SPITE NOTE GIVES HASKELL POLICE FALSE CLUE

So This Is Texas

By H. N. Fitzgerald

TEXAS bankers have organized the Texas Cotton Finance corporation, $5,000,000 concern, to provide credit and means for the retirement of 1,250,000 bales from the market.

This money will be used for holding cotton in ware-houses and lending money to the growers.

Cotton is to be held not less than 18 months nor more than three years.

NOW RIGHT here is where the leaders in the movement are seekiing to bring a one-fourth reduction in cotton acreage in 1927.

FROM GULF to the western border line and from the Red to the Rio Grande river, bankers and capitalists are very active in the work that involves subscription to the $5,000,000 capital stock, as machinery for obtaining $50,000,000 credit from the Federal Intermediate cash banks.

J. A. PONDRON is a bank president who has lived his active life in the cities of Houston and Dallas.

He has volunteered the information that the cotton coming into the hands of the corporation will be classed by an expert and money will be loaned on the basis of 75 per cent of its market value.

BUSINESS is business. Banker Pondrom admits it.

These are his words, "This is not a philanthropic work. It will be run by business men on a business basis. The stock holders will get their money back and there may be a small dividend."

COTTON is a non-perishable product.

It is a product that can be held in storage for years and years.

It is one of the basic staples of the world.

All the crop of 1926 should be picked.

It should be ginned.

It should be ware-housed.

It has the potential value.

COTTON is sold below the cost of production today.

IF COTTON goes below the price of production then the acreage is bound to slump and the millers of the world who manufacture cotton goods must pay a fancy price for the fleecy staple and the purchasers or consumers of cotton garments in the last analysis must pay the increased cost of the cotton goods.

IT MUST be true that the bankers hold the key to the situation.

They hold the whip hand; they divide responsibility with the large land owners.

WHENEVER the bankers and the land owners bow their necks and tell the land renters that there must be a sweeping reduction in the acreage, then the reduction will be made and the carry-over or surplus will disappear.

IT IS the carry-over or surplus that fixes the price.

Cheap labor produces cheap cotton and the cheapest labor in the world is the labor furnished by an army of women and children in the cotton belt sections of the south.

At the best the heads of the families and their dependents make out a precarious existence from cradle to grave.

THEY never enjoy the smallest luxuries of life and the bare necessities are the best that they can get out of their existence. Their grandfathers were renters or croppers.

THEIR fathers were renters or croppers.

They are renters or croppers.

Their sons and grand-sons will be renters and croppers unless the credit system is smashed throughout the south and the system of land tenancy with cotton the one crop, is banished or broken by the thoughtful men of affairs in the cotton growing states.

IT WAS slave labor before the coming of the Civil war; it has been tenant labor, the labor of women and children ever since the close of the Civil war, and the system, doubleheaded, has made vast fortunes for the millers of the old world.

COTTON has made multi-millionaires of the millers of the new world, creating dual financial houses and fortunes in the industrial centers of New England where raw materials are not produced and wealth is created by turning the cotton and the wool of the south and the west into the finished fruits of the spindle and the loom to be shipped back to the

COTTON CURE COMPLETE IN THIS COUNTY

EXPERIENCE COSTLY

They Also Believe That Estimates of U. S. Are Too High

By R. C. PATTY.
Record News Staff.

"If the good Lord will forgive me for producing this cotton crop, I'll never raise another."

Such was the disgusted declaration of one Wichita county farmer Saturday who, when interviewed in the city, said he was cured of the cotton fever as the only agricultural outlet here.

This man was one of a large number interviewed while on shopping expeditions into Wichita Falls Saturday. And the general tenor of their views may be summed up about as follows:

1. Wichita county farmers generally are convinced cotton should not again be made a primary crop.

2. Wichita county will not produce by a wide margin this year the amount of cotton grown and marketed here in 1925.

3. Much of the cotton grown here this year will not be picked and will be allowed to rot in the fields.

4. A government crop report estimating 17,000,000 bales are considerably overdrawn.

From statements of those men interviewed, it appears that cotton grown in the irrigated belts averaged more per acre than dry land cotton, but in comparison with last year's crop, the irrigated cotton did not increase proportionately as much as did the dry land fields.

All Disgusted.

The farmer whose expression is quoted at the start of this article went on to say that he had just sold two bales of cotton, one a bollie one, for which he received 8 1-2 cents a bale. The other, picked cotton gathered in September, gave him 10 1-2 cents a pound. His declaration that he was thor-

NEW RATE FOR OIL CANCELLED

Wichita Falls And Other North Texas Points Affected

FORT WORTH, Nov. 6. (AP)—New rate schedules filed by railways on shipments of oil from north Texas points to Mississippi river crossings and protested by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce and the North Texas Petroleum Traffic bureau were cancelled by the Interstate Commerce Commission Saturday, says a Washington dispatch to the Star Telegram.

Cancellation was without prejudice to their refiling in accordance with the finding in the case.

Existing rates from Wichita Falls, Fort Worth and other producing points in northern Texas to Vicksburg and Natchez is 22.5 cents while the rate from Houston will be 24 cents. The existing rate Saturday was declared to be inadequate and not on a parity with like rates ordered in the recent decision covering oil shipments from the mid-continent field, the commission said. In that decision crude oil was given a preferential rate of 80 per cent of the rate on gasoline and a similar requirement is made in the present case.

Sleuth Admits Being Paid $2,500 to Leave New Jersey

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 6. (AP)—Testifying for the state at the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hauall and her two brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, Henry L. Dickman, former trooper of the New Jersey state police, this afternoon said that he was paid $2,500 by the late Amariah Beekman, prosecutor of Somerset county, to leave the state in 1923.

Dickman said that at the time the offer was made and accepted he had been working from seven to eight months in investigating the slaying of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

He declared that there was no reason given for the payment of the money, the only condition being that he leave the state.

Coyotes Emerge From Bitter Fight With Bare One-Point Victory When Vernon Opens Furious, Futile Rally

Roaring Grey Lion Lashes Out With Desperate and Deadly Power in Closing Minutes of Play to All But Overhaul 14 to 3 Lead Piled Up by Visitors

BY BLONDY CROSS
Record News Sporting Editor

VERNON, Nov. 6.—A rumbling Lion, the grey tide of Vernon, found itself cornered and harassed by a snarling Coyote, the Crimson and Black of Wichita Falls, this afternoon in the most bitter and spectacularly fought gridiron battle ever staged between these ancient rivals.

A Lion that was swept from its feet during the early stages of the encounter and wallowed in the dust of it's own veldt until almost past recognition, a Lion apparently pounded and whipped into submission, surged back fiercely during the final moments of the affray and in a brilliant rally failed by a scant few inches to snatch sweet victory from the chasm of bitter defeat.

Furiously smashing a faltering foe through the fourth period with Midget Luttrell flashing to the summit of his football career, the mighty Gelhausen and the fleet charging Key ripping into great breaches torn in enemy ramparts by a sturdily battling set of forwards, Vernon's grey horde fell a slime on point short of overhauling a 14 to 3 advantage amassed by darting Wichita Falls backs.

With night falling and the titantic struggle nearing it's finish, a worn, weary and desperate band of youths, the Coyote at bay, the king of the plains making his last stand, stubbornly resisted a battering Vernon onslaught on it's goal line, a line now obliterated in the dusk by churning feet and hurtling bodies. With their goal posts lowering down on them from above and a ruthless foe all but victory drunk, rallying it's forces for the final great effort that would send them tottering over the precipice of defeat, that thin black line, flecked here and there with crimson, arrayed itself for the final stand, grim and unconquerable.

A signal was barked and a sweaty grey jersied center crouched momentarily to snap the ball for the smash that was to score victory. A bare five yards lay between that grey tide and the coveted goal. A sudden shift, and then the mighty drive of two stalwart teams clashing head on. C. Key had been dropped on the line of scrimmage by Hobbs. Then another smash and a resultant explosion from the impact. Francis torn and tired, had charged through and halted Gelhausen without an inch gained. Twice more did Vernon shatter it's catapult attack upon the stone wall Wichita Falls line. Once Hobbs and Dobson split the drive. And then again, when the mass of bodies had bene entangled, Francis had stopped Castleberry and the ball lay a meager few inches from the goal.

Disaster Averted.

Disaster had been averted. It was Wichita Falls ball on downs. On the first play, as he had been forced to do once before by a raging adversary, Francis grounded the oval behind the goal for an intentional safety. It was a gift of two points to Vernon, but, who knows, it may have staved off a tuochdown?

Pinney, who fought a noble battle himself, was given a free kick from the 20-yard line. He booted to mid-field where before a play could be launched by Vernon the timer's pistol shot shook down the curtain on a Wichita Falls 14-13 victory.

Vernon scored first, ripping through to the 20-yrd line where she met a resistence she could not match. Gelhausen dropped back and place kicked a field goal.

New York Society Folks Flock to Newest Night Club

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Broadway's newest night club, which has a mirror for a dance floor and is operated by Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of Otto Kahn, financier, is now open for business.

The cabaret, called "Le Perroquet de Paris," opened last night after a postponement from Monday because tables with glass tops under which gold fish swim were not up to specifications when first delivered and because the blowing out of a fuse left the club in darkness. There are six parrots in the club, the name of which means little parrot.

Society, stage and screen were among those who paid a $25 cover charge for the opening, including Otto Kahn, Irving Berlin, the song writer; Conde Nast, publisher; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cushing, who are related to the Vanderbilts, and Fannie Ward, actress.

Married Men Need Not Pay Salaries To Wives For Cooking, Court Rules

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 6. (AP)—Married men in Minnesota don't have to pay salaries to their wives for house work. The state legal department says so in an opinion made public today.

The ruling was in response to a query from a perturbed housewife who wrote to Governor Theodore Christianson asking if wives did not have a legal right to regular allowances.

"My neighbor's hired girl can draw a salary of $60 a month with board and room free," said the writer, "but I as housewife get not one cent for my own needs."

The attorney general's office replied "there is no law which compels a husband to pay a salary to his wife for house work or to make payments to her at regular intervals for any purpose."

U. S. Cotton Commission Will 'Lift' 4,000,000 Bales From Market To Aid Southern Farmers To Get Fair Price

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—The New York Evening Post today says that on the ground that "it is time for the south to stop giving its cotton away." President Coolidge's cotton commission has decided to "lift" 4,000,000 zales this year's estimated surplus, from the market

This surplus will be stored for 18 months or such time as may be necessary and cotton acreage next year will be reduced 25 per cent so that the surplus may then be put on the market at pric s fair to the grower.

The storage and reduction plan was decided upon on a flying trip through the south just completed by Eugene Meyer, managing editor of the war finance corporation.

Appointed less than three weeks ago by President Coolidge, Mr. Meyer in a 10-day journey through 12 southern states organized nine public welfare corporations with a massed capital of $16,000,000 that will be able to secure the use of all or any part of $160,000,000 from the federal intermediate credit banks.

This sum is considered ample to care for taking the 4,000,000 bales off the market and carrying them until decrease in next year's production guarantees fair prices. The reduction will be brought about by diversion of present cotton acreage to other crops.

POISON FLOUR TRIAL CLOSES

Denver Chemist Voted Guilty By Jury in Brief Verdict

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3. (AP)—Alva W. Estabrook, Denver chemist, was found guilty on a charge of sending poison through the mails to the home of Judge E. E. Porterfield, veteran Kansas City circuit judge, by a jury in federal court here today. The jury deliberated 55 minutes.

Judge Merrill E. Otis said sentence would be pronounced next Tuesday.

Estabrook, a cereal chemist, operating a drug store in Denver at the time of his arrest, May 28, was charged with sending a package of pancake flour through the mail to Judge Porterfield to revenge a bitter hatred developed over the judge's decision in Estabrook's marital troubles. Judge Porterfield awarded custody of Estabrook's son to its mother after the couple were divorced.

The pancake flour was analyzed and found to contain a large quantity of poison. All the members of the Porterfield family had been made ill from eating the cakes made from the flour. Judge Porterfield had received several threatening letters from Estabrook in Denver. Federal authorities investigated and the arrest followed.

Simple Addition Not So Easy When Folks Try To Figure Elephant's Weight

Folks who used to think back in the fourth and fifth grades that multiplication tables constituted an element in higher mathematics and that simple addition was easy as the A. B. C.'s are revising their opinions.

For a lot of these same folks are taking a shot at The Record News elephant contest—which is little more than a very ambitious matheatical addition program. They are finding that sometimes addition is not as simple as it appears, yet whatever its evils, the present case is more than justified by the big stakes involved.

The contest is one in which The Record News is offering valuable cash prizes—the first of $500—for the correct solution to the problem. Hundreds of entries have already poured in and more are coming every day.

If you have not secured your copy of the numbered elephant, suppose you do it at once, work out your solution and send it in to The Record News.

Those cash prizes, you know, will come in handily now that Christmas is nearing.

FOUR MEN HELD IN BEAUCHAMP SLAYING FREED

FIFTH MAN IS HELD

But He Is to Face Charge Of Bootlegging, Say Haskell Officers

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Nov. 6.—Four of the five men held in the Haskell jail in connection with the killing of Nightwatchman J. K. Beauchamp in the entrance of the Davis store early Sunday morning two weeks ago, have been released following the return of Sheriff J. T. Turnbow from Texarkana, Ark., where he went to interview a woman held in jail there who wrote letters to Haskell implicating these men in the murder.

The woman, giving her name as Mrs. Z. T. Anderson, and claiming to be the wife of Z. T. Anderson held in the Haskell jail, has been held in the Texarkana jail for six months on bootlegging charges. Officers say she is not married to Anderson and that the charges implicating the men are false, being written to avenge personal differences.

The officers say that these men have no connection with the murder and have released four of them, the other being held to be taken to Texarkana this morning to answer charges of bootlegging there.

FORD IS PAYING QUEEN'S COSTS

Marie's Tour of Northwest To Cost Fliver King $500,000

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, has been paying the incidental expenses of Queen Marie of Rumania and her royal party during their American tour, it was revealed here today by J. B. Ayres, personal representative of Mr. Ford, with the party.

Ayres estimated the queenly tour would cost Mr. Ford $500,000.

Expenses have included "loans" to her majesty's retinue for everything from cigarettes and chewing gum to limousines, it was said. Ford had been palying all automobile transportation and baggage expenses and all costs of the party wherever the queen stopped.

Mr. Ayres said that automobiles had been the largest expense. Everywhere the queen stops and is moved in cars there have been only sedans and limousines furnished on Ford's orders, who pays for the time of the men used as drivers and for approximately $1,000 loss expected on each car when it is sold.

To date 165 automobiles have been used.

Ayres said that when her majesty arrives in New York she will find a specially built sedan awaiting her, trimmed in dark blue with royal purple wheels and the royal arms on the sides, the personal gift of the automobile manufacturer.

Detailed Chamber of Commerce Dinner Plans Nearly Complete

Detailed plans for the annual chamber of commerce membership banquet, which takes place next Friday evening, November 12, are practically complete, according to announcement from chamber of commerce headquarters Saturday afternoon. The banquet will take place in the Junior college cafeteria. There will be a musical program which will begin at 6:30 o'clock and itis expected all guests will be at their places by 7 o'clock. Presidents and secretaries of many chambers of commerce in the Wichita Falls trade territory, Texas and Oklahoma, have been invited to attend and many have already accepted the invitation. Numerous reservations have been made and indications are that more than one thousand people will attend. This will set a new attendance record at this annual event.

The principal address will be delivered by Clarence Ousley who will discuss "Commerce and Agriculture." Brief addresses will be delivered by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls, Homer D. Wade, manager the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and Joe Leopold, manager o fthe Texas district of the United States Chamber of Commerce. There will be a number of other interesting features on the program.

President J. C. Mytinger of the chamber of commerce will preside. Reports of the year's work by the staff will be submitted and plans for work for another year will be made. Plans also will be announced for the annual membership campaign, which will take place November 15, 16 and 17, will also be outlined. Committees are being organized and other work necessary to this campaign will be completed within a few days and the actual campaign announced.

Realizing the importance of this campaign many prominent men of the city have volunteered their services and will assist in the membership drive. The budget, which has been approved by the budget committee and the directors of the chamber has been placed at $75,000.

Big Pageant

the visiting clergy and laymen at the presentation of the pageant Saturday night as a special number for the ministers. An hour before the play was to begin the first listeners came and the house was packed to capacity. Miss Marguerite Fisher directed the pageant, which had a cast of 30 members.

Deals With Preachers.

The story dealt with the superannuated preachers and was in the interest of the $10,000,000 endowment fund for these men.

Woven around the "Forgotten Woman," wife of a superannuate minister who had just died, is the plot which showed the hardships she underwent as the wife of the minister. In the background was a witness, a superannuate minister, who did not speak. The "Fotgotten Woman" told of the sacrifices she had made as a minister's wife and made a plea, not for herself, but for others.

The spirit of the Methodist church, south, confessed her fault and neglect and with the assistance of the spirit of love and justice she sought to remedy the situation. She listened to the story of the "Forgotten Woman" who called in before her a long review of the business men and workers of the world, and the groups told stories of happiness and content, a contrast to the life of the "Forgotten Woman."

The climax of the play came when the Spirit of the Church knelt in prayer and promised better service to the church and a higher resolve to do better things for the Forgotten Woman and the Forgotten Man.

Costumes Lavish.

Costumes for the pageant were real and the play brought comment of appreciation from the hundreds gathered to hear it.

Principal parts were taken by Miss Bulah Gardner, Angel of Love; Miss Florence McCulloch as Angel of Justice; Mrs. R. W. H. McCulloch as the Methodist Episcopal church, south; Mrs. C. W. Ruffner as the Forgotten Woman, and Harold White as the Forgotten Man.

Those taking part in the procession of those from the working world were Milton Price, first business man; DeWitt Early, the second business man; J. C. McIntyre, the third; George Gibert, the fourth; J. B. Copeland, the fifth; Duncan Fulton, the sixth; Miss Johnnie Groves, the first woman; Miss Valley Fern, the second woman; third woman, Mrs. Alfred Kass.

The characters in the general group were: J. T. Highsmith as the cook; Mrs. Alice Whitehead as the nurse; Winslow Beckam as the sailor; Miss Lucille Ballard as the working girl; W. W. Ford as the minister with Miss Juanita Hamersley as his wife; O. G. Scott as the man in overalls; H. W. Gray as the old farmer; Ellery Lynn as the policeman; Robert Tinsley as the railroad engineer; Wilbur Kent as the motorman and Jack Barker as the negro brakeman.

J. W. Thorne, president of the North Texas Epworth league made the opening address of the evening. A vocal number, "Life's Railway to Heaven," was sung by Uncle Billy Lewis of Denson, superanuated minister, and the huge audience gave him an ovation. Mrs. Lewis played the accompaniment for her husband.

Rev. W. H. Wallace Jr., presided during the evening.

W. Harrison Baker of Gainesville who has been president of the Epworth league board for the past eight years was presented with a handsome leather traveling bag from the district in appreciation of his services to the board in that time. Rev. Wallace made the presentation, and Mr. Baker responded with a brief talk.

C-C MANAGER FROM AUSTIN

Hubert Harrison Attends To Business Matters At Capitol

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, returned yesterday from Austin where he delivered to Game Cimmissioner Hubby the deed to the 140-acre park at the Diversion Lake. Commissioner Hubby agreed to award the contract for a fish hatchery on the property as soon as the deed is approved by the attorney general, Mr. Harrison said. It will mean the expenditure of a sum of money in this community amounting to probably $50,000. Already roads and bridges are being constructed i nthe park which will serve this vicinity. It is to be stocked with deer, pheasant and quail.

On his return from Austin, Mr. Harrison was in Waco to attend a chamber of commerce meeting where the Mayfield bill was being discussed. The bill is to change the transportation act so that it would not be necessary to secure a permit from the Interstate Chamber of Commerce to build a railroad within the state, he explained. There was a difference of opinion expressed in the meeting, and some of the larger chambers of commerce were not in favor of the bill.

The matter has not been acted upon by the local chamber of commerce board, Mr. Harrison said last night.

Cotton Cure

oughly disgusted with cotton was in a general way, of the same tenor of those of other farmers interviewed.

Below are a few of the interviews:

C. E. O'Brien, whose farm is located northwest of the city, had 200 acres planted to cotton this year. He states he will do well to get 50 bales. Some of his land made a bale to the acre last year and all of it averaged better than a half bale. He now has only sixteen bales picked.

H. Estes has 20 acres of irrigated cotton from which he expects to harvest 15 bales. He now has 10 bales picked and stated that his crop this year was very nearly as good as last year.

P. R. Moore, who farms about six miles northwest of the city, planted 35 acres to cotton this year and has already picked ten bales. He expects better than a half bale to the acre, but is not very enthusiastic about it as he has not managed to sell it for a price that will realize a profit.

O. S. Keinngham has only six acres planted to cotton, but expects to get five bales from it, and already has gathered three bales. His farm is an irrigated farm of the best type, but he does not go in strong for cotton.

Fred Boust of Jolly has a poor crop with a production of only 15 bales from 50 acres of land.

B. S. Hodge had about the same luck, only getting 25 bales from 70 acres of land. He is anxious to get clear out of the cotton game and expects to reduce his acreage by better than half the coming year.

J. E. Collins has already picked 33 bales from 135 acres of land, but states that his crop won't average a half bale to the acre. It is nothing like the crop he had last year. Mr. Collins' farm is eight miles northeast of the city and one of the best dry land farms in the county.

The Landlord's Side.

Then, of course, there is the landlord's side of the question. The cotton game has always presented a paradox to them. It appears to have made them money, but detailed facts will not support this contention. There are several big farm owners in the city who are strong supporters of cotton regardless of the price it brings, but most of them have become convinced this year that a drastic reduction of acreage is imperative.

R. A. Neal, who conducts a realty business at 717 Seventh streets, owns several farms in Wichita county and on two of these a large acreage was planted to cotton. On the two farms there are 240 acres of cotton and Mr. Neal estimates that they will produce 140 bales. One of the farms is irrigated and Mr. Neal states it did not do as well as it did last year, but that the dry land farm did better.

"I have examined several fields of cotton in different parts of the county," Mr. Neal stated, "butI find that none of the crops are turning out as much cotton as was at first estimated. In fact, the crop will be very short, because of the fact that much of it will not be gathered."

Every farmer interviewed was most emphatic in his statement regarding the cutting of acreage, and many of them declared that they would not plant any cotton at all next year.

New Invention Saves Millions

A Lamp that Burns 94% Air

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor J. T. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

Gregory's Church Extends and Wins Plea to Be Host to '26 Conference

In the business session of the North Texas Methodist conference Saturday morning, the body unanimously accepted the invitation of the First Methodist church of Dallas to hold the 1927 conference in that city.

The invitation was extended by the pastor, Dr. Carl C. Gregory, and Dallas was the only city to invite the conference. Following the vote, Bishop Sam R. Hay who is presiding at the conference said, "That's the greatest church I know anything about."

The special session called to consider the plan of federation of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was held at 10 o'clock, with Dr. E. W. Alderson of Dallas, presenting the plan.

S. C. Riddle of Dallas read the preamble and the resolutions for the plans of unification.

Objection followed and Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist University, raised the point that the general conference had passed a resolution forbidding agitation on unification till the next meeting of that conference. Dr. Alderson was granted the right to speak by personal privilege and he told the body that the plan was submitted not to create agitation or misunderstanding but that it was intended to make acceptable the plan defeated in the conference last year.

The preamble of the plan of federation stated that the union of the two churches is not an organic merger of blending of the two churches, but a voluntary treaty of federation between them as distinct sovereignties. "Control of all its property, membership, ministry, social and racial problems and policies with all other internal concerns, remains as absolutely in the hands of the respective jurisdictional conferences as hitherto in those of the two general conferences," it read.

"If you decide to be silent and let other conferences vote, you're like a man staying away from the pills," Dr. Alderson said in urging that action be taken on the plan.

The conference voted to refer the plan of federation to a committee of five to study the plan and report on it at the end of the quadrennium.

A feature of the morning session was the presentation of a watch to Rev. Frank M. Richardson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district who will be given a station this year. The watch was given by the membership of the district to Rev. Richardson in appreciation of his efficient service. Rev. E. V. Cole of Electra, newly elected editor of the Texas Christian Advocate made the presentation.

"As this watch measures time, it measures the hours in our memory of the recollection of you and your splendid administration of this district," Rev. Cole said.

"It has been said the pack follows the leader, but the splendid men who have made possible the great record for the Wichita Falls district are responsible for the leadership."

Reports from various boards were heard in the business session of the morning.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoae, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

DISTRICT OIL OUTPUT REACHES 104,380 BARRELS FOR WEEK

THROCKMORTON COUNTY MAKES BIGGEST GAIN

Entire District Makes An Increase of 100 Barrels; Archer Still Leads

Throckmorton county led the Wichita Falls district in the amount of gain in daily pipeline runs during the past week. Wilbarger county was a close second with an increase of 370 barrels, 20 barrels less than the boost of Throckmorton county.

A new peak was set again the past week averaging 104,479 barrels for a gain of 100 barrels for the entire district.

One 500-Barrel Well

The principal contributing factor in the Throckmorton jump was the Red Bank Oil company's well in the Virginia Parrot survey which came in the previous week making 500 barrels. Several completions by the Phillips Petroleum company on the Waggoner ranch in Wilbarger county increased the production of that district. Montague county made its usual gain and is now producing 9,930 barrels daily. Burkburnett and Iowa Park fields registered small increases.

Daily runs by fields follow:

The Red Bank Oil company is rigging up machinery on No. 1, E. Overcash, located 560 feet north and 466 feet east of the southwest corner of the east 40 acres of the northeast quarter of section 960, T. E. L. survey of Young county.

ELLIOT, ET AL, WILSON.

Elliot and the Roxana Petroleum corporation have made location for a test on the T. B. Wilson land, being 1450 feet south and west of the northeast corner the H. H. Kirk survey in Archer county.

ROXANA.
ABERCROMBIE-TAYLOR.

Roxana Petroleum corporation has completed its No. 7 Abercrombie and Taylor in section 2, S. P. R. R. survey of Archer county and the well pumped 287 barrels in the first 24 hours from sand at 1347-63 feet.

ACREAGE DEAL
IN ARCHER COUNTY.

Roxana Petroleum corporation has purchased from Chas. Abercrombie for a consideration of $20,000 the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 2, S. P. R. R. survey. The Sun Oil company held this acreage until recently, when it was transferred back to Abercrombie.

PHILLIPS GETS GUSHER IN WILBARGER.

Phillips Petroleum company late Friday deepened its No. L-4 Waggoner which had tested a saturated lime at 2290-93 feet and penetrated an oil sand at 2297 feet and the well flowed 1125 barrels of oil into storage in the first 24 hours with the bit five feet in the sand. This well is one of the best producers brought in in the Wilbarger county field this year. It is located in block 4, section 45, H. & T. C. survey.

NEW SAND FOUND IN TURBEVILLE POOL.

What may prove to be a new producing level in the Turbeville pool is being watched in the Simms Oil company No. A-12 Turbeville, in block 172, Robt. Carson survey, Archer county, where casing has been set on a sand at 1546-47 feet. This well missed the usual pay around 1500 feet and was drilled ahead. The well is only one location from a producer and it is not thought that the usual sand would dip so much in that distance.

ATLANTIC PROMISES
IMPORTANT EXTENSION.

Atlantic Oil company, in its No. 1, Mrs. Allen, located in the southeast quarter of section 1, H. T. B. survey, abstract 199, and about six mile s southeast of Holliday in Archer county, has bright prospects of extending the old Wilmot pool approximately one mile to the north. Casing has been set on a good looking sand at 1355-57 feet and the well will probably be bailed Sunday. This sand is at the usual producing horizon in the Wilmot pool.

OIL ACTIVITY SLOWING DOWN

Crude Cut Is Biggest News Of Past Week In Wichita Area

The first important oil news of the past week in the Wichita Falls district was the announcement of a slash in the price of oil by the Humble Pipeline company. The cut which amounted to 48 cents on most north Texas crude was subsequently met by the Continental, Magnolia, American and Texas companies in the order named.

Just what effect this reduction will have on drilling operations remains to be seen but reports are already being circulated that two of the major producers and others in the Montague county field are to shut down all drilling wells. Operations will be on the decrease, of course, until the present over supply of oil in the Mid-Continent field is moved.

Turbeville Completions

The past week was another quiet one although several nice producers were brought in. The Tidal Oil company completed its No. 2 Turbeville in block 172, Robt. Carson survey of Archer county. This well swabbed 300 barrels in the first 24 hours from the sand at 1510-20 feet. The Texas company also added another nice producer to its long string of wells in the Turbeville pool by completing No. 14 as a 200 barrel well. Petroleum Producers and United Producers were completing their No. 8 at the end of the week and its looked as though it would be another oil well on that lease which already his six big producers.

Other Fields Quiet

Nothing impressive developed in either Montague, Young or Throckmorton county. The Continental Oil company completed its No. A-7 Boulding which swabbed 167 barrels in the first 24 hours. Lynch, Stahl and Burress finally put their No. 4 Dangelmeyer on the pump and it is making 15 barrels daily. Other than that Cooke county was barren of interesting developments. There were a few wildcat locations staked out in that county.

Probably the quietest area during the week was Wichita county. Not a single completing of importance was reported. R. R. Clark's No. 11 Ward and Todd made a 150-barreler from the 1850 foot sand but Sunshine Hill seems to have its producing limits determined.

Wilbarger county scored in the last of the week with a 1,100 barrel gusher. Phillips Petroleum company's L-4 Waggoner being the big gusher. There were a few other inside wells finished as producers in that county.

Pipe line runs again set a new high mark for the district despite the dearth of new producers. Most of the gain was made by Throckmorton and Wilbarger counties, where some nice well were completed the preceding week.

COLLINS WILL DIRECT FIELD

Task of Shutting Down Wells Given to Disinterested Citizen

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 6.—The herculean task of shutting down the Seminole field, one of Oklahoma's most rapidly developed oil areas, which E. B. Reeser of the Barnsdale corporation, successfully directed, is now to be thrust on Ray M. Collins of the Echo Oil company, as an umpire. Collins was chosen to take charge of the Seminole field and see that the agreement by which the shut-down was agreed on is carried out.

The job was not solicited by Collins, but his reputation as an oil man and citizen, caused the Seminole operators to agree upon his selection, and he was drafted. The Echo is a disinterested company and the Seminole operators feel that in Collins they will get a square deal.

Meets With Producers.

Mr. Collins spent Thursday in the field and Friday met with several committees of producers and purchasers to outline the way that the shut-down program is to be carried out.

Thursday's output of the 49 producers there was but 109,329 barrels, indicating the pressure was already being applied to the big gushers. Twenty-nine of these were the Wilcox wells already in and making 100,619 barrels a day. All of the oil but 5,000 barrels was reported being cared for and no loss will be tolerated there.

On October 30 the Seminole field attained a peak of 120,429 barrels a day from 47 wells. At that time all of them were flowing unrestrainedly. Since that day the wells have been pinched in more and more, and the plan is to keep them making just what the pipe lines can run.

32 Wells Allowed.

The air is full of gossip as to what offset wells the committee is to allow to be drilled in. E. B. Reeser, chairman of the shut-down committee, told the Oklahoma corporation commission, that 32 wells were to be permitted to be drilled in. In justice to the Carter Oil company and Prairie Oil and Gas company, these two firms will be allowed to drill in a number of wells that can not be legally termed as direct offsets, but this leeway is because they have not been "in the money" so far as have the other Seminole producers. The list of "allowed" wells is not yet made out, although many dope sheets were to be seen yesterday.

The Philmack company, composed of Waite Phillips and R. Otis McClintock, has purchased for $250,000 a 50 per cent interest in the 40 acres, being the southeast of the northeast quarter of 35-9-6 and in the very heart of the field. On this are two wells and they will be put down to the sand. The seller was the McCulloch Oil company of Okmulgee.

Another Pipe Line.

On the heels of the Texas company starting its first well in the Seminole field, in the southeast of the northeast of 14-9-6, announcement is made that the Texas Pipeline company is starting work on a 50 mile line of four-inch dimension to the Seminole field. The new Texas line will start at Henryetta and pass through the Cromwell field and on southwesterly to the very heart of the 9-6 area.

FOUR PRODUCERS

Albany Field Gets Added Production In Week.

Special to The Record News.

ALBANY, Nov. 6.—Four new producers were added this week to the Tannehill pool which is a mile extension to the Cooke field. The wells ranged from 600 to 900 barrels each. Tannehill't No. 1 Boberly, in section 59, has been making around 700 barrels since it was brought in three weeks ago.

Rosler and Pendleton brought in two wells, offsetting Tannehill's well to the north. Hyde and James completed an offset to the west and Tannehill's No. 2 was completed east of the No. 1. Locations announced during the week included Rosler and Pendleton No. 6 on section 60, W. I. Cook, Hyde and James No. 2 Moberly in section 59, White Eagle Oil company in section 58 and Matthews and Tannehill No. 4 Moberly.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Texas Company Officials Sees No Danger For Industry.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 6.—John J. Mitchel lof Chicago, president of the Illinois Mercantile Trust company, and a director of the Texas company, who is in New York city, yesterday issued the following statement:

"While an over-supply of crude oil appears imminent, due to the present flush production in the Mid-Continent fields, the situation will not likely seriously effect the oil industry as a whole, as the control of the fields is stronger than in a number of years."

He said that the Texas company was in a very prosperous condition and its earnings so far for 1926 are running ahead of 1925, when the net income was approximately $40,000,000. In 1925 the Texas company income equaled $6.02 a share.

CISCO, Nov. 6.—Bringing in of the Ramsower No. 1 well eight miles northeast of here is the cause of a heavy drilling campaign now being started. Many operators have come to Cisco as a base of operations and office space is said to be scarce.

The Ramsower well was brought in last week with an initial flow of 840 barrels and has averaged better than 700 barrels daily since then. Its total depth is 3,023 feet. Several locations for tests have already been staked out in the vicinity of Col. Gordon's strike.

'LOWLY PUMPERS' PLAY BIG ROLE IN WICHITA FALLS OIL DISTRICT

GUSHERS BRING THRILL - PUMPS HOLD UP FIELD

Half Forgotten, Small Wells Prove Backbone Of Oil Fields

The bringing in of a gusher or flowing well is probably the greatest thrill the oil man gets out of his ever changing and hence fascinating profession. A new gusher is something "hot" in the oil fraternity. It is the goal of every rig which is running in any field.

