A and comes into this game without a loss as does Midland High.

Off the Road Again: The Rebels leave Willie Nelson this week. The Rebels don't leave the Permian Basin again until the state playoffs. They have only two road trips, both to Odessa, left in regular season play. That's quite a contrast to last year when the Rebels traveled close to 6,000 miles to win a state championship.

Life in the Rough Lane: MHS tailback Tony Joseph had to be thinking that 5A football was a piece of cake. In his first game, he had over 200 yards rushing. In Game 2, he had over 100 yards rushing. But he was held to 44 yards against Lubbock Monterey last week, the first sub-100 yard rushing night of his young career. Just relax, Tony, it happens to all of them. In fact, Lee's Cedric Benson is the district's only back to crack at least 100 yards in all three of his outings this year.

Another First: When Odessa Permian fell to Amarillo High last Friday, it set another 4-5A record. It was the first time ever that every team in the district won when Permian lost. It almost happened in 1994's Week 3 when Permian lost and every other team won, except San Angelo, which ended up tying Temple.

Last week this corner was 5-1 in the 4-5A picking game, bringing the overall record to 14-4 (.778). Here's how it goes down on Double Dip Weekend.

Lubbock Coronado 21, Midland High 20: This is the measuring stick MHS has been waiting for. Coronado, one of the top two teams of District 3-5A, is stout, but MHS owns an overall 3-2 record against the Mustangs and has never lost at home to Coronado. Bet on a great game. One team won't be undefeated when this game is over.

Midland Lee 50, El Paso Irvin 7: This is the second of three games the Rockets have against 4-5A teams and they have already tumbled hard to Permian. They have Midland High at home next week. It will be a heavy price to pay.

Temple 28, Odessa Permian 21: A three-game losing streak for old Mojo? Permian's 4-5A stock has certainly slipped over the past two weeks, but the Panthers could right the ship with a win here. But Permian is 1-2 overall against Temple.

Odessa High 24, El Paso Franklin 21: OHS is 2-0 against Franklin, but won only by a 12-2 margin last year at home. This game has the smell of an upset, but the Bronchos survive.

Abilene High 22, San Angelo Central 20: The Bobkitties own a huge 24-12-2 lead since 1961, in this series that started in 1938. But the Eagles have won the last four meetings, including 28-15 last year. This is the longest winning streak for AHS against San Angelo since the Eagles won eight in a row from 1951 to 1958.

Big Bombers open ASA national tourney with win

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

The first day of the ASA Men's Class D National Slow Pitch Softball Tournament at the Bill Williams Complex Thursday featured a split decision for the Midland teams, but the impact of the Tall City on the softball scene was most definitely felt.

One Midland team, the Big Bombers, will move on in today's winners' bracket after a late rally gave them a 12-9 victory over Big Daddy's Buzzards of Kokomo, Ind. The other Midland team, A-1 Embroidery/Miller Lite, fell victim to a seventh inning rally to lose to Galyan's Browbeat of Schaumburg, Ill. 13-11.

That Midland is able to host such a prestigious tournament featuring 89 teams from across the country was recognized in the opening ceremonies prior to the beginning of competition. The Midland Softball Hall of Fame inducted three new members who have helped the sport grow in the city to the point where it is hosting its 19th national tournament in the last 20 years.

Bobby Watson and Bruce Madison, past presidents of the Midland Softball Association, were inducted into the local hall, along with veteran umpire Junior Tryon. Watson, for one, was surprised by the ceremonies.

"We were told we were coming in here to honor somebody else," Watson said.

Madison was president of the MSA in 1979 followed by Watson in 1980. The two were teammates back in '80 on a Midland team which won the Class A state championship in Midland.

Watson and Madison started playing in Midland in the early 1970s, and they helped convince other players in the area that the sport could grow and that two extra fields could be built at Bill Williams to accommodate national tournaments.

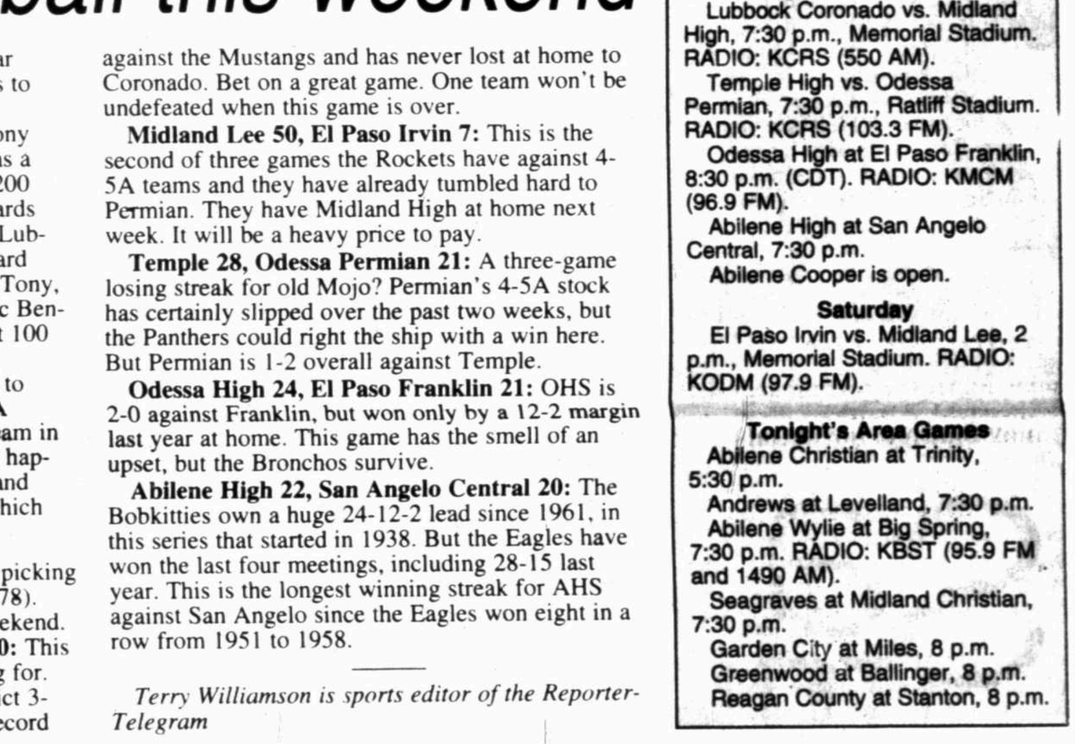

"It's a real surprise," said Madison of the honor. "I'm real proud of it because Bobby and I worked real hard to help get this going."

While Madison and Watson were busy playing on the field and in later years organizing things

By Doug Ferguson
AP Golf Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. — The Ryder Cup captains unwittingly gave everyone the pairing they wanted to see — Tiger Woods and Sergio Garcia — even though the two youngest and brightest stars in golf will have some company.

Woods will be paired with Tom Lehman and the 19-year-old Spanish sensation will be joined by Jesper Parnevik in the second of four alternate-shot matches that kick off the 33rd Ryder Cup on Friday morning at The Country Club.

The pairings were publicly announced during the opening ceremony Thursday afternoon, and drew the loudest cheer of all.

