Embassy Termed Spy Nest

WASHINGTON — (P) — The House Un-American Activities Committee produced Saturday night documentary evidence and testimony under oath that the Polish Embassy here has been a nest for spies.

Twenty-seven documents and the testimony were supplied by Gen. Iyador Rudolf Modelski, a former embassy official whose appointment had been cancelled by the Communist regime.

The testimony points to at least two espionage networks operating out of the embassy, one supposedly specializing in atomic secrets, and the other branching into Canada and Mexico.

Modelski's papers and what he said are included in an official committee report.

Figures To Super-Secrets
It indicates the Poles were after everything from humdrum economic figures to military super-secrets. His story told of a Russian spy master pulling the strings. There is no measure of how successful they were.

Polish embassy officials could not be reached for comment.

During the war, Modelski was undersecretary of war for the Polish government in London. He said he collected the documents dealing with spying while he was military attaché at the Washington Embassy from May, 1946, to last August.

All along, he said, he cooperated with American military intelligence and still is cooperating.

The general related he walked out with the documents when he broke officially with the Red-dominated government in Warsaw.

He turned them over to the committee last February.

The top secret document was a set of detailed instructions given Modelski in March, 1946, he said, before he came to this country. He said they dealt with "what fields are to be covered, and which way the spy network must be set up."

It listed 20 kinds of information he was to get, 28 dealing with the armed forces and a few with war industries. This was one of many papers bearing the signature of Col. W. Komar, chief of the general staff of the Polish Army.

Komar was identified by Modelski as a Russian citizen in charge of espionage for the Polish government.

Americans Urged To Leave Shanghai As Reds Approach City

By FRED HAMPSON
SHANGHAI — (P) — The Nationalist garrison commander vowed Saturday to defend Shanghai from the Communists. "Come what may."

As a result, U. S. Consul General John Cabot urgently warned American citizens they had better get out while they still could.

This great city of more than 2,000,000 population lies behind a flimsy, newly-built wooden fence, 35 miles long, studded with mud pillboxes.

At last count, there were 2,479 Americans in Shanghai. Most of them they have elected to stay long ago when previous evacuations were carried out.

With the Communists no more than 100 miles up the Yangtze River west of Shanghai and on the same (south) side, the city's immediate fate was uncertain but ominous.

All dressed up for the first time since her arrest, Mrs. Irene Brennan, the Dover, Del., woman who is being held in connection with the "lonely hearts" slaying of two widowers, is escorted by Detective Winfield Cochran of the Delaware State Police, to Dover Barracks to be fingerprinted and photographed for the first time.

Secretary Charged In Slaying Names Screen Star As 'Other Woman'

RIVERSIDE, CALIF. — (P) — Wealthy John E. Owen was shot fatally, sheriff's investigators said Saturday, by his attractive divorcee-secretary who related a story that Irene Rich, stage and screen star, had come between them.

But in New York Miss Rich, appearing in "As the Girls Go" at the Winter Garden, told newsmen she was a friend of Owen, 68-year-old president of the National Apartment House Owners' Association, but had no romance with him.

Miss Rich said she and Owen, both cattle ranchers, had been acquainted about five years. She met him at cattle shows, went out with him occasionally when he was in New York and Owen quarreled for two hours after he professed his love for Miss Rich. Vivion quoted Mrs. Garnier as saying she is inexperienced with firearms and doesn't recall how she fired Owen's automatic revolver.

Said Mackey: "Mrs. Garnier says Owen became intoxicated Friday night and when she tried to put him to bed he got his revolver. She says she took it away from him but that in turning from him it was accidentally discharged. She made no statement to (Continued on page 5)

Midland Reserve Unit Gets Official Army Recognition

Midland's Army Reserve unit, the First Logistical Division, has been recognized officially by the Department of the Army, Lt. Col. Homer F. Dowd, Army unit instructor stationed here, announced Saturday.

Orders have been issued by Fourth Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston officially organizing the unit as an integral part of the Army Reserve training program, Colonel Dowd said. The unit has been designated as the 4807th Logistical Training Division (Organic). Col. H. W. Mathews, district production manager for the Standard Oil Company of Texas here, has been appointed to command the new unit, Colonel Dowd announced.

The Midland unit, composed of personnel from over the Permian Basin area, originally was organized as a unit of the Army Reserve.

Johnson Halts Navy Work On Super Carrier

WASHINGTON — (P) — A terse and crisply worded order from Defense Secretary Johnson Saturday ended the Navy's building of a colossal aircraft carrier whose planes could have engaged in strategic bombing with atomic weapons.

Johnson, after consultation with President Truman and the joint chief of staff, directed Navy Secretary Sullivan to order his department to discontinue construction of the 65,000-ton, $189,000,000 carrier "at once."

The keel was laid only last Monday in the Newport News Shipbuilding Corporation Yards.

Johnson's order constituted a victory for the Air Force in its long dispute with the Navy over what targets Naval aircraft should attack.

Reduced to its simplest form, the question was: Should the Navy be allowed to build a carrier so big that heavy, small-range bombers could be launched from its flight deck to attack cities and factories? This, the Air Force had contended, was strategic bombing, which should be done by the land-based bombers of the USAF such as the B-36, the B-50 and B-29.

Stunned Official Silence
In the Navy, there was a stunned official silence. In the Air Force there was just silence.

At Corpus Christi, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan declined to say anything pending a study of the order.

At Washington, reporters called on an admiral who for years had been an authority on Naval aviation. To their questions, he said: "I don't know what to say; off the record, no comment."

Johnson's announcement gave no specific reason for ordering construction stopped. His decision was a reversal of the opinion of former Defense Secretary Forrestal, who thought at least one of the huge carriers should be built to test its practicability. In that, he had, at the time, the support of President Truman and the Congress.

Chairman, Quota For Savings Bond Drive Announced

A. N. Hendrickson, Midland County Savings Bond chairman, Saturday announced the appointment of John F. Butler as chairman of the Treasury Department's "Opportunity Drive." May 16 through June 30.

Residents of Midland County are asked to invest a total of $250,000 in Series E Savings Bonds during the campaign, Hendrickson said. The quota was established by the Texas Advisory Committee of which Nathan Adams of Dallas is chairman. Midland County last year led other West Texas counties in bond purchases on a per capita basis.

Announcement for the quotas of this and other Texas counties followed a dinner given Tuesday night in Houston by Gov. Beaufort Jester at which volunteers from all sections of the state were honored for their work in the Savings Bonds program. Midland County was represented by Butler and Chamber of Commerce Manager Delbert Downing.

The Texas quota in the drive is $26,000,000, and the national quota is $1,500,000,000.

Butler said all quotas apply only to the sale of Series E Savings Bonds, the idea being to place more bonds in the hands of average persons who, with the proceeds of their thrift, can enjoy opportunities and advantages not otherwise possible. At the same time, the purchasers are helping to manage the national debt.

Butler urged the cooperation of all citizens during the Opportunity Drive.

Forget-Me-Not Sale Returns $779.90

An unofficial total of $779.90 was reported received from the sale of Forget-Me-Not here Saturday. The sale was sponsored by the Midland Disabled American Veterans organization.

Members of the National Theatrical Society of Midland High School sold the Forget-Me-Not in the downtown business district.

Dr. H. Glenn Walker, adjutant of the Midland Chapter of DAV, Saturday night expressed the thanks of the organization for the contributions and help received from Midlanders. All funds from the sale will be used by the DAV.

Delegates Cheer At Communist Victory, Boo American's Talk

PARIS — (P) — The loudest cheers of the four-day-old World Peace Congress were given Saturday at the announcement of a Communist war victory in China.

Two minutes of wild cheering greeted the statement of the day's chairman, J. G. Crowther, a British historian, that "We have just learned that the Democratic Chinese forces have entirely liberated Nanking."

The delegates sat in stunned silence earlier when one speaker criticized "proletarian bureaucrats" and mixed boos with catcalls when an American, O. John Rogge, said Russia lacks political freedom.

They got their first shock when Harvey Moore, a British lawyer, told them they could not be for war and peace at the same time. He said:

"I rejoice to see so many Communists here advocating peace. It is a great step forward. If you are sincere, you cannot want war. Do you want war to continue in China until the triumph of the Democratic forces?"

Rogge delivered Shocker
A chorus of "Yes" greeted him, and he continued:

"Do you want peace now?"
There was a chorus of "No."
"Do not deceive yourselves. You cannot be for war (in China) and peace at the same time," the Briton exclaimed.

The second shocker for the delegates was a declaration by Rogge, former U. S. assistant attorney general, that Russia and the United States were "equally responsible" for the cold war.

Boos and hisses interrupted his speech when he said there was lack of equality for racial minorities in America and "Likewise, there is not sufficient freedom for political minorities in the Soviet Union."

Other boos and catcalls greeted his assertion that capitalism and Communism should learn to live together peacefully.

Rogge repeatedly ran counter to the general tenor of the congress. This has been to blame United States "imperialists" alone for threats to peace.

AFL Spokesman Blasts Wood Bill

WASHINGTON — (P) — The AFL served notice on Congress Saturday that it considers a coalition substitute for the Administration labor bill as obnoxious or more so than the Taft-Hartley Act which the unions want repealed.

This blast at the bill sponsored by Rep. Wood (D-Ga.), with Republican backing, came from George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer, in a radio speech.

Meany called the Wood bill "a transparent disguise for Taft-Hartleyism at its worst" and said some of its provisions "go even beyond the Taft-Hartley Act in their vicious and malicious attacks against organized labor."

Capital City Is Loot-Torn, Lit By Fires

SHANGHAI — (P) — Chinese Communist troops Sunday triumphantly occupied Nanking, reports filtering in from that Nationalist capital said.

By FRED HAMPSON
SHANGHAI — (P) — Victorious Chinese Communist armies Sunday apparently occupied China's capital of Nanking and neared Shanghai in a virtually unopposed sweep into the centers of Nationalist power.

The exact military situation in the teeming Shanghai-Nanking area of East-Central China was hidden by a screen of official silence. Communications with Nanking were out.

Gen. Chen Ta-Chin, commander of the Shanghai garrison, reiterated Sunday that this greatest city in all Asia would be defended to the death. No one seemed excited, however.

Reports rife through Shanghai that the Reds were nearing this city. There was no panic on this Sunday morning.

Citizens appeared to be reconciled to occupation by the Communists. Most of them seemed to hope the occupation would be peaceful.

Nanking, torn by looters and un-defended, had awaited the scheduled entry of Red troops at 7 a. m. Nanking time, hours ago. Since the gates were unguarded, the garrison had fled and the Communists in force just outside, it is presumed the entry was made.

Thus one more citadel of the Nationalist China, which President Chiang Kai-Shek hoped to see emerge from the decision of the war with Japan, fell without a shot.

It was difficult to tell in Shanghai where the great Red offensive, which by Communist account already has put 1,000,000 troops across the Yangtze, was driving.

The Red advance as reported so far still do not reflect Communist intentions regarding Shanghai.

The almost unopposed column could be heading for this historical heart of China. Or they could be by-passing it.

Communications with Nanking ceased more than two hours before the scheduled entry.

The last message from Seymour Topping, Associated Press Correspondent in Nanking, was received in San Francisco at 2:43 p. m. (CST) Saturday. This was 4:43 a. m. Sunday in Nanking.

Zone Ordinance To Be Considered At City Council Meet

Discussion and possible adoption of the proposed zoning ordinance for the City of Midland is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at a regular meeting of the City Council in the City Hall.

The proposed ordinance, which constitutes an amendment to the city's present zoning ordinance adopted in 1926, was considered informally at a special meeting of the council last week, when councilmen agreed to consider its adoption at the next regular session.

Two public hearings on the ordinance have been held, one at the formal hearing sponsored by the Zoning Commission in connection with a proposed Master Plan for Midland. It was prepared by the Dallas engineering firm of Kosh and Fowler in cooperation with the Zoning Commission, of which John J. Redfern, Jr., is chairman.

Bids will be received by the council Tuesday night from accountants for an annual audit of the city's books and accounts. Ordinances of business also are discussed.

Cancer Control Drive Nears $1,550 Quota

The annual Cancer Control Drive in Midland County was nearing its $1,550 goal Saturday as Chairman John F. Butler requested receipts totaling $145.

He said the quota is sure to be exceeded when final reports are made by all workers and when several promised gifts have been received. The drive will end on Saturday this week.

Persons who have not been contacted may mail contributions to Butler or to Treasurer Jack Weber. Checks also may be left at the Chamber of Commerce.

Businessmen are urged to volunteer workers and to citizens who responded so willingly and generously during the campaign.

Indians Clip Odessa 8-6; Play Broncos Here Sunday

Ogden Blasts Homer With One On For Winning Edge

Emil Ogden, a home town rookie outfielder, clouted a fast ball over the left-center field wall in the eighth inning of the Odessa-Midland baseball tilt Friday night and the estimated 1,000 fans in Indian Park roared their approval as Jim Boatman and Ogden tripped across the plate with the winning runs of an 8 to 6 contest, Ogden's future with the Indians had been a little uncertain up to that point but the slap on the back Harold Webb gave him after the round-tripper indicated he may be here a long time.

Ogden's crew was the only one that overshadowed the brilliant eight-hit hurling job turned in by Ralph Blair as he became the first Midland pitcher to go the route this season. It was Blair's second win of the exhibition slate, giving him due credit for both victories the Indians have notched in their five starts.

Sliter Leads War

Warren Sliter, the leading hitter for the Tribe up to now, put the Indians on in front with a fencible rapping triple in the third inning. The three-bagger drove across three runs Julian Pressley pushed Sliter across with the fourth tally when Shortstop Marshall erred on his grounder.

Odessa picked up two runs in the first half of the inning on a single by Palmer and a homer by Manager Al Monchak.

Sliter led the way for two more runs in the fifth when he singled Hughes into scoring position and both of them crossed the plate easily on Julian Pressley's double to center. Lefty Conniff, starting hurler, ran for cover after this barrage.

The Oilers scored one in the top of the fifth. Batson was hit by a pitched ball and moved across the plate on Palmer's triple.

Things Start Poppin' Business picked up in the seventh and it looked for a time as if the umpire were in for bodily harm at the hands of Manager Monchak.

Marlin Diaz, who relieved Lefty Conniff on the mound, walked to open the inning. Marshall singled through the box and Palmer got life when Kenny Jones missed his pop fly in fair territory. With the bases loaded, Monchak drove one to deep centerfield for extra bases. Base Umpire MacDonald called Monchak out as he slid into third base.

Everyone except the umpire could see Boatman missed Monchak when he tagged at him with the late throw. But the decision stood even after Monchak heaped words of wrath upon the ump for a full five minutes.