A new gusher may be discussed for days and reams of reading matter in newspapers and oil journals may be pounded out describing such as oil well. An unusually large gusher demands the attention of many persons not connected with the oil industry.

Pump Oil—Pump Gold.

But what about the lonely, half-forgotten "pumpers?"

The accompanying photograph depicts a pumping oil well. It does not look very interesting to be sure. To the average man it may appear to be just some odd piece of machinery. After a glance at the pump several storage tanks are seen in the distant background and there lies the value of the faithful pumper, for those tanks are filled regularly with the liquid gold which is brought from the well by the odd-looking piece of machinery.

After a gusher is brought in it may flow naturally for several weeks, some even flowing without help over a span of years but eventually they play out or they are placed on the pump. When a well is placed on the pump it is forgotten forever to all except possibly the owner who checks its output at intervals.

Gushers Not Always Best.

The well which comes in as a gusher is not always the most valuable as is shown by the short life of producers in some fields. In the Wichita Falls district, however, a majority of the new producers do not flow at first, an oil well is likely to be an oil well for many years.

In the Petrolia field of Clay county are many examples of the long life of wells in this district. The Petrolia field is one of the oldest in Texas and many of the producers brought in during the earliest days of the district are still pumping from two to 10 barrels of high grade oil into storage daily. The Petrolia pool is made more remarkable by the depth of some of the wells there, no few of which are not over 200 feet deep. This field long since lost the appearance of a derrick forest. Most of the wells being pumped are in wheat or cotton fields and the land owners reap a double harvest from the soil.

Engine Pumps 20 Wells.

Were it not for the central pumping stations there would be little evidence of oil production there. These stations pump as many as 20 wells on a lease and one man does all of the work in most cases.

The Petrolia field is cited because of the long life of its oil production. The same facts hold true in all other pools of the district with the exception of the depth at which oil is found. The great gushers of the Burkburnett field which merited streaming headlines in the hectic days of 1918 and 1919 are now insignificant pumpers, yet that field has a daily production of approximately 12,000 barrels at the present time and there is no indication that it will play out. The older pools of Archer county are giving up oil by the help of the pump, and many wells are in cotton fields which produce a half of a bale to the acre.

So the pumper is worth consideration once in a while, anyway.

Acreage Is Blocked by Wichita Falls Concern

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Nov. 6.—A total of 4,500 acres of farm land near Hess has been leased since July by the Petroleum Investment company, of Wichita Falls, Texas, and a test well will be started on one section of the land when material can be brought from Texas across the Red river.

The exact location for the test well to be made has not been announced, however, when the roads and bridges are in a condition for material to be delivered to the place of work the exact location will be decided and work will be started.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

Who Was Individual Hero At Vernon? There Wasn't Any!

By R. O. JONAS

(Written at the Vernon-Wichita Falls Game.)

If you are looking for one hero of the game, that person would be hard to discover. For it was all a supreme test of strength among frid giants. Francis, however, stood out for the crimson and black and it was he who had the big part to bring about the victory, both in making scores for his team, early in the game and in the memorable iron stand on the goal line in the fourth quarter when the tide of inspired Lion victory was surging irresitably through the tired Coyote eleven.

It was Francis who stopped the mighty Gelhausen three yards from the goal. Again it was the stalwart form of Francis that held Castleberry's desperate final plunge when the frantically fighting mass was disentangled a scant two feet from the goal on fourth down and the ball was the property of the Coyotes. It was Francis, too, who in the play for point after the second touchdown crossed up the Lions by making a clean plunge through center when a kick was expected.

Mitchell ably seconded Francis in the task of gaining ground around Vernon's stalwart ends. It was Mitchell's sudden great getaway about the middle of the second quarter that awakened the Coyote offense into the memorable drive which netted two touchdowns before it stopped. The plucky little Jimmie Rayzor, playing with a stiff ankle, demonstrated his usual fighting mettle, though his ankle did not permit his use on the offensive.

In the line Dobson, Pinney, Hobbs and Downing were again the shining lights in thrusting back Lion plunges and in leading the way for their own backs. Pinney numbers of times in that nerve wracking third period, proved the stumbling-block for Lion attempts. It was Hobbs, thrown into the breach left by Hunkie's injury who took C. Key's first plunge on that fateful last five yards. It was Hobbs again with Dobson who stopped Gelhausen on the third attempt to make the distance. Hunkie Ray, though badly battered, fought gamely all the way until he finally had to be carried from the field.

Plays His Heart Out

For the Lion's, Captain Gelhausen played his heart out in a game of cool-headed, veteran-like performance that would be hard to duplicate. His trusty boot sent over the goal early in the game, the ball which drew first blood of the contest. His passing, plunging and running labeled him as the best all-around backfield performer on the field. His worth was never more proven than when an injury forced him from the game as the Coyotes scored their first touchdown. For a while the Lion fighting spirit seemed dazed by his absence. His return to the game in the second half marked the rejuvenation of the Lion offensive which came within an inch of winning a ball game that seemed to be on ice for the other side. True, his offensive started against a team of much second string material for the Coyotes, but it gained such momentum that the best of the Pack could not stop it.

Castleberry, Luttrell and C. Key formed a more versatile backfield than the Coyote combination as a whole, even with Gelhausen missing. It was Luttrell's indomitable spirit that made him a nightmare for Coyote tacklers and which started the Lion revolution in the fourth quarter. In the line it would be a toss-up to pick the best. Hollar, T. Key and Newth proved fast wingmen who were capable of spilling the end-running of Mitchell and Lynch for frequent losses or short gains. T. Key was a very powerful factor in the Lion's smashing attempts to save the ball game in the fourth period. Johnson, big tackle, probably dealt the Wichita Falls ball carriers more misery than any other Lion forward.

Sooners Capture Missouri Game

Oklahoma Sooners Defeat Tigers by Score of 10 to 7

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 6. (AP) Oklahoma university defeated the invading Missouri Tigers, champions of the Missouri valley conference here 10 to seven today in a thrilling football game. Missouri scored first in the second period when Flamank passed to Clark for 30 yards and the speedy little Missouri halfback ran three yards over the goal for a touchdown, and Stuber kicked goal from placement.

Oklahoma's touchdown was scored just as the Tigers' gun barked, ending the first period, Potts completing a beautiful 46-yard line run over the goal line. On the play Potts had dropped back to pass, but finding none of his teammates clear, doubled back across the field and ran through the entire Missouri team. Haskins kicked the goal and and cinched the game for Oklahoma in the third period, when he kicked another goal from placement on the 32-yard line.

More than 20,000 rooters filled the huge stadium and overflowed onto the field.

Due largely to Arbuckle's accurate kicking, the Sooners kept the ball well down in Missouri's territory during the first period, threatening the Tiger goal three times.

COLLEGE STAR NO LONGER A MAJOR FACTOR

Sand Lot Players Now Big Bone of Dispute in Ball Camps

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—College baseball stars have so far faded into eclipse that the sandlot players now have become the bone of contention betwee nthe minor and major leagues.

On the subject of major league aggressiveness in acquiring and controlling players, the minors will let loose plenty of grumbling and growling early in December at Asheville, N. C.

This year the season of the National Association of Baseball league will open on Dec. 7 at Ashville, prior to the meeting of the Major leagues in Chicago.

The minors take the ground that players are becoming so difficult to acquire that the little clubs are entitled to first call on anything. On the same basis, the majors may maintain they are entitled to the pick of players.

Once the minor leagues held that the majors should "lay off" the college players. They still grumble about it but don't make it a big issue because the college players don't amount to much nowadays. Now and then a fine ball player appears in one of the smaller colleges but taking the colleges collectively, there is little to make any minor league owner weep when the major league bosses surround the college star with check books and fountain pens.

Want First Call

The minors would like to have first call on the sand lot players, but they won't get it. The sand lots are the great natural baseball preserve of the United States over which all may shoot alike.

It wouldn't be fair to the sand lotters to enforce restrictions, for they wouldn't get much in the way of salary offers unless the big league could step in and make the buying lively.

Some times the high priced players are sent back to the minors for development. The minors thus get the benefit of their services but they don't get the benefit of an original selling price. The Pacific Coast clubs get a lot of the original selling price because they are clever enough to take the boys green and bring them up. Then they sell them to the idle rich in New York and Pittsburgh for staggering prices. That's what the bushers call being sent down the line.

There is still a notion in the minor leagues that their clubs pay too much for the privilege of developing major league players. But if one minor club is hesitant about taking a long shot at a high priced player, another club will step in and relieve the major club of the necessity of going further. So the minors stand on each other's toes all the time.

Eight Players Out

Only eight players per club have been out on option from the minors to the minors in 1926. The minor clubs insist that there are not enough good players for them, but the trouble with their argument is that it falls back on the premise that the players for the minors are to be loaned to them by the majors. This is bad business inasmuch as the clubs that get out and find players and develop them do a lot better than those clubs whose owners run around the major league spring training camps trying to pick up teams.

There will be some log-rolling at the minors' meeting for the re-election of Kenesaw Mountain Landis as high commissioner of baseball. The minors have no vote in the matter but there are those who think it advisable to put themselves on record for the commissioner as the National league has done. Several of the minor league men say that such a policy will be helpful to baseball and others assert it will cause more fireworks because the majors will resent any attempt of the minors to hand them instructions.

Indians Come Out of Cameron Melee With Few Injuries And Confidence Of Victors In Forthcoming Scraps

BY R. O. JONAS

Ludgate's Junior College Indians will enjoy another lull in the conference race the coming week, according to the present schedule, all efforts to bill another conference clash having gone without success. Up to the present writing Ludgate had not succeeded in getting a game of any sort, but several negotiations are under way and a game is expected. On November 19 the Tribe bumps into its hardest opposition when the Aggies from John Tarleton college, a team of almost senior college calibre, will journey here to give the Indians a return game. There is some doubt yet as to the location of the game, the Plowboy coach having made the local team an attractive offer to come there. November 25 will bring the Decatur Baptists to Wichita Falls for the annual Turkey Day clash with that aggregation.

Friday's excellent showing of the Indians against the efficient Cameron Aggie eleven has served to open the eyes of local fans to the fact that Ludgate's light and originally green team can produce some excellent football. The Indians got into their plays with a snap and a skill of execution for the most part that made them look good. Cameron this year claims the best team in the history of that institution, according to reports from that school received here before the game. Incidentally it will be interesting to compare the two teams again when the Cameron eleven meets the powerful Cordell aggregation next week, a victory for Cameron being so rare as to make it a cause for Aggie celebration. The Indian strength Friday merited at least three touchdowns instead of the one actually recorded, two scores going up in bad breaks on the very shadows of the goal and a third possible score going up in a bad kick for field goal when a good end run might have registered for the Tribe.

Passing Breaks Down

The one surprising failure of the Indian attack against the Aggies Friday was the complete breakdown of the passing game on which everybody expected the team to bank for its gains. There is no doubt that if the passing game had worked just half as well as in some previous games, the score would have been an over-whelming triumph for the Maroon and Gold, since in former games the ground gained by passes exceeded that gained by other means. If the team can now re-establish itself in the air, the combination of the aerial game and the surprising strength of the line plunging attack developed lately together should make the offensive of the teeam come up more to the caliber of the line play and should make it able to give the stronger conference elevens of the Baptists and the Plowboys something to think about. Most observers thus far give the Wichita teams, on account of its lightness and relative greenness, very little chance against either of the two remaining conference opponents. Steve's fighting crew is striving hard to develop the possibility of discounting such predictions. There will be plenty of opportunity for revenge, too, in these two contests as both teams put it over last year's first conference entry from the Indian camp by large margins.

Rugeley Goes Well

Frank Rugeley, playing his first game for the college Friday, after less than a week's actual steady practice, showed up well. He outclassed all of the other competing backs who have had their practice since the opening of school, coming next to Captain Stephenson in ball carrying. Just a little development along this line should make him a real performer who will help much to carry the standards of the Tribe in the last few games. His passing, while good for distance, however, was too slow and easy to intercept. An unfortunate fumble made things look bad for him at first, but his fine plunging off tackle made up for all other flaws.

Another bright light in the backfield proved to be Olin Harvey, who handled his diminutive form with the effectiveness of a larger man, spilling a number of Aggie runners who were just about out into the open when he took a shot at them. At the beginning of the season, on account of his lightness and the fact that he had never played football before this year, Harvey was not counted on much, though his speed made sidelines sometimes take notice. His wonderful defensive battle against the Aggies leaves no doubt as to his worth to the team.

Patterson a Power

Patterson, in the pivot position, not only passed accurately but, aside from handling the signal calling job for his team, played a bang-up defensive game. A difficult fumble covering of his served to stop a threatening Aggie drive, and on a number of occasions he broke through to spill the Aggie backs before they got started. Burks, too, took care of all the line holding in his territory and had time left over to get into many needed tackles. Bland and Thompson were two big reasons for the good all-round line play of the team, both figuring in crucial turning points of the hard-fought battle. Ford again made good use of his speed while in the game, despite a handicap from a leg injury which has been troubling him. Big boy Ricks also showed that he had regained his form after being bothered somewhat with a lame leg. Boyd took care of his guard in a fashion that outdid his small stature and left no doubt that he deserved first call at the position. Gilchrist, Scoggin, Trevathan, McConnell and Keller rounded out a rather smooth-running machine for the first home engagement of the Maroons.

The Tribe survived the Cameron melee without any serious hurts and will be ready and rearing for more competition this week-end if Ludgate can find some to schedule.

SMU MUSTANGS TROUNCE OWLS

Dallas Team Wins Easily Over Rice, Final Score 20 to 0

HOUSTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Ray Morrison's Southern Methodist University Mustangs tallied a trio of touchdowns at Rice field Saturday afternoon and turned back the Owls in a conference tilt 20 to 0.

Although the score shows a victory for the Mustangs by many points, it was far from a runaway. The Owls, fighting as never before this season, gave the conference leading team a tough battle. The half ended with S. M. U. carrying a six-point lead, but fickle fortune alone accounted for that. Two bad breaks cost the Owls' chances to score. In the period as marching through the Mustang line, the Owls lost the ball on the eight-yard line when Comstock fumbled.

And in the second quarter with the ball on the one-foot line and two attempts to put it over, the pistol sounded, telling the teams the first half was over.

Passing gave the Mustangs their first tally. Sortemeglia gathered in a pass in mid-field and raced to Rice's 30-yard line. From that point the Pony backs drifted through the line for the first downs and then Hooks twisted his way around left end for the score. Goal was missed. With the start of the third period the Mustangs marched to another score and in the closing period of play the Dallas aggregation counted again.

FAIR FEMS GO IN FOR TRACK

Junior College Girls Plan to Invade Field of Athletics

Whether the desire to run around the campus every day in a dog trot will emanate from their natural pride in "perfectly adorable little track suits, just like Bebe Daniels wore in the Campus Flirt, and all in maroon and gold, too," or their conscientious feelings towards regular training sometime in the near future when some 30 members of the Hiking club, athletic organization for Junior college girls, will begin conditioning for a real track meet to be held in the spring. Running around the block several times may lose its appeal to a few after the novelty wears off, but it is expected that a large percentage of the girls will continue training until the meet next spring.

Miss Olinger to Coach.

Miss Davida Olinger, sponsor of the club, will serve as the coach and points towards the coveted "W" offered to the most athletic members will be awarded to those who make the varsity team. Events probably will consist of short dashes, relay races, broad and high jumps, and possibly the javelin throw. Either archery or rifle sharpshooting may be taken up later in the year.

A "telegraphic meet" is the plan advocated by the club, or one in which neither of the teams participating leave their own schools, but hold the events in their own schools and telegraph time records and results to each other.

Many Would Win.

TY'S FUTURE A MATTER OF SOME DOUBT

Georgia Peach, Retiring From Baseball, Still Loves Game

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6.—What will Ty Cobb do now? Can the famous Tyrus, called by many the greatest ball player who ever lived, quit baseball after having not only played but lived the game since he was a little shaver of six years in his home town, Royston, Ga.?

Every baseball fan in America has probably asked these questions in the last few days since announcement of Cobb's resignation as manager of the Detroit Tigers, after 22 years in baseball.

Cobb's wife hopes he will be able to stay at home and away from the lure of the baseball diamond, but admits it looks like a big task. Ty himself says he wants to quit while he still stands out as a star in the fans estimation. His mother thinks it will be hard for him to live without baseball.

Give Their Views.

"Ty and Mrs. Cobb gave their views when they stopped here on their way to Augusta after the Detroit manager had announced his resignation.

"Ty has been under a severe physical and nervous strain for something like 22 years," said Mrs. Cobb. "He has been away from his home and his family and we certainly are glad to have him back. I just hope he rests up and doesn't play baseball again for a long time. Whether he can settle down to ordinary business after all the excitement of managing a big league baseball club is a problem."

Cobb answered questions this way: "I'm 40 years old and that's too young for a man to retire permanently. I'm not trained for any business but baseball and when the time comes to plan the rest of my life it will be only natural for my thoughts to turn to baseball, but in an investing capacity, I am through as a player, not because I can't still hold my own, but because I want to quit while I still have some degree of ability and some prestige."

Ty's mother, Mrs. W. H. Cobb, of 138 Orme Circle, Atlanta, recalled her son's early fondness for baseball.

"Ty is a born player," she said. "He was always playing when he was a child. In fact, we had a hard time getting him to go to school. He wanted to play all the time. It's hard to see how he can live without baseball. I remember that the first money he earned he spent for a mitt. He couldn't have been more than six years old when a neighbor asked him to take his cow to the pasture and gave Ty some change for doing it. Ty didn't buy candy or ice cream. He knew what he wanted, and he got it—a baseball glove.

Royston Rompers.

"The first team he was on was called the Royston Rompers and he was about 12 years old then. He was such a good player even then that when his father gave him work to do on afternoon when there was a game, the neighbors would hire somebody else in his place to do the job and Ty would slip off to play ball.

"From Royston he went to Augusta and played professional baseball there when he was only 15. Then he went to Anniston and from there to Detroit. If he had never made a cent from baseball, I believe Ty would have played it all his life, he was so crazy about the game."

Rumors that Cobb will buy the franchise of the Atlanta baseball club and actively manage the team next season are denied by him, but the belief persists that this is to be the next step in Ty's career.

Dropkick Wins For Pennsylvania

Two Pennsy Elevens Fight Close Battle For 3-0 Score

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.(AP) A drop kick from the 40-yard line in the first period by Paul Scull gave a victory to Pennsylvania over Penn State college today, 3 to 0. It was a perfect boot, and the 55,000 persons in the stands of Franklin field cheered the play.

State college, with a fighting team that lacked offensive drive carried the ball within one yard of a touchdown in the second only to have Pennsylvania put up one of its old-time stands and take the ball on downs.

GRINNELL WINS

Kansas University Victims In Fast Contest.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 6. (AP) Coach Mike Hyland's Grinnell Pioneers paraded through to an easy 32 to 7 victory here this afternoon in their annual game with the University of Kansas.

The Pioneer team scored almost at will against the Crimson and Blue machine. The playing of Gordon Meeter, fleet footed Pioneer halfback, was a feature of the game. In addition to making a field goal early in the game, Meeter made one of the Pioneer touchdowns.

NEW YORK WINS

Undefeated Gotham Eleven Adds Victory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.(AP)—New York university's undefeated eleven whose powerful attack had scored many touchdowns against six opponents, was held in check today by an equally powerful Carnegie Tech line but the home eleven triumphed, six to nothing, by virtue of two placement goals by Halfback Kenneth Strong.

Football and Football Squads are Changing as Scholastic Standards Improve, Dean Rider Asserts Here

Football and football squads are changing in these modern twentieth century days. It used to be, not so manay years ago, that journalistic articles usually took for granted the brawn side of the game rather than the brain side. In this period, a period in which still many schools find themselves, there were always a good number of star players who were so far from star students that they needed special concessions to stay in school long enough to finish out a football season.

According to Dean S. H. Rider of the Wichita Falls Junior college, who for a number of years has also been the principal of the senior high school, the football squads of the two institutions under his supervision have made much progress in the direction of better scholarship standards. This year both the Junior college Indians and the high school Coyotes have been troubled far less with scholastic ineligibility than ever before in the memory of school officials.

No Eligibility Troubles.

For a month now there have been no ineligibilities in the college at all. One man first reported ineligible two weeks ago was found to be eligible, a new teacher just having failed to report on him. In the high school, out of the large squad of nearly 30 men still going out for practice, not a single man was failing in too many subjects to play this week. Throughout this fall there have been fewer high school players failing than ever before.

Such a state of affairs relieves not only the administration of worries but also turns much of the attention of the coach to fields where he should be needed more. School officials here give as a probable explanation of the grade records the fact that both teams have few if any at all of the old type who just came as athletic hangers-on alone. The teams both play as fast football as ever, if not actually headier games than their predecessors; hence there is no justification locally for the claims sometimes heard that the raising of scholastic standing makes the game softer and less interesting.

Same Elsewhere.

The condition here in Wichita Falls simply echoes the many cases which may recently be found in the columns of newspapers and magazines reciting the scholastic achievements of athletes in universities, as for example the noted "Gentleman Jim" Marley, captain of last year's University of Texas eleven, who annexed every scholastic honor available to graduates of his department and who consistently made the hard university honor roll while playing on the varsity team. This year's Texas eleven again boasts several men whose scholarship puts them in the honor roll class.

It all goes to show that the interscholastic and intercollegiate scholarship requirements for athletes have served the useful purpose of stimulating the real aim of institutions of learning without at the same time destroying the possibilities of athletics, as many pessimists predicted when the scholarship wave first struck school athletics about a decade ago.

Not Much Promise of Anything In The Bantamweight Ring This Year

BY SPARROW M'GANN
Special Correspondent of the Record News.
Copyright, 1926, by The Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—While this has been a year of surprises and upsets so far as pugilistic champions are concerned, it is a safe bet that 1926 will see nothing go loose so far as the bantam title is concerned. Charley Rosenberg, the boss of this division intends to see to the year through. Don't grab from this the idea that Rosey has plans all laid for knocking all aspirants cockoo between now the bells are ringing. Not a chance. The way Rosenberg is going to keep his crown on his head is by not giving any one a chance to knock it off.

But in the first week of 1927 he will give fate a chance to topple him from his throne, Bushey Graham being the lucky guy. As for Rosenberg, he has been pretty much of a disappointment as a titleholder. What little fighting he has done has been on the no decision basis and it can be fairly stated he was outpointed in several of them. Out on the coast for instance, his title was saved from California Joe Lynch by the cleverness of the champion's manager in having the bout fought at catch weights.

Wins in March.

Rosey won the title from Eddie Cannonball Martin in March, 1925. The Cannonball was a pretty slick scrapper, but hardly up to the mark of champions which this class has furnished in the past. The battle went the full distance and much to Martin's surprise Rosenberg got the decision and the crown.

What Eddie had looked for was a nice workout and the surprise coupled with the jolting he received caused a mental breakdown. He has never been the same man since.

Martin is now on the outs with his former manager and while you never can tell about the truth of gossip among the cauliflower boys, the fact remains that insiders say that Eddie was double crossed.

After that winning battle, Rosenberg took on Eddie Shea, the wallowing wop from Chicago. Advance dope figured Eddie to have as good as an even money chance with Rosenberg or any other bantam in the ring. Shea, however, took the long count in the fourth frame. The aftermath of that battle sort of soured the fans on Rosenberg and the boxing commission looked into the affair. Nothing was ever turned up, however.

Then Rosey was called upon to defend his title against Bushey Graham and was declared ineligible for not doing so. He seemed to figure he could make as much money outside New York as in the metropolis.

Called Off.

So he went west and did not favorably impress the Pacific coast critics. Then came Jim Mullins, who offered the titleholder a chance to grab $50,000 for his end of a battle with the extremely dangerous Bud Taylor. On the eve of this scrap the chairman of the Illinois boxing commission called the fight off. No one has ever been able to explain why. Some say that the champion's manager held off posting forfeit money until a referee satisfactory to him was chosen.

And so Rosenberg now returns to his home town evidently more than pleased to do battle with Bushey Graham. He ought to be since he has no other place where big money lies.

Rosenberg from first to last has never been considered a rough-and-tough battler by the tin-ears. He was looked upon as a fairly good club fighter who could stand up and give the crowd a run for its money. Harry Segal, his manager, has made some money for his champion, but not as much as could have been made.

Rosey's value after the Graham fight is questionable. If Bushey can make the fight he showed against Chic Suggs it looks as though Charley is due for a fully paid up membership in the club of ex-champions.

GRIP TO WEIGH BEFORE PUBLIC

Baltimore Grappler Makes 145 Pounds at 3 For Yaqui Joe

Charley Grip, the clever Baltimore wrestler, who is in quest of the world's welterweight championship, will weigh in at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in public at the Manitou barber shop, according to Matchmaker A. Ross. Grip meets Yaqui Joe, the Sonora Indian, who says that if he beats the Baltimore athlete in their match Wednesday night he will claim the welter title abandoned by Matty Matsuda. Jack Reynolds, the Indiana welter, bills himself as champion, but the winner of the Grip-Yaqui affair intends to dispute these claims.

Grip has placed $100 forfeit money that he will make 145 pounds Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Many of Joe's most ardent followers who have seen him in action many times and who have watched the clever Grip on his two recent appearances in a Wichita Falls ring are inclined to believe the Indian will go down to defeat. However, several wrestlers express different opinion, among these being Eddie Pope, middleweight, who has met both men on the mat. Pope says the Indian's speed will beat Grip, who though quite sensational, works in a more or less slow and methodical manner.

Joe Kopecky, the Russian middleweight, tackles Charley Miller, Pacific coast middle champ, in a preliminary match Wednesday. Both scraps are to be finish affairs, says Ross. The program is to be held in the Majestic theatre.

Cotton pickers to the number of 5,000 are now needed in the county and efforts are being made to secure them.

Frogs Rest From Labor With Tech

T. C. U. Football Team Now Preparing or Game With Aggies

FORT WORTH, Nov. 6 .(AP)—Texas Christian university's football players were back in their home camp today with two days' rest ahead of them, following their hectic tie, 13-13, with A. and M. college at College Station yesterday.

Beginning Monday, however, the Horned Frogs will begin training for the game next Saturday at Fayetteville, Ark., with the State University Razorbacks. It will be the Razorbacks first and only game with a Southwest conference team, but other games on their schedule are allowed to count in the conference standing.

The comparative showing of Joel Hunt, Aggie quarterback, and Clark, T. C. U. general in yesterday's game is causing renewed speculation here as to who deserves to be all-conference quarterback. Flem Hall in the Star Telegram, notes that with less than five minutes to play, and the Aggies leading by three points, Hunt refused to punt on the fourth down with three yards to go.

BAYLOR BEARS PUT LONGHORNS OUT 10-7 LOSS

Powerful Texas Drive Not Enough to Defeat Waco Eleven

WACO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Before a crowd of 15,000 fans, Baylor university continued to ride the crest of victory here this afternoon when Coach Morely Jennings' warriors defeated the powerful proteges of "Doc" Stewart from Texas university to the tune of 10 to 7, on the Cotton Palace gridiron.

This victory, coupled with the one of S. M. U. over Rice and L. S. U. over Arkansas, placed Baylor in front rank of Southwestern conference contenders and made the Mustang-Bruin clash at Dallas next Saturday stand out as probably the deciding game of the season.

Led by the brilliant broken field running and generalship of little Wier Washam, the accurate toe of Captain Morris and the fighting offensive work of Sam Coates at end in smearing plays and receiving passes, the gold and green warriors completely outplayed the visitors almost the entire game.

Captain Mack Saxon, playing one of the most brilliant games of his career on both offense and defense, was the outstanding hero in the Steer's downfall. It was his backing up of the line which time and again prevented Baylor backfield men from getting away after they had broken the forward wall and it was his arms which reached into the air to receive a pass from Rufus King on the Baylor two-yard line after which he scrambled across the goal line for the Longhorn's only score. The first score of the game came in the second quarter when Morris booted a field goal. This was followed in the same quarter with a steady march down the field from a point well within the Baylor territory which netted a touchdown without losing the ball when Abe Kelly shot a pass to Coates. Texas, score came in the fourth period.

Baylor	Line-Up. Pos.	Texas

Weed	Right Guard	Cowley
Taylor	Right Tackle	Moore
Slade	Right End	Higgins
Fall	Quarterback	Saxon
Kelly	Left Half	Allen
Morris	Right Half	Stalliter
Keyes	Fullback	R. King

Score by quarters:

Baylor	0	10	0	0	—10
Texas	0	0	0	7	— 7

Scoring: Baylor, touchdown, Coates, Texas, Saxon. Points after touchdown, Baylor one, (Morris), Texas, one (King.)

Time was important with James V. Allred Saturday afternoon when he started for Stamford to deliver the principal address last night of the annual 17th district American legion convention.

Accordingly he resorted to the air and hopped off from Call field about 4 o'clock. He landed at Stamford an hour and a half later. The plane was piloted by Merrell Brock of the Brock-Browning company.

Allred was introduced last night by R. C. Winters, state commander of the American legion.

TEXAS-BAYLOR PLAY BY PLAY

Baylor Receives.

Captain Morris and Captain Saxon met in the center of the field with Referee Ramp. The toss was made and Captain Morris called the turn. Baylor elected to receive with the wind at their back. Cowley of the Texas team kicked to the Baylor goal line, the ball going across for a touchback. Fall, of the Baylor team refused to catch it. It was Baylor's ball on their own 20-yard line. On a punt formation, Kelly attempted to skirt Texas left end but was thrown for a loss of five yards. On a punt formation with Kelly back, he kicked to midfield with Sam Coates downing Stalliter in his tracks. The Texas team gathered in a huddlen and snapped out of it with King back. He plunged Baylor's right guard for a two-yard gain. On Texas' second play of the game, Captain Saxon made a sensational plunge through Baylor's tackle for eight yards, exhibiting a splendid drive.

R. King attempted Baylor's right side and lost a yard. R. King dropped back and attempted a forward pass, but George Fall intercepted and returned to Baylor's 30-yard line. Fall lost a yard as he attempted Texas left end. On a punt formation with Kelly back, Keyes plunged over right guard for two yards. It was third down and nine yards to go. Kelly kicked poorly for 12 yards out of bounds. It was Texas' ball on Baylor's 45-yard line.

King Is Smeared.

R. King in a line plunge was smeared at the line of scrimmage, by Porter. Rosy Stalliter attempted a wide end run and was thrown for a two-yard loss. R. King attempted a short pass and it was intercepted by Jim Smith on Baylor's 40-yard line. On a punt formation, Abe Kelly passed to Key who caught the ball on his finger tips for a 11-yard gain. Abe Kelly attempted Texas left end and was thrown for a three- yard loss. It was pretty play on the part of the Texas end. On another punt formation with Kelly back he attempted to pass but found none in the open and was thrown for an eight-yard loss. It was third down and 26 yards to go. Kelly punted high to Texas' 2-yard line. On a spread formation with Slover back, he attempted to kick and three Baylor forwards crashed through, Coates blocking the kick with Porter blocking the kick on Texas 27-yard line.

Texas Blocks Pass.

Morris gained two yards at left end. Kelly attempted to pass but a Texas forward broke through to block it. It was Wray who blocked the pass. On regular formation, Fall, on a double pass back of the line crashed through center for six yards, placing the ball on Texas 20-yard line. George Morris dropped back to the 27-yard line to attempt a place kick against the wind. The kick was short but it was a fortunate break for Baylor as it was killed on Texas' one-yard line. The ball was right squarely in front of the goal posts. R. King plunged the right of the Baylor line for 2 yards. King on another plunge got one yard over the Baylor right side. On the third down, Slover dropped back on a punt formation. He punted with the wind at his back to the Texas' 24-yard line. It was Baylor's ball. On a wide end run from formation Kelly finds the Texas line a stonewall once more and lost one yard. Rosey Stalliter knocked down a long pass that looked good for a touchdown. The pass was to Coates.

On third down with Fall back, he ran through the Texas right side for five yards but was unsuccessful in placing the ball in front of the goal post. Morris dropped back to the 27-yard line once more to attempt a field goal, just as the quarter ended. The shot came at an opportune moment for Baylor as it gave the Bears an opportunity to attempt the field goal with the wind with them instead of against them. Baylor had the advantage of the first quarter, outplaying the Texas team, although the Longhorns offered stubborn defense.

Field Goal Fails.

Second Quarter: On the first play Morris attempted a field goal, but it was partially blocked and went across the goal for a touch-back, giving the ball to Texas on their 20-yard line. Mack Saxon, star so far, crashed through the right side of the Baylor line for seven yards. King ploughed over the same spot for a first down on Texas' 39-yard line.

Saxon skirted Baylor's right end carrying the ball out of bounds for a gain of six yards, but was hurt on the play. Saxon seems to be 75 per cent of Texas' offense for the day. Hailey, Bayfor end, went for Slade in an endeavor to stop the attack on the right side of the Baylor line. Stalliter was thrown by Porter for a one-yard loss. Saxon again charged through the right side of the Baylor line for a first down on the 40-yard line. King charged Baylor's right guard, but failed to gain. The Longhorns are concentrating the attack on the right side, seldom attempting the side on which Coates and Porter play. Saxon droped back and attempted to pass, but was tackled for four yards loss. Washam broke through to make the tackle. On a punt formation, with Slover back, he punted high, but poorely against the wind, the ball going about 25 yards, but bouncing back ten yards. It was Baylor's ball on Texas' 45-yard line. On a punt formation with Fall back the Baylor quarterback attempted an end over Texas left end but was stopped at the line of scrimmage.

Cheers Greet Washam.

The appearance of Washam was greeted by a mighty cheer. Keyes went through the left side of the Texas line for three yards. On a punt formation, with Washam back, he charged the right side for two yards. It was fourth down and five yards to go. On a punt formation with Kelly back, he did not punt, but elected to throw the ball across the goal line from near the center of the field. There was no receiver near the ball. It was Texas ball on its own 20-yard line. Saxon thrown himself through the Baylor right line for four yards. Saxon made three more yards also through the Baylor right side. King tried the center of Baylor line, but gained only one yard.

It was fourth down and one yard to go. Slover punted high to Baylor's 36-yard line.

