Knockout For Nazis Believed Started

Soviet Threat To Outflank Berlin Grows

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 23—Russian troops, threatening to outflank Berlin's eastern defenses, yesterday smashed 11 miles through reinforced German lines and clamped an assault arc around Guben, walled fortress town 51 miles southeast of the Reich capital. Guben's garrison already is being attacked, enemy broadcasts said.

Premier-Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day that the Germans had lost more than 1,150,000 men—800,000 killed and 350,000 captured—between Jan. 12, when the great Soviet winter offensive began, and Feb. 20.

Complete Victory Near

"Complete victory over the Germans now is near," said the Soviet leader in his order commemorating today's 27th anniversary of the Red Army, which, he said, "together with the armies of our Allies is successfully completing the rout of the German Fascist army."

In addition to casualties the Germans have lost 3,000 planes captured or destroyed, 4,500 tanks and self-propelled guns, and 12,000 other guns in a 40-day period, Stalin said, and Hungary, Germany's last ally in Europe, has been knock out of the war with the recent seizure of Budapest.

Stalin's order was issued as Berlin predicted that a final all-out Soviet offensive was imminent now that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army in the southeast has drawn abreast of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army holding points along the Oder river 30 to 40 miles from the capital. Zhukov's Army was massed "like a colossus," awaiting attack orders, Berlin said.

Red Army forces yesterday toppled Zinten, one of the last large German strongholds in East Prussia, and also drove to within 34 miles south of Danzig, but the main action occurred on Konev's front.

Threatening to turn Berlin's eastern defenses the First Ukraine Army captured 60 localities south of Guben and reached the Neisse river at various points along a winding 40-mile front. Schenkendorf, two miles south of Guben, was the nearest point to that ancient town mentioned officially by

Near Failure On Iwo Recounted

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Feb. 22 (Via Navy Radio) (AP)—Japanese artillery fire from Iwo Jima's northern plateau almost doomed the U. S. Marines' first beachhead there, Vice Adm. John H. Hoover acknowledged in an interview today.

The commander of the forward areas, who watched the invasion of the Volcano island from a warship, told Arthur Primm, Mutual war correspondent, that D-day "was touch and go for a while" and casualties were heavy.

Had Appeared Doomed

"It was a serious moment and for a while our position on the beach appeared doomed. But later we discovered an area far to the south where we could penetrate to the southern airfield out of range of their heaviest fire."

"It saved the day."

At first the Japanese expected the Americans to only make a feint at this landing point and actually make a major landing at another part of the island, he said. But they soon saw there was no deception intended by the Americans.

Hoover said Japanese artillery and mortar shells began to fall "thick and fast" among the Marines as they scrambled up a 200-foot sloping beach.

Tremendous natural barriers have added to the difficulty of taking Iwo, he explained. The northern part is steep shored and the southern tip is well fortified by the extinct volcano Mt. Suribachi.

Even in between "it is far from ideal." The volcano dust is like dry quicksand. It stalls wheeled vehicles.

Admiral Hoover, who has witnessed practically ever other landing operation in the Pacific, reported the enemy firepower on Iwo "far stronger than any other place we've attacked."

Yanks Land On Capul Island Off Southern Tip Of Luzon

U. S. Casualties On Iwo Rise To 5,372

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Friday, Feb. 23. (AP) — The 28th regiment of the U. S. Marines raised the United States flag on the summit of Mt. Suribachi at the south tip of Iwo island at 10:35 a. m. today.

From Suribachi, whose slopes had been blasted by battleships and divebombed by carrier planes, the Japanese had raked Marine positions throughout the southern sector with deadly mortar and artillery fire.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Friday, Feb. 23—The bloody cost of the battle for Iwo mounted to 5,372 Marines killed, wounded and missing by 6 p. m. Wednesday, the Navy announced today while reporting only minor advances through Thursday against fierce Japanese opposition.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed that 644 Marines had been killed, 4,168 wounded and 560 were missing at the end of the first 58 hours of the operation.

In the same period of time 1,222 dead Japanese had been counted.

No invasion of the Pacific war for a comparative period has cost so many American casualties. At Tarawa, previously considered the bloodiest fight of the war, Marine casualties for its entire 72 hours slightly exceeded 3,000.

Nimitz in his last previous communique covering the casualty count up to 5:45 p. m. Wednesday, reported 385 killed and 4,168 wounded. The later count left the wounded at the same figure, increased the dead by 276 and added the 560 missing.

Today's communique reported more of the same type of bitter fighting which has built up the casualty totals.

It reported gains Thursday afternoon too slight to affect the virtual stalemate which developed Wednesday.

The three Marine divisions, the Third, Fourth and Fifth, inched forward slightly on the north toward the enemy fighter base in the center of the island and con-

Remaining Japs In Manila Being Ground To Bits

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Friday, Feb. 23—Veteran Yanks of the American division invaded tiny Capul island in the San Bernardino straits just off Luzon's long southern tip on Wednesday in a move to clear the Japanese from the main shipping route from the United States to Manila.

Opposition was light.

The small oval island, five miles long and two wide at the middle, commands the strait through which the Japanese sent a war fleet to harrass the American invasion of Leyte last October.

It lies directly between the extensive southeastern tip of Luzon and the northern end of Samar island, which is practically in American hands. It is 260 airline miles southeast of Manila and about 325 by sea.

Said Key To Straits

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, announcing the invasion in a communique today, said "this island is the key to the straits, through which passes the main navigation route to Manila bay from the United States."

Associated Press correspondent Fred Hampson said tank forces in Manila made important strides by capturing the Manila hotel, the city hall and all the general post-office building except the basement.

"The hotel," he wrote, "was won after a room-to-room and corridor-to-staircase fight through the succeeding floors.

"The postoffice was no less difficult."

The landing was made by the veteran Americal division of the Tenth corps of the Eighth Army.

MacArthur announced also that steady reduction of the remaining Japanese pocket in south Manila was continuing and said 11th Airborne division Yanks advancing along the west coast of Laguna De Bay, southeast of Manila, reached the town of Muntinlupa.