No Harm Done

As it turned out, the decision didn't affect the outcome of the game because Boien, the next man up, struck out on three pitches.

Ogden's four-master with Boatman on base via a walk clipped the tilt in the eighth. Blair had no trouble stopping the Oilers in the last two frames.

Sliter and Jones led Midland's 11-hit attack, each going three for four. Julian Pressley had a single and a double in four trips. Ogden had one hit in one trip and Hughes and Blair went one for four.

Here is the line score:

Odessa 003 019 300-6 8 3

Midland 004 020 02x-8 11 4

Fenton-LaBelle Matched In Grudge Bout Monday

The professional wrestling card at the VFW Arena seven miles west of Midland Monday night promises to be the best yet. Rod Fenton, the rugged Canadian, and Frenchman Pierre LaBelle again are matched in the main event.

The bout probably will be a continuation of what started after the bell had sounded on the final fall last Monday night. Fenton thought he had been counted out too fast and promptly started mixing it up, but good, after the referee had awarded the decision to La-

SPORTS SLANTS

by SHORTY SHELBURNE

The Big Spring Broncos, winners of first place in the Longhorn League over the regular season of play in the two campaigns will may be the team to beat again this year.

The Steeds showed undisputed power at the plate against Midland pitching Thursday night. Manny Mantaras, the catcher who replaced the infamous, but capable, Tony Trapanese, is on a par with Euro-mannered Tony, if not better. He has a good arm and swings a commanding club.

Also back with the Broncos is Ace Mendes. He led the league in stolen bases last season.

We nominate him for the title of "biggest robber." He's fast enough that he can rob batters of more hits possibly than any other man in the circuit.

Siding with the Big Spring reeler are his fellow-countrymen, First Baseman Arpians, Shortstop Vaques, Pitcher Bert Baes, Lefty Rames and several other lesser lights of last year's Bronco team.

Don't ever forget the Bronco club will be tough this season.

Speaking at the luncheon of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Friday Harold Webb predicted Stanley Hughes will be the leading slant-top to the Longhorn League. Webb does not make those predictions about his own ball players unless he really believes it.

We agree with him on the strength of Hughes' showing so far. He is unsurpassed in fielding, throwing and running the bases. He may be a hitter, too.

With Hughes, Bob Rose and Warren Sliter, the first three men in the Indian batting order, Midland has the fastest lead-off trio in the league. Mendes and Gomes of Big Spring may be faster individually but for any three men in any lineup, we'll gamble on Webb's boys.

George Glass, Jr., of Midland, state and national junior champion skeet shooter, has been picked on the All-American team for 1948 by Jimmy Robinson, trap and skeet shoot editor of Sports Afield magazine.

Young George will receive an All-American skeet badge for his already award-laden jacket.

He'll take another crack at the clay pigeons next week at a shoot in Pinehurst, N. C. George, Sr., and Mrs. Glass also will make the trip.

Manager Harold Webb Friday sent a hurry-up wire to Bakersfield, Calif., for Rookie Outfielder Peena to report at once.

Webb currently is carrying 11 limited service men on the roster and at least three of them must go. What the Indians need now is good rookies.

The annual Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament is scheduled in Amarillo July 26 to 28. The tourney boasts the largest entry and prize lists of any in the nation.

The thing that makes it a drawing card is the fact that golfers who enter must be 50 years of age or older.

Eddie Hammond, a Big Spring citizen ticketed for duty in the Longhorn League umpiring ranks this season, worked the exhibition tilt in his home town Thursday night. ## Opening Day Tickets On Sale Monday

Opening day tickets for the Roswell Rockets-Midland Indians baseball game Friday will go on sale at 11 a. m. Monday at Indian Park and in the downtown business section, Harold Webb has announced. A committee headed by Harlan Howell will canvass business firms and oil company offices offering the tickets for sale.

An intensive drive is scheduled all this week as an effort to win the opening day attendance trophy for the Midland Indians. The trophy is to be presented by a national sporting goods company to the team drawing the largest official paid attendance on opening day at home.

The first-day duceus this season are in the form of a baseball and have the Longhorn League schedule printed on the back. Patrons will be allowed to keep the tickets as souvenirs.

Reserved seat tickets and regular season tickets will be on sale at the box office at Indian Park throughout the week, also. Regular season tickets this year may be purchased in books of twenty.

Softball Park West Of Midland May Be Leased For Season

Owners of the softball park west of Midland on U. S. Highway 80 Saturday agreed to lease the park to the City of Midland for the playing season for an unannounced fee. Steps toward obtaining the money for the lease are to be taken by sponsors of league teams and the city within the near future.

Mayor W. B. Neely Friday was requested to negotiate a deal with owners of the park to allow the league to use the facilities this season. The request was made at a meeting in the city manager's office at which Neely, City Manager H. A. Thomas and managers of the eight league teams were present.

Plans also were discussed for the construction of softball fields at the Wesley Tract north of the city. Joe Robertson, Tete Hensley and League Commissioner Claude Watkins were named to a committee to work with city officials on the project.

Tribe Seeks Revenge For Thursday Loss To Steeds

The Midland Indians wind up their Spring exhibition schedule Monday night and make preparations for the opening day Longhorn League game in Roswell, N. M., Wednesday. The tribe meets the potent Big Spring Broncos at 3 p. m. Sunday in Indian Park and takes on the Odessa Oilers in Odessa Monday night in the exhibition finale.

Ernie Nelson, popular left-hander who was at the top of the league in wins in 1947 and helped the Indians to the pennant last year, is due to take the hill in his first outing Sunday against the Big Spring Broncos. Nelson suffered a finger injury last month which curtailed his Spring training but now is fully recovered and ready to go. He's a veteran hurler and the only class man carried by the Indians at the present time.

Big Spring, always classed as the team to beat in the Longhorn League, has an outfit this season which compares favorably with last year's league-leading nine. Several members of the 1947 and 1948 teams are back and Joe Cambria, Washington Senator scout, has supplied Manager Pat Stacey with a good crop of rookies from the Cuban Winter League.

The Tribe fell victim to the Bronco crew in the first tilt of the two-game exhibition series Thursday night. With a little luck instead of the bad second inning, Webb's men could have turned the trick they'll be trying to turn Sunday.

Things are pretty well settled on the starting lineup from all indications. Sliter, Hughes, Jones and Rose apparently are set for the Sunday game. Hoss Alvis may make his long-awaited appearance at third in the place of Jim Boatman.

Ernie Ogden, the Midland boy who is making good in centerfield and at the plate, probably will get the nod to start against Big Spring. The aggregate value of yacht property in the United States is between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Gadgets Are Taking Over

Every now and then we get an uncomfortable feeling that the robots are after us. That is old-fogeyism, and silly to boot. People probably have been complaining about over-mechanization since the day when some speed-mad genius invented the wheel and started the whole thing rolling.

But we still get that feeling. The latest twinge came after reading about a new device that answers the phone for you when you are out. A wire recorder permits the callers to leave a message, and also informs them of the obvious fact that you aren't at home. We never did figure out what lifts the phone off the cradle and puts it back.

Speaking of telephones, there is now an electric brain that figures out phone bills. The folks who use it say it never overcharges. Occasionally charges you too little, though.

There is also an electric brain that plays chess. If that is too deep for the merely human opponent, it will condescend to play gin rummy.

Chicagoans with television sets can choose from a selection of movies, call the phone company and announce their choice—and there it is, right in the living room.

They're now boiling water, washing clothes and lighting pipes by sound waves. Highway cops are pinching speeders with the help of radar. More and more everyday activities are graduating to the "look-no-hands" category where things work in a way that is beyond the average comprehension.

No doubt this is all for the best. At least the people who invented all these things must have been trying to make life easier for their fellow man as well as make money for themselves. But we wonder what is going to happen to the subconscious lives of a lot of people as their everyday world grows more electronic and atomic.

There are a lot of normal, intelligent human beings who are baffled by any mechanism much more complicated than a screwdriver. They are mystified enough by things as they are today. We worry sometimes at what will happen to their egos in a future where invisible, incomprehensible forces wait on them hand and foot.

The adjustment isn't going to be quick or easy. First the human race must get human behavior to keep pace with scientific achievement if it is to survive. Then will come the problem of reconciling average human ingenuity with specialized human genius.

Until the adjustment is made we foresee a rough time for many horse-and-buggy—or at least "Model-T"—minds while they are learning to live surrounded by mysterious, wonder-working gadgets. Inferiority complexes, we fear, will be thicker than television antennae.

That man with the "Model-T" mind won't be able to discuss his phone bill with the electrical accountant that totted up the figures. He'll shy away from a friendly game of gin with a box of tubes and wires that can beat him any time he wants to pick up the cards.

Affluent breadwinners who can afford servants today are cowed enough by their cooks as it is. Think of their frustrated future when they start complaining about the way the sound waves brewed the coffee or try to bawl out the radar for burning the roast!

He'd Get Out Were It Not So Embarrassing

DREW PEARSON ON THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
(Copyright, 1949, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: General MacArthur dictates to the Philippines; Truman says good health is our nation's first defense; Florida congressmen plead with President for flood-control appropriation.

WASHINGTON — General MacArthur, who never has endeared himself to the State Department, has now gotten both the State Department and the White House in something of a tizzy.

MacArthur recently received a visit from an important envoy, the Philippine government's roving ambassador, Manuel Gallego, with whom he had an extremely blunt conversation. He told Ambassador Gallego that he wanted President Quirino of the Philippines re-elected.

Gallego was shocked. For MacArthur, while all-powerful in Japan, has nothing to do with the now free and independent Philippines. This, however, didn't faze Mac. He told Gallego that if Quirino were not re-elected, he—MacArthur—would see to it that all American aid and loans to the Philippines would be canceled.

Naturally this word immediately came back to the State Department, which now is boiling mad, and has requested President Truman to take the matter up personally with MacArthur and order him to apologize for this unauthorized invasion of the private affairs of the Philippine Republic.

The State Department has been holding up the Philippines to the rest of the Orient as an example of American democracy at work and doesn't want its word spoiled even by the man who once told the Philippines: "I shall return."

A physically fit nation not only is essential to economic prosperity, but is our first line of military defense. President Truman told a group of medical, labor and civic leaders who called to discuss the Administration's pay-as-you-go health-insurance program.

We cannot afford to be handicapped as in the last war, when 30 to 40 per cent of our draftees were rejected on medical grounds. Truman reminded his callers, who included AFL President William Green, CIO Vice President James Carey and Dr. Channing Frothingham, past president of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

"A great many of those rejections were due to lack of medical treatment in childhood," declared the President. It is a basic responsibility of the government, he added, to provide care needed to make them healthy citizens.

Frothingham, who described himself as a "Republican and a member of the American Medical Association," announced that many doctors would support the federal health-insurance plan "if they knew the real facts, instead of the distorted picture circulated by the AMA."

Truman agreed that doctors generally misunderstood the federal health program, which is to expand medical care to the underprivileged, build more hospitals, provide medical scholarships, etc., through a payroll tax. He attributed the misunderstanding to medical association propaganda, attacking the program as "socialized medicine."

"It's not socialized medicine and we do not intend to harness and harness doctors, as the AMA contends," Truman emphasized.

"Let me assure you that the A.M.A. is going down the line for your program," declared President Truman. "We are not going to accept any phony compromise, like the Taft bill." (The latter would provide medical care for the poor.)

The Doctors' Lobby. Harvey Brown, president of the Massachusetts Union, seconded Green. So did the CIO's Jim Carey, who insisted that Morris Fishbein, editor of the Medical Association Journal, and other AMA leaders ought to be prosecuted under the Taft-Hartley Act for assessing doctors $25 each to carry on the lobby against health insurance.

"The $3,000,000 fund the AMA lobby is raising is for a political purpose, namely to influence legislation," explained Carey. "Why should the AMA be allowed to do this, when labor unions can't make political contributions under the law?"

However, it was Chat Paterson, young director of the Committee on the Nation's Health, who supplied the crowning argument: "The AMA contends that voluntary insurance is the answer to our health needs. Well, nothing could be more voluntary than this program. The people want it, but the AMA is determined they won't get it."

Truman concluded the discussion by saying: "I have felt deeply on this subject ever since I was a county judge in Missouri and saw babies dying because their parents didn't have the money for hospital care. That shouldn't be allowed to happen anywhere, especially in a nation as great and powerful as ours."

The Farm Bureau has issued orders to all its state offices to oppose the Agriculture Department's new and far-sighted farm program. The Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce laid a wreath on the statue of Cuban Jose Marti, which was desecrated by inebriated American sailors. The CIO's Political Action Committee soon will move its Washington offices to the former Dewey-Warren headquarters. PAC Boss Jack Kroll will occupy the same office used by Hugh Scott to direct the GOP campaign. At an off-the-record meeting held in Washington last week the CIO-PAC decided to increase its 1949 campaign fund by $100,000 to support pro-labor candidates in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Irving Kaufman, who prosecuted a number of unregistered lobbyists as special assistant to Attorney General Tom Clark, has been offered the job of chief counsel to the Senate committee if and when it investigates lobbyists. The investigation is scheduled to start after Congress recesses for the Summer. Truman on Flood Control. President Truman gave four members of the Florida congressional delegation a sermon on government economy before upping flood-control funds for Central and Southern Florida from $1,000,000 to $4,000,000. "We're going to be about $600,000,000 in the red this year because Congress hasn't gone along with my budget request for the armed services," he complained. "Therefore, I have to cut down on spending where I can, and I'm going to cut down."

"No nation can afford to continue spending more than it takes in," continued the President. "The trouble is that everybody is thinking about getting something for himself instead of thinking about the overall welfare of the country. It's downright ridiculous for us to be operating in the red when we have a national income of $270,000,000,000." Truman finally related, however, when Reps. Dwight Rogers and George Smathers, supported by Senators Claude Pepper and Spessard Holland, warned that another Florida flood disaster similar to the 1938 hurricane-flood could cost $300 million. "The $1,000,000 flood-control appropriation voted by the House for my section of Florida isn't near enough to get projects under way in the dangerous Lake Okechobee

McKenney on Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY, America's Card Authority, Written For NEA Service

We now have a team of sisters, Mrs. Augusta Cantor and Mrs. Gertrude Jobs, of New York City, who are doing very well in tournament bridge. The famous team of brothers is E. Jay Becker and Simon Becker, but they seldom play together as one lives in New York and the other in Philadelphia.

