All Aboard Sunken Submarine Are Presumed To Have Died

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 4 (AP)—The Turkish submarine Dumlupinar, formerly the U. S. S. Bumper, was rammed and sunk in the narrows of the Dardanelles today and all but four of her 96 officers and crewmen were presumed lost. It was one of the worst submarine disasters of peace-time history.

After six hours of rescue operations, contact was lost with 22 men trapped in the stern who had been calling urgely for help over the emergency telephone line they floated to the surface on a buoy.

The press bureau of the Turkish armed forces said at 7 p.m. it was assumed all had been lost except four men, including the captain, who were thrown off the conning tower when the submarine collided in the darkness and mist with the 4,000-ton Swedish freighter Nabo-land.

A fifth man thrown into the water was picked up, but he died of his injuries.

The loss of the British submarine Thetis in 1939, with 99 crewmen, alone exceeded the disaster to the Dumlupinar.

The U. S. destroyer Hawkins, rushed to the scene under forced draft with doctors and divers aboard, and other rescue craft continued their arduous job tonight in darkness and rain even though contact had been lost. Among those on the Hawkins was Rear Adm. Francis M. Hughes, chief of the Navy group attached to the U. S. military mission in Turkey.

The Dumlupinar, a 1,526 - ton craft built by the United States in 1944 and turned over to the Turks in 1950 under the mutual aid program, was a modern ship with a snorkel underwater breathing device.

All her crew had been trained in the United States before they brought her to Turkey.

The submarine was lying under 38 fathoms (228 feet) of swift current tonight three miles north of Canakkale, a fortress town near the southern end of the strategic strait and close to the scene of a recent Turkish earthquake disaster.

Divers said her badly smashed and flooded bow, where most of crew probably met death, and the current made floating operations impossible.

Efforts were made to effect rescue through regular or emergency escape hatches, even though the submarine had only 24 hours supply of oxygen when contact was lost. Presumably the after section, too, had been flooded.

Besides the Hawkins three Turkish ships, the Imroz, Turgutalp and Soldireye, hovered at the scene.

The Dumlupinar was cruising on the surface from Canakkale toward Istanbul at 2 a.m. when she collided with the Naboland in poor visibility. The Naboland, out of Gotebory, had left Istanbul late yesterday.

The Swedish skipper put out lifeboats and flashed the first word of the disaster. Later he put in at Canakkale, where he was questioned by Turkish authorities.

It was not until 11 a.m. that the Turkish Navy gave out its first communique announcing the accident.

The Dumlupinar's sister submarine, Inonu, was cruising with her and by 1 p.m. other rescue ships had reached the scene from Golcuk naval base.

The wreck was located by a buoy floated to the surface by the trapped men, and over the connecting telephone line rescuers were told: "Rescue us. We have air to last only a few hours."

First reports said 40 were alive in the still unflooded stern, but later Col. Asim Shinik, Navy chief of staff, announced that there were only 22.

U. S. Vice Adm. John H. Cassady, commander of the naval support and striking force of NATO's South European Command, at once placed all facilities of the U. S. Sixth Fleet at the disposal of the Turkish Navy, and rushed the Hawkins to the scene.

Kuss Re-Elected And Shellburne Put On Hermleigh School Board

One man was re-elected and one incumbent defeated in election of two trustees in the Hermleigh Independent School District yesterday.

Albert J. Kuss, Jr., a farmer, was re-elected as a board member with 44 votes in the election in which 70 ballots were cast.

Also elected was T. E. Shellburne, a retired Shell Pipeline chief at Hermleigh, who received 35 votes to defeat Gorver Wall, a farmer, who was running for re-election. O. B. Jackson, clerk in the election, said.

D. Z. Hess was elected as a county trustee from precinct No. 4, unopposed. Hess received 70 votes for the position.

Other men in the school district election were G. E. Chorn, 28 votes; Wall, 25; O. H. Hooper, four and Sam Houston, two.

Three Injured In Car Wreck In South Texas

Three Snyder men were in Southwest Texas hospitals last night, two critically injured, as a result of a one-car highway accident 33 miles south of Sonora late Friday afternoon.

Critically injured were Alvin C. Rollins, 46, and his brother Ivy Matt Rollins, 40, who are in a hospital in Sonora. The older Rollins was described by a Sonora doctor as in "very critical" condition. He was said to have a severe head injury. His brother also had a head injury and both legs were broken below the knees.

In "good condition" in a Del Rio hospital is Lester Moore, 38, who suffered severe scalp lacerations and lip lacerations.

The accident occurred as the three men were driving south in Edwards County toward Del Rio where relatives said they were to have attended a used car auction. They are all partners in Rollins and Rollins used car business here.

Highway patrolman Herman E. Moore is investigating and cause has not definitely been determined. A relative of the injured said, however, that witnesses reported the car which I. M. Rollins was driving was forced off the road by another vehicle. The other car reportedly did not stop. It was uncertain here last night whether it had been later apprehended.

The wrecked car was a total loss.

A. C. Rollins lives here with his wife, a daughter, Dorothy, and a son, Alvin, at 2810 Avenue F.

I. M. Rollins lives on hill above East Thirty-seventh Street with his wife. They have one daughter, Mrs. La Verta Lovell of Snyder.

Moore lives on Route No. 3 with his wife, a son, Odell, and a daughter, Treva Ray.

Hall Getting More Backing As Party Head

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) today endorsed former Rep. Leonard W. Hall of New York as signs mounted that Hall's candidacy for Republican national chairman has President Eisenhower's clearance.

Hall indicated after a White House conference this morning he would take the chairmanship vacated by the resignation of Wesley Roberts if it is offered to him at a meeting of the national committee here next Friday.

Commenting on this, Ferguson said in an interview that Hall, former head of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, is especially well equipped to take over national party leadership.

"I think he could do a great job, particularly in working with members of Congress, in getting the party ready for the congressional elections in 1954," Ferguson said.

Hall now is a $35,000-a-year surrogate, or judge of wills and estates, in Nassau County, Long Island.

Hall's remarks after he visited the White House on another matter indicated that if the New Yorker doesn't have Eisenhower's active backing, he at least has clearance from the President as a candidate for the job.

Anti-Semitism Drops From Satellite News

VIENNA, Austria, April 4 (AP)—Since Stalin's death, there has been little or no anti-Semitism in the newspapers of Russia's East European satellites.

For months before the change of Soviet leadership, attacks on Israel and the Zionist movement had appeared almost daily in the newspapers of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Readers of satellite newspapers became conscious of the absence of this anti-Semitic propaganda today following Moscow's announcement of the release of the doctors, including Jews, arrested for the alleged murder of Communist personalities.

Sweeping Amnesty Order For Persecuted In Red Romania

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—The Communist government of Soviet satellite Romania issued a sweeping amnesty tonight along the lines of the recent decree issued by Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov in Moscow.

In addition to pardoning convicts already serving prison sentences for certain crimes, prosecution will be dropped in Romania for many persons now awaiting trial, the Bucharest radio reported.

Romania is the first Soviet satellite to declare an amnesty since the Malenkov regime made its surprise announcement freeing many short-term prisoners on March 28. The other European Iron Curtain satellites are Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Albania and occupied East Germany.

Observers here immediately speculated how the new Romania edict might affect the fortunes of Ana Pauker, a former Kremlin favorite who was Romanian foreign minister.

There has been a welter of rumors as to the whereabouts of the woman Communist leader since she was fired last spring from all her post in the Romanian government and Communist party for alleged deviation.

One report said she was about to be brought to trial. Another said she was recovering from a nervous breakdown in Russia.

The Russian amnesty a week ago ordered the freeing of Soviet prisoners serving five year terms or less providing their crimes represented "no great danger to the state." At least one foreigner, a Briton, also has been freed under the Soviet amnesty.

The Russian decree, issued by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, said the pardons had been made possible by a decrease in crime and by the consolidation of the Soviet state system. The program extended to most persons serving five years or less in prisons, corrective labor camps and other places of detention. Those serving more than five years were to have their sentences reduced by half.

The Russian pardons specifically did not apply, however, to anyone serving more than five years for counter - revolutionary crimes, large-scale theft or embezzlement of public property, gangsterism, or premeditated murder. Some prisoners were ordered freed regardless of the length of their sentences. These included women with children 10 years old or less, pregnant women, minors of 18 or less, men of 55 or more, women over 50 and persons suffering from incurable diseases.

Byers Water Being Piped From Spring

BYERS, Tex., April 4 (AP)—A farmer who lives two miles from town supplied Byers today with water piped from his spring.

It tasted mighty good to a town that had spent eight hours with no water except for a small tankful held back for fire fighting.

But will the new supply hold out?

"I just don't know," said Mayor Milton Dunn. "We're hooked into this spring with a pump, but I don't know how much water the spring will afford."

Oil companies, truckers, the Air Force, Navy and all sorts of citizens supplied the equipment and muscle to lay pipe from the spring to the city lake.

There are no restrictions on use of the spring water by the 542 residents of this little Northwest Texas town near Wichita Falls. "We'll have to study out something, though," Dunn said.

Byers' city lake catches rain runoff. A long drought dried it up.

"The lake is plumb down—down to mud," the mayor said.

At 2 p. m. yesterday, he shut off the water, declared a state of emergency and said he didn't know what to do about it—didn't have enough money in the city treasury to buy water.

Pretty soon Joe Payne, a stock farmer, heard about Byers' trouble. He figured the city could use his spring—if there was a way to get the water to town.

Houston Bolin, Wichita Falls oilman, supplied 11,000 feet of 2-inch pipe. John Barbour of Iowa Park sent two big trucks to haul the pipe. An automobile dealer and the naval reserves in Wichita Falls sent lighting equipment. Sheppard Air Force Base sent men.

In all about 60 pipe layers turned out. They did the job between 7 p. m. and 11 p. m.

By midnight there was enough water in the storage tank over the reservoir to turn it on in town.

"It's one of those things you can't put into words—how good people can be when you're in trouble," the mayor said.

But, he said, "we still don't know what we'll do next. Won't know for a day or two."

Mr. Payne said we can use his spring as long as necessary.

"The reservoir was dug about 15 years ago. It's filled in some, but it would still hold a lot of water if it would rain enough. . ."

Four Drown In Loves Lake When Spilled From Motorboat

TYLER, April 4 (AP)—A pleasure boat ride for a group of small children ended in tragedy today when four persons drowned after being spilled from a speeding motorboat on a lake near Colfax, Tex.

Four other children in the boat were rescued after it capsized on Loves Lake, about 50 miles west of here.

Drowned were John Ryan Allen, 34, Dallas, who was operating the boat; his daughter, Pamela, 4½; a niece, Alice Graham, 6, Colfax, and Louis Hallman, 4, Colfax.

A 16-year-old boy in the boat, Ronald Audrey, saved two small girls by grabbing them and holding on to the overturned boat until help arrived. They were his sister, Arnita Audrey, 11, and Martha Myrtle Graham, 7.

Another of Ronald's sisters, Martha Mae Audrey, 12, floated to shore on a gasoline can that had been in the boat.

The accident happened about 3:15 p.m.

The Audrey boy said the boat had crossed the lake and was preparing to return when it overturned while making a sharp turn at high speed.

The boy said he grabbed Martha Myrtle Graham by her hair and pulled her to the capsized craft. Then he got his sister, Arnita, to the boat. He said the weight of the three kept turning the boat over "but each time I came up I'd get the kids back on the boat."

The three managed to hold on until Tell Hallman, father of the 4-year-old drowned boy, and another man reached them.

Mrs. Allen said she saw her husband grab a small child, possibly their daughter, Pamela, and start swimming for shore about 200 yards away. She said he got part of the way and then disappeared beneath the water with the child.

Young Killer And Girl Taken To New York

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 4 (AP)—Fred Eugene McManus, 18-year-old AWOL Marine who has admitted killing five persons, came back today to New York state — where there is an electric chair.

Gay and seemingly carefree, McManus stepped from a special plane at Rochester Airport at 4:05 p.m. after a three-hour flight from Dubuque, Ia. With him was the 16-year-old bobby-soxer he calls his wife, Diane Marie Weggeland.

The young couple was whisked to the Monroe County Jail, where McManus awaited arraignment on a first degree murder charge in the car-theft killing of William A. Braverman, 19-year-old Hobart College freshman from Rochester.

McManus was arrested near Dubuque Tuesday and admitted a four-day crime spree that started near Rochester and continued through the Midwest.

Before leaving Dubuque, where he waived extradition to New York McManus was quoted as saying he preferred going to a state that used the electric chair in capital crimes.

A newsman who was on the flight east said that when the plane passed over Niagara Falls, the teen-aged pair "goggled like all honeymooners."

Keaton And Boren Both Re-Elected

One new trustee, Clyde Godwin, was elected yesterday to the Snyder school board, and the two incumbent candidates, Wayne Boren and Paul A. Keaton, were re-elected.

Keaton led the race with 163 votes, Boren received 156, and Godwin had 108. These figures include the tallies of the 11 absentee ballots which were cast early last week.

There were four other candidates. Weldon Johnson received 100 votes, Dr. John Hamblen received 85 votes, and M. R. Estes received 57 votes.

Including absentee voting, 184 ballots were cast, setting a record for the district. Last year, about 120 persons voted.

Votes cast in Snyder school district's election box for the county school board gave Perry Echols, precinct No. 3, 38 votes, and D. Z. Hess, precinct No. 4, received 11 votes. Neither was opposed, and both were candidates for re-election to their expiring terms on the five-man county board. One candidate serves each of the county's four precincts, and another serves the county-at-large.

Seven trustees serve on the Snyder board. Besides those elected yesterday, the members are L. M. Ford, gasoline plant superintendent; J. B. Turner, contractor; and Lee T. Stinson, pharmacist. Terms which expired this year were those of Boren, insurance agent; Keaton, truck and tractor dealer; and Bob Dupree, automobile dealer who was not a candidate for re-election.

