Rights Compromise Sought

Ike May Help Soften Southern Filibuster

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate began its second week of civil rights debate today with President Eisenhower the chief key to a compromise that might soften a no-holds barred southern filibuster.

A sizeable number of senators appeared in the mood for compromise. But these included Republicans who might be less conciliatory if the President urged them to fight for the bill "as is."

A hint of Eisenhower's attitude was given by Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.), author of one compromise proposal. Mundt told newsmen Sunday he does not believe the President will try to influence the Senate vote on his compromise.

Mundt's proposal would eliminate two of the features in the pending civil rights bill most objectionable to southerners. It would do away with provisions for injunctions in rights cases other than voting complaints; and it would provide jury trials for violations of injunctions in voting cases in which the facts are in dispute.

This would meet the main objection of southerners to the House-approved administration bill. Otherwise the bill provides for a new civil rights division in the Justice Department and a bipartisan commission with subpoena powers to investigate alleged voting rights violations.

The Senate has agreed to vote at about 6 p.m. e.d.t. Tuesday on a preliminary motion to formally consider the administration bill. This is expected to carry easily itself a major landmark in civil rights legislation. No motion to even consider a rights bill has survived a southern filibuster in recent years.

There was a fairly widespread belief in the Senate that it will ultimately pass a bill, limited primarily to protection of voting rights, and perhaps without a full-blown southern filibuster. Even some southerners privately shared this view.

MILWAUKEE (UP)—John Schubert, 48, still can't figure out what everybody's so mad about. Schubert confessed Friday that he robbed the same tavern twice during the past two months. But he said he spent every cent of his loot at the tavern's bar.

Another traffic fatality was added to the list for Gray County this year when David L. Shelton, 29, 1029 Huff Rd., died at Highland General Hospital at 9 p.m. yesterday as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident earlier in the day.

The investigating highway patrolman reported that the accident occurred 10 1/2 miles southeast of Pampa on an oiled county road at 3:10 p.m. The road is east of the Phillips Gray plant, located west of Lefors.

The officer reported that Shelton and Charlie Ford, 1116 N. Stark weather, were in Ford's 1952 Plymouth and the car turned over when they attempted to take a curve at apparently a too high rate of speed.

The accident is still being investigated by the officer, he reported this morning, as all of the information on the cause of the mishap is not complete.

Ford is still in the hospital and attendants reported this morning that he was doing satisfactorily. The extent of his injuries were not reported.

David Shelton was born in Snyder on Sept. 28, 1927, and had been a resident of Pampa for the past 20 years. He served in the Navy for four years after attending school in Pampa. His area of service was in the Pacific during World War II. He has been employed by the Phillips Chemical Company at Borger for the past five years.

He is survived by his wife, Glyndene; one son, David Leo Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Shelton of Pampa; one brother, Charles G. Shelton Jr. of Fairfield, Calif.; and three sisters, Mrs. Oleta Meadows, Vallejo, Calif.; Mrs. Lois Myers of Pampa and Mrs. Marjorie Baxter of Levelland.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Man Fined On Check Charge

One case of swindling with worthless check was brought before County Court today.

Harold W. Bredenkamp of Pampa pleaded guilty to the charge, and Gray County Judge Bruce Parker fined him $1 and costs plus 30 days in jail.

Bredenkamp gave a worthless check to the Williams Gulf Service Station here for $10 on June 7, 1957.

Pampan Held For Wheeler

The local police department is holding Frank Allen Jr. of Pampa for the sheriff's department in Wheeler.

Allen was arrested at 8:15 p.m. yesterday after the local officers were notified by Sheriff Bus Dorman of Wheeler that his office had a warrant for Allen's arrest.

Sheriff Dorman was to pick Allen up today and return him to Wheeler. It was not known at the police department what charge had been filed against Allen.

'Dud' A-Bomb Fired Today

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (UP)—Dud bomb Diablo, which failed to fire June 28 when it was triggered on top of its 500-foot platform, was fired today at 4:30 a.m., p.d.t. at the Atomic Energy Commission's proving ground.

The blast developed the usual characteristics of nuclear devices as it disintegrated its tower and sent a cloud mushrooming into the predawn darkness. A faint glow silhouetted the mountain backdrop.

Scientists at a pre-shot briefing announced they expected the device to have a yield of some 10,000 tons of TNT.

The blast was plainly visible in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Immediately after the firing observers described the fireball as having a thick stem with a weird-looking purple glow hanging around its entire edge.

Glow Remained

The fireball was not visible 15 seconds later but the glow resembling purple phosphorescence continued to encircle the mass as it rose to some 15,000 feet within two minutes.

At ground zero a small fire was visible from the observation point. Helicopters and cloud-tracking planes swarmed into the area from such distant bases as Orlando, Fla., and Wright-Patterson Field, Ohio in addition to western air bases.

Diablo, an experimental device designed by the University of California Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., had an audience of some 500 military observers, including 100 Canadians.

Involved in the test was a manned underground shelter some 2,000 feet from ground zero. The AEC said as many as 17 persons would be stationed in the shelter which would be doused with radiation.

Trial Against Segregationists Attended By Klan Observer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—The government gets to the heart of its contempt case against 16 segregationists today when their trial begins its second week with a Ku Klux Klan observer pulling for them.

The first business is expected to be a ruling by U. S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor on whether three clips of newspaper films should be admitted as evidence. The movies may show the central defendant, John Kasper, a New Jersey-born volunteer in southern racial affairs, mingling with some of his 15 reluctant co-defendants from Clinton, Tenn.

Judge Taylor has ruled the government must prove one or more of the other defendants conspired with Kasper after the jurist enjoined interference with integration at Clinton High School last August.

Knowledge and understanding of the injunction and "overt acts" that U. S. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr., the prosecutor, is expected to get into early this week.

Kasper spent a busy weekend while the trial was in recess. He spoke at a Ku Klux Klan rally in Gaffney, S. C., Saturday night. He showed up for a White Citizens Council "preaching" near Knoxville Sunday afternoon with a well-known Ku Klux Klan leader.

Kasper said he and Hendrix's branch of the many-sided Klan had many aims in common but no direct ties and he welcomed his moral support at the trial.

"I wouldn't mind spending a year or maybe even two in jail if I could get some or most of the other 15 off," said the spare, 6-foot-2 segregationist.

