Partisans Take Large Portion Of Warsaw

Many Buildings, Utility Works Are Captured

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 4. — The Polish telegraph agency said tonight that Gen. Bor's underground army inside Warsaw had captured the chief skyscraper in the capital, the 16-story Prudential building, the general post office, main power station and gas works.

"The battle is general and centers of action are all over the city with the exception of Zoliborz, where our troops were scattered by enemy armored units," Gen. Bor radioed from the beleaguered city, the agency said.

"The Polish flag is flying from all the captured buildings. The telephone exchange has been attacked several times but we have not succeeded in taking it so far. The entire Stare Miastro region, which is the old city of Warsaw, is in our hands.

Nazi Losses Heavy

"The enemy has blown up some of his block houses and burned many homes, especially in the suburbs. The enemy has suffered very heavy losses in men and armored equipment. Prisoners have been taken. We fear nothing except a scarcity of ammunition. We have insufficient arms to provide for our volunteers."

The battle started at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

GERMANS DRIVING SWIFTLY TOWARD GERMAN SILESIA

BY DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 4 — Russian hosts which smashed the German Vistula river line advanced swiftly today to within 91 miles of German Silesia while other army groups in the north shelled towns and villages inside East Prussia from positions three miles from the frontier.

Russian forces moved within 58 miles of Krakow, fifth city of old Poland, over difficult hill country. In this area west of the Vistula, some 110 miles below beleaguered Warsaw, the Russians were within 30 miles of Tarnow and 28 of Kielce (Pop. 58,200), last large Nazi bastion before Krakow.

Silent On Warsaw Siege

Official sources were silent on the siege of Warsaw, where Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's army group was pulled up just east of the Polish capital. In the Baltic states, Russian tanks were patrolling the shores of the Gulf of Riga 25 miles west of Riga and

Victim Dies In Shooting Here

A few minutes after a charge of assault to murder had been filed late this morning in 72nd district court naming John Carpenter, 43-year-old Lubbock county former, 42-year-old Hubert Green of Portales, N. M., died of gunshot wounds in Lubbock General hospital.

District Attorney Burton S. Burks, who filed the complaint, said he would file another this afternoon, charging murder.

Green was rushed to the hospital after an early afternoon shooting Thursday at 1510 Avenue B, near a mule barn.

Quarrel Reported

L. H. Redwine, a witness, told the district attorney the two men had quarreled late Thursday morning near the place of the shooting and that Carpenter had a gun when he returned. The men "shook hands" at Redwine's request, then without much preamble began scuffling over the gun, the witness said.

Two shots were fired, the first passing under Redwine's arms, apparently as he attempted to separate the men.

Joe Rieger, former peace enforcement official who is a lay inspector at a packing company for the city health department, was passing. He was acquainted with both men, so leaped from his car and attempted to prevent bloodshed. The last shot was fired before he reached the principals, and Rieger's role was reduced to requesting that no more shots be fired, that the gun be given to him and that Carpenter get in the Rieger car. Rieger drove to the sheriff's office with Carpenter after asking that officials be called and that an ambulance be summoned

British Eighth Army Troops Reach Florence

Germans Fall Back Before Unrelenting Drive Of Forces

(By The Associated Press)

ROME, Aug. 4—The Eighth army reached Florence today.

South African troops gained the outskirts of the city and patrols working forward found that five of six bridges across the Arno river within the city had been destroyed, Allied headquarters announced.

The Germans were on the run back through Florence, and their guns flashed from the peaks which rise behind the beautiful Tuscan city.

Nazi forces departed last night from a ridge south of the city. From that vantage point today AP Corresopndent Lynn Heinzerling looked down on Florence and through the smoke of German guns just outside the city was able to pick out glistening church domes.

Three Miles From City

Some of the Allied troops were less than three miles from the city. Lt. Gen. B. C. Freyberg, commander of the New Zealanders, made plans for an entry by his troops, which have been on the go since the battle of Crete.

(Today's German communique said German troops had "detached themselves toward a narrow bridgehead immediately south of Florence" and that renewed Allied attacks against this position were frustrated. It declared — without Allied confirmation — that Allied artillery fire was directed "on the historic city with its irreplaceable cultural treasures").

The New Zealanders drove the Germans from high ground southwest of Florence in the advance to the river Greve.

The latest advance gave the Eighth army a stronghold on the hills two miles northeast of Laromola. Giogoli, less than five miles southwest of Florence, was captured in the course of the thrust.

Enemy resistance continued strong due south of Florence, after the Nazis pulled back and permitted South African armored units, employing American Sherman tanks and a British guards brigade, to capture the important town of Impruneta, five and a half miles due south of Florence's outskirts.

Despite this opposition, however,

Purge Of Nazi Army To Be Continued

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP) — The German radio said tonight that "the army has requested Hitler to carry out a purge in the army—to cleanse it of the July 20 traitors," and that Hitler had approved.

"A court of honor is to inquire into the attitude of the generals," the DNB dispatch said. "Its function will be to investigate who had taken part in the plot (the July 20 attempted assassination of Hitler) and oust those who participated."

Among those on the court of inquiry, the official news agency listed Marshal von Rundstedt, deposed commander in France and frequently reported a victim of the purge. Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, also was named for the court.

The DNB announcement said one field marshal and four generals were expelled from the army at the first sitting of the court today.

Those ousted today were listed as Marshal Erwin von Witzleben, who stormed the Maginot line and who was accused of being a ring leader in the purported plot; Gen. Fellgiebel of the information units; Lt. Gen. von Hase, Maj. Gen. Stieff, and Maj. Gen. von Treschkow.

Strikers Threaten Violence In Philadelphia Transit Tieup

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4 (AP)—Roaming bands of strikers threatened violence today to workers attempting to restore service on Philadelphia's government - seized transportation lines and—at the Army's request—policemen were assigned to ride all trolleys, buses, subway trains and "el" trains to protect operators.

TO ADVISE COOPERATION

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4 ¾ —James McMenamin, strike leader, said today after a two-hour conference with Gen. Philip Hayes that he was returning to union headquarters to advise strikers to "do as the Army advises" in Philadelphia's transportation strike.

Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes of the Third Service command, who took control of the system last night on President Roosevelt's orders, said persons with apparent enemy sympathies were attempting to prevent resumption of service.

This afternoon—hours after the Army's 5 a. m. (EWT) deadline—only 14 trains were in continuous operation on the Market street "el" and eight in the Broad street subway tube compared with a rush-hour total for both lines of 77. No buses moved in this busy war-time metropolis of 2,000,000 and only the trolleys on one route operated.

In Washington, Attorney General Biddle ordered an immediate investigation to determine whether any federal laws had been violated, with particular attention directed to possible violation of the Smith-Connally anti-strike act.

The stoppage, which began Tuesday morning in protest against the upgrading of negro transit employes, had stranded hundreds of thousands, curtailed vital war pro-

GOP Governors End Conference

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4. (AP) — The 26 Republican governors, asserting that they had achieved "unity of thought" with Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, charged today that the asserted failure of President Roosevelt to exchange views with state executives had produced "costly misunderstandings" in the past.

Summing up two days of conferences on what Dewey has called "areas of friction" between the states and the federal government, the GOP governors asserted it was their intention to work closely with Dewey if he becomes president.

Urge Tax Simplification

Calling for postwar simplification and reduction of taxes, the governors' conference said in other conclusions that the state and national governments must create "clear-cut labor and industrial policies," must develop coordinated social welfare services and should work together in the use and control of war resources.

In their general conclusions the governors charged that there had been "a constant grasping for power on the part of the federal government." They said that only through cooperation and "sympathetic understanding" could this nation's system of government be made to work.

"This can best be accomplished when all parts of the country

Speed Terrific In 'Mechanical Maelstrom'

History Made At Willow Run, World's Largest Bomber Plant

BY CHAS. A. GUY
Avalanche-Journal Editor

DETROIT—(Special) — Here we are, plunged into the mechanical maelstrom that is the manufacturing section of Willow Run, largest bomber plant in the world which has made industrial history by producing giant airplanes along the "assembly line" plan made famous by the Detroit motor industry.

On every side are men, women and machines, all working at top speed. The noise is terrific.

Here a woman sorts tubing of various sizes and descriptions—for in each of the four-motored, B-24 Liberators there are hundreds of feet of tubing essential to operation.

There a man operates a giant press, which shears aluminum to a certain specification.

Over here are the "spot welders." They supply a "short-cut" which has enabled tanks and planes and guns and ships to reach our fighting men much earlier than had "spot welding" not supplanted, in many operations, the costlier and more time-consuming riveting method of "tying" metal parts together.

Everywhere you look, there are men, women and machines—pounding, pounding, pounding so that the 24-ton aerial leviathans, capable of carrying a load of 100,000 pounds, may keep rolling off the "line" at the current rate of one per hour.

You squeeze in here, to watch more closely the bending of the tubes—there are 900 different bends (some by hand, some by precision machines) essential to the building of each B-24. You hear a warning signal and you jump aside as quickly as possible so that a giant crane, traveling high overhead, can swing its heavy burden so—should it drop—you'll not be hurt.

You can't see one end of the great plant from the other, nor can you see from wall to wall.

The whole business may

Clouds Bring Slight Break In Heat; 2 P. M. Reading Is 98

Cloudy weather brought a measure of relief to residents of Lubbock today from the terrific heat which sent the mercury to its highest point in two years—110 degrees—Thursday.

WATER USAGE ABOVE NORMAL

Although nearly double the requirements for an average summer day, water pumpage in Lubbock during the current heat wave has been well short of record figures, according to J. C. (Billy) Clark, city water superintendent.

Pumpage figures in gallons for the last three days have been: Thursday, 9,132,000; Wednesday, 9,460,000; and Tuesday, 9,997,000. The all-time record for any day was set in August, 1943, at 10,700,000 gallons, and 10-million-gallon days have not been unusual, he said.

During July, pumpage totaled 135,-000,000 gallons and during June, it was 185,000,000 gallons. The all-time record for any month was set at 255,197,000 in September, 1943.

The superintendent said that Lubbock still has a production capacity from its 32 wells of about 2,000,000 gallons daily above any anticipated peak requirements.

Temperature at 2 o'clock this afternoon as recorded by West Texas Gas company's main line station southeast of town stood at 98 degrees as compared with 103 degrees recorded at that hour yesterday.

The experiment station recorded 107 degrees Thursday, three degrees above Wednesday's reading, while the 110 reading was recorded at the gas company station. This was two degrees higher than the previous day's top.

The weather forecast for the South Plains this afternoon, tonight and Saturday was partly cloudy with widely scattered thundershowers.

Bonin, Volcano Islands Raided By U.S. Carrier Planes, Tokyo Reports

Famed Task Force 58 Believed On Prowl Near Japanese Homeland; Islands 630 Miles From Tokyo Dealt Multiple Blows

(By The United Press)

The Japanese reported today that powerful formations of American carrier planes had attacked the Bonin and Volcano islands, within 630 miles of Tokyo, and Radio Tokyo expressed the belief that Vice-Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's famed task force 58 again was on the prowl near the Japanese homeland.

A Tokyo broadcast recorded by United Press at San Francisco said 10 cruisers and destroyers were sighted east of Chichi Jima in the Bonins Friday afternoon.

Their appearance there "and sudden intensification of enemy activities near the Japanese homeland" indicated to the Japanese that an American task force was operating in the area, already struck by Mitcher's force three times since the start of the Marianas campaign in June.