Godwin, 30 years old, is manager of D&H Super Market. He and his family moved here about three years ago from Lubbock, where he was also in the grocery business.

Godwin is also active in the Chamber of Commerce, is a director of the Little Baseball League, and is a member of the citizens advisory committee on juvenile work and youth development.

With the exception of Ford, who moved here from Tulsa recently and succeeded E. J. Mills both as superintendent of the gasoline plant and as trustee on the board, all trustees have served since the present board was created in 1949 when the district consolidated with others.

Each trustee elected yesterday is to serve three years. Next year, two terms will expire, and two more will expire in 1955.

Results of the election are to be canvassed by the board in its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

United States May Not Take Soviet Offer

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The United States has politely turned down—but the British are considered likely to accept—Russia's conciliatory offer to let their Moscow embassies stay near the Kremlin.

The Soviet gesture, considered one of the many friendly moves by the Reds in recent days, reverses the firm tone of the eviction notices handed U. S. and British envoys when the late Joseph Stalin was Premier.

Last July 1 this country was told its lease was canceled and it would have to move from its building at the heart of the Red capital. The stated reason: Moscow University needed the building for expansion.

In December the British were notified the site they have occupied for 35 years, on the bank of the Moscow River across from the Kremlin, was needed for a museum and park.

Today in Moscow, however, it was disclosed the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs advised the Americans and the British they could stay where they are if they want to.

Prayers For Peace From GIs In Korea

SEOUL, Sunday, April 5 (AP) — Men of war knelt on Korea's ragged hillsides and greeted today's Easter dawn with paryers for peace.

Throughout South Korea, soldiers and airmen flocked to sunrise services. They gathered in the cathedrals of Seoul and the churches of other cities, on broad mountainsides and in tiny valleys, in tents and in snug bunkers, for the great renewal of faith.

This was an Easter of reborn hope.

The great expectations grew out of the hustle and flurry of activity for exchanging disabled prisoners of war. That first move towards armistice hinges on a meeting tomorrow of Allied and Communist officers.

They grew too out of Red China Premier Chou En-lai's message that the last barrier to a Korean armistice—exchange of the other prisoners—could be lifted now. The U. N. Command eyed his proposal warily but planned to test it fully.

The chief chaplain of the U. S. Army, Maj. Gen. Ivan Bennett, told an outdoor congregation at the front:

"Because of our faith in Jesus and because He lived, we can face tragedies and disappointments of the present hour and labor and suffer and make sacrifices to achieve a better world.

"In the resurrection we have assurance that the power of evil is broken. It is the destiny of man that he can overcome evil."

Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor attended a sunrise service on a Seoul mountainside. Taylor told his Eighth Army troops in a message:

"The Easter season is the assurance of the ultimate triumph of freedom from slavery, of right over wrong and of life over death. As I extend the greetings of this holy season it is with the condition that the God who sent this message to his children so many centuries ago gives us today the same assurance of final victory."

Negro Singer Weds Spaniard

GENOA, Italy, April 4 (AP)—Mattiwilda Dobbs, 25-year-old Negro soprano from Atlanta, Ga., was married here today to Spanish journalist Don Louis Rodriguez Garcia de la Piedra, 30, of Ledesma, Spain.

Miss Dobbs was the first Negro to sing in the famed La Scala Opera House of Milan on March 4. She currently is singing the queen's role in Mozart's Magic Flute at the San Carlo Municipal Opera House here.

She had planned to be married in Paris but the wedding was performed here after they obtained special permission. Don Louis is tall, moustached and a Catholic. Miss Dobbs, a Protestant, said she would embrace the Catholic faith soon.

They met two years ago in Spain. Don Louis is a radio broadcaster and correspondent for a radio journal.

Molotov Sees Envoy Of U.S.

MOSCOW, April 4 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov today received the U. S. charge d'affaires, Jacob Beam. It was the first time they had met.

It was described as a courtesy call and came at Beam's request.

Beam has been in charge of the U. S. Embassy here since former Ambassador George Kennan was declared unwelcome for remarks he made late last year about the Stalin regime.

(The new U. S. Ambassador, Charles Bohlen, is en route to Moscow).

There was no official statement from the U. S. Embassy on the visit.

Beam saw Molotov at 3 p.m. and talked with him for about 20 minutes.

While the visit was in the nature of a courtesy call, it can be assumed that they talked about more serious matters than Moscow's spring weather.

Release Of Doctors Raises Question Of Stalin's Death

(By The Associated Press)

The fantastic Soviet about-face in the case of the "doctors' plot" raises a serious question whether Joseph Stalin died a natural death.

By fitting pieces of the Kremlin jigsaw puzzle together, it is possible to discern what appears to be a careful laying of the groundwork for announcing the death of Stalin.

There is a madness in this new development that defies all logic. After six weeks of the most violent press denunciation of the arrested Soviet doctors, they disappeared from the press at the time of Stalin's death. Now they are proclaimed innocent.

In attempting to find explanations for such a giddy zigzag—which, incidentally, must leave the Soviet public sorely puzzled—it is necessary to go back over old ground and pick up the bits and pieces. And having done this, one comes up with the startling suspicion of Oriental-like intrigue in the Kremlin involving the cold, calculating Georgi M. Malenkov, Stalin's successor as Premier, and his ruthless, coldblooded sidekick, Police Czar Lavrenty P. Beria.

The Soviet "doctor's plot" burst into print with great fury in mid-January, touching off a violent campaign against "gullibility" and for vigilance on the part of the Soviet public against spies and saboteurs.

"It is utterly unbelievable that Police Boss Beria did not know in advance of the arrest of the nine doctors, and subsequently of the arrest of others who must have been taken secretly. The latest announcement speaks of "15 doctors." Since the Ministry of State Security, which is obliged to report directly to Beria, "uncovered" the case, Beria had to know about it.

Yet there was the astonishing spectacle of the state security organs—Beria's own — being criticized for lack of "vigilance." Now the ministry apparently had been cleared of that charge. But Beria, at the same time, must also be responsible for the alleged error in the arrest of the doctors and for the "illegal" means of interrogating them.

If Malenkov, with the aid of Beria, actually plotted the death of Stalin—or at least, if they plotted to hasten the Soviet dictator's death—the arrested doctors would have constituted a handy safeguard for them. If something should have gone wrong, if something accidentally had been discovered, if the plans went awry in any way, the doctors would have been ready as the scapegoats.

Malenkov, according to the most reliable reports from inside the USSR, shed no tears over the death of Stalin, his mentor and master for a quarter of a century. Neither did Beria. Both were quite businesslike. One source described Malenkov as "even breezy" in his appearance at Stalin's funeral, and unquestionably confident in his position as new boss.

All of this added up to grave suspicion.

Stalin was the last obstacle in the way of Malenkov's succession. Perhaps Malenkov became impatient at his ruggedness. Stalin's visitors constantly were reporting him in robust health.

This would be an extremely serious charge to make against Malenkov, but in the absence of any explanation of the strange sequence of events, there would seem to be justification for raising the question.

It seems unlikely that the release of the doctors is involved in a current struggle for Kremlin power. It appears more likely that he struggle is over and that Malenkov and Beria are hands - down winners—at least for the time being. The doctors are no longer needed. But the case of the doctors evidently was part of a past struggle—one which likely went all the way back to October and the Communist party congress, the scene of Stalin's swan song.

Now the party faces a curious situation. Pravda and the rest of the party press have been hammering at the theme of "gullibility" as a threat to the state's security. Now, apparently, the ministry of state control, has been gullible in the case of the doctors. The ministry reports to Beria.

Who is gullible now?

Carol II Gets Royal Burial

LISBON, Portugal, April 4 (AP)—Ex-King Carol II of Romania, who died of a heart attack early today, will be buried beside the kings of Portugal at the St. Vincent National Pantheon.

Premier Oliviera Salazar gave permission to Carol's third wife, former Madame Elena (Magda) Lupescu, who was alone with the onetime playboy King when he collapsed and died in his villa at nearby Estoril. He was 59.

Carol's son, ex-King Mihai, who succeeded his father on the throne the Communists have since abolished, was informed of the death at Lausanne, Switzerland. He is living there with his wife, Princess Anne of Bourbon Parma, and three young daughters.

Mihai, cool to his father for years, expressed regret but said he would not attend the funeral.

Carol was a great-great-grandson of Queen Dona Maria II of Portugal. The expectation was that Carol's body would rest in the Pantheon until such a time as his family could arrange with Romanian leaders to remove it to Bucharest—if that might ultimately be the family's wish.

Hoover Testimony On Firing Red Teachers Is Made Public

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover disagrees with those who defend the "right" of Communists to hold teaching positions in this country, until they show themselves disloyal.

Hoover's views, it became known today, were voiced just four days after Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told a news conference in Chicago last February that he believed it would be "inconsistent with freedom of thought" to fire a professor for the simple reason that he was a Communist.

Taft upheld the right of Congress to expose Communists but said he could see "no particular purpose in examining the views of a few individual professors if they are not a part of an organization promoting the spread of communism."

That was on Feb. 21. On Feb. 25, according to testimony just made public, Hoover told a House appropriations subcommittee:

"The Communist threat to our educational structure is not yet recognized fully in some quarters. Individuals and groups, some liberal but frankly non-Communist in their outlook, others taken in by the Communist line, and still others working for the Communist cause, continue to defend the 'right' of Communists to hold teaching positions unless and until they demonstrate a disloyalty to our country.

"It behooves every thinking American to re-examine critically the essential facts of the matter. When he does so he will find the Communist ill-equipped on every score for a place in the teaching field.

"If, as some claim, he joined the Communist movement without recognizing its true objectives he once might have been excused on the ground that he was not a knave but merely a fool. Yet his lack of discernment is poor recommendation for the post of instructor to others."

Hoover made no reference to Taft by name in the testimony, parts of which were deleted from the public record. He told the subcommittee, which was considering the FBI budget:

"While we must jealously protect our academic freedom, there is no room in America for Communists or Communist sympathizers in our educational system."

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) of a Senate internal security subcommittee which has been probing for subversive influences in education, commented:

"Because he speaks with a knowledge of what is contained in the FBI files, J. Edgar Hoover is the most qualified authority in the country to assess the need for a careful investigation of subversive influences in our educational system, and in other fields.

"His analysis of the situation confirms the preliminary findings of the Senate internal security subcommittee."

Lawyers Say Need For Court Here To Be Greater In 1957

Six Snyder attorneys said last week that they oppose the state legislature's action on re-districting of courts, and some indicated that action will probably be taken in an attempt to secure a permanent district court here.

Elimination of the 132nd District Court, which now serves Scurry and Borden Counties, would be a mistake, the attorneys say, and all believe there is enough litigation to keep a court here.

The 132nd court was created early in 1951 as a temporary six-year court. Prior to that time, this area was served by the 32nd District Court, which now serves Nolan, Mitchell, and Fisher Counties.

The new bill in the legislature would make the two districts overlapping, with the 32nd finally taking over Scurry and Borden Counties again in 1957.

Scurry and Borden Counties are still growing, the attorneys said, adding that they believe the two counties will continue to grow from the oil and other industries. They expressed the belief that the need for a court will still be here in 1957 and that reverting back to the 32nd court would hinder and slow trial of cases again.

"I am for a permanent court here for Scurry and Borden," Garland Armstrong said. "Business in the court will show we do need and will need the court. I am against the State Bar Association's bill because it will make the two districts overlapping and make our judge a 'deputy' to the 32nd court's judge." He added that the association probably did not know conditions here when it drew up the bill now in the legislature.

Cases filed here still far exceed those filed before the increased population and business boosted the filing rate three years ago. During the first three weeks this year, a total of 41 cases, 20 of them criminal, were filed. In 1952, 27 civil cases were filed during the first three weeks. In 1951, a total of 40 cases were filed during a comparable period, before the new court was created.

A total of 367 civil cases alone were filed in the Scurry County court last year, according to Mrs. E.E. Weathersbee, Scurry district clerk. That is more than one civil case per day, and added to those were criminal cases from here as well as all cases in Borden. While a large number of the cases are divorce cases or possibly settled out of court, others require a jury and take much time for disposition.

"I think we have enough litigation to warrant a district court, and I believe it would crowd the docket again to put us back in the 32nd district," Gene Dulaney said. "I don't see any particular good or harm in the overlapping districts, but I believe they should give us a permanent district court or at least another six year extension in 1957."

The Scurry docket was overcrowded at the time the new district was created in 1951 with a backlog of about 500 cases.

Ross Hemphill said "I think we should begin to work immediately to get a permanent court here. I believe Sweetwater and Colorado City need a separate court because of increased oil activity in those counties. Due to the many claims here I think we will be more in need of a resident district court in 1957 than we were at the time we first got our court."

James Rosser, president of the Scurry County Bar Association, said the need for the local district court is still here and probably will be in 1957. He added that just because the court is able to give speedier trials now than before does not indicate that the need for a court has disappeared.

Robert R. Patterson agreed with Rosser, saying that if the court does not serve enough persons in the two counties that the legislature should go north and have the district take in Kent or Garza County. "I understand the docket of the 32nd court is still heavy, too," Patterson said.

C. E. McGaw said he believes the need is here for a permanent court. "From now on out I think the town will grow and that Borden County will grow. It will be enough to keep a judge busy." McGaw said that although the legislature is trying to economize by cutting the number of districts, that industry in Snyder will grow and that the need for a court here will grow, "especially if it rains and the lake fills up."

District Judge Sterling Williams said several days ago that there is no need for an overlap of the two districts, since the 32nd district now has all the business it can handle, as does the 132nd.

"The purpose of the bill should be to even the courts with the amount of court activity necessary, and this purpose is lost so far as our district is concerned under the proposal as it now is."

"Nolan County is growing, its court activity increasing. That district could not handle the business of all its territory before the new district was created, and there is no reason to believe it can handle it four years from now," the judge said.