On a punt formation Kelly tried the left side of the Texas line, but again found it irriteible and was thrown for a three-yard loss. On another punt formation Washam dropped back and tried second down Keyes was smeared as he attempted to dive over center. Baylor on Texas 15-yard line. Kelly took the ball and attempted to go through the right side of Texas' line but was stopped. Saxon breaking through to make the tackle. Morris dropped back to the 22-yard line. This time the boot was perfect, the ball sailing squarely between the cross bars and the Bears took the lead 3 to 0. Texas elects to kick. Cowley kicked out of bounds. Cowley kicked again and this time the oval sailed to the 25-yard line from where it was returned to Baylor's 39-yard line. Pass to Kelly, who passed perfectly to Coates for 14 yards. On another punt formation with Washam back, the Baylor quarterback went over Texas' right side for a gain of four yards. Ball on Texas' 44-yard line. On a punt formation with Kelly back, he shot a pass over the center of the line but it was grounded. It was third down and six yards to go. On a punt formation, Washam back, Keyes smashed over Texas' left for five yards.

Just Lacks a Foot.

It lacked about a foot of being first down and the Bears decide to try to make it. Keyes smashed over a yard and first down, placing the ball on Texas' 36-yard line. Kelly hurled a forward pass which sailed through the outstretched arms of Captain Morris, the ball being grounded. On second down Kelly dropped back and passed to Big Sam Coates who received the ball on dead run. Captain Morris kicked goal which gave the Bears a lead of 10 to nothing.

Texas receives. Ball kicked to Texas' 15-yard line. Baylor kicked off to Texas, 15-yard line to Stalliter and while he returned to the 35-yard line the first half ended. Score: Baylor 10, Texas 0.

Third quarter: Second half began with Texas kicking to Baylor. Cowley kicked to Kelly who received the ball on the 15-yard line. At the 25-yard line he was tackled but broke loose and raced t athe Baylor 45-yard line before he was chased out of bounds.

Bear Pass Fails.

On a punt formation, Washam dropped back but Keyes attempted a forward pass over the center of the line. Saxon slapped the pass to the ground. On another punt formation Washam attempted to carry the ball around Texas' right end but he was turned in and failed to gain. Again Saxon stopped the play. Kelly punted high and far to the extreme corner of the Texas field, the ball barely missed going out on the one-yard line but bounded across the line for a touchdown. Texas' ball on its own 20-yard line. Kelly's punt was for 66 yards.

Saxon again drove through Baylor left side for four yards. Saxon tried it again and was stopped without a gain. King tried Baylor right side and got a yard. Ollie went in to end position in place of Ox Higgins. McKennon, of Texas, dropped back and received a pass from center. He attempted to run and was thrown for a 19-yard loss, ball going to Baylor on Texas' 16-yard line. Rhodes went in for McKennon. Washam gained three yards on Texas' left side. Captain Morris went through Texas to the seven-yard line. On the next play, Keyes was thrown without a gain. On fourth down and one yard to go the Bears attempted to make it. Kelly attempted to skirt right end and Rhodes crashed through and threw Kelly for a four-yard loss. Ball went to Texas. King gained one yard through center. PRINCETON IN 12-0 VICTORY OVER HARVARD

First of Big Three Scalps Add to Belt Of Tiger Team

HARVARD STADIUM, CAMBRIGE, Mass., Nov. 6. (AP)—Princeton started its defense of the "Big Three" football championship today by conquering Harvard, 12 to 0, in a hard fought game before a crowd of 55,000.

Harvard made a gallant effort to stem the Tiger tide. The Crimson succeeded only in preventing a repetition of the rout of the past two years. Princeton's goal line was seldom threatened, although loose handling of the ball gave Harvard several scoring opportunities, especially in the first period.

Third Triumph

The Tigers gained their third straight triumph over Harvard with unexpected decisiveness and did it by profiting from the Crimson's misplays.

Princeton scored a touchdown and safety in the second period and a field goal in the final quarter with an attack that eclipsed any defense the Cambridge eleven had to offer. But the way for each score was paved by Harvard errors in a game that was marked by loose and rough playing.

The Tigers capitalized their first break early in the second quarter when Lawler, an end, recovered a fumbled punt by Putnam on Harvard's 27-yard line. Dan Calkins' Tiger quarterback, took the ball over on a 13-yard end run after Bridges and Prendergast had plunged through the line for a series of short gains.

Tigers Add Two

A safety, on which Captain goal line by Moeser after recovering a bad pass from center, added Coady was tackled behind his own two points to the Tiger total. A drop kick from the 23-yard line in the final quarter by Jake Slagle, Princeton's bright backfield star, completed the Tiger scoring.

Tiger boosters staged a wild demonstration after the victory. Tearing down the Crimson goal posts in spite of the efforts of squads of uniformed police to protect them. The uprights quickly tumbled under the charge of the crowd of enthusiasts and the police resistance was beaten back.

DEMPSEY WILL TRY COMEBACK

Former Champion to Fight Winner of Match With Perrson

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Jack Dempsey will return to the ring this winter, probably against the winner of the match between Paul Berlenbach, former light heavyweight champion, and Harry Persson, Swedish heavyweight, Tex Rickard expects.

Returning from Chicago, where he plans to erect another "garden" which will accommodate 200,000, Rickard discounted rumors that a rival promoter would feature Dempsey in his comeback fight. He said the former champion was pledged to box only under his own direction and that he had signed Persson for the rest of the season.

Middies Add To Victory Total

Navy Eleven Keeps String Of Wins to Remain Undefeated

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6.(AP) Navy's undefeated eleven climbed another rung in the 1926 championship ladder when its juggernaught attack crushed West Virginia Wesleyan 53 to 7 here today. Wesleyan's only score was made in the last minutes of play the result of a farntic overhead offensive.

The Miners' line was too weak to withstand Navy's powerful plunges and after it was pierced for two touchdowns in the opening quarter, substitutions became plentiful.

Nine touchdowns were pushed across the Wesleyan goal before the finish. Navy's third team which took over the reins in the final quarter scored two touchdowns but weakened against Wesleyan's overhead attack.

Yale Seconds Go Down In Drive

Eli Holds Out First String Men and Maryland Cops Contest

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6. (AP)—Maryland scored its first victory over a Yale team in the brief history of their gridiron rivalry today, 15 to 0.

Tumbling Tad Jones' second string playing helter-skelter with a brilliant running and passing attack, the Maryland eleven administered to the battered Eli forces their third defeat in successive weeks. The blue warriors out-generalled and out-rushed, made a belated attempt to turn the tide in the final quarter after Foote, McConigle and Ordway had been rushed into the lineup. But the Yale offensive lacked decisiveness and Maryland easily broke up a desperate aerial drive by which the northern team hoped to avert a shutout.

While Yale supporters took comfort in the fact that their first string men were withheld for the Princeton struggle next Saturday, the victory of the supposedly weak Maryland team nevertheless was accepted as one of the season's outstanding surprises.

Boilermakers Shoved Right Out of Race After Pennant

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 6. (AP) Northwestern's purple Wild Cats smothered Puddue's hope for a top standing in the western conference today, defeating the Boiler Makers 22 to 0. Greater speed in the backfield coupled with fine forward passing by Captain "Moon" Baker of the home team were the main factors in the decisive result. Against these Purdue offered a stubborn fight and although they had no chance to win, kept up a late game bombardment of forward passes that several times threatened to result in a touchdown. The Purdue spirit was most manifest in the second half when three times they took the ball on downs inside their five-yard line. One of these last

Citation by Publication
THE STATE OF TEXAS
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon D. C. Carpenter by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day thereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in December A. D. 1926, the same being the 6th day of December A. D. 1926. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 16th day of September A. D. 1926, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 18896-B wherein Jno. F. Weyand is plaintiff and D. C. Carpenter is defendant and said petition alleging that heretofore on the 24th day of April 1917, Edgar E. Harding and Lena Harding executed and delivered to A. J. Ilseng, W. L. Mann and N. A. Dodge an oil and gas lease on the following described lands towit: The south 28 acres of the north 56 acres of two 100-acre tracts out of the Oscar Farrish survey in Wichita county, Texas, which said 200-acre tract or tracts are described by metes and bounds as follows: Beginning at a point in the E. B. line of said Oscar Farrish survey 332.8 vrs north from the southeast corner of said survey, thence north with the said E. B. line 1176.8 vrs to southeast corner of O. L. Clark 60-acre tract thence west with the S. B. line of the said O. L. Clark 60-acre tract 959.6 vrs to a stake for corner thence south on a line parallel with the E. B. line of said Farrish survey 1176.8 vrs to a stake for corner thence east 959.6 vrs to the place of beginning. That plaintiff is the owner of said leasehold estate and the defendant claims some kind of an interest in and to same as is shown by his assignment recorded in the deed records of Wichita county, Texas, in Vol. 185, page 354. That the defendant failed and refused to perform his part of said assignment contract; that same is a cloud on plaintiffs title. Plaintiff prays the court for cancellation of said assignment and for the removal of the cloud from his title.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 16 day of September A. D. 1926.

TRADING VERY LIGHT; PRICES RANGE CLOSE

Government's New Cotton Estimate Due Out On Monday

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Trading in the cotton market today was attributed largely to further evening up of commitments in preparation for next Monday's government report. Prices moved within a narrow range. January contracts sold off from 12.34 to 12.29 and closed at 12.32, the general market closing barely steady and net five points lower to one point higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of two points to an advance of one point under southern selling and commission house liquidation with probably some local selling encouraged by relatively easy Liverpool cables.

There seemed to be good demand from the trade and investors on the basis of 12.75 for May and $13.00 for July, which absorbed early offerings. This early buying was gradually filled up, however, and the market sagged off under further pre-bureau liquidation during the forenoon. December declined to 12.81, while May worked off to 12.75, net declines of about three to five points but covering continued and last prices showed rallies of a few points from the lowest. Local brokers said they saw nothing in the character of the trading or the action of prices to suggest any change of sentiment as to the probable showing of next Monday's government report which will give the crop indication as of November 1, and the amount of cotton ginned for the season up to date.

Private reports recently published here have shown crop conditions ranging from 17,300,000 to 18,324,000 bales, and averaging in the neighborhood of 17,669,000.

Private cables said hedge selling had been absorbed by trade calling in Liverpool and reiterated reports of an improved demand for cotton goods.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week, according to local figures, was 169,936 bales against 160,629 last year.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE:

NEW YORK—Stocks, firm; Atchinson leads advance in rails.

Bonds, steady; French and Belgian issues firm.

Foreign exchanges, irregular; sterling and lira react.

Cotton, steady; evening up for government report.

Sugar, steady; Cuban buying.

Coffee, firm; good Brazilian market.

CHICAGO—Wheat, barely steady, liquidation.

Corn, easy; prospects large receipts.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.(AP)—Price movement in today's stock market lacked uniformity with opposing speculative forces still struggling for control. Trading was almost entirely professional in character despite the efforts of "bull" pools to attract favor by bidding up special stocks and the attempts of bears to force general liquidation by attacking motors and supposedly vulnerable specialties.

Two overnight developments particularly encouraging to bullish forces were the announcement that President Coolidge favored a rebate on 1925 income taxes and the publication of a compilation of railroad earnings for the first nine months indicating that class one carriers would break all records for both gross and net this year. Offsetting these were the surprisingly small reduction in stock exchange member loans last month of slightly more than $27,000,000 compared with the decrease of over $210,000,000 in federal reserve totals during the same period and the drop of 6 per cent in October bank clearings compared with the same month last year. U. S. Steel common received strong buying support in anticipation of an unusually favorable tonnage report next Wednesday closing fractionally higher at 144¼. On the other hand, General Motors, which has frequently shared market leadership with steel was hammered down over two points to around 150 because of the uncertainty regarding dividend action at the next Thursday's meeting.

The brisk demand for coppers reflected the improved statistical position of the industry and the prospect of higher dividends by a few companies before the end of the year. Kennecott, Greene Cananea, Nevada and Ray touched new high levels for the year.

Speculative enthusiasm for the rails was dampened somewhat by unconfirmed reports of another change in "Nickel Plate" merger plans involving the substitution of the Chesapeake and Ohio for the "Nickel Plate" as the parent company. Van Sweringen issues lost ground on the report. Good gains were recorded by Atchison, Wabash and Chicago and Northwestern.

In the foreign exchange market demand sterling improved moderately by advancing to $4.84⅝ and French francs were firm around 2.39 cents. Italian lire sold off about five points to just below 4¼ cents and Norwegian krone dropped ten points to 24.92 cents. Japanese yen touched 49 2-16 cents, the highest rate since the earthquake in 1922.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.(AP)—The cotton market was quiet today, being influenced mainly by the impending government report due Monday, and price fluctuations showed a very narrow range. The market opened two to three points down but soon rallied five points on moderate trade buying. Later prices eased off seven to eight points from the highs on some final liquidation and in advance of the bureau but in the late trading rallied practically to the early highs on short covering, closing steady at net gains of one point on December and January and net losses of one to two points on later positions.

Liverpool came in lower than due and as a result first trades here showed losses of two to three points. Prices soon rallied, however, on moderate trade buying, December advancing to 12.53, January to 12.38 and March to 12.56, or two to three points above yesterday's close.

Prices soon reacted again on moderate pre-bureau liquidation and December finally traded down to 12.36, January to 12.39 and March to 12.48, or five to six points under the previous close. In the final trading prices rallied again, recovering to the highs on the near positions. Exports for the day totaled 6,470 bales.

STOCK-A-DAY

INTERCONTINENTAL RUBBER CO. 5 3-4 YEAR RECORD

The Intercontinental Rubber company was formed to produce rubber from the guayule plant which grows in Mexico. The rubber is extracted by a crushing and flotation process and the product differs from plantation rubber in that it contains more resin. A process for the extraction of the resin, allowing guayule to compete with plantation rubber, has been perfected.

In 1917 the company turned to production of plantation rubber, leasing 22,000 acres in Sumatra. The company was re-organized in 1925 and has several subsidiaries.

INTERCONTINENTAL RUBBER CO

It owns 4 factories in Mexico, which, in 1925, produced 8,100,000 pounds of guayule rubber. The Sumatra plantation yielded 300,000 pounds and when trees mature, the output there is expected to be 2,000,000 pounds annually. The company also has plantations in Arizona and California.

There is no funded debt, a $580,600 issue of gold notes was called for payment April 1, 1926. Capital stock outstanding consists of 603,824 shares of no par common. Net income from the business in 1925 amounted to $925,326 as compared with $91,698 in 1924 and $58,515 in 1923. For the first six months of this year, operating income was $905,307 and after taxes, depreciation and expenses net income was $612,067 or at the rate of $1.03 a share. As of June 30, 1926, current assets were $3,243,645, current liabilities $274,762 and net working capital $2,968,883.

The old company paid dividends on the old preferred shares at varying rates between 1908 and 1913 and distributed 1 per cent on the old common in 1910 and 3 per cent in 1911. On the stock of the re-organized company an initial dividend of $1 a share was paid, May 15, 1926.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.(AP)—Nervousness over Argentine crop conditions led to higher prices for wheat much of the time today but corn market weakness operated later as an offset. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c lower, corn ⅝ to ⅞c down, oats ¼ to ⅜c off, and provisions varying from 17c decline to 25c advance.

In the corn market December delivery went to around nine cents a bushel under May, the widest difference in years. Oats sympathized with corn.

Most deliveries of provisions was responsive to corn weakness.

Golden Hour "Christmas Tree" Is Held For Veteran Pastors Here

Following a custom adopted 15 years ago in the North Texas Methodist conference, Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, now presiding elder of the Dallas district, Saturday afternoon conducted the Golden Hour or "Christmas Tree" for the superannuate ministers of the conference. He presented each of the 30 representatives a gift of $5 and sent the same amount to a number of superannuated ministers who were unable to come. Rev. W. A. Edwards of Dallas, 92, was present, and is the oldest man in the conference to be represented. Uncle Johnnie Reynolds of Sherman, 94, was ill and unable to come, but he was remembered at the Golden Hour.

A message of encouragement was given to the aged ministers by Dr. Knickerbocker who talked on "Immortality," basing his talk on incidents and illustrations seen on his travels. His message was also in keeping with the song, "Can't You Hear the Bells Ringing," sung by Uncle Billy Lewis, pensioned engineer of the Katy railroad, who throttled one of the first Katy engines into Texas.

The Golden Hour was organized by Dr. Knickerbocker 15 years ago. He also founded and organized the Old Preachers Helping club whereby the sum of $500 is ready for each pastor when he is retired from service. When he was pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, he also raised a $5,000 endowment fund for the old ministers, and the district of which he is now presiding elder was one of the first three of the church to rais its quota for the fund the church is rasing for old ministers.

CLERK'S ROOMS YIELD LIQUOR

Chicago Offices are Raided And Whiskey Taken From Lockers

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Just as 300 employes of the Cook county clerk were locking their desks in the city hall building at noon today a dozen federal prohibition agents entered the offices, found 12 pints of whiskey in the lockers and arrested three employes.

The liquor was found in the lockers of Anthony McVady and George Hefferkamp, clerks in the office, and William Deshow, a clerk for the board of local improvements. Federal Agent Dan Bacarelli said he had purchased liquor from all three men and declared the government had evidence that the three were purveying liquor to fellow employes.

The agents went through every locker in the big room where the employes work and announced that a search of every room in the county clerk's offices would ensue. Girl employes climbed on lockers to watch the search and agents barred the doors, refusing egress to any employe until the quest was completed.

Robert M. Sweitzer, county clerk, confined himself in his private office and declined to make any comment on the discoveries.

EDUCATION AN AID TO WIDER VIEW, HE SAYS

Dr. Lee of Dallas Tells University Club of Schooling Need

Education gives a person the ability to see the other fellow's point of view. Unless we get that point of view within the next 25 years there will be another war that will make the World war seem liko a family row," Dr. Humphrey Lee, pastor of Highland Park Methodist church, Dallas, said in an address on "The Value of Education," at the regular meeting of the University club at noon Saturday at the Kemp.

"People today have doubts of the real value of a technical education. There is a large group of intelligent people who believe in the 'filling station' idea of a university education. We do run our automobiles to the filling stations, all kinds of cars, and expect the hose to be turned on. So it is that all kinds of persons are rushed to college and the hose of education turned on, and there are complaints of short measure, of course there are different size tanks. So long as we try to raise the young hopefuls up to fill him up for the journey, the gas supply gives out and we have to replenish it,' 'Dr. Lee said.

Two Divisions.

Taking up the reading done by college people, he divided them into two groups: "There is one little group that reads an interesting magazine of which the sole sum and substance is to tell how ignorant and foolish the other people really are.

"The other group is the one that reads the popular stuff found on the news stands," and the speaker named a few of the magazines and stories in soft backs and hard.

"It is embarraassing to speak with the Europeans. They speak better English than we do, and several languages, although we have to admit they have to have the languages, but we don't know anything except about America. A man in Zurich, Switzerland, told me last summer more about the religion of our country than I ever knew before. A man in London told me more of economic conditions that I had been able to find out here."

Two More Classes.

Of the two classes of Americans that travel abroad, the speaker divided them also into two classes. One the persons who learn of conditions of the country, and expect to return home and try to remedy the situation; the aother is the class that says, "How dumb they are."

"Education gives a person the ability to see the other fellow's view point."

"I believe in the American college. I don't believe America is going to the dogs, but I hope we have a wider and saner interest in the real welfare of the country in which we live."

Dr. Lee was introduced by Rev. Frank M. Richardson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district.

Music was furnished by Herbert Crosslin, local violin student, with Mrs. E. J. DeMontel playing the piano accompaniment. Mrs. W. L. Underwood sang two numbers, "Sunbeams," and "In an Old Fashioned Town."

Why My Teeth Glisten

By Edna Wallace Hopper.

Countless women ask me how I got my pretty teeth. I tell them simply what experts told me. They told me to use Quindent.

Quindent, as the name implies, is five tooth pastes in one. It contains 16 ingredients. Some 50 experts collaborated in its development. It contains antacids, anticeptics, cleansers and polishers, iodides and deodorants. It is intended to supply, in one application, all that the teeth require.

They tell me that Quindent, developed by Quindent Laboratories, is the utmost in a tooth paste. And I believe it is. Certainly it has brought to me a beauty that I prize.

The makers supply me with samples, and I shall gladly mail a ten-day tube to anyone who asks. Please get that sample. I don't believe you will ever find a tooth paste to compare.

If You Would Have Friends

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

WE were discussing the remarkable hold which a certain popular orator exercises over his audiences.

"I'll give you the secret of it," one man said. "I have known him for many years, and once he took me into his confidence. He makes a point of reaching the auditorium a few minutes before his lecture is scheduled to begin. Then he shuts himself in a room all alone, and begins to think about that audience. He says to himself: 'Out there in the hall are some of the finest people imaginable—not famous people, but the kind of folks that make the world worth living in, just the same. There are men who have sacrificed in order to give their children a start: there are women who have been angels of mercy in their neighborhoods. There are boys who fought for their country, and girls who will be the mothers of great men.'

"So he goes on, firing his imagination about that audience of commonplace folks," my friend continued, "until when he finally steps out before them, his face fairly beams with good will and affection. And his hearers, catching the warmth of his regard, simply can't help responding to it."

I thought of that incident a year ago when I visited a factory which was presided over by a very shrewd and able man. As I walked with him through the hall to the door of his private office, we passed at least six of his employees. He did not speak to one of them, and not one of them spoke to him. It did not surprise me to hear last week that the board of directors had supplanted him with another man. No matter how able a man may be, no matter how keen his judgment, he can't succeed permanently in large enterprises without some warmth in his being, some capacity for loving people and making them love him.

When I was in college, I read a good many muck-raking articles about the strangle-hold which a few men have on the business of this country. Later, in New York, I met some of those very octopuses about whom I had read, and was surprised to find them not merely human but actually gracious. In their offices I encountered all kinds of folks coming with all kinds of requests; and the bigger the octopus, apparently, the more time he wasted every day in doing decent little favors for other people.

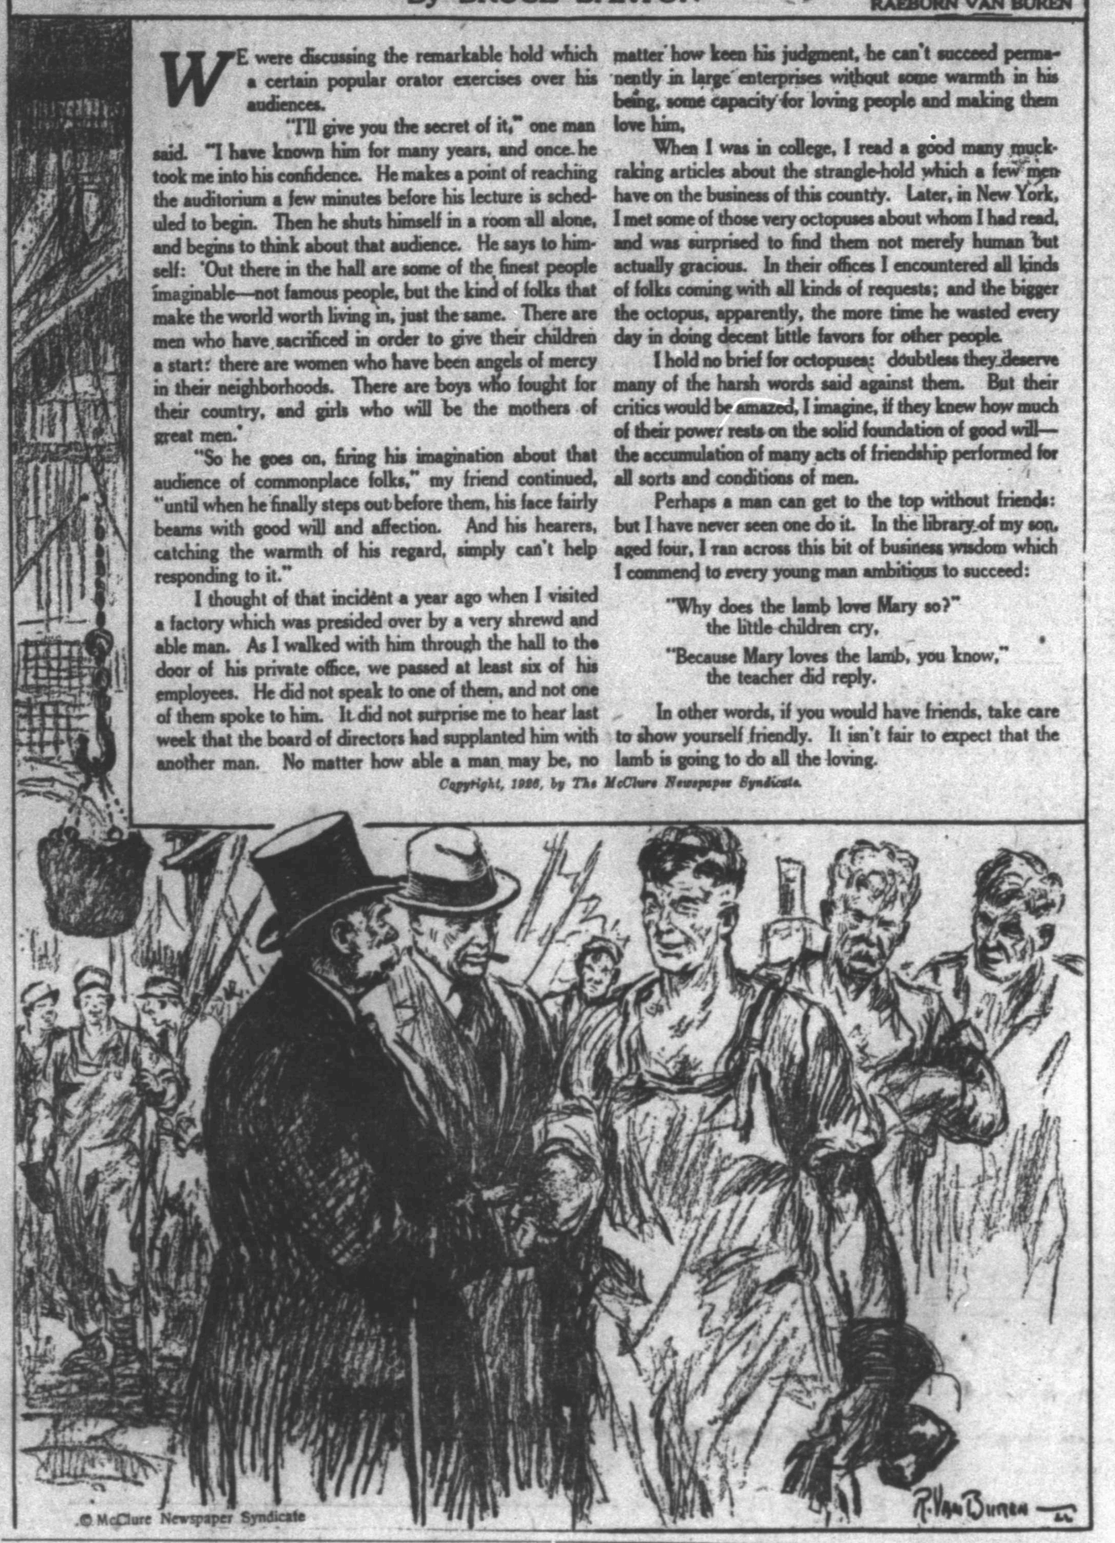

I hold no brief for octopuses: doubtless they deserve many of the harsh words said against them. But their critics would be amazed, I imagine, if they knew how much of their power rests on the solid foundation of good will—the accumulation of many acts of friendship performed for all sorts and conditions of men.

Perhaps a man can get to the top without friends: but I have never seen one do it. In the library of my son, aged four, I ran across this bit of business wisdom which I commend to every young man ambitious to succeed:

"Why does the lamb love Mary so?"
the little children cry,
"Because Mary loves the lamb, you know," the teacher did reply.

In other words, if you would have friends, take care to show yourself friendly. It isn't fair to expect that the lamb is going to do all the loving.

Floral Presbyterian Church Will Erect New $30,000 Building Here

Plans are going forward for the immediate erection of a $30,000 brick church for the congregation of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church at its new property at 1914 Buchanan street. During the last week, the building which was located at 1701 Kemp Boulevard, was moved to the lots recently bought on Buchanan street and is being used as a temporary place of worship, according to the pastor, Rev. E. F. McGaughey, yesterday.

Services will be held at the church now on Buchanan street today with Rev. Paul Stephenson of Owenswood Methodist church, Dallas, a former college mate of the pastor, preaching. At the evening service Rev. J. C. Marshall, pastor of the Whaley Memorial church will speak at 7:30 o'clock.

The mission of the Presbyterian church located in Floral Heights was established there several years ago, and the movement in getting a new building is to make a church of the mission.

"The new church is located one block from the factory car line and two blocks from the Tilden bus line and in an area removed from the other churches of the city. We feel that it will have a definite part in the life of the community. We're in the city for service and we cordially invite the co-operation of all people to help us in our undertaking." the Rev. McGaughey said yesterday.

Ready Money

A checking account offers you two things. First, a convenient and businesslike way of paying bills and obligations. Second, the ability to get your money just when you need it. In other words — Ready Money!

But it isn't such a benefit unless you have enough money there to meet the need that may arise. Build that checking account up to the point where it will do some real good when you need it.

THE CITY NATIONAL BANK

"Enclosed Find Chech"

When you pay by check, you can also use the convenience of sending your payment by mail, since it is a safe way to send money.

Every check is a receipt, too, that you can refer to at all times.

Paying by check is undoubtedly the most convenient way.

We will be glad to open a checking account for you at any time for any amount.

Charles Booth To Lecture Tuesday As Forum Guest

Members of the Woman's Forum are looking forwrd with interest to the appearance Tuesday at the Wichita club of Charles Brandon Booth. Boot his the chief speaker at the state federation of women's clubs convening in Dallas next week. Mrs. J. U. Fields, state president, in speaking of Mr. Booth being secured for Texas at this time said:

"Charles Brandon Booth is one of the most brilliant speakers on the platform today. He carries a message delivered with a force that captivates his audience. We are fortunate in securing him."

Charles Brandon Booth is the son of the noted social work leaders, Ballington and Maude Ballington Booth, and the grandson of William Booth, the organizer of the Salvation Army of England and America. The cloak of his noted forebearers seems truly to have descended upon the shoulders of Charles Brandon Booth, for we find his carrying on the work of his fathers in a somewhat different, though no less important field. In addition to being the national field secretary of the Big Brother and Big Sister federation, he was for ten years generaly secretary of the prison work department of Mrs. Booth's work. For three years he was exedutive secretary of St. Georges on Stuyvesant square.

Mr. Booth has made a constant study of child problems of both the privileged and unprivileged child. He has addressed half a million high school children the nation over. He has lectured over 600 times in the last thirty months, addressing America's most representative service clubs, women's clubs and filling 200 church pulpits.

His messages are practical, fact-inspiring, common sense, yet thrilling. They have a wide appeal and yet an intimate value to the individual.

The subject of Tuesday afternoon's lecture will be "The Child That No One Understood." Members of the Forum will be admitted upon membership card, either green or yellow. The green membership car of last year is good for all programs in the Forum until December 1.

Mrs. W. B. Patterson is in charge of arrangement. Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mesdames Thomas, R. B. Parker, Frank Kell, Oral Jones and J. L. Jackson.

Among the many delightful affairs given complimentary to Miss Sibyl Kell whose marriage to Wilbur Cahoon is an event announced for Monday evening, none have proven more charming than the luncheon given at the Wichita club Friday at 1 o'clock, with Miss Catherine Moore hostess.

The table presented a bower of beauty with its dainty appointments and centerpiece, an ocean liner embanked in orchid chrysanthemums. The liner was filled with letters from friends to be read on the European wedding trip. Miniature ships formed the place cards, and baskets filled with huge orchid chrysanthemums further enhanced the pretty setting.

A four-course luncheon was served and covers were laid for the family of the bride-elect and a few intimate friends as follows: Miss Kell, Mrs. Frank Kell, Mrs. Joe Kell, Mrs. Orville Bullington, Mrs. John O'Donohoe, Miss Willie Mae Kell; Mesdames Raymond Myers, Joe Huckins, Ray Puckett, John B. Spooks and Black Cats Pass On, But We Have The Thanksgiving Turkey Back To Vie With Big Weddings for Spotlight

DEAR KITTY:

With the passing of the spooks black cats, ghosts and other fantastic, weird personages from the limelight in social affairs, Mr. King Turkey has again come into his own and is beginning to "strut his stuff." Society editors are already writing about his appearance on place cards, favors, and all these little things that fit into the the scheme of luncheon and party decorations. And what a season for these affairs—days sunshiny and nights so flooded with moonlight. You know, Kitty, these bright autumn days make us all want to be gypsies and many will wander from home this week to Dallas where the State Federation of Women's clubs will hold an annual three-day session.

A splendidly balanced program is offered for this convention, on which several nationally known lecturers will appear, and the social features announced bid fair to prove unusually enjoyable.

I KNOW that the maids and younger matrons of the social set will be sorry when the Kell-Cahoon wedding is over, for never was a bride more entertained than Sibyl Kell, and never did any bridal party have any happier times than this one during the ante-nuptial days preceding the wedding which will take place Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kell and will be followed with a reception at the Country club.

Luncheons, showers and bridge parties have been events of every day, with the charming bride-elect the center of every gathering.

Other social affairs of the past week centered around the state annual Methodist conference, when the city was quite well filled with delegates and their wives from all parts of Texas. Among the most delightful affairs given for the women visitors was a tea at the home of Mrs. P. F. Langford on Thursday afternoon when all business cares were forgotten for two hours and the time was devoted to social conversation and becoming better acquainted.

I see that the Fox films has made from the well-known stage thriller "Whispering Wires," a picture crowded with weird and exciting situations with the lightning effect of a love story and the blundering antics of two detectives and a frightened servant. Anita Stewart is featured and Edmund Burns is the lover. A demented inventor, who is responsible for the mysterious whisperings, and a couple of sleuths all help the situations where a telephone with an explosive device in the receiver, a mansion of secreat trap doors and passage ways, trick panels, a cellar with a hidden entrance, and other strange things employed in this play of mystification, kept you sitting on the edge of your chair and clutching whoever happened to be next to you, and I guess the picture will be equally as exciting as the play.

