TDC won't let Autry execution be televised

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas Board of Corrections today refused to allow the execution of James David Autry to be televised, rejecting arguments that the public should have the right to watch a convict die.

The board voted 8-0 against changing state guidelines to allow cameras into the death chamber to record Autry's execution by lethal injection, scheduled before sunrise Wednesday.

"I have many concerns about this. Not just the propriety and decency of it, but the potential that it could have an effect on the death penalty itself," said board chairman Robert Gunn, who will be one of two witnesses to the execution if it is not stopped on court appeals.

Board member Pete Cortez, who attended the 1982 execution of Charlie Brooks, said "after witnessing that execution, I'm not at all ready to favor putting it on television."

Autry, 29, a convicted murderer who goes by the nickname "Cowboy," had asked that his execution be televised and the state attorney general called the idea "logical."

The inmate, who escaped execution in October when he was granted a stay with 30 minutes to spare, has maintained his innocence in the 1980 slaying of Shirley Drouet, a mother of five. But he argued that if the punishment is to be carried out, the public should be allowed to watch to learn what executions are like.

The debate heated up when Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he did not oppose the idea. "If executions serve as a deterrent, then there's a very logical argument that they should be done publicly," Mattox said.

"If they think it acts as a deterrent, then why do they want to hide it?" said Billy Hughes, a Death Row inmate and registered lobbyist working to abolish the death penalty.

"They're just trying to cover up their own pre-meditated murder. They don't want to show the public what they're doing to a man."

Texas Gov. Mark White disagreed.

"Executions used to be public, but you had to go down to the courthouse to see it," White said. "Today, TV is in the home, business, just about everywhere. Televising executions would be invading the home atmosphere."

Twenty-six out of 44 Texas television stations surveyed by KTRK-TV of Houston said that even if the broadcast were allowed, they would not show an execution either live or as part of a news program.

Twelve stations said they would, and six said they were undecided.

The last public execution in Texas occurred on July 30, 1923, when Roy Mitchell, convicted of five murders, was hanged from a gallows next to the McLennan County Jail in Waco.

In an interview last month, Autry said the public doesn't understand what executions are.

"It's not real — all that real — to the public if they don't see an execution," he said. "If they're serius about using the death penalty as a deterrent, they should let the public see it."

Lenora Taylor, one of Mrs. Drouet's children, said televised executions would not have a dramatic impact.

"If they were standing up before a firing squad and all the blood and the guts were showing, then maybe. But all they do is fall asleep," she said.

The death chamber where Autry and three other inmates are scheduled to be executed this month recently had its dark brown walls repainted powder blue and had bright, new fluorescent lights installed.

"It was kind of shabby before," corrections spokesman Charles Brown said Friday while leading reporters on a tour of the room in which 362 inmates have died since the 1920s.

Shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 allowed states to restore the death penalty, a Dallas television station went to court in an effort to broadcast executions.

Lebanese talks will start today

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Lebanon's opposing factions took sharply contrasting starting positions today in political reform proposals for the national reconciliation conference.

A working paper drafted by the rightwing Christian Lebanese Front coalition — envisaging a Swiss-style federal system for Lebanon — was promptly rejected by a key opposition leader, former prime minister Rashid Karami.

The Sunni Moslem, a leader of the opposition National Salvation Front, said his coalition would "not agree to any solution that would eventually divide Lebanon."

But Lebanon's beleaguered president, Amin Gemayel, said he hoped to announce "good news" about progress toward ending the civil war that has torn his country for nine years.

Protected by sand-bagged checkpoints, bullet-proof screens, rolls of barbed wire and hundreds of police, the nine conference delegates and two observers, from Syria and Saudi Arabia, were to begin meeting this evening at the Beau Rivage Hotel in this Lake Geneva resort.

The start initially was scheduled for late morning, then rescheduled to accommodate the late arrival of the Syrian observer, Abdul-Halim Khaddam, the foreign minister, who was just promoted to the post of first vice president in a government shuffle by Syrian President Hafez Assad. But it appeared the conference would begin without him.

Syria, which has had troops in northern Lebanon for nearly nine years, supports the Shiite and Druse militias that have been fighting to oust Gemayel.

Sporadic fighting continuing today across the "green line" that divides Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors, and Gemayel planned to address the inaugural meeting with what was expected to be a passionate appeal for peace and national unity.

"Work will start I hope for real peace, a peace of hearts, peace for people who deserve it," Gemayel said in a brief statement on arrival Sunday. "We will tackle the problems with lots of hope and I hope we will soon be able to announce good news."

The Maronite Christian president had cleared the path for the conference to resume when he yielded to Syrian pressure and scrapped the troop withdrawal accord with Israel — over which the last reconciliation conference fell apart in November.

The Christian group's proposal provides for a federal system that would give autonomy to the individual states while retaining joint foreign, defense, economic and monetary policy as well as a common educational program.

You think your phone bill's high...?

BEDFORD, N.Y. (AP) — When a telephone company representative interrupted a call by Jane Landenberger to tell her that her $109,504.86 phone bill was "excessive" she kept her cool.

After all, it was a mistake, right?

But when she heard it would take a truck to deliver the 2,578-page tab, her composure began to disintergrate.

"That's what made me think, 'Holy Catfish, I really have got a big bill!'" she recalled Sunday night.

The Westchester County woman said she knew something was amiss in the huge bill listing calls to and from places all over the world, all charged to her telephone credit card.

"They were from all over, to all over," she said Sunday, "Libya, England, Japan — you name it."

Just who had made the calls was not clear, but New York Telephone Co. accepted Mrs. Landenberger's word that it wasn't her. The company agreed to take off $109,457.83 worth of illicit calls, leaving her with a February telephone bill of a more modest $47.03.

The company also changed her credit card number and declared the old one invalid. That stopped the calls, and also ended one of the more puzzling, and wearying, periods in Mrs. Landenberger's life.

New York Telephone said it was investigating the calls to determine who had made them. The culprits, apparently a number of them, could have ranged from college pranksters to big-time drug dealers, The New York Times said in today's editions.

It started in January, when she began getting strange calls at all hours of the day and night from operators asking her authorization for third-party calls to and from distant cities. She said she always denied authorization, Mrs. Landenberger said. The calls were frequently from Miami and environs.

When her January telephone bill arrived, it was for $300. The telephone company agreed to delete the excess charges from her bill, and promised to change her credit card number. But, she said, someone apparently forgot.

"The operator would call from Miami and ask if I would authorize a call from Miami to Libya," she recalled. "And I was getting calls from a man with a foreign accent who would ask for Magdaline, Teresa, Sandra — or he would ask who I was.

"I got to pleading with him, 'Will you just tell me who you are?' But he never would. He would just hang up, and then he would call back."

Mobil Corp. to take over Superior Oil

NEW YORK (AP) — Mobil Corp. has engineered the third major oil deal in a month, allowing it to scoop up Superior Oil in a $5.7 billion takeover which would solidify Mobil's position as second in the industry to the Exxon Corp.

Mobil agreed Sunday to buy the 22 percent of Superior stock controlled by the family of the Houston-based company's founder, William M. Keck, a Mobil spokesman said.

In addition, Superior's management, which has been at odds with the Keck family, gave its blessing to Mobil's purchase of the remainder of Superior's 127 million shares at $45 per share, the spokesman said.

The purchase is subject to a government-mandated waiting period "and certain other conditions," Mobil spokesman John Flint said.

Flint said purchase of the remainder of shares in the company is subject to approval by Mobil's board of directors.

The takeover of Superior, the largest oil company that does not market or refine its product, follows last week's proposed $13.2 billion purchase of Gulf Corp. by Standard Oil of California, the largest merger in history.

Border society less conventional than life in interior of Mexico

By MARJORIE MILLER
Copley News Service

TIJUANA, Mexico — One summer night, Luis Manuel Serrano sent a serenade to his wife of 10 years in a spontaneous declaration of love.

As the strolling musicians neared their home, Serrano said, the women of the neighborhood peeked out their windows in anticipation.

"One neighbor thought it was for her because her husband came home drunk," Serrano said. "Another thought it was for her because she and her husband had a fight that morning. A third thought it was for her because it was her birthday.

BORDER SOCIETY:

Second in a series

"All thought it was for them. But it was for my wife, who least expected it. And that's when it means the most," Serrano said. "She was very happy."

So was he.

"All women like a serenade," said Maria Esther Guzman de Serrano, "because it makes us feel like what we are — women."

SERRANO SAID his wife's appreciation of his romantic gesture demonstrates how, while living on the U.S.-Mexico border, she has maintained many of the traditional values of her native Guadalajara.

He added that while his wife still is very traditional, she is different from most women in the interior of Mexico. Like many Mexican border women, Mrs. Serrano has become much less conventional.

Serrano said border women are less conventional in their dress — "less chaste" — and are not afraid to go out at night alone or with friends, unlike many women in the interior.

Waiting begins again for crew's families

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

For the relatives of two local men aboard an American drilling ship, Friday began a new stretch of waiting for news.

Midlander Bernard Patrick Cates and Houstonian John Lawrence, son of J.W. and Virginia Lawrence of Big Spring, were among the 81 crew members aboard the Glomar Java Sea when it sank during Typhoon Lex Oct. 25.

Twelve bodies were recovered during a search of the ship Friday, with 12 more discovered inside the rig Sunday, the Associated Press reported Dick Vermeer, a vice president of Houston-based Global Marine, Inc., the vessel's owner, as saying Sunday.

While recovered bodies are put into body bags and kept refrigerated on the ship, the Lawrences and Cates are wondering if their relatives met their death on the ship or made it to Vietnam, some 200 miles west of the wreck site, where they may have been imprisoned.

"I think until all 81 are accounted for, there is always going to be that thin shred of hope," Patti Cates said.

The area families were told, however, that 27 bodies had been recovered as of Sunday afternoon.

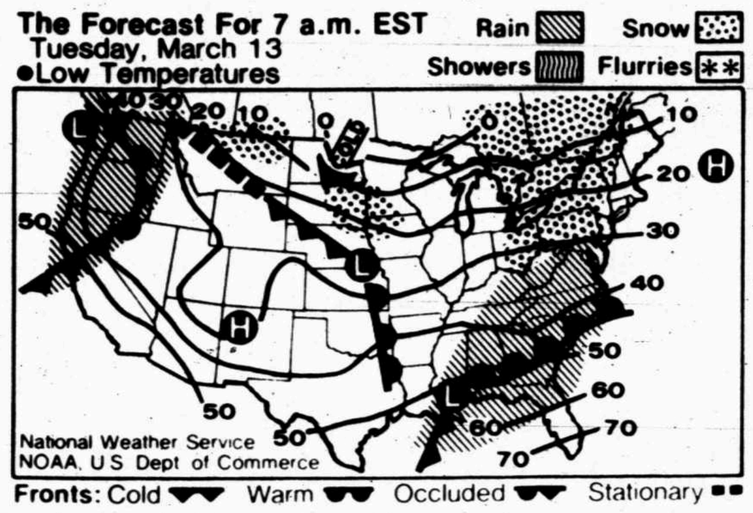
WEATHER SUMMARY



The National Weather Service forecasts snow for Tuesday from the mid-Atlantic to the Northeast and rain from the Southeast to the mid-Atlantic.

Warmer temperatures, fair skies forecast for Basin

The dreary, cool weekend weather should march into spring with fair skies and warmer temperatures in the forecast.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, tonight's skies will be clear with a low temperature dropping only near 40. Tuesday will be fair and warmer with a high near 80.

Southerly winds will breeze at 5-10 mph today, increasing to 10-20 mph Tuesday.

Sunday's high of 62 missed the record high of 89, set in 1967, by 27 degrees. The overnight low of 43 was 28 degrees warmer than 1948's record low for that date of 15.

STATE

Thunderstorms, some reaching severe levels with vivid lightning, high winds and hail up to the size of golf balls, roared across portions of the eastern half of Texas during the night and early today.

A severe thunderstorm watch covered much of South and East Texas at dawn today although the thunderstorm activity was easing up, forecasters said. A tornado watch covered 22 counties in South Central Texas, eight counties in Southeast Texas and the adjacent coastal waters along the middle to upper Texas coast.

A flash flood watch was issued for portions of East Texas and a flash flood warning was issued for Bexar County after a heavy thunderstorm dumped more than inch of rain in about 30 minutes at San Antonio International Airport.

Forecasters at San Antonio warned that low water crossings were flooding early today and said motorists should avoid roads in low lying areas.

Hail the size of golf balls pelted Bandera in South Central Texas late Sunday night and forecasters warned that the severe thunderstorm that produced the hail was moving through the Hill Country.

Some hail up to two inches in diameter fell in the Leon Springs area near San Antonio, forecasters said.

At Austin, hail up to one-half inch in diameter was reported over western areas of Austin as a severe thunderstorm roared across that area.

Officials at Ozona and Glascock also reported large hail in the area early today.

Rainfall amounts of more than one inch were common across much of North Texas.

NATION

Bitter cold temperatures, some as low as 21 below zero, numbed the northern states from the Rockies to New England today while snow whitened the central and northern Plains, and thunderstorms broke over Oklahoma and Texas.

Travelers advisories for snow and freezing drizzle were issued for parts of South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. By 1 a.m. EST 3 inches of fresh snow had fallen in six hours at Concordia, Kan., with 2 inches at North Platte and Omaha, Neb., and 1 inch at Sioux City, Iowa.

Meanwhile, heavy thunderstorms late Sunday night and early today erupted across central and southwest Texas and Oklahoma.

The thunderstorm poured 1.53 inches of rain on Fort Worth, Tex., and 1.49 on Dallas. A tornado watch was posted for much of southern and south central Texas for early today.

The northern states were in a deep freeze with readings ranging from 15 above zero to 15 below. Strong winds carried the cold temperatures over New England and chill factors sunk to 20 and 40 degrees below zero.

Snow showers continued over western New York, with an inch of new snow at Syracuse, N.Y., in the six hours ending at 1 a.m. EST.

Border society less conventional

Many more border women work outside the home than those inland in Mexico. Generally, they are not as timid or jealous as most women back home.

Mrs. Serrano agreed with her husband that women on the border are different. She said she has changed greatly in the eight years since they migrated north.

But, she emphasized, the men have changed, too.

The men are not as jealous, she said. Just as she does not feel slighted if her husband can't make it home for lunch, he does not try to prevent her from going out for coffee or to the movies with friends. Serrano, 38, tolerates and even supports his wife's independence in a way that many men from Mexico's interior would not.

"IT DOESN'T BOTHER Luis Manuel if I go out. He doesn't think I should be home taking care of the girls all the time," she said.

Women are able to dress more freely on the border in part because border men are less likely to whistle and murmur at them if they do. If Mrs. Serrano were to wear shorts or a strapless blouse back home, she said, her own family would tell her that a married woman shouldn't dress like that.

Mrs. Serrano, 28, said she works about two days a week in her own business, selling jewelry to friends and neighbors. She said she considers the money she earns to be the family's money, just as her husband's is.

But, she adds, it is nice to have money that she earned herself.

"It's better. If it is a friend's birthday and I want to give her a present, I have the means to do it. I don't have to ask my husband."

By contrast, she said, her sister in Guadalajara does not work. "She asks her husband for money and he'll say, 'Why do you have to get her a present?' "

Mrs. Serrano agrees with other women that there are more opportunities for women on the border. Jobs are available to women in foreign assembly plants, in the large tourism industry and, across the border, in U.S. homes and factories.

DORA RIVERA Lopez, a 30-year-old Tijuana factory worker, says that border women "always are looking for a way to get ahead, to make their lives better." She speaks critically of women from the interior for being shy and conventional.

"In the interior, the way I see it, they are born, they live their infancy and then, almost as soon as they acquire their five senses, it's: 'I have to get married, I have to get married. I have to live like my mother, get married and have children.' And that is the life of women."

To an American, Ms. Rivera Lopez sounds like a feminist from the early days of the U.S. women's movement. She says she doesn't know if she ever will marry, and she loves children. But for now she speaks assertively about her life and of the joy in being single.

"I have what many women want — freedom," Ms. Rivera Lopez said. "I am free to move. I can do as I please with my life and no one can tell me, 'You can't go. You move here.' No one tells me what to do. Today I am in Tijuana, tomorrow, if I want, I could be in Mexico City."

Ms. Rivera Lopez said women on the border are more liberal than women from the interior, but quickly adds, "Liberal, but not libertine." She equates liberalism with freedom.

"Libertinism would be people who abuse the trust of their parents — prostitution, drug addiction or making love with whomever you feel like," Ms. Rivera Lopez said.