Williams, a former member of the House, pushed the bill through that part of the legislature to create the 132nd court.

County Airport Almost Holding Its Own Without Air Service

Although Snyder may be forced to wait a long time for service by an airline, the county airport at Winston Field is not "wasting away," members of the airport board and several other persons here have said.

The term "wasting away" arose several months ago while a committee here was asking the Civil Aeronautics Board for service here. Some persons were saying that the $800,000 airport will not be of any use to the county without air service.

The fight for service has not yet been lost, interested persons say, but it may be gained only after several applications.

Bob Collins, airport manager, reported this week that about 75 planes a month land at Winston Field, most of them belonging to oil firms and other businesses connected with the oil industry. The planes, most of them landing here to bring company officials but some only stopping for service, come from as far away as California and New York.

Most of the planes belonging to firms in the oil industry come here from El Dorado, Ark., Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth, and Midland. Regularly each week planes from three firms that patrol oil pipelines stop at the airport.

The airport is built to handle any plane up to the size of a DC-3 and has even had a C-54 land here twice. Much of the traffic around the airport is made up of multi-engine planes belonging to firms doing business in Snyder, but the majority of it is the smaller planes.

Servicing and storage at the airport will not pay for all the expenses, but it will pay for the utilities and salaries of Collins and any extra labor, the manager said. He added that traffic is gradually increasing and will increase more as persons learn there is a modern airport here.

One hindrance to business is the lack of a mechanic, Collins said, explaining that good aircraft mechanics are hard to find. Most of the work and licensing of airplanes from this area is done by a mechanic at Sweetwater, Collins said, adding that Snyder gives the mechanic more business than Sweetwater does. The mechanic will even make a call to Snyder if the plane's owner cannot take it off the ground before the mechanic works on it.

The business that has come to the airport has been good, Collins reports. He dug out a report of receipts and expenses for an eight month period last year from March 20, soon after the airport opened, to Nov. 26. Total sales for the period amounted to $5,515.06, and cash disbursements were $5,189.35, and the situation is getting better all the time, Collins said.

The problem of keeping the airport in business and of trying to keep expenses within the limits of the cash taken in is handled by the airport board, headed by John Blum, which meets at the airport every second Monday.

Collins estimated that he sold about 25,000 gallons of fuel for planes during the first year of the airport's operation, which ended March 15. Available there are 80 and 91-octane gasolines for planes. The lighter planes use the 80, while the multi-engine planes use 91 or higher, he said.

The airport manager said he once sold some 91-octane gasoline when a student pilot's jet plane from Big Spring ran out of fuel and he was forced to land here. Collins said the pilot had to land here with his brakes locked because of the distance required to land a jet. The plane skidded about 2,500 feet and blew out one tire, he said.

Hangar storage at the airport runs from $1.50 a night for lighter planes up to $10 for a DC-3, which the hangar is capable of storing but has never had. By the month, storage fees run from $15 to $100. Local private plane owners store their planes by the month. Collins said he stores about seven local planes plus transits, adding that the hangar is sometimes full of planes. Of transit planes, he stored six in December, 18 in January, and 14 in February.

Most of the out-of-town flyers stopping here are flying for business reasons, Collins said, but some are pleasure flying. Even a few are taking vacations in planes, he said, telling about a Californian who stopped here with his family on his way to Fort Worth to spend a vacation with relatives.

Addition of a small weather station would be helpful at the airport, Collins said. If Snyder ever secures airline service, the airline will have its own weather station, but the need is great now for an anemometer, a device for measuring wind velocity and indicating direction of the wind, he said. He said persons in Snyder are always calling the airport for weather forecasts, thinking there is a weather station there.

Another thing persons are always calling for is some airline schedule from a nearby point. "We don't keep airline schedules out here because they are always changing and we could not keep up with them," Collins said.

One of the biggest problems the airport manager had for a while, he said, was with young couples parking at the airport at night. "It wouldn't hurt anything for them to park here if they didn't think they had to get out and look around," he said, explaining that he must be strict with parkers because some might damage property at the airport.

"They don't come out here much any more, because they think by now that I'm an old grandma," he said.

Collins said he and the board do encourage visitors, and he added that residents will not even visit the airport during the day. He said several cars drive out on Sunday afternoons but that people do not get out and visit the place. "This is just like any other public institution, and we'll be glad to show them around if they will come out any day to look around," he said.

2 Servicemen Sons Visiting Parents Here

Two servicemen sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Heath, 2409 Twenty-eighth Street, are visiting their parents here this weekend.

Oldest of the men, Corporal Alford R. Heath, 22, is stationed now at Albuquerque, N.M., after just returning from 11 months service on the front lines in Korea.

The younger son, Pfc. Leonard C. Heath, 18, is on duty with the W.P. 4001st Air Base Guard Post at Gray Air Force Base, Killeen, Tex. He received a 10-day leave to visit his parents.

Each of the young men has served about one and one-half years in the service.

During his duty in Korea, Alfred Heath served as a repairman whose main duty was to go behind enemy lines and remove radar equipment from downed Allied planes before it could fall into the hands of the enemy, his father said.

World Oil Surplus Cuts Into Exports Of Mexican Oil Co.

MEXICO CITY, April 4 (AP) — Mexico, at the 15th anniversary of the expropriation of foreign oil companies, got the bad news that exports are off 31 per cent because of over-production and low prices.

Antonio Bermudez, head of Pemex, the government oil company, passed the news along in his annual report.

Bermudez reported the world is producing 15 per cent more oil than it needs. He said this is due to three factors:

Producing companies are getting ting newly explored areas into production.

Producing countries are trying to build up their reserves.

EARN MORE DOLLARS

Both companies and countries are trying to sell more oil to earn more dollars.

He said this situation is not likely to change soon. He added that the world price for oil has gone down 20 per cent.

"For Mexico and the Caribbean area," Bermudez said, "the situation is especially unfortunate because a great part of the production is heavy oil which yields a great deal of fuel oil. The demand for fuel oil has diminished. At present there is no prospect it will increase."

He said the result has been to push down fuel oil prices in this region by more than 30 per cent. He said the situation is even more serious because the United States is supplanting fuel oil with natural gas and diesel oil.

EXPORTS DOWN

As a result of over-production and lower prices, Bermudez said Mexican exports in 1952 were only 15 million barrels, compared to 22 million in 1951.

He said Mexico needs to export oil to obtain foreign exchange to buy equipment and materials which are only available abroad.

Except for the foreign market situation, Bermudez said Pemex is in good shape. Reserves have been increased from 1,795 million barrels in 1951 to 2,200 million last year. This gives the country a 20-year reserve, but the Pemex head said the reserve, to be safe, should be enough for 50 years.

He proposed a drilling program of 400 wells a year, 75 to be exploratory. Pemex drilled 307 wells in 1952.

SIX NEW FIELDS

Bermudez reported the discovery of six new fields last year. Production increased only from 78,079,000 barrels to 78,906,000. This increase disagreed with semi-official figures collected by foreign experts, not oil company employes, here. These figures showed production in 1952 was about half a million barrels less than in 1951.

The official's annual report said the fact that oil from the new fields is mostly a heavy type crude makes new refineries necessary. He said the existing ones in Tampico and Minatitlan would be modernized, with catalytic cracking facilities, to increase the production of lighter types of fuel.

The small Reynosa refinery near the Texas border, which uses the small amount of crude produced by the northeastern gas fields, will also be enlarged to a 7,000 barrel daily capacity.

Bermudez said Pemex's income had increased slightly in 1952 over 1951. The increase from 1,838 million pesos to 1,900 million was 62 million pesos—about seven million dollars.

Big Flowing Well In Lea County, N. M.

Continental Oil Co. and associates No. 1 Anderson appears to be a prolific flowing discovery in the Devonian lime in Central - West Lea County, N.M.

This prospector flowed 162 barrels of new oil in one hour to tanks through a three - fourths inch tubing choke from perforations in Devonian sections at 13,374-400 feet and 13,408-474 feet. A total of 1,500 gallons of acid had been injected into both perforation intervals. After treatment, operator swabbed for a short time, then the well kicked off and started to flow.

It flowed to pits for one hour to clean, then turned to tanks and flowed the 162 barrels in the first hour. It is still flowing to completely clean out to complete.

It is 25 miles west of Lovington, three and one-half miles southwest of the South Saunders field, and 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 11-16S-32-E.

Pecos Wildcat Slated To Drill To 4,100

Lawless Drilling Co. of Odessa will start operations immediately at its No. 1 G. H. Chamblee and others, which is slated to be a 4,100 - foot wildcat to try for production in the Delaware sand in East - Central Reaves County.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 17, block C-18, psl survey. It is 13 miles northwest of the city of Pecos.

Combination tools will be used.

Reports From Area Drilling

Operator apparently plans to perforate and test above 7,542 feet.

Texaco No. 2 Fuller, North Scurry wildcat, is still shutin.

Hall No. 1 Huff in the Buffalo Creek Ellenburger field near Hermleigh is drilling at 2,340 feet in shale and anhydrite.

Salt Water Found In Wildcat Drill Test

Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 L. M. Anderson, Central - North Howard County wildcat, nine and one-half miles west of Vincent found only salt water in a drillstem test in the top of the Pennsylvanian reef lime.

That test was taken at 7,698-7,724 feet. The tool was open three hours. Recovery was 90 feet of drilling mud and 810 feet of salt water.

No signs of oil or gas were developed.

The prospector deepended to 7,739 feet and is to run a drillstem test on the 15 feet of new hole.

Top of the reef was called at 7,706 feet. That is on a datum of minus 5,083 feet.

Location is 1,975 feet from south and 1,983 feet from west lines of section 3, block 31, T-2-N, T&P survey. It is one and three-eighths miles southeast of Stanolind's No. 1 Smith, a recently completed reef discovery and it is two miles west of the East Vealmoor field, which also produces from the reef lime formation.

PAD May Be Kept On Another Year With Only Skeleton Staff

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Belief is growing that the government's emergency oil agency—the Petroleum Administration for Defense (PAD)—will be kept for perhaps another year but with a sharply cut staff.

The statutory authority for the agency, unless extended by Congress, expires June 30.

Secretary of the Interior McKay, administrative head of the PAD, has expressed the opinion that the agency should be contained for defense purposes, particularly to handle the problem of adequate supplies of aviation gasoline for military planes.

And other government and oil industry officials are known to feel that the PAD should be kept functioning, with a skeleton staff, until emergency conditions ease and some pending problems are solved.

REDUCTIONS BEING MADE

Personnel reductions already are under way in PAD. Fifty employes, mostly stenographers and clerks, were released recently. Some PAD officials have returned to their jobs in the oil industry which they left to serve Uncle Sam.

In March PAD abolished its natural gasoline production and processing division. The gas planning division then was cut off. One more gas division is expected to be eliminated in the near future.

At this time last year, PAD had more than 300 officials and employes. Now the total is around 200.

The No. 1 problem of the agency is aviation gasoline.

The aviation gas situation still is extremely tight, PAD says, and may be so for several months.

SEEKS AGREEMENT

PAD is hoping to get Justice Department approval for reinstatement of a voluntary agreement under which oil companies throughout the free world can supply the U. S. Government with information on world-wide oil and oil products supplies.

Long - range planning studies, many of them secret because of their defense importance, have been under way at PAD and may not be completed before June 30, one official pointed out.

Sen. Carlson (R-Kan) has introduced a bill to limit imports of petroleum and its products to 10 per cent of domestic use.

He offered the bill about the same time that Russell Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Producers Association of America, was reporting to his organization that "the primary problem facing the domestic oil industry today is that of excessive oil imports."

"Long and patient efforts to persuade large importing companies to correct their own wrongs have been fruitless," Brown said.

"Questions of steel for our necessary operations, and an adequate price for our products to maintain our operations, are each dependent upon a correct solution of the problem of excessive imports."

McCarthy Trying To Complete Howard Well

It will be located eight miles northeast of Plains in Northeast Yoakum County. Drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of the southeast quarter of section 318-D-John H. Gibson, three miles northwest of the Cobb Clear Fork field and five miles north of the Ownby San Andres field.

Slump In Drilling Told

AUSTIN, April 4 (AP)—A continued slump in oil well drilling in Texas was reported today by the Railroad Commission.

Completions for the week were 185 compared with 264 last week. The year's total to date is 2,642 compared with 2,921.

Two wildcats were reported. Last week, the total was 11 and there had been a flurry of activity in wildcatting earlier.

Wells are also being plugged at a faster rate this year—so far there have been 1,706 compared with 1,621 in 1952.

Four Field Projects Set In Lea County

Snyder Places 5th In Relays Held In Big Spring Saturday

Snyder teamsters broke one record in the American Business Relays at Big Spring yesterday, and the team took fifth place among the 26 teams entered.

The medley relay quartet came in first in that event with a time of 3:43.1, establishing a new record that cut more than four seconds off the 3:47.6 set by Amarillo in 1951.

The medley event was started by Deanie Floyd, followed by Tommy Ivison and Gary Harris, and anchored by Keith Pitner. Following the Snyder team were Denver City, Amarillo, Abilene, O'Donnell, and Lubbock.

Amarillo, with 93¼ points, won the meet, in which five records were broken. Following in standing were Abilene with 83¾ points, Lubbock with 39¼, Odessa with 32, and Snyder with 30.

Taking a second place was the Tiger 880-yard relay team, composed of Floyd, Ivison, Naxie Davis, and Jackie Grimmett. The team followed the Amarillo four, which won with a time of 1:34.3.

The only Snyder place was a fourth by Reagan White in the 440-yard dash. Robins of Freona won that event with a time of 52.7.

Gerald Crawford went to the finals in the 100-yard dash, as did Harris in the 220, but neither placed. Pitner, who took second place in the half-mile run at the Fort Worth meet, did not enter that event at Big Spring.