MacArthur announced that in the 14th corps sector of Luzon — in the northern and central part of the great central Luzon plain — the Americans had captured vast quantities of enemy materiel and supplies.

Much Equipment Seized

He said 712 artillery pieces of all calibers and 705 machineguns had been seized or destroyed there.

In the southern Caraballo mountains north of Manila Yanks of the First corps secured high ground east of Sison in the steady campaign to push the Japanese into the mountains of northeast Luzon.

Heavy bombers swept enemy defense positions on eastern and western Luzon. Fighters and light bombers destroyed 15 gun positions in the Antipolo-Montalban area west of Manila, where the enemy has been reported girding for a stand.

American troops are killing Japanese by the hundreds on the mined approaches to the inner walled city of Manila today while enemy groups still resist on Corregidor from two main tunnels and an assortment of small caves, all cut off from one another.

Absence Of Jap Tanks In Iwo Puzzle Yanks

IWO JIMA, Feb. 22. (Via Navy Radio) (AP)—The absence of enemy tanks is a puzzle to United States Marines fighting the Japanese on Iwo Jima.

So far as Fourth Marine division headquarters knows, only three Nipponese tanks have been observed in action. The enemy was believed to have a heavy force of armored vehicles on the island.

Maj. Gen. Clinton B. Cates, division commander, hopes that the heavy naval shelling has knocked out the tanks, but suspects the Japanese may be holding them back.

7,000 Planes Smash Reich In All Areas

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 23—Allied air chiefs hurled an estimated 7,000 bombers and fighters at approximately 100 Nazi communications hubs yesterday in the greatest simultaneous air assault in history—a supreme coordinated blow to knock out Germany's railway system—and the attack continued into the night.

The Berlin radio said 2,000 Russian planes also had battered targets along the Eastern front, principally in East Prussia.

Altogether nearly 10,000 sorties were flown from the west and south before dark, but the peak was reached at around noontime when through careful planning and timing explosives cascaded down at an estimated average of 100 tons a minute.

D-Day Feat Cited

On D-day 13,000 sorties were flown, but these were spread over a period of 24 hours while in this historic new assault almost the maximum power of all Allied air forces in Europe was concentrated against the enemy within a few hours.

Some 30,000 airmen from seven Allied air commands participated in the great obliteration raids, the intent of which was to break up the entire network of enemy rail transportation at one blow.

The "buckshot blitz"—an entirely new idea which Allied air chiefs had mapped and held in readiness for a break in the weather—was spearheaded by more than 1,400 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and 800 fighters of the U. S. Eighth Air force.

Break Into Wolf Packs

Two divisions of this gigantic fleet poured into Germany from the north and a third attacked from the south. Over the Reich they broke up into wolf packs of up to 100 bombers each and hammered at least 24 freight yards and other rail targets in the heart of Germany during the noon hour.

Eight bombers and 19 fighters were missing from this phase of the operation.

In addition the RAF and U. S. 15th Air Forces sent out heavy bombers and the attack was swelled by four tactical air forces based on the continent, including the U. S. 12th in Italy. More than 4,500 sorties were flown by these medium and fighter bombers from their advanced bases.

Rages Unchecked Into Night

The momentum of the massive assault raged unchecked into the night. The RAF announced that swift Mosquito bombers, carrying two-ton block-busters, again had raided Berlin and the overworked German "achtung" warning service said other bomber formations were over the Reich.

The tremendous daylight assault was amazing to behold, either from the air or the ground.

Japs May Be Covering Up Losses On Iwo

GUAM, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Japanese habit of carrying back their own dead may conceal the true enemy losses on Iwo Jima, where American Marines already have suffered some of the heaviest casualties of the Pacific war.

An official report said more than 850 dead Nipponese had been counted on Iwo by Wednesday. American dead at about the same time were estimated at 385.

Japanese losses in the American advance across the Pacific have averaged better than six enemy troops killed to every American. In the invasion of Tarawa, the Marshalls, the Marianas and the Palaus, Japanese dead during organized resistance reached 50,800 against 8,180 Americans.

Total U. S. casualties for these Pacific thrusts, including killed, wounded and missing, were 38,055, while the total of Japanese prisoners was 2,008.

PATTON "ON THE LOOSE" AGAIN—Aided by thundering air attacks, like of which has never before been seen, and as the entire Western front apparently prepares for a solid wall of flame for the Nazis, Gen. Patton's Third Army has crushed major Nazi resistance in their sector of the Westwall and are slashing toward the Rhineland. Saarburg has been taken and troops are only a short distance out of Trier.

Rampaging Third Breaks Across Saar

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Feb. 23—The rampaging U. S. Third Army broke across the Saar river at two points 65 miles from the Rhine today and completed a whirlwind conquest of Germany's 80-square-mile Moselle-Saar triangle as 7,000 Allied warplanes struck simultaneously at enemy rail life-lines.

A field dispatch said Third Army officers and men were in high spirits as they ripped across western Germany's ramparts with a speed reminiscent of their historic dash in France, seizing the fortress city of Saarburg and 29 other Reich towns on a 55-mile front.

Saarburg, once a thriving city of 10,000 was deserted save for 100 aged civilians.

Thrust Near Trier

This powerful thrust 18 miles deep into the Reich collapsed all enemy resistance in the triangle and rammed a steel spearhead to a point five miles from Trier, fortified city of 88,000 population on the mountainous route to the Rhine.

While Trier's battlements came under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's guns, artillery to the south tore at the fortified hills into which the Germans had been chased east of the Saar river. The attackers were confident the enemy soon would be driven from these new positions.

To the fury of the Allied air attack—a new technique under which swarms of battle planes unload their cargoes of destruction on communications centers—was added the shock of two other Allied armies hammering at Germany's first line of defense.

Seventh Slashes On

Forty miles southeast of the Third Army, the U. S. Seventh Army captured two-thirds of the French gateway city of Forbach, two miles from the Saar basin's steel city of Saarbrucken.

The Canadian First Army on the north end of the front captured Moyland and fought nearly to the edge of Calcar, bitterly-defended highway center two miles southeast and 15 miles from Wesel in the western Ruhr industrial basin.

