Price Daniel Takes Lead In Governor Race; Jordan Wins

Gubernatorial Runoff Apparent

By PRESTON McGRAW
United Press Staff Correspondent

Barring a miracle at the forks of the creek, Price Daniel and Yarborough will fight it out for the governorship of Texas in a Democratic runoff election four weeks from now.

Daniel, the junior U. S. senator from Texas, and Yarborough, who is making his third attempt to become the state's chief executive, led the field of six candidates in latest returns from Saturday's Democratic primary.

Former Gov. and U. S. Sen. W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel was running third and it seemed that only a sudden flood of votes from the forks of the creek, to which he made his most passionate appeal, could put him ahead of Yarborough.

The final Texas Election Bureau tabulation of the night was made at 1:30 a. m. Sunday. It included returns from 221 of the state's 254 counties, including 77 complete.

These returns showed, in the governor's race: Daniel, 427,644 votes; J. Evetts Haley, 60,523; J. J. Holmes, 8,156; O'Daniel, 255,804; Reuben Senterfitt, 24,993 and Yarborough, 316,103.

These votes totaled 1,073,223 and probably about 300,000 remained to be counted. Of the total counted, Daniel had 39.85 per cent; Yarborough 29.4 per cent and O'Daniel 21.97 per cent.

Yarborough, after looking at the returns at 12:30 a. m., said it certainly looked like a runoff made a quick pitch for the O'Daniel vote by praising O'Daniel as a good campaigner who took his "campaign to the people."

"Both J. Evetts Haley and Reuben Senterfitt conducted similar campaigns, but the junior senator (Daniel) conducted his campaign with cool, air conditioned coffees and teas as he bought his way across the state," Yarborough said.

Tribute to Clean Campaign

Daniel, at his home in Liberty, said it looked as if he would get more votes than any other candidate and said that this probably was a tribute to the clean campaign he conducted. He took a vow not to sling mud against his five opponents or call them names.

In a three-question referendum, the voters indicated by whopping majorities that they want stronger segregation and mixed marriage laws and want the state to use the doctrine of interposition to prevent federal usurpation of its rights.

U. S. Rep. John Bell of Cuero conceded his defeat in the 14th District congressional race by Judge John Young of Corpus Christi. Congressman - at - large Martin Dies beat Bill Elkins of Dallas.

Shape of Other Races

The other races shaped up as follows:

Lieutenant governor—Ben Ramsey, the present lieutenant governor, was leading but probably faced a runoff against A. M. Aiken.

Attorney General—Former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Will Wilson of Dallas was leading, but probably faced a runoff against District Attorney Tom Moore Jr., of Waco.

Agriculture commissioner—John White, the present commissioner, appeared to have a clearcut victory over two opponents.

Congress Heads Home

By NEIL MACNEIL

WASHINGTON, July 28 —UP— Members of the 84th Congress headed home Saturday to seek re-election on their legislative records.

The Democratic-controlled Congress wound up its work Friday midnight after passing four major bills—foreign aid, social security, public housing, and federal-state flood insurance.

Leaders of both parties voiced satisfaction with the session but both sides, with an eye to the November elections, interjected partisan comment.

Republicans said the Democrats did fairly well in passing needed legislation but that the GOP could have done even better had it been in control.

Democrats claimed they were handicapped by "weak" leadership in the White House.

Money for Defense

The time in which the world lives was reflected in congressional actions. The Senate and House appropriated $60,647,917,590 for this fiscal year, most of it for defense. This was $245,060,947 less than President Eisenhower's budget requests.

The biggest single appropriation $34,656,727,000, was for the Defense Department which also got more than a billion dollars for construction of bases around the world. Also aimed at national defense was the second largest appropriation, $3,766,570,000 for foreign aid. Mr. Eisenhower originally asked for $4.9 billion.

Last year Congress appropriated $53,124,821,215. This was $1,919,461,014 less than Mr. Eisenhower requested.

Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland (Calif.), in a dispatch written for the United Press, said Republicans and Democrats closed ranks on foreign policy in helping the Republican administration make "adjustments to meet changing circumstances" in world affairs.

He said Congress had a good "batting average" in enacting the administration's domestic legislative program but that a Republican-controlled Congress next year would do better.

The next Congress convenes Jan. 7.

In a similar United Press dispatch Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) called the session "impressive both in terms of quantity and quality." He agreed there had been bi-partisanship on foreign policy.

Some Assail President

Johnson made no attack on President Eisenhower but other Democrats leveled the weak-leadership charge.

In its final day Congress sent Mr. Eisenhower a social security bill far more liberal than he had sought. It will speed benefits to more than one million persons by lowering the retirement age to 62 for women and to 50 for totally disabled persons. It will increase social security taxes slightly.

Political Score Paid By Demos

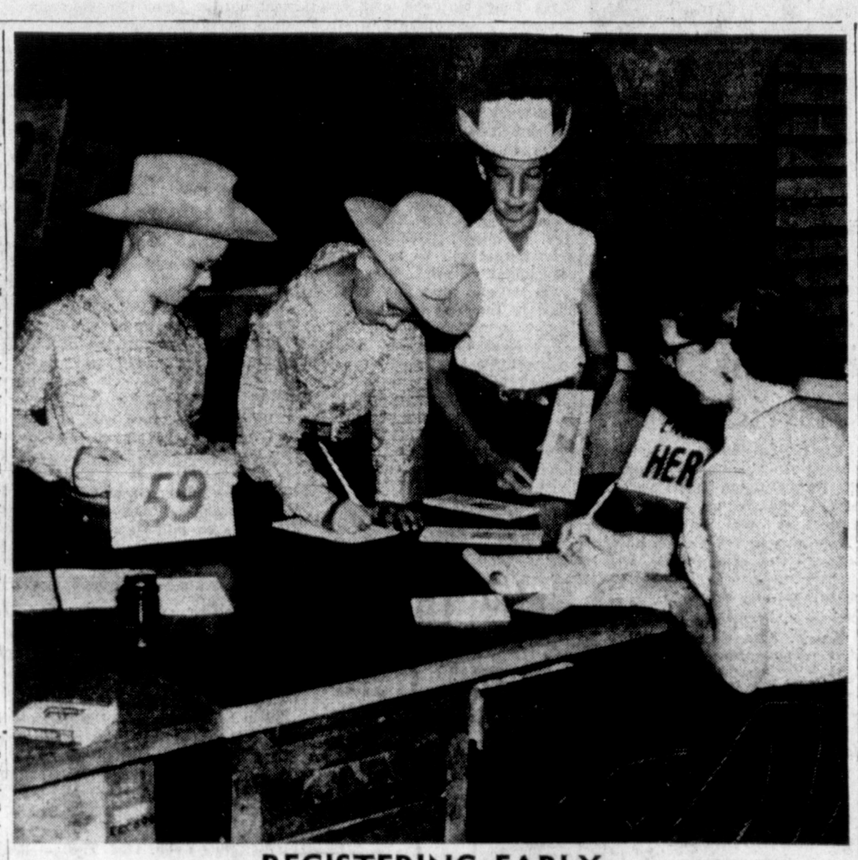

By LLOYD LAPHAM

WASHINGTON, July 28 —UP— A political score was paid off Saturday with the adjournment of Congress and as a result former Rep. Wesley A. D'Ewart (R-Mont.) may be looking for another job.

D'Ewart's nomination as assistant secretary of the interior was blocked when his opponent in a 1954 Montana election, Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.), declined to call a meeting of the Senate Interior committee in the closing days of the session.

It was the only case this year in which the Democratic-controlled Congress failed to approve an Eisenhower appointment to a job of comparable importance.

Under the law the salary of an appointee to a job which requires Senate confirmation is stopped 30 days after the end of the session at which his nomination was submitted.

Retaliates For Suez Grab

Britain Freezes Egyptian Currency

By WILLIAM C. SETON

LONDON, July 28 —UP—Britain blocked $308 million in Egyptian government currency Saturday as her first retaliatory step against Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal. In Cairo, President Gamal Abdel Nasser rode the crest of a hero's welcome and promised to meet "agression with aggression and injury with injury."

U.S. Undersecretary of State Robert L. Murphy was dispatched to London at the request of Britain and France for an emergency high-level big three conference. He will confer Sunday with the British and French foreign ministers.

Britain followed France in taking economic sanctions against Nasser, who promised to permit free access to the canal provided he met no Western "interference."

Two "statutory instruments" issued by the British treasury today froze Egypt's $309 million pound Sterling balance which Egypt used for payment of debts incurred in other countries as well as Britain. Another instrument froze the assets in Britain of the British and French controlled Suez Canal Co., a freeze similar to one announced in France Friday.

In addition, the British orders cut off private Egyptian bank balances in Britain running into "millions of pounds."

The government sum tied up equalled the estimated net income of seven years of canal operations. If maintained for long, it could shatter Nasser's announced plan to use the canal revenue to finance his dream of 91.3 billion dam on the Nile at Aswam. The United States and Britain have withdrawn offers to help him get the dam started.

More Measures Due

Sources said the freeze was a preliminary step and that stronger measures would be taken.

Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden called in Sir Gerald Templer, commander-in-chief of the imperial general staff for conferences.

Diplomatic sources said that if Nasser chooses to retaliate against the fund freeze, he could limit the use of the canal by British vessels.

Nasser made a triumphal return home to Cairo Saturday from Alexandria where he announced Thursday night that Egypt was seizing the canal and would take over the canal company operations. Everywhere on the trip he was met by cheering crowds of Egyptians.

U. S. Diplomat Flies To London Talks

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON, July 28 —UP— A top U. S. diplomat flew to London Saturday to join British and French officials in emergency consultations on Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal.

Robert Murphy, deputy undersecretary of state, was dispatched to the British capital at the request of Britain and France and with the personal approval of President Eisenhower.

He left by plane after getting final instructions from Mr. Eisenhower and acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., at a White House conference.

Murphy told reporters at Washington national airport that he was taking no specific U. S. proposals for dealing with the new Middle East crisis. The crisis was provoked by Egyptian "nationalization" of the vital canal long controlled by British and French interests.

BULLETIN

Kitchlow Pate, 40, of Borger, drowned late Saturday night at Lake McClellan. The Pampa Fire Department received the emergency call at 12:30 this morning.

Pate was running a trot line at the lake when his boat overturned, according to the firemen's report.

Tourist Of Day To Be 'Arrested' Here

The Tourist Development committee of the local Chamber of Commerce met Saturday morning in the chamber offices and completed plans for entertaining Pampa's Tourist-of-the-Day for the four days of the Top o' Texas Rodeo, August 8-11.

The committee has sponsored a Tourist - of - the Week program in Pampa for the past two years, however, this year the program is being streamlined to include the four days of the rodeo. The program calls for "arresting" a tourist couple travelling through Pampa, and they will be guests of the city for free lodging, dinner, car service, flowers, tickets to the Top o' Texas Rodeo, and other Top o' Texas hospitality.

The schedule for the couple will be as follows: Wednesday, Aug. 8, the couple will lodge at the L-Ranch Motel, dine at Poole's Steakhouse, receive car service at the Jack Vaughn "66" service station, wear flowers from Roberta's and will be accompanied by their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vaughn.

Thursday, Aug. 9, the couple will stay at Murphy's Courts, have dinner at the White Way Restaurant, their car will be serviced at Kitchen's Gulf service station, Clayton Floral will furnish the flowers and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Jones will be the hosts.

Friday, Aug. 10, the lodging will be at the Pampa Hotel, Johnson's Cafe will serve their dinner, Ogden's Sinclair service station will service their car, their flowers will be the compliments of Parker's Blossom Shop and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fannon will accompany them.

Saturday, Aug. 11, the couple will stay at the Ranchhouse Motel, dine at The Pennant Club, have their car serviced at Trimble's Humble Service, the flowers will be the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Terrell will be the hosts.

Nationwide publicity is given Pampa for this program through news stories sent back to the home towns of the "arrested" tourists.

Rehearsals Underway For Kid Rodeo

The big Top o' Texas Kid Pony Show, scheduled for August 6 and 7, went into the initial rehearsal stages last night at Recreation Park when the arena was filled with eager boys and girls — ready to participate in the nation's largest Kid Pony Show and Miniature Rodeo.

John Pitts, chairman of the Kid Pony Show committee, said this morning that last night's rehearsal was most successful and this year's show promises to be the biggest in the history of the organization.