BUT THAT IS exactly what Fernando and Covadonga Gomez feel the border is — decadence, full of divorce, drinking and carousing. The couple moved to Tijuana from Mexico City, but moved back again after about a year because they did not approve of border life.

"The women of Tijuana try to call attention to themselves with the way they use makeup and the way they dress," Gomez said. "The people of Mexico City are more conservative...

"In Tijuana, you can go to a bar and see a table with four women alone waiting. Maybe in the United States it is a liberal society, but here they have taken it further and given it a sick twist. Here there are more women than men and they try to use all their weapons to get a husband."

Patricia Kelly

With freedom and opportunity, Mexican women on the border also have acquired new stresses and tensions, explains Patricia Fernandez Kelly, a researcher at the University of California at San Diego's Center for U.S.-Mexico Studies. She said that views such as the Gomezes' reflect an old stereotype that border cities are full of prostitutes.

Ms. Kelly, a native of Mexico City, explains that most Mexican women throughout the country grow up with a fear of being labeled a prostitute and, therefore, of losing their worth as women.

On the border, that fear remains, even though women are out of the house more, working and dressing more freely.

"THEY CONSTANTLY are trying to reinforce that they are decent women," Ms. Kelly said. "Women are torn between remaining feminine and sexual and a woman, at the same time that they are becoming workers in direct production."

She said that while there are many jobs for women along the border, there are not enough jobs for men. Many border women have become the main providers for their households or the only parent in the house, if their husbands migrate to find work in the United States.

"There is a great deal of confusion over who they are and what the appropriate role should be," Ms. Kelly said. She adds that many unemployed men also feel ambivalent about their wives working and become anxious that they cannot support their families. There are increased tensions between many husbands and wives, and the family structure is not as strong as in traditional Mexico.

But many women find border life a positive experience.

They attribute some of the cnanges in themselves to exposure to the United States. They say they meet women from the United States, who have been part of or reaped the benefits of the 20-year women's movement. They socialize across the border, or at least hear from friends who have worked north of the border about how women are treated there.

They see advertising from the United States, buy U.S. products, watch U.S. television programs.

AS A GROUP, the border residents have more purchasing power than Mexicans inland. Besides nice clothes, border residents can begin to buy some household appliances and amenities to make their lives easier.

Some who observe the border say that women and men who migrate there apparently are more open to change; they are the risk-takers who pulled up roots and left their homelands for new opportunities.

The Serranos said they believe their 4- and 8-year-old daughters are growing up with less conventionalism on the border than they would have inland. They said their girls are not afraid to ask questions or express opinions.

They said they have told their daughters that babies come from a mother's belly — a subject that still is taboo in most of Mexico.

The Serranos celebrate Christmas, as they did back home, but have told their girls that presents come from them rather than Santa Claus.

"We tell them that if there is money we are going to buy them presents and if there is not, no. And we tell them that if children get more presents it is because there is more money, not because they were better children," Mrs. Serrano said.

THE SERRANOS said they are trying to instill in their children traditional Mexican values such as loyalty, respect and family unity. They said contact with their family in Guadalajara helps them maintain their traditions, and that family contact is part of the tradition.

"We have family reunions," Serrano said. "We have not become too individualistic, thinking that you can resolve problems better alone."

Waiting begins again for crew's families

Once the search is completed, the bodies will be taken to Hong Kong, said Michael Shelton, Houston attorney representing Mrs. Cates and her two children in a $6.5 million negligence suit. Shelton said the search is expected to be completed in about two weeks and a forensic dentist has been flown overseas to begin the identification process.

Divers had searched the outside of the wreck in early November, where they found a large indented fracture running from the top to bottom of the ship's starboard side, according to the Associated Press. Mrs. Cates said she was curious that no bodies were found at that time although one of the first 12 recovered Friday was found on the debarkation deck near the lifeboat launches.

Bad weather and a lack of equipment kept company officials from investigating the inside of the ship for five months. There has been "a continuous stream of bad weather" since the sinking, the Associated Press quoted Vermeer. "They have a monsoon season."

According to Shelton, Global knew of the incoming typhoon the morning of the sinking. The company had drawn up extensive plans for weathering the typhoon and anchoring patterns "which they didn't stick to," he charged. "Arco, which had the vessel leased, also had knowledge of the typhoon."

Shelton said the captain of the Java Sea had released a standby Chinese supply boat with about 13 people on board at the request of the Chinese that morning. The Java Sea, however, remained in the projected path of the typhoon.

Global filed a $1.5 million limitation of liabilities suit Oct. 31, Shelton said, adding such suits are common in maritime cases. The suit since then has been raised to $4.5 million.

The suit puts a cap on all damages from deaths that may have occured at sea and property and equipment losses.

"That's not much money for 81 people," Shelton said.

He said he would file an answer to the Global lawsuit saying the company is not entitled to limit damages and then sue for damages on behalf of the Cates family. "Basically, we have to go in and show that Global knew or should have known there were faults in their vessel."

The company, which built the ship to withstand bad weather, has denied any wrongdoing.

Mrs. Cates said the five months of waiting have been long for her and her family. Her husband, who turned 40 Dec. 7, is a native Midlander who returned to Midland last spring. Cates was a sub-sea engineer.

Tina, Cates' daughter, turned 18 Feb. 28, and son Ben will be 15 on March 25. The family hopes Cates will be home for that birthday.

"But it's going to be a long process," Mrs. Cates said.

Company officials said the crew's last radio transmission indicated workers were in life jackets preparing to board lifeboats, according to the Associated Press. Officials theorize escaping members of the crew may have drifted to Vietnman, where the storm's winds may have carried them.

The person with whom the last radio contact was held was John Lawrence, 39, according to his mother.

"John is the one they were talking with on the radio when they lost control," Mrs. Lawrence said. "We just hope he was on the bridge and in a position up there where he could have gone."

Lawrence, who graduated from Odessa High School and graduated from the University of Texas and Texas Tech University, was employed with Global for about seven years and was living in Houston when he left for the South China Sea Sept. 6.

He was rig manager of the Java Sea and was living in Zhanjiang, near the Hainan Island, close to the wreck.

"I understand they found 12 in the galley and 15 in the living quarters," Mrs. Lawrence, who with her husband moved to Big Spring a year and a half ago from Odessa, where they had lived for 32 years.

The Lawrences have not filed a lawsuit in relation to the wreck and "at this point, have no intention to," Mrs. Lawrence said.

Another area resident, Sue McCurry of Brownwood, is also hoping her son Mark is safe. According to an article in today's San Angelo Standard-Times, Mrs. McCurry said, "We will never lose hope until we know for sure one way or another. We continue to think some of the men got off the ship because of two capsules floating in the South China Sea some months ago."

Hart to spend extra day campaigning in South

By The Associated Press

Four Democratic presidential candidates foraged for votes in the South today after a debate in which the new front-runner, Gary Hart, was attacked as naive and inexperienced by rivals desperate to blunt his drive for the nomination.

Hart changed his schedule to spend an extra day campaigning in the South, and a poll taken Sunday showed him drawing even with Walter Mondale in Georgia. Hart canceled plans to fly to Massachusetts, where polls say he has a strong lead going into Tuesday's presidential primary.

Alabama, Florida and Georgia also hold primaries on Tuesday, and they were where Mondale, John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson were spending today.

George McGovern left the region and flew to Massachusetts where he hopes to do well enough in Tuesday's primary to keep his candidacy alive.

After the 60-minute debate Sunday sponsored by the League of Women Voters in the Fox Theater in Atlanta, Hart, Mondale, Glenn and Jackson all said they were pleased.

"It should help," said Mondale.

"I thought it went exceptionally well," said Glenn. "I was very pleased with it."

"We did very well," said Jackson. "I'm impressed."

Hart brushed off suggestions that other four ganged up on him.

Telephone bill for $109,000

One time, she said, she used a trick she learned from telephone company officials. She said, "Operator, would you please trace this call?" and hung up. "I scared him, I guess," Mrs. Landenberger said. The man never called again.

The calls for authorization of third-party calls kept coming until finally one morning at about 3 a.m. — after an operator from Taft, Calif., had called repeatedly to authorize calls — Mrs. Landenberger decided she'd had enough.

She called the telephone company that morning, she said, and succeeded in having the credit card number canceled, once and for all.

But Mrs. Landenberger said she wasn't prepared for the shock when her bill finally arrived, via a parcel service because it was too big and heavy to mail.

"I really did get very frightened," she said. "I thought that the phone company has all this proof...and, as nice as I am, the phone company doesn't know that I don't have some kind of vendetta against them, or that I'm not running numbers or something."

Mobil Corp. takes over Superior Oil for $5.7 million

Last month, Texaco Inc. agreed to buy Getty Oil Co. for $10.1 billion, then agreed last week to pay $1.28 billion to buy back the 9.9 percent of its stock held by the Bass family of Fort Worth apparently to ward off an unwanted takeover bid.

Analysts say the rash of mergers are the result of several factors, including low stock prices, limited investment opportunities in oil, high oil exploration costs and optimism about the future of the industry.

Discussions between Mobil and Superior began several months ago after Mobil was approached by the Keck family, Flint said. Howard B. Keck, the founder's son and former chairman of the company, who controls about 19 percent of Superior's shares, had announced his intention to find a buyer last fall.

Keck, 70, and his sister, Willametta Keck Day, 68, had opposed company management practices, and Mrs. Day sponsored a bitter proxy fight last spring to force the company to consider takeover bids.

Keck later resigned as a Superior director, consultant and chairman of the executive committee and called for the sale of the company.

He and his sister teamed up last fall to successfully fight a management maneuver to prevent takeovers.

Superior's daily production in the United States last year averaged 167,000 barrels, less than 1 percent of the industry total, according to Flint. Its earnings were $242 million on revenues of $1.8 billion, down slightly from 1982.

Mobil's 1983 earnings were $1.3 billion on revenues of $58.5 billion, ranking it third in revenues among the nation's oil companies.

Dave Keith, a spokesman for Superior, said Sunday in Houston company executives could not be reached for comment.

TDC won't allow televised execution

The high court did not prohibit the broadcasts, but it let stand stand a lower court order that the state did not have to allow cameras into the death chamber.

Board member Harry Whittington of Austin said Texas law is "very specific" about how executions are to be carried out and "I think it would take an act of the Legislature to change it."

Currently, reporters from The Associated Press, United Press International, a Huntsville newspaper, a Texas newspaper and a Texas radio or television station are allowed to witness executions. Prison policy prohibits use of recording equipment.

Mattox said that even if executions are not televised, they could be videotaped.

"There is certainly merit in recording them," Mattox said. "It is only a question of whether or not they would be subject to public release."

Big tomato still on market

In 1892 the Peter Henderson seed catalog introduced the hugh Ponderosa tomato, which sometimes weighed 4 pounds and is still on the market. The beefsteak tomato is a look-alike.

Former Rockwall County Sheriff John Vance, left, shares a laugh with supporter Gerald Payne during an appreciation dinner given for Vance by more than 1000 supporters at the Rockwall high school Saturday. Vance begins serving a federal prison sentence this week for whipping a 15-year-old auto theft suspect.

Rockwall's citizens split over ex-sheriff's dinner

ROCKWALL (AP) — Not everyone who turned out for an appreciation dinner for former Rockwall County Sheriff John Vance was in an appreciative mood. A handful of protestors thought a high school was no place to honor the former lawman.

But more than 1,000 residents turned out for Vance's farewell Saturday night, three days before he was to begin serving a one-year sentence for whipping a 15-year-old auto theft suspect.

The $5-a plate dinner was held inside the Rockwall High School cafeteria. It was a western theme dinner and Vance was honored as a hero.

Among the handful of protestors walking silently outside the cafeteria were the guardians of Richard V. Williams, Neil and Martha Glenn of Rowlett.

Williams was allegedly beaten when he was taken into custody on suspicion of stealing a car. The car turned out to be Mrs. Glenn's.

Mrs. Glenn said she felt that it was in bad taste to hold the dinner where Williams was once a student.

The Glenns wore signs that said "Not all people appreciate you, John Vance," and "Schools are no place to honor criminals."

Vance also was fined $1,000 for the misdemeanor civil rights violation after U.S. District Judge Joe Fish said the ex-sheriff had acted "as judge and jury" in whipping the youth, who had been suspected of auto theft.

He was convicted last month in Dallas federal court. He is scheduled to begin serving the one-year sentence at the federal prison at Big Spring, on March 14.

Although Vance did not speak to the crowd, he said he would "tell them thank you and I appreciate your friendship and your love."

Alabama-Coushatta tribe seeks money for land

LIVINGSTON (AP) — The Alabama-Coushatta tribe, which claims it was driven off its territory in Texas and Louisiana during the 1800s, is asking the federal government to pay for the land — a bill that could run into the millions of dollars, attorneys say.

The dispute involves 17 East Texas counties and about a third of Louisiana. No estimate of the worth of Texas land is mentioned in court documents, but attorneys for the tribe say the value could range from tens of thousands to hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Indians are asking for $49 million for the Louisiana land, The Dallas Morning News reported in Sunday's editions.

Fulton Battise, 74, chief of about 600 Alabama-Coushatta Indians in Texas, said the legal action is necessary to the tribe's survival and is not intended to displace anyone.

"We want to help with the future of our children," said Battise, a retired logger who lives on the tribe's 4,200-acre reservation near Livingston.

Unemployment is 37 percent among tribe members. Improvements in housing, health care and other areas have come slowly, according to the Texas Indian Commission.

Although the tribe has a fund benefitting from a producing gas well and a tourist center, Battise said any major improvements for low-income tribe members would require either more money or more land. For now, the tribe is seeking the money, he said.

A special congressional waiver was needed for the tribe to push its pleas to the U.S. Claims Court in Washington on Feb. 14. Three months earlier, the House passed a joint resolution allowing the Indians to move the case to the court.

The resolution was sought by Reps. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, and John Breaux, D-La., after the tribes' claim was disallowed because of a late filing.

In 1946, Congress set a five-year statute of limitations on Indian land claims. In 1949, a government worker in Oklahoma was told to inform the Alabama-Coushatta of the deadline, but the tribe later claimed that no notice was received.

"I've been working on this case since 1965," said attorney Alan Minter of Austin, tribal counsel. "Here it is 1984, and we're finally going to get our day in court."

Justice Department spokeswoman Ann Shields said the government had not filed its answer to the claim and refused to comment further.

The complaint, signed by Battise and prepared by a collaboration of lawyers in and out of Texas, said "this is an action against the United States for money damages arising out of its failure to protect the Alabama-Coushatta in possession of its aboriginal lands in Texas. The tribe maintains that its aboriginal title has never been extinguished."

According to complaint, the tribe occupied the following Texas counties when the state entered the union in 1845: Angelina, Chambers, Hardin, Jasper, Jefferson, Liberty, Montgomery, Nacogdoches, Newton, Orange, Polk, Sabine, San Augustine, San Jacinto, Trinity, Tyler and Walker.

DA accused of threats against firms

GONZALES (AP) — A district attorney for a four-county area east of San Antonio has threatened companies with legal action if they did not pay money owed to clients of his private civil practice, the Austin American-Statesman has reported.

The newspaper reported Sunday that according to public records it obtained, Houston Munson, the district attorney for the 25th Judicial District, has repeatedly used intimidating practices to resolve disputes involving clients from his private practice.

Munson, 49, has denied any wrongdoing or conflict of interest. The district attorney began practicing law in 1960, three years after he moved his family from San Antonio to the rolling, scrub oak covered hills 70 miles to the east.

He has been district attorney for the four counties since he was appointed by former Gov. Preston Smith in 1971.

Munson considers ranching, the oil business and a bank he is helping organize as sidelines to his law practice. "I just like practicing law," he told the Statesman.

"In a small community you know everybody and you have these interrelationships, and you have to do whatever you think best," Munson told the newspaper. "You have to understand that things operate differently out here in the country than the way you think they should in Austin or San Antonio."

The American-Statesman reported that in public records and letters written on the district attorney's stationary, Munson threatened several companies with criminal action unless they paid money owed to his private clients.

Sources in Gonzales and Austin told the American-Statesman that complaints have been filed against Munson with both the State Bar of Texas Grievance Committee and the state Prosecutors Council. Officials at the two agencies declined comment, the newspaper said.

The newspaper said the records showed that:

— Munson, while being paid as attorney for the Gonzales Bank in 1981, threatened a Houston refrigeration company with a grand jury investigation if the company did not return equipment that was removed from a building mortgaged to the bank.