Woods, who held off Garcia by one stroke to win the PGA Championship, shrugged it off.

"It's not 1-on-1. It's alternate shot, and you only hit half the shots," he said.

The buzz that pairing will bring wasn't lost on Lehman or U.S. captain Ben Crenshaw.

"Even though it's a team format, Sergio and Tiger going at is a golf fan's dream," said Lehman, who was surprised to be paired with Woods since they had not played together all week.

The pairings process is a blind draw, with Cren-

Texas Tech's Dykes takes heat from fans after loss

By Chris Newton
Associated Press Writer

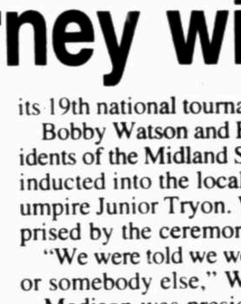

LUBBOCK — Some fans are calling for coach Spike Dykes' job. Others are calling for much worse. Unless Dykes somehow guides Texas Tech through the stormy waters of Big 12 play, the longtime coach could find himself out of work.

The outlook has never been more grim for Dykes, who was born in Lubbock and has never looked to leave since he became the Red Raiders' head coach after the 1986 regular season.

Tech lost to North Texas last weekend — a 32-point underdog and a team that lost its first two games by a total of 75 points — and now must prepare to take on No. 5 Texas A&M after a bye week.

"You're always worried when you lose a game you feel you should have won," Dykes said this week. "The buck stops here. I take full responsibility. I know what people are saying."

Some fans are having no trouble holding Dykes accountable.

"He's a coach at a major university and he isn't getting the job done," said fan Jeff Ellis, while watching replays of the team's collapse against the Eagles at a local sports bar. "I love the guy, I really do, but it's time for a change. We can't keep him just because we think he's a nice guy."

In his 13 years at Tech, Dykes has racked up a 77-63-1 record to become the winningest coach in school history, surpassing the 76-32-6 mark of Pete Cawthon in 11 seasons from 1930-40.

In 1994, Dykes directed the Red Raiders to a five-way tie for first in the Southwest Confer-

Jones' shot helps Braves finish off 3-0 sweep of Mets

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Almost single-handedly, Chipper Jones may have finished off the New York Mets in the NL East.

Jones, his MVP credentials growing by the day, hit his fourth homer in three games, a three-run shot in the fifth inning that helped the Atlanta Braves complete a sweep of New York with a 6-3 victory Thursday.

The Braves, who began the series with a scant one-game advantage in the East, now lead the second-place Mets by four games with only nine to play. The teams have three more games next week at Shea Stadium.

Cincinnati, which was off Thursday, trails the Mets by only two games in the wild-card race.

Jones hit a pair of solo homers Tuesday night, accounting for both Atlanta runs in a 2-1 victory, and added a two-run shot in Wednesday's 5-2 victory.

In the final game of the series, the Braves trailed 2-1 in the fifth when Jones batted with two runners aboard and one out. Al Leiter (11-12) tried to sneak a low fastball over the outside corner, but Jones sent it over the centerfield wall for his 45th homer of the season.

Jones has seven homers and 14 RBIs in 29 at-bats against the Mets this season. He is hitting .448 (13-for-29), helping the Braves win seven of the nine meetings.

Greg Maddux (19-8) pitched seven innings and moved with one victory of his first 20-win season since 1993. John Rocker pitched the ninth for his 36th save.

Brewers 11, Phillies 6

MILWAUKEE — Ron Belliard homered and drove in four runs and Jeromy Burnitz drew four walks and scored each time for the Milwaukee Brewers in a sloppy victory over Philadelphia.

Jason Bere (4-0) won for the first time since joining the Brewers on Sept. 7. He began the season with Cincinnati but was released Aug. 4 with a 3-0 record and 6.85 ERA.

■ MLB Roundup

Mike Grace (1-4) was tagged for eight runs and eight hits in four-plus innings. He issued four of Philadelphia's nine walks.

Marlins 2, Expos 1

MIAMI — Rookie A.J. Burnett won his second straight start and the Florida Marlins beat the Montreal Expos.

Burnett (4-2) gave up one run and seven hits in seven innings, striking out six in his longest stint in the majors. Antonio Alfonseca pitched the ninth for his 19th save in 23 chances.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Athletics 9, Orioles 6
Orioles 12, Athletics 4

BALTIMORE — Albert Belle hit four doubles and Derrick May homered in a five-run fourth inning as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Oakland Athletics 12-4 Thursday night to gain a split of their doubleheader.

In the opener, Miguel Tejada hit a tiebreaking homer in the eighth and the A's ended the Orioles' 13-game winning streak with a 9-6 victory.

Matt Stairs and Randy Velarde homered in the nightcap for the A's, who moved within 4 1/2 games of Boston in the AL wild-card race.

Stairs, Ben Grieve and Mike Macfarlane homered in the opener for Oakland.

Belle hit his 36th home run in the opener and for an encore tied a major league record with four doubles in a game for a second time. But Baltimore failed in its bid to tie the franchise record of 14 straight wins, set in 1973.

The doubleheader was a makeup of two games washed out last week by Hurricane Floyd. The A's traveled from Oakland and will m on to Texas on Friday; the Orioles, who came from Texas, left for Boston after the doubleheader.

Yankees 5, White Sox 2

NEW YORK — Roger Clemens won consecutive starts for the first time in nearly three months and Tino Martinez hit a two-run homer as New York clinched no worse than a tie for a playoff berth with a win over Chicago.

The Yankees, who have won eight of nine, need one win or an Oakland loss to make the postseason for the fifth straight year.

New York took a five-game lead in the AL East over Boston.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 5

BOSTON — Tony Batista hit a two-run double in the ninth inning as Toronto rallied to beat Boston.

Rod Beck (0-1) started the ninth for the Red Sox and gave up two singles before Batista doubled to right-center, scoring Homer Bush and Shawn Green.

Brian McRae added an RBI groundout to make it 7-5 and make a winner of David Wells (15-10).