Scottish infantry severed the Goch-Uedem railway and were locked in a furious milling struggle two miles west of the latter town, which is a vital feeder point for the enemy on that sector of the front.

On this spring-like day, the best flying day in months, five Allied Air forces pooled their planes in

Stettinius Outlines Five-Point Policy

By FLORA LEWIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHAPULTEPEC CASTLE, Mexico, Feb. 22.—Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, jr., told the Inter-American conference today that an essential aim in a five-point American foreign policy program is an Atlantic Charter peace of "freedom from fear and want for all men."

Stettinius, in the first review of American foreign policy since the Yalta conference, asked the other 18 countries represented here to support the ideas of the Crimean declaration and alerted them against any Nazi attempts to use the western hemisphere as a base "for an ultimate comeback."

Padilla Joins Appeal

Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla joined Stettinius in calling on the American nations to unite for a securely peaceful and prosperous world.

Outlining the five cardinal principles of United States policy, Stettinius declared that the United States would give active and full support to the principles of the Atlantic Charter, which, he said, were upheld by the Big Three at Yalta.

Other points in the U. S. foreign policy program as disclosed by Stettinius included the "earliest possible" final defeat of the Axis; measures to prevent Japan and Germany from aggression again; guarantees to the liberated peoples of Europe of their own government and sovereign rights, and creation of an international security organization to preserve the peace of the world.

Padilla made an eloquent plea for a comprehensive economic program for this continent, declaring "there is no excuse for the poverty of America."

Nazi Losses To Reds Staggering

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin, in an order of the day commemorating the 27th anniversary of the Red Army, declared tonight the Soviet winter offensive had cost the Germans more than 1,150,000 killed or captured and predicted "complete victory" now is near.

In a breakdown of the German casualties as reported by the Moscow radio, the Soviet leader said the Russians killed 800,000 and captured 350,000 in driving the Nazis back on a 1200 kilometer front (about 745 miles) "within 40 days of January and February, 1945."

Cites Aid To West

Stalin described the Russian blows as complementary to the Allied Western front war and said the first consequence of the mighty Soviet offensive was to thwart the "German winter offensive in the west which was aimed at the seizure of Belgium and Alsace." This enabled, he said, the British and Americans, in turn, to launch attacks which linked their present offensive operations with those of the Russians.

The Soviet premier added that the Soviet armies "together with the armies of our Allies are successfully completing the rout of the German Fascist Army."

"Complete victory over the Germans now is near," he asserted. "But victory never comes of itself. It is won in hard battles and by persistent labor. As the doomed enemy hurls his last forces into action, hanging on desperately to escape stern retribution, he gasps

Japs Still Being Run Down On Guam

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS Guam, Friday, Feb. 23, (AP)—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in his communique today enemy soldiers still are being killed on the island where he has his headquarters.

After issuing the latest reports for the bitter fight on Iwo, more than 750 miles north of Guam, he said:

"Operations against remnants of the Japanese garrisons on Saipan, Tinian and Guam in the Marianas and on Peleliu in the Palas were continued during the week ending Feb. 17. Routine patrols mopped up 94 enemy killed and 15 captured.

"In addition, elements of the 24th regiment of Army infantry on Saipan attacked a concentration of about 350 of the enemy in a mountainous portion of the island, killing or capturing 131 Japanese on Feb. 15, 16 and 17. Our casualties in these operations in the Marianas were seven killed and three wounded."

Lubbock Indicated As Hospital Site

A three-line notation in agate type in the Feb. 15 issue of the Engineering News-Record received Thursday in Lubbock apparently has settled the quesiton of location of an additional Veterans administration hospital for West Texas.

The notation, on page 15, listed under "Proposed Works," says:

Tex., Lubbock, Veterans administration, 250-bed hospital, $1,940,262.

The magazine, a reliable trade publication for contractors, engineers, construction firms and allied industries, published in New York and of general national circulation, is usually considered an authentic source.

So Lubbock might already have its veterans hospital and Thursday morning meeting of the hospital committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Allen Bros. post of the American Legion may have been superfluous.

And an announcement by Manager G. N. Mattox of the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night that location of the hospital "within 100 miles of Sweetwater" may have been fairly accurate; it appears.

Despite this, however, an Associated Press special dispatch to the Morning Avalanche last night set out that "Washington sources say site of proposed West Texas veterans hospital has not been determined."

Repeated efforts of the Morning Avalanche to contract Veteran administration officials in Washington for official confirmation of the engineering publication's announcement proved futile last night. A telephone call to Congressman Geo. Mahon failed to locate him.

The meeting of the chamber of commerce committee Thursday re-

Nazis Conscript School Children

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP) — The Germans conscripted some of their school children today—boys to dig trenches and fight, and girls for auxiliary services—as their military commentators warned that a Russian frontal assault on Berlin was imminent.

The German official news agency DNB announced that the German equivalent of boy and girl scouts had been taken out of school for war service. The Bund Deutscher Maedel (Hitler's girls' organization) has been "split up in small units which will be employed wherever necessary—in signal units or supply depots or nursing services — wherever gauleiters (provincial governors) order," the agency said.

Work Cut Out For All

"While boys have been called up for digging defenses and are being trained for volkssturm (people's army) in order to be ready for any eventuality, these girl units will be responsible for preparing food, nursing sick boys and other duties," said DNB. "For the time of service girls need not attend schools."

Other Germans broadcasts warned again of an impending Allied west front offensive in the Aachen sector, declaring the present attacks were "only like the tuning of an orchestra."

Army Exams Set For Youngsters April 12

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Qualifying tests for entrance into the Army specialized training reserve program will be held at high schools throughout the country on April 12, the War department announced today.

Young men born after Sept. 30, 1927 and before Sept. 1, 1928 are eligible to take the examination. In addition, applicants must be graduates of high schools and must not be older than 17 years, nine months when they are assigned to college in July, August, or September of this year.

Stimson Hints Of Major Drive

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP) — A broad hint that a major Allied offensive on the Western front is impending came today from Secretary of War Stimson.

