Injunction Move Not To Halt Bridge Work

LITTLE CONCERN FELT HERE OVER HARRIS MOTION

DUPLICATES 1ST SUIT

"Construction On Project Not to Be Delayed" —Sartin.

AUSTIN, April 3.—A motion, seeking judgment in favor of the state in dissolving the Willis interstate bridge injunction, was being prepared by Attorney General Moody Saturday, it was learned late tonight. This motion, which, if granted by Travis county district court, will permanently debar all other proceedings, on the same ground, including the Vaughn and Harris suit filed today, will be submitted to the court probably Monday. No action has been taken on Vaughn and Harris petition, and the fact, it was filed before the final order was written in the Willis suit will not limit the inclusiveness of the order against injunction steps, lawyers here say.

Another injunction suit designed to tie up state funds ready for allotment in construction of the free bridge across Red river near Burkburnett was filed Saturday afternoon in the 53rd district court at Austin, dispatches from that city indicated yesterday. M. L. Harris of Oklahoma, owner of the Devol bridge, and S. J. and M. C. Vaughn of Wichita Falls are plaintiffs in the suit which asks a temporary injunction prohibiting appropriation of $165,000 state aid for the free bridge project.

A hearing will be held Monday before Judge George Calhoun in the 53rd district court.

Duplicate of Willis Suit

The suit in the prior instance was spect a duplicate of that filed by W. T. Willis et al some months ago, representing the Burkburnett Bridge company, which was only last week dissolved by agreement between the county and the bridge company. The allegations are the same as set forth in the first injunction suit—that is that consent of congress for the bridge is lacking, that the grant of state aid is for work which is almost entirely without the state of Texas, and that Wichita county itself has not the power to negotiate with another state, in this case, Oklahoma.

The suit in the prior instance was settled last week with the purchase by the county of the bridge known as the Burkburnett toll bridge for approximately $20,000. The Devol bridge apparently the prime factor in the new suit, is located three miles up the river from the Burkburnett bridge and the location of the new free bridge.

Little Worried

Wichita county officers were little worried when told of the new suit contesting the construction of the bridge. The belief was expressed that the new injunction would not be granted by Judge Calhoun Monday. This is a practical certainty, it is stated by B. D. Sartin, county judge, if the attorney general has filed his motion for a permanent dissolution of the first injunction and it has been acted upon by Judge Calhoun. In event the injunction is granted there was no indication as to just what course the county would pursue in having it removed. It is probable one or more Wichita Falls attorneys will go to Austin Monday, although it was not announced just who these would be. Judge A. H. Britain, who has formerly had considerable to do with the litigation surrounding the bridge, is en route to New York and so far as is known, knows nothing of the new litigation.

The firm of Hart, Patterson, Hart and George Mendell Jr., attorneys, filed the suit at Austin.

In any event, Judge Sartin said last night, construction work on the new bridge would not be delayed.

Wets And Drys Draw Battle Lines For Fight On Volstead Act In Congress Next Week

Senate Judiciary Committee Arranges Plan Of Hearing; Andrews to Be Star Witness

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Sharp lines for the coming battle between the wets and drys have been drawn by the senate judiciary sub-committee.

Chairman Means announced today that beginning Monday the wets would have six days to rthe presentation of their case without interruption from the drys except such cross examination as might be conducted by members of the committee.

The same will hold true when the drys are presenting their case week after next.

After the two sides have had their days in court, the committee itself may decide to hold a further investigation on its account. That will depend upon the facts developed and the charges made with respect to enforcement of the Volstead act.

Intimations were given today that the wets had not abandoned their fight to have the committee suopoena state and municipal officials. The committee has ruled against this by a vote of four to one, but the leaders of the wets hope for a reversal upon a showing that their case can not be presented properly unless certain state and municipal officials are called.

Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, who is in general charge of prohibition enforcement and District Attorney Buckner of New York City will be the chief witnesses for the wets.

As the wets have outlined their program thus far, Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, will make a preliminary statement on behalf of his resolution to amend the Eighteenth amendment so as to permit government manufacture and sale of intoxicants in formerly wet territories.

Senator Edge will make a brief statement with respect to his so-called beer bills and the presentation of the case for the wets then will be turned over to Julian Cardman, of Boston, general counsel for the association against the prohibition amendment.

Besides public officials the wets will call in a number of doctors, officials of labor unions, social workers, ministers and others.

The first two days of the presentation by the dray will be under direction of officers of the Women's Christian Temperance union. Other dry organizations will follow with Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, among the last to appear.

BAYLOR RAPPED BY GRAND JURY

Medical School Is Charged With Interfering With Dallas Hospital

DALLAS, April 3—(AP)—Charges that Baylor university wishes to dominate the Parkland hospital here for the education of medical students in Baylor Medical school, also located here and that about one-half of the charity patients in the hospital were used for educational purposes for the students were contained in the report of the Dallas county grand jury submitted to Judge Felix Robertson today.

The grand jury recommended that the hospital be controlled by a board composed of men without any interest in the other hospitals of Dallas.

The report also alleges that about one-half of the budget for the hospital, approximately $140,000, "goes for the education of Baylor medical students."

Girl, Poisoned, Is Found Near Burk

BURKBURNETT, April 3.—Police are at loss here tonight to identify a young woman, apparently about 23 years of age, who was picked up by the side of the highway near Newton in an unconscious condition, and brought to this city for medical treatment. Doctors ascribed the comatose condition to poisoning and were attempting by means of antidotes to revive her.

Who the girl is, or how she was poisoned is a complete mystery. There are a few in Burkburnett who state they have seen her on the streets during the past few days, but no one has any definite information regarding her. She is described as of medium height, with red hair and a peculiar ly round rather pretty face. When found she was wearing a blue checked dress.

Children's Society Investigates Connection With Connection With Sorority

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Two more investigations growing out of the announcement that 15-year-old Frances Heenan would marry Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator as soon as she passes her 16th birthday, were started today.

An investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death last Sunday of Stella Lubin, 17-year-old model, a week after she had attended a party with Browning and his new Cinderella was begun by Vincent Pisarra, superintendent of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children. At the same time the police announced that they also would question friends of Miss Lubin.

Mr. Pisarra said he sought to learn whether there had been any drinking at the party—a birthday celebration given at the hotel Majestic two weeks ago by Beniamino Gigli, the operatic tenor. The girl's mother reported that Stella had died of a heart attack.

Browning took the girls from the party to the Heenan apartment and left them and Stella spent the night as the guest of the Heenan girl. The next morning Frances said, Stella went out with a man described as "the senator" and that night telephoned she had been made ill by something eaten at supper in the "senator's apartment."

The police said they would question Martin C. Ansorge, former congressman who, they said, escorted Miss Lubin on her last outing.

Another investigation by Mr. Pisarra was under way concerning Browning's reported connection with the Phi Lambda Tau sorority for high school girls. Mr. Browning denied founding the sorority, but admitted having helped the girls with advice and gifts.

The police also are investigating the circumstances by which Frances Heenan was burned about the face with acid last Saturday.

Who Said the English Were Somber? Look What Fireworks the Milliners Have Turned Out for Spring Days

It Is to Laugh, My Dears, the Way These Britton Dowagers Deck Their Domes With Mainsails And Quilts—And Then Call it a Hat

BY JESSIE HENDERSON.
Special Dispatch to The Record News.
Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

LONDON, April 3.—With bulging, incredulous eyes masculine London is gazing while with an innocent, what's-all-the-shooting-for expression, feminine London is trying to look unconscious. Hats! The bonnets that loom in the spring have burst this season into an unearthly burgeoning unlike any that ever perched on the head of man. Or woman.

Take a double handful of—oh, anything; great great great grandmama's patchwok comforter will do—bind it low about the brows, square it off on top like a cube of sugar, hoist a mains'l at the rear land that's a hat, and a mighty fashionable one. It's a great idea in a fair wind but if you're going against the gale you're likely to arrive an hour late, with your mains'l in tatters, if you arrive at all.

Well, How About This.

Oh, but you don't care for the mains'l motif. Then how about the whatnot decor? Take a few lengths of ribbed silk in an inconspicuous shade such as rose, vermilion, or Egyptian blue. Then utilize the key with which you never wind the clock Cousin Fannie gave you at Christmas or the padlock off the garage door, or any odds and ends left over after the carpenters have gone; the odder the better.

Gild or silver these knicknacks, or coat them with enamel. Place them tastefully around the high, square crown, with a big 'un for the middle. Voila! (As they say in the fashionable millinery shops along Regent Street.) Not merely a hat. A veritable chapeau!

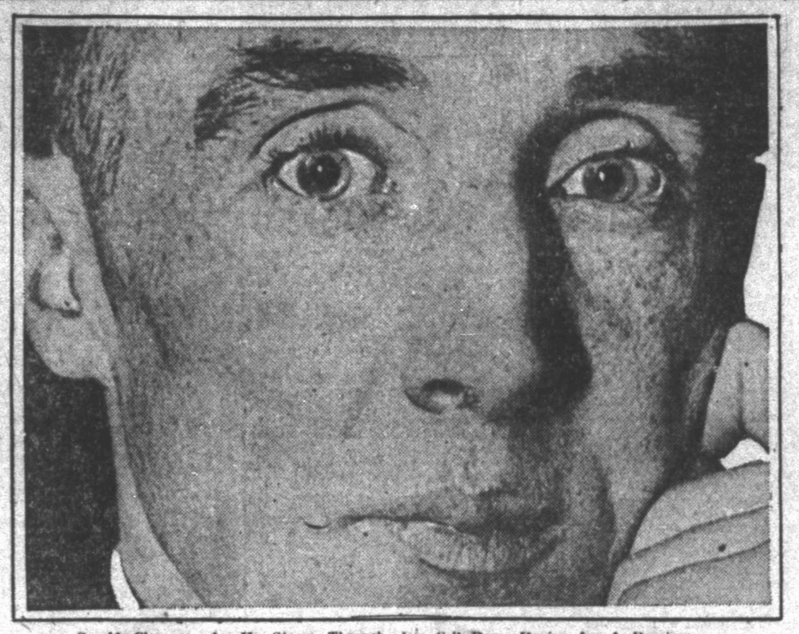

It's all due to the reawakened interest in guilds. Of course each spring the hat designers have to discover a reawakened interest in this or that and since both April flowers and cubist quinces are getting pretty well worn out somebody remembered that in the good old days the workmen's guilds had extremely chic devices embodying the various tools of their various trades. Behold, therefore the doorkey, the horse shoe, the mortar board gilded or silvered and posed (that's the word they use) on wispy little hatlets of thin straw or thinner taffeta.

Dumbbell Gold.

Apparently the stalwart workmen of the guilds also went in for their daily dozen. Because a hat of tan straw is bedecked across its front with a dainty dumbbell, powdered with

SMITH TO SEEK BLANTON SEAT

Deputy Game Commissioner Announces Candidacy For Congress

AUSTIN, April 3.—(AP)—Judge J. R. Smith, chief deputy game, fish and oyster commissioner, today announced his candidacy for congress of the 17th district. Smith in his announcement, promises to not abuse the provisions of a congressman.

In entering the race against Congressman Blanton, who has figured prominently in news reports because of his attacks on various issues, the former county judge of Burnett county, stated that he opposes centralization of power in Washington. He asserts that his ambition is to uphold state soverignty, that the joint levy tax is dangerous.

Non-partisan consideration of revenue measures, tariff to protect American labor are two of Smith's planks, which he promised to reduce the expense of the government.

"I further promise not to abuse the franking privileges granted a congressman by the government by sowing my district down with campaign speeches and circular letters."

Judge Smith announced that he will resign from the game commission as soon as commissioner T. E. Hubby returns to the state.

Milady's Easter Frock Must Await Better Weather.

SAN ANTONIO, April 3.—(AP)—Glory of new easter frocks and suits will be dimmed for a time here tomorrow by the protraction of winter coats, if the weather bureau's forecast of cool weather proves correct. The bureau said frost was likely and that warmer temperatures would not come until forenoon.

With But 48 Hours To Live, Arch Bandit Is Nervous

STATE PRISON, WETHERSFIELD, Conn., April 3.—(AP)—Gerald Chapman, condemned to hang for murder early Tuesday morning, late today signed an application to the state board of pardons asking that his sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Governer Trumbull, who thrice reprieved Chapman and has refused to grant him further time "not even an hour," is ex-officio chairman of the board. A member is Supreme Court Justice Howard J. Curtis, who as a member of the court gave an adverse decision on Chapman's appeal for a new trial.

So Chapman's appointment with death by way of Connecticut's new hanging machine which throttles the life out of men with a double jerk is less than 48 hours away tonight.

The bandit spent the day reading and smoking cigarettes in his cell at state prison while his attorneys worked feverishly to save him from the ever-nearing gallows.

Only once did he betray any anxiety. That was after his attorney, Joseph M. Freedman, had spent 35 minutes with him. As he turned to leave Chapman stopped him.

"Will you be here tonight?" he asked, a plaintive note creeping into his voice.

"I certainly will," Freedman said. Chapman seemed relieved.

Legs Amputated Before Birth Grow Again in Embriors

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 3.—(AP)—Experiments to prove a theory that limbs amputated in mammal embriors will grow again before birth were explained by Dr. J. S. Nichol of the University of Pittsburgh at the annual meetings of the American association anatomists at Yale today.

Dr. Nichols told of experiments with rats from a period just before birth to 14-day-old embryo. He made an incision, amputated a limb and awaited the birth. In 14 of 18 such experiments the animals were born alive and were raised to maturity.

Dr. S. Culver Williams of Yale announced success in experiments that have enabled him to watch the growth of several nerves in living tadpoles. By the injection of a dye into the nerves he has been able to watch them grow under the transparent skin of the living specimen.

MAYFIELD RAIL BILL FAVORED

Measure to Restrain I. C. C. In Intrastate Issues Meets Approval

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, April 3.—Word was received here today by friends of Senator Earle B. Mayfield that he had secured from the interstate commerce committee of the senate a unanimously favorable report on his senate bill 750 which authorizes railroad extensions without certificates from the interstate commerce commission. The word indicated that the measure proposed by the Texas senator was being looked on with considerable favor in Washington.

The bill, if passed, would be of particular interest to northwest Texas in that it would let down federal bars against new railway construction in the Panhandle. It would thus effect half a dozen different extensions now proposed for that section, some of which have been authorized and others frowned upon by the commission.

Mayfield said that thousands of miles of additional rail lines would be built in west Texas the first year after the law his bill proposes is passed.

DEATH IMMEDIATE

Mother, Prostrated, Placed Under Care Of Physician.

ELECTRA, April 3.—Thurman Laffingwell, aged 7, was instantly killed here at 5:30 Saturday afternoon in a peculiar automobile accident in front of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Laffingwell, 606 E. Bryan Street.

The fender of a small roadster driven by Wheelis Cooper and Delbert Gilbert struck the lad square in the face, death resulting instantly although the car was going not more than six or seven miles an hour. The boy had been playing with a number of other children in the street in front of his home, officers learned and Cooper and Gilbert, driving past the point, slowed down practically to a walk.

Attempts to Dodge.

Young Laffingwell, eye-witnesses said, saw the car coming, attempted to dodge one way and then apparently became confused and stepped directly in its path. He was knocked down by the impact and was dead when he was carried into the yard of a residence. Physicians and Coroner McCabe, called immediately to the scene, stated a laceration of the brain caused death.

The boy was in the first grade of the Thompson ward school and was well known. His parents had lived in Electra for about 15 years. The father is a local boilermaker.

Mother Prostrated.

Mrs. Laffingwell was prostrated over the accident and it was necessary to give her medical care.

Funeral services have not been completed but will probably be held Sunday afternoon.

Cooper and Gilbert have been absolved of all blame in the tragedy which was declared to be purely accidental.

During the twenty years service Mrs. Hymer braved snow, sleet, rain cold and storm to be at her school when it opened. The weather was never too bad, nor was she feeling too sick during the entire twenty years to take care of her class room work.

With twenty days to a scholastic month and nine months to a scholastic year, Mrs. Hymer's record represents 3,600 days of unbroken attendance.

COMMEND TRAINMAN.

Coolness of Brakeman Saves Girl From Death in Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—(AP)—Dorothy Davis, three, Desliste, Mo., owes her life to the coolness and presence of mind of C. H. Marshall, St. Louis and San Francisco brakeman. This fact was made known today when J. E. Hutchison vice president of the railroad company sent Marshall a letter of commendation.

On March 18 the child was playing on the tracks near Portageville, when a 70 car freight train approached at a speed of approximately 20 miles an hour. Realizing the futility of stopping the heavy train, Marshall crawled out on the pilot of the engine and just as the train approached the child, he pushed her off the track. She incurred only minor injuries.

Allbright building of the brick church. Mrs. O. McDaniel followed with the story of the first pastor and his work done, in which he organized a library, about 30 of the volumes remaining to this time.

Mr. R. A. Kellum, treasurer of the church, then told of the building of the present church. Mrs. A. R. Moillett read an excellent paper on library work. Mrs. Moilliett was librarian at Baylor university at one time and considered a very efficient one.

Short Minutes - - Long Hours

There are a few minutes each day—just a few—when everybody wants the service of their telephone company. This is during the rush period when people are all needing the service at one time.

While this rush period lasts but a few minutes each day, the between-time lull covers hours. But expensive plants must be maintained ready to serve during the lull hours and employes must be paid just as though all the time were rush time. Telephone service must always be equal to its maximum ability whether that ability be demanded for ten minutes or twenty-four hours.

SCIENCE AGAIN

SCIENCE and the miraculous are such close neighbors in this stirring age that it is hardly safe to wax sarcastic at the cost of the wise men who are putting to sea in June with a view to exploding icebergs as they break away from the western littoral of Greenland and imperil the steamship lanes of the North Atlantic. It is an altruistic errand of cosmic dimensions, but the layman's first reaction is that it resembles Dame Partington with her mop defying the ocean. The Americans and the Canadians who are seeking Denmark's permission to land the necessary cargo of high explosives are men of standing. Peter Freuchen, who is told off to give wireless weather signals from the inland ice, is an explorer of proved mettle. But the question asks itself whether we have learned all we need to know about breaking up such ice gorges as we have here at home in the United States before we go to Greenland and tackle glaciers at the source. Since six-sevenths of these floating ice mountains are under water, it will be of little avail merely to blow away the summits, unless the operation is repeated sufficiently often to destroy the entire berg. Blasting ice to free Arctic vessels is an old story, and it has seldom been successful.

WRONG SEASON

Tosti would have made that song of his a lot more popular if he had called "Good Bye, Winter."

OPPOSED TO HARD LIQUOR

WAYNE B. WHEELER is telling "how he did it" in certain newspapers of the country. That is, how he brought about nation-wide prohibition. A careful reading of the Wheeler articles convinces the most obtuse mind that had it not been for the general attorney of the Anti-Saloon League of America, the 18th amendment would have been defeated by the wets.

Of course, the small fry assisted the Napolean of the dry cause, but Gulliver depended on self alone.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the father and not the son, was a nation-wide prohibitionist. This fact was not generally known during the life time of the American soldier statesman, who made it easy to elect Woodrow Wilson president in 1912.

But the letters and interviews given proper place by historian Wheeler show that Roosevelt was ever in sympathy with the dry cause, and in a quiet way did all in his power to advance it.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, "who is now in our midst," is not a dry. If he is he is not a dry dry. There is a vast difference between a dry dry and a dry with wet leanings.

HIRAM THROWS A SPASM

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON of California is throwing spasms. A newspaper correspondent told him that the Japanese had obtained a concession for 2,000,000 acres of land on the west coast of Mexico, and Senator Hi, running true to form, demanded an investigation of the rumer by the upper house of the American congress.

Well, Mexico owns the land. It is not American land. Our flag does not float over it. We have no mandate to govern Mexico. Mexico is a republic. It is a self-governing nation.

If the Mexican government sees fit to permit Japanese to till Mexican soil or to invest their money in Mexican land, why should Senator Hi tear his hair? Why don't he pick on Great Britain or some other powerful nation?

Why jump the unfortunate country which has been down in the ditch for centuries, and ever over-run by knights of the golden fleece who owe allegiance to the flags of other nations.

THE VISION

Mr. Dawes is said to take a nap every afternoon. It must have been during one of them that he dreamed of shutting up the senate.

MORE ROAD BONDS OUTLAWED

AND now the Court of Civil Appeals of the second district, has declared $11,000 of Clay county road district bonds that were issued and sold to be invalid, and has enjoined collection of taxes in support of such bonds.

What are the lawmakers going to do about it?

What are the bond holders going to do about it? Something should be done to preserve the credit as well as the fair name of Texas.

ONE MURDERER LOSES

THERE appears to be one tawdry character of the underworld who finds it impossible to cheat the law he has long flouted and who, now, with but a few more days of life ahead, is pondering on the vicissitudes of a career of crime and the reward it brings.

Gerald Chapman, described as a bandit de luxe; a man who had had a charmed life heretofore; who has been shot and desperately wounded but who has always recovered; a man who has succeeded in a dozen daring escapes from pen and hospital; such is the man who is now apparently at the end of his rope; figuratively and literally. He is sentenced to hang in Connecticut Tuesday.

Chapman's career since the law has finally ensnared and held him has been one of glorification. Even with a charge of cold-blooded murder lodged against him he has had something of a romantic sheen cast about him. His attorneys and some adroit press agenting have pictured him as a sort of modern Robin Hood, a mental genius in many ways, irresponsible for his criminal bent. Through this and the spectacular and, it must beadmitted, ingenious legal fight they have waged to save his neck, more or less sympathy and commisseration has been aroused for Chapman.

But the law is inexorable. Appeals, petitions and motions even to the highest tribunal in the land—the United States Supreme court, have availed nothing and the grim shadow of the hangman's noose is dangling closer with each passing hour.

The case of Chapman is one in which justice is evidently prepared to triumph. This parasite on decent folks, it now seems, must eventually drop to a felon's cruel eternity to atone for the policeman's life he took. It is tough for Chapman, but the murderer's code is a stern one; and he is invoked it to the letter in happier days, for him, when the gallows trap was not the only way out of prison.

His case serves to show that the law is not a mockery if it is properly upheld. No condemned murderer, probably, has had the benefit of more astute counsel; none have waged a more consistent and determined fight for life than has he, yet all his maneuverings and all his scheming has been to no ayail.

Chicago in particular and the rest of the country in general might take a lesson from the Chapman case and find that the murderer's lot can be made as unsympathetic as it should be made.

CORPUS CHRISTI ALIVE

CORPUS CHRISTI has become a full fledged member of the West Texas chamber of commerce, and its whole affiliation with the chamber extends the jurisdiction of the organization more than a hundred miles to the south, although Waco, already a member, is said by a correspondent "to be slightly east of Corpus Christi."

The claim is made that the ambitious coast city "would soon become the natural port of west Texas, with a large amount of west Texas tonnage to be imported and exported through it, the exports to consist of wool, mohair, cotton, grain and other products."

East Texas has an east Texas chamber of commerce. Are its directors in a trance? If not, what are they doing along development lines.

AN UPPER CUT FOR MARRS

MARRS is the God of War. There is is another Marrs who is state superintendent of education. He made a valient fight for the tax payers of Texas, but he appears to have been barking up the wrong tree.

A decision by the Supreme Court of the state held the book contract valid and enjoined the Texas Marrs "from making any degoratory or damaging statements regarding the validity of realtor's contracts."

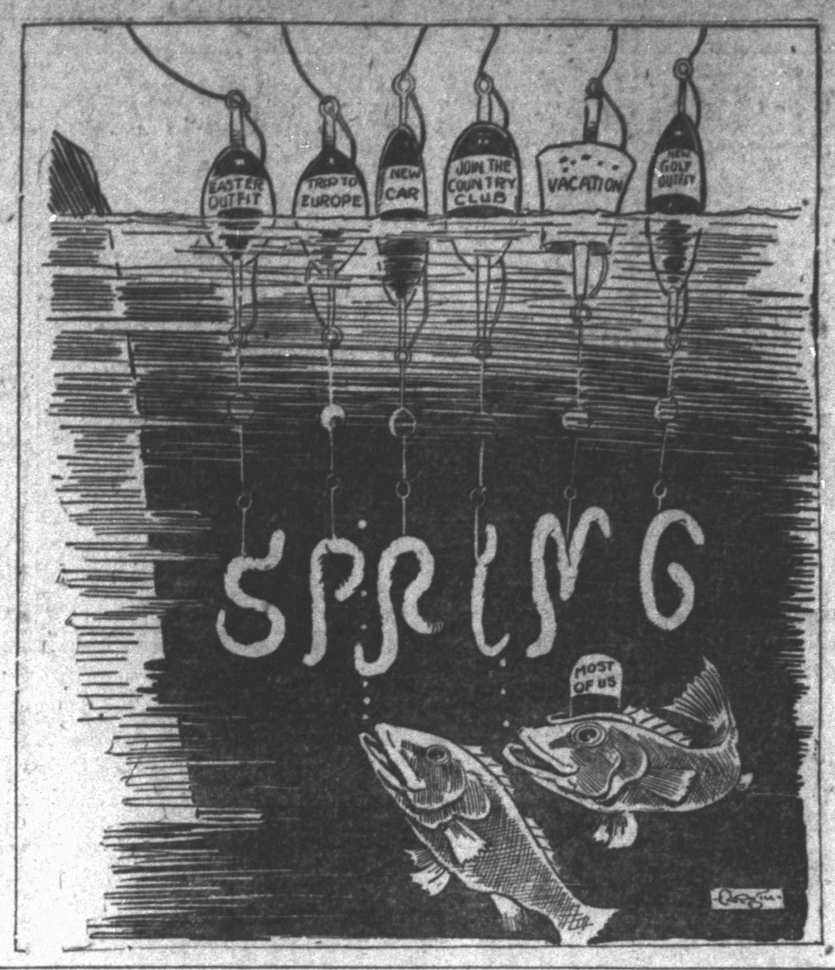

That is, not satisfied with knocking the props from under the Texas Marrs, the Supreme Court of the state gagged him.

Now if the League of Nations will bind and gag the mad war God of Italy, the Quakers of the world and the whole tribe of pacifists would return thanks.

MUSSOLINI A MENACE

SENATOR PAT HARRISON of Mississippi, says Mussolini is a threat to the peace of the world, and that if the United States assist Italy in obtaining more loans, Mussolini would make war on Germany and other European countries. There is a Brutus somewhere under Italian skies. Senator Pat should not worry himself into an early grave.

Irresistible!

Ring Never Saw Nome or Goldfield in the Old Days but—

By Lardner

To the editor:

Our little party reach San Deigo under a kind of a Paul as a entire family from Iowa had just killed themselfs at Ti Juana and it was therefore with kind of mingled feelings that we crossed acrost the border to take our first peek at the sporty little Mexican town. However, we put in three different days in Tia Juana without none of us even suggesting a suicide pack for ourselfs though they was some talk to the effect that a coupe of the jockeys could enter into one without us donning widows' weeds on acct. of same.

For the benefit of those that has not been there will state that Tia Juana is a city of about 50 building of which three ain't saloons. Besides the accessories that goes with a ordinary saloon the Tia Juana saloons is equipped with crap games and poker dice games and baccarat games, to say nothing of every civilized community for 20 yrs. and which not even the biggest liars in the world ever claimed they had beat them. Also pretty near every saloon has got a electric piano and it is nothing unusual to see 3 or 4 couple dancing right in the bar rm. at 11 o'clock in the A. M. and all ready 1-2 cock-eyed. I never seen Goldfield or Nome in the old days but Tia Juana reminds me of them.

In the mix-up accompanying the suicide of the four Iowans the Tia Juana chief of police got prominent mention. What strikes the visitor as strange about this is that the town should have a chief of police. Police is supposed to enforce the laws of the community in which they are located and so far as I could see they ain't no laws and having policemens is like employing shepherds in a Third Avenue waffle parlor.

When you get ready to go home in the evening, that is, to San Deigo or Coronado, 2 or 3 officials of one kind another stops your car at the border and glances in the tonneau with about the same amount of attention as is lavished on a snowflake in Minnesota, and then motions you to go ahead. What they are looking for I could not find out, but with the time and pains they take for the search it seemed to me like a person could smuggle in a herd of elephants in the back seat of a Ford with every elephant playing the Marseillaise on a calliope.

The Tia Juana race track is in a pretty little valley surrounded by baby mountains. There is 9 races on the program every day which should mean that the horses has got to make good time or they will get bumped into by the horses in the next race, but it don't seem to mean no such a thing. The first 3 or 4 races is given over either to maidens or to horses owned by owners that ain't never owned a winner and etc. and there is so many entries in most of these races that on hot days the horses adhere to each other wile lined up at the barrier and finish all stuck together like peanut brittle in August.

Picking horses in one of these traffic congestion is like betting on which fly is coming to see you first in a Greek restaurant and even if you do happen on a winner you won't half to pay no surtax on what them bookies gives you. There ain't no place I know of where race track bookmakers is notorious for embarrassing customers with their philanthropy, but you glance over the odds on a 14 horse race at Tia Juana and it honestly makes a Hester Street fishmonger seem like Santa Claus 1-2 pickled. Of course, they have got so called mutual machines if you prefer to use them, but to me a horse race is enough of a lottery without the added surprise of finding out, after your horse has staggered home a lip in front, that you have win $1.18 on your $10.00 investment.

One day the madam played $4.00 on a horse called Four-o'-Five. The horse started out pretty good and was amongst the first dozen for a couple of yards and then died away. The madam said she thought they must be something the matter with him so I said that she ought to of known they was something the matter with a horse named Four-o'-Five, he was bound to have pyorrhea. This remark did not seem to compensate her for the lost of her $4.00.

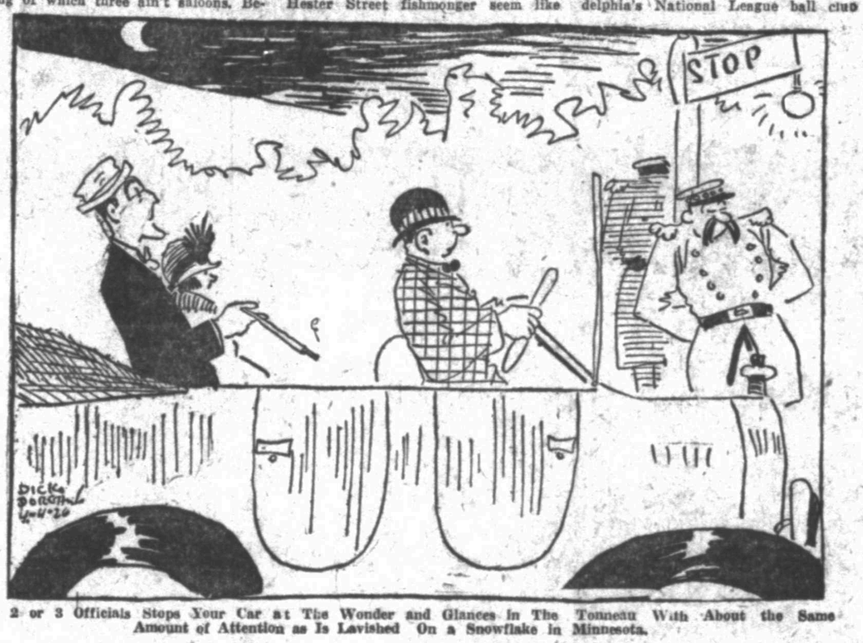

On this day a jockey named W. Munden win 5 races, 4 of them in succession, so our party decided it would be a pretty good idear to stick to his mounts the next day. He proved passionately fond of finishing second with horses we had played straight. After we had lost on him 5 times we quit him cold in the last race and he win so far in front with a horse named Parnell that you would think the rest of the boys had joined a different jockey club.

Ex-Comet Engages Tenor in Court Duel.