THAT reminds me, I haven't told you that this season's mystery play in New York is "The Ghost Train," which many local visitors have seen there this fall. The action of the play takes place in the waiting room of the station at Clear Vale Junction on a branch line near Rockland, Me., all in one evening, and those who saw it are strong in emphasizing how "The Ghost Train" came thundering through the station, when the people all around shieked so loud that "those present" were more frightened at the audience than they were at the ghosts on the stage.

But I have chatted at length and have not said a word about my favorite subject, the Woman's Forum. So here at last it comes, the first attraction on the general Forum program for the winter, Charles Brandon Booth, son of General Ballington Booth and of Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth who will lecture at the Wichita club Tuesday afternoon on the subject "The Child No One Understands." Mr. Booth is said to be a constant student of the child problems of both privileged and under-privileged children and has lectured over 600 times in the past 30 months, addressing America's most representative service clubs, women's clubs, and filling 200 church pulpits. He is also said to be a man of personality, sincerity and true eloquence and it is expected that his lecture will prove interesting, especially to mothers.

LAST week, two interesting meetings were held by the departments of the Woman's Forum, one by the civic's department when Mrs. Kemp told entertainingly of her trip abroad this summer and the other, the art department when color combinations and good taste in dresses and hats were explained by Miss Fraser of the Junior college and Mrs. Claude Ruffner, and each was demonstrated by living models.

Certainly the brides-elect of the week had cloudless skies, really perfect weather for pre-nuptial affairs as did the convention and all the various activities which have kept us all just about as busy as people can, and the weather has also been fine for two young women who spent the "home-coming" week at universities where they were former students. Nancy Jane Harlin enjoyed several days at Norman, Okla., where she also attended the football game, and Ruth Morrison went further away to see her former schoolmates, spending "home-coming" week in Des Moines, Iowa, at Drake University.

YOU will probably remember a charming visitor here this summer, the mother of Mrs. Milton Katz, from Glasgow, Scotland. After a wonder trip in America where she visited her daughter here and also children in Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Mrs. Katz received a cablegram from her mother that she had adrived safely home, after sailing on the Caledonia from New York October 23.

I think you've had quite enough of brides, conventions and other gossip for this week, so with the promise of plenty more about these important subjects all through the month of November, I end by saying I hope your head will rest as comfortably on your pillow as will the head of—

H. S. Girls Cast Eyes On 'Figure'

"Miss America's" Measurements Being Studied Here By Students

Although the paper on the wall showing the measurements of Miss America is sometimes viewed sadly and despite the fact that certain pleasingly plump young ladies are prone to believe the truth of the "What You Should Weight" tables, there are several screams of delight each day in the girls gym at the high school when measurements of the girls are found to tally with those of the Tulsa maiden.

The 500 girls in high school are being examined by instructors this week. It is hoped that all will have been examined by next week, when interesting statistics will be compiled and comparisons made.

New—Smart—Different

IN THE broad assortments presented here one will quickly note that while every style presents some new features of the approved modes, none of them forgets that it must be practical as well as smart—that it must fit well and wear well — that it's outward beauty must reflect inward goodness.

It is a part of our service to you to avoid the "freaks" that are unpleasantly conspicuous—to select from the many style variations which will meet the critical approval of Wichita Falls' well dressed women.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

November 7, 1925

WURZBACH HOLDS HIS SEAT

HARRY WURZBACH is known to fame as only republican congressman from Texas. He is known to fame as the republican who crossed swords with National Committeeman R. B. Creager. He is known to fame as the republican congressman who whipped all of his enemies in the republican party and compelled them to get in line. He will continue to be known to fame as a republican congressman who has overwhelmed the democrats of the fourteenth district in the three exciting campaign elections.

There are thousands of democrats in the fourteenth district who feel kindly to Wurzbach. First he is a wet. He believes in light wines and beer. Second he has powerful kinsmen who are democrats, but they work and they vote for Wurzbach on election day. Now there will be another republican row over the disposition of the fat places at the Texas pie counter for Wurzbach is said to have the support of the republican congressional leaders but not the ear of President Coolidge.

National leaders of the democratic party were confident that A. D. Rogers would defeat Wurzbach. They did not know the voters of the district. They did not know the customs, voting or otherwise, of thousands of voters who are the constituents of Wurzbach. They just figured that a republican had no right to represent a democratic district and then they let it go at that. Wurzbach has whipped to a frazzle three ambitious democrats in six years. Now who will be the fourth democrat ready to make the sacrifice?

Winter has its drawbacks, but having to empty the pan under the ice box is not one of them.—Canton Daily News.

VIEWS OF A LAWMAKER

STATE SENATOR CHARLES R. FLOYD says the cotton farmers of Texas will never realize profits on their toil until the strong arm of the government steps in and gives the cotton growing industry governmental protection. According to this upper upper house statesman "we regulate by law practically every other line of industry in this country except the farming industry."

Senator Floyd is reminded that the Parrish bill will be introduced perhaps on the opening day of the life of the 40th legislature. It is the soil conservation measure. Its purpose will be to prohibit the planting of cotton on land in Texas for two consecutive years.

This would not only restrict cotton acreage but it would protect the soil, rehabilitate it, according to the backers of the measures in question. All other industries are organized. All other industries know how to restrict production. If the growers of cotton continue to produce more cotton than the mills of the world demand or the buyers continue to produce more cotton than the mills of the world demand or the buyers will consume, how will it be possible to sell all that is produced above the costs of production?

SAPIRO AND THE BANKERS

AARON SPARIO who is the talking Moses of the co-operative world, is making a tour of Texas speaking in cities and towns where cotton growing is the principal occupation of the tillers of the soil and telling the growers of the beauties of co-operative efforts. He does not like the methods of bankers, the big bankers of America, whom he insists are responsible for many of the ills either real or fancied which are said to be the lot of the southern cotton growers.

He does not blame the small bankers. He says they are not responsible as they only do the bidding of the great bankers. Of course he predicts that vast fortunes will be made by the few on account of the slump of the price in cotton, but he is telling the farmers of the state that the rich profits will not fall into the laps of those who produce the raw materials.

Are the bankers responsible for a yield that almost touched 17,000,000 bale mark? Are they responsible for the increase in acreage from 30,000,000 to 49,000,000 in the cotton belt states? Are they responsible for the 9,000,000-acre increase in Texas alone, and this in a single year? Are they responsible for a world crop, the largest in the history of the cotton growing industry?

Are they responsible for the coming of rayon, as a substitute for cotton? Are they responsible for the under consumption of cotton goods by the masses of the people in foreign lands? Are they responsible for the substitution of silk or near silk for cotton garments by the women of the civilized world? Are they responsible for the short skirts? If so, why?

Whenever the cotton growers of the south produce a vast surplus above the consumption demand of the millers of the world and then market it wildly, how will it be possible to prevent a break in price? If the world needs 22,000,000 bales of cotton and the growers produce 26,000,000 bales there must be a carry-over.

There was a carry over in 1925 and there will be a carry over of the crop of 1926. Just now the bankers of the 10 principal cotton growing states are doing their best with the aid of the general government to withhold three or four million bales from the market, to provide for an orderly marketing system, to prevail upon the land owners and the tenants to make a drastic cut in acreage next year.

More than this they are advising the growers to plant food stuffs and feed stuffs, to raise their own bacon and corn and to keep $250,000,000 dollars of their own money at home every year instead of sending it to other states for the food stuff which they could produce themselves in great abundance.

This is the gospel of the man who believes that the cow and the sow and the hen are great dividend makers.

WE'RE GROWING BOLDER

The feeling is growing that the cotton panic was more or less a tempest in a teapot.

No one attempts to deny that a serious condition existed—and yet exists. Twelve-cent cotton and its resulting effects on business conditions in the south is too specific a factor to be laughed at, yet the past few days have brought an increasingly pronounced belief that who ever let out the first alarm used a little more lung power than was necessary.

Business in this section of the state, at least, has not suffered to any appreciable extent as yet. Bankers in Wichita Falls, Electra, Vernon and other sections tell us that "we're all right. This cotton condition has hurt but we think there was more excitement than was justified by actual facts."

The Katy railroad officials of Wichita Falls issued a significant statement the other day. "More freight traffic is moving in and out of Wichita Falls now than at any other Texas point on the Katy lines," they said.

Certainly that is not a dash of cold water on the business outlook. As a matter of fact, the cotton slump no doubt has effected freight movements in Waco, Houston, San Antonio, Galveston and some other points where cotton constitutes a larger percentage of the total freight volume than it does in this city. But if that be the case, it is all the more cause for congratulations locally.

At any rate, things look more rosy and that's something for which to give thanks.

AMARILLO AGAIN.

Some time ago a hazard was offered in these columns as to the respective standing of various Texas cities in point of population a few years hence. Included in the forecast was a statement that Amarillo was destined for a phenominal leap ahead up the Texas civic ladder.

Amarillo, since that time, has done nothing to shake confidence in her future. For example, take a look at building permits for September, final figures on which have just been released.

Houston	$1,741,665
AMARILLO	1,741,665
Fort Worth	1,369,805
Dallas	496,392

The report for this single month, perhaps, is not a fair guage of Amarillo's average building power. But when it nears the million and three-quarter figure, it's pretty good indication some one is in town spending some money for some permanent improvements to serve the needs of a lot of folks in years to come.

Boch Grenadier Swinging In Action . . . . . Wounded Frenchman Walking Back

—I AND GEORGE—

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

As General Sherman once said, War is H——!"

Just exactly what he said, I, being a lady or dead, would not possibly think of writing out in full. But he said it all right. I suppose these soldiers with the rough life they led why they pick up language like that and a person can't hardly blame them if they forget themselves onct in a while and use it where it can be quoted.

Anyways, this well-known remark of his come into my mind this morning when I realized that in this week we would be having Armistice day and that it would be a legal holiday and George, that's my husband, would probably stay home and stick around the house and sow cigar ashes all over everything, and flock newspapers around like the dickens and complain about the lunch and stare the window panes out of countenance and get in my way generally. And I thought well, isn't that just dandy! Here we have a holliday to commemorate peace and look at the war it brings into the average home! And naturally this got me to thinking seriously about the late war.

Honest, when I look back on it, it don't hardly seem possible that such a thing ever really happened! It's kind of a unreal nightmare to pretty near everybody now, I guess.

Jennie Looks Backward.

Why when I remember the terrible news that used to be in the papers, and how everybody went around with their hearts in their mouth, wondering what the next bad news would be, and how we practiced all them economies, cutting down on sugar, eating wartbread, being careful what we spent on clothes and only buying what we really needed, well Hot Bozo! I can hardly believe it.

Why, in them old war-days, a person without a sence of patriotism and of their duty toward their govt., to say nothing of the same towards their neighbors, would not alone of been ostracized they would of been put in jail! The way this man-and-woman's country went to work at work was almost human. The gents learned to grow good gardens, and the ladies learned to can them, not the gents. I mean the stuff from the garden. Dehydrated was a favorite slang word among we girls.

We got our lives pretty well regulated, kept decent hours, worked hard, and were proud of it, instead of ashamed of it. We co-oped in every possible way, and social distinctions was pretty well forgot about. The nobleness and self-sacrifice that was genuinely in the air at that time was something it seems impossible a person could ever forget. And also, it was full of horrors. Why, when I think how I feel when I haf to go to the dentist, and then think of the war—well, I guess anybody will get what I mean! The war may of been glorious and noble, but my land! what a relief when it was all over!

The Horrors of Peace.

Naturally, thinking about the war got me to also thinking about peace. Since the Armistice had got signed, why naturally we have had peace. Of course I am not counting troubles in Turkey or the rumpus in China, or the fights at The Hague, or the Mexican Shebang, or the British strike, I fully realize where them things are merely a normal condition. But when I come to think of some of the other things which have been going on since the Armistice, and that come under the heading of peace, why it got me wondering.

We have had peace, I know that, on account the newspapers have told me so. But how about some of the atrocities that we have had to endure these past few yrs.? In the old days, there used to be a lot of holler about German atrocities. And they may of been true. But there ain't a scrap of doubt about some of the American trocities we have been suffering since the war.

Take bootleggers, for a sample. That's just it—try and take 'em. Ain't it atrocious to think of them ignorant, uneducated birds making gin in their bath tubs every night of the week, except maybe Saturdays, at a cost of a dollar a tub, and retailing it to high-class, refined people like ourselves at five dollars a quart? If that ain't an outrage, I don't know what is. I mean both their making it, and us buying it, and the price, is all a outrage. No wonder they have their high-powered foreign cars, while we flit around in flivvers!

Disarmament at Home.

Then lookit the gunmen, I mean, don't look at them, unless you see them first. When I hear all this talk about disarmament, I often wonder why the heck disarmament, like charity, shouldn't commence at home. I suppose the reason it don't is the same as with charity. You hope to keep your poor relations a secret, but you know darn well your subscription to the local charity will be published in the paper. And it's the same theory, I guess, with disarmament. I lot of dignified old guys si taround a table and talk loud about scrapping battle ships. And they hope that if they talk loud enough, people will read their speeches instead of about holdups, murders, and etc. I do wish that somebody would call a Disarmament Conference of all the Am. gunmen, and try and get them to agree to scrap their gats, knives and jimmies. I might even do this myself. I'm sure I'd have about as much success as the Arms Conference of the War Dept., or whoever got the big one up.

But much as we have been suffering from the above-mentioned horrors of peace, I don't know that the greatest suffering has been caused by them, at that. There are other atrocities which are even more painful, and which the whole, entire nation is suffering from.

More Post-War Tortures.

To commence with, let us take Flappers. Before the war there wasn't no such animal, as far as I ever heard. Unmarried girls was buds, debutantes, or young ladies. And once in a while there was what was known as a Errand Daughter, meaning a daughter who had been on a errand when she was out for no good. But them was the exception, and hushed up about.

However, hush is the one thing nobody has done baout flappers. They have caused more civil and uncivil wars in more homes, given rise to more tiresome nonsense in the newspapers, more bum jokes and useless conversation than any one other post-war atrocity. They appear to constitute a worse form of domestic nature and popular boredom than all the rest of the atrocities put together.

Another horror which the public and the home has suffered a lot from is them wide-bottomed trousers. Why a person walking peaceably along the street should be forced to look at a sight like them, is more than I can tell. What could be more pitiful, more heart-breaking then to see a nice, healthy young man, struggling along the street practically immersed in his pants? It is cruel to hamper a young feller like that, right at the start of his career, and many a one has no doubt been swamped by them bags, tripped up at the start, his young life smothered out.

A Wide-Bottom Casualty.

I heard of one case where a young chap was missing for three days, and when they at last found him, he was slowly starving to death at the bottom of one leg of his pants. They were hanging in the closet and he had accidentally fallen in while searching in the hip-pocket for something, and was unable to find his way out again. As far as this great problem is concerned, I hear that the Navy, which was originally responsible for them bell-bottoms has reformed and are gonner wear gaiters from now on. But after all I'm afraid this won't affect much of a cure, on account they stay on their boats such a lot, and most of our young men won't get the chance to go to sea.

Then when I think of all the hair that has been amputated in this country since the war, it sure makes me shudder. I'll bet if all the shrieks of the women which they have let out at the first clip of the shears could be gathered together in one place, the noise would sound like a regular battle. And the strain of telling the boys from the girls on the bathing-beach, since this holocaust of hair, has been a fearful thing for the nerves of the nation.

The Din of Battle.

Also, before the war, we used to have music. At least we used to have tunes. Also, there was some rythm, some time to it. During the war at least we had good marches that was clean-cut and a person could understand them. But another horror of peace is the kind of jazz we have been living with.

The groans and moans and howls of the average band of today, well, I guess the people of this country must be getting hardened to it, at least it is no longer as common as it was, to see somebody go up and offer the orchestra leader a gun so he could put himself and his companions out of pain. Nowadays the audience in a cabaret or theatre just sits there stolidly talking about their own affairs and lets the orchestra suffer.

When it comes, however, to the pain and fatigue endured throughout this country since the war due to the Charleston, words, although I am a woman, pretty near fail me. When I think of the broken ankles, tattered dresses and reputations, strained ligaments and bank accounts which trying to learn the darned dance has caused, I feel sick.

Kicking the Charleston.

I feel ever sicker when I realize how hopeless it is for I and George and the Jee Bushes and other people of our same generation to ever learn to do it properly. It simply can't be done by anyone over thirty, not as it should. And the extreme cruelty of getting up a dance like that in view of the big no. of people in this country who are over thirty is certainly appalling if that is how you spell it.

As for night-clubs, politics, graft, scandal, auto-speeding, and shows where the girls carry their costumes to the theatres in their vanity cases, well, them atrocities, as well as income-taxes, all might be gone into and bring to light many a grewsome detail of torture and suffering.

But what's the use? The whole point is, was Sherman right? You know what he said war was, but when I think back on the comparatively peaceful, orderly life we led during it, I have my doubts, and I get times when I feel like shouting, "Come on, let's declare another war, so's we can have a little orderly, decent and patriotic living!"

MODISH LONDON

Jewels Prove Popular Style For Evening Wear

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Jewels are being worn in great profusion at all evening affairs in London. The fashionable gems of the moment are emeralds, which are used for bracelets, necklaces and rings. The Duchess of Roxburghe (formerly May Goelet of New York) has had her magnificent emerald chain cut short, and recently appeared with half of it converted into two bracelets.

The Countess of Donnoughmore (formerly Elena Grace of New York) also has a fine set of emeralds. She has had her emerald corsage, which was said to contain the finest collection of these stones in Europe, reset in more modern style in a necklet and rings.

LOSES $5,100

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—A town treasurer who paid town bills out of his own pocket cannot legally be repaid by the municipality, state authorities ruled. In consequence A. N. Gurney, 80-year-old retired treasurer of Plainfield, may not recover $5,100 which he advanced while in office.

Theodore N. Waddell, director of accounts in the state department of corporations and taxation, announced his ruling in the Plainfield case. But he coupled with the announcement that he would not take an activ staend against repayment to "the man who made a good fellow of himself and dipped into his own pocket to pay town bills."

Battalion Takes It Easy—But Comes To Life When Light Not of The Dawn Blots Out Glow of Eastern Stars

CHAPTER IV

Ominous Events Leading up to The Charge at Soissons.

The 1st Battalion lay in Crouttesur-Marne. It drank deep of the golden July weather, and swam noisily in the Marne, which swung a blue and shining loop below the town. The battalion took but little interest in the war, which could be heard growling and muttering intermittently to the north and east. Indeed, the unpleasant Dois-de-Bealleau-Bouresches area was only a few hours march distant, and Chateau-Thierry was just up the river. The guns were loud and continuous in that direction.

But the 2d American Division—Marines and troops of the regular army—had just finished a hitch of some thirty-eight days attacking and holding and attacking again, from Hill 142, on the left, through that ghastly wood which the French called the "Bois de la Brigade de Marine," to Vaux, on the right; and in this battalion, as in the other units of the division, such men as had served were quite willing to think about something else.

July 14 came. "Sort o' Frog Fourth," explained a learned corporal, standing in line for morning chow. But Croutte took on this day no especial joy in the far-off fall of the Bastille.

In the afternoon a Boche came out of a cloud and shot down in flames the fat observation balloon that lived just up the river from Croutte. Certainly there grew to be a feeling in the air.

About one o'clock in the morning of the 15th the Boche dropped nine-inch shells into the town. The battalion was turned out, and stood under arms in the dark while the battalion gas officer sniffed around busily to see if the shells were the gas variety. They were not, but the battalion, after the shelling stopped and the casualties were attended to, observed that in the east a light not of the dawn was putting out the stars. The eastern sky was all aflame with gun-flashes, and a growing thunder shook the still air.

The flies remarked that they were glad to be where all that stuff was lightnin', and after breakfast projected the usual swimming parties. Aquatic sports were then vetoed by regretful platoon commanders, since it appeared that Battalion H. Q. directed the companies to hold themselves in readiness for instant movement to an unspecified place. Thereupon the guns eastward took on a more than professional interest. The civilians looked and listened also. Their faces were anxious. They had heard that noise before. The hot July hours passed the battalion continued to be held in readiness, and got practically no sleep in consequence. There was further shelling and the guns were undoubtedly louder—and nearer.

Breakfast on the 16th was scant, and the cooks held out little encouragement for lunch. Lunch was an hour early and consisted of beans. The shadows were lengthening when the bugle blew, "assembly," and the companies fell in, taking the broad white road that led down the river. At the next town—towns were thick along the Marne from Chateau-Thierry to Meaux—they passed through the other battalions of the 5th Marines, jeeringly at east beside the road.

Beyond them was the 6th Regiment of Marines, arms stacked in the fields by the river. Each battalion took the road in turn, and presently the whole Marine Brigade was swinging down the Marne in the slanting sunlight. Very solid and businesslike the brigade was, keen-faced and gaunt and hard from the great fight behind them, and fit and competent for greater battles yet to come. The companies were under strength, but they had the quality of veterans. They had met the Boche and broken him, and they knew they could do it again. The rumble of the guns was behind them, and the rumor of the leave area still ran strong enough to maintain a slow volubility among the squads. They talked and laughed, but they did not sing. Veterans do not sing a great deal.

It was getting dusk when the 1st Battalion of the 5th, leading, rounded a turn in the road and came upon an endless column of camions, drawn up along the river road as far as one could see. The companies became silent.

"Camions! They rode us to Chatto-Terry on them busses—" "Yeh! an' it was a one-way trip for a hell of a lot of us, too!" "Close up! Close up an' keep to the right of the road."

"Camions! That's a sign they want us bad, somewhere on the line," commented a lean first lieutenant who hiked at the head of the 49th Company. "Walter"— the officer beside him— "I wonder what happened yesterday an' today, with all that shooting." "Don't know—but this Chateau Thierry salient is mighty deep an' narrow, unless the Boche spread himself yesterday. . . . . If we were to break into it, near one of the corners. . . . " "Yes! Well, we're right on the tip of it here—can jump either way—Lord! there's a lot of these conveyances."

Later the Battalion knew what had happened on July 15, when the Boche had made his final cast across the Champagne country toward Rheims and Epernay; and his storm divisions surged to the Marne, and stayed, and lapped around the foot of the gray Mountain of Rheims, and stayed. Just now the battalion cared for none of these things. It had no supper; it faced a crowded trip of uncertain duration, and was assured of various discomforts after that.

Well accustomed to the ways of war, the men growled horribly as they crammed into their appointed chariots, while the officers inexortably loaded the best part of a platoon into each camion, the dusk hiding their grins of sympathy. "Get aboard! Get aboard! Where'll you put yo' pack? Now what the hell do I know about yo' pack—want a special stateroom an' a coon valley, do yuh, yuh—!" The sargeant didn't grin. They swore, and the men swore, and they raged altogether. But, in much less time than it takes to tell about it afterward, the men were loaded on. The officers were skilled and prompt in such matters.

Wizened Annamites from the colonies of France drove the camions. Presently, with clangor and much dust, they started their engines, and the camion train jolted off down the river road.

They left the river, and by the testimony of the stars it seemed to the lieutenants of the 49th that they were hurrying north. Alflares, signal-lights, gun-flashes from hidden batteries; the route paralleled the line. The lieutenant visualized his map; 'Followin' the salient around—to the north—the north—Soissons-way, or Hontdidier . . . . The Boche took Soissons. . . "

Quiet French villags along the road, stone houses like gray ghasts under the pale moon, and all lights hooded against Boche planes Long, empty stretches of road. Shadowy columns of French infantry, overtaken and passed. Horse-drawn batteries of 75s on the move. Swift staff cars that dashed by, hooting. Then, long files of horsemen, cloaked and helmeted, with a ghostly glint of laceheads over them—French cavalry. Presently, dawn, with low clouds piling up in the rosy sky.

It was mid-forenoon when the train stopped, and the battalion platoon commanders, report. . . . Keep fifty yards' distance between platoons. . . . Squads right . . . March!" and the companies moved off stiffly, on empty stomachs. The little dark Annamites watched the files pass with incurious eyes. They had taken many men up to battle.

Company by company, the first battalion passed on, and behind them the other battalions of the fifth marines took the road and, after them, the sixth. "None of the wagons, or the galleys—don't see the machine-gun outfits, either," observed the lieutenant of the forty-ninth company, looking back from the crest of the first low hill. Here the battalion halted, having marched for half an hour, to tighten slings and settle equipment for the real business of hiking. "They may get up tonight, chow and all—wonder how far we came, an' where we're goin.' No, sergeant— can't send for water here—my canteen's empty, too. All I know about it is that we seem to be in a hurry."

The battalion moved off again, and the major up forward set a pace all disproportionate to his short legs. When the first halt came, the usual ten-minute rest out of the hour was cut to five. "Aw, hell! forced march!" "An' the lootenant had forgot everything but "close up! close up!"—Listen at him—"

The camions had set them down in a gently rolling country, unwooded, and fat with ripening wheat. Far across it, to the north, blue with distance, stood a great forest, and toward this forest the battalion marched, talkative, as men are in the first hour of the hike, before the slings of the pack begin to cut into your shoulders. . . . "Look at them poppies in the wheat."—"They ain't as red as the popples were the mornin' of the sixth of June, when we went up to Hill 142—" "Yep! Beginnin' to fade some. It's gettin' late in the season." "Hi— I'm beginning to fade some myself—this guerre is wearin' on a man . . . remember how they looked in the wheat the mornin', just before we hit the Maxim guns?—red (as (blood—" "Pore old Jerry Finnegan picked one and stuck it in the buckle of his helmet—I seen it in his tin hat after he was killed, there behin' the Hill—I'll always think about poppies an' blood together, as long as I live—" This last from little Tritt, the lieutenant's orderly.

"Long as you live—that's good!" gibed Corporal Snair, of the company headquarters group. "Don't you know by now how expendable you bucks are? — the lieutenant heard, and remembered it, oddly enough, in a crowded moment the next day, when he lost two of them to a hard-fought Maxim gun.

No wind moved across the lonely wheatland; the bearded stalks wavred not at all, and the sun-drenched air was hot and dead. Sweat made muddy runnels through the thick white dust that masked the faces of the men. Conversation languished; what was said was in profane monosyllables. Clouds came up, and there were showers of rain, with hot sunshine between. Uniforms steamed after each shower, and thirst became a torture. The man who had the vin blanc in his canteen fell out and was quite ill.

After interminable hours, the column came to the forest and passed from streaming sunshine into sultry shades. It was a noble wood of great high-branching trees clean of underbrush as a park. Something was doing in the forest. Small-arms ammunition was stacked beside the road, and there were dumps of shells and bombs under the trees. And French soldiers everywhere. This road presently led into a great paved highway, and along it were more of the properties of war—row upon row of every caliber of shell, orderly stacks of winged aerial bombs, pile after pile of rifle and machine-gun ammunition, and cases of hand grenades and pyrotechnics. There were picket lines of cavalry, and park after park of artillery, light and heavy. There were infantrymen with stacked rifles.

The highway led straight through the forest. Many roads emptied into it, and from every road debauched a stream of horses, men, and guns. The battalion went into column of twos, then into column of files to make room. On the left of the road, abreast of the marines, plodded another column on foot—strange black men, in the blue greatcoats of the French infantry and mustard-yellow uniforms under them.

The sultry afternoon passed wearily, and at 6 o'clock the battalion turned off the road, shambling and footsore, and rested for two hours. They found water and filled canteens. A few of the harder made shift to wash. "Gonna smear soapsuds an' lather all over me—the hospital corps men say it keeps off mustard-gas!" But most of the men dropped where the platoon broke ranks and slept. Battalion H. Q. sent for all company commanders.

Presently the lieutenant of the 49th returned, with papers and a map. He called the companay officers around him, and spread the map on the ground. He spoke briefly.

"We're in the Villers-Cotterets woods—the Forest de Retz. At H hour on D day, which I think is tomorrow morning, although the major didn't say, we attack the

PROPER DIET NEEDS TAKEN UP IN CITY

Red Cross Nurses Discuss Effects It Has Upon School Children

—Editor's Note.

By
MISS MARY E. SUTHERLAND
Red Cross Nutritionist.

As never before in modern times the subject of food and nutrition has come to the front today. School surveys show that 6,000,000, or over of all children of school age are malnourished. This does not mean that they are underfed, but that they are not getting the right kind of food.

A much larger number have physical defects. Dr. Thomas Wood of Columbia university, New York City, through surveys of school children found that seventy per cent of all school children have physical defects. Health and general nutrition play a part in retardation in schools. Ayrs of the Russel Sage foundation estimates the cost of educating this group in 55 cities is $27,000,000 as 16 per cent of all the children were involved.

Skeptical Admit It.

While no one will deny that food is essential to life, many are skeptical about the close connection between the kind of food eaten and the degree of health enjoyed. Now we know from thousands of experiments how a shortage of each recognized dietary essential affects laboratory animals and also human and through these experiments we have realized that the effects of diet are more far reaching than we had conceived to be possible.

Dietary factors operate slowly, but they are doing something to a child every day. That there are certain needs of the body for normal growth which must be supplied in the diet of children, which adults do not require has not been fully appreciated. Again the weak indulgence of their children by many parents permits the formation of tastes and habits in the selection of their food, in the manner of eating and their mode of life generally, which are quite incompatible with normal nutrition and growth. This is a cause which will always be the most difficult to remove.

Correlation between defective teeth (90 per cent plus of all the school children have defective dentition) and poor nutrition have been repeatedly observed and commented upon.

Cause Absences.

One of the main causes of absences from school in the elementary school is some form of respiratory disease. One does not have to work with experimental diets very long to realize how quickly a poor diet may produce something akin to a child's running nose and the correlation between susceptibility to infection of the respiratory tract and diet has been definitely made in the case of children by Dr. Bloch in Denmark.

Whatever other measures we may institute for the betterment of child health, it is of fundamental importance that an adequate diet (planned from Red Cross Guide For Meal Planning) first for the mother to carry him through the period of prenatal life and lactaction (bread-feeding) and then for himself directly, not only through the growing years, when dietary defects have their most immediate influence, but through his later life, since laboratory experiments clearly show that good diets increase the "Span of Life," both by causing early maturity and by deferring the appearance of senility or early loss of youth and making each day of life one of satisfactory living.

OLD MEN WORK

Britishers Over 70 Still Active Workers

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)— Sir Thomas Chitty, senior master of the supreme court, who has returned to active practice at the bar at the age of 71, believes the modern young man gives too much time to sport.

Sir Frank Dicksee, president of the Royal Academy also believes too much importance is attached to sport and not enough to work. Sir Frank, age 73, who never goes to bed until 1 a. m. and is up at 7 a. m., feels, however, that more men are giving energetic service to their profession even after passing three score and ten, because he says the days of hard drinking and hard living among this class is something of the past.

Fix Bayonets

Boche here"—pointing—"and go on to here—past the town of Vierzy. Eight or nine kilometers. Three objectives—marked—so and so. The second division with one of the infantry regiments leading, and the fifth marines, attacks with the first Morocean division on our left. The Frog foreign legion is somewhere around too, and the first American division. It's Mangin's Colonial army—the bird they call the butcher. . . ."

It was dark when the battalion fell in and took the road again. They went into single file on the right, at the very edge of it, for the highway was jammed with three columns of traffic, moving forward. It began to rain, and the might, there under the thick branches, was inconceivably black. The files couldn't see the man ahead, and each man caught hold of the pack in front and went feeling for the road with his feet, clawing along with the wheels and the artillery horses and machine-gun mules. On the right was a six-foot ditch, too deep in mud to march in. The rain increased to a sheeted downpour and continued all night, with long rolls of thunder, and white stabs of lightning that intensified the dark. The picked might of France and America toiled on that road through the Cillers-Cotterets forest that night, like a great flowing river of marital force. No battle ever tried them half as hard as the night road to Soissons. . . .

The rain ceased, and the sky grew gray with dawn. The traffic thinned, and the battalion turned off on a smaller road, closed up, and hurried on. Five minutes by the side of the road to form combat packs and strip to rifle and bayonet. "Fall in quickly: Forward!"

Overead the clouds were gone; a handful of stars paled and went out; day was coming. The battalion, lightened, hastened. They perceived, dimly, through a mist of fatigue, that a cloudless day was promised and that the world was wonderfully new washed and clean—and quiet! Not a gun aywhere, and the mud on the road muffled the sound of hobnailed boots. "Double time! Close up! Close up, there!"

There had been fighting here; there were shell-holes, scarred and splintered trees. The batalion panted to a crossroads where stone buildings lay all blasted by some gale of shell-fire. And by the road what looked like a well! The files swayed toward it, clutching at dry canteens—"Back in ranks! Back in ranks, you——!"

Then, barbed wire across the roadway, and battered shallow trenches to right and left, and a little knot of French and American officers, Major Turrill standing forward. The leading company turned off to the left, along the trenches. The 49th followed in column. "Turn here," ordered the major. "Keep on to the left until you meet the Maroccans, and go forward. . . ." The 49th went beyond the trench, still in column of route, picking its way through the woods. The lieutenant looked back at his men as he went; their faces were gray and drawn and old; they were staggering with weariness—"Fix bayonets—" and the dry click of the steel on the locking-ring ran along the ragged column, loud in the hush of dawn.

Why Do Mothers Expect Working Daughters To Help Out With The Family Finances? It's Hard To Say

Why Should Mother Demand Her Daughter's Pay Envelopes While Believing That Her Son Has a Right to Keep His?—Why Should Mother Expect the eGirls to Help With the Housework After Office While the Boys Must Rest and Enjoy Themselves in Evening?

Why is it that so many mothers treat their warge-earning daughters so differently from the way in which they do their sons?

When a boy finishes school and goes to work he eis regarded as being entitled to the money he earns. If he pays a fair proportion of his wages for board, it is all that tis expected of him. And if now and then he gives his mother a present she ebores her neighbors and friends to tears saaying his praisees and telling how generous Johnny is and what a good son he is.

She is filled with sympathy because poor Johnny has to work so hard all day, and when he comes home ein the evening she has a good hot meal waiting for him. She never dreams of asking him to help with the housework or to put in his evenings doing the family wash that she has saved up for him.

But Mamie is another story. When Mamie finishes school and goes to work, mother expects her to bring her pay envelope home to her intact, and she does cut of it whatever allowance she considers sufficient for Mamie to spend on carfare and lunches and clothes. Mother never voices any appreciation of Mamie's slaving to support the family, because she considers that what Mamie earns belongs to her by right.

And when Mamie comes home mother expects her to help get the dinner and wash the dishes afterward, and to lend a hand with the sewing and finish off the ironing.