Iwo Jima Raided Twice

Powerful formations of carrier-borne planes raided Iwo Jima, 100 miles to the south of Chichi Jima, twice Friday morning, Tokyo said, while Chichi Jima was raided three times simultaneously by "many formations of carrier-based aircraft."

Presence of the carriers would indicate that the American striking unit was supported by the battle-wagons of Mitscher's tremendous task force, which shelled the Japanese bases in their previous appearances.

Both Iwo Jima and Chichi Jima were hit by American task forces twice in June, at the start of the Marianas campaign, at the time of the invasion of Saipan, approximately 900 miles to the south.

Other Raids Cited

Two Japanese ships were sunk, 10 ships damaged and 47 planes destroyed in a strike June 14. An additional 116 planes were destroyed at Iwo Jima June 23.

An American task force again hit Iwa Jima and hte Bonins July 2 and 3, with 12 Japanese ships being sunk or damaged and 100 planes downed, as well as 96 damaged.

Since then Liberators have struck at the Japanese outposts from newly won airbases on Saipan.

Ceilings Put On Employment

Non-Essential Plants Affected

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 — Mobilization Director Byrnes, declaring "we must produce until the last shot is fired," today clamped employment limits on less-essential factories in 181 war-vital centers where workers are scarce.

Driving to produce the weapons needed for knockout punches to the enemies Byrnes said "we have on the ropes," he outlined steps designed to free 200,000 workers for lagging production programs.

They are:

1. Establishment by local manpower priorities committees of limits on the number of workers employed in war industries to enforce better use of existing labor supplies and in less-essential industries to release the workers for needed war production. For enforcement, he empowered the committees to withhold materials, equipment, power or transportation.

To Use More Prisoners

2. Increased use of prisoners of war in the making of war weapons and explosives.

3. Use of some unskilled foreign labor for a limited period where it is impossible to obtain adequate local workers.

4. Further limitation on the reconversion of civilian production, scheduled to be authorized by the War Production board on Aug. 15, by giving the War Manpower commission veto powers. The WMC local representative will be required to certify that labor for civilian goods will not interfere with local and inter-regional recruiting efforts.

"We have the enemy on the ropes; he is dazed and his knees are buckling," Byrnes asserted in a statement accompanying the directive. "This is not time to take a holiday and give him time to recover. It is time to finish the job. We cannot let down our men in the armed services."

Using More Prisoners

Simultaneously, Byrnes told a news conference the War department is expanding the use of war prisoners, not on weapons and explosives, but on other essential military supplies where their use

Jackie Cooper Faces Charge

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 4 (AP) —St. Joseph County Prosecutor Arthur F. Scherr said today affidavits had been filed charging four persons, including Jackie Cooper, 22, of Beverly Hills, Calif., whom he identified as a star in a recent movie called "Where Are Your Children" with contributing to and encouraging the delinquency of minors.

Cooper has been stationed at the University of Notre Dame here as a Navy V-12 student since last November.

COOPER

Also charged in the affidavits, which Scherr said grew out of a police investigation of a party at the La Salle hotel here the night of July 22, were Pauline Frederic, 19, of South Bend; George Bender, a V-12 student at Notre Dame, and Olie Lowery, a hotel waiter.

To Issue Warrants

Deputy Prosecutor Leo J. Cook said Juvenile Referee Albert L. Doyle would issue warrants for the arrest of the four defendants, who would be arraigned in juvenile court.

Prosecutor Scherr said Cooper was charged specifically with contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old South Bend girl by furnishing her intoxicants and by encouraging her to remain away from home overnight in a room engaged by him at the hotel.

Two affidavits were filed against Miss Frederic, who Scherr said

A&M Officials Confer With Women's Board

AUSTIN, Aug. 4 b — President Gibb Gilchrist of Texas A. and M. college conferred for nearly two hours here today with members of the board of directors of the State Home Demonstration association, but flatly refused to comment on the session.

Directors of the association also would not discuss the purpose of the conference or what was done. The directors previously had announced they would seek the removal of Miss Maurine Hearn as state home demonstration agent of the A. and M. extension service.

Mrs. Leon Sullivan, president of the association, said:

"I am sorry I can not discuss the meeting. We promised Dr. Gilchrist that it would be a closed meeting and we are keeping our promise."

Earlier, reporters were told they would not be admitted.

Neither Gilchrist nor members of the board would say prior to the meeting what would be discussed. Previously Mrs. Sullivan, president of the association of more than 40,000 farm women, said the board would ask the college president and the director of the extension service to replace Miss Hearn.

Friends of Miss Hearn said they also would carry the fight for her retention to A. and M. officials.

'Sergeant York' Of Brittany Captures 28 Nazis, Kills 6, Urges Enemy Commander To Surrender

BY HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS At Rennes, France, Aug 3 (Delayed) —The "Sergent York" of Brittany is a 29-year-old doughboy private who in the last 48 hours has killed six Germans, captured 28 and voluntarily made two trips blindfolded into a Nazi command post trying to get the last enemy force defending Rennes to surrender.

And all the time he was lost from his own unit and worried over being listed as A. W. O. L.

I met Pvt. Donald L. McKay, Grand Island, Neb., this afternoon as he walked back with Pvt. Art Kallmann, interpreter, Erie, Pa., from the enemy command post after twice risking his life trying to get the Nazis to abandon their futile last-ditch defense. (The Americans have captured Rennes).

Scores Single-Handed Victory

McKay told how, singlehanded, he tied up and knocked out some enemy resistance in the Rennes area while trying to find his way back to his unit.

"I don't know how my commander is going to feel about all this," he said dubiously.

"Yesterday I was caught in an acre of high grass by a German outfit. They were spraying bullets everywhere and I had to pick my spots and keep moving to keep from being killed.

"I picked off two of them with my rifle. Then I saw two Germans lying by a machinegun. I shot and hit one, breaking his back. That unnerved the other, an officer, and he stood up and waved a white handkerchief.

Made Nazi Surrender Men

"He didn't have any real idea how many of our men were in that acre of grass—certainly he didn't know that I was the only one—and I made him surrender all his

Slicing Off Of Breton About Completed

Yanks Are Driving Across Brittany In 6 Directions

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 4—Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's dynamite team of armor and infantry has driven close to St. Nazaire and practically completed the slicing off of the Breton peninsula, it was indicated tonight.

The dazzling pace of the Americans, driving across Brittany in more than half a dozen directions, was believed to have established them in a much greater area than the 65 mile wedge, 30 miles wide, which official communiques and latest war correspondents' reports showed.

The latest correspondents' dispatches said the doughboy tide, spreading 20 miles southward of the central communications hub of Rennes, were within 43 miles of St. Nazaire, the Nazi U-boat base which British commandos partly wrecked in March, 1942, using an old U. S. destroyer as a time bomb.

43 Miles From Loire

These reports showed they were also 43 miles from the Loire river city of Nantes, while 27 miles west of Rennes they were approaching Mauron, 108 miles from the French naval base of Brest.

The Germans were finding it hard to hold on even to the only stable stretch of the front, a 35-mile line below Caen.

Latest reports from that area said the Germans there, too, were in retreat, and that Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's Second British army was within an ace of grabbing the stronghold of Villers-Bocage.

Fall of St. Nazaire would open to the Americans the once great troop port through which many of the 2,000,000 American soldiers poured into France in 1917 and 1918.

Yanks Push To Barenton

Another American spearhead pushed to Barenton, 24 miles southeast of Avranches and six miles beyond Mortain, lengthening the wedge driven between Brittany and Normandy, but pulled back slightly.

U. S. First army infantry was rapidly collapsing a pocket formed by this spearhead and a British arm shoved down to Vire from the north. Pushing through minefields the infantry captured one third of the St. Sever forest, Germany's biggest ammunition dump in Normandy.

Yet other forces advanced in

Wide German Area Blasted

LONDON, Aug. 4. (AP) — More than 1,200 U.S. heavy bombers attacked a variety of targets in Germany today, including the Peenemunde experimental station where the enemy develops flying bombs and rockets.

About 1,000 fighters accompanied the bombers, making the armada 2,200 strong.

Other targets included:

A fighter parts plant and airfield at Anklam, 47 miles northwest of Stettin.

An aircraft assembly plant at Rostock, at the Baltic 110 miles northeast of Berlin.

Kiel Port Units Hit

Port installations at the great naval base of Kiel.

An oil refinery at Bremen.

The planes made a flying roundtrip of about 1,200 miles to the German Baltic coast town of Peenemunde, 100 miles north of Berlin.

Before dawn, bombers from Italy and Britain scourged German supply routes across France.

Weather cleared today over most of Europe, enabling the Allies to use fully their overwhelming air power, beginning at the crack of dawn. It was the first time in more than a week that the weather was described as excellent. Bombardiers dumped their lethal loads visually.

Violent Battles Reported

The Germans reported violent air battles over northwestern Germany, and asserted that many American planes were destroyed.

Early in the day, British and American planes from Italy bombed the south of France rail yards at Portes les Valence and bridges near Nice and communications in

WAC Uniforms Are Displayed

Attractively displayed in the Thirteenth street window of Hemphill-Wells company this week is a showing of WAC summer uniforms.

Arranged by Evelyn Webb, display artist of the store, the window features two mannequins attired in WAC regulation clothing. One features the new tropical worsted uniform with contrasting beige scarf and gloves, while the other is the new WAC off-duty dress of sand dust shantung.

The latter will be seen for the first time in this district and already has created quite a bit of enthusiasm among feminine members of Lubbock. It is the regulation attire to be worn by all feminine military personnel of the Army while off duty and is accented by a large brown leather bag and high heeled spectator pumps. True to fashion predictions, both the summer uniform and off-duty dress are highlights of modern design and are meeting with the approval of more than 100,000 WACs who are wearing them now.

Similar dresses will be issued all enlisted WACs in horizon tan for fall and winter wear.

Sgt. Helen R. Cunnison, in charge of the local rceruiting station, stated that more and more clothing is being issued members of the WAC and that complete details about enlisting in the organization can be secured at the Army recruiting office, room 203 of the postoffice building.

Lamb 4-H Clubbers Due Here Today

Trucks laden with approximately 200 4-H club boys and girls from Lamb county are due to arrive at the fairgrounds about 5 o'clock this afternoon for a program continuing until 4 p. m. Saturday, according to a report at the chamber of commerce this morning.

They will go immediately to adjoining Mackenzie state park for an hour of games arranged by Mrs. Grace Dyess, city recreation superintendent. Welcoming ceremonies at which W. L. Stangel, head of the department of animal husbandry at Texas Technological college, will speak will be followed by a picnic supper. The visitors will spend the night on the fairgrounds.

Saturday's program will include a baseball game, a swim, lunch in the park community building, a downtown picture show and a visit to West Texas museum on the Tech campus.

Final plans for the open house at the Lubbock Boys club Monday night were made at the luncheon of the American Business club today noon in the Hilton hotel. Also further plans for the rodeo being held the latter part of this month by the club were made. Club members and guests stood in silence in memory of Ben Jenkins, former member, who was killed in action on July 12 in the Italian area. President J. Ray Dickey presided.

Reservations Urged For Aviation Meet

An urgent request that those planning to attend the area aviation conference in Hilton hotel Monday send in their reservation cards at once was made at the chamber of commerce this morning.

The cards are important, it was explained, so that preparations can be made for the proper number of gusts at the noon luncheon at which visitors will be guests. Due to manpower and rationing problems, it will be impossible to serve many more guests at the lunch than are prepared for well in advance, officials said.