"I may say that the officers in the War department who have recently been with our troops in that theater have been much impressed with the confidence of the entire command in their ability to carry through an aggressive campaign," Stimson told his news conference.

Among those recently in the European theater and now back in Washington is Lt. General Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Service forces. In this connection, Stimson's next comment was interesting:

"There are no serious difficulties now regarding supplies in the forward dumps of the various armies."

Troops Icreasing

The number of American divisions has been "constantly on the increase" since the opening of the port of Antwerp and particularly during the last four weeks, Stimson said — "in other words, General Eisenhower's hand has been greatly strengthened."

A grand total of 1,134,992 Germans have been captured by the Western Allies since November, 1942, when the landings in North Africa occurred, he said. Of these, over 300,000 have been taken since the invasion of western Europe last June.

Mrs. Melba Branson Freed By Jury In Kidnaping Case And Estranged Parents Of Tiny Principal Reconciled

FORT WORTH, Feb. 22 (AP) — Mrs. Melba Branson, 19-year-old wife of an AAF lieutenant, Thursday was acquitted by a jury in criminal district court of the charge that she had kidnaped two-months-old Milly McGill Jan. 9.

Shortly after the hearing, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McGill, parents of Milly, announced that they were reconciled, and that a divorce petition filed by Mrs. McGill would be dismissed.

"We're going to take Milly and try it again," Mrs. McGill said.

The happy ending for the Bransons and the McGills came at the end of a bitter four-day court battle in which the district attorney had asked that the jury make an example of Mrs. Branson as a warning to "other kidnapers."

The McGills reconciliation meant that Mrs. Branson must drop her plans to wage a battle for Milly's custody, a battle in which both McGill and District Attorney Clyde had promised fervent opposition.

Mrs. McGill had offered custody of Milly to Mrs. Branson in the divorce suit.

There was still one more hurdle for the McGills, however. Clyde declared that he planned to "prosecute to the fullest" a dependency petition filed against Milly last Monday. Success in his fight would mean that McGills would lose custody of Milly and of Mrs. McGill's 15-month-old son by a former marriage.

The hearing is set March 1.

As Criminal District Judge McGregor read the jury's verdict of "not guilty," Mrs. Branson smiled tremously, and said in a tear-choked voice, "Well, are we through?"

All day she had sat in the court room or nervouly walked in the hall, awaiting the decision on whether she would go to prison for taking Milly and abandoning her the next day in San Antonio bus station.

Later, recalling her happiness, she said, "I hugged everyone in sight—I might have even hugged Al Clyde."

Clyde was definite in his assurance that she did not.

Mrs. Branson left the court with her tall red-haired husband, a B-24 bomber pilot. With them was Mrs. McGill, who had been staying since her separation from her husband at the home of Mrs. Branson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Fincher.

In the courthouse corridor, groups of women gathered around Mrs. Branson and offered congratulations.

"We're awfully glad for you, honey," one said and an elderly woman with tearful eyes, added, "we have been praying for you."

The principles in the swirling drama of mixed emotions conferred about 30 minutes in the offices of the attorneys for Mrs. Branson and for Mrs. McGill in her divorce suit.

They reappeared later and announced the reconciliation. The McGills posed for photographs with his arm around his wife and

WLB Public Members Ask FDR To Hold Tight On Little Steel Plan

BY HAROLD W. WARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22—Public members of the War Labor board advised President Roosevelt to hold tight to the Little Steel wage formula so long as civilian goods and services must be restricted.

Inasmuch as the President has indicated he will rely heavily upon the four public members' findings in deciding whether to crack open the ceiling on base wage increases, the report indicated no revision until victory is fully in sight, especially not while hostilities continue in Europe. The whole recent trend has been to channel more and more of the nation's capacity into war.

Report On Wage Earners

The public members reported at the President's request, on the status of wage earners in wartime.

The Little Steel formula, keystone of the administration's wartime stabilization policy, allows for 1 per cent higher pay then in January, 1941, to make up for cost of living increases up to May, 1942. The report accepted an earlier finding of the President's cost-of-living committee that living expenses rose 30 per cent by last December, but it made no recommendation that workers be given another 1 per cent wage hike to keep pace.

Industry members of the board announced their concurrence with the findings. Labor members, in separate statements, dissented.

The four public members are Chairman William H. Davis, Vice Chairman George W. Taylor, who wrote the "Little Steel formula" two and one-half years ago; Frank P. Graham, president of North Carolina university, and Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the Wisconsin university law school.

Lewis' Threat Cited

The report, four months in the making, was submitted on the eve of John L. Lewis' threat to the formula in negotiations between his United Mine Workers and the bituminous coal operators, scheduled to begin March 1. Both the AFL and the CIO have demanded Little Steel revision.

The four members suggested, as regards substandard wages, that the fair labor standards act be changed by Congress to increase the minimum wage, now fixed at 40 cents. They also proposed fixing minimum wages for key positions, as was done in the case of 50,000 textile workers in a decision handed down this week.

Conference Suggested

Finally, the public members suggested a general industry-labor conference "to deal with basic principles and mutual obligations which, when formulated, might be incorporated in a national agreement."

The five CIO members and alternates on the board said the public members' report revealed "a complete absence of understanding" of present and future economic problems.

The four AFL members and alternates made a direct appeal to the President "to prevent the occurence of economic disaster by modifying realistically the Little Steel formula."

Appointees Approved By Senate Committee

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (U.P.)—The Texas Senate committee on governor's appointments today voted favorable reports on John W. Non, Beaumont, for the remaining open place on the board of directors of A. & M. college.

Favorable report was given also on Mrs. Joe Perkins, Eastland; C. C. Chessher, Groveton, and Herman C. Custard, Cleburne, for six-year terms on the state board of Education.

Custard was reappointed recently after serving a part term. Mrs. Perkins and Chessher will be new members if confirmed.

Favorable report was made also on the reappointments of H. A. Dobbs, Hempstead; J. H. Ashby, Uvalde, and C. A. Gibner, Spearman, as members of the state Finance commission.

