Their day in the sun

U.S. Marines, part of a multi-national peacekeeping force in Lebanon, slip off their shirts to catch some sunshine as they stand watch on a beach south of Beirut Monday. The peacekeeping force controls several sectors of the country, including the area around Beirut International Airport, including this beach where supplies are landed. The Beirut skyline is in the background.

Israeli air raid seen as retaliation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes hit a Syrian missile battery and raided Syrian and Palestinian outposts in eastern Lebanon, while negotiations got under way in Beirut to form a new Cabinet for the war-weary nation.

The Israeli military command said the air force knocked out a mobile SAM-9 launcher at Dahar el-Baida, about 20 miles east of Beirut, in a Monday raid.

Syria's official SANA news agency denied the loss, saying, "Our air defenses have prevented enemy planes (from) achieving their objectives."

Israel only reported the raid on the Soviet-made missile launcher, saying it was part of its policy not to allow such missiles to be deployed in Lebanon. But a Lebanese radio station said the Israeli jets also hit Syrian and Palestinian positions at Ein Dara and Dhour Schweir in the eastern mountains.

The Tel Aviv command drew no connection between Monday's raid and an ambush Sunday 10 miles east of Beirut in which Israel said six soldiers were killed and 22 wounded by Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas who struck through Syrian army lines in eastern Lebanon.

But the air strike, which came after a special Israeli Cabinet meeting to discuss the ambush, was seen as a reprisal for Sunday's attack.

In Washington, State Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg indicated the White House had drawn the same conclusion and said the United States "deplored" the attack.

"It underlines the importance for all parties to work together to seek rapid withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon," Romberg said.

The air attacks, the first since mid-September, came as U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib headed to Washington for consultations after a round of talks in Israel and Syria on getting their armies out of Lebanon.

Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 to rout the PLO. Syria has deployed troops in Lebanon for six years, ostensibly to police an armistice that ended the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war.

Habib, who negotiated the withdrawal of an estimated 8,000 Palestinian guerrillas from Israeli-besieged Beirut in late August and early September, stopped in Rome for talks with Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo.

U.S. Marines, Italian soldiers and French troops supervised the PLO's evacuation from Moslem west Beirut to eight Arab nations. The Lebanese government asked for the return of the peacekeepers after the massacre of hundreds of Palestinians at two refugee camps in the Lebanese capital Sept. 16-18. Christian Phalangists were blamed for the bloodshed at the Israeli-guarded camps.

Colombo told reporters it was difficult to say when the reactivated trilateral force will leave Beirut.

"Everything is linked to the evolution of the situation in Lebanon, both regarding the question of Beirut and the guarantees for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon," Colombo said.

Tylenol now on 'black market'

CHICAGO (AP) — Two dozen suspects in the cyanide poisonings of seven people range from "a young hippie to an old man," say investigators who are trying to find a link between the murders and hundreds of Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules dumped in a motel parking lot.

The manufacture of the capsule version of Extra-Strength Tylenol was halted, and the Illinois attorney general said a "black market" had sprung up for the medication, which has been banned in Chicago.

At a press briefing Monday night, Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said some of the suspects have a history of violent crime. He did not comment further on the people under investigation.

He also said 10 to 12 more officers would be added to a task force of more than 100 people probing the murders of the seven Chicago-area people, who died after swallowing the Tylenol that had been spiked with cyanide.

He also disclosed that preliminary lab tests found no trace of cyanide in the empty Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules and powder discovered in a suburban motel parking lot by two sheriff's deputies on Sept. 28, the day before the first deaths.

The lab results, however, don't rule out a possible link between the poisonings and the discarded capsules, said Fahner, who has called the incident "one of several very substantial leads" under investigation.

"We still don't know why someone would throw out all those pills in a parking lot," Fahner said, adding the material will be tested further.

After the officers handled the capsules, they suffered dizziness, nausea and vomiting. But Fahner said Monday investigators are "reasonably certain" these were not symptoms of cyanide poisoning.

Meanwhile, a woman in Southern California was treated for severe eye burns caused by acid-contaminated eye drops, according to Dr. Douglas Gurzd, who treated the woman Monday in the San Bernardino County Medical Center emergency room.

Gurzd said a preliminary test showed a "dangerous acid solution" in Visine A.C. eye drops that Carol Sam, 28, of Rialto, Calif., had bought at a store in Rialto. There have been similar problems with eye drops bought in Southern California over the last 10 months in which several people complained that the solutions "made their eyes burn. There were no serious injuries.

A trade group representing manufacturers and distributors of over-the-counter drugs planned to meet with representatives of the Food and Drug Administration today to discuss safety in packaging.

"We think that perhaps there are ways we could make them (drugs) more secure once they have left the factory or the warehouse and are in fact in a drug or grocery store," said FDA Commissioner Arthur Hill Hayes.

Rippey assumes UTPB post

ODESSA — Admitting he has no desire to remain in the role as president of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, UTPB acting president Dr. Donald T. Rippey addressed members of the local media for the first time during a press conference Monday afternoon.

