Press Secretary Hit...

Gunman Fires At President Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several gunshots were fired at President Reagan as he left a downtown Washington hotel Monday.

Secret Service agents shoved the president into his armored limousine, which sped away from the Washington Hilton Hotel, leaving at least three men lying on the ground only a few feet from where Reagan had been standing.

Reagan was apparently unharmed.

Three men were said to be wounded. The Secret Service said they included one agent and a Washington policeman.

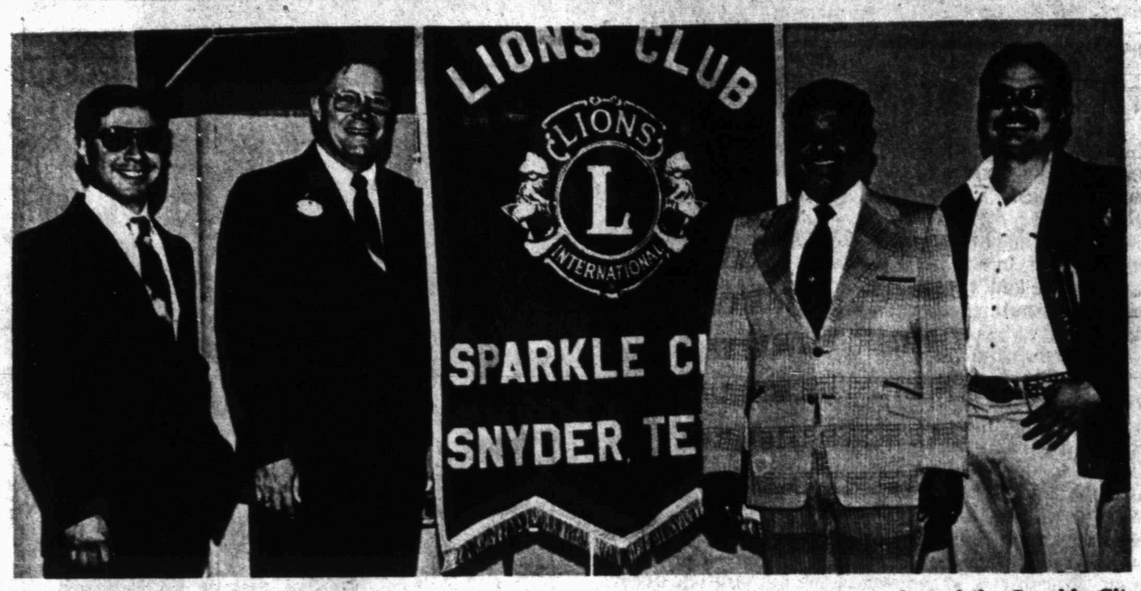

The other was said to be presidential press secretary James S. Brady, according to his deputy, Larry Speakes. Brady was rushed to George Washinton University Hospital. Reagan, who did suffer a bump on his head accompanied him.

The president had delivered a speech to the AFL-CIO's Building Construction Trades Conference meeting at the hotel.

Police grabbed a sandy-haired man who appeared to be in his late 30s or early 40s.

The scene outside the hotel immediately became one of chaos. A crowd gathered.

Reagan had emerged from the hotel's VIP entrance and reporters were attempting to shout questions at him when there was rapid fire succession of shots.

Crop Duster Bites Dust

BLACKWELL, Okla. (AP) — A crop-duster pilot from Texas was injured near here Sunday evening when his single-engine plane hit a power line and crashed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

The Cessna was being flown to spray fields by pilot Mitchell Autry, 29, of Muleshoe, Texas, who was taken to a Tulsa hospital by helicopter after being treated at a local hospital for burns and shock, patrolmen said. He was reported to be in serious condition.

Launch Slated For April 10

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Kennedy Space Center workers are preparing for a final countdown tentatively leading to an April 10 launch of America's trouble-plagued space shuttle Columbia.

"We feel the 10th is a viable launch date," shuttle launch director George Page said Sunday after an exhaustive physical inspection confirmed the success of two critical tests of the system's silo-shaped aluminum fuel tank.

Black Leaders Watch Trial

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Black leaders who maintain the slaying was "a lynching" say they will carefully follow developments in the prosecution of three white men charged in the death of a black youth found hanging from a tree.

The FBI is investigating the possibility of civil rights violations.

Michael Anthony Donald, whose death stunned this port city, was buried Saturday after more than 2,000 mourners were admonished to leave vengeance to God.

"We will keep ourselves in check because we love people," said the Rev. Dr. Leon Taylor during the eulogy.

Spring Storms Sweep North

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms brought heavy rain to the Gulf Coast states early today, and thundershowers rumbled over the Great Basin into the Central Rockies.

There was snow in the higher elevations, and a few showers lingered over the Pacific Northwest.

A major storm in Idaho Sunday stirred winds to 87 mph, uprooting trees, smashing windows and houses and leaving at least 22,000 homes and businesses without power for part of the day.

Mongolian Back From Space

MOSCOW (AP) — Mongolia's first space traveler and his Soviet commander returned to Earth today after an eight-day space mission that included a link-up with the Salyut-6 space station, the official news agency Tass reported.

The cosmonauts, Jugderdemidiyn Gurragcha, 33, of Mongolia, and Vladimir Dzhanibekov, 38, were launched into space March 22.

There was no immediate word on whether two other cosmonauts launched over two weeks ago would soon return to Earth.

Hijackers To Free Hostages

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) – Indonesia has agreed to release 80 prisoners sought by airplane hijackers holding 55 hostages, including two Americans, Thai government spokesmen Trairong Suwankiri announced Monday.

Trairong said Indonesian officials have promised to have the freed prisoners in Bangkok by 6 p.m. EST.

He said hijackers demanded an international flight crew and a long-range aircraft to take them to a third, unidentified country.

There was no immediate word on the Indonesian government response to demands for $1.5 million ransom, added by the hijackers Monday.

A response by the hijackers was not immediately reported.

Poles Call Off General Strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) – The independent union Solidarity today called off a nationwide general strike threatened for Tuesday over the beating of three union members, the Polish news agency PAP said.

The decision was made after talks with government officials at which progress had been reported toward meeting union demands for punishment of those responsible for the beatings.

There was no immediate word on terms that led to calling off the strike which government officials had said would lead to catastrophic consequences in this Soviet bloc country racked by labor and economic turmoil.

PAP said the negotiators were preparing a joint communique. The talks were between Lech Walesa, leader of the Solidarity independent union, and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

Warsaw Pact military maneuvers continued in and around Poland, an ominous background to the talks.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted a Polish Communist Party official as saying, regarding a general strike, "our country has no reserves that would enable it to survive this catastrophe economically. Therefore the structure of our state and its very survival are at stake."

The official, Kazimierz Barcikowski, spoke at a meeting of the party's Central Committee.

After flexing its muscles in a four-hour warning strike Friday, the union, angered by the beating of three members in Bydgoszcz on March 19, threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday.

City Manager John Gayle said notices had been sent to officials of the following offices and oranizations who will be involved in the exercise: Hermleigh Fire Dept., Fluvanna Fire Dept., Department of Public Safety, Snyder Public Schools, KSNY Radio, Scurry County Commissioners Court, Scurry County EMS, Texas Electric Service Co., Lone Star Gas Co., Snyder Daily News, Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Red Cross, City Engineer, Civil Defense Coordinator, Civil Defense Director, Snyder Police Dept. and Scurry County Sheriff's Dept.

Ask Us

Q.—When is the deadline for filing at the appraisal office for agriculture and homestead exemptions?

A.—You have another month, the appraisal office staff advises. Originally, the deadline for agriculture "open space" exemptions was April 1, but that has been extended through April, putting them on the same date with homestead and disabled veterans exemptions. The homestead exemptions are available to all who own homes and those over 65 get a homestead exemption up to $10,000.

GM Announcing Cuts In White Collar Staff

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. will cut its white-collar work force by as many as 27,000 workers over the next few months, a published report says.