Kasper faces a year in prison already for an earlier violation of Judge Taylor's order. He is appealing that one to the U. S. Supreme Court. The statutory penalty in the current case is six months imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

Calling it a "great tragedy" that the 15 from Clinton have been brought to trial with Kasper, defense chief counsel Robert L. Dobbs of Memphis said the government thus far has only "inferentially" involved his clients.

On June 25, was brought in for habitually running away from home.

Judge Parker, after hearing pleas from the boys' mother and a friend, put the boy in the custody on the condition that he get a job.

A fourth youth, also from Pampa, was charged with passing $137.58 worth of worthless checks. The checks were for small amounts except one which was for $67.

The boy was also questioned on a burglary at 1015 E. Francis recently. He denied knowledge of the burglary.

The youth's father stated that he would pay off the checks this time, but that it would be the last occasion he would do so.

The minor's wife said that she had made out the $67 check, which was for rent. He will be 17-er but without a preacher. The meeting was postponed a week.

The Klansman was Bill Hendrix of Oldsmar, Fla., who said he is now imperial officer of the "Southern - Northern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan." Hendrix is an old hand in Klan affairs in Florida.

"This trial is what brought me here," said the 47-year old Klansman. "This is a very serious thing with us (the Klan), as it would be no matter who was on trial."

Radioactive Material Lost In Atlantic

NEW YORK (UP)—Search planes joined Coast Guard cutters at dawn today in quest of a wayward tank of radio-active sodium waste material, afloat somewhere in the Atlantic.

The runaway tank, considered "dangerous to navigation," was last sighted some 185 miles southeast of New York City when the Coast Guard was forced to discontinue its search Sunday night on account of darkness.

The yellow painted steel container was dropped overboard by the tanker Octo Bayway Sunday with several other tanks but it was the only one which failed to sink.

At Schenectady, where the radioactive waste originated in connection with the construction of a nuclear submarine, an Atomic Energy Commission operations officer advised that the radioactivity itself was not considered hazardous.

The main danger stemmed from the fact that the tank was a navigation menace and the chemical could catch fire if in contact with water.

On June 25, was brought in for habitually running away from home.

Judge Parker, after hearing pleas from the boys' mother and a friend, put the boy in the custody on the condition that he get a job.

The clearing house will serve to coordinate efforts toward providing enough housing units for incoming employees of the Franks Manufacturing Co.

That firm is transferring manufacturing plant here from Tulsa, Okla.

About 100 families will migrate to Pampa as a result of the move.

Clearing House Established To Aid CoC

In a resolution passed recently by the Pampa Real Estate Board, it was announced that a "clearing house" would be established to assist the housing committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Realtors in their resolution stated that they "realized their responsibility as a service organization to the community."

The clearing house will serve to coordinate efforts toward providing enough housing units for incoming employees of the Franks Manufacturing Co.

That firm is transferring manufacturing plant here from Tulsa, Okla.

About 100 families will migrate to Pampa as a result of the move.

It was announced Saturday by Reno Stinson, industrial relations director of that company, that approximately 40 more housing units will be needed.

Genevieve Henderson, secretary of the Real Estate Board, was named to head the "clearing house." E. L. Campbell is president of the board.

Specifically the resolution said that it would assist in three main areas:

(1) obtaining rental houses for periods over six months,

(2) listing houses for sale that could be made available for rent, and

(3) stimulating interest in buying houses that could be made available for rent.

Genevieve Henderson may be contacted at MO 4-2523.

Accident Fatal To Pampa Man

Another traffic fatality was added to the list for Gray County this year when David L. Shelton, 29, 1029 Huff Rd., died at Highland General Hospital at 9 p.m. yesterday as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident earlier in the day.

The investigating highway patrolman reported that the accident occurred 10 1/2 miles southeast of Pampa on an oiled county road at 3:10 p.m. The road is east of the Phillips Gray plant, located west of Lefors.

The officer reported that Shelton and Charlie Ford, 1116 N. Stark weather, were in Ford's 1952 Plymouth and the car turned over when they attempted to take a curve at apparently a too high rate of speed.

The accident is still being investigated by the officer, he reported this morning, as all of the information on the cause of the mishap is not complete.

Ford is still in the hospital and attendants reported this morning that he was doing satisfactorily. The extent of his injuries were not reported.

David Shelton was born in Snyder on Sept. 28, 1927, and had been a resident of Pampa for the past 20 years. He served in the Navy for four years after attending

Agencies Are Busy After Mock Assault

By GAYLORD GODWIN United Press Staff Correspondent
EMERGENCY NEWS HEADQUARTERS, Operation Alert (UP)—More than 100,000 agencies of federal, state and local governments today began the hypothetical job of putting the nation back on its feet following a make-believe nuclear assault that took a staggering toll. Some 95,000,000 persons were affected by the imaginary nuclear bombardment of 155 American cities Friday in this year's Civil Defense test. About 41 million of these were "evacuated"—the rest presumably were killed or left behind. President Eisenhower was to helicopter to a secret Civil Defense command post from his Gettysburg, Pa., farm to check on activities in this post-attack phase of "Operation Alert 1957." The "attack" by super-sonic enemy bombers hit all parts of the United States except Louisiana and Arkansas. Civil Defense officials in those states were too busy with real devastation left in the wake of hurricane Audrey and recent floods to participate in the test. The new phase of the drill was called the "governmental mobilization action period"—the massive job of national rehabilitation. Civil Defense officials assumed they were facing a situation that would develop 15 days after an attack. During this final week-long phase of Operation Alert, the exercise will put emphasis on actions required to meet the survival needs of the nation; to maintain continuity of government; to put the nation's industry on an emergency footing; and to expand the nation's defense forces for emergency action.

Welfare Aid Seekers May Apply Here

Complete and permanent invalids or persons in the community so mentally deranged that they require continuous oversight to keep from harming themselves or others may soon be able to receive small monthly checks from State Department of Public Welfare through the new state-federal program of Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled.