The next rehearsal will be held at Recreation Park Tuesday night from 5 to 7 p.m., and Pitts invites and urges all children in the area who plan to enter this year's show to be present with their ponies.

The final rehearsals will be held on Thursday and Friday, 7 to 9 p.m., at which time the Grand Entry in full form will be rehearsed under the lights.

Rodeo officials this week are requesting that all contestants in the show file their entries at the Rodeo Headquarters as early as possible so that there will not be a last-minute rush with office details.

Entries may be made any day from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Rodeo Headquarters in the Plains Motor Company building just west of City Hall.

Hazlewood, McIlhany On Top

Gray County voters Saturday swept incumbent Rufe Jordan into another term as Sheriff of Gray County by a margin of 1,433 votes.

Jordan received a total of 3,413 votes while his opponent, G. H. "Skinner" Kyle, received 1,980.

In the race for state senator for the 31st Senatorial District, Gray County voters gave local candidate Bill Craig a total of 2,590 votes while Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo received 2,020. In incomplete returns from Potter County, however, Hazlewood was leading Craig by approximately 3,000 votes and indications were that Hazlewood would win without a runoff. Other candidates for the Senate seat received the following votes from Gray County voters: James D. Crow, 170, and Lonnie Smith, 199.

In the race for State Representative between local candidate Johnny Wills and Wheeler County incumbent Grainger McIlhany, Gray County voters gave Wills a total of 2,777 votes to 2,237 votes for McIlhany. However, the total for the three counties in the district was 5,424 for McIlhany while Wills received 3,786. Votes from Wheeler County were: McIlhany, 1946; Wills, 365; and from Collingsworth County, McIlhany, 1,241; and Wills, 644.

In the Constable race in Commissioner Precinct 2, Bill Graham led the field with a total of 1,796 votes while Earl Lewis was second with a total of 1,200 votes and Cleo "Potts" Emerson trailed with a total of 785.

He was fined $100 and costs by the court and was sentenced to three days in jail.

Weinberg was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Buck Haggard for the Pampa police department following a collision on E. Browning Friday night in which Weinberg's car reportedly struck a parked automobile.

WASHINGTON — UP —Crude oil stocks totaled 274,927,000 barrels on July 21, a decrease of 205,000 barrels from the previous week, the bureau of mines reported today. Texas had 121,960,000 barrels, an increase of 2,037,000.

Gubernatorial

sioner Earl Rudder, whom Gov. Allan Shivers appointed when the now-imprisoned Bascom Giles resigned, appeared to have won.

Morrison Leads Owens

Court of Criminal Appeals —W. A. Morrison of Austin was running far ahead of Jesse Owens and seemed sure of election.

Supreme court—Robert F. Hughes had a big lead over James R. Norvell.

State treasurer —Jesse James, the incumbent treasurer, appeared to have won the office.

O'Daniel, who has served as both governor and U. S. senator from Texas, did not comment immediately on the results. He retired from politics in 1948, but came out of retirement and campaigned with a hillbilly band, his political trademark, and a red firewagon.

Clearcut Victory Is Out

Veteran political observers predicted that the total vote will exceed 1,400,000, or about 150,000 votes more than had been expected. A clearcut victory seemed impossible for any candidate in the gubernatorial race.

A candidate must have more votes than all of his opponents combined in a primary election to avoid a runoff.

O'Daniel and Daniel were the most colorful campaigners in the race. O'Daniel used his hillbilly band and his firewagon. Daniel got Fess Parker, the Davy Crockett of television and the movies, to campaign for him.

Heavy majorities piled up in a referendum in favor of present bands against letting down racial barriers in Texas despite the U.S. Supreme Court ruling against desegregation.

In a referendum on continuing and strengthening laws against letting down the racial barriers in Texas, supporters of stronger legislation piled up majorities of 4 and 5 to 1.

Ramsey Piles Up Lead

Lieut. Gov. Ben Ramsey piled up a heavy lead in his race for re-election against three opponents, but at last count not enough to avoid a runoff. Will Wilson of Dallas, a former state supreme court justice, led in the attorney general's race, but a runoff there seemed likely.

Agricultural Commissioner John White appeared to have a clearcut victory, on the basis of latest returns, as did Congressman - at-large Martin Dies, running for re-election.

Judgment Rendered In Suit Here

Final judgement in the case of Lee Money vs. Texas Employer's Insurance Association which was heard in 31st District Court last Monday and Tuesday, was entered by District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich Friday.

The judgement was in favor of the plaintiff, Money, and allowed him total and permanent injury. This judgement allows for payment of $25 per week for a total of 401 weeks, or about $10,025.

The jury, which returned the verdict at 3 a.m. Wednesday, included three women on the panel. The plaintiff was represented by the Pampa firm of Gordon, Gordon and Buzzard.

Project Of Jaycees Told Kiwanians

A program explaining the Texas Jaycee's project to promote annual sessions of the state legislature and adequate salaries for the solons was presented in Kiwanis Club Friday.

The Kiwanians heard Representative Grainger McIlhany explain the present situation in Austin as to amount of bills brought before the House and the amount of time to consider and act upon them.

Kiwanian J. C. Hopkins was in charge of the program and Jaycee Bennie Waller, chairman of the local Jaycees' Americanism committee, explained why the organization was boosting such a project.

The Kiwanians also enjoyed songs sung by John and Stuart Branson, grandchildren of G. F. "Pinky" Branson, a member of the club.

Highlights of the numbers by the two were their rendition of "The Wayward Wind," and a solo, "Tweedly-Dee-Dee," by John.

The club's barbecue committee will serve at a Southwestern Public Service Company affair to be held at 5 p.m., Aug. 11, at Jim's Trout Farm on the Borger Highway. "Smiley" Henderson and Art Aftergut will be in charge of the committee work.

The official directors' meeting night is Thursday at 7 o'clock in Lovett Memorial Library.

The local organization will be host to the only visit of Gov. John Hopper to Division six on Aug. 30. The club will stage a barbecue as a feature for the affair.

Guests included Burt Kline and Fred Richardson of Amarillo; Johnny Wills, Bill Jenkins and Bill Craig.

Demo Says 'Loyalists Winning'

By UNITED PRESS

Democrats held precinct conventions Saturday after voting ended and a party official said "it looks like the loyalists are winning again."

"I have heard from 65 counties, all of which went loyalist," Mrs. Kathleen Voigt, of San Antonio, director of organizations for the Texas Democratic party, said.

"It looks like a clean sweep."

However, Mrs. Voigt said she had heard from none of the big city counties except Bexar and "San Antonio is safely loyalist," she said.

AUSTIN OWEN
. . . Gets Award

Local Man Wins Sales Emblem

Austin Owen, 325 Perry, of the plumbing department at the local Montgomery Ward store has recently been awarded a Ward Sales Leadership Club emblem. He received the emblem for being among the 100 winners in a nation-wide Montgomery Ward sales contest in which 25,000 sales people competed.

Winners of the contest were determined on the basis of the best sales performance for the three-month period ending June 21.

Owen was the only sales person representing a plumbing department to receive one of the awards for recent contest. This was second time he had received an emblem in one of the contests.

According to Bill McComas, manager of the Pampa Ward store, these quarterly sales contests have been held since 1937 and competition is quite keen among salespeople. "It is an honor for this store to have a winner in this contest," said McComas, "because such winners are never possible without loyal customers".

Local Man Gets GM Appointment

General Motors has announced that Orville J. Robertson, manager for Reeves Olds Inc., local Oldsmobile, Cadillac dealer for the past 14 years, has been appointed to serve as GM Community Relations Chairman for Pampa and vicinity.

The chairmanship carries a community service responsibility. Robertson will make available to the public a variety of interesting and educational material in the form of motion pictures, booklets, and presentations from GM's Department of Public Relations. One of the lattest GM films is "Farmer of Tomorrow" produced especially for the Future Farmers of America.

Another film, "Safety, Our No. 1 Crop," was produced to assist 4-H in their safety activities. General Motors is the sponsor of the National 4-H Safety Contest and Robertson will be able to aid local 4-H Clubs which have members participating in that contest.

Robertson also will be in a position to cooperate with club groups, schools, or any other local organizations which may find the General Motors material of interest for use in the development of programs.

Thumbs-Up Issue For GOP Is Strike

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)— For what it may be worth, Republicans count the administration's handling of steel strike problems as a thumbs-up issue in this year's presidential campaign.

A settlement is in sight after 25 costly days during which furnaces and men were idle. It was just four years ago this week that another steel strike was settled, an angry affair which began when the United States Supreme Court handed down a vital opinion.

That opinion and the events leading up to it mark the contrast between the approaches of President Truman and President Eisenhower toward a basic industry strike. For Mr. Truman it must be said, however, that his 1952 steel strike was called during the shooting in Korea. For President Eisenhower, perhaps it should be said that he had got the shooting stopped before he got his steel strike.

Mr. Truman's steel strike was called for April 8, 1952. One minute before 8-hour, which was midnight, the government seized the industry's 92 steel companies. The strike was called off. The industry challenged Mr. Truman's power and authority to seize their properties and to operate them.

The President cited no specific act of Congress in support of the seizure. He said he acted "by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States and as President of the United States and commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

United States District Judge David A. Pine ruled on April 29 that Mr. Truman's seizure of the steel industry was illegal. His order returning the industry to its owners was stayed, however, pending appeal to the Supreme Court.

Supreme Court Backs Decision

The Supreme Court ruled, 6-3, on June 2 that the seizure was unconstitutional, and the strike was on again. The industry had operated under government administration since its seizure. The men went out the moment the Supreme Court returned the plants to their owners.

Government mediation finally ended the strike on July 24, 1952 after nearly five months of ruckus in the courts and on the picket lines. The Truman administration Commerce Department was the government agency which seized the steel mills.

Mr. Eisenhower's commerce secretary, Sinclair Weeks, tells questioners that the government's almost hands-off attitude toward the current strike represents basic administration policy which is: Let industry and labor be as free as possible to work out their mutual problems.

That's a policy which Republicans think will be worth some votes this year.

The opening bid of two no-trump shows 22 to 24 points with balanced distribution and all four suits well stopped. In today's hand, South stretched one point on the theory that his strong five-card diamond suit more than made up for the missing point.

Unfortunately for South, his partner also chose this time to stretch. North had only 10 points and therefore could assume only 32 points in the combined hands. North knew that 33 points are usually needed for slam, but he thought his strong five-card club suit would make up for the missing point.

The result of the two stretches was that South was in a slam with only 31 points in the combined hands. This is not as bad as it sounds. If we never get to a worse slam contract, we should feel satisfied with our bidding.

After all, only the spade lead gives South any trouble. Put the queen of spades in the East hand and West wouldn't dream of leading spades away from the king against a slam in no-trump.

As the cards actually lay, West opened the king of spades. South saw that he could win the ace of spades, five diamonds, and five clubs. This would be enough for a meek down one. East would signal his ace of hearts, and West would save the queen of spades and a heart to the end.

The only chance was to win the first trick and lead a spade right back. South did so, and West took the queen of spades. East had to follow suit and could only hope that his partner would suddenly develop mental telepathy in order to find the heart shift.

As is usually the case, West didn't develop new gifts. He was afraid to lead a new suit for fear of giving declarer a free finesse. West therefore led a third spade, and South gratefully took his 12 tricks.

Actress Marie McDonald Finally To Have A Baby

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — "I've suffered five miscarriages. Now when they place that baby in my arms I'll be the happiest woman who ever lived."

The woman who said that today is known on the screen as fluffy Marie "the body" McDonald and in the press for her marriage troubles with shoe magnate Harry Karl.

But at home Marie is a woman of great persistence. For nine years the beautiful actress has tried "desperately" to have a baby. Last week doctors told her her sixth pregnancy, now safely entering its eighth month, will be successful.

"I've looked forward to this for so long," Marie smiled. "Having a baby has been an obsession with me. I'm so happy to feel life inside of me. It's so like having steady company.

"I've never carried a baby this long before. But I haven't decorated the nursery yet — I feel a jinxy feeling about that."

Unfortunately, the expectant father isn't pacing the floor with her. The actress finally is ending her stormy marriage, and she thinks the absence of a strained relationship enabled her to keep the baby. The divorce testimony will be taken at her bedside next week because doctors confined her to bed for her entire pregnancy.

Marie also has to take two shots every other day of liver, iron and hormones. So far she has had five blood transfusions.