The reductions outlined in the Detroit News today would be the second round of cuts in less than a year.

The newspaper quoted unidentified company officials as saying the reductions would eliminate between 8 percent and 15 percent of GM's salaried work force of 180,000 people.

But the cuts more likely would affect 13 percent of the salaried workers up to the level of company vice presidents, the officials said.

GM would make the cuts by closing some departments, consolidating others and not replacing some workers when they retire, according to company spokesmen.

In an interview with the News, GM Chairman Roger B. Smith said the reductions would be handled delicately and over a period of months, removing only non-essential positions.

"We're not going in with an ax," Smith said. "We're using a surgeon's knife."

The No.1 automaker announced last April that it intended to trim its white-collar work force by 10 percent, or about 19,000 people. That across-the-board staff reduction resulted in the departure of about 10,000 employees.

Texas Legislators To Hear VP Bush

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators gather in a joint session today to hear from Vice President George Bush, former Texas congressman who made two unsuccessful attempts to be a U.S. senator from the state.

Aides said he would discuss federal and state relations under the new Republican administration.

Bush's appearance closely follows Gov. Bill Clements' warning to legislators Friday that austerity measures sought by President Ronald Reagan may cost Texas $2.5 billion in expected federal funds for 1982-83.

Before and after Bush's half-hour appearance this afternoon the House and Senate have a wide range of problems to consider — primarily concerning state spending and redistricting.

District Drama Contest Tuesday

Jerry Worsham takes his Snyder High School cast and crew to Midland tomorrow for the District 2-AAAA one-act play contest.

The Snyder players and those from Lake View won the zone contest here last week. At Midland, the two winners in this zone will join Fort Stockton and Monahans, winners in the west zone of the district, in competition for district honors.

The winners in the district meet will advance to the regional contest, and from there the winners go to Austin for the state meet.

Snyder's entry this year is "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," by Peter Shaffer.

Snyder has drawn the No. 4 slot for the district meet, which means that its play will go on at about 4 p. m. tomorrow in Midland.

In the zone contest, Jack O'Banion of Snyder was named best actor, while Barry Tubb and Mark Robertson were named to the all-star cast and Randy Cook received honorable mention.

The remainder of the District 2-AAAA academic and literary contests will be held Friday and Saturday at Midland.

Antitrust Award Left Intact By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact a $9 million antitrust award from Page Airways Inc. to Associated Radio Service Co., a former subcontractor.

Page Airways had agreed in 1967 to distribute and outfit a civilian plane called the Grumman G-II.

Outfitting means installing equipment specified by the aircraft's purchaser — including electronic flight, navigation and communications equipment, as well as seating and cabin fittings.

Page made a five-year agreement with Associated Radio in 1968, under which Associated established an outfitting facility in San Antonio, Texas, and performed electronics installation as a subcontractor.

At the end of the five years, however, Page decided not to renew the agreement with Associated but to take over the installation of electronic gear itself.

Associated sued, charging that Page maneuvered to squeeze it out and thus dominate a market in violation of federal antitrust laws.

In a 1977 federal court trial, a jury decided that Page had engaged in unfair trade practices by trying to monopolize the installation of electronic gear in Grumman G-II aircraft.

The judge awarded Associated Radio treble damages, attorneys' fees and expenses — a total of some $9 million.

Page appealed, arguing that the judge's instructions to the jury, based on an earlier Supreme Court decision, were inadequate.

Page claimed that the judge should have told the jury that Page's actions should be considered within the broad market of outfitting turbine-powered business planes in general, not just in the limited market of outfitting Grumman G-IIs.

And Page also said the judge was wrong in telling the jury an action violated antitrust law if it only "tended" to impair competition.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, however, stood by the trial court's outcome, and Page then asked the Supreme Court for a new, clearer definition of the "market" to be considered in an antitrust suit.

The appeal also argued an antitrust finding requires proof of actual harm to competition, not just a "tendency".

Contract Let For Dressing Rooms

Scurry County Commissioners this morning awarded a contract to T. E. Shelburne and Son for revamping dressing room facilities at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Shelburne's bid of $6,743 was the only proposal received on the project.

The contract calls for some additional partitions and other facilities which will provide a total of four dressing rooms with shower facilities on the northeast corner of the building, plus another room which can be used for teams to dress, but without shower facilities, on the southeast corner of the building.

At present, the coliseum has dressing rooms for only two teams, and the request for additional facilities was made to take care of needs for tournaments and doubleheader basketball games of Snyder High School and Western Texas College.

Work is expected to begin on the project within he next few days.

For More Survivors...

Search Called Off At Collapsed Condo Site

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The search for bodies amid the broken concrete and twisted metal of a collapsed five-story condominium has been halted by officials who say the 11th body pulled from the rubble probably is the last.

The whereabouts of several workers who may have been at the building site when the collapse occurred Friday still were unknown. But authorities no longer believe they were pinned beneath the tons of debris. The search for bodies ended early today.

The remains of 22-year-old Darrell Nowakowski were found Sunday afternoon, 48 hours after the accident that one inspector termed the worst construction disaster in Florida history. The bodies of 10 other construction workers were found Friday and Saturday.

Meanwhile, teams of investigators from state and federal agencies interviewed survivors and studied the rubble-strewn site.

Cocoa Beach Fire Chief Robert Walker said several workers still were unaccounted for, based on information pieced together from relatives and witnesses. But the list was "nothing firm," he said.

Mike Mervis, a spokesman for Univel Inc., the contractor and co-developer of the ruined Harbour Cay condominium, said investigators from the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration would meet today with company officials. Univel was also conducting its own investigation into the accident.

Several workers at the site had charged the pace of construction was so fast that concrete throughout the condominium wasn't given enough time to dry. Investigators have refused to comment on the charge.

picking up the slack

More than a few oxes are being gored these days in the process of trimming the federal budget, as you've probably heard.

Repeatedly.

Most of the attention is being directed at the heavyweights in the herd — welfare programs, mass transit, state and local government grants and the like. One of the smaller fellows, however, is in line for what might be taken as one of the unkindest cuts.

Considering that an actor emeritus is in the White House, arts and letters might expect in other times and circumstances to be in a favored situation rather than on a hit list. But those are not the circumstances of these times and the arts, as represented in the budget by the National Endowment for the Humanities, stand to lose in the 1982 budget half of their federal funding, dropping from $169 million to $85 million.

But now an encouraging word from a potential sponsor. The reduction need not have a withering effect on music, literature and the rest of the humanities, according to Ian Rolland, president of the Indiana-based Lincoln National Corp., because the private sector can be expected to pick up much or most of the slack.

Some changes are, however, to be expected. Private donors, both corporate and individual, can be expected to be more critical of the nature and effectiveness of assisted programs than government bureaucracy is inclined to be.

"Inevitably, some causes and projects of marginal worth are going to be squeezed out by others that seem more pressing," Rolland recently informed an Indiana conference on the humanities. "Those that are to survive will have to present a strong case in a manner that is clear and understandable."

Further, the "ethical and philosophical questions" that have been raised by government's use of public moneys for the benefit of certain groups must also be considered by corporations planning to dispense funds belonging to their stockholders.

Well, yes, fine. OK. But whatever became of art for the sake of art? In the new businesslike order, are there to be any openings for the avant garde, the nonconformism of today that in retrospect so often turns out to have set the new standards for tomorrow?

That's a question for time to answer. As to whether corporate America actually will pick up the funding slack in the arts, there is no question that Rolland, head of one of the nation's largest insurance firms, is perfectly situated to practice what he is preaching.

at wit's end

by erma bombeck

It's funny what a difference a few years will make in your attitude toward children.

There was a time when I took a piece of cardboard from my husband's shirts, ran a string through it, and hung it around my son's neck. It read, "PLEASE DO NOT FEED."

He was like a disposer in Keds...going up and down the street with his mouth open. He made garbage trucks an endangered species in our neighborhood.