Dr. W. C. McNeill, Silsbee, received favorable report for membership on the board of dental examiners; P. B. Doty, Port Arthur, for the Post-War Planning commission, and George Madison Sims, Port Arthur, for trustee of the teacher retirement system.

A Senate executive session to vote on confirmation will be asked early next week, Sen. H. L. Winfield, Fort Stockton, chairman of the committee, said.

New Attorney Takes Up OPA Duties Here

District Director Howard R. Gholson of the Office of Price administration announced Thursday that Sam H. Allred of Hillsboro has arrived in Lubbock to assume duties as enforcement attorney for the Lubbock district office.

Allred, who for the last 17 years has been a member of the law firm of Allred and Allred in Hillsboro, is a former county attorney and criminal district attorney at Hillsboro and former member of the Texas legislature. His wife and child will move here as soon as housing accommodations can be found.

Subsidy Restricted On Hog Slaughter

Non-federally inspected slaughterers will not be eligible to subsidy payments on more than 50 per cent of weight of hogs on which they collected payments for corresponding period last year, Dan L. Boyd of Amarillo, district representative of the War Food administration, has announced.

Previously WFA had announced this weight would be limited to 70 per cent but it has become necessary to reduce the percentage to 50, effective Monday.

This new action is intended to channel more hogs into federally inspected plants where pork will become available for procurement for military and war services.

During current month, slaughter of hogs under federal inspection has dropped to 46 per cent of the number slaughtered a year ago. Despite substantial reduction in total marketings, this indicates an increase in slaughter of hogs in plants not under federal inspection. Because non-federally inspected pork is prohibited in interstate commerce, this is causing unequal distribution of civilian supplies, as well as a decrease in quantity available for our armed forces, Boyd said.

Wounded Captive Reporter Tells Of Liberation By Soviet Forces

By WRIGHT BRYAN

SZUBIN, Poland, Feb. 20 (Delayed)—Liberation for at least one group of American war prisoners who had been held here by the Germans came within eight days after the Red Army had launched its swift, powerful offensive.

Although the number of prisoners released here was relatively few, there is hope that many others of all Allied forces may be close to freedom if they have not already achieved it.

Polish Corridor Town

In this little Polish corridor town, a half hour's train ride southwest of Bromberg, was a camp where most of the American ground force officers captured in Africa, Sicily, Italy and western Europe were living behind barbed wire.

A little more than a week ago they learned from a German communique of the Russians attack, beginning more than 100 miles eastward.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, the German garrison warned the American prisoners to prepare for evacuation of the camp on foot at anytime without further notice.

Continuous Stream

A continuous stream of civilian refugees moved in wagon carts, bicycles and afoot along the highway passing the camp. Sunday morning the American war prisoners held their last formation under German supervision on the camp assembly area and the men marched out the gate in a column of threes, escorted by German guards.

Transportation being unavailable for hospital patients and others unable to walk they remained behind. This group, including a few doctors and orderlies to care for them, numbered ninety-one. I was one of the group because of a slight bullet wound in the left leg which still was not entirely healed.

The German officers handed the key of the camp to Chaplain Stanley Brach of Newark, N. J., and we were once more under full command of American officers.

Red Cross Flags Used

Quickly we painted large Red Cross flags to hang on all sides and the roof of the hospital, not knowing whether any Germans were left in the vicinity or where the approaching Russians might be.

Monday morning a vehicle stopped between two principal German barracks across the street from the hospital and heavily armed men scattered to search the premises. From hospital windows we could not tell by their snow covered winter uniforms whether they were German rearguards or Russian advance units. When the vehicle turned we recognized it as an American-built three quarter ton reconnaissance car and when officers came to our gate we saw they were Russians.

Artillery Captain Enters

An artillery captain was the first Russian officer into our camp. He was the first of three groups of Russian officers who visited us during the day and evening. Like every Russian who has been here, they were alert and soldierly, demanding proper proof of our status but once it was established extending all possible courtesy and help.

Maj. Roman Karen, cameraman war correspondent for Izvestia, arrived here and it is through his courtesy I have started this dispatch toward a cable office.

All of us here now are counting the days until we can start for home. Every patient in the hospital is doing well.

An incomplete list of Americans now in camp includes Alton A. Lentz of Malone, Tex., A. N. Cecil, jr., Houston; P. D. Marble of Clarksville, Tex., F. W. Mueller of Houston, and J. A. Riley of Pottsboro, Tex.

Messages To Freed Americans Possible

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Persons being notified by the War department of the release of U. S. war prisoners in the Philippines also are being informed they may send a twenty-four-word message to the liberated prisoner.

Mrs. J. Howard Payne, chairman of the Dallas Red Cross prisoner of war committee, explained how that may be done.

The message, she said, should be sent to the addressee as a regular telegram in care of the American prisoner of war information bureau, office of provost marshal general in Washington. From there, Mrs. Payne said, the provost marshal general will forward the message free of charge to the liberated person.

Bulldogging Act On Street Saves Trio Of Shoppers Here

Those who did not know just what was happening probably thought a rodeo was being staged at Broadway and Texas about 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The end gate of a cattle trailer became unfastened and a large cow fell to the street. She became excited and made a lunge toward two women and a little girl.

Serious injury to all three possibly was averted due to quick thinking of T. V. Johnson of Lubbock who grabbed the horns of the charging animal and "bulldogged" her. The cow was taken to the barns of Lubbock Auction and Commission company, Thirteenth and Ave. D. Name of the cow's owner was not learned.

Bill On County Salaries Passed

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (AP)—In a session that at times became uproarious, with the chair rapping for order frequently, the Senate today back-tracked on a string of amendments to finally pass a bill by Buster Brown of Temple, raising salaries of certain precinct and county officials from $2,400 to a maximum of $4,250.

The muchly amended measure, which affects 166 counties, finally emerged as a bill providing that counties coming under the "less than 20,000 population bracket" may elect to follow either the fee system or salary statute.

Can Choose Fee System

In the event that the fee system is chosen by the county commissioner courts counties would have the authority to increase salaries of county officials from $2,400 up to a ceiling of $4,200 and of deputies from $1,800 to $2,100, provided the necessary fees have been collected.