The Constitutional amendment, which was adopted by the voters in Nov. 1956, limiting the amount of money that can be appropriated for this program to 1.5 million dollars per year, makes aid possible only to those who are helpless and have no relatives able to support them. John B. Hessey, welfare supervisor for this area, pointed out this is the only welfare program which requires consideration of the ability of relatives to support. This law defines "responsible relatives" as children, spouses, parents, step-children, step-parents, brothers and sisters. Hessey said that for the first time in nearly 20 years the Department's field workers will be required by law to determine the resources of relatives of persons who apply for aid.

The "permanency" and "totality" of the disability will be determined by a State Reviewing Physician after study of a complete physical or mental examination by the person's own private physician. Complete helplessness from a medical standpoint, rather than inability to work, is the criteria. The state will pay the private physician for his examination. Funds for assistance payments will not be available until Sept. 1, 1957, but applications will be taken after July 15. While the helpless individual will not be able to leave home, the persons responsible for his care may come to the local welfare office and acquaint the Department with his situation. A field worker will then call, as soon as possible, at the home to take the application. Officers in this area are located at: The State Department of Public Welfare office, first floor of the courthouse, with Mrs. Willie A. Holmes, field worker, who will accept applications on each Thursday.

Chess Club Will Elect Directors

The Pampa chess club will elect a director and co-director Tuesday night at 8 in Lovett Memorial Library. The club has decided to scrap its formal organization and have instead a director and co-director to lead instead of a state of officers. There will be no membership or membership dues in the future, Dr. R. H. Rutledge, present president, said. The club reorganized last week with 13 members present.

Parliament Member Gets Klan Warnings

LONDON (UP)—Labor member of parliament Maurice Orbach said Sunday night he has received warning letters on Ku Klux Klan newspaper in envelopes with a Waco, Texas, postmark. Orbach said the letters warned him to stop denouncing racial discrimination in industry. Similar letters have been received by shop stewards at the Handley-Page aircraft factory, Orbach said. "I'm not worried about the letters, but some people might be upset. A number of letters in similar terms have been received in England recently. Trade unionists, ship stewards and some refugees have got them," Orbach said. Orbach said he has handed his letters over to the police who are investigating.

The eight-day-old fawn was only a day old when found, apparently orphaned. ### US Reports Radiological War Practical

By JOSEPH L. MYLER United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The government has reported that radiological warfare is now practical. Indeed, it would be "an automatic extension" of war waged with the big nuclear weapons in the American, Russian, and British arsenals.

To the millions wiped out by H-bomb blast, heat and initial radiation would be added millions killed or injured by radioactive fallout far from target centers. The inevitability of radiological disaster in event of all-out atomic war is one of many grim facts reported in "The Effects of Nuclear Weapons," a new handbook published today by the Defense Department and Atomic Energy Commission.

The book inferentially casts doubt on the wisdom of attempting to evacuate prospective target cities. At the same time it makes it clear that no practical shelter can be built that would be proof against all kinds of nuclear attack.

But as for contamination of the world with bomb-produced strontium-90, a dangerous and long-lasting fission product which can cause bone cancer and perhaps leukemia, it says: If H-bomb tests are continued at the same rate as in the past, the worldwide biological effects of strontium-90 "will not be detectable."

Nowhere in the book is there any mention of the "absolutely clean" H-bomb, the theoretical possibility of which was first publicized last month after the book was finished. The book's premise is that, in war, "the efforts of an enemy would be devoted to causing the maximum destruction and casualties"—a premise implying use of radioactively "dirty" weapons.

Heavy downpours may hit the northwest, Florida, and lower Texas.

Riddled Body Discovered In Trunk

NEW YORK (UP)—Police searched today for two men, believed to have been unsuspecting dupes, who delivered a trunk containing the bullet-riddled body of a 52-year-old painter to a Railway Express office for shipment to Los Angeles. A check of fingerprint files at FBI headquarters in Washington identified the victim as James Malloy of New York, formerly of Philadelphia.

The small caliber of the weapon used, a .22, gave rise to the theory Malloy had been shot by a woman, police said. His body, pierced by three slugs and wrapped in New York City newspapers, was delivered to a 42nd Street Railway Express office.

Ruth Millett

"How am I going to keep the kids entertained and happy all summer?" is the big question in the minds of mothers all over the country.

A solution would be much easier to find if mothers would reword the question so that it is, "How can we all be happy this summer - mother and father as well as vacationing children?"

When children take their place as members of the family instead of star performers in the thinking of parents, they are never such a great problem.

A mother trying to figure out how everyone in the family can have a pleasant summer is sure to see that the kids will have to pitch in and be responsible for some of the work.

So if you want the whole family to enjoy the summer, get the whole family together to make plans. Don't hesitate to lay down a few rules.

A little routine keeps children happier than no routine at all. And if they wake up each morning knowing they have certain chores to do before they can enjoy free time, the free time will be twice as sweet.

With a little planning, a little system, and a firm insistence that everybody pitch in and help make summer a pleasant time for the whole family, there's no need for worrying about how the kids are to be entertained for three long months.

Never wash your wooden salad bowl. Pour out any remaining oil and vinegar, wipe it clean and dry with paper towels and put it away.

When you buy metallic yarns for knitting or embroidery, be sure to ask if they're both washable and nonfurnishable.

Sam Cook, brother of the bride, presented her at the altar. She wore a white lace gown fashioned with a mandarin collar, long sleeves that came to bridal points over the hands. The fitted bodice was closed down the front with tiny, satin-covered buttons and extended into a waist-length skirt of white lace over taffeta. Her nylon net Veil of Illusion was applied with lace and fell from a tiara of seeded pearls. She carried a white split carnation corsage atop a white Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Johnny Welborn, wearing a white nylon eyelet-embroidered over pink nylon-taffeta-fashioned with a sleeveless bodice and a scooped neckline. Her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Johnny Welborn was best man. Jerry Quaries seated the wedding guests.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Condo wore a dress of blue and white dacron with black accessories and a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Winton, bridegroom's mother, wore a black and white costume with black and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

A reception was held in the church parlor, following the exchange of vows. Miss Margie Winton, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the punch service. Mrs. Ray Denham served cake. Mrs. Lanier Mote was guest registrar.

For traveling on their wedding trip, Mrs. Winton wore a blue and grey dress of cotton with white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Mrs. Winton was graduated from Pampa High School, and is now employed by Cabot Carbon Co. Mr. Winton was graduated from Pontotoc High School and is employed with Kerr-McGee Gasoline plant.