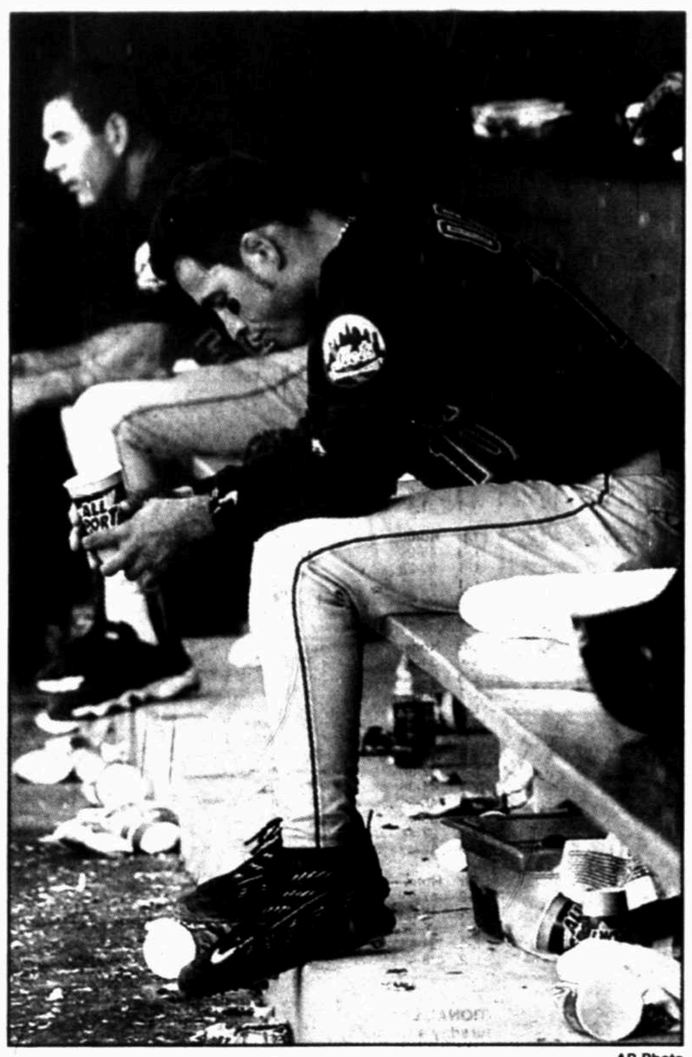

The Blue Jays avoided elimination in the AL playoff chase. One more loss or one Boston win will finish them.

Tigers 7, Indians 5

DETROIT — Tony Clark and Juan Encarnacion each had two RBIs to help Detroit beat Cleveland 7-5 and earn a split of the four-game series.

Roberto Alomar, Travis Fryman, Wil Cordero and Jim Thome homered for the Indians.

Charles Nagy (17-10) gave up six runs on 10 hits with four walks and four strikeouts in five-plus innings.

Ellis isn't making 'Boys regret draft

■ 1998 first-round pick is paying off during early part of '99 season.

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Two weeks into their sophomore seasons, Greg Ellis has more touchdowns for the Dallas Cowboys than Randy Moss has for the Minnesota Vikings.

That's notable because Ellis, a defensive end, is still viewed by many as the player the Cowboys took instead of sensational pass catcher Moss with the eighth overall choice in the 1998 draft.

The pick didn't look so great last year when Ellis struggled and Moss soared, especially not when the rookie caught three touchdown passes in a 46-36 Minnesota victory in Texas Stadium.

So far this season, their situations have reversed. Ellis is becoming the disruptive playmaker Dallas wanted while Moss is being frustrated by constant double- and triple-teams.

Part of Ellis' turnaround is the jump guys typically make between their first and second seasons. They're no longer wide-eyed at how big, strong and fast the pros are compared to college players and they have a better understanding of the finer points of the game.

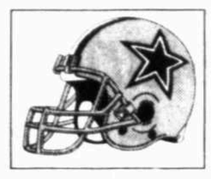

The 6-foot-6, 286-pound Ellis also is lining up slightly differently. Instead of being over the tight end like he was last year, he's outside the tight end, where he lined up in college at North Carolina.

"It helps a whole lot," Ellis said. "This is where I'm more accustomed to playing."

In two games, Ellis has two sacks and 11 tackles, compared to three sacks and 63 tackles over 16 games last season. He's also forced a fumble and intercepted a pass.

And what an interception it was.

With a minute left in Monday night's game against Atlanta and the Falcons facing third-and-goal from the Cowboys 4, quarterback Danny Kanell felt the pressure of a Darren Woodson blitz and threw a ball so poorly that it hit Ellis in the face.

Ellis, a former tight end, had the quick reflexes to catch the ball and he knew exactly what to do with it. He used all the energy he could muster to go 87 yards for a game-sealing touchdown.

"I got to the 20-yard-line and was thinking, 'Man, this is a long way to run.' On the 20, it felt like I had 50 yards to go," Ellis said.

Ellis could tell Moss what the end zone is like these days considering the Vikings star hasn't been there yet. And, for all the big plays Moss made last year, his longest score is 61 yards — 26 less than Ellis'.

But the last person who would bring up those details is Ellis. He's just too nice, which was part of the reason the Cowboys took him. They preferred his squeaky clean image to Moss' sketchy past.

"Greg is very conscientious and he's a very hard worker," Dallas coach Chan Gailey said. "When you put those two together with talent, you're going to get results.

"He's worked himself into a productive player. He was close last year. Now, he's taken the next step."

Ellis also is pleased with his progress.

"Fortunately, I got a lot of opportunity to play last year. Unfortunately, I didn't do as well as I wanted to do," he said. "The difference is recognition, which comes from getting rep after rep after rep.

"People think it's easy for Deion or Leon Lett to make the plays they make, but when they first came into the league I'm sure they had a hard time. Now that they have better recognition they're making plays."

Texas has chance to bury Athletics

By Johnny Paul
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

ARLINGTON — Shovel? Check.

Dirt? Check.

Now, only a sweep this weekend stands between the Rangers and finally burying those pesky, won't-go-away-soon-enough Oakland Athletics once and for all.

It begins tonight with the first of three games between the two at The Ballpark in Arlington. The Rangers' magic number is at six with 10 games remaining. Time grows short for the visiting overachievers no one expected to contend.

With a wild-card berth probably out of reach, the A's have turned their attention to the Rangers and the American League West title.

"Their only chance is to come in here and sweep us and win the division," Rangers reliever Tim Crabtree said. "I'm sure that's the way they're thinking. It's almost like the last stand at the Alamo. It's their last chance, but you know what? I think our boys will answer the bell come Friday night."

And while the Rangers have struggled of late, they aren't the ones who are really on the ropes. But ...

"It's by far from being over," Crabtree said. "I think this series is that big."

Conventional wisdom suggests that the Rangers need only to avoid being swept by the Athletics to maintain their level of comfort in the AL West.

But the Rangers play their final seven games against Seattle and Anaheim, and "those guys would love nothing more than to knock us around and out of the playoffs," Crabtree said.

The Rangers will attempt to avoid such a position by putting the Athletics far back in their rearview mirrors.

"They have no room for error," second baseman Mark McLemore said of the A's. "They've got to play flawless."

The Rangers can clinch their third division title as early as Sunday, but that will require more than they've shown since returning home Sept. 17.

The Rangers lost four of their five games to the sub-.500 Tampa Bay Devil Rays and Baltimore Orioles, and manager Johnny Oates witnessed "nothing" to suggest that his ballclub appears close to shaking its recent tailspin.

That could be attributed partially to too many trying too hard to clinch this division title, Oates said. That could be part of the reason the Rangers hit .118 (2-for-17) with runners in scoring position in their past three games.

"Frustrating would be the best way to describe it," Oates said. "They want to make it happen right now. We want to hit the five-run homer or turn the quadruple play."

Is there some concern in the Rangers' clubhouse? Yes.

Panic? No.

"This is a good team," designated hitter Rafael Palmeiro said. "We will come out of it. We'll get in — somehow, some way."

The Rangers do not expect to face Oakland pitchers Tim Hudson (10-2, 3.25 earned-run average) or Omar Olivares (7-1, 4.11 ERA since being acquired from Anaheim).

And the Rangers will send Aaron Sele, their hottest pitcher, to the mound tonight. Sele is 10-2 with a 3.94 ERA in his past 14 starts.