"But it's the job itself that enhanced my decision to take on the interim position," the smiling 55-year-old said of his admittedly difficult position on the controversial academic campus.

Appointed Sept. 14, Rippey took charge Monday in the position vacated by Dr. V.R. Cardozier Aug. 27, who, after serving the college since 1970 and as its president since 1975, based his resignation on his support of four-year status for the university. According to Cardozier, his stance had the potential to become the major issue in the controversy between supporters and opponents of the four-year status.

"Several months ago, I discussed the matter with the UT-System Administration and indicated that in the climate that was developing, some of the opponents of four-year status would eventually want to make the incumbent president an issue because of his advocacy of four-year status," Cardozier said during his August announcement.

"I stated that it was important to keep the focus on the central issue — four-year status. I did not want to handicap the Friends of UTPB group (who support four-year status) in their drive toward four-year status," he said.

While Rippey stated it was impossible for him to have a public opinion on the four-year controversy, he said he would try to strengthen the role the higher-level university was set up to play with the area's community colleges.

"My task is not to work for the four-year version, but to make the original concept of two-plus-two work," he said.

By closely working with the presidents of the community colleges, Rippey said he hopes to bring about a "psychological shift" in the community's thoughts on education.

While many students now plan to attend one of the junior colleges and then transfer to a major university elsewhere, Rippey said he wants to make people realize they can obtain a valid degree through a junior college and UTPB, without leaving the Permian Basin.

"Rippey's perception at this time," he began with a laugh, "is that you've never had the system. You've had little pieces of the system but we're not just talking about one little piece — we're talking about a system.

"Theoretically, it makes a lot of

United Way raises 35 percent of campaign goal

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

With their fund-raising campaign about one fourth complete, United Way of Midland leaders reported pledges equaling $566,757 — 35 percent of their $1,612,000 campaign goal — during today's first report meeting at Midland College.

Several campaign divisions and units surpassed their fund-raising targets for this stage of the campaign, prompting praise from Chairman Joe Kloesel.

"We have the momentum and we're going to get there," Kloesel said. "We're well organized, we've met our objective and we're well on the way."

The campaign's Oil Unit, which hoped to reach 44 percent of its goal for the first report meeting, reported pledges of $259,580, or 51.4 percent. The Oil Unit is chaired by Alan McDaniel.

Twenty-five major oil companies, a division of the Oil Unit which began its drive Sept. 2, reported having already raised 78 percent of their total camaign goal. Larry Turner chairs the Major Oil division.

The oil service company division, chaired by John Freeman, surpassed its goal of 40 percent by reporting contributions totaling 44 percent of its objective.

Two divisions in the Public and Professional Unit, Government and Services and Professional, passed their goals. Government and Services, chaired by Ray Branson, reported raising 65.6 percent after setting a 50 percent goal. Professional, chaired by Harriet Herd, raised 21.6 percent after establishing a 20 percent target for the first meeting.

The United Way's second report meeting is scheduled for Oct. 19, when campaign leaders hope to reach 60 percent, or $999,353, of their campaign goal. Attaining the total would require additional contributions of $430,596 before the next meeting.

United Way funds raised this year will help support programs and services offered by 20 charitable and service organizations in Midland during 1983.

Autumn-like weather predicted for area

The approach of autumn may at last appear, if a prediction for cooler weather "falls" true.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, temperatures should be "a little cooler" tonight with lows in the upper 50s. Wednesday's highs should be "not quite so warm" with temperatures climbing only into the lower 80s.

It will remain partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with a 20 percent chance of thundershowers in the forecast for tonight.

Winds will be southerly at a brisk 10-15 mph tonight, shifting westerly at 15-20 mph Wednesday.

Monday's high of 92 came close to tying the record high for that date of 96, set in 1937. The overnight low of 64, however, fell almost 30 degrees short of reaching the record low of 36, set in 1932.

Salvadoran aliens die of dehydration

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Police found four Salvadoran aliens dead and 12 others suffering from a lack of water in the back of an abandoned tractor-trailer in the Rio Grande valley, authorities said today.

The air-conditioned truck had been left on the outskirts of Edinburg Sunday night but the air conditioning failed Monday morning, killing some of the aliens and leaving others delirious in the more than 90-degree heat, officials said.

Some of the people in the truck had been taken away in another truck carrying Salvadoran aliens, and an attempt had been made to set the first truck on fire, with dead and suffering aliens still inside, officials said.

Police found the truck Monday night when they investigated what they thought was an accident on the shoulder of a road.

Authorities said the aliens had come from El Salvador via Mexico. The Mexican border is about 15 miles from where the truck was found.

Harold Harvey, assistant chief Border Patrol agent, said the dead included three men and one woman. He did not know their ages.

The 12 survivors were taken to Edinburg General Hospital.