What I wouldn't give to have anyone feed him today...cookies, candies, ice cream...anything to take the edge off his appetite and ruin his meals.

And remember "Talk to me"?

I couldn't wait until the kid began to talk. I'd sit in front of him and be so anxious to have anything come out of his mouth, I was interpreting the bubbles.

Through adolescence and the teenage years I was always pleading, "Talk to me. I'm your mother." You know when he began to talk. When he moved to LA and the daytime rates were 48 cents for the first minute and 33 cents for each additional minute plus tax. We spent $4.53 last week just to hear him relate how his white sweater shrunk in the soak cycle.

I could bite my tongue when I think back on it, but there actually was a period in my life when I told my daughter, "Get out of those good clothes before you ruin them and get into something grubby to play."

What I wouldn't give today to see if she still has legs.

It's painful to remember, but there was a period of years when I lived by the slogan, "You can drive a child to water...but you can't make him wash." I wish I had a nickel for every time I personally turned on the shower, filled the tub, measured out the shampoo and physically threatened to do harm to their bodies if they did not avail themselves of soap and water.

That was before the Herbal Connection. Today, bathing among teenagers is a religion. The hot water tank is a shrine and fat hair is the ultimate.

Possibly the greatest discrepancy you note is the attitude of grandparents. When the children are babies they stand in line to sit with them. This tapers off at about 18 months when it is discovered they have openings in every part of their body that need attention.

I heard a grandmother say the other day, "I wouldn't supervise my teenage grandchildren for anything in the world. Who am I kidding? The National Guard wouldn't sit with them."

I guess the moral of the story is, "Enjoy it...before you know what you're doing."

Billy The Kid's Tombstone Back

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — Billy the Kid's Tombstone is back in this southeastern New Mexico town, recovered after it had been stolen early in February. But some people say it's not Billy who's buried in the grave here.

They believe he died at a ripe old age in the 1940s and was not killed by Sheriff Pat Garrett's gun in 1881.

The Kid's granite tombstone was recovered in Huntington Beach, Calif. The story brought up memories for some residents of the Southwest, including C.S. Holmes of Clovis, N.M., who had obtained a copy of an old grand jury indictment in Seymour, Texas, in the 1960s.

The indictment, filed in Hardiman County, Texas, on Dec. 28, 1881, charges a man with the killing of another. Witnesses who testified before the grand jury were listed as W.A. Tackett, Jack Grishman, Billy the Kid and Sam Watson.

The Kid's tombstone says he was killed by Garrett on July 14, 1881, five months earlier.

Either someone used his name on the court document or he was not killed. And if the Kid was not killed, someone else was buried in his grave at Fort Sumner in 1881.

Jimmy Ramage, an elementary-school principal in Hico, Texas, said during a telephone interview that he remembered an old man who lived in Hico in the 1940s and claimed to be Billy the Kid.

Ramage said the man called himself "Brushy Billy and was always talking about his experiences. He wore a big hat, usually a plaid shirt. He had a handlebar mustache and a gray beard."

Berry's World

john cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — A major theme of John Wood's year as president of the 750,000-member National Association of Realtors is the preservation of private property rights, but not everyone will agree with his approach.

Wood and the Realtors also take a strong stand on fair housing. They believe nobody, not even the owner of a one-family rental house, should be able to deny occupancy to a renter because of race, color or creed.

As things stand, an owner of three units or fewer who doesn't use a broker is free to make his own renter choices. But, says Wood, "They shouldn't be exempt. It's discrimination. It's right or it's wrong."

It is inevitable that some homeowners won't see it Wood's way, and will defend their position on the basis of private property rights. Wood doesn't budge. "It just shouldn't be," he says. "We want to come out and say affirmatively we are for fair housing."

A moment later he asserts that the preservation of private property rights is critical. "We see private property rights dwindling," he states. "We think somebody must speak out for private property."

No, said Wood, whose John R. Wood & Associates employs 25 people in the Naples, Fla. area, anti-discrimination measures do not infringe on property rights. The two are distinct, he says. He's for them.

As you might expect, he and the Realtors also defend free enterprise, which they feel has been diminished by needless government regulations. They support President Reagan generally, but not always in specifics, one criticism being that his accelerated depreciation proposals are less favorable for residential rental property than for other assets.

He believes mortgage interest rates will "creep down" to 12 percent or 13 by midsummer, and that the housing market will improve the latter part of the year. His projection is for 3.6 million resale units this year, compared with a 1978 record high of 3.9 million. And he foresees a new high of 4.2 million units in 1982.

In his view, the major buyer problem isn't raising the down payment but meeting the monthly payment. If rates fall, however, that situation will tend to correct itself. "If we get rates down from 15 percent to 12 or 13, we'll get them into houses," he promises.

Surprisingly, to some people anyway, is a comment that sellers too might be able to cut costs. Real estate commissions, he observes, don't have to be what the Realtor sets. "They are negotiable," he said. "We want to get that over to the public."

commentary

donald f. graff

There's more to being on a government mailing list than a mailbox overflowing with material you don't have time to read on subjects of minimal interest.

Occasionally an item in the inflow can be unexpectedly enlightening, such as the current Special Report No. 74 issued by the U.S. State Department's Bureau of Public Affairs.

Tersely titled "Trade Patterns of the West, 1979," this document lays out the exchanges of goods and services of the United States and 23 of its principal economic associates with each other and the rest of the world in 14 pages of mind-numbing tables and charts. Fortunately, an introductory summary in perfectly comprehensible English comes to the rescue with an overview making some interesting points.

One is the increasing importance of trade to the American economy, and in particular of trade with Western Europe. We are on the receiving end of a flood of goods from the Europeans, right?

Right. The statistics prove it. But they also show that the Europeans are better customers of the United States than we are of them.

In the year under study, 29.5 percent of all American exports went to Western Europe but only 5.9 percent of Europe's exports reached the United States. In dollar terms — the only ones, after all, that are bankable — U.S. sales to Europe totaled $53.6 billion. Purchases from Europe came to $42 billion, a U.S. trade surplus of $11.6 bilion.

That was, of course, more than offset by deficits in two other key markets — OPEC, from whose oil producers we bought $27 billion more than we sold, and Japan, where the imbalance was $9 billion in Japan's favor. These were the most massive contributions to the American global trade deficit of $25.3 billion for the year.

That is certainly bad news, of a type to which we have unfortunately grown too accustomed to. But it disguises a somewhat better word.

The State Department study is in line with the trend in which foreign trade, once a relatively minor factor in the U.S. economy as a whole, is playing an increasing and increasingly profitable role. Purchases and sales abroad now account for approximately a quarter of the gross national product, twice the comparable proportion in 1970 and almost three times that of 1950.

Of further interest is the nature of the merchandise being traded. We know all too well how hugely oil and Japanese autos contribute to the U.S. import bill. We also hear plenty about the importance of wheat and other agricultural products to exports, suggesting that in world trade the United States is becoming an industrial second-rater, primarily a source of natural resources for more efficient economies.

Less publicized are manufactured exports. Since 1973, according to Commerce Department statistics, these are up 235 percent, almost double the growth rate (131 percent) of agricultural exports.

Far from taking a beating in world trade, the United States is an increasingly active and successful participant.

All this is of more than academic interest at a time when protectionist pressures are also on the rise. Mention the auto and steel industries and you've already spoken volumes about the domestic situation.

But the protectionist sentiment itself is eminently exportable. The reluctance of the Japanese to open their home market is notorious, and there is selective resistance in Europe to American products that could be heightened by American action.

Self-indulgence in self-protection at the cost of encouraging protectionism in world trade in which we are not doing badly at all obviously would not be in our long-term interests.

In our preoccupation with the problem areas to the virtual exclusion of the bigger picture, we are behaving like the baker's super-picky customers. We're concentrating on the hole and ignoring the doughnut.

The Cosmorama Study Club met March 25 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Mrs. David Harlin and Mrs. J.D. Hinton as hostesses.

Mrs. Jerry Smith introduced Roy Baze, recently retired from Exxon Oil Co., who presented a program on energy.