The two sisters were defending champions this year in the Eastern States mixed team-of-four event, but they did not repeat their victory. In the recent Atlantic City tournament, Mrs. Cantor won the mixed pair event, and she and her sister, playing with Harry Kilger, of Philadelphia, and Arthur Brace, of Wilmington, Del., won the team-of-four event.

Bridge tournament results table with columns for South, West, North, East and various scores.

Mrs. Cantor got a nice result out of today's hand, and then pointed out a way that East could have defeated it. She ruffed the opening lead of the five of hearts with the seven of spades, drew three rounds of trumps, then led the small diamond from dummy. East played low, declarer won the trick with the ten of diamonds and then led the king.

East took the second diamond trick with the ace and led the queen of hearts. Mrs. Cantor discarded a diamond and won with the ace of hearts. Now she played dummy's last trump, then led a club to her king, followed by two more rounds of diamonds. Poor West found himself squeezed. If he threw a club, Mrs. Cantor's clubs would be good. If he threw a heart, she would make the jack of hearts in dummy.

If East had led a small heart when he got in the ace of diamonds, he could have held the queen of hearts and protected West against the squeeze.

Ensnared in Red Tape. What has happened here is that the ICC, like so many other government agencies, has become bogged down in its own red tape. It is more or less neglected. The railroad trade press follows its intricate rulings with professional self-interest. But no other government agency and neither the White House nor the Congress has the slightest idea of what goes on there, or why.

The result is that instead of the ICC regulating the railroads, the railroads pretty much get what they want out of the ICC. The commission needs a great shake-up and new blood. The great problem, of course, is in finding qualified talent that will work for $12,000 a year and tell $50,000 railroad presidents where to head in.

As part of the fact that any of your friends—even railroads—to name one or more of the honorable commissioners. By way of re-introduction, this is the way they line up. The first five do most of the work: Chairman Charles D. Mahaffie, 65, Kansas Republican. He is a Rhodes scholar and Princeton professor of jurisprudence. He served as attorney for the old USRA Commission, then went to ICC's Bureau of Finance, from which he was named commissioner by Hoover, in 1930.

J. Haden Aldridge, 62, Alabama Democrat. He made a study of freight rates for TVA which won him appointment to first vice chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He was an attorney for Northern Pacific before being elected to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Richard F. Mitchell, 60, Iowa Democrat. Former Iowa Supreme Court chief justice and Democratic national committeeman. He was referee in a 1947 adjustment board case, which he handled so well that he was recommended for ICC appointment by its practitioners.

Burdened With Other Work. J. Montague Jones, 61, South Carolina Democrat. He was colonel of an engineer regiment in the Spanish-American War and in the Rainbow Division of World War I. He succeeded the late Joe Eastman as Office of Defense Transportation

Fireman Rides Red Truck; Then Turns Red In The Face
The various shades of red Fire Marshall Bill Klatt's face turned when he arrived at the scene in one of the trucks dispatched to the scene.

Upon arrival, firemen found the blaze had started in an automobile but it was out. Klatt made a more interesting discovery, however.

Mrs. Klatt, standing near the automobile, meekly admitted she had driven the car with the emergency brake set.

Klatt promptly gave her instructions about creating a fire hazard and always to check the brake before starting, especially when driving his car.

"DON'T cry, XXXX. George said, "I'm all right. I'll tell you all about it."

Molly was reaching for her bermed son—dirt, coal dust, matted air and all—but Major intervened.

"You'll tell nothing until you've had a bath," Major said. "Who's your friend?"

George introduced Hank, his roommate from school.

"Downstairs, you two, to the laundry," Major said. Turning to me, he asked what chance there was of borrowing some of Bill's clothes and letting the boys sleep in his room.

I hustled upstairs; Major and the boys hustled down; Molly took off for the kitchen.

Scrubbed pink, with wet hair clinging to their heads, dressed in clean clothes, they sat down to eat the mound of food Molly had whipped up. When they finished, they told their story.

"You knew I didn't want to go back to school, Dad," George began.

Composition Of ICC Explains Many Faults Of U.S. Railroads

By PETER EDSON, NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—If you are interested in what's the matter with the railroads of this country, one answer may be found by studying the make-up of the 11-man Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is generally admitted that four or five of the commissioners do all the work. One of the commissioners is blind. Two are 74 years old and one, just reappointed for a new six-year term, is 71. Only one commissioner is under 60. That is the newly-commissioned Hugh W. Cross of Illinois, 53, who admits he knows practically nothing about the railroads.

Of the 11 commissioners, only five had any railroad or public utilities experience before they were appointed to ICC. Two came up through the ranks as ICC career men. One had railway labor background, one was recommended by the ICC practitioners, the association of lawyers who plead cases before the commission. Three knew nothing about the railroads when first named to ICC.

These are the vital statistics on one of the oldest and most entrenched of the government regulatory agencies. ICC was first set up as a five-man body 62 years ago. It now occupies a seven-story building full of clerks. Its figures show 2,900 employees and has asked for a budget of more than $11,000,000 for next year.

It is so far behind on its docket that several years would be required to clean it up, even if no new cases were committed to it. It takes sometimes years to handle a major case.

Ensnared in Red Tape. What has happened here is that the ICC, like so many other government agencies, has become bogged down in its own red tape. It is more or less neglected. The railroad trade press follows its intricate rulings with professional self-interest. But no other government agency and neither the White House nor the Congress has the slightest idea of what goes on there, or why.

The result is that instead of the ICC regulating the railroads, the railroads pretty much get what they want out of the ICC. The commission needs a great shake-up and new blood. The great problem, of course, is in finding qualified talent that will work for $12,000 a year and tell $50,000 railroad presidents where to head in.

As part of the fact that any of your friends—even railroads—to name one or more of the honorable commissioners. By way of re-introduction, this is the way they line up. The first five do most of the work: Chairman Charles D. Mahaffie, 65, Kansas Republican. He is a Rhodes scholar and Princeton professor of jurisprudence. He served as attorney for the old USRA Commission, then went to ICC's Bureau of Finance, from which he was named commissioner by Hoover, in 1930.

J. Haden Aldridge, 62, Alabama Democrat. He made a study of freight rates for TVA which won him appointment to first vice chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He was an attorney for Northern Pacific before being elected to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Richard F. Mitchell, 60, Iowa Democrat. Former Iowa Supreme Court chief justice and Democratic national committeeman. He was referee in a 1947 adjustment board case, which he handled so well that he was recommended for ICC appointment by its practitioners.

Burdened With Other Work. J. Montague Jones, 61, South Carolina Democrat. He was colonel of an engineer regiment in the Spanish-American War and in the Rainbow Division of World War I. He succeeded the late Joe Eastman as Office of Defense Transportation

Possible Sites for New Test Range

These maps show closeups of the Point Mugu, Calif., and Banana River Naval Air Station, Fla., areas, which Defense officials are considering as sites for the proposed $200,000,000 guided missile test center. Both sites are now used as test ranges but are inadequate for longer range missiles. Point Mugu uses Begg's Rock for its present target area, as shown. The proposed, extreme long range test center eventually would have a community of 13,000 persons.

Reds--

Gates Stand Open
There was no reason to doubt, however, that the Communists had indeed marched in. The gates of Nanking had stood open since the government garrison fled Saturday morning. The city was the Reds' any time they liked.

Topping's Roundup Story of the War Situation, sent at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, Nanking time, follows:

NANKING (AP)—Thousands of Communist troops reached the open gates of this looted, firelit Chinese capital Saturday night and prepared for a triumphant entry Sunday morning.

The 100,000 government troops in and around Nanking had fled southward Saturday morning, pausing only to blow up the railway station and set the waterfront aflame.

Orgies of Robbery, Killing
Wild orgies of robbery and killing raged all day Saturday.

By nightfall an emergency "Peace Preservation Committee" headed by Gen. Ma Chin-Yuan, a former government division commander, had restored some order and arranged for the Communist entry.

Ma announced shortly before midnight Saturday the Reds had begun crossing from the north bank of the Yangtze River at 6 p.m. to Shang Hsin Ho, three miles from Nanking's west gate.

By the time of his announcement several thousand were over the big river, waiting to enter by daylight.

Ma said he did not think the Reds would enter sooner, although the gates stood open and they could walk in whenever they chose.

Formal Welcome
Ma said he was arranging a formal welcome.

Darkness and volunteer patrols of students and citizens finally halted most of the looting.

Sporadic rifle fire still crackled, however, and the bodies of looters lay where they had been slain.

Government forces were believed trying to reach Hangchow, on the southeast 150 miles southeast of Nanking and 100 miles south of Shanghai.

From there they could move by rail farther south for the fight "to the end" which Acting President Li and President Chiang Kai-Shek have vowed to make.

There was an unconfirmed report that Chiang was in Shanghai, where Premier Ho Ying-Chin was based. Ho has taken overall command of Nationalist forces.

'Brain Wave' Detector Makes Diagnosis By Long Distance Telephone

Diagnosis of cardiac conditions and epilepsy is now said to be possible by telephone as a result of a new device developed by the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field, Texas. The school created a new small-size electroencephalograph, a machine which measures heart and brain waves, which is a great improvement over older types. The new device can pick up faint waves and transmit them over a telephone even while the subject is in motion. At left, a patient exercises on a stationary bike with the new device hung around his neck. Former electroencephalographs were bulky and the patient had to lie motionless. With the new device, as shown at right, the faint wave signals can be transmitted over a telephone to a doctor who can make a diagnosis from them.

Owen was shot in the chest and died before he reached a hospital. Vivion said Mrs. Garnier told him she hoped to marry Owen but that his wife, Florence, refused to give him a divorce. Vivion said Mrs. Garnier related that Owen came home recently from a trip to New York, told his wife he was in love with a woman there, and then informed her that Mrs. Owen would consent to a divorce if he married the other woman but would not divorce him if he planned to marry Mrs. Garnier.

In a long distance call, Miss Rich told a newsmen:

"Mr. Owen was in New York to see me from 10 to 14 times in the last two months. He'd be visiting before Senate or congressional committees in Washington and would run up here and we'd go to lunch, or dinner and supper together.

"I wasn't in love with him. He was 58 and a man's man. His daughter and her husband, Col. Trippi of Army Ordnance at Camp Lee, Va., and his wife (Owen's) were often with us."

Asked if Owen had hinted or proposed marriage, Miss Rich said: "Why, he couldn't. He's already married, and don't forget, I've been married three times and I've had enough. I was last divorced in 1931, from David Blankenhorn. I have no intention of ever marrying again."

"I'm shocked beyond words at this tragedy. Why any woman would kill Mr. Owen is beyond me."

— FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS —

'Tis funny what a little moisture will do in West Texas.

The recent rains over most of this section, following as they did the early year moisture, have changed the picture entirely and now most farmers and ranchers are jubilantly optimistic and nearly all are looking forward to a banner year in livestock production and crop yields.

The smiles on the faces of cowmen and farmers have turned to wide grins as they see the wild flowers blooming and the grass and farm lands which have been so dry the last several years. It is a beautiful sight to behold. The Spring of 1949 undoubtedly is the best in recent years and there are those who will call the "wet cycle" is here and there will be ample moisture the next several years.

One prominent Midland rancher says the recent rains are only April showers and that the big rains will come between May 1 and 15.

Anyway, men of the soil are happy and it is hoped their joy continues unabated through the Spring and Summer months. A good year for the farmers and ranchers means a better year for Midland and West Texas.

Midlanders with lawn and garden problems, too, are pretty happy about the moisture, as are the housewives who have gained considerable experience in sand shoveling the last several years.

Cattle buyers reportedly were finding few if any cattle for sale here last week.

Last week's rains were heavier to the south and southwest of Midland, with most of the country to the north receiving only light showers.

Harvey Conger says he did not get enough rain to settle the dust on his Northwest Ector County ranch. But he had more moisture earlier in the year than did Midland and he says his country is in pretty good shape. His cattle are looking good, he stated.

Conger, by the way, uses sharp shooting Midlanders rather than the poison to keep down the prairie dog population on his ranch. He takes a group out from town for a little target practice when the dogs get too thick. Jim and Copper Daugherty did a nice job of prairie dog exterminating a few Sundays ago, according to Conger.

George Glass reports only a shower last week on his ranch northeast of Midland in Martin County. But he too, had early rains and he said Friday he has never seen cattle looking so good at this time of the year. He says the weeds are coming along fine, but that the green stuff will have to have more moisture along to keep going.

E. B. Dickenson said Friday his ranch in North Martin County got an inch and three-quarter soaker last week. Water is standing in the lake bottoms and his country looks fine. He said the grass is coming out in good shape, dispelling the

Waitress Held On Charge She Killed Mother With Knife

NEW YORK (AP)—A waitress who sat watching as her mother died of stab wounds, was held Saturday on charges that she wielded the death knife—a gift she gave her mother.

Police said June Lang, 26, was charged with homicide after she admitted plunging the knife twice into her mother's chest Friday night because "she called me a dirty name."

The daughter was quoted by police as saying she watched the gravely wounded woman crawl from a bedroom into a hall where she bled to death. Then she sat beside the body until her twin sister, May, returned home.

The accused daughter, who did not live at home, had come to visit her mother, Gladys, 54, police said, and had brought the knife as a gift.

Police said the daughter told them she noticed last Thanksgiving, when home on another visit, her mother did not have a good carving knife.

Her mother, who saw the child plunge, summoned firemen. They drilled a hole in the foot-thick wall of the adjoining building while her mother talked to her from the rooftop.

Rescuers pulled her out by the panties after cutting a gaping hole in the adjoining wall. Treated at a hospital, she was returned to her home frightened but suffering only the minor bruises.

Economists See Trend To End Crude Output Slashes

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON—(AP)—A four-month downward trend in domestic crude oil production appears to have shifted into low gear.

An oil industry economist even has warned that by the end of the year production may have to climb back to its record peak of the late 1948.

The nation's crude output has fallen from approximately 5,600,000 barrels in mid-December to a daily average of 4,911,800 barrels the week ended April 16.

Company income slumps have accompanied the production cutbacks and some governmental officials have become alarmed over falling income from petroleum taxes.

The current note of optimism for the remainder of the year, however, results from reports of reduced foreign crude oil imports, improvement in storage stocks of petroleum and petroleum products, and predictions of an upward trend in market demand during the last half of the year.

Imports Down Sharply

Ten companies importing crude advised the Texas Railroad Commission last week their May imports will total 348,800 barrels daily in May and 328,300 barrels in June. January imports were estimated at 474,000 barrels daily, February at 483,000.

Members of the commission, terming the reports evidence the importing companies are carrying out promises not to permit imports to harm the domestic industry, immediately took this action:

Texas crude production allowances for May were set at 1,982,492 barrels daily. This represents a cut of 84,079 barrels daily as compared with April but it is the smallest of five consecutive cutbacks ordered by the commission.