The feature race on the last P. M. we was there was the Tia Juana Aakes and a stable made up of Zeks, Tea and Miss Lester was a 3 to 5 favorite. They was only 7 horses in the race and somebody said that if you played the stable in the mutuals to show you would get a better price than as if you played them to win as nobody else would think of it. Well I didn't know if anybody else thought of it and they wasn't no means of finding it out as the 3 hot favorites had roomed together so long that when one of them made up his or her mind to run seventh the other two stuck so close to their buddy that it was pretty near a dead heat fer the honors to which Philadelphia's National League ball club generally always establishes a undisputed claim.

As for San Deigo and Coronado they supplied 10 straight days of the kind of weather you would order for all the yr. around. At Coronado one of the features was John McCormack, a tenor singer, resting between recitals. We seen him play tennis with Maurice McLaughlin, former bullet or something of the courts. Mr. McLaughlin prefers golf now and ain't the wizard that he used to be in what somebody has aptly turned the net game. As for Mr. McCormack, he covers a lot of court. One of the young ladies in our party boasted that she had stood an inch from John at the race track. It was pointed out to her that this was physically impossible.

If anybody wants to know, we spent the rest of our time down there fishing and eating and attending a performance of Ralp Spence's "The Gorilla," which the Lon Hascall as Mulligan, was just as good as the New York show.

2 or 3 Officials Stops Your Car at The Wonder and Glances in The Tonneau With About the Same Amount of Attention as Is Lavished On a Snowflake in Minnesota.

As For Mr. McCormack, He Covers A Lot of Court.

POEMS THAT LIVE

HOW DO I LIVE THEE

By Mrs. Robert Browning.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways,
I love thee to the depth and breadth and height
My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight.
For the ends of Being and ideal Grace.
I love thee to the level of every day's
Most quiet need, by sun and candlelight.
I love thee with the passion put to use
In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith.
I love thee with a love I seemed to lose
With my lost saints,—I love thee with the breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

Upper Gloucbester Place!

Aglow with the lure of adventure, Helen scanned the numbers. However shabby the house, the front door always groomed. Polished knockers and scrubbed steps.

"Mrs. Lyle?" inquired Helen.

"Is Madame Lyle expecting you?"

"Why—no," disconcerted. "Is it necessary to make an appointment?"

"I will ask if Madame can see you," grudgingly admitting her.

Through the black hall, and up a dim flight of stairs.

"Have a seat, please. I will take your card to Madame Lyle."

Why this suspicious reception? The air of mystery deepened as she waited.

The young girl reappeared. But only to close the door!

Her hand on the knob, she stood guard while stealthy steps hurried down the stairs.

"Will you come this way, please?" now turning to Helen.

"Be seated, please. Madame will see you in a few moments."

Why these waits? Why the secrecy? Why this formality to see "Madame" Lyle?

"I must give you the address of my strange London 'find.' A private 'Dress Agency'—Lyle, 29 Upper Gloucester Place.

"In England a 'Dress Agency' is a glorified hand-me-down shop, where titled and wealthy women send their clothes. But you may pick up some wonderful old jewelry and real lace. Don't pay the first price—make offers. Take your rag-market manners.

"I got a lace collar. She had another—real Limerick. Three guineas—but she'll take two. Do get it for me, if it's there."

Helen returned the letter to her handbag, as the folding doors slid open.

"Good-afternoon. May I ask who recommended you here?" coldly appraising.

"Mrs. Stevens of New York," flushed Helen, resenting her scrutiny.

"Mrs. Stevens? I have several American customers. Oh, yes, I think I remember," thawing slightly. "Will you come into the front room?"

"What is it you wish to see?" sharply, as Helen started to look around."

"Have you any shawls?" defensively. "An embroidered silk shawl?"

A glimpse of other treasures beneath the tissue paper. But, defeating Helen's curiosity, she drew out only a Spanish shawl. Vivid peacocks and flowers.

"Only fifteen guineas. You'd pay twenty-five in a shop. And the lady wore it only once. A titled lady," impressively. "She went into mourning."

"It's very lovely," murmured Helen. "But I wanted one all white."

The frigidity with which Madame Lyle thrust back the box implied that Helen had come only to "look." An uncountenanced offense in an English shop.

Buy something first. Anything, however small. Buy it and pay for it. Once a customer—then you can "look around."

The purchase made, Madame became more friendly.

To ask for old jewelry and lace would augment the price. Much better to run across them.

Just then summoned into the next room by the telephone, she did not see Helen's indignant flush. To be suspected of wanting second-hand slippers!

Alone now. Free to "look around" without embarrassment.

As Madame Lyle re-entered now, Helen felt forced to declare her quest.

Thirty-five shillings! But remembering Mrs. Stevens' "tip", Helen finally got it for a pound. And a dainty old "Blonde" lace fichu for twelve shillings.

"Have you any old jewelry?" casually, approaching the cabinet.

A mahogany box this time. But nothing of interest—only modern brooches and bracelets. The hoop bracelets, of which the Englishwomen wear five or six.

"Yes I know what you want—the real old bits in antique settings. I've nothing just now. How long will you be in London? Two weeks? Come in again before you sail. Or leave your address—I will drop you a line."

"Oh, we use only plain envelopes," interpreting her reluctance. "We have customers from the smartest hotels. They find things here they cannot get in the shops—and at half the price.

"One of my titled ladies has the most exquisite clothes. A customer from Manchester takes them all. Her husband is a rich barrister—she could buy anywhere. But my lady's things are hardly worn and just fit her. Fortunately they are about the same age—for now they are both growing stouter. I have many cases like that—customers who take the entire wardrobes of my ladies."

"That's very interesting," encouraged Helen. "You should write your experiences."

"Yes, I have been told that," falling for this ever-flattering bait. "I have so many titled ladies—who both buy and sell. They know they can trust me—the greatest asset in this business.

"All my books I keep locked. No one has access to them—not even my assistant. We have three rooms here—insuring perfect privacy. You have nothing like this in America?"

"Not that I know of. We have just the cheap second-hand shops."

"That is what the American ladies tell me. There are 'Dress Agencies' all over London—but I have the most exclusive patronage," turning to the door.

Again the young girl. A whispered announcement. Another customer!

"Yes, do. I may have some old jewelry. Just a moment—my assistant will see you out."

This drab house in this quiet, dingy row. No sign, nothing to distinguish it. Just "Lyle", over the middle bell. Yet an amazing business with a more amazing clientele!

The London hour she loved best. Lights coming out through the mist. The street lamps—faint fulvous blurs. Here and there a glowing window. The Londonish smell of coke and burnt leaves.

Almost six. Would she have time to go back on a bus?

At Baker street now. Yes, one coming—marked "Oxford Circus." She could change there for Whitehall.

Joyously she scrambled up to the top. Always her idea of bliss. A bus-top ride through this enchanted hour of dusk. The mist-hazed London dusk, with its smoky autumnal smell.

London! Adventuring in London! How she loved it. A glow of gratitude that they could come over every year.

And now back to their Whitehall Court flat—and out to dinner with Warren! Where? Simpson's? Cheshire Cheese? The Cock? She loved best those ancient down-in-the-city chop-houses.

That limousine! The two men on the box—the crest!

That box! What was in it? For or From the "Dress Agency?" A gown brought back because Madame Lyle would not pay the price? Or something purchased there?

The traffic still delayed. The gray pump tapped impatiently. Eager for the seclusion of her boudoir—to examine her "bargain?" Or to hang back in her wardrobe an unsold gown?

Dreamily conjecturing, Helen gazed after it.

That mysterious white box—she would never know what it held. Or how its owner figured in the secret clientele of Madame Lyle's "discreet" Dress Agency!

Next week: "Another London Adventure."

DINNER STORIES

The widower had just taken his fourth wife and was showing her around the village. Among the places visited was the churchyard, and the bride paused before a very elaborate tombstone that had been erected by the bridegroom. Being a little near sighted she asked him to read the inscription, and in reverent tones he read:

"Here lies Susan, beloved wife of John Smith; also Jane, beloved wife of John Smith; also Mary, beloved wife of John Smith—"

He paused abruptly, and the bride, leaning forward to see the bottom line, read, to her horror:

"Be Ye Also Ready."

A young midshipman reported to the commanding officer of a battleship for duty. Captain X, a gruff old sailor who had worked his way aft in the '40s, sized up the youngster with anything but a friendly air, and said: "Well, sir, I suppose that as usual they've sent the fool of the family to sea!"

The midshipman quickly responded: "Oh, no: they've changed all that since your time, sir."

The editor of a newspaper that had adopted phonetic spelling, in a measure, received a postal card from an old subscriber in the country, which read as follows:

"I hev tuk your paper for seven years, but if you kant spel enny better than you have been doin fur the las to months you may jes stoppit."

HILL'S RISE IN RAILROADING IS RESULT OF WORK

From $15 Weekly Substitute Agent He Becomes President

By MILLARD FERGUSON
Special Correspondent of The Record News
Copyright, 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association

NASHVILLE, April 3.—From relief agent at $15 a week to president of the whole railroad at a yearly salary that gets well up into five figures is the fast train that "Jim" Hill, new president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad has ridden in the last 28 years.

It all goes to show that Horatio Alger was right, and that "From Rags to Riches" is a thing that happens in real life as well as in the story books.

James Brent Hill, who rides today in "Number 99," the president's private car, over the 1,258 miles of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis system was born 48 years ago in the Cumberland mountains of Tennessee, and there was not anything in the way of a silver spoon or a gold plated locomotive in his mouth. His daddy was a country merchant and they lived so far away from anything that Jim was going on six before he ever saw a locomotive.

Liked Railroading

That was after the family had moved from the mountains to Doyle, a little hamlet near Sparta. A railroad was being built to McMinnville, and when the first train came puffing into Doyle the story is told that Jim climbed up on the cowcatcher and had to be pulled back to safety by one of the grown folks. That was his first connection with the N. C. & St. L. The second came when he set out to learn telegraphy. He was about 13 at that time and the railroad agent who boarded at his mother's home was his victim. The click of the telegraph key at the little jerk-water station had fascinated Jim and he set about pestering the agent until the good-natured man in self defense started giving Jim lessons at night. In that way the future of the hero of the road picked up a working knowledge of telegraphy that came in handy later on.

It isn't a fact, though, that all this while Jim Hill was aiming at being president or anything else in the railroading business. It seems a little off key but the truth is that Jim Hill, when he was 16 years of age and faced with the necessity of earning a living, decided to be a school teacher. He won a scholarship in Peabody college in Nashville and after a lot of hard work was graduated in 1898 with the degree of licensed instructor. But right there the world lost a good teacher and got a better railroad man.

Took $15 Job

While taking a little vacation at the family home in Doyle, before plunging into the business of teaching the "R's" he was offered a job as relief agent at Bonair, Tenn., at $15 a week and he took it. During the 28 years since then he has worked day and night for the N. C. & St. L. with the result that he knows the road up and down, inside and out. There is a tradition that he has examined personally every spike in the whole 1,258 miles of track that make up the N. C. & St. L. system.

From Bonair, Tenn., he went to Sparta as clerk in the station there. Then he applied for a position in the headquarters of the Huntsville division at Tullahilla, Tenn.

"Do you know stenography?" he was asked.

"No, but I will know it in three months if you will give me the job," he answered

He got the job and he learned stenography in the time set.

Later he was made secretary to the division superintendent, then secretary to the treasurer of the road, finally assistant secretary and now president.

FRIENDLY WITH U. S.?

BERLIN, April 3.—(AP)— The Deutsche Zeitung interprets American Ambassador Houghton's return to London as substantial proof of a belief on his part that the foundations for a concrete and effective peace policy in Europe and may be laid. His retirement, it says, would be a signal for America's complete isolation.

A railway, to be constructed, will materially reduce the running time between Madrid and Vigo, Spain.

Last Man's Club Reduced to Three By Member's Death

STILLWATER, Minn., April 3.—(AP)—The Last Man's club, with a roster of 34 Minnesota Civil war veterans four decades ago, has dwindled to three.

Death of Emil Graff at St. Cloud, Fla., leaves but John E. Goff, St. Paul, Minn.; Charles Locawood, Chamberlain, S. D., and Peter Hall, Atwater, Minn., to carry on for the merry group that first met here July 21, 1885.

All were soldiers in the First Minnesota volunteer infantry and annually since then members in diminishing numbers have gathered here for a banquet. A bottle of wine which has reposed in a bank vault since the first meeting will be opened by the last surviving member to toast his departed comrades.

Goff, Lockwood and Hall plan to gather here next July 21. The bottle of wine will be brought forth and placed on the festive board but not opened.

PRINCE FINED $5

SCHEPP'S WILL FILED

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Leopold Schepp, who made millions in cocoanuts, by his will filed today left half of his estate to the Leopold Schepp foundation organized before his death to aid deserving boys. A daughter, Miss Florence L. Schepp, was bequeathed the remaining half of the estate.

Woman Deputy US Marshal Sworn In For San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, April 3.—(AP) Sworn in this morning, Mrs. Marie Carter, of San Antonio, is the second woman deputy United States marshall in the western district of Texas. She was appointed recently by Marshall Scott C. White, and was sworn in by Fleet White, chief deputy marshall. Her duties will be chiefly clerical.

Because of Chief Deputy Marshall White's superstition about the number 13, Mrs. Carter, who is the thirteenth deputy in the district, will be given badge number 15.

Miss Sally McGehee, the first woman deputy in the district, was appointed five years ago.

After the nemesis of badge 13 had followed all its holders, ending in loss of jobs for the last three to wear it, Fleet White declared the badge would remain locked in the office safe in the hope that its jinx would be broken.

$500 TOO LITTLE

Wealthy Wine Dealers Wife Asks Alimony Increase

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)— An allowance of $500 a month is not enough to support four children and herself so Mrs. Gertrude Eisen is asking for more. In a bill for separate maintenance she charges her husband, a wealthy wine dealer, with cruelty.

Steals Ring From Hostess, Now Must Serve Prison Term

SAN ANTONIO, April 3.—(AP) Charged with stealing a diamond ring from his hostess while he was a dinner guest, Mathew Van Harken was convicted in district court today and his punishment fixed at two years in the penitentiary.

Mrs. H. Bata testified she showed Van Harken the ring and after he had left it was missed. State witnesses said the ring was later found in a pawn shop where Van Harken was alleged to have pawned it for $20.

Van Harken testified he was drunk the day of the theft and did not remember anything that occurred for several days.

Perpetual Care Cemetery

A reserve fund set aside out of every sale of a lot is just as essential to perpetuate a cemetery as it is for a reserve fund to be set aside out of your premium to make good your life insurance policy.

It has been found by experience in old and settled communities that cemeteries operated by cities or individuals which do not have a reserve fund finally grow up in weeds, and in many places houses are built where the dead were formerly buried.

When you buy a lot buy in the place that gives you this protection. We will sell you a lot on easy terms to be paid for over a period of years.

TO THE VOTERS OF WICHITA FALLS:

Since it is an impossibility to see, face to face, each and every voter of this city, and ask you to vote for me, I take this method of soliciting your support in the coming election, Tuesday, April 6th.

Since offering as a candidate for Street Commissioner, I have endeavored to acquaint myself with the duties that will be incumbent upon me, if elected, as the head of the street department. The more I investigate and consider, the more staggering is my realization that I will have a man's job, if I follow my inclinations to safeguard the affairs of that office, in its relation to the people of Wichita Falls.

With the continued rapid growth of this city, I believe there has never been a time in the history of this great city when unanimity of purpose and effort was more manifest and more urgently needed than it is today.

I believe in unity, harmony and co-operation. I believe in progressiveness. I believe in higher standards of living, better business conditions, better streets, cleaner streets, more paved streets with greater rapidity, resurfacing the streets that are so badly needed and grading the unpaved streets. I favor a rigid law enforcement. I favor a progressive, efficient and economical administration. Lower Taxes.

I have been asked the question. What are you going to do about keeping the streets and alleys clean? In this connection, wish to say that this work is entirely in the hands of the sanitary department. However, if I am elected I will co-operate with the sanitary commissioner and the council with a view of putting the streets and alleys in a clean and most sanitary condition.

IF ELECTED, I WILL SERVE THE PEOPLE TO THE BEST OF MY ABILITY.

Respectfully,

J. W. HUNT.

FOREIGN BONDS DROP AS STOCK MARKET BREAKS

Sharp Decline Furnishes Feature of Week On New York Board

BY BYRON SELLER.

Special Correspondent of The Record News. Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The sharp decline in the market quotation for foreign bonds was without a doubt the most important development of the week in the investment market.

Three explanations are possible for the decline, probably all of them responsible in greater or less degree. These are, first, the break in the stock market which had a sympathetic influence upon all speculative and semi-speculative securities; second, the slump in French and Belgian exchange, reflecting the financial confusion in France and the growing uncertainty about Belgian affairs and third, the discussion in the senate over the Italian war debt refunding, accompanied as it was predictions that American loans to former belligerent European powers would never be repaid.

New Low Record Reached

Under the influence of this combination of adverse developments, the average price of foreign dollar bonds listed on the New York stock exchange fell to a new low for the year. French and Belgian bonds were affected the most seriously, but other European obligations and those of countries the finances of which are in comparatively good condition went down with the French. The selling even spread to some of the South American obligations, although here losses were very slight.

Part of the decline all along the line was regained at the week's close, when the French situation brightened and the success of a new South American offering of the better type showed that investors were regaining some sense of discrimination.

Nevertheless, it was a trying week for those who have advocated foreign investments.

Now as to the three causes for the unfavorable sentiment. Such a violent reaction as the stock market experienced always brings about a certain amount of liquidation in other speculative markets, but such sympathetic reaction is always only temporary. As to the prediction that most of these foreign loans will never be repaid, if by that is meant that they will be refunded, it is probably correct in many instances. That is what happens with the funded debts of perfectly solvent railroads and public utilities. There is nothing very alarming about the corporation making a new loan, the proceeds of which are to be used to pay off an old bond issue.

Fresh Credits Needed

Most economists believe that America will have to continue to make fresh credit extensions in one form or another to Europe for generations to come, but that is no reason for pessimism about all outstanding foreign loans. Nor must the strong sinking fund provision by which so many of these foreign loans are protected forgotten. As long as these provisions are observed—and so far there has been no default in this respect—foreign bonds have one strong element in their favor. Finally, whenever the indentures permit, the nations of Northern Europe are calling in their high rate coupon bonds and replacing them with moneys borrowed at home at a much lower rate.

This brings it down to a discussion of conditions in France and in those European countries where budgets are still to be balanced, and where the difficulties of a return to the gold standard are very great. The French chamber finally has voted new taxes which are said to be sufficient to balance the budget. But collection of these taxes still is far off and there is still a question whether the French people will renew their subscriptions to the maturing short term bonds. It is not without significance that it was this week for the first time that French bonds were materially disturbed by the continued fall in the franc.

In the domestic investment market stock fluctuations were an influence in the speculative and semi-speculative section of the list but had very little effect on the strictly high grade bonds. There is no reason to change the view hitherto expressed in this correspondence that the long term trend for gilt edge investments is upward. Distrust of stocks induced by recent performances in that market is pretty sure to turn the attention of investors more and more to bonds. We are not likely to hear so much about the superiority of common stocks to bonds as we have in the past six months. The better grade of preferred stocks will be helped, too by the new-found conservatism.

A Curious Situation

It is rather curious that this change in investment fashion should develop just when the interstate commerce commission is pointing out to the railways the advantages of financing the common stock instead of adding to bonded indebtedness. The carriers have long been looking forward to the time when they could meet their needs for new money with the sale of capital stock. A few of them have now reached that goal, but seem to need to be deminded of the fact by an outside authority.

It goes without saying that the capital structure of the railroads will be improved by the sale of stock instead of bonds. That kind of financing will also improve the status of the bonds already outstanding. If we accept the theory that a tendency toward lower commodity prices will increase the demand for high grade bonds, the particular issues most sought after will be those of which the most outstanding is not likely to be increased in definitely nor liable to redemption.

The financial institutions are already looking for just that type of bond and are absorbing them as fast as they come into the market. It will shortly be the turn of the individual investor to go a-shopping on his own account for this same kind of goods.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Mixed price movements in today's stock market reflects the extensive readjustment of speculative accounts which ordinarily takes place in a session sandwiched in between two holidays. Trading was in moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating 805,300 shares. The absence of many traders ove rthe Easter holiday was regarded as reassuring in quarters where stability of price movement is hoped for.

News developments over the holiday were largely favorable. The chief item of interest was the announcement that brokers' loans reported by the federal reserve bank were nearly $450,000,000 blow the high level of the year in the week ended March 24. The stock exchange figures as of March 31, will be made public after the close on Monday.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported some slowing up of activity, due to unseasonable weather in certain sections of the country, but they stressed the fact that there has been no visible evidence of a general set back in business. Preliminary estimates of March automobile production by the national automobile chamber of commerce indicate a total of 447,185 cars and trucks, second only to last October, when 452,486 vehicles were turned out.

Motor shares were subjected to selling pressure soon after the opening. Hudson was hammered down to 74½ but snapped back to 76⅝, off ⅝ net. General Motors sagged from 120 to 119, and then rallied slightly. Mack Trucks was depressed from 110⅛ to 109 and then rallied to 109⅝. Fisher Body, Stewart-Warner and U. S. Rubber lost a point or so, but Chrysler closed nearly a point higher.

Merchandising shares also were the targets of a selling attack. Woolworth dropped from 153 to 148 and then rebounded to 149⅝ and Sears Roebuck, R. H. Macy, S. S. Kresge, Manhattan Shirt and Century Ribbon preferred lost a point or two.

California Petroleum and Texas company were heavily bought in the early trading on reports that negotiations were pending for the merger of these two companies, but they encountered heavy profit taking toward the close. California Petroleum closed ¼ higher at 35 after having crossed 37. Texas company closed ⅝ higher at 50⅝ after having sold at 51⅛. Houston advanced nearly two points to 56 on a few sales but most of the active issues showed mixed fractional changes. Rich trods industrials such as U. S. Steel common, General Electric and American Smelting fluctuated within rather narrow limits, showing little change on the day.

A jump of eight points to 97 in Pittsburgh and West Virginia was the only change of consequence in the railroad shares.

Due to the observance of a holiday in most of the European and South American capitals trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet, with price changes largely nominal. Demand sterling ruled around 4.85⅝ and French francs just above 3.45 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)—Forced down by heavy selling, corn underwent a notable setback in value today at the last, whereas wheat rallied from an early decline. Corn for May delivery touched the lowest price yet this season. Eastern interests that are rported to be short of wheat were said to be the chief sellers of corn.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 1⅞ to 2¼c net lower, May 71⅝, to 71¾c. Wheat finished firm, unchanged to ⅝c higher, May (new) $1.56⅛ to $1.56⅝ and July $1.33⅛ to $1.34, oats ¼ to ⅝@⅝c off and provisions at 15 to 27 cents decline.

Exceptionally favorable crop conditions led to rather free selling of wheat early and carried the market down grade until near the end of the day. On the decline, September delivry touched a new low price record for the season.

Seeding delays kept the oats market relatively steady except for a late rise owing to corn weakness.

Provision were depressed in view of the fact that stocks of lard here show twice the increase which was expected for the last half of March.

U. S. DECLINES BID BY COURT

State Department Prepares Rejection of Invitation

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Losing no time after pronouncement of President Coolidge's views on the subject, the state department today began preparation of a not formally declining the league of nations invitation for American participation in the Geneva conference which is to consider reservations to the world court protocol.

The note, which will go forward through the American legation at Berne will point out that in the opinion of Washington authorities no useful purpose could be accomplished by sending a delegation to Geneva since it would be lacking in authority to discuss the reservations attached by the senate.

Furthermore it is virtually certain that the note will point out that the state deparmen already is in direct negotiation with the 48 gevornments signatory to the court protocol and is satisfied to rely upon that method of getting the United States into the court.

Attention also will be invited to the senate's expressed direction that the negotiations be conducted between the Washington and the signatory governments rather than through the exchanges between Washington and Geneva.

The decision to reject the Geneva offer was reached after Secretary Kellogg had conferred on the question with President Coolidge.

It was long an unsolved problem as to just how bees communicated to each other when they found a new source of food supply. Now it has been ascertained that the bee who has gone out and foraged for food with outstanding success, usually comes back and does a sort of dance within the hive attracting the attention of others and then leading them off to the new source.

Texas Notes

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 3.—The addition of important wells to three different districts in widely separated Texas areas and the indication that the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company will be the fourth purchaser of crude in the Panhandle of Texas consisted the principal topics of discussion this week.

Marland Oil company of Texas No. 1, Sanger brothers, eight miles west of Hurdle in the Upton county pool, pumped 210 barrels from the pay at 2,195 to 2,213 feet, eclipsing any previous well in the pool after a 100-quart shot. This 24-hour test failed to pump off the oil in the hole.

Red Bank Oil company No. 1 Parrott, section 971, Premium survey, has a hole full of oil at 3,920 to 3,922 feet which is likely to open up a better producing area than any previously found in Throckmorton county. It is about three miles northwest of the Reiter-Foster Oil corporation and the Humble Oil & Refining company's producers three miles northeast of Woodson, in the Stubblefield area, southwestern part of the county. The well is located considerably higher structurally than the other wells and it is an important test for this reason.

Humble Oil & Refining company's No. 1 Cook ranch, southeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 84, East Texas R.R. survey, is flowing 25 barrels an hour from a sand topped at 1,540 feet and drilled three feet. It is in Shackleford county and located 900 feet northwest of the Marland-Roeser & Pendleton No. A-1 Cooke, which came in four weeks ago making 1,000 barrels and at the middle of this week was flowing 690 barrels. The oil is 40 gravity. Roeser & Pendleton-Marland have a deep test going on section 81 with a standard rig.

Four wells were completed in the Big Lake field of Reagan county last week by the Big Lake Oil company. Number 56 University made 740 barrels; No. 60, 1,000 barrels; No. 61, 1,200 barrels; No. 62, 500 barrels.

Bemans, Mann & auchu No. 1, Triekham townsite, extreme southern part of Coleman county, Central West Texas, has startled that district with a 2,000,000-foot gas flow and a spray of oil from a sand topped at 940 feet.

Henry Pohl, chief gauger at Devol, Okla., has been transferred by the Sinclair Pipe Line company to the Carson-Hutchinson county district in the Panhandle and the company is reported to be considering laying a four-inch line to the new Wilcox-Pampa pool in Gray county opened by the H. F. Wilcox Oil company, a region not now having market facilities. The pool has about 500 barrels daily production from two wells on the Worley & Reynolds ranch. The Kay County Gas company (Marland,) Magnolia Petroleum company, Plains Pipe Line company and the Pan-Tex Pipe Line company serve the two county districts at present with lines to railroads.

TENSION RELIEVED

U. S. Satisfied No Concession Granted Japs in Mexico

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP) After a preliminary inquiry the senate foreign relations committee today appeared somewhat relieved over the situation as to whether Mexico had granted a land concession in Lower California to a Japanese syndicate.

On top of the Mexican official denial, the committee has received telegrams from a number of sources which have tended to throw doubt on the reported transaction.

POLICE GUARD TOWN

HOLBROOK, Mass., April 3.—(AP)—State police were in charge of this town tonight, guarding the plant of the Brockton shoe company, where 370 workers are idle, following a strike order yesterday. Union heads called the strike to establish wage scales paid elsewhere in the district.

No disorders had been reported tonight and no pickets were on duty.

Alternating Current Most Used.

In the United States more than 90 per cent of all electricity used is what is known as alternating current and the other four per cent is direct current. The development of the alternating current recalls the work of Edward D. Adams, recently awarded the John Fritz medal of outstanding accomplishment in the field of hydroelectric development. He was forced at one time to take a stand in favor of the alternating current for commercial use against such men as Edison and Lord Kelvin.

Seven Wonders Little Known.

In a test of general knowledge conducted by a prominent educator it was revealed that very few persons usually thought of as well educated could name off hand the seven wonders of the ancient world. The seven wonders of the ancient civilization were the pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the temple of Diana at Ephesus, the statue of Jupiter in Greece, the tomb of Mausolus in Halicarnassus, the pharos at Alexander and the Colossus of Rhodes.

CHAUNCEY AND JONES RETURN

"Successful Visit" Is The Only Comment On School Trip

"A successful visit," was the only comment Saturday by Judge W. B. Chauncey and Lester Jones, who returned at noon from California where they went as representatives of the local school board to meet A. Zundelowits relative to a proposed gift of $30,000 Mr. Zundelowits has offered the board for construction of a new school.

A full report of their meeting will be made by Judge Chauncey and Mr. Jones when the school board meets Monday night for its regular session.

"We have just returned from California where we went to see A. Zundelowitz relative to his offer to donate $30,000 to our schools. We saw Zundelowits and had a very pleasant visit with him and his relatives and matters were arranged very much to our satisfaction. This matter will be presented to the board of education at its regular meeting Monday night and at which time a full statement of this matter will be given out."

Large Crowd Out To Hear Bickley

One of the best Saturday evening audiences to turn out in some time, heard Rev. Joe Bickley in a forceful and impressive message at the Yale Avenue Evangelical church Saturday night. The subject was "The Value of The Soul."

Taking for his text Mark 8:36, 37 "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, and what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Rev. Bickley said in part, "Christ was a practical teacher, When he found a woman looking for some lost pieces of silver he taught the lesson of value of seeking for things which are of value according to this value placed upon the article lost by the loser. When he wished to teach the farmer he taught of the value of sowing and reaping the grain and the different values produced by the different grades of soil. When he saw the shepherd hunting for the lost sheep he spoke of the value placed upon the lost, regardless of the 99 which were safe in the fold. What value do you place on your soul. Will you sell your soul to the devil for a few moments of pleasure? Will you take the whole world for your soul? Can the devil give you a good title to the world?"

Robinson Gets A Wife and Title

The ancient and honorable order of "G-O-A-T" was conferred on Ben Robinson, erstwhile plainsclothes man on the police force, Saturday afternoon, by his co-workers in the combatting of crime within the city.

Robinson saw fit to "put it over on the boys," so one of them put it. He appeared Saturday with a brand new wife, formerly Miss Helen Hughes of Post City. The word spread quickly and Robinson was apprehended and placed within the confines of cell No. 5 to ponder at length on the error of his ways.

The meditation eventually was the means to producing a $5.00 bill, which went for cigars for the entire force.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Manley of Vernon were Wichita Falls visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Wyche Turner and small daughter, Virginia Renee, returned Saturday from an extended stay in Denison. Mr. Turner is room clerk at the Kemp Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dent of Cisco are making an Easter visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Cravens, 1803 Eleventh street.

WHITEHEAD IS NEW N.W. HEAD

Is Elected President Of Katy's Subsidiary Lines Here.

Charles M. Whitehead, executive vice-president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railway, was elected president of the Wichita Falls and Northwestern railway, the Wichita Falls and Wellington, and the Wichita Falls Railway, all subsidiary lines to the Missouri-Kansas-Texas, at meetings of the stockholders and directors of those roads in Wichita Falls Saturday morning. Mr. Whitehead will succeed C. E. Schaff, M.-K.-T. receiver and president for many years, who has resigned effective May 1. Mr. Schaff was named a director of the roads at Saturday's meeting.

The action of the directors in electing Mr. Whitehead as president of the three subsidiary Katy lines is regarded in local railroad circles as significant that Mr. Whitehead will succeed Mr. Schaff to the presidency of the entire Katy system. While, when Mr. Schaff's resignation was at first announced, there was little question but that the executive mantle would fall on his shoulders, later developments in eastern financial circles made it appear that E. H. R. Green, eastern railroad man, might be named instead.

Other officers were elected as follows: William Whittenton, Dallas, vicepresident; J. M. Bryson, St. Louis; Frank Ringer, St. Louis; C. C. Huff, Dallas; J. M. Handy, Denison; W. M. McGregor, C. E. McCutcheon and W. M. Priddy, Wichita Falls, directors.

