Attempted murder charges filed here

Colorado City Police Chief Bobby Sparks has reported to the Colorado City Record that an officer responded at 8:30 p.m. on Monday, February 4, to a report of a stabbing incident at a Colorado City residence.

Sparks said that Officer George Oliver, who responded to the call, reported that he was told upon arrival at the scene, that the alleged stabbing had been a result of an argument between the victim, Daniel Lee Darling, 28, and Charles Hook Buchanan, 67, both of Colorado City.

Police are in possession of statements from several witnesses who were present at the scene.

Buchanan was at the scene when Oliver arrived, he reported, and, according to Sparks, was in possession of the alleged weapon, a folding knife with approximately a three-inch blade.

Sparks said that Buchanan was escorted to Mitchell County Jail, and charged with attempted murder.

The victim, according to police reports, had been taken in a private vehicle to Mitchell County Hospital prior to Oliver's arrival.

Oliver reported that when he arrived at the hospital to investigate further, he was told that Darling was about to undergo surgery for a knife wound to the stomach.

At 1:45 p.m. on Tuesday afternoon, hospital spokespersons said that Darling was in stable condition.

Sparks said Darling will be questioned about the matter as soon as possible.

Council narrows margin in City Manager search

The search for a new city manager for Colorado City has been narrowed to a field of two candidates, according to City Councilman Bob Reilly.

Buddy Foster of Pecos and Kenneth Martin of Lubbock will be asked for further references, and members of the city council plan to visit the home towns of both candidates in order to make the final decision.

Reilly said that the final decision should be made within a time frame of approximately two weeks from now.

Loraine ISD asks court for aid in tax collections

In a called meeting of the Mitchell County Commissioners' Court on Tuesday, February 5, members heard from Clarence Burt, Mitchell County tax assessor and collector, regarding a request from Loraine Independent School District that the county assist in its tax collection.

Burt explained the procedures which would be involved in such an undertaking, and the commissioners agreed to consider the matter, but not to make a decision at this time.

The potential of upcoming changes in tax legislation at the state level was one of the reasons cited for delaying the decision.

In other business, commissioners approved the payroll, and were informed that county employees with dependent health insurance had seen a substantial savings during this, the first pay period under the recently adopted "cafeteria plan."

The cafeteria plan is a health insurance plan. The savings involved come mostly from the fact that the deductions for that plan are made from salaries prior to tax deductions, which are then based on a percentage of the remainder.

Savings for employees with dependent health insurance is expected to average approximately $40 per month with the cafeteria plan.

Fire report released

The Mitchell County Volunteer Fire Department has issued its report for January, 1991.

Units responded to a total of eight calls for the month, to include three grass fires, four miscellaneous calls and one structure fire.

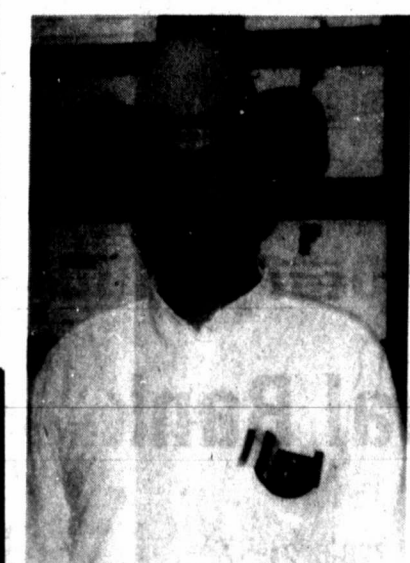

The structure fire involved a small storage building in the Coopers Cove area of Lake Colorado City. The building was a total loss.

A rescue with the "jaws of life" was involved in one of the miscellaneous calls. Bobby Cawthorn of Huntsville, Alabama was cut free from his overturned vehicle on Interstate Highway 20, near Loraine. Details of that rescue were reported in the February 3rd issue of the Colorado City Record.

Another miscellaneous call involved what is known as a "wash down." To prevent the possibility of fire, a potentially hazardous gasoline spill next to the pumps in the parking lot of the Save M convenience store was hosed down by firefighters.