— Five letters sent by Munson in 1981 threatened a trucking company owner with a grand jury investigation and with arrest unless he paid $1,208 to one of Munson's clients.

'Her Life as Man' tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — About the best thing going for NBC's "Her Life as a Man," which is about a woman who disguises herself as a man to get work, is that it is a curiosity, a television come-on straight out of a carnival freak show.

Step right up folks. Come see Robyn Douglass, a former Playboy covergirl, imitate a man. Come see Joan Collins make a pass at this woman in man's clothing. Come see Robert Culp play a sexist jerk, whose attitudes provoke a compliant woman into becoming a thoughtless man.

"Something ventured; nothing learned.

Tonight's "Her Life as a Man" has headline appeal, but little underneath. Unlike "Tootsie," the character and audience in this don't gain significant insights from the sex-switch. In "Tootsie," Dustin Hoffman's character really grew from his masquerade and became a better man for having been a woman.

Carly Perkins (Miss Douglass) is a laid-off reporter. She feels qualified to apply for a feature writer's opening on a sports magazine. But editor Dave Fleming (Culp) says he already has a woman writer. End of interview.

Sex discrimination is a very serious issue, so why trivialize it by making the boss a buffoon who is fly-casting and cleaning his rifle during Carly's job interview?

The rebuff spurs her to try again, this time as a man, who's wearing a beard, moustache, hairpiece and tweed jacket. Carl Parsons gets the job, and Dave says he has a "sixth sense" that the new guy will be OK. This type of inside joke with the audience reflects the movie's limited sense of humor.

As a man, Miss Douglass' individual features and mannerisms don't give her away immediately, but her shrill speech and over-all persona are not convincing. The actress, who was Dennis Christopher's hearththrob in the film "Breaking Away," says she patterned her voice after Bill Murray in "Stripes."

On the homefront, having two people working late hours causes problems, but what really sours the relationship between Mark and Carly is that she's become so self-centered. With the excitement and power of her new job, she forgets their anniversary and misses personal commitments.

In the end, Carly abuses her new-found strength and supposedly realizes that it's not so easy being a man. If there's a lesson in this, maybe it's that the grass is always greener on the other side — until you have to cut it.

GOREN BRIDGE

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K93 ♡K865 ◇10763 ♣85

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
3 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Partner must have a very strong hand to reverse at the three-level, vulnerable, when he knows you might have nothing. Therefore, we would try three no trump. We are reluctant to raise partner's suit because we don't know whether our major-suit kings would be of any use to partner at a minor-suit game.

Q.2 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K9 ♡962 ◇Q1087 ♣A654

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ◇	Dble	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A. — There are only two possible reasons why partner pulled your penalty double. Either his hand is so strong that he does not think that the penalty will compensate for what your side might make; or his hand is distributional and he doesn't think he has the defensive values to allow the double to stand. Since he could do no better than rebid his suit, he almost surely has a weakish, distributional hand. You have some useful values for partner, but they are unlikely to be enough for game. Pass.

Q.3 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K10763 ♡J652 ◇J ♣A98

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♡	Pass	Pass	1 NT
Pass	?

What action do you take?

A. — Partner's no trump in the balancing seat shows a hand of less than opening no trump strength — with a balanced 16-18 points he would double first and then bid no trump. Therefore, your side does not have the combined values for game. Pass, despite the unbalanced nature of your hand. Partner surely has values in diamonds, so no trump should be as good a contract as any.

Q.4 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠96 ♡AQ1095 ◇Q72 ♣654

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A. — Although you do not have enough to force to game, you may issue an invitation. The way to do that is to use the Stayman Convention. Bid two clubs. If partner responds two hearts, raise to three. If he bids two spades, bid two no trump. And if he denies a major with two diamonds, bid two hearts.

Q.5 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q9 ♡10763 ◇KQ6 ♣Q852

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Despite the fact that you have not promised very much, partner is still probing for game. Only a supreme optimist would consider three no trump — partner has shown heart shortness and your holding hardly constitutes a stopper. Your duty now is to show your spade feature — since you did not support partner's first bid suit at either of your first two opportunities, he cannot expect more than you have. Bid three spades, but we won't criticize a jump to four spades — all your cards are working!

Q.6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q8 ♡KQ652 ◇Q8542 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Your hand has improved considerably, but you don't have enough to force to game. Therefore, we rule out any kind of jump. You have to settle for the underbid of two diamonds. Unless partner can make some move, we don't think you will be missing a game. (If you elected to rebid your hearts, you need to brush up on your basic bidding.)

Six better months

Attribute it to the approaching election and the tendency of politicians to put their best foot forward, but the simple fact of the matter is that for the sixth straight month the unemployment rate in the nation fell in February.

That may mean different things to different people. For example, an economist may see it as a sign that the work force is being expanded in various industries to meet additional orders pouring in as the economy heats up. That's one accurate way to look at it that bodes well for all Americans because as employees are hired and paid, that money begins a revolvement in the economy that generates growth.

But there's another way to look at the improvement in the unemployment picture. That is the human side of the story. As workers get jobs, they once again become productive members of society instead of a drain. That's good, again, for the economy, but they also are able to provide better meals and other necessities of life for their families. There's less suffering.

Traditionally, Texas has enjoyed a good economic climate and has fared well as an oasis for families wanting to make a change to improve their economic situation. It continues the same way today.

Noting the continual improvement in the state's economic climate, Nic Santangelo, an analyst with the Dallas office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said recently, "When you look at the whole picture, we're really demonstrating the complexity of the economic situation here."

We're glad it's this way, but we're also pleased for the general economic improvement the nation is experiencing. We'll all reap the benefits.

Focus on the past

Two events juxtaposed in Germany over the past week to revive two dramatically different sets of memories about the Hitler era — a past that most Germans would prefer to consign to oblivion.

One was the death, at the age of 92, of the Rev. Martin Niemoller, who spent eight years in one of the most brutal Nazi concentration camps for daring to oppose Hitler. The other was the attempt by a group of apparently unregenerate Nazis to stage a gala reunion.

If ever a man could be called a "survivor" in the fullest sense of that term it was Pastor Niemoller. During World War I, he distinguished himself as a submarine commander in the Kaiser's old Imperial Navy, emerging from that disastrous conflict to study theology and become a clergyman.

As a prominent churchman, the Rev. Niemoller at first welcomed Hitler's ascent to power in 1933 — as many misguided Germans did. But as the true character of Naziism became apparent, the pastor openly attacked the regime and by 1937 he was an inmate of infamous Dachau.

Freed by American troops in 1945, the clergyman began a single-minded campaign for peace and disarmament during which he did not prove himself a particular friend of the United States. When he denounced this country for its involvement in Vietnam, the Russians delightedly gave him their Lenin Peace Prize. But the Rev. Niemoller never accepted communist dogma — he was too much his own man for that.

As West Germany mourned the passing of one of its heroes, a group of veterans of the Hitler Youth, the Adolf Hitler Divisions and the Waffen SS came a cropper in their efforts to hold a reunion in Bad Harzburg. The town manger put an absolute ban on the convocation which had been billed as a meeting of "economic experts." Pastor Niemoller most certainly would have applauded the town manager's action.

Another View:

What kind of deal?

Marxist propaganda holds that capitalists will do anything for a buck, even compromise ethics and principles. Communists, on the contrary, are free of the profit motive, hence they operate by high moral standards.

For more than 20 years Red China and the Soviet Union have had no political or diplomatic ties, partly because they disagree on what "true" Marxist-Leninism is, but mostly because Peking leaders consider the Soviet Union an expansionist power, just as President Reagan does.

The Red Chinese say relations with Moscow cannot improve without the Soviets removing "three major obstacles" — Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, Soviet support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia and, above all, the large Soviet military presence along the Chinese border.

However, the obstacles did not keep the two giant communist powers from signing a $1.2 billion trade agreement. A Chinese Trade Ministry spokesman said that the accord specifies that two-way trade this year should rise by about $400 million — from last year's $800 million to about $1.2 billion.

The agreement calls for large increases in Soviet exports of machinery, cars and timber, as well as a new item, steel alloys. In turn the Red Chinese will export more food, consumer goods and metal ore to the Soviet Union.

It's not business as usual, but more business than usual. The real irony is that it follows the economic philosophy that says each nation should provide the other with products it makes more efficiently so that both can benefit economically. That's straight out of The Wealth of Nations, Adam Smith's monumental work advocating capitalism.

Peking and Moscow are economic bedfellows though they don't get along politically. During the silences between them, which are often long, maybe they can read more chapters from Wealth of Nations. It would do wonders for them.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

GAO doubts weapons' final cost

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has earmarked more than $300 billion for the Pentagon in 1985. Of that staggering sum, one-third is intended for research, development and purchase of weapons.

Jack Anderson

Yet most members of Congress have neither the time nor the expertise to make informed decisions about the strengths and weaknesses — and costs — of new weapons. This crucial function is left pretty much to the members of the House and Senate armed services committees.

My associate Donald Goldberg intercepted a briefing book prepared by the General Accounting Office for use at a closed meeting of the House committee. I believe the public should share the GAO auditors' doubts about the final costs of the big-budget weapons.

Here are highlights of the briefing book:

— The largest single expenditure is $7.7 billion to build 34 of the 100 B-1B bombers the Air Force hopes to get eventually. The Pentagon has assured Congress the total price for the 100 planes will be $20.5 billion, but the GAO has its doubts.

The briefing book points out that it's far too early in the game to predict the cost accurately. The result, the GAO warns, is that "major program decisions will be made before actual cost history is available." For example, testing of the B-1B won't be completed for more than two years, "several months after the major program funding decisions have been made."

— Probably the most controversial expenditure in the Pentagon budget is the MX "Peacekeeper" missile. The budget request is for 40 missiles at a total cost of $2.9 billion, plus additional research and development costs of $1.7 billion.

The GAO pointed out a potentially serious problem: "The risk exists that the Peacekeeper missile may not meet mission requirements when deployed." The reason is that a new re-entry system, the MK 21, hasn't been tested. Even if it does work, it's so heavy that either the number of warheads on each missile will have to be reduced, or decoy devices will have to be left off. In any case, the MX could be virtually useless because, the GAO notes, "the Soviets have been increasing silo hardness."

The auditors also warned of possible problems in the "producibility" and performance of key MX components, and pointed out that unit costs are already much higher than anticipated.

— The Pentagon's "space initiatives" include more than $1.7 billion for research and development of President Reagan's "Star Wars" weapons. A substantial portion of this amount will go into the space-based laser project.

"The space laser program plan is a long-term, expensive undertaking," the GAO briefing book states. "It is off to a slow start and is behind schedule ... Program management ... has proven cumbersome and has contributed to program delays."

— The Pentagon has requested $1.8 billion for one Trident submarine of a proposed fleet of 15, with a total program cost of $39.9 billion. But the GAO points out that the Navy "has been unable to determine how many Trident submarines with associated missiles will be needed to support future U.S. strategic forces."

Furthermore, the subs' missile is still practically untested. During early flight tests, the Trident I missile showed serious problems with its first-stage motor. This has raised "performance uncertainty" about the Trident II missile, GAO warned, adding that "the system's performance will not be fully demonstrated when the Trident II strategic weapon system is initially deployed."

CITIZENS WATCH: Dr. Richard Scarnati is another whistle blower who found out the hard way what happens when you challenge the bureaucratic routine. He was fired from the outpatient clinic of the Veterans Administration medical facility in Lebanon, Pa., at the end of his one-year trial period last October.

The 43-year-old Scarnati, a psychiatrist who joined the Lebanon staff with high recommendations from a previous government job, found that patients with psychiatric disorders were being treated with Darvon, a narcotic painkiller, Ritalin, a stimulant, as well as a variety of tranquilizers. In his professional opinion, this was improper medication — and he said so to his superiors.

Scarnati's firing is the subject of an arbitration proceeding. But that's not why he contacted me; he wants to prod the Veterans Administration to do a thorough investigation of his charges of patient mistreatment.

Last December, state narcotics agents interviewed Scarnati and concluded that "there appears to be some merit to his allegations on the surface." They referred the charges to the Drug Enforcement Administration.

The Veterans Administration assured DEA in December that a medical team would be assigned to look into the charges. But more than six weeks later, Leonard Washington, director of the Lebanon facility, told my reporters that no team had visited yet.

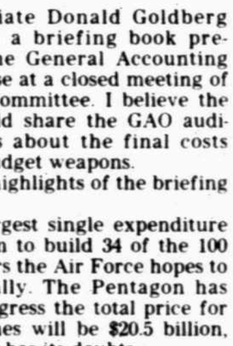
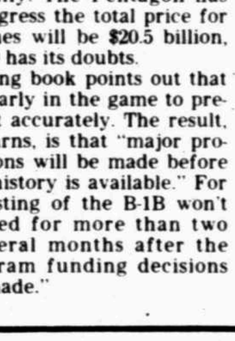
INSIDE REPORT:

Virginia flirting with 'Hart-Robb'

WASHINGTON — Joining the Democratic rush to Sen. Gary Hart, political intimates of Virginia Gov. Charles Robb are quietly boosting a Hart-Robb ticket, even though their man is still committed to Sen. John Glenn's fading presidential campaign.



Rowland Evans



Robert Novak

Friends have talked about Robb, son-in-law of Lyndon B. Johnson, for vice president in 1984 ever since his election as governor in 1981. But as Glenn's foremost Southern supporter, he had little hope for second place on the national ticket with Walter F. Mondale seemingly headed for first place.

But Hart might seek not only a Southerner but also another new young face as his running mate. That would give Robb, 44, and Florida's Gov. Bob Graham, 47 (the same age as Hart), the edge against 63-year-old Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who has been on top of Mondale's vice presidential list.

ISRAELI LOBBY VS. BONN

An unprecedented pressure campaign by the Israeli lobby here against the conservative government of Chancellor Helmut Kohl took a surprising, turn last week: a letter signed by 69 House members demanding that Kohl halt any sale of weapons to Saudi Arabia.

The letter stunned West German officials — and diplomats high in the U.S. State Department. Kohl has been under heavy pressure from Israel to cancel arms sales to the Saudis, but on a recent visit to Jerusalem held his ground.

Israel's clout in Congress, well-known in this country, amazed Kohl and his aides and left them put out and a bit angry. Kohl's foreign policy is based on West German interests, not Israel's. Kohl explained during sometimes tense talks with Jewish leaders here that although Bonn would not sell offensive weapons, like tanks, to the Saudis, other arms definitely would be sold.

RHETORIC FOR REAGAN

The more muscular rhetoric in President Reagan's recent speeches can be traced partly to the influence of Georgia's Rep. Newt Gingrich and the absence of ex-White House aide David Gergen.

Gingrich, a leader of conservative Republican back-benchers in the House, recently conferred with White House speechwriters. Since then, Gingrich phrases ("the opportunity society" for example) have been tucked into speeches delivered by a receptive president.

Presumably, that would not have happened while non-Reaganite Gergen was in charge of the president's speechwriting shop. He censored the work of the speechwriters, who are among the last surviving Reaganites in the White House. But with Gergen gone to Harvard, nobody is red-penciling Gingrich's rhetoric.

TROUBLE WITH TOWER

Complaints about Sen. John Tower as Texas state chairman of the Reagan-Bush re-election campaign have spread from Texas Republican insiders to key national campaign officials in the capital.

These Washington operatives have been grumbling about Tower's lack of cooperation; particularly his refusal to include in the campaign organization conservative Reaganites who have been the senator's opponents in Texas. Sen. Paul Laxalt, the Reagan-Bush national campaign chairman, has had a heart-to-heart with Tower. So far, however, nothing has changed.

A footnote: In contrast, Gov. James Thompson of Illinois has proved a pleasant surprise for Reagan-Bush national headquarters. Although Thompson's appointment as Illinois chairman was criticized by Reaganites in his state even more fiercely than was Tower's, he has opened the door to participation by his factional foes.

WEST VIRGINIA WAIT

Exasperated Senate Republican campaign officials in Washington have informed West Virginia's former governor, Arch Moore, that they can wait no longer for his decision whether to run for the Senate this year and will look for somebody else to oppose the Democratic candidate, Gov. Jay Rockefeller.

The national operatives are considering former governor Cecil Underwood and Mayor Mike Roarke of Charleston. But they would much prefer Moore, who is shown by polls well ahead of Rockefeller for the seat now held by retiring Democratic Sen. Jennings Randolph. That election could be crucial in the Republican struggle to retain control of the Senate.