"Dehydration is the main problem," said Pat Sobosel, director of nursing at the hospital. "They all came in with high temperatures. Dehydration can cause chemical changes in your body that can make you hallucinate, and if it's not corrected it could lead to death."

Ms. Sobosel said that one person was admitted to Edinburg's already crowded intensive care unit in critical condition, and four women and one man were hospitalized in guarded condition.

"I would hope they make it, but that's like asking God," said Ms. Sobosel.

She said four people were treated and released to the custody of the Border Patrol.

The victims hospitalized in Edinburg included a 14-year-old and two 15-year-olds. The oldest was 29, said Ms. Sobosel.

A nursing supervisor at McAllen Methodist Hospital said two male patients, whose ages were unknown, were transferred there, one in stable condition and one fair.

Harvey said that the four who had been released were being interrogated by the Border Patrol, but "these witnesses have had a hard night, they are still a little shaky."

Shultz, Gromyko discuss wide range of problems

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko agree their countries are seriously trying to reach an arms-control accord in Geneva, but there is "a long way to go," says a senior U.S. official.

"It is not thought on either side that this is game-playing," said the official, who briefed reporters on the condition he has not identified.

Shultz and Gromyko met for 4 1/2 hours Monday, their second meeting here in a week. Though they discussed the range of problems between Moscow and Washington, including the Middle East situation, the senior U.S. official said it was too early to predict results.

"I wouldn't even want to attempt to say whether they moved some of these areas forward or not

Dallas hotels quietly seek chance to host president during convention

DALLAS (AP) — It'll cause some security headaches, but managers of the posh hotels in this city are quietly lobbying to have President Reagan as a guest during the Republican Party's 1984 convention here.

"There isn't a hotel man out in that city that wouldn't love to have the president of the United States stay in his facility," said Charley Bass, director of the Dallas Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"It's somewhat of an ego thing. It helps your hotel when you can get a picture of the president in your facility," he said.

The two-day presidential visit can bring enormous national prestige, said Bass, who has hosted 21 during his years in the hotel business.

"It's a morale boost to your staff. A certain electricity goes through your hotel," he said.

Republican officials, who recently started scouting out Dallas hotels, probably will decide by January or February after consulting with the White House and Secret Service where Reagan will stay, Bass said.

"I'm sure every hotel in the city has got a bid in silently," said Mike Alexander, spokesman for the Loews Anatole, a 899-room hotel with some political advantages.

"I'm sure there'll be some jockeying," said Secret Service special agent David M. Humphrey, who directs the Dallas office. "There's politics involved in which hotel is selected."

The Anatole is owned by international developer Trammell Crow of Dallas, one of the Republican Party's biggest Texas contributors and chairman of a committee that promised to raise $4.1 million to cover the city's cost of hosting the convention.

Other hotels in and around downtown also come with impressive credentials and guest lists. Reagan rented a suite in the Hyatt Regency, only a few blocks from the Dallas Convention Center, just before his election.

The Mandalay Four has a helicopter pad, 3,800-square-foot presidential suite and was host to former President Gerald Ford last weekend. The Mansion on Turtle Creek has security advantages in its secluded location just north of downtown.

And other plush hotels are just walking distance from the convention center.

"Everybody has an interest in it," acknowledges

Julian Abio, general manager of the downtown Fairmont Hotel.

If politics is the deciding factor in the selection — and party convention director Peggy Venable acknowledges "there'll be some political considerations made" — the Anatole may have the edge.

Nancy Reagan this summer attended a meeting in the Anatole's 8600-a-night 2,300-square-foot Sovereign Presidential Suite, decorated with Oriental rugs, chandeliers and antiques.

Texas' chief justice resigns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — October 20th will be a sentimental date for Chief Justice Joe R. Greenhill. After the reading of the orders that day, Greenhill will permanently step down from the bench after 25 years on the Texas Supreme Court.

"I think after 25 years, it's enough," he told reporters at a news conference Monday.

Greenhill, 68, who served as chief justice for 10 years, was not up for reelection until 1984. Gov. Bill Clements will appoint an interim successor.

Money was his main reason for leaving, said Greenhill. He said he will join the Houston firm of Baker & Botts, which is opening a new Austin office.

"I'm not resigning for political purposes," he told reporters.

Cool mine fire breaches barrier, creeping toward towns

CENTRALIA, Pa. (AP) — Out of sight but never out of mind, a 20-year-old mine fire here has breached two sections of an underground barrier and has moved beneath the town itself.

The fire, belching deadly gases, was detected in recent days near the Sts. Peter and Paul Russian Orthodox Church here, and feeding on coal seams and mine debris, it is moving toward Byrnesville, a village of a dozen or so homes just 1,000 yards from here.

Both Centralia and Byrnesville had been protected by an underground buffer of ash. But officials suspected "it was a barrier in name only and wasn't retaining anything," Robert Brennan, drilling project director for the U.S. Office of Surface Mining, said Monday.

Now, a new round of drilling has yielded evidence that the barrier had been breached, Brennan said.

