Production Hike Signals Recovery

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government said today that U.S. industries increased their output in March by the largest amount in a year, an indication the economy is recovering from its winter slump.

Industrial production for March was up 1.4 per cent, the largest increase since March 1977, when it rose 1.6 per cent. In January, industrial output dropped 0.8 per cent and in February it was up 0.3 per cent.

Growing industrial production means factories are hiring more workers and there is an increased demand for products.

In 1977, the economy rebounded strongly in March after snowstorms and freezing weather forced factories to close. The economy has been recovering more slowly this year, but today's report indicated activity is picking up.

Although striking coal miners did not return to work until the last week of march, output of energy materials was up 1 per cent in March.

Despite the strong showing in March, the output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities increased only slightly from the fourth quarter of 1977 to the first quarter of 1978. The Federal Reserve Board, which released the report, said that reflected the effects of severe winter weather and the long coal strike.

The biggest gain in March was in production of consumer durable goods, such as automobiles, home appliances and furniture, which went up 5.2 per cent. These products, which could lead to increased consumer buying, had been less in demand in January and February.

Production of autos rose 13 per cent alone in March in an annual rate of 9.3 million units. Output of home goods was up 1.9 per cent.

Production of consumer goods such as food and clothing rose 0.8 per cent, not as strong as the 1.9 per cent rise in March 1977.

Output of business equipment, a sign of business confidence, advanced 1.2 per cent and was 8.2 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The output gains in March were described as widespread, and were 4.2 per cent higher than the year earlier.

LaPrade Lashes Bell

NEW YORK (AP) - J. Wallace LaPrade, pulled from his post here as head of the nation's largest FBI office and threatened with dismissal for conducting improper wiretaps and break-ins, has lashed out at Attorney General Griffin Bell for ordering similar investigations.

LaPrade said Bell has acted "with the president's authority" and challenged Bell to debate the issue with him on national television.

The 51-year-old LaPrade made his claims at a news conference Thursday at which he announced he had been relieved of his duties here and transferred to Washington pending investigation of the charges against him, which stem from an FBI investigation of the radical Weathermen movement in the early 1970s.

Gulf Area Searched

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The Coast Guard searched a 320-square-mile area of the Gulf today after getting distress call saying 19 persons were adrift on a life raft, Guard officials said.

"At this time, we have no idea what we're searching for. We assume it's a crew boat because any other type of boat couldn't hold that many people," said Guard spokesman Claude Otto of New Orleans.

Ceausescu To Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania will visit Texas Instruments as his first stop today in his two-day visit of Texas.

Ceausescu was to arrive in Dallas in the afternoon and travel by motorcade to the Texas Instruments plant for a tour. A Texas-style barbecue was planned for dinner.

Education Departments Combined In Carter Plan

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration today called for a new Department of Education that would put under one roof $17.5 billion in federal education programs now scattered among several departments.

Budget director James McIntyre disclosed President Carter's plan at a Senate hearing that was delayed as the White House made last-minute changes in the proposal.

The new department would include all the education programs now in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, including its Head Start program for pre schoolers. HEW's education budget now is $10 billion and is slated to rise to $13 billion next year. In all, the government now spends more than $20 billion on education-related programs.

The new department also would take over the Agriculture Department's school lunch program and graduate school in Washington.

The president, in meetings Thursday and early today, apparently overrode staff recommendations for a narrower department.

McIntyre said the administration was not recommending inclusion of the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities but considered that a possible option in the future. The endowments now are independent agencies.

The Carter plan would not shift the Veterans Administration's education programs nor would it take job and training programs from the Labor Department.

McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee a separate Cabinet Department of Education would "increase the visibility and attention given to educational needs, not only at the federal level, but more importantly by families, communities, public and non-public schools, and local and state governments."

He said education's role is limited now at the federal level, where it is "sandwiched between the major health and welfare activities in HEW and with so many education programs in other departments."

Other programs the administration wants in the new department are: Certain science education programs of the National Science Foundation; the college housing program in the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the education aspects of HEW's Office for Civil Rights; the Defense Department's overseas schools for military dependents; the Bureau of Indian Affairs; schools under the Interior Department and Howard University and other special insitutions aided by the federal government.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., the Governmental Affairs Committee chairman and a former secretary of HEW, has 57 sponsors for his bill to create a new department.

Ribicoff noted that he had first introduced such a bill in 1963. "HEW was unmanageable then and is even more unmanageable today," he said at the start of the hearing, which was packed with more than 25 persons.

Vance, Guerrilla Meeting

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) - Rhodesian guerrilla leaders are expected to endorse the British-American plan for their country's transition to black rule in a round of meetings begun today with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and British Foreign Secretary David Owen.

But U.S. officials say Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith - and not guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe - is blocking a conference of all Rhodesian factions to negotiate a peace agreement.

Vance and Owen first met with the two guerrilla chiefs for about a half-hour today at the Kilimanjaro Hotel, where Vance is staying. The four were then joined by representatives of Botswana, Tanzania and Zambia, three of the black states that back the guerrillas.

Envoys from Mozambique, Angola and Nigeria were to join the talks later. The discussions are scheduled to continue Saturday.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Thursday, 83 degrees; low, 55 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 59 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1978 to date, 2.00.

West Texas - Generally fair through Saturday. Continued very warm afternoons. Highs 78 to 98. Lows 48 to 62 except upper 30s mountains.

Outlook Good, Merchants Told

About 50 Snyder merchants met Friday morning at the Smorgasbord to discuss this area's future business climate.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, Noel Johnson of Snelson, Randel, and Johnson, Inc. of San Angelo was the guest speaker. Representing an advertising agency, Johnson reassured the Snyder merchants that West Texas is fast becoming the focal point of growth in Texas.

"Following the oil embargo in 1973, businessmen throughout the nation found that energy was a determining factor in their success and West Texas is currently producing one-fourth of the nation's oil and gas. Bad weather in the northern states have forced them to consider West Texas as a prime area for industry," Johnson said.

Noting that Snyder is sitting on a "gold mine," he asked merchants to look at the number of out-of-state license plates here to get a true picture of how this area is attracting residents.

"Businesses have to become more competitive if they plan to control their share of their market," he said. "If you want to continue to grow, you must look at your business objectively and understand your good and bad points." Johnson said merchants can see themselves objectively if they consider their products, audience and location.

The current trend is for businesses to consider their position in their market. "Never attempt to meet your competition head-on but find out where you are better and use that information to attract customers," he said.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Speedy Nieman of the Hereford Brand says living is so complicated these days that folks don't even worry right.

For example:

We worry about the Russians, then get run over by a neighbor's car.

We worry about radio-active fallout, then get poisoned by nicotine or by spraying the flowers and grass.

We worry about the kids running in front of cars, then drag them across the intersection against the red light.

We worry about crashing in an airplane, then fall off a ladder trying to retrieve a paper on the roof.

We worry about getting enough exercise, then drive one block for a cup of coffee.

We worry about getting the car greased every thousand miles, then never get a medical checkup ourselves.

We worry about retirement, then go about carelessly to keep from lasting that long.

We worry about H-bombs, then blow our heads off smoking while filling the tank with gasoline.

We worry about polio, then cripple ourselves by sticking a toe under the power lawn mower.

We worry about tornadoes, then get liquidated in a traffic accident.

We worry about being worry warts, then take enough pills to kill an elephant trying to get some rest.

We worry about the violence on TV, then go blind watching the tube to see if it's really true.

We worry about representation in elected offices, then we don't take time to vote.

Why worry at all? Yet we worry because we don't have anything to worry about.

Lynn Brisendine of the Brownfield News says he can't work up much sympathy for the Italians, even if their government is on the verge of collapse.

"It would pay the Italians back for what they have done to the britches of this country," said Brisendine.

"Britches are now so streamlined, so constrictive, that a feller has to take his britches down to get his billfold outta the hip pocket.

"When it gets to a point that a guy can't get to his folding money and credit cards without pulling down his britches, the country is in deep trouble.

"The Italians were the ones who ended the big leg on britches and did away with pleats. They were the frontrunners for exposed bony ankles and protruding bellies for the world to see. Every time we try to change britches and have to take off the shoes we're reminded to dislike the Italians for the fad they started."

We heard someone predict recently that pleated britches were coming back Perhaps the skimpy ones are going down with the Italians.—WACIL McNAIR

Allen Here For Benefit Concert

Popular recording artist, Rex Allen, Jr., brings his special brand of entertainment to Scurry County Coliseum tonight as a benefit for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Appearing with Allen will be the Country Travelers and the Angle Sisters. Showtime is 8 p.m. Officials of the West Texas Rehabilitation Center report that ticket sales are brisk for tonight's show, but that tickets will be available at the door. Tickets are moderately priced at $3 for adults and $1 for children.

Rex Allen, Jr., and his father have been good friends with the Rehab Center for many years. The younger Allen has gained national stature as an entertainer within the last three years by putting together a string of hit records. Currently his latest release, "No, No, No," is moving rapidly up the chart and is expected to be in the top ten within a short period of time.

The benefit concert was made possible when Allen's schedule left an open date for April 14 between performances in Houston and Oklahoma.

James Hallmark, of the Rehab Center, said that while one of the primary reasons for the concert is to raise money to operate the center, it also provides a good opportunity to acquaint folks in the Snyder area with the fact that the West Texas Rehabilitation Center does have a fine facility in Snyder operating under the direction of Joy McGlaun, Registered Occupational Therapist.