Daugherity of Olton, who ran high in the Canyon Reef Relays here, took two firsts, setting one new record. In the 100-yard dash, he finished in 9.8 for the new record, and he won with 21.7 in the 220.

Dodgers Get Pre-Season Nod As Most Likely Flag Winner

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG (AP) — On spring training form and 1952 records, the Brooklyn Dodgers rate the nod here as the club to win the National League pennant.

The ages of key men—Jackie Robinson, 34, Pee Wee Reese, 33, and Roy Campanella, 31—sound a note of caution. It is conceivable that New York, Philadelphia or even St. Louis could sneak home if the Dodger front line should collapse. But there is no imminent hint of this.

On the basis of personal scouting of six teams and long distance reports on the other two, here's my guess on the finish.

1. Brooklyn
2. New York
3. Philadelphia
4. St. Louis
5. Milwaukee
6. Chicago
7. Cincinnati
8. Pittsburgh

If the Dodgers leave an opening, the Giants look like the next best bet, despite a poor exhibition season. The Giants' future hinges on comebacks by Sal Maglie, Swede Jansen and Monte Irvin and the final decision by manager Leo Durocher to "who's on second, short and third?"

Philadelphia also could grab it all if Brooklyn misses. There is hope for a revival of the old "whiz kid" spirit in the Phil camp under manager Steve O'Neill. Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons are the top right-left pitching team in baseball.

Eddie Stanky's Cards did not look too good this spring. Gerry Staley, Harvey Haddix, Vinegar Bend Mizell, Stu Miller and Joe Presko form a strong pitching staff with Al Brazle in the bullpen.

Milwaukee, Chicago and Cincinnati should give the contenders more trouble. Only Pittsburgh, a dismal last in '52—54½ games off the pace—seems completely out of it.

The Braves figure to be improved with the addition of first baseman Joe Adcock and right fielder Andy Pafko.

Hank Sauer's broken finger was a costly blow to the Cubs. The big fellow will miss opening day and perhaps the first month.

Cincinnati is hustling under Rogers Hornsby.

Pittsburgh still is in the midst of its big experiment under new manager Fred Haney who inherited Ralph Kiner, Murry Dickson, Howie Pollet, Joe Garagiola and a bunch of kids.

Rolling high series were Bobbie McKinney of the Craft squad with 467 and Gladys Dowell of Chuck Wagon with 431. Doris Bunselmeyer of the Craft group rolled high line of 172, followed by Leola Murray of 66 Cafe with 162.

During regular district play before Hermleigh went into playoffs, Cooper led the team in paas receiving with 31 catches for 945 yards. His average gain per pass caught was 30.5 yards.

Men's League Still Tied Up

There was little change in the men's bowling league last week as Goss Car Lot and Newman's 66 Grill remained in a tie for the lead.

In other games, Permian Mud beat Sun Pipeline No. 1 2,500 to 2,416 and Jackson Motors downed Sun Oil No. 2 2,674 to 2,553.

Bolt, Palmer Still In Lead

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 4 (AP) —Tommy Bolt remained atop the $10,000 Azalea Open Golf Tournament field for the third straight day today, but for the second day he had company.

While the Maplewood, N. J., professional was matching par 72 of the 6,652-yard Cape Fear Country Club Coures, Johnny Palmer, Canadian Open champion from Charlotte, N. C., came charging up to tie him for the 54-hole lead at 207 with a 69 today.

They were only one stroke ahead of three rivals—Francis (Bo) Wininger, Ted Kroll and Jerry Barber going into tomorrow afternoon's final round. Kroll shot a hot 66 today, while Wininger posted 70 and Barber 72.

Four more pros were only two shots back of Bolt and Palmer, setting the stage for a whirlwind race to the wire for the $2,000 top money tomorrow.

Lloyd Mangrum, Lew Worsham, Doug Ford and Fred Wampler were the quartet locked at 209. Mangrum and Wampler posted 70s today, Ford and Worsham taking 71.

Monte Carlo Match Taken By American

MONTE CARLO, April 4 (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, Alameda, Calif., recovered after a slow start to trounce Joan Curry, Britain, 9-7, 6-0 today and advance to the finals of the Monte Carlo International Tennis Tournament.

The British girl came back to team up with Patricia Ward of Britain and win the Iliffe Trophy for women's doubles with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory over their countrywomen, Susan Partridge and Anna Schilcock.

Budge Patty, Los Angeles, and Jean-Noel Grinda, a young French player, reached the semifinals of the men's doubles by downing Robert Haillet and Henri Pellizza of France, 11-9, 6-3. Patty, teamed with Bernard Bartzen, San Angelo, Tex., also is in the finals of the Butler trophy doubles, which is similar to the Iliffe Trophy competition for women.

Patty and Bartzen will play the final tomorrow against the Belgian team of Philippe Washer and Jacques Brichant.

In the regular doubles competition, Bartzen and Washer scored an exciting victory over Jaroslav Drobny and Ladislaw Echt, the self-exiled Czechs, 6-1, 8-6.

Drobny, one of the world's best tennis players, led the way as the exiles gained a 5-2 lead in the second set after a weak first set. At this point, however, the pair lost their touch again and Bartzen and Washer came on to win six of the last seven games.

Snead To Defend Title Against Golf Greats In Annual Tournament

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 4 (AP)—Sam Snead will defend his title against golfdom's greatest when the annual Masters Tournament starts Thursday.

Snead, hoping for a third victory to match the record of Jimmy Demaret, passed up the current Azalea Open at Wilmington, N. C., to get ready for the 72-hole grind over the 6,800-yard Augusta National Golf Club course.

He must buck precedent, as well as the terrific pressure such a select field generates, in seeking this year's crown. No golfer ever has won two successive masters since the tournament began in 1934.

Several foreign stars are in the field.

Peter Thompson, 23, Australian flash who was runnerup to Bobby Locke in the 1952 British Open, already is on the scene. Ricardo Rossi, 24, ace from Brazil, is en route.

Picking a winner would be difficult, but there are definite favorites. Snead is among those considered most likely to walk off with the biggest hunk of prize money, which will total more than $25,000.

A lot of folk think Lloyd Mangrum is overdue.

Other top-drawer entries include Ben Hogan, Cary Middlecoff, Tommy Bolt, Lew Worsham, Jack Burke Jr., Ted Kroll, Jim Ferrier, Doug Ford and Chandler Harper.

No amateur ever has won the Masters. The best effort so far came in 1947 when Frank Stranahan tied for second. Stranahan, Harvie Ward, 1952 British Amateur champion, and Jack Westland, 1952 U. S. Amateur titlist, give the simon-pures a strong representation.

Some Persons Here Say Candy Cigarettes Bad For Children

Persons here are about equally divided on the influence candy cigarettes might have on children.

In a survey of several persons who deal with candies and with children, some said they definitely believe the candy cigarettes can influence children to smoke, while some believe they are not harmful at all.

The North Dakota legislature recently banned sales of the candy cigarettes in that state after hearing complaints from many of its residents.

At least one wholesaler of candies here believes the influence is bad. Sonny Herman, manager of the Wooten Grocery Co., said he is going to discontinue stocking them after the present shipment. He said he had heard several comments from dealers and others about candy cigarettes.

The candy variety comes in both regular and king size, with brand names similar to those of real cigarettes.

"The candy cigarettes won't harm kids," Mrs. C. R. Burk, who operates a store near the central schools, said, "but we have lots of trouble with grownups throwing out cigarettes after they smoke them and not tearing them up." Mrs. Burk said she had seen many children picking up cigarette butts off the ground, and we have even caught some of them smoking them," she said.

Mrs. Burk said she believes adults are creating harmful effects by discarding cigarette butts where children can pick them up.

Mrs. Billy Fisher at the Snyder Wholesale Co. said candy cigarettes appear to be good sellers, and she said she does not think they are a bad influence on children. "I think if anyone is going to smoke, he will do it regardless of whether there are candy ones on the market."

Rex Miller, manager of Everybody's Food Store, said he does not handle candy cigarettes because he believes them a harmful influence on children.

Most of the others interviewed said they did not see any particular harm in the candy sticks. Leighton Griffin, manager of D & R Food Store, said he gets a tongue-lashing from a mother once in awhile about them. He said he sees no reason for not handling them, any more than he can see a reason for not handling real cigarettes

"If a person has the willpower not to smoke, he won't do it," Griffin said, adding that he couldn't stop handling the candy variety because of what a few think.

Malven Stevenson, manager of Sunbeam Cash Food Market, agreed with Griffin, saying that children and mothers request them and they sell them to those who want them.

Clyde Godwin, manager of D & H Super Market, said he does not think candy cigarettes would help the problem of children's smoking, and that if the public demands the product his store will handle it. He said sales of the candy sticks are not as heavy as they used to be.

Bill Ballard, county probation officer, who works with youths daily, said he does not feel the candy cigarettes are a bad influence on children, adding that many children, if they have a yen for cigarettes, will smoke them and not bother with the candy variety.

A SINGLE FUND

Spring is here and so are the charity drives.

The rush is on again, and we're due to be in one drive or another for at least another month. So far we have had the Boy Scouts, March of Dimes, Heart Fund and Girl Scouts. In progress now is the Red Cross drive and the Salvation Army is preparing to get its started. The Cancer Society has one due this spring, and there may be others.

The apparent need that comes out of this rush for donations is a single fund or united fund. Our civic leaders are rightly beginning to wonder how many more drives they are going to be asked to head. Contributors are hit up so often they must wonder if they are the only ones in town that give.

Logically the single fund drive would derive all the good effects of the separate drives in a relatively short period of time. It could be done with drive leaders combining their efforts with a greater over - all success. The contributors could give what they could afford without having to hold back for the inevitable drive coming "next week."

Some charities resist single funds. Contributors to a united fund need not tussel with their consciences when they turn down solicitors for other charities, however, since they will have the assurance that the resisting charities were asked to participate. Some charities brag about the fact that they don't belong to the single funds and insist that they can raise more money on their own. It is certain that outside charities have a tendency to tear down the success of the single fund.

A solicitor for the non-participating charity will surely protest that the work of his particular charity cannot be carried on if he is turned down by donators to the single fund.

The bright side of it all is that after the outsiders have failed in their drives and have no more money they will be only too glad to accept their rightful share of the single fund. With the combined efforts of all charities the amount raised should be greater than the amounts raised by the haphazard means used now. And we would be rid of one of the distractions of Spring.

Fines From Courts Down

Fines and costs assessed in criminal cases in both county and justice courts during March totaled $3,526.30, a drop of $1,640.20 from the February total.

Civil court costs and citation fees brought last month's total to $3,574.02 for both courts. This total is also less than that of a year ago for the two courts. In March of 1952, fines and costs in criminal cases in both courts totaled $5,091.75. This figure does not include civil costs and citation fees, however.

Justice court fines last month totaled $295, costs totaled $905 in the 73 cases in which persons were fined for violations, and costs in two civil cases were $5.75, making a grand total of $1,205.75 collected by the court in March.

In county court, fines of 17 persons totaled $2,091.80, and costs were $376, making a total of $2,477.80, of which credit of $151.50 was given for persons serving jail time in lieu of payment, making the total in fines and costs collected in criminal cases $2,326.30. Cost on civil citation service and fees for the citations totaled $41.97, making a grand total for county court of $2,368.27.

Bootlegging and drunken driving cases led the docket throughout 1952, when there were relatively few cases of swindling by worthless check. This year, bootlegging and drunken driving cases have decreased, and more persons have been fined for swindling than before.

A scheme to build a telegraph line across the Bering Strait to link America with the Asiatic land mass was abandoned in the 1860s when the Atlantic cable proved a success.

Veterans Hold Annual Camp In Galveston

GALVESTON, April 4 (AP)—Spanish-American War veterans—200 of them, the youngest in his early 70s—began their annual encampment today by swapping memories.

John White, 75, of Dallas, president of the American Memorial Association and past commander of the National Spanish - American War Veterans, and Crass Watson, 72, of Abilene, spoke.

Watson recited a poem about his Cuban war days and flipped his "lucky coin"—a Philippines gold piece dated 1868 that "was just a little before my time."

Quick Thinking Cabbie Outwits Armed Men

GALVESTON, April 4 (AP) — A quick-thinking cab driver dodged four pistol bullets, then captured two men he said tried to hijack him today.

He cracked one over the head with a heavy lock, snatched his gun, got the drop on the other and called for help on his taxi radio. He was holding the gun on the pair when officers arrived.

Cabbie Joseph Richards, 45, said the men told him to drive to Galveston's west beach. There, they ordered him to pull over.

As he stopped, Richards turned to look at his fares and saw one of them pointing a pistol at his head.

Charges of attempted armed robbery and assault to murder were filed against William Ronk and James Shea, both of Houston.

Call For Bid On $8 Million In Texas Roads

AUSTIN, April 4 (AP)—A call for bids on road projects expected to cost 8 million dollars was announced by the Highway Department today.

Some 895 miles of recoating work on existing asphalts pavements to improve the riding quality will be included. Additionally 256 miles of farm to market roads and major improvements on 112 miles of the main highway network are proposed, state highway Engineer D. C. Greer said.

Larger highway projects include work on the freeway in Beaumont, U. S. 84 in Waco, U. S. 82 and State 290 in Lubbock and State 9 and U. S. 181 in San Patricio and Nueces Counties.

Bids will be opened on April 14 and 15.

Confiscated Weapons Are Not Problem With Officers Here

Few weapons are collected in the sheriff's office and police department, according to reports from those two offices.

In many places, large collections of weapons are on display, ranging from guns to brass knuckles, many of them murder weapons. In some places, the confiscated weapons are a storage problem because of their quantity.

That is not true in Snyder, where guns are seldom confiscated, and where weapons usually taken off persons arrested are smaller, but still dangerous ones.

Sheriff Homer Whisnand said that very few valuable weapons are confiscated by his department, explaining that most are homemade knives, butcher knives, or other improvised weapons. He has one piece of a pair of scissors one man was carrying as a weapon.