No false alarms were reported for the month of January.

BOBBY SPARKS

Sparks leads local police department

Police Chief Bobby Sparks has a way of inspiring confidence in those who appreciate a no-nonsense approach to law enforcement.

It is obvious that he feels confidence in his ability to do the job he does, and that he has the utmost confidence in his officers, as well.

According to Sparks, the team of Colorado City's police department is an outstanding one.

He points with justifiable pride to the fact that even the four reserve officers on the force, Melburn Jaco, Sissy Merritt does some sewing on one of the many articles of clothing found in the museum which were in need of repair.

"Assembly line" workers busy cataloging museum

Every day brings closer the day the new location of the Colorado City Historical Museum will open its doors to the public.

Meantime, there is always a frenzy of activity at the present location.

The present location is closed to the public right now, but there is always room for a volunteer. And inside the doors you will find volunteers in abundance.

Marion Bassham, Elizabeth Connell, Louise DeCovic, Sissy Merritt, and Anne Alford are some of the regular crew of volunteers.

Along with all of the other things there are to do, they have been working an "assembly line," lately, washing, ironing, and mending all of the many clothing articles they have found, and then putting all the information known about them into the museum's records system.

The volunteers say they found much of the clothing in really terrible condition...yellowed, stained, torn, stuffed into drawers, and all very fragile.

No job appears too-big for the assembly line workers, however, and almost every item they have found has been restored to very nearly its original beauty and made an official member of the museum's inventory.

Walk into the present location of the museum and you would never know how hard the work is that the volunteers are doing. They are obviously having fun.

They have enjoyed discovering the various treasures of the museum, everything from albums to zithers, in a million different hiding places, but the articles of clothing really seem to be their favorites...especially the baby Cayce and George Oliver, patrolmen.

Part-time and full-time officers alike all continue to attend frequent classes on a regular basis, both to maintain certification, and to keep their knowledge current on all new regulations and information having to do with law enforcement.

Sparks says that the presence on the force of the four part-time officers saves the taxpayers money. Part-time officers do not have the benefit of certain tax-funded city employee benefits, and their combined hourly salaries equal less than the amount which one new full-time officer would be paid.

He admits, though, that the force really could use one more full-time officer.

There are two reasons for this, he says. First of all, the addition of just one more full-time officer would alleviate the possibility of an officer ever having to patrol alone, as happens now approximately 35% of the time.

Second, he says, Taylor is a member of the Army Reserve, and it is quite possible that the lieutenant could be called to active duty at any time.

There are certain proportions of law enforcement personnel to citizen population which must be maintained, Sparks said, in order that the city and county not be found liable either for excess danger to their officers, or for a slow reaction time for citizen requests for aid.

Saving the taxpayers money is a primary concern for Sparks, and one of the means which he has studied for doing so is the Metro system of law enforcement.

The Metro system combines county and city law enforcement agencies under one roof, and some communities which have tried it have realized obvious cost advantages.

A savings in overhead, building rent or purchase price, maintenance, and utility bills, is brought about by the use of one building instead of two, and the need for two dispatch boards is avoided as well.

A central location for a 911 emergency system is another advantage, and with the upcoming installation in our area of that system, this could be an opportune time for law enforcement agencies to consider combining forces.

Some who have studied the Metro system say that so much tax money is saved simply from eliminating the duplication of certain items, expenditures and services, that no personnel need to be cut, but only redesignated in some cases.

Sparks said that now, with the population in our area decreasing, and with tax liabilities increasing, the Metro system might be an option for the city and county to study.

Sparks was born in Colorado City in 1949. He graduated from Colorado High School and attended Sul Ross University and Howard County College. He, like the other officers of the Colorado City Police Department, continually attends courses to increase his knowledge of his job. He is presently enrolled at West Texas College in Snyder, where he will receive a degree in criminal justice in May.

From 1970 through 1979, Sparks owned a hardware store in downtown Colorado City, and during much of that time, from 1973 through 1979, he was also a reserve deputy with the sheriff of that time, Bill McGuire.