Actually, proposing Underwood's name may be no more than an attempt to prod Moore into running. The two former Republican governors are long-time personal rivals in West Virginia.

CHARLEY REESE

Israel's survival test of will

The snow lay on the ground in the camp at Stuthof, Germany. Three women had escaped. The other women and children, as punishment, were made to stand in the snow for 12 hours. Dora Goldstein stood behind her mother. She was about 10 years at that time.

Charley Reese

Twelve hours in the snow was not enough punishment. The Nazis picked three of the women at random and raped them while the others were forced to watch.

Even in hell a mother is a mother. Dora's mother turned and put her hands in front of her daughter's face so that her first sight of sexual intercourse would not be the brutality taking place there in the camp yard. For this, the Nazis beat her mother mercilessly, knocking all of her teeth out.

By 1945, Dora was 13. Her mother had died. So had her sister and brother. Her father had been shot. She was alone. The Nazi empire was crumbling. Russian tanks were within sight of the camp. In a last act of madness, the Nazis came into the barracks and machine-gunned the survivors. Two bullets ripped into Dora's back. She woke up in a Russian field hospital.

Four operations and a transfer to an orphanage and still it was not over. She developed tuberculosis in both lungs. Three years she spent in a hospital in Italy.

In one sense, it was difficult to relate all of that to the Israeli woman sitting across from me. At 52, Dora Roth, now a widow and the mother of two grown children, looks younger than her age. She is trim and healthy. In one way, however, it was easy. There is a look of steel in the woman's eyes, the look of an indomitable spirit, the look of a person who will never again be afraid of anyone because the worst has already been done to her.

"I am a sruvivor," she said. "I knew that when my husband died. I loved him very much. He was a wonderful man. He was all the family I had loved and lost. But even in my pain at his grave, I said to myself, 'Okay. That life is over. Now you must live a new life.'"

"What is it like for me to be an Israeli? I love every inch of Israel, every stone. I was denied a childhood simply because I was born of a mother and father who were Jews. The Nazis tried to destroy me because I was a Jew. In Israel, I can be a Jew without fear. No one will tell me I can't go somewhere because I am a Jew. No one will tell me I am a liar and that the Holocaust never happened. How can live with people like that? I could never do it. No matter how crazy the economy, no matter how many wars we have to fight, I will never leave Israel. If Israel falls, Jews everywhere will fall.

"It isn't an easy life. Especially for mothers. My son is in Lebanon. He was wounded once in another war. I was crying at his bedside and he said, 'Stop being such a Jewish mother. I have to do it. If we don't do it, who will?'

"In my little town, which has only 12,000 people, we have lost 104 boys. I don't have a friend who has not lost a son or daughter or had them wounded. Americans cannot understand. It is not theory to us. If the Egyptian president says this or the Syrian president says that, I know that my children will be involved.

"How do Israelis do it? We disconnect. We live one day at a time. Today my Danny is alive and I will be happy. It doesn't matter that we are surrounded by a 150 million Arabs who want us dead. We are alive today.

"It is the economy I fear most. We know how to defend ourselves, but if we reach a point where an Israeli mother and father cannot hope to give their children an education, a chance at a better life — well, that may drive some Israelis out. I will never leave, but others might."

I hear people say they get tired of hearing about the Holocaust. Why? Was it impolite of Dora and others to survive? Is it rude of them to remind us of what Christian Europe did to six million Jews? Is it unkind of Israel to survive so that we Americans are faced with a choice between our conscience and our desire for oil, between our sense of justice and our desire for an expedient solution?

The survival of the Jews and the existence of Israel are God's way of asking us: What do we stand for? Are we too afraid to be just? Dora and others, by surviving, have given us a chance at redemption.

South Texas oil patch sees big change

ALICE, Texas (AP) — Diamond studded drill bits that once hung around the necks of flashy wildcatters can now be had for a song at pawnshops around the South Texas oil patch.

And rather than earning $50,000 a year placing workers in oilfield jobs, Rusty Boleman is selling hamburgers to Corpus Christi oilfield workers who still have jobs.

But most South Texas oil and gas-related businesses have survived the rocky rollercoaster ride of the energy-related boom and bust and have emerged, many claim, leaner, stronger and ready for a steadier ride.

From 1979 through 1981, South Texas was a mecca for any strong young man willing to brave the dirt and risk of the oil business in exchange for a $10-an-hour job. And almost any geologist with a specialty in drilling could just about name his salary.

Bankers, eager for high-return loans, were willing to lend thousands to almost anyone with a working rig. With $30-a-barrel oil and a promise of more in the future, the sky seemed the limit.

Then came deregulation and 35-mile-a-gallon cars. By mid-1982 hard times hit an industry that had thought it was recession-proof.

The industry will never be the same, said most oil and gas industry observers. And maybe that's not so bad.

Burt Harkins, president of Harkins & Co., is one oil executive happy the jolting ride is over. The cutting and trimming have brought innovation to the business, he said. And Harkins is fiercely proud that oilmen have not gone begging to the federal government for a handout.

"We don't want to experience another 1980 or 1981. We knew those good times were artificial and we had to crash from that high point. We want sustained existence rather than a rollercoaster ride," said Harkins, whose company owns 14 drilling rigs and performs exploration work in seven states.

The weaker, poorly managed companies in the energy business were the first to fall, Harkins said.

"But some good people got hurt in this thing, too," he said.

His company has avoided large scale layoffs so far.

"We are hurting and licking our wounds, but we don't go out looking for handouts or giveaways," he added.

Harkins believes the bust has flattened and that 1984 will be better than 1983. A free marketplace is the answer and energy is still good business, he said.

"Energy from oil and gas cannot be replaced technically for at least 20 years. We are very comfortable that we are irreplaceable for quite some time," he said.

Rusty Boleman's company, Boleman & Associates of Corpus Christi, still does some consulting work for oil companies. But Boleman and his three partners have switched most of their energies to opening two Corpus Christi restaurants specializing in hamburgers.

Two more restaurants are in the planning stages.

"I guess I've gone from the oil business to the grease business," he said.

The hamburger business provided jobs, albeit lower paying jobs, for many of the roughnecks who once earned their living lifting joints and hoisting pipe, Boleman said.

"One of our store managers was a welder, one of our bakers was a swabber and our meat manager was a technician building gas skids. Most of these guys had to go through a massive retraining of skills," he said.

The oil bust hit almost everyone in the business, he said.

Private enterprise goes into space

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you want to launch a weather satellite into orbit or grow herpes vaccine in space you don't have to rely on the federal government anymore.

In fact, the government is helping companies get started in the business of ferrying scientific experiments and communication relay stations into space in competition with its own space shuttle program.

By the end of the decade, scientific research firms, oil companies and weather forecasters are expected to be hiring those companies, instead of Uncle Sam's shuttle, to launch many of their payloads skyward.

President Reagan took the first step toward that goal on Feb. 24 when he created the Office of Commercial Space Transportation, the only government agency with which a new space transport company must deal.

"Without this office, a company would have to get clearance from as many as 17 government agencies, like the Coast Guard, the Federal Aviation Administration, and even the State Department before a private sector launch," says Jennifer Dorn, the 33-year-old director of the new 15-person office.

"That kind of red tape can be overwhelming to a private company and it can send very bad signals to the investment community, which is interested in these kinds of ventures," she said in a recent interview.

Specifically, Ms. Dorn's job is to help new companies take over building and selling the kind of non-reusable rockets the National Aeronautics and Space Administration once used in its Mercury, Gemini, and Apollo space programs. That way, NASA can focus its resources on developing the reusable shuttle for space exploration.

But the first companies starting from scratch in the space business in 1982 and 1983 were forced to hack through a thick jungle of government red tape. Their calls for help resulted in the creation of the space office, which is part of the Department of Transportation.

"We went to six different agencies and had to wait about six months just to get preliminary approval for our first project," recalled Charles Chafer, vice president of Space Services Inc., a Houston company that plans to launch sensory satellites for oil companies and agricultural combines by next year.

"The government still has red tape because it must protect national security, but the new space office streamlines the whole operation and saves us time and aggravation," Chafer said.

One of the most potentially lucrative markets in space is the manufacture of drugs that are expensive to make on Earth, but easy and cheap to manufacture in zero gravity. Industry projections show that space-made pharmaceutical products could generate annual sales of $20 billion by the 1990s.

Two of the first drugs that will be produced in zero gravity in mass quantities are beta cells, expected to be a single-injection cure for diabetes.

Gasoline vapors battle raging

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of America's largest industries, big cars and big oil, are squaring off behind the scenes at the Environmental Protection Agency in a battle that could add a new anti-pollution gizmo to your next new car.

The question is relatively simple: Should gasoline vapors be more closely controlled, and if so, how.

Each industry says: If you have to do it, make the other guy do it.

It could be a question of whether drivers will pay $30 to $40 more for a new car, or slightly more for gasoline. One calculation puts the extra cost at 2.7 cents per gallon more at an average station; EPA says any cost increase should be less than a penny a gallon.

If the auto industry carries the issue, gasoline stations might be required to use the two-hose vapor recovery system now used in the District of Columbia and much of California. If oil wins, automakers could be required to make tank fill pipes that form a vapor-proof seal when the filling nozzle is inserted.

In the two-hose system, one pumps liquid gasoline into the car and the other draws vapor back into the pump. A rubber hood fits over the fill pipe opening to channel vapor to the second hose.

The fill-pipe system would use a hard rubber ring which would grip the nozzle when it was inserted to form a tight seal. A spring-loaded one-way valve below the ring would be pushed open by the nozzle and would close behind it when the nozzle was withdrawn. This would require a slightly larger recovery canister than the one now on cars. The canister, simply a black can with two hoses attached to it, contains activated charcoal that absorbs gasoline fumes.

EPA has not decided to do anything yet. In a few weeks, the agency plans to invite comment on its studies of the question.

"The oil industry fears we feel we owe something to the auto industry and the auto industry fears we're in bed with the oil companies," said one EPA official involved in the decision who asked that his name not be used.

It's not just a question of smog prevention in below-standard areas, which is why the two-nozzle system is used in California and Washington. It's also a question of possible causes of cancer in gasoline vapor — something more and more people are exposed to with the growth of self-service gasoline stations.

EPA insiders say the agency probably would not raise the issue if only one of those concerns was on its agenda.

A 1983 study by the American Petroleum Institute said heavy exposure to fully evaporated gasoline led to cancer in male rats.

Gasoline is a mixture of hundreds of compounds, some of them known or suspected carcinogens. The institute has commissioned further rat studies to try to pin down what caused the tumors in its rats.

Dollar makes early gain against key currencies on exchange

LONDON (AP) — The dollar gained against key currencies in early trading today as speculation renewed that U.S. interest rates will rise. Gold prices eased.

European traders reported the U.S. currency was boosted by the announcement of a $3.04-billion increase in U.S. business loans, indicating the economy was overheating and the Federal Reserve Board may raise credit rates to keep inflation in check.

Markets also appeared to be encouraged by other U.S. economic indicators and reports of improved prospects for a deal between the White House and Congress to reduce big federal deficits by as much as $150 billion.

There was speculation that the U.S. prime rate could be pushed up from its current 11 percent. Frankfurt dealers reported that Eurodollar deposit rates opened about 1-16th higher today.

In London, it cost $1.4575 to buy one British pound compared to $1.45975 late Friday.

Today's early rates compared to Friday's late levels:

—8.0185 French francs, up from 7.9525.

—2.6012 German marks, up from 2.5750.

—2.1490 Swiss francs, up from 2.1310.

—1,617.25 Italian lire, up from 1,603.00.

—2.9385 Dutch guilders, up from 2.9070.

—1.27455 Canadian dollars, up from 1.26945.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $397.80 an ounce, $3.45 down on Friday's close.

The London center's five major bullion dealers later "fixed" the recommended morning trading price at $397.50.

In Zurich, gold opened at a bid price of $397.60, down $4.40 from Friday. By mid-morning it had eased to $397.30.

High interest rates make the dollar more attractive to investors.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 224.85 yen, up from Friday's late rate of 223.75 yen.

Gold closed earlier in Hong Kong at a bid price of $399, down $2.56 from Saturday's close.

Silver opened in London at a bid price of $9.73, more than 20 cents down from Friday's close of $9.935.

Lloyds insures violet eyes

LONDON (AP) — Lloyd's of London, insurers of everything from supertankers to Elizabeth Taylor's violet eyes, is rebounding from years of scandal and big losses with the flexibility that has helped it prosper for three centuries.

Today this insurance exchange founded to protect colonial-era sailing ships reaches even into space: The two satellites recently launched into faulty orbits by the U.S. shuttle Challenger were covered by Lloyd's policies.

Lloyd's spokesman Stanley John says profits are up, record numbers of wealthy investors are willing to back underwriters in the market, and Lloyd's is adopting new regulations to polish up its scandal-tarnished name.

"THE success of Lloyd's rests on the flexibility afforded by its free market system," he said in an interview. "It relies on personal integrity of members rather than on rules of behavior that would slow the market down or inhibit the taking of new risks."

Theoretically, any risk is insurable. "There are no bad risks, only bad rates. We'll insure virtually anything where monetary risk is involved, barring, for example, a woman's virtue or a gambler's luck," he said.

Lloyd's consists of about 250 brokers who present clients' requests for insurance to one or more of 417 underwriting syndicates. The underwriters propose a premium they will take to assume liability and if the client accepts it, a policy is born.

THE market pioneered automobile and airplane insurance, and has insured space satellites since 1965, when the risk came on the market with the first Intelsat Early Bird orbiter. Premiums for satellites range from 5 to 15 percent of the amount insured, John said.

On the recent U.S. space shuttle mission, Lloyd's was responsible for insuring Western Union's Westar VI for $37 million and the Indonesian government's Palapa B2 for $35 million — about a third of their total values, John said. The remaining $108 million of insured value was covered mainly by U.S. insurers to spread the risk, he said.

Midland turf may be slow to 'wear the green'

More than likely, the turf in Midland County will be slow to green up this spring because of the extreme December-January cold we experienced. I feel it is time to discuss lawn fertilization and the appropriate applications:

1. Know (or at least have a fairly good idea) how many square feet of turf are to be fertilized.

2. Realize that high rates of nitrogen go hand in hand with increased turf water requirements.

3. Be willing to mow more often after fertilization with high rates of nitrogen.

4. Use copperas (iron sulfate) to correct iron deficiency induced chlorosis.

5. Avoid 16-20-0 fertilizer unless a bona fide soil test indicates the need for phosphorous.

Your management objectives should include maintaining a healthy turf of reasonable square footage that you can afford to irrigate and keep acceptably green.

There are many guidelines for fertilizing lawns in Texas. The following one works well for most common bermuda growing on a clay loam. If you had a sandy soil you would attempt to put out the same amount of nitrogen per season but you would simply slit the applications to provide more frequent fertilizations of small amounts of nitrogen.

Time	Apply/1,000 ft.2
1st week of March	15 pounds 16-8-8 or 12 pounds 21-0-0
3rd week of March	10 pounds copperas
3rd week of May	10 pounds copperas if the lawn is unacceptably green after May copperas
1st week of August	10 pounds copperas
2nd week of August	15 pounds 16-8-8 or 12 pounds 21-0-0

Locally copperas is available in 5-pound bags for approximately $5.49. The same store will probably have 50-pound bags for about $9.00.

You must water the lawn correctly for this fertilization schedule to give good results.

At least once a year most lawns will benefit from the use of a complete fertilizer like 16-8-8. The potassium appears to be the relevant number in the ratio.

A 3-pound coffee can holds slightly more than 7 pounds of 16-8-8 fertilizer.

A 3-pound coffee can holds 8 pounds of 21-0-0.

Pink bud sprays should be made on peach, plum and apricot trees using Diazinon or Zolone to control peach twig border.

Also, on these trees you need to use a fungicide where diseases haye been a problem in past years. Brown rot, a soft brownish rot of the fruit in which the fruit becomes covered with grey tufts of fungi, may require control with a pink bud spray of Benlatate of Funginex. Peach scab, characterized by small, olive spots or "freckles" on the peach skin, can be controlled at pink bud using Benlatate or Captan. Coryneum blight, which causes circular purple spots on the fruit, may be severe enough to require a pink bud spray of Zineb.

Mammograms must be evaluated by risk, benefit

Dear Dr. Solomon: My doctor has recommended that I have a mammogram done, and he says that it is now fairly safe to get one. My question is: How safe is safe? I would appreciate your comment? — Ms. W.L., Bismark, N.D.