New Treaty Reservation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate leaders will propose a reservation to the second Panama Canal Treaty which they hope will end the threat to approval of the agreements, congressional sources said today.

The reservation, or condition, will state in firm terms that the United States has no intention of intervening in Panama's internal affairs.

Former Mayor Bennett Dies

Harold Bennett, 63, prominent Snyder businessman and former mayor and school board president, died unexpectedly at about 7 a.m. today at his home, 2802 34th Street.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Loraine, Bennett came to Snyder from Colorado City on July 15, 1950, when he became manager of the chamber of commerce.

He resigned that position in December of 1951 when he entered the office supply business. He was elected Mayor of Snyder in 1956 and was re-elected in 1958.

Subsequently he served on the Snyder School Board and was elected president of the board.

He also served as Scurry County chairman for the Democratic Party and maintained a keen interest in civic affairs.

Prior to coming to Snyder, Bennett served as state vice president of the Texas Jaycees and was defeated by only eight votes in a race for State Jaycee President. He was the first candidate to seek the state Jaycee post from a town as small as Colorado City.

He was married to Lois Burdine on Oct. 4, 1936, in Colorado City. She survives.

Also surviving are a son, Tom Bennett of Plano, and two grandchildren.

military in retreat

Chauvinistic males again have been forced into retreat.

The U.S. Army has announced it will not publish any more photographs in its magazine Army Reserve which play up the physical attributes of women.

Pictures of well-endowed females have no place in an Army publication for Army reservists, the military says.

The Pentagon, no doubt feeling heat from the distaff side, has directed the magazine to depict men and women in the same way, professionally.

The Army, some believes, had been the victim of the same syndrome that has gripped selling since the first advertising agency (which may have sent the snake into the Garden of Eden to snow Eve) discovered that men and women were different and that males were attracted to females.

The sexual attraction situation has not changed, but the socio-economic situation has. Men are not the only consumers of goods. Fact is, they likely aren't the principal consumers. Some advertising people have come to this conclusion and, in some instance, an attractive man is used to embellish a product.

But most have not received the word. We still see pictures featuring a new product and a standard old product walking through, standing with or making use of - a pretty woman.

A product simply sells better with an attractive female included in the sales pitch. The flacks who prepare the advertising to sell the product know that women like to look at pretty women, if for no other reason than to compare.

Christopher Morley once said that half of the world's population was made up of women, yet they always seem a novelty.

It's not difficult to be lulled by the gimicry that, whether you're buying a lawn chair or an automobile, the woman in the picture goes along with the deal.

Women purchase cars, too, but not especially because some brawny male, walking around and shooting admiring glances at the vehicle, suggests he might go with the deal.

There's no doubt but that the Pentagon is in retreat in coming up with the new policy. Otherwise, it would be trumpeting the fact that it would be making liberal use of macho-looking males through its magazines in a drive to interest more female recruits.

Developing a strategic oil reserve should be one of the top priorities of the federal government. But a dispute between the Office of Management and Budget and the Department of Energy threatens to delay this important task.

This dispute is over DOE's plans to buy up several billion dollars' worth of oil for the U.S. strategic reserve. DOE wants to go ahead with the purchase, while OMB wants to wait, reckoning that later on DOE could pay less for more.

That may be so, and it may not be so. But the compelling consideration is that the United States should move now to build up its strategic petroleum reserve. The reserve is an insurance policy against another OPEC embargo. Ideally, the nation should have a six-month supply of oil on hand.

Delays in storing this much oil, such as OMB is now causing, only mean that the United States is further exposed to economic disruption resulting from an embargo. OMB should yield, and allow DOE to proceed with its plans.

DOE, meanwhile, should change the crude oil entitlements program, so that the price of crude bears a direct relationship to its quality. If this were done, the domestic production of oil would increase, and so there would be more oil available for the strategic reserve.

President Carter's energy package may be stalled in Congress, but that does not mean the energy picture cannot be improved in the meantime. That would happen if OMB would give a green light to DOE, and if DOE would give a green light to the nation's oil producers.

Someday, some bright insurance executive will come up with a policy for parents of teenagers who leave to get their own apartments.

The premiums will be expensive, but they'll cover loss of furniture (up to $5,000), damages to cars in hauling away contents of house, storage of grade school memorabilia and sports equipment, and perpetual stocking of the refrigerator.

It has taken us two years to adjust to our daughter getting her own apartment. Two years of walking through rooms that used to have furniture, closets that used to hold linens and towels, cupboards that at one time stored cooking utensils and dishes.

The only thing she left was an echo.

We were younger then. Like the proud phoenix bird, we built from the ashes, adding a chair here, a table there. Several of our friends gave Booster showers and in time we had the humble beginnings of a lived-in home.

The other day our son announced he was getting his own apartment. I nearly passed out. "Not again. I couldn't take it--having only one set of sheets per bed, bare floors, lamps with no bulbs.

"Relax," he grinned, "the apartment is furnished."

"I've seen restrooms with more furniture.

There wasn't a night he wasn't "visiting," "Do you want this?" he yelled from the living room.

"What is it?"

"The TV set."

"Of course we want it!"

"You can have the green lamp back."

"This isn't Park n' Swap."

"What our home is, is a combination delicatessen-message center-stop'n-go-open 24-hours-a-day-no-personal checks - please establishment.

It's only been two weeks and I have no casseroles, no cake or pie pans, no leftovers dishes (no leftovers!), no iron, no sweeper, no toaster, no hangers and no broom.

"And you have no insurance?" asked one of our friends.

"Not a dime."

price for housing

NEW YORK (AP)-If Americans cannot afford today's high home prices, how is it that construction began on 1.5 million new housing units last year and that 3.6 million existing homes changed hands?

Those figures aren't estimates. When properties change hands, sellers make certain the money they receive is real, or as real as money can be in these funny times.

More pertinent is the question, "Where do buyers get the money." Last year they paid a median price of $48,700 for new homes and $43,500 for existing homes, the latter a 14.2 percent leap.

From selling existing homes, of course. But studies by the National Association of Realtors show that the largest percentage of buyers are in the 25 to 35 year age group, made up largely of first-time buyers.

Tom Grant, Jr., the new president of the National Association of Realtors, has another explanation: two wage-earners. "This is the price today's generation is willing to pay for housing," he said.

The U.S. League of Savings Association agrees. An upcoming study is expected to show that large percentages of homebuying families have more than one wage earner, and that some also have other incomes too.

While not disagreeing with them, a study by Morgan Guaranty reveals another explanation, one that would seem to puncture the nation that incomes are lagging far behind housing price increases.

It maintains that the ratio of housing prices to family income has remained almost unchanged throughout the post-World War II period, no matter that some cynics say the American dream is fading.

That ratio is three; a house in recent years has cost three times income. Estimated median family income in 1977 was $16,300. Dividing it into $48,700, the answer is just a small fraction under three.

"Clearly," it concludes, "on the basis of an incomes test, concern about a 'crowding out' of middle-income families is overdone." It adds:

"This is especially true when allowance is made for the fact that part of the rise in price reflects a product much improved in terms of measurable features such as floor space and size of plot."

Morgan concedes that home operating expenses have risen, especially mortgage and fuel costs, but maintains that even when these are worked in, the increased costs have not grown faster than median income.

Nevertheless, Grant and many of the 580,000 Realtors throughout the country have become distressed about what they feel is an unfair burden on homeowners-the real estate tax.

In some areas it is 5 percent of the home market price, he said in an interview. And in some areas the real estate tax exceeds the expense of principal and interest on the mortgage.

"We're setting up a committee at this moment to express great concern in the industry about taxing," said Grant, the sole proprietor of a Tulsa, Okla., real estate concern.

WASHINGTON-(NEA)-For the big multinational oil companies, there is a silver lining in the cloud generated by the wreck of the Amoco Cadiz: It occurred off France's Breton coast instead of offshore from Bayonne, Beaumont.

Although the maritime calamity has generated a great deal of publicity in this country, the disaster's distance from America's shores has postponed the inevitable national debate over the industry's plans for increased use of "supertankers" to haul petroleum into the United States.

Those supertankers are to oil transportation what nuclear plants are to the generation of electric power: They are far more efficient and economical than their smaller, traditional counterparts when they work properly.

But when there is a major malfunction, the magnitude of the resulting accident produces an impact so vast and complex that our society is barely equipped to cope with it.

The Amoco Cadiz is the first fully loaded supertanker to be totally wrecked at sea. The unprecedented scope of that disaster is illustrated by comparing the 60 million gallons of oil released in one of the world's most productive fishing grounds with the effect of previous accidents involving oil tanker of a more conventional size.

The largest oil spill off the coast of the United States occurred in December 1976, when the Argo Merchant ran aground on the Nantucket Shoals off Massachusetts. More than 7.6 million gallons of heavy fuel oil were disgorged.

The worldwide record previously was held by the Torrey Canyon, which ran aground off the southwest coast of England in March 1967. Almost 30 million gallons of oil were discharged off the Cornwall coast.

Until the 1950s, the conventional oil tanker weighed 16,500 deadweight tons (DWT) when fully loaded. But recent decades have seen the emergence of Very Large Crude Carriers (VLCCs) at 200,000 DWT or more, and Ultra Large Crude Carriers (ULCCs) at 350,000 DWT or heavier.