Sparks became the police chief of Loraine in 1979, and served in that capacity until 1981, when he began work as the parts manager of Hutchins Ford.

He went on to manage a used car dealership of his own, and was appointed, in 1985, by the city manager of that time, Brenda Hammond, to be Colorado City's chief of police.

In addition to the police officers, the police department has an animal control officer, Joe Wallace, who handles the many animal-related problems which are called in on the dispatcher's board.

Wallace has handled calls dealing with practically everything from snakes to skunks, but most of the calls involve problems with dogs.

Colorado City does have a leash law for dogs, but dogs don't always pay attention to that law.

The department also has five dispatchers who handle the calls which come in 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Barbara Penn is the head dispatcher, and Sara Salazar, Sharon Gilbreath and Amy Penn are the other full-time dispatchers. Joe Russell is a part-time dispatcher.

The dispatchers, too, attend several different classes on a regular basis.

Martha Martinez is the secretary, and has to deal with the paperwork for the entire police department operation. In addition to that full-time job, she is also the municipal court clerk, and must, just like her co-workers, attend frequent classes to keep her knowledge current.

The police department, Sparks explains, is the main law enforcement agency within the city limits.

In 1990 officers responded to 25,987 calls, investigated 128 traffic accidents, made 600 security checks at the request of citizens, provided 106 funeral escorts and issued 678 traffic tickets.

Sparks says the police department has no quota as to how many tickets are issued, despite what people might think.

Money collected from those tickets, Sparks explains, goes into the general fund of the city.

Also during 1990 police officers handled nine aggravated assaults, usually involving a deadly weapon.

They handled 88 burglaries, 137 thefts, 11 vehicle thefts and two armed robberies.

The differences between burglaries, thefts, and robberies are a matter of location, whether or not the perpetrator was allowed on the premises, and whether personal contact was involved, Sparks explained.

There were also 50 assaults which the police were called upon to handle, 19 forgeries, 88 vandalisms, six weapons offenses, 24 felony drug arrests, three sexual assaults, 133 domestic problems, 106 DWI's, 102 liquor law violations, 170 disorderly conduct violations, and 449 miscellaneous crimes.

Of the 1398 cases investigated, Sparks said, 458 arrests were for offenses above class C, 960 cases were solved, and the files are still open on the remainder.

In the years Sparks has been chief of police, he said, the department has made over 160 drug arrests. Many of those arrests were for felonies and most of those arrested were alleged drug dealers.

He said the majority of all the arrests the police force makes are, in some way, drug related, and he is proud to note the record of the department in drug arrests.

Sparks says that parents sometimes bring their kids to him for counseling when there is a danger that the kids are about to step over the line of "kids will be kids."

He enjoys that part of his job, because he likes talking to young people and trying to help them straighten themselves out before it is too late.

He feels that he can offer them a realistic look at life, and can advise them and their parents of other options and sources of help as well.

Sparks inspires confidence in the young people he talks to. He and all of the members of Colorado City's police department inspire that confidence in most of those who meet them, and who recognize their dedicated, no-nonsense approach to law enforcement.

Some of the things the volunteers have found which belong to the museum present a puzzle. There is no record as to what certain articles are, or as to what purpose they served, and they are looking forward to the day the articles can be displayed and identified by visitors to the museum.

Meanwhile, if you feel like joining an assembly line, come down to the old location of the museum and ask anyone you find inside to put you to work!

It will probably seem a lot more like fun than work, and maybe you can help hasten the day the museum opens in its wonderful new location.

Mayo attends course for new county judges

Mitchell County Judge Ray Mayo attended a 30-hour judicial training course for new county judges January 28 through February 1 in Lubbock.

The course was sponsored by the Texas Association of Counties, and fulfills the requirement that newly elected county judges receive 30 hours of judicial training during their first year in office.

Topics included in the course were juvenile proceedings, probate proceedings, commitment proceedures, courtroom proceedings, family violence update, and discussions on the code of judicial conduct.

Among the speakers were Judge Morris Overstreet of the Court of Criminal Appeals, Judge Linda Thomas of the 5th District Court of Appeals, and Bob Flowers, executive director of the Texas Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The course was funded in part with a grant from the Texas Center for the Judiciary.