Dear Mrs. L.: As with any procedure, the risk of having a mammogram must be weighed against the risk of not having one. Dr. George Blumenschein, of the University of Texas' M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, recommends a baseline mammogram at age 25 for women who are at high risk of breast cancer. Annual mammograms should then be obtained from age 35 to 40. According to Dr. Blumenschein, only one in one million women has a risk of a serious side effect 20 years after mammography.

You should realize that not everyone is in agreement on the frequency with which mammograms should be obtained, and you might want to obtain a second opinion.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father had colorectal cancer that was caught early enough so that he is now in pretty good shape. But I wonder about myself. You have often written that many diseases can be cured more easily if they are caught early enough. Would you recommend that people like myself go to a specialist once to twice a year for an examination? — John, San Diego, Calif.

Dear John: There are relatively new products available that make it fairly simple for the family physician to detect colorectal cancer at an early stage. If blood is found in the stool, then a colonoscopy (an examination of the lower part of the bowel) should be performed.

Your physician may be performing a fecal occult blood test as part of your routine physical examination without your knowledge, but you might want to ask him specifically about it.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Why are doctors so concerned about someone who has been burned getting enough to eat? I work as a volunteer in a hospital, and it seems that they're always pushing food on these patients. — Emma, Detroit

Dear Emma: A patient who has suffered a major burn can expend as many as 5,000 calories a day or even more as a result of alterations in metabolism. Such a patient must receive above-average amounts of calories and protein to prevent deterioration and promote recovery.

In many cases the usual hospital diet is supplemented with a liquid solution that contains additional calories and protein. Regardless of the method used, however, patients with major burns must have their calorie and protein needs met. This is what you probably have interpreted as "pushing" food on the patient.

For Stella, Manchester, N.H.: Sexually transmitted diseases are an important cause of pelvic inflammatory disease, and pelvic inflammatory disease can lead to infertility. Another important factor in the development of pelvic inflammatory disease is a woman's method of contraception. In brief, the use of an intrauterine device appears to increase the risk of pelvic inflammatory disease.

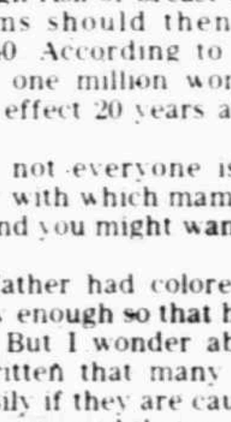
INVESTOR'S GUIDE

For 401 (k) plans, best bet to contact pension consultant

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am president of a small but growing company. At a staff meeting, several employees brought my attention to the column in which you commented favorably about 401 (k) retirement plans.

You explained that 401 (k) plans provide tax advantages both to employer and employees and stressed that employees can participate in such a plan only if their employer sets one up. I have been authorized by my company's board of directors to look into the possibility of establishing a 401 (k) plan. Where can I get detailed information?



Doyle

A. Your best move would be to contact a pension consulting firm. If you don't know one, ask your accountant or lawyer. Although the basic idea behind 401 (k) plans seems relatively simple, details can get complicated. It's wise to seek guidance from people experienced in that kind of work.

Many mutual fund organizations, insurance companies and banks have put together packages aimed at making 401 (k) plans easy to handle for employers, while giving employees choices of where to invest.

For example, when a 401 (k) plan is with a mutual fund management group, employees can put their money into different mutual funds — ranging from conservative to speculative — and be able to switch from one fund to another.

However, there can be wide differences between 401 (k) plans put together by different organizations. So, you would be wise to compare a number of such plans. When you're "shopping," look especially hard at costs, such as commission charges and administration fees, which can vary all over the lot.

Q. At age 70½, a person with an individual retirement account must begin making withdrawals from the IRA at a rate so that all the money will be withdrawn over his or her life expectancy. If this is not done, there is a tax penalty. What are the withdrawal restrictions, as far as taxes are concerned, for a man who starts taking money out of his IRA at age 65, as I plan to do next month?

A. None. You'll be able to withdraw as much or as little as you please from your IRA. You'll have to pay income tax only on the amount withdrawn. Tax penalties on IRA withdrawals apply to people under 59½ and over 70½.

If you had taken money out of your IRA before reaching 59½ or becoming permanently disabled, you would have paid income tax plus a 10 percent penalty tax on the money you took out.

If you don't make the required withdrawals from your IRA after turning 70½, you'll have to pay a 50 percent penalty tax on the money you should have taken out of the account.

• • •

Q. Between my company pension, Social Security and income from my investments, I'll be well fixed after I retire. I have been putting money into an IRA, but I won't need to make withdrawals from my IRA — even after I am 70½. Why does the federal government insist I will have to do so, or else pay a huge tax penalty?

A. Because, as we all know from experiences with the Internal Revenue Service, one of the government's chief functions is to collect taxes.

You don't pay income tax on the money you put into an IRA or the money your IRA earns in interest or dividends until you make withdrawals. That allows you to shelter your money from income tax until you either decide to take it out or reach 70½.

However, income tax on IRAs, Keogh plans for the self-employed and other tax-sheltered retirement plans isn't forgiven. It simply is deferred. Sooner or later, the IRS takes its bite.

If the rules allowed you and everybody else to let IRAs, Keogh plans, etc., sit untouched, the federal government would lose a fantastic amount of tax dollars.

Most NCAA power lies east of Mississippi

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most of the power lies east of the Mississippi in college basketball this year, say the men who put together the NCAA Tournament.

The Atlantic Coast, Big East and Southeastern conferences bagged almost 25 percent of the invitations to the 53-team NCAA Tournament announced Sunday, including the top seed in all but one of four regionals. The ACC, which produced the last two national champions in North Carolina and North Carolina State, placed five teams in the tournament, and the Big East and Southeastern each had four.

Conspicuously missing from the ACC's entries was North Carolina State, last year's Cinderella champions who finished this year with a 19-13 record and had to settle for the National Invitation Tournament.

THE TOP-RANKED North Carolina Tar Heels, who have lost twice in 29 games, were installed as the top seed in the East Region, while Georgetown, the Big East champ and No. 2 team in the Associated Press Top 20, was shipped far from its Washington, D.C., campus to be the top seed in the West.

DePaul, hoping to give retiring Coach Ray Meyer his first national championship in a storied 42-year career, is the top seed in the Midwest. Kentucky, the SEC champ, is No. 1 seed in the Mideast.

THE TOP four seeds in each region get byes into the second round and Dave Gavitt, chairman of the nine-man Division I Basketball Committee, said those 16 teams may represent the tourney's strongest field ever.

"The No. 1 and No. 2 seeds in each region look awfully, awfully tough," Gavitt, commissioner of the Big East, said at a news conference. "They've had some great years and a lot of great victories. The third through the eighth seeds, I won't be surprised at any results of those games. I don't see the term 'upset' applying anywhere between the third seeds and the ninth seeds."

The tournament begins on Tuesday and runs through the rest of the month, with more than $600,000 awaiting the semifinalists when they get to Seattle.

KICKING THINGS off, the champions of the 10 weakest of the 29 Division I conferences — as decided by the committee — go at each other in Philadelphia and Dayton, Ohio, on Tuesday. Those five winners will join the automatic qualifiers from the other 19 conferences and 24 at-large entries and begin first-round action at sites around the nation this weekend.

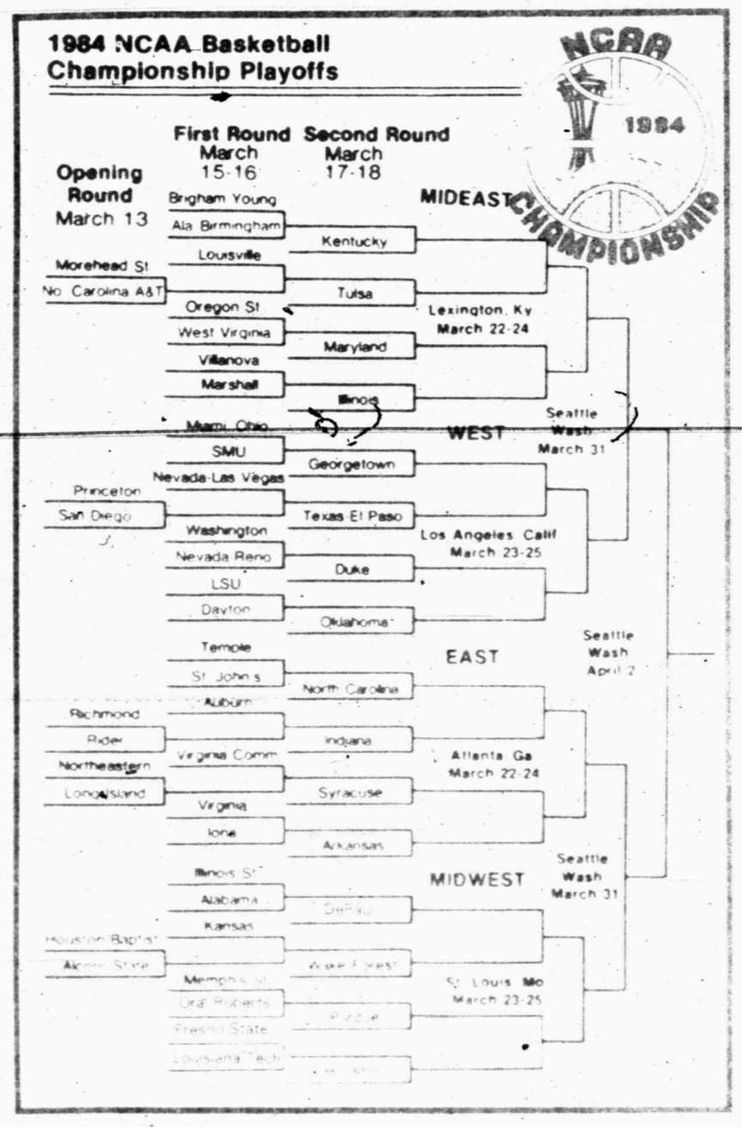
Moving the Georgetown Hoyas out of their natural region seemed certain to trigger controversy, and Gavitt admitted it was one of the committee's closest calls. The Hoyas might actually jump ahead of North Carolina Tuesday when the final poll is released since North Carolina lost to Duke over the weekend in the ACC tournament.

"North Carolina has been No. 1 all year," Gavitt pointed out. "They have only two defeats. It would have been committee overreaction to seed North Carolina anywhere but in the East."

Also among the missing were Bucknell, 24-5; Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-6; New Mexico, 24-10, and the one-time king of college hoops, UCLA. It's the first time the Bruins have not been invited to play in the NCAA Tournament since 1966, discounting when they were on probation two seasons ago.

THE BIG 10 and Southwest Conference each put three teams in the tourney. Dayton was the only independent taken besides DePaul.

One of the more intriguing matchups could occur early in the Mideast, where Kentucky and Louisville could meet in the regional semifinals in Lexington, Ky. Louisville Coach Denny Crum said he did not think the committee deliberately paired the two rivals from the Blue Grass State.



"The selection committee knows we play on a yearly basis now," Crum said. "If you want to win it all, you have to beat everyone anyway. So you just line them up and take them one at a time."

"The bracketing is tough every place for everyone," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall.

The preliminary round games in Philadelphia pit Northeastern against Long Island at 4 p.m. EST, Richmond against Rider at 7 p.m. and Princeton against San Diego at 9:30 p.m. In Dayton, Morehead State goes against North Carolina A&T at 6:30 p.m. and Alcorn State meets Houston Baptist at 9 p.m.

The regional championships will be held in Lexington (Mideast), Los Angeles (West), Atlanta (East) and St. Louis (Midwest). In the semifinals March 31 at Seattle, it will be the Mideast champion vs. the West champion and the East winner against the champion of the Midwest.

The championship game in this, the richest NCAA Tournament ever, will be in Seattle April 2. NCAA staff officials estimate that teams eliminated in the opening or first rounds will receive about $153,500; reaching the regionals will be worth about $460,500, and the Final Four teams will each get more than $600,000.

FIRST-ROUND action in the Mideast begins Thursday at Birmingham with Alabama-Birmingham, 23-10, meeting Brigham Young, 19-10, and Oregon State, 22-6, going against West Virginia, 19-11. Top-seeded Kentucky, 26-4, gets the BYU-Birmingham winner on Saturday and third-seeded Maryland, the ACC postseason tournament champion, meets the Oregon State-West Virginia winner.

On Friday in Milwaukee, Louisville, 22-10, meets the preliminary round winner between Morehead State, 24-5, and North Carolina A&T, 22-6. Tulsa, 27-3, will await the winner on Sunday. Villanova, 18-11, and Marshall, 25-5, play in the other Mideast first-round game on Friday, with the winner meeting co-Big Ten champion Illinois, 24-4, on Sunday.

In first-round games in the West Region on Thursday in Salt Lake City, Nevada-Las Vegas, 27-5, faces the preliminary round winner between Ivy League champion Princeton, 17-9, and San Diego, 18-9; and Louisiana State, 18-10, meets Dayton 18-10. Texas-El Paso, 27-3, will take on the Vegas-Princeton-San Diego winner on Saturday, and Oklahoma, 29-4, will face the LSU-Dayton victor.

In Pullman, Wash., on Friday, Miami of Ohio, 24-5, meets Southern Methodist, 24-7, and Nevada-Reno, whose 17-13 record is the poorest in the tournament field, goes against Washington, 22-6. On Sunday, Georgetown, 29-3, gets the Miami-SMU winner, and Duke, 24-9, goes against the winner between Washington and Nevada-Reno.

IN THE East Region at Charlotte, N.C., first-round action on Thursday has Temple, 25-4, meeting St. John's, 18-11, and Auburn, 20-10, going against the preliminary round winner between Richmond, 20-9, and Rider, 20-10. North Carolina, 27-2, will take on the Temple-St. John's winner and Indiana, 20-8, will meet the winner between Auburn and Richmond-Rider on Saturday.

On Friday in East Rutherford, N.J., in the other East first-round games, Virginia, 17-11, meets Iona, 23-7, and Virginia Commonwealth, 22-6, meets the preliminary round winner between Northeastern, 26-4, and Long Island University, 20-10. The winner of that game gets Syracuse, 22-8, and Arkansas takes on the Virginia-Iona winner on Sunday.

In the Midwest on Thursday, Memphis is the site of first-round action between Memphis State, 24-6, and Oral Roberts, 21-9, and Fresno State, 25-7, and Louisiana Tech, 25-6. Houston, 27-4, the runnerup in last year's championship game to North Carolina State, will meet the winner between Fresno and Louisiana Tech on Saturday. Purdue, 21-6, plays the Memphis State-Oral Roberts winner on Saturday.

On Friday in Lincoln, Neb., it will be Illinois State, 22-7, vs. Alabama, 18-11, and Kansas, 21-9, against the preliminary round winner between Alcorn State, 20-9, and Houston Baptist, 24-6. On Sunday in Lincoln, Wake Forest, 21-8, meets the winner between Kansas and Alcorn State-Houston Baptist and Meyer's DePaul Blue Demons launch their bid for the title against the Alabama-Illinois State winner.

Sutton's shot too late for Arkansas in title game

SWC Basketball

HOUSTON (AP) — Arkansas' Charles Balentine said his shot felt good leaving his hand. Teammate Ricky Norton's shot didn't feel good and he wanted it back. Leroy Sutton's shot was good, but it was beaten by the buzzer.

The frantic series of shots came in the final four seconds Sunday and as a result of the misses, the Houston Cougars held on to beat back the Hogs 57-56 and captured the Southwest Conference Postseason basketball tournament for the second straight year.

"I didn't realize how far out I was on that shot," said Norton, whose last second shot had beaten the Texas Aggies in Saturday's semifinals. "When we look a the film, I'll see just how far.

"Maybe we'll learn from this but I'd sure like to have that shot back."

Norton's shot was followed by a shot by Balentine that bounced off the rim. Sutton grabbed the ball and scored but by then the buzzer had sounded and the Cougars broke into celebrating.

"I heard the buzzer and I wa already celebrating," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis.

NEITHER TEAM left The Summit without an NCAA playoff invitation, however. The Cougars moved on to the Midwest Regionals at Memphis, Tenn. as the No. 2 seed behind DePaul and Arkansas will go into the East Regional as the No. 2 seed behind North Carolina.

The Razorbacks had to contend with seven-foot Akeem Olajuwon in the first half and forward Michael Young in the second half.

Olajuwon, voted the tournament's outstanding player, devastated the Hogs in the first half with 17 points and eight blocked shots. He was seven for seven from the field in the first half.