Of interest in Whisnand's office are two pistols, both taken off men who were charged and convicted of carrying concealed weapons. One is a shiny .38 caliber revolver, probably worth more than $100, and the other is a less flashy .45 automatic. Neither of the owners has yet returned to claim his pistol.

Another interesting weapon is a long-blade pocket knife, used last month by one Snyder Negro man who was convicted with aggravated assault on another Snyder Negro man with the knife. The man charged is a parolee who had served a part of a sentence assessed him in Lubbock for murder.

Chief of Police Walter Suttle reported that he does not now have anything valuable that was confiscated from persons arrested. Many persons the department books in the city jail are found with weapons in their possession, he said, saying they are usually homemade billy clubs and knives, or maybe chains.

Disposition of weapons confiscated is much different than that of liquor. If a man is convicted of a liquor charge here, any liquor confiscated from that person is supposed to be turned over to the Liquor Control Board for resale to wholesalers.

A weapon, according to District Judge Sterling Williams, is still the property of the owner, whether convicted or not, and must be given to him if he wants it.

Williams said such weapons should be catalogued at the sheriff's office or police department and kept indefinitely, in case the owner returns and claims his property.

In the way of confiscated property, Suttle said the police department now has a slot machine that was confiscated before he became police chief here. The chief said the machine will probably be destroyed in the near future, since use of such a machine is illegal in Texas.

Teachers To Talk In House Hearing Tuesday

AUSTIN, April 4 (AP)—Teachers get their chance to tell a House committee Tuesday how bad they need a pay raise.

The House Appropriations Committee will hold a public hearing then at 2:30 p.m. on three teacher pay proposals—one for a $600 a year raise, one amounting to about a $240 a year raise, and one a graduated scale offering a $504 raise to beginning teachers.

The teachers want the $600 raise; Gov. Shivers has recommended the $240 to be paid for by changing the financing structure in local school districts.

Grocers and all other retailers will have their say at a hearing Wednesday night before the State Affairs Committee on the "clean competition" or "fair trades" bill by Rep. Lamar Zivley, Temple.

Three bills pertaining to toll roads will come up before a Senate committee Tuesday afternoon.

THE ADVENTURES OF PATSY

Von Roeder Gets Second Well On Irrigated Farm Near Here

A second well has been successfully completed by Nolan von Roeder for the irrigation of cotton on his farm two and one-half miles west of Snyder.

Von Roeder, longtime seed breeder here, said the well was completed Friday and was then pumping about 225 gallons of water a minute. The seed breeder said he believes the water output is somewhat less than the well can produce later. He explained that water impellers at the bottom of the well are now set so they will not pick up gravel and that they will be adjusted later, after the gravel has settled, to pick up more water.

On the day the well was completed, Von Roeder was pumping water out and testing furrows to see how they carry water.

The first well Von Roeder drilled was on the same farm, and it is still capable of puting out about 350 gallons per minute. The seed breeder said he is gradually gaining experience in the irrigation line and believes he will have spent about $1,500 less on this well than the last. He said he intends to build a surface storage reservoir of about 100 by 100 feet in size for his irrigation project.

Water was found at about 235 feet depth in the well, which was drilled by Buck Wylie to a total depth of about 250 feet, about the same as the first well.

Von Roeder's farm on which the wells are located is flat, well-suited for irrigation. Von Roeder said that Milam Fowler will operate the farm and raise Western Prolific stormproof cotton.

Von Roeder and Bentley Balze, owners of Von Roeder Seed Farms, breed their seed in a breeding block on the same farm, near the first irrigation well. Von Roeder said that after the third generation of seed has been produced in the breeding block, the fourth generation will be planted on the farm to produce seed for the public.

The surface tank Von Roeder said, will be used to store water while the pump operates 24 hours a day, but he added that the watering will be done mostly in daylight hours because it requires practically full-time labor for the project.

Von Roeder estimated that more than 20 irrigation wells are in operation in the county, but he said he doubts that irrigation has much future here. The county has too much rolling land, not level enough for watering, he said, and he added that there is not adequate below-surface water to be found in the county as a whole.

The seed breeder also said that if it ever begins to rain again and the rainfall average remains close to 20 inches a year, the average farmer probably will not go to the expense of drilling and maintaining an irrigation well.

Last year, Von Roeder had cotton planted near his first irrigation well and made about a bale per acre on most from it. When he had counted bolls on the stalks early last year, he found 47 on one stalk, while 17 bolls is considered good on a stalk.

Von Roeder said his wells are still experimental but that he believes he will have a successful irrigation project.

THE SNYDER SCHOOLS

Educators Face Problem In Bible And Religious Subjects

The following is the eleventh article in a series by Dr. Cecil Yarbrough, superintendent of schools, written in response to questions submitted by the Daily News.

BY C. L. YARBROUGH

Question No. 11: What is the law in Texas concerning religious subjects in school? Do you feel that they should be taught in the schools? If so, how?

So far as I know, there are in existance no special laws in Texas which govern the teaching of religious subjects in the public schools.

It is true that the effect of the Federal Constitution's guarantee of religious freedom and separation of church and state has had a discouraging effect upon offering Bible and related religious subjects in the public school. An interpretation of the Federal Constitution forbids the payment of public funds for teaching of Bible in the schools.

Teachers of this subject, therefore, ordinarily donate their services. Another factor which has discouraged public schools from doing much with this program has been the sectarian and denominational differences which exist in most communities. Teaching of Bible in the schools, more than most subjects therefore, is likely to create misunderstandings if not properly handled.

Because of these and other problems, less than 10 per cent of Texas accredited schools offer Bible as a credit subject. The majority of these schools use the services of a local pastor or religious worker who is approved by school officials, and who comes to the school daily to teach the course. In some instances, the school releases the student to take the training at the church of his choice, and in a few Texas schools a regular teacher has the subject of Bible added to her teaching load as a voluntary assignment.

The teaching of Bible as a subject in school is only one phase of a total program which has to do with developing moral and spiritual values and a better understanding of the relationship of the Holy Bible to our democratic society and present world problems. To divorce democracy and the principles of Christianity is impossible and for the public school to completely ignore the fundamental importance of the old and new Testament as a daily dynamic influence in our lives would be to ignore a basic truth in our society.

In a larger sense, the full expression of our school program for the development of the human personality is Christian in principle and motivates the entire philosophy and activities of any effective school program. No person today can be a well rounded educated individual who does not have at the center of his personality a core of moral and spiritual resources which guide and direct his every day life and enable him to cope with the intricate problems of living in today's world.

The school has a responsibility to help the student develop an understanding of the Bible both as a book of literature and as a basis for the moral and spiritual values which must influence the relationship between members of the human race if we are to survive as a civilized society.

There can be no question that the school can perform a service in supplementing the work of the church and the home in religious education. Religious leaders tell us that less than half the people are members of any church and that not more than 25 per cent are active loyal supporters of any church program. Certain fundamental values, therefore which are commonly nourished through the church and the religious activities of the home need the support of the school if all our children are to develop those inner resources which are so essential to a properly motivated and well - rounded life. This is a field, however, in which the school has been hesitant to actively involve itself but is beginning to develop activities which support and strengthen the services of our trained religious leaders of the various churches.

Someone has said that this total program of moral and spiritual education should include "Those values which when applied in human behavior exalt and refine life and bring it into accord with the standards of conduct that are approved in our democratic culture."

No sensible person would suggest that the public school should be used as a medium for indoctrination for any theological, sectarian, or denominational viewpoint. It must avoid at all costs the pitfalls of bigotry, a narrow religious prejudice, and sectarianism. On the other hand, the school should not ignore the Bible as a book of beautiful literature unequaled in any language and for its influence as a basis of human progress through the ages. It deserves a place at the head of the list of influences which have served to guide mankind through uncertain progress from darkness toward enlightenment. The values which are commonly accepted throughout the religious world as a part of man's relationship to man are part of this vital phase of human understanding which deserves proper emphasis in the school as well as the home and church.

The achievement of such desirable goals solely through a special subject is difficult for several reasons. In the first place, capable, acceptable teachers who can donate their services to the school are not always available. Teachers with special training in these field are rare. Without good teaching, the program would be fruitless. Neither has the practice of releasing the student for special classes in the church of his choice proven totally satisfactory. Either method would reach only a small per cent of the student body.

In an attempt to achieve the goals of moral and spiritual education, the school utilizes many other activities besides specific subjects. Many schools and some teachers in Snyder have morning devotionals in classes, in assemblies, or through the central public address systems. Devotions include reading from the Bible, discussing Bible characters and stories, invocation at meals and other school functions, sacred music throughout all grades, and the use of special occasions such as Easter and Christmas as the basis for emphasizing the spiritual heritage and value of our society.

Bible study at home and at school is more effective since the Gideon Society has made available Bibles to students in the Snyder schools who desire them. The dignity of the individual, the rights and responsibilities of each human being one to the other and the temporal rewards resulting from fellowship and brotherhood are vital principles of our educational program. The observance of moral and spiritual laws are no less vital lessons to be learned than the physical laws. These are desirable topics of classroom study.

The school assembly has long been used periodically as a means of presenting ministers of different faiths to discuss in their own words their philosophy and religious convictions. More recently, many schools have inaugurated in the junior and senior high school a program of voluntary devotionals which are planned by students and teachers. These programs have as their purpose to enrich and enlarge the spiritual life of the student who participates. The programs are usually presented in the early morning. It is interesting to note that in the schools where such programs are in progress more than 50 per cent of the student body regularly participate in the voluntary devotionals even though the program is presented at their free time.

This is the best answer I know for the skeptic who believes our young people are not serious minded and are not anxious to delve into the real truths of living today. It may be true that young people do not like long dry sermons. Neither do old people and neither have young people ever liked them. They want to participate. What is of greater importance, however, is the fact that our young people have the courage and interest to examine for themselves the things we hold dear in human behavior.

We should not be surprised or discouraged if our children look behind the platitudes, to which we adults have given lip service only, in search of the true values which form a sound basis for everyday living. The sincere soul searching of many of our young people and even beyond the body differences which today beset the denominations in each community. It is the responsibility of the school, of the church, and of the home to give our young people encouragement and leadership in an honest search for truth to the end that they may find for themselves the fundamental values of life to which they can become dedicated. Such a program for youth has little place for sectarian differences and we should not be alarmed at their seeming indifference to our particular dogmas.

We have far to go in public schools to properly fulfill our role in this phase of education. The problem of education for moral and spiritual values in Snyder is being given study now with the expectation of including worthwhile experiences in our curriculum through which our children may be led to an understanding of the place of religious experiences in everyday living. The school, the home, and the church of whatever creed must each make a contribution to deepening of the faith of our people in those fundamentals of life common to religious experiences of all people. Only in this way can we present a positive united front for human dignity and achieve for ourselves the fruitful life.

TV Reception Here Is Still Not Up To Par, Dealers Say

Television sales and installations are picking up in Snyder, despite the fact that only one station nearby is now in operation.

While some dealers say sales are still slow because residents are waiting for reception to improve, others say reception is good and sales are picking up all the time.

Whether sales are good or not, antennas are springing into view around Snyder rapidly. By driving around town, a person can count more than 60 aerials — most of them put up in the last few weeks.

A television set which would be suitable for the Snyder area can be bought and installed, complete with tower and antenna, for as low as about $275, some dealers say, and about as high as a person would want to go. The average price paid here is about $350, some estimated.

Myron Roe of Roe Home & Auto said reception is now better since the one Lubbock station has turned on full power but that the station has not yet got all the "bugs" out. He said the station had announced that it would require some time to iron out defects so viewers could get better reception.

Roe said he is anticipating much better reception when the second Lubbock station, which will be about three times more powerful, is completed. He said sales are down now because reception is not as good as it should be.

"As a town, we are in a good position for television and will have varied programs within a year's time," Roe said, explaining that in addition to Lubbock, many other nearby cities will have stations, including Abilene, San Angelo, and Midland.

Earl Brown at King & Brown said he believes television is now coming in good, since Lubbock is operating on its new tower. He said sets can get the Lubbock station every day now.

Brown reported sales are better to persons living in the country than in town. Also reporting several sales in the country was Phil Burns of Phil's Auto Appliance Center. Burns said that persons in the north and northwest part of the county are getting good reception, especially those at Fluvanna, which is located atop a high flat-top hill.

Burns said TV screens still have "snow" here. "We can get programs, but there is no use trying to fool ourselves," Burns said, saying it is not as good as the average person wants it.

Andy Schmidt at Snyder Auto Supply said reception is fair here but that persons are waiting until they are convinced reception will be better before buying sets.

There has been little call for TV service so far, the dealers say, although they have had some. There are about four repairmen who have been schooled in TV now serving the Snyder area. Most dealers report that the only service after the set is installed has been only replacement of tubes or adjustment.

Don Hire, manager of the Goodyear Service Store, said sales have picked up in the last few days but are only fiar. He said reception is better since the Lubbock station went on full power several days ago but still comes and goes and has lots of "snow."

"You can turn a set on and definitely get a picture now, and I think it's here to stay," he said.

Operators Quit Two Runnels Prospectors

Two Runnels County wildcats have been plugged and abandoned.

Murray Petroleum Co. of San Angelo No. 1 J. M. Clayton, wildcat in East - Central Runnels County, was quit at total depth of 4,063 feet.

Location was 2,026 feet from north and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 134, ET survey and one mile south of the Clayton pool.

The other failure is in South-Central Runnels County. It is Hendon Drilling Co. of Abilene No. 1 Harry Lynn and was plugged at 4,165 feet.

It was one and three-quarters miles southwest of the Ballinger (Palo Pinto) field and 330 feet from southeast and 3,124 feet from north lines of block 432, Romn Christa survey.

Apartment Building Being Completed Here

A new 30-foot by 81-foot, six-unit apartment building is being completed in Bcotheland Addition this week.