He said higher temperatures were evident from holes on what was supposed to be the cool side of the barrier, installed in 1969 and strengthened in 1978, to prevent the fire from reaching the town.

"The temperatures are on the wrong side of the barrier," Brennan said. "There's no question (that the fire has gone through)."

He said temperatures of 580 degrees were found in a hole drilled near the church, and another hole nearby showed temperatures of 220 degrees. The fire seemed to be about 200 feet wide, Brennan said.

Meanwhile, Brennan's office recently learned that readings in a previously drilled hole in the same area had reached over 400 degrees as early as May. The information was gathered by another OSM office, but not forwarded to Brennan's office until last week.

Brennan said the town council has been receiving regular temperature reports, but apparently had made no announcement about the findings. He had no explanation.

Standing above the projected path of the fire is a row of homes already invaded by carbon monoxide and other gases.

Brennan said there was no need for evacuations now, but with winter approaching, residents will again have to be careful when their doors and windows are kept closed.

"People in that area will have to be on the alert," he said. "Whatever (gas) monitors they have in there, they'd better start using them."

In Byrnesville, the fire "seems much bigger and more intense and covers a bigger area," Brennan said. Readings from bore holes indicate 800- to 900-degree temperatures within 300 feet of the village, he said.

Also threatened is the region's major highway, Pennsylvania 61, Brennan said.

He said the fire moving towards the village is 800 feet wide and 150 feet deep. It has not yet pushed toxic gases into the village's homes, as it has in Centralia.

Officials should know how fast the fire is moving in the next few months, Brennan said. When the drilling is completed in January, officials will decide on a new plan to contain the fire.

Jayhawker squaking about gas prices

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Gov. John Carlin on Monday filed a formal letter of protest with a federal utilities commission, charging the Cities Service Gas Co. with fraud, abuse and misrepresentation in listing its reasons for requesting a $66 million gas rate increase.

As promised last week, Carlin sent a protest letter to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in Washington, D.C. and asked that the rate increase be suspended for five months while an investigation is conducted. Carlin's request and accusations are identical to charges filed by the Kansas Corporation Commission last week in a protest letter to the FERC.

Cities Service announced two weeks ago that it intended to raise prices later this month some 82 cents for each thousand cubic feet of natural gas. The company, based in Oklahoma City, Okla., is the main gas supplier to most Kansas gas utilities, including the Gas Service Co., Union Gas Co. and part of the Kansas Power and Light Co. system.

The proposed rate hike, a total $66 million in Kansas, would pass through local utilities directly to consumers. Residential customers use an average 120,000 cubic feet of gas, and Cities Service's proposed hike would raise gas bills for average Kansas consumers by about $100 a year.

"An increase of this proportion is unduly burdensome to ratepayers, and therefore is unjust, unreasonable and not in the public interest," Carlin said in the letter. "The requested increase also should be prohibited on grounds that it constitutes fraud and abuse."

Carlin said the majority of the rate increase is attributed to "increases in Cities Services' natural gas supplier rates." The governor said, however, that the increase was in excess of what the company needed to provide adequate service to natural gas consumers.

He also said the natural gas wholesaler had chosen to decrease its take of lower-price gas under contract in the Hugoton field in southwest Kansas. However, Carlin said Cities Service has not reduced its take of more expensive gas in other fields at the same rate.

Balls should be flying in AL championship series

Angels, Brewers combine for 402 home runs in regular season

Mike Caldwell

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Milwaukee pitcher Mike Caldwell admits his point of view is somewhat slanted, but he isn't sure he agrees with his manager that the Brewers-California Angels American League Championship Series will be a slugfest.

"I don't think so, but of course I'm one of the pitchers," says Caldwell, named by Manager Harvey Kuenn to start tonight's ALCS opener at Anaheim.

"You do have the two best offensive ballclubs in baseball here, but you also have two suspect pitching staffs that have come along all year and got these two teams where they are now."

The Milwaukee left-hander, who was 17-13 during the regular season, was named to start against California lefty Tommy John. John was 4-2 with the Angels after being traded from the New York Yankees, where he had compiled a 10-10 record.

"I have no fear about pitching to them," Caldwell says of the Angels. "I know they have weakness, and I'll try to make pitches that will get them out."

The Brewers led the major leagues with 216 home runs this season, including 39 by Gorman Thomas. On the final day of the season, California's Reggie Jackson tied Thomas for the major league lead, giving the Angels 186 homers this year.

"California has a very potent team, and a lot of runs will be scored in this series," Kuenn said at a news conference Monday afternoon.

The first two games of the best-of-five series are scheduled in Anaheim. Tonight's starting time was 5:35 p.m. PDT, and Wednesday night's game was scheduled to begin at 5:15. The rest of the series will be played in Milwaukee, beginning Friday.

The California starting times, arranged for television, prompted questions about whether the Brewers would have trouble hitting in Anaheim Stadium's Twilight Zone, where Nolan Ryan pitched many of his low-hit ball games.