Since January 1, Texas daily allowances have been reduced by approximately 800,000 barrels. Most testimony presented before the commission placed the blame on imports, surplus stocks and market declines.

May Be Last Cut

Actually the commission made no direct effort to reduce production next month. The daily cutback results from May having one more day than April.

There were predictions it would be the last reduction for some while. One member of the commission said that by June "We'll be over the hump."

Dr. Richard J. Gonzales, economist for the Humble Oil & Refining Company, also offered an optimistic note.

Gonzales, who also is chairman of the Economic Advisory Committee of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, says substantial increases in crude production will be needed to meet demands expected later this year.

That demand, he said, may approach the relatively high level of 1948 unless current stocks are reduced substantially.

But the industry does not seem particularly interested in making any sizeable cutback in its stocks, particularly in crude.

Fourteen company executives testified on this point this week following receipt of special requests from the Texas Railroad Commission.

Crude Stocks Adequate

The commission wanted to know, in order to carry out its obligations, limit production to market demand, what the industry needs in the way of working stocks.

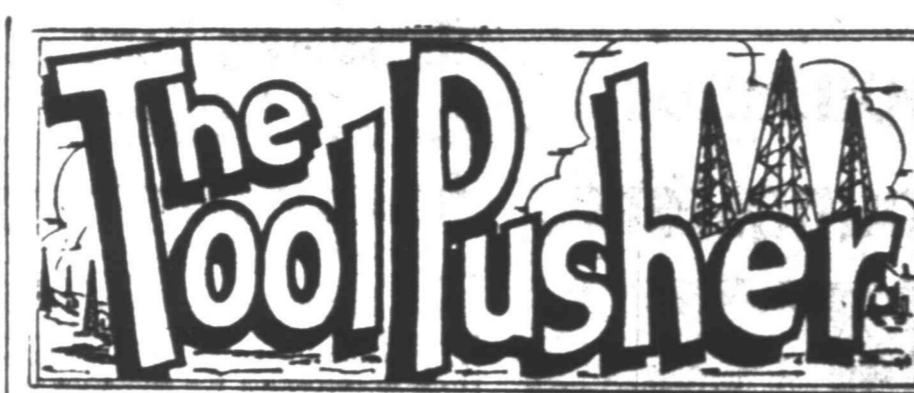

No survey on the industry's thoughts on working stocks had been made since 1938.

Most of the 14 executives testifying before the commission figured approximately 250,000,000 barrels of crude stock is sufficient. Some estimates were as low as 240,000,000, some as high as 285,000,000.

Current domestic crude stocks approximate 268,000,000 barrels.

None of the industry spokesmen thought the current total excessive or an economic burden on the industry.

One official said crude stocks are "slightly on the long side," another that the industry is "going a little too fast." But none thought the situation justifies alarm.

Kinley To Show Oil Fire Fighting Film At Session Of API

The meeting, which begins at 8:00 p. m., will be held at the Ector County Auditorium and Barn in Odessa. Barbecue and refreshments will be served following the meeting. There will be an assessment of $1.50 per person to cover the cost of food.

Tickets are now on sale and can be obtained in Midland at The Western Company, Room 111, Midland Tower Building.

AIME Names Three New Committeemen

Tom C. Frick, chairman of the Permian Basin Section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, has announced that two members have been appointed to the program committee and one to the membership committee of that organization.

Program committee now consists of W. N. (Bill) Little, of Midland, with the Delta Water Capping Company, chairman; Ed Shakely, of Midland, Shell Oil Company; and F. L. Converse, of Midland, Stanolind Oil and Gas Company.

Those on the membership committee are Joe Chastain, of Midland, with the Delta Water Capping Company, chairman; and James C. Wright, of Odessa, Garret Oil Tools. A third member will be appointed to this committee at a later date, Frick said.

Frick is with the Atlantic Refining Company, with Midland, and is chairman of the Permian Basin Section of the A.I.M.E. for 1949.

Record Number Of Geology Students Plan Field Trips

AUSTIN—The largest number of students ever to participate in University of Texas geology field trips will study firsthand Texas rock formations this summer. A. H. Deen, Geology Department chairman, announced.

Texas' most prolific oil-bearing formation.

For the second year the University and Texas A&M Geology Departments will be cooperating in summer field study. An instructor is provided for each group of 10 students.

Scheduled for six weeks of study at the University's Fort Davis camp are 25 graduate students. A long-range program to geologists that area will continue this year in cooperation with the Bureau of Economic Geology.

Argo Oil Corporation has plugged and abandoned its two Devonian failures in the North Russell area of Northwest Gaines County.

The company's No. 1-B Jones, 465 feet from south and west lines of the north half of section 31, block AX, ps1 survey, was left on 11,380 feet.

The other dry hole, Argo No. 1-C Jones, 2,541 feet from south and west lines of section 32, block AX, ps1 survey, was plugged on total depth of 11,205 feet, after being temporarily abandoned for the last few weeks.

Both ventures made salt water in the Devonian, where the North Russell field discovery well was completed for commercial production.

Penn State Plans Oil Research Foundation

OIL CITY, Pa., April 24—An agreement to establish a Petroleum Production Research Foundation at The Pennsylvania State College on May 1st has been signed by representatives of the College and the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association, Oil City, Pa., according to a joint announcement by officials of the institutions.

Purpose of the Foundation, the agreement states, is to promote development and conservation in the petroleum industry by an increase of useful knowledge of petroleum exploration and production through research and experimentation.

The contract will remain in effect through 1952 and will be renewable by mutual agreement. Signing for the College was acting president James Milholland. The Association was represented by its president, D. T. Ring, Preston Oil Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Sinclair Tests With No Shows In Borden

In Northwest Borden County, 11 miles northwest of Gall, Sinclair Prairie Oil Company was drilling ahead with its No. 1 Sterling Williams, wildcat, 660 feet from north and east lines of section 45, block 32, T-6-N, EL&RR survey.

The prospector swabbed a 30-minute drillstem and recovered 60 feet of drilling mud with no shows of oil, gas or water. Interval at which the test was run was not reported.

More hole was being made from 7,448 feet in shale.

Shrine Club Slates 'Stag Night' Party

The Midland Shrine Club will stage a "stag night" party and entertainment for members and special guests at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the officers club at Midland Airpark north of the city.

A special program of fun and entertainment will be presented. All members are invited and urged to attend. Admission will be by fee and '49 membership card.

Tea probably was the first artificially concocted human drink. It dates back more than 4,700 years in China.

Sterling Discovery To Make New Hole

More hole was to be made into the prospective Wolfcamp-Permian pay zone at Pan American Production Company No. 2 Poster, likely discovery from the Wolfcamp in Central Sterling County.

Total depth is 5,489 feet, where oil flowed on a drillstem test. A string of 5 1/2-inch casing is set at 5,422 feet. Swabbing that open hole shows no recovered satisfactory results, and operator is moving in a cable tool unit to drill a 6 1/2-inch hole.

Tests are then to be resumed. The development is nine miles southwest of Sterling City and 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 10, block 13, SPRR survey.

Magnolia Deepens Midland Ventures

Magnolia Petroleum Company was drilling ahead with its two prospectors in Midland County.

In the east part of the county, 12 miles southeast of Midland, the concern's No. 1 Mary Turner, 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 46, block 37, T-2-S, Leonard Leach survey, was below 8,346 feet in lime and shale.

Magnolia No. 2-30 Roy Glass, in South-Central Midland County, offsetting the same company's Ellenberger discovery to open the Pecos field of North-Central Upton County, was under 6,990 feet, penetrating lime and shale. It is 1,980 feet from west and 660 feet from south lines of section 30, block 40, T-3-S, TP survey.

Java is the most thickly populated country in the world. It has 821 persons to the square mile.

Geology Peculiar To Wyoming Discussed At WTGS Meeting

A geological history of the State of Wyoming, stressing oil significance, was given by Dr. Horace D. Thomas, Wyoming state geologist, at a meeting of the West Texas Geological Society Friday night.

The lecture, illustrated by slides, covered the complete section of Wyoming. Dr. Thomas pointed out stratigraphic problems from the Precambrian to the Tertiary and outlined currents of oil in each age.

He discussed geological situations unique to the state, which contains the deepest producing wells in the world and also production highest above sea level. He said that some of the wells produce at a datum of plus 7,000 feet.

A business discussion followed the talk. The meeting was held in the district courtroom of the Midland County Courthouse. Attendance was estimated as 60 members.

Scouts, Landmen's Association To Hold Houston Convention

The 26th annual convention of the National Oil Scouts and Landmen's Association will be held in the Shamrock Hotel Houston, Texas, June 9, 10, and 11.

Robert Wilson, second vice-president of the association and general chairman of the convention, said almost 1,000 oil men from all over the country, including Canada, will gather for both educational and social occasions.

For the first time in the history of the convention a large scale exhibit will be put on by the nation's oil field suppliers and equipment companies. Space in the 112 booth "Hall of Exhibits" at the Shamrock already is being arranged for by oil field suppliers and the general public as well as those who attend the convention will find the displays of great interest.

WTGS Will Meet In Midland May 9

A dinner-meeting of the West Texas Geological Society is to be held in Midland May 9. Guest speaker is to be Dr. C. W. Tomlinson, president of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, who has chosen as the title of his talk, "Odd Geological Structures in South Oklahoma."

Members desiring to attend the dinner and session should contact John Norman, treasurer of the society, by April 27. Further details of the meet will be reported at a later date.

EMPIRE METERING MUD MIXER

- LOADS EASILY
- MIXES CONSTANTLY
- METERS ACCURATELY

A positive mud economizer. For rotary mudding operations, the Empire Metering Mud Mixer conserves drilling mud, does a thorough job of mixing sacked drilling mud with wet flow. Resulting mixture is entirely cohesive, because mixer eliminates ordinary mud pit settling of expensive chemical muds. In use, EMPIRE METERING Mud Mixer pares plenty off the cost of drilling, because it saves so much in mud. Can be skidded, lifted, moved anywhere. Hooking up its jet nipple to a mud pit is simple, loading the hopper is no trouble at all! A knife in the loading platform even cuts sack for you! Dry mud in hopper is constantly stirred until it reaches the patented METERING OUTLET HOLE, where it is uniformly dispersed into the suction pit where it is immediately picked up and pumped down the hole.

A floor level only 18 inches above the rails brings passengers aboard a revolutionary streamliner down to the level of people standing on the station platform. Built by the American Car and Foundry Co. in Berwick, Pa., the new train is based on the Spanish "Patentes Talgo" and is now ready for testing and demonstration across the nation. The locomotive is two feet lower than a standard diesel-electric and coaches four feet lower than present-day equipment.

Wichita Falls City Buses Idled By Strike

WICHITA FALLS—(P)—Wichita Falls residents swamped taxicabs and used share-a-ride plans Saturday when a strike of AFL drivers stopped city buses.

The drivers struck to support wage demands. They decided to walk out because the Wichita Falls City Council Friday denied increased fares asked by the Wichita Transit Company. The company says it can't pay the drivers more unless it gets more for its rides.

Slayer Of Singer Still Is Phantom Of Midnight Mists

ATLANTA—(P)—For police the killer of Opera Tenor John Garris still is a phantom of midnight mists.

One battered bullet was the only real clue to the slayer who left Garris' body on a cinder alley early Thursday. The problem was to match that bullet to a gun.

A man arrested Friday night in Clinton, S. C., possessed a Belgian-made .38 caliber automatic—and Garris was killed by a .38 steel-jacketed bullet.

Dr. Herman Jones, Fulton County criminologist, and two detectives drove immediately to Clinton to test fire the weapon. For nearly five hours they sought to match the grooves of the bullet in Garris' body with those fired in the test.

Finally Dr. Jones and his assistant, George Cornett, gave up the effort. They said they would return after some sleep.

Dr. Jones said, "There is absolutely nothing so far to link this man" with the crime.

Dirt, Squirt-

Week this year is scheduled May 1-7.

The third and final phase of a grazing experiment at Texas Technological College for comparative results on feeding Hereford cattle on irrigated pasture of alfalfa, mixed hedges and rye grasses and alfalfa and mixed grasses will begin May 1.

Ten Hereford yearlings, picked at random from last Spring's calf crop on Texas Tech property at Pantex Ordnance plant, are to be used for the last test. These same Herefords have been used in a calf breeding experiment and were shown at the Junior Livestock show in Lubbock recently. W. L. Stangel, dean of agriculture, explains. Results of the second test will be completed and published in May. Each phase of the grazing experiment is for one year.

The 10 calves weighed 418 pounds average in November. March 12 their weight was 605 pounds average. The pasture feeding of the calves has been started to demonstrate that calves can be satisfactorily fattened without nurse cows and gain cheaply and profitably.

War's Toll—Thousands Of Maimed Youngsters

"Now I don't feel like a worm," says Stanislaw Kutia, whose war-shattered legs were amputated to a high for him ever to wear artificial ones. The Foster Parents' Plan gave him an engine-powered wheel-chair so he doesn't have to crawl, worm-like, along the ground any more. Here he talks with another amputee who has two artificial legs.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In the old Savoia palace, once a residence of Italian royalty, are 30 children who lost arms or legs or both during the war. Because they also are blind, they cannot use artificial limbs since their lack of sight would be too great a handicap in the operation of mechanical hands, arms and legs.

In many instances, in the wartime rush to do something for everybody, their maimed limbs were sawed off without leaving the customary flaps of flesh to allow for growth. Now growing bones poke through the skin, and new operations are needed to take off surplus bone.

These are one small group out of the thousands of European children mutilated by the war. There are known to be at least 12,000 in Italy, 7000 in Belgium, probably many more in Poland and large numbers in most other countries.

Can't Be Pictured
The Savoia colony is one of several maintained by Foster Parents' Plan for War Children. The youngsters are supported by $15 a month contributions from individuals and groups in the United States. But medical and surgical care, artificial limbs, glass eyes, crutches and the like are extras, from a special fund that can never begin to catch up with the pressing need.

One of the Plan's handicaps is that many of the mutilations are so horrible that they can't be pictured.

There is Hein, a little Dutch lad who suffered phosphorus burns so bad that he couldn't close his eyelids and had to sleep with them open. His face was like melted puddles of brown flesh. Incidentally, he had lost part of one hand.

When Mrs. Edna Blue, international chairman of the plan, or any other stranger, came in, he used to hang his head and cover his face.

But on her last visit Hein walked right up, kissed Mrs. Blue "Hello," took off his glasses and showed his new eyelids that will blink.