Cards have been sent to mayors, chamber of commerce secretaries and editors throughout the area. If any of these have been overlooked or have failed to receive invitations, they still are invited and are asked to send in reservations immediately, officials said.

NLRB Asked To Probe Odessa Labor Dispute

DALLAS, Aug. 4 (AP)—Recommendation has been made to the National War Labor board in Washington by the regional board here that a tripartite panel be named to probe into a labor dispute at the North Crowder field of the Stanolind Oil and Gas company near Odessa. Forty employes have been off the job since June 20.

Clifford W. Potter, regional WLB disputes director, said yesterday no decision was reached at a hearing of the board to determine whether the work stoppage was a strike or a lockout. The recommendation to form a panel followed the hearing.

Flier Being Tried In Aerial Mishap

ELLINGTON FIELD, Aug. 4 (AP)—Lt. Allen D. Reed, of Brady, Tex., appeared before a general court martial today on charges resulting from mid-air collision of two planes and death of five men early in June.

Reed was charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of the five fliers and also with violation of an Air force regulation forbidding flying a plane within 500 feet of another plane in flight while not in authorized formation.

The mid-air collision occurred June 5 near Plaucheville, La., on a routine mission. One of the planes fell into a swamp and all aboard were killed. Reed gained control of his plane and flew it back safely to Ellington with four men aboard.

Transportation In Reading Is Curbed

READING, Pa., Aug. 4 (AP)—A work stoppage of Reading street railway company workers in protest over union suspension of 13 members of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL) cut the city's transportation facilities to 75 per cent today.

The figure was expected to drop still lower when night shifts, which operated during the morning rush hours, complete their runs.

P. L. Murphy, spokesman for a group of the association members who met last night and decided not to take out their trolleys and buses today, said the action was directly attributable to the union's suspension.

Methods Given For Easy Meals

Quick meals—easy meals—one-dish meals—these are topics which interest busy homemakers. A few suggestions by Jessie Alice Cline, home economist, include some recommendations for broiler meals.

Contrary to popular belief broiler meals, can be quick, easy and "one-dish," says Miss Cline. They are quick, because the tender cuts of meat suitable for broiling are those which cook in a few minutes.

So long as the meat is broiled far enough away from the heat, this cookery method is easy also. There is no burning or spattering of fat and the meat needs to be turned only once.

The meal featuring broiled meat may be made "one-dish" by heating cooked vegetables, such as rice or hominy, in the bottom of the broiler pan while the meat is cooking. If there is room on the broiler rack next to the meat, bread may be toasted at the same time or halves of tomatoes may be broiled in this space.

An English grill is a hearty broiler meal that is very popular. Cooked vegetables may be heated in the bottom of the broiler pan in this case too. For each person to be served, provide one thick lamb chop, one lamb kidney, one slice of bacon and one thick slice of tomato. Put lamb chops on to broil first. When nicely browned and about half done turn chops and add tomato slices sprinkled with bread crumbs, and kidneys which have been split. Put bacon on about five minutes before chops are done. Serve with baked potato.

Here is another broiler meal planned around ground beef:

Beef Patty Broiler Meal

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper.
- 1-3 teaspoon mace
- ½ cup rye bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 1 egg
- 1 cup milk
- 1 No. 2 can green beans or cooked left-over beans

Au Gratin or creamed potatoes.

Combine beef, seasonings, crumbs, catsup, egg and milk. Mix well and allow to stand for 2 hours. Arrange cooked green beans, either left-over or canned, in one-half of heated broiler pan with potatoes or a second cooked vegetable in other half. Place broiler rack over vegetables. Shape meat into large patties. Place on broiler rack. Arrange in broiler so that the top of the meat will be about 3 inches from the source of heat. Broil on one side until nicely browned, about 20 minutes. Turn and broil on second side, about 8 to 10 minutes. Serve immediately on hot plates.

BRAISED PORK HOCKS AND VEGETABLES—Served with a green salad and hot corn muffins, this pork hock and vegetable dinner is food for flavor. To prepare pork hocks, remove skin from 6 fresh pork hocks. Brown in hot fat, season with salt and pepper, and add a small amount of water. Cover and cook slowly until pork is well done or for about two hours. Add more water as needed. An hour before the end of the cooking period, add 6 medium-sized carrots, cut in strips and 6 medium-sized potatoes cut in fourths. When tender, remove the bone from pork hocks and stuff carrot strips in place of bones. Serve with browned potatoes. Serves 6.

Adequate Diet Of Meat Is Needed By Growing Children

Mothers, watch the time! No other years depend on an adequate diet as do your children's years of growth. Milk, eggs, and meat are the three primary protein foods and around them should be built children's meals. Meat proteins contain the amino acids needed for growth. And of course meat appeals to children and is often an incentive for them to eat.

Doctors prescribe scraped beef for infants as young as eight months old. One-year-olds can easily handle strips of bacon cooked crisp and dry and the fat provides energy and digests easily in the stomach. Too, the bacon strips are good finger food and help children learn to chew. Lean beef and lamb are excellent, and kidneys, liver, brains and sweetbreads are extra rich in vitamins and minerals and can easily be chewed. It's good training, too, for children to learn to eat the highly nutritious variety meats while young.

Growing children need two and one-half to three times as much protein per pound of body weight as grown-ups. Thus a boy weighing fifty to seventy-five pounds needs as much protein per day as a man weighing one hundred and fifty pounds.

Preparing meat for children is simple. Cook bacon crisply but not till it's dry. In preparing scraped beef for infants, prepare only that needed for one feeding. All meet for preschool youngsters should be cut or ground fine enough so they can eat it easily. Make ground meat into tiny balls or cut stews fine, for large bites and servings are discouraging to children.

During preschool years when children need special foods especially prepared, feed them at a special time of their own, so they can see and eat only what they should have. As they get older they can eat any kind of meat so long as it's simply prepared and not highly seasoned. Plan family menus around children's needs. Include plain roasts, stews, pot roasts, or broiled patties. Some of the most savory of dishes are good for children. In fact, here are some, tested recipes equally suitable to children and grown-ups:

Liver Loaf

- 1½ pounds liver
- 4 slices bacon
- ½ onion
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 2½ cups soft bread crumbs
- 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Let slices of liver stand in hot water for ten minutes and then grind with the onion and bacon. Add eggs, crumbs and seasonings and pack firmly into a loaf pan. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees F. Serves 6 or 7.

Meat Loaf

- 1¼ pounds lean round steak, ground three times
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup cornflakes or fine moist bread crumbs
- 1 egg, beaten slightly
- ¾ cup milk
- ¼ small onion, grated

Combine the ingredients in the order listed. Make into a loaf. Bake for 40 minutes at 350 degrees F. Serves 6.

RECIPE OF THE MONTH

Food rationing doesn't need to be frightening, but every homemaker must learn to make the most of the available food supply by careful selection and preparation for daily menus. There's no single food that can take the place of meat, but it can be combined with other foods and have its flavor extended to them.

Sausage is so full of good flavor that it combined well with vegetables as well as the more bland foods. This sausage casserole comes from the receipe of Jessie Alice Cline, home economist.

Sausage and Vegetable Casserole

- 1 pound sausage links
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 onion, diced
- ½ green pepper, diced
- 6 pieces celery, diced
- ½ cup catsup
- 2½ cups cooked kidney or red beans

Place sausage in cold frying-pan. Add water, cover and simmer until water evaporates. Remove cover, increase heat and brown sausage. Add onion, green pepper, celery, tomato soup and catsup. Cover and simmer slowly for 30 minutes. Add beans to cooked mixture and heat.

KITCHEN KORNER

The Chinese used spices more than 4,000 years ago.

Try muffin pans for making individual meat loaves.

Use kitchen shears for chopping parsley and chives.

Meat will be more tender if it is evenly flecked with fat.

Lamb is best when pink with creamy or pinkish fat.

A tart punch is more thirst quenching than sweet.

Beef should have a firm even covering of fat and be bright red and close-grained.

Milking machines cut milking time in half and help produce more milk.

A ring mold will make ordinary noodles, rice and gelatin desserts extra special.

Cereal served with fresh fruit and cold milk makes a satisfying lunch, or even a nice cool dessert.

Celery combines well with peas, snap beans, or carrots. Serve buttered or in a cream sauce.

Unsweetened grapefruit juice sprinkled over cooking fish (baked, broiled or pan-fried) gives a good tart flavor.

Add carbonated water to fruit punch just before serving it to have the water retain the sparkle.

Let the children prepare salads and simple desserts. While they are having fun mother is giving a simple lesson in nutrition.

Sweeten punches with sugar and water syrup to prevent the sugar from settling to the bottom of the pitcher or punch bowl.

To make syrup for punch, boil two cups of sugar and three cups of water for five minutes. Cool, chill and sweeten as desired.

Stuff some figs half open with cottage cheese mixed with cubed oranges and pineapple. Serve on crisp salad green and top with French dressing.

For beautiful colored and edible garnishes use your sharp kitchen knife to make carrot sticks, celery curls, and radish roses.

To make the winter's meals more interesting and to provide vitamins A and C, can as many tomatoes as possible and if you have plenty of them, try making your own tomato juice.

Add an interesting flavor to devilled eggs by using a bit of lemon or lime juice with the egg yolk mixture. Or use sour cream, minced parsley, chives, or anchovy paste.

Brittany Conquest Turned Into Race

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The fast-moving conquest of Brittany seems to be developing into an astonishing race to determine whether the speeding American armored columns can overrun the great peninsula with its magnificent ports before the weakened Germans can bring up reinforcements.

Thus far the Yanks haven't encountered any organized Nazi front, and resistance has been comparatively light. This has been due in considerable degree to the fact that the Hitlerites have had to pull many troops out of Brittany to defend their tottering Normandy line.

Of course we don't know how strongly the ports of Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient—our chief objectives—may be garrisoned. However, we get some measure of enemy weakness in our walk-over at the Breton capital of Rennes. This is a pivotal rail and highway center and the Nazis would defend it to the best of their ability.

Sever Main Railroad

If the Germans aren't already holding the ports strongly, their prospects are slim. By capturing Rennes the Americans have severed the main railroad into the peninsula and one column is thrusting swiftly across the base of the big triangle towards St. Nazaire while another heads for Brest at the apex.

Although the southern sector of the base is still open, the Allied air armada is rendering communications devilishly precarious. The sky navy is a major factor in this battle of lightning movement which may teach Adolf something about the blitz warfare he initiated in '39 with so much gutteral bombast.

The Breton peninsula is a pearl of great price. Not only will its fine ports greatly increase our capacity to pour troops and materiel into France but—and this is of great importance—Hitler's U-boats have been using Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire as prime bases from which to raid Allied shipping.

Berlin now admits that Marshal Rommel, field commander on the invasion front, suffered concussion of the brain, although he is said to be doing well. One wonders how much the Nazis have felt the loss of his undoubted skill. They likely wish now he could have remained on the job, to settle the argument with his old antagonist, Montgomery.

For my money Monty is the better man by a long way. I followed the tracks of the Montgomery-Rommel duel from El Alamein to Bengasi, close to 600 miles, and anyone who saw the pattern in the sands of the desert couldn't doubt who was top man.

Lake Charles Getting Ice From Harlingen

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 4. (AP)—Mayor J. H. Handley said today that the city of Lake Charles, combatting an ice shortage, is selling the second carload of ice shipped in from Harlingen, Tex., after losing $38 on the first 21-ton car.

"Ice is being sold to domestic consumers only," the mayor said, "with a limit of 50 pounds to the family. We are trying to add to our supply from other sources, but so far Harlingen is the only place we can get ice."