Mother washes Johnny's clothes and mends them and keeps them looking neat and tidy, but she expects Mamie to do her own laundry work and keep her own clothes in condition.

It tis Mamie who has to take care of the eyounger ones in the family; who has to sit up nights nursing the sick—not Johnny. Mother recognizes that a boy who works all day is entitled to some recreation and pleasure in the evening. Also, that h eshould have his night's rest unbroken so that he ecan go fresh to his joob in the morning.

But she doesn't see why Mamie, who has also worked hard all day, shouldn't push the baby's perambulator when she egoes out for a walk or take along tottering old grandma, nor why she should't take her part of the nursing when there is illness in the house.

Johnny is the pampered one, yet he is a husky lad, far more able to work than his sister; and, as a general thing, he gets a much better salary than she does.

Why, then, should their mother make this difference between them? Why should she think that she has a right to the girl's money and not t othe boys? Why should she expect the girl to help with the housework and not the boy? Why should mothers over-value everything their sons do for them and undervalue what their daughters do for them?

Nobody knows. It is just the way mothers are built. A woman will offer her daughter as a living sacrifice to the family without even knowing that she is doing it, but she beats upon the cymbals and calls upon the world to observe what a treasure Heaven has blessed her with if her son makes the smallest sacrifice for her.

Household Hints

MENU HINT.

A simple but sufficient and nourishing breakfast necessary before starting work in snappy weather. Fresh fruit might be added to the menu printed below, although the raisins furnish iron for the system. To cook the old-fashioned oatmeal or rolled oats, mix one cup meal with four cups boiling water in the double boiler and cook one and one-half hours. The raisins may be added after the first half hour of cooking or just before serving. The cereal may be cooked the night before and warmed up in the double boiler at breakfast time.

Cooked Cereal with Raisins
French Omelet Toast
Marmalade Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Marmalade—Take equal parts of pears, apples, peaches and plums. Take two-thirds cup sugar for each cup fruit, let stand overnight, then cook until thick. If it is too late for you to obtain these four fruits to make marmalade now, file this recipe for reference next summer.

French Omelet—Four eggs, four tablespoons milk, one-half teaspoons milk, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper to taste, two tablespoons butter. Beat eggs slightly, just enough to blend the yolks and whites, add the seasonings. Put butter in the hot pan and when melted turn in the mixture. As it cooks prick and pick up with a fork until the whole is of creamy consistency. Place on hotter fire that it may brown quickly underneath. Fold and turn on hot platter.

SUGGESTIONS

When you mend silk stockings at the back and sides of the heel place a piece of crepe de chine of the same color on the wrong side and darn it to the stocking with silk thread. It is better to darn from the right side, so you can easily tell how it's going to look.

Serviceable Black Frock Favors Two-Piece

By MME. LISBETH

The serviceable black frock is frequently made in two-piece styling. As pictured here a simple but very smart blouse of black satin is worn with a pleated skirt of Canton crepe. The blouse has kimono sleeves and a low standing collar, and the only touch of contrasting color is a narrow leather girdle and a row of white pearl buttons at the neck.

An unusually pretty afternoon frock in black and white came from Drecoll, Paris couturier. Black taffeta was combined with white organdie, the organdie being pleated and forming the collar and undersleeves and appearing under the uneven hemline of the taffeta skirt.

Varied skirt treatments are effected by the use of pleats, and pleating is not confined to skirts either. In one dress of black canton crepe pleated bell sleeves were an interesting feature and pleating was also used for the upper tier or peplum of the skirt.

Victims in Plane Crash Asked To Show Credentials

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The English immigration law is rigid and formidable, and the men who enforce it make no exceptions.

VELVET

TRIMS THE SMART FROCK FOR DAY OR EVENING

IN a message from our Paris fashion scout we read, "Paris has adopted velvet as the chief representative of elegance in dress." And immediately we present new frocks for the entire mode fashioned of velvet, or velvet-adorned.

Softest chiffon velvet crushes in a girdle low on a tea gown of bluette crepe. Sports and street frocks employ the velvet jacquette or a velvet skirt with gay Spanish bolero. The evening mode finds velvet flounces and girdles on chiffon or taffeta frocks.

GREAT CITY FOR TRANSIENTS BEING BUILT IN WEST TEXAS

MILLIONS FOR HOTEL BUILDING IN MANY CITIES

New Structures Going Up As Progressive Wave Hits West Texas

A sizeable city could find living quarters in the new hotels now under construction in West Texas. West Texans are proceeding on the theory that the population of the United States is largely on wheels at the present time and West Texas towns and cities are preparing accommodations for this population when it visits west Texas The hotel construction now under way in West Texas would make a creditable skyline for any city were the buildings grouped in one metropolitan area. Numerous sky scrapers are included in the list of constructions reported to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The buildings range all the way from 15 story structures in oil centers, to magnificent mountain resort hotels for summer tourists. Several million dollars will be required to furnish capital for the buildings.

Asparillo Leads.

Perhaps the greatest hotel construction in West Texas is underway at Amarillo. One structure of 600 rooms to be known as the Herring Hotel rises to 15 stories in height. Another sky scraper hotel here will be the 11 story addition to the Hotel Amarillo. The Mayer interests are erecting a five-story 200 room hostelry in the plains metropolis, while numerous smaller hotels have recently been built, remodeled, or are now under construction there.

San Angelo is another West Texas city which is entering the metropolitan class from a hotel standpoint. The St. Angeles recently completed a five story addition to that noted West Texas hostelry. Two more five story structures are now nearing completion, one on the site of the historic old Langdon Hotel there.

Mineral Wells Builds.

Mineral Wells is adding two five story hotels to West Texas hotel capacity. One of these hotels is being erected on the old site of the Crazy Hotel, while the other is being erected against a mountain side by the Baker Hotel interests.

In Lubbock, the new six-story, half million dollar Hotel Lubbock recently opened its doors to the public providing one of the best hotels of the entire state.

Far out in the Davis mountains near the town of Balmorhea is another type of hotel. This hotel, a mountain resort, has been built as a cost of $100,000, and is the first unit of a half million dollar resort to be built.

It is to be known as Maderia Springs Lodge and will fill a long felt want for hotel facilities in the mountains.

Breckenridge Active.

Breckenridge has taken steps to solve the hotel problem for that oil field metropolis and a three-quarter million dollar hotel is now being financed for that city. To the west of Breckenridge, Abilene is preparing to care for the demands upon its hotel facilities made by the recently opened oil field near Trent and a 10-story hotel is under way there. Cisco is another of the central West Texas towns talking hotels. Plans for a half million dollar structure are now being made. El Paso recently opened the new Orendoff Hotel and Wichita Falls recently held the opening of the new Holt Hotel in that city. The Marchman Hotel will soon be opened in the latter city.

Small Cities Build

Hotel construction is not confined to the larger cities in West Texas. The smaller cities have caught the fever and are building hotels to meet the growing needs of the section. Haskell has just opened the new Hotel Tonkawa there. This structure is fireproof brick, two stories in height. Snyder is building a new two-story 50-room hotel at a cost of $150,000. In Albany finishing touches are being made to the Hotel McLemore there, and it is expected to open its 100 rooms to the public this month. The new Burns Hotel of Hamlin, a brick structure, is nearing completion. In fact, part of the building is already in use. J. C. Douglas, of Dallas, recently purchased the Cole Hotel in Big Springs and plans to remodel and enlarge this structure to accommodate the traveling public in this city.

Plains Towns Gain.

Out on the plains of Texas the smaller cities are keeping step with the larger ones. Shamrock is building a new $70,000 hotel of 66 rooms, to be known as the Hotel Walker, C. R. Christian of Amarillo, will operate the hostelry. At Tulia, contract has been let and construction started on a new 42-room hotel to cost $70,000. A new 52-room hotel has been announced at Pampa, and the new Hotel Ruth of 26 rooms has been opened at White Deer. T. D. Lewis of White Deed is now erecting a new 45-room hotel in that thriving oil city.

Memphis is this month celebrating the opening of the new Hotel Memphis in that city. Colonel Ernest O. Thompson, of Amarillo, is in charge of this hotel and plans to make it one of the best small city hotels in the entire state.

At Lamesa the new Dal-Paso Hotel of 33 rooms has been opened making the fifth modern hotel in the Dawson county metropolis.

Vernon is another of the cities of West Texas to add a new hotel to its assets. Colonel Thompson, of Amarillo, is in charge of this hotel, and it will be operated by the Thompson system.

At Colorado, a new five-story hotel, to cost $400,000, is now being pushed to completion and when finished will rank among the very leading hotels of the entire southwest.

The Stamford Inn is building an addition to the beautiful mission type of structure already in use, and the owners are having plans made for a third story to be added during the next year.

Quaint old Fredericksburg is also getting a new hotel. The historical old Motel Nimitz, where Robert E. Lee was a guest when he was a soldier in Texas before the Civil War, is being rebuilt and a modern hotel will be erected on the site.

Coleman is preparing to open a brand new five-story hotel soon. This hotel has been made necessary because of the rapid growth of the country about Coleman and by oil activity in Coleman county.

Literally scores of West Texas cities are making plans for new hotels and doubtless a number of them will start work on the structures before the first of the year.

The new hotels of West Texas are all modern and complete structures. Stem heat, baths, running water in rooms, and excellent furnishings, coffee shops, and in fact, everything necessary to a modern hotel are offered by these new hotels. Many of them have spacious dining and banquet halls, while a number have roof gardens. The best business managements procurable are in charge of these hotels and West Texas has reached a point that its hotel facilities are among its proudest possessions.

ELECTRA C-C PLANS DRIVE

1927 Budget to Be Raised In Big Campaign November 16-18

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 6.—The board of directors of the Electra Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture at a meeting this week approved plans for the chamber's annual budget campaign, which will be conducted on November 16, 17 and 18. A general membership meeting has been set for Monday night, November 15, to which all members of the chamber will be invited and the president will present his report outlining the work of the chamber during the past year. Plans for work during the insuing year will also be announced. Plans under consideration for the chamber's work during 1927 emphasize trade extension, agricultural development and industrial development. Much interest is being shown not only in Electra, but in the neighboring cities, Burkburnett and Vernon, in the possibility of developing a new irrigation project with a reservoir on the Pease river north of Crowell. The possibilities of this project will be determined largely by the results of the survey now being conducted by the state board of water engineers in co-operation with the U. S. geological survey.

MUNICIPAL GAS COMPANY
"A Partner With The Public"

THIS WEATHER BUSINESS HAS FUNNY ANGLES

It Takes Time and a Lot Of Apparatus to Find What It's Like

And then appears names and figures of maximum, minimum and 5 p. m. temperature readings, percipitation totals, wind direction, wind velocities and barometric readings.

It looks simple enough, but how does it get there? How does "the electric company" determine all these important questions and how nearly correct is it?"

Speaking from the left hand angle, it is always correct. And taking up the other point, it reaches its conclusions through observation of highly efficient instruments that do the recording, make records and are on duty night and day, through sunshine and blizzard to keep one of the reports the United States government makes use of in its forecast.

What it Takes

As an official observation station of the weather bureau, the electric company here assumes a task that requires the use of an anemometer, barometer, thermometers, rain gauge, weather vanes and other things.

In the accompanying picture, the anemometer and the thermometer are show. The former, which is to all appearances nothing more than four long handled aluminum dippers fastened to a bearing that revolves on an upright post, records wind velocity—and four dippers is what it is. It is a homemade contraption designed and installed by electric company workmen. But it does its appointed task efficiently and properly. It has electrical connections that operate a meter in the building below. A certain number of revolutions of the dippered wheel are made and a dot is inked on a graph in the meter. The graph is split up into quarter hour divisions and accordingly, the faster the wheel revolves, the more dots there will be in this division.

How's the Wind?

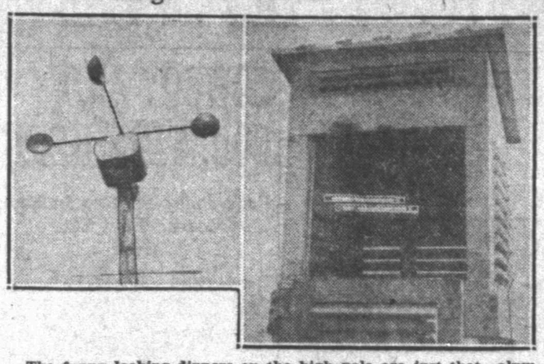

The weather vane which records wind directions, of course, is well known in principle. It records by means of lights on gauges in the office the exact direction of the wind at all times. These gauges are marked into all directions of the compass, and when the vane is pointed due south by a wind straight from the north, a tiny light beneath the "North" on the gauge glows. As the wind swings to the northeast, the light under "Northeast" burns and the other goes out. Thus it is with all directions.

The thermometers are standard government weather recording instruments and are housed in a protected enclosure on the roof. No wind can strike them and neither can rays of the sun. They record accurately the maximum temperature reached during the day; they record just as accurately the minimum temperature and also give the reading as it happens to be every minute of the 24 hours.

The rain gaguge is simply a graduated brass shell, the measurement of which is known and which is so placed as to catch the waters that come down during a shower. This can be measured at the end of every 24 hours and the percipitation for that day thus determined.

These Things Tell About Wind and Rain

They are so arranged as to tell what the wind velocity is—and was, and they form a part of the electric company's observation apparatus. The two thermometers in the "bee-hive" box record the maximum, minimum and minute-by-minute temperatures.

MOVES HIS COURT

Self-Style Czar of Russia Goes To Paris.

COBURG, Nov. 6. (AP)—Coburg apparently is not what it is reckoned to be as a springboard for aspirants to royal crowns. Grand Duke Cyril, of Russia, who years ago announced himself as the head of the Ramanoff dynasty and the non-resident czar of all Russia, is packing up his belongings and is scheduled to move his court to Paris next month.

Cyril is said to hope that in Paris, amid thousands of Russian enigres, to be able ot play a more regal role than he has in Coburg, where he was overshadowed by older and better known royalty, including the former czar Ferdinand, of Bulgaria.

CAMOUFLAGE CARS TO PREVENT SCARING HORSE INTO BOLTING

In depicting police history at the international police exposition in Berlin, historians revealed that their old fashioned predecessors back in 1876 seriously considered a proposal to build the fronts of cable cars in the shape of horses to fool real horses which shied at that then modern form of transportation.

Runaway horses had become a serious menace and the public was protesting against the new street conveyances which were causing the trouble. Some bright persons thereupon suggested that the front of the cars should be camouflaged by a wooden horse. In all seriousness he drew a design of his plan, and the police with even greater seriousness deliberated about adopting the suggestion. But they didn't.

REVIVAL OPENS

Campaign Begins Friday Night at Nazarene Church.

The revival campaign at the Nazarene church at the corner of Fifth and Burnett streets opened last evening with splendid interest. The song service began promptly at 7:30 p. m., led by W. B. Evans. A good crowd heard Rev. R. M. Hocker speak on the text "Examine Yourselves Whether Ye Be in the Faith." He spoke on the method of self-examination, and how we may know when we are in the faith.

The city of Wichita Falls and vicinity is cordially invited to attend any or all services beginning each evening at 7:30 p. m., and after Sunday at 10 a. m. each day. The meetings are to continue over to November 21. All the services at the church will be held at the usual hours Sunday. Morning subject of the evangelist Sunday will be "The Coming and Office Work of the Holy Spirit."

With the commission favorable to petitions now being sent up a tremendous new rail development would soon ensue, it was pointed out here.

Women Slouchy Walkers At Best

That's Verdict of One of Sex Who Herself Ranks As Champion

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Girls of today have the worst gait of several generations, in the opinion of Mrs. Diana Watts, whose fad is traveling from one country to another to observe how women walk. Modern girls, she contends, carefully cultivate a so-called fashionable "slouch" which not only is bad for health, but a sign that the women of this generation are "sloppy minded."

The secret of a correct carriage in walking goes back to a fundamental underlying principle which the Greeks knew and which was lost for about 2,000 years, Mrs. Watts declared, "which is really what George Bernard Shaw calls the 'technique of the diaphragm,' the importance of which can not be exaggerated."

"Older people complain of girls dress," says Mrs. Watts, "but in my opinion the styles are charming. What is wrong with the modern girl is the way she sits and walks with her chin poked down, her shoulders hunched up, the upper part of her body completely curved, and her piaphragm crumbled up dangerously. She does not hold herself nearly so well as girls did twenty or thirty years ago, when dresses were difficult to manage."

Chapter 19 of Ring Lardner's Autobiography.

Dr. Pearson, on the day of my release from the hospital, warned me that I would have to be careful for at least a year and advised me not to return to the nerve wracking profession of journalism.

"Get into some calmer line of work," he said, "something that won't be much of a physical or mental strain."

"What, for instance, Duck?" I inquired.

(Editor's note: The author doubtless meant to say "Doc.")

(Author's note: The author meant what he said. Pearson was a notorious quack.)

"The calmest, most leisurely calling I can think of," replied the doctor, "is that of a ticket agent in a large railroad terminal."

The Demon Mathematician.

In compliance with this hint, I investigated and found that applicants for such a position were required to take a week's training. The training outfit consisted of a ticket rack in which were tickets to every town in the country, arranged in alphabetical order; a flat sheif equipped with date stamps, pencils and pens, and an iron grating which separated the student from the practice customers.

The applicant had to report at 8 o'clock in the morning. His first duty was to break the points of the pens and pencils and set the date stamp either six months behind or ahead of the current date. Then, all day long until 6 in the evening, crowds of practice customers kept coming up and standing in front of the grating. The applicant was instructed to keep his eyes fixed firmly on the floor except twice during the day, when he might look at a customer and wait on him, there being a rule that no one agent may sell more than two tickets per diem.

The first practice customer whom the applicant deigned to notice would, we will say, ask for a ticket to Baltimore. The applicant would look through the T's, M's, K's and any other six letters; then turn his attention to the B part of the rack and produce a ticket to Baltimore. He would then twirl his date stamp six months ahead or behind as the case might be, and stamp the ticket. If the fare to Baltimore was $4.10, he would hate to borrow a good pencil or pen from another applicant and write one under the other, the figures $4.00 and .10, on an envelope; then scratch his head and add them and write down the total—$4.10. The practice customer would then submit a five dollar bill and the applicant would repeat to himself the names of all his friends in a painstaking effort to think of somebody who might have change.

Nora Plays Safe.

I learned all these tricks easily and was given a position at one of the windows in Grand Central station, New York. On the first day I lived up to the rules, looked at only two people and sold two tickets. But after that, my natural imaginativeness and individuality overcame my sense of duty and I proceeded to revolutionize the ticket selling industry. One or two samples of my methods, and their results, may prove interesting.

A beautiful widow with two children asked for tickets to Peekskill.

"Madam," I said, "Peekskill has many attractions, but I think you would find Ardsley just as nice, and it's nearer and cheaper."

"All right, make it Ardsley," said she. "And how about my kiddies? Are they half fare?"

"Not half as fair as their mummy," said I. "But joking to one side, I think it is a mistake to take them at all. I know a fellow in Ardsley who wants to marry a widow and I will gladly give you a letter of introduction to him. But he hates children and if you were to show up with those two, well, to put it mildly, whelps, your chances of matrimony would go glimmering."

"Mama," whined one of the whelps, "let's go glimmering."

This remark may have settled the issue; at any rate, the little lady made the trip alone, leaving her children in the waiting room, where, I heard later, they were quite a nuisance for a couple of days; after which they disappeared. Their mother married the Ardsley Wight, who left her, in four years, with three new children, or one up on what she had before, to say nothing of the superior quality of the later litter.

On another occasion, my frankness led me into a lasting comradeship with Nora Bayes, who came to my window one afternoon and demanded a ticket to Albany and a lower berth to Syracuse.

"But, Miss Bayes," I remonstrated, "if you are only going to Albany, why do you want a berth to Syracuse?"

"Because I always sleep past my station," was her reply.

This struck me as so comical that I hurried up to the athletic field of the University of Columbia and watched some of the men practice broad jumping.

GIRL LICENSED SEA ENGINEER

British Maid Gets Commission as Regular Ship's Engineer

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Queen Victoria's god-daughter, Miss Victoria Drummond, has just obtained her "ticket' 'as a fully qualified, sea-going marine engineer.

Miss Drummond is the granddaughter of Lord Amherst of Hackney. She became interested in engineering and after finishing her studies learned that to obtain a crtificate she had to serve the required time in an engineroom at sea. She signed on a ship going to Austlaria in 1922. She stood her watch, inspected boilers, kept the oilers at work and performed all the duties required of her male colleagues.

She had not decided whether she will continue going to sea, now that she has the coveted license, or remain on shore and take up the work of a consulting marine engineer.

Adventures In The Shops

AS TOLD BY Jacqueline

Conde is a label which arouses high expectations, and they are well fulfilled in the beautiful cocoa duvella Conde coat I saw at McClurkan's yesterday. A huge shawl collar of cocoa wolf and cuffs of the same, the epaulet shoulder and heavy frost crepe lining are features which make this a stunning wrap. Oh, yes! I mustn't forget the clever folds of the same material on either side which add so much to its effectiveness, and that the price is only $150.00.

The Gift Shop of Bailey-Moline's China Shop is a delightful place to browse around with the assurance of finding the very gift for the person you wish to remember.

Bronze and royal bronze paper weights that would add to any home and make perfect gifts are shown here in elephant and other attractive forms.

The smoker is well remembered, too, in the bright Czecho-Slovakian cigarette boxes and tiny ashtrays to hang upon the arm of the chair. These last, with jeweled filigree weights at the end of embroidered pendants containing match pockets, are unusually inviting.

Beautiful desk sets make distinctive gifts which are always appreciated. At Bailey-Moline's there are desk sets of Ronson's metal warerose and black, and green with bronze, are the lovely color schemes of two of these sets.

Six dollars is a most modest price for smart shoes especially when the shoes are worth $10.00, being really ultra smart and durable. These are the values you will find at Harry's.

In case you acnnot believe it, I'll describe two of the most appealing models. Elastein medallion moire in plain pump, slave link or anklet, with narrow or round balloon toe, makes as beautiful a slipper as it has made beautiful dresses. In the moire slave-link we find two late fads in other articles of dress entering "shoedom." The tiny silver link on the one strap is most attractive.

Sherri patent oxfords with high Spanish heel and lizard trim are also outstanding. The five small eyelets have a chanel red silk tie that harmonizes beautifully with the copper and gold, which is the new Sherri shade. The lizard is set in cleverly, too.

All the while I was looking at these shoes, "just six dollars" kept bobbing back into my mind, but there is no use telling you about the wonderful values for you will have to see for yourself. Do go and discover with your own eyes that something different may be had for $6.00.

Even Alladin would be surprised at the wonderful collection of Persian and Chinese rugs to be found at the Oriental Studio. The intriguing designs, colors, and soft thickness of an Oriental rug will do more toward stamping a room with the atmosphere of exquisite taste and refinement than any other one thing.—at this studio you may have many, many of the most attractive orientals from which to choose.

The entire studio is like a tale from "Arabian Nights" — as if some clever Easterner, who was familiar with the most beautiful pieces in furnishings from all countries, has stolen Alladin's lamp and wished for them. However it happened, it is delightful to know that all types of furniture—period and modern—may be seen in their most charming form at the Oriental Studio and we have but to say, "Open Sesame."

The Spanish pieces are of particular interest. Spanish galleon smokers in wrought iron, console sets of simple grandeur and low Spanish desks are most inviting. Bench and matching chair are shown in the Spanish type with gorgeous upholstering. French linen frieze for one and rich brocade with velvet for another in the beloved Spanish red and gold, make the most handsome and colorful sets.

Bengal rugs—exact reproductions of original oriental designs in both color, patterns and seamlessness, are also shown.

Shining Thanksgiving silver, flashing diamonds, ticking watches, all in new sparkling glass cases! That is Dave Paul's Jewelry Store after the recent changes which have so added to the attraction of the shop. All sorts of "pretties" may be seen through the bright new glass from the most expensive to trifles, and all have an unquestionable daintiness. Elegant Pickard gold china, cut-glass perfume atomizers and unusual picture frames are among the things which give Dave Paul's such a festive appearance.

Flowers that grow in Paris are waiting at Joza Dickson's, 714 Indiana, for Milady's shoulder. Every woman knows the final touch of chic which a bright corsage adds to her costume and these—so reasonably priced — make Dickson's Shop window a perfect bower of colorful blossoms in combinations of fabrics.

There is no store from which your wardrobe may be more satisfactorily filled with dresses than McClurkan's. Street, afternoon, sport and evening frocks of exceptional charm in all of the new materials and cuts are here, so you are sure to find those which are exactly suited to your type, and to the occasion you wish them for.

A metal-Trimmed two piece robe pour le sport and a "precious" moire are examples of McClurkan's chic.

The beautiful and restful home is always a place of soft mellow light from attractive fixtures, and much attention should be given to the selection of lamps which will produce the proper effect. The Wichita Electric company has lamps suitable for every use and every spot in your home bridge lamps, floor lamps, table lamps, boudoir lamps, candelabra—all varieties.

The bridge and floor lamps especially attracted my attention by their softly colored shades and decorative dull brass stands, while the little boudoir lamps are most convenient and pretty for the bed.

It is a positive virtue to make one's home a spot beloved by family and friends, and nothing will so contribute to making it homelike as with the warm glow of lights. To have such a home one need not be extravagant, for the Wichita Electric company offers beautiful lamps at special prices which are surprisingly low.

Floral Heights Beauty Shop, 1920 Tenth street, offers a complete beauty service administered with rare skill and utmost care by experienced attendants.

Permanent waves, hairdressing, shingling, dyeing, manicures, scalp-treatments, marcels and shampoos, as executed in this shop, bring forth the youthfulness which Mrs. Vanderbilt calls "the pot of gold at the foot of every woman's rainbow."

The soft water shampoos given here are especially glorifying, and as beautiful hair is essentially healthful hair, the shampoo claims much attention. Only strong, practiced fingers can properly massage the scalp, so it is best not to undertake the task oneself.

"Do marcel and permanent waves harm the hair?" is another question concerning health for the hair. Authorities agree that reliable operators (and these you certainly find at Floral Heights Beauty Shop) can make your hair lovely without injury. Telephone 6569 for appointments.

"As proud as a peacock" is what the purchaser of the peacock blue coat I saw in Miller-Ferguson's window will be. The collar is an entire gray fox with the new note of the bushy tail flowing down to the hemline. Mr. Ferguson, who has just returned from New York, brought this coat and many others to increase the already large array from which the patrons of this firm may choose.

A black coat with silver-tipped fox collar and cuffs is as smart as only a luxurious black wrap can be. Some say that men are never afraid of a woman in unrelieved black and, whatever the reason, the sombre shade continues outstandingly popular season after season.

A wonderful line of sport coats, moderately priced, is also to be found at Miller-Ferguson's.

Officious females are always saying "a man never knows what to buy for a woman," but it is really much harder for a woman to select a gift for a man, if it is to be at all out of the ordinary. The Montmogery Co., offers just the things for men's Christmas gifts this year! Hickok silver belt and buckle sets add an item to the little gifts not so usual as ties, handkerchiefs and scarfs —although these latter are sure to be appreciated, especially in the gorgeous imports Montgomery is showing.

Lounge suits in heavy French silken fabrics with long belted coats and gay flowered designs are being appropriated by debutantes as well as men of style, while the dressing gown of brocade and tassled sash is perhaps the plus parfait gift for a man.

There is one nice thing about the cold winter winds that are the "breath of Autumn's being"—they require a heavy coat, and coats are so good-looking this season!

Saul's has a complete assortment of smart coats. There are collegiate plaids, leopard effects in soft seal plush, straight-line and bloused wraps with fur collars and cuffs and the popular reversibles at prices from $18.88 to $150.00.

Of course the luxurious furs are here also—seal, squirrel, caracul, mink and mole—cut and matched by the foremost designers of America and Europe.

THE FIRST DESIGN IN SOLID SILVER to come out of the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art

A GREAT new development in decorative art is under way, inspired by the American Wing. It is reviving the early American period, and modernizing it into the true American style.

We take pride, therefore, in announcing the first design in solid silver, with the grace of America's most graceful period, The MINUET.

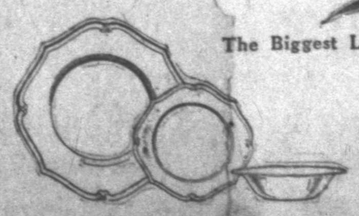

All the quiet grace of early American has truly been wrought in modern silver in this lovely pattern.

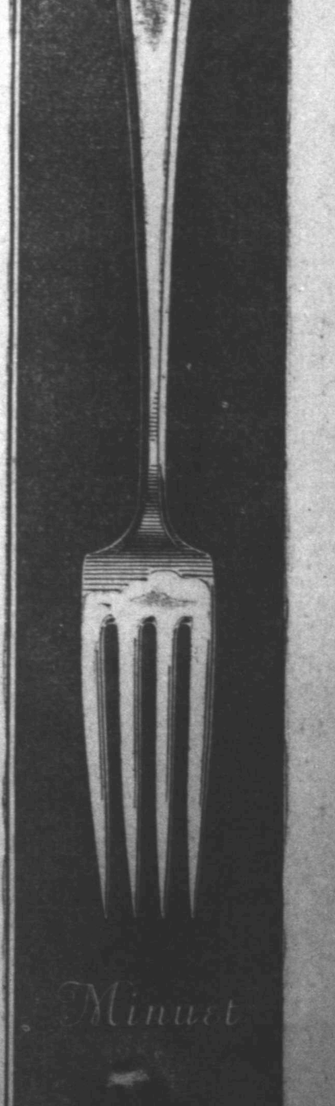

This new and true American style is dominating today. Therefore we believe MINUET the most important design we are showing. Everyone interested in the progress of silverware is invited to see it.

GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS AT MAJESTIC THEATRE MONDAY

WISE COMEDY PLUS MELODY BIG FEATURE

Dancing and Lavish Scenery To Play Big Part In Great Production

If you can judge what the public wants, you can make a fortune. George White saw the writing on the wall some years ago and produced a swift-moving, jingling revue of large proportions, filled to overflowing with wise comedy, lilting melodies, breath-taking dances, and his fortune was made. Mr. White saw the old form of cumbersome, elephantine extravaganza and weighty musical comedy going by the boards, and seized his opportunity. New York gasped at the daring and originality of his first Scandals, produced some seven years ago, and it has gasped every season since.

Here Monday Night

His newest Scandals, which comes to the Majestic theatre Monday matinee and night, may be rated as his greatest achievement, and as all of the scenic effects, all the beautiful costumes, and a genuine Broadway cast is being brought here, great interest is being taken in the appearance of the new edition booked here. Two acts and 34 huge scenes make up the new Scandals. The George White beauty chorus and the Albertina Rasch girls certainly are the most decorative misses to be seen in a musical production outside of New York City in a long, long time.

All Young

These girls all of them young, and most of them not out of their teens, are without question the most fetching group of American beauties seen about these parts in many a moon. The large cast is headed by Sammy Howard, the famous comedian, brother of Eugene and Willie Howard, known as the bright particular star of many Broadway hits; also in the cast will be seen Lillian Norwood, comedienne, Miss Linda Lee, the young golden-haired prima donna, Georgia Carson, the young English dancing beauty, and many others of equal note.

LIKES BIG SIGN

Wife of British Premier Believes In Advertising.

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)— Mrs. Stanley Baldwin believes it pays to advertise, and when she has anything to do with electric signs she wants them big.

The Y. W. C. A. Central London club house is near Oxford street, but in order that it might be seen plainly at night from that great thoroughfare Mrs. Baldwin suggested an illuminated sign. When samples of signs were shown Mrs. Baldwin objected because they were not big and bright enough. So the manufacturers designed one to meet Mrs. Baldwin's requirements. Mrs. Baldwin is much interested in all activites of the association.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.— Five thousand New York policemen are reporters on the night after election. One of the claims to fame put forth by Jennette Creagan is that she has won a beauty prize in Constantinople. She did it just this year in competition with 62 Turkish harem beauties. M'Coy Shows How To Make a Film

The person, or persons, who picked Col. Tom McCoy for a western film star should have a medal.

At last the screen has a new face and figure which radiates personal magnetism and doubtless will attract thousands of film fans who are tired of looking at some of the old types of western heroes who depend largely on six-shooters and horses to put them across.

McCoy, young and goodlooking, has the appearance of one from "the great open spaces." He looks western and acts western. He has a natural grace which ought to take the place of any lack of screen technique.

McCoy goes through his scenes as though no camera were present to record them. It is not acting with him in any sense of the word. Rather, with him, it is business of dealing with Indians and soldiers just as he has dealt with both on the plains and on the field of battle.

This new western hero is the son of a former army officer and was reared among things military. In fact, his own army record is not a mean one—having been the youngest colonel in the United States army and is now a brigadier general of Wyoming state militia.

The picture opens today at the Mission; it is entitled "War Paint."

Disappointment over the box office returns from D. W. Griffith's latest picture, "The Sorrows of Satan," may cause a break between him and Famous Players-Lesky. Should the contract be dissolved by mutual agreement it will mean postponement of "The White Slave," in which Carol Dempster and Richard Dix were to have been featured at least until a new director is assigned to the production.

Griffith will probably return to United Artists in which he is still interested and will make his future releases on the West Coast.

M'Gregor Picked As a Coming Star

Malcolm McGregor was picked as a coming star on his first appearance in an important role in motion pictures. That appearance was as Fritz von Tarlenheim in "The Prisoner of Zenda." The picker was Rex Ingram, whose other selections for stellar honors —Valentino, Novarro, Alice Terry and Barbara La Marr—have already come through.

Now Malcolm McGregor's turn seems to be arriving. Cast in the title role of "The Happy Warrior," the new Vitagraph picture, which comes to the Gem theatre next Monday, he is said to have given one of the outstanding performances of the season. His role is that of the young English nobleman who joins a traveling circus as an exhibition boxer. It is a joyous, fighting character, this, and McGregor is said to have made it the stepping stone to stardom.

McGregor, unlike Valentino and Novarro, is a typical American product. Born in New York, he was educated at Yale university, where he was on the swimming team. A clean-cut athletic type he has been consistently winning popularity as a picture hero.