Phillies Sweep Double From Cards, 6-2, 11-4

Wins Put Phils 1/2 Game Behind First Place Cardinals

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer. Maybe it's about time somebody took those cocky Philadelphia Phillies seriously as pennant threats, because the "Whiz Kids" in the candy-striped suits are the hottest team in the National League and knocking on the door of first place.

The Phillies now are only a half-game behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals, whom they walloped in both ends of a Sunday twin bill, 6-2, 11-4. And they can take over first place tonight by beating the Cards.

The Sunday sweep behind "comeback" pitchers Curt Simmons and Jim Hearn was the Phillies' fourth double-header sweep of the season and gave them 10 wins in the last 12 games. The Phils treated two Card hurling stars roughly. In the opener, they handed 18-year-old Von McDaniel the first whipping of his big league career after four wins, and in the nightcap they shelled out 10-game winner Larry Jackson in less than three innings. Rip Repulski's three-run homer in the first inning and Simmons' two-run double in the fourth were the big jolts to bonus baby McDaniel. In the nightcap, the Phils broke a 3-3 tie with a four-run burst in the third inning and Hearn coasted to victory despite allowing 11 hits.

Race Tightened The Cards' double loss tightened the whole NL pennant race. Gil Hodges' two-run, ninth-inning homer gave Brooklyn a 2-2 victory over Milwaukee, moving Brooklyn within 2 1/2 games of the top as Milwaukee edged to within one. And Cincinnati moved within 2 1/2 games as it ended a seven-game losing streak, 9-8, 12-4. In the other NL game, the Giants beat the Cubs, 8-6, in 12 innings.

The New York Yankees retained their three-game American League lead when they rallied for six runs in the ninth inning—four on a grand-slam homer by Bill Skowron and one on a homer by Tommy Byrne—to beat the second-place Chicago White Sox, 4-1, in the second game of a twin bill after lefty Billy Pierce beat them, 3-1, in the opener.

In other AL games, the Cleveland Indians moved within a half-game of third-place Boston by beating the Sox twice, 3-2 and 17-4; the Detroit Tigers swept the Baltimore Orioles, 10-2 and 7-6 in 10 innings; and Kansas City beat Washington, 11-3, in the second game after the Senators took the first, 4-1.

"Tiger killer" Bob Buhl had his fourth straight win over the Brooks, wrapped up in 111 as he walked Gene Cimoli to open the ninth and then served a home-run pitch to Hodges. Red Schoendienst had homered for the Braves' first run and Andy Pafo had doubled home the lead run in the top of the ninth.

The Redlegs broke out of their slump with 31 hits, good for 31 bases, in crushing Pittsburgh twice. Ted Kluszewski topped the slugging with two homers in the second game. Reliever Bud Freeman won the opener when the Redlegs came from behind with six runs in the seventh. Joe Nuxhall scattered 10 hits to take the second. Lockman Saves Giants Whitey Lockman's two-run homer with two out in the ninth saved the Giants from a 6-4 loss and then Willie Mays' two-run homer in the 12th won it for them. Merv Grissom's five shutout innings earned him a relief win. Pierce's five-hit win, in which he fanned seven Yankees, was his 13th, tops in the majors. The Sox beat Bobby Shantz with 100 tie-breaking runs in the sixth inning. In the nightcap, Dick Donovan had the Yankees shut out until they exploded in the ninth but the loss was charged to Jim Wilson, who was tagged for Skowron's and Byrne's homers on successive pitches.

Ted Williams homered in each game for the Boston Red Sox, giving him 25 and the AL lead by one homer over Mickey Mantle. But the Indians beat Boston in the first game by scoring two runs in the ninth inning with the help of Norm Zauchin's throwing error. And the Tribe bagged 20 hits to win the nightcap behind rocks Stan Pita.

Billy Hofel slammed two home runs and a single to lead his own 17-hit support in the Tigers' first-game win. Red Wilson singled home the winning run in the nightcap with two out in the 10th after Jim Bridewaters' throwing error kept the inning alive.

The Senators won their opener with three runs in the fifth inning. The A's took the second with six in the sixth as Irv Noren led a 17-hit attack with two home runs.

Rebels Roll Palo Duro For 16th Win Of Season

Blasting in six runs in the ninth inning the Pampa Rebels dumped the Palo Duro Junior Dons, 11-6, yesterday afternoon to chalk their 16th victory for the season. Catcher Mike Conway and center fielder David Marler combined to spark the Rebel batting attack. Conway had three hits in five trips, batting a single, a double and triple. Marler clouted three singles in four times at bat. The Rebels gained their first runs in the fourth when two were brought in off singles by Marler and Heiskell and the double by Conway. They followed in the fifth with one run and in the sixth with two more off the triple hit by Conway.

The ninth-inning six run spree came when Benthusen threw 12 batters while allowing 10 hits with only three walks. Terry walk and was followed by Brown, Marler and Lake, who all tagged singles. Cruise and Heiskell reached the bases off Don errors and Conway came in with his third hit for the game, with a single.

The Don's first run came in the second inning when Davis slamed a double followed with a single by Ballew. Two more runs were pushed over in the sixth when Sweet, Palo Duro center fielder, blasted a home run, followed by Ballew who singled and Kiser, who hit a double to score the second run. The Dons final three tallies came in the ninth when Sweet blasted again, this time with a double, followed with singles by Davis, Covington and Poe.

Rebel pitcher Carl Benthusen threw the entire game, striking out 12 batters while allowing 10 hits with only three walks. Terry walk and was followed by Brown, Marler and Lake, who all tagged singles. Cruise and Heiskell reached the bases off Don errors and Conway came in with his third hit for the game, with a single.

Salem, Ippolito Battle Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Betting is an "even money" for tonight's TV 10-runder between lightweight Tommy Salem of Cleveland and Frankie Ippolito of New York at St. Nicholas Arena.

Each is fast and aggressive although a comparatively light puncher. And each had hard luck in his last bout, Ippolito, 22, lost a split decision to unbeaten Stefan Redi at St. Nick's, June 3. Referee Al Berd favored Frankie, 5-4-1, and so did many fans.

Salem, 24, was beating Walter Brown handily in Madison Square Garden, March 8, when he suffered a cut brow and lost to Brown on a seventh-round TKO.