"My dear friend, Lucille Ball arranged that. She's wonderful," Marie said.

The actress, lovely in a pink and violet negligee, was so thin when I saw her she hardly showed her pregnancy. She weighs only four pounds more than normal. In six weeks she'll enter the hospital.

"I've named and buried two premature babies," she said. "With every miscarriage I went through hell — five or six days of labor.

"It used to kill me when Lucy and my other friends had babies. I've wanted more than anything in the world to have one. That's why I've kept trying."

Marie paused to watch her two adopted children, Deedee and Harrison, both 6, dive into the swimming pool at her San Fernando Valley home.

"I get more happiness watching them than from any diamond ring I've owned," she said.

Braceros Recruited At A Record Rate

MONTERREY, Mexico (UP) — Braceros are being recruited at a record rate for farm work in the United States, recruiting manager Ocelio Vasquez said.

Vasquez predicted this year's total will reach 170,000 men, a considerable increase over the 156,162 recruited at Monterrey's Military City last year.

The center is jointly operated by the U.S. and Mexican governments.

A Look At The Brink's Bandits

The Millionaires Who Didn't Dress The Part

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

BOSTON — (NEA) — Adolph (Jazz) Maffie is a six-foot, 200 pounder who has a lot of friends and likes a good time. He is married and has two children. His house is in a neighborhood where middle-income people — people with mortgages — come from. Jazz seemed no different.

A bookmaker, Jazz Maffie hung around a now-closed Boston cafe which catered to ballplayers and sportswriters and race track guys.

Three years ago, when word got around that the F.B.I. was watching Maffie closely, a friend of his approached him at the bar. "The FBI's got guys asking questions about you," the man said.

"Yeah," Maffie said. "Well come over to the window and look at the cameras they got across the street. They're making movies of everybody comes in here."

There was no trace of fear. You had to think he was not involved.

Maffie is in jail today, named as one of 11 men who stole over a million dollars in cash in the smartest robbery of all time.

At 48, Anthony Pino is one of Boston's best-known criminals. The government tried to deport this Sicilian-born man in 1952, but a felony was officially pardoned by the governor's office and then the McCarron immigration act was ruled not applicable to him.

From the start, they tried to pin "the mastermind" tag on Pino. He was brought before the federal grand jury in 1953, but nothing came of his closed-door investigation.

JOE McGINNIS
. . . his only business

TONY PINO
. . . got no sideburns

JAZZ MAFFIE
. . . they're making movies

Since then, Pino has gone about his business. Despite a record of 62 arrests, he lived quietly in a fair-to-comfortable home in the Dorchester section. He drove a Cadillac. But he always was in this category.

That he was constantly watched didn't both him. He didn't seem to care. In 1953, he signed a release, for Boston reporter Joe Dinneen, which allowed a magazine to present a fictionalized version of the Brink's robbery, with the central character being an unmistakable Pino. The story used Tony's police record, gave credit for the whole job to him — but he still signed an okay on it.

When the story was being filmed for movies, Pino was an interested spectator at the location in Boston. He watched actor Tony Curtis portray him and he turned to Dinneen and snapped:

"How can they use him to play me? He's too good-looking. And look at those sideburns. I got no sideburns."

Joe McGinnis is no newcomer to law trouble. Yet he still was able to get a license to operate a saloon and liquor store in Roxbury — despite having a record a few feet long.

"McGinnis,' one who knows him says, "is a millionaire."

Yet he went around dressed in a jacket and old khaki pants. He always could be found near nothing more glamorous than his saloon or liquor store. At no time did Joe McGinnis gave an outward show of money — the kind of money that came from the Brink's job.

Police and FBI say he was the major planner. Looking at him you would never know it.

At his liquor store, a woman behind the counter listens to your question and stares at you without answering for a minute.

"Yes," she'll say, finally, "this is the store Joe McGinnis owns."

Then, slowly, "this is his only business."

From Pino and McGinnis down to Michael Geagan, who was picked up while working as a longshoreman and claimed his family lived from week to week, there seemed no sure sign of the $1,200,000 haul.

"These men had everything they wanted," the FBI's Powers counters. "They weren't dumb enough to live flashily. Just day-by-day living was enough.

To back it up, a little division showed that out of the net cash — after reclaimed marked bills and the checks were destroyed — the total came out to a bit over $110,000 a piece.

This is less than $20,000 a year for the six years since the robbery. You can spend that kind of money easily these days.

On the other side of the fence, you have James V. Crowley, a big, red-faced and graying lieutenant in the Boston police department. Crowley is a cop. Put him in a crowd and you could take him for nothing else. But since January 17, 1950, Crowley has wondered what people were thinking of him.

It was a little before seven on that night—the night of the Brink's robbery — and Crowley was making his rounds. What hapened on this night never has been clearly explained. Crowley does not talk. Neither do his superiors. But everybody else, it seems, knows that Anthony Pino stepped out from a hotel lobby and said hello to him — making sure the time was noted.

And a few minutes later, Crowley passed the J and A club in Roxbury and its proprietor, Joe McGinnis, stepped out to talk with him.

For six years, this has been their alibi. They were with Crowley and he couldn't say no. It looked bad to any outsider. And Crowley knew it. For the past six years, he has been going about his job, refusing to say anything about the case outside a grand jury room.

Fingers, of course, were being pointed at Crowley. But he refused to acknowledge it. "Anything I have to say," he will tell you, "waits for a courtroom. I can't mention a case going to trial. But it's a nice day, isn't it?"

It must be different inside, however. How else could it be with a guy who is honest — and yet had even the FBI looking into his story? Crowley the cop will be on the scene at the Brink's trial, too.

Nats Take Win Over Detroit Tigers

By LLOYD NORTHARD

DETROIT, July 28 UP —Lou Berberet drove in four runs with a home run and a single Saturday to give the Washington Senators a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers and ruin a 15-strikeout effort by Paul Foytack, which was a new Tiger club record.

Twenty-five-year-old Foytack, a righthander from Scranton, Pa., noted perviously for his wildness, recorded all 15 of his strikeouts in the first eight innings and could have equalled Bob Feller's major league record by striking out the side in the ninth. But that was the only inning in which he failed to fan at least one batter.

But, like Feller, Foytack was a loser on his big day. Feller dropped a 4-1 decision to the Tigers on Oct. 2, 1938, when he set his record of 18 strikeouts.

The Senators jumped on Foytack for three runs in the second inning on Jim Lemon's 15th homer of the season and Berberet's fourth round-tripper of the year after a walk to Herb Plews.

The Tigers got one run back in the bottom of that inning on a double by Frank House and Harvey Kuenn's single, knotted the score in the third on Charley Maxwell's inside-the-park homer and successive singles by Al Kaline, Ray Boone, and House.

A walk and singles by Kaline and House gave Detroit a 4-3 edge in the fourth and the Tigers added another run in the seventh on singles by House and Jim Small, plus a sacrifice fly.

But the Senators came up with three more runs after two were out in the eighth on a walk and singles by Lemon, Plews, and Berberet.

Reliever Chuck Stobbs, who took over for Pedro Ramos in the seventh, earned his eighth victory against eight losses while Foytack suffered his seventh loss against eight wins.

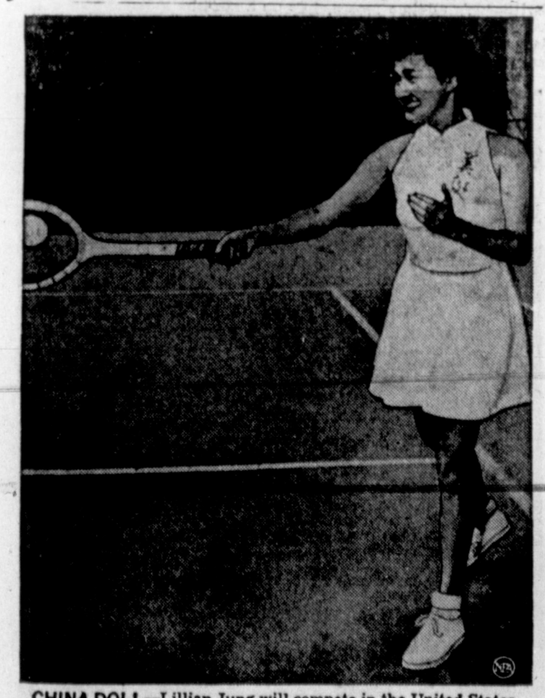

Orioles Win

CLEVELAND, July 28—UP—Although they had to turn back three late threats, the Baltimore Orioles outlasted the Cleveland Indians for an 8-6 victory Saturday to end an Indian winning streak of seven games.

The Orioles put together a six-run rally in the fifth inning against Mike Garcia, an uprising featured by Tito Francona's three run homer, added single runs in the last two innings, and finished up with the bases filled with Indians.

Connie Johnson shut out the Tribe for six innings, but lost his control in the seventh and gave up two runs on three walks, a single by Rocky Colavito and a pinch double by Preston Ward.

The Indians got four more in the eighth when they kayoed both Johnron and Hector Brown before Billy Loes stopped them. The Indians filled the bases against Loes in the ninth, but he struck out Colavito and Earl Averill to end the game.

CHINA DOLL—Lillian Jung will compete in the United States Lawn Tennis Association's Diamond Jubilee Championships at The West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, Aug. 31-Sept. 9. She is the national Chinese mixed doubles titleholder and ranked third in the Chinese listing in this country.

Hawkins Rites Held

LUFKIN, Tex. (UP)— Funeral services were held Saturday for Ed Hawkins, a 21-year old football star at the University of Texas who was killed in an automobile accident at Natchez, Miss., Thursday night.

Oilers Bop San Angelo

The Pampa Oilers kept its winning streak intact, taking their fifth straight over loop opponents as they downed the San Angelo Colts, 6-2 Saturday night at Oiler Park.

Chuck Bogan, the talented southpaw ace for the Oilers made up for the tight pitching duel he lost to Patchell at San Angelo, Tuesday. Bogan's record is now 6-2. Patchell who was touched for this loss wasn't as effective in this contest as he gave up 10 hits.

Len Tucker, the strapping center-fielder for the Oilers poled the only local homer made off Patchell which came off in the seventh.

The two hurlers for opposing sides had the making of another pitching duel underway until the lid fell off in the bottom of the third as the Oilers hustled across three runs.

Joe Krestchmar started off the Pampa drive in the third as he singled and raced to third as the right-fielder Bill Bagwell bobbled the ball in trying to get it back into the infield. Bogan then added to his own winning ways as he singled into short left-field, and Krestchmar then raced home. Jim sent a Texas League drive into short right which the Colt second sacker Jeff Williams dropped enabling Bogan and Robinette to race home.

The Oilers could only scrap across one run each in the fifth and sixth frames but was enough insurance protection to stave off a Colt rally.

In the fifth for Pampa, Kempa led off with a walk and the Oilers player-manager A. B. Cross singled. Johnny Bruzga flied out to center allowing Bruzga to come in.

Joe Krestchmar picked up the lone score for the local club in the sixth. The Oiler shortstop got on base with a fielder's choice and raced home as Cross singled.

Len Tucker tallied the last Oiler run which occured in the seventh as he poled a round tripper with the bases empty.

San Angelo's two scores were made by the Colt's left-fielder Moe Santiamuro as he blasted two four-baggers in the seventh and ninth innings.

The Pampa Oilers meet the San Angelo Colts in the series finale between the two clubs this afternoon at 3. Pampa takes to the road Monday for a three game series with Midland before returning home Thursday.

Americans In Davis Cup Final Round

VICTORIA, B.C., July 28—UP—The young doubles combination of Barry MacKay and Ron Holmberg Saturday clinched the North American zone semi-final Davis Cup round for the United States with a marathon, 6-3, 3-6, 10-12, 6-4, 6-3, victory over Bob Bedard and Don Fontana of Canada.

The victory gave the U.S. team an unbeatable 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The United States thus moved into the North American zone finals against Mexico next week at Rye, N.Y.

Two meaningless singles matches will round out the three-day series here Sunday.

MacKay, 20, of Dayton, Ohio, and Holmberg, 18, of Brooklyn, N.Y., playing in their first Davis Cup match after the U.S. had taken a 2-0 lead Friday, rallied from a 2-1 deficit to win strongly.