Baze started his career with the company as a roughneck, and worked up to the position of executive vice-president. He worked there 33 years.

He has traveled overseas with Exxon and believes the private enterprise system and life in the United States is the best in the world, despite the energy crisis.

Baze also explained to the group Exxon's assessment of the U.S. energy environment for the period 1980-2000.

Other guests were Mrs. Herb Reed, Mrs. Roy Baze, Mrs. Dudley Owens and Mrs. James Anderson.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. T.A. Hicks, president. The next meeting has been set for April 29 with Mrs. Doug Flynn presenting the program.

Nurses Are Growing Dissatisfied With Role In Health Care Field

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When Ann Twomey decided to become a nurse, she had what she thought were normal expectations — a chance to aid and minister to the sick.

"I really thought the patient would be my top priority," says Ms. Twomey. "I felt it would be an important thing to do. I had a true concern for the sick."

But, Ms. Twomey complains, she soon found out that the patient was not her top priority, that she became instead a robot passing out pills andperforming housekeeping and clerical tasks as well.

"There was no chance to sit down and talk with a patient, to go over his disease and explain things to him or his family. There was no time to use what we had learned in school."

That was 10 years ago. Today, Ms. Twomey still nurses part-time, but she spends most of her time as the paid president of the Hospital Professional and Allied Employees of New Jersey, a union affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

She's led four nurses strikes in the state and recently exacted a very good contract for her coworkers at Englewood Hospital. Besides higher wages, the contract prohibits the hospital from moving nurses from one area to another very different field. It also picks up a good bit of the tuition for both full and part-time nurses if they choose to further their nursing educations.

Nurse Twomey, with a near classic beauty and a soft voice, is one of the growing number of nurses throughout the country pushing hard for greater professional recognition and better salaries.

And no handmaiden to the doctor: "When a doctor asks me if there is any coffee, I tell him I'll have mine with milk and sugar."

Conditions are improving, she says, but attitudes of hospital administrators have changed very little.

"The administration has always had the attitude that it wanted to teach the girls a lesson," says Ms. Twomey.

"We certainly don't have that feeling. We don't agree with unionization in a hospital setting, but we have to live with it," says Nichola Verrastro, executive director of Pascack Valley Hospital in New Jersey, a hospital struck by the nurses last year.

Problems of understaffing are aggravated by a shortage of nurses, estimated at 100,000 nationwide, and this in turn often leads to more required overtime than nurses find acceptable.

Scores of strikes and sickouts — unheard of until recent years — have hit hospitals across the country. The American Nursing Association says the number of strikes is growing.

Requests for such a recipe as this keep coming. Instead of repeating our own once again, we offer this one from "Woman's Day."

2 cups nonfat dry milk
1 cup sugar ¾ cup cornstarch ¾ teaspoon salt

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and store in airtight container in cool, dry place. Makes about 3½ cups. To make Vanilla Pudding: Put 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons Vanilla Pudding Mix in heavy saucepan and add 2 cups water. Bring to boil and boil gently 2 to 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Let stand about 15 minutes, then stir and chill. Makes 4 servings. Good with sliced fruit, chocolate sauce or coconut.

Oswald: "Here is an old favorite hand to show when it is really important to play second hand high."

Alan: "Playing at three no trump, South ducks the first spade and wins the second. Then he goes to dummy and leads a diamond. Preferably the four. If East is sitting there taking a nap, he plays his three, South plays the ten, West takes his jack and South runs off the rest of the tricks. If East is wide awake he plays his king of diamonds and the three notrump contract collapses."

Oswald: "If South lets the king hold, East rattles off enough spade tricks to defeat him, if he takes his ace, he can't ever bring in the diamond suit."

Alan: "We don't think too much of South's notrump call. He might well have rebid to three diamonds. If North passed, South would make a nice part score. If North raised to four diamonds and South continued to the diamond game, he could make it against any defense."

Oswald: "Playing in five diamonds, South must take an early diamond finesse, cash the ace and then discard a spade on dummy's third-high club. He can start by either taking, or ducking, the first spade."

THIS MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE KICKING UP THEIR HEELS... THEY BOTH HAVE NEW FIGURES FROM PAT WALKER'S

Dear Pat Walker's,
I am one of the fortunates to enjoy the benefits of Pat Walker's. I want to take this opportunity to tell others of the enjoyment and satisfaction I received from my program.
Since starting I have lost 26¾ lbs. and 30 inches. The pleasure of seeing in the mirror a small, uniformly well developed figure, not an overweight 'hippy' one is immeasureable.
My husband's jokingly saying "I'll have to shake the sheets to find you." is just one other plus resulting from the program.
One of the greatest things is to be seen with my daughters, surprise people who even think I lie when I insist we aren't all sisters, we're near the same size and look so alike.
As a result of this program, I feel good and am ready to do anything at any time. Being a 'Petite', not a 'Stout', is pure pleasure.
At last I enjoy all my outdoor hobbies, swimming, horses, volleyball and lots of others.
Peggy Bowen, El Paso

Dear Pat Walker's,
This is my personal report of one of the most exhilarating and enjoyable experiences of my life.
It seems I've always been overweight, particularly in the hips. I tried diets and various exercises without doing much good.
HALLELUJAH! Things happened. I lost 23 lbs. and 36 inches. I now wear size 7 dress and pants. I can live with and be proud of those figures at the same time. How pleasant it is to have friends find it hard to realize this is a 'NEW YOU', to have my husband so very pleased and able to carry me without fear of back injury.
Now I am not self-concious of my appearance when I am enjoying my hobbies, western dancing, horseback riding and working out-of-doors with flowers. They way I feel now I'm sure I'll be adding other pursuits.
I can never say or be grateful enough for the wonderful, helpful program and staff at Pat Walker's.
Darla Bowen Elder, El Paso

Film Industry Awaits Bestowing Of Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After spending nearly $3 million on an advertising blitz to promote the nominees, the film industry is awaiting the results of tonight's Academy Awards with visions of bulging box-office receipts.

The 13½-inch, gold-plated statuettes may look prestigious on a shelf, but the real gold associated with the Oscars comes in different forms.

For instance, a winner such as last year's best actress — Sally Field, star of "Norma Rae" — could expect a jump of several hundred thousand dollars for each subsequent film and the pick of scripts.

The best-picture award often means an extra $5 million to $10 million at the box office, according to industry experts, as well as increased revenue from television, cable and other markets.

Film companies attempted to sway Academy voters by spending between $2 million and $3 million on trade paper advertisements, special screenings and the like during the past weeks. After the awards are announced, new ads will tout the winners.

United Artists expanded the potential audience for "Raging Bull" by bringing it into 690 theaters last Friday. The film was nominated for eight awards, and its star, Robert De Niro, is the favorite to win as best actor.

Said a company spokesman: "The film market is slow right now, and we're hoping that 'Raging Bull' will pick up a number of Oscars."

Paramount, with "Ordinary People" expected to win for best picture, had no plans to widen the film's release, although it certainly would accept new bookings. The film is now playing in 400 theaters. The film's director, Robert Redford, is considered a good bet for best director.

Universal, with Sissy Spacek the favorite as best actress in "Coal Miner's Daughter," doesn't plan to rerelease its film. Said Gordon Armstrong, the company's advertising, publicity and promotion vice president: "The last trip around was not too successful, and the picture has about played itself out. An Oscar is not too important unless it's for best picture and-or a lot of awards."

Industry experts note the annual celebration by the Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts and Sciences also has an impact worldwide. This year's telecast will be viewed in 65 countries with an audience predicted to be 300 million.

The ABC television network will carry the ceremonies in the United States, beginning at 10 p.m. EST. Johnny Carson returns as emcee, and Lucie Arnaz stars in the opening number, appropriately entitled "Hoooray for Hollywood!"

Meanwhile, movie fans who want to place a wager on their favorite nominee are out of luck this year in Nevada. State gaming authorities have outlawed non-sport betting in casino sports books.