The party of Katy officials left Wichita Falls immediately after the meetings for Fort Worth on a special train. Accompanying the officials was L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson, chairman of the board of the Kansas City Southern and large stockholder and director in both the Katy and ottonbelt systems. In commenting on proposed railroad consolidation in the southwest, Mr. Loree stated that consolidation would be accomplished by stock purchase with no loss of identity by the roads involved. Mr. Loree denied that the Katy was contemplating the purchase of the Wichita Falls and Southern line leading from this city to Breckenridge.

Winter's Touch Felt Again For Easter Day Here

Another thrust from icy winter was expected to hit Wichita Falls late Sunday night and give Easter finery a somewhat incongruous status.

A steadily falling temperature Saturday afternoon and night brought a tinge of frigid atmosphere after sundown, and this increased as the night progressed. Reports reaching here from sections to the north indicated colder weather with near freezing temperature in prospect for Sunday. Possibly showers were also predicted for Sunday, thus making doubtful the status of Easter, 1926, as a day for sartorial display.

Quiet Election To Be Held Tuesday

With but two candidates opposing each other in the field, the quietest city election in years is promised for Wichita Falls Tuesday when Roscoe Staton and J. W. Hunt oppose each other for the office of street commissioner to succeed N. M. Clifford whose second term expires soon. Balloting for R. E. Shepherd, mayor, and P. B. Curd, utilities commissioner will be a mere matter of form, both of these men being unopposed in their races for re-election.

There will be three voting boxes, one at the city hall, ande one at each of the justice of the peace offices at the court house. Residents living south of the river and east of Lamar avenue will vote at the city hall; those living west of Lamar and south of Tenth street will vote at box No. 1, court house; those living elsewhere in the city will vote at box No. 2, court house.

Judges and clerks who will be in attendance at the various boxes are expected to report at their posts a quarter hour before they open at 8 o'clock, it is stated.

A light vote is expected.

Morgan to Run For Constable

Frank Morgan, former constable of precinct No. 1, Wichita county, and pesce officer in Wichita Falls and surrounding territory in various capacities over an extended time, has announced that he will be a candidate for the office of constable, precinct No. 1 again, subject to the democratic primaries in July.

In making his announcement Mr. Morgan stated that he would stand on his past record in asking election. He promises co-operation with both the sheriff's office and the city police, if elected. Mr. Morgan was constable of precinct No. 1 in 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924.

FILE FORGERY CHARGES.

Charles of forgery were filed by the district attorney's office Saturday naming an out-of-town man, alleged to have purchased a car here recently and tendered a forged instrument in payment. The name was not made public, no arrest having been made as yet.

Charges of burglary were also filed against another man, as yet unarrested, alleged to have stolen $120 from a Wichita Falls residence on the night of March 20.

IN REALTY FIELD

Otto Lambert, well known Wichitan, formerly with Langford Motor company, has entered the local real estate field. Mr. Lambert has affiliated himself with the Wichita Falls real estate board as a realtor and is located on Ninth street with the North Texas Building and Loan association.

At the Rodeo April 30, May 1, 2

To turn back the pages of history 50 years to the days when untamed bronks and long-horned cattle roamed the plains of Texas —

Such is the intention of Tom L. Burnett, whose annual rodeo will be held this year April 30 and May 1 and 2 at the Texas-Oklahoma fair grounds. This years showing will be bigger and better than ever, the producers announce, with an augumented array of horses wilder than ever, Brahma steers more vicious than ever, with more daring riders and more interesting features all the way around.

Burnett has spent several years and no small amount of money in gathering his string of bucking bronks.

20 Applicants To Seek Naturalization Papers In Federal Court Here

Official Americanization-naturalization as the law calls it—of citizens of foreign nations desirous of transferring their allegiance from the governments of those countries to that of the United States will take place in federal court Monday afternoon. At that time applicants for citizenship ship will appear before Judge Wm. H. Atwell and undergo questioning as to their qualifications for citizenship, the question as to their admission and naturalization being contingent upon their answers in this connection.

Besies the resience requirement of five years habitation within the bouns of the United States the naturalization laws require the applicant to be able to read, write, an dspeak the English language, and to have a fairly comprehensive knowledge of American laws and institutions. Questions propounded by federal judges in the examinations on this point usually deal with various phases of the Declaration of Independence and the national constitution.

Of a large string of applicants for admission it has been the fact in the past in Wichita Falls at least that only a small number are allowed their citizenship papers. In the October term of the federal court last year only two of eleven applicants were admitted.

There are twenty applicants in line for examination at the Monday afternoon session of the court. While it is not certain that all of these will appear, a large number are expected to report. Of those who have filed their preliminary papers and stated their intention to take the examination, there is one whole family represented—that of the Mosers, farmers living near Henrietta, in Clay county. John Moser, so the applications for citizenship state, came to this country with his wife in 1900 from his home 60 miles northeast of Odessa, Russia. He brought with him a 5-year-old son, Peter Moser, and in the year following two other sons, Henry and Jacob followed their parents and brother. All settled near Henrietta and are now applying for classification as American citizens.

A complete list of those who will probably take the examination at the hands of Judge Atwell follows:

Jacob Moser, Henrietta, born near Odessa, Russia, immigrated in 1901.

Peter Moser, Henrietta, born at Odessa, immigrated in 1900.

George Kafer, Henrietta, born near Odessa.

Constantine Georgion Pappafotopoulas, 816 1-2 Indiana, born near Macrycia, Greece, immigrated in 1910.

Robert Bradford Everett, Iowa Park; born near Norfolk, England, immigrated to United States in 1889.

Michal Hazel, route 3, Wichita Falls, born near Trudobica, Moravia, Czecho Slocakia, immigrated in 1913.

GRAND JURY TO HAVE 100 CASES

Busy Session Is Promised When April Term Convenes Here.

At least 100 cases will come before the grand jury for the April term of the 30th district court which convenes at the direction of Judge H. R. Wilson Monday morning. The work promised for the grand jury will practically equal that of the January term of the grand jury, it is stated, which body returned more than 100 indictments.

The cases scheduled for attention include a number of hi-jacking charges, some three or four burglary charges, one murder case, two or three statutory offenses, and the usual number of theft cases.

In addition to this the grand jury is expected to take up an investigation of a number of assaults committed a month or more ago on the Henrietta road east of Wichita Falls.

Judge Wilson, District Attorney Ben P. Allred, and others connected with the 30th district court were all expected to be back in Wichita Falls today following completion of the March term of court at Graham.

Members of the grand jury panel include W. D. Utts and G. D. Rigsby, Burkburnett; R. L. Abernathy and T. A. Tarver, Iowa Park; C. E. McDaniel, R. B. McGee and Jack Bradley, Electra; Carter McGregor, C. H. Clark, E. W. Harriot and W. B. Chauncey, Wichita Falls.

Finley Weldon will have something to do with the session, just what not yet being certain.

Gain of $12,288 Is Made Here In Quarterly Postal Receipts

FIGURES MAKE STEADY CLIMB

First Three Months In 1926 Roll up Total Of $77,321.81

A gain of $12,288.17 in postal receipts for Wichita Falls in the first quarter of 1926 over the same period in 1925 was reported Saturday by Postmaster O. P. Maricle when figures were completed for the period, it was announced, the totals were $77,321.81 against $64,943.64 for the same period in 1925.

This adds another period to the uninterrupted series of quarterly reports in which continued advancement has been noted in receipts for the local office.

DENTISTS WILL ASK MEDICS' AID

Plea to Be Made Here At State Session April 27-29.

A plea that dentists aid physicians in their attack on the three great menaces, tuberculosis, syphilis and cancer, is to be made at the Texas state dental society convention in Wichita Falls by Dr. I. L. McGlasson of San Antonio. The convention meets here April 27-29.

Dr. McGlasson heads the American medical association section on dermatology and syphiliology. In an advance outline of his address sent to Dr. E. W. Smith of Dallas, chairman of the dentists' publicity committee, Dr. McGlasson states that in many instances the dentist is the first to see the conditions which indicate disease. He points out that cancer now has a mortality rate of 100,000 a year and says the medical profession is seeking every aid in reducing this.

"These three disease being the most important in which early diagnosis and early treatment is imperative many dentists already are appreciating the diagnosis of these conditions and are aiding us very materially in the attack, especially on the cancer problem," said Dr. McGlasson.

"There are probably 10,000,000 persons in the United States who have syphilis, many of the cases being unrecognized. It is obvious that every means should be taken to hasten its early recognition. The mortality from this disease is very much higher than is popularly believed.

"Further experience with the tubercular lesions of tongue and mouth indicates that the lung condition was recognized in many cases only after the tubercular lesion was evident in the mouth. The mortality in the last few years in tuberculosis has been reduced 50 per cent due entirely to its early recognition and early treatment.

"It follows that the dental profession can attack these disease as well as the medical profession and that dentists' obligation to humanity is no less in many instances than the doctor's."

Among other speakers at the convention will be Dr. Boyd S. Gardner, Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minnesota; Dr. K. W. Knapp, Minneapolis; Dr. Polk O. Akers, Chicago; Dr. J. M. McMinn, Dallas; Dr. S. B. Riggs, San Antonio and Dr. Walter T. Newton, Houston.

Jones Writes All About His Swing Through Mexico

It's a pretty good thing sometimes to burn all the bridges behind and get so far away from home there's no possibility of having business cares bob up for attention; and then, on the other hand, the best part of such a trip is the homecoming.

Such is the opinion of Oral Jones, vice-president and cashier of the City National bank, who recently made an extensive tour through Texas and into Mexico with "the flying squadron," a large group of American bankers who annually invade outlying sections in a good will and business tour. Jones gives some of his impressions of the tour in a write-up appearing in "Bank Draughts," publication issued by the bank employes and the latest number of which came from the press Saturday.

The writer touches on the various spots visited and comments to some degree on the personnel of the squadron.

A mammoth steel mill and an equally huge brewery at Monerey are contrasted in that the mill had paid only two percent dividends in 26 years, while the brewery "paid big divideads every day."

Despite the present sad state of affairs as regards some features of Mexico, the writer believed that its future was bright and promising.

Aid Society Has Number of Babies

Blonde or brunett, brown eyes, blue eyes, hazel or black, dark hair, red hair or light hair, its all the same to the Texas Children's Home and Aid society which, as it announces, is in business to "supply fairies" for fairylees homes," and which now has several youngsters waiting to be placed in permanent homes.

From three weeks to seevn years is the age limit encompassed by the babes now in the custody of Miss Katherine Henricle, local representative of the society. She asks that any one "wanting a fairy for a fairyless home" get in touch with her at her office, room 14, Ward building, or phone 7756.

Spuds Duds Here

The question o fwhat the well dressed Spudder will wear this baseball season is answered with a complete display of new uniforms for the Wichita Falls club in a front show window of Maxwell and Son Hardware company.

The new duds should please the most discriminating Spudder, for there are dark grap suits for trips and snappy white ones for the home grounds.

3 ELECTED TO SCHOOL BOARD

51 Votes Cast Saturday For Trustees In City.

Prothro, Wiley Robertson and Mrs. W. W. Silk. Mr. Prothro received a total of 51 votes; Mrs. Silk and Mr. Robertson each received 50 votes.

Mr. Prothro and Mr. Robertson will replace Will Daniel and John W. Bradley on the school board, both of whose terms expired soon. Mrs. Silk succeeds herself. As it stood there was no opposition for the places on the board.

The election was held at the Junior high school under the supervision of George Simmons, presiding judge, assisted by Frank Johnson and T. P. Webb.

Council Meets

The Camp Fire Girls council met Saturday noon at Y. W. C. A. for the monthly meeting. Representatives from each group gave accounts for activities for their group since last meeting. A great deal of interest was shown in the "Secret" of the Girls council, and each member pledged absolute secrecy until time comes for disclosing to other members.

A cake sale was decided upon for next Saturday, when each member of council is to bring cakes for sale. Call headquarters for information. Those attending were Edith Crump, president; Marjorie Vincent, Augenia Edgar, Opal Iongan, Fannie Godfrey, Fay Guthrie, Dorothy Sommerville, and Miss Mary McIlheran, executive.

RECEIVE PAVING BIDS.

Bids will be received on 18 different paving projects involving some 40 blocks or nearly three miles of paving at the Monday night meeting of the city council, it is announced. Petitions for the paving were received by the council some time ago.

Spud Pitchers Begin To Loom As Severe Menace To Ambitious Hitters

Rip, Paddy, Carl Appear Unbeatable, But No More So Than Suds And Jim

Sutherland and Roberts Turn in Sterling Mound Performance, Club Still Wallops Agate

By BLONDY CROSS

Pitching, the lone department in the Spudder organization fandom has displayed any apprehension about this spring, begins to appear better this year than ever before during the history of the Wichita Falls franchise. At any rate, Spudder mound performances this spring, poor weather and poor training conditions notwithstanding, have been much better than in any one of the previous six Wichita Falls training camps.

The club has been bucking the breaks, and the flinging staff has bumped into more than its share of trouble, this spring. Nevertheless, the twirling of Brainard's heavers in cold and wet weather alike has been surprisingly refreshing from a Spudder standpoint. The veterans, Rip Wheeler, Carl Williams and Paddy Martin already have indicated they will be severe menace to the batting averages of ambitious Texas league sluggers this summer. In several flies, four and three-inning tenures on the hill during recent exhibition tiffs, this trio has performed in deadly fashion.

And Saturday, two more of Brainard's moundmen put in a defi to opposing batsmen this summer. Jim Roberts and Suds Sutherland split a nine-inning affair against Oklahoma City. The Indians got to Jim in the first frame for a quartet of bingles which abetted by two errors sent four unearned (yes, unearned) runs across the platter. Thereafter through a four-round session, Big Jim hurled almost flawless ball. His change of pace had heavy hitters of the Western league team looking like a flock of grammer school swingers. The Indians touched Jim for one more safety, but failed to threaten.

Suds Holds 'Em Hitless.

Suds went to the knob in the fifth round and blanked the Savages the rest of the way. And not only did the British Columbia muskrat king hold the scoring counter intact, but he did not allow so much as a scratch safety. Not a base blow was combed from the leathery righthander's delivery during that five-inning span. Suds tired a bit in the ninth after two were away and came near to spoiling the effect by walking three in succession. However, Brainard leaped high and pulled a well-smitten agate from the ozone with one paw for the third out, thereby robbing Thompson of a hit and saving one high-strung flinger's life.

The Spudders won the contest, the second victory over the Indians, by an 8-4 count, but that's beside the issue. In other words, what's it matter? Win or lose, in that exhibition encounter two Wichita Falls hurlers looked like the oft spoken of, but seldom seen, one million bucks. It was Jim's first venture to the hillock Suds' second. That makes five flingers on the squad who have displayed this spring the stuff it takes to win.

As Wichita Falls fandom has developed the habit of expecting now due to the sterling past performances of the individuals who comprise Brainard's bruisers, the Spudders walloped the ball at a fairly lively clip. They didn't connect as regularly as they're doped to do, or at least, as regularly as they probably will in many games this summer when they've hit their batting stride. However, they pounded a right hander for 11 safeties in six frames, then hopped an inning and came back in the eighth to pair a couple of resounding smacks off a southpaw. Thirteen blows in eight couplets isn't poor slugging by a long shot, brother! And so far, right-handers haven't proved to be the poison "critics" over the league this spring have been prophesying they would be to our proud bludgeoners.

The Old Fight There.

The gang displayed the fight when the fight is needed the most. With a four-run lead stacked up before them in the very first stanza they tore out and strong-armed across sufficient scoring nuggets to overhaul the advantage. A golden opportunity went to waste in the fifth when with one away and runners on second and third a pinch poke would have settled matters. But they came back in the sixth, took advantage of a lucky break (Distel got two bases when Thompson lost the ball in the sun) and scored a run. But Pete Lapan's home run during the same inning wasn't luck! The midget backstop charged one of Hunter's flings with such gusto that the ball shot on a line over the left field fence. It wasn't any long fly or arching blow, but a bullet drive that lofted a bar 15 feet in the air and shrieked straight to the unexplored territory.

Knox contributed a blow in the eighth and was followed by Sutherland with a two-base bust against the left center boards. The clouts paved the way for two more runs which were tabulated when Knox played football on the third base line while in a hot box, upset half the Oklahoma City team and raced through a broken field to the plate and a one-point touchdown followed by Suds lugging another counter.

Fitz Has Tough Day.

They're talking about benching Fitzgerald until the season opens. He mistreats Gardner's baseballs flagrantly. Make him quit playing and the club will save money. The startling southpaw knocked four of the sphereoids lopsided yesterday. He smashed out a quartet of bristling singles in five voyages to the pan.

That the pastures will be well patroled this summer was displayed conclusively again yesterday. Lamb and Fitzgerald went in for a bit of lofty acrobatics along with some steaming speed bursts. Fitz tagged onto everything hit toward the mid-garden. Lucy stole a safe drive from Thompson in the first by galloping in and snagging the clout down around his shins. He followed with a couple of flips, came up and launched a meteoric throw to first that would have caught a runner if had that athlete not blocked Washburn's vision just as the big fellow stooped to scoop 'er in. Fandom gave up hopes of Suds turning the Tribe back hitless in the seventh when Conway batted for Hunter and rifled a liner to port, but Lamb charged in and snagged the drive again at his shoe tops and while on a dead run.

As one player on the bench yesterday remarked: "This club ought to lead the league this year in double plays made!" The two-ply kill-'em combination of Distel-to-Brainard-to-Washburn had cause to function only once during the afternoon but it worked like a high-powered speed machine on that occasion. Brainard worked one twin murder, second to first, without George's assistance.

Canada's froeign trade during January was the largest for that month since 1921.

Georgetown Runs Away With Texas University Squad

AUSTIN, Texas, April 3.—(AP)—Led by "Tony" Plansky, national collegiate champion, and Capt. Haas, Georgetown university at Washington, D. C., here today outclassed Texas university winning 11 first places in 13 track and field events.

Points were not tabulated, as Georgetown had only 10 men. The visitors were not represented in the mile and two mile runs.

Plansky won the javelin throw and shot putt and placed third in the discussion while Haas won both hurdle races.

R. W. Hammond of San Antonio, who incidentally is the national AAU middleweight wrestling champion; and Rufus Haggard of Gustine were the only Texas Longhorns to win against the blue and gray stars. Hammond soared over the bar at 12 feet to win the pole vault; and Haggard jumped six feet, 3-4 inches to capture the high jump.

The outstanding upset was the defeat in the 100-yard dash of Jerome Landa, Texas star, by Whalen. Landa last week won over Whalen at the Texas university and Rice institute relay carnivals, but the eastern star put on a fighting finish that won by inches today.

Beaumont Railroad Hearing Is Closed

BEAUMONT, April 3.—(AP)—After spending the entire week with three night sessions, the hearing on the application of the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity and Sabine railroad for a certificate of convenience and necessity for the construction of extensions from Weldon to Waco and from Beaumont to Port Arthur was brought to a close before Examiner Boles of the interstate commerce commission today. Both the applicant and the Kansas City Southern, which contested the application, were given permission to file various exhibits within 20 days.

Yaqui Joe Looks Pretty Tough for Jack

Yaqui Joe is one of the toughest welters in the game today, and—one of the roughest.

Originally a mine-runner in Mexico, years of gruelling experience on the road as a foot messenger has toughened Jose until he's like the proverbial boot leather.

The match will be preliminary to the Matty Matsuda-Ernie Maddock return go. Maddock is on hand now and in great condition, Matsuda is expected in the city today.

The Clevelander believes he has finally reached the state of physical trim and wrestling skill that will enable him to beat the welter champ. Maddock is staking his all on this match, for if he wins from the Jap he is to be given a match with Johnny Meyers, world's middleweight champion.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

BEES WIN DUEL FROM BEAUMONT

ORANGE, April 3.—(AP)—Omaha took a 3 to 2 pitchers' duel from Beaumont here today by bunching three of five hits off Diviney for a trio of runs in the fifth inning. Walker, a southpaw, and Mather, recruit right hander, did not allow more than one hit in any inning which accounts for the dearth of Exporter runs. Fielding was snappy throughout with five double plays registered. A hot sun permitted hurlers to work as they chose. Diviney did not attempt his spitball, using only his curve and a bit of exceptional control. It was his first appearance of the season on the hill. Hansen pitched the last three innings and not a Western leaguer reached first base. A fast double play retired the side in the ninth as a run scored for Beaumont that would have knotted the count.

CARD RESERVES BEAT HOUSTON.

HOUSTON, April 3.—(AP)—Herman Bell, St. Louis Cardinal, big young boxman with a buzzing fast ball, defeated the Buffs 2 to 1 here today. Before Bell, with his smoke service, faced the Buffs the Houston hired hands had won eight straight exhibitions, but the string was burned in two today. The final game of the sequence is carded for Sunday.

SAINT SECONDS NOSE OUT WACO.

WACO, April 3.—(AP)—The Saints' Yannigans brought in three runs on a pair of hits, the same number of walks and an error, in the seventh inning of their contest with the Cubs at Katy Park Saturday afternoon and thereby bagged the contest by a final score of 6 to 4. Pratt's men pecked away at the lead, with one run in each of the last three innings, but the game ran out two innings too early for them.

CARDS SHADE STEERS, 3 TO 1

DALLAS, April 3.—(AP)—Victory for St. Louis team by 3 to 1 over the Steers otday literally hung for a breathless second in the air at the end of the ninth inning. With a run scored and a man on second, Cowboy Segrist latched into one that set sail for deep center field apparnetly labelled a home run that would have tied the score. Mueller, in center for the Cardinals, however, made one of the finest runs and catches ever witnessed in a ball game here and saved the day for his team.

The big leaguers played as if in mid-season form.

Only one bad inning popped up for the Herd. Had Paddy Beaumann held down second to call the play, that inning probably would not have ensued, for it was a mix-up on a short fly that fell behind second base.

St. Louis (N)	3 6 0
Dallas (T)	1 5 3

SAINTS SHUT OUT PANTHERS, 2 TO 0

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 3.—(AP)—George Stuteyant smacked one for two in the sixth and drove in two to shut out Fort Worth 2-0, in the first of the Cat's two-game series with the St. Paul American association nine here this afternoon.

The game was the first real pitchers' battle of the season here, a total of five hits being registered and of this number only Stutevant's good for more than one sack. Wanninger and Anderson made the Saints' tallies.

St. Paul	2 3 1
Fort Worth	0 2 0

SANTONE BEATS DEMONS, 8-4.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 3.—(AP)—Errors and poor playing by the Western league champions enabled the Bears to win the second game of the Des Moines series today, 8 to 4. The San Antonio players accumulated a total of 11 hits. Heretofore this season, the highest number in any one was nine hits.

SOX WIN OVER SPORT CREW.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 3.—(AP)—Four unearned runs, three in the first and one in the eighth, gave the Chicago White Sox a 4 to 0 victory over the Shreveport Sports here today, and resulted in the first defeat of the season for Lefty Barnabe. The southpaw allowed only five scattered hits in nine innings and is the first local moundsman to go the route. Ted Lyons opposed Barnabe and hurled good ball, allowing four hits. Johnny Mostil had a great day in the outfield.

Cobb Has Better Infield, Same Batting Power, But Can't Win Pennant Unless Chunking Department Pulls Suprise

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Central Press Sports Editor.

"I know my infield will be stronger the day the season starts. My outfield can hit if it doesn't register A-1 in fielding. I have good catching. I am not satisfied with my pitching. We will be there most of the season. That's all I can say now."

Such is the frank sizeup of his team made by Ty Cobb, manager of the Tigers, after I had watched his team in action during an exhibition game at Asheville, N. C.

"Blue will be at first, of course. I'm going to start O'Rourke at second because of his experience Tavener will start the season at short. And either Warner or Mullin at third.

"This will give me a better infield, as far as defense is concerned than I had last summer. Our team lacked good fielding last season.

"Hellmann and Wingo will play the outfield regularly and when I am not in center Fotnergill probably will be my choice.

"I'm satisfied with that layout.

"Detroit teams always have had weak pitching. The club still has. The earned runs allowed by the pitchers of the various teams last year show that. I am hoping this year, however, that we will get better pitching."

Has Two Sweet Third Sackers.

Cobb's discussion of the probable makeup of his team brought out many interesting angles. I had just seen both Jack Warner, purchased with Clyde Barfoot from Vernon last winter for $40,000 and a handful of players, and Bill Mullen, Fort Worth star, perform part of the game at third base. Warner started and looked mighty sweet. Mullen followed and gave a brilliant account of himself.

Warner seems to have the edge now but I understand that Mullen is of the type that starts slowly—needs a few weeks of real ball to put him at his best. But both can hit.

And this makes Cobb happy. For years he sought in vain someone who could play third base properly and carry his end of the batting at the same time. Now he finds himself with two young men who seem ready to play thei ast corner as it should be played—and who can add a bit to, rather than detract from, the batting power of the team.

The probabilities are that Warner will start the season at third.

While O'Rourke is destined to open the season at second young Charlie Gehringer, obtained from Toronto, will break into the keystone job, before many weeks. Cobb simply wants to give the young man plenty of time to acclimate himself before giving the opposition a chance to upset him by sending him off to a bad start.

Jimmy Tavener has the shortstopping job nailed to the mast. Elmer Rigney has lost it. Should the little mite fall into a slump or get hurt the probabilities are that either O'Rourke or Warner will be sent to short rather than Rigney. This after Rigney loomed two years ago as the man of the hour in Detroit.

At second, in addition to O'Rourke and Gebringer, Cobb can also use Burke, another young infielder who is a mighty sweet little actor around second.

Wingo and Heilmann are fixtures in the outfield, of course. In addition to these sweet hitters Cobb has Fothergill and Manush. While the Tiger boss now plans to send the former to center in his stead for a time at least Manush may alternate with Fothergill or Wingo.

In addition to these vets Cobb has Art Ruble, obtained from the Charlotte club last fall. Ruble is due for a year's seasoning in fast minor league ball before he will draw a permanent berth.

So much for the satisfactory sections of the Tigers.

Write Your Own Pitching Ticket.

As for the pitchers about whom Cobb himself is worrying.

The men destined to fight it out for regular berths are the grand old veteran, George Dauss, Edwin Wells, Earl Whitehill, Lil Stoner and Ken Halloway. Rip Collins, a veteran of parts, Samuel Gibson and George Smith, obtained from the Toronto club, and Clyde Barfoot, purchased from the Vernon Coast League club, complete the roster.

Dauss, as usual, will be a war horse for work. Wells and White hill, the two young lefthanders, are counted on to be consistent winners. Lil Stoner has been a beautiful pitcher at times and the hope is that he will find himself this year. A hope, alone, however. Halloway has been seeking in vain to get on both feet. This is another year. That's about the way to place him.

Barfoot is a veteran, tried out several years ago by the St. Louis Cardinals. He labored three or four years in the Western league before going to Vernon. There is not much reason to expect him to prove a big winner. Probably Cobb figures, however, that with his experience Barfoot ought to be able to pitch capable ball.

Mechanically the Tigers have the pitching. By this I mean that every one of the hurlers listed has long carried a potential threat. But to date not one of them, outside Dauss, has proved a consistent, year in year out winner.

Until Cobb can band together four or five hurlers who can take their turn and be reasonably sure of turning in a fair percentage of victories can Cobb expect to produce anything more than a fighting, interesting ball club.

As long as Ty is boss of the outfit and injecting his own personality into the game the club will be that.

Does Cobb Take Care of His Eyes?

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Central Press Sports Editor.

Searching out Ty Cobb for my first glimpse of him this spring I found the leader of the Detroit Tigers engaged in the occupation, apparently, of burning up a perfectly new baseball cap.

What he was doing, I found out, was singeing the wooly fuzz from the edge of the vizer of the cap with a match flame.

"That fuzz is in your range of vision," explained Cobb, "and you look through it. It's just one more thing that produces a strain on your eyes."

Cobb appreciates the value of his eyes Always has. They played their part in making him the batting king of the American league year after year.

Right now Cobb is taking doubly good care of his eyes. He underwent an operation for the removal of a growth from one of them some weeks ago and is still wearing colored glasses except on the ball field, to shade his eyes while they are getting back in trim.

O'Connor Adds Two Collegiate Records

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3.—(AP)—Wallie O'Connor, Stanford tank man who swam a record breaking 100 meters with the 1924 Olympic team, added two national intercollegiate championships to his collection this afternoon when he drove to victory in the 220-yard and 440-yard free style swim in the naval academy pool.

Harry Lewis of Rutgers took part in three smashing finishes, and came off victor in one, the 50-yard free style. Two championships repose with navy meer men Allan taking the 200 yard breast stroke and Wyckoof the 100 yard free style. Jim Hill, Minnesota's Big Ten champion cheated the navy out of a third when he won the 150 yard back stroke and the fancy diving crown came to rest on the brow of William O'Brien, city college of Detroit.

Rice Shuts Out Baylor, 3 to 0

HOUSTON, April 3.—(AP)—Rice Institute shut Baylor out here today 3 to 0. The Owls bunched five hits in the first two innings off Selton of Baylor for the three runs. It was the first conference game of the season. The opening game for the Owls against the Aggies last Monday was rained out.

Bob Ables, lanky hurler of the Rice club, although touched for nine safeties, all of which were singles, was held in hot water.

A home run by Borschow in the first innink with two men out, and with a runner on base, gave the Owls enough to win the contest. Not content with these two tallies, Rice continued to clout Shelton in the second inning, and cause his withdrawal from the mound. In this inning another tally was scored.

Score:

WACO, April 3.—(AP)—"Beans" Miner, prize of Waco's outfield, broke both bones of his left leg just above the ankle after the last out of the contest with the St. Paul Saints at Katy park Saturday afternoon, trying to score from second when, with two men down in the ninth, Glass rapped one to deep short.

Glass was nipped at first on a close play, the Saints' first baseman whipping the ball home to catch Miner, who was sliding in, ignorant of the outcome of the decision at first.

Insiders Say Challenger Slow, Can't Hit, Can't Take 'em

By SPARROW M'GANN
Special Correspondent.
Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Ass'n.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Has Tex Rickard any real intention of bringing Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills together this summer or any other time?

This question has been heard most frequently since Tex sprang his big coup, this week, in leasing the Yankee stadium for outdoor boxing next summer.

Some insiders think that for various reasons neither Rickard nor anyone else will stage the bout. Yet on the other hand there are a few close to the center of affairs who will not be at all surprised if Rickard pulls off the fight.

One thing is as true as the hat on your head and that is that Dempsey will make a big mistake if he does not take on the black panther next summer. That is to say he will be making a mistake if he retains say about half of the form he displayed when he fought Jess Willard.

Wills Not Dangerous.

Close observers of fighting form, men who are always behind the scenes and therefore in the know, say that Wills is less dangerous right now than he has ever been since he came to be considered as the leading contender for Dempsey's crown. The years have worked to make Wills comparatively harmless. At least this is the dope of the up-and-up guys who follow ring events not for the love of the game but because they make money out of it through betting.

The glowing accounts of Wills' prowess which he has been reading in the papers for so long are held to have worked havoc with him inasmuch as it has given him the idea he is a superman.

This idea has been carried in the gym where Wills works. None of the big fellows will spar with Harry any more because he plays safe with them by putting over a big smash and then bulling his partners around the ring with his immense strength. So the little fellows have been pressed into service to work with Harry and this has not done him any good.

There was a time when Wills was a great boxer. Nowadays he will lower his guard whed he is feinted and then dive into a clinch as soon as he realizes his mistake.

Takes Gym as Joke.

What a good boxer could do to him if he failed to make his clinch good is too frightful to tell about.

Boxing with the little fellows has not helped Wills speed a foot because he has no reason to sidestep and evade. He just shuffles around flat footed and seems to take his gym work as a joke.

Carl Carter, who sprang into temporary fame when he knocked out Bad Gorman is alleged, according to training camp whispers, to have knocked Harry down the last time the two boxed and Harry has not had on the gloves with the rough big boy since.