"There's so much power between these clubs that if a pitcher makes a mistake, he'll get hurt, so I don't think the time of the day will matter," Kuenn said.

Milwaukee escaped near disaster in their season-ending four-game series at Baltimore. The Brewers, who needed only one win to clinch the AL East, lost the first three before winning 10-2 Sunday to win their first division title. The Angels clinched the AL West on Saturday.

"I could have cared less who won the AL East," Angels Manager Gene Mauch said. "As long as we play our game on any field, it doesn't matter who we play."

Each team had physical question marks entering the series. Angels third baseman Doug DeCinces, who averaged .301 with 97 RBI and 30 homers during his best major league season has a pulled groin muscle. He said he would play.

"It's feeling better every day," said DeCinces, who did not play Sunday.

The Brewers, meanwhile, were not sure if they would have the services of second baseman Jim Gantner, who pulled a back muscle taking infield on Sunday and did not play.

If Gantner is unable to play, Kuenn said Ed Romero would take his place. Kuenn said relief ace Rollie Fingers had been placed on Milwaukee's playoff roster. To make room for him, they dropped lefty reliever Jamie Easterly. Fingers had an earned run average of 2.60 and 29 saves when he tore a muscle in his right forearm. He has not pitched since Sept. 2.

"He could be available as soon as tomorrow, for a couple of batters maybe," Kuenn said. "He's along good. He threw in the bullpen yesterday (Sunday), and there was a little tightness, but not too much pain."

Kuenn said his batting order would consist of Paul Molitor, third base; Robin Yount, shortstop; Cecil Cooper, first base; Ted Simmons, catcher; Gorman Thomas, center field; Ben Oglivie, left field; Don Money, designated hitter; Charlie Moore, right field, and either Gantner or Romero at second.

Mauch had not announced his lineup by late Monday afternoon, but it was expected that in addition to John pitching, the rest of the starters would be Bob Boone, catcher; Rod Carew, first base; Bobby Grich, second; Tim Lincecum, shortstop; DeCinces, third base; Brian Downing, left field; Fred Lynn, center field; Jackson, right field, and Don Baylor, designated hitter.

LSU Tigers make Top 20 Washington remains No. 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Washington, Pitt and Penn State held out the top three spots today in The Associated Press college football poll, while Alabama moved back into fourth place, Florida fell from fourth to 14th and LSU made the Top Twenty for the first time in three years.

Washington remained No. 1 for the fourth week in a row. The Huskies, who defeated San Diego State 46-25, received 28 first-place votes and 1,082 of a possible 1,140 points from a nationwide panel of 57 sports writers and sportscasters.

Pitt, which scored all its points in the last 11 minutes to erase a 13-0 deficit and turn back West Virginia 16-13, received 15 first-place votes and 1,057 points. Penn State, idle last weekend, received nine firsts and 1,039 points.

Last week, with 59 voters participating, the first-place votes were 25 for Washington, 19 for Pitt and seven for Penn State and the point count was 1,114-1,107-1,032.

While Florida was losing to LSU 24-13, Alabama downed Arkansas State 34-7 and climbed from fifth place to fourth with three first-place ballots and 958 points.

Georgia rose from sixth to fifth with one first-place vote and 910 points following a 29-22 triumph over Mississippi State. Southern Methodist, a 38-10 winner over North Texas State, jumped from seventh to sixth with 824 points.

Nebraska, which dropped from second to eighth after losing to Penn State a week ago, climbed to seventh with 755 points after shellacking Auburn 41-7 and knocking the Tigers out of the Top Twenty. UCLA went from ninth to eighth with 745 points by trimming Colorado 34-6. The Bruins received the remaining first-place vote.

Arkansas and Notre Dame also rose one position to ninth and 10th, respectively. Arkansas routed Texas Christian 35-0 and received 655 points, while Notre Dame received 582 points after an 11-3 triumph over Michigan State.

The Second Ten consists of Arizona State, North Carolina, Texas, Florida, Southern California, West Virginia, Miami, LSU, Boston College and Illinois. Last week, it was Notre Dame, North Carolina, Arizona State, West Virginia, Texas, Southern Cal, Miami, Boston College, Minnesota and Auburn.

Illinois whipped Minnesota 42-24 to get back in the Top Twenty after a one-week absence, while Auburn fell out after losing to Nebraska. LSU had not been in the rankings since early in the 1979 season.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1.

Turner wins pennant, loses TV rights

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge, acting to prevent "irreparable harm" to major league baseball, has told Ted Turner he may not broadcast the Atlanta Braves' playoff games coast-to-coast on his Atlanta-based WTBS-TV "superstation."

U.S. District Judge Mary Johnson Lowe said in her ruling Monday that Turner was seeking "unjust enrichment" in trying to telecast the games. She noted that ABC contracted through baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for the exclusive nationwide playoff television rights.