Although both VLCCs and ULCCs currently are prohibited from using port facilities anywhere in this country except Valdez, Alaska, every major United States-based petroleum corporation operates a worldwide fleet of supertankers.

In addition, ULCCs are growing bigger with each passing year. The Royal Dutch-Shell Group operates a pair of 542,000 DWT tankers, a British shipping magnate wants to build a trio of 600,000 DWT nuclear-powered tankers and there's even talk of a million-ton tanker.

Last summer, the Department of Transportation issued the first license for a deepwater supertanker port in the "lower 48." Holding that permit is LOOP or Louisiana Offshore Oil Port Inc., a consortium of five oil companies-Ashland, Marathon, Murphy, Shell and Texaco.

Because a 1974 federal law requires that supertanker ports be located away from the coast, the LOOP facility will be built in the Gulf of Mexico, 19 miles south of Grand Isle, La. Construction is expected to begin this autumn and the first terminal is scheduled to open in 1980.

Louisiana officials are enthusiastic about the prospects of a supertanker-inspired economic boom. But elsewhere in the country there remains a great deal of legitimate skepticism about the massive ships.

When the oil companies suggested using supertankers to carry crude oil from Valdez, the southern terminal of the Alyeska Pipeline, to ports in Puget Sound, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., convinced the Department of Transportation to impose a moratorium on supertanker traffic into his state.

"The senator feels very strongly about the possibility of a disaster in Puget Sound," explains an aide. "With a supertanker, one catastrophe is one too many."

That's precisely why the nation must take a closer look at the mammoth ships before they begin traversing our shores within the next few years.

Start Dental Care With Baby Teeth

By Gaynor Maddox

Many adults have learned the hard way that dental care should begin with baby teeth. Neglect of one's mouth in the formative years can later result in a good deal of illness, discomfort and expense.

The pediatrician usually gets the first look at a child's teeth. Hence, it is his or her job to start the child on the right path, says Dr. Abraham E. Nizel, professor of oral hygiene at Tufts Dental School in Massachusetts.

"Dentists seldom see their patients before the age of three. Most times it's between six and seven. By that time damage to jaws and teeth often cannot be undone," he explains.

Sugar is the number one enemy of children's dental health, Nizel recently told a Boston symposium sponsored by the Children's Hospital, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Johnson and Johnson Baby Products Co. However, he says, some sugar is necessary for an adequate diet.

But Nizel holds out some hope for improvement — "if pediatricians remember to prescribe fluoride in drops, lozenges or mouth washes."

Flouride is especially important in the youngster's earliest years, says Nizel. "Once decay is established, fluoride defenses are useless," he cautions.

Experts also advise that a dentist should check a child's teeth as early as possible. But how do you get a reluctant tyke into the dental chair?

"Use patience and intelligence," says Dr. Seymour Stiber of Lenox Hill Hospital Dental Department in New York.

He suggests an initial get-acquainted visit to the dentist before any actual work is performed.

"I have seen frightened children quiet down and become interested in the instruments the dentist uses by letting him handle all the gadgets on the first visit," remarks Stiber. "Bring him the second time for real work."

Stiber also recommends that Mother set a good example for her youngster. She should let the child watch her receive treatment — without sighs or emotional show.

On the second visit (usually a cleaning), Stiber suggests the dentist give the child a small mirror to watch what is done inside his or her mouth.

"Then let him taste a drop of the dentifrice you plan to use," he says. "It tastes pleasant and won't alarm him."

Some dental work may hurt. Warn the child about any pain, Stiber says. Explain exactly what you plan to do and that the hurt will last only a few seconds.

Also remind the child that afterward he or she won't have those long, painful toothaches, Stiber advises. Children, he says, can be startlingly intelligent — particularly when away from their overwrought parents.

The bidding in the box is not recommended. In fact, it can't even be called second-rate. Nevertheless, it was used by an expert player to lose a most important match a few years ago.

The key bad call was North's bid of four hearts. He thought he was on his way to a slam and failed to follow the principle of planning ahead. Once he bid that four hearts he found himself painted into a corner when South rebid to four spades. Maybe South should have found a better bid, but South didn't and now North was completely stumped. He finally solved his problem the wrong way and passed.

The bidding started the same way at the other table, but North found the winning rebid. He simply bid four clubs. His plan was to bid again if South bid four spades, but South bid four diamonds.

This gave North a chance to bid four hearts at the right time — after he had shown good clubs. This also told South that they belonged in clubs. He bid six and North went on to seven. He had shown good clubs but not a suit headed by ace-king-queen.

There was no trouble making the grand slam, in spite of the 4-1 spade break.

Ennis Creek 4-H Meets

The Ennis Creek 4-H Club met at the home of Sue Gilbert Tuesday, April 11. Thirteen members, seven parents, and six visitors attended. The program was presented by Kyle Burleson, Cindy Tolbert, Jody Gilbert, Janna Tate, Jayna Gilbert, Kelly Tolbert and Jeff Gilbert. Each gave their team demonstration which they will enter in county wide contest this Saturday. It will be held at 2 p.m. in the county extension office. Members voted to purchase T-shirts in green with Ennis Creek 4-H in white lettering on them. They will be worn to all 4-H activities.

Refreshments were served by the Gilberts and baseball was played.

Ennis Creek 4-H Club is a community club of both boys and girls. 4-H projects range from show animals to cooking. The next project will be fishing. For information on how to become a 4-H member contact the local county extension office.

Mrs. Chisum Visits 4-H Club

The Hermleigh 4-H Club met April 5 with Daniel Arellano presiding. The motto, pledge and prayer were said.

Mrs. Blanche Chisum, county home demonstration agent, gave the group pointers on what 4-H is about.

Answering roll call were Alex Castillo, Cheryl Goswick, Kim Fletcher, Patricia Smith, Wayne Choate, Richard Alaniz, Paul Romero, Tony Alonzo, Elizabeth Guzman, Matilda Romero, Janie Alonzo, Josie Castillo, David Proper, Bug Johnston, Connie Proper, Sheila Proper, Junior Castillo, Melinda Costillo, Mrs. Walter Stirl, and Mrs. Chisum.

Briscoe, Hill Agree On Farm Bill Issue

By The Associated Press

Top Texas Democratic Gubernatorial candidates have found an issue they agree on - that they disagree with President Carter on the defeat of the emergency farm bill in the U.S. House.

The President said the defeat was "good both for the farmers and good for the consumers."

Attorney General John Hill, campaigning Thursday in San Antonio, said "Our farmers cannot survive another year of red ink and our consumers will lose in the long run if our family farms are taken over by corporate conglomerates."

"Now that the 1978 bill is dead, it's time to take another look at the 1977 bill, which is a four-year program we all know has serious weaknesses," Hill added.

Saying he was "extremely disappointed" by defeat of the bill, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said "Over the past months I have worked closely with the Congress and the administration to develop a program which could give desperately needed relief to Texas farmers."

"Farmers are taxpayers and producers. Farmers produce the food that feeds not only America but other nations. They are entitled to some relief," the governor continued.

Reagan Brown, seeking re-election as state agriculture commissioner, said in Austin he was "tremendously disappointed that our farmers did not get the desired changes in the farm bill. However, this does not signal the end of our efforts to get legislation that will bring stability to agriculture."

"All segments of agriculture must unite to level out the boom and bust cycles that have proved to be so disastrous," Brown said.

A House subcommittee on public education put off for a week action on a request that the subcommittee subpoena the tapes made when Briscoe and Hill were interviewed by the Texas State Teachers Association's political arm. The teachers group, which endorsed Hill, has refused to release the tapes although both Briscoe and Hill have given their approval.

New Texas residents should be told that the state does not require iron-clad party registration, Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements told Houston supporters Thursday.

"We want them all to know they can vote in either primary and then vote their choice in the general election," he said.

The Public Utility Commission should establish one rate for electricity usage in Texas and eliminate the "bonus" rate for big industry, Joe Christie, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, said Thursday.

Christie said "Texans don't want handouts. They never have, but they want fair treatment."

The recommendations by Christie will be considered when the commission begins public hearings in June on a statewide electric rate structure.

Another Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, announced that the Houston Baptist Ministers Association would support him-his sixth endorsement from a black organization.

"Too often the open meetings law is being circumvented and sometimes completely ignored," said Price Daniel Jr., Democratic candidate for attorney general. Daniel said that if he is elected he will continue the fight for openness in government that he began as Texas House speaker.

"It (open meetings law) needs stricter enforcement, and the next session of the legislature should take additional steps to insure that government at all levels is conducted in public view. When tax dollars are being spent, the taxpayer has a right to know why, when, where and how," Daniel added.

Opposition to the proposed settlement between La Vaca Gathering Co. and its customers was voiced by Jake Johnson, a Democratic candidate for the remainder of an unexpired term on the Texas Railroad Commission. He told an Austin news conference that listening to the discussion of the settlement is "like being a witness to the unconditional surrender of rights of consumers in Texas."

Another Democratic candidate for the railroad commission, John Thomas Henderson, criticized his opponent, incumbent commissioner Mack Wallace, for approving a rate increase sought by Southern Union Gas Co. in Austin. "It is high time that a consumers advocate serve on the railroad commission," he said.

A spokesman for the Austin headquarters for Mark White, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said that the candidate and his campaign committees have raised approximately $295,000 so far, instead of the $52,000 reported previously by some sources. White has spent about $273,000.