The building, on Murrell Avenue, is owned by Henry G. Thornton who has been in business here since 1945.

The apartments have 360 square feet of floor space. Thornton says they are being rented furnished or unfurnished and will bring $50 and $60 per month.

Truancy Is Minor Problem For Local School Administrators

Truancy is a minor problem in the school system here, according to the superintendent, Dr. Cecil L. Yarbrough, and the principals of junior and senior high schools, Herman Trigg and T. D. Wiman, Jr.

The school system does not have a truancy officer, which is called in many school systems a "visiting teacher" or "parent - student counsellor," but the occasional problems of truancy are worked out by principals and teachers.

Trigg said truancy in junior high school had decreased from about a dozen or more incidents a day four years ago to not more than two or three a week. "When a student first 'plays hookey,' I usually just inform the parents and tell the child he shouldn't repeat the incident," Trigg said. "most parents are co-operative and will either see that the student attends school, punish him for truancy, or will ask that his principal use discipline."

Discipline is light however, Trigg said, the student usually being given his choice of making up the work he missed on the day he was absent, with a little additional work, or he may be detained after school, or, in more severe cases, he may be given a few strokes with a paddle. "I have used a paddle only about five or six times this year," Trigg said, "I don't usually resort to such punishment in cases of truancy."

Trigg said he believed truancy was light in view of current enrollment being more than 500. "Most parents want their children to attend school and will punish them more severely than I would if they don't," Trigg said. "I have several times persuaded parents not to punish the children as severely as they wanted to."

The biggest problem in the few cases of truancy that do occur is carelessness on the part of parents. "Some parents don't seem to care whether their children attend school or not, but these are few enough that there isn't a great problem," Trigg said.

In addition to Trigg's counseling with parents and students, the teachers often visit parents and talk with the students who are prone to be truant.

There are usually a few cases of truancy each April 1, but this is not considered serious if the students have permission of parents.

The worst result of truancy is not the missing of school, Trigg said, but the association that often leads to serious juvenile delinquency. "A student plays hookey with another or two, roams around some, and spends the day on the creek banks the first few times," he said. "But later, this activity loses its flavor, and the truant boys discuss breaking into a store or something else serious." He said there was a definite connection between juvenile delinquency and truancy.

The general truancy problem at high school is minor and very similar to that of junior high school, Wiman said.

Texas Dry Is To Speak In Schools Here

An employe of the United Texas Drys, William A. Martin, will be in the junior and senior high schools this week to lead several discussions.

Martin, a former public school principal, is doing full - time work for the United Texas Drys in schools. He will be here Thursday and Friday.

School officials here said that the subject of the discussions Martin will lead is to be the physiological effects of alcohol on the human body. The talks are to be confined mainly to science and homemaking classes. Officials here state that it is their understanding that the discussions are strictly of educational nature.

Mobilgas Run Course Given By Officials

Eagerly awaited by 26 entrants and hundreds of key technicians of the automotive industry, announcement of the course for the 1953 Mobilgas Economy Run to Sun Valley, Idaho, April 20-23 was made jointly today by the American Automobile Association and its affiliate, the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Labeled "top secret" for the past four weeks, the route was revealed yesterday with the removal of a sealed envelope containing the vital information from the vaults of the Auto Club.

At that time, all cars which will participate in the rugged economy test were in final impound and unable to engage in practice runs.

The 26 competing automobiles will travel over an official Economy Run course of 1206.1 miles which will take them through four states — California, Nevada, Oregon and Idaho.

Two overnight stops will be made — the first at Reno, Nevada, and the second at Boise, Idaho. At Reno, the cars will be impounded at the University of Nevada campus. The Boise impound area will be on the grounds of Boise Junior College.

Total elapsed driving time must not exceed 27 hours, 15 minutes, according to the rigid rules laid down by the AAA which sanctions and supervises the entire event.

Altitudes will range from 19 feet above sea level at Stockton to the highest elevation on the course—7,383 feet — at Echo Summit on the southern extremity of Lake Tahoe.

It was disclosed that of the total mileage to be covered, 126.5 miles will be stop-and-go driving within city boundaries where speed will be slackened in accordance with the limits in these areas.

The 1953 course was selected because it most nearly typifies all of the road, temperature and altitude conditions which are experienced by the average driver during a year of operating his automobile.

Draft Threat Keeps Attendance At National Guard Drills Up

The National Guard has a foolproof cure for absence from drills, and it keeps average attendance up to 85 or 90 per cent, according to WOJG L. B. McCravey, one of the permanent guard staff.

The remedy for AWOLS from drills came in 1950 when the Korean War brought on new draft laws. After the draft began and young guardsmen became exempt from induction into the service, they found that they had to stick pretty close to the Guard to stay out of active service.

A youth can still be exempt from induction if he joins the Guard before reaching the age of 18½, but if he misses as many as four of the organization's 48 drills a year without a good excuse beforehand he can be inducted.

McCravey said about six guardsmen have been inducted under that provision since it went into effect. He said most who miss drills are the younger boys who would rather go out and have a good time on Thursday nights than attend drill.

A man can be excused from drill, McCravey said, if he presents his excuse of being ill or out of town to Lt. Weldon Kincaid, commander, before the drill.

If a man misses four drills during a year and is not excused, the Guard fills out a form and mails it to the Selective Service board, and the man is usually inducted on the next call. That only applies to those who are draft - exempt because of membership in the Guard, McCravey said. The organization has several veterans, as well as a few who are not draft-exempt.

The special draft exemption ruling has helped gain membership in the Guard, McCravey said, estimating that about 50 youths will attend their first summer encampment this year. The date for the camp, which will be held at North Fort Hood, has been set for May 31 to June 14, he said.

The Guard, whose membership is gradually increasing, now stands at about 85 in strength, McCravey said, adding that the group may reach its goal of 100 before the camp. About two new members a month have enlisted during the past few months, he said. About 20 members are high school boys.

At the weekly drills, the guardsmen are divided into various classes for instruction on tanks, scouting, rifle maintenance and firing, mess, and communications. Both officers and higher-ranking noncommissioned officers instruct the classes.

Ocassionally the group will hold a week end drill in some part of the county, working on overnight tactical problems and giving other instruction. The group plans at least one more week end drill before camp, McCravey said.

More Than 500 Expected Here For District Legion Meeting

More than 500 delegates from 45 American Legion posts in that many counties of the Legion's nineteenth district are expected to be here for the annual district convention April 18, and 19, Ray Niedecken, post commander, said.

This year's convention is expected to attract many more delegates and guests from out of town than last year's did because election of officers for the district will be held during the convention, Niedecken stated.

Registration of guests will begin on Saturday morning, the first day of the convention, and a color guard contest will be held at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

Then at 3:30 o'clock a large parade through down town Snyder is being planned which will feature the colorguards from visiting posts, high school bands from all over the district, and floats invited to be entered by civic clubs, individuals, and business firms.

Prizes will be given by the American Legion post to the three floats judged best by a panel of judges to be announced later, Niedecken said. The prizes will be $25 for first, $15 for second, and $10 for the third place floats.

Loving cups will be presented to the two bands which are judged to give the best performance during the parade, he said.

That night a special dance at the American Legion - VFW club house is planned at which the Steve Birdwell orchestra of Snyder will provide the music.

A joint session of the convention and the VFW club members present will be held from 10:30 until 12 o'clock that Sunday morning.

G. Ward Moody, adjutant of the American Legion department of Texas, Austin, will address the joint session. Niedecken said that the public is invited to attend that session which will feature memorial services for deceased service men.

The business of the Legion district and election of officers for the district will be held that afternoon to conclude the convention.

As a prelude to the convention here will be an aerial roundup of members of the state executive committee of the American Legion at Austin during which members of the Snyder post will be picked up here by plane on April 11 and flown to Austin. Bob Kirk, nineteenth district commander of Littlefield, will fly here to pick up the Snyder post representatives to the Austin get-together, Niedecken said.

Niedecken said he believes ample rooming accomodations for the 500 to 1,000 convention delegates has been arranged.

Big Unions To Try Merger, Not Hopeful

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The rival AFL and CIO are getting ready for another try at negotiating a merger, but leaders of both groups feel the odds are against success.

Several prior efforts to combine the two big union federations have collapsed in the face of bitter rivalries and conflicting views, and most of these differences remain unresolved.

But a team of top American Federation of Labor officials, headed by AFL President George Meany, is ready to get together here Tuesday with top officials of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, led by CIO President Walter Reuther.

It will be the first time the unity talks have been steered by the new labor chiefs, Meany and Reuther have held their top jobs in the labor groups only a few months. They were elected presidents of their organizations last fall on the deaths of AFL President William Green and CIO Chief Philip Murray.

New unity talks were the first proposal made by Meany after taking the AFLs helm.

Both Meany and Reuther, far younger men than the late Green and Murray, have pledged to give the unity idea a fresh try. Both say they favor merger and won't let personal ambition stand in the way of achieving it.

The union leaders say the purpose of a merger is to build labor power and prestige in national affairs. They feel a combined union movement would be stronger and wield more influence, than a divided one. Some unionists dispute this, contending competition keeps both on their toes.

Almost ever since the CIO was established in 1935—in a splintering away of unions from the AFL—there have been efforts to get the CIO back into the AFL, or the "house of labor" as the late Green called it.

Reuther, however, tossed cold water on the latest unity efforts by announcing a few weeks ago a set of conditions the CIO has placed on returning to the AFL.

Three thousand pounds of pepper were part of the ransom of Rome when beseiged by Alaric in 408.

Mrs. Louise Martin holds the ribbon she won in a Texas fair for her abstract painting. "Pepper (her husband) said it looks like chicken entrails, but it is probably something out of the bottom of the ocean," she said. Abstract art isn't actually supposed to represent any object but only has a design, Mrs. Martin explained. (Dolores Ketchersid Photograph)

Modern Art Hobby With Mrs. Martin, An Unhurried Painter

Mrs. Louise Martin of west Thirty-seventh Street, who confesses that her art is "spasmodic and spontaneous," once tried a type of art entirely new to her just to get color in her dining room.

Originally of San Antonio, Mrs. Martin first got interested in modern art when she had a dark green wall that needed a blob of color. And that is how the Snyder woman described her abstract canvas which later took second place in Kingsville South Texas Fair and Exposition. "But it caused so much comment I finally took it down," she said.

Mrs. Martin said she doesn't paint regularly but will "just coast on honor" previously won. She said she has recently painted two pictures that were acceptable so it might be two years before she does another one. "There's no point in knocking myself out," she joked.

Family reaction to Mrs. Martin's art is divided. Eleven-year-old David, in general, ignores his mother's work. Although, she said, her son has an artistic taste "he prefers literature." Her mother who lives in San Antonio won't allow Mrs. Martin's abstractions in her house. "She says David can do that well," Mrs. Martin laughed. Family peace will probably be preserved after she takes the next planned step in art, portraits.

Her parents have embarked on art as a hobby although her father only has partial vision. Recently Mrs. Martin presented him with materials for original and creative work. Previously he had done only paintings from outlined canvasses and mixed paints from prepared capsules, she said.

Mrs. Martin studied art in public schools before attending Texas State College for Women at Denton for two years. After their marriage the couple moved to Kingsville where she took art at Texas State College of Arts and Industires. She also learned ceramics at the school, however, she said, she doesn't like doing them.

The Snyder Artist has done realistic landscapes and surrealistic art as well as abstracts. A painting in the surrealistic category is of a cactus which is distorted and red although it maintains the identifying lines of a cactus.

Mrs. Martin doesn't see a too steady future for modern art. "The critics seem to like it. But it doesn't sell. People had rather have landscapes in their living room than something questionable," she said. She believes, however, that the contemporary art will go down in history. Qualities in color and texture are better in modern art, she said, but added that they do not exceed that of the ancient masters.

She stated that almost every artist copies after at least one of the masters, and Mrs. Martin has applied techniques used by Vangogh who was of the nineteenth century French school. Imitating Vangogh she applies colors she wants blended side by side and at a distance the eye will blend them. Sometimes Mrs. Martin uses as many as four colors on one brush instead of applying them with a palette knife as the master did.

Regardless of his communistic beliefs, Mrs. Martin said, Diego Rivera in Mexico has done much for modern art. Another outstanding painter of this era is Grant Wood who does realistic art, she said. But modern masters comparable to those in the nineteenth century can be discovered only with time. "They haven't lived long enough to tell," she said of the contemporary artists.

Mrs. Martin readily admits she isn't very serious about her hobby although she said she has "a lot of fun with it." Recently she started painting two red birds but ended up with three horses. Another scene began with palms on a seacoast, was altered to be a West Texas canyon and finally wound up as a Frio River canyon. Up to date she hasn't sold any canvases, "but I'm sure I'd take the money," she said.

Ann Blyth Not Hollywoodish In Choosing Mate; Gets MD

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD, April 5 (AP)—Ann Blyth, who admits to prejudice, believes that doctors make the best husbands for movie stars.

She also admits that she never gave the matter much thought until she met Dr. James McNulty, an obstetrician.

"Doctors are so understanding," she says, "and my Jim even more so." (They're getting married June 27.)

That's important, she believes, because a successful actress has so many public demands on her time. In Ann's case, they are considerable. She is the darling of the church bazaar circuit, a commendable title for it involves a minimum of publicity and an abundance of solid charity.

Ann has been teamed with the screen's most handsome leading men, Gregory Peck, Tyrone Power and now with Robert Taylor and Stewart Granger in "All the Brothers Were Valiant."

Yet she went outside the profession for her first serious falling in love. Ann and Dr. McNulty found they have a communion of interests—both are Catholic and Irish—and, most important, both want large families.

Although Ann is a major movie star, her views on marriage are un-Hollywoodish. She's even learning to cook. As we talked in her MGM dressing room, she picked up a couple of copies of women's magazines.