"THE HAPPY WARROR"

WAR TRAGEDY IN NEW FILM

Strand to Show "The Greater Glory" On Screen Today

How noble Austrian families, with generations of traditions behind them and empty cupboards before them, were humbled, while war barons and war vultures grew fat on the profits of the war, is brought poignantly to light in one of the season's most colossal screen dramas, "The Greater Glory," which will be shown at the Strand theatre here today.

"The Greater Glory" is the work of June Mathis, master mind of the screen. Miss Mathis is responsible for "The Four Horsemen," which brought Rex Ingram and Rudolph Valentino to the fore.

More than a year was spent on the production of "The Greater Glory." The picture is an adaptation of "Viennese Medley," the celebrated novel by Edith O'Shaughnessy, wife of the American ambassador at Vienna.

The story is a poignant history of the fortunes of a fine old Viennese family before, during and after the war. The picture is startlingly realistic. The greater part of the scenes recorded are authentic and actually took place in the once gay Austrian capital.

The large cast of "The Greater Glory", is headed by Anna Q. Nilsson, Conway Tearle, May Allison, Ian Keith, Jean Hershalt and Lucy Beaumont. More than twenty other players of note have supporting parts, and the "extra" parts number about 1,500.

Curt Rehfeld directed. This is his first picture, although he has been intimately associated with the films for more than ten years.

DIX A GRIDDER

"The Quarterback," His Starring Vehicle at Strand.

Richard Dix's newest starring effort for Paramount, "The Quarterback," which comes to the Strand today, marks the beginning of screen activities for three players who have already gained prominence in vaudeville and legitimate theaters.

For Harry Beresford, title role player in "The Old Soak" and a principal of "Shavings," both of which had long runs on Broadway, "The Quarterback" is the beginning of a screen career after 40 years of stage work. Beresford's portrayal as Dix's father is a novel characterization in that he impersonates a man who has remained at college from the day his team lost to a rival school, until his son, 27 years later, liberates him by a victory on the same gridiron.

Allen Davis, for two years a principal in "White Cargo," makes his screen debut in "The Quarterback," appearing in an 1899 sequence.

Universal is hoping to make a number of pictures adapted from stories by Octavus Roy Cohen with entire colored casts. Cohen, a southerner, does not believe there will be any aversion to the negro films below the Meson-Dixon line.

"Midnight Sun" At The Olympic

"In The Midnight Sun," Universal Super-Jewel now showing at the Olympic theatre, Dimitri Buchowetzki, noted Russian director, has produced one of the greatest screen spectacle of the year. It is a Russion story staged in a lavish setting, filled with all the luxury and mysticism that marked the Russia of pre-war days. But even more striking than all this is the manner in which it is presented by the all-star cast given it by Universal.

Doing her first work as a dramatic actress, Laura La Plante heads the quartet of featured players. As the dancing girl with all Russia at her feet, she furnished her admirers with a great surprise. Looked upon as one of the screen's greatest comediennes this youthful actress has reversed herself and comes to us as one of its foremost dramatic artists. No finer bit of work has been seen than her intepretation of the tragic situations that are forced on the little dancer of the Imperial Russion Ballet.

Norma Talmadge May Leave The Screen After Years of Popularity

For some months Norma Talmadge has been talking of retirment. She wants to retire while still a box office drawing card and in the public favor. Her next picture for First National which will probably be her last for that organization is to be "Camille." Then she will make one or two pictures for United States Artists before she leaves the screen on which she has been such an outstanding figure since the early days of the movies.

Norma Talmadge has long wanted to play the part of the Lady of the Camelias, and while her version will be modern, her interpretation of the character will be based on the actual life story of Marie Duplessis.

WHAT DO MEN OF THIS CITY READ? YOU'D BE SURPRISED

LIBRARY PUTS OUT FICTION IN BIG LOTS

Biographies and Travel Stories Hold High Rank Also, Miss Powell Says

Do the men of Wichita Falls read fiction?

Yes, they do. They read and apparently like it as well as the women of Wichita Falls. This answer comes from Miss Lucia Powell, librarian of the Kemp public library, and her staff, who say they issue as many books of fiction to men as they do to women readers.

It used to be that boys and girls disliked to read biographies and the biographers had to be read by many because they were called upon to wade through long pages of narrations.

There is evidently a new class of biographers who write entertaining stories of real life, and next to fiction, the Kemp Public library dealers over the desks volumes of biographies. Books on travel are popular, too, and ranking next to biographies are the narratives of lands of the earth.

Have you ever imagined just what is the most popular novel or fiction to be read in this city? Of the library readers who are composed of hundreds of people in Wichita Falls, there have been more calls for "Shantung Garden," a novel which has been called for many times. It is a story of Chinese life written by Louise Mill, who has spent a great part of her life in China. Her new book, "In a Peking Garden," has just been received by the library and it is proving popular also.

That topic which is heard about a great deal today and which is discussed on the street corners and in classes at school, by clubs and groups; that which has been given a place of importance in actual life is also one of the most circulated volumes in the library. It is psychology. Books of all kinds on the subject are in the librarys and they are in constant use. Students in high school and junior college do reference work in the city library along with the Snider library at Junior college; men and women read the books, and members of a local psychology club are also readers of the subject.

Add a Librarian.

Growth of the number of persons using the library and in the circulation of books increased last year to such an extent that an additional librarian was added early in 1926.

The Kemp public library was remodeled and in the basement a children's reading room was arranged, taking out the room which had been located upstairs. Miss Nan McKinney was selected as librarian for the children's department. Miss Zula McKay and Miss Lucile Doke are assistant librarians.

The budget system by the American Library association recommends that a nassistant librarian be supplied for each additional 15,000 of 20,000 books circulated in the library. Last year, the three librarians, Misses Powell, McKay and Doke, circulated 84,000 books. Miss McKinney was added to the staf in the spring of this year.

Choice of books read by library patrons differ in the seasons of the year. In the summer when the days are long and hot, the reading tide turns to light fiction and stories of all natures. No heavy reading requiring thought is very popular. When the club season and the schools open, the literature changes. Non-fiction is best and is read consistently throughout the winter, the librarian pointed out.

The Kemp public library has 16,697 volumes, and an average daily reading list of 333, which is divided almost equally between men and women, boys and girls.

Some Valueless.

Problems that confront many libraries that have been established a long period of time do not bother the local librarians. Many institutions have on their shelves books on science and zeography that are no longer valued as authorities for the advance in knowledge and continued changes have made their materials valueless. The Kemp public library is practically new, having been officially opened in 1918, and its books are still "in date."

It was in 1917 that women citizens of Wichita Falls became interested in a library for the little city. They attempted to get a Carnegie library but of those in Texas a number were not going according to regulations, and they were refused a library.

Not to be outdone, a group from the Federated clubs held a meeting at the home of Mrs. C. W. Snider and discussed a library for Wichita Falls. Mrs. Snider was appointed chairman of a committee to work for such an institution, and from her committee grew the library board. It was then that Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp came to the rescue and they presented in 1918 to the city the library building complete.

The library board is composed of the group of women which worked in the organization of the library who have been active in the work since that time, and a group of men. The members are: Mrs. Snider, Mrs. J. A. Kemp, Mrs. M. M. Adickes, Mrs. J. T. Montgomery, Mrs. C. R. Hartsook, Messrs. W. M. Priddy, Walter D. Cline, George Thorbun, J. A. Kemp.

GERMANS PLEASED

Military Control Over Rhineland Reduced.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The retrenchment of the inter-allied military control commission is keeping pace with the growing conciliation between Germany and her erstwhile enemies. Today the commission comprises but 30 officers, the English and French officers predominating. At the beginning of the year there were 100 officers, even then less than half the staff that kept an eye on the country in 1919. There also has been a marked diminution in the clerical and technical staffs.

National Children's Book Week To Find Kemp Public Library Ready

"Good books are to the young mind what the warming sun and refreshing rain of spring are to the seeds which have lain dormant in the frosts of winter."—Horace Mann.

"Could we give one gift to every child we should choose the love of books."—William Frederick Bigelow.

Children of Wichita Falls will have the privilege of viewing, looking through and reading some of the choice books of the nation this week at the children's reading room of the Kemp public library, for it is National Children's Book week. Maybe that doesn't mean a great deal just now, but on Monday go to the reading room and see those books ranged in order on tables for children of various ages, and there you will see the best books published for juveniles.

These books are being displayed by Miss Lucial Powell and her assistants for National Children's Book week which begins Monday, November 8 and continues through Sunday, November 15.

A librarian will assist the children in looking through the books and give them an insight into the stories each one tells. One of the books is "Shen of the Sea," a delightful Chinese story for children, which was written by Arthur Bowie Chrisman, who was awarded the Newberry prize given each year to the author who has written the best story for juveniles.

Besides this, there will be scores of other books, and Miss Powell expects to prepare a review this week of a number of the best volumes displayed.

Children's National Book week was instituted several years ago to direct in the right channel selections of stories for youngsters. Each year at Christmas time, great sums of money are spent in buying books for boys and girls. To spend that money wisely and well is an object of the observance of book week which is also known as "Good Book Week." The observance has come about through the efforts of the American Library association which emphasizes children's reading.

Children will be given little book review blanks to help them keep the names of the books they have read. There is a place for them to write what they think of the book and to make any comment on it they wish.

Parents and children are invited by the librarians to visit the library and especially during Children's Book week.

STEP TO SUCCESS

Thinks Comedy Parts An Item in Screne Success.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.(AP)—Cecil B. De Mille, motion picture producer, is a believer in actors and actresses beginning at the bottom and working up. He thinks "three years in comedies" necessary to fit aspirants for parts in screen dramas.

"If I could have my way every actor or actress entering motion pictures would be forced to spend three years in comedy before attempting a straight dramatic photoplay," said De Mille.

"Little things they learn in comedies go a long way toward success."

FATHER FILES SUIT

Family Deserts Him So Parent Wants $25,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—A suit for $25,000 against Alcide Zuliant, a musician, for alienation of the affections of Angeolina Carafagno, has been filed by the woman's husband, Raffaele Carafagno. The defendant's bail upon a capias for arrest was put at $800.

The husband alleges Zullana induced his wife to desert him on August 23, and to run away with his five children. He also alleges the defendant is planning to leave Philadelphia, taking the woman and the children with him.

5,000 OVERSEAS

Many Americans Study In French Schools.

PARIS, Nov. 6.(AP)—Five thousand American students of all categories will be found enrolled in the French universities, and technical schools before the autumn registrations are completed, to judge from present indications. Last year's enrollment, roughly four thousand, was itself an advance of a thousand over 1924 and the university authorities look for the same advance in the 1926-1927 registration.

FAVOR BLACK AND RED

Black and red are the "fashionable" colors for this winter in Germany, textile firms report. Red mixed with a little blue is regarded as especially "nifty." Blue as ground color has almost gone out of existence.

Otter Skillful As 'Fisherman'

20-Pound Otter Seen Hauling In 13-Pound Trout In Water Fight

Cheaper fish and cheaper furs will rule in France if the report on otters prepared by the fishing club of France receives favorable attention by the ministry of agriculture. Otters are most destructive to the river fish, the report says, and it asks for permission to kill them at will. The fishermen demand that there shall be no closed season for otters.

Estimates given in the report indicate that more than a billion and a half of fish are killed every year by otters, and, it is asserted, this number is increasing annually.

In the department of the Seine Infericure there is an average of 12 otters for every mile of river, 24 in the Landes department, 40 in Calvados and 60 in the Pas de Calais.

There is no more skillful fisher than the otter. A 20-pound otter has been seen taking a 13-pound trout out of the Allier river. The appetite of the little animal is enormous. An inspector of the fishing club discovered an otter spreading out for its meal fish weighing 18 pounds.

British Pastor Off Charleston

Minister Denounces Dance As 'Stupid and Neurotic' Exhibition

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP) — The Rev. E. W. Rogers, vicar of Saint Aidens at Bristol, has come out flatfooted against the Charleston. He contends the dance is "stupid and neurotic." In his parish magazine the vicar declares "that the Charleston makes a dance room these days appears more like a lunatic asylum." The mentality of the persons who love the Charleston is either subnormal or abnormal, avers the minister.

"The dance is doing a lot of harm to respectable dances," charges the vicar and then he asks: "Have you ever seen college boys in Oxford bags do the Charleston? It looks as if a terrific gale was blowing up their trousers legs. It makes me sick.

"Any lover of the beautiful will die rather than be associated with the Charleston. It is neurotic! It is rotten! It stinks! Whew! Open the windows!"

YODLING DECLINES

Songsters Art In Switzerland Is Failing.

LUCERNE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Yodling is a lost art in Switzerland. Shepherds and farm hands look askance at American tourists who ask them to yodle. A party of tourists visiting Switzerland repeatedly asked natives for a yodle. They all looked puzzled.

Suddenly, just around a bend on the main road, came the thrilling notes of a perfect yodle and the visitors hurried to get a glimpse of the permormer.

He proved to be a husky American tourist.

USE WIRES TO STEAL

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Nov. 6.—William Griffin of Poplar Bluff was called to Dexter recently as a witness in the case of three Dexter youths charged with burglarizing the store of Arthur Utley. The youths are charged with using a piece of wire, sticking it through the hole below the shoe window and pulling silk hose through the hole below the shoe windoy and pulling silk hose through the hole.

SHOEMAKER ARTISTS

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The shoemaker has become an artist of exhibitory virtue in one fashionable Madison avenue shoe shop. Perched on green stools with red leather seats, two be-smocked shoemakers sit on either side of a bright green table in the huge oval window of the store and fashion the latest designs.

NEW FICTION FOR DELIVERY

Good Books Added in Past Week to Shelves In Wichita Falls

DARK DAWN, by Martha Ostenso.

In this novel, the young author offers another powerful drama of farm life on the prairie of our northwest.

The same shrewd understanding of character and the same grace of style that made "Wild Geese" so popular and brought the author into the front ranks of American writers, will be found again in "Dark Dawn."

GRANDEL FOLLOWS HIS NOSE, By Heywood Broun.

Having consulted a wizard, Gandle sets out on his eighteenth birthday to see and find out. His nose led him into a world of fantasy and delight, for right under it he found a lamp complete with genie.

Full of the fantasy, humor and philosophy that we have grown to associate with Mr. Broun.

LETTERS OF A SELF-MADE DIPLOMAT TO HIS PRESIDENT, By Will Rogers.

The author tells in his own words of his wide-spread activities during the European trip from which he has just returned.

MARTHA AND MARY, By J. Anker Larsen.

In a letter to the Danish publisher the author sets forth his point of view as "In the Philosophers Stone I was clearing the ground. Henceforward I will try by degrees to plant it. And in this my motto will be: The Temperal and the Eternal are Enamored of Each Other—Let Them be United."

MY MORTAL ENEMY By Willa Cather.

While directly presenting the end of a great love story in sketches unforgettably the entire life of a young woman, and the nineteenth century surrounding that produced her greatness of character.

SKIN FOR SKIN, By Llewelyn Powys.

Skin for skin is a slice of autobiography, the story of the author's fight against tuberculosis. Mr. Powys has a habit of talking in print about the members of his own family and dedicating his books to them. In Skin for Skin he gives a distinct personality to both his parents and his numerous sisters and brothers.

STRANGERS WITHIN THE GATES, By G. N. Bogle.

Watto brought up as a quiet studious child and considered by his father a scholarly fellow preparing for a political career, is in his own self a rough seaman, leading a predatory swashbuckling existence. This dual personality and the entanglements resulting from this complex furnishes the stranger and the plot for the story.

THIS LITTLE WORLD By Stella Benson.

Few books of travel and personal adventure keep the reader in a continual state of amazement and amusement as Stella Benson does. In this Little World, she writes about places and people in America, Japan, China and Indian, including a vivid account of her wedding journey across "the states" in a Ford car.

GUARD SHOOTS DICE AS CONVICT KEEPS EYE ON PRISONERS

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—A police officer at Versailles, on his beat about midnight noted a convict holding forth in the booth of the main gate of the prison generally occupied by the keeper on duty. Sixty prisoners slept soundly within.

"What are you doing there?" asked the policeman.

"Looking after the jail so no prisoners escape," replied the convict, who proved to be a burglar serving 5 years.

"Where is Mallet, the regular keeper?" inquired the cop.

Thither the policeman proceeded and, seated at a table was the keeper on duty engaged in a game of dice with a murderer recently sentenced to Devil's Island.

Mallet resigned the next day.

Famous Castle Removed To U. S.

Noted Chauteau de Courcelle Carried Over Atlantic Stone By Stone

The removal, stone by stone, from La Fleche, France, to Long Island, N. Y., of the famous Chauteau de Courcelle, erected by Mansart for Louis XIII. in 1640, has started a spirited campaign to induce parliament to enact a law making such undertakings impossible in the future.

Former minister of fine arts, Leon Bereaud, deputies Rameil, Auriol, Plaisant and Barety, will introduce a bill when the chamber reconvenes providing that "no monument of artistic and historical prominence may be removed from the country.

"The caprice of billionaires from the United States makes possible such an enormity," said Comoedia, the leading theatrical and artistic paper in France. "It is too late to prevent LaFleche leaving for America, but let us make it impossible for such a desecration to happen again. We must make our relics, antiques and national wealth safe from the cupidity of foreigners.'"

Although City Judge Clifford Davis, Memphis, is the youngest judge in the state, being only 29 years of age, Quinn is the youngest judge to occupy the circuit court bench in the history of Tennessee.

Stick Once Owned by Noted French Ruler Brings 45,000 Lire

TRIESTE, Nov. 6. (AP)—Napoleon's cane has been purchased by a local antiquary for 45,000 lire.

The cane had been cut from a wortle-berry tree by one of Bonaparte's soldiers after the battle of Arcola. Into the handle the artistic guardsman had skillfully cut the features fo his general with several episodes of the recent battle. The finished product he then presented to Napolon who carried the cane continually while he remained at Arcola. When he departed he inadvertently left it in the house at which he had stopped, where it had since been carefully guarded.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Fan letters from India often puzzle Belle Bennett because of their identity in form. She sought an explanation from J. J. "When they desire a photograph of their favorite motion picture stars, the professional letter-writer come to their aid with printed form letters."

MRS. WILLIE KEETER, Clifton, S. C.

Was a Suffering Invalid

"I HAD been in bed, flat on my back, for eight months," says Mrs. Willie Keeter, of Clifton, S. C. "Nothing gave me any relief. I tried numerous medicines but none seemed to reach the real cause of my trouble. I fell off until I weighed but ninety pounds. I was as white as a sheet—even my ears and lips had no color at all."

Then, one day, Mrs. Keeter's mother read of a similar case which was relieved by the use of Cardui.

"She read me what the woman said," continues Mrs. Keeter, "and just as soon as she finished I called my little boy and told him to go at once to the drug store and get me a bottle of Cardui. I found out very quickly that it was doing me good. I continued it with faith, for it brought me the first relief I had had in months.

"All pain left me and I continued to grow stronger. I began to gain in weight and in less than a year I had reached 132 pounds.

"My health is unusually good now. I am able to be up and to do my housework, whereas this time last year I was a bed-ridden invalid. I am truly thankful for this tonic for suffering women."

IT WAS A LONG FIGHT, BUT THIS CONGREGATION FINALLY WON

First Southern Presbyterians on Their Feet After Years of Trial; Handsome New Building Is Planned

Organization Endures In One Form Or Another For Over 35 Years; Has Three Names, Locations and Many Pastors

It's a long lane that has no turning, and for many of the First Southern Presbyterian church including charter members, that lane has seemed long indeed. But after passing through vicissitudes and changes, burdensome to that nucleus from which the now thriving church was formed, the road finally has swerved. A year of prosperity for the church is about to close and the congregation has entered a new era of building with a forward looking program planned for the coming year.

A church that in 35 years has had three names, five pastors and three buildings is now in the making of one of the influential religious organizations of the city.

Thirty-five years ago when Wichita Falls was a small town, there met at the First Methodist church a small group of people to hear Rev. G. T. Thompson, evangelist of the Dallas Presbytery. This meeting was on a Monday night, June 22, 1891. Nine Presbyterians were present and they organized a Presbyterian church in connection with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States. This was the Travis Avenue Presbyterian church with charter members: Dr. J. H. Dunn, Mrs. J. H. Dunn, Miss H. M. Dunn, Mrs. E. M. James, W. G. Daugherty, W. W. Parks, R. O. C. Lynch and S. D. Lynch, who is the only charter member remaining.

Mr. Parks who had formerly been an elder in Missouri was elected and installed an elder in the church. In the meeting held in the following week eight more members were received and by the spring meeting of the Dallas Presbytery, the little church reported 35 members.

Being too weak to have a pastor, the church enjoyed an occasional visit from the evangelist who preached and received other members into the organization. J. C. Hunt of this city was the twenty-ninth member of the church, and was made an elder and had the honor of being the first representative to Presbytery which met at Lancaster, Texas, April 7, 1892.

McCall Comes In

In 1893 Rev. John V. McCall, now of El Paso, came and supplied the church for a time, preaching at Iowa Park, Byers and Archer City. On March 18, 1894, the Dallas Presbytery met with the little church in Wichita Falls and Rev. W. H. Wycough, now of Fort Worth, was elected moderator. The second members received and still remaining was Mrs. W. M. Fuller.

That same year, J. C. Hunt was elected clerk of the session and faithfully performed that duty for many years. It was August 7, 1895, when Mrs. Caroline Hursh and Mrs. A. F. Kerr were received by letter from the Iowa Park church. Mrs. Kerr is the third member remaining.

The first pastor was Rev. W. T. George who gave half time to this church and half time to Iowa Park church. N. L. Lowrance, an elder in the Iowa Park church still, was for a short time a member here, and later with his family transferred to the Iowa Park organization.

From 1895 to 1900 members moved away from Wichita Falls and the organization of the Travis Avenue Presbyterian church languished and had to go without preaching save an occasional visit by some evangelist of the Dallas Presbytery sent up to encourage and fed the flock with inspirational messages.

For a ten-year period from 1900 to 1910, records of the church are incomplete. The next date in the history of the church shows that Rev. E. S. Lowrance, now pastor at Iowa Park, came on March 1, 1910 and began to supply the church.

On March 21, of that year, the church that had lain dormant with only a few members for 10 years was revived and interest sprang up anew.

New Members Come

Among the new members received were Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Reed, A. L. Fletcher and wife, Miss Jessie Reed, J. C. Presley, A. F. Kerr (who recently died) Mrs. J. G. Fain. At the meeting Dr. Reed and A. L. Wicher were elected elders. Deacons elected were A. F. Kerr, J. C. Presley, and F. C. Leach. Records of the church show that many of the members had moved away, some had gone into the First Presbyterian church and others had died.

Rev. Lowrance supplied the church for several years and his ministry was faithful and helpful. During his administration the name of the organization was changed to the Central Presbyterian church.

Other history followed and the third regular pastor, Rev. F. L. McFadden was called. He began his duties on May 15, 1912, serving the church for four years. A new church was built at Eleventh and Bluff.

The building committee was composed of the officers of the church, the pastor, Mrs. A. F. Kerr, Mrs. J. F. Reed and Mrs. M. C. White. Again the little church that had struggled so many years against handicaps began to grow. Members returned after many years with training in service and endurance of hardships with other struggling institutions. The church lost by death one of its elders, Frank McInnis who had served many years.

On the resignation of Rev. F. L. McFadden, 20 of the members united with the First Presbyterian church which during the years had grown rapidly. Again at this period, Rev. E. S. Lowrance served for a period of time, encouraging the little congregation. Rev. Guy B. Davis was the next regular pastor, also did splendid work for three years.

New elders, George Fleming, J. E. H. Railey, Ed S. Goodner and D. B. Reed were added. In 1920 Mr. Goodner was elected superintendent of the Sunday school and held that position until 1925 when he moved with his family to California.

For three years the church was without a pastor, having an occasional supply to talk. Rev. Fred L. Handcock came in April of 1925 and remained three months. During this time, Rev. Gaines B. Hall had been elected superintendent of Home Missions of the Dallas Presbytery with headquarters in Wichita Falls. During the time as supply, the church decided to sell its property on Bluff street and purchase new lots in front of the new municipal Junior college. On October 1, 1925, the church entered its new home in a tabernacle on the new lots. It also changed its name from Central Presbyterian (which meant nothing then by way of location) to First Southern Presbyterian.

Again It Grows

Again the church that had endured hardships and struggles began to grow. Dr. Gaines B. Hall was installed as pastor, January 1, 1926, and to date 60 new members have been received.

J. C. Presley and G. W. Fryer were added to the board of elders. D. M. Bernard, O. C. Dixon, C. V. Stodghill, E. C. Fly to the board of deacons. J. E. H. Railey was made superintendent of the Sunday school; Mrs. George Fleming, president of the Woman's auxiliary; Shelby Read, president of Christian Endeavor; Miss Vivian Railey, director of Junior Endeavors, and Miss Lillian Fain, director of the Intermediates. C. V. Stodghill is chairman of the board of deacons and J. C. Presley is treasurer; O. C. Dixon, treasurer of the building committee of the new church. D. M. Bernard is president of the Men's club.

No church could run long without its women, and among those who for the past years labored and prayed were Mesdames J. G. Fain, A. F. Kerr, R. C. Anderson, T. N. Colligan, J. E. H. Railey, F. C. Coolie, J. C. Presley, C. V. Stodghill, D. B. Read, Burk Taylor, J. N. Scott, F. R. Johnson, E. S. Goodner and others.

Plans have been drawn for a new $110,000 building. It is the purpose to erect the first unit of this building, the main auditorium with basement for Sunday school purposes and later when the church grows enough to demand it, erect the large Sunday school plant in the rear which will fit perfectly and harmoniously into the plan.

The Sunday school has outgrown its present quarters and a new temporary room was completed for the primary department.

The present official board is composed of Sessions: Dr. Hall, moderator; J. E. H. Railey, clerk; C. McFayden, George Fleming, D. B. Read, S. D. Lynch, George W. Fyer and J. C. Presley.

Deacons: C. V. Stodghill, chairman; D. M. Bernard, O. C. Dixon, F. R. Johnson, H. E. Wilson and E. C. Fly.

"With a new church in this fast growing section of our city the First Southern Presbyterian church will soon take her place among the other larger churches and help fill a great need, doing her part to help make Wichita Falls a leading city of churches in Texas," Dr. Hall, the minister said. "Just now we appeal to all Presbyterians to help reach the desired end. With charity for all God's people, a hearty desire to see every church growing and serving, from this time on, the First Southern Presbyterian starts on a new career to do a larger and better work for the people of Wichita Falls."

CITIZENS ARMED

Williamson County Now Has Own "Town Guards"

MARION, Ill., Nov. 6. (AP)—Williamson county, scene of numerous gang wars, klan and anti-klan strife and bootlegger's battles, boasts marksmen even among her professional and business men.

The banks in the county, realizing the danger of daylight holdups, have organized what they term "town guards." The group is composed of prominent business and professional men whose stores or offices are near or overlook the bank buildings. Each of the "guards" keeps a loaded high-power rifle secreted in his place of business—and he knows how to use it in the event of an attempted robbery.

Monthly rifle practice is held. At a recent session, each of the sharpshooters turned in marks of better than 90 percent.

DODGES CALLERS

Barrie's Phone Found Under Name Of Butler

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Like many shy persons, Sir James Barrie dreads being called on the telephone. But despite his dislike, the author feels that he should have a telephone in his home.

The name of Sir James, however, does not appear in the telephone directory. Nor is it registered in the secret files of the telephone department.

Instead, the 'phone is listed under the name of Sir James' butler, and by this system the writer is accessible by wire only to those intimate friends who know him well enough to also be aware of the name of his butler.

Built to make radio tubes work better and LAST LONGER!

HERE is a new "A" battery made especially for radio use. An exclusive formula used in its construction enables it to deliver steady, level voltage and gives it extraordinary long life.

Like all Ray-O-Vac batteries, it has staying power. It retains its strength when not in use, and after being used it starts to rebuild its strength the instant the current is turned off.

The best way to be sure of getting radio "A" batteries with uniform voltage and staying power is to ask for Ray-O-Vacs No. 1211 by name and number and identify them by the carton shown here.

You can buy Ray-O-Vac batteries ("A", "B" and "C") at the better radio and electrical dealers, music and department stores and auto supply shops.

HIGHLIGHT IN CITY METHODISM COMING SUNDAY AFTERNOON

CORNERSTONE OF BUILDING TO BE LAID

New $400,000 Structure To Be Started in View Of Conference Visitors

One of the high peaks in the history of the First Methidist church, south, of Wichita Falls, will be reached Sunday afternoon when the cornerstone of the new $400,000 building will be laid in the presence of thousands of Wichitans and hundreds of visitors to the North Texas district conference of the M. E. church, south.

Through a period of 46 years, the church has grown and functioned as one of the worthwhile institutions of the city, and throughout years of leanness and prosperity it has served its congregations well.

Almost half a century ago when the city was in its infancy, a mere hamlet on the Wichita river bounded by endless plains with roving bands of Indians here and there, Methodism first established in Wichita Falls. Rev. F. O. Miller, pioneer pastor, organized the little band of methodists into a church in 1880, four years after the first church in Wichita county had been completed.

He was pastor for years and at annual conference, Rev. Miller was transferred and Rev. D. D. Duncan was assigned to pastorate here.

Drouths Come and Go

Drouths came and went and so did pastors for in the next seven years the following ministers were assigned to the Wichita Falls church: H. P. Shrader, H. K. Agee, J. W. Blackburn, M. M. Dunn, L. P. Smith, L. B. Ellis, J. L. Pierce. Presiding elders at that time were M. C. Blackburn, W. F. Easterling and W. S. May. Then in 1889, S. C. Riddle was assigned to the church which was no longer a mission but a station. In 1891, the organizer of the First Methodist church of Wichita Falls, was returned. Rev. George F. Boyd was pastor in 1894-95, and he is attendance at the 60th annual conference of the district which closes today. He was pastor during two years and during that time, one of the hardest drouths recorded in the country came, and for a time he was the only preacher left in Wichita Falls.

"I never saw such liberality in a people as those pioneers showed," he said this week in reminiscing on his stay here. "The generosity and kindheartedness which is a characteristic of the members of the church today," he said. "Recollections of this time spent in Wichita Falls is the most beautiful painted on memory's walls now superanuated minister of Fort Worth, declared. W. D. Mountcastle was named presiding elder.

New Church Organized

For a period of 2 years, from 1895 to 1918, when the Floral Heights Methodist church, a branch of the first church, was organized, the following ministers served: C. M. Threadgill, R. G. Mood, J. P. Lowry, T. J. Beckham, J. C. Weaver, J. W. Smith, W. F. Bryan, W. A. Stuckey, J. A. Stafford, W. T. Morrow, C. M. Bishop, J. W. Hill, A. L. Andrews and S. A. Barnes.

Presiding elders who served in the district included F. O. Miller, E. W. Alderson, J. M. Peterson, T. R. Pierce, J. E. Roach, T. H. Morris and J. Sam Barcus.

Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker came to the first church in 1919 and served for three years. He was succeeded by Dr. C. M. Simpson, who was in turn succeeded by Dr. Walter J. Johnson, present pastor.

The church has carried on a big program since its organization, and in recent years has done much work in benevolences reaching the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

An office force of five members, a choir and many organizations within the church are necessary to carry on the work outlined by the officials.

Recently when plans were completed for the building of the new church, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Perkins donated to the First Methodist church, south, a parsonage on Tenth street.

70-Year-Old Trails Cross in This City as Conference Visitors Meet

Back in 1856 a young man named A. G. Chauncey was going to schol in Westville, Ala., and had as his instructor one William A. Edwards. Both were young men then—and that was 70 years ago.

The pupil left school and went his way through the world. The teacher did likewise. For 70 years they traveled their respective trails—and never did they cross.

But—

This last week William Edwards, now of Dallas and who is a superannuated minister of the North Texas Methodist conference, was in the audience at the First Methodist church, south, here. His 92 years give him the title of oldest man attending the conference.

Also is the audience was A. G. Chauncey, now 80 years of age and whose home is in Abilene. Incidentally, he is the father of W. G. Chauncey, one of this city's prominent business and civic leaders.

When the session ended, he sought out Edwards and found his teacher of 70 years ago. The two men, though they had not seen each other in 30 years less than a century, readily recognized each other, and since has followed many a reminiscent hour.

Treaty Covers Movement Of Cattle Infected By Disease

FORT WORTH, Nov. 6. (AP)—The international treaty on livestock sponsored by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association will be submitted to the United States senate as soon as congress meets in December, Dayton Moses, counsel for the association said today.

The treaty already has been approved by Mexico and by Secretary of State Kellogg. Ratification by the United States senate is the only step necessary to put the treaty in force.

Under the terms, Mexico and the United States will co-operate to prohibit importation of cattle from disease infected countries, and especially from South America, from which the foot and mouth disease is believed to have been brought to the United States.

The pact was proposed here more than a year ago at a meeting of the association's executive committee. Ike Pryor, of San Antonio, offered the resolution adopting the treaty.

British Wives Lagging Behind

Englishman Dares Danger By Telling Them They Are Not Progressive

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Sir Ernest Benn, the publisher, whose hobby is trade as a science, believes British house wives are lagging behind in the world of progress. British conservatism in regard to improvements in the home is altogether too conservative he contends.

"A census of the thumbs of cocks and house wives would show that two-thirds of them are permanently disfigured, cut, bruised and stained because of the old fashined idea that potatoes must be prepared by hand." Sir Ernest told an assemblage of women: "Fifty years ago Britain was the only nation on earth in business, but today we are a third if not a fifth rate people in the arts and processes we invented and gave to the world!".

There was virtually no limit to the use of household appliances in the United States, Sir Ernest pointed out. He remarked that the difference between the United States and Britain was that the Americans had a mechanical sense "and we should try to add to the charm of English life a part of that mechanical sense which makes American life so easy."

Citing the use of the telegraph, he mentioned that in 1924 figures showed that in Great Britain the number of telephones was only 24 per thousand against 28 in Iceland and 146 in the United States.

U. S. ARMY FLIERS FINISH PLANS FOR 'RIM OF AMERICA' HOP

ALL COUNTRIES SOUTH AMERICA TO BE VISITED

18,524 Miles To Be Covered By Fliers Circling South America

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Every country in Central and South America and all the principal islands of the Carribean Sea will be visited by United States army planes on their Pan-American flight, which begins December 15. This is revealed by the announcement of the complete itinerary for the trip.