Looking back over the sparring partners Wills has had for his few bouts in the past two years one is surprised at the lack of good men on the list. Steff Clark, the Jamaica Kid, and Battling Owens are the cream of the list. And what cream it is! Clark and Jamaica have been passe these last five years and Owens is nothing more than a punching bag for the first class heavies.

Hands No Good.

Wills is not punching as hard as he used to either. The reason for this is that his small hands will not stand the driving power of his immense strength. He has been under a doctor's care more than once for broken hand bones and has to be careful.

In the Firpo fight it will be recalled, Wills floored the big Argentinian and thereafter concentrated his attack on the soft body, thereby losing a chance for a knockout.

Dempsey can stand a hard punch if he is anything like the fighter he used to be. And the way Wills is fighting now Jack ought not to have trouble in socking him hard. Finally, Jack has courage and courage is just what is required to knock the conceit out of Wills.

So this is the way the little group of deep insiders are talking. They are men who don't shoot off their faces for the fun of hearing the sound of their voices.

Wichita Falls High School Track Team Wins Invitation Practice Meet

Dempsey Moore Takes Individual Point Honors By Scoring Three Firsts

By MACK TURNER

Wichita Falls track and field athletes won an invitation practice meet on the Junior college field Saturday with high score of 49 points. Dempsey Moore, with three firsts and a fourth place, took individual scoring honors.

Electra was second in the scoring with 35½ points. Clara ran third with 16½ points. Archer City came fourth with 16 points. Burkburnett totaled 12 points and Bowie 11.

Jot Hodges, Archer City flash, scored 12 of his team's 16 points. Hodges took two first places and a third.

Only two members of the Bowie track team were on hand for the meet, but both performed well. Sadler and Wade carried off first, second, third and fourth place.

Burkburnett also brought but a small number of the men. With Pat "Bannanas" Hood, Floyd Patterson, and Captain Harrold Hickam, the only three men on the track they carried off two firsts and a third place. Hood and Patterson taking the first places. Pat Hood wanted to enter the 880-yard run, but was ruled out after taking part in the mile run.

Orien Walkup, Clara speed merchant, was another man in the running for individual honors. Walkup stepped off two first places and a second. One of his firsts, however, was a tie and counted but half. His second was a place in a time heat that Hodges of Archer City, bested with a 1.2 second margin.

This was the last real chance for a scrimmage that all the teams will have this year before the county meets. Almost all of the nearby counties will stage their tournies next Saturday.

The 120-yard high hurdles was the first event of the afternoon and was won by Dempsey Moore, Wichita Falls idol, in 16.6. Walter Pinney, Wichita Falls captain, finished a close second. Joe Hodges was a very close third.

Hood Wins Mile Handicap

Dempsey Moore heaved the shot 40.8 feet for first place in this event. Sadler of Bowie tossed it 39.9 for second place. Larkins of Archer City was third. Sehon of Clara finished fourth.

Pat Hood of Burkburnett made a pretty run in the mile and won out with no competition close to him at the finish. Grant of Electra passed Melvin McKinney of Wichita Falls on the home stretch to finish second. McKinney finished third. Harris of Archer City finished fourth. Hood's time was five minutes, 2.8 seconds.

Hood captured the mile at Iowa Park Friday with 5 minutes and seven seconds in an invitation meet. He also ran in several other races Friday and was running Saturday on pure nerve.

Jot Hodges ran the 100-yard dash in 10.4 second to capture his first place honors. Gillum, Electra finished second. Meredith and Williams, both of Wichita Falls, finished third and fourth.

Dempsey Moore again leaped into the limelight on the 440-yard dash when he took first place, making 2:2.2 seconds on his time. Foster, of Electra, and Gillum, of Electra, finished second and third., Larkins, of Archer City, ran fourth.

Patterson Wins Javelin.

In the javelin throw came the biggest surprise of the meet. With the javelin falling around 112 to 116 feet, Floyd Patterson, of Burkburnett, stepped up and gave the spear a heave of 145.3 feet. This captured first place. J. O. Sehan, of Clara, captured second. Perk Ray of Wichita Falls, took third. Sadler of Bowie, won fourth place.

Jot Hodges, of Archer City, was again the leader in the 220-yard dash by beating Orien "Curly" Walkup, of Clara, out by 1.2 seconds in the last heat. Hodges' time was 23.5. Walkup rated second with 24.7 time. Meredith, of Wichita Falls, and Williams, of Wichita Falls, took third and fourth places.

Thomas, of Wichita Falls, won first place in the 880-yard run clipping it off in 2 minutes 15.1 seconds time. De Mott, of Electra, won second place. Wade, of Bowie, won third place. Tinnie, of Electra, was fourth place.

Orien "Curley" Walkup took first place in the 220 low hurles with 28.6 time. Walter Pinney, of Wichita Falls and Kent, of Electra, came in neck and for second place. Dickey, of Wichita Falls, was fourth.

Sanderlin, of Electra, won the discus throw by heaving the plate 110.4 feet. Faegan, of Wichita Falls, was second. Patterson of Burkburnett, was third and Dempsey Moore, of Wichita Falls was fourth.

Wade of Bowie, won first place in the pole vault. He cleared the bar at 10.6 feet. Clonginger of Electra, was second. Kent of Electra, finished third. Faegan of Wichita Falls, finished fourth.

Pack Wins Relay.

Orien Walkup of Clara, and Hackney of Electra, tied for the first in the broad jump. Both of them jumped 19.1 feet. Sehon of Clara finished third. Kent of Electra was fourth.

Clonninger of Electra, and Roy Porter of Wichita Falls, tied for first place in the high jump when they cleared the bar at 5.6 feet. The second place was won by Hackney of Electra. Byrd of Electra, was fourth.

The last event of the afternoon was the mile relay. Only two teams entered the race, Wichita Falls and Electra. The Coyotes won in 3 minutes, 48.4 seconds.

The Coyotes took a lead and held it until the third lap when Walter Pinney lost the advantage to Electra. Dempsey Moore took the last lap for the Coyotes and again was the winner of the day. Moore passed his Electra opponent with apparent ease on the last lap and finished with a good lead at the tape.

HEAVY WORRY ABOUT TO GET BROWNS DOWN

By GEORGE CHADICK
Special Correspondent
Copyright, 1926, by The Consolidated Press Association

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—George Sisler may worry himself out of a chance to win the American league pennant. Major league ball players, who are heading homeward from their training camps in the south, are all talking about the manager of the St. Louis Browns and the distress he has been displaying recently over the team.

Sisler, say players of other teams which have come in contact with the Browns, is worrying himself into a state of extreme nervousness because of the inability of his team to pull together as he had hoped. His state of mind also is being reflected in his own playing.

If Sisler fail sto win the pennant this year, these ball players think he will quit managing. Between his illness of two years ago when he was so sorely afflicted with eye trouble and the worry that the managerial job has given him, the players think he is pretty badly upset.

Mistakes on Infield.

National league men who have played against the Browns do not rate them so highly as the critics are inclined to place them. They think Sisler has made a mistake in not naming a regular infield. He has played McManus at third instead of regularly at second and Mellilo at second at times. He also used Gerber at short and Lamotte at short, explaining that he wanted to make the players earn the right to be regulars.

Sisler's National league critics say he has made a mistake in taking McManus away from second base because they think he is the best second baseman in the league. McManus did not sign his contract in 1925 until after the team had returned home from the spring training camp. This year, in spite of the fact that he has signed a contract, McManus has not been played regularly at second base. It is possible that Sisler is not entirely satisfied with the work of Robertson at third as the latter has not played at his best in the south.

But if Robertson is not assured that he will be the regular third baseman, the baseball men who have been looking the Browns over insist that the uncertainty which exists in Robertson's mind as to whether he will be the regular third baseman, has not helped his work.

All winter the New York Yanks were after McManus. They could have made any kind of a trade within reason to get him but they would not give up Waite Hoyt in exchange for him.

Need Team Work

The National league men in the south who have watched the Browns with uncommon interest because they are reputed to be the "big dark horse" of the American league, say they will never win the championship if the players cannot be brought together so they will show more team work.

In anexhibition game against the Boston Nationals, Sisler ran from second to third on an outfielder choice with only one out. A double play resulted. The National leaguers called attention to the lapse as showing that Sisler is so badly worried over the situation that he is losing out on his own game. There were mental lapses by other St. Louis players in that game which induced the National league men to predict that Sisler would have a mighty hard job not to start poorly in 1925 and it was the poor start in 1925 that put the Browns out of the race.

The Browns did not do very well against Brooklyn except in one game and there is no Major league manager who will concede that Brooklyn will be a pennant factor even if ti is a mighty bothersome club to some of the other contenders.

Not So Peppy

It is said that Sisler has set his heart on making a fine showing with the Browns this year and that he wishes to win the pennant above all else. That is natural enough but in addition to that it is reported among the ball players that if he fails to win the pennant this year he will give up managing and devote himself strictly to ball playing.

The Browns in their spring games have shown lack of team work and the players seem to be at loggerheads as to what they should do on the bases. The St. Louis players have been criticised because of their lifelessness and they have not been making any kind of a showing to give the National league clubs any fear of them. It is admitted that they are fast in practice and that they have shown as much speed in their workouts as any team but the trouble has been in their exhibition games where they have been outgeneralled most invariably.

Found an old friend working out with the Toronto International league club during my sojourn in the south, Steve O'Neill, for years catching ace of the Cleveland Indians, was the man.

Steve is starting out to do a comeback in the big show and believes he has landed with the proper club for his purpose.

O'Neill was given his unconditional release by the New York Yankees last fall when Huggins decided to get rid of several vets. Steve waited for other big league clubs to pick him up and then signed with the Int. team. With Dan Howley's outfit O'Neill will be worked day in and day out—the thing he needs to keep his weight down. Howley assigned him behind the plate the first day out and when I saw the team in action at Asheville, N. C., Steve looked thinner than he has for, lo, these many campaigns.

STEVE O'NEILL

The mystery to me is why three or four of the big league clubs failed to grab O'Neill.

Of course Huggins made a mistake in allowing both O'Neill and Schang to depart. Huggins hasn't a capable all-around catcher on his ball club today.

The Brooklyn Dodgers could use him.

But O'Neill isn't worrying over spilled milk.

"I figure on being back next year," says Steve And in the meantime Howley is counting on the vet to guide his young pitchers, including Owen Carroll, through to another big year for the Canadian team, which finished second last year in the Int. league.

Elmer Myers, curve ball artist, once a member of the Athletics and then the Indians, is expected to bolster the hurling staff of the Baltimore Orioles this season. Myers was one of a trio of players the Mackmen traded to Cleveland one time for Bobby Roth, restless soul of baseball. Larry Gardner, veteran third baseman of the Red Sox machine, was the second man, and Charley Jameison, pitcher and outfielder, was thrown in. He is the only man involved who is still in the game—and he is still very much in it.

Gene Tunney, it is hinted, may retire after his long awaited battle with Jack Dempsey—if the contest ever takes place. This is interesting. We will be expected to get all steamed up over a bout that will either leave Dempsey the non-fighting champ or replace him with another gentleman who has no idea of keeping the boxing game alive by showing the interest a champ should show.

All Set for Title Women's Meet

GALVESTON, Texas, April 3.—(AP)—With a number of the women who will participate in the tenth annual tournament of the Women's Texas Golf association, which opens Tuesday morning at the Galveston Country club, already here, preparations are made for entertaining the largest attendance ever recorded at a tournament staged by the Texas association.

Registrations will open Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the club and will continue throughout the day. Galveston players who will participate registered today. Twenty-seven ladies both from the Galveston Country club and Bay Shore Country club registered for the tournament, giving Galveston a good representation in the tournament.

Miss Margery Dorrance of Houston, state champion, was down this afternoon and played the course, along with a member of entrants.

The qualifying round for the tournament will start Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and will likely continue all day. Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock a tea will be held at the club, while at 3:30 o'clock the annual meeting of the association will be held at which time officers for the coming year will be elected and the meeting place next year decided on.

Cheese Keeps Auto Race King From Speedway

But Tommy Milton Will Be In Pits at Decoration Day Classic

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3. When a man lives in the roaring realm of racing cars for 13 years, eats splinters, breathing gasoline and oil fumes, and flirting with death, he can no more sit down at a desk for the rest of his life than can a congressman quit making speeches.

So Tommy Milton, "Terrible Tommy," will take a part in the annual Decoration day 500-mile classic in Indianapolis May 30. And this despite the fact that he has retired from the track to enter the real estate business in New York City.

Tommy will be in the pits during the Indianapolis race. He has resolved, though, never again to ride the Roaring Road to Fame.

International Figure

Tommy Milton became internationally known during his 13 years of racing in the United States and Europe. Tommy is the only racer ever to win the Indianapolis classic twice and has traveled faster on four wheels than has any other human being. He is independently wealthy, owning a large cheese factory in St. Paul, Minn. His brother, Bub, tends the factory and Tommy between races has made his home in California.

Beginning his speed tricks as a lad in short trousers, when his father bought him a motorcycle, Milton soon joined a state fair racing team. He was discharged, however, when he persisted in defeating men he was ordered to follow in the races. Then he entered "big league" racing.

Milton established many world records in speedway races. He holds three dirt track records, for 50, 75 and 100 miles all made at a speed of more than 79 miles an hour, in 1923, at Syracuse, N. Y.

Gosh! How Fast!

Milton won the Indianapolis classic in 1921 at a speed of 89.62 miles an hour, and again in 1923 at a speed of 90.95 miles an hour for the 500-mile grind. Milton also won the American Automobile association championship in 1921 and was second in 1925.

Tommy traveled at the terrible speed of 156.4 miles an hour over the fine sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1920, setting a world record that has never been beaten. He also established the fastest mile record that ever has been made on a dirt track, at Syracuse, N. Y., in 1926, traveling 85.1 miles an hour.

The automobile racing world mourns the passing of Tommy Milton, called "Terrible" because of his bursts of speed on the track.

The question of who will take his place is on many lips. The finger seems to point to young Bob McDonogh, whom Milton converted from a stunt airplane pilot into a capable automobile racer. McDonogh finished fourth in A. A. A. standing last year. He knows all Milton's tricks of the trade and some of his own.

SKULL PRACTICE

Connie mack is satisfied that his pitchers have hardened their arms and now wants 'em to harden their legs. He doesn't have to worry about their heads.

Cleveland Indians are supposed to have landed a first baseman named Neun from the Tigers. That's a Neun on me.

Advisability of spring football practice in colleges is being discussed again. It can't do the boys any harm. They forget everything they have learned by fall.

American League umpires are wondering just how far Kid Gleason has gone in putting "fight" into the Athletics.

Sherrod, Riley, Monte, Griffin Workout With Welters, Fight Card Slated Tuesday Night.

Tommy White and Wildcat Ewing, the clever welterweight boxers who are billed in a ten-round main event here Tuesday night, will begin the tapering off process this afternoon in the Twelfth and Ohio open air arena, it was anounced at fight headquarters Saturday. White, Wildcat Monte and Johnny Sherrod plan to workout at 2 o'clock. Ewing, Sammy Riley and Dick Griffin are scheduled to use the arena at 3 o'clock. The gates will be thrown open to fans, according to the promoters, and no admission fees will be charged.

The entire flock of fighters lined up for the Tuesday card are said to be in the best of condition. The White-Ewing affair stacks up as one of the most choice fistic morsels in several months for the edification of Wichita Falls sock enthusiasts. The supporting prelims look exceptionally good, too.

Riley and Sherrod are to tangle in an eight-rounder. The fight looms as a pleaser. Both boys are tough, comparatively fast, and quite ambitious.

The Bigboy Smith-Ace Cain heavyweight scrap, also is expected to prove an exhilirating affair.

Poor Fields, Not Lack of Ability, May Have Caused Macks and Browns Loss of Many Flags

For the last two or three American league campaigns the Athletics and Browns have startled the league and fans of that circuit at times with spurts which threatened for a time to carry one or the other of them to the pennant. But each time the spurt fell short.

Various reasons have been ascribed for the failure of both managers to land a pennant in the recent races.

Lack of consistent, heady pitching has been blamed for the failure of the Browns.

Lack of balance, unfortunate injuries, and an erratic hurling staff have been blamed for Connie's disappointments.

But the other night a veteran coach with one of the other American league teams threw a new light on the subject.

That's Just Too Bad.

"The Athletics and the Browns have the poorest infields in the league. I don't see how their own men can play through the season on them. No wonder they can't win a pennant. They're to be praised for having nerve enough to play on the fields, let alone play pennant baseball," said this man

"The infields are as hard as concrete and the entire playing field is in poor shape. I have seen infielders, actually scared of the ball, when it hopped toward them. These same infielders, at our park, would play a dashing, fearless game."

Then to prove his point, this wise old head pointed out that the improvement of the White Sox, as a team, has come along with the expenditure of considerable money to rebuild and improve the playing field, which had been untouched for years.

Which reminded me that several years ago (before they started winning pennants) the Washington club was accused of "banking" the ground along first and third base lines so that a bunt, laid down along either foul line, would be more liable to roll fair. Knowing this the team would use the batting game to advantage. No one ever put a spirit level on the ground, however.

Figures Wet Base Lines?

The Detroit Tigers have been accused of wetting the base lines at Navin field so that bunts would drop "dead" when Cobb and his fellow batters dumped them on either runway. Whether or not the wetting was done for this purpose is unknown.

But to get back to the Philadelphia and St. Louis infields. It is necessary to "work" the bare ground in the infield almost constantly to keep a proper surface—one that has resiliency, gives sure footing, does not become sticky when wet, and does not harden under the hot sun. A mixture of sand and clay is used for this surface, the success achieved by the groundkeeper depending upon his skill in handling the dirt. The clay, it seems, works down through the sand, calling for constant renewal of this surface.

Lack of clay results in either a soft, sandy infield, where the fielder flounders around in the deep, soft dirt, or in a "baked" surface, much like an ordinary concrete floor. It is this latter type that the coach blames for the failure of both teams to set and hold a pace in recent years that would carry them to a flag.

MAJOR LEAGUE SPOT TURNS TO MOUND STAFFS

Looks Like Hard Season For Erstwhile Heavy Slammers

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—With a revival of pitching effectiveness promised by the use of resin and the extraction of some of the "hop" frm the "Jack Rabbit" ball, big league managers are concentrating attention on their hurling squads as the training season draws to a close. Some of them, such as George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns, and Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds, already have decided the order of mound rotation for the opening games, starting April 13. Others still are wrestling with the problems of selection and rejection but the teams recognized as outstanding contenders all seem well supplied with hurlers eager to demonstrate that the heavy hitting era of baseball is nearing its close.

Brown Corps Formidable

Sisler has built up a formidable staff from twirlers cast off by rival clubs, three of them, he has decided, will get the assignments in the opening series with Chicago, with Milton Gaston, formerly of the Yankees, as lead off pitcher, Tom Zachary, southpaw, obtained from Washington as number two and Joe Giard, another Yankee cast off, third in line.

Hendricks had picked Pete Donohue, Carl Mays and Eppa Rixey to work in order with Adolfo Leque, the Cuban ace, due to round out one of the most formidable quartets in either league.

The Giants, boasting their best hurling corps in several years, count on Jimmy Ring, Hugh McQuillan, Art Nehf, Jack Scott, Fred Fitzsimmons and Kid Greefield to occupy winning roles. The Braves have a brilliant young staff led by Genewich, Graham, Benton and Cooney. Brooklyn always looms as a dangerous factor with Dazzy Vance and Burleigh Grimes to carry the burden.

Macks Real Stars

The Athletics have exceptional stars in Eddie Rommel, Bryan Harris, Sam Gray, and Lefty Groves, while the Senators again count upon their veterans, Johnson, Coveleski and Ruether to carry the burden, along with another seasoned acquisition, Joe Bush.

Youth predominates on the White Sox staff with Ted Lyons, Ted Blankenship and a new comer, Alphonse Thomas, among its stars, besides the veteran Urban Faber. Cleveland's mound hopes are centered somewhat on expected comebacks by Uhle and Shaute. The Yankees have a mixture of new and seasoned material including Shocker, Hoyt, Shawkey, Jones, Pennock, Myles Thomas and Walter Beall, the latter two recent graduates of the International league.

JAKE DEFEATS WILLIE HOPPE

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, billiard champion for almost two decades relinquished the last of his titles tonight to Jake Schaefer of Chicago by losing the final block of a 3,600-point match for the world's 18.1 balk line crown, 300 to 230. The final score read:

Schaefer, 3,600.

TALUNAR PLACE

AN EVEN FIFTY WAYS THAT WE COULD CHEAPEN OUR HOUSE CONSTRUCTION AND STILL BUILD A HOUSE AS GOOD AS THE AVERAGE

But we will never cheapen the construction of a Talbert, Lundien & Arnhold house! Our homes have earned the coveted reputation of being the best built houses in Wichita Falls. We are not contractors. The only way you can get a T-L-A house is to buy it from us located in highly restricted Talunar Place. The prices are extremely reasonable, considering the high quality that is built into each of them.

1. Cheaper foundation.
2. Cheaper method of framing, eliminating triple corners and doubled openings.
3. No rat and mouse proofing.
4. Single floors instead of double ones.
5. Eliminate use of asphalt wood felt between floors.
6. No oak floors; pine instead.
7. No storm sheeting over outside walls.
8. No building paper over storm sheeting that keeps out cold and dust and wind.
9. Yellow pine siding instead of more expensive white pine.
10. Ordinary unstained shingles instead of most expensive vertigal grain, stained.
11. Tin ridge roll instead of four-inch dimension shingle ridge roll.
12. Use of fewer nails saving both nails and expensive carpenter's labor.
13. Ordinary wire shingle nails instead of zinc coated, non-rusting life-time ones.
14. Yellow pine exterior trim instead of long-life white pine.
15. Yellow pine exterior trim instead of HARDWOOD!
16. No ventilators for attics.
17. Narrow valley tin instead of extra wide.
18. Two coats of exterior paint instead of THREE!
19. Three coats of interior paint instead of FOUR and FIVE!
20. No sandpapering between paint coats on inside work.
21. Common place flat board window and door frames rather than membered and mitered ones.
22. Two member base board trim instead of three member.
23. Stock doors rather than specially designed hand-made to order ones.
24. Stock window frames instead of special made to order ones.
25. NO METAL WEATHER STRIPS ON WINDOWS AND DOORS!
26. No tile bath room floors.
27. No plastered and enameled wainscoting for bath room walls.
28. No built-in full recessed bath tubs and highly expensive bath room fixtures.
29. No wall heating stove in bath room.
30. No steel medicine cabinet with glass shelves.
31. Ordinary cheap light fixtures rather than expensive wrought iron ones.
32. Cheaper hardware in many ways too numerous to mention.
33. Plain hot water heater instead of three times more expensive than automatic one.
34. The usual kitchen sink faucets instead of double swinging solid brass ones.
35. Single door bell, or none at all instead of dual, no battery system.
36. Much cheaper ironing board.
37. Cheaper built-in kitchen cabinets by a considerable amount.
38. No refrigerator trap drain.
39. Elimination of air plunger screen door checks.
40. Leave out numerous hot plugs for electrical conveniences through the house.
41. Elimination of ice box entry saving doors, material and carpenter labor.
42. Cheaper electric wiring system throughout the house.
43. Cheaper fire place mantels for living room.
44. SMALLER LIVING ROOMS, THUS REDUCING SIZE AND COST OF ENTIRE HOUSE.
45. Less expensive wall paper by a considerable amount.
46. Chaper floor finishing, (a considerable item of cost in fine houses).
47. Elimination of brick drainage "wells" at rear of house.
48. Elimination of grading and leveling all around finished house.
49. Instead of broad, solid drive and solid garage floor, use ribbon ones.
50. NO ARCHITECTURE! THUS ELIMINATING BEAUTY AND DESIGN AND ALSO COST!

You can buy from us at this time a home in Talunar Place that INCLUDES everything that is LEFT OUT of the above list of fifty things. You can get just exactly the house that you want and it will be built as well as it is possible to build a house. Come to see us. Drive out to Talunar Place (North end of Filmore street) and see the beautiful homes we have erected there. The new paving on Bullington street will be opened next week.

MEXICO IS TOLD TO RECOGNIZE HUERTA'S DEBTS

Basis for Claims Laid Down By American Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Five decisions laying down important policies for future disposition of claims were announced today by the American-Mexican claims commission. Under them Mexico must recognize obligations incurred by the government of Victoriano Huerta in 1913-14 but is not liable under acts of Adolfo de La Huerta who led a revolt against the Obregon administration in 1924.

The commission held it was without jurisdiction to decide claims arising out of the American occupation of Vera Cruz in 1914, except where Mexican citizens were damaged by wrongful administrative acts of the American authorities.

In overruling a motion to dismiss the claims of the Illinois Central railroad for locomotives sold to the government railroad the commission held that breach of contract claims fall within the treaty setting up the commission.

Had Mexico's contention in this case prevailed probably half of the 2,500 Americans claims filed would have been decided unfavorably.

The commission also interpreted the so-called "Calvo clause" regarding breach of contract, which has been a bone of contention in Latin-American countries for nearly 30 years. It sustained Mexico's motion to dismiss the claims of the North American Dredging company of Texas, for losses alleged to have been suffered from breach of contract entered for dredging Salina Cruz.

Dismissal was based on the ground that the claimant had agreed, that if any difficulties arose it would exhaust all remedies afforded by Mexican law before appealing to the United States. Such an agreement it was said, was binding.

SEES HOPE FOR BONDS

Tillotson Certain Tangle Will Be Straightened

FORT WORTH, April 3.—Solution of Texas' bond difficulties was predicted this afternoon by Leonard Tillotson, Sealy, chairman, of the legislative committee of the Texas highway association, as plans went forward for a meting of the committee with mayors of 15 leading Texas municipalities and county judges and commissioners of the state here April 16 to consider ways and means of restoring the state's credit in the eyes of the bond buying public."

NOT DEDUCTIBLE

Loss of Bars and Good Will Disputed By Tax Collector

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP) Loss of a good will value resulting from the closing of a hotel bar because of prohibition cannot be allowed as a deduction in computing income taxes, it was held today by the board of tax appeals.

Such a claim, presented by the owners of the Great Northern hotel in Chicago was held inadequate by the internal revenue bureau and the government was upheld by the board which pointed out that the bar had been transformed into a lunch room.

Cornuche, King of The Casino Did More for American Tourists' Pleasure Than Anyone in France

Beginning as Lowly Dishwasher, Noted Gambler Saved Enough to Purchase Resort For Rich Visitors

By WILLIAM BIRD
Special Radio Dispatch
Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

PARIS, April 3.—Eugene Cornuche, the Casino king, who died Thursday, did more for the amusement of traveling Americans than any other man of this generation.

Beginning his career 40 years ago as a dishwasher, Cornuche saved $1,000 in five years and purchased an obscure grog shop in the Rue Royale which he baptized "Maxim's." It was the first "American bar" in Paris, and proved to be an instantaneous success.

Cornuche's next great idea was that well-to-do foreign visitors would patronize an exclusive summer resort where they could be sure of rubbing elbows with the European aristocracy. As proprietor of Maxim's he made many friends among the French and English sporting aristocracy, including Edward VII, who was then Prince of Wales.

Cornuche purchased Deauville, which was then a dreary, neglected village, letting most of his friends who were prominent, pleasure loving aristocrats, in on the deal. Deauville real estate quickly skyrocketed and the promoters made many fortunes.

Americans flocked there, gladly paying exorbitant prices for the privilege of watching European royalty and nobility amuse themselves.

Later Cornuche established the Cannes casino in competition with Nice, with the result that the smartest people have forsaken the latter.

Cornuche owned various restaurants and hotels in Paris also and all of them have flourished because of the exclusive tone lent by the promoters friendship with the aristocracy.

The most eminent leaders of gay life in Europe have followed Cornuche's judgment in developing new playgrounds and none has had cause to regret it. All who have gone in on the ground floor with Cornuche have profited handsomely.

With the passing of Cornuche, many people are wondering what "Master mind" will henceforth direct the international clique of merry makers.

WHO SAID?

gold; and if the reawakened interest in guilds is going to be consistent to the extent of making the ornament represent the ornamentee's status, this tan straw is exactly the thing for the movie trade. The silver padlock, on the other hand, ought to go big at the moment among lady patrons of Broadway cabarets.

WKhat an interesting spring this promises to be! A few gilded clusters of coral on sand velvet for the Florida fan. One thin, flat golden note or calf for the chorus girl. A black jack, prettily enameled in black and blue, for the bobbed haired bandit. A large gold brick for the lady from (that is, to and from) Reno. A platinum scrubbing brush set in diamonds for the mother's helper. A gilded shingle (take it any way you like) for the flapper. And for Momma—but, no, if Momma's guild emblem is a lipstick, a rouge puff, or a pair of kid-your-calories scales she keeps it under her hat, not on it.

The possibilities, as any milliner or innocent bystander can easily see, are endless. It is a moot question whether the king was really looking at a futurist painting the other afternoon when he murmured:

"Is it a dog or a fish? He may have been gazing at one of these novel thoughts for spring.

Now for the Jewels.

Still and all, it's a humorous world this season. Take jewelry, for example; and if you do take it under the impression that it is such, you'll probably bust right out crying.

All the ladies are wearing enormous rubies, emeralds, pearls—big as hen's eggs and precious as window glass. Glass gems in lucious chunks clash from aristocratic ears and clatter about the neck of nobility. Since the war impoverished the rich and enriched the poor, authentic jewels have grown so common that nobody who wants to be anybody wears 'em.

Does the tradition still linger in America that the English are a conservative people?

Easter Parties Give Wichita Falls Society Busy Week

Peggy Piedmont

Look At the Clothes — Banner Day Tuesday
Easter Brides Busy — The Forum Program
The Duncan Dance — Better Homes

DEAR KITTY:

With the dawn of the glorious Easter morn, when we sally forth to church in our new bib and tucker, our thoughts turn back for a moment to the preceding Holy week—the most solemn week of the entire year—when we should have had no thoughts save for prayer and penitence, yet we are so worldly and restless that even as we prayed, in our minds we were swiftly turning over the events of the future, and we planned far ahead for the things, that like the flowers bloom in the spring tra la.

All through Lent the Easter brides were busy with their trousseaux and showers, and now that everything has been completed and laid away between rose and violet sachets, their thoughts are fixed today on the great event—their wedding.

Society has been busy this week almost as busy as usual. No real big affairs, but something despite the sudden winter weather with it's feathery snow flakes, was doing almost every afternoon.

* * *

AND Friday night, what a good time the younger set had when Margaret Duncan and her brother, T. P. Jr., entertained with a dance at the Country club. The Francis Grice chapter of the D. A. R. held their monthly luncheon and program there Saturday at noon, and the coming week promises to be one of unusual social activity.

The return home for Easter holidays of some of the college crowd with their guests, lent added interest to many affairs and among those coming from distant schools was Bernice Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Martin, from Ward Belmont, where she is teaching and specializing in her chosen work, dramatic art. During Miss Martin's stay here, she will have as her house guest, Miss Donnella Evans of Fort Worth, who will also visit Faye Boyd.

Frank Patterson also of that city is spending Easter in the Martin and Boyd homes.

Two especially elaborate affairs will mark Tuesday, a banner day socially. For on this date the Woman's Forum is entertaining with one of its most attractive programs to the Country club and Mrs. J. L. McMahan is giving a bridge party at the Wichita club. Thursday afternoon another large affair announced, is the reception at the Country club when three charming matrons, Mrs. T. T. T. Reese, Mrs. W. J. Grisham and Mrs. J. C. A. Guest will be hostesses. And then Saturday, still another event of importance in social circles, is the reception and presentation of Josh Lee, humorist by Mrs. Ed Howard, Mrs. Rhea Howard and Mrs. C. C. Cabiness at the Wichita club. Now my friend, when you add to this list, bridge parties for a limited number, informal teas, a wedding or so, club activities, to say nothing of the church work and religious social affairs you will come to the conclusion I am sure that we are indeed rushing around.