Turner's spokesman said the ruling will be appealed. Lowe ruled that Turner's plan to telecast the Braves' playoff games via satellite to about 22 million homes nationwide constituted a breach of ABC's contract rights and unfair competition.

"And the ultimate ones who would feel that injury is the American public which made baseball a truly American sport," she said.

The judge's ruling stemmed from a joint lawsuit brought by ABC and Kuhn on behalf of the 26 major league teams that will share in the $9 million paid by ABC for exclusive rights.

Turner based his intended plan on a "flagship station" exception clause in the exclusivity contract. The clause permits local television stations that normally broadcast a home team's regular-season games to air that team's playoff games. Lowe ruled that although Turner was allowed under the clause to broadcast the Braves' playoff games in the Atlanta area over WTBS, Turner has a right to expand the telecast to a nationwide audience in 50 states "in direct competition with ABC."

"Clearly that was not intended by the flagship exception," she said.

Mrs. Lowe said the evidence brought out that in planning to beam the Braves' playoff games nationwide via satellite and cable, Turner was expecting to realize $250,000 per game in advertising revenues.

Mrs. Lowe said Turner projected if he went ahead with his telecasting plans, about half of those watching the Braves in the playoffs would watch the games on Turner's WTBS-TV.

She said it would be unfair if Turner and the Braves were "permitted to benefit a second time for a right which ABC has already paid for."

WTBS President Robert Wussler said Monday evening in Atlanta that Turner will appeal the decision to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York. The case probably will be heard Wednesday, the day the National League playoffs begin, Wussler said.

"We're disappointed," he said. "We put up a good fight and we thought we had a good case."

NFL players exhibit flexibility in wage demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for striking National Football League players indicate they would consider dropping their demand for a minimum wage scale if club owners would accept a maximum wage with incentive and performance bonuses.

But Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, insisted Monday that talk of the union moving away from its minimum wage should not be construed as a major break from its last financial proposal. The Sept. 17 financial package, calling for $1.6 billion spread over four years, included a minimum wage scale and incentive and performance bonuses.

"This is not a major breakthrough. The financial package of Sept. 17... has not been removed," Garvey said. "We have not retreated from that position and are still waiting for a reply from management to that offer."

Management's last offer, delivered Sept. 8, was for a five-year, $1.6-billion contract. It included cash bonuses based on longevity in the league.

Earlier Monday, union president Gene Upshaw told the Associated Press, "I think we could get the membership to swallow giving up the minimum wage." Later, Upshaw said, "I don't remember ever saying that."

Garvey said he discussed the idea of a maximum wage scale with Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, during a telephone call Friday night.

"Signals were received during that conversation to lead us to believe the owners could be agreeable to an annual cap on wages," Garvey said. Repeated efforts to reach Donlan by telephone were unsuccessful.

In another conciliatory move, Garvey backed off on his earlier opposition to some form of mediation.

Garvey said the union would consider "private mediation" as a means of getting some movement in the talks. Previously, union officials have rejected management's pleas for third-party intervention saying the talks had not progressed to a stage where a mediator could solve their differences.

As a result of continued opposition to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, both sides now admit intervention by a federal mediator is unlikely. Negotiations broke off Saturday following three days of futile bargaining. No new talks have been scheduled.

The strike, which has resulted in the postponement of two weeks of the 16-week regular season, has moved into its 15th day.

Meanwhile, union attorneys were in federal court Monday in an effort to head off club attorneys in their efforts to block players from participating in the first of a series of union-sponsored all-star games.

The first game, pitting players from the eastern divisions of the AFC and NFC, is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 10 at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington.

The union urged U.S. District Court Judge John Garrett Penn to issue a temporary restraining order barring NFL teams from withholding the services of their players.

The NFL contends that despite the expiration of the collective bargaining agreement with the union, the 1,500 individually negotiated contracts the league's teams have with their players remain in effect.

On Sunday, the Buffalo Bills obtained a court order from a New York State Supreme Court judge barring 11 of their players scheduled to appear in Sunday's game from either playing or practicing pending a hearing Wednesday.

A similar court order, obtained Monday by the Dallas Cowboys, bars running back Robert Newhouse from working out with the all-stars. Newhouse, the Cowboys' player representative, was the lone Dallas player committed to the game.

On Monday, Washington Redskins' quarterback Joe Theismann became the first defector among the 80 players originally said to be committed.

Speaking on his own radio talk show, Theismann said, "I'm not going to play. I have plans with my family next weekend."

The Washington Post, in Today's editions, quoted Roy Jefferson of the NFLPA as saying that "Theismann is the only player we are aware of who is not going to play and he hasn't let us know directly."

Oklahoma not good enough for TV

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma says the Sooners are to blame for the apparent decision not to televise the Oklahoma-Texas game in the Cotton Bowl on Saturday.

Texas coach Fred Akers appeared unconcerned, but said the contest had national appeal.

