Brand Re-registration Begins August 31

According to Joan Beach, Mitchell County Clerk, all brands must be re-registered in the county clerk's office by March 1, 1982.

Mrs. Beach stated that persons could begin coming in the office on August 31 and the cost of the re-registration was $5 per brand, per location on the animal.

An important factor, Mrs. Beach stated, was that if a brand was not re-registered by March 1, the brand would then be available for someone else to use.

Mrs. Beach stated that Monday would be the date that re-registering would begin, but owners of livestock would have this six months period before the brand would be available for someone else.

The Mitchell County Clerk's office is located in the Mitchell County Courthouse and is open Monday thru Friday 8 a.m., until 5 p.m., and closed from noon to 1 p.m., for lunch.

The Texas brand law, passed in 1971, was the subject of a recent ruling by Texas Attorney General Mark White that says owners of marks and brands must re-register them during the same six-month period every 10 years, without regard to when they originally recorded them.

The law also notes that it is illegal to brand livestock without first properly recording the brand with the county clerk in the county in which the livestock was held, added Mrs. Beach.

The primary objective of the brand law is to provide the county clerks with an accurate, updated report of marks and brands every 10 years.

When the marks and brands are re-recorded or recorded for the first time, the location on the animal where the brand is applied must be shown. If the brand is applied to more than one location of the animals, it must be recorded as a separate record of that brand.

The county clerk will publish a notice announcing the re-recording of livestock brands order in the paper for a period of 30 days, added Mrs. Beach.

She stated that she will also make sure that no more than one brand of a kind is recorded on the same location of the animal, eliminating the chance of two or more people duplicating the same brand and location in Mitchell County.

In conclusion, Mrs. Beach stated that a properly applied, legally recorded brand is proof of ownership, thus increasing the chances of recovering strays, missing or stolen livestock and help serves as a great deterrent to thefts as well.

Grant Is Approved

David Marion of the FmHA (Farmers Home Administration) office announced Wednesday during a called meeting at the Loraine Senior Citizens Center, that a grant for $385,000 was approved for the construction of 16 apartments to be built in Loraine.

Marion has been working on the project since 1975, trying to get the money allocated for the building. He stated he had been working with Fred Witta who has had a vital role in Loraine receiving the money.

According to Marion, the money has already been approved by FmHA but was subject to the availability of HUD section 8 subsidizing, which makes the one bedroom apartments that would normally rent for $301 a month, reduced to 25 percent of a tenants monthly income.

This has been the number one FmHA project in the district and number three in the state, added Marion.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

There's a fresh earth mound in Colorado City cemetery which covers the recently interred remains of a truly great man. Roy Pearson "Bear Tracks" Lindley was not "great" in the usual sense that the world reckons greatness. He neither expected or desired recognition or honor for his extraordinary skills as a predator hunter and trapper. Any suggestion of greatness would have been repulsive to him.

He was first of all great in his love and dedication to his family and his home. His greatness was likewise manifested in the good will and outgoing personality that enabled him to make and cultivate friendships wherever he went. Last of all, he was unmatched in his total commitment to a simple life in God's great outdoors where most of his lifetime was spent. These are things which made my brother, Bear Tracks, a great man.

The final years and months of his life were made even more galling and repressive because they brought the sickness and physical impairments causing the close confinement which he detested above everything else. The thought has often occurred to me that the old but ever popular Western song, "don't fence me in" could very well have been the theme song for my beloved brother, "Bear Tracks" Lindley.

The affliction which was finally fatal to my brother has been an apparent hereditary trait that has dogged the male members of our family throughout our adult lives. It was a sad and trying coincidence for me that I was unable to attend his last rites because I was convalescing from surgery in a San Antonio hospital for the same affliction that caused his death. (Facial cancer.) The rider of the pale horse called death mentioned in the book of Revelation seems to be finding more trophies for his bag because of the ever increasing prevalence of the terrible scourge of cancer.

Although we dare not question what God does, there is a strange and seemingly cruel irony in the fact that the same West Texas sun that made long and uninterrupted days for Bear Tracks to indulge his love for hunting and trapping ultimately became the lethal instrument of destruction which claimed his life because of the cancer causing actinic rays of the sun.