Now Forum events interest perhaps more women than any other forms of social diversion, for the reason that the organization includes a large membership, and as in the instance of the party Tuesday afternoon, these members may also bring guest. Or rather may take advantage of the event for social entertainment as several hostesses are doing. This week's affair is to be in the form of an elaborate reception and tea, with a popular reader, and impersonater, Olive McClintic Johnson, appearing in the Broadway success, a three-act play, "Enter Madam" written by Gilda Varesi and Dolly Byrne. Mrs. Johnson comes recommended as an artist of the highest order, of splendid personality, perfectly natural and always holds the closest attention of her hearers.

* * *

THE reader gave this program before the Shakespeare followers club at Dallas, and the president, Mrs. A. U. Puckitt says: "The work of Olive McClintic Johnson before this club was entertaining and inspiring. She gives the play Enter Madam entirely from memory, and her versatile genius in the interpretation of the several characters is as rare as it is delightful. The pleasure of the audience was no less great than it it has been transported to the Broadway theatre and enabled to see the performance by the original cast with all the accessories of lights, costumes and scenery. Mrs. Johnson has had many platform successes, but her Enter Madam is the summum bonum."

Now I am sure that after hearing all of this that you are not surprised that we are looking forward to this weeks' events with more than passing interest.

And while it is some little time yet until April 25, local women are interested in "Better Homes in America" week which begins at that time. Probably because a popular matron, Mrs. R. B. Parker has been appointed city chairman and is working up a most interesting program for the entire week. This program will include music and other features in which local artists will take part, and a new, complete bungalow will be furnished and opened on this occasion for use during the week Mrs. John F. Lyons, member of the advisory council of better homes in America, and president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, says in this connection: "No home is complete without music, and it is to be hoped that no demonstration of Better Homes in America, will fail to include musical programs. We have passed that point in our national development where music was considered a luxury and thought of purely as a source of pleasure. While we still recognize its great value as a source of pleasure, we have also come to realize its importance as a character builder, a refining influence for nations as well as individuals, a social stabilizer, and educational necessity and an aid to good government. Today we think of music as one of the most important elements in modern culture, and a subject about which few cultivated people are willing to be thought ignorant or indifferent.

Every home should have a musical instrument or instruments. The piano of course, comes nearer meeting all needs than any other. A phonograph both for pleasure and education is almost indispensable, while a player piano serves admirably if no member of the family plays. The proper arrangements of these instruments is an important point and should be thought of in building of the home. A good light is essential and the accommodations for listeners must be considered.

* * *

EVERY home library should if possible contain books on music—reference, historical and descriptive. Many of these may be secured at a very moderate cost, while some in pamphlet form are available free of charge from various phonograph companies. "Show me a home wherein music dwells," said Longfellow, "and I shall show you a happy peaceful and contented home."

In her literature for "Better Homes in America" week, Mrs. Parker suggests recreations for the home, the value of home play, the playroom, the outdoor playground, the family play time, organized games for family play, also numerous indoor and outdoor games. And in her program beginning April 25, all these things will be remembered.

But when I was telling you about last weeks' doings I almost forgot to add that dramatics played an important part in its schedule. For the comedy, "The Whole Town's Talking," presented at the Junior college by some of the students, directed by Miss Juanita Kinsey, in truth set the whole town talking. It is considered by all who attended, to be the very best play yet given by the students. And then another entertainment of the weekend was a three-act comedy "College Life" directed by Mrs. J. S. Pitman and given before two large audiences, matinee and night performances Saturday.

But I advise you to make the best of this long letter, for what with the Easter activities and spring graduates who will soon be partying all over town, and even beyond the city limits, you're not apt to get very many long letters for the next few months from—

The play Mrs. Johnson is giving was made successful by the famous actress, Gilda Veresa in a two year run on Broadway, New York City, during which time Mrs. Johnson was a frequent visitor at the theatre, studying the interpretation of this actress.

A feature of the program was a talk on "Thrift," by Wiley Robertson of the City National Bank, who divided his subject into three parts, from the standpoint of a father, a banker and a patron of the school. Pointing out that big business and captains of finance were the thriftiest, utilizing space and materials. Mr. Robertson admonished the mothers and fathers to teach the children to save the pennies.

His talk proved especially interesting. J. E. Parks, principal of the school, made a brief talk, asking the parents to not allow the children to come to school before 8:30 a. m., and Mrs. W. W. Last year the mayor of Juarez would not allow the religious ceremony, terming it a foolish custom, but permitted Judas miniatures with fire crackers inside them to be exploded in the streets.

An image of Christ, said to have been brought to America by the Franciscans under Cortez, will be used in the Easter services tomorrow. A bell brought from Spain about 1700 and said to be cast of gold, silver and bronze will summon the faithful to worship.

THE WOODROW WILSON I KNEW.

By MARY ALLEN HULBERT

MY LEAN YEARS.
Article No. 6.

The writer of these reminiscences enjoyed the friendship of President Wilson to an unusual degree for a number of years, beginning when he was president of Princeton University. During the earlier of these years she was Mrs. Mary Allen Peck. Later her marital ties were severed and she resumed the name of her first husband—Hulbert.

In her previous articles Mrs. Hulbert has painted a picture of the war president such as has not before been presented to the public. In those articles Woodrow Wilson the man is seen, his natural inclinations given full rein, without being checked by custom; the veil of the academician dropped and the real Wilson brought into view.

With minds having much in common, a close friendship was established between Mrs. Hulbert and Mr. Wilson, which friendship finally became the subject of comment. In the meantime Woodrow Wilson had become president, and Mrs. Hulbert gives some interesting sidelights on his "home life" in the White House.

In her relations with President Wilson, Mrs. Hulbert found him to be very human and not always the cold, self-satisfied, and austere scholar he was generally supposed to be; a man who felt it was his duty to become a national and political leader, however, opposed such a course was to his natural likes and desires.

For a little while I must write more of myself and less of Woodrow Wilson, because that which happened after my return to California in 1917 is an essential part of the whole narrative of my acquaintance with the man. It seems to be but natural, now, that I look back upon those days with a leavening touch of grim humor.

If I am not mistaken, it was about the time when I was prepared to insist that further misfortunes were out of the question that I read a story by Irvin S. Cobb wherein a farmer, having periodically suffered a series of disasters in silence and meek submission to Providence, finally, upon being temporarily blinded by a bolt of lightning which killed his horses and melted his plowshare, became articulate. The farmer dropped upon his knees in the unfinished furrow and cried aloud:

"O Lord, if you don't mind my saying it, don't you think this here thing has gone far enough?"

After the auction which disposed of my Nantucket, Pittsfield, and Bermuda things I was laid up in the Hotel Le Marquis in New York City, which must have been a great relief to the department of justice men and others who had to trudge the streets in my wake wherever I might go. I had, as I have said in a preceding article, broken by left foot. I returned to California, only to find my son very ill in a hospital. The ranch had dissolved itself into a regretful memory.

Behold then the unspeakable Mrs. Peck, instead of living richly in Washington on the money of the taxpayers, sitting in a small room listening to an eloquent lady whose art it was to instruct a platoon of hopeful men and women how their neighbors could be induced to purchase a set of books bearing the convincing title of Our Wonder World at from fifty to eighty dollars a set—one dollar down and a dollar a month, if you liked. I really did sell a few sets, which was quite a feat, considering that one had only to look about one to see a more wonderful world and far more thrilling times than any depicted in type in the volumes.

It is not a flattering commentary upon the other salespeople that I shone among them. In fact, I pleased my employers so well that they decided that I should invade a territory which had sternly resisted the smoothest tongues among us. It was Escondido—the Hidden Valley—and with an unwarranted assurance I took Our Wonder World among those simple people. Not one set, not one volume, even, did I work off on them.

I tramped that California valley issuing eloquent appeals and with logic arguing that one's education was not even elemental unless one absorbed the facts I had for sale. But no. And, to make my failure complete, my broken foot failed me, and my first foray into literature came to an end.

It seems quite certain that this bid for an income had aroused the deep suspicions of the California operatives of the department of justice, because they, poor men, followed me hither and yon, convinced that my book-selling efforts were but a cloak for more sinister plans.

I shouldn't be at all surprised, moreover, had not my peregrinations with Our Wonder World laid the foundation for the subsequent propaganda that I was the agent for the Potsdam government. You see, it was a hypothesis easily worked up. Consider. This woman, once the favorite of the president, was now his bitter enemy. She had hoped, if you please, to be the second Mrs. Wilson; but, failing in that, she had turned against her country in her bitterness and had gone to extremes in wanting to bring about her country's downfall—thus to avenge herself upon the president.

Voila! What could be simpler? Ah, a dangerous woman—the more so because she was an intelligent woman, a woman of liberal education. Was there not ample proof in history? Had not women since Jael delivered Sisera to Barak been untrustworthy in affairs of state? At any rate, I was not to go unwatched.

"Would you mind," I asked one of the watchers, who made no effort at concealment, "telling me why you are forever lurking in my neighborhood?"

"Lady," he said wearily, "all I know is that it's orders from headquarters."

"Would it be asking too much to inquire why you refuse to let my mother alone?" my son asked the Los Angeles office of the department of justice.

"We know nothing whatever about it," replied the polite official there.

"You know, however, that you are shadowing her," said Allen.

"We know nothing whatever about it."

Not long thereafter my son went to New York, leaving "the family jewels," for me to meet necessities with.

And then, as if to help those who would have it that I was a German spy by lent aid and gave shelter to a decrepit Teutonic ancient who came into my life one foggy morning while I was engaged in nothing more romantic than sweeping the back porch. Such were the proportions of the tiny house that one had to sweep little to cover it.

Out of the cold fog which, realtors notwithstanding, is an occasional phenomenon in Los Angeles, came this weary old man, obviously chilled to the heart and hungry. One of the most obvious things about him was an exhibition when he spoke. His talk was that of the German immigrant. A shaggy old fellow in threadbare coat and trousers and woolen shirt. Had I any work to do? I had not. Could I give him something to eat and some coffee? I could and did.

He had no home, no place to sleep. I told him there was an iron cot in the basement and a couple of old blankets on it.

"You are not afraid to have a German around?" he asked.

"I certainly should feel worse to know that I let anyone die of neglect," I said, feeling quite noble and altruistic.

He was such a clean old chap! He hadn't been in the basement an hour before he had washed out his shirt and socks and hung them on my clothesline. He really tried to be a grateful guest, but, after a few days, he became a bit of nuisance, for my clothesline was always full of tossing socks and underwear—unmistakably not feminine.

I went over to the Alexandria hotel in Los Angeles, where the head waiter was a German, and spoke to him about the old fellow.

"He is one of your countrymen, and I think you should know he needs help. Do take care of him," I said.

And lo and behold! The old man vanished that night. But in his place came a marvelous story to the effect that the old man was an agent of the kaiser's government and that he was acting under my orders, which I, in turn, received from that head waiter. Then I expected that the department of justice would wait no longer but descend upon me with warrants and shackles and take me to Fort Leavenworth or some such exile. But no! They continued to content themselves with lurking in my shadows.

If they had only done something besides that! The thing got on one's nerves. The Damoclean sword!

And then the movies! Surely one doesn't need an extraordinary sense of humor (quantatively, that is) to work up at least a smile from the picture of this ex-book peddler and quondam interior decorator, this reputed favorite of the court who was supposed to be waxing fat and arrogant in the shadow of the White House, hustling out at daybreak to join the Hollywood hopefuls and badger those misanthropes at the studio who hired the extras.

Still, I did get into two pictures—as an extra or atmosphere. I don't remember the name of the first one, but it is not so readily to be forgotten that it was done by Harry Garson with his wife, Clara Kimball Young.

Trooping The Colors in Bermuda, With The British Forces Lined Up in Hollow Square Formation, On the Birthday of the King of Great Britain.

The star. Actually I have only a vague idea of the nature of the story, although I have no doubts but that virtue triumphed in very definite fashion and that Miss Young emerged from numerous elaborately laid traps and pitfalls without a scratch on her physical or spiritual beauty. My contribution to that somewhat overdressed struggle for art was small; I drank tea in a garden to the apparent satisfaction of the director.

The other picture which rejoiced in my assistance was A Great Love. Assuredly I was in excellent company. There were Lillian Gish and Robert Harron, George Fawcett and Henry Walthall sharing, with remarkable generosity, the stellar honors. I do not presume to think that anything I may have done to that masterpiece could have affected its destiny, whatever it was, but I did have the distinction of attracting the attention of the director, David Wark Griffith.

I had appeared in a blue gown.

"Lady," shouted Mr. Griffith, as I was disposing myself in my "extra" part, "you have on the wrong dress."

"But I was told to wear this blue dress," I protested.

"Very well, then," sighed Mr. Griffith, wearily. "You will have to be another lady."

And so I was forced to take another chair in the tea scene, resigning my original part, which was much nearer the camera. Such is the life of the extra in the movies. It will always be difficult for me to realize that I never saw either of these pictures, and thus I am prevented from enlisting in the endless host of those who write the truth about Hollywood and warnings to lovely young things who desert their prosaic but reliable typewriters and counters to storm the Pickfordian heights.

But enough of that—of me; I have already strayed far from my story's title. The Woodrow Wilson I knew was such a combination of moods, ideals (and, may I say, inhibitions?) that it is not possible for one writing of him to wander very far afield.

For example, there was his social consciousness, quickly estimated, which trait might easily be set down as snobbishness. Perhaps in the strictest sense it was just that, but I contend that it was rather self-consciousness, a shrinking from new personal contacts, an abstraction in social exchanges.

Poor man, such are the penalties of prominence that he has been analyzed and dissected and filtered until we are gradually handing to posterity a Wilson who is a compound of Jeremiah, Thomas A. Kempis, the Red Queen, Nicolai Lenin, and Madame Bovary, when, after all, he was hardly more than a sensitive idealist who could not dissociate himself for a moment from his cause.

For example, on my first visit to the White House we went motoring through Washington. In the car were the president, Miss Helen Bones (the president's cousin), and myself. We came upon a large sightseeing motor bus, and such were our relative positions that we had to stop.

They looked and applauded. It was almost an ovation. Woodrow Wilson gave no sign of having heard. He crowded himself deeper into the seat. His face became grim, set, almost forbidding. He made no attempt or motion to raise his hat. Savonarola in his way to the scaffold was not less solemn of mien.

"Why don't you raise your hat? Why don't you recognize them?"

I am not sure which of us women said that first. I know that I was indignant.

"Why don't you speak?" I cried.

But the bus went on, and just as it did he touched his hat brim with his fingers.

"Oh," he said, wearily, "I suppose I should have done something. But they don't care for me. What do they care for me?"

"Of course they don't care about you personally," I said. "How could they? They don't know you. But they were honoring the office—the president."

"All this adulation," he scoffed. "What is it? Four years from now I'll be forgotten. I, personally, am nothing to them."

"The other day I was reading in the newspaper that William Howard Taft was seen standing in the rain for half an hour waiting for a street car. Nobody except a reporter saw him apparently. Certainly nobody seemed to care one way or the other. Here am I, now, the president of the United States, not Woodrow Wilson. I have more motor cars than I need. I have all the comforts and aid that go with the office, but I, myself, count for nothing. Four years hence Woodrow Wilson will be standing there in the rain, waiting for a street car, and nobody is going to go out of the way to speak to him."

He never smoked. He never danced. He just couldn't. He even couldn't swim. I jeered a little at him once about his abstinence from tobacco. I did not make light of his not dancing. I was sorry for him. He was to me the result of a cheated boyhood; rather the victim of his rigorous ancestors. The will to be a martyr was strong in him.

"Did you never smoke?" I asked him.

"No, no," he replied.

"Why, did you never, as a boy, get behind the barn and defy the parental rule by smoking those terrible cigarets you had made yourself?"

"I never smoked because I could not kiss my dear ones with the taint of tobacco on my lips."

"Don't you swim?" I asked him one day as we stood on the beach at Bermuda?

"No," he replied.

"Did you use to skate?"

"Alas, no. My dear mother was so fearful of all those things that they were denied me."

And then, as if in self-defense—or defense of family:

"But I rode a great deal, though."

One sensed that he often saw that little boy who was himself—shy, dreaming, alone (for grown-ups are dull things)—and it seemed to me that what I was then beholding was his longing to make up in whatever degree he might that long denied lease on play. That, I think, is what turned him to me, who had never lost my zest for the joy of living. In his defense ("I rode a great deal, though") I seem to see the spirit of Charlotte Grenwood's song:

"For I maintain—I still retain, my girlish laughter."

And in point I recall one day during his campaign for Governor of New Jersey when he came to my apartment in New York City looking so utterly fagged and gloomy that we thought him ill. There was not time to go back to Princeton.

"I am so tired," he complained. "Too, too tired to rest—too tired even to talk."

He laughed a little at that.

"Will you be good to me," he said, "and go with me to a theatre, a concert—some place of great diversion and no thinking?"

"What seems to you to be the most frivolous place in town?" I asked.

"The Hippodrome," he replied, instantly. "Would you mind?"

After my mother had made him drink a cup of hot bouillon, off we went to the Hippodrome. As he bought tickets music blared forth—unmistakably the music of the ladies in tarlatan frillies pirouetting and leaping through hoops to the broad backs of ambling white horses.

"Woodrow!" I cried. "Circus music!"

And, sure enough, there was the lady, and her amiable nag, and the clown. The perfect circus! Diverted? Woodrow Wilson was a boy for Color Influences Your Life!

Do You Know the Colors Which Best Express YOUR Personality?

The Color Horoscope in Our Window Will Tell You

We all know and believe in the becomingness of certain colors to our complexion. The ancients went further, however, and declared that colors have a definite influence in shaping our personality and furthering the accomplishment of our desires.

They believed that our birth star, in addition to fixing our general characteristics, determined the colors that harmonized with our nature. The Horoscope to them was law.

VAN RAALTE COLOR HOROSCOPE

Which tells you what shades are your friendly colors—the shades which key with your nature and bring out your reserve forces. Also every visitor to our Glove Silk Underwear Department will receive a copy of an intriguing little book.

First Presbyterian Church Here Grows From Nine Charter Members to 900 In 40 Years Of Consistent Religious Service to City

Construction on Costly New Annex Another Step Ahead

From an organization of nine charter members to a thriving group of approximately 900 members in a period of 44 years is the record made by the First Presbyterian church since its origin in 1882 in Wichita Falls. From a log livery stable which was used for the first meetings to a home valued at $550,000 shows a little of the prosperity which its members have enjoyed.

Building operations on the $120,000 annex to the present building will soon begin, and ten days ago, an inspiring program was held at the ground breaking ceremony for the new edifice.

The Charter Members.

It might be interesting to go into the history of the church, and reminiscence on the organization meeting in the living room of Col. L. T. Miller's home, the families of Judge J. H. Barwise, W. A. Knott and L. T. Miller were charter members of the church.

In 1883 at Christmas time, the building of the First Presbyterian church was opened for a Christmas tree program. The church boasted the only bell in town. It was located at Ninth and Indiana where the present business of Perkins-Timberlake is established.

Judge J. H. Barwise is the only living member of the first group of members of the church and is Elder Emeritus. He is 96 years old and has been active in the affairs of the First Presbytrelan church since its beginning.

A little organ, the first instrument used in the early church services belonged to Mrs. A. H. Carrigan, whose father, Judge Barwise, presented her the instrument on her sixth birthday. Today a pipe organ valued at $10,000 is built in the church. Miss Harriet Seely was the first organist, and Mrs. O. E. Maer is organist at the present time.

Has Run On $3.50.

The church budget of today totals $45,000, and the actual running expenses of the church are $25,000. Judge Barwise tells instances when in the early days of the church a monthly allotment of $2.50 was unusual, and most of the donations were much smaller. Contributions to the church by many of its members now are in the hundreds and several in the thousands.

Among the ministers of the church since 1882 have been J. J. Dalton, Henry Little, M. H. Kerr, Henry Little Jr., Dr. A. K. Baird, C. M. Johnston and Dr. Nat F. Grafton, present pastor, who, in September, completed his tenth year as pastor of this church.

J. C. Hunt is superintendent of the Sunday school and has held that position for more thtat 30 years; Julian Montgomery is assistant superintendent.

The department heads of the Sunday school division include the following: Cradle roll, Helen Leech; beginners, Katherine Brothers; primary, Kate Haynes; Juniors, Dorothy Burks; Intermediate, Mrs. W. H. Omohundro; Senior adult, W. W. Fraser. The choir is composed of 25 members directed by Alva Willigus. Mrs. J. D. Maddrey is president of the Woman's Auxiliary, recently succeeding Mrs. C. C. Hagmann; Helen Beavers Missionary society, Mrs. E. T. Duff; Lucy Hansell chapter, Mrs. L. H. Cullum; Cornelia Benoit chapter, Mary Louise Warren. This group of girls has been sponsored by Mrs. John D. Robertson, and the girls have grown into business women in the Missionary society under her trainers. There are four Christian Endeavor societies each with its own corps of officers; a Boy Scout group is directed by Dick Thompson.

Willgus Is Manager.

Dr. Nat F. Grafton is pastor; Alva Willigus is business manager, and choir director, and Miss Dorothy Burks is the pastor's assistant.

Special missionary work is carried on by the church which supports a missionary, Dr. R. H. Evans, in Africa. The men of the church have borne half the exypense of building a $50,000 hospital in West Africa in the Camaroun district with Dr. Weber in charge. A booklet to be printed in the near future will show the progress of the work, it was said.

Another missionary is stationed at Nenana, Alaska, Rev. Robert R. Marquis.

Two missions are in Wichita Falls, the Floral Heights Presbyterian and the East Side Mission over which Rev. E. F. McGaughey is pastor.

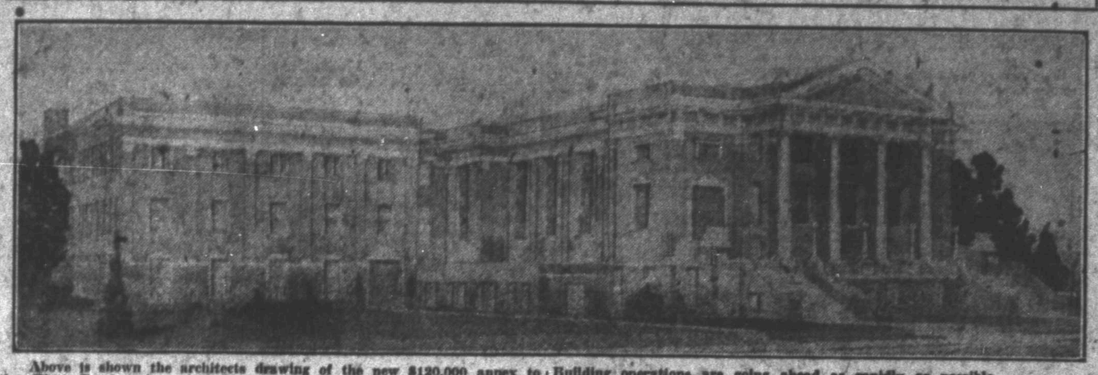

The Wichita Falls church bears the honor of being the largest contributor in the state to the Reynolds Presbyterian Orphanage at Dallas, and one of the new halls there has been called the Wichita Falls building. Support is given also to the orphanage at Amarillo.

The Trustees.

Trustees of the church are: G. D. Anderson, A. H. Britain, Alfred Cullum, L. H. Cullum, W. L. Davidson, Herbert Ferguson, J. Will Gray, R. O. Harvey, O. W. Hines, Ed Howard, J. A. Kemp, Frank Kell, C. E. McCutchen, Alfred Miller, Raymond Meyers, H. B. Patterson, C. C. Randle, J. A. Richolt, Joe Ward, M. D. Walker, D. J. White, Fred Weeks, C. C. Harmann.

The elders of the church are: W. H. Apple, C. E. Beavers, Bolding, R. D. Bone, L. R. Buchanan, A. H. Carrigan, J. W. Culbertson, J. W. Crews, C. I. Francis, W. W. Fraser, Fred Goss, Joe D. Harris, O. R. Hartt, J. C. Hunt, D. B. King, Bernard Martin, Thelbert Martin, Julian Montgomery, F. N. McClure, L. C. Robertson, John D. Robertson, A. L. Warren, W. T. Wade, M. H. Gillum.

A NEW $120,000 STRUCTURE DEVOTED TO CHURCH WORK STARTS HERE

10 Years of Service in City

DR. N. F. GRAFTON

For the last 10 years pastor of the First Presbyterian church and who in a great measure has been responsible for its growth. Dr. Grafton is now recovering from an attack of illness that has kept him in bed for six weeks.

YOUR HOME WILL BE HIGH AND DRY IN WESTMORELAND PARK

WITH EVERY FACTOR THAT MAKES FOR HEALTH AND COMFORT

We're getting a wonderful swimming pool ready for you. It will be one of Westmoreland Park's recreational features.

It will be 150x100 feet, concreted, by far the largest swimming pool in this section. It will be equipped with all popular devices for water sports.

It will have fresh, live water, constantly changing so that it will always be clean and pleasant.

It's going to be a truly delightful swimming place. Make your plans now to enjoy it. Watch for announcement of the opening.

Drainage and elevation are important considerations in choosing your home-site. They are more than important. They are vital.

Westmoreland Park is perfectly drained. The natural contour of the land is such that the rains are carried away swiftly and thoroughly. So satisfactory is the natural drainage that the installation of storm sewers was found superfluous.

Westmoreland Park has elevation. It overlooks the entire city. Your home in Westmoreland Park will be as much higher than the business district as the top floor of the Kemp Hotel. Health and comfort in all seasons, have been provided for in Westmoreland Park.

Westmoreland Park's auxiliary water system has been given a thorough test. The water flows by gravity with a pressure amply sufficient to operate lawn sprays. This water will be available for your yard at every moment of the day or night, every day of the year.

You'll use the municipal water for household purposes only. This supplemental supply can be used without stint for your lawn, your flowers, your trees, your shrubs, at a flat rate of $15.00 per year.

It's your guarantee of perpetual beauty in Westmoreland Park. It means that the setting in which you place your home will have permanent charm.

Let's apply some cold figures to our assertion that Westmoreland Park offers you the greatest value you can find in Wichita Falls realty.

The building sites in Westmoreland Park are 100x250 feet in dimensions. The average price asked for choice tracts on the main boulevard is $3,850.

That's 25,000 square feet for $3,850.00, or 15.4 cents per square foot.

You'd expect to pay at least $1,250 for a desirable 50x150 foot lot. Chances are, you'd pay more. But even that conservative figure means 16 2-3 cents per square foot.

And Westmoreland Park's footage includes the protection, the beauty, the elevation, the many attractions and conveniences that make it the ideal place for your home.

the afternoon—or as nearly a boy as he could be. There he sat, munching mental peanuts all afternoon.

Here was a man whse heart seemed utterly satisfied within the sacred circle of his home but whose soul longed for nolmal human contacts outside that circle. There were not many free days when he could be just Woodrow Wilson, man. As professor, college president, governor and later, president of the United States he held himself rigorously to his own high interpretation of those roles, but outside contacts were too often denied him.

At Bermuda it had been his custom to sit on the piazza of the Hamilton watching the dancing, and I can not say that I ever saw disapproval in his eyes. Rather, no audience could have seemed more pleased by the sight. Later, when I met him, he told me how he enjoyed watching the dancing, and he was gallant enough to say that watching me dance was not the least of the pleasure he had got.

He told me that he felt he had "known me a long time."

"I used to call you My Lady.' As I sat in my quiet corner at a table they considered proper for a staid, pedagogic person it amused me to see the dinner parties coming in and to speculate upon their characters and positions. And then, when you would come into a group—such a group! a-glitter with gold lace and military and naval trappings—I would wonder what you had said that they should be so suddenly enlivened and gay where before they had composed a rather dull-spirited company. Why, I used to change my seat at the table to watch you."

"I can tell you why that circle brightened when I joined it," I replied. "You see, I'm alost always late. The others were hungry, therefore gloomy. I meant dinner."

Nothing could have been clearer to me. Here was a man whose very soul went for real comradeship, for real, understanding friendship; a steely, if not great, mind groping for a complement of comprehending affection. There in Bermuda were all those social diversions which were a part of the life in the islands. The men were, to reduce it to the least common multiple status, adepts in the art of mixing. Generally speaking, any one of them could be dropped suddenly into a totally strange group of men in some spot he had never visited before, and in remarkably short time he would be a free and accepted member of the set.

Woodrow Wilson hadn't a spark of this. He was probably the worst "mixer" I have ever known. The entangling alliance was his most formidable bete noire, in society as well as politics, and it was as impossible for him to sit tolerantly and noncommittal in distasteful circumstances as it was for him to arbitrate with his enemies. In point, I recall the day I introduced him to Lord Frederic Hamilton.

Lord Frederic's whole life had been one of making himself agreeable to others. He had been secretary to the British embassies in Buenos Aires, Berlin, and (then) Petrograd. In short, he had all the contact-making facility that Woodrow Wilson lacked. It gave him an airiness, a take-it-for-granted attitude, which, unhappily, did not appeal to Doctor Wilson.

Doctor Wilson and I were returning from the South Shore one day, our ever-present Bagehot and Oxford book of verse under his arm, when, approaching the gates of Shoreby—my house we beheld Lord Frederic tripping lightly from the porch to greet us. He desired lunch, and proclaimed his intention of taking it at Shoreby.

My cook was a temperamental West Indian, and this was the morrow of a joyous "Sunday off." The luncheon had every attribute of the complete social and gastronomic failure. The bisque was flavorless; there was a poor, skimp platter of cold meat; soggy baked potatoes and an unspeakable salad. The coffee, however, was good.

Doctor Wilson withdrew into himself during the very first minute of the luncheon. Lord Frederic was not to be denied, however. I am inclined to doubt whether he was conscious of the fact that Doctor Wilson had folded up. At any rate, it was of no great importance to Lord Frederic, who proceeded to exhibit his breeziest self and work upon the adamant Doctor Wilson with commendable but profitless assiduity.

Doctor Wilson was just about as sympathetic toward Lord Frederic as he was toward my adored and adoring dog, Paget.

But it was great fun to watch the contest between Lord Frederic and Woodrow Wilson—the former determined to crack the shell into which the latter had, turtle-like retreated. I should say that Lord Frederic won, for almost immediately after luncheon Doctor Wilson departed, pleading letters, while Lord Frederic stayed until after tea.

Woodrow left no doubt in my mind, at our next meeting, that he did not like Lord Frederic. I mention the incident by way of illustrating one of Doctor Wilson's outstanding characteristics. Lord Frederic had actually been delightful, but Woodrow Wilson didn't think so and that, in so far as

The Late Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston, Whose Sarcasm Toward Mr. Wilson When He Tried to Explain His Aims and Longings Was a Cruel Blow to the Idealistic President.

Woodrow Wilson was concerned, was that.

Of course, he was the most vulnerable of men—that is, open to attack—for the very reason that he was so inflexible. And he was not ready to forgive the attacker if the lance point had pierced his skin in public.

For example, there was the evening when he was presented to a gorgeously appareled lady whose name he had failed to catch. He offered the lady his arm and was escorting her in to dinner. He hadn't seemed particularly interested in the few preliminary remarks she had made, and finding conversation lagging, he went off finto a dissertation about his "fagged mind."

The lady listened politely, and when he seemed to have finished she nodded sympathetically, and, idly swinging her rope of pearls, drawled:

"Oh, indeed! Then you have a mind?"

The lady was the late Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston

Of course, that sort of thing hurt him with himself enormously. It was impossible for him to understand that he brought much of it upon himself. He could not entirely comprehend that there were people to whom his aims, his strivings, his longings, were nothing whatever. It was not so much that he would not long tolerate about him those who differed with him: the man was so constituted that he could not.