Nevada gaming authorities cracked down recently after a wave of publicity over oddsmaker Bob Martin's bet-taking on the identity of the villain who shot J.R. in the popular "Dallas" television series.

Lawmakers Live On Welfare Pay

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The money — a $361 welfare budget — and the month are coming to an end at about the same time for state Rep. Don Gettings. And while he says welfare recipients don't live "too comfortably," it's still "possible to live on that amount of money."

The freshman Democratic legislator and two other lawmakers from Ottumwa spent March on a welfare budget because of a challenge from a constituent-welfare recipient.

The month ends Tuesday, and Gettings figures he'll make it through without going over budget.

"I've spent all but about $52, but I have to go to the grocery store this morning and I've got to figure in last night's meal yet, so by the time I figure those items in, I'll have some money left," Gettings said Friday. "I shouldn't have any problem making it through."

Gettings, who took part in the experiment with Democratic Rep. Charles Poncy and Republican Sen. Sue Yenger, is ready for the month to end, although he said: "I don't intend to go on any wild spending spree."

The test, prompted by Theresa Cole, drew nationwide attention — interviews on radio talk shows, network television news stories and reports in major newspapers.

That exposure, Mrs. Cole says, was the experiment's real success, although, "we wanted the legislators to do it because they are the ones that do make the laws and sign the papers."

Mrs. Cole, her husband, a disabled factory worker, and their two children receive Aid to Dependent Children benefits of $419 and $154 in food stamps monthly.

For Gettings and Poncy, who are married and have no children at home, the equivalent monthly budget was $361 in ADC benefits and food stamps. Mrs. Yenger, who is married and has two children, had a budget of $573.

D.M. COGDELL MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
SNYDER RADIOLOGIST INCORPORATION

ARE ANNOUNCING SEPARATE BILLING

EFFECTIVE FROM APRIL 1st, 1981

WHY THE RADIOLOGIST'S BILL
IS SEPARATE FROM THE HOSPITAL BILL

The radiologist is a private physician specializing in the use of x-rays and radioactive substances used in medial diagnosis and therapy. Your physician requested the services of the radiologist in interpreting the results of your recent examination in the X-ray Department.

With some examinations, the radiologist was personally involved in the examination. If you had only films made, your personal contact may have been solely with the technologist. Once the films were made and checked, they were presented to the radiologist for his interpretation, as well as his written and oral consultation with your physician.

The hospital bill will include a charge for x-ray to cover the use of its equipment, the films, supplies, and technical personnel. The bill from the radiologist is for his professional consultative services.

Dear Abby

Couple's 'True Love' Tested by Past

By Abigail Van Buren

1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl who needs your help. In my teens I did a lot of drugs and drank alcohol because I was never at peace with myself unless I was sleeping or stoned.

I'm straight now and have accepted Jesus as my personal savior. I still live with my parents, but I feel like a prisoner because I'm not allowed to make my own decisions.

Three months ago I met a wonderful Christian man who has also had his problems with drugs and alcohol. (I'll call him Tom.) Tom is on parole now. We are very much in love and plan to marry. He says he will not have sex with me until after we are married. He is kind and good and treats me with respect. Abby, this love is true. I know we can make it together.

My parents have never met Tom. I'm afraid to introduce him because I know they won't approve of him. Tom wants to meet them, but I've been putting it off because I'm afraid they will make him feel uncomfortable and hurt his feelings. I plan to marry Tom with or without my parents' approval. Tom's father is the only one who knows about our plans.

Should I risk causing a family fight by introducing Tom and telling my parents of our plans? Or should I go ahead and marry him and prove afterward that we can make it together?

TORMENTED

DEAR TORMENTED: Introduce Tom to your parents. (If you don't, he will think you are ashamed of him.)

Feeling "tormented" as you do, please confide in your clergyman and let him counsel you. It would be a mistake to marry Tom while so many doubts and fears exist. If your love is "true," marriage can wait until you are absolutely sure. Please heed this advice and write again soon. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting a baby in about three months and have been very careful not to smoke, drink or even consume caffeine during my pregnancy. I hope to continue to give our baby the most healthful environment possible after he (or she) is born.

The problem is my mother-in-law. She is a heavy smoker, and I would prefer that she not subject our baby to her secondhand smoke. Studies have confirmed the theory that babies who have been exposed to secondhand smoke have a higher incidence of respiratory illness.

My mother-in-law smokes one cigarette after another and she's anything but gracious when she's told her smoke is bothersome or irritating.

After our baby comes, my husband and I intend to ask her to please step outside if she wants to smoke. But what if it's raining or dark outside?

MRS. S., PARKDALE, ORE.

DEAR MRS. S.: If it's raining, give her an umbrella. And if it's dark, give her a flashlight.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 17-year-old sitter who complained that her $1 per hour baby-sitting wage was the same as her mother made when she was a girl.

I'm 33, and 17 years ago I sat for 25¢ an hour and was glad to get the job. One family had five children from 9 years old to a year. I changed diapers, fed them all dinner, bathed them and put them to bed, all for the same 25¢ an hour. It was part of my job.

I now have a 6-year-old son for whom I need sitters. I pay $1.50 an hour, and when the sitter comes my son has already had his dinner and bath and is ready for bed.

I've had some sitters who have eaten up a week's supply of groceries — with some help from their friends who have visited without my consent. Others have gone through my drawers, used my cosmetics, tried on my clothes, gabbed for hours on my phone, entertained their boyfriends (on my bed), smoked pot and scratched my albums.

I once had a sitter ask me not to call her again because I didn't have a color television!

HAD IT WITH SITTERS

Cowboy Hall Doesn't Like Being Fenced In

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The National Cowboy Hall of Fame, that monument to the free-spirited son of the saddle, is giving local tourism leaders financial indigestion as bad as ever came from a cattle drive chuck wagon.

There's talk that the huge museum wants to head 'em up, move 'em out and leave town in search of a warmer welcome.

Museum director Dean Krakel echoes the lament of the old-time Westerner in his major complaint — the cowboy complex is being fenced in. The "fencing," he maintains, is being done by what he sees as "cheap" establishments, including service stations, fast food outlets and liquor stores.

Krakel says the museum earned only $456,000 the last half of 1980, compared with $1.2 million for the comparable period of 1979.

It was 26 years ago that Oklahoma City outbid Dodge City, Kan., and Colorado Springs, Colo., for the shrine — officially the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center — that now sprawls in modernistic concrete and glass buildings atop Persimmon Hill on the northeast outskirts of the city.

The idea for a Cowboy Hall of Fame had been around for years. In the 1950s, trustees were appointed by 17 western states to pick a site.

It was the site offered by Oklahoma City that sealed the decision. Glenn Faris, then executive secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, recalled he was driving down U.S. 66 "and passed that hill. I snapped my fingers and said, 'That's it.'"

The main building alone covers 80,000 square feet and houses western artwork valued at $33 million, including paintings and sculptures by Frederic Remington.

In a separate building stands the monumental "End of the Trail" statue, an exhausted Indian on his pony. A 33-foot-tall Buffalo Bill beckons visitors.

The lower level of the main building has full-sized models of an Indian encampment, gold prospectors, a sod house and a western street with a general store, newspaper office, doctor's office, blacksmith, gunsmith and saloon.

Famous rodeo horses are buried on the grounds to the rear.

This is what Krakel has threatened to try to move if the city and state don't solve the problems he sees. And local leaders are concerned about other attractions might leave town if the museum were no longer there — such as the National Finals Rodeo and several major annual horse shows, events the Chamber of Commerce say pump at least $20 million a year into the economy.

Krakel, who has been with the museum from the beginning, first threatened a move in an emotional appearance before the city council in January. He was particularly upset over planned construction of the federally subsidized Chaparral Townhouses near the hall.

Solution Near In Wood Case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury has heard all the witnesses it subpoenaed, and federal officials have indicated indictments could be handed up soon in connection with the assassination almost two years ago of U.S. District Judge John Wood.