Perhaps there may be some people who have a curiosity as to the how and why of the nickname "Bear Tracks." I am sorry that I can offer no cogent explanation except for the well known fact that intimate friends and co-workers in outdoor life frequently use humorous titles for each other as a token of the close-knit comradeship formed through years of association in isolated environments. Another and perhaps better explanation might be that the name came about because my brother loved to tell humorous stories relating to his hunting and trapping exploits. In ranch life, such stories are sometimes jokingly referred to as "bear tales." Whatever the reason, I am quite sure the nickname was given because of the admiration some friend held for him.

Roy Pearson Lindley was born into a typical Comanche County, Texas, farm home less than one year before the birth of twentieth century. This was in the near forgotten days when any available room in a farm home became a hastily improvised "maternity ward" where new arrivals were often delivered by midwives when the stork beat the old family doctor to the scene.

Bear Tracks Lindley's love for story telling was exceeded only by his zeal and enthusiasm for tracking down and disposing of the animal predators which kill a rancher's calf or sheep and leave the carcass to rot and make a repast for waiting vultures. Bear Tracks wasted no sympathy on the ruthless predators that made costly inroads on a rancher's herds unless they were eradicated by skilled predator hunters like Bear Tracks.

His love for story telling never diminished even after his illness had put an end to the hunting and trapping exploits. On my visits to his home after he became disabled, he would usually manage to follow me to the front porch for one more "wait'll I tell you this one" which was always on tap and ready for the telling.

Bear Tracks became a Christian very early in life and followed the examples of his father and most other early day Christians who thought our Lord's command to "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" was as important as being a habitual church goer. The truth is, it was my dear brother, Bear Tracks, who took my timid hand and led me down the aisle of the dirt floored "brush arbor" to surrender my young heart and life to the Lord Jesus. This happened almost seventy years ago.

Like many men who through necessity have led a busy and time consuming life, Bear Tracks didn't believe in wasting time indulging in maudlin sentimentality. Although a very tender hearted and inwardly sentimental person himself, he preferred to keep his feelings concealed and express himself in deeds rather than words. His many friends are the strongest evidence of his influence for good wherever he was known.

Yes, Bear Tracks has gone home to the big campfire where he will join a great circle of stalwart men who shared his love for the wide open spaces. Some of these were more noted than Bear Tracks Lindley as history goes. It is doubtful that any left behind a greater legacy of friendship and good will than did my brother Bear Tracks. His uniqueness of character and personality will cause him to be remembered as a model of the true Western type of men who made this a great land.

Wait for me, Bear Tracks, I wanta be around when you and Ol' Daniel Boone start swapping hunting tales.

"BEAR TRACKS"

"Bear Tracks" Lindley was born for the trail
Where trials beset and dangers assail,
With a hunter's eye and a marksman's skill
He bagged the varmints that maim and kill.
Trudging along with a trap on his back;
Keen eyes searching for a coyote track,
Mile after mile he covered the ground;
Hotter and hotter the sun beat down,
Beaming down it's searing rays
To add more misery to summer days.
The sun's harsh rays which took their toll
And added his name to the reaper's scroll.
The good earth's bosom is now his bed
As God's bright angels pillow his head.
He was one of a kind and there never shall be Another "Bear Tracks" for the world to see.

World Market For Agricultural Plan

Perhaps the cruelest hoax that the U.S. government participates in is the belief in a free world market as the answer to the nation's agricultural industry.

Let's take a look at that free market. First, let's examine the actions of our own government and see how those actions perpetuate that hoax.

Last summer, in response to Russia's aggressive actions in Afghanistan, this country announced that we would no longer honor our commitments to sell grain to the Soviet Union. We have just seen an end to that embargo and its effect on grain markets. It was not the first embargo nor will it be the last. Trade embargos are an effective tool in our foreign relations policies. The majority of this country's farmers supported this last embargo, myself included. We questioned this industry being singled out for export restrictions, while other exporting industries went unscathed, but, in general, we supported the move so long as it was effective.