He was, I think, given too much to introspection, which can so easily be a form of selfishness. Yet he was anything but selfish. He did not want to give of himself to humanity. There was never a time when he put the glory which might be Woodrow Wilson's in front of the good of all people—the political, economic, social health of the earth.

Among the last words I had with him were some which illustrate this last contention of mine. The man's very soul was being torn by the conviction that his "appeal to Caesar" was going unheard; that the covenant of the League of Nations was being scoffed aside by the American public. And he blamed himself. What he offered was, in his opinion, too right to bear argument. It must be right, he thought. That it was not being acclaimed as the panacea he saw it was, he lamented, because he, Woodrow Wilson, offered it.

"It is if they are repudiating!" he cried. "Were any other man to offer it—"

Yet how wrong he was. James Middleton Cox offered it. John Davis offered it.

No, it was not Woodrow Wilson, the president, who failed. It the boy who had never played; the child so weighted down with the armor of a stern ancestry that he grew to man's estate unable to play. Politically his mind was far in the van of his times; in almost all else it was Cromwellian.

Yet, lest I give you too drab a picture, please believe me that he tried to play. It was rather a muscle-bound, awkward attempt to be sure, and it left him cognisant of his inability to make up for the time he had lost; but there were moments when he was almost gay. Alas, they were but moments! And as he progressed those moments came less frequently.

"Life is far too serious to be taken so seriously," I said to him on one occasion. "It will kill you, if you let it. Laugh! Laugh—It is the only way.

I do not recall that he made any direct answer to that exhortation, but it did occur to me later that it was an entirely unnecessary call to levity, because he frequently did laugh. The great difference was that he was not apt to see humor in those things which common place people did.

A certain amount of his self-consciousness was born of his conviction that he was not handsome in the conventional way. He was fond of citing instances of his physical awkwardness. There was the time he made his first appearance at a reception to undergraduates in college. He was, he chuckled, the nethermost of the undergraduates.

Describing himself as tall, lank and very shy, he said he entered the long room in a courageous dash to meet his hostess. He stepped upon a small rug which bore him rapidly over the highly polished floor—his arms revolving wildly and his body swaying backward at a precarious angle—and came to a halt immediately in front of his rather formal hostess.

He never overcame that shyness and sometimes spoke feelingly of his physical plainness, quoting in point his favorite limerick:

For beauty I'm not a star,
There are others more handsome by far;
But my face I don't mind it,
For I sit behind it;
It's the people in front that I jar.

"The only trouble with my face is," he said, "that there is too much skin.

To prove it, he took his cheeks between his fingers and pulled them out to an incredible width. A remarkable caricature. Naturally, his audience would laugh, and so would he, although somewhat ruefully.

Introducing him to my friends was always something of an adventure, inasmuch as there was never any certainty how he would take them or they would take him. As I have told you, his meeting with Lord Frederic Hamilton was not a hearty success, although I'm sure Lord Frederic was not affected one way or another. But Woodrow Wilson didn't care for Lord Frederic.

He apparently got along nicely with Walter Kitchener, who was governor of Bermuda. And it was without untoward result that I brought together Woodrow Wilson and Lord Fisher, Admiral of the British fleet and at one period First Lord of the Admiralty.

This meeting took place in 1910, while Lord Fisher was in this country to attend the wedding of his son, Cecil, to Miss Jane Morgan, daughter of Randall Morgan of Philadelphia. I had known Lord Fisher some years before I knew of the existence of Woodrow Wilson. He was Sir John Fisher then.

Wichita Falls Churches Ready For Easter Services

As "America's Greatest Artist" Saw the Crucifixion

Eastertime recalls that one of the best works of the late George Bellows, considered abroad to be America's greatest artist, was "The Crucifixion," reproduced above.

Easter Time

Easter time with all its meaning; all its beauty; all the solemn portent of its deathless story of life and faith and hope; Easter in all its glory finds Wichita Falls prepared this morning.

Easter is a day peculiar unto itself. Not alone in Wichita Falls; not alone in Texas; not alone in these United States, but in every Christian land where Christ's name is known it is a day apart. Not even excepting Christmas, it is a day of greater meaning, perhaps, than any other. The birth of the Saviour marked the beginning of a life of promise, one of hope that a sin-drenched world might be redeemed. The death and resurruction of the Saviour marked the end of this same life and also the beginning of another life that Christianity conceives to be perpetual. It marked also the pledge to the world that there is life in the hereafter; that salvation is possible; that God's mercy is infinite and that man's tears and troubles here below may be wiped away if he so wills it.

It is, therefore, a day of unusual significance. It is a day in which the church finds new inspiration to carry on its battle for the cross. It is a day in which the doubter is sometimes more easily convinced; in which the skeptic is sometimes led to see the light; in which fresh strength comes to those who are tired; and in which, above all, the world finds occasion for rejoicing.

Programs of rare charm have been arranged here for the day. An Easter sunrise service, something unique for Wichita Falls if not for Texas, is to be held west of the city. In the various churches later on special sermons and special music will be given.

It is to be hoped that Wichita Falls will commemorate the day as it should be commemorated. An open invitation is extended by the ministers and by the congregations of the city; the doors are open; Easter comes but once a year, and on this day, above all others, the city's duty to its church must be recognized.

Will it be?

It has been!

It will.

MATTHEW
How the New Testament Tells the Story

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from Heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified.

He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.—Matthew, 28:1-7.

MARK
How the New Testament Tells the Story

And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had brought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun.

And they said unto themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment: and they were affrighted.

And he said unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.—Mark, 16:1-7.

He is a speaker of unusual ability, one who expresses himself clearly and to the point. He is in every sense a man amonog men and in his home city, Denison, has a wonderful influence for good. Just now he is putting the Golden Rule into the chamber of commerce at Denison, for which organization he is serving as secretary.

He has had some signal honors bestowed upon him, the more recent of which is that of being elected a member of the Academy of Letters and Sciences of Naples, Italy. It is now composed of men of outstanding reputation as writers, orators or scientific work.

Krams, secretary and assistant director of the Continental division of the American university union in Europe. Last summer's influx of professors who studied in France during the summer vacation will be far exceeded, Dr. Krans believed.

Record of the university union show that against 1,392 American students here in 1922-1923, there were 3,880 between 1924 and 1925. Of these 42 were candidates for the degree of doctorate at the University of Paris.

CAVE DWELLERS FOUND

BERLIN, April 3.—(AP)—More than 200 modern cave dwellers have been found living in the ash and refuse dumps on the outskirts of Berlin amid surrounding more squalid than those of primitive man.

Poverty stricken families, some with as many as four childen, evicted from homes for non-payment of rent, have survived the winter in one or two underground rooms furnished entirely from rubbish heaps. Discarded steel cots were used as beds. The cooking utensils consisted of patched up pots and pans. Shredded carpets covered the dirt floor. Logs and pine box boards had been hewn into rafters which kept the dirt from caving down upon the occupants.

City authorities have undertaken to find new abodes for the colony. There is a jobless village of more than 2,000 inhabitants living in one-room tar paper shack on city property.

ARMLESS ARTIST DIES

EDINBURGH—Alexander Alexander, the armless artist, who won prominence with his toes, died at his home here.

LUKE
How the New Testament Tells the Story

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

And it came to pass, as they were perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments:

And as they were afraid and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead?

He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Baillee,

Saying, The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.

And they remembered his words,

And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest.

It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James and other women that were with them, which told these things unto the apostles.

And their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulchre; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed wondering in himself at that which was come to pass.—Luke 24:1-12.

JOHN
How the New Testament Tells the Story

The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.

Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them. They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

Peter therefore went forth, and the other disciple, and came to the sepulchre.

So they both ran together; and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

And he stooping down, and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lie.

And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

Then went in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre and he saw, and believed.

For as yet they knew not the scripture that he must rise again from the dead.

Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she went, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre,

And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, Woman why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus said unto her, Woman why weepeth thou Whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardner, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, Master.

Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.

Mary Magalene came and told the disciples that she has seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.—John, 20:1-18.

SAUSAGE COSTS LOW.

BERLIN, April 3.—The German sausage manufacturers association is complaining that the price of sausage ingredients is so high that the popularity of the favorite German trio—wurst, rice bead and beer—is being jeonardized.

The association has petitioned the government to abolish the tariff of salted pigs livers and casings, imported principally from south America and Eastern Europe. The liver, with home grown animal fat, is the principal ingredient of leberwurst.

HAWKINS ASKS SECOND TERM

Seeks Another Place On Criminal Appeals Court Bench

AUSTIN, Texas, April 3.—Judge F. L. Hawkins Saturday announced for re-election as associate justice of the state court of criminal appeals, in the shortest campaign document which has been written this year.

Judge Hawkins' statement said:

"Announcing in the democratic primary as a candidate for re-election as judge of the court of criminal appeals of Texas, I deem it inappropriate to say more than that while I have been a member of the court it has been my sole desire and effort to declare the law agreeably to the constitution and statutes under well-fixed and sound precedent. In the event of my re-election I shall devote myself to the accomplishment of the same purpose. To what extent my services have measured up to the standard mentioned must be for others to say.

"If any should desire to know something of my privte life they are referred to the citizens of Ellis county where I was born, and where I served as prosecuting attorney, county judge, and for sixteen years as district judge, also to the citizens of Kaufman and Rockwall counties where I held district court for many years."

Suffragets Plan Paris Invasion

PARIS, April 3.—Paris expects a lively session of the Women's International Suffrage alliance when it meets here for its tenth world congress May 30 to June 6, with French women pleading for the vote and of the English women heatedly demanding equal voting rights with Englishmen.

It is indicated that women of 43 nationalities will take part. The United States delegation, headed by Miss Anne Mogan, is expected to advocate the most complete program for the equalization of men and women yet presente to the alliance.

Mrs. Marjory Corbett Ashby, president of the international suffrage alliance, who will preside, is leader in the English cause of equal franchise rights. At present, the English women cannot vote until the age of thirty although the suffragists point out, they may legally marry at the age of 12.

The last day of the congress will be set aside for a peace demonstration at Welsh Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catts, until 1923 president of the alliance, will preside.

No Fancy Frills For Von Hindy

BERLIN, April 3.—President Von Hindenburg who celebrated his sixtieth soldier's anniversary on April 7, looks back upon a life of Spartan simplicity and rigid military discipline.

At the age of eleven he entered the Military Academy of Wahlstadt, where, as he described in a letter to his folks, "the comforts of the home were none, and the food is frugal, so that going to bed hungry has become a custom."

In another letter he requested ten Christmas gifts, "a red bandana, a pocket knife and Cooper's "The Pathfinder," but the book is still lacking from that section of his library devoted to his favorite American author.

After three years he was transferred to the academy at Grosslichterfeldz, where conditions were more modern, but the regulations there were still more rigorous and there was no chance for a molly-coddle to survive.

Seven years of cadetship completed he was commissioned lieutenant in 1886. Shortly afterward during the Austrian campaign, he received the first and only wound he suffered during his entire military career.

SCOTCH ORPHANS COMING

Dr. C. C. Cossar, a prominent Scottish philantropist and social worker, is planning an experiment designed to relieve the congestion in the orphan homes of Scotland. He proposes to send groups of the orphans to the various English colonies particularly Canada, the youths to be placed on farms where youthful labor is in some sections always more or less in demand.

ED WYNN'S QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN

"THE PERFECT FOOL"

He Knows All—He Sees All

Ringling Bros. circus has a colored baby weighing 2 and 1-2 pounds. How can a colored baby be so light?

Sincerely,
O. B. YOURSELF.

Answer next week.
ED WYNNE
The Perfect Fool.

(Ed Wynn, as he has often told you as one of the wisest men in the world. He sees all—he knows all. Do you think you can stump him with any kind of a question? If you do, send it to him in care of the editor of this paper and watch for his reply.

HAVE HER DO THE CHARLESTON ON THE ICE!

The Perfect Fool.
He Sees All—He Knows All.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I owned a horse but had no hay for the horse to eat. I met a man who had a load of hay and I traded him the horse for the hay. Now I have no horse to eat the hay. What can I do?

Truly yours,
ANN VILL.

Answer—Find the man you traded with and ask him if he'd be kind enough to lend you the horse to eat the hay.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Do chestnuts have legs?

Yours truly,
I. M. WORRIED.

Answer—No, my dear friend, chestnuts do not have legs. You must have swallowed a worm.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I see where they were recently playing Hamlet in evening clothes. I am trying to modernize Uncle Tom's Cabin. Can you offer any suggestions?

Truly yours,
I. NOEL OTT.

Answer—When the bloodhounds chase Eliza, have her do the Charleston on each cake of ice.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am interested in the "Little Theatre Movement." I have interested some rich men and they are building a very odd theatre. There will be no rows of seats only boxes. In other words every person who comes, to see our plays, will be in a box. Can you suggest a fitting name for our odd theatre.

Truly yours,
OPPER E. HOUSE.

Answers—As the "Little Theatre Movement" is popular, and as you have no rows of seats, and as you will probably do a big business, and pack the boxes, why not call in "The Sardine?"

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am taking an examination for a letter-carrier's position. One question seems to stick me. I know you will help me, so here's the question. "What has four legs and flies all around?"

Truly yours,
WILL I. PASS.

Answer—Well it's a question which answer the government wants from you. Two canary birds have four legs and fly all around but I think the answer you want is as follows: "A dead dead horse has four legs and flies all around!"

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have trouble in keeping my silverware clean. They say that whiskey is the best polisher of silver. How is it used?

Sincerely,
IMA HOUSEKEEPER.

Answer—Just drink the whiskey then blow on the silver.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have been reading the pro and con discussions on "When a Man Is Drunk." Please tell me when a person can be absolutely sure that a man is drunk?

Truly yours,
Y. B. SOBER.

Answer—A man is absolutely "drunk" when he comes home late, puts the candle in bed, then blows himself out.

Dear Mr. Wynn: My brother and I have an argument for you to settle. He says the "Eye Teeth" are the last teeth people get, while I say it's the "Wisdom Teeth." Please tell us who is right?

Yours truly,
DENT L. FLOSS.

Answer—You are both wrong. The teeth which people get last are "False Teeth."

Dear Mr. Wynn: They say that every president of the United States has a private college yell. If this is true, what is President Coolidge's college yell?

Yours truly,
CAL EDGE JR.

Answer—"Silence."

Dear Mr. Wynn: I just heard of a man who had a chicken farm in Florida, that made him a million dollars in the last year. Do you believe that, if so how did he do it?

Sincerely,
IKE ANT C. HOWE.

Answer—He cut his farm up into building lots and sold the chicken coops for bungalows.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I hear that the

KFJF FORFEITS $20,000 SUIT

Minister's Speech Over Radio Allegedly Libels Deputy

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 3. (AP)—Default judgment of $20,000 against the company operating radio station KFJF, which transmitted a speech alleged by C. W. Friss, under sheriff of Oklahoma county, to be slanderous was rendered in Friss' favor today by District Judge William H. Zwick.

Failure of attorneys for the National Radio company, the operator, to file an answer to an amended petition was the cause of the default.

Friss brought suit against the company and the Rev. Lincoln McConnell, local minister, after McConnell broadcast a speech through KFJF attacking crime and liquor conditions in the vicinity of Oklahoma City. Friss claimed the preacher charged the under sheriff with accepting a bribe from a young man he had arrested with liquor in his possession. There is only one under sheriff in the county. McConnell said he was ignorant of this fact and was not alluding to any particular officer. The suit against McConnell, which is for $75,000 damages, is still pending.

U. S. Commissioner in Georgia Hangs Self in Door.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—The body of United States Commissioner Richard M. Lester was found hanging from the transom over his office door in the Savannah Bank and Trust company building here today.

Lester, police said, was seen last night entering the building with a coiled rope in his hands, but made no explanation to friends who saw him. He was the son of Daniel B. Lester, a lawyer and oil man of Savannah and Oklahoma City.

After an investigation the coroner announced Lester had committed suicide.

Pains in Side

"I WAS suffering very severe pains in my right side," says Mrs. Annie Russell, R. F. D. 1, Brookhaven, Miss., whose picture is printed above. "At times I felt I could not straighen up. The pain ran across my back and, after suffering, I would take sick headache and lie abed more than a week.

"My head would ache and my side would hurt and be sore to the touch. I was nervous too,—that irritable feeling one has when she feels that she has stood about all she can. I was up and down and as cross as I could be.

"I was advised by a neighbor to take Cardui, which I did. It was not so long till I noticed a change in my condition. My side got better. I gained in weight and ate and slept and felt just as well as could be. After taking six bottles I didn't have any more trouble with my side.

"I have taken Cardui two or three times since, as a tonic, when I felt run-down. I took it during change of life and have not had any trouble. I am feeling fine. Do you wonder that I praise Cardui?

"My daughter is taking Cardui, and I recommend it to my neighbors and friends."

FAST FOR HEALTH.

PARIS, April 3.—(AP)—A crusade o introduce fasting as a cure for most uman ills, being preached in Paris y Dr. Lipinska, and supported by six rominent physicians, has caused arisians to ask if science is to deprive hem of its last pleasure.

"Life is not so gay" remarked one ommentator. "It will hardly be worth living if science is going to deprive us of one of its last pleasures. Love is full of disillusions; success never satisfies ambition, and fortune brings a crushing load of taxation. Nothing is left but the table and friends, that is good friends around a good dish, washed down by a good bottle.

"A Master of His Craft," Says One Who Knew Why Johnston Was So Great

AUSTIN, April 3.—Henry Chalmers is one of the noted writers of England. He does not call himself a journalist. He was born in the city of Austin, in the state of Texas, and his father and brother are well known residents of the capitol. Henry Chalmers Roberts has made London his headquarters or home for many years. He is the editor of the magazine The World Today, and other widely read publications. He is a product of Texas schools and the university, and crossed the Atlantic with the late Alexandria W. Terrell, when that distinguished Texan was minister to Turkey and Grover Cleveland president or the United States.

He became a famous war correspondent as the representative of an important London daily newspaper, and saw service under many skies and many flags. He was one of the daring globe trotting writers who accompanied the famous Lord Kitchener and his army to the Sudan and his achievements as a war correspondent placed him in the front rank of the graphic writers connected with the great newspapers of London long before the coming of the World war.

A Famous Writer.

He covered that famous conference where the Treaty of Versailles was made and his knowledge of the states and the famous men who were assembled in Paris from the states gave him a look behind the scenes which few correspondents enjoyed. Where did he get his start? Who gave him his first push up the newspaper ladder? Colonel Rienza Melville Johnston, who was called to his long home in the not remote past. It is a quaint story, told in true newspaper style, and it came from London to the writer. It follows:

Twenty Bedford street, Covent Garden, London, March 16. Dear sir: Many vivid memories of old chief, Col. R. M. Johnston, are recalled by your tribute in The American, which I have just received from my brother, Gordon. I should like first to thank you and then to indulge in a bit of the gossip which recollections such as these provoke.

Johnsotn gave me my first chance of a state-wide activity, although I had, before I went to the Houston Post, put in some drilling months as editor, reporter, make-up artist and advertisement solicitor on the Corpus Christi Daily Caller. My father had compelled me to attend the law school lectures at the university, and I had almost to run away from home when Major John Armstrong got for me a Caller was made into a daily, at that time all that part of the coast was resounding with deep water and land development booms.

"You are dedicating your life to poverty," he said.

Fascinating Poverty.

"Yes, I know, but what fascinating poverty," was my sincere answer.

Both predictions have since been amply justified. Within six months after I arrived in Corpus Christi unsolicited offers for my service came from Canfield of the San Antonio Express and Johnston of the Houston Post. I chose the latter's, because it included a vague promise with the legislature in Austin. This promise subsequently materialized and my reports from Austin so pleased the Chief that he gave me a roving political commission when the legislature was not in session.

By this time I was thoroughly alive to Governor Hogg and Colonel House, and went to the historic convention in Houston, of which you write in your memoir. I remember being made to sit down and write the leader article on the night of the split, which wound up with an allusion to the fable of the bundle of stjcks, "United the whole party had been invincable; divided what would be its strength?"

There is one error in the Intimate Papers of Colonel House which I have been reviewing over here, and this is that all the papers in Texas bolted the ticket and supported George Clark. Johnston and the Post were fervently loyal, and I was their enthusiastic abbetor.

Governor Hogg took a great fancy to me and so I had to do the entire campaign with him. As a litile boy, before I went away to boarding school at the age of 14, I had ridden all over West Texas with my father. Now, at the age of 22, I did the same inspiring journey with one who daily enkindled patriotic enthusiasm. Johnston was always aiding, wisely counselling, scverly reprimanding. He early discovered an inborn inclination to slackness. He accused me of having hook worm and other pleasant failings. In the end he was so determined that I should seek new pastures that he fired me; fired me, as he said, for my own good. I shall never forgt the bombshell, and you can imagine what a cloudburst of indignation I was able to call down upon his devoted head from Hogg, House and Judge E. Pinckney Hill of Houston, whom I was proud to have won without personal appeal and entirely by my work.

As the upshot of all this, Johnston had his way, and I was sent to Washington at the age of 23 as representative of the Post, with a pittance so miserable that I had to get a job as assistant to O'Brian Moore of the St. Louis Republic, and subsequently became private secretary and devoted slave to Representative J. C. Hutcheson of Houston. Here I stopped until Judge A. W. Terrell snatched me away to go as secretary to his legation to Turkey.

In Other Fields.

The rest of the story lies in other fields; but whenever I saw Johnston he always gave himself the airs of an old hen who has hatched an ugly duckling, and, to get rid of it, finally pushed it into the pond. We have been in Washington several times together in recent years; and I went to see him when I was last in Houston six or eight years ago.

"What did I tell you?" he said, as usual. "Didn't I do right?"

And the devil in me would prompt me to say, "Well, I am not sure you did. You have made me into an exile who is often very homesick."

Then he laughed his little clucking laugh, and said, "When you give up London and come back to Austin to live, I will believe in that homesickness—not sooner."

But although we often differed, and sometimes I thought I hated him, I knew him for a master of his craft, and that I was infinitely his debtor. His going must leave a lamentable void in Texas, as it raises for me another milestone along the road of memories. Yours sincerely,

HENRY CHALMERS ROBERTS

Roberts Right.

Colonel Roberts is correct. The Houston Post and its editor, the late Colonel Rienza Melville Johnston, did not bolt the nomination of James Stephen Hogg for George Clark, known or years as the Warwick of Texas democracy. Johnston and the Post fought the battles of Hogg to a successful finish. Perhaps there was a reason why Colonel House overlooked the fact in his memoirs or Intimate Letters.

Woodrow Wilson had been inaugurated president of the United States. He had been functioning for some months. Richard Washburn Child had furnished Colliers Weekly with the story and the picture of the Texan "who was the power behind the throne." Richard had told of all the governors that the Texan had made and also of the story of how the Texan had made Wilson.

A group of newspaper men, Texas newspaper men, congregated in the lobby of a hotel in a certain city. All but Johnston were indignant at the claims made for his favorite by the gentle Richard. One of the coterie, now in the land of the living, said to Johnston, "Colonel, you know there is not a d—— word of truth in the Child story."

Johnston smiled, he gave his little cluck of a laugh and said. "Well, I know it, but he is a good fellow; let's let him go by." And true to his word, he reproduced in The Post the Colliers Weekly story of the Texan who was the "power behind the Wilson throne" and this without comment on the part of the writing staff of his newspaper.

WHY "GRAPE" IN GRAPEFRUIT

Grapefruit is native to Asia coming from the southeastern part of that country. So far as anyone has been able to definitely ascribe any origin to its name as the English speaking countries know it, it is because the fruit grows often inclusters something like grapes do. The Spanish colonists carried the grapefruit into the West Indies and then into Florida and California.

HUMAN TARZAN TO BE KILLED ON APPEARANCE

Loaded Rifles Await Coming of 'Ape Man' In Eastern Hills

NORTH STONINGTON, Conn., April 3.—(AP)—Taugwank's "ape man" is a plain human being in fur coat and trousers.

George Denison of mystic, a game warden, has come to that conclusion after a thorough search of the Horace D. Miner farm in Taugwank.

He believed that the man was attempting to frighten Muriel, 10, and Mildred Miner, 10, orphans, into selling the farm which they inherited on the death of the father three weeks ago.

The ape man has variously been reported by the girls and neighbors as a hairy creature of terrifying mien. While those who have seen him differ in detail, it was agreed that the creature slumped along in the manner of an ape and jumped about with considerable more agility than was possible for a human being.

A check of neighboring insane asylums and circuses disclosed no missing inmates or animals. Attention then was turned to the theory that the apparation was a man. Authorities who became interested in the investigation learned that before he died, Mr. Miner had refused to sell the place.

Despite the desertion of the aged caretaker of the estate, Frank Mille, who confessed he was terrified at the events of the last three weeks, the Miner girls are unafraid.

Loaded fire arms await the ape man masquerader and, according to Denison, that is why he has not been seen in the last few days.

"If that fellow goes out there again they are going to put lead to him," was how he summed up the matters after yesterday's visit to the farm. "I would not want to try it again if I were he."

Neighbors of the Miner girls are standing with them and there is many a loaded shotgun standing in readiness to do duty when Taugwank's terror next appears.

PONZI FIGHTS TO CLEAR SELF

Modern Wallingford Free Under Bond After Florida Conviction

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—Though convicted in both Massachusetts and Florida courts on charges in connection with his financial schemes, Charles Ponzi, the get-rich-quick wizard, was still at liberty today under two different bonds and smilingly prepared to continue his fight against all charges.

A Duval county jury yesterday found Ponzi guilty of violating state laws governing businesses conducted under declaration of trust. The verdict carries a sentence of two years in the penitentiary or a fine of $1,500. Sentence was stayed under a motion of appeal for a new trial and Ponzi left the court room under $5,000 bond. The state charges were brought following an investigation of his Rosa Marie land promotion scheme by which he offered lots in Columbia county for $10 each and promised his investors large returns. The business was conducted under the name of the Charpon Land syndicate and was to realize enough money to repay investors in Massachusetts who lost in another scheme, Ponzi said.

The state charged Ponzi failed to file with the secretary of state a copy of the declaration of trust under which he contended he was operating the syndicate. Ponzi's wife, Calcedonia Alviti and Mrs. Alviti, other members of the syndicate, were indicted on the same charges. They will be called for trial in the event Ponzi's conviction yesterday is upheld. If Ponzi is granted a new trial and acquitted the charges will be dropped.

Alviti recently was convicted under Massachusetts blue sky laws on charges growing out of his promotion of the Charpon Land syndicate in Boston.

STUDENTS AT WORK.

PARIS, April 3.—Changed conditions in the Latin quarter, increased cost of board and lodgings have produced a French counterpart to the American university student working his way through college. Heretofore work has never been popular with the French undergraduate but French readers now are becoming accustomed to newspaper advertisements like the following:

"Student in his last year seeks job as floor cleaner, waxer and polisaer, or any domestic work reasonably well paid which will leave certain morning free."

The "frotteur" or floor polisaer in Paris gets his work done early between five and seven in the morning.

Bizzell Outlines Ideas As To What Function Of A College Should Be

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS.
Record News Scrap.

AUSTIN, April 3.—Dr. W. B. Bizzell, adopting as a definition of education "The Aim of Education Is World Building—the Construction of Such a World as Shall Furnish the Man With Motives to Live and Enlighten, Kindly, Helpful and Noble Social Life of Continuous Progress," has recently announced as the program of education to which he has committed himself as the new president of the University of Oklahoma:

"The development of a more versatile and more conscientious citizenship.

"The attainment of a more stable and a more satisfying social life.

"Insuring to society a surplus of material goods and social advantages."

This program was enunciated by Dr. Bizzell, formerly president of Texas A. and M. college, when he was formally inaugurated as president of Oklahoma university.

Points Out Principals.

Dr. Bizzell pointed out the two principal branches of university work, instruction and research, the dissemination of knowledge already acquired and the "systematic investigation of phenomena by experimental methods to discover facts or co-ordinate them into laws."

The objectives of research, he declared are "scientific synthesis and the prevention of waste."

"We must never forget," Dr. Bizzell said, 'that the essential justification for education at public expense in a democracy is training for good citizenship. We have long since learned that good laws will not guarantee a stable social order. It is not sufficient for our institutions of higher learning to supply trained leadership. It is equally necessary to train our people to follow wise leadership. Society has not done enough for any man if it has not taught him how to discriminate between the demagogue and the honest political leader. The common task of all our schools is to supply the kind of education that will improve the quality of citizenship.

Must Be Intelligent.

". . . There is a widespread opinion throughout the country that there has been a decline in the standards of integrity and efficiency of public officials. It is not sufficient that our officials be honest; they must be intelligent and well qualified for the service they are called upon to render. We must look to trained leadership in public office as the hope of democracy. To accept mediocrity as an incident to our form of government is to deny the justification for the form of government under which we live. It is my belief that our educational institutions must make contributions to society in terms of qualified men and women who can render service in public office of as high quality as that engaged in directing private enterprise."

He declared a university's obligations now exceed the few thousand resident students, and that "we must think of the state's boundaries as the limits of the campus. It will be my purpose to encourage every form of extension teaching and provide the facilities for the dissemination of all kinds of useful knowledge for which there may be a demnd on the part of the citizenship of the state."

"Education," he said, "is under fire from many angles today. The charges include over-emphasis of athletics, waste of time, money and effort on boys and girls not interested in acquiring a college education; profitless courses in instruction; misplaced emphasis in the curriculum and numerous other indictments of more or less validity or justification.

"Education may be judged by its product. What kind of men and women are institutions sending forth? How do they differ from those who have not yet been exposed to this tedious process? What quality of leadership are they revealing? Do they possess community consciousness? How do they compare with other citizens in moral standards and integrity? These questions suggest some of the tests that should be applied to an educational product."

MANNEQUINS PROSPERING

LONDON, April 3.—English girls keeness for athletics and field sports has robbed them of the grace essential for such occupations as mannequin, say some of the fashion experts and as a result there is a dearth of models for the spring dress parades.

There are about 20,000 mannequins in London, but this number is not sufficient for the rush season. The big stores handling smart gowns have been advertising for models but many of the applicants have been turned away for the reason that they are too well developed.

As a result of this dearth of models, professional free-lance mannequins who supplement the permanent staffs of the fashion houses, are reaping a harvest in cash. They get about two pounds a session and are able to do two shows a day.

Monastic Life Declining.

In Greece, noticeably, and in other countries also, monastic life is on the decline. Under the old regime an ambitious Grek boy could rise to a Bishopric through the monasteries because all bishops were chosen from the Monks, or nearly all. Under the Turkish regime the bishop became politically powerful but today business, politics and the professions are more attractive with the result that fewer Greek youths are taking to the monasteries.

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.—Adv.

GOVERNOR NOT TO CALL SOLONS

Moody Ruling on Road Bonds Doesn't Inspire Miriam

AUSTIN, April 3.—There will be no session of the Texas legislature called by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to deal with bond matters, it appeared to be assured here after the ruling by Attorney General Dan Moody that a session could remedy defects in the bond districts.

Governor Ferguson made it known through her secretary, Mrs. Lena West Guinn, that she would not comment on the opinion, and had no announcement to make as to policy of the office.

Arguments in favor of the session to validate bond districts had already been made by session proponents, before the ruling of the attorney general was sent to Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller.

Representative H. T. Brown of Jacksonville who was here Thursday, pointed out this method as one generally agreed upon by the lawyers of the legislature ever since the Archer county decision.

It was believed by those close to the governor that her decision would not be changed by the opinion; and it was also pointed out that while this year's taxes have already been paid under the road districts, next year's regular legislative session can meet and remedy the law before the time of tax payments, so that nothing would ultimately be lost by the delay.

CROMWELL VAIN OF MOLE

Cromwell was said to have been vain of the moles on his face. He frequently mentioned the fact to his friends and set aside any suggestion that they could be removed. Byron was vail to the extent of shaving his brow to make it look higher and Napoleon had a peculiarity, in fact, it is said, he liked to cheat at cards, presumably to show he could outwit his gambling opponents.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, billiousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, billous, sick child gladly takes it.