The panel recessed Friday after the 10th and final witness, Theresa Starr Jasper, 23, went to jail rather than tell what she knows about the shooting in front of Wood's townhouse.

Federal officials refused to answer questions about when the grand jury would reconvene, although indications were the panel might come back together Wednesday.

Targets in the investigation have been identified as El Paso brothers Jimmy and Joe Chagra and convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, who is married to Ms. Jasper's mother.

Ms. Jasper was ordered jailed 60 miles away in Uvalde County Jail after she refused to answer about a dozen questions while she was in front of the grand jury, despite being granted immunity from prosecution.

Officials said she had the key to the jail "in your pocket" because she could be released whenever she decided to answer the grand jury's questions. They had her jailed in Uvalde because of overcrowded conditions in the Bexar County Jail at San Antonio.

FBI director William Webster said in Washington, D.C., last week that officials know who ordered Wood's assassination and who carried out the contract and that a solution in the case was imminent.

Dallas newspapers quoted sources as saying federal officials had a tape recording of a conversation between the Chagra brothers last year in a federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., in which Jimmy Chagra told his brother that he hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

Joe Chagra is a lawyer. Jimmy Chagra is serving a 30-year term for continuing criminal enterprise, after having been accused of being a principal figure in drug smuggling into the United States from Colombia.

FBI agents searched Joe Chagra's house on Feb. 27 and seized a tape recording of a telephone conversation last year between Chagra and Harrelson in which Harrelson mentioned the shooting.

Harrelson was convicted in the 1968 contract killing of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. He was released on parole in 1979, and is being held now on unrelated state charges in Houston.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears sentenced Ms. Jasper to an indefinite jail term after she refused twice on Friday to answer questions asked during her hour-long session with the grand jury.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Needs help with diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 37 and would like to weigh 107 but even with exercise and nibbling, my weight is hard to control. Is it possible that I'm retaining water because I'm not eating right? I eat one fruit a day, no bread or milk, some protein like an egg or a small steak, a few vegetables, some lettuce, carrots, tomatoes. In the evening I have a big bowl of ice milk, usually just before retiring. I walk about four miles a day.

Do you need bread? Do you need to eat every day? Do you need a certain amount of protein every day?

DEAR READER — You certainly do need some help. First, are you sure you should only weigh 107? Being too lean is not healthy, particularly for young women. A normal amount of body fat tissue is important in forming an adequate amount of female hormones and, apparently, in maintaining the important balance between the hypothalamus of the brain, the pituitary hormones and your female hormones. That is one reason why women who are too thin develop menstrual problems.

Second, your diet is horrible. Yes, you need protein every day to help prevent loss of muscle mass when you are on a calorie-deficient diet. And you need milk for an adequate intake of calcium or you must take calcium supplements. Bread isn't essential if you get bran and vitamins from other sources. That big bowl of ice milk may contain a lot of calories because it is sweet.

I suggest you get on a balanced diet that limits calories sufficiently to prevent obesity. The diet in The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which I am sending you, will be a good starting point. You can add other foods or more of those on the lists if you need more calories to maintain your weight once you reach a desirable level. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Incidentally, I don't approve of fasting. The washing out of body water with that technique is unhealthy and is not loss of body fat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have low blood pressure and a good portion of the time I feel dizzy and weak. Are there some foods I could eat and some form of exercise that would help? I am so tired of feeling depressed because of this condition.

DEAR READER — Better check with your doctor. If you have chronic fatigue it may not be from low blood pressure. Many people with low blood pressure feel just fine and full of pep. They tend to live longer than people with so-called normal pressure levels.

If you do indeed just have low blood pressure and it causes you to feel dizzy on standing, you might try some pressure stockings, which could help by preventing blood from pooling in your legs when you stand. Being physically fit from walking or jogging can help, too.

Finally, if you tend to have unusually low blood pressure, carry identification with you that lists your usual blood pressure. If you happen to be unconscious from an accident, those taking care of you will be able to do a better job if they know that is normal for you. I'm afraid diet won't help much, but do avoid being thin.

Snyder Tracksters Show Well Here

Lubbock Dunbar boys and Sweetwater girls took top honors in varsity divisions of the Canyon Reef Relays, held Saturday at Tiger Stadium, but Snyder High School was also well represented.

Dunbar polled a number of firsts and gathered 32 points from relays alone to win the Division III team title with 125⅔. Second was a powerful Rotan squad that pulled down 117. Snyder got 33 points for fifth place.

Glenn Parham brought in Snyder's lone first-place ribbon, taking the high jump field with a leap of 6-2. Parham, still suffering from nagging leg ailments, did not compete in any other event.

A pair of thirds added to the total as Keith Wallace sailed 20-11½ in the long jump and Matt Davis ran an 11.3 100 meters. Other ribbons taken were a fourth in the 3200 run by Davis Hines (11:05.0), fifth in the 300 intermediate hurdles by Tim Wilson (44.0), fifth in the pole vault by Derwin Price (11-0), sixth in the 1600 run by Darryl Boone (2:09.4), and sixth in the 200 meters by Davis (23.5).

Ira standouts Robert Mitchell and Wade Pierson continued their bid for a state showing later this season by finishing 1-2 in the high hurdles. Mitchell, who also took sixth in the shot put, flashed the 110 meters distance in 15.0, just five-hundredths of a second ahead of 1980 state qualifier Pierson.

Six records were broken and a new one set in the girls ranks, although a strong, gusting wind may keep some of the new entries from actually reaching the books.

Sweetwater, given record-setting performances by Teresa West in the shot and discus, won the team title with 148 points. Mustang runner Evelyn Reddi also earned a record, speeding to a time of 25.5 in the 200 meters. Coahoma, blessed with some of the best depth of the meet, took second with 100½.

Feline competitor Lisa Cobb soared 17-feet, 11-inches to smash the old long jump mark of 17-0½ set in 1980. It also shattered the Snyder High School previous best, which had been held by her sister, Demetre, 17-1, set in 1977. Roby's Mary Nell Clayton also bested the old record with her second-place leap of 17-6½, as did another Snyder product, Kerstin Selmon, with a 17-4 lunge for third place.

Snyder also snapped the 400 meter relay mark. Cobb, Pam Brown, Sherry Spells and Brenda Anderson eclipsed the track in 49.9, nine-tenths of a second faster than San Angelo Lake View's record-setting pace of 1979. The time was also a school record, bettering the 1980 run of 50.92 set by Anderson, Ramona Murphy, Brown and Tammy Pruitt.

These efforts and others, including a one-two-three sweep of the 100 meters, gave Snyder third place and 90 points for the meet. With two of the top sprinters running the 800 meter relay, only a false start prevented the Felines from chalking over 100 for the afternoon - far better than their previous best of 39.

Brown and Cobb were awarded a tie for first place in the 100 meter dash, both hitting the string at 12.6. Anderson took third at only five-tenths off the pace, 12.65.

Brown also earned extra honors, placing third in the 200 meters dash with a run of 25.8.

As usual, Anderson also fared well in the field events, notching second in the shot put with a throw of 38-8½, behind West's (Sweetwater) record-snapping toss of 40-4½. Anderson's heave snapped the SHS school record of 38-5½ which she set at the state meet last year. She placed third in the triple jump with an effort of 33-2½, behind teammate Selmon, who took second with a 33-10½. Roby's Clayton, a perennial state contender, won the event with another record-breaker leap of 35-11.

Snyder garnered only one place in one event past third - showing the lack of depth that has hurt the team this season and in past years as well. The Feline 1600 relay team placed sixth with a 4:48.5. Running in that event were Spells, Penny Wolfe, Debra Cline and Patty Gleastine.

Tragedy struck the Feline squad early in the day when Kelly Dryden apparently pulled a hamstring near the finish line of her heat in the 100 meter hurdles. Dryden, who may be able to return by the April 10 district meet, would have won the heat easily.