ADD 9-YEAR-OLD Peter Wright to the list of notable names who have painted the British royal family. Peter's painting of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip was one of the winners in a recent children's painting exhibition at London's National Portrait Gallery. His work was also used for the poster in the background which advertises the exhibit.

Caravan For Hill Coming Here Monday

One of 10 caravans touring the state in behalf of John Hill's campaign for governor is scheduled to visit Snyder on Monday, April 17.

Mrs. Melinda Perrin, Hill's daughter, will lead the caravan here. It is scheduled to arrive in Snyder at 3:25 p.m. The caravan headed by Mrs. Perrin will be on a 615-mile journey through West Texas over a five-day period ending in Austin on Friday, April 21.

"Seven members of my family and four other supporters will leave from 10 parts of the state at the same time bound for Austin to cover Texas with our campaign message in five days," Hill said. "these caravans will put 6,500 more miles on our campaign as they push toward their common goal of Austin, where I will lead a rally at noon in Waterloo Park."

Hill himself will make appearances with the West Texas portion of the caravan in Lubbock and Abilene.

Area Sports Briefs

LAMESA - Coach Mackey Greene's varsity boys golf team will be among those involved in a District 3-AAA tournament here Saturday.

The Tigers, currently in second place in the district running, will join Sweetwater, Lamesa and Brownfield teams for the 8:30 a.m. tee-off.

Team I: Lance McMillan, Clint Baack, Walt Williams, Benny Parnell, Randy Chambers.

Team II: Randy Wolf, Randy McCown, Kip Wadleigh, Dennis Gary, Robbie Moore.

Individuals: John Hopkins, Devin Donelson and Mike Wolf.

SWEETWATER - Snyder eighth and ninth grade track teams will join groups from San Angelo, Big Spring and Sweetwater here Saturday for a junior high track meet.

The single-day meet, which includes girls and boys divistons, is scheduled to begin with field events at 9 a.m. Running events will be held at 1 p.m.

Schools attending the meet include Lincoln, Edison, Glenn and Lee from San Angelo, Big Spring, Sweetwater and Snyder. Snyder seventh grade girls team will stage a dual meet with Sweetwater girls, due to the unavailability of San Angelo squads to make the regular meet.

Junior High teams from 8-B schools were scheduled to hold their district track meet in Snyder beginning this morning. The meet, originally slated for Roby, was moved due to a lack of facilities in that city.

Competing for the various awards are athletes from Ira, Roby, Hobbs, Hermleigh, Highalnd, Westbrook and Loraine.

Running prelims and field events were to begin at 9:30 a.m., followed by finals at 2:30 p.m.

Girls 3-AAA Track Meet Slated At Local Stadium Saturday, 10 a.m.

Snyder hosts seven area high school teams Saturday - including one of its own - as the 3-AAA girls district track and field meet is run off here beginning at 10 a.m.

Lamesa, Sweetwater, Brownfield, San Angelo Lake View, Dunbar and Estacado from Lubbock and Snyder will all compete in the one-day meet which will qualify its first and second place winners for regional competition.

The long jump, high jump and shot put will open the annual meet at 10 p.m., followed by the discus, triple jump and 400 meter dash at 11. Running prelims in the 200 meter dash, 80 yard hurdles and 100 yard dash will continue through the morning, with the finals scheduled to begin at 2:15 p.m. Final event on the agenda is the 1600 meter relay, planned for 3:50 p.m.

The 1978 meet will be unique in that most events will be run in meters instead of yards as in years past. Field events, the mile run, the 80 yard hurdles and the 100 yard dash are the only events left which haven't been "meterized."

Consequently, first place marks in Saturday's "metered" events may be considered new records.

Still "breakable" however, are the records set by yards and inches. Lake View's Loann Phillips set the 1976 district meet burning when she posted three records...all of which await 1978 performers Saturday. Miss Phillips set marks of 17-3½ in the long jump, 35-2 in the triple jump and a time of 10.8 in the 80 yard hurdles. Other records which could be broken this year are Charlotte Dehenl's mark of 116-8½ in the discus and 37-7 in the shot put. Miss Dehenl was also from Lake View. The other records which could be snapped tomorrow are Dianna Jackson's (Brownfield) 11.5 in the 100 dash, and Lanie Lawlis' (Brownfield) effort of 5-2 in the high jump.

Pro Baseball In Summary...

Fans 'Sweeten' Yankee Victory

by The Associated Press

How sweet it was for Reggie Jackson.

Returning for the first time to the scene of his greatest personal triumph, the New York Yankee slugger delivered on his first at-bat and triggered a shower of candy bars at Yankee Stadium Thursday.

"I didn't want anyone to get hit in the head," said Jackson, "but I knew it was a gesture of appreciation."

Hundreds in the crowd of 44,667 who had received the candy bars as an Opening Day gift pitched them on the field following Jackson's three-run homer in the first inning that got the defending World Champions off to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Jackson's blast off Wilbur Wood was the fourth straight at the Stadium for the Yankee star, who hit three homers in his final three appearances in last October's sixth-game World Series victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The flood of candy bars, which incidentally are endorsed by Jackson and called "Reggie" bars, forced a delay of five minutes.

In other American League games, the California Angels edged the Minnesota Twins 1-0 in 11 innings and the Oakland A's turned back the Seattle Mariners 3-1. In limited National League action, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 13 innings and the St. Louis Cardinals stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5.

Angels 1, Twins 0

Joe Rudi's one-out home run in the bottom of the 11th inning, barely ahead of a curfew, carried California over Minnesota in a game in which Angels' starter Nolan Ryan struck out 12 and allowed four hits in the first 10 innings.

A's 3, Mariners 1

Gary Alexander's two-run homer in the ninth inning propelled Oakland over Seattle. Alexander's homer, his second of the season, came off losing pitcher Steve Burke, who had walked Steve Staggs opening the ninth. Mario Guerrero sacrificed, then Alexander hit his homer, deep into the left field bleachers.

Reds 7, Giants 6

Rick Auerbach's pinch-hit double with one out in the 13th inning scored Ray Knight from first base, providing Cincinnati with its winning run over San Francisco. With one out, Knight drew a walk from John Curtis and raced home when Auerbach doubled to the left field wall on his first swing of this season.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 5

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez smashed run-scoring doubles in a three-run first innning and Mike Phillips tripled home two more in the third, helping St. Louis beat Pittsburgh. The Cardinals scored all their runs off Bert Blyleven, who was cuffed for eight hits in six innings.

Netters To Begin 3-A District Tourney Today

LUBBOCK - Snyder high school tennis team was to join Dunbar, Estacado, Brownfield, Sweetwater, Lake View and Lamesa netters for the 3-AAA district tennis tournament today and tomorrow here.

The Tigers, whose boys team took the district championship, have top seeds in both the girls singles division and the boys doubles division.

Seedings for the two-day tournament are: Boys Singles - 1. Sammy Lovato, Estacado; 2. Jon Vascauskas, Lamesa; 3. Kevin Bryant, Dunbar. Boys Doubles - 1. Zane Sterling-Jay Wesson, Snyder; 2. Briwtow-Barron, Lamesa; 3. Pillow-Cross, Dunbar. Girls Singles - 1. Margaret Womack, Snyder; 2. Carol Hoods, tacado; 3. Gayla Moss, Brownfield. Girls Doubles -1. Gesin-Price, Sweetwater; 2. Mousa-Swain, Brownfield; 3. Hamilton-Flewellen, Dunbar; 4. Donna McGee-Kim Harlin, Snyder.

Dribblers Move Into 3rd Round

LAMESA - Snyder Little Dribblers defeated Seminole American and Mid-Cities here yesterday to move into today's third round of basketball competition.

The Dribblers, who were scheduled to play Seminole National at 2:15 p.m. today, could move into Saturday's 8:15 p.m. championship game with a victory.

Jerry Garza fired 20 points and Gregg Mitchell added 11 as the Snyder team outlasted Seminole American 45-18 here yesterday. Wayne Fox added 7, while Jimmy Cain had 4, William Cotton noted 2 and John Murphy had a point.

In the second contest, Snyder drilled Mid-Cities 38-23. Fox had 13 points, followed by Mitchell 12, Garza 9, Cotton 2 and Norman Malone 2.

The weight of the Louisiana Superdome, site of the 1978 Super Bowl game, is estimated at 300,000 tons.

Trio Leads Champions Meet; Nicklaus, Crenshaw Get Stung

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) - Severiano Ballesteros, Bobby Cole and Bill Rogers got the birdies. Jack Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw, unfortunately, got the bees.

While an international trio representing Spain, South Africa and Texas shared the lead in the first round of golf's $225,000 Tournament of Champions, Nicklaus and Crenshaw, shared bee-sting miseries.

Both were stung Thursday at the posh La Costa Country Club, Crenshaw while playing to a 73 in this winners-only event and Nicklaus immediately after finishing a round of par 72. His was the more serious.

"I'm allergic to bee-sting," he said and hurried off for medical attention. The physician who treated the sting said Nicklaus' left palm was red and swollen but that he would be able to continue in the elite tournament he has won five times.

He was three shots behind the leading 69s produced by Ballesteros of Spain, Cole of South Africa and Rogers, from Texas.

OSU's Miller Paces AAII

HOUSTON (AP)-Oklahoma State held an eleven stroke lead today in the team competition of the 24th annual All-America Intercollegiate Invitational Golf Tournament but Cowboys coach Mike Holder wasn't ready to accept a third straight championship trophy.