"I never noticed those beautiful recipes before," she smiled. Designer Helen Rose is already working on her bridal gown. The bridesmaids are all picked. They are Jeanne Crain, Jane Powell, Jane Withers, Alice Krasiwa (Ann's stand-in), Betty Lynn and Joan Leslie.

Dr. McNulty has picked a well-known name for his best man—his brother, Dennis Day.

The nuptial mass will be held at St. Charles Church in North Hollywood, Ann's home parish.

They have already picked a home nearby—a $50,000 Connecticut farmhouse. It undoubtedly will be the biggest movie wedding of the year—for Ann long has been the movie industry's favorite nice girl.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Paramount will premier "Pony Express" with a troupe of stars flying the same route that the horsemen traveled.

Premieres will be held in the various stopping places along the way, beginning with St. Joseph, Mo.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—That Las Vegas night club money is luring John Payne.

Payne, who started as a singer in the movies, is now in a two-fisted action cycle. His latest is "Crosstown"

He admits the he wasn't too much interested in an offer from the Flamingo Hotel in the gambling resort.

"I told them that I wouldn't work for less than $7,000 a week. I figured that would be a polite bow-out. Instead they answered yes so quick, I wish now that I had asked for more."

Now he is busy getting his act together. He has composed some 55 songs, some of which he will sing. He's enthused about the new venture.

"For one thing," said Payne, "I may convince people that I'm also a singer. No one believed it when I played in musicals."

Waltzes Hog Market On New Records Introduced In Snyder

Outstanding recording stars, including such Snyder favorites as Teresa Brewer who topped the local poll for over a month, have recently released new discs.

Waltzes have found their way into the new records led off by the songstress whose "Till I Waltz Again with You" passed the million mark. The new one "Dancin' With Someone," done by Teresa is with Jack Pleis orchestra accompanying but never playing alone. On the opposite side she steps out of character to assume a Pearl Bailey type voice but about an octave higher for "Breakin' in the Blues."

Another waltz locally shelved is Bill Kennedy's "No More Good Byes" with Les Baxter's band. It is a smooth melody complete with the Baxter chorus. On the opposite side Les takes a crack at Tschaikovsky's "Dance of the Flutes" from the "Nutcracker Suite." Baxter leaves off the frills and thirty-second notes to make it a slightly lower than semi-classical interpretation.

The Four Knights have also taken a new slant on an old song. Al Jolson's "Anniversary Song" is done like a Negro spiritual with a vocal bass solo by Oscar Broadway. For those who are sentimental about the melody the new version grinds like the hillbilly interpretation of "Temptation." Others who get past the first measure will like the lilt of the rhythm.

On the opposite side of the record one of the Knights, Gene Alford, solos almost all the way through on "A Few Kind Words."

Karen Chandler has a new recording out called "Goodbye, Charlie, Goodbye." The newest is a lachadaisical tune with words that bemoan the fact Charlie has been unfaithful so his lover is leaving. On the opposite side is "I'd Love to Fall Asleep (And Wake up in Your Arms)" with an easy beat to dance to.

Buddy Morrow's orchestra has recorded a song that is gaining momentum on the west coast but has barely been introduced to Snyder. "I Don't Know," is sung by Frankie Lester with a new style jive including words without music. Frankie sings a capella for a line and the brassy band repeats the same line before the two get together. "Hey Mrs. Jones" is cut on the other side without a vocal. A fast saxophone and traps are used extensively in the number.

Top sellers in Snyder last week were:

"Mexican Joe," Jim Reeves.
"Doggie in the Window," Patti Page.
"Till I Waltz Again With You," Teresa Berwer.
"Oh, Happy Day," the Four Knights.
"Your Cheatin' Heart," Joni James.
"Tell Me You're Mine," the Gaylords.
"I Believe," Frankie Laine.
"Kaw-Liga," Hank Williams.
"No Help Wanted," the Carlisles.
"Hot Toddy," Ralph Flanagan.

March Postal Receipts Above Last Year's

Postal receipts for the month of March were reported at $8,886.06, slightly more than that for March, 1952.

The 1952 figure was $8,753.73. January's $3,279.29 and February's $7,792.71 combined with March to bring the total to $24,958.16 for the quarter, or $2,991.53 less than the first quarter's $27,949.69 in 1952.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy McCormick will be at home at 607 Thirty-fourth Street following a short wedding trip.

The couple was married Thursday night in the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. E. K. Shepherd, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The double - ring ceremony was read in the presence of the immediate families before a setting of pastel spring flowers and pastel candles.

25 YEARS AGO

(Taken from files of the Hermleigh Herald, Friday, April 6, 1928.)

The election of officers for the City of Hermleigh Tuesday was rather quiet and very orderly, for which Hermleigh deserves commendations ... The final count showed...

Mayor —W. R. Terry.

Aldermen —Joe Roemisch, W.C. Fargason, J. I. Chorn, J. B. Etheredge and T. W. Atchley.

City marshall—W. E. (Red) Hassell.

• • •

In some lines of business, at least it appears that there is too much competition in Hermleigh. Still efficiency experts state that competition is the most outstanding builder of brisk business. They may be right at that as the struggle for material gains is the factor that gave birth to the ability of such prominent financial geniuses as Ford, Dodge, and many others. It is surely the cause of the wonderful rapid progress of our country.

BUT, this may be carried to extremes, as in the case when, as we are reliably informed, a transient workman buys a pint of whiskey each night for six nights, and buys no two bottles from one man.

• • •

A movement is now under way to found a county library. This was stated by a ladies club in Snyder and was presented to the Lions Club, who greeted the idea with enthusiasm. The plan will be presented to the Commissioners Court in the near future.

• • •

Judge H. Holley has authorized us to announce his candidacy for re-election to the office he is now holding. He is making the race on the record that he has made while holding his office, and points with pride to the steps that the county has made under his jurisdiction.

• • •

Already our county has a hard surfaced road across the county with the exception of the distance from Hermleigh to the Nolan county line. That county has agreed to hard surface that part of the road that is in their limits if we do our part and meet them at the line.

(Taken from the files of the Scurry - County Times - Signal, April 5, 1928.)

The new City Council met for the first time Tuesday night, and the swearing in of the following officers was attended to.

Mayor, Howard G. Towle.

City Secretary, A. C. Preuitt.

City Marshal, J. A. Woodfin.

City Recorder, M. Stacy.

City Attorney, John E. Sentell.

Aldermen Lee Stinson, Sam Bradbury and Ed J. Thompson.

• • •

A successful meeting closed at the Mt. Olive Baptist Church (colored) Sunday, with eleven additions to the church roll and dedicatory services of their new church home. The church now has a membership of thirty, and every debt was cleared at the services Sunday.

• • •

Henry D. Roland, daredevil "human fly" of Cleveland, Ohio, who for the past 13 years has made a profession of scaling buildings in every state in the union, will Saturday at 4:30 p.m. top the dome of the court house, and the public is urged to gather on the west side of the court house and watch this 38-year-old athlete go up the smooth sides of the building.

• • •

Work on the proposed Artesia, Roswell and Snyder railroad was given a further boost Saturday when Capt. Ed Kennedy, the promoter, accompanied by L. P. Ward and J. W. Roach, experienced railroad men, and A. L. Dickerson of the Townsite Development Company of Houston, arrived in Snyder for a definite check-up before making a final report.

The special rail committee headed by O. P. Thrane and Robert H. Curnutte, met the delegation and confirmed the tonnage reports that had been previously sent to the Houston offices of the promoter.

• • •

Henry P. Wellborn, who only recently completed one of the finest ranch homes in West Texas of adobe, gave a contract Monday to a Mexican building contractor to start an up-to-date adobe for him this week on his vacant lots in the West side Heights addition.

Mrs. H. D. Jones, left, hands refreshment to her house guest, Mrs. D. J. Britton, whose husband is in Korea. The two women were reared together in Tulsa, Okla.

Husband Of Visitor Here Is Guerrilla Fighter In Korea

Having a relative in the army isn't anything new to Mrs. D. J. Britton whose husband has been with the military for 18 years, six of them since she has been married to him.

Mrs. Britton is visiting in the home of her cousin, Mrs. H. D. Jones, at 3115 Thirty-ninth Street while her husband is in Korea. She likes military life, however, and said because of it she has seen and been places that would have been impossible otherwise. "No matter how much you move around you always run in to someone you know," she added.

Maj. D. J. Britton is presently serving as U. S. Advisor to the Republic of Korea First Security Battalion, a light infantry outfit organized for guerrilla hunting. In a recent Associated Press feature published in a Tulsa, Okla., newspaper, The Tulsa Tribune, Mrs. Britton read about more dangers in his work than she ever knew because "he doesn't write about it."

The major and his battalion of Korean soldiers fought in two big anti-guerrilla campaigns, Operation Rat Killer and Operation Ferret, last spring. Later they were moved to Koje island to help tame mutinous Communist prisoners there. At present they are on Cheju island again keeping tabs on captured Reds, Mrs. Britton said.

Prior to arriving in Korea, Britton, 36, had served as national guard instructor in Indianapolis and Anderson, Ind. In the Far East he was assigned to the Korean Military Advisory Group which is made up of less than 2,000 men who live and work almost alone with ROK troops. His battalion was especially organized to fight guerrillas. Mrs. Britton said the major is scheduled to return to the states this summer.

War isn't new to Britton. He served as company commander in the Seventh Armored Division in World War II. His campaigns include the Normandy invasion, advance to the Moselle, the Battle of the Bulge and the campaign in Holland. The major has been awarded the silver star, bronze star, purple heart with three clusters, ribbon for five major battles, Croix de Guerre, a similar honor from Belgium, and the army commendation ribbon.

Mrs. Britton has gotten letters from two of the Koreans serving under her husband, a sergeant and a colonel. It is a custom in Korea to send gifts to the wife of a man you admire, she said. Among the presents she has received are metal cups engraved in English, chopsticks and a Korean doll for the baby, Debbie Jo, whom the major has never seen. By Korean etiquette standards a refusal of a gift is impolite, Mrs. Britton said. The sergeant was recently killed while attempting to disarm trapped guerrillas.

Other Korean sourvenirs include some "real funny looking" rubber shoes with curled toes from her husband, Mrs. Britton said. Another gift from the major was a movie camera with which Mrs. Britton is rapidly becoming familiar.

The army wife said desirable gifts to enlisted men include slipper socks, mufflers and pocket-sized games such as chess or checkers to play during lulls in combat. Some boys request boxes of greeting cards for all occasions to send back to their families, she said. Mrs. Britton also includes items that aren't in rations such as chili. "But mail is more important than food. That's what keeps their morale up," she stated. The major's wife said while she may get several letters in a week, when Britton is in combat she may not receive but one in six weeks. "There are times I'm about ready to call the Red Cross," she said.

The Korean conflict has passed the stage of a police action and is a war, Mrs. Britton affirmed. But she doesn't think the fighting is futile but "something that has to be done." She added that she believes the major feels the same way. Mrs. Britton said it is only a matter of stopping the Russians at that point instead of waiting for them to work around through other countries to the United States.

The Brittons originally lived at Tulsa, Okla., where they were both reared. They met when Mrs. Britton worked as his secretary. The two were married 13 days when the major left for the Phillipines and Mrs. Britton joined him about a year and one-half later. While there they lived in the University area in Manila. Mrs. Britton said she was in one typhoon then which took the roof off their house, but they were in a storm cellar.

While in the islands the major put time in on his favorite hobby, skeet shooting. "He was pretty good. In fact, he was very good at it," Mrs. Britton said.

Regardless of places she has visited Mrs. Britton still likes the climate of West Texas. This is the Tulsa woman's third visit to Snyder. She remembers activity during the boom. "I thought it was wonderful," she said. Mrs. Britton also visited Mrs. Jones last summer.

ANTHONY'S

Mrs. Jack Blanchard

Sanderson-Blanchard Rites Read In Blackwell Church

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blanchard are on a wedding trip to San Antonio following their wedding Friday night at the First Methodist Church in Blackwell, Tex.

The bride is the former Miss Pamelia Jane Sanderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Sanderson of Blackwell. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ross Blanchard, Sr., 3103 Avenue S.

Officiating minister was the bride's brother-in-law, Rev. Robert D. Harris, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Darrouzett, Tex., who read a double - ring ceremony. The church was decorated with an arch of candles and with garden flowers and baskets of greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white slipper satin gown with finger-tip veil of Chantilly lace. The dress was fashioned with a rising Queen Anne's collar of lace and had a chapel-length train. Her veil fell from a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried an orchid on the Bible of Kappa Phi Club, traditional of brides who were members of the club at McMurry College.

SISTER ATTENDS

Miss Betty Sanderson attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a dress of yellow Swiss imported heberlein and carried a colonial bouquet. Mrs. Robert D. Harris of Darrouzett was her sister's matron of honor and wore a green dress fashioned like that of the maid of honor and bridesmaids. Miss Martha Sue Copeland, of Blackwell, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her dress was orchid. She and Mrs. Harris carried colonial bouquets similar to that of the maid of honor. The three attendants wore short gloves matching their dresses and wore halos trimmed with rhinestones.

Jonila Harris of Darrouzett, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a satin and lace dress similar to that of the bride. Bobby D. Harris, also of Darrouzett, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer.

Ross Blanchard, Jr., of Snyder attended his brother as best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Bobby Sanderson of Blackwell, brother of the bride, and Dan Glass of Sterling City, Tex., cousin of the bride.

Jack Youree, cousin of the bride, was organist. He accompanied Joe Collyns of Monahans who sang "Through the Years" and "The Lord's Prayer."

RECEPTION IN CHURCH

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. The table was covered with a lace cloth over yellow, and crystal appointments were used. Streamers of orchid, yellow and green, the bride's chosen colors, extended from the cake topped with a nosegay. Mrs. L. W. Sweet and Mrs. C. B. Smith registered guests, and Mrs. Anna Lee Johnson of Sterling City furnished music for the reception. The house party included Mrs. Rex Nall and Mrs. Frank Miller, both of Snyder.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a gray and yellow flannel suit with harmonizing accessories. The couple will be at home in the Lion Oil Camp.