"Well, I really haven't thought that much about it," Akers said. "I'm not really that concerned about who's watching it. I'm concerned about who's playing it."

Switzer said when he was a player and assistant coach at Arkansas — his and Akers' alma mater — he thought the Arkansas-Texas game was a "big game."

"Of course, it was the biggest game for Arkansas," he said.

"I think the Oklahoma-Texas game — certainly from crowd appeal and all the frills that go with it — certainly it's the big game of the Southwest," Switzer said.

Said Akers, "It's not as important as a (Southwest) conference game, but it's every bit as big in a different way, because it has great national appeal, and it's exciting and fun. I, for one, get excited about it."

Switzer and Akers answered questions on a Monday conference call from Dallas, with reporters listening in.

Switzer said he could understand the networks passing over the OU-Texas game because of the Sooners' 2-2 record.

"I think if Oklahoma had not lost two games, I think if we were 3-1, I think it would be more attractive than Cal-Washington, but we didn't hold up our end of the bargain," he said.

Oklahoma lost to West Virginia and Southern California and is not ranked among the nation's top 20 teams. Texas, 3-0, was ranked No. 15 prior to its 34-7 victory over Rice on Saturday night.

Asked if he had felt any pressure from an editorial suggesting he resign, Switzer replied, "They don't get on me. I'm going to do what I've got to do, and our team's going to do what it has to do. They want to win. We're on the train together, the players and the coaches, and I think when people start shooting at you and you have a little adversity, I think it draws us closer together. ... 99 percent of the people understand and support our program."

Switzer said Oklahoma's "best player," running back Stanley Wilson, probably won't play against Texas because his shoulder was knocked out of joint in OU's 13-3 victory over Iowa State.

Akers said several Texas starters — including defensive ends Kiki DeAyala and Ed Williams and offensive linemen Doug Dawson, Mike Ruether and Bryan Millard — had been hurt in the Rice game.

"We haven't played anybody that comes close to Oklahoma in talent — not close," Akers said.

Asked if Missouri, another Big Eight school which fell 21-0 to Texas, was close, Akers said, "No. Oklahoma has so much more speed than those other teams, it's not close."

"We are an improved defensive football team over our play last year," Switzer said. "Our offensive team right now is struggling. We're probably average to what we've been in the past."

OU, a Wishbone-T team for the past 11 years, used the I-formation extensively against Iowa State, and Akers was asked if the switch might present more problems for Texas' defense.

"Yes, it does," he said. "You need to work on more than one offensive philosophy."

Cavs will match Rockets' offer to keep Robinson

CLEVELAND (AP) — The owner of the Cleveland Cavaliers says he'll match a five-year, $2.4 million offer by the Houston Rockets to free agent forward Cliff Robinson.

Ted Stepien said Monday he would exercise his option under the National Basketball Association's free agent procedure and keep the 22-year-old Robinson, who averaged 18.5 points per game last season.

Robinson, who was traded to the Cavaliers by Kansas City for forward Reggie Johnson on Feb. 16, reportedly flew to Houston on Sunday night to sign the offer sheet.

"It disturbed me," said Robinson's agent, Harvey Lakind of New York, when he learned the Cavaliers intended to match Houston's offer.

Lakind and Stepien's attorney, Kent Schneider, had been unable to reach agreement on a contract for Robinson.

"All along, I've been telling them that we could have avoided all this, if they (the Cavaliers) wanted to make a legitimate offer," Lakind said. "Stepien has been saying to the media that we were close, but we weren't close at all."

Lakind said if Stepien matches Houston's offer, Robinson would go to the Cavaliers' training camp as soon as possible.

The Rockets reportedly offered the 6-foot-9, three-year veteran $400,000 for this season, $425,000 for next season with $125,000 deferred, $450,000 the third season with $135,000 deferred and $500,000 in the fourth season. Robinson would receive $600,000 in the optional fifth season of the pact.

Stepien's last offer to Robinson would have given him $550,000 guaranteed over two years with incentive bonuses.

Newhouse restrained from playing football

DALLAS (AP) — A state judge has issued a temporary restraining order to keep Dallas Cowboys fullback Robert Newhouse from participating in a series of all-star games scheduled by striking National Football League players.

Newhouse, the Cowboys' player representative, was the only Dallas player listed on the NFC East, which is pitted against the AFC West in Washington Sunday.

Newhouse had said Sunday he hoped to encourage other Cowboys to join him in the skirmish, but the Cowboys management went to court Monday to keep any Cowboys from playing.

Club officials cited a clause in the standard player contract that prohibits an NFL player from playing in any contest without league approval.

District Judge Hugh Snodgrass granted the Cowboys' request and ordered Newhouse and club officials back into his Dallas courtroom Thursday. Snodgrass said the burden will be on the club to show cause why he should grant a temporary and permanent injunction against Newhouse.

A similar suit, seeking a national prohibition against NFL players from playing in all-star games during the strike, is in federal court in Washington.