"We're really playing well, but there are a lot of holes left," Holder said Thursday after his Cowboys finished 36 holes with a 16-under-par 560.

Lindy Miller, one of the Cowboys, was really playing well. Miller, the low amateur in the Masters last Sunday, fired a sensational second round 7-under-par 65 Thursday that established a course record for the par 72 Atascocia Country Club layout and equaled the tournament's best.

Despite his tremendous score, Miller still was third in the individual standings after two rounds.

Georgia's Chip Beck, the 1976 winner, and Brigham Young freshman Bob Clampett were tied for the lead with 8-under-par-136s.

Georgia, with three players to better par during the second round, was second in team standings with 571, followed by Brigham Young with 576 and host Houston with 582.

Other team totals included Weber State 585, Oregon 588, Texas A&M 591, Arizona State and Pan American 596, Louisiana State and New Mexico 597, Texas Tech 600, Texas 603, Auburn 605, Stanford and New Mexico State 606, North Texas State 608, Lamar 610, Rice and Southern Methodist 611, Colorado 612 and Texas Christian 615. Oklahoma with 618 and Baylor with 648 failed to make the cut.

Reds Set To Snap

CINCINNATI (AP) - Cincinnati Reds teammates Pete Rose and Joe Morgan are bearing down on some hallowed major league baseball accomplishments.

Rose, with a single and a triple in Thursday's 7-6 victory over San Francisco, is 24 hits shy of becoming the 13th player to collect 3,000 career hits. In addition, he has a 15-game hitting streak.

Rose's single was the 2,200 of his career. His next double will tie him with Ted Williams, who is 16th on the all-time list with 525.

Morgan has played 83 consecutive errorless games at second base, six short of the major league record set by Baltimore's Jerry Adair in the 1964-65 seasons.

If he keeps the string alive against Houston and Los Angeles, he could break the record next Friday at San Francisco.

Lee Signs To Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Kelvin Lee, a 6-3, 175-pound guard from Florida has signed a national basketball letter of intent with Houston Baptist University.

A three-year starter for Crestview High School in Crestview, Fla., Lee averaged 25 points and eight rebounds per game as a senior.

Rhodes Meet Slated

Snyder Country Club will host an Andy Rhodes Golf Tournament on Sunday.

Entry fee for the single-day meet is $5, and players may enter as often as they wish. Anyone unable to participate Sunday, may make arrangements to play Saturday.

Trophies, donated by Snyder Athletic Center, will be awarded to winners in men's and ladies' handicap and scratch divisions.

To reserve tee times or carts, call Bill Keys at 573-7101.

Red Grange, the "Galloping Ghost," played in the first pro football game ever staged in New Orleans. It was on Jan. 10, 1926.

Ranger Hurler Will Remain Hospitalized

ARLINGTON (AP) - Texas Rangers baseball team officials said Thursday that pitcher Roger Moret would remain hospitalized "indefinitely" for psychiatric treatment of whatever caused the hurler's mysterious clubhouse trance Wednesday night.

Moret walked off the practice field before Wednesday night's loss to Detroit and was found later standing rigid in the clubhouse, holding a shower clog at arm's length and not moving for nearly an hour.

Team Doctor B.J. McCoskie said Moret was in a "catatonic" state that lasted about an hour. The only person Moret spoke with while in that state was Ranger General Manager Dan O'Brien. "All he told me was he wanted to be traded," O'Brien said.

Moret had earlier given the Rangers a deadline for trading him, but that was patched over and Moret later pitched effectively for Texas in a victory over New York.

Manager Bill Hunter said the Moret incident had an unsettling effect on his team. "We can't be sitting around and wondering whether he's going to play for us or not," Hunter said.

The Rangers called up Bob Babcock.

Tigers To Attend Levelland Relays

LEVELLAND --Snyder boys track team will be among several area squads competing in the South Plains Relays here Saturday.

The Tigers, who feature some of the top talent in the West Texas area with hurdler Jeff Terry and high jumper Randy Courtney, will be looking for a good showing prior to their district meet scheduled for next weekend in Lubbock.

In addition to Courtney and Terry, the Tigers boast Dale Jenkins, who cleared 13-6 in pole vault competition at Brownfield, and 14-0 in a practice session in Snyder.

Jenkins, only a freshman, will be shooting for the 14-0 mark at district in competition here Saturday. An effort of 13-6 or better could put the youngster in the regional tournament.

Other top events for the Cats include the 440 or 400 meter dash with Sophomore Lloyd Benson, the long jump with Thomas Selmon, and the mile relay.

Jr. Dribblers Fall In First Effort

Snyder Little Dribblers, junior division, were defeated by Lamesa 24-18 in recent competition. Mike McWilliams paced the local crew with 12 points.

The group was to play Seminole American at 11:45 a.m. today. The winner of that game will play at 7:15 this evening.

Fifth Of Israelis Use Solar Water Heaters

By DEBORAH WOOD
Associated Press Wrtier

EL PASO (AP) - Solar water heaters were introduced in Israel 30 years ago, and now one in every five families there uses power from the sun to heat its water.

Dr. Harry Tabor, director of Scientific Research Foundation in Jerusalem, says the 3 million Israelis are probably the largest per capita users of solar energy in the world, for two reasons.

"We have a mild climate, and plenty of sunshine," he explained Thursday. "and foreign petroleum products are expensive."

Tabor said a solar water heater, which can produce 100 percent of a family's needs, pays for itself in three years in Israel.

But solar power research is continuing on a fairly large scale, Tabor said, because "a small country with a fairly sophisticated population must develop a high technological industry in order to survive."

Tabor began his solar research programs in the 1950s, when fuel was still cheap and seemed unlimited in supply.

In the mid-60s, solar energy research had almost reached a level of diminishing returns. No one seemed very interested in funding solar research, so Tabor set about to improve the concept of the electric vehicle. He has developed a laboratory prototype that could increase the efficiency and practicality of present electric cars by four times within three years.

By the mid-70s, solar energy research was booming again, and Tabor reentered the field.

Israel has not joined the nuclear power plant race, "because it's a harder club to get into than solar." But Tabor says he thinks the country ought to have one nuclear power plant. "They can't accuse you of proliferation with one plant." He said Israel needs an alternative until it has another feasible breakthrough that can relieve it of dependence on foreign oil.

Tabor says solar energy is most feasible for water heaters now but many heavy energy users who could benefit from it aren't utilizing it at all.

"In the food industry, for example, a large amount of energy is expended in washing bottles, cooking and heating food. Solar water heaters are more than adequate to serve that industry."

Other programs, still in the experimental stage, are being researched at Tabor's foundation.

Large ponds that store sunheated water in salt are being studied for large-scale water heating systems, and solar desalination of water is being researched.

"The capability has existed for years to purify salt water using solar energy. The problem we have faced and are still facing is the large expense involved."

Tabor said its most needed market - agriculture - couldn't afford to buy it.

One of the biggest problems with solar energy, as well as other forms of energy being researched as alternative to foreign controlled fossil fuels, is public commitment.

"What world democracies must learn to face is that while democracy grants certain freedoms, it is not a free-for-all. It carries with it some responsibilities."

"I hope it won't have to reach the point when severe conditions will force democracies to come to terms with that fact," he said.

"If one day, we were without power and the factories and industry had to shut down, there would be riots. That would be an end to democracy."

Parnells Going To Meeting

The Baptist Missionary Association Of America will meet in Albuquerque, N.M. April 17-20. About 1,500 churches over the nation will send messengers to the meeting.

Morningside Baptist Church has authorized the pastor, Vernon D. Parnell, and his wife Faye to represent them at this meeting.

An adult polar bear can weigh up to 1,000 or more pounds and a female of the species usually weighs around 700 pounds, says National Geographic.

Key Found To Crib Death

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
Associated press Writer

BOSTON (AP)-A pediatric surgeon believes he has found a key to "crib death," a mysterious killer that claims the lives of 10,000 apparently healthy infants each year.

Dr. Lucian Leape says susceptible infants may choke to death when overflowing stomach juices touch off a reflexive closing of the vocal cords. He has figured out a surgical way to stop the stomach overflow.

But he has not been able to explain vocal cord "sensitivity," which he says helps close off the cords in some infants.

And he says "we're a long way off" from the next step-identifying patients before they have the spells.

Leape, of the Tufts New England Medical Center, says one factor in Sudden Infant Death Syndrome is a relatively common condition known as "esophageal reflux," a failure of the valve that normally closes off the stomach juices.

Sensitive babies have had non-fatal daytime spells in which mouth-to-mouth resuscitation has prevented the crib death, and "If you stop the reflux, it's been 100 percent effective in stopping the spells," Leape says.

"From that standpoint, it's an operation that works," adds Leape, who says he or his colleagues have performed 5 operations in which the stomach is stitched about the lower esophagus to form a valve.

"What sensitizes the larynx we don't know...Maybe previous irritation of the vocal cords. Maybe the child has some congenital abnormality..."

The reflux spells can be avoided by feeding affected babies smaller amounts of heavy food more frequently and having them sleep in an inclined position, Leape says, adding that he prefers the surgical answer.

County Court Sentences 4

Sentences were meted out Thursday in county court against four men. Guilty pleas had been entered earlier by all of the defendants.

Dwight Thomas Railsback, Donald Lou Winn Jr., and Ruben Gonzales were sentenced on charges of possession of marijuana.