To supplement the civilian campaigns for collection of waste paper, the Army has promised to salvage and return to the United States much waste paper, including fiber boxes from at least two combat areas.

County Schools To Get $48,028

Schools in Lubbock county will receive $48,028 from the $6,000,000 state surplus fund soon to be distributed, school officials estimated Thursday.

On the basis of $4 per capita, the announced plan of distribution, Lubbock independent school district will receive $33,056, Slaton independent district $4,024 and rural schools the remainder, officials said.

Information received here that the distribution will proceed at once under an attorney general's opinion that it will be legal.

To Increase Salaries

A. C. Jackson, business manager and tax collector for Lubbock Independent district, said next year's salary schedule called for a 5 per cent increase in addition to the normal increase of salaries. The average salary of Lubbock teachers last year, excluding principals, was $1,559 and next year it will be $1,637, Jackson said.

He said an official notice of the state surplus money had not been received by his office. What is to be done with the state windfall, is up to the board of trustees. It is possible it will be absorbed in the 5 per cent raise already approved by the board. The instruction budget for next year was approved in hope of more money being available to the district.

Roy Boyd, county superintendent, explained that no school receiving state aid, such as Lubbock county rural schools, could raise salaries of teachers out of the extra money without an enactment of legislature. According to the present law, salaries of state aid school districts are set by the State.

On the basis of last year's scholastics, 2,737 rural schools including Cooper, Frenship, New Deal, Roosevelt, Shallowater, Idalou, Estacado and Posey, will receive $10,948 supplemnetal allotment.

Grand Jury Panel For 72nd Court Named

The following grand jury panel will report the morning of Aug. 14 to Judge Dan Blair of the 72nd judicial district, in Lubbock, for the August term of court:

Henry Mahoney of Shallowater; R. B. Speer and W. R. Tanner, both of or near Idalou; G. H. Campbell of Wolfforth; Grover C. Gillett of Lubbock route 2; E. J. Parsons, Charles R. Bacon, Bryan R. Shaw, C. H. Hamilton and N. S. Walton, all of Lubbock; M. T. Darden of near Lorenzo; Joe Walker, Judge C. Smith, sr., L. A. Hanral, all of Slaton, and J. A. Russell and V. E. Railsback, both of near Slaton.

A grand jury of 12 men will be selected from the 16-man panel.

The 16 were named by a grand jury commission of Vernice Ford of Lubbock, W. O. Fortenberry of Monroe, G. L. Farrar of Wolfforth, John Toler of Idalou and E. R. Legg of Slaton, when the commission met June 30.

Judge Blair also supervised drawing of petit juries for eight weeks of the August term of court, assisted by Elmo Payne, deputy district clerk, and F. R. Land, deputy sheriff.

Surplus Army Foods Going To Civilians

DALLAS, Aug. 4. (AP) —Twenty million dollars of surplus Army foods "have been turned to civilian trade in a plan to dispose of surpluses as they occur," reports M. L. Brenner, a Washington War Food administration official.

"A large part of the food has been sold back to the manufacturers. We are getting excellent cooperation from the trade in that respect because it is good business for both the processors and the government, since the surpluses then cannot be used to degress the market," said Brenner, chief of the procurement and price support branch of WFA's distribution office.

Brenner said large stocks of food left to the armed forces at the end of the war will not be dumped on the market to upset trade as they were at the end of the last war.

Congress will have the final say in what will become of the surplus food, Brenner said, but "we want to see the greater bulk of it go to those countries which may find themselves short of food after the war — Russia, France and many of the liberated countries.

As for the surplus food that cannot be sold abroad, Brenner said his branch is attempting to set up a system by which the products will be sold back to the manufacturers or the industry.

Chicago Cubs Move Into First Division

Grimm's Men Win Pair Over Dodgers

(By The Associated Press)

Cholly Grimm's banjo strummed a merry tune today as the Chicago Cubs inhaled rarefied first division air after spending the first three and a half months of the season in and out of the National league cellar.

The Bruins headed high via Pittsburgh with a 9-game win streak and a record of 12 victories in 17 eastern starts. Since June 25, when Grimm's crew was mired in last place by 4½ lengths, Chicago took 26 of 38 games to pull past all the eastern entries. For the first time this season, the four western clubs hogged the first division spots.

Nicholson Homers Twice

Bill Nicholson stepped up his home run production from its usual sub-par start and clouted Nos. 22 and 23 yesterday as the Cubs humbled Brooklyn twice, 6-2 and 7-1. Nicholson moved past Mel Ott of the New York Giants in the home run derby and passed the Cards' Ray Sanders to take the R. B. I. lead with 75.

Bob Chipman, who was acquired from Brooklyn for Ed Stanky June 7, topped the club with an 11-4 win record, three against his old Dodger mates. Bill Fleming won 6 of his last 7 and Hank Wyse 6 of his last 8 starts while Claude Passeau regained some of his old form to hurl 9 complete games in his last 10 outings. Paul Derringer became a relief hurler in mid-June after failing as a starter and made 12 helpful appearances.

Derringer Helps Chipman

Chipman needed help from Derringer yesterday to grab a 6-2 nod in the first game over Curt Davis, but Passeau went all the way, scattering 10 hits, to decision Tom Warren in a 7-1 nightcap. Nicholson with 5 for 8 and Cavarretta with 5 for 9 boosted their averages to an even .300.

St. Louis humbled Pittsburgh, 15-2, with Teddy Wilks copping his seventh straight and his 10th win to one loss. Danny Lithwiler batted in six runs with four hits, including a three-run homer.

Chicago's White Sox went into a fifth-place tie with Detroit in the American league by downing Cleveland twice, 3-2 and 5-1. Bill Dietrich nosed out Al Smith in the opener with the help of Johnny Dickshot's triple, and Orval Grove got the nod over Chief Reynolds in the second.

All other big league clubs enjoyed an open date.

Dean's Service, H-W Cats Battle To Draw

The first half champions, Bill Dean's Service, and the Hemphill-Wells Cats battled through nine innings Thursday afternoon at Chapman field to have darkness end the battle at a 3-3 deadlock in one of the best played games of the season in the older junior baseball loop.

It was a hurling duel between Phil Ragland of the Champions and Bob Galey of the Cats which found the Cats coming from behind after the Deanmen had bounded away to a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Galey limited the Deanmen to four hits, and after the rocky start in the first inning, blanked the Deanmen for the last eight rounds and appeared to be getting better the farther he went.

Ragland was pitching his farewell game for the Deanmen, and expects to answer the call to the armed service next Monday. He gave up nine hits, but kept them well scattered.

The Cats pushed over one run in the second, and tied the score with a pair of tallies in the fifth, then were helpless before Ragland's pitching for the final four innings.

Varieties Cop Close One From LAAF Team

After going hitless for the regulation seven innings, the league leading South Plains Army Air field Varieties bunched their two hits in the eighth to win a 1 to 0 thriller from the Lubbock Army Air field Civilians Thursday afternoon at the softball diamond.

The lone run was produced by Caretti's double, a stolen base and Chmura's single.

Rains hurled three hit ball for the Varieties while putting the third strike past eight of the Civilians. Montez caught. Hayes worked on the mound for the Civies, limiting the winners to two hits and whiffing 11 Varieties, while Spivey did the catching.

Coaches' School To Be Success

Reservations Are Over 300 Mark

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 4 (AP) —W. C. O. Harris of Fort Worth, president of the Texas High School Coaches association, says indications are the group's annual coaching school opening here Monday will be the best since the war started.

Reservations by the coaches, which have exceeded the 300 mark, and a fine program will make the school "the best ever," said Harris on his arrival here yesterday with Bill Carmichael of Bryan, association secretary.

On the basis of registration yesterday afternoon, the attendance at the school would probably exceed that of 1942 and 1943 combined, Harris remarked.

Harris said the school has two fine squads of high school all-stars selected for the game Aug. 11 which climaxes the week, and one of the best faculties in history.

Four States Represented

Coaches from four states have registered so far, Harris said, adding that Fayetteville, Ark., Hobbs, N. M., and Lawton, Okla., are already represented from outside Texas.

Faculty for the school includes Jeff Cravath of Southern California, who will coach the North Texas team; Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech, coach of the South Texas team; Dell Morgan, Texas Tech mentor at Lubbock; Blair Cherry, University of Texas coach, Austin; Sammy Baugh, former Texas Christian star and now member of the Washington Redskins professional club; Abb Curtis, Southwest conference official, and Roy Bedichek and Rodney Kidd, of the Texas Interscholastic league, Austin.

LAAF Boxer Kayoed In Abilene Tourney

ABILENE, Aug. 4 (AP) — The Fort Bliss, El Paso, boxing team went into the second and last day of the Texas amateur athletic federation tournament here leading with three points, as the San Antonio and Camp Barkeley's 12th Armored division teams trailed with two each.

Pacing last night's opening was Cpl. Don Coombes' knockout of Cpl. Hardy Sorkin, Lubbock Army Air field fighter and last year's heavy titlist fighting this year in the 175-pound class. Coombes, from the 12th Armored division, kayoed Sorkin with a blow that knocked him through the ropes. Only the bell saved the 1943 champion.

Coombes tonight faces Cpl. Tom Attra, Brooks field fighter from San Antonio, in the finals of the light heavyweight division. Attra last night decisioned Pfc. Bill H. Orey, 169, of Fort Bliss.

SPAAF Girls Win In 'Battle Of Homers'

The long awaited battle between WAC softball teams from LAAF and SPAAF developed into a battle of Babe Ruths as the SPAAF girls won an 11 to 8 victory over the LAAF club in a women's league softball game played at the South Plains field. Eight home runs featured the free hitting encounter, and accounted for 15 of the 19 runs.

SPAAF scored all but one of its runs by homers, getting one in the first inning by Buchaineau with the sacks empty, two in the second by Angelly and Dullam, each with one on base, one in the third by Georgeau with two on base and one in the fifth by Stang with one on base.

Belgan homered in the third and fifth for LAAF, each time finding a mate on the runways, and Watercan homered in the seventh with none on to account for five of LAAF's runs with three round trippers.

Both sides were doing lusty hitting with LAAF coming 26 hits from the delivery of Elkins while the winners were getting 24 hits off Flanders' tosses.

Golden Jubilee Event Tonight To Honor Connie Mack For 50 Years In Baseball

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4. (AP)—"The first 50 years were the easiest," smiled Connie Mack as he looked back today over his years as a major league manager while last minute preparations for his golden jubilee celebration at Shibe park tonight were rushed to completion.

Early indications were that one of the largest crowds of sports fans will be on hand to attend the gala program honoring the owner and manager of the Athletics.

Baseball's great of today and yesteryear — Honus Wagner, Tris Speaker, George Sisler, Mickey Cochrane, Bill Dickey, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and a score of others—will be on hand to honor the grand old man of baseball.

Still Ardent Baseball Booster

In the 50 years since "Mr. Baseball" began his managerial career with the Pittsburgh Nationals on Aug. 4, 1894, Cornelius McGillicuddy — as he prefers to be called — has lost some of his shyness but none of his fervor for the nation's No. 1 sport.

Nearing 82, the tall, erect, silver-haired old gentleman said he looks forward to another world's championship for his Athletics before he quits baseball.

Highlighting tonight's celebration which will precede the regular A's-Yankees game, will be the presentation of Mack's all-stars. As each name is called out, Mack will greet him at home plate.