"We just have to take the field like a first-place team," Rangers first baseman Lee Stevens said. "We're in first place. Let's play like it. Oakland has to come out and beat the first-place team to even have a chance. That puts more pressure on them than us."

MHS: Shields has 455 yards so far in '99

(From 1C)

"He is a big kid, real physical," MHS linebacker Matt Neu said of Shields. "For us to play a physical back will get us ready for district."

Shields is a bruiser as evidenced by his 5-foot-9, 210 pound frame. Shields, a senior, is also fleet-footed. He runs a 4.5 second, 40-yard dash.

"He carries his weight well. He runs with a low center of gravity and has good quickness and good speed," Coronado coach Butch Henderson said.

Last season, he rushed for 1,125 yards and 13 TDs. Against MHS, he totaled 124 yards and two scores on 12 carries. Coronado won that game 29-19.

"Playing against decisive backs like Shields lets us know how we need to grow and get better," Neu said.

This season, Shields is again running through, over and around opposing defenses. Last week against Wichita Falls Rider (a Class 4A school), he rushed for 198 yards and a trio of scores. His total for the season is 455 yards and six touchdowns.

Henderson says Shields, a three-year starter, is not the only offensive threat but a very good one. He is also a leader on this inexperienced team.

"He is the glue that holds the team together," Henderson said. "Besides being a good player, he is a good person."

Stopping Shields is the key to stopping Coronado, and stopping Shields could put this MHS team on a recently untraveled path.

The last time MHS started a season with a 4-0 record was 1988, which also happened to be the year the Bulldogs last defeated Coronado.

More importantly for MHS, a win against a team like Coronado should legitimize the Bulldogs as a contender for a 4-5A playoff spot.

"To win against a quality team like Coronado would be a quality win for us," Browning said.

And getting a quality win starts on defense in this case.

After three games, MHS is leading the district in rushing yards allowed (an average of 85.6), passing yards (68.0) allowed and total defense (153.6). Also, The "Dawg D" has allowed 20 points, the fewest in 4-5A, and are second in turnovers forced (eight). MHS also has not allowed a 100-yard rusher.

"Defense wins championships. Offense sells tickets," Browning said. "Defensively, we are doing a great job playing aggressive football. The secondary is improved, and we have the front seven we thought we would have."

CORONADO NOTES: The Mustangs defeated Odessa High 32-18 in Week 2. Shields had 158 yards and two TDs in that game... Coronado defeated Roswell N.M. (27-24) in week 1 and Rider (21-10) last week... Coronado is averaging 319.7 yards a game on offense and 279.7 on defense... Tailback Marlon Walker had 208 rushing yards...WR Matt Brothers has 110 receiving yards... QB Steve Sims is 17 of 37 for 222 yards. He has thrown two interceptions and four TDs... Defensively, MLB Mike Smith has 52 tackles, 20 in each of last two games. He also has two picks... LB Keegan McInroe has 41 tackles (16 last week)...

AIR BULLDOG? PROBABLY NOT: The Bulldogs have thrown for 206 yards in three games. It is the lowest total in the district. While MHS has rushed for 864 yards, there is room for offensive improvement.

"I would like to balance the offense more," Browning said. "We are power-oriented football team, but we do have the abilities to throw the football."

Sophomore Tony Joseph has 366 yards rushing in three games. Senior Jimmy Smith has 312. Smith leads the district in touchdowns (8)... Colter Lange has three interceptions... Justin Smith, who has committed to Texas, has a 43.6 punting average on 11 punts...

NOTES: This is the sixth meeting between the two teams. MHS leads the series 3-2... Browning at one time was the offensive line coach at Coronado (1975-77)... Last year, Coronado trailed 13-0 at the half before running off 29 straight points en route to a 29-19 win... MHS travels to El Paso Irvin next week...

TECH: Coach comes under fire

(From 1C)

ence, and they played in their first Cotton Bowl since 1938. Tech was second in the SWC in 1995 and were second in the Big 12 South in both 1996 and 1997 and third in the Big 12 South in 1998.

But while doing OK against the good teams — Tech has beaten Texas A&M three of the last four years and Texas two of the last three — the Raiders also have lost to North Texas twice in three years and to mediocre Oklahoma teams in season-ending games the last two years.

The negative outburst by fans after thi season's 1-2 start has been noticed by top school officials, but Texas Tech president Donald Haragan said the school will follow its policy of waiting until the end of the season to make personnel decisions.

"We obviously are aware of the malcontent of a lot of people," Haragan said. "But we've had a longstanding policy that we don't respond to individuals outside of our system of review."

At the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, letters of discontent have increased in number since the loss to North Texas.

"Why are our lineman so fat and slow? Why can't our quarterback complete a pass?," wrote Jon Stone of Lubbock. "It all results from lousy coaching and poor preparation. ... What is it going to take? An 0-11year? I refuse to go to any more games as long as Spike is here. He is just like arthritis; he just won't go away."

Another fan wrote that he felt Spike's past popularity and good-natured mannerisms shouldn't factor into any decision to replace him.

"Spike's good ol' boy antics have been the reason he is still here," wrote Jackson Young. "I'll admit that they were funny at one time, but not when Tech loses to UNT or the like."

Dykes says he isn't affected by the letters.

"My job is to coach the best I can," Dykes said. "I'll do that everyday I come to work for as long as I can."

Labonte gets the most out of his mileage

Associated Press

■ Auto Racing Roundup

DOVER, Del. — As a hard charger from the outset of his career, Bobby Labonte never figured to be the fuel economy king of NASCAR.

Now, when gas mileage looks to be a factor near the end of a race, radio scanners often crackle with this phrase: "The 18 car says it has enough to go the distance."

Labonte smiles when he hears that, and knows that on Sunday the same message might be passed along pit road should the MBNA Gold 400 become an economy run. He isn't embarrassed by it, but that certainly wasn't the way he figured he'd win for the first time at Dover Downs International Speedway.

"All those years, we were a top-five, top-10 car, and then to win on gas mileage, well ..." he said, his voice fading off almost as if he can't believe it happened.

That it did, three months ago in the MBNA Platinum 400, and Labonte has been labeled as a gas miser ever since.

"We've been fast here, and that's not the way I wanted to win, but we'll take it, whatever," the driver for Joe Gibbs Racing said.

But Labonte, who seeks his 12th career victory and fifth this season, takes little of the credit for his new-found ability.

"It starts off with the shop, with preparation of the race car, tuning of the engine," he said. "It doesn't burn excess fuel, just enough not to hurt the performance."

Teammate Tony Stewart, whose stout run for the front in June ended when he was forced to pit for a late splash of gas, marvels at Labonte's ability to go farther than the rest on a tank of fuel.

"Bobby's a right-foot braker, and I'm a left-foot braker," he said, noting a difference in driving styles.

Montoya could clinch title in Houston

HOUSTON — Jimmy Vasser is amazed by the way his teammate, Juan Montoya, is dealing with the CART FedEx Series championship chase.

"The kid has nerves of steel," Vasser, the 1996 champion, said. "Maybe someone should remind him that he's 23 and on the brink of winning a PPG Cup."