Railsback and Winn were each fined $250 and handed a 30-day jail term. Gonzales was fined $250 and was given a 60-day jail term, probated for 180 days.

A Lamesa man, David Delce, was the fourth man sentenced in court action yesterday. He received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated six months, on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Better breakfasts

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB I'm sure I'm not alone, being a mother of three school children. All my children have to get up early and get ready for school but are not ready for a good breakfast physically.

What can I give them nourishing to get them going that will not upset their stomachs? I try not to give them sweet foods but it is hard not to since most breakfast foods are loaded with sugar.

Also I find foods with sugar upsets the stomach too.

DEAR READER Breakfast is probably the most misunderstood meal of the day. Most of the world does not have any breakfast and from a nutritional standpoint are free of many of the major diseases we have. The trick is choosing the right foods for breakfast.

The "no breakfast" routine is probably not very good unless you are going to have a fairly good midmorning snack. The two eggs and bacon routine is a major factor in causing heart and vascular disease if you can rely on the American Heart Association and most scientists' conclusions. They think a diet high in fat and cholesterol is an important cause of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. In fact most of the countries free of these diseases, so common in our society, do not eat such a high cholesterol fat-laden breakfast.

The people who don't tolerate sweets well may not feel their best by mid-morning if they eat a sweet breakfast devoid of protein.

So what is the solution? I think you can benefit by including fish in your breakfast. Many low-fat fish make an excellent choice for the breakfast table. Then there are salmon patties or even creamed chicken on toast. You can vary the latter. I also think breakfast is a good place to increase your bran or bulk intake. The cereals containing bulk are good here.

You can use hot oatmeal if you want a hot cereal. Being hot as opposed to cold doesn't make a particle of difference as far as nutritional value is concerned. That comment will shock many but it is true. But there is no difference at all between cold oatmeal and hot oatmeal. Both contain just as many calories.

Another good idea, despite how early the children must get up, is to have an out of bed exercise program. Nothing gets people ready for breakfast as well as some physical work. A dip in the pool in the summer is great. Farm children used to do chores in the morning and were ready for a good breakfast after the chores were done and before walking to school. Of course chores and walking are sort of out of date in our modern life style — too bad. It can form a lifetime pattern of good eating and good exercise that could help your children stay healthier and live longer because you trained them that way.

Readers who want information on a balanced diet and Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA) can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 4-6. One-Act Plays In Class 4A Compete Here

District winners from eight 4-AAAA high schools are competing today in the Snyder High School Auditorium for the University Interscholastic League One-Act Play Area title.

Dr. Carl Marder from Dallas Baptist College will pick the top two plays which will go to Texas Tech University next week to compete in Regional contest.

Snyder High School was the site earlier this week for District 3-AAA One-Act Play competition. Snyder and Lubbock Estacado conquered that meet and will travel to Odessa April 25 for the Regional battle.

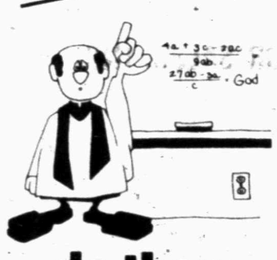
The 4-AAAA high schools participating in today's meet are Amarillo High, Amarillo Palo Duro, Midland Lee, Odessa Permian, Waco Richfield, Killeen, Lubbock Coronado and Lubbock High.

Dollar Up In Japan

TOKYO (AP)-The U.S. dollar gained slightly in trading in Tokyo today to finish the week at 219.425 yen. Thursday's closing rate was 218.875.

Traders said there was considerable buying by a major Japanese bank, apparently to cover yen bond conversions into dollars.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"



do they really "go to school" before joining the church?

As much as anything else, the Confirmation (or Inquirers') Classes are for the "joinee's" own protection ...so that he knows exactly what he's getting into. This simple, interesting set of instructions from the minister assures complete understanding of the church's tenets. Attendance at these classes carries no obligation to become a member.

Episcopalians don't discount the sudden revelation of God's presence. They do, however, believe that a more deliberate initiation into church membership may be less likely to wear thin in subsequent years.

They have some pretty good reasons for believing the Christian faith involves both the heart and the head. They don't mind being joshed about their "thinking-man's religion." Christ, they say, demanded simple faith – but not blind faith.

Periodically, your nearest Episcopal church offers a series of inquirers' classes. Here's an excellent opportunity to learn, without obligation, if the Episcopal Church offers something you've found missing in your previous religious experience. The minister – if you call him – would be delighted to discuss it with you.

New Complex Spruces Up Downtown Dallas

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)-The latest project designed to spruce up downtown Dallas isn't hard to spot. It's the mirror-glass building at the base of the 5-story tower that has the computer-programmed light show on top.

Reunion is the name developers have picked for the hotel-office-shopping complex at the southern edge of the business area. It houses a concrete tower, complete with light show and revolving restaurant and bar, and a 1,000-room Hyatt Regency Hotel that gives Chamber of Commerce convention-seekers more ammunition.

Workers have completed the project nearly five months ahead of schedule, prompting everyone concerned to smile a lot.

A product of oilman Ray Hunt's $75 million investment, Reunion came about because of what John Scovell calls a unique relationship between his Woodbine Development Corporation and the City of Dallas.

"This project wouldn't be here without it," Scovell said.

Obviously the primary intent is to make money, but Scovell is also proud of his contribution to downtown restoration.

Scovell said Dallas is a young city and can take advantage of problems other older cities have experienced at their cores. "We have a chance to react ... and we have a city leadership that is very much committed," he said.

The whole complex is a cinch to spot from the North Central Texas prairies.

Buildings themselves are mirror-glass, arranged in a multi-level configuration. A geodesic dome at the top of the concrete tower is capped with computer-controlled light bulbs capable of putting on a pulsating light show designed to catch the eyes of persons for miles around.

Scovell's project is a stone's throw from a planned special events center that city fathers hope will attract a National Hockey League or National Basketball Association franchise. The city and Woodbine swapped ownership of area land in order to accommodate their independent projects.

The two facilities will be so close that parking can be shared and walkways from the hotel area to the sports complex will be provided, along the lines of Houston's Summit arena and Greenway Plaza office-hotel complex.

On top of that, proposals are on the table to flood land along the nearby Trinity River to create a town lake, which would be only a few hundred yards from Reunion and the sports complex.

The City of Dallas-Reunion cooperation extended to infrastructure, like access roads, and to an agreement for general architectural compatability in the area.

Reunion is adjacent to the old Union Station, a landmark at the southern edge of downtown.

Texans Planting Less

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas farmers will plant less cotton, grain sorghum and corn this spring, according to figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Cotton plantings will be down by 400,000 acres of 6 percent; grain sorghum will decline 500,000 acres of 9 percent, and corn plantings will be down 40,000 acres of 22 percent.

Slight increases in rice, oats and peanut plantings are expected.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said this is the first year since 1972 that corn plantings have decreased.

"It takes a tremendous amount of input, especially water, to grow corn," he said. "Ninety-nine percent of the corn grown on the High Plains is on irrigated land.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 15, 1978

You'll be involved in several undertakings where you'll put all your chips down and play to win this coming year if you rely on effort, and not luck, you'll do fine.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You need a slight change of pace now. Try to plan something with your friends for this evening that is mentally stimulating yet physically active. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because you want to be left alone to dawdle in your own world today you could be grumpier than usual with your more active family members.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If a social situation gets out of hand today, speak up. Take charge. Your ability to clearly see all sides makes you the natural leader.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some very large returns can be gained from innovative ideas you may get today. They're not just pipe dreams. Put them to work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Help those who are unsure of themselves socially today. Your poise and fearlessness give them the confidence they need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something could occur today that might annoy you. Bring it out in the open and clear it up quickly, rather than let it smoulder.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A clever associate could help you find ways to accomplish something that has been difficult for you. He won't mind you picking his brains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can get all the cooperation you need today to go after an ambitious project. Others will be glad you called on them to help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A frustrating condition is about to change to where you'll be better able to come to grips with it and reduce it to a manageable size.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let any more time go by regarding a business situation. If a gamble is needed to get it off the ground, this is the day to take it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Team effort is called for today, so be sure you're equally as industrious as your counterpart. Muscle, as well as brainwork, is needed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have so many ideas today, you'll be hard put to get them all launched. Even though you have an abundance of energy, better be selective.

Town Not In Danger Says Leukemia Expert

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)-A state epidemiologist has confirmed the worst fears of local residents - the incidence of leukemia among children and teen-agers here is abnormally high.

But an authority of leukemia told a community gathering Thursday not to panic.

"I don't think you should sell your homes. I don't think you should keep your children out of school," said Dr. Arnold Rubin of the Leukemia Society of America. "There is no danger. This is not a threat to this community."

Six cases of leukemia have been reported during the past five years among residents and former residents between 5 and 19 years old, Dr. Ronald Altman, state epidemiologist, said Thursday. The normal incidence of leukemia in a town with 20,000 residents, such as Rutherford, is less than one, but even two cases would not be considered abnormally high, he added.

Two boys, both students at the Pierrepont Elementary School, have died of leukemia.

Calling the statistics "meaningful," Altman said the leukemia cases occurred in a cluster around the Pierrepont school.

In all, 13 cases of leukemia, 11 cases of Hodgkins disease and eight cases of lymphoma and related blood cancers were reported. In a community of Rutherford's size, an incidence of 13.5 leukemia cases and four cases of Hodgkins disease are expected, Altman said.