A storm of protest arose over the original provisions of the bill setting definite salary increase brackets. To eliminate this opposition an amendment to knock out the bracket provisions was offered by T. C. Chadwick of Quitman but was tabled 14 to 11.

Conflict Ironed Out

Controversy arose over a conflict in the bill's provisions and the Constitution but was finally ironed out. The Senate then backtracked to reconsider the Chadick amendment and the motion to adopt was unanimous.

Chadick and Warlow Lane of Quitman sent up three other amendments to polish up the measure and the bill was carrying these additional amendments when finally passed 26 to 1.

Entertainment Places Fire 5,000 Employes

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (UP)—New York's $100,000,000 entertainment industry has discharged approximately 5,000 employes as a result of the midnight curfew which goes into effect on Monday, it was estimated today.

Many more of the 50,000 entertainers, waiters, stagehands, and others employed by the industry were expected to get dismissal notices before Monday.

Meanwhile night club owners prepared for trouble with unions and with entertainers over curtailment or termination of contracts. The newly formed labor relations committee of the Cafe Owners guild said negotiations would begin Saturday with unions representing cooks, waitresses, bartenders and kitchen helpers. The committee will meet tomorrow with the American Federation of Musician leaders, representing hundreds who will be jobless because of the earlier shut-down.

Employers were reported to be cancelling contracts of entertainers on grounds that War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' directive was "an act of God."

The estimate of 5,000 discharged employes was made by Noah Braunstein, counsel for the Cafe Owners guild.

Billy Rose, vice president of the guild, charged that the Byrnes edict was a plot of anti-liquor interests to restore prohibition, at least for the duration.

GIs And Janes Like Riviera, But They Also Growl Some

By RUTH COWAN
(Substituting For Kenneth L. Dixon)

NICE. (AP)—What do they think about, these first service men and women to try out Uncle Sam's rest cure at this peacetime millionaire playground?

Col. Thomas F. Gunn of Portland, Ore., director of the U. S. Riviera recreation area, said frankly that the initial groups of soldiers and WACS were guinea pigs and that the Army was anxious to get their reactions. Both soldiers and WACS were enthusiastic in their praise of efforts of recreation officers to provide them a good time.

They raved about the friendliness of the French, the sheets, the hot water and other luxuries of the hotels. The GI's liked the facilities for tennis, football and basketball. The WACS liked the music with their meals played by Italian service unit orchestras.

But The Beef Also

But they have their beefs too. There is no saluting "which is great," but while the GI does not have to wear a tie at dinner, his sister soldier has a Class-A uniform.

The men are quartered at the Hotel Ruhl and the girls at the Hotel Negresco. Neither liked the midday luncheon dance planned as a get-acquainted party.

"We went because we were told to, but we didn't want to," was the general reaction. They don't want to be told where to go or with whom to date.

WACS see smartly dressed French girls but those who want to wear formals for dances are in the minority. "Civilian clothes can wait," said Sgt. Georgiana K. Peet, Ithica, Mich., "I'm proud of my uniform."

One Wants Her Slacks

But Faye Smith of Cleburne, Tex., would like slacks for sports wear, especially when the weather is warmer.

Both soldiers and WACS like program tours to points of interest—if they are kept optional. The WACS like trips to perfumeries.

The soldiers' biggest problem is where to take a civilian girl on a date. Night club prices are too hard on GI pocketbooks. A round of drinks for three knocks a ten-spot sky high. The GI can take a girl to the only USO show in town, or to Red Cross dances if he submits her name three hours ahead of time.

NAZIS BOMB TOWNS

U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, Feb. 22. (AP) — Fifteen German bombers and fighters attacked American front line positions along the Roer last night. The bombers unloaded explosives on towns populated almost entirely by German civilians. Fighters strafed streets.

38-Ship Convoy Said Abandoned

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP) — A merchant seaman repatriated on the Gripsholm said today that British escort ships abandoned a Murmansk-bound convoy in the North Atlantic in July, 1942, and that the Germans "had their pickings" of the 38 merchant vessels.

The seaman, Walter Stankiewicz, 28, of Baltimore, Md., said he had been on the freighter Carlton, which Berlin and Vichy identified at the time as the last of 38 ships Berlin said were sunk in convoy.

Stankiewicz put the number at 34, including the 5,127-ton Carlton.

No Objection Raised

United States and British Navy public relations officers in New York and Washington offered no objection to publication of his story but said they could not vouch for its authenticity.

Stankiewicz said the convoy was attacked a few days before July 4 by submarines, on July 4 by 24 torpedo bombers and again on July 5 by submarines.

Stankiewicz said he understood the British ships left to engage in battle with German warships and that the battleships Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau lured them away.

Merchant seaman repatriated on the Swedish liner Gripsholm brought back to America a picture of critical food conditions in their Nazi prison camp—conditions they said were aggravated by Allied bombing of German transportation facilities.

Transportation "Shot"

"Transportation in Germany is all shot to hell," said Capt. Henry Stephenson of New Rochelle, N. Y., whose ship was torpedoed in the Atlantic in 1942 and who spent more than two years in a camp 16 miles from Bremen.

Capt. Stephenson said there had been only one issue of Red Cross food parcels in the camp when he left last Jan. 15 and because of the disrupted transportation there was little chance of more getting through.

The liner sailed from the French port Feb. 8 after an exchange of German natonals in Switzerland.

Changes In Insurance Laws Win Approval

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—Legislation innovating a number of changes in Texas insurance laws had received the approval of the Senate committee on insurance.

Approved was a bill by James Stanford of Austin, permitting companies and associations to pay reduced benefits when death occurs while engaged in military service.

Two measures by Roger Knight of Madisonville, authorizing non-par value companies, who have waived the war clause, to reduce capital stock on the same basis as par value companies, was also approved.

A bill by Kyle Vick, permitting insurance companies writing registered policies to withdraw deposits in Texas and place them on deposit in a foreign country to the extent of policies written there hung up the committee after lengthy debate and was set for a public hearing Feb. 27.