She was graduated from Blackwell High School and McMurry College where she was a member of Kappa Phi social club. She is associated with the Snyder schools. The bridegroom was graduated from Snyder High School and Sul Ross State College. He served 27 months in the armed forces and is employed by Lion Oil Co.

Out-of-town guests were from Snyder, Bronte, Water Valley, Lamesa, San Angelo and Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Guyon, 1918 Coleman, have as holiday guests their daughter, Miss Gloria Guyon, and her fiance, Garry Humphrey, both of Victoria, Tex.

THE WOMAN'S FORUM

Possible 'Pineapple State' Approved By Local Women

By SUE HOLMES

Nearly a century ago legislators thought it would be a good idea to admit Hawaii to statehood. In 1854, when Franklin Pierce was president, a treaty was proposed to that effect.

President Eisenhower has said he favors Hawaiian statehood; the House passed a bill 274-138 for statehood and several local women hope the Senate will give Hawaii the nod, too.

One woman who visited Hawaii last year thinks we need to make it a state. She is Mrs. Ella Cooper, 3007 Avenue S, who noticed modern buildings and a progressive air in the islands.

Mrs. Lewis Cass, 3106 Thirty-ninth Street, says she feels Hawaii and also Alaska need help and if they want to become states, she's in favor of it.

"We have bases in both Hawaii and Alaska, and they've earned the right to become states," Mrs. Myrle Greathouse, 3011 Thirty-ninth Street, says. "I may be outvoted on Alaska, but I think everybody is in favor of Hawaii," she says.

Should Hawaii be admitted to statehood, the most obvious change to Americans would be a new flag. It has been the same since 1912, when New Mexico and Arizona were admitted. None of the local women questioned was disturbed over a prospective change in flag.

Mrs. John R. Williams, 2904 Avenue W, says she thinks it is all right for Hawaii to become a state. "If Hawaii is not Americanized by now, it is our own fault," she comments. "I am not in favor of Alaska's becoming a state, because I think we have more developing to do there. It would be a liability instead of an asset," she believes.

Hawaii would be the first state outside the continent, and for the first time the United States would be taking in a state in which the caucasian race is in the decided minority. Hawaii has more persons of Oriental descent than all of the United States combined.

Mrs. E. T. Jordan, 2333 Sunset, who moved here from Oregon, which has a large Oriental population along the coast, thinks it would be a good idea for both Hawaii and Alaska to be ready for statehood. She had no comment on the kind of Americans the Orientals would become.

Another Snyder woman in favor of statehood for both Hawaii and Alaska is Mrs. Leon Huff, 3374 Highland Drive. She says she in favor of it if those territories desire statehood.

The way the bill for Hawaii's statehood now reads is that both Houses must ratify Hawaii's new Constitution before it becomes a full voting member of the union. This would be after the Senate and the President take action on the bill.

Arguments taking place in the House debate on Hawaii were reminiscent of another statement: "The government is very likely to be endangered by a further enlargement of its already vast territorial surface."

The time was 1845 and the speaker was Daniel Webster. He was talking about Texas.

None of the Snyder women questioned commented on the danger of enlargement.

Parents To Blame For Heart Ills

Rheumatic fever sufferers in the United States include from 500,000 to 650,000 children, according to Dr. David Renert, noted heart specialist.

Many are victims of this damaging childhood disease because their parents were too late with too few preventive measures, he says.

Dr. Rennert, Chief of the Children's Cardiac Clinic of Harlem Hospital in New York City, says that if streptococcal infections, mainly of the tonsils and the respiratory system had not been dismissed too lightly by the parents the probabilities are that most of these children would not have contracted the disease. Says he:

"If a qualified doctor had been called in time, it would have been possible to prescribe suitable antibiotics in proper dosages (mainly penicillin) which would have eliminated the infection before it attacked the heart."

Even after the infection has been arrested, he said, proper doses of these antibiotics should be given to prevent further attacks by the fever.

The fact that a child has suffered from rheumatic fever does not necessarily mean he will be an invalid for the rest of his life, he says. Nor should parents and teachers treat him as such.

Even where a child needs bed rest he should be permitted activity in line with his condition, Dr. Rennert recommends. If his heart is not overtaxed, such activity will help him physically and mentally, he says. Dr. Rennert cautions:

"Because one never knows whether the infection has been arrested or eradicated completely, the degree of activity permitted should depend on the cardiac findings of the individual child."

"Where such cardiac findings show no marked structural changes in the heart, on a proper prophylactic regimen (penicillin or sulfa) he can participate in almost any normal activity."

Parents and teachers must be on the alert, however, he advises, to see that he does not become overactive to the point where he develops a shortness of breath. Nor should he be permitted to become overheated, over - fatigued or catch a chill.

Rheumatic fever strikes most often in those homes where there is overcrowding, dark and damp rooms, inadequate clothing and feeding. Such children should get enough sleep, follow a well-rounded diet, take adequate amounts of vitamins, dress comfortably and get out into sunlight as much as possible, he says. In addition, they should have periodic physical checkups, including blood tests and electrocardiagrams. Dr. Rennert says:

"Where a family finds it cannot afford these measures they should be referred to their local heart association for help."

Steady Work Now That He Is Ex-Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The happiest man in Hollywood? I nominate Gilbert Roland.

The Latin actor seems to have found the secret of lasting youth. He readily admits to being 47, yet he has the face and figure of a far younger man. He also has a youthful outlook on life, but with a calm, deep philosophy that can come only with years of good living.

Career-wise, he is the envy of his fellow actors. In the past five years, he has gone from picture to picture, delivering finely etched performances such as in "My Six Convicts" and "The Bad and the Beautiful." Yet he doesn't have the rigors and the insecurity of being a star.

"I don't want to be a star," he blandly declares. "I've had it before, and I know what it's like. Let the young kids have it now."

At present he is finishing up "The Diamond Queen" with Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas. This week he leaves for Florida to portray a sponge fisherman in "12-Mile Reef" with Robert Wagner and Terry Moore. Then he goes to Spain to appear with Claudette Colbert in "That Lady," which Katharine Cornell did on the stage.

Of course, the picture business was not always as rosy for Roland. He was a big hit in the '20s, when Latin lovers had their heyday on the screen. His star faded with the advent of the grapefruit-in-the-face style of movie lover. After he got out of the Army in World War II, he rode the range in the Cisco Kid series.

"No producer wanted to hire me," he recalled. "They said I was a Western actor."

John Huston changed all that. He interviewed the actor for a role in "We Were Strangers." "Can you sing?" Roland replied he couldn't. "Can you play a guitar?" The answer was again negative.

So Roland got the job as a Cuban revolutionary who played the guitar and sang. Huston made him get a haircut, and the director even wielded the scissors himself. Roland submitted to all this, and the results brought a revival of his film career. He has made 15 pictures in the past five years, and turned down more.

Don't Worry About What Hubby Likes

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Contrary to popular belief, says a beauty salon authority, there are few henpecked husbands in America, but "rooster-pecked" wives are legion.

It's the wife who works herself into a state of nerves every time she gets a new hat or a new hairdo, worrying for fear her husband won't like it. The average U. S. wife is eager to please her spouse, and terrified of his criticism, says D. J. Brown, who has spent most of his adult life observing women in the intimate atmosphere of the beauty salon. Famous beauties of stage and screen frequent his plush new galmor factory on New York's "chic street," East 56th.

"I've seen brilliant and beautiful women go all to pieces over the idea of cutting their hair," he says "because they're afraid of what their husbands or sweethearts will say. Their good sense tells them they will look younger and more attractive with a different hair style, but their hearts start palpitating over the possible effect on Tom, Dick or Harry.

"A favorite remark of women is, 'My husband loves long hair.' This usually is a fallacy. Men think they like long hair because it seems the thing to do. Actually, they merely want their wives or girl friends to look beautiful, so they can be proud of them. Long hair has a romantic sound, but it is not flattering to all women. If a man can be shown that his wife will look prettier with short hair, he probably won't object. But he has to be convinced."

It is for this reason that D. J. urges his customers to bring their husbands along when they contemplate a new hair style or color. He explains:

"I honestly believe that if women made it a practice to bring their husbands along to help them decide on a new hairdo or a new hat, the divorce rate would go down in America."

D. J. claims that once the husband is inside the salon, the battle is half won. He recalls:

"Once an irate husband threatened to kill me because I had cut his wife's hair. He was an aging European nobleman, his wife was beautiful and much younger. When I called his bluff, and told him he simply didn't want his wife to look young, he admitted it and apologized. And when everyone admired the wife in her new flattering hairdo, he beamed with pride."

Mrs. E. A. Brooks, who is once again livening the Daily News' columns with her "Sandscripts," is shown here with her four children surrounding her in her wheelchair. From left is Bruce, 7; Annabelle, 11 months; Burke, 6; and Ernest, Jr., 1 month, in her arms.

SANDSCRIPTS

By FRANCES BROOKS

I blotted dry the check on a Snyder bank made out to the Abilene doctor. The efficient, young obstetrician who had delivered my fourth child blandly accepted his $150 fee, and I couldn't help remembering my grandmother. When her seventh child arrived, they gave the doc, out from the county seat ,15 silver dollars and a fresh settin' of eggs!

The "baby specialist" teetered back in his swivel chair and eyed me across the clutter of guileless infant portraits mamas had dutifully bestowed upon him. His glance touched my sturdy cane which I keep polished to a high sheen, shifted back quickly .... like most folks I have discovered, he pretended it simply wasn't there.

Since the arrival of my normally "bouncing" son a month earlier, I have suspected the doctor of prizing me as a first - rate case record. Maybe good for a medical magazine if he can ever find the time. He had been accustomed to healthy, young matrons who drove in from the suburbs for check-ups all the nine months, usually en route to grocery store or bridge game. When he took my case, it was to discover me on a hospital bed, supine from a paralyzing attack of spinal meningitis.

The nurses and doctors brought me overly cheery stories during the three-month bout dealing with ladies who brought fine, fit babies into this uncertain world after having been run down by butane trucks, cut off along during landslides in Alaska, or imprisoned in polio iron lungs.

Ending his reverie about this prodigal case, the specialist snapped his feet back onto the floor and dismissing me, took up the folio of Mrs. Brown, who came in all ready to describe the heartburn supper gives her.

So as to cheer you if your tax rendition tangled up or if the goatheads are taking your lawn, let me lightly relate a few new wrinkles in problems. They are those of a housewife with a still-sleepy left leg and arm, battling life's elements, the dust in a nine-room sort of ranch-style house and a hardy brood of four tots at her knee. The house prowls around shotgun fashion for about 700 yards with now and then a quick drop-step, as though the carpenter had fallen into a gopher hole and never quite got the bathroom and bedroom level.

Now, steps are the one remaining obstacle I cannot engineer. After hard working research, I can successfully get into all heights of chairs and, more important, out of them; can reach Clabbergirl baking powders on top shelves; go after cobwebs with a broom handle; paint a utility cabinet canary yellow; and rule the nursery expertly, the same cane in easy reach. But we called a family consultation to get Mom down that bathroom step.

"Sit down and turn a somersault and you'll be in the bedroom", the six-year old son offered. A friend volunteered, "Let the tub run over and then float out." Mother claims to have an article on how the handicapped in an Ohio home built ramps all over and blithely scooted up and down their steps, roller coaster style, probably yodeling.

• • •

There's a certain soon-spent glamour about being the invalid type. Home after four months of occupying a prominent spot on several bemused M.D.'s lists, I came out of the hospital with the undiminished enthusiasm of a parolee out of stir. The new baby rode beside me in a ducky plastic basket lined in blue down in the homeward-bound ambulance ... Mesquite trees had taken on the pastel green shade of early Spring. I noticed, there was even a mud puddle as we swung off Thirty-seventh Street at the "Y" ... the new high school looked like a mirage over west... ivy somebody sent crawled over a huge totem pole on the coffee table ... my kids looked pounds heavier and acted polite like I was a visiting aunt or something.

• • •

Well, the novelty passed. Today my husband grumbled ..... "Shoot, now you're well the good cooks around won't be bringing us any more of those roasts, cocoanut cakes, or peach cobblers."

The entire family by now fight over my wheelchair, the most comfortable of seats. I still find it perfect, parked a little west of the kitchen table, for snapping beans, peeling spuds, rocking babies. It's a dandy laundry drag, too, and I wheel it past the four hampers collecting diapers. We have 125 diapers, which should astonish you no more than that we have 13 baby bottles going for the two children under one year.

• • •

But there IS a golden goblin—the first -grader's story book tells in enthralling narrative about the red goblins (very bad) and the golden goblins (very good), which later hang about houses where they can lend a hand.

Over a span of 30 years an indifferent and hurried cook, suddenly, with the balky hand notwithstanding, my biscuits taste edible. Corn muffins fluff up where they once squatted. Casseroles respond, no matter what crazy recipe I got hold of...

• • •

As I say, if those tax returns made things look bleak, come borrow my golden goblin—but not this week, he's busy here with four sets of measles.

Beseeching Banford, Bald As Billiard Ball, Begs For Burnt Bees

READING, Pa. (AP) — Mayor James B. Banford, who says he's been as bald as an Easter egg for 20 of his 45 years, has new hope today for a crop of fuzz—or something better.

Banford said he had received from Donald S. Gates, an Albright professor, a "sure cure" formula for baldness uncovered by Gates in thumbing through a book published in 1742.

The formula's ingredients:

Two ounces of boar's grease, one dram (about 60 grains by present apothecary weight) of ashes of burnt bees, one dram of ashes of southern wood, one dram of juice of white dilly root (the dilly is a small hardwood tree found in Florida), one dram of oil of sweet almonds, and six drams of pure musk.

"I think I can get hold of those other things," said Banford, "but what's worrying me are those burnt bees."