"He was outstanding in the first half," Lewis said. "The guys were threading the needle to get him the ball and he was taking advantage of it. He blocked eight shots but equally as important was he made them alter their shots, tring to get around him."

Houston, 27-4, sprinted to a 41-26 lead early in the second half and appeared ready to make it a rout. But Olajuwon fouled out with 7:28 to play and that's when Young, a senior playing his final collegiate game in Houston, took charge.

Young broke off of a horrible scoring slump and finished with 19 of his 23 points in the second half.

"I felt I had to take over offensively and defensively," Young said. "I wanted to end my hometown career on a high note."

ARKANSAS, 25-6, is going into the NCAA playoffs for the eighth straight year and Coach Eddie Sutton isn't dwelling on his team's last second failures.

"I was proud of the way we fought back," Sutton said. "You can't ask for anything more than to get three shots in the last seconds."

Balentine led Arkansas with 14 points and Joe Kleine added 13 and equaled Olajuwon with 11 rebounds.

"I still feel we have the best team in the country," Olajuwon said. "All we have to do is win. "I've just been waiting for the playoffs. The SWC referees call all the cheap fouls. I'm ready to really play now."

Houston's first round game will be against either Fresno State, which beat the Cougars earlier this season, or Louisiana Tech, the Southland Conference winner.

Arkansas will play the winner of a game between Memphis State and Iona.

Southern Methodist, which lost to the Texas Aggies in the SWC quarterfinals, also got an NCAA bid and will play in the West Regional tournament against Miami of Ohio.

Cribbs carries Stallions to victory, 30-18

USFL

By The Associated Press

Joe Cribbs is putting the thoroughbred in the Birmingham Stallions and defense is bringing the New Jersey Generals to the front line of the United States Football League.

Cribbs made his third USFL appearance a good one Sunday, scoring two touchdowns and rushing for 191 yards on 33 carries as the Stallions defeated the Pittsburgh Maulers 30-18 despite a miserable passing performance by Birmingham quarterback Cliff Stoudt.

"I'm getting a lot more comfortable now, that's the big thing," said Cribbs, who left the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League to join the Stallions. "I want to touch the ball 28 times a game. If I can do that, I feel like I can contribute."

Meanwhile, the Generals improved their record to 3-0 by forcing five turnovers from the previously unbeaten Philadelphia Stars en route to a 17-14 triumph. Former NFL linebackers Bobby Leopold and Jim LeClair led the charge.

In other games it was New Orleans 37, Memphis 14; Los Angeles 10, Oakland 0; Michigan 28, Denver 0; Houston 45, Chicago 36, and Oklahoma 14, San Antonio 7. On Saturday night, Tampa Bay downed Jacksonville 28-25. Tonight, Washington visits Arizona.

Pittsburgh got the USFL's first official sellout — a crowd of 53,771 at Three Rivers Stadium — but Cribbs spoiled the home debut of rookie Mike Rozier and the fans' intention to make Stoudt's day miserable.

Cribbs scored on runs of four and 13 yards, while Rozier, Pittsburgh's $3 million back from Nebraska, was held to 52 yards on 16 carries.

Stoudt, dodging snowballs thrown by the fans who had booed him when he played for the Steelers during the 1983 NFL season, completed just two of 16 passes for 29 yards. But he got the last laugh when he triumphantly waved a football at jeering fans after a 10-yard TD run gave the Stallions a 24-6 third-quarter lead.

"They can boo all they want to, it just got us more fired up," Stoudt said.

Breakers 37, Showboats 14

Former University of Oklahoma star Marcus Dupree made his professional debut with touchdown runs of one and two yards as New Orleans made its first home game a winning one.

The Breakers, who played in Boston last year, announced a Louisiana Superdome crowd of 45,269 to watch them raise their record to 3-0.

Dupree carried the ball 11 times for 31 yards in his first game, only eight days after signing with the Breakers. New Orleans quarterback Johnnie Walton threw third-quarter touchdown passes of eight yards to Charlie Smith and 40 yards to Frank Lockett.

Kite wins Doral Eastern Open title

MIAMI (AP) - It was a scene that has become rather familiar on the pro golf tour over the last few months:

Jack Nicklaus was sitting there explaining about his not-quite-winning performance. He was in the unenviable position of describing another one that got away, one he wanted very much.

He did it with grace, good humor and patience.

"I never feel bad when somebody just beats me," he said. "And he just beat me."

But, after the questions eventually were exhausted and he was walking away, he couldn't help but comment:

"This is getting old."

In his last seven starts, going back to last season, he's had a chance to win five times. And they've all gotten away. He hasn't won in 1 1-2 years.

"It seems," said the 44-year-old Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles, "that every time I shoot a good last round, somebody shoots a better one. That's been the case in the last five or six tournaments I've had a chance to win.

"But," he said, "if I keep on doing that, sooner or later somebody is NOT going to come out of the pack."

Tom Kite, who charged past Nicklaus with birdies on four of the last six holes last weekend in the Doral-Eastern Open, agreed.

"He's going through a period where he's playing awfully good and not winning," Kite said. "Sooner or later he's going to do it. He's going to win one again, and it's probably going to be sooner."

NICKLAUS, WHO has built his golfing reputation around a domination of the Big Four tournaments, went into Doral saying he needed "a win for my own head, to gain the confidence I need going into Augusta" and the Masters.

Instead of his 70th career victory, however, he had to settle for a 55th runner-up position. But he found a certain consolation in a good performance that wasn't quite good enough.

"Considering the way I was playing that (274 total, 14 under par) was a very, very good score.

"I wanted to win very badly. I still want very badly to win. I'll want very badly to win next week.

"It's only a game, and we have to keep it a game. But part of the game is playing to win.

"I did most of the things I had to do. I accomplished a lot of things; almost everything I wanted to accomplish—except winning the golf tournament."

North Carolina State gets NIT bid

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina State will not be defending its NCAA championship this year. Instead, the Wolfpack had to settle for the National Invitation Tournament and a possible trip to New York.

The Wolfpack, 19-13, were among 32 teams selected Sunday to play in the NIT, the nation's oldest college basketball tournament, and will begin play with a home game against Florida State, 19-10, on Thursday night.

"I think it's interesting that we drew Florida State since we're starting a home-and-home series with them next year," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "Now it looks like we're starting it a year earlier.

"Florida State is a very talented team. They beat Virginia Tech twice, and everybody knows what Virginia Tech did to us (a 24-point rout). It obviously is going to be a tough game."

THE NIT also grabbed another member of last year's NCAA Final Four in Georgia, 17-12. The Bulldogs will visit Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-5, for their NIT opener Wednesday night.

The 16 first-round games will be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at campus sites, except for a Friday night doubleheader at the Philadelphia Palestra with Boston College, 17-11, meeting St. Joseph's (Pa.), 20-8, and La Salle, 20-10, facing Pittsburgh, 16-12.

The rest of the first round:

Wednesday — Old Dominion, 20-10, at Notre Dame, 17-11; Lamar, 25-4, at New Mexico, 24-10; Southwestern Louisiana, 20-8, at Utah State, 19-10; Florida, 16-12, at South Alabama, 22-7; St. Peter's (N.J.), 23-5, at Tennessee, 19-13.

Thursday — Nebraska, 17-11, at Creighton, 17-13; Ohio State, 15-13, at Xavier of Ohio, 20-9; Marquette, 16-12, at Iowa State, 16-12; Georgia Tech, 18-10, at Virginia Tech, 18-12; Wichita State, 18-11, at Michigan, 18-10; Santa Clara, 22-8, at Oregon, 16-12.

Friday — Fordham, 19-14, at Weber State, 22-8.

CREIGHTON IS coached by Willis Reed, who led the New York Knicks to a pair of National Basketball Association championships. Reed would like nothing better than to return to his old stamping grounds.

"If we can continue to play like we have, we can win a couple of games in the NIT," Reed said. "Personally, I'd like to win three games and go to New York."

The eight second-round games will be played next Sunday and Monday, followed by the quarterfinals March 23-24, all at sites around the country. The semifinals will be played March 26 and the finals March 28, both at Madison Square Garden, where the entire tournament was played until five years ago.

The defending NIT champion, Fresno State, will take part in the NCAA tournament this year.

The NIT was snubbed by UCLA, 17-11, which was not invited to the NCAA tournament, the first time since 1966 the Bruins have not been included in the field except for two years ago when they were on probation.

"We received a bid from the National Invitation Tournament, but decided not to accept it," said UCLA Athletic Director Pete Dalis.

Records fall in Gamblers' victory over Blitz, 45-36

Sam Harrell rushed 20 times for a USFL record 200 yards and three touchdowns and quarterback Jim Kelly passed for three scores for Houston.

Harrell, who had a 53-yard scoring dash, broke Herschel Walker's single-game rushing record of 194 yards and the game's 81 points also set a USFL record, surpassing the previous mark of 67. Kelly's scoring passes went 13 yards to Harrell, 61 yards to Ricky Sanders and 33 yards to Greg Moser.

Winless Chicago drew only 7,808 fans to its home opener in 18-degree weather.

Generals 17, Stars 14

Maurice Carthon had two short TD runs and Roger Ruzek broke a 14-14 tie with 4:45 gone in the fourth quarter with a 38-yard field goal, but it was the new Jersey defense that was impressive.

Leopold forced two fumbles by Philadelphia running back Kelvin Bryant and intercepted a pass in the final seconds to preserve the victory. LeClair added two fumble recoveries for the Generals.

"We're a veteran defense and we knew we had to go out at the start and let them know we would hit them," said Leopold, a former San Francisco 49er.

Among the Generals fans, snowball throwing led to 14 spectators being arrested and 57 more being escorted from the Stadium. Mike Ferraro, the Generals' assistant equipment manager, was knocked unconscious and suffered a mild concussion when he was hit by a snowball.

Express 10, Invaders 0

Tony Zendejas kicked a 40-yard field goal and Kevin Nelson ran for a team record 118 yards, including a 13-yard TD with 1:76 left, as Los Angeles won before an announced crowd of 23,479 at Oakland.

Steve Young, Los Angeles' $40 million quarterback, makes his USFL debut next Saturday against San Antonio.

Panthers 28, Gold 0

Michigan shut out the Gold as Terry Miller scored twice on one-yard runs and Bobby Hebert passed four yards to Anthony Carter for another TD before an announced crowd of 41,623 at Denver.

While the Gold managed only 121 yards in total offense, Hebert connected with Carter seven times for 98 yards.

Outlaws 14, Gunslingers 7

Oklahoma had 23,681 fans on hand to see defensive back Lee Wilson return an interception 30 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter, triggering Oklahoma past winless San Antonio.

The Gunslingers, 0-3, drove to the Oklahoma 11-yard line, but quarterback Karl Douglas' pass fell out of bounds as time expired.

Outlaws quarterback Doug Williams passed 44 times, completing 22 for 281 yards, and handed off to Sidney Thornton for the one-yard, game-winning touchdown in the third period.

Johnson posts five-stroke Samaritan Classic victory

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Chris Johnson says she battled a case of the blahs through the first nine holes and then the jitters through the final nine, and still wound up winning her first-ever LPGA tournament.

Playing bogey-free golf for 53 of the last 55 holes, Johnson fired a par 72 Sunday to take the $150,000 Samaritan Turquoise Classic by five strokes over Patty Hayes.

The victory was the first of her four-year pro career and worth $22,500 to Johnson, who won only $37,967 in all of 1983 and had $126,426 in career earnings.

"I hope the next win is a little easier," said the 25-year-old Tucson resident after winding up with a 12-under-par 276 total for the second annual Samaritan. "I don't think this one is a fluke, though. I'm very capable of winning."

Hayes, who shot a 1-under-par 71 Sunday, finished at 7-under 281 and received the runnerup check for $13,500.

Cathy Morse, tied for second place after Saturday's play, tied for third with Sharon Barrett at 6-under 282.

Barrett carded a final round 69 while Morse closed out with a 72.

Hayes, 29, started the day in a three-way tie for second place at six strokes behind Johnson.

She was within one shot of the lead before double-bogeying the par-4 13 — a hole Johnson birdied to go back up by five strokes.

Defending champion Anne-Marie Palli, who won by seven strokes last year at 14-under, finished at with a 293.

AT&T's billing most accurate, survey shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billing procedures used by long-distance companies differ sharply and often mean more to the size of telephone bills than do variations in rates, a consumer group's survey says.

Some long-distance services outperform others in timing calls accurately and charging only for completed calls, the survey of eight companies by Consumers Checkbook says.

The organization, with offices here and in San Francisco, concluded that rate comparisons, "which are all that many customers rely on," are not an adequate basis for choosing a long-distance company.

Based on more than 2,000 long-distance calls on the eight networks, the group said Western Union's MetroFone service had the worst record for billing callers for unconnected calls. It said the best records in that category belonged to the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Satellite Business Systems' Skyline.

Western Union spokesman Joseph E. Lopez said his company's own surveys of its billing accuracy were at odds with the Consumers Checkbook finding.

The survey also said Skyline was most lenient in not billing customers for completed calls of one minute or less. Since the test, though, the firm has changed its billing system, the group said.

The ITT Corp.'s Niteline service was close behind in that category, while AT&T overlooked no completed calls.

Besides Western Union, AT&T, SBS and ITT, the survey evaluated MCI Communications, GTE-Sprint, Allnet and Telesaver. It found AT&T's billings to be the most accurate.

Sale of Tiffanys to help U.S. Treasury

NEW YORK (AP) — A drug dealer with a connoisseur's taste used his marijuana profits to amass a million-dollar collection of Tiffany works that the government plans to turn into a windfall for the U.S. Treasury.

The collection was seized two years ago from Barry W. Toombs, now serving a 15-year prison term, by agents of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration. It is to be auctioned March 24.

Toombs "was well-versed in the Tiffany world. He was a knowledgeable collector. He was well recognized in the Tiffany circles in New York as being a collector of note," according to DEA senior attorney Steven Zimmerman.

More than 270 lamps, glass, mosaics, enamels and metalworks by Louis Comfort Tiffany were among Toombs' assets seized under the 1970 Controlled Substances Act, which provides for the forfeiture of assets that are traceable to drug activities.

The Toombs-Tiffany sale marks the first time the government has consigned a major antique collection to a non-government auction house. The Tiffanys, valued at $1 million, will be sold at Sotheby's New York galleries.

Among the objects is a Tiffany Favrile glass and bronze Oriental poppy floor lamp, expected to bring $40,000-$60,000, and a leaded glass and bronze flowering water lily lamp, $25,000-$35,000.

Toombs, a short-order cook in Washington prior to his drug trafficking days, used the income from his drug operation to purchase high-quality art, including a large collection of American paintings, Zimmerman said.

He also invested heavily in jewelry, uncut gems and many business enterprises, including a land development corporation and an office building in the suburbs of Washington, D.C.

"We know of no other legitimate source of income that he had before the 10 years preceding his arrest," he said. "All the monies are directly attributable to drug trafficking."

A fugitive for more than a year, Toombs, 36, was arrested in 1982 in Costa Rica. "He was a major marijuana importer and distributor," and ran a large-scale operation from northern Virginia that grossed $70 million between 1974-1981, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Karen Tandy. He imported marijuana and hashish from Colombia, Mexico, Jamaica and Lebanon, she said.

A resident of Annandale, Va., Toombs pleaded guilty to charges of racketeering conspiracy and possession of 33,0000 pounds of marijuana in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., on March 14, 1983.

The bulk of the Tiffany collection was purchased by Toombs in 1976 from Mardiros A. Krikorian, a New York film projectionist who assembled it in the early 1900s because he had "a personal passion for Tiffany glass," said Zimmerman. Krikorian decided to sell the collection after someone twice tried to rob him of it.

"People started flocking to Mr. Krikorian, and Barry Toombs eventually became the ultimate, successful purchaser," he said. "Rumor has it that he was known as 'the man who outbid New York' — there were a tremendous number of people interested in the collection and Barry just came in and plunked down a serious amount of cash."

That amount reportedly was $500,000.

McGovern expects Massachusetts win

George McGovern

BOSTON (AP) — George McGovern's presidential campaign hangs by a thread that Massachusetts voters may snip Tuesday, but it's not defeat he sees, it's political redemption.

"There's no question that I have elevated my own stature. I'm ...told that constantly by party leaders...I've restored myself as a nationally respected figure in the country," says the man who was buried beneath Richard Nixon's landslide in 1972 and then lost his own Senate seat eight years later.

"I think a lot of people decided after I was defeated...that I was probably through as an effective public voice. And now I have the feeling for many many years I'll be consulted on public issues. Not only consulted, but listened to," McGovern said.