Representatives of the players and of the club owners argued their cases Monday, and Judge John G. Penn was expected to rule today.

"The Cowboys' suit against Newhouse really doesn't mean anything since we will know what the decision in (Washington) district court is by then," union spokesman Doug Allen of Washington said Monday.

Penn's ruling would supersede and make meaningless any court rulings at the state level, Allen said.

St. Louis happy to be facing Atlanta

Prefer Niekro and company to Venezuela and Reuss

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro of Atlanta is on a roll, but the St. Louis Cardinals are grateful to be confronting him instead of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It's not that the Braves have had starting pitching," said infielder Mike Ramsey in sizing up the team for which Niekro will pitch in the Wednesday opener to the National League's championship series. "But you've seen what kind of trouble (Fernando) Valenzuela and (Jerry) Reuss give us."

The 174 career of the 43-year-old Niekro aside, the Cards say they feel more comfortable against Atlanta's staff heading into the best-of-five NL playoff.

"I just think we play better against the Braves," said St. Louis outfielder Lonnie Smith. "Their pitchers are more a mixture of breaking-ball pitchers instead of fastball pitchers like the Dodgers."

Niekro, who stood 1-0 this year and is 15-17 lifetime against the Cards, will carry a string of 26 2-3 innings without allowing an earned run into the 2:15 p.m., CDT, opener.

"It would be nice to pitch around Niekro and say we're going to win games two, three and four," said St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog.

"But we don't have the luxury to do that." The Cards, who ended their longest losing streak of the season at four games with a 5-4 victory Sunday over the Chicago Cubs in 14 innings, took the day off Monday.

So did Atlanta, which needed a loss by Los Angeles to nail down the title on the final day in the NL West. It will be the Braves' first return to the league divisional playoffs since 1969 and St. Louis' first ever as champion of the NL East.

While Niekro has won 10 of his 11 decisions since the

All-Star break, his Wednesday opponent on the mound has been almost as torrid.

Joaquin Andujar, 15-10, the winner of seven in a row, will also be out for a measure of revenge. The hard-throwing Cards hurler, although permitting Atlanta only nine earned runs in 27 1-3 innings and had an 0-3 record against the Braves. Herzog said he intends to start right-hander Bob Forsch, 15-9, in Thursday night's second game of the playoff against an Atlanta choice yet to be named.

During the regular season, the Braves' 7-5 edge over St. Louis was constructed also in part on victories by Rick Mahler, 9-10, and Gene Garber, 7-10. Reliever Bruce Sutter, 9-8, won twice for St. Louis and saved a third contest.

Three of the Cards' victories were by the margin of a run as Atlanta outscored its opponent 59-53 with a hitting barrage which featured Bob Horner's three homers.

Horner, however, may not be ready for Wednesday's contest because of a hyperextended elbow. If he is not, veteran utility infielder Jerry Royster will continue to take his place.

Tommy Herr and Ken Oberkfell, two surging hitters, will bat at the top of the St. Louis lineup against Niekro, to be followed by Smith and Keith Hernandez.

Likely to be missing from the Cards batting order is George Hendrick, who leads the team with 104 RBI. His place is apt to be taken by Dane Iorg for the opener.

Hendrick is 0-for-6 against Niekro this season and says that facing the knuckleballer disrupts his batting style for several days.

August A. Busch Jr., the 83-year-old St. Louis board chairman and chief executive officer, will throw out Wednesday's first ball at Busch Stadium, the site of a homecoming for Atlanta Manager Joe Torre and coaches Bob Gibson and Dal Maxvill.

Herzog, while reflecting on his team's 4-1 loss July 19 when it last faced Niekro, used the occasion to fire the playoff series' first psychological volley.

"Beating Niekro is the key, but it's hard the way the umpires let him quick-pitch and all the other stuff he gets away with," said the St. Louis pilot. "He doesn't come set in his motion."

Braves' outfielder Claudell Washington, unlike Horner, who was sidelined for two weeks prior to a pinch-hit role Sunday, has the key for Atlanta:

"If we get Horner back, we'll be in good shape," said Washington. "With him out of there, (Dale) Murphy's not getting anything to hit."

Horner has been limited to only one pinch-hit appearance since Sept. 18, when he suffered a hyperextended elbow in Cincinnati.

After finishing 30 minutes of batting practice Monday, Horner said he will try to be ready for the Wednesday game.

"It's a little sore, but I think I can play with this," he said. "I just can't imagine being in the playoffs and having to sit on the bench. That would be awful."

Torre and Braves pitching coach Bob Gibson agreed after the workout that Horner was swinging the bat much better than he had the two previous days.

"If he keeps progressing like he has been the past two days, he'll be ready to play," said Torre.

"I was throwing the ball hard, and he was hitting the ball good," said Gibson, the former Cardinal great who also pitches batting practice for the Atlanta club.

Several members of the Braves feel that the insertion of Horner into the lineup could stop opposing pitchers from pitching around slugger Dale Murphy.