LEON ERROL IS NOW A SCREEN COMEDY KING

Former Ziegfeld Star To Show at Strand Friday

Leon Errol, Ziegfeld's famous comedy star, whose eccentric legs and antics were the sensation of both the stageand screen versions of "Sally," is the first great stage comedian to gain stardom in films.

As a result of his screen hit in Colleen Moore's "Sally," First National signed him to be starred, and he will appear with Dorothy Gish in the headline role of "Clothes Make the Pirate," the Sam E. Hoark comedy which opens at the Strand Friday for three day run.

With the exception of Errol, virtually none of the comedy stars now on the screen ever achieved any marked degree of stage fame, including Charlie Chaplin, the comedy genius, had not yet ripened to his present greatness of art when he left the English music halls for films. Buster Keaton, while a member of a vaudeville headline act, was submerged beneath the older fame of his parents. Harold Lloyd's experiences has been confined entirely to films. The late Sidney Drew was one of the few stage stars to equal Errol's achievement of stardom on the screen.

Errol has been a New York stage star since 1911, when he first joined the Ziegfeld Follies. The collapsible legs which made him famous are again much in evidence in "Clothes Make the Pirate," in which he has the role of a hen-pecked Yankee tailor who runs away from his nagging wife and becomes a pirate.

Varied Instruments To Be Heard When Mexican Tipic Orchestra Plays

Music leaps from a native gourd and booms wierdly from a hand-carved wooden tube in the performance of the Mexican Tipica orchestra, now making its first tour of the United States.

The "Guiro" and the "Texponaxtle"—are only two of the singular instruments which give the music of the Tipica orchestra a touch that is as distinctive as the history of the organization itself. Both have been carried down through the ages, and history shows that they had a part in the wierd tribal rites of the Aztecs and early Indian tribes.

Imagine a giant hollow gourd, yellow in color and shaped like a boomerang with hand-varved corrugations on the convave surface and you have the "guiro," a hollow bone is rubbed back and forth across the corrugations, giving for a sound simlar to the "Clackers" and noise-makers used by merry makers in this country.

The art in playing the "guiro" is only a matter of being able to handle the hollow bone pick in time with the music. A cymbalist is an overworked craftsman alongside of the guiro player, and oddly enough the most dignified looking man in the Tipica company is the one who handles the guire.

The "texponaxtle" is a hollow, oblong piece of native wood carved in the likeness of the Aster gods. It corresponds to the North American Indian's tom-tom but the intonations are more weird and have a duo tone that lends itself particularly well to the native Mexican airs.

Both the guiro and the texponaxtle are of Indian design and construction. They provide the percussion for the orchestra along with a standard set of drums.

Typical also of the music of Mexico is the bandolon, an over-sized guitar and is used in no other country.

The marimbas, which are the delight of all audiences, are constructed entirely of wood, differing in this respect from the instruments in use in the United States.

Of particular interest to American audiences are the Salterios, a native counterpart of the psaltery of Bible times. These are now regarded as an integral part of all Mexican typical orchestras and are distinctly Mexican both in construction and manner of playing.

All these instruments will be heard when the Mexican Tipica orchestra appears Tuesday night, April 6, at the Junior college auditorium.

Shot Removes Appendix.

In attempting to adjust the faulty mechanism of a rifle, says the reliable old Pathfinder, Leonard Jansen, aged 11, steadied the weapon against his abdomen. In making the adjustment the gun was fired, and the bullet went through his abdomen, tearing loose his appendix. About all the hospital surgeon had to do was sew up the wound as the shot had made a fairly clean operation.

Effort is being made to have the Swiss government control the watch industry of Switzerland in order to stop the wholesale manufacture of parts to be sent to other countries to be mounted in cheap cases, thus depreciating the entire watch market.

Heavy Fun in Gibson Film, "Spook Ranch," On Today

Hoot Gibson, the star in "Spook Ranch," the Universal-Gibson special which will be shown at the Palace Theatre commencing today, found himself up against such a "tough egg" in a little town on the edge of the Mojave desert when he wantered into town, tired, broke and hungry.

In "Spook Ranch," Gibson plays the part of Bill Banks, a Texas cowboy who has spent his last $500 for the mining rights to the Majove desert. Bill knows there is gold there because the man who obligingly took his money assured him there was lots of it. The only reason he sold the rights was because he was in a hurry. Bill was told. That left the proposition a cinch. All he had to do was dig—and dig he did.

He choose a spot in the middle of the desert where the sun beat down and dug a large hole. He turned up enough sand to build a mountain but didn't find a trace of gold. He and his colored valet struggled back to civilization and tried to work for a meal.

A Chinese cook started to assault Bill and Bill hit him with a plate, a seemingly insignificant act which changed the course of Bill's life and brought him untold adventure, riches and a girl—also a good meal.

The sheriff promptly started on Bill's trail and he left town in a freight car only to find that the train was switching cars onto a siding. Arrested, Bill was promised his freedom if he would solve the mystery of Spook Ranch, a place that has been deserted since a murder there many years previously.

In his efforts to lay the ghosts of the haunted ranch house Bill comes into many adventures, both amusing and exciting, which give the picture its comedy-drama flavor. He finds a girl imprisoned there and after many fights with her captors finally emerges triumphant with the gang rounded up and the girl's heart captured.

Woman Pioneer Is Film Heroine For Initial Time

Anna Q Featured In Film At Strand Theatre Monday

Many stories and many pictures have dealt with the adventures of the stalwart men who crossed the western plains and mountains in 1849 to seek gold in the Sacramento valley of California.

But "The Splendid Road," a First National release which comes to the Strand theatre Monday through Thursday, is the first film to have for its central characters lone woman pioneer.

The story concerns the romance of a woman who came to the gold country by water from Boston; who, after adopting three motherless children, proceeds to face the rigors of a rough mining life with a determined smile.

JOHNNY HINES CHEATS DEATH IN AUTO LEAP

Accident Was in "Rainbow Riley," Carried At Olympic

The next time anybody asks Johnny Hines to drive an automobile it had better not be a 1900 Oldsmobile.

In filming "Rainbow Riley" which comes to the Olympic Thursday for a run through Saturday, the script called for Riley to navigate this 25 year-old model down a narrow mountain road. Since Johnny can drive anything that has motive power he didn't hesitate a second to hop into the driver's seat, crank the archaic car and put her in motion.

Everything was lovely until the car hit a steep down grade, and when the comedy star attempted to put on the brakes the old "horse" not merely refused to stop but accelerated its speed. It careened this way and that until driving it became a most hazardous performance.

In order to save himself the First National comedy king jumped from the seat and landed without serious injury. No sooner did he do this than the two front wheels of the "old boat" collapsed and rolled over the mountain side to its final resting place 600 feet below.

Funniest Chaplin In 'The Gold Rush' At Mission Thursday

"The Gold Rush," Charlie Craplin's new screen feature coming next Thursday and Friday to the Mission theatre under a United Artists corporation release, is a symbolic autobiography by Chaplin himself.

With that genius which is peculiarly his own, and against the background of old Klondike gold rush days of Chaplinesque conception, the greatest screen-comedian has depicted with subtly tender and delicate masterstrokes the struggle of man't eternal hunt for happiness, its heartbreaks and tears and its laughter and joy.

Charlie Chaplin of the derby, cane, baggy trousers, funny mustache and waddling walk who has made the whole world laugh more than any other mere comedian that ever lived, has built in "The Gold Rush" a delightful structure of fun and laughter.

On the tragedy and misery suffered by the pioneers who first journeyed to the ice-bound Alaska, and on the drama of the soul sufferings of the sourdough who braved mountains, ice, snow and starvation and death in their mad rush for gold. Chaplin has built the funniest and most hilarious comedy of his career.

He has clad himself in the role of a hard-luck sourdough who chases rainbows of the soul and heart in the midst of a mob that chases the thing only— gold and nothing but gold. Pathos and suffering are converted into comedy and laughter—there is a laugh in every one of the eight thousand or so feet of "The Gold Rush."

As Current Vodvil Season Nears End Bills Get Better

Le Vere, Gilfore and Lang, Freda and Palace, In Features

As the current vaudeville season nears its close the bills are becoming better and better. Saving the best, apparently, to the last.

Only a few more weeks remain until Interstate winds up the season in Wichita Falls. Programs of the past several weeks have been exceptionally pleasing, and this week's lineup at the Majestic appears to be no stepdown from the precedent set.

Miss Florrie Le Vere well known to vaudeville audiences as the feminine member of the popular Holmes and Le Vere act, has forsaken her old vehicle and presents a novel pot-pourri of songs, melody and dance which affords far greater opportunities for the use of her many talents. This new act which was conceived and personally produced by Miss Le Vere has met with enthusiastic approval upon the part of her audience and bids fair to lift her higher than ever in the esteem of the patrons of vaudeville entertainment.

"Celebrities" which Miss Le Vere's new vehicle is appropriately called is elaborately staged, the two scenes being replete with novel scenic effects including miniature skyline of New York in which one cannot mistake the bright light of the Great White Way. Miss Le Vere sings and dances with all her well known reckless abandon, does impressions of various stars of the stage and screen and continues to do her finals impersonation which is the outstanding feature of her performance. Miss LeVere is ably assisted in her efforts by a charming dancer and by Mr. Lou Handman the popular composer of many song hits including, "My Sweetie Went Away"—"Love Came Back"—"When I Was a Dandy and You Were the Belle" and "I can't Get the One I Want." A popular song written by Mr. Handman entitled "I'm Going to Charleston Back to Charleston" affords Miss Le Vere an opportunity to do her own version of the latest and perhaps the greatest dance craze the Charleston. "Celebrities" is clean, clever and delightful entertainment.

Emmett Gilfoyle and Elsie Lang Offer A Vaudeville Comedy Classic.

Picking partners is a difficult task so when Anna Held Jr., and Emmett Gilfoyle went their separate professional ways, Mr. Gilfoyle decided to enter musical comedy and it was exceedingly good to him. Not only did it provide a special engagement but it provided a vaudeville partner. Here a clever young woman named Elsie Lange played opposite him. She was clever, attractive and had that knack of 'give and take' which is so essential in vaudeville and so when the engagement ends the new vaudeville team Emmett Gilfoyle and Elsie Lange was created. Miss Lange won her spurs in such places as "The Lonely Romeo," "The Little Blue Devil" and "Angel Face." It was in the letter that she first came in contact with Mr. Gilfoyle.

The new team of Emmett Gilfoyle and Elsie Lange is presenting "A vaudeville comedy classic" with $20,000 worth of wardrobe, scenery, feathers and brilliants. The scenic and sartorial embellishment are quite the most pretentious seen in the long while but Mr. Gilfoyle and Miss Lange do not only begin by appealing to the eye their appeal to the public appetite is strongest. They are really clever people undestanding all the aims of song, dance and story.

The Meyakos. "From Cherryland to Broadway"

From Cherryland to Broadway is not such a very long trip when ambition is the motive power of the journey. The Meyakos are a trio of Japanese. They look like figures on a fan or as many bits of carved ivory. The Meyakos realizing that there was little opportunity in the theatres of the Orient came to America to sell their wares. For five seasons they were a feature of Ed Wynn's musical comedy productions. Now they are back in the two-a-say. Strange as it may sound the Meyakos are not acrobats. They present a pretty little offering which for Japan is a decided novelty. They sing and play and just to astonish their audiences discard their kimonas and present original songs and music as pure American jazz.

Guadsmith Brothers. With Their Clown Dogs.

Few names in the paint and tinsel world have greater appeal to the imagination than that of Gaudsmith, which, in the case of the young men who are the subject of this sketch, has been Anglocized to Agudsmit. The latter, the Guadsmith twins, with their clown dogs, constitute one of the most amusing features of the vaudeville bill announced for next week at the Majestic theatre. There their grotesque efforts will echo an unbroken strain of hundreds of years of family devotion to family public entertaining.

Of the many strange freaks of fortune in which the court fool has played the leading role, both in the pages of history and of romance few exceed in simple direct heart interest the life story of the two Gaulsmith boys under discussion. At the age of ten the crowning disaster of their lives descended upon their parents who were bareback riders with the famous Circus Carre. A conflagration swept over the little tented city that meant their lives, wiping out in a few wild seconds their total savings, their costumes and equipment, their string of Arabian ring horses and leaving them penniless in the inaccessible and inhospitable town of Botoshany, Roumania. Having no other way open to meet the emergency of their parents apprenticed the two little stands to a farmer until such times as their fortune improved to an extent that would permit them to ransom the boys. Quite naturally life under these conditions was no bed of roses.

Only one friend stood by them in these dark days, a little black dog called Vidi. Their lunches they shared with this dog and he beguiled their spare time with crude tricks that he acquired. The boys then decided to train the dog as a means of livelihood and escape their serfdom. Six months they trained him and then one night departed from the farm. For three days they truged their way to Gallez and when they arrived had the good luck to encounter a little circus.

They were given a chance with the circus and during their three month stay with the circus saved enough to start on their way to Hungary where they knew their parents were. They set forth on the freight steamer and had several sorrowful experiences with their dog. After many days they reached their parents.

The parents recognized the possibilities boys had pieced together, developed and rehearsed the act and sent the lads to England, where after playing a year in the provinces they secured an engagement at the Empire, London from which they went to Buckingham Palace to give a common performance for the late King Edward. The boys then started on a world tour and five years ago they established themselves in this country. After they reached America Videl the little dog who had added to all their success succumber to old age.

Videl's successor was a Spanish poodls and that type of dog is employed exclusively by the Guadsmith boys because of their superior intelligence and unique appearance.

Steve Freda and Johnny Palace In Bartha-aKalloop.

One does not have to be a linguist to know that Barth-a-Kolloop is Italian. At any rate Steve Freda who is Italian says that Barth-a-Kalloop is a word from his native tongue. Mr. Freda who, as Anthony and Freda were an exceptionally well-known team of Italian comedians, has just formed a new professional partnership. He and Johnny Palace have formed a Union of Fun. Mr. Palace until now was the Palace of McFarlane and Palace. He is a comedian, but not an Italian comedian. But this does not in the slightest degree diminish the humor the two extract from Barth-a-Kalloop Mr. Freda besides his share of fun, provides a bit of music. Most everyone knows that he is the world's famous guitarist and of course his music is on this instrument. Both men sing.

Ronald Coleman Supports In David Belasco Success

Norma Talmadge's latest screen creation "Ki Ki," based on the famous stage success which was produced and staged on Broadway by David Belasco with Marilyn Miller in the stellar role, comes to the Olympic today for a four-days' run.

Miss Talmadge is supported by Ronald Colman in the leading male role as well as a strong suporting cast of other well-known screen celebrities. This play had an unusually long and successful two-year run on the legitimate stage on Broadway.

The role of Ki Ki, a characterization of an impish adorable gamine of Paris is said to be one of the strongest parts Norma Talmadge has had in any of her productions this season and in no previous picture does her unusual ability show to a better advantage than in the current film attraction. As a waif of the Paris gutters—with the soul of a child and the wit and wiles of a street Arab—Ki Ki will move into your heart and win you with her impish gaiety.

When this production was screened for Mr. Belasco, his comment was: "No other actress on the cinema today could play this character with the artistry and faithfulness of interpretation that Norma has put into the role." Norma Talmadge's own opinion of her own work in this is: "I never made a picture I like better."

An item of interest to the movie patrons is the fact that this picture is playing day and date beginning Sunday in two hundred and twenty-five of the nation's leading theatres. The Olympia theatre is classed as one of the representative theatres of the country and was successful in procuring the production for Wichita Falls showing along with the leading theatres in 225 other key cities of the country.

Dog Star, "Thunder," In "Black Lightning"

"Black Lightning" with "Thunder"—the marvel dog in the star role, and presented by Samuel Sax, comes to the Gem Theatre Tuesday for one day. "Black Lightning" is from an original story by Harry Davis and was adapted for the screen by Dorothy Howell. It was produced and directed by James P. Hogan.

In the support of "Thunder"—the marvel dog, who has the principle role in "Black Lightning," Mr. Sax has engaged a cast far and away above the usual. Clara Bow, who is considered one of the brightest stars on the screen today, plays the leading feminine role. The balance of the cast includes such well known favorites as Harold Austin, Eddie Phillips, James Mason, Joe Butterworth, Mark Fenton and John Prince.

"Black Lightning" is a heart-interest story that is replete with swift, clean action and holds the spectator spellbound. The action is laid in the hills of Kentucky, and the story is realistically told.

12 Cameras Film "The Lost World" Now at Mission

For one of the first times in film history two separate companies were necessary to work on the same picture at the same time in the same studio. The double system was used during the filming of "The Lost World," a superfeature adaptation of Conan Doyle's celebrated novel, made jointly by First National and Watterson R. Rothacker, which is showing at the Mission theatre.

The cast was so big and the production so immense, it would have taken a whole year to make the film under a single director.

In the cast are seventeen principals and 2,000 players of lesser importance. Twelve photographers were used on the cameras.

At the outset the directing was in the hands of Harry Hoyt, who later shared his labors with William (Bill) Dowlan. In the concluding scenes the two companies were merged under Hoyt, the whole production being under Earl Hudson's supervision.

Some idea of the vastness of the undertaking can be gathered from the fact that more than six years of experiment and planning were necessary before the actual filming of the story could be begun.

Dampest Spot Located.

For half a century the world's record for rainfall has been held by Cherapunji in India, where on an average 426 inches of rain falls during the year, or better than an inch a day. However a new record spot is located now in Hawaii on the summit of Mount Waialeale, where in 1918 it rained 600 inches or nearly two inches every day. Two inches of rain is equivalent to 120,280 tons to the square mile.

FORD DEMAND TO BREAK ALL SPRING RECORDS

Increased Popularity Of These Cars Expected To Flood Plant

Every year, the problem of supplying cars to satisfy the great spring demand is one which taxes the manufacturing and distributing facilities of the automobile industry and occasions delays in delivery. This year, even the weather man and congress have added their bit toward complicating the task.

Thousands of persons who would normally have purchased new cars last Fall or during the winter, held off to await the proposed reduction in federal excise tax. Now, with the tax question finally decided they are added to the list of spring buyers. Balmy weather is also a tremendous incentive for automobile buying and by holding back spring zephyrs, the weather man seems determined to handicap even further the manufacturers' plans for well balanced distribution.

As the world's greatest producer of motor cars, the Ford Motor company is particularly affected by this spring's buying congestion. Even under the most ideal weather conditions, the company would have been faced with an imposing problem for supplying the demand for Ford cars. Since the spring volume of business last year, Ford cars have won increased popularity through improvements and refinements more pronounced than at any time in the history of the company. And, more recently, the comforts of closed car transportation have been made available to thousands of new owners through sharply reduced prices in all closed types.

Another division of the army of Ford buyers expecting spring delivery will be composed of persons enrolled in the Ford weekly purchase plan, who started systematically to save toward a car months ago. However, those enrolled in this plan are assured delivery immediately following the fulfillment of the necessary portion of their payments, their membership naturally giving them the preference over last minute orders.

From these indications, it is obvious that the wise Ford shopper, not unlike the wise Christmas shopper, will do his shopping early.

Proper Equipment Is Needed To Save Autos Adequate Illumination

(The third of a series of articles dealing with the operation and care of headlight equipment which has been prepared especially for Texas motorists by the State Highway Department.)

In the second of this series of articles we saw that the focusing of headlamps is the fundamental consideration in obtaining good headlighting. We saw that with the bulb out of focus a beam would glare. In fact bad focusing is responsible more than anything else for glare conditions, because in such a condition it is almost impossible to equip and aim headlamps for good road illumination. But a lamp properly focused may be equipped and aimed so that the best of driving light is obtained with a very small amount of glare.

This article will be devoted to a consideration of the equipment generally approved for use in headlamps. Regardless of the manner in which it is done, a headlight device may be thought of as taking the controllable beam obtained from a focused headlamp and moulding it into a beam which is more suited to night driving than the unmodified beam which gives only a bright streak down the road. Many will recall what poor driving light was obtainable from the old headlamp which consisted of a plain reflector and a plain front glass. Such lighting was soon forced to give way to better methods as the solution of the problem progressed.

Early Methods Nearby

Early methods of providing better road illumination and less glare met with little success for the reason that the question had not been sufficiently studied. The matter of local and state regulation of headlighting, which naturally went hand in hand with the effort to secure better headlighting conditions mechanically and optically, also failed for a like reason. It was thought at first that if the light from a headlamp was diffused in all directions, conditions would be bettered, but while the road illumination was somewhat improved by the lower part of the beam being spread yet the upper part of the beam was diffused so that an additional amount of light went into the eyes of the approaching driver and there resulted a greater amount of glare. In such devices, approximately fifty per cent of the light was wasted so far as ever reaching the road is concerned. Other devices sought to cut down the glare by absorbing a large per cent of the light, but they failed because when the glare was decreased in this manner, the light on the road was decreased far below a safe value.

A Great Step.

The present headlighting equipment represents a great step forward. Two general methods of beam control are used. The first employs a lens which takes the place of the plain front glass in the old type headlamp, and moulds the beam into the general shape which by experimenting has been shown to be the best for road illumination and glare reduction. These lenses may be divided into three general classes. The first is made up of vertical flutes which spread the light laterally so as to give an even illumination on the road. This lens is shown in Figure 4.

The second general method is to use a special reflector, other than the ordinary type of reflector, without the lenses just described. Many types of these reflectors have been developed recently. Probably the reflector of this kind used most generally is the one which spreads the light as does the lens of Figure 4. A sketch of this reflector is shown in Figure 7.

Other types are moulded so that the various portions of the beam are bent and spread in varying amounts.

Recent practice tends to combine general methods of beam control are used. In fact the approval of complete headlamps is now being required by many states in the north and east ,thus assuring the best mechanical construction as well as optical construction.

As a whole, headlamp manufacturers have made rapid strides in perfecting headlight equipment, and despite numerous difficulties which are met with in manufacturing much of this equipment, we are gradually reaping the benefit of the best headlight equipment to be obtained.

Summarizing briefly, then, we see ment is to spread the light evenly that the aim of good headlight equip- the roadway and to remove all that is possible from the glare zone and place it on the roadway where it is needed. The last of the three adjustments necessary, that of aiming the headlamp beam, will be taken up in the next article.

BUICK ADOPTS NOVEL WAYS TO PROTECT CARS

Complicated System Of Numbers Makes Theft Difficult

It is always best to use all the safeguards built into your automobile to prevent its theft, but in the event some clever crook does steal it, there is satisfaction in the knowledge that it will be very hard to disguise the car enough to prevent its identification as your property.

Insurance companies have endorsed the Buick system of identifyng cars as one of the best used by any manufacturer. This system consists if eight numbers, located at various places on the car and all cross-indexed with the serial number on the frame, which is the key to the entire system. The numbering is so arranged that it is only necessary to find one or two of the original numbers to get a complete history of the car. Several of the numbers are very hard to locate unless one is informed as to where they may be found, and one in particular is placed so that a thief would have to take the car apart to find it.

Can Not Be Altered.

While it is true that automobile numbers can not be altered without leaving some evidence of tampering to the eye of the expert, any more than United States currency can be perfectly counterfeited, still it is possible to make changes enough to fool the average person. For this reason the Buick system of identification not only complicates matters for auto thieves by complicating the numbering system, but also offers a widespread and effective net in which to catch the thief who steals a Buick and to recover the stolen car.

No matter where in the United States a Buick is stolen, word is immediately flashed to the factory at Flint, from whence it is relayed back to every branch and distributor in the country. These in turn re-broadcast the bulletin to all the dealers and authorized service stations in their territory. In a very short time every member of the Buick organization is on the lookout for the car.

Can't Sell It.

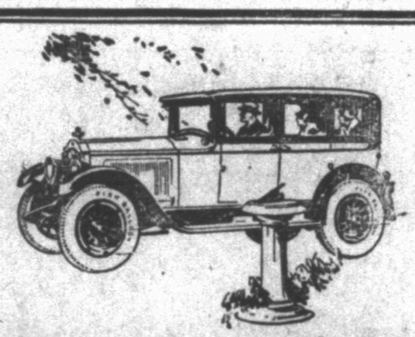

The thief stands little chance of driving into a Buick service station with his loot and driving out again undetected, for every employe there is looking for the car which he drives.

In most cases a theft is reported to the branch or distributor in whose territory it occurs at the same time that word is flashed to the factory, in order to waste as little time as possible in getting the word to the neighborhood in which the stolen car is likely to be found.

Do away with vibration—cut friction to a fraction—abolish carbon troubles and valve grinding—and you add years to the life of your car.

In the poppet-valve-engined car, it is the pounding of cams against push-rods, the contact of push-rods on rocker-arms, the recoil of valves under coiled springs that cause vibration.

In the sleeve-valve-engined Willys-Knight there is no pounding of metal upon metal. The Knight engine is simplicity itself. It consists of but two metal sleeves operating with a gliding motion. No vibration. No friction. Simply two single sleeves working smoothly, silently, up and down, one within the other, in a constant film of oil—and that is all!

Carbon, too, shortens the life of the poppet-valve engine. The only remedy is valve-grinding. And this assembling-and-tearing-down process weakens the engine every time it is performed.

Carbon troubles cannot exist—there is no valve-grinding—with the sleeve-valve-engined Willys-Knight. The unique principle of this patented engine provides that carbon only serves to seal compression and prevent power-waste. Instead of weakening, it literally gives this car added years of life and usefulness. Instead of harming, as it does all other engines, it actually helps the Knight engine to perform!

I Am Going To Find Out

I hear a lot these days about Dilution Eliminators . . . Air Cleaners and other jim cracks with funny names in automobiles . . . what do they mean? . . . what, if anything, do they do? . . . why are they? . . . who has them and who has not? . . . and what's the difference anyway?

I am going to find out.

Jack, who drives a Rickenbacker . . . and who is a hopeless bug on the subject . . . tells me Rickenbacker was first to discover . . . and to incorporate . . . all these devices in his car.

He insists that Rickenbacker was first to introduce all the really important refinements in automobiles since the war . . . and of the lot, he says the Air Cleaner and Dilution Eliminator do more to reduce upkeep cost and prolong the life of the engine than anything else that has been done since Otto built his first gas-engine.

I have had my doubts as to the genuineness of these things . . . but then, I had my doubts about 4-wheel brakes when Rickenbacker came out with that improvement . . . that was three years ago.

Get sore every time I think about that . . . Skeptical myself, I was an easy mark for a dealer who told me brakes on the front were the bunk . . . Bought a two-brake car just before that very maker changed to 4-wheel brakes . . . took a loss of sixty per cent in a year on that deal.

Didn't do much better next time . . . Bought a car with four brakes . . . but they didn't always act on four wheels at the same time! . . . Have a bad habit of grabbing, too . . . Jack says the only kind that never grab and always take hold evenly, are internal expanding, rigid-shoe brakes . . . quite a mouthful that . . . not sure just what it all means . . . going to find out though.

Jack tells me so many things about this Rickenbacker . . . it's hard to believe any one car can possess so many points of superiority over all others . . . but I'm going to find out.

My curiosity is aroused . . . going to satisfy it before I let anyone sell me any car.

Need one right now, too . . . Old boat is costing too much for upkeep . . . needs a lot of new parts . . . complete overhauling, the garage-man says . . . and after all that expense it will still be an old car . . . out of date in a lot of ways . . . especially in the body.

I like that new Rickenbacker Sedan . . . stopped and looked into one today standing in front of the club . . . exquisitely finished . . . she will go crazy over that one . . . every last detail done to the queen's taste . . . that's her . . . Best cloth I ever felt . . . and I know silk mohair when I see it . . . none better made.

Jack says that's true of the car all the way through . . . he ought to know . . . Jack can afford the price of any car he takes a notion to . . . says he bought his Rickenbacker without thinking of price . . . on performance and quality . . . saved two thousand dollars, too!

I've had a leaning toward that Rickenbacker for several years now . . . liked it, first time I ever saw it.

Aggravates me sometimes, though . . . glides past me on the road like greased lightning . . . a swish and she is gone! In traffic too, . . . gets away from scratch like a thing possessed.

When one does that . . . or slides up a hill . . . passing me as if I were standing still . . . I ache to get my own hands on that wheel . . . that is my kind of a car.

Going to find out about this . . . going to drive a Rickenbacker myself . . . nobody but her along . . . she knows cars, too . . . between us we can do our own buying without help from any salesman.

Want no trick demonstrator, either . . . I've been kidded by experts in that line . . . I want a car that will do as I want it to do . . . with my own driving . . . going to phone the Rickenbacker dealer to have a car ready for me to drive . . . right now.

RICKENBACKER DEALERS WANT PRICES RAISED

Verticle 8 Not High Enough And Suffers They Say

"In all my experience, and that dates from the dawn of the automotive industry, I never before heard a group of dealers, in convention, ask for an increase in price of the product," says B. F. Everitt, president and general manager of Rickenbacher Motor company.

"This last week we had that unique and thrilling experience.

"We called in what we term our 'Key Point' distributors and asked them for suggestions as to modifications in the product or other plans for the future.

Expected Cry for Cut

"From past experience we expected to hear advice as to increased discounts or price cuts or both—all kinds of radical changes in models and all those other suggestions which we makers have come to consider as "standard and interchangeable" at dealers conventions.

"To our great surprise there were none such.

"Instead of asking for more models they asked for less types or more cars of present types!

"On one point they seemed almost unanimous, namely, that prices on our Vertical-8 line are too low and should be increased. Only disagreement was to whether the price should be raised one, two or five hundred dollars.

"The argument advanced was interesting to say the least.

"'Automobile buyers have gotten into the habit of classifying cars according to price,' said the dealers' spokesman.

"If a car has a certain size engine and a certain wheel base, the public compares it with others of similar size and on price alone—not on the difference in quality."

"Our eight cylinder line suffers in such comparisons—buyers imagine it can't be such a wonderful automobile and yet list at such a reasonable price.

"So they asked that we raise the price to a level more nearly that of other super-fine eights, in order that it might be more accurately classified in minds of buyers.

Didn't Adopt It

"We did not adopt the suggestion however," said Mr. Everitt.

"We told them they would have to go through the same process with the eight that they had to do with the six earlier in our career—prove by performance, with the prospective buyer himself behind the wheel, that the quality is the highest even if the price is below the average level for that type and size of car.

"To prove that this will come about we only had to refer them to their own records which show a very rapid gain in eight cylinder popularity and sales.

"Why, some of our principal 'Key Point' distributors have been selling as many Vertical eights as sixes and the averages for the entire country is about 60-40 sixes and eights respectively.

"If we are to judge by the enthusiasm which pervaded the two days' conference our sales force are thoroughly satisfied with the entire line as it now stands."

"Floridabbling" Is Jibe From British

LONDON, April 3.—The English, with a national weakness for puns and for coupling words together, have hit upon a new term—"flori dabbling"—to describe dabbling in Florida real estate.

Men and women with titles and social position likewise are being attracted to the new American Riveria in ever increasing numbers. They learn the language of the country, talk about "developments," "lots" and "high pressure salesmanship" all of which is Greek to the stay-at-home folks of this island who have never heard a realtor caller say anything called "real estate agent' or a lot called anything but a "plot."

A QUEEN INCOGNITO

LONDON, April 3.—(AP)—Even queens sometimes a-visiting go unannounced without any flurries, frills or formalities.

The Queen of the Belgians came to London for a visit the other day and arrived at the railway station without representatives of King George's household or the foreign office to greet her. The government knew nothing about it.

The queen, accompanied by Crown Prince Leopold, was whisked off to a hotel in a taxicab and it was not until hours afterward that White Hall or Buckingham palace was aware of the presence of the Royal visitor from across the channel.