The embargo is not the only government action that interferes with agricultural marketing. Price controls in times of commodity shortages are another. Tell me what is going to happen the first day we get a shortage of any food commodity in this country? Are we still going to sell that commodity to the highest bidder on the free market or are we going to slap price and export controls on that commodity and take care of the American consumer first? You know what we will do. The free market system will go out the window the first time any shortage begins to have a real effect on the American consumer.

Ask any cattleman if he remembers what happened to beef prices about 10 years ago in response to cyclical production shortages of beef. No amount of explanation kept our government from opening up the import floodgates, as well as placing price controls on beef to ease that shortage.

Then, let's turn to the actions by other governments operating in this "free world market." Look at the number of Toyotas that come into this country from Japan on an unlimited basis. At the same time, do you think we can expand our exports of beef into Japan? No. The Japanese government carefully protects its domestic beef producers and prohibits further imports of American beef.

Take a look at the rice market that our producers have developed in Korea. That market was developed over a course of years and yet the first time that Japan, with its heavily subsidized rice producers, had an oversupply of rice, where do you think that Japanese rice went? To Korea, of course, with the blessings of our State Department.

I am not ignoring the sensitivity of balance of trade agreements nor the value of the export market that we now serve. I'm simply saying that the quicker we recognize the fallacies of the so-called free world market, the sooner we are going to begin to recognize the necessity of establishing a "farm desk" at the State Department to enable and require our government to participate on an equal basis with other trading nations and to see that our farmers and ranchers have an equal opportunity in that world market.

Until we are willing to do that, don't confuse the agricultural profitability issue with a lot of "free market" rhetoric.

Nova Scotia Toured

Mrs. Inez Thomas and Mrs. Billie Ruth Tartt have returned from a trip to the Maritime Province of Nova Scotia.

Accompanying them on their trip was a niece, Mrs. Thomas, and family, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Phillips, Ginna and Pete Phillips who joined them in Midland and Dallas. They first flew to Toronto then to Montreal and on to Halifax where they were met by another niece, Mrs. Charlie Marth and husband. They visited in the Marth home on Port Le Hebert on the Southern coast of Nova Scotia.

They visited the Marth's frozen fish plant where they saw the most modern methods of processing salt water fish. Some of the points of interest which they enjoyed were The Pocket Wilderness and a portion of the Lighthouse Tour. This route was dotted with lakes and crossed by rivers running to the sea where there were many woods right down to the beaches. In Liverpool, the Texans visited the Steve Marth family.

They also went to Vogle's Cove, Green Bay, Risser's Beach for a picnic lunch; they crossed the Le Have River on a ferry to Bridgewater where there is a lumber industry; they travelled on to Lunenburg which is famous for the schooner Bluenose.

Next, they went on to Blue Rocks, which is a picturesque fishing village. The lighthouse on Peggy's Cove is famous because it has a post office in it.

Since the Marths have easy access to the sea foods, they served many different kinds of fish to the land lubbers from dry West Texas.

The air controllers' strike did not affect the Loraine travellers until they arrived in Dallas on the last leg of their homeward journey. There they found that their flight to Midland had been cancelled on Texas International so they had to wait three hours for a flight on Braniff.

Mrs. Harvey Leach Hosts Bible Meeting

Loraine Baptist Women met in the home of Mrs. Harvey Leach at 9:30 a.m., Aug. 19, for a Mission and Bible Study.

In the business sessions, plans were made for a mission project and the secretary reported Bingo prizes had been purchased and presented to the Loraine Nursing Home.

Mrs. Frances Porter directed the Mission lesson entitled, "Serving in Isolated Areas." She was assisted in the discussion by Mmes. Clara Butler, Pauline Smiley, David McNary, Bernice Hallmark and Leach.

Mrs. Lynne Compton directed the Bible lesson from Ephesians 4.

Before closing, a special prayer was offered for those in the hospital. Ten were present.

Live warmer and help hold down your bills.

You may not feel quite comfortable at first when you set your thermostat at 80° or higher, but most people adjust very quickly to living warmer. At the same time, if you dress cooler and use a fan, you may not even notice the difference. But it will help hold down your electric bill.