Montoya has taken the CART series by storm. The sensational Colombia rookie has driven to six poles and seven race wins in his first 17 races, building a 28-point lead over preseason favorite Dario Franchitti heading into the Texaco Grand Prix of Houston.

If he comes away with a 44-point lead, the Target/Chip Ganassi Racing team will have a record fourth consecutive series championship — added to those won by Vasser and two-time champion Alex Zanardi, Montoya's predecessor.

Four drivers still in F1 title chase

NUERBURGRING, Germany — With four drivers still in the chase for the Formula One championships and three races remaining, Sunday's European Grand Prix could be crucial.

Mika Hakkinen, a Finn driving for McLaren-Mercedes, and Eddie Irvine, Ferrari's British driver, lead the standings with 60 points each.

Germany's Heinz-Harald Frentzen, driving for Jordan, is third with 50, and Hakkinen's McLaren teammate, David Coulthard, another Brit, is fourth with 48.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Sept. 24, 1999:

You know what you want, and you'll do whatever it takes to make it happen. Work remains a high priority. Your endurance and willingness make a big difference in getting through to an associate. Your work obviously speaks for itself. If you are single, you appreciate romance, but you could get too bogged down in daily life to fully develop the quality relationship you want. Still, you will encounter some prospects this year. If attached, nurturing a partner might be frustrating, but it is necessary if you want to keep the peace. Be honest with yourself — another might not pulling his weight in your relationship. PISCES makes work easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Last night's dreams and early-morning thoughts might be unusually significant, as you ponder what is going on with a partner. Stabilize your finances and make positive choices. Self-discipline might be necessary. Tonight: Try adding some mystery to your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Attend meetings; network and make contacts. Another could be most distracting. Use self-discipline, eyeing the long term. Your strength helps bosses visualize and create. Tonight: Where the gang is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Your instincts carry you through a problem. Recognize that others look to you for leadership and advice. Unexpected insights help you make strong, positive choices. Right now, spontaneous thinking takes you in a new direction. Tonight: In the limelight!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ A friend might be stern, but he could also be right! Discuss new information, especially as to how it might affect your work situation; be ready for some unexpected developments. What you thought was another's pie-in-the-sky scheme proves to be a reality. Tonight: Escape work as quickly as possible!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ You have the right answers for the boss. Working with a partner helps convince him that you have what it takes. You might still feel burdened by all that is demanded of you. Easy does it. Close your door and make sure a conversation is private. Tonight: Snuggle in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Trust others and defer to their judgment. You're not likely to be grasping the whole picture right now. Spontaneity rules at work; be ready for the unexpected. Professionally, you know how you would like things to be. What you envision can happen! Tonight: Let another treat you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Work continues to demand your full attention; finances require handling, as well. Your imagination could be creating a situation that doesn't exist. Perhaps you need to listen to others' feedback as well. Tonight: Off to the gym.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Your sense of fun comes out, even though a partner could be difficult and touchy. Understand more of what you want here. You could be unleashing a force that you might not be ready to deal with just yet. What is going on in your head might have little to do with reality. Tonight: Now you can let your imagination rule!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Anchor in and plunge through work, even if you aren't in the mood. Clear off your desk. Recognize what must get done before the weekend. You find others demanding — because they are! Your imagination wanders as you find the mundane tedious, presently. Tonight: Spiff up the place.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Another remains stiff, and you can't make him see another side. Discuss what is really ailing him. Although you might not be able to understand what is bothering someone, you can accept it as true. Tonight: Making a splash.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You could be overly serious about personal matters. Loosen up about what does and doesn't work. Release a rigid attitude. Travel to a distant place might be in the cards — if not literally, then in your mind. Tonight: Treat yourself well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Sometimes you seem more serious than you are. Your vision opens you up to a different sense of reality. Loosen up with friends and let go of work worries. Take time to speak to that special person in your life. Tonight: Let your magnetism speak!

The language of communication in the play of the hand consists of signaling. As a defender, if you like partner's lead you follow with as high a card in the suit as you can spare. To discourage, you play a low card. Not as well known is the fact that declarer can sometimes accomplish the same thing by following those exact guidelines!

The auction was routine. With a double fit, it was automatic to reach game. At worst, it would depend on the club finesse and, without the mirror distribution in spades and diamonds, it could have been cold.

West led the king of spades and East discouraged by playing the four. South routinely contributed the deuce. West shifted to a diamond. In the fullness of time declarer had to try the club finesse. As soon as East gained the lead with the king of clubs, the jack of spades was returned. The defenders cashed two more tricks in that suit for a one-trick set.

There was no sure way to avoid defeat. However, declarer could have given the contract a more sporting chance by applying the principle outlined above. South should have followed to the first trick with the eight of spades!

With the two of spades missing from view, West might have thought East was asking for a spade continuation holding Q-4-2 in the suit. If West does continue with spades, the queen becomes the fulfilling trick and the club finesse is for an over-

Pope meets with Jubilee 2000 delegates

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy — U2 singer Bono, Quincy Jones and Bob Geldof joined Pope John Paul II on Thursday to support his call for canceling the debts of the world's poorest countries for the new millennium.

The three met with the pope for 20 minutes at his residence outside Rome. He welcomed them as delegates of the group known as Jubilee 2000, which is seeking the cancellation of debts as a fitting gesture to mark the millennium.

John Paul speaks out frequently on the issue, calling for at least a substantial reduction in the debt burden facing developing countries.

"You're a great showman as well as a great holy man," a tieless Bono told the pope before slipping off his pink tinted glasses and handing them to the pontiff as a souvenir.

Smiling, the 79-year-old John Paul seemed charmed by the gesture.

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Gov. Jesse Ventura is pondering a political sequel to his tell-all autobiography.

"There's a proposal out there if I want to do it," Ventura said Wednesday. "I haven't signed anything. I haven't agreed to anything."

Ventura said he's waiting until he's "inspired to write."

Ventura

Ken Atchity, Ventura's literary agent, said a statement on his firm's Web site that Villard Books and Ventura have agreed on a second book deal was inaccurate and has been removed.

The Web statement said the proposed book would be titled "Whose Hands Are on the Wheel?" and would be "an expose of what really goes on in the corridors of power."

Ventura's book, "I Ain't Got Time to Bleed," has been on the New York Times best-seller list more than three months.

PARADISE VALLEY, Ariz. — Family Circus creator Bil Keane is worried about a less-than-wholesome parody of his kid-friendly comic on the Web.

Keane said Wednesday he was mildly amused by the "Dysfunctional Family Circus" when it began five years ago, but then his readers started to complain.

The Web site — SpinnWebe, maintained by Greg Galcik — uses Keane's cartoons while allowing site visitors to make up the captions. The results are often sarcastic or dark humor, and sometimes obscene and pornographic, Keane said.

King Features, which syndicates Keane's comic, and Keane's attorney sent Galcik a letter last week threatening legal action unless he removed references to Keane's work, including 500 of his drawings.

Galcik did not immediately respond to e-mail requests for comment. The Keane material was still on the Web site Thursday.

* * *

ARLINGTON, Va. — Chief Justice William Rehnquist urged some young people to "for heaven's sake, drive safely."

He spoke Sept.14 at the Arlington County Courthouse to 95 teen-agers and helped give out their first licenses.