Bedard, Canada's 24-year-old champion from Sherbrooke, Que., and Fontana, 25, Toronto, appeared headed for Canada's first victory.

But the American youngsters who boast victories over Australia's second and third best doubles teams, settled down after the third set intermission and ran out the match with comparatively little trouble.

Oilers Take Fourth Straight; Clip San Angelo Colts, 9-6

The high flying Pampa Oilers took their fourth straight over Southwestern League opposition, Friday night at Oiler Park in an action packed affair as they subdued the San Angelo Colts, 9-6.

Hoyt Benedict, a right-hander specialist for the Oilers picked up his 10th win against four setbacks although he had to have help in the ninth from another right-hander Bob Shipman. Benedict fanned two while Shipman in his brief appearance on the mound for the Oilers struck out two and issued no walks.

San Angelo took a brief lead in the initial frame as they fired home two runs. The Colt's first sacker Chuck Morgan blasted a homer over the center-field fence with the shortstop Gene Hauradou on. Hauradou had previously singled. San Angelo added one marker in the third before the Oilers could start scraping across any tallies.

The Oilers were able to sneak across one run in the third to start off their winning ways and had the biggest scoring blast occur in the fourth sending three runs in.

Thirdbaseman for the Oilers, Johnny Bruzga started off the fourth, as he poled a round tripper to unlimber the Pampa brief quietness at the plate. Catcher Jim Martin walked and first sacker Bob Flores dumped in a single. Oilers rookie shortstop Joe Kretschmar flied out to right field and Martin streaked home as the Colt's third baseman Charles threw over the head of the first sacker Morgan, as Oiler hurler Hoyt Benedict's single enabled Flores to come in.

Pampa added one in the fifth to take a 5-3 lead. San Angelo scored one in their half of the sixth with the Oilers cashing in on two in the bottom of the sixth frame. Lopez then was summoned from the Colt bull pen to take over the visiting hurler's duties.

San Angelo tried to overhaul the Oilers in the seventh, picking up two runs to trail the Oilers by only one, Hauradou singled, then Moe Santiamuro put the wood to a Benedict pitch as he blasted a round tripper with Hauradou on.

The seventh inning was the frame in which the Oilers player-manager, A. B. Cross, and the fine receiver, Jim Martin, were ejected from the game by the plate umpire for arguing over the decisions being made.

The Pampans then dampened any Colt hopes of a win as they rounded up two runs in the eighth.

Five Top Football Teams to Appear In Cotton Bowl

DALLAS UP — Five of the teams being chosen by many prognosticators as among the top ten football squads in the nation will appear in the Cotton Bowl this fall.

Southern Methodist will play four of the five, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Texas A&M and Texas Christian. The University of Texas Longhorns take on the other one, top-rated Oklahoma, in the annual State Fair of Texas clash.

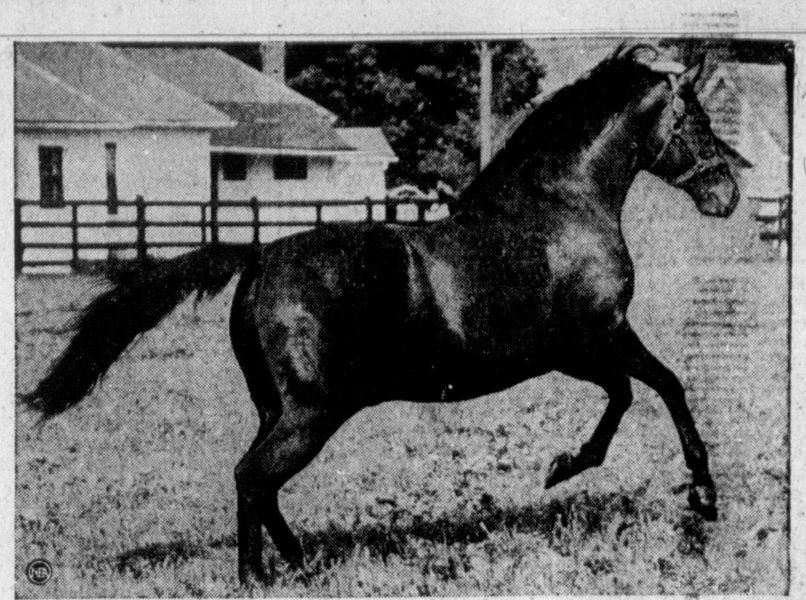

Among the outstanding stars to be seen in the Cotton Bowl games are several mentioned as probable all-American material, including Tommy McDonald of Oklahoma; Paul Hornung of Notre Dame; Stan Flowers and Wade Mitchell of Georgia Tech; Walt Fondren of Texas; Jim Swink of TCU and Jack Pardee of Texas A&M.

Season and single-game tickets for Southern Methodist's fall campaign go on sale by mail Wednesday.

Fraley's Facts And Figures

NEW YORK (UP)— Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Elbie Fletcher, former first baseman for the Braves and Pirates, admires Ted Williams but he is among those who feel that Williams "should quit baseball if he can't take the riding of the fans — particularly at those prices."

"I had guys on me for years and I always felt that the smartest thing was to ignore them, no matter how bad they got," Fletcher explain. "Making juvenille gestures in return doesn't get you anywhere."

The major leaguers, according to Elbie, now a Boston salesman, don't realize just how lucky they are.

Patterson vs. Moore

"If the players think they have it rough, wait until they hit the minors on their way down," he said sadly. "Then they'll know how rough things can really get."

The bout between Floyd Patterson and Archie Moore, which will decide the successor to Rocky Marciano's world heavyweight title, will become official next Friday when Patterson goes before the New York Boxing Commission and his fractured hand is okayed. Meanwhile, that same night, Joey Giambra will "take" Rocky Castellani to get in line right behind Gene Fullmer for a shot at Ray Robinson's middleweight title.

Tournament star Ed Furgol, who recently went to the semi-finals of the PGA golf championship, is considering three offers of which at least one is from a major club. Furgol, now at the Meager Westwood C.C. in St. Louis, is one of the great teachers of the game.

Sports And Business

British racing writers report that the victory of Argentina's El Chama in last fall's Washington International cost English horse breeders more than $200,000 in orders from American thoroughbred buyers. At least one American buyer cancelled a trip to Britain and headed instead to Latin America.

Dave Ragan, 21-year old University of Florida golf captain who won the Florida Open, has been incorporated for five years with funds supplied by a county judge, two salesmen and a dentist in Florida. They'll sponsor him for five years on the pro tour with the corporation declaring dividends out of his earnings. Instead of a program, now you can't tell the players without a Wall Street Journal.

One of the comebacks of the year is being made by Eddie Arcaro. The famed jockey in 1952 won 38 stake races, one less than Earl Sande's all-time record. Last year he fell off to a mere 11 stakes victories. However, this year he already has 19 to his credit with more ahead.. a real comeback but, as one race observer said, "I didn't know he had been away."

FISH TAIL — Robert Linton caught this 258-pound blue marlin by the tail! Hooked in the mouth off Hamilton, Burmuda, the big one threw the bait, but his tail became entangled in the wire leader, and the Scarsdale, N.Y., angler brought his prize to gaff after a three-hour struggle.

PANHANDLE OUTDOORS

By S. V. WHITEHORN

Grady Lucas, range manager of the Clayton rifle and pistol club, inquired at the last pistol shoot at Clayton, if some of the Texas boys would organize a pistol club in the Panhandle. There are enough shooters in the Pampa, Borger, Dumas, and Spearman areas to more than a make up enough for a club. Mr. Lucus expressed the idea that with several clubs in this part of the country we could have an official shoot at regular intervals.

Going to a shoot is something like going to a horse race. Maybe you aren't carried away before going but once you attend a shoot your interest will increase 100 per cent. What we need in this area is someone enterested enough to spend considerable time and effort to get a club organized. Once kicked off the club will survive and grow with regular shoots and other entertainment.

Recognized bird-dog field trails first began in the United States around 1890. Ever since the trials have continued to increase. One of the best in these parts is the Canadian trial held twice a year.

The most important trial in the U.S. is the National which is run at Grand Junction, Tenn., each year. There are only a certain number of dogs that are qualified to enter this contest. The dogs are run for three hours in braces of two. From 1896 until 1909 the setter breed of dogs were the sole winners. In 1909, Manitoba Rap, was the first pointer to win this top event in the U. S. The settlers immediately took back over and won again each year, until 1914 when Comanche Frank, another pointer won.

The pointers were not to be outdone and since about 1919 they have led the field in winning the National. From 1925 until 1945, there were four wins for the setters with the pointer winning a total of 17. That was the record until 1945 and to date (I don't have the record) I think the pointers have won every year except one when a great setter dog called Mississippi Zev, won the National a few years back.

In order for any dog to win a championship stake they have to qualify by winning a certain number of smaller trials in order to be eligible for the championship event. The dog with the highest number of championship wins was the Texas Ranger with a total of 10. Next in line is Warhoop Jake, with a total number of nine.

The dogs with the greatest number of wins at the National, was a pointer dog called Ariel, who won the National in 1941, '43 and '45 and a setter called Feagin's Mohawk Pal that won in '26, '28, and '30. Checking the records further, I notice where Becky Broomhill, a pointer female, won in '22, '23 and '25.

Why don't Gordon setters, Irish setters, German shorthairs or some of the other highly advertised breeds of pointing dogs win at the National? In the last few years there have been a few Brittany spaniels, that have won in competition with pointers and setters in some of the smaller trials. Dr. Busteed, biology instructor at West Texas State College is one of the most noted Brittany breeders in these parts.

According to D. T. Fuller, director of the Panhandle Bird dog association, one of the main reasons setters are not so popular in these parts is the fact that the dogs have long hair. Also due to the grass-burrs and cockle burrs in this part of the state the dogs are handicapped or at a disadvantage compared with the short haired pointer. Also the longhaired breed will get hot whereas the pointer can run cooler in hot weather.

Word from Sibley Jines of Perryton, is to the effect that the litter of black and white pointers that Mr. Jines raised are sold, one going as far away as South Carolina and another to Arkansas. The other litter, out of Warhoop Jake, are still at kennel. Not all of these fine bred pups are sold at this time.

Brown Dislikes To Switch Pro Callers

HIRAM, O. — (NEA) — There will be some interesting sub-plots in the Cleveland Browns production of 1956, but there can be no doubt about the main story line.

It revolves around George Ratterman and Babe Parilli—and the quarterback role vacated by Otto Graham.

By the time the season opens on Sept. 30 with the Chicago Cardinals, Paul Brown will have chosen his quarterback. Now this seems a long way off and a bit trivial, what with most sports fans concerned with Mickey Mantle's clouting and the chances of Milwaukee and Cincinnati to break through Brooklyn's National League monopoly.

But the Browns have an exhibition schedule which is almost on top of them — starting Aug. 10 with the College All-Stars in Chicago

So the quarterback situation has to be straightened out immediately by Brown — and the coach's decision may determine how far his defending National Football League champions go.

Parilli appears to be the key. Brown says he has a "wait-and-see" attitude about the vacant post, but he had Parilli in Cleveland for a month of instruction this past spring. He now wants to find out how quickly Parilli catches on to the Browns' system. The coach is definitely against any "share-the-work" basis for the quarterbacks.

"My policy is to have two quarterbacks," Brown says, "but one carries the brunt of the work. By the seasons's start, we will have made a decision.

"You can't switch quarterbacks in the middle of a game. It results in too many mechanical errors. Each quarterback hands off a little differently and ball handling becomes less precise if you switch around."

Parilli came into camp here weighing 195 pounds and apparently in excellent condition. He has been doing a lot of passing and has been "waiting for this a long time."

While Brown doesn't want to switch quarterbacks, he would like to run them by switches. He has been considering the idea of a coach - to - quarterback radio communication. This would allow Brown to dispense with his "messenger service," carried out by right guards.

"It was my idea," Brown says. "Several electronics experts have fooled around with it and one of them has made it a hobby. So far it never has been presented to us in acceptable form."

Brown conducted tests with short - wave radio equipment in the off-season at Cleveland Municipal Stadium. So far reception is the main bug. It is not clear in all parts of the field. Radio would have to compete with the noise in a packed stadium.

The receiver isn't larger than a watch and easily could be installed in a quarterback's helmet.

"I got the idea because of all the fuss made about my 'messenger boys,' " laughs Paul Brown. "I thought we could perfect this thing and then spring it during an exhibition game.