"We do not have an excessive rate of leukemia for the town as a whole for all age groups," he said. "We do have more cases of Hodgkins disease than would be expected in a town this size."

Altman said other incidences of cancer clusters have disappeared after a short period of time.

The scientists failed to answer the question foremost in the minds of residents-why?

"We wanted to hear that they made some kind of discovery," said Carole Arnold, "not that they really don't know what caused it."

Deficiency Checks To Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP)-Thousands of farmers are getting government checks this week totaling more than $156 million as "deficiency" payments for producing barley and grain sorghum last year.

The Agriculture Department said that the checks now being mailed represent about one-third of approximately $500 million in payments to producers of the two crops under the 1977 target-price formula.

Under the formula, when market prices of a commodity fall below a target price, deficiency payments are made to bridge the gap.

A department spokesman, Barry Jenkins, said Thursday that in addition to the current payments "virtually all" of $1.2 billion in wheat payments under the 1977 formula have been sent to producers.

The department said that the remaining payments for barley and grain sorghum will be made as farmers' applications are processed at county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under a new law signed by President Carter a week ago, deficiency payments received by farmers for wheat and barley can be counted as 1977 income if they file an amended 1977 income tax return. The provision does not cover payments for sorghum or other crops, Jenkins said.

Lifesaving Course Set

Men and women interested in earning Red Cross lifesaving certification are invited to enroll in a Senior Life Saving Course scheduled April 17-May 3 at Western Texas College.

Classes will meet at the WTC pool from April 17-27 and on May 1-3 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Applicants must be 15 years of age or older and must swim well. Fees will be $30 per person.

Persons wishing to enroll or receive information about the course may contact the Community Services office at WTC, 573-8511, extension 240.

Dracula Image Is Discounted

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dracula, at least to Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu, was no blood-sucking vampire fleeing the dawn.

No, says Ceausescu, Dracula was a Romanian freedom fighter who struggled against foreign domination and oppression.

The subject of the legendary figure of horror fiction arose during Ceausescu's appearance at the National Press Club here on Thursday.

He was asked what he thought of American tourists invading his land to visit Count Dracula's castle in Translyvania, a mountainous region in central and northwest Romania.

-In the first place, the communist chief of state replied, Dracula was no count. He was a commoner.

-In the second place, he was no vampire.

"He was a leader of the struggle of the Romanian people against the yoke of the Ottoman Empire," he said. "It is true he was tough on our enemies and those who had committed treason. But he was very kind and mild to the people and fought for their freedom."

During Ceauseseu's state visit here, there have been protests at the White House by Hungarian-Americans about what they say is a lack of human rights accorded that minority in Transylvania, which touches Hungary's border. Both countries are members of the Soviet bloc, with Romania considered by Western observers as the most repressive internally while being allowed the most freedom to vary from the Soviet position on foreign affairs.

The American image of Dracula is based on the 1897 novel by British author Bram Stoker. He wove a tale about a Transylvanian nobleman who, after sunset, changed into a giant bat that flew about the countryside drawing blood from the necks of his sleeping victims.

In the novel, the count moves to England, terrorizes the nation and eventually dies after a stake is shoved through his heart.

Stoker is said to have based his character on a 15th century Transylvanian known to history as Vlad the Impaler.

He is said to have earned this title from his habit of dropping captured Turks from his castle onto sharpened stakes driven into the earth below.

Einstein Case Cited In Gifted Student Session

A boy who is in his senior year in school has obtained a certificate from a physician stating that a nervous breakdown makes it necessary for him to leave school for six months. He is not a good all-round student, he has no friends, and his teachers find him a problem. He spoke quite late (age four), and his father is quite ashamed of his lack of athletic ability and poor adjustment to school. The boy has odd mannerisms, makes up his own religion, and chants hymns to himself. His parents regard him as "different."

While most people would consign this student to a life of failure it is, in fact, a resume of the early life of the mathematical-physicist genius, Albert Einstein. This was a case study presented by Dr. Bruce Mattson and Bill Danley of Texas Tech University at the second teacher-training session on "An Orientation to Gifted and Talented Education" held at Western Texas College, Tuesday.

This Einstein story makes two points. One is that no one would have chosen him for a gifted and talented program without previously being aware of identification and screening methods. Of course, many people still think that all geniuses have unusual behavior so they can use that as a reason. On the other hand, how many people actually can recognize a gifted and talented student? How many such students are there in Snyder Public Schools?

Those who are above-average in one way may also be above-average in several other areas, Danley pointed out. A typical gifted and talented student might be physically developed and nice-looking, active in one or more sports activities, drama or art, science or math, a voracious reader; he or she might also be an honor student and active in debate, or some other UIL contest area. The typical gifted and talented student might be class president, but is at least a leader of the class in many cases. On the other hand, many gifted students are underachievers who maintain a low profile and because of this, fail to receive appropriate instruction to develop further their talents.

Dr. Mattson also suggested some characteristics of the better teachers of gifted and talented students. These include: intellectual curiosity; understands the need for others to pursue interests; recognizes hidden talent in others; has special facility for individualizing instruction; uses praise effectively; plans open-ended lessons; and is not threatened by students who are intelligent.

He also emphasized that school and non-school-community environment are a two-way street. The gifted and talented child needs support from parents and the rest of the community. He stated, "Many parents, upon becoming aware of the talents of their child, are inclined to either neglect or belittle the child, or they exploit the child and expect far too much from him or her." Some parents fear their child may become "neurotic and a failure," or else expect a "superperson."

Among the resources which should be available to the gifted and talented child, Dr. Mattson suggested all community facilities, "mentors" in the child's areas of special interest who can work with him individually, and, especially, a supportive home situation.

The previous training session emphasized identification techniques for finding these gifted and talented children in Snyder. The third and final training meeting for this spring, to be conducted Thursday, April 20, will assist the teacher in developing planning strategies for actually planning an individualized program for the children in her-his classroom.

Participants in these training modules include representatives from each of Snyder's six elementray schools and the junior high school, as well as school principals and the Gifted and Talented Task Force members who have been meeting monthly during the year to develop guidelines for the program. A similar group will receive the training during in-service training days next August. Further training sessions are anticipated to enable all the teachers, grades K-8, in Snyder Public Schools who wish to do so, to avail themselves of this opportunity.

Persons desiring more information about this program may contact Project Director Dr. Thomas H. Scannicchio (573-5401) or the Program Coordinator Grace LeMonds (573-9364).

Suspect Is Free On Bond

A 25-year-old man was arrested last last night in East Snyder and booked at the police station on a charge alleging possession of a controlled substance.

A white, powdery substance allegedly found in the man's possession will be sent to a Department of Public Safety laboratory for analysis, officers reported.

The man was released from custody this morning after posting a $500 bond.

A minor traffic accident was also investigated by police yesterday.

The mishap occurred in the 1900 block of 25th St. and involved a 1973 Pontiac driven by Windle A. Biddle and a parked 1973 Ford owned by Andy Rhodes.

The mishap took place about 4:05 p.m.

The first man to use an airplane over Antarctica was Hubert Wilkins in 1928.

Request Students Reinstated

HOUSTON (AP)-Representatives of Iranian student organizations, a former Houston school board member and political science professor called on a South Texas junior college Thursday to reinstate 84 Iranian students expelled from the school earlier this month.

Bijan Khezri, a member of the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran, said at a gathering at the University of Houston that the students at Bee County College in Beeville were being persecuted "for telling the truth about Iran."

The students were among 103 arraigned on criminal trespass charges in Beeville Municipal Court March 13. They are scheduled to appear in court Tuesday.

The school brought charges against them after the students refused to leave the gymnasium where college President Grady Hogue had convoked a meeting March 9 to discuss complaints of unpaid telephone calls to Iran.

Khezri said Hogue had denied the students' First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and assembly by refusing a request to form a club on campus. Iranians make up about 10 percent of the school's 2,000 enrollment.

Hogue said he refused permission because he felt such clubs had been the source of disturbances at other Texas schools.

Limousin Bull Sale Is Set

ABILENE - The first Texas Limousin Association sponsored Bull Test Sale will be held Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Abilene Christian University Allen Farm Bull Test Center, according to Dr. Ed Brokaw, ACU assistant Professor of agriculture and supervisor of the test center.

Fifty-three bulls, including three purebreds and 50 percentage bulls which completed the 112 day gain test April 3, will be sold.

All bulls are registered - 75 per cent or above - with no color restrictions. Birth dates of the bulls are between September 1, 1976 and Feb. 1, 1977.

Mrs. Irene Taylor Gray, 57, of Tucson, Ariz., died there Thursday night.

Services are pending in Amarillo.

Mrs. Gray is survived by two daughters, Linda Hicks of Tucson, Ariz. and Laurie Cizzou of Amarillo; a son; Michael Gray of Midland; two sisters, Mrs. Virginia McMillan of Snyder and Mrs. Sterlene Morgan of San Angelo; four brothers, Carroll Taylor of Lamesa, Richard Taylor of Merkel, Charles and S.A. Taylor Jr., both of Snyder and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Caffey

Mrs. Ida Floy Caffey, 97, long-time resident of Hermleigh, died at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Funeral service has been set for 4 p.m. Sunday at East Side Church of Christ, with Sam Kitching, Sanford Thompson and Rex Reynolds officiating. Burial will be in the Hermleigh Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Kansas, she was married on Oct. 15, 1899, in Commanche to Will Caffey. He preceded her in death in 1966.