Karlen Bros. Nine Is In Semi-Finals

WACO, Aug. 4 (AP) — Dallas' Karlen Bros. team tonight plays the Fort Worth Army Air field nine in the semi-finals of the state semi-pro baseball tournament and the winner meets the Waco Army Air field Sunday in the finals.

Fort Worth won the right to the semi-finals by nosing out a spirited and under-rated North Camp Hood club last night 5-4.

ABC Nine Gets Easy Win Over Jaycees

The American Business club went to work early on Junior Chamber of Commerce pitching, and coasted to an easy 16 to 5 victory Thursday afternoon at Tech field after getting away to an eight run start in the first inning.

McCullum and Jackson limited the Jaycees to six hits, one of these a home run in the first inning by Galey, Jaycee catcher, with two men on base, and the pair of chunkers were never in danger of losing the long lead gained early in the ball game.

The ABC lads laid down a withering barrage of 21 hits at the expense of Lynch and Boyer.

Gunder Haegg Out To Break Two-Mile Mark

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4 (AP) — Gunder Haegg will attempt to break his own world record of 8:46.4 for the two-mile run tonight in Stockholm stadium.

Haegg missed equalling the two-mile mark by eight-tenths of a second last Wednesday at Gayle because he said he failed to hear the final lap gun. Most Swedish sports writers believe he can eclipse the record this time, barring bad weather or accident.

The new aqueduct at Caracas, Venezuela, cost approximately $24,000,000.

War Bond Ring Show All Set

Bob Montgomery To Meet Beau Jack

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. (AP)—It's beginning to look as if Madison Square Garden will be filled with service men tonight as Army Privates Beau Jack and Bob Montgomery meet in a 10-round lightweight scrap to which war bond purchases offer the only path to admittance.

Estimates on the "gate" range from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. When the doors opened today 72 seats had been sold at $100,000 each, more than 100 at $50,000, and about 125 at $25,000, along with an uncounted total of smaller purchases.

The first tree rows, where the seats cost ranges from $25,000 to $100,000, will be turned over to wounded service men back from the Pacific, Normandy and Italy.

Services Given Free

Beau Jack, the former Augusta, Ga., bootblack, who is giving his services free along with Montgomery, bought $1000 worth of $25 bonds yesterday and turned the tickets over to an Army hospital. His manager, Frankie Thomas, did the same. An unidentified man stepped up to a ticket window yesterday, bought $100,000 worth of bonds, took a look at his heap of tickets, and said "give 'em to the service men."

Along with the two principals, each of whom has held the New York version of the lightweight crown twice — with Montgomery the present king — the entire card of fighters will receive no cash for tonight's effort. Mike Jacobs has donated the service of his entire promotional machine, and a safety razor company (Gillette) will pick up a tab for about $15,000 of various expenses necessary to putting on the show.

What Readers Of The Evening Journal Say—
The Plainsman Gets Some Mail

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters from readers are welcomed at all times and on all subjects. However, no letter of more than 300 words will be considered for publication, and all letters belittling, or impugning the motive of any individual, firm or corporation must include for publication, the true name of the author. The Editor shall be the sole judge of whether or not letters may be published and cannot engage in correspondence concerning them).

HIGH RENTS

Dear Plainsman: Outrageous rent prices still continue throughout the country, yet the people are promised a ceiling on these prices.

At the present time, and until hostilities cease, our people are, and will be making a larger salary than in previous years. Because of this fact, real estate companies and landowners, instead of cooperating with the war effort by reducing the rent prices, have tried to "up" the people so much as possible.

Soldiers wives, if able to locate an apartment, must pay an outrageous price. This can mean only one thing — the people who are unnecessarily charging the high rent prices are looking out for themselves, exclusively. Instead of everyone co-operating by keeping down inflation and buying war bonds, take advantage of the helpless, therefore depriving them of a chance to buy bonds.

Not only servicemen, but civilians, are forced to pay higher rents than ever. That is due to the scarcity of rental places. While our GI Joe's are battling with the enemy, our renters at home are staging a battle with the tenants for higher rents. This is not patriotic, and only causes more confusion day by day. I believe that when the American people decide to co-operate more fully with our fighting men, it will mean a sooner ceasing of hostilities.

best be described as a "jungle of machinery" of all kinds.

MANY of the operations appear meaningless. People seem to be just "working with gadgets," which, as you inspect them as you duck under the edge of a stanchion, "don't make sense."

But don't think there are any lost motions here. Each operation, no matter how apparently inconsequential, means something. Without it, the B-24 can't fly and if it can't fly, it can't help hurry Victory.

Here a girl applies a certain color to a certain type of tubing. That means that type of tubing goes into a certain "slot" on a Liberator which, next week, may be bombing the daylights out of a Jap-held isle. Here a giant negro operates a machine which cuts a groove into a piece of metal. But he isn't cutting the groove either for fun, or aimlessly. The machine he is using has been tooled and set so the groove is "just so"—exact to a millionth of an inch. It has to be that way, so the Liberator upon which it is used will be "just right."

You wonder about these people working all around you—many of them repeating the same movements, in rotation, in exact cadence. They seem something like robots, and their rhythmic steps are as complicated as those of the members of football pep squads working out an intricate between-halves exercise.

Here is a hefty woman, certainly nearing 50, who has a son in the South Pacific. Here is a young girl, up from Tennessee and making more for a week's work of 54 hours than she ever dreamed possible for her.

Here is a sweating, broad-shouldered negro of 40, or thereabouts, working in team unison with another negro and and a white man, operating a stamping press that exerts a pressure of 1,000 tons. Next to him, carefully checking forgings, is the wife of a college professor who serves nearby University of Michigan and is working her 54-hour week—with a membership in the all-powerful CIO—because she wants to make a personal contribution to the war effort.

These people you see all around you are from everywhere—lured to Willow Run by the magic word "gold," but realizing that most of them will, after Victory, have to trek back to their old locales and take up where they left off as $12-per week soda skeets, store clerks and field hands.

WE work our way—it takes about four hours and a mile-and-a-half of walking, stooping and dodging — through the manufacturing wing of the government owned, Ford operated Willow Run plant and plunge into another veritable wilderness of operations but this one—the assembling wing—makes sense. For here, after all the materials have been sent through various sub-stations and stations of the manufacturing wings, is where the "assembly line" is working.

You see an embryo bomber—only disformed parts, such as skin and stringer assemblies, bomb and hatch doors, etc.—at the near end of the line. You watch it move slowly, by conveyor or crane, to the next position, where it takes on other parts. Soon it reaches what is called the "central wing section," where the plane takes on the inner parts of each wing and really begins to "look like a Liberator."

What astounds you is the amount of work being done by the slacks-wearing women workers. Some are hefty and with "middle-age spreads." Others look like—and many are—young housewives and mothers. Still others are willowy young girls, little more than children. But they swarm over, under and inside the ships on the line and one young woman, high over head, operates a giant crane as easily as her grandmother, at the same age, rocked a cradle!

On down the "line"—we're not far from pay-dirt now—we follow the bombers. Here they apply the armor plate; there, the outer wings go on. The big ship has had its four 1,-250-horsepower motors swung into place now, and the landing gear has been battened into place. She's no longer on a conveyor, she is propelled on her own wheels.

We notice that at each station there is a sign. It reads, "Ship moves at Such-and-such a time." The crews working at the various stations know, then, how many minutes they have to complete their particular part of the work and there can be no loafing or stalling. Some work only steadily. But others labor almost madly, because when the clock reaches the prescribed minute the ship moves. It must be ready for the next operation.

THE writer can attest to one thing and that is this: while war work is well paid, it is no cinch; it is no place for a loafer, or for an inefficient, lackadaisical worker.

There are 30,000 or more workers at Willow Run and each puts in a six-day, 54-hour week at an average wage of $70. That "ain't hay," as the boys say, but the job is no picnic. The nerve strain—accentuated by the din—must be terrific. In fact, a great many people either cannot, or will not, stand up under it.

Willow Run has trained 80,000 workers of various kinds to get a total of 50,000 acceptable ones.

That gives a rough idea of how many can—or will—take the beating that the jobs demand.

First thing we know, we're at the end of the "line" and before us—at the head of a procession of other bombers—stands a completed B-24.

Do we want to look in? Of course, we do.

There she stands, guns and all, waiting for the big doors ahead of her to pull upward so she can be rolled to the edge of the landing field—ready to be gassed and oiled so her motors may be tested, first on the ground and then in the air.

We shake our heads, those of us who have viewed this man-made miracle. Although we've seen the big plane grow from only a pile of materials to a United Nations death-dealing monster, we still can't realize exactly what we saw.

All we know is that Willow Run—which has smashed all previous theories of airplane manufacturing—is a tribute to the human mind and to the skill of American management, engineering and labor.

(MONDAY: Detroit, like most of the great Northern metropolitan centers, sits 'on the powder-keg of racial misunderstanding.)

Feminine Viewpoint

BY RUTH MILLETT
(Copyright, 1944, For The Journal)

AT Neel's Creek, N. C., there is a stream where only women are allowed to fish. It's supposed to be the only creek in the world set aside for the exclusive use of women.

MILLETT

Perhaps that is because most women really don't want to be set apart. They want to fish where the men fish, but they want an even break. They don't want men hogging the best fishing places or using better bait than is permitted women.

Women don't want special privileges, but they do want equal rights, and when they do a man's work (and often a little more than a man would do on the same job) they want a man's pay.

That is all they ask of the post-war world. A chance to compete with men for the jobs available on the basis of ability. They don't want to be told to go and fish in their own creeks. Not after they have proved their ability and worth standing right alongside men.

We'll bet that idea of having a stream just for women was an idea the men cooked up. That way they could discourage women from competing with them in their own chosen streams.

MEN FEAR COMPETITION

IT is certainly the reason why so many men are already talking about sending women back home as soon as the war is over. What men really mean when they say "women's place is in the home" is "If we give them their own stream to fish in, and discourage them from fishing ours, they won't be cluttering up the place, and we won't have to compete with them."

And that is a line that women should be too smart to go for, even if the bait is made to look attractive.

Today's Journal Editorial

PRACTICABILITY COMES FIRST

Reasoning people will find it difficult to pick flaws in a "blueprint for furloughs" for soldiers overseas as outlined in a letter from Secretary of War Stimson to Rep. Louis Ludlow of Indiana last week.

Mr. Ludlow is the author of a bill which would require home furloughs for all soldiers after 18 months of foreign service. Secretary Stimson opposes the Ludlow measure.

However, it should be emphasized that his opposition to the particular bill does not imply opposition to the idea of furloughs for men overseas. On the contrary, Mr. Stimson and other responsible military leaders have made clear on frequent occasions that they favor leaves for as many men as possible as often as possible — all within reason, of course—for the simple reason that such a system strengthens morale and makes better fighting men.

The fact that furloughs have not been more frequent has not been due to preference on the part of Mr. Stimson or the commanders. It has been due to conditions beyond the control of the secretary and the generals. Shortage of ships for transportation and the insufficiency of battle-wise soldiers of all kinds—officers and enlisted men—have made it impractical and dangerous to grant furloughs which have been long past due. Men often have been kept in action much longer than has been desirable for the simple reason that no one was available to replace them. Furloughs for them have been impossible without grave risk to the men that they would have left behind.

Secretary Stimson reported, however, that the situation is being improved, and that the improvement should continue. This is the natural result of more men and more transportation. Hopes are implied that furloughs may become practical even more frequently than proposed in the Ludlow measure.