"Nobody would have been able to figure how I was getting the plays into the game."

Bums Reese Thinks Team Progressing

BROOKLYN (UP)— It could be "now or never" for Brooklyn, says Dodger Captain Pee Wee Reese.

"From the looks of it," said Reese, after the Dodgers reeled off their fifth straight victory by defeating Cincinnati, 5-3 Thursday, "I would say we're starting to make our move.

"All I know is that we'd better start moving now if we ever are," he added, towelling himself after a post-game shower.

"We'll find out in a hurry one way or the other as soon as Milwaukee comes in here Monday for a four-game series. There's no use beating around the bush. We simply have to beat the Braves ourselves if we're going to pass 'em. No one is going to pass job for us."

By beating the Redlegs for their sixth victory in seven games and their ninth triumph in their last 12 games, the Dodgers climbed to within a half game of second place. Milwaukee's victory over Giants, however, still left the Brooks six full games off the pace.

"Frankly," Reese commented, "I've never seen our club look better than it does right now.

"I've said all along that if (Duke) Snider, (Gil) Hodges and (Roy) Campanella hit we can win. And they're all starting to go now."

New PGA Champion To Cut Down Tourney Appearances

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

CANTON, Mass. (UP)— Jackie Burke said after winning the PGA golf championship that he was going to cut down the number of his tournament appearances because he owed more time to his children, and it brings to mind the case of Walter Hagen Jr.

You've probably heard of his father. He was the great Walter Hagen, certainly one of the most colorful golfers of all time and a man who won the recently concluded PGA championship an unmatched total of five times.

Yet the Haig's constant travels, as he devoted most of his years to the tournament trail, made young Walter hate the game as a youngster.

Away From Father

From the time he was eight, because of family difficulties young Hagen spent his life in boarding schools. The elder Hagen took him along as much as possible during vacation periods but usually the boy "had to read the sports pages to find out where Dad was at that moment."

It also meant that, instead of realizing his dreams of becoming an All-America football center or a major league catcher, the young Hagen was expected by everyone to be "a chip off the old block" and actually forced into the game.

"I disliked the game because of the lonesome hours I stood around the putting green as a child waiting for my father to get away from his legion of friends," Walter Jr., recalls. "And, instead of playing catch with the kids behind the caddy shack, I was all dressed up and had to be the little gentleman."

Big Time Help

Because of the elder Hagen's magic name, young Walter early was associated with the great names of sports. He played tennis with big Bill Tilden, Mickey Cochrane, one of baseball's immortals, gave young Walter a new catcher's mitt, broke it in for him, and taught him how to catch.

Yet, when the youngster reached prep school, and had nailed down the number one catching job, he was yanked off the team and automatically made number one man of the golf team.

"All the rival number one men wanted to play — and beat—the great Hagen's son," he grins. "I disappointed very few of them."

Going on to Notre Dame, it was natural that he was "drafted" for the golf team. There, standing on the first tee, he flubbed his first tee shot.

Life's Turning Point

"Boy," a watching fellow student cracked, "he's really a bum."

That was the turning point in young Hagen's life. He decided to learn to play golf realistically; quit being the great Hagen's son who always was fighting three people: his opponent, his true self and Hagen's son.

It was one of his great thrills to "earn" the Notre Dame captaincy in his own right and win the Indiana intercollegiates. Today he is a successful businessman and a scratch player proud of being Hagen's son but even more proud that always he is himself.

Which, getting back to Jackie Burke, is what the new PGA champion insists is never going to happen to his children. He deserves a hand for wanting to give them one.

KO Punch Is Way To Bout Fame Or Fall

PPITTSBURGH (UP) — Rocky Marciano and Jack Dempsey agree the shortest distance between boxing obscurity and fame is the knockout punch.

The Brockton (Mass.) blockbuster, who recently retired as world heavyweight champion, told Dempsey publicly Thursday night that he had copied the tactics of the titleholder of the golden twenties.

"I agree with you, Jack, that the knockout is the best way to win," Marciano said. "By the time I had started as a fighter, I had read all I could find about you. I even tried to imitate your bobbing and weaving style."

The two former heavyweight champions were among the sports celebrities who appeared at a banquet that featured the 58th annual international convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Dempsey acknowledged a tribute paid by Marciano with a compliment.

"I classify you, Rocky, as one of the great fighters of our time. You had no choice but to retire —there was no one left to fight."

It was the first public appearance for Marciano since he suffered a back injury while frolicking with his daughter at their home.

"It actually did happen that way, you know," he smiled. "She is a 40-pounder. I wish she were a boy."

Marciano said he is frequently asked what he could have done had he met Dempsey when the Manassa Mauler was in his prime.

"I'd even hate to meet him now," he said.

Watch Those Strokes

By JIMMY DEMARET
Written for NEA Service

It is the arms that make the big motion in swinging a golf club.

But the feet generate the power.

The principal flaw usually found in a player is in the way he winds up his swing. The weight is on his right foot at the finish. This means that he has thrown his entire swing into the shoulders in an attempt to knock the ball out of the precinct.

There is one must to follow with the feet. Keep both of them on the ground throughout the backswing. Flex the knees. Release the right heel on the follow through and not until then.

The feet don't do you any good off the ground. Keep them there until you follow through.

Start with the first four steps. Place the club to the ball with the left hand. Adjust the feet to their proper places. Relax the right knee to complete the grip. Turn the right heel out.

Balanced on the left foot, the player finds that all sense of swing or club movement is impossible unless the weight is shifted to the right foot for the backswing and returned to the left foot for the downswing.

NEXT: Dow Finsterwald allows for the fact that he may be off in some respect in his stroke.

Homebuilding Mark Not Expected In '56

By ROBERT F. MORISON

WASHINGTON, July 28—UP—It appears almost certain now that homebuilding this year will break no records.

Earlier, it was thought 1956 would bring some 1.3 million new dwelling starts, about the same as last year. The estimate has been reduced to about 1.15 million and may not even hit that.

Builders are privately discouraged and bitter at the government for not taking what steps might be necessary to increase the supply of mortgage lending funds—widely labeled as the cause of the downturn this year.

New starts through June lagged about 18 per cent below the same period in 1955, the second best homebuilding year in history.

The pace has fluctuated around an annual rate of about 1.1 million since last November. In June it hit the lowest rate since January, 1954.

The Veterans Administration reports the volume of VA - backed loan applications— which indicate future building plans — have run 20,000-30,000 a month below comparable months in 1955.

Builders Not Idle

Automobile buying and home building were powerful expansive forces in the economy last year. This year they are not. Builders are not idle, but industry sources say operations are vastly reduced and concentrated on more expensive homes.

"I've never seen them (builders) so cautious," an industry source said, in describing the reduced scale of operations.

With half the year already gone there appears little hope that a last minute stimulant could pick the home building industry up enough to approximate last year's near record building.

Builders and government housing chief Albert M. Cole still believe enough families in the country are interested in new homes and apartments to justify building about 1.3 million units. Financing these is the problem. Either builders can't depend on getting loans at reasonable terms to undertake construction or can't get assurances from lenders that they will buy mortgages once the houses are up and sold.

Stiffer Credit Policy

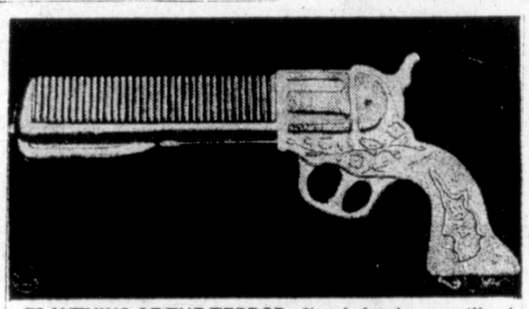

Savings and loan associations are reported to be repaying much of their borrowing done last year from the home loan banks and thus do not have as much to invest in mortgages. The government, through the Federal Reserve and the Home Loan Banks, adopted a stiffer credit policy last year and has generally maintained it.

There were indications earlier that restraints on mortgage credit would be eased, but nothing has yet been done.

In June there was a heavy rise in the Consumer Price Index. That, coupled with continued high demand for all sorts of building materials for the record commercial and industrial building, is thought in many quarters to have at least delayed a government move to ease up on mortgage credit. The steel strike and expected price and wage increases have complicated this matter further.

Lenders have generally asserted that no market existed for more than about 1.1 million new homes. However, they are beginning to be publicly critical of credit policies and even to urge an easing.

PLAYTHING OF THE TERROR—Its grip bearing an outline of the island of Cyprus and letters "EOKA," signifying the Greek underground, this child's comb in shape of a pistol is being sold on the streets of Athens, Greece. Observers of the movement for nationalism which is shaking Cyprus see in pistol-comb's sale an effort to indoctrinate even children with the desire for union of Cyprus with Greece.

SOCKS APPEAL—For partisan voters who want to put their best foot forward, socks are now designed with the political emblem of their choice. Fence riders will need two pairs of hose, as each set has either two elephants or two donkeys.

Peg O' Pampa

SUMMER READING has always been a subject for much advertising and discussion .... It is assumed that just because summer is here, everyone has, automatically, much more time for reading .... The picture called to mind is always of a hammock, with nothing visible in it but the tip of a nose and the top of a book .... a tall, cool drink always reposes drippily on a nearby table .... with a basket or dish of finger-food for nibbling .... The libraries hasten to post book lists for "summer reading" on their bulletin boards .... magazines publish summer reading articles .... while this picture is admirable, Peg wonders if it is true to life .... At any rate, there seems always to be less time to read, because of picnics, visiting, vacationing, and all the other summertime activities .... Certainly the poor working men don't have any more time in the summer than they did in the winter .... If you DO happen to have time to read, there is a fertile field in reading that is usually overlooked .... Have you re-read any of the books, lately, that you loved as a child? Try reading them again, now, this summer, just for fun .... They may be quite a treat .... Sometimes they can be disillusioning, too, for they seem so much shorter, and less packed with thrilling adventure than they were years ago .... No matter how you react, it is sure to be an interesting experiment.

Art hath no enemy but ignorance. (John Taylor)

EVEN THOUGH the Texas primaries are over, there are still the national party conventions to be held .... Nominations are still in order for this summer .... We would like to nominate the following:

For the most well-groomed and clipped yards: the E. C. Sidwell's yard, and Arthur Aftergut's ....

For the most beautiful, large trees in town: on the corner of Virginia and Christine ....

For the largest tomato plants: those of the Bill Dows ....

For one of the most attractive houses: the L. L. Garren's ....

For the most beautiful weeping willow trees: in the yard at the A. D. Hills, and the Johnny Hines' ....

For the garden with the most varied and interesting flowers: the H. H. Boyntons' ....

For the handsomest new building in progress: the Falkenstein and Elder clinic ....

For the most effective newly painted trim on a house: the J. J. Crutchfields' on Hamilton ....

For the prettiest door in town: the yellow door on the Don Conleys' gray house.

FOR A SUNDAY DRIVE, see if you agree with Peg in her nominations. We'll bet you have your own nominations, too.

IT'S A MAN'S WORLD .... according to tradition .... spare-time doings of some of the men about town include working with ornamental iron projects (Byron Hilbun) .... rock collecting and polishing semi-precious stones (Bill Bumpers) .... studying things Indian, also rock collecting and camping out (Pat Glascock, and, for that matter, his whole family) .... chess (Ed Young) .... woodworking and guns (Charles Bruce) .... but the most popular-seeming spare-time (from work) occupation of almost every man in town .... coffee drinking .... this is a vice (?) that hits most of us .... C. L. Farmer was tipping the coffee cup this week .... as were Joe Daniels .... George McClure .... Cliff Estes .... Johnny Wills .... and tipping the teacup was Frank Fata .... is it the coffee, really, or is it the gossip around the coffee table .... men enjoy the latter as much as women are supposed to, we think!

Ignorance, pride, or prejudice closes the door to whatever is not stereotyped. —Mary Baker Eddy.

ALTHOUGH SOME CLUBS and activities have not continued during the summer, the Pampa Chess Club seems to be operating as usual .... Peg has seen people going into the library with their chess sets under their arms .... and recognized some of them .... Dr. Rutledge .... Richard and Joe Welker, sons of Tony Welker .... perhaps all are practicing for the tournament Peg hears is to be held sometime in August .... Sometimes we wish we could play chess .... just a little .... it is such an aristocratic sounding game.