"It's Time Somebody Beat The Yankees",—But Who?

EDITORS' NOTE: Baseball Hall of Famer Rogers Hornsby, former manager, most valuable player, and National League leading hitter for six straight years, now directs Chicago Mayor or Richard J. Daley's Youth Foundation. But spunk Hornsby still has his old zest for outspoken hot stove sessions. Here is the way he sees this year's American League race at the mid-season mark.

By ROGERS HORNSBY As Told To United Press CHICAGO, July 10 (UP)—I wish I didn't have to say this but it's going to be the New York Yankees all the way.

The only ones who even can give them a race of it are the Chicago White Sox. Maybe at the beginning Cleveland, Boston and Detroit had a chance—but not any longer.

I don't think it is good for baseball. I think it's time somebody whipped the Yankees bloody. But who?

Cleveland had the pitching. Then the Indians lost Bob Lemon and Herb Score because of injuries. That shot them through with holes.

Chicago Has Pitching I thought at the beginning that Detroit might come up with some pitching but the Tigers just haven't shown. As for Boston, that's turned into a club of individuals. They don't pull together.

The White Sox have the pitching, more or less. Billy Pierce holds up more than his share of the load. But there's no hitting. The Yankees have it every way you look. Primarily, they've got the bench. When they're forced to put in a replacement the guy usually fits in so well that the team gets strengthened. It's almost a vicious circle.

The way I see the Yanks, they're primarily a four-man club: Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle, Bill Skowron and Gil McDougald. At least one of these four is going to come through for you every time. Usually, all four do. These guys aren't hot shots. They're day-in-day-out ballplayers.

Yanks Have Hitters With Berra, Mantle, Skowron and McDougald as mainstays, the rest of the Yanks can afford to get hot and cold. At least one or two of the others are going to be hot at once so the Yanks have five, six guys smashing the ball while the other clubs have only one or two hitters.

Now you take the White Sox and the only really dependable hitter you find is Nelson Fox. He can't carry it all by himself.

What's the answer? I wish I knew. I like the Yankees and consider Casey Stengel and George Weiss my good friends. But I don't think it's healthy for baseball to play one club grab a monopoly on championships.

So it's like I said, I don't care who wins—so long as it's not the Yankees.

Hoad Downs Sedgman

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP) — Lew Hoad opened his pro tennis career the way the ocean surfer hits the beaches of his native Sydney—with a bang.

Hoad, earning the first chunk of the record $125,000 contract he accepted from promoter Jack Kramer last week, featured Sunday's play in the Tournament of Champions by whipping Frank Sedgman, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. It was one of the most impressive debuts in the history of the pro game.

Sedgman's game doesn't match that of Pancho Gonzalez, the pro champion. But Frank, 29, is an experienced pro and was expected to give his young Australian countryman a bitter tussle.

British tennis experts rated Hoad's 35-minute title triumph at

Law That Breaks Law

In earlier days, when our government was small and impotent, much energy had to be put forward by the men in office to see to it that private persons obeyed what laws there were. Nowadays the shoe seems to be on the other foot. Private persons are much alarmed by the evidence that government itself has become a repository of law breakers and it behooves the private persons to see to it that government itself is restrained.

The contest is unequal and unfair.

If our founding fathers could shake off the mold and dust of their hallowed resting places and stalk among us, how like the ghost of Marlow they would have to be. For, whereas our patriot forebears dedicated themselves to the concept of limited government, wherein justice and law were to be virtually synonymous terms, nowadays the government itself has set aside its own restraints and is galloping among us like the four horsemen of the Apocalypse, bring destruction and desolation to private affairs and to individual liberty.

Take the case of the income tax alone. It was implicit in the Constitution that no such tax would ever be allowed. Further, there is an enjoiner in the Bill of Rights which makes a man's private property and private papers a matter of his own business exclusively. The government was supposed to be prevented from any unjust searches and seizures. Yet, by this very income tax, no man's privacy is respected anymore.

The government has the power and uses it, to pry into your affairs and to hold you guilty if you refuse to report the last dime of your income, and to give the government whatever share it deems expedient.

Unless one can remember the wonderful atmosphere of freedom which preceded the income tax, one can scarcely tell the change that has come over us as a result of this illegal impost. Illegal? Well not quite. For before the illegality of the income tax could be enforced, the Constitution had to be changed by an amendment which blocked the original purpose and intent of the founders and provided us, within the framework of a supposedly limited government, an unlimited taxing authority. Thus, we see a basic illegality, made legal. And by implication every wage earner in the United States can now be presumed guilty before the fact.

Still another instance of shocking illegality made legal is found in several recent Supreme Court decisions. The Supreme Court, empowered only to judge the Constitutionality of various laws and edicts, has become in practice a policy-making body, if not a law-making body. Its recent decision which increases the use of guns in our run-run government schools, provides a case in point. Also, its still more recent decision in the duPont case, as well as its findings concerning FBI information, are dangerous and damaging, and highly questionable on any moral or legal grounds.

In prior times, an individual who disobeyed the law could seek justice from the law itself. Nowadays, with the law itself in question, how does the private individual manage to bring the government to trial?

Here is borne out the warnings of earlier statesmen who warned us against the dangers of democracy. We were told that we had a "republic, if we could keep it" (Benjamin Franklin). As the voting power is expanded to include each unlettered and untutored suitor after favors, the tribulations occasioned by "democracy" become increasingly evident.

The democratic process which permits of majority rule is questionable on moral grounds. When that process is expanded until all may vote, the best that can be hoped is a mean average of our national intelligence is hardly high enough to warrant much confidence in the process. It is by such means that our standards are constantly debased.

This is the reason there is so much unrest and confusion in our land. When persons lean upon a support, they are in danger of falling if the support proves unstable. Our superstition that the government was a worthy support reveals our ignorance. We are going to have to learn to stand erect without leaning, for many of the laws and principles we believed inviolate are now against the law.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

All parents of small children are interested in how soon and how well their youngsters acquire control over their bladder and bowel functions.

Mrs. S. asks for a discussion of this. Another Mrs. S. wants to know whether children should be allowed to go two or three days without a bowel movement.

Before discussing the subject in general, I should say that it is probably not good for most children to go several days without normal bowel emptying. However, establishment of a laxative habit is also undesirable. So if this happens often, medical help is indicated.