Near Wroclaw, in Poland, is a colony of 85 mutilated children, of whom only eight yet have artificial limbs. But all but one had foster parents—to finance existence, and write occasional letters and exchange pictures—when Mrs. Blue was there.

"Mama, Mama"
One seven-year-old whispered in the ear of Sophie, her Polish representative. She told me: "All the other children have got foster parents except him. He says, 'Will you please get him one.' I gave him a big kiss and told him I'd see that he got a foster parent right away. Tears rolled down his cheeks. He ran into my arms with a kind of violence of affection, and hugged and kissed me, saying 'Mama, Mama.'"

At this same camp is Stanislaw Kutia, whose legs were amputated so high that he could never wear artificial legs. He got about nimbly on hands that have become tremendous through such use. By fitting a motorcycle engine and front wheel onto a sort of wheelchair, he has been given a vehicle in which he can travel now. It took $200 of the none too plentiful funds, but it inspired Stanislaw to say: "Now I don't feel like a worm."

For plastic surgery, ordinarily two children go in together so they can give each other comfort and company during the ordeal. One such pair was made up of fragments during the Battle of the Bulge, and Maria Michaels, nine, mutilated when the Nazis hit her Belgian home with a V-2. Finned Face Together
Somebody pinned Jules' face together with a safety pin, and it stayed that way for days until he got where other treatment was available. By then the face was hideously disfigured. What happened to Maria is suggested by the fact that when they dug her out of the ruins, her mother took one look at her and fled, screaming. Every time Maria opened her mouth for any purpose, somebody had to close the jaw back for her.

Each has had one operation. Jules will have another, as soon as the weather gets warm enough. Maria probably will need at least three more.

The Foster Parents' Plan has 12,000 youngsters under its care, and there are many times that number—particularly in China, Greece and Poland—who are almost as badly in need. New war orphans are being created even now.

As recently as January, Communist guerrillas captured the village of Meouss, summarily shot 40 men, and made 100 children fatherless.

EMERGENCY MESSAGE
Police Saturday were requested to locate Wayne C. Granger for an emergency message. The man was contacted at his home here.

The spotted gurnel, or butterfish, rolls its eggs into a ball and coils itself around them protectively.

Stammerers Don't Have To S-Stutter, Emerys Proving It

WINTER PARK, FLA.—(P)—A woman with 60 years of stammering in her family has teamed with her husband to devote their finances and the latter years of their lives to correcting the stuttering of others.

She is 54-year-old Eleanor Weston Emery; he Theodore, 60. They have been helping children and adults since 1935.

Mrs. Emery's eldest brother was a stammerer. She herself stammered so badly she could obtain no formal education and had to do with private tutors and several years abroad. Her first son, now 28, still stammers a little. Two other sons never stammered.

Her first son was growing up when she finally realized no one could cure her—that she had to help herself and her son. She now speaks clearly. Her husband had a speech hesitancy, but says it comes from difficulty in choosing the right word in conversation "and I guess association with stutters hasn't helped, either."

Non-Profit Institute
The two conduct the non-profit Emery Institute here, incorporated under Florida law. On the advisory committee are such persons as authors Irving Bachelor and Dr. Kathryn Abbey Hanna.

"Strangely," Mrs. Emery says, "a stammerer can talk perfectly when he is alone, when very angry, usually while singing or when absolutely unconscious of self. He can usually talk to a pet without stammering when he is alone with it."

"We often meet people who say they cured themselves but can't quite tell how. In nearly every instance there was an objective wish to reach that objective normal speech, and eventually they gained sufficient control and coordination to achieve it."

"Mental control which the stammerer gains by completing tedious tasks is very beneficial. This can be used with children or adults. However, you must never mention speech or stammering to a child. Parent and school teacher must help children be more orderly in everything they do. If the child stammers, pay no attention. If he speaks correctly, notice him. But he must never be conscious that he is being aided."

"With adults, the approach is direct. Adults have a will to help themselves."

Emery said stammering could be as disastrous as cancer because it could be so confusing, terrifying and humiliating it might ruin a person's physical and emotional makeup.

"I have seen children fall on the floor in utter helplessness trying to say something," he said.

"There are four male stammerers to every female. I don't know why this is unless the woman usually wants to talk so much she can't be bothered with stammering."

Produce Geniuses
Said Emery: "Stammerers are found among the types that produce geniuses, never among the plodders who have been developing habits of control since babyhood. The stammerer's mind is quick and his interest keen. But he has a dislike for sustained effort or routine. He will not stick to a subject long enough to master it."

The cause of stuttering, both say, is fear—perhaps a fear of doing or saying something wrong "but basically a fear of fear."

Emery said a child could normally be cured in less than a year; an adult in six to eight correspondence courses. (A charge is made for adults who can pay; no charge is made for children's work.)

The system was instituted in Orange County schools five years ago when there were 104 stutters in 10,000 children. Now the percentage is 24 to 12,000.

Emery said a child's health and grades rise with speech correction; that the juvenile court of Orlando, of which Winter Park is a suburb, has reported several delinquency cases corrected after stammering cures.

Art Festival Chairman Gives Cue To Liking Child's Work

Work of children and teen-agers will have an important place in the Art Festival to be staged in the City-County Auditorium here May 7-11 under leadership of the Palette Club and the American Association of University Women.

Because children's ideas of sketching and painting do not conform to adult standards, spectators at a children's exhibit may not fully appreciate the pictures without a basic understanding of this difference in ideas.

Mrs. Robert L. Clarke, chairman of creative art in the AAUW and one of the festival chairmen, offers these suggestions for understanding the art of children.

"In the Art Festival, hundreds of people probably will view the art of our younger residents. Some will be amused at the unconventional. Others, in the spirit of a man who is trying to decipher the hieroglyphics of ancient Egypt, will study the work closely in order to discover its hidden meaning. Still others will approach the pictures with complete lack of sympathy or interest.

"Before attending the exhibition it might be well to ask the question, how should one look at a child's painting and what should one expect to find?

"In the first place, we expect to find joy and happiness. Few children paint morbid and sad pictures, unless their own backgrounds have been filled with tragedy. Children not only like bright colors; they seem to prefer pure colors, red, blue, and yellow rather than lavender. His work is large and bold, and his straight lines aren't always straight. It's nice to see that relaxation. Many budding adult artists envy the child his uninhibited way of painting. The opposite of this bold and relaxed work is known as "tightness" and "highness" is something most adults try to guard against.

Imagination Rules
"The child lives in the world of fantasy and thoroughly enjoys the unusual and unconventional. His art is a means of expressing that imaginative impulse. He peoples his world with odd creatures never seen on land or sea and the result is satisfying to him. In this way he has much in common with the modern surrealist. In fact, it is easy for him to enjoy and understand a surrealist painting as it is for him to chuckle loudly over the unrealities of Alice in Wonderland. His elders all too often insist that pictures be photographic records of things as they are in the material world.

"Although the young artist paints with a bold hand, he has a liking for precise detail. His wagon may be in a far field, but it will show every spoke in the wheel. The window in his house across the street may show the lock between the sashes. There is even a slight tendency to show both sides of an object, thus giving an effect something like Picasso's profiles—with both eyes and both nostrils showing.

Adolescent Is Different
"Adolescence brings a great change in painting. The physical and emotional problems of this age are also reflected in the art. Everything becomes more personal and more subjective. He is constantly considering the effect which his every move may have upon his associates. He is timid and is trying to put up a defensive "front." To understand him and his work takes time and patience, but there is no age at which he is more in need of encouragement. He is going through a period of great strain. Adjustments are difficult, and painting as an outlet has real value.

"The adolescent has a broader understanding of the "tricks of the trade" used by adults to bring about desired results, and he strives to become an adult in this, as well as in other things. His muscles are still unable to do the things his mind would dictate. As a result he is easily discouraged and lacks the "stick-to-itiveness" displayed by his elders. To understand the work of the teen-ager we must first understand the problems which confront him and the adjustments he is trying to make.

"When we look at the work of children and adolescents, let's not try to read into it things which are not there. In reference to the younger child, in particular, the work was not meant to be anything of great importance. It was an uninhibited way of expressing his love of color, his happiness and his interest in things around him. It made him happy. All of our pupils should be encouraged to continue finding relaxation in such a pastime. Many of our businessmen and their wives should have benefited from such an outlet for their emotions during the

Street Lighting Contract Signed

A contract between the City of Midland and the Texas Electric Service Company for the installation of a citywide system of street lighting has been signed by Mayor W. B. Neely and delivered to the electric company, City Manager H. A. Thomason said Saturday.

The City Council last Tuesday night authorized the mayor to sign the three-approved contract.

R. L. Miller, district manager of the Texas Electric Service Company, said Saturday materials for the project have been ordered.

The electric company will install and maintain the street lights at no cost to the city. The city will pay the electric costs.

The plan calls for the installation of mercury vapor type street lights on all through highways and in the business district. Conventional type lights will be placed at all intersections in the residential districts.

HEALTH REPORT
Diseases reported last week to Dr. F. E. Sadler, director of the Midland County Health Unit, include 19 measles, 36 mumps, one, and whooping cough, three.

Marine industries of the United States keep 165,850 men and women busy around the clock, seven days a week.

strain of recent years. Painting has great therapeutic value and is deserving of encouragement and understanding.

Date Is Set For Charter Meeting Of Secretaries Group

Organization of a Midland chapter of the National Secretaries Association is almost completed, and May 2 has been set as the date for installation of charter members, Mrs. Jean Ward of Kansas City, a national registrar who is helping to organize the group, reports.

The installation will be conducted in the Scharbauer Hotel. Officers and committees for the initial term will be appointed then.

Mrs. Ward has expressed pleasure at the response of Midland women eligible for membership in the organization, which is now in its seventh year and has chapters in 48 states. It has a threefold program, social, educational and professional, and is non-union.

Purpose Cited
It was organized by a group of secretaries who believed that their profession, representing the largest vocational group among business women, should have a national organization with the purpose of adding to the happiness and efficiency of its members. A national magazine is published.

Secretaries of many prominent Americans, from President Truman to Bing Crosby, are members of the association. Mrs. Ward recently met Crosby's secretary and secretaries of other famous notables, when she was working on the West Coast.

Being A Good Parent Requires Love Of Children and Willingness To Give Self

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newfeatures

Being a good parent is no harder than being a bad parent. It doesn't require a magic formula. It doesn't mean that one must never make mistakes or must follow specific situations according to the book.

True, being a good parent is not an easy job. It is time-consuming, and it tries one's patience. It ties one down and makes extraordinary demands on a sense of humor. But all one has to remember is that parents are people living with children, says Professor James L. Hymes, Jr., in "Being a Good Parent" (Bureau of Publications, Teachers College, Columbia University).

One feeling which all good parents have in common is a desire for children, says Professor Hymes. This doesn't sound startling, yet from the baby's point of view this very normal, commonplace attitude has deep significance.

Child Senses Love
The wanted child's arrival is welcome. The things which he does are newsworthy. He is loved and appreciated, exclaimed over and enjoyed. He is held and talked to. He is laughed at and with; a whole undecurrent of pleasant excitement attends every event from his first bath to his first gurgling, to the first amazing moment that he seems to focus his eyes on Mother and Daddy.

The wanted child is a loved child. He senses that this is so not from the words his parents use, but from a tone and quality in their voices which convey their real feelings. He senses that this is so from the way he is touched and handled. In giving him love, his parents start him in life with the one greatest gift they have to offer.

How these parents show the love they feel varies, says Dr. Hymes.

Capt. P. G. Johnson Is Air Tactical School Graduate

PANAMA CITY, Fla.—Capt. Perry G. Johnson was among the more than 700 student officers in the Air Tactical School class which graduated at Tyndall Air Force Base here Friday.

Captain Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Johnson, Midland, Texas.

For the last 16 weeks Captain Johnson, with other Air Force officers carefully selected for the training, have taken an intensive course in subjects of vital importance to Air Force officers in responsible positions under direction of Brig. Gen. J. K. Lacey, commandant.

The rigid academic course found the officers hearing lectures on Military Management, Operations, Operational Services, New Developments, Tactics, and Supply, and Maintenance, coupled with frequent round table discussions of problems similar to those confronting the men operating today's United States Air Force. In addition frequent demonstrations were given, and the program was interspersed with appearances of guest lecturers, representing many allied fields of endeavor.

Upon completion of the course here student-officers returned to their home bases, to put into operation the theories they have learned. Later, after a period of additional service, many of them will be selected to attend other schools in the Air University system.

Air-Conditioned Hats

MERGER of interest is the coming together of the half-hat and the whole net to make a hat-net fashion for spring and summer. The hat-net promises to keep heads cooler and hair tidier even in an open roadster or in a fiercely-competitive tennis game. White pique tennis visors, lined with green eye-shade fabric, combine with white nets of coarse mesh for hair control. This is also the idea behind the union of mesh nets and cotton half-hats; of nets and printed scarves which make scarf-nets. A scarf-net is a smartly-tied scarf attached to a hair-confining snood of mesh.

—EPSIE KINARD, NEA Fashion Editor.

These cool headliners for summer are half hat and half mesh net which keep the hair smartly confined. Red and white polka-dotted crepe scarf, tied at the side, is combined with a net of metallic thread to make a head-bugging turban (top right). Motorist (top left) wears a net cap which has a ruffled blue cotton visor-brim band with navy ribbon. For active sports, the tennis player (bottom left) models a white pique sun visor which is attached to a snood-like net of heavy white nylon mesh. Headband size is adjustable to insure a snug fit.

American Airlines Will Decentralize U.S. Operations

NEW YORK—American Airlines will decentralize its operation May 1. L. G. Fritz, vice president-operations announced. The formation of four geographical regions on that date will complete an organizational streamlining that has been in process since 1947.

Fritz said the new organization will enable his department to separate policy-making functions from the daily detail of operating the airline. The regions will be autonomous except in matters of policy.

The men who will head the regions will be known as regional operations directors. They are T. L. Boyd, Eastern Region, based at New York; W. B. Whitacre, Central Region, based at Chicago; W. P. McPhail, Southern Region, based at Fort Worth, and Gage Mace, Western Region, based at Los Angeles.

McPhail, Southern Region director, will assume his new position on his 21st anniversary with the airline. He held a succession of flying and executive positions with predecessor companies and took charge of the installation of the first airway between St. Louis and New Orleans. In 1933 as a captain he was awarded the air mail flyers medal of honor by President Roosevelt for landing a motorless aircraft. During the war he held an executive position in America's transatlantic division. He has been manager of operations at Nashville since March 19. He has been decorated with the American Airlines Distinguished Service Award. His region encompasses the great Southwest.