With me, a change of trouble is as good as a vacation. —David Lloyd George.

THE QUOTATION above is very provocative of further thoughts along those lines. And also along the lines of vacations which are more tiring than the work one has sought to avoid by going on the aforementioned vacation in the first place. Often a change in some way other than a trip is more restful to the body and to the spirit .... just to be able to stay at home and do some of the things we have always said we would do "if only I had the time" .... or to spend more time getting to know our children .... as Dr. Lang did last week during his vacation.

Children never put off until tomorrow that which will keep them out of bed tonight. —Glenn Preston Burns

A COOL EVENING urged Peg to drive around town in the family flivver just to see who was out .... saw Maria Stein in an attractive yellow dress .... the merry-go-round must go faster, much faster, than it used to go, or else it is just that with advancing age the things children adore seem more strenuous to us elders .... the horses seem to plunge and leap and shudder and twist and turn, giving us a very uncertain, unstable feeling .... the Irvin Chase family was seen at the amusement park .... and Carolyn and Teresa Ward, twin daughters of the former Jane Branson .... they live at Crane now, and were visiting in Pampa .... the W. G. Waggoner children were in the airplanes once ...., we also saw AT 1010 and boy and girl .... AT 1012 with a pretty little girl in pink .... AT 4830 had two boys and a girl that piled out to ride the ferris wheel .... AT 354 emitted three boys and a beautiful, curly haired baby girl .... AT 7675 came and watched the fun a little while .... AT 2793 .... AT 5158 .... and AT 2587 with a little handsome boy .... all were seen out on the summer evenings last week .... do YOU know the license numbers of your best friends? Do you know your own number?

He who knows only his own side of the case knows little of that. —J. Stuart Mill

OUTDOOR COOKING sometimes gets into a rut .... does anyone ever try anything except steaks, chickens, or ribs? .... How about your vegetable cookery for an outdoor party? .... You can do interesting things with skewers, too, as one or two people around town have done .... we suggest choosing your favorite frozen vegetable .... seasoning with salt, pepper, and a couple of tablespoons of butter, wrapping tightly in double aluminum foil, sealing tightly, and placing on the grill over the coals .... the vegetables will cook within about 30 minutes .... with a new flavor .... and so conveniently, too .... As for skewers .... choose any desired meat cut .... lamb or beef .... and cut into inch and a half chunks .... marinate the chunks in a spicy dressing overnight, or at least for several hours .... then skewer and place over the coals .... turn occasionally .... cook for about 20 minutes .... mmmm .... it is usually best not to put vegetables such as tomatoes or onions on the skewers with the meat, but to put them on separate skewers of their own .... the meat cooks more quickly .... or you can parboil the vegetables first and then skewer along with the meat .... serve with plenty of crisp rolls and hot coffee .... do something different next time you cook outdoors.

THERE IS AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT in the window of the foyer of the library this week .... do you ever stop to look at these exhibits that Mrs. Snow and the library staff spend time and thought on?

THE NEW BABIES in the hospitals are always a joy to see .... we noticed the Price boy, the Stribbling girl, the Newman boy, the Rychler girl, the Hudson boy, the Gooch boy, all sleeping like the babies they are .... we wish them all a happy and rewarding life.

COME AND GONE .... come (home) is Icie Harrah this week, with a look of glowing health and much to talk about .... gone (and come home, too) the Dallas Bowshers, who went to Colorado.

Seed pearls and rhinestones held the finger tip veil of illusion. She carried a white Bible, a gift of the best man. It was topped with a white orchid.

Keeping the new Baby cool in summer involves the use of a damp cloth to sponge him off. Many mothers carry them in the carriage basket, in a plastic bag. Others carry dry cloths and a thermos or jar of cool water.

Toddlers often like ice cream, whereas Babies often don't. But when "teaching" a toddler to enjoy the dessert treat, it's wise to encourage small bites, since the big ones often give him a sudden headache.

Several mothers note that their Babies, when sick, enjoy a drink of uncongealed gelatin dessert. The taste and feel are bland and the colors are appealing. Keeping it uncongealed is simply a matter of keeping it out of the refrigerator.

Methods of curing gladiolus corms, after the blooming season is over, have been modified somewhat in recent years to reduce winter injury from disease and thrips so as to have sound, clean corms for spring planting. Next year one should follow all the latest approved steps for digging, curing and storing.

Gladiolus corms are mature enough to be dug four weeks after the bloom is over. Most gardeners dig the corms just before the first killing frost. Be sure to choose a warm sunny day when the soil is dry for digging.

With sharp pruning shears, cut off the top close to the corms. The length of time required to cure corms varies with the amount of heat and ventilation, the degree of maturity of the plants, and the inherent traits of the variety. After drying corms, dust and store in a cool, dry, and airy room for the winter.

Protect lilies against hot sun. The tops need the sun, but soil around the roots must be kept cool. Either protect them with a layer of mulch or plant them among perennials, shrubs, or ground covers.

To show the lilies to the best advantage, plant them in groups of a dozen or more bulbs, rather than scattering them singly.

Till now one dreamed
Not what could be done,
With a bit of earth
And a ray of sun.

Tito's Finger In Variety Of Roles

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Tito of Yugoslavia is building up a record for himself in the variety of his diplomatic and political roles.

As a Communist, Tito visited Premier Nikilai A. Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow last month.

As a neutralist, he conferred in Yugoslavia last week with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt.

As a member of the Balkan alliance — originally aimed against Russian aggression — Tito is now visiting King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece on the island of Corfu.

In Moscow Tito completed the patching up of his long, savage quarrel with the Kremlin which resulted from the late Josef Stalin's attempt to ruin him.

No Communist Consolidation

He agreed to re-establish cooperation between the Russian and Yugoslav Communist parties.

But Tito made it plain that he has no intention of putting himself again in the Russian bloc of Communist countries.

The communique issued at the end of his visit emphasized that "the roads and conditions of socialist development are different in different countries." That constituted formal recognition by Russia of "Titoism" — that is, of freedom from any obligation to follow the Moscow line.

On his return home Tito said that he intended to maintain relations with the Western allies. Later, he made it known that he would not recognize Communist East Germany, as Russia would like him to do.

World Blocs Opposed

In his conference with Nehru and Nasser, Tito slipped into the role of neutralist. The three leaders agreed in disapproving "the division of the world into powerful blocs of nations." They called for an end to the testing of nuclear weapons, and for an agreement to outlaw their use.

They also expressed "sympathy for the desire of the people of Algeria for freedom." But they also said that the rights of the French residents of Algeria should be protected.

This was a blow to Nasser, who had hoped to get Tito's full support for the Algerian rebels against France.

Tito's present visit to the King and Queen of Greece is the most interesting of the three meetings.

First, of course, as a Communist Tito is against everything that royalty stands for.

War Threat Over

In addition, only a few years ago Greece and Yugoslavia seemed to be at the point of war. He permitted the Greek Reds to send to Yugoslavia 10,000 or more children whom guerrillas had kidnaped from their homes.

But all that is over, and Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey are allied in the Balkan Treaty.

Polio Rate Is Running Lower

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Public Health Service has announced today that the 1956 polio rate is running lower than in any other year since 1947.

It said the 3,900 new cases reported so far this year fall considerably short of the 5,486 reported during the same period of 1955. Only in the low year of 1947 were there fewer cases — 1,573.

But for some unexplained reason the paralytic rate this year is running nearly as high as last year. The big reduction has come in non-paralytic cases.

So far there have been 2,019 new paralytic cases — only 12 fewer than in 1955. And last week there were 279 cases, actually four more than in the same week last year.

The service said only five states — Illinois, Missouri, Louisiana, Arizona, and California — have reported more new cases this year than they did during the same period last year.

Plenty Of Jobs For Teachers

AUSTIN (UP)— There are about six vacant teaching jobs today in the state's public schools for evey teacher who wants a job according to a Texas State Teachers Association estimate.

The association said that 7,615 teaching jobs are still open in Texas, with schools scheduled to open in six weeks. About 1,310 teachers are available to fill these jobs.

Secretary Charles H. Tennyson said the shortage is particularly bad at some points and cited 46 vacancies at Brownsville and one-third of the teaching jobs at Mineral Wells open.

Tennyson said that more than half of the vacancies are in high and junior high schools. The greatest demand is for teachers of science, mathematics, English, music, home economics, physical education and commercial subjects.

Cost Of Hero Worship

Recognizing that the sum of $25,000 is not much in these inflationary times, conceding that it is pleasant if not overly important that the government of the United States remain on friendly terms with the government of Eire, agreeing that it is a splendid gesture to honor individuals who have given aid and comfort to our country even back into the time when living man's memory extends not.

We still want to go on record as asserting that the House of Representatives has a frightful amount of gall in proposing that six members of the House and six members of the Senate be designated as a committee to take a jaunt to Ireland next September "at a cost not to exceed $25,000" to attend the unveiling ceremony for a statue in honor of Commodore John Barry. (We will award a cherry lollypop to each and every reader who—honor bright — can pluck from memory pertinent data concerning who the commodore was and what he did.)

Not desiring to wait upon an unexpected avalanche of anecdotes concerning this Irish warrior we will rush ahead to inform the majority of ignoranti — including ourselves prior to reading the Congressional record — that Commodore Barry was a naval hero of the American Revolution who received the first U. S. naval commission from George Washington, commanded the Lexington, captured the first enemy vessel, turned down British bribery offers to desert his adopted country and fired the last naval shot of the Revolutionary War. He was born in County Wexford on the southeast coast of Ireland, inherited a natural dislike for the English, joined the American revolutionaries in 1776 and lies buried in Philadelpha since 1803.

Some time ago Congress, importuned by some misbegotten notion that every hero should have a statue, authorized the presentation of a memorial of Commodore Barry to Ireland to be established in his native Wexford. This is a frittering of American resources but to carry it beyond the pale it now seems that Congress, on a motion of the Hons. O'Neill and Rooney, proposes to make it a happy holiday for a dozen of its number.

This carries hero worship — even the worship of Irish heroes — far beyond the call of moral obligation.

How many chunks of $25,000 each are wasted like this each year? And how much frivolity of this kind is required to make the American taxpayers rise up in righteous wrath against the brainless spendthrifts occupying chairs of power in Washington?

This needless and downright criminal expenditure will require the total income tax payments of 25 higher-than-average income taxpayers — money that might have been used for the construction of tools or the conduct of research which would have served to far greater purpose the welfare of the United States, and of Ireland too, than a ceremonial unveiling of an inanimate replica of man gone beyond the power of living beings to honor or defile.

THE NATION'S PRESS

THE HOBBLING CRUTC H

(The Wall Street Journal)

The sad saga of Government stockpiling, recounted in this newspaper the other day, proves once again that it's easier to start a bad Federal habit than to stop it.

Ostensibly the stockpile is designed to give the United States a sizable inventory of some seventy strategic items on which it could rely in case of war. The theory itself is sensible enough, but what the stockpile has increasingly become is a gigantic price - support operation, comparable in its cost to the taxpayer with the farm surpluses accumulated through the effort to prop farm prices.

And there is no sign the Government will be getting out of the "strategic" price-propping business any time soon. Indeed it is getting deeper.

For example, the stockpile goals for a number of commodities like tungsten, fluorspar and asbestos have already been met. Yet Congress is now busily writing a law which calls for continued Government buying of these things for another two and a half years. That, however, is considered only a stop-gap; next year the Administration will present Congress a long-range plan for siding the mining and minerals industries.

Thus a limited defense program has degenerated into a seemingly interminable civilian subsidy. And the pity of it is that there is an inexorable logic in this unedifying progression.

The very fact that the Government goes into the market to buy the products of an industry for whatever purpose — provides a crutch for that industry for the time being. When the buying goes on for ten years, as it has in the case of the strategic stockpile, the crutch comes to be regarded as a natural part of the industry's anatomy. Let the Government threaten to remove the crutch and the screams would make you think it planned to amputate the industry's legs.

It would be idle, though, to denounce the mining companie and their solicitous legislators for reacting this way. After all, they have some large precedents for demanding perpetual subsidization. If it is right and proper for the Government to waste billions of tax dollars buying and storing unwanted fruits of the soil, what is wrong with having the Government do the same with unwanted fruits of the earth's crust?