A healthy baby usually begins to establish bowel control between one and two years old. When the baby is nine or ten months old it can be placed for short periods on the "potty." This should be done at first with the child lying down. The "potty" should be used regularly at the same time of day, usually after the first morning meal. The mother and the baby should not be worn out by keeping it up too long.

Any child enjoys cleanliness and likes to be praised. The parents should not scold when the infant fails. Once control is established and the child is a little older, the responsibility for the b.o.m.s. should be placed on the child. In small babies the process of emptying the bladder is automatic. As soon as the bladder is stretched to a certain point, the nerves carry the message to the spinal cord and the bladder is automatically emptied.

Rather gradually the sensation of a full bladder begins to be carried up to the brain itself. When this develops it is possible for the child to control urination. Until the message is received in the brain, however, it is useless to expect a baby to have control over his bladder functions.

Bladder control comes slowly. Parents should not be concerned if their hopeful ones not develop complete control as soon as some other child.

Sometimes a child wets during the day or night at three or four years old, or even beyond. Usually, this is a sign of either rebellion on the part of the child or a feeling of insecurity. Sometimes such children have had the importance of keeping dry overemphasized. They take delight in frustrating their parents. When this is the reason, the parents ought to pay less attention to the whole thing and to show no signs of annoyance when "enuresis," as it is called, occurs. This is often enough to solve the problem.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hollis

"Citadel, Market And Altar—Emerging Society"

I will always buy and read any book that Rose Wilder Lane recommends. She recommended to me the above book written by Spencer Heath.

Mr. Heath is 81 years old and has had a very full life. He has practiced the various fields of engineering—mechanical, electric, hydraulic and civil. He practiced law in Washington, D. C. He pioneered and for two decades was active in aero-engineering, developing the first machine mass production of airplane propellers (supplying the United States Government thereby with some three-fourths of the propellers used in the First World War) and the engine-operated, controllable and reversible pitch propeller.

He was a long-time student of the sciences, the philosophy of law and data of history. He retired, early in middle life from engineering research and patent law to pursue his avocation of horticulture, and to research into the foundation of the natural sciences.

The book was published by The Science of Society Foundation, Inc.

When I received the letter from Rose Wilder Lane recommending the book, I bought it. Then I received a letter from the author, sending me an autographed copy. He wrote:

"Appreciating your influence in the cause of human freedom, and, further, at the special request of Rose Wilder Lane, I take great pleasure in presenting to you with my compliments an inscribed copy of my 'CITADEL, MARKET AND ALTAR'."

I expect to buy several copies of this book because it is one that will cause any lover of freedom to be inspired to try to better understand the blessings that come from the free and natural division of labor and to be able to explain more clearly the splendid results that follow the free-enterprise system.

Meaning of Title

In explaining why he used this title, he wrote:

"A society has three basic needs. It continues as a society only so far as it finds creative and non-destructive ways to serve and satisfy these needs. It must have security from violence, that its member may have the services of property by free exchange and the consequent high subsistence and favorable conditions that are necessary to an abundant, a creative and thereby a spiritual life. These three needs, security, property, and spirituality, are supplied through the institutions of politics and government, of commerce and trade, and of religion and the arts. These institutions evolve successively as CITADEL, MARKET AND ALTAR, the Citadel to maintain freedom from violence, to guard alike against the aggressor without and the unruly from within, the Market to provide abundance in the necessities of life and the Altar to practice the non-necessaries, the spontaneous and inspirational, the spiritual and esthetic recreations and arts. The first is necessary to the second, the second to the third; but the third, the Altar, is the end-in-itself, the life of creative freedom above all necessity—the spiritual realm. Upon the free development, differentiation and interaction of these primary institutions, all social advancement depends."

John Chamberlain, in writing the foreword to the book, observed: "Mr. Heath is interested in taking a clear, new look at functions and forms. Taking creativity as the deepest need of man, he has sought to discover the forms of human organization which unleash creativity in its widest aspects."

"Mr. Heath exhumes life out of history. He is not, repeat not, an admirer of the Romans. Although the Romans are generally credited with having invented the arts of free government, Mr. Heath thinks they were predecessors of the totalitarianism of today. Mr. Heath's own Utopian past is situated in pre-Noëman England, a time and a place in which free men willingly paid rent to their lords without having to render tax homage to politicians. The lords, aside from supplying protection, and a community service for the rent, left the freemen free to prosper on their own."

Ownership Confers Freedom

"Beyond Mr. Heath's way of looking at the man-land problem there is the larger issue of freedom in general. Mr. Heath insists on what should be axiomatic to us in the days of Cold War, that ownership is what confers freedom. To be a free man, one must have the right to a home base, something to stand on without asking any politician's permission. But there is more to freedom—and to ownership—than that. One cannot be truly free unless the product of one's energies can be exchanged for other products in an uncoerced relationship. Free exchange depends on contract, and without ownership there can be no contract. Ownership, contract and exchange are thus inseparable links in a chain. Since exchange is the social part of economics (as production is personal and physical), ownership and contract are precedents to free socialization."

Now, to quote the Council, "In the face of this history the Senate is about to debate and vote on a Hells Canyon bill for the third and, presumably, last time." How much blockading of needed power projects will the American people stand?

No One Wants 'Uncle' To Quit Spending On Them

"We want to see a reduction in government spending but this is not the place to begin" said a book publisher who was urging Congress to vote more millions of dollars for rural library expansion. Recently we heard a Congressman who, hearing the clamor for reduced expenditure from back home, voted to cut certain appropriation requests, including one for a project in his own district. The next day he received a telegram from the Chamber of Commerce in his home town savagely denouncing him. With the clamor for economy in which we join, and of which we approve, there is another equally strident voice from businessmen, farmers and labor alike, demanding an almost infinite variety of appropriations for projects and measures which these clamorers believe will be of benefit to them. The National Association of Home Builders wants more money for roads. Elderly people want higher Social Security payments. Depressed areas demand more Federal help. Drought-stricken districts cry for aid. Flood-damaged districts want more Federal compensation. Plywood manufacturers want more Federal research to find more uses for wood products. Not long ago scrap iron dealers were petitioning Washington to stockpile scrap iron. The need is endless; the clamor stupendous. Few are the groups and rare are the individuals who are exempt from guilt in their desire to use government to get something beneficial to them. We have said it many times but we shall say it again— that when government has the power of taking wealth from some and giving it to others by means of an intricate maze of legislative action, it will be pressured into handing out more and more public money until our country is bankrupt. Knowing that this process is going on, it is extremely difficult for any individual or group to resist being swept into the current. Each one rightfully says to himself: "Others are using government to obtain privileges and financial benefits. We have to pay for what the others get. Therefore, we might as well get something ourselves." This situation will never be remedied until the people realize that any government having the power to give handouts to its citizens cannot resist doing so. They themselves must deliberately decide to deprive their government of such power.