Passed out without prejudice was a bill by Charles R. Jones, providing that burial associations may pay benefits in stipulated merchandise or in cash if demanded by the beneficiary.

U. S. Casualties Exceed 800,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (UP)—American combat casualties announced here passed the 800,000 mark today.

Secretary of Wary Henry L. Stimson also announced that Allied armies have captured more than 900,000 Germans in western Europe since D-day. These are in addition to the 100,692 German prisoners taken in Sicily and Italy and 134,300 taken in North Africa.

This makes a grand total of 1,134,992 German prisoners captured since November, 1942.

Army's Casualties

Stimson said U. S. Army casualties on all fronts compiled through Feb. 14 were 711,497. This figure reflected actual events through the middle of January.

Navy, Marine corps and Coast Guard casualties to date have totaled 89,665. The grand total of 801,162 was an increase of 18,982 over last week's total.

The Army casualties included 138,723 dead; 420,465 wounded, of which nearly half have returned to duty; 60,086 prisoners of war and 92,223 missing in action.

The Navy total included 33,862 dead, 40,783 wounded, 10,546 missing and 4,474 prisoners of war.

Two Die In Flames Of Three-Way Wreck

ROLLA, Mo., Feb. 22 (UP)—Two men died near here last night in the flaming wreckage of a three-way collision involving a truck and two automobiles.

The victims were Capt. Douglas E. MacMillan, jr., of Kirkwood, Mo., and Dave Whaley, Greenville, Tex., negro, the truck driver.

MacMillan was dead when his body was removed from the wreckage. Officers said they had not determined whether he was killed by the impact which wedged his car between the two other vehicles or whether he burned to death. Whaley died enroute to a hospital.

Two passengers on Whaley's truck and the driver of the third vehicle escaped with minor injuries.

The accident occurred when brakes of the heavily-loaded trailer type truck failed to hold on a steep hill, officers said. The truck plunged ahead into the rear of the two automobiles preceding it on a long bridge. Gasoline from the truck's fuel tanks spread over the bridge floor and caught fire.

CORRECTION

WE went all out in making an error over the proposed lecture of John B. Hughes in Thursday's column. Realizing the town will be knee deep in war correspondents within the next few days, we've been afraid someone would be confused but never dreamed we'd be the one. Anyway here's the straight announcement:

Feb. 28, Junior Welfare league is presenting John B. Hughes, who recently returned to the state after a lengthy tour in the Pacific which ended soon after our troops landed on Leyte.

Mar. 1, The Lubbock branch, American Association of University Women, is sponsoring a debate between John Goette and James R. Young, former INS correspondents in China and Japan.

Both programs will be at Senior High school auditorium.

IN THE MAIL

DEAR Margaret, Since L. L. has had such bad luck renting to war wives and war widows, let me tell you of the good luck I've had the past year.

When our garage apartment was vacated last fall I did not want to advertise it because of the great demand, and I hate to see people disappointed. I asked a friend if she knew of anyone wanting an apartment and she said yes, a girl where she worked wanted one, that her husband had been across nearly two years and she expected him home within six months and was wanting an apartment where they could have a little home life while he was here. I asked about character references and she said honestly she did not know; that she only knew the girl in the office and knew nothing of her private life.

I told her to send the girl to see me, and she rented the apartment. As soon as she moved in she started working like a beaver making it as attractive as possible. I caught the spirit and before we were through we had painted, papered, even put in new linoleum and new curtains, which she made herself. And all the time we worked she talked of HIM, their romance, their very brief marriage before he went across and all the little things dear to a woman's heart. After the apartment was ready more months went by and finally early one morning the telephone rang and long distance asked if I would call this war wife to the telephone. Yes it was HIM and he was on his way home at last. She threw her arms around me and cried and I cried with her unashamed—and I wouldn't have missed it for the world. And now he has gone again and she has settled down to more months and maybe years of waiting and she spends her evenings with nice girl friends or writing letters and cutting out news items that would be of interest to her husband. So I know there are both kinds, the good and the bad, just as in every other walk of life.

A Reader.

DEAR Woman's Angle:

The letter from L. L. had at least one very true statement. He calls himself "an unpatriotic, much publicized, idiotic landlord" and goes on to prove the statement by contending that only families of men who have stayed out of the armed services have any right to a decent place to live.

As to his sarcastic reference to "war widows" and their "coming down to earth," I can only say brother L. L. if you had to see a loved one go off into a foreign battlefield and you wonder how many years will have passed before you see him again, if ever, well Mr. L. L. you might get an inkling of what it means to "come down to earth."

I cannot of course speak for all "war widows." Those who break all the rules certainly are not condoned and their doings are as offensive to me as to anyone else. I can, however, speak for myself and others like me, who are striving to keep up their standards of living for themselves and their children until such time as the man in the family can come back from the war and enjoy the privileges or Mr. L. L.'s family man who "returns from work, seeking quiet and rest" each evening.

My experience in finding a place to live never included a landlord who objected to me, only my two children and I got to the point where I answered the stock question "have you any children?" with "Yes, I'm afraid I have" and knew that the search would go on and on. I finally found a sympathetic landlady who rented me a tiny two room apartment and changed by outlook on life.

Take it from me Mr. L. L., our husbands in foreign service worry about the welfare of the families they left behind as much or more than anything and people like you are doing them an injustice when you attempt to malign and discriminate against their wives and families.

Very truly yours,
A War Widow.

Board To Help Develop Nursery

To assist in the devolpment of plans for a more adequate nursery school for negro children a group of 15 interested persons from the white population of the city met Wednesday to organize a cooperating board. The board of directors of the Negro Nursery school here requested such a meeting.

The present status, problems and needs of the Negro Nursery school, 405 East Twentieth were reviewed. The school under the direction of negro workers has been in operation for approximately two or three years to care for children of working negro mothers. It has been financed by a small tuition fee for children attending and by donations from white and negro organizations in the city. Food has been supplied through the Food Distribution Administration. The number of children attending so far exceeds the facilities for caring for them that the school is asking for help in setting up and for guidance in the operation of a nursery school adequate to meet their needs.