Moreover, the stockpile's beneficiaries can note that the farm program also had a defense purpose once upon a time. Congress established rigid high price supports to encourage maximum production during Wrold War II, then kept them for nearly a decade after the war. If it is all right for the farm program to shift from defense to naked subsidy, why isn't it for the stockpile?

Why indeed? And if you grant these premises, then obviously it follows that the Government should step in to subsidize any industry that for whatever reason is having a tough competitive time. As the stockpile story suggests, that is by no means a fanciful possibility.

The trouble is not with the reasoning of those who want this stockpile subsidy. The trouble is the basic assumption that it is the Government's duty to rush about propping up the economy. The danger is that it will be realized too late that this Federal crutch is not a help but a hobble.

ARE WE DISFRANCHISED?

(Christian Economics)

In his new book Affairs of State — The Eisenhower Years, Richard H. Rovere points out that the Eisenhower administration resembles the Truman administration. Harry and Dwight are more alike than either would suspect or admit.

Both believe in government control of the monetary system — fiat money, as distinguished from money of intrinsic value. Both believe in increasing socialization not only in fiscal affairs, but in schools "social security," conscription, universal military training, enormous payments to farmers in return for producing goods that are not needed or wanted at the prices demanded, and special privileges for unions that amount, in some cases, to subsidizing idleness. Both also believe in subsidizing Socialist governments abroad, thus increasing their grip upon the people and so postpoining, if not preventing, the achievement of more freedom which would result in greater production and increased well-being.

Both pay lip service to free enterprise, while following a program that leads more and more toward statism.

We said before the last election that if one wanted more Socialism, he could vote either ticket and be sure of winning. How true that prophecy has proved to be!

The country is urgently in need of a new political alignment that against Socialism to register their convictions at the polls.

Teacher For 25 Years Sees Primary Cause Of Juvenile Delinquency

I have an interesting letter from Amanda I. Whiteside from Syracuse, New York. She has been a government school teacher for 25 years. In her letter to me she tells why she resigned. She writes:

'We have a new superintendent, Dr. Paul A. Miller, who has been here one and a half years. He is of the Robert M. Hutchins-Fund for the Republic mentality, and my activities as a teacher, which had been satisfactory for twenty-five years, became unsatisfactory in the last year and a half."

". . . . I wish as many people as possible might be informed about the kind of education their children are getting in the public schools. What is happening in Syracuse is of the same pattern as is happening all over the country."

She sent me a copy of an address she made before the New York State Association for Better Education in Schenectady, New York, on April 7 of this year. She notes that the first part of the article giving the history of how progressive education developed in the schools is old stuff to me.

The part of her address that was interesting to me was her analysis of the primary cause of juvenile delinquency. Then after her introduction in her speech giving the history of progressive education, she writes:

'Now I come to my own views on the causes of the discipline problem and of juvenile delinquency. The second great cause for the discipline problem in the public schools is something which has never occurred to most people. I believe, however, that the root of the trouble lies in the compulsory nature of our schools — indicated by the very name, compulsory education.

"There are four main phases of this compulsion. First, the money to run the schools is taken by compulsion through taxes. The motive back of supporting schools by taxation seemed excellent to—bring equal opportunity to all the children of all the people. But, as always, do-gooders end up by doing good coercively. After all the plan must have the support of everyone if it is going to work.

"Secondly, school attendance is compulsory until a certain age (depending on state law.) The attendance law keeps in school the children who cannot — or will not — profit by what is offered. My heart aches for many of these children, for, to them, school is a jail which gives them nothing in return for the time it robs them of. It is not surprising that increasing numbers of these children become rebellious and use their ingenuity to ruin the classes for those who are willing to learn. These unwilling attenders become enemies of the society which wrongs them, and here is a major cause of delinquency.

"Third, the curricula and text books are compulsory. In New York State the Regents dictate our syllabus in every subject. The syllabus, in turn, controls the contents of the textbooks. Furthermore, the Regents' questions are often terribly slanted, and this controls the content of the class work, even in private schools, for every teacher naturally has to prepare her pupils so that as many as possible pass the Regents' examinations.

One example of this slanting of Regents' examinations is the common occurence on English examinations of questions about the writings of such authors as Howard Fast who writes a regular column in the DAILY WORKER. This is part of the plan.

"Fourth, compulsion has not stopped with these three steps — there is state aid, a vicious instrument of compulsion. It came about thus: some communities could not afford, or did not wish to afford, as much money for their schools as was spent in other communities. Therefore, thanks again to the do-gooders, the theory of Karl Marx was adopted, 'From each according to his ability, to each according to his need,' and we got state aid. Now remember, he who pays the piper calls the tune.

'This is not the end of the story. As a result of these four compulsions which control our schools we have a great, unified, state school system, and a rapidly growing number of thoughtful citizens do not like what they have gotten, in some phase of it or another."

Ike To Meet Reds With Force

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration has finally decided to meet Moscow's smiling offensive with a show of force and grimness. It will no longer appease such wavering neutrals as Prime Minister Nehru of India, Marshal Tito of Yogoslavia and Gamal Abdel Nasser, the Egyptian dictator. It will not try to outbid Russia for their favor.

It is no secret that President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles, who strongly urged this shift in policy, are highly satisfied over the immediate results of the experiment. In fact, they anticipate further gains from their refusal to finance the Aswan dam on the Upper Nile, and from Vice President Nixon's sturdy defense of our worldwide system of alliances during his trip to the Orient and Asia.

Contrary to Nasser's public representations, Russia apparently will not try to take advantage of our rebuke to Cairo. Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov says that the Kremlin has no intention of putting up the $1.3 billion for the Aswan project. It appears that Nasser was indulging in a bit of diplomatic blackmail.

The snub to Nasser may have other important repercussions, in Washington's opinion. It may impress many neutrals with the fact that the era of unquestioning and indiscriminate American aid, so frequently assailed on Capitol Hill, has ended.

It also may prove to them that the Khrushchev-Bulganin regime cannot fulfill its pledges of assistance. It indicates that Russia cannot improve economic conditions at home, maintain a mightly military machine and export capital goods without overextending itself.

Shepilov administered another shock to Nasser and his embryonic Arab empire, which he had hoped to build along the Mediterranean from Bagdad to Morocco. The Russian statesman, while visiting Cairo, offered no support, verbal or material, for the Arabs in their clash with Isreal. Instead, he contracted to sell $20,000,000 worth of oil to Tel Aviv.

The collapse of Nasser's search for Aswan funds, together with Russia's indifference to his plight, may cut the dictator down to size. It may strip him of prestige and leadership of an anti-American, Arabian bloc. Indeed, there are suggestions that the increasing economic misery of his 22,000,000 people may result in his overthrow by the same sort of Army coup with which he ousted King Farouk.

Nixon's Far Eastern and Asian foray, as well as his speeches and interviews, were a direct affront to Nehru. The Vice President visited the principal members of SEATO and METO, which to Indian Prime Minister condemns bitterly.

While Nixon did not repeat Dulles' description of neutralism as "obsolete and immoral," he did defend our foreign policy and congratulate our Allies for their contribution to world stability. He refuted Nehru's contention that these alliances constitute interference in other nations' affairs and a new order of "imperialistic domination."

To Washington's surprise, Nehru has behaved more moderately in recent weeks. While attending the British commonwealth conference in London, he gave 10 Downing Street the impression that he might use his influence with Turkey for peaceful settlement of the Cyprus crisis.

He indicated that he would try to persuade Nasser to halt his inflammatory propaganda against France and Britain throughout all Africa. Cairo has been a hotbed and a source of intrigue against the two European powers.

Nehru, too, disappointed Nasser when he met with the Egyptian dictator and Marshal Tito at Brioni the Yugoslavian ruler's summer resort on the Adriatic. Nehru showed no desire to organize a "third force" as a buffer between the West and the Communists, as Nasser had hoped. In the noncommittal communique, he permitted no reference to the Palestine problem.

Both Nehru and Tito, needing many millions to modernize and industrialize their countries, including many small Aswan dams, apparently realize that Uncle Sam is more able than Uncle Ivan to help them, provided they behave themselves.

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN President, Spiritual Mobilization

In his new book, "Sweden: The Welfare State," Wilfrid Fleisher says taxation and welfare benefits in Sweden now have arrived at a point of balance where "the average citizen has become aware that it is a matter of transferring money from one pocket to another and is asking himself whether he would not prefer to make the choice himself rather than have the government decide for him how the money is to be spent."

This, of course, is the central question to be answered in deciding for or against Socialism — for which "the welfare state" is simply a euphemism. There is, also, the corollary question as to whether it would not be better to keep all the money rather than have the government take out part of it in the process of transferring it "from one pocket to another."

In other words, Socialism is essentially a process of subtraction and division. Private capitalism and the market rest on a process of addition and multiplication.

The Kremlin says that Lenin now disapproves of Stanlin even though Lenin has been dead longer than Joe has. For the sake of public peace, I hope spiritualism never gets turned loose in American politics. It might be just too awful to hear what Jefferson and Lincoln now think of some of the guys who have succeeded them.

Social Security Act Approaching Saturation

By Thurman Sensing

The Social Security Act, which was fallacious in conception and is entirely faulty in execution, is gradually aproaching the point of saturation. If the trend which has been followed since the law became effective is continued down through the years, there will come a time when the people of this country are all being "kept" by the government — and we all know what kind of government we shall have when that time arrives.

We suggested some years ago, as we were discussing the "government'll - take - care - of - you" philosophy and "cradle to the grave" security, a method by which all our individual economic needs could be solved; namely, that upon the birth of each child the government issue him $100,000 in government bonds (which would cost government nothing; it would be only paper) and that thereby child could live comfortably rest of his life.

Such a proposal, of course, is reducing the philosophy of social security to adsurdity — but isn't that where it belongs? Which brings us back to our first statement.

The whole idea of government-provided social security is fallacious because in a free nation there is no room for the concept of compulsion in seeing that the individual provides for his future — and social security is compulsory.

And the execution of the social security law is deceitful because the people who participate are misled into believing that the taxes they pay into government treasury for this purpose and those paid by their employers are set aside to build up a reserve for their old age.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. The money is spent by the Government for general operating expenses as fast as it is received. When it comes time to pay this employee his old-age benefits, additional taxes must be collected by the Government to pay for them.

Of course, proponents of the present system will say that the reserve in the social security fund is invested in government bonds and that these bonds constitute a sound reserve fund.

In order to explode any impression that this is true, it is only necessary to point out the fact that piling up of great quantities of its own debt securities as a "reserve" does not add anything at all to the ability of the Government to meet social security obligations. Cash funds needed to pay retirement benefits can still only be obtained by means of taxes at the time the benefits are paid.

But we are continuing to delude ourselves. Both the House and the Senate have now sent to conference bills "liberalizing" the present social security provisions. Women would become eligible for social security benefits at age 62 instead of 65. This, of course, is "discrimination" — of which we have heard a lot lately — but the Congress being composed mainly of men, they are undoubtedly too gallant to bring out that point. Why not lower the age of eligibility for men to 60 and the women to 55: Give them time — that will come.

Another provision is to continue social security children's benefits beyond the cutoff age of 18 if total disability was sustained before the age of 18. And an entirely new concept is added to social security by making those disabled eligible for its benefits at age 50 instead of waiting until retirement age of 65. An additional tax of one-quarter of one per cent will be paid by both employee and employer to take care of this provision - which money will also be spent as fast as it is received, regardless of any provisions made for a so-called "reserve fund."

As the young people are taken care of longer and as the old people are taken care of sooner, there is less and less time in between for a person to earn his living by the "sweat of his brow." How long before the two ages meet and we reach that point of absurdity mentioned above? How long before additional "liberalizations" make social security taxes, added to all other taxes, so heavy that government must, by necessity, take care of the people and we have a complete welfare state?

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

All business stopped cold at the 94th. annual convention of the National Education Association in Portland, Oregon, when the "bad" news came through that Federal Aid to Education had just been defeated.

Immediate consideration was given to show the N. E. A. influence on local, state and national levels, might be increased. Suggestions were made that it seek to increase its membership from 659,190 to 1,000,000 within a year, that annual dues be increased from $5 to $10, that $2,000,000 be spent to tell the story of "American schools and their needs" via radio and television, and that teachers become proud and happy lobbyists for "better school conditions." N. E. A. leaders urged these teachers "Lobbyists" to scrutenize the record of their represenatives and senators and not to vote for those who oppose federal aid bills.