The Nation's Press

Industrial News Review

The Council of State Chambers of Commerce has issued a factual chronology of the famous Hells Canyon dispute over whether private enterprise or a federal agency should develop the hydroelectric power potential of the Snake River. It certainly shows at least one thing—how adept the socialists are at blocking needed work of this kind. In June 1947, Idaho Power Co. filed a preliminary application for a license with the Federal Power Commission. Public power groups objected, and proposed a federal high dam. In April, 1950, the Senate voted to table the federal project by a two-to-one margin. Later that year the private company filed preliminary application with the FPC for a license to construct the first of a series of dams. Both the Interior Department and several public power groups protested this application. In May, 1953, the Secretary of the Interior withdrew the department's objection to the application. The private company then submitted to FPC its complete proposal for development of power at Hells Canyon. EPC engineers and examiners spent 44,000 man-hours in studying the company's three dam proposal and held hearings over a full year during which every conceivable pro and con was argued. In August, 1955, the FPC issued a license to the company. Public power groups then went into the federal courts. This legal stratagem finally failed when the Supreme Court refused to interfere with the FPC's licensing order, and thus upheld its validity and the right of the private company to develop the power. Meanwhile, the Senate again rejected a bill which would have authorized federal development. Now, to quote the Council, "In the face of this history the Senate is about to debate and vote on a Hells Canyon bill for the third and, presumably, last time."

How much blockading of needed power projects will the American people stand?

NEW YORK — Have you been surveyed lately? Then you must live in an igloo with a guarantee sign on the door. Everybody else is being surveyed almost constantly. The latest figures show that 10,000 surveys of some sort or other are being conducted all the time in America, and those not being surveyed are being polled. The chances of a citizen (a survey shows) being asked what he thinks and how he feels about everything under the sun are five times as great as his getting soap in his eyes when he washes his face. No matter your age, or what your trade or professions, there are others who are anxious, to the point of pacing the floor, to know your opinions. Do you prefer dark bread to light? Do you wear a cap indoors or only when watching a lacrosse game? Would you like refrigerator doors to open from the right or left, and how do you feel about Statehood for Alaska? Do you believe it is true that career women make as good mothers as women who can't typewrite? Has the President lost popularity since he changed in policy? Do you approve of babies under four "going steady"? One survey I haven't seen is one showing how much these survey people make a year. It must be a staggering sum. The law pays well, and most doctors are rich, but if I were a young man I'd start both these professions by to start a survey company. It must be the newest and best way to get rich in a hurry. With 180,000,000 people in the United States, and with the population growing by leaps and bounds there is very little chance of the field becoming overcrowded. I have a good mind to hang out a sign with Ace Survey Company on it, and pick up some extra money. The training required must be almost nil. About the only drawback to the job I can think of are slammering and stuttering. These would slow down asking questions. A beginner with a good pair of legs would be as efficient as a veteran who couldn't move from door to door quite so quickly. You could teach your help in five minutes. Show them how to ring a doorbell and then burst out: "How much do you spend each year on life insurance, cosmetics, and Ping-pong balls?" or some equally sought after information. A first analysis of the popularity of these multitudinous surveys is likely to lead one to the conclusion that our country has become a country of snoopers. But I don't believe that's right. I believe all of us read the results just as we listen to gossip, and enjoy it. I'll admit I do. At the same time I'll admit I don't know why I do. But the fact that only one American poultry farmer out of ten has Ravel's Bolero in his album collection (I saw that the other day) fascinates me. I even wish at the time that there had been a follow-up survey to determine why this lack of interest in Ravel by chicken-growers. I get surveyed quite often, and enjoy it. I'm sorry when I am asked only a question or two. The other day a surveyor (I guess that's what they are called) got me out of the shower to find out whether I preferred breakfast cereals that offered a prize in every box, or ones with cut-outs of jet planes on the box. Before the man got away I had expressed an opinion on wash-em-yourself suits, coffee in paper cups, and the low quality of this year's crop of Brazil nuts. Maybe surveys are habit-forming.

Kennedy, Meyner, Leader Are Top Demo Hopefuls

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The serious prospects for the 1960 Democratic Presidential nomination have been separated from the merely willing and able candidates within the last few weeks, and largely because of behind-the-scenes discussions and observations at the recent Governors' Conference at Williamsburg, Va.

It seems to be a general agreement among political prophets and called experts that the leading figures are Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Governor Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, and Governor George Leader of Pennsylvania. Eliminated from competition, in the opinion of many shrewd on-lookers and Democratic strategists, are Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, Senator Frank J. Lausche of Ohio. Not much consideration has ever been given to Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, or Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

The Senate has rarely been a proving school for the Presidency or even a Presidential nomination. And the most recent selection of a Chief Executive from that body—Warren G. Harding of Ohio—was not an especially inviting precedent.

YOUNG SENATOR'S RAPID PROGRESS — Senator Kennedy, however, may break the hold which the Governors have had for so many years. No member of Congress has progressed to political eminence so quickly as the wealthy Bostonian, and none has enjoyed such wide and favorable publicity. His youth has been held against him, but in 1960 he will be older than Theodore Roosevelt was when he entered the White House. There are lingering doubts as to whether a Catholic can be elected in this predominantly Protestant nation. But the passing years, it is believed, have dispelled the prejudice which contributed to Alfred E. Smith's 1928 defeat by Herbert Hoover.