Even so, there seems common sense in the secretary's opposition to the Ludlow bill. Certainly no commander should be put in the position of having to grant furloughs when the absence of the men affected might change the result of a battle, a campaign, or even a war.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—One of the most potent and effective lobbies in Washington is now operating quietly backstage to gut the GI bill, best legislation ever passed by Congress for the benefit of war veterans.

The lobby is a combination of mortgage banks and building and loan associations, now pressuring to increase the interest rate on loans to veterans for building homes, also to make the government guarantee all these loans so there will be no risk to the bankers.

Here are the details of what they are driving at. Section 500 of the GI bill has an excellent provision whereby the Veterans' administration can lend money to help veterans build or acquire homes at an interest rate of 4 per cent, with the government guaranteeing 50 per cent, or up to $2,000.

PEARSON

Section 505 then provides that veterans may get second loans from private institutions with the government guaranteeing only 20 per cent. The interest rate on this second loan, it is also provided, shall be one per cent additional, or a total of 5 per cent.

However, the National Housing administration and the Veterans' administration are being pressured by the mortgage lobby to read into section 505 government insurance of the entire second loan. Also the pressure boys want to raise the interest rate to 6 per cent.

Hitherto, the building and loan companies did not go in for insured loans, but now a bloc of leaders in the industry advocate government insurance—though some few oppose. Thus the loan companies not only would have their business guaranteed against loss, but if successful in their lobby scheme also would get interest rates increased.

What the loan lobby undoubtedly foresees is that the GI bill may inaugurate the greatest era of lending and building in the history of the USA. With 10,000,000 veterans demobilized, it is not unreasonable to believe that half, or 5,000,000 may want home loans. This would mean a total of $20,-000,000,000 lent by the government only, over-shadowing any home-loan program the world has seen.

At present the pressure is on Veterans' administrator Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines. What the result will be remains to be seen.

NOTE—Congress generally gives credit as the chief pioneer in promoting passage of the GI bill to William Randolph Hearst.

HAD ROBOT IDEA

FEW people outside Gen. Hap Arnold's personal staff know about it, but back in 1939 he was toying with the same idea of the flying bomb which Hitler is now using to terrorize London.

General Arnold admitted this in a letter to his old friend, the late Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, which has just come to light. Johnson had received a suggestion regarding the flying bomb from Harry O'Neill, creator of the daily comic strip "Broncho Bill," who told old Iron Pants "it sounds crackpot, but I believe it would overwhelm the enemy without jeopardizing the life of a single soldier."

O'Neill went on to describe in detail almost exactly the same thing which Hitler is now using against London. General Johnson, thinking the idea was important for the U. S. Army to investigate, sent it to General Arnold, who replied on March 16, 1939 as follows:

"Dear Johnson:

"There is something in what your friend, H. O'Neill, has to say about aerial bombs. As a matter of fact, as you probably remember, we counted on doing just that during the World war, and at the time the war closed we had a device pretty well perfected which would carry about 200 pounds of explosives to a point some 100 miles or more. The whole thing was built very cheaply. However, the toy airplane idea is something entirely different. It takes just so much power and so much wing spread to lift 100 pounds of explosives, and when you add the weight of the engine and the airplane itself to the 100-pound bomb, the device increases in size fairly rapidly and gets out of the toy class. However, the idea is a good one and is one that we are even now thinking of very seriously.

"Thanks for bringing it to my attention."

This was approximately five months before the Germans touched off World War II by invading Poland. General Arnold did not go ahead with the idea. The Nazis did.

RUBBER TO WHISKY

INSIDE reason for the "whisky holiday" is that there is too much raw synthetic rubber on hand waiting to be processed. Due to the shortage of manpower in the rubber industry, manufacturers are unable to use all the synthetic available to them; haven't the labor force to fabricate tires and other rubber goods—especially for civilian use.

Synthetic deteriorates in quality if not processed within a few months, and if larger and larger quantities continue to pile up, a good deal of the synthetic rubber will be useless. Most of the petroleum process plants for synthetic are still not in full production, despite the fact that it is now two and a half years since Pearl Harbor. So the surplus is accounted for mainly by alcohol processes.

That's why WPB decided to permit the use of alcohol for whisky for the month of August.

NOTES—For months far-sighted Senator Gillette pled and stormed at Jesse Jones to use alcohol for synthetic rubber, thus aiding the farmers of the future. But Jones stuck to the slower method of rubber from petroleum manufactured by his friends, the big oil companies. Bernie Baruch's report admitted the feasibility of quicker rubber from alcohol, but little was done about it.

MURDER CHARGE FILED

HENRIETTA, Aug. 4 (AP) — A charge of murder has been filed against A. Q. Davis, 56, in connection with the fatal shooting at Petrolia, Tex., yesterday of W. A. Landrum, 47. Davis and Landrum were employes of a gas compressor station in Petrolia. Pierre Stine, county attorney of Clay county, said a special grand jury session would be requested to investigate the shooting.

The University of Finland was founded in 1690.

ON BROADWAY
(Copyright, 1944, For The Journal)

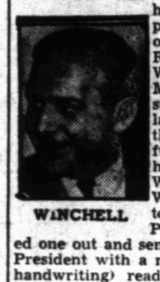

NOTES of a New Yorker—The New York papers recently offered an article by Gypsy Rose Lee's mother. The story was about Gypsy . . . New Yorkers are familiar with the silly quarrel between these two . . . Supposed to have started when Gypsy wrote articles for a magazine about her early career in which her mater was kidded a lot and unfrocked a little . . . Broadwayites later heard buzzing about mother and daughter getting to the point of name-calling.

Once Gypsy received a telegram from her Mom, which warned that unless the two could get together about a certain matter she—the mother — would "give" the story to the newspapers.

"Look, Mom, don't be a fool," replied Gypsy, "don't give it to the papers. Sell it to them."

Now is probably the last time to recount this instance of the humorous byplay that went on between F. D. R. and Henry Wallace. When Mae West was suing Frank Wallace for divorce the papers were full of stories headed "Mae West Charges Wallace, Unkind to Her." The President scissored one out and sent it to the Vice-President with a note (in his own handwriting) reading, "Henry, is this the way to treat your women?"

Ernie Pyle reported the incident of captured Nazi General von Schlieben, who squawked to Yank commanders about American photographers taking his picture without asking permission . . . And how General Collins reminded Von Schlieben that in the United States there is a free press "and we in the army cannot stop our newspapers from printing the news and taking pictures." In Time (or Life) a few editions ago, we read what the photographer said when Von Schlieben barked: "Oh, I am bored with you American photographers taking my picture." The American hocus-focus man (who understood German) snapped back: "And I'm bored taking pictures of captured Nazi generals."

A CERTAIN New York state senator, after a nervous breakdown and a holiday in a sanitarium, was pronounced honkydooly . . . He returned to the Senate at Albany, where he engaged in a hot debate the first day.

During the debate, one of his opponents, forgetting the man's illness, lost his temper and yelled: "You're crazy."

Pulling out his discharge certificate, Our Hero waved it and said: "I can prove I'm sane—can you?"

An ironic fact is that George M. Cohan never could scribble a successful ditty about baseball, the sport he loved so much. Cohan, as all Broadway knew, was a Polo Grounds faithful. Yet the two songs he wrote about baseball were never performed more than a few tired times, even with John McGraw and the Giants lending themselves to its promotion. Yet Albert Von Tilzer's "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" is as famous as the game itself, and Von Tilzer saw his first baseball contest only a short while back, after his tune had been played and sung for decades.

"Take Me, etc.," was not the first baseball song ever written. In 1885 a ballplayer named Kelly was an idol up in Boston. A faithful fan scribbled a ditty tagged "Slide, Kelly, Slide." The three-word phrase became more popular than the song.

A song was responsible for finishing a baseball star's promising career when it looked as though he might develop into another Hubbell or Walter Johnson. His name was Harry Covaleskie, and he was with the Phillies.

One season he established himself by pitching against the Giants three times in five days (beating them in all starts) and taking a pennant right from under their noses. The Giants, burned up, found out later that Covaleskie, as a kid, had trouped in amateur vaudeville singing "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

One afternoon the following Summer Covaleskie was hurling against the Giants when from their dug-out came the strains of "Silver Threads." The Giants kept this up all during that series, and other National League clubs followed with the same ribbing . . . In six weeks, Covaleskie was a nervous wreck . . . The following year saw him fade from baseball completely.

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY (By Wireless) — An ordnance tank repair company gets some freakish jobs, indeed.

The other day the company I was with had a tank destroyer roll in. There was nothing whatever wrong with it except—the end of the gun barrel was corked tight with 2½ feet of wood.

What happened was they had been running along a hedgerow and as the turret operator swung his gun in a forward arc, they ran the end of the barrel smack into a big tree.

ERNIE PYLE

You would think the vehicle had to be going 100 miles an hour to plug the end of the barrel for 2½ feet simply by running into a tree. But it doesn't. This one was going only 20 miles an hour.

It took the ordnance boys four hours to dig the wood out with chisels and reamers. The inside of the barrel wasn't hurt a bit and it went right back into action.

One For Ripley

A 3-inch anti-tank gun was brought in with a hole in the barrel about six inches back from the muzzle. The hole came from the inside! What happened was this: a German bazooka gunner fired a rocket at the anti-tank gun. It made one of those freakish hole-in-one hits—went right smack into the muzzle of the big gun.

About six inches inside it went off and burned its way clear through the barrel. Nobody got hurt but the barrel was unrepairable, and was sent back to England for salvage.

A TANK was brought in that had been hit twice on the same side within a few seconds. The entrance holes were about two feet apart. But on opposite sides of the tank where the shells came out, there was only one hole. The angle of fire had been such that the second shell went right through the hole made by the first one.

In another case, an 88 shell struck the thick steel apron that shields the breech of one of a tank's guns. The shell didn't go through. It hit at an angle and just scooped out a big chunk of steel about a foot long and six inches wide.

It's very improbable that in the whole war this same shield would get hit again in the same place. Yet they can't afford to take that chance, so the weakened armor had to be made strong again.

They took acetylene torches and cut out a plug around the weakened part with slanting sides the same as you'd plug a watermelon. Then they fashioned a steel plate the same size and shape as the hole, and welded it in.

The result is that the plug fits into the hole like a wedge and it would be impossible for a shell to drive it in. It's really stronger than it used to be.

Tires Serviced, Too

One of the most surprising things I ran onto touring around scores of outdoor ordnance shops in Normandy was a mobile tire repair unit.

There already are half a dozen of these units here and more coming in. They fix anything form a motorcycle to truck tires. They don't bother with ordinary holes such as nail holes. Practically all their work is on tires damaged by shrapnel or bullets.

EACH repair outfit consists of one officer and 15 men. They've been especially trained and their leaders usually were tiremen back in civil life.

They move in three trucks. When they set up, the three are backed to each other to form a T, thus making a shop with three wings. You get up to it on a portable staircase.

Outside on the ground tires are stacked all around. One set of soldiers works all day with knives carving out the rubber around the damaged places. Then they take the tire inside, and a machine roughens the edges of the holes so the filling will stick.

Then they mould in fresh rubber and put the tire in one of three baking machines. It's hotter than blazes in there. It takes an hour and 45 minutes to bake each patch, so you see they can't turn them out very fast.

They'll repair a tire that has up to six holes, but if it has more than that they send it back to England. A six-hole tire takes 10½ hours of baking. One unit can run off a maximum of about 65 tires daily. The unit I saw was set up in a former orchard and was so thoroughly camouflaged with nets you could hardly see it. The officer in charge was Lt. George Schuchardt who has "the Hawkinson tread service" in Nashville, Tenn. His partner is running it while he's away.