★ WE, THE WOMEN ★

Nothing Wrong With The Word 'Housewife' Despite Complaint

By MUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer

"Has anyone found a better name than 'housewife' to describe those women who head the complicated business of running a home, being a good wife and raising good citizens?" asks the New York World-Telegram of its women readers.

The woman's page of that newspaper goes on to explain that it receives frequent letters from women who say they hate to be called "housewives"—especially on questionnaires.

Through the years I've had a number of women ask me the same thing. But I can't quite understand the feeling. It seems to me any woman ought to write the word "housewife" after her name with distinct pride and satisfaction.

Query any group of young girls on what their main ambition in life is and you'll find the majority confess they want to be married. Talk to any group of ambitious young career girls and you'll find that most of them would rather get a good husband than a fancy office with their name on the door.

Most unmarried women apparently want to get married either soon or later.

Why, then, once they have achieved their big ambition in life, should women be ashamed to list their occupation as housewife? Frankly, I don't get it.

Fulfillment of Ambition

When a woman puts housewife after her name she is telling the world she achieved her major ambition in life. She has a husband. She has a home. She wears the most respected title a woman can wear—the title of "Mrs."

Why should that be degrading? Why should a woman be ashamed of the word housewife? Well, let's break the word down into its two parts. There's the word "house" and the word "wife." It isn't likely any woman feels a sense of inferiority in admitting she is a wife. That's still a pretty cherished word in our language.

So the part of the word that causes mental anguish must be the word "house."

Admittedly, women aren't too fond of staying in their houses these days. "It's so good to get away from home" has become a standard feminine cliché.

So, if the word "housewife" bothers women so much, why don't they list their occupation as just plain "wife"?

That ought not to give them claustrophobia.

DREW PEARSON ON THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

(Copyright, 1949, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Drew Pearson says: Army's doctor shortage didn't apply to Eisenhowers; signs indicate U. S. A. may win cold war; Labor Secretary Tobin embarrassed by "no strike."

WASHINGTON—There is a definite doctor shortage in the Army-Navy, although apparently not under some circumstances. Certain phases of the situation were illustrated by a telephone call received by Col. James V. Cole, commanding officer of Ft. Myer, Va., shortly before James Forrestal resigned as secretary of defense.

General and Mrs. Eisenhower back to the Stetler, proceeded through the no-man's land of the lobby to the Eisenhower suite. There the doctors reapplied the bandage to Mrs. Ike's ankle.

Forrestal himself was on the telephone and asked Colonel Cole to send a doctor. "There's been an accident," he explained.

It was not learned whether any decision was reached during the evening on the best methods to be used in obtaining more doctors for the Army.

Petite Mrs. Eisenhower had tripped and injured her ankle. Colonel Thompson's examination revealed a very slight sprain and he applied an ace bandage. While the ankle was being bandaged, Ike and his companions talked about the doctor shortage in the armed services and what could be done to relieve it.

All this has brought a subtle, carefully aimed drive from Moscow for cold-war peace concessions. Whether to make these concessions is about the most important question now facing the State Department.

Commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Army Air Forces, he was assigned to Air Transport Command Headquarters in Washington.

Pyramid Clubs Create Boom In Doughnuts

NEW YORK—(AP)—It's dollars to doughnuts more people get doughnuts from dollars out of the pyramid club craze.

Because at most of the parties launching the clubs you at least get a doughnut and a cup of coffee. It is another matter how many people, for the $1 they plunked down, get back twelve days later the $2,000 they hoped for.

Word of this latest American investment fad swept quickly around the world. There was no great reaction in Egypt, where the pyramids have held buried hopes a long time.

Editor's Notes

Heien Deel had an emergency appendectomy several weeks ago. She is feeling very much better and probably will be in school Monday.

Rainy weather greeted everyone on Tuesday and stayed all week. How long can it rain?

Everyone was excited about the tickets to the movie of the African Game Hunt and rushed around trying to sell them. Proceeds go to the Youth Center, you see.

We were glad to see Louise Carter back at school Wednesday. She stuck a nail through her foot and was out of school most of last week.

The stage is acquiring a new coat of paint for the senior play. Green is replacing the tired pink.

We're happy to hear that Alice Marie Allen is getting along nicely after her emergency appendectomy. Why is Donald Johnson carrying that board around that resembles a paddle?

Down Bob's Boulevard

The students of MHS contend they lead the most dangerous lives of any other group of people on earth.

It is quite common to hear something like: "—and there I was: surrounded by thousands of huge—" or, "—can you imagine how I felt with three broken arms and a cracked cranium?—" on the campus.

So cruising down Bob's Boulevard this week, your inquiring reporter thought it might prove interesting to ask: "What was your narrowest escape?"

John House—"A wreck on Watson LaForce's motorcycle."

Diane Anderson—"I nearly drowned once while taking a bath."

Lynn Griffith—"When I almost got caught stealing water-melons."

Mrs. Cheatham—"When I was shot at once on a country road."

Miss Harris—"When I fell off a ladder."

Bill Little—"Getting out of Al-pine when I was nearly killed."

Ann Boring—"I washed my face once and it nearly killed me."

Keannie Liddel—"I almost fell off the moon."

Don Downing—"The time I walked out of study hall and Mr. Mathews was coming around the corner."

Coach Atkins—"A Jeep wreck."

Beverly Kealing—"My head got stuck in the mud."

Kleibold—"A wreck this Summer."

Toya Chapple—"Just missing Charles Ruckman."

John Woods—"Some B-B's fell on my head one time."

Mr. Hoffman—"Running off a cliff in an orchestra bus in South Dakota."

Virginia Brooks—"Everytime I drive the car."

Emid Little—"When I jumped from a plane without a parachute but I landed on my head."

Buddy Johnson—"Almost getting caught playing pool in Sweetwater."

Pauline Norwood—"I nearly stepped on a rattlesnake."

Kathy Lewis—"I was nearly pushed off the Empire State Building."

Chalkey Murray—"Cheating on a test but I won't tell which one."

Gail Baker—"I passed a math test on 64 1/2."

Dick Monroe—"I fell 70,000 feet from an airplane—then woke up."

Betty Landrith—"First time Ken-ne-dy and I were in Odessa."

Gail Black—"Getting to be a Freshman."

Madelon Schabarum—"One awful night I almost ran into a garbage can."

How Often Were You Late?

Are you satisfied with your grades? Do you think you got cheated? Maybe your grades are about as close to an A as to a C, but how did you conduct yourself in class? How often were you late. Often when you are late the teacher must repeat everything she has said. This means other students must mark time while the disgruntled teacher gives the pupil a private lesson. Can you blame the teacher for putting down a C instead of a B?

Meet Your Bulldogs

Remember when we used to have the Bulldog of the Week, well now we have two baseball players of the week, Frank Roberson and Marian Tredaway.

Frank's favorite color is blue. Marian's favorite color is blue. Frank's favorite pastime is baseball. Marian's pastime is baseball. Neither of them has a favorite girl. We wonder...

Sounds as if they are an awful lot alike but they are not, because Frank is a dark, dashing senior Junior. Marian is a blond, hard working Junior.

Marian likes his fried chicken while Frank likes his cherry pie. Frank is a native Midlander of sixteen years. Marian was born in Big Spring seventeen years ago.

These boys are doing a grand job of playing ball out on the MHS diamond and with Marian at shortstop and Frank pitching, the Bulldogs will remain a challenge to anybody's baseball club.

Clublicity

Members of the Business Key Club have been making arrangements for next year. In the club meeting Wednesday each member wrote on a sheet of paper a requirement for the club for next year. Each member also wrote one thing the club should do for next year. The members plan to draft a constitution for the club.

The Band Club has been practicing for the Odessa contest and a concert they are planning to present over the radio.

A few of the band members have been organizing a dance band. Soon the members will start taking tests for their band letters.

Each member answered role call with a joke in the Triple D's Club meeting Wednesday. The members, who will be eligible for the National Thespians Society next year, were announced.

Articles have been and still are being collected for the senior play by the members of the club.

The Camera Club has announced the deadline for the intra-club photography contest is May 3.

Members of the National Honor Society have been urged to turn in all their money dues and other dues to the club's treasurer, Max Allen, or Miss Klapproth, sponsor. The Society is planning a party but cannot give it until all the money has been turned in to leaders.

A new rule for the club has been voted and approved. It is that no member may miss more than two meetings in a row. All members are urged to attend because they will be declared inactive if more than two meetings are missed.

Athlete Buckingham Is Best-All-Around

Larry Buckingham was elected Best-All-Around-Athlete by the members of the "M" Association for lettermen in its weekly meeting Thursday. Others nominated were Lloyd Henderson and Reed Gilmore.

The initiated members of the club will give the uninitiated members a chance to escape initiation by virtue of winning a baseball game to be played in Cloverdale Park, April 30.

The first train ever built in America based on the Spanish "Patentes Talgo" is now ready in Berwick, Pa., for testing and demonstration across the nation. Built by the American Car and Foundry Co., the revolutionary streamliner literally hugs the rails. # Old Wives' Remedy Blossoms Forth As Medical Discovery

Discoverer of aureomycin, newest of the antibiotic "wonder drugs," is Dr. Benjamin M. Duggar, here at work in his laboratory. He sees no end of the medical progress that may come in the all-out hunt for even newer antibiotic drugs.

PEARL RIVER, N. Y.—(NEA)—An old wives' remedy, centuries old and silly-looking on its face, has blossomed forth as one of the great medical discoveries of modern times. For years scientists brushed aside what might have been a clue to penicillin, streptomycin, and aureomycin. It interfered with their experiments. Then penicillin was discovered, and their eyes were opened; in nine years science has made more progress toward controlling many serious infectious diseases than had been made previously in the whole of recorded medical history.

Penicillin, tyrothricin, streptomycin, and aureomycin, to name them in the order of their discoveries, are "antibiotics." They are not, as many think, molds. They are drugs formed by molds or bacteria, that destroy or prevent the growth of disease-causing germs.

Centuries Ago
Centuries ago, in Europe, the fungus outgrowth on trees (often called punk) was ground up, and used to dress wounds. Even now, in some places, when mothers make a bread poultice to "draw" a boil or other infection to a head, they prefer bread that is slightly moldy.

"Apparently these folks had discovered by experience that the presence of this mold had curative properties," explains the medical director of the Lederle Laboratories at Pearl River.

"In a primitive way they seem to have been using the antibiotic virtues that science recognized only when penicillin was discovered."

The bacteriologists often noticed that their bacteria failed to grow in the presence of some mold growths, but they assumed that the spores were just producing some acid that made the area unfavorable for growth. It did not occur to them, until penicillin was discovered, that this bothersome interference signaled the presence of an aggressive enemy of the germs they were working with.

But now every important pharmaceutical research laboratory is making furious efforts to find new antibiotics that will control germs that resist the three "wonder drugs" now on the market.

Aureomycin
Among those who have hopeful ideas for new drugs in their test tubes is Lederle's Dr. Benjamin M. Duggar. It was he who discovered the new mold, streptomycin aureofaciens, from which highly trained research teams developed the drug actually in use today, aureomycin.

Dr. Duggar, for years professor of botany at the University of Wisconsin, and his colleagues agreed that there is no end to the medical progress that may come out of the all-out hunt for new antibiotics.

Penicillin gave a new, more potent weapon against the common bacterial infections: most of the pneumonias except that known as "virus;" infections like boils and blood poisoning caused by the staphylococcus type of bacteria; scarlet fever, erysipelas, tonsillitis and other illnesses caused by the streptococci; gonorrhea, syphilis, spinal meningitis; and a bacterial inflammation of the heart, caused by one of the most serious complications left by rheumatic fever, and almost always fatal.

Partial Control
Streptomycin brought under partial control certain types of tuberculosis, certain infections of the urinary tract, and a rather rare type of spinal meningitis that occurs mostly in infants and children.

Then Dr. Duggar discovered aureomycin. It was first used on humans in Harlem Hospital in late 1947, and was offered to physicians generally on Dec. 1, 1948. Its reception is suggested by the doctor whose "virus" pneumonia patient was just getting back on her feet three months after she was stricken:

"Why didn't you wait five days to get sick?" he demanded. "Then I could have given you aureomycin, and you would have been up in three or four days."

"Aureomycin has opened up the successful treatment of a whole new type of infectious diseases," Lederle's director of laboratories says. "These are the diseases spread by the rickettsia type of germs."

"Aureomycin has been found effective against Rocky Mountain spotted fever; the European, domestic and Japanese types of typhus; Q fever; rickettsial pox; lymphogranuloma venereum; parrot fever; and others of the rickettsial group.

"We have reason to believe, though we are making no firm claims yet, that it may prove helpful for the common contagious diseases of childhood such as regular measles, mumps, whooping cough, chicken pox, for none of which there has previously been any curative drug.

Hopeful Signs
"It seems effective with everything helped by penicillin except possibly syphilis, and with everything in the streptomycin group except tuberculosis; there are hopeful signs in connection with typhoid; it seems to help some bacterial infections that resist penicillin.

"And it has proven very successful against what is popularly known as 'virus' pneumonia, which penicillin and streptomycin do not help. It is held now that this is not really a virus disease.

"At the same time we are searching for a new antibiotic that will definitely control virus infections."

An Inheritance of Poetry, by Ad-hed and Duff; Story of the Negro, by Bontemps; Grandfather Tales, by Chase; My Father's Dragon, by Gannett; Vulpes the Red Fox, by George; The Dolls' House, by Godden; King of the Wind, by Henry; Seabird, by Holling; Blueberries for Sal, by McCloskey; Daughter of the Mountain, by Noyes; American Folk Songs for Children, by Seeger; and The Chestnut Oak, by Sereby.

During the Summer vacation months a reading contest similar to the one conducted last year will be arranged. Children are invited to make suggestions for the theme of this year's contest. "Cowboys" was the 1948 theme and prizes were awarded to the individual winners as well as the schools represented.

Brisk Trade In Repartee

CHICAGO—A man showed up at the Chicago Board of Trade recently and asked for a divorce. Bernice Durkin, secretary in the public relations department, told him the board was the world's largest exchange for dealing in grains, but not divorces. "I want a divorce and I don't want to hire a lawyer," the man said. "They told me the Board of Trade gave out free divorces."

The incident was nothing new for Mrs. Durkin. She has had similar experiences with other Chicagoans who are baffled at just what goes on in that big building at the foot of La Salle Street.

A few weeks ago a woman called and announced, "The tree in front of our house has fallen down. What are you going to do about it?"

"Personally," Mrs. Durkin said, "I'm not going to do anything about it."