Driving, he said, is "a great responsibility."

Rehnquist said that because he lives in Arlington, he has "an interest in seeing qualified drivers on the streets."

* * *

NEW YORK — The latest George magazine — a tribute to founder John F. Kennedy Jr. — is without a celebrity cover for the first time.

The October issue, which comes two months after Kennedy's death, has a blurry image of the American flag.

The issue contains several interviews Kennedy did, including Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrahkan, Fidel Castro and President Clinton.

The magazine quotes Kennedy as saying: "In the most challenging of times, men and women of courage and conviction make a difference."

Kennedy, his wife, Carolyn Bessette Kennedy, and sister-in-law Lauren Bessette died in July when the plane he was piloting crashed off the coast of Martha's Vineyard.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Jean-Claude Van Damme was arrested Thursday for investigation of drunken driving.

Van Damme, 38, was booked about 3:40 a.m. and released several hours later. The action star got into a car without comment and was driven away.

The action star's blood-alcohol level was not immediately disclosed.

Job assistance

The Texas Workforce Commission has announced that all workers of Weatherford Arrow Completion Systems in Midland, who lost their job due to lack of work on or after June 14,1998, are eligible for Trade Adjustment Assistance. Under petition TA-W-36,478, certified Sept. 10 and expiring September 10, 2001, workers who were partially separated from employment with Weatherford Arrow will also qualify for assistance.

The commission also announced that employees of Lone Star Mud Inc. in Midland who lost their job due to lack of work on or after Aug. 5, 1998 are eligible for assistance. Under petition TA-W-36,726, which was certified Sept. 9 and expires September 9, 2001, workers who were partially separated from employment with Lone Star Mud will also qualify for assistance.

Assistance is available to workers who lose their jobs or whose hours of work and wages are reduced as a result of increased imports and may include training, a job search allowance, a relocation allowance and other reemployment services. Weekly trade readjustment allowances may be payable to eligible workers following their exhaustion of unemployment benefits.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar rose slightly against the Japanese yen on Thursday for the first time in four days, but traders were cautious ahead of this weekend's meeting of the Group of Seven industrialized nations.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 103.95 Japanese yen, up just slightly from 103.93 late Wednesday.

Traders braced for the G-7 meeting on Saturday, where many hope that Japan will be able to enlist help from its economic partners in curbing the yen's rise.

In other trading, the euro was quoted at $1.0440, down from $1.0448 late Tuesday.

The dollar also was quoted at 1.5362 Swiss francs, down from 1.5369, and 1.4711 Canadian dollars, up from 1.4702. The British pound rose to $1.6407 from $1.6284.

Crude hits high

(AP) — Crude oil futures rocketed to a 33-month high Thursday on the New York Mercantile Exchange and other energy products joined the upward ride in continuing momentum from OPEC's decision to extend production cuts.

In other markets, soybean futures fell sharply amid good harvesting weather and gold continued its rally.

Crude came within a penny of reaching $25 a barrel for the first time since Feb. 1, 1997, before slipping back slightly.

Analysts said some profit-taking is likely in the near future, but otherwise the path is clear for the upward rise in prices to continue.

The market had factored in well ahead of time Wednesday's move by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to maintain production cuts through next March in an effort to draw down world supplies.

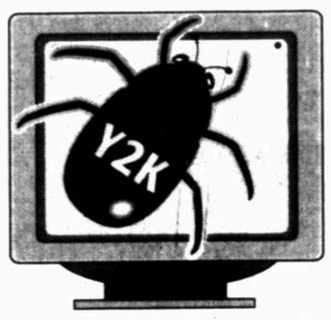

But bullishness remains rampant, and the market also got support Thursday from the previous day's news that Russia will suspend fuel oil exports until Oct. 1.

"This event was completely anticipated," Bill O'Grady, energy analyst at A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis, said of the OPEC decision in Vienna, Austria. "But there's still money on the sidelines that wanted to buy crude oil but wanted to wait until that meeting was out of the way, just to be safe."

Government agencies Y2K ready

Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a series of weekly articles examining how individuals and businesses are dealing with the potential Y2K bug.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Recognizing the vulnerability of those who receive government assistance — the poor, children, elderly and disabled — the Social Security Administration and Texas Department of Human Services were among the first to address the potential Y2K problem.

"We are Y2K ready. We met our compliance milestone date of Aug. 31 on time and under budget," said Nelwyn Persky, director of Y2K planning and communications for the Texas Department of Human Services. At present, she said, the agency is doing third level testing, testing of integrated circuits.

The agency determines eligibility for and oversees Temporary Aid to Needy Families, food stamps, Medicaid and oversees the state's nursing homes.

She said the agency wants to assure its clients that they will continue to receive their checks and their name won't be lost in the computer files in January when the year turns from 1999 to 2000. Agency representatives are also working with the nursing home industry to ensure all their systems are compliant to protect residents from failures in systems like elevators and biomedical equipment.

"We're working with the Readiness Coalition" — a coalition of state agencies, volunteer groups and businesses promoting Y2K preparedness — "to help people be informed," Ms. Persky said. "It's like in an ice storm, something could happen. If only four people in the country are affected, it's not a big deal unless you're one of the four."

The Social Security Administration began addressing the issue in 1989, said deputy press officer John Trollinger, who once worked in the Odessa Social Security office. The agency was certified in compliance last December. All systems at the Treasury Department, which actually disburses the payments, are also compliant.

"We are quite confident it will be a seamless operation," he said. In fact, he added, "since October 1998, all payments have been made on systems that are Y2K compliant."

The agency began its Y2K project early because, he said, "We knew an agency like the Social Security Administration, as dependent on technology as we are, had to take action."

Especially since 48 million beneficiaries depend on Social Security and Supplemental Social Security payments from the agency each month, he noted.

Early on, he said, the agency examined 30 million lines of computer code and 20,000 software programs, with programs upgraded.

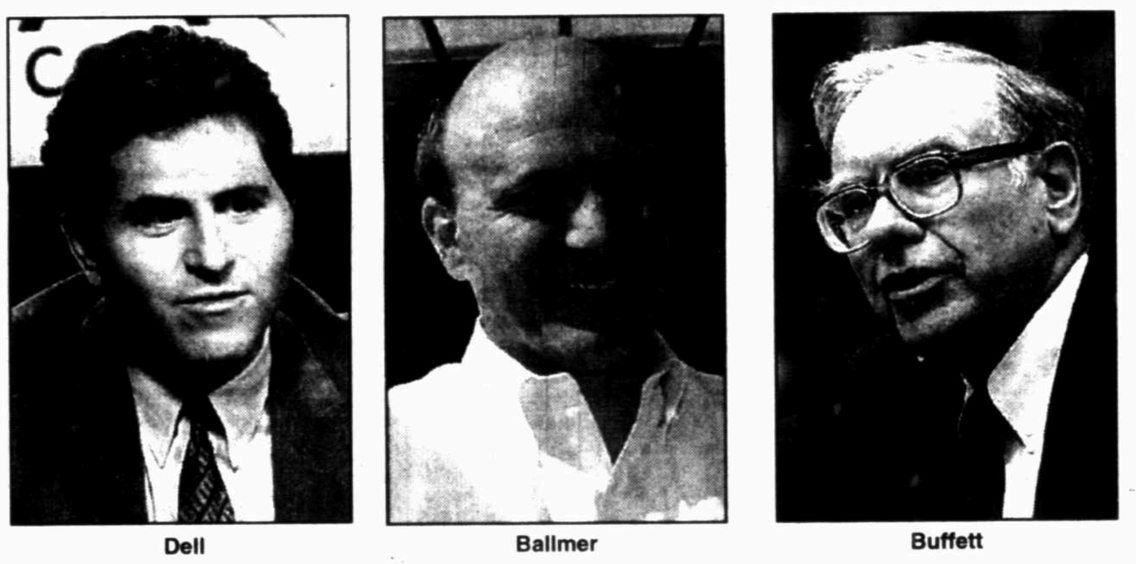

While he is confident "that when our offices open after January 1, 2000, we'll be able to provide a full range of services with the accuracy and ability people have come to expect of us," contingency plans are in place.