Surviving are seven daughters, Vollie Moore of Cobena, Calif., Olivia Bush of Dade City, Fla., Leona Thompson of Las Vegas, Nev., Irene Jordan and Goldie Foster, both of Hermleigh, Rose Minor of Park Hill, Okla., and Nell Lambreth of Dumas; two sons, Cody Caffey of Laverne, Calif., and Jack Caffey of Dover, Ark.; 20 grandchildren, 45 great-grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Conferees To Meet Privately

WASHINGTON (AP)-Top congressional energy negotiators say they'll keep working behind closed doors to draft a compromise bill, despite a House vote against secret sessions and one senator's threat to withold his support for the Panama Canal treaties.

Leaders of the House-Senate Conference committee on energy legislation said they will continue to meet privately with Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger in hopes of ending the 4½-month deadlock on natural gas pricing.

Key conferees have been negotiating with Schlesinger at the White House since President Carter intervened earlier this week in an attempt to break the impasse.

Protesting these closed meetings, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said Thursday that he may vote against the second Panama Canal treaty next week unless the bargaining sessions are opened.

He said the sessions violate congressional rules requiring open meetings.

Abourezk also said he wants Carter to renounce any proposed compromise that includes natural gas deregulation, since the president's energy program called for continued price controls.

Carter has said he'll accept deregulation by the mid-1980s as a compromise. The conferees have tentatively agreed to set Jan. 1, 1985, as the date when price ceilings would be lifted.

In a related move, the House voted 371 to 6 on Thursday against the holding of secret congressional negotiations on energy.

Mexican Food Sale Planned

The new LULAC Council No. 4316 will sell tamales and other types of Mexican food Sunday from 12 noon to 4 p.m. at the Towle Park Pavilion. All proceeds from this project will go toward a scholarship.

WTC Group Attends PTK Convention

Students from Western Texas College were among Phi Theta Kappa (PTK) members from across the nation who attended the 60th annual convention of the fraternity in Florida, April 6-8.

WTC students attending were Sonny Lee, president of the Psi Zeta chapter at WTC; Junanpe Brock, Julie Dozier, Lila Guinn and Veronica Melgar. Jamie Derringer, an alumnus of the WTC chapter now attending West Texas State University, joined the group for the convention.

Dr. Mary Hood and Melisa Barker, chapter sponsors, accompanied the students as well as Dr. Duane Hood. Dean of Student Services at WTC and an alumnus of the Iota Alpha chapter of PTK at Henderson County Junior College.

Speakers included Fred Haise, an astronaut from NASA, who discussed "Conquering Space for Man's Survival," and Richard Johnson, manager of training and development at Walt Disney World. Both are PTK alumni.

Students visited Cape Kennedy and the control center used when Apollo II was launched, Disney World and Jetty Park Beach. Convention sessions were held at the Orlando Hyatt House in Kissimmee. Programs emphasized the PTK theme for the year, "Man Alive: Can He Survive?"

Coastal Risks Said 'Monster'

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas coast has escaped hurricanes since 1970, but such a catastrophe could bring on the "biggest disaster in insurance history," says the chairman of a special insurance pool.

Don Manthe of Dallas said on Thursday that the Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Association - "catpool" - is a "potential monster" with $1.6 billion in property insurance in force.

Already, Manthe said in a statement, there are approximately 52,000 risks insured in the 14-county coastal area served by the association.

More than 62 percent of the coverage is concentrated in Galveston and Brazoria Counties, with approximately 52 per cent in Galveston County alone.

"We have always known we were in charge of a potential monster, but we had hoped inflation would cool and that the dollar amount of insurance in force in the pool would not keep getting bigger," Manthe said. "The shocking reality of what will surely come with another Hurricane Carla has obligated us to take further action now."

Carla hit Texas in 1961 and caused an estimated $408 million in damage, he noted.

"A major catastrophe could cause some company insolvencies, restrict building for years to come, make it extremely difficult to obtain some kinds of property insurance, and send property insurance rates higher than they are now," he said. "Also, more importantly, lives and property would be threatened during the storm itself."

The pool was started in 1971, one year after Hurricane Celia struck and caused insured losses totaling more than $350 million.

Celia, Manthe said, made it difficult - if not impossible - to get windstorm insurance in coastal counties. In "catpool" all insurance companies doing business in Texas combine their resources to offer year-round coverage for wind and hail damage. It is primarily designed, however, to cover losses from hurricanes or other catastrophes.

This year, Manthe said, the association plans to step up on-site inspections of new buildings insured in the windstorm pool to be certain that they comply with building code requirements.

WTC Has High Contest Score

Western Texas College placed sixth of 25 colleges and universities scoring in Division II of the 1977 newspaper contests at the 56th annual Texas Intercollegiate Press Association convention in Brownwood.

Journalism students honored were Paula Chastain, Snyder graduate and Snyder Daily News staff member first, news photography; Rocky Alexander, San Angelo freshman, second, sports feature; Joe Boldon, Lubbock freshman, second, picture sequence; Boldon, second, feature photo; Boldon, third, sports photo; and Kathy Spencer, Anson graduate, third, sports feature.

In open division live print media contests, Diane Wright, Brownfield sophomore and editor of WTC's student newspaper, The Western Texan, won third in headline writing.

Other students competing in live contests were Wright, news, editorial and feature writing; Alexander, radio news writing; Dwight Williams, El Paso freshman, radio announcing, and Weldon Jefferson, Colorado City freshman, radio news writing.

Connie Jones, Colorado City freshman and editor of WTC's yearbook, Trailblazer, and Cody Bell, Rankin freshman, also attended. Mike McBride, publications adviser and associate professor of journalism, accompanied the group.

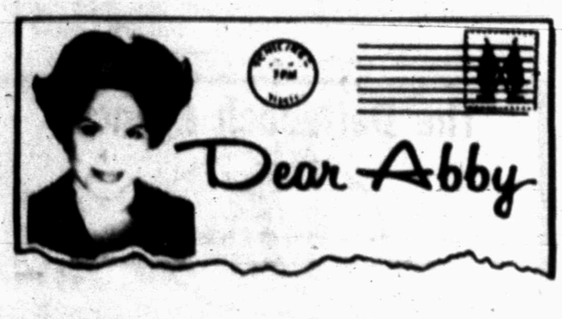
The students attended seminars on all phases of mass communication directed by media professionals. Special events on the program included a tour of the Douglas McArthur Academy of Freedom near Howard Payne University, TIPA host school, and a riverside barbecue supper featuring HPU's stage band.

Point totals in the newspaper contest were Tarrant Co. College South, 68; Dallas Eastfield College, 51; Midwestern University, 40; Angelo State University, 24½; Amarillo College, 24, and WTC 21½.

Message Tested On Shoppers

ATLANTA (AP)-A subliminal, taped message that says "I will not steal" is being tested on shoppers in "a large Eastern seaboard city" to see whether it will cut down on shoplifting.

The words "I will not steal," "I am honest" and others are "embedded" in background music, according to Dr. Hal Becker, a behavioral scientist at Tulane University. "To the best of my knowledge, it is not in use anywhere except in our field test," he said.



Girls Bothered By an Old Hand

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: There is an old man who goes to our church. He's very friendly and everyone likes him, but he's beginning to get on the girls' nerves. (By "girls," I mean any female between 12 and 60.)

You can't really call him a "dirty old man," although he acts like it at times. I wouldn't mind a brief hug as a greeting, but this man does a lot of pinching and patting in the clinches.

I mentioned this to a girlfriend of mine who has also been on the receiving end of his pinching and patting, and she said, "Forget it—he's 93!"

Abby, do you think a man should be excused for his actions because of his age?

PINCHED AND PATTED

DEAR P AND P: Certainly, there are two periods in a man's life when he can get away with anything. When he's too young to know what he's doing, and when he's too old.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a 10-year-old son who was born with one deaf ear and about one-third hearing in the other ear. His doctors have informed my sister that eventually the boy will be totally deaf.

Don't you think my sister is being extremely unfair to hide the truth from her son? She is an intelligent woman, but she seems almost ashamed of her son's handicap. She said she couldn't bear the thought of his studying lip reading or sign language so young.

She thinks highly of your advice, Abby, so please answer.

CARING AUNT

DEAR AUNT: Your sister is doing her son a shocking disservice. The boy should start preparing immediately to live in a silent world. It will be much more difficult for him to learn after he has suffered a total hearing loss.

Urge your sister to discuss it with her son's doctors and to follow their recommendations. And I hope for the boy's sake she acts at once.

DEAR ABBY: Our 17-year-old son got a ticket for speeding (he has no car, it was his father's), so we took away his driving privileges for a month. It has been only five days now and this boy is unbearable. He is ugly and hateful. He hardly eats, and he refuses to look at us. He answers our questions with grunts and shrugs, and he says he won't be "nice" until we give him one more chance and restore his driving privileges.

My husband has had one coronary and was told to keep calm and avoid excitement, but this son of ours is pushing him to the boiling point.

I honestly don't know how to cope with this. Should we give in?

SULKY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If you "give in" now, you will teach your son that the way to get what he wants in life is to punish those around him with his ugliness. Ingore his act. If he doesn't eat, it's his hunger. Don't ask him any questions. It will only provide him with an opportunity to exhibit his surliness. Let him sweat it out. You'll be doing him a favor.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.