Locals Compete In Weekend Pull

SWEETWATER -- Larry Lee drove his "Flamin 44" 143-4 to claim first place in the 6200 Economy Tractor division of the Rolling Plains Championship Tractor Pull here Saturday. Lee pulled the sled just one inch more than Roscoe's Henry Don Parrott, aboard "Asleep at the Wheel".

Lee led a group of Snyder and area WTTPA members who reaped honors in the two-day event held at Nolan County Coliseum and sponsored by the Roscoe Jaycees. He also took eighth in the 5200 Modified Tractor division on Friday. Parrott also took 11th in the 5200 Modified division.

Royce and Tommy Patterson garnered second places; Royce taking his in the 5200 Modified on Friday and Tommy nailing his in the 6000 Open 4WD Pickup division Saturday. Tommy Patterson also took fourth in the 5500 Open 4WD Pickups, aboard "Ole Yeller", and Royce grabbed sixth in the 6200 Economy Tractor class.

Another top finisher was Jesse Allen, who, driving "Snoopy", finished third in the 5500 Open 4WD and fourth in the 6000 Open 4WD. Freeman Pulling team, from Roscoe, aboard "Free I", notched fourth in the 6200 Tractor and 13th in the 5200 Modified, and 14th on "II Free" in the 5200 Modified.

Jimmy Shannon and Jimmy Don Lloyd, the J & J Pulling Team, placed fifth in the 5500 4WD Pickups and sixth in the 6000 4WD Pickups. Taking fifths were "Mama's Mink" in the 9200 Modified with Eldon Kirkpatrick driving, and Manual Garcia of Rotan in the 6200 Economy class. Kirkpatrick also competed in the 7200 Modified class.

Netters Notch 2nd At Meet

FORT STOCKTON -- Snyder gathered in 84 points to finish second place in the Fort Stockton Team Tournament held here over the weekend. Fort Stockton won the meet; Hereford finished second.

Snyder entertains Sweetwater at SHS on Tuesday afternoon, hoping to conclude their district dual match which has been scheduled and postponed four times previously. The match should have no bearing on the 2-4A dual match championship however. Fort Stockton took that title several weeks ago and Snyder finished second.

Snyder took second and third in boys doubles here. Jon Smith and Jimmy Fowler won three matches and lost one to place second. Teammates Mark Cypert and Richard Derrick grabbed third with a 3-1 record.

Kelly Scott also earned Snyder a second place with a 3-1 record, and Chris Wiman took fifth in boys singles with a 3-1 mark. Sixteen competitors were entered in each division.

Other results involving the Tigers had Sam Helms and Rosie Peralez finishing 10th with 2-2 records in boys and girls singles, respectively. Also taking 10th were the girls doubles teams of Pam Smith and Mindy Aldridge, 2-2, and Patti Clark and Lisa Thompson, 2-2.

The District 2-AAAA tournament is slated for April 9-10-11 in Midland. Seeding for the meet will be released next week.

Cats Win Relays

Snyder freshmen kicked out for several blue ribbons, including a sweep of the relays, to win division I of the Canyon Reef Tournament here Friday by a 53⅔ point margin.

The Cats got points in every event except the weights to total 128⅜ points. Second was Slaton with 80, followed by Sweetwater with 65 and Rotan with 62.

Forty points came from the relays alone as Carlos Carrisalez, Tyrone Dunkins, Norman Malone and Eddie Ramos burned a 46.8 time through the sprint relay. Malone, Ramos, John Smith and Roy Silva won the 1600 meter relay, posting a time of 3:48.3, four seconds ahead of second-place Slaton.

Most of Snyder's other big points came from the sprints, where the Cats finished 1-2-4 in the 100 meters and 1-4 in the 200. Malone dashed to an 11.9 winning time in the 100 meters, only .5 seconds ahead of teammate Dunkins. Carrisalez took third with a 12.04. Dunkins added to his point total by winning the 200 meters in 24.2. Carrisalez finished fourth in 25-flat.

Malone also brought in points in two other events, taking second in the long jump with a 19-7¾ effort. He finished in a three way tie for sixth in the high jump with a 5-1 jump.

Tigers Split With Loboes

LEVELLAND -- Snyder and Levelland traded victories in doubleheader action here Saturday, the Loboes taking the opener 5-2 and the Tigers retaliating in the late game, 12-3.

Snyder, now 10-6 on the season, gets back to District 2-4A play Tuesday, playing the visitors role at Monahans for a 7:30 p.m. start.

The Tigers committed four errors in the first game Saturday, giving the Loboes the punch they needed. Levelland got a single, two walks and a sacrifice to take a 2-0 lead. Snyder answered with one run in the third as Brent Roemisch doubled and Perry Echols followed with a single, but the hosts also garnered a run in stanza, 3-1.

The key came in the fifth, when Tony Long and Eric Franklin both got aboard via errors and - despite a double play moments later - got singles from Glenn Copeland and Shelby Hines to grab a 5-1 margin.

Snyder's John Wilson also found the bag via an error in the seventh and Brent Roemisch walked. Echols sacrificed Wilson home but winning pitcher Franklin closed the doors with a strikeout to preserve the 5-2 victory.

Gerald Don Hicks absorbed the loss. He was relieved after two innings by Brent Roemisch. The pair allowed eight hits and two walks in six innings, and struck out four. Hicks is now 2-2.

Franklin, who gave up seven hits, walked two and had eight strikeouts, proved to be the only pitching weapon the Loboes could come up with. Snyder came back in the second game to rap Paul Herring at will, banging 16 hits in a 12-3 victory.

The Tigers did early damage in a in a five-run first inning. Brent Roemisch, Echols, Curtis Gafford and David Rios all slapped singles. Gary Edmiaston knocked a double and Mike Roemisch got aboard when he was hit by a pitch.

Levelland made it a 5-2 ballgame with two runs off of a walk and two errors in the bottom of the first. The hosts trimmed the margin to 5-3 when Herring got a double in the second inning and Snyder followed with two more errors, but that would be the extent of their scoring.

The clincher came in the fourth and fifth, when Snyder canned Herring for eight hits, including a triple and a home run, and received two walks. The Roemisch brothers both singled, as did Tony Degrate, Casey Peterson, Gafford and Echols. Degrate also knocked one over the fence, and Gafford also had a triple.

The blitz left Snyder with an 11-3 lead. The Tigers added one more in the seventh when Rios took first on an error, Wilson sacrificed him around and Echols knocked him home.

Wilson, 2-0, took winning pitcher honors. Tommy Gressett and Jesse Hernandez also got in an inning apiece.

DON'T RETIRE BROKE

How much money do you need to retire, and how do you plan to accumulate it?

It is a fair bet that your social security and-or your company retirement plan will not be adequate.

Everyone should make provision for additional savings and an investment program with a proper growth factor. Poorly placed investment dollars are very destructive to your overall financial plan.

It's essential that you develop an investment plan with a rate of return (cash return and-or appreciation) greater than the current inflation rate. Failure to do so means that you could have less purchasing power on the date of retirement than the total purchasing power you gave up in all your years of savings.

Consider for the minute the effect of inflation at various percentages over a number of years.

REDUCTION IN PURCHASING POWER

Inflation Rate	Number of Years 1	5	10	15	20
6%	-6	-26	-45	-60	-70
8%	-8	-33	-55	-70	-80
10%	-10	-40	-63	-78	-86
12%	-12	-45	-70	-83	-91

Please note that the loss in purchasing power at 8% for ten years is 55%. This approximates the loss in purchasing power of our dollar in the last ten years when inflation has averaged about 8%. If our current inflation rate of 12% to 13% continues, the investor is faced with an even greater challenge.

This loss in purchasing power affects not only the retired person on a fixed income, but also the individual trying to accumulate assets for future retirement.

Since permanent and total disability could be the one factor which keeps you from carrying out your financial plan, see that you have a proper disability program. The chances are substantially greater that you will be disabled before retirement age than they are of your dying before that time.