Well, why not? the woman asked. The Board of Trade deals in agricultural products, doesn't it?"

In February 1948, when prices broke sharply and newspapers mentioned "selling short"—selling grains for future delivery—a woman phoned and said, "I want to buy some shorts." "You must have a department store," Mrs. Durkin said. "We don't sell shorts here."

The woman became very irate. "Oh yes you do!" she said. "I have the paper right in front of me and it says you have shorts for sale."

Mrs. Durkin explained the shorts were real, live men and weren't up for bids.

During the war she received numerous calls from undertakers, and it wasn't because the board appeared to be on its last legs when price ceilings dried up trading in grains.

"We have a body," the undertakers said, "what do you want us to do with it?"

At that time the public relations department of the Navy was located in the Board's building. Undertakers who had bodies of Navy personnel, instead of calling the Navy public relations department, simply called the board.

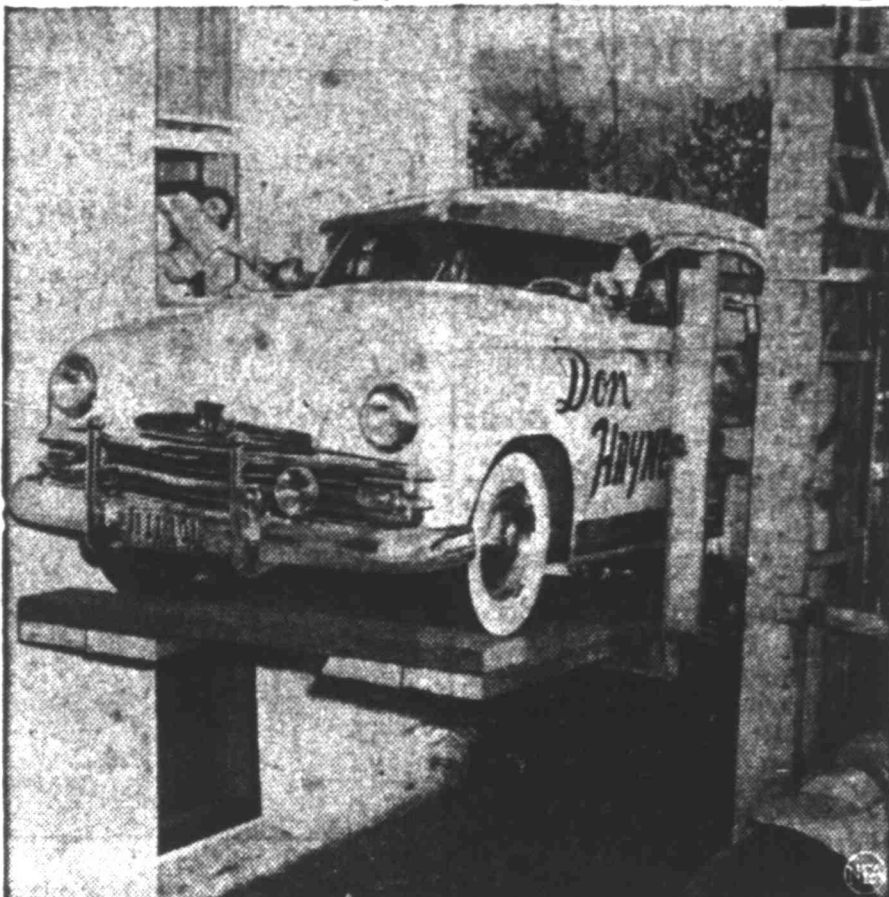

Then there was the woman who thought the board was a 44-story exchange post for trading any kind of goods. "I want to make a trade for a baby carriage," she said.

Told the Board didn't have one, she became excited. "You must have a baby carriage. What did you do—sell it?"

"Baby carriage!" Mrs. Durkin said. "Why I wasn't even married then."

Gilligan's Kermit School Bands Sweep All Contests

By MAUD GREEN
KERMIT — When the Kermit High School "K" band journeys to Dallas April 30 to take part in the Highland Park Music Festival, it will be under the supervision of a director who hit the "jack pot" this year in Interscholastic League contests. He is G. T. Gilligan, whose high school and junior high school bands already have taken six first place winnings.

New Architectural Design Spreads Throughout Nation

Modern American home architecture is a combination of flat roof with wide over-hanging eaves; entire walls of glass; open room-planning with fewer partitions; clean-cut straight lines throughout; one-story basementless design so that the house hugs the ground and saves step-climbing. Architects unleash their imagination to create this home, and come up with such fresh ideas as bringing inside as a wall finish the same native stone used for the exterior.

New materials are combined interestingly with old; and new heating methods are used. Color assumes an integral part in modern architecture. Dual-purpose built-ins and rooms are devised. The net result is a home which combines comfort, convenience and beauty with construction cost economy and shuns the stereotyped.

Style Is Widespread
As this new architecture spreads to every section of the country, the regional traditional house is disappearing. Thousands of homes of modern design have been erected in the Midwest, the South, the New England states and along both the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts. Potential home-buyers have discovered that well-built, distinctive modern houses are being erected in the $6,800 to $15,000 cost range.

Elimination of basements permits these new homes to be founded on single concrete slabs. These slabs cut cost by serving the dual purpose of foundations and sub-floors.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson
press, no public opinion, no churches to act as brake or veto, then war remains an ever-present danger. On the other hand, the Russian people are friendly to the United States, declaring war becomes difficult.

So far the State Department, except for the voice of America, has made little effort to penetrate the iron curtain. Exhibiting a Sears-Roebuck catalogue in Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia not long ago made the local populace hungry to buy American goods. This and other incidents merely illustrate the fact that we haven't even begun to scratch the surface as far as friendship propaganda is concerned.

But the big concession we should get from the Russians—while they are in a trading mood—is the right of cultural contact behind the iron curtain. While we are winning, there is no use selling out for a few cheap trade concessions. We might as well hold out for the only thing which will permanently prevent war—contact between the Russian and American peoples.

Truman said he wasn't aware of any concerted plan to shift aircraft production inland. "I can't see the justification for discriminating against San Diego or Los Angeles, if that is the case," said the President, "but I'm certainly going to look into the matter."

"If that is true," McKinnon continued, "why cause all this shifting of population by canceling aircraft contracts in San Diego? At least one big aircraft contract has been canceled there and I understand further production transfers to inland plants are under consideration. "Aircraft employment in San Diego has dropped 50 per cent in the last year," McKinnon added. "Los Angeles also is seriously affected by the new policy, though the top men in the Army, Navy and Air Force won't admit such a policy exists."

Secretary of Labor Tobin probably is the first secretary of Labor ever to be embarrassed because a strike failed to come off.

Last January the handsome gentleman from Boston urged both houses of Congress to exempt stevedores from the Wage-Hour Act. Unless this special exemption was given, Tobin warned, New York Labor Boss Joe Ryan would tie up the water front with a strike in March in protest against the wage-hour bill.

Despite Tobin's warning, the Senate Labor Committee has not acted on the bill. Furthermore, March is now past, and Joe Ryan has called no strike.

Secretary Tobin is a bit embarrassed when the bill is mentioned. Note—Real reason Ryan wants exemption of stevedores from Wage-Hour Act is so water-front work won't have to be spread around among all stevedores, but can be dishied out by Ryan to his favorites. Why Secretary Tobin has teamed up with Ryan on this remains a mystery.

This would seem a poor way to teach American democracy to the Greeks, Acheson added.

Churchill's gin rummy—Winston Churchill showed a financial profit on his visit to the U. S. A., thanks to his ability to stay up late at evenings. Churchill, who never goes to bed before 3 a.m., wore out his opponents, then won easily.

Delightful House Is Well-Arranged

The Clinton has a rear bedroom located to give its floor plan a most interesting flexibility. If this room is not needed for a third bedroom it can be used as a den, workroom or nursery, as it is situated between the kitchen and the bathroom. Another possibility is a door in the living room partition. This would convert the rear room into a separate dining room. If the partition between the two rooms were eliminated completely, it would make a beautiful L-shaped combination living room and dining room. The house has numerous other special features.

Attaching Garage To House Is Best When Plot Is Small

By HENRY WINGATE
Nationally-Known Architectural Engineer

Because many post-war purchasers of small homes did not need garages, builders saved costs by eliminating them. Now that automobiles again have become available, these new home-owners require car shelter.

Questions most often asked are where the garage should be located; what material should be used for its construction; and whether a fully-enclosed structure is necessary or whether a par-porc will suffice.

If the plot is small but has side yard large enough to meet local zoning law requirements, the garage should be attached to the house. By building it of the same material and of harmonizing architectural design, house and garage will form a pleasing unit. The attached, fully-enclosed garage gives a rambling effect to the small house and uses a minimum of valuable yard space.

A long driveway to a garage in the rear takes up about 16 per cent of a 50'x100' plot; if the garage is near the front of the house within 20 or 25 feet of the street, only 4 per cent of yard is sacrificed.

In attaching a garage to the house, do not let it extend forward further than the front of the house itself. More pleasing architectural lines are achieved if it is set back about six feet so that a jog is formed and the garage is not unduly prominent. Any attached garage should be built with a view to fire-safety, especially as regards the wall adjoining the dwelling. Most builders meet this requirement by installing full-thick batts and blankets of fireproof mineral wool insulation in garage walls and roof.

Should a fire break out, the flames will be held back from an hour to an hour and a half. Furthermore, the insulation will protect the living quarters from a cold garage.

LUMBERMEN PLAN SALES CAMPAIGN FOR HARDWOODS

MANILA—(AP)—Lumbermen have decided to launch a sales campaign to put Philippine hardwoods back in the United States market. Industry leaders say exports in 1948 totalled only 14,000,000 board feet. In 1941 the total was about 200,000,000. They say African woods made big headway in the United States when the war stopped Philippine shipments.

Cause, Danger And Cure Of Leaking Roof Cited

By ROBERT SCHARFF
Written for NEA Service

A leaky roof can damage many parts of a house, which aren't directly under it, such as plaster, paint, wall paper and rugs. Thus it makes sense that leaks should be repaired immediately.

The toughest job is finding a roof leak, because instead of dripping right through the hole, the water runs down a rafter. This isn't too hard to spot if the rafters are exposed. Once you locate the leak, get up on the roof and see what's causing it.

On a shingle roof, you'll probably find a shingle that's loose, or one that's split. This can be repaired by cutting two pieces of heavy copper, about two inches wide by six to eight inches long. Raise up the split shingle slightly and drive the piece of flashing up under it until it is out of sight. Do the same thing with the shingle directly above.

Another remedy is to replace the old shingle. Split the old shingle with a chisel and remove it. Push in a new shingle of the same size and shape, and fasten it with copper or galvanized nails.

A leak in an asphalt shingle roof is more difficult to repair. After finding the approximate location of the leak, remove a section of shingles about three by four feet and put in new ones. Many special roofing compounds will lengthen the life of these shingles.

On a tin roof, fill the hole with caulking compound or thick paint, and nail a patch of ample size over the spot. Paint under the patch before fastening with galvanized nails.

Leaks around chimneys, vent pipes and dormer windows where they extend through the roof, are caused by loose flashing or dried out roof cement. To stop a leak at these places, coat with fresh roof cement. Deteriorated flashing may be remedied by covering the old flashing with new material. Slide the edges under the roofing material at each side.

Daddy Ringtail And The Great Wind

I told you Friday about the wind-bag. It didn't have wind in it, but the Huffen Puffen said it did. He told everyone that the leaves of the forest would blow away, if the windbag ever opened. And the Huffen Puffen had told it so much, he really believed it himself. He was frightened when Daddy Ringtail started to open the windbag. He ran away down the Elephant Path.

But no one looked. Everyone was busy, lions and tigers and elephants and everybody, chasing the Huffen Puffen, trying to catch him. They were making an awful noise with all of their running and chasing and shouting at the poor old Huffen Puffen. Poor Huffen! He huffed and puffed and puffed and huffed, and he ran and ran—back up the Elephant Path and on through the Great Forest. How frightened he was!

I don't know how long the Huffen ran, but it served him right for telling everyone that the leaves would come and blow the leaves off the trees of the forest if the windbag were ever opened. Everyone thought he had made the wind, when really it came from the big black cloud.

I hope the Huffen Puffen has learned his lesson and will never make up things to fool people again. It wasn't very smart, was it?
Oh, but happy day now, and Monday look for Daddy Ringtail's adventure with Mincee Moe. (Copyright 1948, General Features Corp.)

Big City Behind In Arts Competition

NEW YORK (AP)—New York, which has long boasted that it is the nation's center for creative writing, apparently is being outstripped by Toledo, Ohio and Los Angeles, Calif.

An analysis of 23,000 entries thus far in the National Five Arts competition shows also that twice as many women as men are submitting entries. The competition is being sponsored by the National Five Arts Award, Inc., a non-profit organization, to stimulate creative writing. Prizes totaling $100,000 in cash and fellowships are to be awarded for the best novel, play, short story, movie synopsis, popular song, radio script and short story.

Officials are somewhat puzzled about certain aspects of the sudden increase in composition. For one thing, there have been very few songs written by women, yet the two sexes are running neck and neck in this division.

Movie writing has also been considered largely a male field, but the girls have submitted the bulk of scenarios. Men are in the lead only in the full length play and in radio scripts.

An analysis of entries also shows that the South and Midwest lead the country in popular song entries, while New York and New England are tops in plays and radio scripts.

Other leading sources of entries besides Toledo and Los Angeles are in order Miami, Newport News, Paterson, N. J., Chattanooga, Boston and Burlington, Vt. The high position of Los Angeles and Burlington is attributed to the nearness of the Universities of California and Vermont.

According to the board of directors, the contest is self-supporting. A two-dollar fee is charged with each manuscript submitted. A Brooklyn attorney has underwritten the contest if it fails to break even. The competition closes July 31.

ECA Aids Europe's Biggest Building Job, French Canal

This is the first completed dredge for the huge French hydro-electric project on the Rhone. Five of these super machines will be built by a Dutch engineer. Conveyor belts deposit the dredged mud alongside the canal.

DONZERE - MONDRAGON, FRANCE—(NEA)—Modern machinery, resolute men and the Marshall Plan are moving mountains of dirt here in a project that compares with the Suez Canal and the Russian hydro-electric plant at Dnieperpetrovsk.

They are diverting one of the biggest rivers in France, the Rhone, through a 17-mile canal and dropping it 63 feet through six turbines, each of which will produce 303,333,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per year. It is the greatest construction of any kind going on in Europe.