His first sergeant is Stephen Hudak of Akron, of all places. He used to work for Firestone. I've been finding more damned square pegs in square holes in this Army lately. Something must be wrong.

Yanks Nearing St. Nazaire

rapid strides to within two miles of Evran, seven miles south of captured Dinan on the north side of Brittany, and jumped off to attack the German-held north coast city of St. Malo which had been bypassed in the strike to Dinan.

Fighting rages in Rennes along streets leading to the heart of the town, where an encircled but fanatic enemy garrison was holding out.

Nazis Admit Breakthrough

Berlin, in its high command communique said American troops were "engaging German base garrisons" after a breakthrough into Brittany, and reports from the front continued to stress that only this type of enemy troops was being met—troops which could not be expected to put up as strong resistance as front line outfits.

In spearing to Loheac, five miles from Pipriac, the Americans were just 18 miles oustside Redon, chief communications center of southern Brittany.

The Americans were 41 miles from Vannes, port on the south side of the penninsula, and 70 miles from Lorient, an important port and U-boat base to the west.

As American spearheads raced on toward these great ports the German front of organized resistance in northwestern France shrank to a mere 35 miles from Vire to Caen.

It was estimated that the total Nazi casualties since the invasion totaled 200,000 men — half the enemy's initial force.

Retreating In Confusion

Bedraggled German units which once hemmed in the Allies along a 100-mile expanse in Normandy were retreating in confusion and abandoning their equipment virtually everywhere except along a short stretch between Vire and Caen. The Allied offensive had developed into a sudden threat to the whole 40,000 square mile Seine-Loire quadrangle of northwest France.

Faced with the growing danger of entrapment against the Orne river, the Germans near the middle of their still organized line in Normandy lashed out in a series of tank-supported counter-attacks and forced the British to fall back more than 2,000 yards, a front dispatch said.

A British staff officer discounted the German gains around Aunay, declaring that the counter-attacks might be the enemy's final gesture to cover a retreat from the river bastion.

Yanks Press Westward

American armored columns pressing westward along the north side of the Breton peninsula from Dinan were headed toward Brest some 110 miles away. The force moving southward beyond Rennes was threatening Nantes and St. Nazaire.

Earlier it was unofficially estimated that the Breton peninsula might be cut off by the weekend, with nothing more than a desperate last-ditch defense of Brest and with the enemy organizing for a stand along the south bank of the Loire river, some 60 miles south of Rennes.

Three powerful Allied spearheads from the coastal corridor to the northeast were pressing eastward toward the Orne in an attempt to encircle the desperately battling Germans in the Bocage country.

The first was the British drive in the area of Aunay and Villers-Bocage. Against it the Germans threw counterattacks which forced the British to fall back.

The second was a British push east of Vire which gained several miles along the Vire-Conde road to a point within a dozen miles of the Orne.

The third was an American drive 15 miles farther south from newly captured Mortain, 20 miles east of Avranches. This, with the Vire push, formed a pocket from which remnants of two German armored and four infantry divisions are withdrawing.

At the eastern end of the Allied line, in the area below Caen, the Germans were moving their armor westward toward the Vire area, a front dispatch said. A senior Canadian staff officer on that front estimated the Nazis had thus given up all hope of clinging to every part of their Normandy line as presently constituted.

8,000 Nazis Captured

In the 24 hours up to yesterday afternoon, American troops took 8,000 more prisoners, bringing their total since D-day to around 70,000. The British have captured an estimated 30,000 making the prisoner total 100,000.

The Americans have buried 10,000 German dead, and the Germans themselves have buried at least that many of their own dead.

On this basis, conservative estimates of German wounded on the American sections of the line would total 40,000. On the British sectors, the German dead and wounded are estimated to be at least 30,000, making the overall total of German casualties 190,000.

Allowing a liberal 15,000 men for each of about 27 understrength enemy divisions in the D-day defense layout, the German half of their initial force.

New Blows Hit Japs

vital to reopening the Ledo road back to China.

Southeast Asia headquarters announced Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's triumph today, saying that remnants of the 18th Japanese division were wiped out with bazookas, flame throwers, heavy artillery and mortars in the final hours of the long siege.

Clears Way For Road

Stilwell, nominated to be a four-star general, had by this victory cleared more than 200 miles for his now-building Ledo road out of India, which he plans to link up with the Burma highway into supply-hungry China. His Chinese, American and Imperial troops have in six months swept down the Hukawng valley to capture Kamaing, Mogaung and now Myitkyina, most important enemy base in north Burma.

Two airfields and important road and rail terminals came into Stilwell's control with Myitkyina's fall. The airfields could serve as way stations on the air route from India to China, making it possible to fly around instead of over the awesome "hump" of the Himalayas, the world's highest mountain range.

Chinese Break Into Tengchung

Chinese fighting toward Myitkyina from China's Yunnan province broke into walled Tengchung, another Japanese base, and fought to annihilate the enemy garrison. Tengchung is 60 miles southeast of Myitkyina.

Patrols of the Yunnan force and Stilwell's army were within 20 miles of each other.

More than 3,000 miles to the east, American troops squeezed 7,000 Japanese into the northern sector of Guam, giving them the hard choice of death or surrender. The U. S. soldiers already hold Guam's strategic airfields, harbor and capital city of Agana.

A forested eight miles of Guam stood between the Americans and the sea toward which they were pushing the Japanese. Adm. Chester Nimitz announced last night that 7,893 of the enemy have been slain on Guam since the July 20 landings.

Jap Civilians Give Up

On conquered Tinian to the north 4,000 civilians gave themselves up to internment, while 7,000 have done so on Guam.

On New Guinea the trapped Japanese suffered heavy losses in four more attempts to breach the Allied ring in which they are caught. Nearly 4,000 have been killed since the breakout attempts started July 12.

In China the battle for Hengyang continued at a bloody pitch, with relieving Chinese forces trying to break through the Japanese ring encircling the city. U. S. aircraft, supporting the defenders, set fires visible for 50 miles with attacks on enemy objectives at Canton and Hankow, principal Japanese bases for the Hunan offensive.

GOP Governors

are represented in the councils of the federal government," the report said, "and when by personal contact the president of the United States and the governors of the states achieved that unity of national purpose which transcends partisanship and strives unselfishly for the solution of their common problems.

Representation Lacking

"For the past ten years, entire regions of our country have been without representation in the cabinet or administrative agencies of the federal government. During that period the governors of the states have never once been invited to exchange views with the president of the United States. Both of these conditions have produced costly misunderstanding and can and must be remedied."

With most of the governors returning to their homes, Dewey remained in St. Louis to confer with labor, business, political and other leaders before entraining tonight for Pawling, N. Y., where he will spend the weekend.

Detailed conclusions reached unanimously by the governors, who also organized politically for the presidential campaign, included a recommendation for coordination of federal and state systems to eliminate "double taxation."

Welfare Agencies Cited

Reorganization of the federal administration of welfare agencies was urged by the governors, who said that efforts of the states to develop coordinated programs "are frequently thwarted by the competitive demands of federal bureaus operating grant-in-aid programs in those related fields."

Obviously pleased by his success in drawing the governors actively into the national campaign, Presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey arranged for the release of concluding policy statements and plunged into a series of meetings with labor, business, farm and other leaders of Missouri.

Fresh and unruffled despite long hours spent at conference tables producing gubernatorially-endorsed statements on 14 points where he has said there is "friction" between local and federal governments, Dewey left to National Chairman Herbert Brownell, jr. the job of assaying the political value of a three-hour group talk yesterday on campaign plans.

New Type Unity Cited

The smiling Brownell told reporters a new kind of Republican unity had been welded during the two-day meeting. He added that it was the unanimous view of the 26 governors and himself "that if we carry out our plan of campaign and our program for a united party, the Dewey-Bricker ticket will win in November."

Brownell consistently declined to predict that every state which now has a GOP governor would go against President Roosevelt in November and Gov. Earl Warren of California made it clear that the party knows it has a battle on its hands. Warren said California was in the "nip and tuck" class, but added "we're organizing for a great fight."

While the national chairman would not talk about detailed campaign plans, some of the governors said there was little doubt Dewey and Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, the vice presidential nominee, would inaugurate speaking drives early in September.

Reds Driving On

Pravda said they were striking both east toward that capital of 393,000 and also west toward Liepaja, Latvia's second city and a west coast seaport.

All along the 1,000-mile front from the Baltic to the Carpathians, the Germans were reported rolling up reserves, particularly in the Warsaw and Vistula breach area. Concentrations of the German air force appeared in a desperate attempt to check Russian lunges.

The belief in Moscow quarters was that the Vistula breakthrough might be the start of a serious German route.

East Prussian Areas Hit

Russian planes as well as cannon strongly attacked East Prussian towns and lines of communication, despite poor flying weather. Russian vanguards were within 93 miles of the provincial capital of Konigsberg and 44 from Insterburg, where five railroads lead from iron foundries and machine shops.

German resistance stiffened appreciably near the Prussian border town of Eydtkuhnen. But along the Niemen river due east of Tilsit, Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky struck straight into the Germans and captured Lukse, 42 miles from that rail town. Some 200 towns were swept up in that area.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, while pinning a big group of the enemy's divisions in the Warsaw siege zone, broke loose with his left flank 110 miles southeast of the Polish capital, and pushed a wedge more than 15 miles deep from the Vistula bridgehead at Sandomierz.

Red army infantrymen crossed the Vistula on pontoons and rafts, followed by tanks, the Moscow communique said. In the heavy fighting that followed, 3,000 Germans were killed and 500 captured.

The furious breakthrough sent the Germans reeling in flight from Staszow and Polandiec, 60 miles northeast of Krakow, front dispatches sadi.

The Russians stabbing ahead from Staszow were only 28 miles southeast of Kielce, the Nazi stronghold and southern Polish rail center on which the Germans depend for lateral communications with the Warsaw and Krakow fronts.

(The broadcast said German "police forces" coped with partisans attempting sabotage in the Warsaw area, but that in the Carpathian foothills fighting progressed against "some major groups.")

Forces of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky, Third White Russian army commander, threatened to spill into East Prussia at any moment. Red army shells dropped on German soil from positions in western Lithuania only three miles from the East Prussian border.

MANY LEADERS INACTIVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP) — Low-priced motors absorbed the speculative buying play in today's stock market as many leaders either stood still or backed into moderately losing territory.

Dealings picked up to around 1,000,000 shares for the five hours, best in about two weeks, due to activity of issues quoted under $15. Gains ranged from fractions to a point or so for favorites which came out in blocks of 10,000 shares after a steady start. These were reduced or canceled in many cases at the last and near-closing trends presented a somewhat cloudy appearance.

Graham-Paige duplicated its speed of the day before with a push to a new 1944 peak but failed to hold at the top as did many other early sprinters in the motor group. Ahead the greater part of the proceedings were Hupp Motors, Packard, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and Allied Chemical. Occasional retreaters were U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (NJ), U. S. Rubber, Chrysler and General Motors.

Employment Ceilings

will free American workers for the vital weapons program.

Also, Byrnes disclosed he was trying to arrange for the importation of unskilled foreign labor—presumably from Mexico—"for a limited period where it is impossible to secure adequate local labor."

"There is a public psychology in this country that the end of the war is near at hand," Byrnes stated, deprecating reported large-scale shifts of war workers to civilian jobs.

"No man knows when the war will end. We must produce until the last shot is fired."