Former Lawmaker Convicted

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A former state legislator was convicted Saturday on a sexual assault charge for allegedly raping an 18-year-old secretary in his Capitol office after helping her celebrate her high school graduation.

A jury of eight women and four men returned the guilty verdict on the charge of second-degree sexual assault against State Rep. Walter Ward, D-Milwaukee.

Ward, 37, sat silently during the reading of the verdict and did not acknowledge reporters' questions as a bailiff took him away to the Dane County Jail following revocation of bail.

The victim, now 19, appeared to be fighting off tears as Circuit Judge James Boll read the verdict. Her mother and a friend gasped when it was announced, and then cried and embraced the young woman as Ward was led from the courtroom.

Ward, who was defeated in the September primary but continued in office through the end of the year when his term ended, did not deny having sexual intercourse with the secretary in his Capitol office the evening of June 2, 1980. But he said the woman had consented.

He said the consent came after the two spent an afternoon at a downtown bar and restaurant celebrating the woman's graduation from high school.

Boll ordered a presentence investigation in the case. He revoked Ward's bail, a $10,000 signature bond, at the request of Dane County Assistant District Attorney C. William Foust.

Second-degree sexual assault carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

No One To Pump Gasoline

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Waiting for an attendant to pump gasoline or to pay at one service station in Odessa is a long wait. There are no workers.

The key to getting a fill-up is for the driver to insert a key into a numbered keyhole inside a master control panel. Gasoline going through the station's two pumps is automatically registered and charged to that particular key account.

The station is owned and operated by Phillips Petroleum for 150 company vehicles in this area.

Farmer Says Pig Most Misunderstood Critter

By ANN JOHNSON
The Phoenix Gazette

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Pigs, they say, are called pigs because they are such dirty animals, right? Wrong, says pig rancher Paul Beaver.

"They're about the most misunderstood critters there ever was," says Beaver, who as owner of the Running R. Ranch near Buckeye has raised 400 to 500 of them a year for the past 15 years.

Porkers may be fine in your refrigerator's meat drawer properly packaged in pristine, cellophane containers.

Otherwise, like comedian Rodney Dangerfield, they don't get no respect. They're victims of bad press, bad puns and bad reputations.

Consider: It's no compliment to tell someone he smells like a pig, and telling him he looks like a pig isn't nice either. Liken his eating habits to a pig's and he'll never speak to you again.

"Pigs in clover" are people who have money but don't know how to behave decently. "To drive one's pigs to market" is to snore very loudly. "To pig it" is to eat in a greedy manner or live slovenly.

Beaver, who says he's friends with some of his pigs, claims all that is undeserved. He puts fat on their backs and they put fat in his wallet.

But the real beauty of the beast, he says, is they're all giving — or at least in his case they typically give their all.

And they're humble, eventempered and really quite smart — "smarter than a dog," says Beaver.

After all, aren't piglets' tightly curled tails and their little cloven hooves cute?

Besides, "They're the cleanest animal on the farm," says Beaver. "A hog is as clean as the person who's raising it. Course, that doesn't say a whole lot for me."

But going on: "A hog don't necessarily like mud holes and water," he contends. "They're forced to it by the temperature. In the summer when it starts getting hotter and hotter and they have three-quarter-inches of fat on their backs ... it would be like you with three or four overcoats on. You'd wallow in mud, too."

When Beaver and his family first went into the hog-raising business with just six sows, they named their favorites. There was Old Spotty and Big Red and Mommy-O.

"Then you could always name them after your friends," he adds.

But the family found that naming a pig bound for slaughter was not a good idea because when the time came to pack him off, he wasn't just any old pig. He was Spotty or big Red or Mommy-O and that was very sad indeed.

So now Beaver's pens are filled with nameless pigs. But he still feels a tinge of remorse when he loads his livelihood in a big truck and to market he goes.

"The more you're around them, the more you know each hog's own look, his own personality," he says. "You kinda feel like a vulture taking life when you live with so much life."

Pigs are smart, Beaver Says. They don't need to be taught to use the automatic water dispenser that, with the pressures of a snout, spills water into a small trough. "A dog would die of thirst before he figured it out."

They also have very good memories, he says. "You don't pull the same trick on a hog twice."

If pigs have a drawback, it's that they are incredibly curious — "they're worse than a kid," says Beaver.

New items in their pens can give hours of enjoyment and occasionally Beaver will toss in some beach balls — they love that. Their curiosity can be a problem, though. Just the other day Beaver was mending the inside fence and laid a tool down. One of the little critters swiped it and he hasn't seen it since.

He's never had a pig for a house pet, though he says they make excellent "guard dogs." The trouble with them as pets, he says, is that one day you've got a cute little piglet to hold on your lap and then within six months it's taking up the entire couch.

Beaver is eager to dispell other myths about pigs. He says they won't overeat: they'll eat only what they need. "And if you say someone eats like a hog, you're only saying there's very little food and a lot of hogs," he says. "Put one cupcake among a group of kids and they'll do the same thing."

Police Probe Four Mishaps

Police investigated four traffic mishaps, made a couple of drug busts and discovered a burglary, over the weekend.

The first mishap occurred at 11:50 a.m. Sunday at 1900 Huffman. Involved were a 1980 Buick, driven by Anita Farmer of Rt. 3, and a 1980 GMC, driven by John Williams of Rt. 2 Merkel.

The second mishap occurred at 2:32 p.m. at 30th and College Ave. Involved were a 1976 Ford, driven by Johnny Dean Ervin of 3312 O'Neil St. and a 1978 Ford, driven by Antonio Rojas Garcia of 2409 30th St.

At 7:40 a.m. Saturday, a 1972 Oldsmobile, driven by Joe Garcia of 2201 Ave. M hit a wall and an ice box owned by Kwik Grocery at 2704 25th St. Damage was estimated at $500.

At 11:02 p.m. Saturday, a 1974 Ford owned by Gregory Stewart hit a sign belonging to the Texas Highway Department.

Police also apprehended three suspects in two separate incidents and charged them with possession of marijuana, less than two ounces.

At 2:11 a.m. Saturday, doors to the farm league field house in Towle Park were discovered pried open and the locks missing. Jimmy Ward, county park superintendent was notified and could find nothing else missing, although several sacks of lime were ripped open.

Storage Shed Fire Doused

Firemen extinguished two fires Saturday. The first was a storage house burning at Smith and Ave. O. The shed belonged to A.J. Armstead. That blaze was reported at 2:05 p.m.

Firemen also extinguished a grass fire located five miles from town on south U.S. Highway 84. The call came in at 7:30.

Man Stable After Hijacker Shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas native who jumped from a hijacked Indonesian jetliner after being shot in the back was in "stable" condition today after a bullet was removed from his spine, an oilfield supply company official says.

Carl Schneider, 44, who is originally from Texas but has lived out of the country for the past 15 years, underwent surgery and "is doing pretty well," according to Bud Hamilton, senior vice president and general manager of Milchem Co., a Houston-based firm. He was in a Bangkok hospital early today.

Hamilton said by phone Sunday that officials in Bangkok, Thailand, had called him and told him a bullet lodged in Schneider's spine had been removed, but that it would be some time before it was known if Schneider sustained permanent injury.

Schneider, manager of Milchem's Indonesian operation, was en route to Sumatra on a business trip when the hijacking occurred, Hamilton said.

He was the second person to flee from the DC-9 Garuda jetliner parked at Bangkok's Don Muang airport. Officials said 55 hostages remained on the plane Sunday.

Schneider and his wife Linda, an English citizen, made their home in Jakarta, Indonesia, where Schneider had been working for about four months following an assigment in Athens, Greece, Hamilton said.

Arrangements were being made to fly Mrs. Schneider from Jakarta to Bangkok, he said.

Schneider's mother, whose name was not immediately available, lives in Lubbock, Texas, Hamilton said, and been kept informed of her son's condition.

Milchem, a subsidiary of Baker International Corp., is headquartered in Houston and employs about 1,400 people.

The company specializes in drilling fluids and related equipment.