This, the biggest and most imaginative dredging project since the draining of the Zuider Zee, will produce a canal half as big as the Suez. The Donzere-Mondragon turbines, humming in unison in late 1952 or 1953, will turn out as much electricity as the famous Dnieperpetrovsk power plant, and 15 per cent as much electricity as is produced in all hydro-electric plants in France today.

Reconstruction-Conscious Donzere-Mondragon is one of many water-power projects under way in reconstruction-conscious France. They're designed to boost electrical output 40,000,000 kilowatt hours. Of this figure, this first of several planned diversions of the Rhone will account for almost 2,000,000,000.

Approximately 90 per cent of the tractors, cranes, bulldozers, trucks and draglines hacking this 564-foot-wide channel through Rhone valley farm land, is American. Most of them are paid for under the Marshall Plan, but there is no way to discover exactly which ones or how many.

French electrical reconstruction has received more Marshall Plan "counterpart funds" than any other phase of the French economy. Coal production and railroads are next in line. All three are nationalized industries.

Most workers on the canal are not generally aware of the relation of the Marshall Plan to their jobs. Paris officials of the Economic Cooperation Administration, which administers the Marshall Plan, point out that French pride, and therefore effort, is better inspired if the French can feel a certain independence in rebuilding their homeland.

"The problem is to help Europe get back on its feet economically," according to John Brown, publicity director of the special ECA mission to France. "We are not convinced it is important for the French to feel over-indebted to America. We came into this thing to help France, and indirectly to help ourselves. Who gets the credit is of secondary concern. The contractors and the government know the facts. Some of them are even reluctant to admit them."

Most monumental aspect of the first Rhone canal, which is to be controlled by three dams where it leaves the river at Donzere, is the dredging operation. To aid the removal of 55,000,000 cubic yards of earth in time for the first turbine to operate in September, 1951, an imported Dutch engineer, William Kok, is building five super dredging machines.

At top production, each of these unprecedented monsters will transport by conveyor belt more than 650 cubic yards of mud per hour from the bottom of the channel to the top of the dike more than 150 yards away. At its deepest point, the canal will be 80 feet below ground level.

Navigation of the Rhone will be facilitated by the diversion. Above Mondragon, the Rhone runs fast and rough. The canal will accommodate the largest modern river-going ships.

Electrification of the Rhone valley railroad, from Lyons to Marseilles, will be one of the first results of the Donzere-Mondragon amperage production. Farm land on the east bank of the valley will receive more irrigation water when the canal is completed.

Almost 10,000 workers will soon be maintaining a 24-hour day, six-day week in an effort to meet the September, 1952, completion goal. For the first time in France, workers' cities (with stores, movies and schools) have been constructed on a project site. Five of the cities are temporary. The sixth will remain as the home of permanent personnel of the power plant.

Even Paul Bunyan Would Be Impressed

MORGANTOWN, W. VA.—(AP)—Fabled Paul Bunyan would be wide-eyed if he traveled through West Virginia forest lands this year.

For operating in the Mountain State's wooded areas is a man-made machine that would put Bunyan's feats to shame.

It's a mobile circular saw mill that will produce 3,000 to 5,000 feet of well-sawed lumber per day, including edging on the head-saw. It can handle logs up to 18 feet long with the diameter limited only by the size that the 56-inch headsaw can break down.

It was designed by State Foresters J. B. Byers and R. S. Lockwood as an answer to the problem of handling the trees on a relatively small woodyards that would not justify erection of a permanent mill.

The mill is a fast-cutting unit that can move from woodlot to woodlot and pay its own way when 10,000 board feet, or sometimes less, are handled.

A truck-trailer unit, it can be set up for work in three hours. In two hours it can be torn down and ready for travel.

Statewide High School Safe Driving Contest Is Proposed

High school students may be able to compete soon in a contest to determine the boy and girl safe driving champions of Texas.

Such a contest will be proposed to officials of the Texas Interscholastic League at a statewide meeting of delegates May 7 in Austin, it was announced Saturday by John W. House of Midland.

House, division superintendent for the Humble Oil and Refining Company and a past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is regional vice president for the Texas Safety Association, which actively sponsors driver training in the schools throughout the state. The contest is being proposed jointly by the Safety Association, the State Department of Education and the Department of Public Safety.

"Teaching safety to young people gives the schools one of their greatest opportunities for service," House said. "Governor Jester recently described the driver training program as 'the greatest safety stride of all.' A safe driving contest would stimulate greater interest in driving skill and would promote the spread of driver training to schools not now offering it."

Goal Cited
The goal of the school safety program, House said, is for every high school graduate to get a crisp new driver's license along with his diploma. Approximately half the secondary schools now are teaching safety courses, but only a part of these give actual behind-the-wheel training.

Students or graduates of approved courses, holding valid driver licenses and never having been involved in a collision or a moving traffic arrest, would be eligible for the contest.

The competition would follow the usual pattern, beginning with the local school and continuing through district, regional and state competition. Cars would be furnished to the schools by the Texas Automotive Dealers Association.

During World War II, the U. S. shipbuilding industry was the largest single user of steel in the country.

Will Atomic Power Ever Fly?

By S. BURTON BEATH
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—For more than two and a half years, the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. has been working at Oak Ridge on behalf of the Air Force, on a study designed to see if the atom can power airplanes.

It is assumed in the beginning that a nuclear reactor could never be used on any but a very large plane. And because of the danger from radioactivity, in case of a crash, it is assumed for the present that it would be used only for war planes.

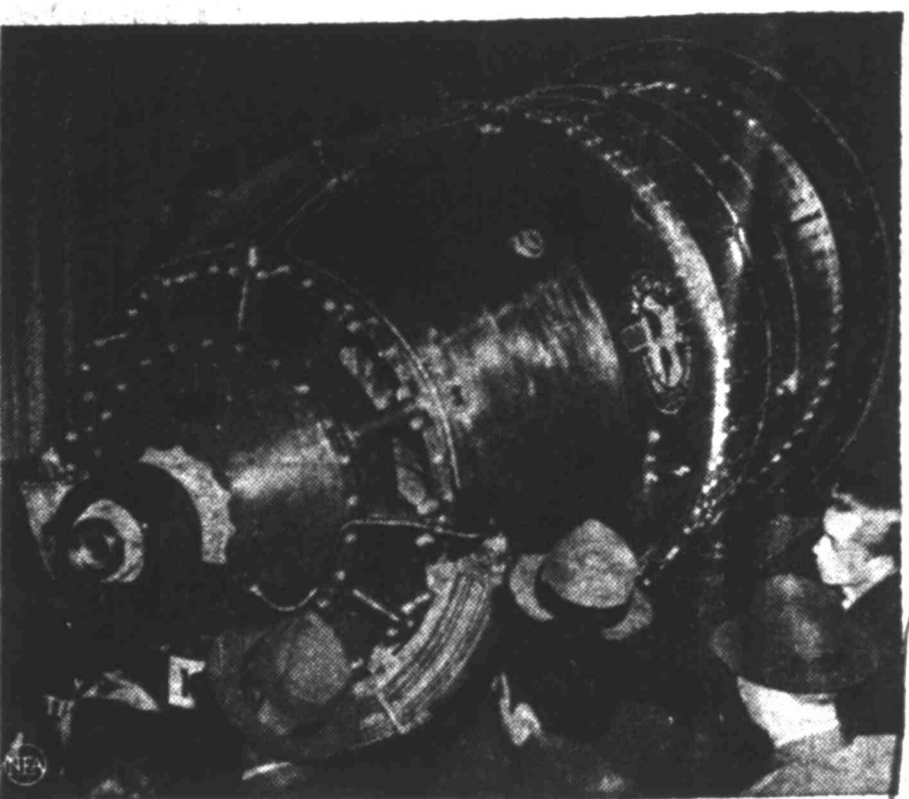

Even on that basis, experts are pessimistic. They feel that the chance of success are much less bright in connection with planes than for ships or engineering, for commercial power.

Weight, Size Not Basic
Their doubts are not concerned basically with weight and size, though those factors are important. Low temperature experimental reactors, now in existence, weigh several hundred tons each, and those I have seen are but as small two-story structures—perhaps 20 feet high, 45 to 50 feet long, 25 to 30 high. The cement radiation shield on the first reactor is around five feet thick.

But some, at least, believe it will prove possible to bring the weight of a mobile reactor down to the neighborhood of 50 tons. And the B-36 takes off with 70 tons of fuel for an 8000-mile trip.

If the reactor could be brought to 50 tons, a B-36 could lift that weight, plus more atom bombs than it can now carry. With a single fueling of the smallest amount of U-235 that will sustain chain reaction, such a plane could go from anywhere in this country to anywhere in the world, drop its bombs, and come home—and make several more similar trips before refueling.

The Congressional Aviation Policy Board, a year ago, reported that in the event of war or the threat of war, nuclear power for aircraft "would be comparable in significance to the atomic bomb itself."

If atomic power takes to the air, the first nuclear-powered plane might use a turbine looking more or less like this giant Curtis-Wright "turbo-prop" engine called the Typhoon. But as soon as materials are found that are capable of withstanding the terrific heat involved nuclear plane power plants would more likely be of the ram-jet type.

In a chapter from his book "The Science and Engineering of Nuclear Power" adapted in the February issue of the magazine Nucleonics, Clark Goodman of the M.I.T. Department of Physics elaborates a further remark made by the Policy Board.

For a range of 11,000 miles—5,000 out, 5,000 back, 1,000 safety margin—the maximum speed for a gas-line-engine craft is between 300 and 400 miles an hour, which is too slow for modern warfare. But a nuclear-powered plane would have no reason to economize on fuel by holding down speed. It could use its top cruising speed at all times.

The nuclear-powered plane, carrying atom bombs, "could be the dominant factor in maintaining world peace," the Policy Board reported.

But the obstacles here are even greater than those of nuclear power. First—weight is of greater importance. The plane reactor must be smaller and lighter than a submarine could handle. Yet Dr. William E. Shoup, research director of Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s Atomic Power Division, points out that shielding must be even more adequate, because the plane's crew must be so close to the reactor.

Gamma Ray
The intensity of gamma ray and neutron radiation is four times as great at one foot as at two; it is 150 times as great at two feet as at 15 feet. And there is no sea water, outside or in ballast tanks, to act as a radiation shield for a plane, as in the case of a submarine.

Second—it may prove desirable to operate the plane reactor at a higher temperature than would be necessary for other types, particularly if the ram-jet proved to be the best method of using nuclear power.

That might increase the weight of shielding required. It certainly would increase the temperature that the metals, alloys, ceramics or other compounds would have to withstand. So that even when materials are found that will do for ships, or for general power purposes, they might not be good enough for use in a plane reactor.

Third—the plane, like the submarine, would have to be completely redesigned to carry the concentrated weight of such a power plant. Now gasoline is carried in the wings, engines are out front. With

Rose-Colored Specs Make Hen A 'Lady'

WHITE BEAR LAKE, MINN.—(P)—A look at the world through rose-colored glasses is making a lady out of little "biddy," the hen.

Hens in many egg producing flocks in the nation actually are wearing spectacles that give them the look of a dowager.

The glasses have red lenses that tend to keep young laying hens quiet and even tempered, poultry men say. They also prevent them from performing acts of cannibalism or committing mayhem on one another.

All it takes to start a barnyard ruckus is a vicious peck from the beak of one hen on another. At the sight of blood, several hens will join in the fray. Somebody usually gets hurt badly, if not eaten up.

With eggs still worth as much as a nickel apiece, and a good hen capable of producing one almost every day, poultrymen are interested in stopping the fights.

The red-lensed "specs" give an overall little-red-hen look to all members of the flock. If a hen gets "beaked," the blood is not discernible to her sisters.

Even Nose Bridge
Jess Munson, manager of Pine Tree farms near White Bear Lake, has several thousand of his 6000 flock wearing the spectacles. The gadgets have a "nose bridge" that fits over a hen's beak. They're fastened by a small pin which passes through a part of the upper beak. The operation causes the hen no pain or discomfort, Munson explained.

Poultrymen, who refer to the spectacles as "peck guards," have tried many schemes to reduce mortality among flighty chickens and keep them quiet while laying. Red light bulbs, painting poultryhouse windows red and other methods have been used with varying success, Munson said. In his experience the red glasses have proved the best.

At the end of the second year, the hen, if not ready for the fricassee pot, is relieved of her glasses. By then she has enough sense to stay out of fights.

State Asked To Underwrite Art

ST. PAUL, MINN.—(P)—The state of Minnesota has been asked to underwrite a program to "advance the interests of the fine arts." A bill in the legislature asks for an annual appropriation to do the job. The sum has been trimmed in committee from $25,000 to $10,000.

If enacted, the measure would be unique in the nation. The appropriation would breathe more life into a 1947 law redefining activities of the Minnesota State Art Society, originally established 46 years ago. Before the society became inactive in 1927, its work included distributing art exhibitions throughout the state, reviving crafts and promoting model farm plans. In 1915 a full-size farm house was built for display on the state fair grounds here.

In 1945, a group of 35 business men, artists, architects and representatives of schools and museums decided to reactivate the society. Two years later the new statute was written and the society was reorganized. A 15-member governing board was named by the governor and officers were elected.

Without state funds the society operated on private contributions and through facilities of the University of Minnesota, the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis and other art institutions in the Twin Cities.

Distribution of exhibits will continue to be chief among activities of the society if the legislative appropriation comes through. Fred V. Nash, president of the society, says. It would also provide art lectures for schools.

Eire's Independence Poses New Problem For British Empire

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
When Eire last Monday declared herself the independent Republic of Ireland, she dissociated herself from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Membership in the Commonwealth involves a dominion status which pays allegiance to the British throne. The constitutions of the member nations all recognize the king of England as their king, although they are acknowledged to be autonomous. So Eire, by withdrawing that recognition, put herself outside the charmed circle.

Thursday the prime ministers of the seven British dominions are meeting in London, and the foremost question before them is this: How can a nation belonging to the Commonwealth become a republic and still retain its membership?

That's one of the most important questions the dominions ever have had to answer. It isn't that they expect to bring Ireland back into a fold which she found distasteful, but the mighty Dominion of India has served notice she also intends to become an independent sovereign republic. The idea of giving allegiance to the king is repugnant to many of India's leaders.

Possible Solution Offered
The loss of India to the Commonwealth would be a major disaster.

While the problem of finding a formula under which republics can remain in the Commonwealth certainly isn't an easy one, many observers feel it can be solved. A solution which is being considered as a possibility is summed up by the Manchester Guardian, one of Britain's leading newspapers. "The easiest solution might be for each of the governments to proclaim by resolution that they were members of the Commonwealth. It would be folly to let the Commonwealth fall to pieces because of an insistence that the crown should be recognized by all partners."