As a mere taxpaying parent of four school-age children, this writer will take a very dim view indeed of any such political lobbying by our teachers, and would humbly suggest that said teachers are in sad need of considerably more education on this matter before they jump into political action!

High-flown phrases like "an educational bill of rights" aren't good enough. They're going to have to get down to some simple brass tacks, get familiar with basic facts and figures, and instead of just berating and denouncing the opponents of Federal Aid to Education, come up with some sensible answers to their arguments.

For example, what state in the union has yet proved conclusively that it is financially unable to provide its own citizens with an education? And even assuming that such a state, or states, could be found just how can the Federal Government "aid" them, since the U. S. Treasury is already up to its ears in debt?

Even the N. E. A. knows the Federal Government doesn't have a spare nickel with which to aid anybody, and that it will have to tax away money from within the states first in order to give some back to the states later. Now is is quite true that the Federal Government, under a so-called "Federal-Aid program," can redistribute the collected taxes so that some states get back more than they pay out, but this is only because the other states are compelled to pay out more than they get back, and these states therefore have less to spend on their own educational systems than they would have had without the program. Why any legislators from these penalized states should vote in favor of such nonsense, N.E.A. leaders do not say.

The President of N.E.A. is Dr. John Lester Buford of Mount Vernon, Illinois. Under the N. E. A.-sponsored program, Illinois would be one of the penalized states. Does Dr. Buford think that he could persuade the citizens of Illinois to voluntarily vote themselves a tax for the sole benefit of some other state? Of course not! Yet he apparently thinks that calling such a loss "Federal Aid" is all that is required to camouflage the raw deal. And if it isn't enough, then he urges a united and vocal lobby of a million teachers to go into political action in an atiempt to scare reluctant legislators into line!

Some commentators have deplored the injection of the race issue into this legislation via the Powell Amendment, and blamed this for its defeat Undoubtedly it would have been better to defeat the bill on its own lack of merit, but the Powell Amendment did have a legitimate connection. Everybody knows that the states which stood to gain extra funds from this bill are mostly in the South where two separate school systems intead of one—are maintained. Many legislators from Northern states would thus be penalizing their own taxpayers in order to subsidize the cost of this double schoo I system in the South and this — they refused to do! Would Dr. Buford and his N. E. A. teachers care to argue that they should be compelled to do so against their will?

The case for Federal Aid to Education (a misnomer if there ever was one) is about as weak as the case for increased Foreign Aid. Unfortunately, the proponents of both seem to be under the impression that PERSUASION is less desirable than POLITICAL PRESSURE. If anywhere near a million American teachers have succumbed to this fatal viewpoint, then we had better stop worrying about little Johnny's education and start investigating his teacher's!

Six Wells Completed In Ochiltree County

PERRYTON — (Special) — Two oil wells and four gas wells were completed in Ochiltree County this past week.

The R. H. Fulton No. 1 Smith, south of Farnworth, was the best well in the Panhandle flowing 31 barrels of oil per hour or 744 barrels per day, natural. The production is through perforations from 8,072 to 82 feet. This well is a mile south of the dry Froese hole and extends the Farnsworth field another two miles south.

Also completed was the Texas Co. No. 1 Elliott in Section 6, Block JT, TWNG Survey. It was completed for 86 barrels of oil from perforations at 6,709 to 61 feet, and the gas - oil ratio was 1590 to 1.

Completed for 5,200,000 feet of gas was the Jo M. Huber No. 1 JT, TWNG survey from perforations at 8,722 to 70 feet. This is in the same section as the Pazoureck which was completed as a good gas producer in 1952.

An old hole which was drilled as a dry hole by Gulf was cleaned out and deepened and completed as a gas well this week. The Stanolind Oil and Gas Co. No. 1 Wamble, in the J. J. Ballentine survey in the southwest part of the county was completed for 800,000 feet of gas from perforations at 8621 to 50 feet.

Testing is continuing at the Shell Oil No. 1 George, northwest of Perryton in Section 35, Block 11, W. Ahrenbeck Survey, which flowed load oil and 3,800,000 cubic feet of gas from 7936 to 70 feet.

With a potential of 3,200,000 cubic feet, from 8,534 to 57 feet, the Sun Oil Co. No. 1 R. C. Elliott in Section 13, Block 12, N&GN Survey, near Lord, has been completed as a gasser.

There was one new location in Ochiltree County during the week. It was the Sinclair Oil and Gas Co. No. 1 Edith W. Higginbotham in Tract 5, C. Ximenes Survey, four miles south of Farnsworth.

Nasser Suffers His Severest Setback

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt has suffered his severest setback since he overthrew King Farouk four years ago.

When he went to Yugoslavia last week to confer with President Tito and Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, Nasser was riding high.

He was building himself up as leader of the Arab nations. He was playing the West against the East in his diplomacy with apparent success. He was being headlined as one of the world's three leading "neutralists."

Then things began to happen.

The United States announced the cancellation of its offer to help finance Egypt's great Aswan high dam — Nasser's dream of putting his country on the path to greatness.

Britain followed suit next day by cancelling its own offer of aid in financing the dam.

Bank Loan Withdrawn

The cancellation of the United States and British offers meant the automatic withdrawal of the offer of a $200 million dam loan by the International Bank for reconstruction and development.

Then Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov announced that Russia was not considering an offer of aid in building the dam. It had been reported that Russia was willing to finance the entire project.

To make things worse, Nasser failed in his attempt in the Yugoslav conference to get Tito and Nehru to promise him full support in his campaign against France in North Africa.

It looks very much, at the moment, as if Nasser had outsmarted himself.

His prestige with Egypt's fellow Arab countries is threatened.

More seriously, his internal position will be weakened unless he can get himself out of the diplomatic pit which he dug for himself.

Nasser's dream of a greater Egypt is based on the construction of the $1.3 billion dam. Its waters are planned to increase Egypt's agricultural output by at least 33 per cent, and its electric power production by 800 per cent.

Nasser had taken an increasingly anti-Western attitude ever since he got into power.

Last fall Nasser entered an agreement with Russia under which Communist Czechoslovakia started sending arms to Egypt. It was believed that the amount involved was about $100 million. It now appears that $250 million is a more likely figure.

Despite this, the United States offered last December to make Nasser a $56 million dollar grant toward the dam costs. Britain offered $14 million. The United States offered to consider providing $130 million more.

Nasser was flying back to Cairo from Yugoslavia with Nehru when the blow fell. The United States said that it was not convinced that Egypt could do its part in financing the dam, for one thing. But there is no doubt that the American and British action has a political, not an economic, background.

Nasser is to make a big speech Thursday. It probably will be better. A Cairo newspaper also reports that he plans to visit Moscow August 13.

Nasser may come up with something to retrieve his loss. It looks as if he better had.

German Floods Costly

HANOVER, Germany (UP)—Floods in north Germany last week caused at least $25 million damage to crops and threatened bankruptcy for 16,000 farmers, the Lower Saxony state government estimated Wednesday.

A Historian, Maybe?

WASHINGTON (UP) — Nearby Alexandria, Va., claims on its personnel recommendation forms for city jobs that it once was the home of George Washington but the claim apparently nettled one Englishman. Filling out the form, the Britisher scrawled in the margin: "George Washington was born in Durham County, England, and was only on lend-lease to you people."

1 Card of Thanks 1

And we know that all things work together for good of them that love God, to them who are called according to His purpose. (Romans 8:28)

THE OTHER ROOM

No, not cold beneath the grasses,
Not close-walled within the tomb;
Rather, in my Father's mansion,
LIVING in another room.

Living, like the one who loves me,
Like yon child with cheeks abloom,
Out of sight, at desk or school book,
BUSY in another room.

Nearer than the youth whom fortune
Beckons where the strange lands loom;
Just behind the hanging curtain,
SERVING in another room.

Shall I doubt my Father's mercy?
Shall I think of death as doom,
Or the stepping o'er the threshold
To a bigger, brighter room?

Shall I blame my Father's wisdom?
Shall I sit enswathed in gloom,
When I know our loved one is happy,
WAITING in the other room?

Mrs. Mary Pennington

May we take this means to express our most sincere apperiation to all for the many kindnesses shown during the illness and death of our beloved mither, Mrs. Mary Pennington, who passed away Monday, July 23.

Mrs. I. C. Ayres
Mrs. W. F. Slaten

An Era In Show Business Ended

EDITOR'S NOTE: An era in show business appears to be ending. Circuses are folding, television is booming and the motion picture industry is undergoing a revolution. In the following United Press dispatch Aline Mosby details the change.)

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — What is the state of the movie business? Industry observers agree that a 50-year era that saw film theaters as top dog in the entertainment world is drawing to a close.

This year Hollywood is gambling its future on a rash of epic pictures that cost nearly $50,000,000.

Movies aren't the only victim of the show business revolution. The big circuses are folding; big nightclubs are fading and may be extinct except in New York and Las Vegas.

Television may not be the prime reason. Sociologists say the pattern of American life is changing, with activities centered around the automobile, backyard barbecue, the do-it-yourself-movement and TV set.

Whatever the reasons, revolution signs in the movie industry have been increasing.

Warner studio sold its backlog of films to television. When traditional MGM recently announced it would rent its old films to TV — including "The Wizard of Oz" to CBS — Theater exhibitors objected and even ex-MGM-ite Clark Gable complained.

Net profits at the big movie studios have dropped, some as much as 40 per cent.

Most film - makers think the trend will be towards the release of fewer pictures a year, most of them supercolossal epics. Many will be made by independent producers without studio overhead to worry about, while the studios concentrate on TV films.

This year more multi-million dollar films are being released than at any time in history. As one producer says, "If these movies won't draw them into the theaters, nothing will."

Many film makers feel the fate of Hollywood hinges on what happens to these pictures at the box-office: "The Ten Commandments" (cost $13 million), "War and Peace" ($6 million), "The King And I," ($4.3 million), "Moby Dick," ($4.3 million), "Giant" ($3 million).

Whether these tremendous investments will pay off in the long run won't be known for some time.

Business has not been good at many of the studios. MGM's net profit for the fiscal year ending June 7 was down 40 per cent. So was Columbia's. The last quarter earnings announced by 20th Century Fox were $1 million less than the year before.

However, observers don't think the revolution means the end of the movie business. One expert predicts within five years the nation's 10,000 movie theaters (4,00 drive-ins and 15,000 "hardtops") will dwindle to 10,000. Those few theaters will show supercolossal epics and "adult" pictures (minus a Production Code seal) that can't be seen on the family TV set. Pay-TV may mean top movies at home.

A top director, John Huston, maker of "Moby Dick," recently told me, "I'm not pessimistic. Anyone that didn't see this coming must have been blind."

IT'S THE LAW ★ IN TEXAS ★

In the United States a defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt. His guilt or innocence is established at his trial — not when he is arrested.

With this concept in mind it is not hard to see why the right to bail in criminal cases is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, with the exception of capital cases. A capital crime is one which the punishment may be death. In Texas murder, treason, rape and robbery with firearms are capital offenses.

All prisoners are bailable in Texas except where the proof is evident that a capital offense has been committed and it is probable that a jury will assess the death penalty.

An officer making an arrest is required by law to take the accused promptly before a magistrate. It is the duty of the magistrate to examine into the truth of the accusation made. He determines whether the accused should be discharged or bailed or held without bail. If bail is set for the defendant, the magistrate must determine the amount. The law provides a procedure for reviewing these decisions before the Court of Criminal Appeals.

When an accused is on bail when his trial commences he has the right to remain on bail during the trail of his case. Where the punishment of a defendant has been assessed at confinement in the penitentiary for fifteen years or less the defendant has the right to remain on bail pending the appeal of his case. If the penalty is more than fifteen years the defendant is kept in custody from the moment the jury returns its verdict.

The Constitution also says that bail may not be set in excessive amount. What is considered a reasonable amount depends largely upon the circumstances and the risk involved. Bail must be set high enough to assure the court and the state that the person will not run away, but will return and submit to trial on the date set.

The judge usually will ask the prosecuting attorney for a recommendation as to the amount of bail. The accused's attorney may then ask that the amount recommended be reduced, giving his reasons. The judge will settle on an amount he believes reasonable to assure the accused's presence at the trial.

Occasionally we read of someone "skipping bail". This means that he failed to show up in court at the required time. In such cases the court can order his bail forfeited. The person is still subject to re-arrest and prosecution, however.