Nor does Senator Kennedy suffer from Smith's liabilities — his Tammany association, the brown derby, the East Side accent, and the fact that he was brave beyond his time on the question of prohibition. Finally, there is the fact that Kennedy mobilized strong and surprising support for the Vice Presidential nomination in 1956, losing out to a much less capable individual — Senator Estes Kefauver. FAVORABLE IMPRESSIONS — Governors Meyner and Leader made favorable and friendly impressions among fellow-Governors and Washington newspaper correspondents at the Williamsburg convocation, although without appearing to attempt to "make a splash." It is true that they are not too well known, since they have not had to deal with any stirring issues, as Calvin Coolidge did with regard to the Boston police strike, and F.D.R. did when he was at Albany. But it is pointed out that Adlai E. Stevenson, equally unknown as Governor of Illinois, had no difficulty in stimulating public interest in his personality — an interest which still survives. Moreover, having lived through so many exciting and upsetting domestic and world crises for the last quarter of a century, the American people may look simply upon a candidate who has kindly done a good or even passable job of managing and housekeeping at Trenton or Harrisburg.

REASONS FOR ELIMINATING SOME ASPIRANTS — The reasons for the tentative elimination of so many acknowledged aspirants are interesting. They also impress many politicians as logical. Governor Williams is regarded as too radical, especially on labor and Civil Rights questions. His tie-up with Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers, hurts him in the South. A Texas like Senator Johnson, it is figured, would not be acceptable to Northern labor or to the colored vote. His support of the Natural Gas Bill would be held against him by city consumers, especially if its passage should lead to the predicted increase in rates for this essential commodity.

CONSERVATIVE LAUSCHE — Senator Lausche's brief Senate record has shown him to be so conservative that he might even run on the Republican ticket. Despite an excellent performance in business and at the Penagon, Senator Symington just has not made any deep imprint at Washington or on the public mind. He showed up poorly when baited by the late Senator Joseph R. McCarthy in the televised Army hearings.

GRAY COUNTY Soil Conservation District News

Jim Smathers

Work Unit Conservationist

Most of the wheat and barley in the district has been harvested by low due to poor stands, rust and the hot dry winds. S. D. Winegart, who lives south of Pampa, thinks he has a yield which is above average for dry land wheat and barley.

Winegart made an average of 18.2 bushels of wheat per acre, weighing 56 pounds to the bushel, on 24 acres and 45 bushels of barley per acre on 24 acres. Winegart contributes his wheat yield to getting the wheat started early last fall and to his cropland practices. He was able to get his wheat started early and to get it to live through the winter by proper handling of crop residues and contour farming.

Crop residues were maintained on or near the surface of the soil for protection against wind and water erosion, and to conserve valuable moisture, permit greater penetration, permit surface decay of organic matter and reduce runoff.

Contour farming was used to save what little moisture that fell. Winegart did get a small rain after his wheat was planted last fall. There was no run-off due to the level drill furrows which held the water where it was needed. This spring when the rains came Winegart's wheat grew early enough so that the loss from the rust was not so great.

Winegart's barley was also planted on land that was contoured so that when the hot dry winds started he still had plenty of moisture to make a good yield of barley.

Southwestern Public Service Has A New Generating Plant

More power for the growing electrical requirements of the Eastern New Mexico and West Texas area becomes available early in July, when Southwestern Public Service Company's new and modern Cunningham generating plant goes on the line.

Southwestern Public Service's eleventh principal steam plant is located 12 miles west of Hobbs, New Mexico and one mile north of the Hobbs - Carlsbad highway. The gleaming aluminum structure is on a 180-acre tract owned by the power company.

The new plant is named for J. E. Cunningham, president of the Public Service Company and member of its board of directors. He has been associated with Southwestern Public Service 30 years, and president for the last 12 years.

Generation from Cunningham plant will "feed" onto the existing 115,000 volt transmission line between the Company's Denver City and Carlsbad plants. This same line connects the power company's principal generating stations and interchange substations with 3,000 miles of high voltage transmission line over the 45,000 square mile area served by Southwestern Public Service.

The turbo-generator in Cunningham plant was manufactured by General Electric has a nameplate rating of 70,000 kilowatts and a capability of producing 96,000 horsepower. This additional generation brings Southwestern Public Service's total plant capability to 820,600 kilowatts or 1,100,000 horsepower.

A. R. Watson, executive vice president and general manager of Public Service, remarked that just ten years ago the total plant capability of Southwestern's system was only 166,000 kilowatts.

"Our last ten year's growth and the new plant capability symbolize the progressive thinking of our 170,000 customers in applying more electrical power for use in industry, commercial establishments, and the home," the power company executive added.

Watson also added that Cunningham plant was another home grown product, for this newest plant was the second steam generating station in Southwestern Public Service's system which was designed by the company's own engineering staff. And, like the first, which was Plant X, Cunningham plant incorporates the latest features in economical power plant design and operation. H. O. Hodson, vice president of Southwestern Public Service Company, supervised the design and construction.

Public Service engineers cut down on the construction time by putting aluminum exterior walls instead of steel. Designers did not omit a decorative touch, for they used black ceramic coated aluminum for outside trim, parapet caps and front entrance facade.

Another construction cost cutting application was the location of the plant's 55,000 gallon water storage tank on the roof deck of the semi-outdoor boiler. This location saved most of the construction cost of a conventional hi-tank.

J. B. Matthews is plant manager at Cunningham. He was named to this position February 1, 1957 and moved here from Public Service's Moore County Plant near Dumas, Texas.

Russia 'Appears To Have Chief Co-Equal

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN

Soviet Russia appears to have acquired a new chief co-equal in its collective leadership.

Nikita S. Khrushchev has been recognized as the chief co-equal since Georgi M. Malenkov was ousted as premier in 1955.

Now Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov seems to have moved in beside Khrushchev as chief co-equal No. 2.

That implies that until there is another blow-up in Soviet leadership, Khrushchev and Zhukov will direct policy in both domestic and foreign affairs.

There are 13 other co-equals in the enlarged ruling Presidium of the Russian Communist Party. Both Khrushchev and Zhukov will be top men.

Controls Political Machine
Khrushchev's strength lies in the fact that as chief secretary of the Communist Party he controls the party political machine.

Zhukov's strength lies in the fact that as defense minister and Russia's outstanding soldier he controls the army.

It has become clear that Georgi M. Malenkov, Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Lazar M. Kaganovich nearly succeeded in ousting Khrushchev at a meeting of the presidium last month. They had the support of two other members. It is