MR. & MRS. MERL WILSON

Wilsons celebrate 50th anniversary

Audrey and Merl Wilson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, February 2, surrounded by family and friends at the VFW Post 9178.

The Wilsons first met in Blackwell, Merl's old hometown, when he was home visiting his cousin, Curtis Wilson.

He proposed to Audrey one day when the two of them were out driving around in the country, listening to the radio, in Merl's aunt's Packard.

They were married on February 1, 1941, at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church in Bronte, with Merl's cousin Curtis and wife Jerry as witnesses.

The minister who married them was the Rev. Joseph E. Eldridge.

The couple has three sons, Delos, Ronnie, and Tommy, all of Colorado City, and they were all at the celebration on Saturday, along with Tommy's daughter Crystal, seven months, and Ronnie's wife Toni and their two children, David and JJ.

Other family members attending were Merl's sister Mildred Crofford and sister-in-law Becky Wilson from Amarillo, his brother Bill DeVore from Odessa, and his brother Kenneth and wife Mary Wilson from Goodland.

Audrey's sister Jane and husband Byron Holley from Abilene attended, along with their son Bruce, and their daughter Debbie Newberry, and her daughters Emily, 3, and Tammy, 19.

Audrey's cousins Bobby and Louise Smith from San Angelo attended, as did Merl's cousin Curtis, who witnessed their wedding 50 years ago and was instrumental in their meeting.

Many friends of the couple were in attendance as well, to congratulate them and to wish them many more years of happiness to come.

Home Economic HAPPENINGS

By Dana Davenport
Mitchell County Extension Agent- HE

The U.S. Department of Education has noted that "parents are their children's first and most influential teachers." Most parents want their child to learn to read and write, but often they don't know what they can do to help them.

Parents can do several things to help their children acquire the skills and concepts needed for reading:

*Play matching games with the child. The ability to categorize things (such as buttons, blocks, beans or toys by shape, color and size or groceries by food groups) is an important thinking skill.

*Knowing the letters of the alphabet can be encouraged when children look for the letters of their name on signs, in magazines, or in the newspaper.

*Visual discrimination, or being able to identify small differences between such letters as p, q, b and d, is an important skill for reading. Matching pictures in a deck of cards, playing lotto games, or matching the dots on dominoes can help children with this skill.

*Auditory discrimination, being able to distinguish between such similar sounds as b or d, m or n, is also an important skill in learning to read. Matching objects beginning with the same sounds (house, hut, hamburger) or listening for different sounds (sound boxes can be made by placing beans, nuts, bulk tea, salt, soda, etc. in metal bandage boxes; tape the boxes closed). Talking about which makes the loudest or softest noise or how the sounds differ can assist children with this important skill.

*Praising children for their efforts and displaying their work enhances the child's sense of self worth. When children feel good about themselves and their abilities, acquiring reading skills is easier.

*Modeling reading enhances the child's interest in reading. As they see you read and hear you talk about what you learned from reading, they will be encouraged to learn to read.

Parents are often unaware of the important role they play in their child's achievements. Parents are sometimes intimidated by school professionals, who, they feel, have an expertise that they don't. Sometimes parents don't feel competent enough to deal with school work and may not understand how important they are in helping their children learn to read.

Parents should remember that they are key players in their child's school success. Spending time playing games, reading together, and working with the child can help the child acquire reading skills.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

Her name was Nancy Tindall and her story involved Colorado City more than a hundred years ago. 107 years ago, to be exact.

On the morning of April 4, 1884, she and her 26 year old daughter, Belle, and two grandchildren, boarded a Texas and Pacific passenger train in Hot Springs, Arkansas. Their destination was El Paso, Texas.

Before we go any further, if you finish reading this article, it will be up to you to decide how this episode ends. In short, you'll be the jury. Fair enough?

Now, back to Nancy. She was probably in her late forties, in very good health and for twenty years, she had made a living by taking in washing and ironing. In addition, she augmented her living by doing some sewing. Nancy's income averaged about 20 to 25 dollars per week.