To Use Local Groups

The employment restrictions on less-essential plants will be imposed by local area production urgency committees, but only in the acute and serious labor shortage areas—those designated by the war manpower as "group one" and "group two" areas—181 communities in all, including some of the country's most important industrial centers.

Byrnes proclaimed his hope that awareness of the production emergency would so arouse community interest as to make penalties unnecessary upon non-complying manufacturers. But he added: "If a less essential employer exceeds his labor quota we will not hesitate to choke off his materials, fuel or power."

Byrnes' directive also erected a barrier against too extensive resumption of civilian goods production under the limited reconversion order to be issued by the War Production order on August 15.

men before I stood up.

"I didn't know there was anybody else around but as soon as the Germans started hollering kamerad, a bunch of French civilians came running up and helped me disarm them. I had 22 pistols tied on a tent rope. The French insisted on carrying them.

"As I was marching the prisoners back in a double column, the first ones started going fast as the back one lagged in order to stretch out the column so they could try to escape. There were 30 of them and it was some job for one man to watch them.

Four Made a Break

"Four made a break for it. They made the mistake of bunching together and I just picked them off as they ran. I killed three and shot the other in his tail—and nobody else tried to get away."

After delivering his 97 prisoners McKay started out again to look for his unit and got to the outskirts of Rennes.

After climbing a railroad embankment, he saw a German helmet. "I fired with my pistol and hit the helmet," he said. "And somebody with a German accent shouted, 'don't do that.'

"Then a dozen Germans stood up. They had me covered from several angles with every type of weapon. I hollered at them in German, 'come out on this road and surrender.'

Nazis Just Laughed

"They just laughed at me. One said, 'No shoot' and I said 'No shoot' and the whole dozen came forward to talk."

McKay tried to argue them into giving up but they said they had orders to fight on. He finally "agreed" to go blindfolded to their command post to talk over surrender terms with an English-speaking officer, but he wasn't there. McKay insisted they let him go, promising to return in an hour. They let him pass through their lines.

He picked up Kallmann who volunteered as an interpreter and started back. They were shot at a couple of times by snipers but after Kallmann shouted, "safe conduct," the firing ceased.

Led To Command Post

"The same soldiers met us and we were led blindfolded to a German command post," said McKay. "It was dug way down. I counted three flights of stairs going to it.

"Their lieutenant colonel asked 'What is it you wish of us?' and I said 'It will save many German and American lives if you give up now. It will avoid much bloodshed and death.'

"'That is war' he answered.

"'But we will go through you anyway' I told him.

"'You will go through us you think', he said. 'You go back and tell your commanding officer that we have our orders to stay and that he can try to come through us any time he wants. You are good soldiers—but we are better.'

"He complimented us on our nerve before we left."

"What worries me is what my buddies will think," said McKay. "I don't want them or my officers to think I am a straggler."

"You stay with us," said the colonel with a grin. "I think I can fix things up with your commander."

Capture Of Florence

there were indications that the ruthless pressure on the contracting arc around Florence was steadily breaking down Nazi strength and the city might fall to Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's troops any time.

Bridgeheads Strengthened

Allied artillery was now in a position to shell enemy positions. The Arno river crossings immediately west of Florence and the bridgehead across the Pesa river farther to the west have been strengthened sufficiently to become a grave threat to German troops on the south banks of the Arno.

The last defenses of Florence began collapsing only after many days of the most bitter fighting and an Allied spokesman declared the German tactics of slow withdrawal with numerous heavy counter-attacks were costly to them.

An example of the toll taken of the Nazis was the announcement that the Eighth army captured 5,000 prisoners in 24 days, ending July 27, only 2,000 less than the number captured in the preceding eight weeks.

for Green. A .45 pistol was given to officials by Rieger.

Sheriff Swears To Complaint

This morning's complaint was sworn to by Sheriff Tom Abel and filed in the court of Walter Davies, justice of peace, by the district attorney. Bond of 1,000 was posted by the accused man.

Green was shot twice, in the lower left chest and through the left forearm, a surgeon said. He was weak from shock when admitted to the hospital.

The 72nd district grand jury will meet Aug. 14.

Body of Green was taken to Rix Funeral home, which was informed early this afternoon a Portales mortician was en route here for it. Rix officials said they had not been advised whether Green is married or a father.

Burks, who charged malice in the attempt on Green's life, said he had not been informed of the motive actuating the shooting.

Bender, Scherr stated, was charged with contributing to the 15-year-old girl's delinquency through immoral relations with her, while Lowery was charged with contributing by serving intoxicants.

The affidavits were signed by Levi Nulf of the police department, who aided in a two-weeks police investigation, Scherr said.

Philadelphia Tleup

duction and given rise to race violence.

Clashes between whites and negroes — with one shooting — broke out again during the early morning. The stoppage began in protest against the transportation company's upgrading of negroes to operating jobs.

Repair Wagon Halted

Five truckloads of strikers topped a Philadelphia transportation company emergency repair wagon in a residential street and warned the crew to answer no calls.

"Don't if you know what's good for you," they said.

After seven trains had pulled out of the 69th street elevated terminal, a band of strikers appeared on the platform and attempted to dissuade other crews from making their runs. Only one crew walked out again.

"What can you expect of these old guys?" a striker shouted. "They were scabs in 1910 strike."

More Windows Smashed

Eleven windows were smashed during the night in a flareup of race disorder which alerady had sent 14 persons to hospitals.

At 8:30 a.m., heavy details of police were dispatched to the Hunting park station of the Broad street subway on a report of a "bad disturbance" there.

Policemen reported the station was "all quiet" when they arrived, but said they were told that strikers had been attempting to dissuade residents from boarding the occasional trains.

Meanwhile hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians again hitch-hiked, walked or used makeshift transportation provided by employers, to get to their jobs.

Army's Plans Undisclosed

The Army gave no immediate indication of what action it would take if complete service was not restored.

A mass meeting of many of the Philadelphia Transportation company's 6,000 employes voted last night to continue the walkout on the ground that the racial issue which promoted the work stoppage three days ago had not been settled by government seizure.

The men walked out originally in protest to the upgrading of eight negroes to jobs as motormen.

New Disorders Reported

New disorders, the first since Wednesday night, were reported as nearly 1,000 workers, part of a mass meeting that earlier voted to end the walkout, roared approval of their leader's declaration:

"Until we get a written guarantee that there will be no further hiring of colored operators and no further instruction of the colored operators now in training, we will stay out."

This assertion from James McMenamin, chairman of the recently formed "general emergency committee" of the PTC workers, brought the following statement from the Army's Third Service command, which took over operation of the widespread transport system after President Roosevelt ordered its seizure last night:

"The Army's position is clear. We expect every employee of the Philadelphia transportation company to fulfill his patriotic duties and report for work at his regular starting time today."

In Washington, James P. McGranery, assistant to his fellow Philadelphian, Attorney General Biddle, said that when President Roosevelt authorized seizure of the lines "he placed the entire authority of the United States government behind his words."

"His order will be carried out. The cars will run," McGranery added. "The government will move swiftly to enforce the law without hesitation."

Sen. Mead Elected To Succeed Truman

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP) — Sen. James M. Mead, (D., N. Y.) today was named chairman of the Senate's war investigating committee succeeding Sen. Harry Truman, (D., Mo.) Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Mead was unanimously selected at a closed meeting of the committee in Truman's office.

Truman resigned yesterday to take up his active campaign as President Roosevelt's running mate.

Mead said his selection as chairman was "a great honor and an even greater responsibility."

The good natured, six-foot New Yorker lauded Truman for his able leadership of the war investigating committee and said "we should all have been happy to continue under his chairmanship."

"We shall miss Sen. Truman's able leadership, but it is the feeling of the members of the committee that we must and will continue to carry on our work exactly as in the past."

cury was at that mark on the first three days of August, 1943, he said.

Cotton in Lubbock county seems to be standing the heat well and appears in "fine" condition, according to County Agent Jason O. Gordon. Feed also is in good shape, he said. "But a week or 10 days more of these 100-plus temperatures might put a critical aspect on both cotton and feed," he added.

The Associated Press said Pvt. Archie R. Wallace, 26, of Sawinaw, Mich., died in the Camp Fannin, Tex., hospital of a sunstroke suffered July 29, and that six heat victims were in Houston hospitals.

A thunderstorm broke temperatures at Houston.

Pampa reported that the 106 temperature on Wednesday pushed the city's water consumption to within 50,000 gallons of the all-time high last August when Pampa wells pumped 2,789,000 gallons in one day.

MERCURY CLIMBS TO 117 AT MEMPHIS

(By The Associated Press)

The Hall county-seat town of Memphis, in the Panhandle-Red River country, today left the rest of sun-baked Texas something to shoot at in the nature of hot weather, with a 117-degree temperature, highest on record.

It was the highest reading in the current heat wave that went into its 11th day and had Texans panting for breath and mopping their brows.

Cooler temperatures appeared unlikely for most of the state today although the weatherman forecast scattered thundershowers in the southeast portion of East Texas and partly cloudy in West Texas.

Memphis' 117 degrees Thursday was six better than its nearest rival, another Panhandle town, Clarendon, which had 111-degree temperatures. Wichita Falls and Pyote each had 109 and Pampa and Wink, 108.

Local Option Elections Hold Interest In Dallas, Ft. Worth

(By The Associated Press)

Both sides freely predicted victory today as wet and dry forces threw their final punches in a bitter battle that could end tomorrow with both Fort Worth and Dallas, North Texas' last strong ramparts against prohibition, voting dry in local option elections.

With 140 counties in the state already totally dry; with only 36 completely wet and with McLennan county's conversion last month to the dry banner a major defeat, the wets rallied for a last-ditch stand to retain some control in arid North Texas.

To the drys, it seemed their best chance yet to pick off one or more of Texas' main cities.

A majority of precincts in Dallas county, are already dry. The city itself is wet for all alcoholic beverages, however, and Oak Cliff, its largest suburb, is wet for beer only. A similar condition exists in Tarrant county with much of the county being dry or wet for beer only, but with distilled spirits legal in Fort Worth itself.

In Texas the liquor control board, state agency referee between the opposing forces, shows 140 counties totally dry; 93 counties in which whisky can be bought; 19 counties permitting the sale of beer only and two counties in which 14 per cent beverages are sold. The drys own most of North Texas and have captured big chunks in South Texas, the wet stronghold. The wets still hold most of the Big Bend country.

the Po valley of northern Italy. The Russians were reported bombing and strafing East Prussian villages and railroads in the path of threatening Red armies.

In widespread operations yesterday, Allied planes from Britain, Italy and Russia destroyed 108 German planes, communiques announced.

Unfavorable weather again restricted night operations of British-based planes, but skies over France cleared at dawn, bringing the prospect of the first full day of heavy aerial activity in more than a week.

Planes Out Early

Normandy-based fighter bombers were in the air at the first sign of light in a renewal of the assault on German forces and installations beyond the battle line.

Only nine German planes were sighted over the battle area last night, and seven were shot down by the Mosquitos.

After the weather cleared at midnight yesterday the Allied air units based in Britain and Normandy flew 5,000 sorties.

County Board Grants 90 School Transfers

Out of 178 scholastic transfer applications considered by Lubbock County board Thursday, 90 were granted, according to Roy Boyd, county superintendent.

Sixty-two applications were granted for transferring within the county rural district; five were transferred to Petersburg and 23 to Lorenzo. Superintendents of county schools met with the board at the court house to make transfer recommendations.

All transfers were not granted, depending on whether they would in any way effect the number of teachers in a school. The size of a faculty depends on the enrollment, and in some instances too many transfers might mean one less teacher for a school.