Government statisticians have figured that the squadron of five planes will cover approximately 18,524 miles. No attempt will be made to break any speed records, for stops will be made in 71 cities, where the citizens will inspect the planes and equipment.

Maj. Rerbert A. Dague will be in charge. With him will be Capts. Arthur B. McDaniel, Ira C. Esker, and Clinton F. Woolsey and First Lieuts. Bernard S. Thompson, Leonard D. Weddington, Charles McK. Robinson, Muir S. Fairchild, Ennis C. Whitehead and John W. Benton.

The flight has been divided into six divisions and for each, an officer will go ahead to make ground arrangement. These officers are: First division, First Lieut. Byron T. Burt, Jr.; second division, First Lieut. Melvin B. Asp; third division First Lieut. William B. Souza; fifth division, Capt. Walcott P. Hayes; sixth division, First Lieut. Van G. Mermon.

The itinerary shows that Nicagagua is the only country not included on the schedule. The squadron will not fly over Bolivia, but the aviators will go there without their planes. Arica, the center of the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute between Chila and Peru, which the efforts of the United States failed to settle a few months ago, has been dropped from the schedule.

It has been definitely announced that the Loening amphibian plane from the Loening Aeronautical Engineering corporation will be used These planes alight on and take off from land or water. The body is built like a boat and has retractable wheels which, when drawn up, fit snugly into niches in the sides of the boat structure. When they are lowered the pilot can land on solid ground. A lever controlled by the pilot raises or lowers the wheels and even when flying over land, except at low altitudes, the wheels are usually kept in a retracted position to reduce wind resistance.

10 Hours In Air.

The planes will be capable of continuous flight for nearly 10 hours because of an extra fuel tank attachment, installed especially for the trip. At a speed of 100 miles an hour that will give the planes a crusing range of 1,000 miles, which is more than ample for any of the jumps, for the longest single hop, that between Neugen and Bahia Blanca, in crossing South America, from Chile to Argentina, is only 565 miles.

The inverted, or "upside down" Liberty engine is used in the planes. This modification of the original Liberty motor was perfected at the army air corps' engineering division because the inverted postion of the engine is believed to offer several distinct advantages. It can be more effectively stream-lined, for one thing, and this gives less head resistance and a wider range of vision for the pilot. It also permits a more advantageous position of the thrust line of the propellor with respect to the wings.

Map shows the principal cities that will be visited by United States army's squadron of five airplanes on their trip to Central and South America. Every Pan-American country except Nicaragua will be visited during the voyage, which is over a distance of 18,524 miles. Maj. Herbert A. Dargue, who is in charge of the expedition, is shown in inset. Photo below map shows Major Dargue (in center), with other officers standing in front of one of the Loening amphibian planes, which will be used on the trip.

Mexico Watches U.S. Air Activity

Much Interest Shown in Hop To Be Made Around South America

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—Great interest in the United States army's projected Pan-American flight was shown by Mexico City newspapers today in reporting the activities of Lieut. Byron T. Burt, air corps officer, who is making the arrangements as far south as Panama.

Accompanied by Major Thompson, assistant military attche, and commander Hamilton naval attache at the American embassey, Lieut. Burt left tonight for Tampico on a long journey during which he will visit all the projected stopping points in Mexico and Central America to arrange for landing places and supplies for the giant Amphibian planes which are expected to start about December 15.

SUBTLE CHANGE

Society Women Change Style Of "Make-up."

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—There is a subtle change noted in the make-up of the more extreme of the society women. The make-up is becoming less obvious and also less "vampish." The change is something of a revelation from the plied on rouge and crimson lipstick and there is missing the exotic perfume so noticeable during the recent season.

In Bond street beauty parlors it is confidently whispered that women are trying once again to have real complexions and that to be really a smart society dame one must cultivate the cream and white complexion of the average soap advertisement.

Penciled eyebrows and eyelashes are expected by the experts soon to disappear and with them its is asserted there will be a hastening of the end of the "eton crop."

MOTOR OF CAR HANGS IN AIR

Unique Tests Made Here By Star Automobile Dealer

A unique demonstration is attracting considerable interest and attention this week at the Parmenter Motor company, local Star distributor for this territory. A complete four-cylinder motor has been taken from a star car and suspended with four wires from the ceiling of the salesroom, with battery connections from the floor. Exhaust pipe is extended through the upper window over the door out on the awning. The water is pumped from a height of 12 feet above the motor. The motor hangs about four feet from the floor and can be stopped in an instant and run smoothly without the slightest vibration.

"This was our original idea of showing off the new Star motor, but we had no idea of the favorable comment it has created," said Mr. Dickey, salesmanger. "Our sales have increased over last year and we anticipate a still greater increase in the year-end."

BIG SURPRISE

One of the biggest surprises of the inclosed car salon at the Baltimore was the new Rickenbacker super vertical 8-90 European sedan which was expressed to Los Angeles for its initial bow.

It was the center of interest for throngs who visited the salon daily, according to L. O. Brown, of the Victory Motor company.

"I am firm in the conviction that a super automobile has been built and I believe that car to be the new Rickenbacker 8-90 European.

"One of the interesting features of the motor is the dual carburetor installation which I believe provided the most perfect carburetion ever devised for this type of motor. So far as I am informed this is the first standard straight eight in America to have two carburetors instead of the usual one."

CHRYSLER "50"

Standardized Quality

Keep Chrysler "50" in mind when you contrast it with other fours

Keep in the forefront of your mind the price of the Chrysler "50"—$750 for the Coupe, $830 for the Sedan, $780 for the Coach.

Then contrast the Chrysler "50" with the only four other four-cylinder cars of large production.

Compare the elements of size, beauty of design, beauty of finish and fittings, and the family seating proportions of the "50". Consider its unusual power, its speed of 50 miles and more per hour, acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in eight seconds, and the economy of 25 miles to the gallon.

The contrast will prove so striking, so unanswerable, that you cannot fail to recognize in the price of the Chrysler "50" a value which leaves no possibility of any other choice.

The Sunday afternoon musicale, although it doesn't sound very exciting is nevertheless one of the most popular programs broadcast from WTAM, the radio station of the Willard Storage Battery company, Cleveland, Ohio. Any radio fan within range of the Cleveland station can tell you this and the same person, if questioned as to just why he likes this orchestra, will be almost sure to say that it is primarily because it is "different." The numbers are different, the instrumentation different, and their rendition different.

Group of Veterans.

This ensemble, with the exception of an occasional minor change, has been playing together for seven years. This fact alone is sufficient to guarantee a good orchestra. Each man has become accustomed to the style of his fellows. The big secret of their playing, however, is co-operation. All the members have been blended into a harmonious whole, making a true "artists ensemble."

With an apparently larger rochestra than is really the care, due primarily to a concert organ called the harmonium, they are enabled to play selections not ordinarily attempted by small orchestras. Most of their numbers are imported and arranged by Mr. Janssen.

The Planetary Transmission Makes Driving Easier

The planetary transmission, as used in Ford construction, is the simplest, most direct and most reliable means of speed control for light cars. It costs more to build, but its numerous advantages far outweigh any other consideration. It makes the Ford car more flexible in traffic—with starts, stops and speed changes accomplished faster and more easily. Complete control through foot pedals makes it unnecessary to remove your hands from the steering wheel.

The Ford transmission will stand almost any amount of hard usage; there are almost never any replacements.

Ford economy methods alone make it possible to build this superior transmission into Ford cars, yet keep Ford prices the lowest ever offered.

WHIPPET WINS PUBLIC'S OKEH

So Declare Dealers And They Detail Reasons For Popularity

The nation-wide demonstration of the ability of the Whippet, the new, European type light car produced by Willy-Overland, to average better than 30 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and to show a developed power 100 per cent in excess of its rated power, has brought forth a general question as to what constitutes the reason for this efficiency.

Fuel Put to Work.

In a statement just given to the press by A. J. Baker, Chief Engineer of Willy-Overland, Inc., at Toledo, he says:

"The explanation of the efficiency of the Whippet is simply this: In our new engine we put the fuel to work. In any engine only a certain proportion of the heat value of the fuel is converted into useful work. We have succeeded in combining an efficient manifold (which conducts the gas where we want it, and nowhere else) with an equally efficient cylinder head; and the combination of the two has resulted in an increase in thermal efficiency, that is to say, more of the heat in the fuel is turned into useful work.

Gas Feed Compact.

"The cylinder head, which incidentally gives a compression of 22 1-2 per cent, is designed so that the gas at the moment of firing is in as compact a shape as possible. The spark has the shortest distance to travel, and combusion is completed practically instantaneously. Due to the small surface of the combustion chamber, less heat is radiated; so that the pressure of the expanding gas is maintained will down the power stroke."

Movie Director Uses Chevrolet

Hal Roach Praises Service Given Him By This Make of Car

Out in the motion picture sanctuaries of California, where money, genius and picturesque country unite to provide romantic and thrilling screen stories, the automobile is handed most strenuous assignments.

Use of motor cars and trucks has made possible filming pictures in backgrounds that have the authentic atmosphere of the Old West. Year by year, motion picture men declare, it is becoming necessary to go farther afield to secure new and unspoiled scenic effects.

Hal Roach, of the studios which bear his name, recently established a permanent camp at the Big Horn ranch near Moapa, Nev., as headquarters for the use of his production companies when engaged in making western pictures.

A marked absence of roads is one of the chief beauties of the surrounding country from the standpoint of the directors but the transportation department found it very difficult to establish communication to many of the localities chosen, where the dry bed of sand was the best possible substitute for the highway to be found.

"After various types of motor vehicles had been tried," says Hal Roach, "a Chevrolet truck was purchased. It proved so completely satisfactory that four more were added and the fleet of five has since, time and again, proved its ability to go anywhere and back again through the roadless desert around the Big Horn ranch.

SPACE FOR CARS

Parking Space For 115,000 Autos In Heart of City.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Parking space for 15,000 automobiles in the heart of the city, without standing one of them in the streets, is an unique adjunct of Chicago.

The parking area is in Grant park, on the shore of Lake Michigan. Just across Michigan avenue lies the business center.

Grant park was made by filling in the lake. It is a half mile wide between the parking space and the shore, but a strip 300 feet in width lies between the depressed tracks of the Illinois Central railroad and the main driveway. In this space for ingress, there is room for 14 rows, or 16,800 cars.

BOB MANNIKINS

Novel Way to Show Hair Styles Devised.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP) There is a shop on 59th street that sets the fashion in bobs. The window is filled with paper mannikins who wear bobs of every style of real hair. A customer merely points to a certain style of bob and says, "I'll take that one." Sometimes they come out looking like the bob they chose and sometimes they don't.

Auto of Judge R. E. Huff Is First Texas Car To Use Nova Scotia And Cape Breton Island Ferry Boat

The first Texas automobile ever to use the ferry between the mainland of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton Isle, separated by the Strait of Canso, came from Wichita Falls. It crossed that stretch of water this past summer when Judge and Mrs. R. E. Huff, Dr. R. E. Huff, Jr., and Miss Ella Huff, the latter of Devol, Okla., included this section of the country on a long automobile tour through the east, northeast and other sections of the country. The trip carried them through most of the picturesque spots of Maine and into the provinces of Brunswick and Nova Scotia in Canada.

The business conditions of the east, the quaint and picturesque customs of these residents at the far northeastern tip of the United States, the wildly rugged beauty of the White mountains and other noted resort regions, the historic scenes around Boston, Lexington, Conford, Bunker Hill and other points are all described in interesting fashion by Judge Huff in a letter concerning the trip of the Wichita Falls party.

"The family had preceded to the east and I joined them at Portland, Maine, on August 10. We enjoyed the wonderful scenery of the White mountains and visited numerous points of interest in Maine after which we crossed the line into Canada.

"The people of Maine as a rule appeared prosperous, although the variety of crops grown was very different from what we are accustomed to. Potatoes and hay are the principal crops.

"We were impressed with the green foliage of the forests and the number of rivers and lakes. Although Maine is a comparatively small state the Kennebec, Penobscot and Androscoggin rivers carry huge volumes of water and are very beautiful, clear streams.

"Near Bar Harbor the U. S. government has established a national park, the first to be established east of the Mississippi river. John D. Rockefeller and Edsel Ford have their summer homes near it and both are very magnificient as to size and furnishings. Maine highways as a rule are very good, mostly graveled, but in excellent condition.

"At Calais, Maine we left the United States and crossed into Canada. New Brunswick people are mostly descendants of early Scotch and English pioneers and are a hardy race. St. John, its largest city, has a good harbor and is a large shipping point. One of the sights at St. John is what they call the "Reversible Falls." The St. John river coming down to the Bay of Fundy has quite a fall over the rocks near the bay. When the tide is coming in the waters reverse and flow backwards over the falls. It would seem better to call it a "Reversible river," as it seems more descriptive to an inlander.

"On board the ferry running across the Strait of Canso, which lies between the main land of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton Island, we were told by the captain of the boat, who keeps a record of all cars ferried across, that ours was the first Texas car to be taken across the ferry.

"The city of Sidney, on Cape Breton Island, was the most eastern point on our trip. They have good coal mines there as well as a giant steel mill, and the mills had just received an order for a large shipment of steel rails from the Canadian Pacific railway, which new business had made the populace jubilent over the prospect of full time operation for several months.

"We entered Canada about a month before the general election for a new parliment and political excitement was intense.

"We visited Halifax, the capital of Nova Scotia, which is one of the earliest settlements in Canada. The city has a fine shipping business but the steamboat business up the St. Lawrence river to Montreal has hurt this harbor very much. Both St. John and Halifax complain bitterly that Canadian railway lines are allowed to ship through Portland, Maine, and Boston, Mass., points.

Prohibition sentiment seemed very strong in Nova Scotia, and the law seemed to be well enforced.

On our return trip we crossed the Bay of Fundy, famous for its high tides, and re-entered the United States, driving to Boston. Boston is a hustling city of 750,000 population, and we visited a number of historical spots, including Bunker Hill, Concord, Lexington, Paul Revere's home and Fanuel Hall and the old North church.

We went from Boston to New York and spent 10 days in and about the city. We made a motor trip up the Hudson river and the Adirondack mountains and saw the many magnificent homes on Riverside drive. We were much impressed with the many beautiful lakes in the Adirondacks, and visited Lake Champlain, Lake George, Placid lake and Lake Saranac, besides many other smaller ones.

We came down the west side of the Hudson and visited the interesting military school at West Point. The "Storm King highway" gives a magnificent view of the Hudson river for many miles and its curves and descents required skillful engineering to build. We crossed back over the Bear mountain bridge, which New Yorkers claim is the largest suspension bridge in the world. It swings high over the river and is a scene within itself. The highways in New York state are excellent and are kept in perfect condition.

We visited the Philadelphia Sesqui-centennial and was there when the Tunney-Dempsey fight was on. Dr. Huff attended the fight.

We visited many other places of interest on the return journey, including the Gettysburg battlefield and a guide here pointed out the different places where the fight was waged. The government has installed monuments at various points where both union and confederate forces were stationed and one gets a vivid impression of the heroic bravery and sacrifice of the American soldier when viewing this battlefield. We saw the place where Pickett's Virginians made their celebrated charge; the point where General Armistead was killed after crossing the stonewall before leaving Gettysburg, and other places of civil war interest.

We crossed the Susquehanna river on a bridge that bore this inscription: "The bridge over the Susquehanna river was burned by union forces June 30, 1863, to prevent confederate soldiers from crossing." This seemed strange, but the guide informed us that a confederate division was about to cross the bridge on their way to Philadelphia, and the bridge was burned to retard their progress.

We visited at Richmond, traveled down through the beautiful Shenandoah valley and also visited various points of interest in North Carolina.

North Carolina is building one hundred million dollars worth of highways and this work is now in progress. It is a state of many factories and many thriving cities.

We found business good in Tennessee, and visited Chattanooga, Knoxville and Memphis, returning through Arkansas and stopping at Little Rock and Hot Springs.

DODGE READY

New Slogan Only Announcing of Improvement by Dodge

Arousing widespread interest among the southland motorists, the words "Now Drive the Car," announce in simple and characteristic manner the recent vital improvements which Dodge Brothers have made in their product, according to Julian McFall of McFall Brothers.

"This simple invitation to try the car and note the results," declares Mr. McFall, "is typical of the advertising policy of a manufacturer whose statements have always enjoyed implicit confidence, thanks to a twelve-year-old reputation for avoiding extravagant or spectacular advertising claims."

AUTOCRACY JOLTED

Berlin Police Change Tactics In Democracy.

BERLIN, Nov. 6. (AP)—Nothing better illustrates the change from monarchism to democracy in Germany, said Karl Severing, recently resigned as Prussian minister of the interior because of ill health, than the mottoes of the old and the present Berlin chiefs of police. Herr von Jagow in the Kaiser's day, Severing said, ran the department on the principle: "I warn the curious to stay away." Today the slogan of the police department is: "Please step closer."

BIBLE EPITAPHS KNOCKED OUT.

LANGLEYBURY, Eng. — The rule of Rev. R. V. Shaw that only Biblical quotations might be put on tombstones in the cemetery of his church has been annulled by St. Albans Consistory Court. As a result G. M. Dodwell will be permitted to put the following verse from Browning on his father's tombstone.

One who never turned his back but marched breast forward.
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better,

AUTO WITHOUT CLUTCH SEEN

French-Inventor Eliminates Gearshift Control In Transmission

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—An automobile without clutch or gear box was the sensation of the automobile show. It is the work of a Rumanian engineer George Constantinesco who, during the war, invented the synchronizing device which enabled airmen to fire their machine guns through the propeller.

The gear ration alterations are due to a four dimensional system that is as unique as it is difficult to understand. A pendulum operated by the crankshaft of the engine and articulated at the top and at about one-sixth of its length is the basis of the idea. The drive to the back axle is taken between the two articulations.

Thus the greater the resistance of the back wheels, the slower the movement of the pendulum must be, and therefore the lower the gear and the greater the power of the engine.

Although the engine is only of five horsepower it will pull a four passenger sedan at a speed of 45 miles an hour on the level and on hills will easily beat machines of four times its motive power. It is, morever, said to be very economical to operate.

NASH BUYS PLANT

Buy Seaman Plant to Build Closed Bodies.

In line with the production expansion of the Nash Motors company made necessary by the greatest demand for Nash cars in the history of the company, a large addition to the plant of the Seaman Body corporation of Milwaukee has just been completed. The Seaman business, owned in half by Nash Motors, is devoted entirely to the building of inclosed bodies for Nash.

The addition to the Seaman plant is a five-story building. Installation of equipment to be used in the various departments in the new building is well under way and when this has been completed the plant will rank as one of the most modern and finest equipped automobile body factories in the world.

IS BRONTOSAURUS ALIVE? EXPLORERS TO ASCERTAIN.

BASONGO, Belgian Congo.—Is the brontosaurus extinct, or does it or a near relative, haunt the little-known forests of central Africa? This is a question that a party of English explorers, headed by Lieut. Col. H. F. Fenn, will try to answer by an expedition to Lake Edward. There has been reported a huge aquatic animal which moves with a snake-like motion through the water. The expedition will also take moving pictures of gorillas.

'AAA' TO SPONSOR WOMEN DRIVERS

Other Changes Also To Get Attention of Racing Control Board

WASHINGTON, Novfl 6.—A greatly enlarged program of automobile racing activity looking to the promotion of the sport, the betterment of driving and the improvement of automobiles generally was adopted here today at the first meeting of the new Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

The new board, which is the national and international authority on American auto races that have official and championship status, held its inaugural meeting at the headquarters of the Automobile Association here.

Henry Is President.

The board, which convened at the invitation of Thos. P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., is composed of leading representatives of the public and the press, of outstanding automotive engineers of spokesmen of champion drivers and of representatives of the board speedways and the dirt tracks operating under contest board sanctions and safeguards. Following are the members of the board who were present at today's conference:

Tomas L. Milton, veteran race driver, New York City; David Beecroft, Vice-president, Chilton Class Journal Co., New York City; F. A. Croselmire, Manager R. and H. Platinum Works, New York City; Samuel E. Hibben, Chicago, Ill.; T. E. Myers, Manager, Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Indianapolis, Ind.; Horace P. Murphy, dirt track manger, Syracuse, N. Y.; Coleman W. Roberts, Manager, Charlotte Speedway, Inc., Charlotte, N. C.; Ray Sherman, Editor, Motor, New York City; T. J. Litle, President, Society of Automotive Engineers, Detroit, Mich., and William F. Sturm, newspaper and magazine writer, Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. Henry, Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the A. A. A., and Val Haresnape, manager of the contest board, took part in the conference on behalf of the parent organization.

Want Women Racers .

One of the most interesting suggestions put forward today related to the feasibility of the board undertaking the sanction of races which would enable women drivers to exhibit their skill at the wheel and to promote greater interest in racing and in driving among the millions of women car owners in America. Such contests, it was said, could be conducted in various sections of the country and there is no reason why we should not have a champion woman driver just as we have champion women golfers, swimmers and tennis players.

Another important resolution adopted today was to request the society of automotive engineers to make a technical study of major A. A. A. racing events with a view to the drafting of a report on the operation of various makes of cars and accessories. This data would be made available to the manufacturers and such of it as would interest the public would be broadcasted to the press. This step, it was said, would bring the board and its operations into more intimate contract with automotive engineering.

After Unsanctioned Tracks

Because of the great many unsanctioned and unregulated auto races conducted by promoters who are not financially responsible, who do not give the public what they pay for and from which the drivers often go without their prize money and in which many serious accidents occur because of lack of adequate safety standards, it was the unanimous wish of the board that the A. A. A. body should undertake the development of plans whereby the larger dirt tracks operated at state and local fairs and as independent ventures should be brought under the sanction of the contest board. This policy, members averred, will assure first class championship races in many places where the public heretofore has had no opportunity to see first class drivers in action.

DUCHESS ACTIVE

Wife of French Pretender Stages Intrigues

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—The Duchess of Guise, wife of the new pretender to the French throne, has spent some weeks in Paris, visiting the leading royalist families and giving receptions for royalist supporters. The French republic has looked on with equanimity and has not interfered.

The duchess, one of the sisters of the late Duke of Orleans, is permitted full scope in promoting royalist propaganda. Women of the Royalist pretenders are not barred from France.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Female Athletes in Berlin Go On Warpath

BERLIN, Nov. 6. (AP)—Women athletes have started a campaign for equal rights. They want a woman's athletic association subsidized by the government and run entirely by women. Men have such an organization, they say, but it also supervises amateur sports of women. A separate body, cooperating with the men whenever necessary, it is believed, would more effectively promote athletics among women.

PRINCESS AS "DOPESTER"

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Princess Mary warmly wrapped in heavy coat trimmed with ponyskin, was an interested spectator at the autumn racing gallops. When she saw Solario, she remarked that it seemed impossible such a beautiful creature could be beaten. Her words were not prophetic, however, for Solario was nosed out in the big race.

DOG SPEAKS GERMAN

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 6.—Thunder, the police dog movie star, does not understand English. Frank Foster Davis, owner and trainer of Thunder, directs in German to avoid confusion when the director of a production is instructing the actors. The dog works according to words, not by the trainer's gestures.

American Influence Evident In French Motor Car Trade

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The influence of American automotive practice is becoming more and more apparent in the French industry. This is shown particularly in the growing favor for six cylinder machines. Twenty new six cylinder models are on the market this year. The French automobilist demands above all economy, high speed and as much comfort as is compatible with those conditions. Consequently all the new six cylinder engines are small, varying from 1,200 cubic centimeters to 2,500 in capacity with engine speeds up to 3,500 revolutions per minute. These machines will carry four passengers at speeds ranging from 50 to 65 miles an hour and cover from 20 to 28 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Although the largest of them is smaller in engine capacity than the smallest American automobile, yet they are so well designed that they will accomplish almost as much.

Chrysler Goes Through Storm

Automobile Given Severest Test In Florida's Hurricane

From out of the desolation and restoration in hurricane swept Florida have come unusual tales of queer storm accidents, and the havoc wrought by terrific storm with millions of dollars' worth of automobiles. In the holocaust which virtually stripped the southern state's magificent winter resort sections, destroyed crops and fruits of all kinds and made homeless nearly 16,000 persons, the tales of rescues attempted and effected are awe-inspiring.

The Rev. E. E. Madeira, pastor of St. John's church in Hollywood, Fla., hurried to the door of the parsonage on September 18 to see the deafening hurricane swooping down upon the city. "I saw my home damaged, my garage blown away, and destruction wrecked on every hand," the Rev. Maderia wrote, in a letter addressed to the Chrysler factory. "Through the terrific wind and rain and the smashing of buildings all about us, my Chrysler roadster stood unharmed where the garage had been. As the worst of the storm blew over I dug away the timbers and other wreckage and stepped on the starter. The motor started at once and every day and night since then that car has contributed valiantly in the distribution of food and other relief to the less fortunate."

OLDS CHANGES

Lock Too Good For Careless To Appreciate.

Surprising as it may seem, the automobile owner does not wish to take any trouble to protect the investment he has in his car. In fact, it makes him angry to be forced to do so. That is the conclusion that the Olds Motor Works reached when, in the course of bringing out the new Series E models, a positive locking device was installed which automatically locked the car when the ignition was turned off.

So many were the protests from Oldsmobile owners that the company had to modify the lock so the motor could be shut off without locking the switch.

That is the inside story of the new Oldsmobile ignition lock as received from the factory, by M. F. Birch, of the Birch Motor company.

REMARKABLE WAGER WON

RICHMOND, Eng.—For a wager, John Hope accomplished one of the most remarkable pedestrian feats on record. He backed himself to pick up 100 stones within an hour, the stones to be placed a yard apart, and each stone to be picked up separately and carried to a hamper which remained stationary. Therefore, the distance covered by the stones was something like 106 yards, while the total distance he had to run to pick up the whole of the stones represented about 5 3-4 miles. There was a great gathering of people on Richmond Moor to watch the event. Hope accomplished the feat in the extraordinary short time of 45 minutes, thus having 15 minutes to spare, amidst the loud cheers of the spectators. He is a married man in his 30th year, and stands 5 feet 6 inches.

KNIGHT CAR IN RECORD CLASS

Owner of 'Great Six' Makes Record Run With His Car

Stories of remarkable performances of the Willy-Knight Great Six are constantly coming to the attention of the officials of the Willys-Overland, Inc., from all sections of the country. Outstanding among them is the description of a 4940-mile journey from Toledo, Ohio, to the west and return, made by Dr. Lyman L. Zarbaugh, Toledo dentist.

Climbs Hills Easily.

"On straightaway roads, climbing hills and steep mountain grades, traversing unpaved, rough and muddy highways, always did the Great Six respond to every demand, without a strain on the motor, proving its road stability and riding comfort," Dr. Zarbaugh writes.

"We covered 4940 miles in 18 days for an average of 275 miles a day, the longest mileage being 140, this being out of the south entrance to Yellowstone Park at Dubois, Wyoming.

"The most severe test came in crossing the continental divide. There were two climbs, one of 8,000 feet elevation and another of 10,000 feet which were accomplished in high gear.

Low Gas Consumption.

"Next to the ability of the Great Six to speed up when called upon I believe the position of the horn button on an extension arm on the steering wheel was most appreciated, because otherwise I would have been forced to make the dangerous mountain drive with only one hand on the wheel.

"We used 316 gallons of gasoline on the entire trip, averaging 15 2-3 miles per gallon."

Electra, Once Called Beaver, Renamed In Honor of Texas Maid

Bustling City Stands Where Cattle Roamed

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Wherever men talk of the flowing gold from the yellow sands the fame of Electra is known. Wherever men engaged in the oil industry under American skies foregather the story of Electra is known. There is reason for it. In the memory of men of marked activity now in the land of the living there were grazing herds on rich pastures where a progressive city now dots the map and the modern accessories of civilization are everywhere in evidence.

Once Known As Beaver Town

In the not remote past the cowboys and their herds ranged where the tall derricks are found today and the livestock industry was the principal money making investment of those who dominated the open spaces of this and many adjoining counties which in recent years have been given over to the plow and the hoe and the manifold industries of a most complex civilization.

All readers of newspapers are familiar with the history of Electra, the discovery of petroleum, the growth of the industry and the growth of the city. In 1890 it was the Beaver post office, in 1902 the name of the place was changed from Beaver to Electra, in honor of Miss Electra Waggoner, daughter of William T. Waggoner, on whose ranch the townsite was located and who died in New York not many months since.

$500,000 Public School Plant

In nine years Electra grew from a village of one hundred people to a city of five thousand. It's growth has continued ever since. In 1920 the census gave it a population of 4,744, and the present population is estimated on the basis of public school enrollment at just below the ten thousand mark. Electra is a modern city. Electra has the commission form of government. Electra has fire protection of the best, water supply of the best, sanitation of the most modern, and one hundred and twenty-four blocks of brick and asphalt paving and fifteen blocks of sidewalk.

Electra is on two state highways and hard-surface roads reach out into her trade area in five directions. There are more than ninety miles of hard surface roads within seventeen miles of this thoroughly progressive city. Electra has educational facilities of the best, its high school has thirty and one-half units of affiliation with the University of Texas and the five elementary schools have first-class rating.

These schools are housed in buildings of fireproof construction representing an investment of over $500,000. Electra has a public library which contains more than 2,500 volumes and is maintained by a liberal appropriation made by the municipal government.

Electra has all of the principal Protestant churches and a Catholic church, a municipal park and swimming pool, three moving picture theatres; a country club with a modernly equipped club house and regulation nine-hole golf course. Electra has its business blocks wherein are housed all that goes with a modern city which supplies a large local population and a rich trade territory.

Electra has a chamber of commerce directed by live-wires and a membership composed of city as well as character builders. There are more than two hundred retail stores, including five department stores; three general hardware stores, fifty grocery stores, twenty filling station and garages, eight automobile sales agencies, five oil well supply houses, four lumber yards, and eight drug stores.

Electra's Growth Steady One

This is one side of the picture. Electra has light and power service provided by a modern electric company and never failing supply of natural gas for domestic and industrial purposes provided by the local company. Electra has a large tin bucket brigade and this brigade represents a heavy payroll.

There is ample reason for this. Speaking of industries which support the brigade and supply the payroll, there are three petroleum refineries, eight casing head gasoline plants, two machine shops manufacturing oil field tools, three grain elevators, two ice manufacturing and cold storage plants, one creamery, three cotton gins, one modernly equipped steam laundry and one chick hatchery with a twenty thousand egg capacity.

Oil Was The 'Sesame' To Electra's Wealth

Electra has been a city of steady growth and statistics herein employed tell the story better than words. Electra has newspapers, modern newspapers and the first was established in 1907. Electra established its first independent school district in that year and the original townsite of Electra containing two thousand four hundred and ninety lots and the lots sold that year at fifty dollars each and alloted to the purchasers at a public drawing.

Moreover the Waggoner colony land consisting of fifty-six thousand acres lying north of Electra were sub-divided in eighty acres and put on the market by W. T. Waggoner. These historical illusions are not out of place and the statistics of the progress including

Burglar Gets $200 But Forgets Boots

CORNING, Nov. 6.—A burglar, who left his shoes behind, stole $200 from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Jones of Gibson. They were awakened by someone at the front door. They went downstairs and found the door open.

The money was missing and a search of the house revealed a pair of shoes in one of the bedrooms. Mr. and Mrs. Jones, who conducts a general store in their home, had retired after placing the money in a dresser drawer. The front door was left unlocked for a roomer who arrived home about 1 o'clock.

By FANNIE BRICE.

PLEASE, kind people, don't think I have gone goofy, or that I have become a theosophist or spiritualist. I claim nothing supernatural (that's the way Houdini puts it, I believe), but I'll just put the facts up to you, and you can write your own conclusions:

I was once a newsgirl in New York. If I am, ever was or ever become an "artiste," it is entirely spontaneous, maybe accidental; I never had any technical schooling. For years I was a clown; I twisted myself into grotesque attitudes, used a broad and burlesquey dialect and was a knockabout comic.

Then, in 1913, when I was at the peak of a tremendous music hall hit in London, the "Daily Sketch" said:

"Miss Brice makes one cry as well as laugh; not only laugh until one cries, but there is a tragic note behind her funning. And, somehow, she exudes an almost weird, uncanny impression of similarity to Sarah Bernhardt."

It knocked me for a twister. I—Fannie Brice—was tragic? What kind of kidding was that? I looked or acted like Sarah Bernhardt? How come? But I couldn't get it out of my mind—not my conscious mind, mind you, but my subconscious mind. It kept bobbing up, in the night, at most unexpected times in the day. And the next thing I knew, I picked up a song, "My Man," a classic in the tragedy of a woman's soul. I never would have touched it if it hadn't been for that Bernhardt paragraph. But now I couldn't keep away from it.

I had it translated. I came back to America and sang it. It was the outstanding success of my whole career. It attracted David Belasco to me, it made me what they call a "star" on the stage, and has brought me to the zenith of a player's ambition, to be a "legitimate" star under the immortal Belasco.

Now, this Bernhardt thing began to "get" me. I bought all the books I could get on Sarah (she was then still alive) and all the pictures. I decorated a room in my home with nothing but Bernhardt pictures and Bernhardt trinkets. Then—I met her. She was in her last glorious, pitiful days, lame, game, still serving her inspired art. I met her in Chicago, where she was in vaudeville, playing "Camille." The moment she saw me she reached out her hand and I, with tears streaming down my cheeks, put out mine. It was as though she had long been waiting—and I had, too—and I had come.

She knew me—all about me. She patted my head. I kissed her withered, beautiful hand. She said to me in French:

"Go on, girl. You will have to carry on, because Sarah is not long for this world."

I?!! Why should I carry on, poor Fannie Brice, because the divine Sarah was going?

That same year she passed into history. Within a week, a famous medium called on me. She wanted nothing from me. She was agitated. She said:

"Last night I talked with the spirit of Sarah Bernhardt. She told me to seek you out and say to you 'Carry on!' She said you would understand."

Well, I do NOT understand. But—what is it all about? After that the strangest series of events happened, every one with Sarah Bernhardt somehow associated. The most uncanny one was when I had my nose reshaped, and, after the job was over, the doctor laughingly told me: "You know, I designed your new nose from a definite model, not just arbitrarily. I did it after a profile of Sarah Bernhardt!" I had never mentioned her to him. He knew nothing of my "complex."

Then the great day came into my life, when Belasco sent for me. He told me many things. One of them was—"You know, somehow, whenever I see you act, even in low comedy, I cannot wipe from before my eyes a misty presence of my lifelong friend and adored divinity, Sarah Bernhardt!"