"That means a lot to me."

McGovern utters these words in the middle of an exhausting campaign day, one in a long string of tiring days as he drives for a first or second place finish in the Massachusetts primary next week.

"I expect right down in my soul I'm going to" make it, he says, even though public opinion polls show him far behind Sen. Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale in the state.

If he fails, McGovern says he'll make a "graceful exit" from the campaign.

"If I can't make it in Massachusetts, I can't make it anywhere," he says.

He reckons he's already made it further than many people expected when he entered the race last September.

He finished a surprising third in the lead-off Iowa caucuses, a low-budget showing that many attribute to his appeal to voters not to "throw away your consciences."

His hopes for a breakthrough in the New Hampshire primary fell victim to Hart's surge — and he concedes that Hart's continuing momentum makes it difficult for him to meet his goal in Massachusetts.

But he makes his stand in the state where he won the presidential primary in 1972, and won, as well, against Nixon in the fall.

He will spend $250,000 or more, a small amount compared with some other rivals, but far more than he had available in Iowa or New Hampshire for that state's primary.

His primary campaign is a mixture of nostalgia and liberalism laced with McGovern's own brand of deadpan humor and biting sarcasm.

He links the nostalgia to the issues when he declares in a paid televison commerical, "Vote for me not because you did in 1972, but because you believe that the positions I take now are as right for the nation as were the views to which you rallied a decade ago.

On the stump, he stays to the left of the other contenders.

He wants to cut the defense budget by about $70 billion, while Mondale, Hart and John Glenn talk about cutting President Reagan's increase but allowing Pentagon spending to rise.

He opened his campaign by calling for the withdrawal of Marines from Beirut and now says they should be removed from the region totally, not just kept on ships in the Mediterranean.

He has campaigned as a peacemaker, and when Mondale was the front-runner and under attack from the others, McGovern cautioned against the kind of bitter nominating battle that can make it difficult to win in the fall against Reagan.

But lately he has begun aiming darts at Hart's balloon, declaring the Colorado senator is less a classic liberal than Mondale and is more cautious about "getting out front on controversial issues."

He also questions the centerpiece of Hart's campaign of "new ideas."

"I personally think that we have a little bit too much talk about newness and not enough about soundness and about common sense," he told a Chamber of Commerce meeting recently.

The deadpan humor comes through when he tells a group of students at Southeastern University in Massachusetts that he needs volunteers and campaign contributions. "Give us your name and your telephone numhbers and you'll be doing the Lord's work...We also need financing, so if you know any rich people, send them our way."

He is most sarcastic when talking about Reagan. Speaking of the president's drive for a constitutional amendment to permit voluntary, officially sponsored prayer in public schools, he says: "I would be more impressed with his commitment to prayer in schools if he'd turn up himself in church once in awhile."

Senate panel to vote on Meese's nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vote on Edwin Meese III's nomination as attorney general comes before the Senate Judiciary Committee this week, and even his most vociferous opponent concedes the Republican-run panel appears ready to approve President Reagan's choice.

The Judiciary Committee delved for more than a week into Meese's debts and finances, his ties with wealthy Californians who obtained government jobs and his alleged role in the 1980 Reagan campaign's use of documents from President Carter's re-election campaign.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, is the White House counselor's chief opponent on the committee. The senator argues that Meese is not fit for the office, charging that the presidential adviser has not been completely candid with Congress during the hearings and will be unable to cut his long-time political ties to the president.

"He should not be confirmed," Metzenbaum said. "He should not even have been appointed."

The senator concedes that his probe has not made much headway among the members of the Republican-run panel and the full chamber.

"With 55 Republicans in the Senate, I have to be a realist," he observed.

The committee, which delayed the vote on the nomination last week, is scheduled to take it up again on Thursday.

The election-year push to fashion a deficit-reduction package of tax increases, military spending restraint and domestic spending cuts also will continue this week.

Another meeting between President Reagan and senior Republican senators is expected as early as today as they try to agree on an approximately $150 billion plan.

Meanwhile, Democrats on the House Budget Committee will be putting the finishing touches on their own plan that will be presented to a meeting of all House Democrats on Wednesday.

In addition, the Senate Finance Committee will try to wrap up work on a $100 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts that will be a major part of the plan under discussion by Reagan and the GOP senators.

It may consider Reagan's proposal to tax employer-paid medical insurance premiums, which would tax premiums that exceed $175 a month for a family or $70 for a single person. But Chairman Robert J. Dole of Kansas concedes there is little support for the plan.

Wine would-be burglar's downfall

DENVER (AP) — Too much wine and too little sleep apparently foiled a would-be burglar, found snoozing beside a safe with a half-empty bottle and an assortment of tools within easy reach, police said.

Richelle Martin, 24, of Denver, was arrested Saturday, after a security guard found him asleep in an office at a north Denver building, according to police reports.

The security guard, James Durham, told police he found the napping suspect snoozing beside a safe, with the wine bottle and various tools scattered beside him.

Durham handcuffed the man to a desk and called police. Martin was roused and advised of his rights, then arrested, police said.

Martin was being held in the Denver City Jail for investigation of burglary.

Police said Martin entered the building by breaking out a door window, and unlocking the door. A hole had been knocked in the side of the safe, but it wasn't known if anything had been taken from the safe or the building, police said.

Two, four, six, eight,

Who do we appreciate?

GEM teacher Toni Haas seems an anachronistic contrast as she videotapes her students while dressed in medieval garb. The activity culminated a study unit on days of knighthood and chivalry.

Toni Haas

The teaching profession today does not have the respect it once did, says educator Toni Haas, but it is a vitally important job.

"We shape the minds and ambitions and goals of youth. Our future relies on them," said the Gifted Education in Midland teacher. "Those children who are gifted will hold some of the leadership positions in the future."

In her two years teaching in Midland schools, she has learned a teacher must have many qualities to be effective. He or she must care about students, be a good listener, be a sensitive person, be open to new ideas and have endless energy.

"You have to be able to do a little of everything," she continued. "She has to have a good sense of humor and be able to laugh at herself. If you can't admit your mistakes you have no business being in the profession, because the kids will find them quicker than you can.

"One of the most important things is that a teacher be enthusiastic, because kids reflect the attitude of whoever is in front of them."

Ms. Haas said she didn't always want to be an educator, even though both her parents taught. "When I was 18 years old the two things I said I'd never do was teach and live in West Texas."

But she said she enjoys learning and sharing what she has learned with others. "I can't think of anything more challenging than having 30 little people with 130 IQs looking at you."

The most meaningful aspect of her job is "that reinforcement every day of knowing you can touch a kid's life in a way no one else can."

She described her classes at Carver Cultural Center as free and informal. "However, I set sky-high standards for them. If I have a fault I'm sure that it's that I push too hard. I try to teach with a shoot-for-the-stars attitude."

Anne Grissett

Parent-Teacher Associations throughout the Midland Independent School District Tuesday will salute the approximately 1,000 educators who teach their children.

"Teacher Appreciation Day" is designed to honor all MISD instructors, and especially those considered to be outstanding by their peers, administrators and students.

One of those educators is Anne Grissett, who teaches seventh and eigth grade art at Goddard Junior High. She has been in the Midland district for 26 years.

"I think my mother's influence was the biggest factor," she said of becoming a teacher. "She was a kindergarten teacher. She didn't start till she was 50 and she retired at 85."

While a good teacher needs many qualities, Ms. Grissett says, the basic one is a strong command of the subject.

"I also think you have to have a sense of humor," she said, adding that learning doesn't have to be difficult or dull. "I feel like we have a lot of fun. I have a lot of fun or I wouldn't be there. Yet we learn."

Taking a personal interest in the students is another important quality, she emphasized. "I get to know my students."

Like many teachers, she feels a classroom relationship that combines freedom and responsibility is the most successful.

And she said she derives a great deal of satisfaction from her job. "The rewards may not be big to other people, but when a student is recognized for an accomplishment or when he wants to become a teacher like you it's very rewarding."

Goddard Junior High art teacher Anne Grissett shows Gina Gibson how to latch hook a rug.

J.C. Gotcher

A good teacher is one who inspires students, earns their respect and trust and who really cares about them. One doesn't need to teach academics to be an outstanding educator.

J.C. Gotcher, football and track coach at Lee Freshman High School, teaches physical education and health.

He wanted to be a coach since he was 11 years old, he said. His interest in athletics and children moved him into the field of teaching.

Enjoying students is an essential characteristic of a good teacher, he feels. "I enjoy them a lot, I don't know if they enjoy me," he smiled. But he's just as popular with them as they are with him.

"I think you have to be firm and fair," he said of his relationship with his students. "They also have to be able to see that they're achieving." Positive reinforcement plays a part of that relationship.

He said one of his greatest rewards is seeing students succeed, whether it be on a championship football team, winning a college scholarship, or returning several years after leaving high school with a medical or law degree.

"You feel like you had a part of it. It's very rewarding."

Gotcher feels public education has gotten a bad shake in recent studies and reports. "Someone's wrong. I think schools are better today than anytime in the 20 years I've taught."

Among the lesson prepared by J.C. Gotcher, physical education teacher and coach at Lee Freshman, are teamwork, discipline and sportsmanship.

Judy Lusby explains an assignment to one of her Bonham third graders, Matt Bargsley.

Judy Lusby

"I always admired my teachers and always wanted to be a teacher," Judy Lusby said, pointing to a much-admired fifth grade instructor who was one influencing factor in her decision.

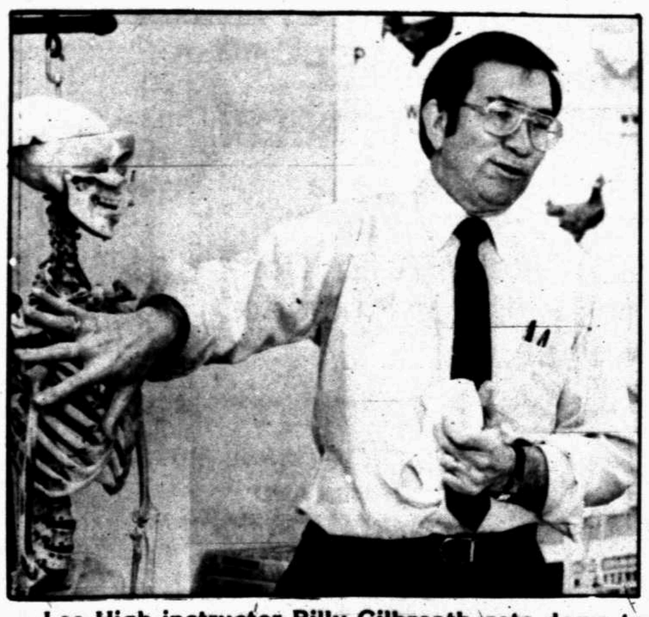
Ms. Lusby, a Bonham third-grade teacher, grew up in Midland and has taught here for four years.

A good teacher is one who looks for the good in children, she said. "You have got to find some positive things in every child." She uses assertive discipline in her classroom, a program that recognizes, rewards and reinforces positive behavior rather than emphasizing the negative.

And she gets just as many rewards as her students. "There's a lot of rewards in teaching. There's been times when children have written letters thanking me for something I did — maybe just taking them aside and helping them with a math problem."

She said setting a good example was another quality of a good teacher. But that doesn't mean setting yourself above or apart from your students. "You have to talk to them."

She, too, said she has a classroom that had both freedom and control. "One where there is some freedom but they know what the restrictions are. As long as it's consistent. My children do much better when everything is very consistent."



Lee High instructor Billy Gilbreath gets down to the bare bones with his biology and physiology students.

Billy Gilbreath

When he was a sophomore in college Billy Gilbreath realized shuffling figures as an accountant just didn't satisfy him. He decided to try teaching. He's been a high school biology and physiology instructor in Midland for the past 25 years.

Even though he knows he could make more money in private industry, "I feel like the rewards are immeasureable. It's an inward type of satisfaction. Especially when I grow older and look back at the successes of my students. Helping them has sort of been the driving force I have had over the years."

The most rewarding aspect of teaching is "feeling like you have been successful in directing a person's life," he said.

A good teacher must "be able to motivate students to want to learn. They must have a desire to help students discover their potential," Gilbreath said. He recalled a blind student who, for a science project, reassembled an entire horse skeleton.

He has a very friendly relationship with his students, he said. "I try to be very positive. I will not take 'I can't' as an excuse. I try to show them they have some value."

He described his classroom as unstructured and relaxed. "Course, I don't put up with any horseplay."

Although recommended as an outstanding MISD teacher, Gilbreath said he is no exception. "Midland has numerous teachers who care and who are model teachers."

Jealous husband kills wife, friend, then self

COMMERCE (AP) — A jealous, estranged husband lurked in the dark and waited for his wife and another East Texas State University student to come out of an apartment before shooting them both and then turning the gun on himself, police say.

The bodies of Michael Wayne Mauldin, 28; Lisa Rene Mauldin, 20; and Jerry Julian Vollrath Jr., 20, were found lying in a parking lot about 2:40 a.m. Sunday after neighbors heard five to six gunshots, said police chief Jim Peek.

All three were on the dean's list at East Texas State, a university with a 7,500 enrollment. Vollrath was a cheerleader at the school.

Peek said the deaths will probably be ruled a double homicide and suicide.

"Something was in his (Mauldin's) mind that he thought his wife was running around on him and she wasn't running around on him," Peek said. "It wasn't a love triangle or anything like that."

Peek said the preliminary autopsy report showed Mrs. Mauldin had two wounds, one in the head and one in the abdomen. He said Vollrath was shot in the head and chest. Mauldin was found holding a .45 caliber semiautomatic pistol and had a single gunshot wound in his forehead.

All were dead on arrival at Commerce Medical and Surgical Hospital.

Peeks said that from conversations with the couple's friends, investigators found Mrs. Mauldin had been depressed. The couple had not filed for divorce and had only briefly been separated, Peek said.

The young woman had moved out of a married student dormitory and into another dormitory with three roomates.

"We have evidence indicating Michael had beaten his wife before," Peek said Sunday. "He had slapped her or beaten her a couple of times. We found this out today."

University vice president of student affairs, Ron Robinson, said the school was in shock over the incident because all three were outstanding students.

"We at East Texas State are all in shock over this," Robinson said. "Jerry Vollrath was an outstanding student leader and well liked by everyone on campus."

Vollrath was also involved in Christian activities and was apparently trying to counsel Mrs. Mauldin when they met for the first time Saturday night at a dance.

"We feel he (Vollrath) was strictly an innocent victim of circumstance," Peek said. "He was trying to help her, counsel her, maybe even help her with her marriage. But something in Michael's mind popped."

He said that after the dance, Mrs. Mauldin, a girlfriend and Vollrath went to a pizza restaurant and Mrs. Mauldin started talking to Vollrath about "her problems."

Afterwards, Vollrath invited the woman to his apartment, which he shared with two roommates, to talk "things over," Peek said.

"She went hesitantly. You could tell because her car was parked perpendicular and she'd left the keys in it. She was just going to stay a couple of minutes," Peek said.

Vollrath's roommate told Peek the two were inside the apartment for 45 minutes to an hour.

Michael Ebensberger, a friend of Vollrath and a sophomore at the university said Vollrath was always going out of his way to help friends.

"When I found out about it, I was...devastated. Jerry was the type of guy who would do anything to help someone in need. It's just not fair. Jerry was a real good guy," Ebensberger said.

Peek said investigators have found no witnesses to the shootings.

"The roommates didn't even hear the shots. They slept through most of it," Peek said.

Military personnel redeployed, trained

Marine Lance Cpl. John R. White, son of Robert L. and Donna L. White of 2404 Apperson, Midland, and Marine Pfc. Richard M. Ybarra, son of Mary M. Ybarra of Big Spring, recently departed on a deployment to Okinawa.

Both are members of Third Battalion, Fifth Marines, First Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Their unit will spend six months overseas as part of the Marine Corps' unit deployment program. The concept is designed to rotate whole battalions or squadrons at a time instead of individuals at separate intervals. In this way, unit integrity is retained and the actual time spent overseas is shortened.

Navy Fireman Recruit Isidro C. Munoz, son of Isidro J. and Julia C. Munoz of Odessa, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Navy Recruit Training Command, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and fist aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

Marine Pvt. Michael S. Melson, son of Bill and Patricia Melson of Gardendale, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif., and has reported for duty at Marine Barracks Keflavik, Iceland.