The train trip from Hot Springs to Dallas was uneventful. By April 5th, 1884, the T. & P. locomotive and its cars had chugged past Dallas and the train was on its way to Abilene. Four of its cars would not reach that West Texas town.

By the morning of April 6th, rain had begun falling and Mrs. Tindall was trying to get some sleep in those early morning hours. As she rode in the 1st class coach some eight to fifteen miles east of Abilene, a rail broke and four of the cars were sent bouncing off the tracks. We have Nancy Tindall's exact words of what happened next.

"First, the coach gave a sudden twist and I was thrown on my back between two seats and a lot of stuff (fell) on top of me. Then the car turned on its side, almost on its top, and it threw me headlong clear across the car and I fell on the end of one of the seats, landing on my stomach."

Mrs. Tindall's daughter, (Belle), said her mother was helpless "to get out of the car or to do anything for herself and was helped out of the train by some trainmen or passengers, and lifted to the ground. The pain would be so intense as to make her wild and out of her mind."

A passenger on the train, 44 year old George De Fontaine of El Paso, inspected what he considered to be the cause of the crash.

"The ties were very rotten," he would later recall. "I examined them and knocked chunks of ties off with my feet. One rail was broken in two, entirely."

The derailment resulted in a delay of almost two hours for the train and its passengers. Nancy, her daughter and the grandchildren rode in the baggage car when the train resumed its journey. In Abilene, a new train was made up and Mrs. Tindall, very much in pain, continued on her way. The injured woman had considered stopping off in Abilene to receive treatment, but because of "limited means," she decided to try to make it to Colorado City where she knew she could get help.

"We were perfect strangers," Nancy's daughter recalled, "and we dared not stop at Abilene for fear we would not get to Colorado City." Upon arriving in Colorado City, a "Dr. Pearson" began treating the injuries of Mrs. Tindall. She was bedfast for five or six weeks and it was another two months before she could do household work. Her major problem was a damaged bladder.

Nancy continued to experience pain from her internal injuries and was frequently confined to bed. She was unable to work for a living. Eventually a suit was filed against the Texas and Pacific Railroad. Her attorney, Henry A. Fowlkes, claimed Nancy had been crippled for life and he asked for $4000 damages. Another $2800 was requested to compensate her for suffering and mental anguish.

The case took more than three years to be resolved. By 1887, court records indicate, the railroad was asking the District Court in Mitchell County to transfer the case to a circuit court. It probably was, because local records do not include a final verdict.

Therefore, as stated earlier, you are the jury in this case. What do you think? Should Nancy A. Tindall get the $6800 judgement? We thought so also.

POUND PUPPY - Pancho, a six month old male chihuahua, is available for adoption from the city pound, located at Mitchell County Veterinary Clinic, Highway 208 South. For more information about him or other pets available for adoption, call 728-8055.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I was recently listening to a gospel tape my wife received for Christmas when a particular song caught my attention. The song was entitled "Thank You" and is sung by Ray Boltz. It tells of a man who dreamed he had died and gone to heaven and he was thanking the Lord for sending all the different people his way that helped lead him to Christ when he was eight years old. He never publicly told them while they were here on earth and was doing it then. It really hit home to me for I realized that I had never publicly thanked my Sunday school teacher, Lynn Hamilton, for helping to lead me to know the Lord. It is too late to tell him on this earth as he has passed on, but it is not too late to tell those still here that helped me get through those young formidable years. I would like to do that now if you will allow me. To the lady who made sure we got to church every Sunday--my mom--and to the lady who was my Sunday school Superintendent and teacher and gave me my first ever Bible--Chrystene Hall--I would just like to simply say "Thank You".

This year the theme for the Regional Conference was "Yippie Yi-Go-Success is Yours Through FHA/HERO." Those attending were: Angela Biggers, Elaine McKnight, Becky Mendoza, Christy Easley,

The "Little Friends" event encourages members to apply their knowledge of child development in planning & carrying out a community service project for children and their families. These projects were evaluated by such criteria as the extent to which the project applied to child development knowledge, the benefits derived by the children, and the quality and clarity of the goals and description of the project.