The agency's field offices throughout the country will be ready to provide services to those clients with critical needs, he said.

Forbes magazine says the 400 richest Americans for the first time have collectively amassed a total net worth of $1 trillion, a figure greater than the gross domestic product of China. Clockwise from upper left are the top five on Forbes' list; Bill Gates, Paul Allen, Warren Buffett, Steven Ballmer and Michael Dell.

America's 400 richest surpass $1 trillion mark

NEW YORK (AP) — The 400 richest Americans for the first time have collectively amassed a total net worth of $1 trillion, a figure greater than the gross domestic product of China, according to Forbes magazine, which issued its annual ranking of the nation's wealthiest people on Thursday.

Microsoft Corp. chairman Bill Gates once again led the list with a net worth of $85 billion, up from last year's $59 billion. The total number of billionaires on the annual list increased by 79 to 268, making 1999 the first time billionaires made up more than half the list, Forbes said in its issued dated Oct. 11.

Second on the list was Microsoft cofounder Paul Allen, with a net worth of $40 billion. Warren Buffett, chairman of Berkshire Hathaway Inc., ranked third with $31 billion.

Steve Ballmer, Microsoft's president was No. 4 with $23 billion, and No. 5 was Dell Computer chief executive officer Michael Dell, with $20 billion.

Dell topped the list of 29 Texans, followed by Fort Worth investors Lee, Sid and Robert Bass, and Ross Perot of Dallas, whose fortune was made on electronic data management.

Other Texans on the list included Dallas developers Ray Hunt and Robert Rowling, San Antonio media magnate Lowry Mayes and San Antonio auto dealer and Minnesota Vikings owner Red McCombs. Also making the list were sports franchise owners Jerry Jones of the Dallas Cowboys, Tom Hicks of the Dallas Stars and Texas Rangers, and Drayton McLane of the Houston Astros.

Besides Dell and Perot, other Texas high tech representatives were Mark Cuban and Todd Wagner of Dallas-based Broadcast.com, and software magnates Sanjiv Sidhu of Dallas and Joseph A. Liemandt of Austin.

The minimum net worth needed to qualify for the Forbes 400 rose to $625 million from $500 million in 1998. The average net worth for the 400 this year was $2.6 billion.

Stocks fall as technology leaders lose strength

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks plummeted Thursday as investors sold heavily amid continued worries about higher interest rates and the strength of the dollar. A Microsoft executive's warning that technology stocks are overvalued robbed the market of a big source of strength.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 205.48, or 2 percent, to close at 10,318.59. That brought the Dow's decline over the past three sessions to 505.31 points, or 4.5 percent.

This week's selloff has left the Dow more than 1,000 points below its Aug. 25 closing record of 11,326.04. That's a drop of 8.9 percent — just shy of the 10 percent drop analysts use to define a market correction.

Broader stock indicators also fell steeply. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 30.10 to 1,280.41, and the Nasdaq composite index fell 108.33 to 2,749.83, its fourth-biggest decline ever.

"The market is under the weight of so many threats right now," said Scott Bleier, chief investment strategist at Prime Charter Ltd., citing rising interest rates and the tumbling dollar among the most pressing problems. "It has deteriorated."

Thursday's decline was broad-based, even as blue-chip stocks made some short-lived attempts to reverse their decline. In early afternoon, the Dow abandoned a brief rally that pushed it as much as 48 points above Wednesday's close. The quick erosion of the buying spree reinforced concerns about the market's condition.

"There's no new fundamental reason for the weak market, but there's a great deal of nervousness," said William Meehan, chief market analyst for Cantor Fitzgerald.

Stock investors brushed aside any news that could have supported stocks. Bond yields plummeted, to 5.99 percent on the 30-year Treasury bond from 6.08 percent late Wednesday.

The market also discounted a modest rise in the dollar against the Japanese yen. In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 103.95 yen, up from 103.93 late Wednesday.

Still, the U.S. currency is lingering near its lowest levels against the yen since 1996. The dollar's weakness has contributed to a sharp decline in U.S. stocks this week. A lowerr dollar makes imports more expensive, setting the stage for inflation, and it also makes foreign investments more attractive.

The market was unnerved by a Labor Department report that showed the number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits fell unexpectedly last week to the lowest level in 25 years.

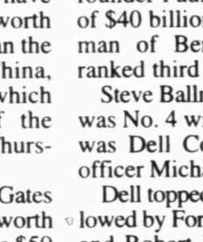

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Mutual fund performance and risk must be considered

By Eric Tyson

Q: How important is historic performance in choosing a mutual fund?

A: A fund's historic rate of return or performance is an important factor to weigh when selecting a mutual fund. Keep in mind, however, as all mutual fund materials must tell you, that past performance is no guarantee of future results. In fact, many former high-return funds achieved their results by taking on high risk.

Tyson

Funds that assume higher risk should produce higher rates of return. But high-risk funds usually decline in price faster during major market declines. Thus, in order for a fund to be considered a best fund, it must consistently deliver a favorable rate of return given the level of risk that it takes.

The single biggest mistake investors make when choosing a mutual fund is overemphasizing the importance of historic returns or past performance numbers. The shorter the time period, the greater the danger of using performance as an indicator of a good fund.

Although past performance can be a good sign, high returns for a fund, relative to its peers, are largely possible only if a fund is taking more risk. The danger of taking more risk is that it doesn't always work the way you'd like. The odds are very high that you won't be able to pick the next star before it vaults to prominence in the investing sky. You have a far greater chance of boarding that star when it's ready to plummet back to Earth.

In fact, 80 percent of the annual No. 1 top-performing stock and bond funds over the past 15 years subsequently performed worse over the next three to 10 years than the average fund in their peer group.

Also, in assessing the performance of a given fund, be careful not to blindly accept the favorable comparisons that some fund companies make. One clever way that mutual funds make themselves look better than other comparable funds is to compare themselves to funds that aren't really comparable. The most common ploy is for a fund to invest in riskier types of securities and then compare their performance to funds that invest in less-risky securities.