During the six-week course, he received classroom instruction and participated in field exercises involving infantry tactics, the construction and camouflage of fighting positions, and the use of mines, demolitions and intra-company communications equipment. His specialized training centered on the operation, employment and maintenance of machine guns.

Marine Pfc. William M. Diggs Jr., son of Marvis Diggs of Azle and Doyce Diggs of Gardendale, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton, Calif.

During the six week course, he received classroom instruction and participated in field exercises involving infantry tactics; the construction and camouflage of fighting positions; and the use of mines, demolitions and intra-company communications equipment.

Marine Lance Cpl. Timothy E. McDow, son of Henry E. and Donna L. McDow of Route 6, Midland, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Corps Air Station Futenma, in Okinawa.

Navy Chief Aviation Maintenance Administrationman Danny L. Whitehead, son of Sybil E. Fuson of Big Lake, is a member of Helicopter Combat Support Squadron Five (HC-5), which recently began operating from the Naval Air Station Agana, Guam.

As the Navy's first forward deployed Vertical Replenishment Squadron, HC-5 utilizes the HH-46A "Sea Knight" helicopter. Vertical Replenishment (VERTREP) is an exceptionally rapid, safe and versatile means of resupplying ships at sea using helicopters.

If addition to VERTREP, the squadron also provides emergency medical evacuation services, rescues at sea, search and rescue, and administrative logistics support for the Guam area and ships deployed in the Western Pacific.

Marine Lance Cpl. Reginaldo Rodriguez, son of Joe A. and Maria S. Rodriguez of Odessa, has received a Letter of Superior Performance.

He received the letter for superior performance of duty while serving with 1st Force Service Support Group, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

A Letter of Superior Performance is official recognition of an individual's outstanding accomplishments and is presented during formal ceremonies.

State boards lack minorities despite governor's efforts

AUSTIN (AP) — Minorities are still not well represented on state boards and commissions despite Gov. Mark White's claims that he has appointed a record percentage of minorities to the board and commissions, the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

A News study showed that White set or is near a record for appointing women, although they also are underrepresented on state boards and commissions.

In contrast to former Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, White has not used much of his appointment power to put political independents in state jobs, the News reported.

Many of the appointments by White to the most prestigious and important state jobs have gone to his major 1982 campaign contributors and to those who were most active in his campaign, which also means that only a handful of women, minorities or union activists were among those chosen.

The News said precise comparison of White's appointment record with those of past governors was not possible, because the sex, race and national origin of appointees was not tracked before White's administration.

Dwayne Holman, White's appointments aide, said that in general, White has named more women and minorities than any of his predecessors.

More blacks have been appointed by White than by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe in six years in office and White has appointed more Hispanics than Clements did during the first two years of his term, the News found.

Specifically, out of 844 appointments during White's first 13 months in office, he named:

— 198 women, for 24 percent of all appointments he made.

— 113 Hispanics, for 13 percent of all his appointments.

— 85 blacks, for 11 percent of all appointments.

Blacks make up 12 percent of the population and Hispanics, 21 percent, according to the 1980 census.

Complaints have been raised that White hasn't appointed enough people from among the minority groups, such as women and Hispanics, that helped elect him.

Some Democratic women have said White's female appointments are overly concentrated in areas that are traditionally associated with women's issues.

Holman agrees. "In oil and gas, for instance, you just don't find many women and minorities," he said. "But if you look at dietitians, almost all of the dietitians are, in fact, women."

Third graders have definite ideas about presidential candidates

AUSTIN (AP) — They are an opinionated lot who would throw any political poll out of kilter.

Reid Laffere likes Colorado Sen. Gary Hart in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination "because he's leading."

Josie Vasquez would vote for the Rev. Jesse Jackson "because he hasn't dropped out."

But Josie won't get to vote for Jackson, and Reid won't cast his ballot for Hart either, unless the voting age is suddenly dropped about 10 years.

The third-grade pupils in Rosa Clark's class at Sanchez Elementary School are following this year's presidential election with charts of the primary results and candidate information. They use yarn to track campaign trips on a map and cut out clippings and paste them in a scrapbook.

Favorites have emerged, notwithstanding the primary results so far.

Thirsty men snatch beer at five convenience stores

Two men with an apparent craving for beer at midnight ducked in and out of convenience stores Sunday night and early this morning and stole six packs and cases of beer.

"They went in five different stores and grabbed beer," said Midland Police Department Detective Lt. Earl Luckey.

In one case, the 20-year-old clerk at the 7-Eleven Store at Garfield Steet and Wadley Avenue told police one of the men was wearing a blue bandana and the other was sporting a golden earring in his left ear.

The clerk said the men, whom he said robbed him of the beer, took a case of Budweiser. He said they drove off in a short-bed black Chevrolet pickup.

Earlier in the weekend, police reported a 28-year-old woman rammed her 1979 car into the front of James White's Industrial Engines business at 804 S. Terrell St. and struck White's pickup following an argument with him, police report. Damage to the business and pickup was estimated at $3,400.

Automobile designer offers 'piece of rolling art'

Copley News Service

RAMONA, Calif. — Shouting above the combined roar of engine and wind, Russ Lyon observed: "You don't drive this car to get someplace, you drive it for the sake of driving."

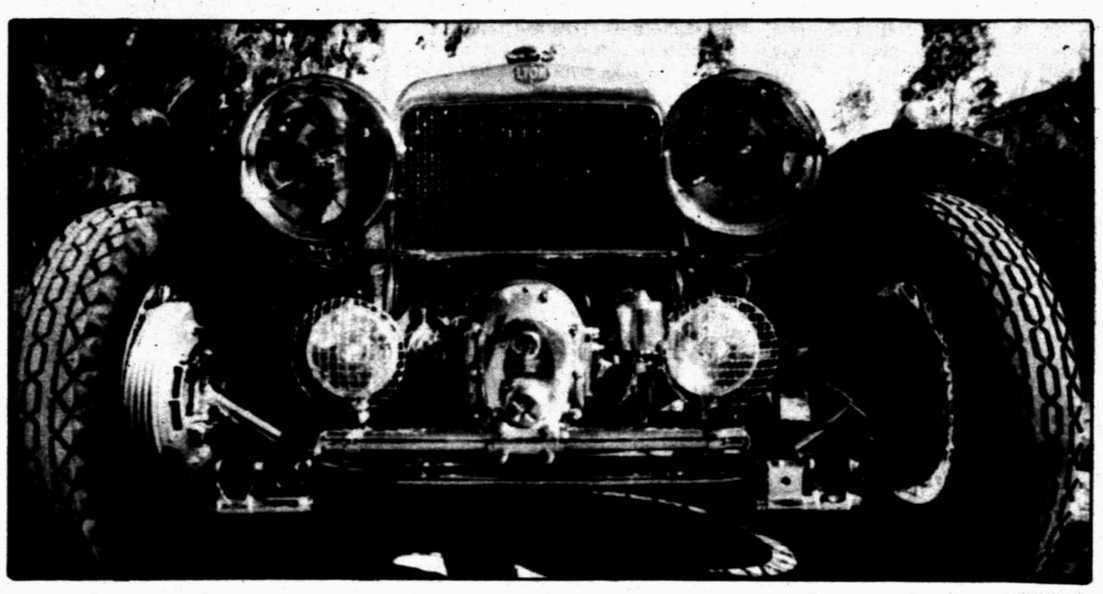
The car, named after its creator, is a gleaming and graceful classic designed and built along the lines of European racers of the 1930s, the Bugattis and Dusenbergs. It is an automotive masterpiece, an original that transcends time.

Touring the countryside in the Lyon Mark V Roadster, the senses come alive with the aromas of earth and orange blossoms and the exhilaration of power and speed. To drive the Lyon is to be transported back to some golden age of motoring.

Lyon, 39, is a Michelangelo among automakers, a Renaissance man who spent 10 years planning his remarkable car and another three years building it. All of his savings went into the project.

Out among the citrus and avocado groves in San Diego's East County, down the sloping drive where a golden retriever frolics, is a 2,700-square-foot machine shop that smells wonderfully of motor oil and axle grease.

Lyon gave up his $60,000-a-year engineering job in 1980, bought three-plus acres outside Ramona and built the machine shop himself. An extensive array of tools, small machines and handcrafted auto parts are about, yet the place appears spotless.



CNS Photo

The Lyon Mark V Roadster is a new car modeled after Bugattis and Dusenbergs of the 1930s.

It's the sort of atmosphere where a young tinkerer named Henry Ford might have worked around the turn of the century.

Lyon, an inexhaustible sort who can build anything, spent 3,500 hours (many 10-hour days and seven-day weeks) during the past three years creating his roadster there.

A San Diego native with a master's degree in mechanical and aerospace engineering from the University of California at San Diego, Lyon didn't build the roadster merely for the fun of it. The original Lyon Mark V and those that will follow are for sale.

The price: $135,000 to $150,000, depending on options; allow at least eight months for delivery.

Lyon said he became enchanted with cars as a boy. He calls the period from 1925 to 1935 "the golden era of automobiles." His fantasy is to be swept back to the '30s via time warp and to go head to head in a design competition with Italy's automotive master, Ettore Bugatti.

Even if your knowledge of cars is limited to the location of the accelerator and brake pedals, you can sense that Lyon is an automotive genius.

He started with a Jaguar engine, chosen for power and its bold look. "I decided to start with a six- or eight-cylinder double overhead cam engine with a roots-type blower," Lyon said. Noting his visitor's perplexity, he simplified the explanation:

"Since so much of the machinery is in plain view, it had to look right. I wanted a strong racing engine that offered me visual as well as mechanical excitement. That's why I chose the Jaguar." Then he supercharged and otherwise modified it to generate 380 horsepower.

Nearly every other part on the car was hand made by Lyon. He shaped and molded the frame and chassis; hammered out the fenders from sheet metal; cast the aluminum brake drums and the brake shoes. The axles and springs, the seat, steering wheel and gearbox all were hand made by Russ Lyon.

On one wall of his shop hang wooden molds which attest to Lyon's skill — he first had to carve many of the parts in wood before they could be forged in metal at a foundry.

The seats are covered in leather that is as soft as a busman's glove. His wife, Sandy, spent evenings sewing the leather upholstery after working a full-time job (as a lab technician at UCSD) all day to support the couple.

Lyon, a perfectionist's perfectionist, painted the car himself and applied the detailing. A sharp eye will note a thousand small touches, like his trademark — a red lion — that has been silk-screened onto the face of the speedometer and other various gauges and instruments.

Looks weren't enough for Lyon. He wanted the high level of performance expected of an exotic car, the drivability of today's Porsches, Mercedes, BMWs and the like. "I have to admit that the old classics were absolute dogs to drive." He achieved a smooth ride and easy handling by engineering modern suspension and steering into the Lyon.

A quiet, understated man who is modest to a fault, Lyon said (after a bit of coaxing) that he views his automobile as a piece of rolling art.

DEAR ABBY

'Living Will' has the Pope's approval

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I sent for the Living Will from the Society for the Right to Die, because if I should ever get to the point in my life where I am terminally ill and there is positively no hope for my recovery, I do not want to be hooked to any machines that will keep my old heart beating for another miserable six months or so. What is the Catholic Church's position on this? — DEVOUT IN WINONA, WIS.

DEAR DEVOUT: "When inevitable death is imminent in spite of the means used, it is permitted in conscience to make the decision to refuse forms of treatment that would only secure a precarious and burdensome prolongation of life, so long as the normal care due to the sick person in similar cases is not interrupted. In such circumstances the doctor has no reason to reproach himself with failing to help the person in danger.

"Life is a gift of God, and on the other hand death is unavoidable; it is necessary, therefore, that we, without in any way hastening the hour of death, should be able to accept it with full responsibility and dignity.

"It is true that death marks the end of our earthly existence, but at the same time, it opens the door to immortal life."

Pope John Paul II approved this declaration in Rome on May 5, 1980.

Those who are interested in obtaining a Living Will should write to: The Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. It is a non-profit organization, so please send a donation to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

I sent $10 for five Living Wills. (It is deductible.) And it's the best $10 I ever spent. I've given one to my physician, clergyman, lawyer and members of my family.

DEAR ABBY: What if a man (over 21) has sexual intercourse with a girl who is legally underage? (She is 15, but could pass for 20 easily.) OK, let us say that the man was no stranger to the girl, they had gone on several dates and she willingly agreed to have sex with him. He didn't ask her how old she was because he thought she was of legal age, and remember, he didn't have to talk her into having sex with him.

Is the man guilty of statutory rape? — NO NAMES

DEAR NO NAMES: Whether or not the girl cooperated willingly makes no difference. Neither does whether or not the man knew the girl's age. A man who has sexual intercourse with a girl who is not of legal age is guilty of statutory rape.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: What if tomorrow, as the prayer says, you should die before you wake? Will people near and dear to you find something in your drawer (at the office, perhaps?) that will shatter their illusions; fill their hearts with sorrow; tarnish their memories? Make a bonfire of the past. Toss in those letters and pictures, and be done with it. What was, was. Give your survivors a break.

(From Abby's Popularity booklet: "Good advice for people of all ages: Don't rush into an intimate relationship, regardless of how 'right' it may seem at the moment. To put it bluntly, that which is too easily acquired is seldom valued."

'Psychographics' newest marketing trend

Hearst Feature Service

Are you a Belonger? An Achiever? An Emulator? A Sustainer?

You may not be sure, but marketers — the people who tailor advertising to reach their target groups — may know more about you than you know about yourself.

Time was when marketers used demography — the science of vital and social statistics — to identify the buying public. Age, sex and income were the most commonly-used statistics.

But today's marketers are using psychographics, a mix of social science, economics and psychology, says Michael Barth, a lecturer at New York State University at Albany's School of Business.

"Psychographics are much more descriptive of buying behavior," Barth says. "They show your attitude towards products, and your attitude towards life in general. The old 'age, sex and income' guides that have been in use for years are no longer relevant. You may have two people making the same annual income, but because their lifestyles are quite different, their buying habits also would be completely different."

Barth says psychographics is the basis of VALS, an acronym that stands for Values and Lifestyles. VALS was developed by Stanford Research Institute after years of extensive interviews with consumers.

Barth says the key to VALS is the way it breaks down the nation's adult buying population into eight segments, analyzing the character of each. The groups are:

— Belongers: The largest group, representing about one-third of the American population. These are patriotic, stable, sentimental traditionalists of any age, who are content with their lives.

— Achievers: One-quarter of the country consists of this group of prosperous and self-assured middle-aged materialists.

— Emulators: Ambitious young adults trying to break into the system. They represent 10 percent of the buying population.

— I-Am-Me Group: Impulsive, experimental, somewhat narcissistic and unconventional young adults belong to this group, which accounts for 5 percent.

— Experiential: Adults, generally young, who are slightly more people-oriented and more directed toward inner-growth, account for 7 percent.

— Societally Conscious: Mission-oriented people, who like causes, are mature, successful, and have chosen to live simply, account for 9 percent of the buying population.

— Survivors: Old people who are poor, with little optimism about the future, make up 4 percent of Americans.

— Sustainers: Seven percent of the populace. This group is having a hard time making ends meet, and is resentful about their condition.

How are marketers using this information? The SUNYA lecturer says by being able to analyze the buying public in such detail, advertising agencies can alert clients to possible future problems and devise advertising strategies to prevent them.

For example: A VALS analysis conducted by Young and Rubicom, a Madison Avenue advertising agency, and reported in a recent story in The New York Times, indicated the American auto industry may be slumping because the Belongers, traditionally its best customers, have lost faith in Detroit.

The reason? They don't believe they are getting their money's worth from American auto makers. The result? New advertising to draw younger Belongers back into the market.

The soft-drink industry also may face some problems by the end of the decade, VALS users predict, unless it personalizes its messages in a more thoughtful and sensitive way.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD WANT AD

1. IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, it's better to start your advertisement with the location.
2. BE CLEAR. Readers react more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. One of the most important considerations of any advertisement is to include the price.
3. MAKE IT EASY for the reader prospect to reach you. ALWAYS INSERT your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time to have prospects contact you.
4. THE GREATEST READER RESPONSE can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe. The thrifty 15 day plan is best and costs less per insertion. There are also special monthly rates for those who want to keep their name and offers before the public each and every day. Cancel when you get results, the charge will be the rate earned at the time of cancellation.
5. PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good classified ad.
6. CLASSIFIED READERS ARE already interested in buying used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are in the market to buy. Give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.
7. WANT ADS THAT FAIL do so not through any lack of readership, but because they are often quickly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.
8. TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in The Midland Reporter-Telegram, where you reach the active Classified market.