"God is still on his throne and prayer changes things."

We went to see Dr. Roach last week for some minor problems and as we were leaving we met Pam & Brian Butler coming in. Brian had dislocated his knee cap again and came to see Dr. Roach. I told him he was actually turning into a brat and his mother agreed.

I haven't had a chance to check on him this week, hope he is much better by now, then we will take away the brat name.

Kenneth Butler is in the Mitchell County Hospital. He has not been doing very well but I hope he is much better by now.

Mrs. Cullen Payne was in Wiley, Texas over the weekend to attend the funeral of an aunt. She accompanied her brother & sister-in-law from Colorado City last Friday and they returned home Sunday night.

At the Fort Worth stock show our kids placed two steers. Louren Hackfeld got a second place in her class with her cross steer and Shelli Webb got a six with her cross steer, but the Webbs pulled their steer from the show to take to San Antonio next week.

Randi Herrington got an eighth place with her shorthorn steer but I don't know if she sold it or not.

The Ken Graham's and Stanley Hackfeld's went on to the El Paso show. Then it will be on to the San Antonio stock show Feb. 11 thru 16. Good luck kids.

Syble Walker got sick at the Senior Citizens last Monday and was transported to the Mitchell County Hospital. Jack and Mary Love Albright of Odessa along with Troy and Jean Keagans of Arlington are here. I have not heard from Syble today, so I can't report on her condition.

Ila Walker, who is in the Loraine Nursing Center, fell and hurt herself, but not too bad I don't believe. She is Rodney & Jackie Walker's mother and is Syble's sister-in-law. I hope these two gals are much better before long.

Billie Ruth was at the Senior Citizens on Monday. She is in the process of moving back to Loraine and will live in the Luther Anders house as she has bought it. Welcome home Billie Ruth.

The other day I went in the bank and when I had finished my great lot of business, a young fellow came up and spoke to me. I could not put a name to him for a long time, knowing all along he was someone I knew. Finally his family's remembrance came through. I asked if he wasn't a DeLeora. Yes, he said, Tommie DeLeora. He went to school with my Peggie all their Loraine school years. I was glad to see him again. I have fond memories of him. He also lived across the alley from us several years during that time.

A few days later in the grocery store, I saw Carolyn Cline who was also a member of that same class. She now lives in Stanton and has ever since she married. Her name is Barnes. She has 3 children, all married, I believe with 1 grandchild and she is just as cute as she ever was. L.R. Webb & Larry Blair also Jerry Rankin are among those who stayed around Loraine. Carolyn or Jody, as we called her, is the daughter of Mrs. Mae Hallmark.

Linton Ray Webb and his four girls have a new mail box that his sister gave them for Christmas. It has a steer on top and it is a big box. It has the 5-R brand on it, I don't remember what else is on it, but it is a cutie.

Our high school teams will play Blackwell Tuesday night both boys & girls. Let's all go and play hard, good ball, be good sports & come home proud to be "dogs".

Friday night of this week, high school will play Roscoe and both teams will need to play hard. You can both win with hard work and with lots of confidence. We are behind you all the way.

Let's remember all our service people in the Gulf area and all around the world. They really do need our prayers, so let's get busy at it. God always listens when we pray and always answers, maybe not as we wish but all according to his will. To all of you overseas anywhere we are thinking of you and wishing all is well for you. May God Bless you in a mighty way.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hurlburt of San Angelo visited her aunts, Iris Preston and Chrystene Hall on Saturday.

Sunday the children's choir presented the special music at the morning services at the First Baptist Church. Directors were Jennifer Zuniga and Debra Finley, accompanied by Vida Mae McDaniel.

Sunday afternoon the group presented the musical program at the Loraine Nursing home. The Friendship high school class sponsored the valentine party. They served the residents refreshments and the children presented each resident a valentine.

Children's choir included the following: Zuatro Byrne, Payla Ferguson, Kristy and Sandy Meeks, Ashley Finley, Amber Loy, Wendy, Sandy, Misty and D. J. Masher, Whitney Gage, Heather Lucas and Amanda Mitchell.