A classic example of this marketing was how the Fidelity Magellan fund during the 1980s and early 1990s invested in smaller-company stocks as well as international stocks. Yet in Magellan's annual reports to its shareholders, the fund's performance was compared to the Standard & Poor's Index of 500 large-company U.S. stocks. This was not a fair comparison because smaller-company stocks and international stocks are riskier and outperformed the larger-company U.S. stocks in the S&P 500 over that time period.

Magellan's not a bad fund, but it certainly is not as stellar as Fidelity's performance comparisons make it out to be. Many other funds with mediocre or worse performance records have made themselves appear near the top of their class through similar comparison games.

Always examine the types of securities that a fund invests in and make sure that the comparison funds or indexes invest in similar securities.

Ames leads Texas Open

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — You can't blame Stephen Ames for wanting to forget about the sixth hole at La Cantera Golf Club.

After hitting the ball over the green, he three-putted for a double bogey that threatened to derail his day.

Fortunately for Ames, he got back on track immediately with three consecutive birdies to shoot an 8-under 64 Thursday for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Texas Open.

''I hit the ball really good, hit it close a lot of times. The putts are coming off more solid,'' Ames said. ''We'll see if it works for the next three days. Three more 64s would be nice.''

Rich Beem and Charles Raulerson were one stroke back with a 65, and Brent Geiberger, Sandy Lyle and Perry Moss were at 6 under with a 66. Six players were one more stroke back at 5 under.

Hal Sutton, last year's champion, is not playing the Texas Open because he is competing in the Ryder Cup this weekend in Brookline, Mass. Bob Estes, the first alternate for the U.S. Ryder Cup team, shot a 1-under 71 on Thursday at the San Antonio tournament.

The 72-hole event resumes Friday.

Ames played the back nine first and began with a bogey on the par-5 No. 10, where he three-putted from 12 feet. He followed with four consecutive birdies to move to 4-under at the turn.

On the par-3 No. 6, it looked like Ames' good day would quickly become mediocre.

''We'll just take the sixth hole out all together,'' Ames said with a laugh. ''I made a good recovery. I had it at, like, 20 feet, then three-putted.''

Ames birdied each of the last three holes and sunk his longest putt of the day — a 30-footer — on the par-4 eighth.

Ames, a native of Trinidad who lives in Canada, had to miss some tournaments early in the year because of visa problems. He was 125th on the PGA Tour money list through 13 events before the Texas Open.

His persistent problems with work visas have been an obstacle to his progress on the PGA Tour, he said, declining to discuss specifics of the visa troubles.

''I have visa problems. That's it,'' he said. ''It's been tough getting started (this year). I finally feel like I'm getting into my zone now.''

RYDER: Pairings come out

(From 1C)

shaw and Mark James separately submitting, in order, their four groups for each set of matches.

''Mark James and I met down by the skating pond on No. 3 and worked this out for you all,'' Crenshaw cracked. ''The pairing came out and everybody just kind of shook their head a little bit. That adds so much excitement, obviously. It's something that people want to see.''

That wasn't the only surprise.

Davis Love III thought he might be paired with Justin Leonard. Instead, Crenshaw benched Leonard for the morning matches and put Love with U.S. Open champion Payne Stewart.

Crenshaw said leaving Leonard out of the morning matches was simply a case of having too many players on top of their game.

''There's an impossibility to try to look at four names and say, 'Well, who am I going to leave out?' I've driven myself nuts,'' he said. ''You've got to push the button somewhere. I mean, the whole lineup is playing well.''

The biggest surprise for Europe was who won't be playing right away — Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal, the most experienced player for Europe who has never missed a Ryder Cup match.

Olazabal has been wild off the tee and is quick to degrade himself. After a 75 in the first round of the U.S. Open, he slammed his fist into a hotel wall and broke his hand. Since then, he has missed the cut three times and not finished better than 40th.

''He wasn't ready,'' assistant captain Sam Torrance said. ''I think that's awesome he would do that. That's being honest.''

Accuracy off the tee is crucial in alternate-shot matches, but Olazabal conceded even on Tuesday that the fairways of The Country Club are ''not wide enough for me.''

Miguel Angel Jimenez instead will be paired with Irishman Padraig Harrington, who made his first Ryder Cup team by finishing second in the final tournament to qualify. They will be in the third match against Love and Stewart.

James put Olazabal and Harrington together for a final practice round Thursday morning ''so that Jose Maria could see that if he actually didn't play, someone who is playing very well was going to take his place.''

James is leading off with his best player. Colin Montgomerie and British Open champion Paul Lawrie will play against Phil Mickelson and David Duval, the only Ryder Cup rookie for the United States.

The final match puts Lee Westwood and Darren Clarke, affectionately known as ''The Spice Boys'' in Europe for their love of fast cars and nightlife. They will be matched against two of the straightest players for the United States, Hal Sutton and Jeff Maggert.

The pairing with Woods and Garcia could really be a wash if one winds up hitting tee shots from the odd-numbered holes, and the other tees off on the even-numbered holes. And as much as Crenshaw was fascinated that the pairing worked out that way, he wasn't locked in on the two young stars.

''Tiger has a got a very solid horse right there with him,'' he said.

The United States is hoping to get off to a fast start, particularly since Europe has won or retained the Ryder Cup five of the past seven times.

''It's going to be an interesting start,'' Love said. ''If we can get ahead, we can do real well. We just don't want to get behind. Hopefully, those first couple of matches we can get out there and get off to a good start.''

Still, the first set of matches hardly determines the outcome. The last time Europe led after round one was in 1973.

SOFTBALL: A-1 Embroidery falls off it, Tryon was enforcing the rules for the big games in town. He has umpired in 15 state tournaments and two national tournaments since the mid '70s.

Part of getting a national tournament to Midland involved taking trips to several other cities. Watson and Madison went to five national tournaments, including two in Lafayette, La. and one each in Cincinnati, Oh., Jacksonville, Fla. and Baton Rouge La.

"We went to five different national tournaments and none of them were any better than right here," Watson said.

It doesn't hurt that the weather in Midland usually cooperates.

"We went to one in Cincinnati where it rained the whole time," Madison said.

There were no such problems Thursday evening with a mild and near windless climate which, not surprisingly, favored the hitters.

Slow pitch softball is often derided as a sport for the laid-back and non-athletic, but there doesn't figure to be evidence of that over the next three days. While several players grabbed beers, munched on turkey legs and smoked cigarettes after games were over, between the lines, it was all business.

"When you come this far you give up everything else to win," Watson said.

The Big Bombers certainly showed signs of that in their win over the Buzzards. The team from Kokomo scored four runs in the top of the sixth to take a 9-5 lead, but the Bombers responded in the bottom of the inning with seven runs to attain a comfortable margin.

In the top of the seventh, the Buzzards put their first two batters on base, but when the runner at second was thrown out trying to score on a single, that robbed them of any momentum, and the Bombers recorded the last two outs for the victory. They will play in today's winners' bracket against The Pizza House/Thunderstix of Queen Creek, Ariz. today at 9:20 a.m.

A-1 Embroidery was involved in a tight game with Browbeat which was tied 10-10 going into the seventh, but Browbeat scored three runs to take the lead. A-1 could only score one run in the bottom of the inning as its comeback fell short.

A-1 will play in the losers' bracket today at 1:20 p.m.

Thursday's Scores