The night I opened in "Fanny" at the Lyceum, in New York, I felt all wrong. I didn't get going in the first and second act comedy at all. Then came my big pathetic curtain-climax, when I have to make an emotional appeal. I was sick at heart; I felt I was "flopping."

Suddenly, from nowhere, came a filmy vision. And I mean just that. I saw her as surely as I see the paper on which I write this line—it was Sarah Bernhardt. She did not look as she looked the day I kissed her hand. She was young and beautiful and vigorous and smiling. She pointed an eloquent finger at me and she said—

"Carry on! Go on, girl! Courage!"

And through the scene she was WITH me. I don't remember how I did it, what I did. But there was a riotous outburst of applause.

Electra, City Where Progress Wins

school enrollment, postal receipts and bank deposits each tell an amazing story of the growth of business and the march of progress.

Speaking of the bank deposits Electra has banks and bankers, the former enjoying the confidence of the people and the latter noted for their vision and loyalty to their city and state. There is money in oil. Production of crude petroleum in the famed Electra fields in 1925 approximated 6,294,455 barrels with an annual payroll in the oil field industry of more than two million dollars.

It is worthy to note that the value of this oil was thirteen million one hundred twenty-four thousand one hundred ninety-four dollars and eighty cents with an average price per barrel of two dollars and nine cents.

One of Oldest North Texas Fields

Drawing upon historical records it may be added that the Electra oil field is with one exception the oldest field in north Texas, located in the central western portion of Wichita county and extending approximately four miles in Wilbarger county. Also this oil field surrounds the city of Electra and the production is distributed over an area or approximate one hundred and forty-four square miles.

An eminent authority has said that although fifty million barrels of high gravity oil have been taken from the Electra field its fame is not due to quantity of production but rather to quality of the crude and longevity of production and the additional claim is made that there is abundant evidence that there is an extensive area of proven acreage yet to be proven.

Eleven Oil Producing Sands

It is said that there are 11 definite oil producing sands, ranging in depth from 175 to 1900 feet in this territory and the additional and very important claim is made that a higher per centage of naphta is found in Electra crude oil than is found in crude from any other field in the United States. It is the proud boast of the citizens that Electra is the city of beautiful homes, fine churches, excellent schools and has never had a bank failure.

Petroleum is a game of giants. All of the American world is on wheels. This is the auto age. This is the tractor age. This is the concrete highway age. There are billions invested in the oil industry the world over and in this mid-continent territory the investments are visible to the naked eye without the aid of glasses.

A gigantic industry is the petroleum industry which has given Electra and other near-by fields a vast deal of wealth as well as plenty of legitimate publicity wherever the whirring wheels of industry go round and round. This was a cattle country first and before it became a petroleum field the man with the plow and the hoe had made his civilizing influence felt through a marked degree.

It's Trade Territory Wide

Electra, as has been said, has a wide trade territory. It claims one-third of Wichita county and one-fourth of Wilbarger in its trade area and it boasts of the value of the agricultural products of this territory as well as value of live stock and live stock products.

It is proud of the fact that 12 miles south is the big Wichita irrigation project which area is tapped by a hard surface road from Electra. Its people believe that in the long run all wealth must come from the soil and that agriculture is the chief producer of wealth that is lasting. Speaking of agriculture, this year 150,000 bushels of wheat was grown in this territory and this represented in bulk more than 1,250 train car loads of the golden grain.

There is golden grain which is the staff of life as well as golden sands which produces the gasoline that makes the world spin around. There are farmers in this trade area. According to one who is familiar with farm life and conditions the tillers of the soil in this section, more than ever before, are seriously planning their operations to obtain a greater cash income from every acre of land, by planting cotton seed that will produce a better staple, by utilizing dairy cows and poultry as sources of cash income for every month of the year, and by producing on the farm more of the feed stuffs required by the livestock and the poultry instead of sending their money out of the state for food stuffs for the table and for feed stuffs for the domestic animals.

Texas Sends Out for Needs

Texans sent out of the state last year $250,000,000 for food stuffs and feed stuffs that could have been produced on the farm here at home.

This is not flattering to the business capacity or the efficiency of the men who till the soil under lone star skies and this is the main reason why there are thousands of tillers of the soil in all sections of Texas who are hopelessly in debt year in and year out with despair or distress written in hard lines on their faces.

There is a better day coming, a day when the cow and the sow and the hen will be dividend producers on small farms well tilled and cultivated along scientific lines. Then and not until then will an army of farmers, very many of them of the tenant class, find themselves emancipated from the additional handicaps of debt and worry.

Electra is a cotton market. Electra has its cotton gins. There was a lot of cotton in the Electra territory this year. It may be said without fear of contradiction that the slump in price has not demoralized the bankers or the merchants or the manufacturers of Electra.

They did not become panicy when the slump came. They never lost their heads. They believed that the acreage is too great in Texas. As for the bankers, they say that all concerned will weather the storm and be ready for a new deal all around in 1927. Cotton is coming in. Much of it has been sold by growers to pay pressing debts to those who have carried them through the years.

Diversified Farming Urged

Farmers who can afford to carry the fleecy staple will carry some, but not all of the yield of their individual holdings. R. R. Cook, president of the First National bank, takes a most optimistic view of the situation and the future does not look hazy to him. T. T. Weatherall, cashier of the First State bank predicts that those who are the hardest pressed by the slump will weather the storm and those who make a practice of diversifying and producing food stuff and feed stuff will reduce the cotton acreage the coming year and thus guard against over production of cotton which always results in thousands of growers selling their product far below the cost of production.

Byron Johnson, secretary of the Electra Chamber of Commerce who is saturated with the Electra that was and the promise that he is sure the Electra of the future will be, predicts that when the present cotton price flurry is over the farmers of this section of Texas will diversify more than ever before, get as far away as possible from the one-crop idea and see to it that food stuffs and feed stuffs will be produced on the Texas soil and not shipped to the Lone Star state from Missouri and Kansas and other states, at a cost to Texas farmers of $250,000,000 every year.

There is a new Texas on the way and the men and women who do things at Electra and in the territory claimed by Electra are determined to play a part in it and of it.

Elaborate Fur Trim Even On Fur Coats

By MME. LISBETH

Fur trimmings are the rule of all the new winter coats. Even fur coats themselves are embellished with a contrasting fur. The one pictured is a brown broadtail with collar and banding of lighter brown fox.

The fact that it has no cuff of the trimming is a bit unusual, as many of the smartest wraps have cuffs that almost reach the elbow. In fact) sleeves are a very distinctive part of the winter coats. Carmel Myers is the model.

Short-haired sports furs are very popular with the younger set this fall, with pelts of novel character either fashioning entire coats or trimming cloth coats. Browns and tans come first in importance with gray second. Ponyskin, leopard cat, burunduki, dyed muskrat, baby calfskin, caracul and any number of stenciled kid and antelope coats are in evidence at the big football games.

There seems less raccoon worn than usual—the most collegiate of the pelts. In the gray group is krimmer, shaved goat and squirrel and it is interesting to note with all the gray coats—either or fur or cloth—gray hose and either matching shoes or those of black patent leather are worn.

The all-around bloused line is sometimes used, achieved by means of a leather belt. Solid color furs are combined with spotted pelts, often brown pony or muskrat and also two furs are used at the neckline. Thus, white ermine formed the inside of the collar on a coat of black caracul, while summer ermine nearest the neck was supplemented by kolinsky on a coat of tan caracul. This is a very becoming—even flattering—arrangement.

Flat furs are also popular as a decorative medium for cloth coats, the baby calfskin being the newest. Black broadcloth with black and white calfskin, and a soft finished woolen in brown with the brown and white pelt used, are both seen in several instances, the hats also being of the fur in some cases.

Aside from these, bright colors prevail in which the brilliant blues are easily dominant. These range from rather light to military blue tones and are trimmed with both gray and brown furs. Next in color importance came various shades of tan and brown, usually tinged to give decided warmth in tone, and third come the green which are comprehensive in their wide range of shadings.

GOLD TISSUE PAJAMAS

Gladys Cooper's new golden pajamas are the talk of Mayfair. They are fashioned of golden tissue with a curiously meshed surface. The long trousers fit closely to Miss Cooper's ankles while the jumper is held in by a deep, closely swathed hip sash which is knotted in front.

How Marceline Said it to Paris

She Went to Learn and Stayed to Teach the French to Be "Chic"

MARCELINE D'ALROY is a young, beautiful and uniquely smart French girl who came to America five years ago and today is famous the country over for her newspaper cartoon-column, "You Said It, Marceline," in which she writes pithily on love, life, men, women and affairs.

This Summer Marceline returned for the first time to her native country—"to see," she announced to her friends in America, "all ze new smart zings in fashion and bring zem back wiz me!"

Instead of "learning" from Paris, however, Marceline encountered an amazing experience. She discovered that, in her five years in America, she not only had retained her native "chic," but acquired an American "chic," too. She found that she could tell the French more about new wrinkles in fashion than they could tell her. And she proceeded to TEACH Paris her Yanko-Franco "chic" so successfully that she came back with—well, many new "smart zings" from the shops, but with letters, too, from the most famous dress-makers in France, describing her as the greatest fashion originator of them all!

Exactly what happened to Marceline was this:

She was "discovered" by no less a monarch of the fashion world than Paul Poiret. One week after her arrival—though she had gone to Paris "merely to play"—she appeared as the star attraction of the Paul Poiret Fashion Show at the Chaumiere Restaurant, which event inaugurated the opening of the Fall season, and she set all the fashionables of Biarritz talking.

As Paul Poiret himself wrote her later:

"I am enchanted by the beautiful success you have made, and I congratulate you! Everyone is talking about you all along the coast—calling you a great star."

M. Poiret was so delighted with her reception at Biarritz that he insisted on two further engagements.

In her clever fashion performance Marceline created a new theme by sensing the rhythm of fabrics and putting it to music. To interpret a tea gown she selected a sonata, and when she made a robe de style dancing frock out of ten yards of green moire, she found her inspiration in a flowing waltz. Then she took a bright red rose and fastened it on her shoulder, and the orchestra burst forth with "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby!" As she danced she took the pins out one by one and at the last pin she ran from the ballroom, leaving a long, long trail of material behind her.

The Goddess of Style, the Fairy of the Couture, the Queen of the Fashion, these are some of the titles which her enraptured admirers gave her. And for the next Spring season Poiret has offered Marceline engagments for the South of France, and Paris has put at her disposal all its loveliest fabrics.

Science O K's the First "Jazz Operation"

MUSIC as an anaesthetic is not an entirely new idea, Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile" having been credited with the drugless removal of more than one appendix.

But Dr. O. L. Dannenbrink, resident physician of Lexington Hospital, set out recently to prove his contention that jazz as a substitute for ether would be better than classical music. Dr. Dannenbrink's theory was that a patient could undergo an operation with 50 per cent more vitality after hearing melodious syncopation.

He was assisted in his experiment by Archibald Griffin, a patient who was evidently a music-lover, and by four singers from the "Honeymoon Lane" Company, who kept up a soothing flow of vocal and instrumental jazz while the doctor was making rythmical incisions. The operation was a complete success, no anaesthetic save a whiff or two of ether being necessary. The patient reported that he would probably have enjoyed the music just as much without the operation, but that jazz certainly worked as an anti-dote to pain.

Kate Smith of the "Honeymoon Lane" company was the leading lady anaesthetist at the scalpel party, crooning a melody so lilting as well as tender that the doctor is said to have had difficulty keeping his feet still. The other Broadway sunshine spreaders assisting Miss Smith were Johnny Marvin, Marjorie Joesstting and Emerita Monsch, who completed a quartet which, in the opinion of the patient, was the best he had ever heard under any condition.

Probably there will be a new song out, in time, entitled "Those Appendicitis Blues."

Discussing the scientific aspect of the experiment, Dr. Dannenbrink explained that the soothing music, in the first place, had helped to induce anaesthesia by lulling the patient to sleep, and, in the second place, had left the patient's brain cortex in a state of perfect relaxation—both the conscious mind and the unconscious mind succumbing to musical influence.

"Music will never entirely supplant anaesthetics, of course," said Dr. Dannenbrink, "but it cannot fail to prove a favorable influence in any operation."

WHEN the Virginia Golf Association set the date for the State Woman's Golf Tourney, in which Mrs. J. G. Spitz and Mrs. Jean Jones became finalists for the championship, nobody stopped to think that the last day would fall on a religious holiday

It was Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, and Mrs. Spitz, being of Jewish faith, declined to play. Under the United States Golf Association rules, according to Virginia Country Club officials, it was not possible to postpone the match, and Mrs. Spitz consequently forfeited her chance at the title. Now the golfers of Virginia are making an intensive study of holiday and holy day dates, so there'll be no regrettable repetition of the occurrence.

Romance Problems of Real People

The Pair That Broke Royalty's Rules

Analyzed by Anne Jordan.

Two Photos of Princess Astrid of Sweden, Whose Forthcoming Marriage to the Future King of Belgium Is One of the Few Real Royal Love Matches on Record.

THE recently announced engagement of the Princess Astrid of Sweden and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium was proclaimed a real love match, instead of a marriage arranged by patriotic statesmen. The royal engagement was greeted with joyous acclaim, for it is not often, even in this day of democratized monarchies, that a prince or a princess can marry by choice, rather than for political convenience.

Many people believe—and sympathize with him—that the Prince of Wales has deferred his marriage as long as he possibly could because he cannot marry whom he pleases. Prince Carol of Roumania renounced a throne in order to take the woman of his choice, and there are many other instances.

Of course, the situation is not as bad as it used to be. Time was when a future king or queen was merely a pawn in the chess game of diplomatic geography. Nobody asked a prince, "How do you like your cousin Tessie?" No, sir. The old boys with the swinging chin tassels and the stars on the chest grouped around the budding monarch and announced: "Cousin Tessie has a chance to bring your country a patch of land with an oil well on it; go on, marry the girl." While to poor Cousin Tessie they said: "That kid's going to be king of Rheumatica. What does it matter if he's got St. Vitus' Dance and one eye that squints?" Cousin Tessie may have kicked and fought, but she was dressed in ten-pound velvet and shoved down the aisle anyway.

And after her marriage, Tessie had to walk a chalk line and play her part. Of course, the kings didn't have such a hard time of it. One could be a morganatic sugar daddy to a pretty face, and "the king can do no wrong." But the queens, like Caesar's wife, had to be above "suspish." Why, even Catherine de Medici didn't have any fun till her old man vanished from the picture. And that other immemorial Catherine of Russia was meek as a Spring lamb till she got her boy friend King Peter killed off.

Now, of course, princes and princesses CAN take the bit in their teeth and refuse to marry Cousin Tessie or Cousin Ignats, and they show their spirit by renouncing thrones every now and then, rather than permit a Secretary of State to map out their married life.

When Prince Leopold courted Princess Astrid, he visited the country home of the Princess' family disguised as a servant. He traveled third class on the railway, and carried his own handbag to the royal house. Even the gossipy villagers who saw him assumed he was merely a butler or pantryman. Thus the royal pair fooled 'em all.

About Home Heating Systems

Institute Engineers Comment on the Successful Operation and Care of Various Types

In Getting Your Heating Plant Ready for the Winter Be Sure to Drain Off All the Water from the System. This Will Remove All Accumulated Sludge, Scale and Sediment in the Pipes.

TO state definitely how any particular house-heating plant could be improved or should be operated requires making a careful study of it. It is possible to point out some general rules that apply to all house-heating plants and which, if carefully followed, will result in successful operation in the majority of cases. Successful operation is taken here as meaning the maximum degree of warmth and comfort available with the minimum expenditure of physical energy and money.

Provision must be made in all heating plants for a sufficient supply of air to insure complete combustion of the fuel used. If sufficient air is not supplied, incomplete combustion will result, which means that not all the heat available will be obtained. It is the function of the chimney to draw this air through the boiler or furnace except in instances such as some oil and gas burner installations. In these instances the necessary air is supplied by mechanical means. Even in such installations the chimney must carry away the burned gases. Obviously the chimney must function properly to insure successful operation. To do this it must be free of soot and incrustation. For this reason it should be cleaned at least once a year, and it is advisable to clean out any accumulation during an unusual heating season if found that the chimney's effectiveness has diminished. With the chimney clean it is advisable to look for any cracks or openings through which cold air might enter and chill the warm gases or permit their escape.

Chilling the warm gases will materially decrease the available draft since for a given chimney the draft depends on the temperature of the gases as compared with the temperature or the outside air. If there are any openings into the chimney in addition to the smoke pipe opening, they should be sealed up. If the chimney extends downward below the smoke pipe entrance, this section should be filled with sand to prevent chilling the warm column of air. A common cause for the chimney not having proper draft is that the extreme top is lower than the highest part of the house. An overhanging limb of a large tree nearby, or an adjacent building, may interfere with the draft. The chimney should be built up to such a height that it overcomes these difficulties if the obstruction cannot be removed. An interesting example of an adjoining building interfering with the draft occurred within a block of the Institute a short time ago. A new building, twenty-three stories high, was built next to a building ten stories high. The following Winter a copper stack was built up from the top of the chimney on the lower building to a few feet above the top of the higher building. Of course, this is an extreme case, but illustrates the point.

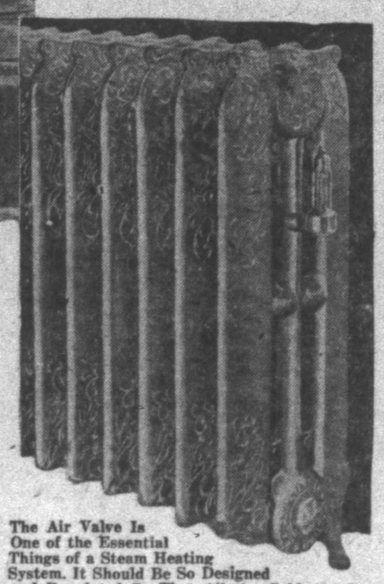

The smoke pipe from the furnace or boiler to the chimney should be as short as possible and should not extend into the chimney for more than two inches. The smoke pipe should be sealed in the chimney opening to eliminate the possibility of leakage at this point. The smoke pipe should be the same size as the collar on the back of the smoke box, and should be fitted with a plain damper or check if the boiler itself is not equipped with one at the point where the smoke pipe connection is made. The damper should be installed for the purpose of regulating any unusually strong drafts.

With the chimney in the best possible condition, attention should be given to the flue passage of the boiler. These passages are the surfaces over which the hot gases pass. In passing over these surfaces the maximum quantity of heat should be abstracted and transmitted to the heating medium. These gases deposit on the flue surfaces fine, unburned particles called soot. Not only soot is deposited, but when using some fuels, a solid coating of foreign material is formed on the surfaces. Both of these accumulations act as heat insulators and decrease the quantity of heat usefully applied. Boiler manufacturers have provided "clean-out" doors through which this material may be removed. Wire brushes especially designed for cleaning such surfaces are used.

These surfaces should be cleaned at regular intervals—not only at the beginning and the end of the heating season but a number of times during the heating season. The frequency of cleaning will depend largely upon the kind of fuel used and whether or not the fuel is completely burned.

The grates used in the boiler should be suitable for the kind of fuel that is the most feasible in your locality. Boiler manufacturers specify the fuels for which grates are designed. If it becomes necessary to burn any other fuel than that for which the grates are designed, the manufacturer or his local dealer should be consulted and the advice given followed. The grates should be examined to see whether or not they are burned or warped. If either condition is found to exist, they should be replaced. If they are burned out, the fuel bed will not be supported properly and unburned fuel will drop through into the ash pit. If warped, it will be difficult to clean the fire properly. Find out the proper position for the grate bars, and after the fire is shaken see that the bars are returned to this position.

The water should be drained from the boiler once a year to flush the sludge lodged in it. It is unnecessary to drain the water during the heating season, and if this is done it may even be detrimental if the water used has any degree of temporary hardness. The water level should be kept constant by the addition of fresh water when necessary.

The Air Valve Is One of the Essential Things of a Steam Heating System. It Should Be So Designed and Regulated So That All the Cold Air Can Escape Freely from the Radiator Without Shutting Off All the Steam.

Uncovered pipes are largely responsible for the cost of operation of house heating plants being higher than it should. Investigations conducted by reliable authorities show that the heat lost per square foot of uncovered piping during the heating season is equivalent to 200 pounds of coal in a steam system, 150 pounds in a hot water system, and 50 pounds in a warm air system. Assuming the minimum length of piping in the cellar, or in walls where the radiation from them is of no value inside the house, to be 45 feet, the approximate heat loss would be equivalent to a ton and a half of coal given for any ordinary steam heating system for an average season. While the value per square foot of uncovered surface is less for a hot water system, the piping is larger, and the two-pipe system is used rather than the common one-pipe system used in steam work, so that the total heat loss may equal or even be greater in a steam system supplying the same quantity of heat to the house. In the same manner, since the piping used in a warm air system is from three to six times as large in diameter as the piping used in a steam plant, the heat losses from these pipes, if uncovered, will be of considerable magnitude.

In properly installed steam and hot water systems thick insulating material, designed especially for this purpose, is put on the exposed piping and concealed pipes in outside walls. If such insulation has not been provided, or if it is inadequate, a saving in fuel with more heating comfort will result from its installation. The pipes from warm air furnaces are frequently left uninsulated. These pipes have a bright reflecting surface which is a relatively poor conductor of heat. Do not paint the pipes or cover them with thin asbestos paper, for the heat transmission or leakage is apt to increase with this treatment. Several layers of corrugated asbestos material are required to make the insulating of these pipes worth while.

It frequently happens that with the most careful attention to the fire, and even forcing he fire, radiators in certain rooms will not heat. If this occurs in a steam system, the most common reason is that the radiator is air-bound. By this we mean that air is entrained in the radiator and cannot escape. Air valves of proper design will correct this difficulty. A good air valve should permit the air to escape freely from the radiator, prevent steam from escaping, and prevent air from entering the radiator when the pressure in the system drops. Further, it should be so designed that no one can tamper with it.

If the trouble is not in the radiator, it may be found in the piping. Air vents should be placed near the ends of the horizontal runs of piping. The piping should slope upward from the boiler to the vertical riser. This is especially necessary in a single-pipe system, because in such a system the condensed steam returns to the boiler along the lower side of the pipe. If the pipe does not slope upward, a section of it may become filled with water and prevent the steam from rising to the radiator, or it may be forced ahead of the steam and cause a disagreeable knocking, called "water hammer." It will be necessary to call in a reliable heating contractor in this case and have him remedy the difficulty.

To Serve at Breakfast

Three Delicious Dishes for the Morning Meal, Quickly and Easily Prepared from These Certified Recipes from the Institute.

Favorite Toast.

SERVED individually. Bring one cupful of milk to the scalding point and into it carefully break one egg, poaching as though in water. As son as the egg is done, remove it to one large slice of toast and add to the milk one-fourth teaspoonful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper and one teaspoonful of butter. Pour this over the egg and toast, and, if desired, sprinkle a little grated cheese or minced parsley over the egg.

Fried Liver-Wurst.

Fry one-fourth pound of sliced bacon until crisp, pouring off the fat as the bacon fries, and remove to a hot platter. Core four tart apples without paring, and cut these and one-half pound of smoked liver-wurst into slices about one-fourth inch thick. Roll each slice in corn-meal and fry slowly in the hot bacon fat. Serve with overlapping apple rings surrounding the meat and bacon.

New Style Scrambled Eggs.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan. Mince one medium-sized onion and cook in the melted butter until tender and delicately browned. Meanwhile, chop one-half a green pepper and one pimiento fine and add to the onion mixture. Mix well and then add one-third cupful of milk, stirring until thoroughly mixed. Beat six eggs until the yolks and whites are combined and add to the mixture. Cook over a slow fire while stirring constantly until the eggs are creamy. Season with one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Serve at once on buttered toast.

Doughnuts for Your Hallowe'en

Here Is a Real Old-Fashioned Recipe for a Most Popular Delicacy That Has Been Tested by Experts at the Institute Kitchens and Recommended to You for Your Hallowe'en Party Menu.

POETS sing of the melancholy days of Autumn, but for us it is one of the happiest times of the year. And the woodsy smell of burning leaves always whets our appetite, particularly on that October day when whiffs from the kitchen tell us the Hallowe'en doughnuts are being made.

Many consider these tempting golden products of the frying kettle indigestible, but they need not be if a few simple precautions are followed in mixing and frying them.

The cracking of the doughnut on the surface, and the consequent, soaking of fat is one of the chief causes of indigestibility. In the first place this cracking may be caused by having too rich a mixture; it is therefore most important to have the right proportion of ingredients and to take great care in the mixing. Have the dough soft and handle it as little as possible. A generous quantity of flour may be used on the board to prevent sticking, as the flour which clings to the doughnuts browns on them when put in the deep fat. Do not mix any of this extra flour into the dough when taking up the pieces for the second rolling.

In the second place, the cracking on the surface of the doughnuts is caused by too low a temperature of the fat in frying. The temperature in frying must be just right and kept that way, otherwise the doughnut will be a fat soaked product. From the many tests, using the different kinds of fats and oils as deep-fat drying media for foods of all kinds, the results point to the fact that it does not matter what kind of frying fat you use provided it can be brought to the right temperature. The Institute has found a deep-fat frying thermometer invaluable, for all other tests are inaccurate and mean too much risk as to results. The fat should be heated slowly with this thermometer on the side of the kettle.

Do not overheat the fat, as the overheated fat helps to make the doughnut indigestible. Besides, if care is taken not to overheat it, the fat may be used many times. Searing the outside of the doughnut by turning several times when first put into the fat is another precaution against cracking.

Immediately after taking the doughnuts from the fat place on absorbent paper. Paper towels or napkins work very well.

Good Housekeeping doughnuts are easily made and yet delicious. Cream one-half teaspoonful of shortening with one cupful of sugar until well blended. Break into the sugar mixture one egg and stir well with a slotted wooden spoon. Sift and measure three cupfuls of bread flour. Add four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful nutmeg, and one teaspoonful salt. Sift again. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one cup of milk to the egg and sugar mixture. Mix well. Add an extra cupful of bread flour to make a soft dough. Take one-third of the dough, toss on a well-floured board, and roll lightly to one-fourth inch in thickness. Cut in desired shapes. Fry in deep fat at 360° F. until brown, and when cool roll in sugar. This may be easily done by putting several doughnuts in a paper bag with a little granulated sugar and shaking the bag.

Keeping the Hips Slender and Youthful

And How to Exercise Efficiently

THE perfect figure is a possession that all women crave. Even if you are too lazy to have many ambitions on the score of work in exercise form, you will not lag in your efforts when you know that the beauty of your figure depends on it.

And of all the defects to which your figure may owe its lack of symmetry, by far the most probable is an excess of flesh in the region of the hips. Nine out of ten modern women owe the imperfection of their figures to this flaw.

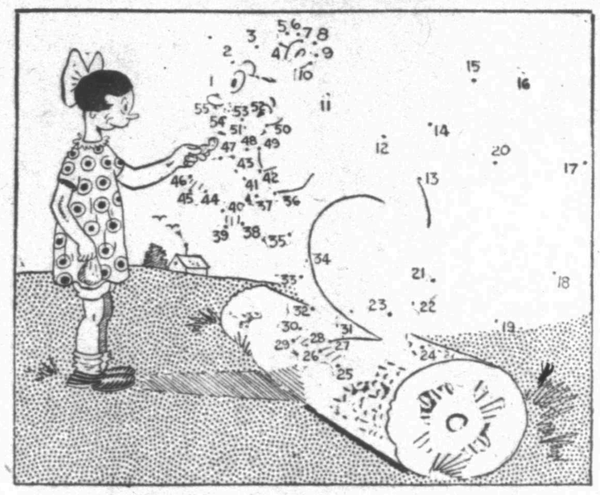

The exercises illustrated above are designed with a double purpose in view. They are charming, interesting and will develop in you a sense of rhythm and instinctive gracefulness. But they will at the same time serve the more practical purpose of keeping your hips slender and your figure symmetrical and youthful.

There is no need to urge you to practise them. If you are at all interested in maintaining the youthful slimness of your figure and your charm, you will be glad to do them.

It Has Been Worth It - By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Copyright, 1926, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The attendants of the glittering casino knew her—knew her as the inveterate petty gambler, down on her luck, who could not resist the lure of the baccarat table.

"If—"

EVERY evening, throughout the glittering season, she arrived at The Casino just as the after-theatre crowds were pouring into the most baronial gambling halls in the world.

In this casino, which blazed high above the blue and gold shores of the Mediterranean, there were tables of chance for the big gambler and tables of chance for the petty. Any one inclined to fling his few francs or his many against the ball of chance, was legitimately entitled to a seat.

Evening after evening, she took her modest place at one of the tables reserved for the petty. Evening after evening she pitted her few francs against the gambling machine and remained in a tense little bundle there until she had lost them or doubled them.

There was something rather frail and appealing about her. The lifted look to her pale, frail face. The soft ash blonde hair that framed her brow in the kind of curls that the damp sea air made more clingingly lovely. The debonnaire touch of fresh blue ribbon bows to the shabby white lace frock over the blue silk slip that had obviously been patched to hold it body and soul together.

The attendants knew her and bowed with an easy familiarity to her. They were not unfamiliar with her breed The inveterate petty gambler. The woman of slender means, who lived by the skin of her teeth, but who could not resist the lure and the glitter of the baccarat table. Probably at one time she had played for bigger stakes. And now, on the down side of life, the lust for gamble was irrevocably in her blood. The boarding houses on the shabby side streets of the great Riviera resort were crammed with such. Women of dreadful finery, sagging coiffures, pinched, feverish looking faces and always hanging on eagerly to the last shred of evening gown, with the bauble of evening bag that held the precious francs to be wagered, clutched in the bird-like hands.

There was nothing unusual about her, except, perhaps, the wistful prettiness about the eyes. The pathos of that girly frock. Usually her kind were bedecked in the more horrible finery of shabby rhinestones and tarnished brocades. She held out bravely in the little lacy frock over the patched blue slip and the blue kid slippers with the rubbed toes and the little pearl buckles.

Occasionally the attendants pointed her out to visitors as one of the typical habitues. One of the women in whose blood the lure of the gaming table had fastened itself. A frequenter. A character about the casino.

Usually she occupied the same chair. One that faced a mirror, so that her back was to the circle of onlookers on the other side of the rail that separated the baccarat table from the throng of spectators. By raising her eyes and gazing through the mirror, she could see them. She did not glance up very often and when she did, her eyes lowered quickly and a flush mounted.

Sometimes the crowd behind her back tittered at her shabby, sagging coiffure and the patched little blue underslip straining her tightly across the shoulders underneath the lace. She seldom glanced up on these occasions except that her back seemed to quiver and a nervous hand would clutch at the sag of ash-blonde hair and try to adjust the hair pins.

Once in a while, because she was pale and with a certain prettiness, if she lost her allotment of francs, one of the men about the table, always of the petty, flashy, gambling sort, took her off into the cafe of the casino and bought her the solace of a drink.

There was also a legend about her around this shabby fringe of the casino. She had an appetite. Let a fellow offer to buy her a drink and she slid in an order for food. More than that, the frail foods, out of season. The fruits and concoctions that belonged around the gaming tables where the stakes were larger.

Sometimes she tucked a bunch of grapes or a luscious tangerine or even the remains of a bottle of port under her arm as she went home.

"Poor thing," said one of the attendants, watching her trudge home one evening past midnight, with a hot-house pear and a half-consumed bottle of sauterne under her arm, "I'll bet she goes hungry."

"Nonsense," said a croupier standing by. "Saw her walk off with two hundred and fifty francs to the good only last week. She's one of the few who breaks just a little bit more than even. That girl plays a system and I'll wager her winnings average enough to keep her going in pretty good style."

Well, be that as it may, the next evening at her baccarat, in almost the first half hour she lost the sum total of her allotment of francs, sitting back wide-eyed and pale-faced to watch the play long after she had been forced to retire. After a time she attached herself to one of the men at the table. A great hulk of a bloated fellow who played an ostentatious game and won noisily. Her advances to him were so patent that to behold them was to be diffused with embarrassment. She was like a lean, frantic bird, circling for a place to alight.

Finally, he succumbed to the overtures that had kept her fluttering and smiling and coquetting at his elbow, and together they went off to the cafe for food and drink.

He drank freely, and when she asked for food, winking broadly at the waiter, he clamped down a handful of his winnings and noisily ordered her the delicacies she demanded.

By midnight, in her trembling, bird-like way, she was enduring his large, moist kisses, but not without her compensation. Forty of his newly acquired francs were already in the little bead bag she carried on her arm, and when she left the staggering hulk of him, long past the witching hour, a bag of the hot-house fruit, including great black grapes as big as plums, was under her arm.

She had no fear walking home along the narrow back streets that ran through the cheaper quarters of the town. She had walked them so often at that hour. She knew their tortuous windings, and with her pale, frail, tired face and the circles out under her eyes, she had no dread of the importunings of the rowdies who prowled the resort all the night through.

At her lodging house, a sinister-looking one in the darkest of the narrow streets, lights still burned from a window up under the eaves. When she unlocked the lower door and started to climb to the top of the house, she did a curious thing. On the first landing, in the slit of dark hall, she slid out of the lace frock and the blue underslip and stood dressed in a black sateen with tiny white collars and cuffs. The white frock she slid in a cubby hole under the stairs, and resumed her climb to the top of the house.

When she opened the door a querulous man's voice came out to meet her at once.

"How late you are, Doris! How can they expect you to work so late down at the restaurant? Cashier in a night cafe is no work for you, dearest. We must get you a day job, since my poor pretty must work with a mutt of a husband on his back.

She flew to him with kisses and the offering of fruit.

"Jay, dearest, I stopped, on the way, to bring you some of the grapes and the port wine the doctor said would be so good for my dearie. Isn't the management too sweet, dearest, to give me these goodies? I've told them how ill you are, dear, and every once in a while they hand me out the wine and the fruit."

"My dearest girl, how tired you look. How they work you!"

"And how are the bad, naughty lungs, darling?"

"Doris, I believe you are going to pull me through!"

"Oh, my darling," she said, closing her eyes and embracing his head with her arms that he might not see the ooze of tears beneath the lashes, "if I am, it has been worth it. If I am—everything—even—everything—has been worth it!"