She came over to do some Easter shopping. After completing her shopping, the queen of the Belgians packed her grip and went back home again—also without telling the British government anything about her plans.

ORGAN GRINDERS PASS ON.

LONDON, March 3.—Unemployed ex-service men have supplanted Italian organ grinders in the streets of London. A Fascist edict withholds passports from organ grinders because such means of livelihood derogates from the prestige of fasict Italy.

"There were nearly 1,000 Italians cranking organs in London before the war. Now there are only three or four," says Luigi Pesarisi, who has been making hand organs and "canned music" for fifty years. Nearby 400 hand organs continue to moan in the narrow canyons of London streets, but the Italians with their performing monkeys and bears are back at home practicing the fascist salute.

In their places are blinded or crippled war veterans. Occasionally and ex-officer with a black mask over his face, war veterans. Occasionally an organ. Other organ grinders bring their wives or children to stand by them and collect pennies.

Fish Live in Ice for Months.

The great rivers in Siberia such as the Lena and Ob freeze solid during the winter months and the fish thus imprisoned do not die but hibernate. In the spring when the ice melts the fish revive, according to the bureau of fisheries. Were the fish not endowed with these hibernating qualities Siberia would become denuded of fish, it is said, but as a matter of fact the streams in that country are abundantly supplied with fish.

New Canadian Gold Rush Growing Into Stampede

Red Lake region of Canada, which lies due north from Minnesota, is in the grip of a gold rush, with prospectors coming in from all directions. By spring the stampede is expected to be the greatest in Canadian mining history, exceeding even the development of the Klondyke. The district is six days by dog team from the nearest railroad point, but airplanes, brought in to carry mail and supplies, are covering the distance in an hour or two. Photo shows prospectors "panning" an icy stream.

DIXIE PLANNING FORMAL OPENING

Enlarged Quarters Are Soon To Be Ready For Use

The Dixie Tire Service company's enlarged quarters at Eighth and Travis street are rapidly nearing completion, and Paul Putty, the proprietor, states it may be of interest to the motoring public of Wichita Falls to know that this business has increased so rapidly that with the present rate of expansion even the entire floor space of the Maer-Heydrick building, which we will now utilize, will soon be inadequate to house the business.

The personnel is planning an appropriate public celebration at the time of the formal opening of the enlarged location.

Everything in conjunction with the lay-out of Dixie Tire Service company is such that immediate service can be rendered. The entrance to the service department is on Travis street and the exit is at the far end of the building on Eighth. Approximately twenty cars can be accommodated at once.

Another important phase of tire service that is now even more amply provided for in the new lay-out is balloon and high pressure cord vulcanizing. Mr. Putty is proud of the vulcanizing plant which has been installed, which consists of the very latest safety equipment, and insures perfect work and enables the three men now employed int his department to handle all vulcanizing repairs within twenty-four hours.

Mr. Putty is so enthusiastic about the General cor dtire, his vulcanizing department and his tire service department, and in fact everything in conjunction with his store location that he has decided to give to the motoring public of Wichita Falls a show of his appreciation by giving one of the most elaborate openings held in this city.

Exact date of this formal opening will be announced in several days.

Popular Big Car Wins Double Trophy

The only car in the world to receive the Dewar trophy twice, and the only American car to receive it at all, is the proud boast of the Cadillac factory.

Hugh Bassett, manager Munger Auto company, distributor for Cadillac in this territory, in ocmmenting upon the slogan "Standard of the World," which is used in Cadillac advertising, said: "This slogan was not originated by the Cadillac company, but was conferred upon the car by the Royal Automobile club of London, Eng., in 1908."

The Dewar trophy is a prize given each year by the Royal Automobile club for the most notable development of the year in the motor-car field.

The first time that Cadillac was given this trophy was in 1908 for making its parts standard and interchangeable. The second time the Dewar trophy was awarded Cadillac was when it offered the first successful starting, lighting and ignition system as standard equipment.

BROWN AFTER MORE AUTOS

Rickenbacker Distributor Is Home From Trip To Detroit

L. O. Brown, president of the Victory Motor company and distributor of Rickenbacker cars has just returned from the factory at Detroit on a hurried visit in an effort to secure more cars.

According to Mr. Brown, in a declaration made just before he left for the Rickenbacker Motor company a few days ago, the new cars have created the largest demand in the history of the company.

With the factory's production scheduled for 1926 limited to 15,000, Mr. Brown declared that present indications pointed to a demand that would be greater than production could supply.

Much of the wide interest in the new Rickenbacker is due to the custom-built bodies, now built in the shops of the Rickenbacker Motor company in Detroit. This firm is declared to be unique in that they manufacture their own bodies, which is one of the few exceptions in the industry.

Mr. Brown returned last week with the factory's assurance of more Rickenbacker cars for this territory.

Our Summer Building

Our annual rebuilding of the plant that supplies you with natural gas is now under way. Perhaps that statement "annual rebuilding," is pretty strong, but it may serve to call our patrons' attention to the everchanging characteristics of the supply of gas, for every summer a huge program of reconstruction is required.

Gas wells are not permanent. They insist on playing out, and the public calls for more gas all the time. Consequently the defunct wells must be replaced with new, and the intricate system of pipe lines leading to wells must be revised. In many cases this involves taking up lines that have been in service for three or four years and relaying them to connect with new wells.

Since nothing can be left to chance, a part of each summer's work consists of exploration for more gas, the development of probable gas bearing fields, and the preparation of what may be called a new source of supply, to be held in readiness when the wells now in use shal' be exhausted.

This work involves extensive field labor. Soon we shall have under way pipe laying operations that will call for several hundred men.

AUTO BUILDERS TURN TO STEEL FOR NEW BODIES

Greater Safety, More Strength, Less Weight, Their Claims

Since the first buggy was equipped with a gasoline motor, carriage builders' methods have directed body construction. The contour has, of course, changed radically since those early days. But in many cases bodies are still built around a wooden frame, over which is placed a thin sheet of metal, a compromise between the carriage and the modern motor car.

The modern trend is discussed by J. B. Edwards, writing in the Automobile Digest, who said that automobile designers all over the world are dissatisfied with composite wood construction and are following new paths.

"Designers," he said, "are dissatisfied with the old combination of wood and metal bodies. In their quest for a suitable one, they have taken opposite paths, one (the European group of designers) to a body of wood with a cloth covering that is flexible in every part, and the other (the American designers) to a steel body designed to remain inflexible. Which will become the final type, time will tell, but the less freakish, all-metal body would seem to have the superior handicap."

Of the steel body, he said:

"Due to the greater strength of steel, much less of this material need be used. Moreover, steel is a more tractable material than wood, and it can be formed into sections that provide even greater strength for the amount of material used than is apparent from the relative strengths of steel and wood. A pillar or beam can be constructed of steel that will not only be stronger than a similar one of wood, but also lighter.

"Thus bodies may be built with steel framing that are both stronger and lighter than similar bodies built upon a foundation of wood. This feature not only makes possible a lighter and stronger body, but also allows many of the body parts to be made smaller, providing more room inside the body with the same outside dimensions.

"From the standpoint of safety, the steel body leaves little to be desired. The principal reason for the modern all-steel railroad coach is the safety to passengers it affords in case of a wreck. There is no reason why the all-steel automobile body should not furnish a proportionate amount of safety in case of an automobile accident, particularly cases involving a turnover of a closed body job. A modern all-steel body has sufficient strength to support its chassis in practically any type of turnover, excepting, of course, a drop down over the side of a precipice, and even in such a case it should furnish more protection than a body whose principal framing is of wood."

Dodge Brothers, Inc., for example who use only the all-steel body, are enjoying the greatest volume of business in their history. They were first to break entirely away from the time-worn wood or composite bodies and enter the field of thoroughly modernized construction—the all-steel construction.

GIRL RESERVES MEET.

Members of the Fannin school Girl Reserves met in regular session Friday afternoon when games were led by Oleta Wilson, who also read the minutes of the previous meeting.

It was decided that the girls will go on a hike Saturday at 1:30 o'clock. Devotional and prayer was given by Margaret Cook, and Lenore Butcher talked in "Courtesy at Home." Katheryn Blockwell gave a talk, and Miss Ivo Wilson told an interesting story. The program was concluded with Girl Reserve sings and salutes, with prayer by Kathleen Meeks.

Give Your Car Some Care In Spring, Save Trouble Later In Year

WASHINGTON, April 3—Many of the car owner's costly repair bills as well as a considerable number of accidents which the spring touring season always brings could be avoided if all motorists made it a point to give their cars the necessary clean-up and overhauling before they take to the open road, declared a statement issued by the American Automobile Association today.

Winter's ravages on mechanism and machinery, the hundred and one strains produced by exposure to cold nights under the open sky or in unheated garages, by snow or wet pavements, by the invasion of rust and the dross of oil and gasoline, all combine to put the car in need of attention before the motorist launches his season of long-distance driving, the A. A. A. warns.

The A. A. A. bulletin, based on the experience of a host of "trouble men" attached to the emergency service stations of its affiliated clubs throughout the country, lists this advice:

Drain your crank case.

Clean out your cooling system, being sure that the fan belt and all hose connections are in good order.

Flush radiators, and be sure there are no leaks in it.

Insure proper lubrication of transmission and differential.

Clean up the entire gasoline distributing system.

Test the batteries.

Give the generator and starter a house cleaning.

"The average motorist," the A. A. A. adds, "cannot always do this himself. But the garage around the corner will do it for $10 or $15, rarely going above $20. This may look like a big sum to many, but there are thousands of cases where the expenditure of it would have saved $200 or $300 for major repairs at a later date. With America's twenty million cars taking to the highways in the spring, a terrific saving is sure to ensue, if prevention instead of cure is practiced.

The modern car is mechanically fool proof, but it is not proof against deterioration and there is no doubt that many accidents are due to weakened and deteriorated mechanism and parts out of proper alignment."

Grange Now Owns His Own Ice Cart

Harold F. Grange, familiarly known as "Red," now possesses his own ice wagon. It was as a purveyor of ice in his home town of Wheaton, Ill., that Grange kept in physical condition during the summer months when he attended the University of Illinois.

But back in Champaign, Ill., where the university is located, the citizens are not unmindful of the publicity and honor brought to them by Grange's unusual feats on the football gridiron.

As a tribute to Grange's prowess as a handler of huge ice cakes a group of citizens recently presented Grange with a miniature replica of a Graham Brothers truck used for ice delivery. This miniature ice wagon was built along the lines of the regular sized Graham Brothers truck, handsomely painted and ornamented with a small pair of ice tongs and a small set of spring scales attached at the rear.

The presentation was made in the display room of I. M. Bilderback, Dodge Brothers dealer in Champaign, Ill. Grange and T. C. Pyle, who has been his manager since he entered the ranks of professional football, were the center of attraction among several hundred invited guests.

When Mr. Bilderback in a short speech, presented Grange with the miniature ice truck a roar from the assembled crowd split the air. Grange was taken wholly by surprise and after regaining his composure made a short humorous speech, accepting the souvenir of his manual labors during his college days. After the crowd with Grange in the center holding his little ice wagon were photographed Grange and Manager Pyle departed for Wheaton.

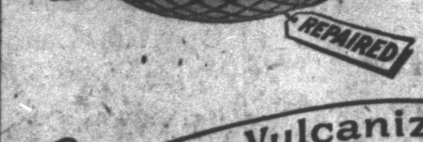

Car Functions As A Motor Truck

The fatter he gets, the fatter becomes his salary, so there's really no object in "Kewpie" Ross, 404-pound screen comedian, going in for reduction treatments. But he's interested in them as far as auto prices are concerned for Ross was one of the first to place his name on the dotted line for an Essex coach after the price was recently slashed $50.

Incidentally, the comedian disclosed a new one for the "a. y. d." (at your door) price slogan of the Hudson-Essex. In reply to an inquiry as to whether he was going to buy some other make of car, the fattish one replied:

"A-Y-D—meaning 'Are you dumb?' Of course not. I want six cylinders and it takes a car of steel to carry a little fellow like me. An Essex for mine, especially since the leg room is larger and the price small."

AST AVERAGE FOR LONG TRIP

ranklin Car Makes Good Time From Miami To Los Angeles

Stuart P. Wilson, for three years d until quite recently a resident of iami, Fla., drove his Series 10-B ranklin touring from his recent abode Los Angeles in just nine days apsed time, covering 4334 miles en oute, or an average of some 480 miles er day, he reported on arrival there.

Although he considers Atlanta, Ga., his home, the Florida boom proved nticing and for three years he was umbered a resident of Miami. Due to what he terms a rather complete collapse of the boom in Florida the time of the exodus was at hand. Taking a leaf from the experience of others he drove west to the Pacific coast, deciding on Los Angeles as his port of call, and perhaps his future home.

His car was not equiped with balloon tires, yet he came through in comfort and experienced but two punctures on the whole journey, while the car, mechanically, did not delay him a moment on the road. Driving at a steady pace of from 40 to 45 miles per hour, he was able to maintain a high average without undue fatigue, despite the fact that in Alabama almost impassable mud proved very trying. In fact, while negotiating some of the gumbo the Franklin was called on to putt another car through which was not able to secure sufficient traction.

His record of gasoline consumed shows that the car averaged between 22 and 23 miles to the gallon, he says, while on the whole tour he reports not a cent spent for repairs or service of any nature.

He states there has been a Franklin car of one model or the other in his family ever since 1908, and right now there are two, for his father, who expects to follow him to California shortly, recently purchased one of the new Series 11 Franklins.

Regarding the Florida boom, which to all appearances has suffered a considerable collapse, Mr. Wilson stated that prices were so high visitors were literally driven away.

Star Never Stops As All Parts Are Dropped in Place

The development and refinement of manufacturing and assembling processes in the production of automobiles is the marvel of an age remarkable for mechanical progress.

In a recent interview, Colin Campbell, vice president, Durant Motors, Inc., said:

"The automobile industry has set an example for the whole manufacturing world in the precision with which it has reduced manufacturing and assembling methods to an almost exact science, thus stepping up per man production capacity and reducing human error to a minimum."

Mr. Campbell explained how the assembly method, used in the production of Star cars, reduces manufacturing costs and improves the quality of the product.

"Mechanics," said he, "at the great plants of Durant Motors, Inc., engaged on the same operation day after day, week after week, become highly skilled specialists, remarkable for their speed and accuracy. Their efficiency, born of long experience in doing a single thing continually, so far reduces error that defective work is rare, indeed.

"The frame is riveted together with pneumatic riveters, the motor and flywheel underpans attached and the previously assembled springs and axles securely fastened to the frame. Then the assembly is swung on chains to a slow moving conveyor and starts on a journey that transforms it into a completed automobile.

"First, are attached in their order propeller shaft, two universals, transmission, battery strap, tire carrier, gas tank and supply pipe, brake cross shafts and pull rods, pedals and shafts steering post and drag link, and muffler. Then brake bands are adjusted and the entire chassis sprayed with the enamel finish which is dried in a huge electric oven as the chassis passes through without a pause in its march to completion.

"When the enameled black chassis emerges from the drying oven, the motor (already assembled and tested) and clutch are lowered into place and secured by bolts and nuts turned home by special wrenches. Then the front universal, battery, front fenders, side aprons and running boards are added and the chassis is ready for the box, which is lowered into position from the floor above and bolted fast.

"Immediately the body is attached, rear fenders, hood sills, radiator and splasher are put on and spark and throttle control levers connected. The rods, steering wheel, horn button, head and tail lamp, etc., are then attached and the wiring connections made. Then the wheels, already equipped with fully inflated tires, are put on while mechanics connect up the fuel and oil supply lines.

"The gasoline tank is then filled, water poured into the radiator, and a mechanic leaps to the wheel, presses the starter button, the motor purrs, and the finished car rolls to its position in the long line on the floor where hood, carpets and doors are fitted and a final cleaning, polishing and inspection make it ready for delivery.

WANT MORE DRESS

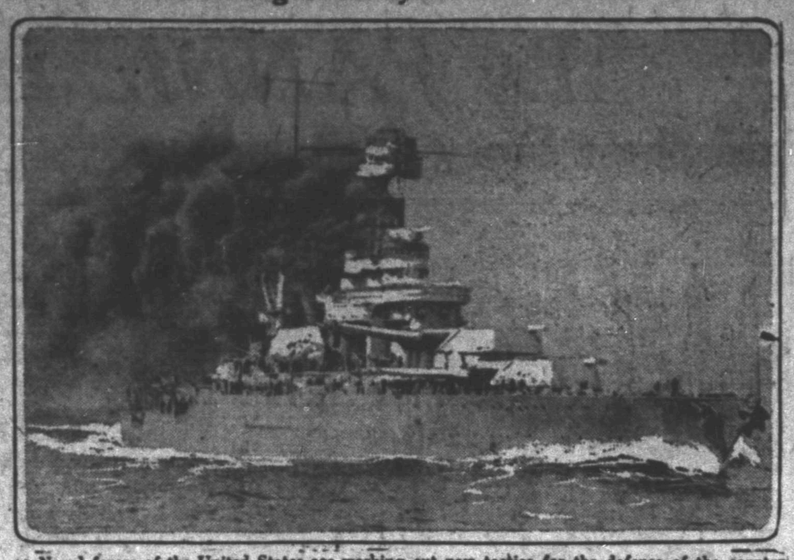

BERLIN, April 3.—The campaign against immodest dress and modern dance is spreading to all branches of the German nobility. Following the edict of former Bavarian Royal houses that only waltzes and polkas were to be danced to elite social functions, the executive committee of the Deutsche Adelsgerossenschaft, an organization of deposed nobility has issued a statement that it is "unbecoming for women to slaves of fashion and neighbors of the demigonde.

Women of noble berth ought never to wear gowns which expose too much of the body the statement continued. Immoral dances must be barred. But what nettles the committee most seems to be the fact that some noble women "have sunk so low" as to be seen at public dance halls mingling with the burgeoise.

Nash Visits Southland; Finds Conditions In Excellent Shape, He Says

Arriving in Southern California a few days ago, Charles W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company and the Ajax Motors company, announced his intention of remaining there approximately one month, not only to vacation and try out some of the numerous golf courses in this vicinity, but also to visit Nash and Ajax dealers in that section of the country.

Last Tuesday noon, Mr. Nash, as the honored guest of the Advertising club of Los Angeles at its weekly luncheon in the Biltmore hotel, addressed a large audience of advertising experts and more than thirty Nash-Ajax dealers, present by invitation bringing out some of his business experiences, and stating that there is a tendency among many business men marketing a commodity, whether it is material or experience, to allow service responsibilities to become lax when business is good, but that just the reverse should be practiced, for when business is good is the time to lay a firm foundation for customer confidence and loyalty to tide one through a slack perid. This, he stated, is applicable to all kinds of merchandising, whether automobile, insurance or advertising.

Has Interesting Career

The career of Mr. Nash affectionately known throughout Nash organizations the world over, from factory to distributors and dealers, as the "boss" is one of genuine interest, for, like many of the great business executives in this country, he was not born with a golden spoon in his mouth but started out in 1892 as a workman with the Flint Cart company, and the Durant-Dort carriage company of Flint, Mich. When he left in 1910 he was vice president and general manager.

From 1910 to 1913 he was president and general manager of the Buick Motor company, and in 1913 he was elevated to the presidency of the General Motors company, comprising Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile and Oakland Automobile companies, as well as the Northway Motor Manufacturing company, Weston-Mott Axle company, and the General Motors Truck company.

In 1916 he struck out for himself and organized the Nash Motors company with a factory in Kenosha, Wis. Production was started in 1917. Later the growth of Nash sales necessitated increased facilities, and another huge plant was installed in Milwaukee.

In 1924 Mr. Nash organized the Ajax Motors company, with its plant in Racine, Wis. Actual production of the Ajax was started in May, 1925, since which time well over 20,000 Ajax sixes have been built, shipped and sold at retail, said to be a record for a new car in a new plant.

Easy as Old Shoe

Despite the fact that he is one of the really big business men of this country, Mr. Nash can best be described by stating he is easy as an old shoe, for he has a radiating personality that makes a friend of everyone with whom he comes in contact. His genial smile, deep, kindly voice, retentive memory and hair-trigger mind have enabled him to build up a gigantic organization in a comparatively short time, and, with his habit of himself seeing that things are done, he has not lost touch with the details of his business, but has such a vast knowledge of his own plants, and the various operations thereof, that he can go into any department of his enterprises and direct the operations, in most cases even better than the men directly in charge, for his is a practical experience seasoned with ambition, initiative, energy, courage and resourcefulness, with a certain bulldog determination.

ELECTRICAL WATCHES

M. Leopold Reveillon, a French watch maker, says it is possible to make electrical watches on the same principal as control the making of electric clocks. By inventing a small battery, much of the space now used for the wheels and springs could be eliminated, he says, and the watch would be more accurate and regular.

Initial Victory Won by AAA Bus Board in Capital

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Efforts of the Bus Board of the American Automobile association, newly formed administrative body of Bus Operators' associations throughout the country, to effect changes in the Cummins bill, designed to control and regulate bus operation, have met with preliminary success.

The senate committee on interstate commerce, before which hearings on the bil are now in progress, has had incorporated in its own copy of the measure all the amendments urged by the Bus Board, the A. A. A. revealed today. Although the incorporation does not mean that the amendments necessarily will be in the bill when it finally is reported out to the senate, it does indicate that the committee has been sufficiently impressed with the Bus Board's requests for changes as to warrant careful consideration, it was said.

The measure, which was sponsored by the National Association of Railroad and utilities commissioners, while meeting the major needs of the bus men, nevertheless contains some phases which the bus organizations believe detrimental to their interests. It is in an effort to harmonise these divergent views that the bus board's representatives are appearing before the committee.

Fifteen Bus Operators' associations were organized a few days ago under the emblem of the A. A. A. into the greatest alignment of bus men in the history of the industry, and since then their representatives have been attending the daily hearings of the committee.

CHRYSLER FINDS GREATER SAFETY

Campaigns In Behalf Of Better Driving Are Bringing Results

Everywhere real progress is being made in meeting problems of motor vehicular and pedestrian traffic control, reports Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Chrysler corporation, who recently visited Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago and while in each of those cities took advantage of the opportunity to see what extent the respective cities had adapted themselves to the needs of motor traffic.

"Los Angeles is probably one of the best regulated cities in the United States," said Mr. Chrysler. "There the pedestrian knows that traffic rules and regulations are for his safety as well as for the convenience of the motorist. In Los Angeles the pedestrian has been taught to observe traffic signals. The result is that traffic moves rapidly and with safety. And Los Angeles has an unusually high percentage of motor cars in proportion to population, in fact, one of the highest in the United States.

"American cities too are paying more and more attention to the compilation of accident statistics. There is a breaking away from the time-honored plan of describing all accidents in which a motor car participates, as an automobile accident. Available figures now show what the driver was doing, whether he failed to have the right of way, whether he as exceeding the speed limit, whether he was on the wrong side of the road, whether he failed to signal, whether he was cutting left corner, whether he was cutting in, whether he was backing, whether he drove off the roadway, whether he passed a standing street-car, whether he drove through a safety zone, etc.

Small Charge For Repairs on New Chevrolet Autos

Less than $3 per car was the average expense incurred in 1925 by 6,600 Chevrolet dealers and service stations in the United States in repairs and adjustments to cars during the 90-day period covered by the factroy guarantee on new cars.

Under this guarantee, all adjustments, including setting and grinding valves, adjusting brakes, and replacement of parts defective in workmanship are made free by the dealer who impresses upon the patron the value of frequent inspection of the new automobile during this three months time.

Records show that only 15 per cent of the owners brought their cars in for adjustments of any kind, indicating that 85 per cent of purchasers were fully satisfied with the performance of their machines in every respect.

Rigid standards of inspection during all stages of factory operations are held by Chevrolet officials to be responsible for this low maintenance cost when the car finally reaches the owner. In the motor department alone, one out of every six employes is an inspector, detailed to insure exact conformance to precision limits gauging down to as low as one-tenthousandth of an an inch.

LINCOLN SPEEDS UP PRODUCTION

40 Cars Per Day to Be Turned Out Now By Factory

Increased popularity of the Lincoln car with a discerning motoring public is evidenced by a new production schedule announced by the Lincoln Motor company calling for forty cars per day. The new schedule, which is now in effect, is the highest ever run by the company, it is said. Custom built and standard types of coachwork will be affected in equal proportion. For the time being production of open sport types will be stressed in response to the seasonal demand for cars expressing that motive.

WINE GROWERS UNEASY

BERLIN, April 3.—While the German prohibitionists are attempting to gather ten million signatures to petitions demanding that the reichstag pass a local option bill, the hard pressed wine growers of the Moselle and adjacent districts are increasing their propaganda.

"Drink German wines as a patriotic duty" is the slogan.

Inspired by their success in inducing the reichstag to abolish the existing tax on wines and champagnes, the wine growers are looking forward to a complete sell-out of their accumulated stocks.

Abolishment of the excess means a loss of $25,000,000 to the federal and state governments this year.

BRUNHILDE - By FANNIE HURST

THE old lady had grown old grandly.

She was six feet tall and the color in her cheeks was the color that coursed there through her veins, and she walked with a Wagnerian grandeur as befitted one who, through a magnificent kind of youth, and even on into middle age, had sung heroic roles such as Brunhilde and Elsa in the capitals of Europe and America.

Hers had been a turbulent life! Mind you, she had known Liszt, had kissed the hand of the master when he was an old and venerable figure known throughout the world. Had sat in the same drawing-room while his perfect fingers roamed the keys. And she had known Wagner, too. Once, the great man had heard her sing his Brünhilde in Vienna, and sent her a note of praise which she kept pasted in an autograph album and hidden away in a drawer of the room she occupied in her daughter's home in North Carolina.

Yes, there was a curious transition for you! Madam Letitia, diva of renown in the eighties, living out her old age in the Carolina hills.

How she had opposed it when Aida, her only child, had met and married a Chicago lawyer on one of the diva's American tours, and had dropped out of her mother's environment of art and music to become the wife of a fairly successful Middle-West lawyer.

Bitterness welled in Madam Letitia over this disappointment in her offspring. Aida, who had been reared in an atmosphere of beauty, where song-birds of international renown gathered, to have sloughed off into so commonplace a finale.

It hurt Madam Letitia's pride. It shattered her ambition to have Aida fail to fulfil any of her dreams for her. The dream that this pretty, fair daughter of hers might develop a talent in one art or another.

Just Aida, sweet, affectionate, even commonplace, the happy wife of a Middle-West lawyer, was not enough for Madam Letitia. She took up her transcontinental tour after Aida's marriage with secret bitterness in her heart. Secret disdain for the lowly minded little creature who had shown immunity to an environment that falls to the lot of but few.

Aida, who had met all the real artists of her time. Aida, who had dined at the same table with Caruso; entertained Madam Carrena in her home, received flowers from a de Reske and been playfully kissed in public by none other than the incomparable de Pachman, marrying Eugene Sloan just as any other Middle-West girl might have been expected to do.

Madam Letitia had dreamed of her sweet Aida becoming a supreme artist herself, or, when Aida failed to develop the supreme talent, had visualized her as the wife of a supreme artist who could keep her in touch with the enchanted world into which she had been born.

For eleven years after her daughter's marriage, swallowing her disappointment, her chagrin, her mother's blasted hopes, Madam Letitia traveled the capitals of Europe, singing with characteristic success her Wagnerian roles and holding her own in a way that amazed her most relentless critics.

And then slowly, surely, inevitably, what Madam Letitia knew long beforehand would be inevitable, the bird in Letitia's throat began to fold its wings. One day, unexpectedly, in Saalsberg, during the festival, an understudy, Elsa, was hurriedly called in and Madam Letitia underwent one of those delicate, crucial, hairbreadth throat operations that can mean everything or nothing.

Madam Letitia, diva, was finished.

It was curious how with the folding of the wings of the bird in her throat, Madam Letitia folded her wings of ambition. Quite resignedly. Quite without any of the regret she had so long dreaded and anticipated. It was as if she had arrived at the end of a long and lovely journey.

Suddenly, and for the first time in the years since her marriage, there was Aida!

Madam Letitia wanted Aida.

Well, it was a far cry to Aida. In the eleven years since her marriage, Eugene Sloan had developed a throat infection that finally forced him to abandon his Chicago law practice, and bag, baggage, Aida and three children, migrate to the fastnesses of Carolina.

In the years since she had seen her mother, Aida had become, in a sense, a mountain wife. The Sloans lived on the slope of a mountain entirely surrounded by vineyards from which they derived their living, in a house that resembled one of those white-pine toy affairs that the woodcarvers in the Cisalpine Alps love to whittle.

There were three sturdy youngsters, a flock of forty fine Wyandotte chickens, two shepher dogs, a Ford car caked in red clay, a son-in-law in hip boots, and a daughter in blue gingham and graying hair, on the horizon of the Sloan place when Madam Letitia, carrying a lap dog and a foreign-looking reticule of traveling trifles, arrived at the home of her daughter.

Poor Madam Letitia, who had not saved enough out of the years of her improvident roaming hither and thither to afford her even the secret solace of the possibility of escape, arriving thus, one cloudy, warmish Carolina afternoon to an environment that was as strange as it was depressing.

Aida, who had been young and blonde and gay and continental as a girl, all blowy now and graying and plump to a degree that Madam Letitia would never have allowed herself to become.

Aida a dowdy, straggly-looking mountain woman. Eugene, who at least had once been trim in a pointed goatee and city appurtenances as to clothing, unshaved, ungroomed and with even a new gruffness of voice through his beard. Three lanky boys, barefoot, and with the drawl of the mountaineer.

It was hard for Madam Letitia to keep back the tears, even through their noisy welcome of her. Later, in the little slant-roofed room laid out so clean and with touches that were so obviously Aida's, the tears did come. It was all too sordid. Too dreadful. Too bleak.

Poor Aida. The dear child had contrived to find time to crochet her mother a pair of the warm, woolsey bed-slippers she liked. And there was her favorite eau-de-cologne on the pine wood wash-stand and, at what price she was only to learn later, an upright piano in the room, with a framed picture of Liszt on it.

Dear child Poor child. Poor Madam Letitia. No, tears of self-pity were not unmixed with the sobs that came then in torrents.

And yet, behind it all there was the peace. The peace of the mountains. The peace of a haven to come to, when otherwise Madam Letitia would have been confronted with the terrifying prospect of old age in poverty.

There was a kitten with a bell on its neck in a basket at the foot of her white little cot. Madam Letitia loved kittens. There were clean towels on a rack, with edgings of sheer lace. At dinner, where Aida did the jumping up and down from the table, six and seven times, there were the fluffiest beaten biscuit and chicken with thick gravy as Madam Letitia loved it.

Clean. Remote. And Aida with the busy, blowy air of happiness about her. Eugene, who punctuated his conversation every fifteen minutes or so, by walking over to kiss her. Aida's children, who yanked at her skirts, demanding to be petted and petting her in turn. The whole family of them clearing the table and washing up the dishes.

FANNIE HURST

When the sweet bird of voice in the throat closed its wings forever, it was a hard blow for her to seek refuge in the prosaic home where a graying and dowdy woman presided, where barefoot boys called her grandmother.

Poor Brunhilde!

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE MOTORMAN

Each day he drives a certain car,
Not of the tribe of limousines,
But those that more familiar are
To folks who live within their means.
A trolley car is what he drives,
And yet I often wish that we
Would turn the corners of our lives
With some of his philosophy.

Just yesterday he said to me,
"I never look a lot behind.
Ahead is all a man can see,
And even then he's pretty blind.
So when some fellow starts to shout,
I never turn and look," he said.
"For I might see what he's about

And not for green ones I have passed.
The past is done, the past is dead;
I think a man will longer last
At this or any other stunt
By seeing that the way is clear,
By keeping both his eyes in front,

May grieve by always looking back,
But straight ahead is where to peer
A trolley car is what he drives,
And yet I often wish that we
Would turn the corners of our lives
With some of his philosophy.