Mrs. H. F. Godeke and Mrs. Gladys Holden were chosen co-chairmen of the cooperating board. Committees necessary to the development of the activities of the board were appointed as follows:

Building committee, Geo. A. Simmons, chairman, Miss Sannie Callan, A. I. Glassman, George P. Kuykendall; survey committee, Mrs. Holden, chairman, Rev. John A. Winslow, Mrs. L. L. Miller. This committee is a sub-committee of the building committee and will make a study to ascertain the type of plant needed and report to the building committee as soon as possible.

Furnishings and equipment committee, Miss Callan, chairman, Miss Bernice Borgman, Mrs. Kuykendall; business management committee, Mrs. Holden and Mr. Glassman, co-chairman, Mrs. W. R. Hedrick, Raymond Burford, Mrs. Miller; operation committee, Mrs. J. D. Hassell and Rev. Winslow, co-chairmen, Mrs. Durwood Bradley; health, sanitation and safety committee, Bert Kahn, chairman, Miss Vivian Johnson, Miss Margaret W. Weeks; publicity committee, Miss Bernice Borgman, chairman, Mrs. Godeke, Miss Johnson.

Those present at the meeting were Mrs. Godeke, Miss Weeks, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Hedrick, Mrs. J. W. Hendryx, Rev. Winslow, Miss Callan, Mr. Simmons, Mr. Kuykendall, Mrs. Bradley, Mr. Glassman, Miss Borgman, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Holden, and Mrs. J. D. Hassell. Other members of the board who were unable to be present are Mrs. A. W. Young, Mr. Kahn and Mrs. Burford.

The cooperating board will next meet to continue with plans on Thursday, March 1, in the home economics building on the campus of Texas Tech.

Attorney Declines To Comment On Ouster

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Joe H. Jones, commenting on a report that he had been suspended as assistant U. S. district attorney in Dallas, today declared only an investigation would reveal the true facts.

He said he turned in his resignation on Feb. 9, and when it is accepted he will open a law practice in Dallas.

In Washington the Justice department said Jones was suspended pending the outcome of an investigation. The department said the suspension was ordered by James P. McGranery, assistant to the attorney general, at the request of U. S. Attorney Clyde O. Eastus of the northern district of Texas.

The department refused comment on reasons for the action.

A native of Gorman, Jones long has been prominent in Texas legal circles. He served Eastland county as county judge and district attorney and once ran for Congress.

City Commission Backs Plan For Extensive Study Of Civic Center

Wholeheartedly endorsing a civic center project as a No. 1 need for Lubbock, members of the City commission Thursday afternoon voted to follow recommendations of the City Planning commission in suggesting extensive study on the matter to plan for a structure to fill the needs of Lubbock for many years to come.

No official action on the project was taken by the commission but it was indicated in discussion of the project that in view of the shortness of time and the need for exhaustive study of the matter that the option now held on the Central Ward site would be allowed to expire. The option covers a 60-day period.

Extension Of Option

Mayor O. W. Ribble, expressing his attitude on the project in the meeting, declared: "I'm heartily in favor of the project and believe we should take plenty of time in drawing up plans, studying various sites and deciding on the size and type of structure we will build . . . This can't be done in 60 days time and for that reason, the option on the Central Ward site will necessarily have to be extended or allowed to expire."

The planning commission, meeting with commission members last week, recommended that careful study be given to the project and that visits be made to towns of comparative size to Lubbock so that similar projects be studied and mistakes made by these towns corrected so far as possible.

City Manager Marlin R. Smith revealed that petitions bearing a total of 704 names had been presented to the commission calling for a bond election for the purchase of a site for the center.

Citizens Committee

It was indicated in the meeting that a citizens committee to study various projects in other cities utimately would be appointed and recommendations submitted after visits had been made to these places.

Discussion of the civic center highlighted the meeting Thursday afternoon in City hall with all members of the commission present. Besides Mayor Ribble and Smith, they included Commissioners W. B. Price, Hub Jones, Ray Dickey and Fred Childress, City Attorney Durwood Bradley and City Secretary Lavenia Williams.

Other action taken by the commission included the approval of a route change for a city bus after Manager Ray Farmer of the Lubbock City Bus company had appeared before the commission.

Proposed Route Changes

The route change approved was for the Ave. N, 34th, and Ave. S bus. Instead of making the return trip to the station down Nineteenth to Ave. M and thence to Main, the new route calls for the bus to run from Ave. S down Nineteenth to Ave. Q and then north to Main, thence east on Main to the bus station at Main and Ave. J.

Mayor Ribble also appointed a committee composed of Childress, Smith and Lewis Kittrell, traffic officer, to study the question of designation of loading zones on downtown streets for the buses.

Another action of city-wide interest was the transfer of administration of the municipal swimming pool to the city recreation department with the same separate accounting being maintained on the project. Supervision of the pool will be under the city recreation director's charge.

Ordinances Approved

Two ordinances, No. 704 extending the city limits to include the Phillips addition and Wagner park, in southwest Lubbock; and No. 705, closing a portion of the north and south alley in block 129, Original Town of Lubbock, back of the First Methodist church, were approved on final readings.

Members of the board of adjustment on the zoning ordinance were re-appointed for two-year terms. They were: Knox T. Thomas, W. L. Bradshaw, J. H. Brock and W. R. Faubion.

Renewal of the lease on the Baker building for the USO for another year was approved at the same price of $250 a month, the rest to be paid by the USO. The contract, however, has to be signed by the city.

Approval was also given for the establishment of a loading zone at 1005 Ave. H for the Cottingham Bearing Co.

To Settle Claim

City Manager Smith was instructed to settle a claim against the city with Juanita Long, a negro woman, in compensation for injuries received in an accident in Booker T. Washington park.

A general contractor's bond for Roy P. Watson and bonds for moving a building were approved for S. M. Thweatt and B. D. Coffee.

Smith was also instructed to purchase summer uniforms for the police department from S. & Q. Clothiers at a cost of $12.50 per garment.

Request of Louis Murfee for adjustment of taxes on the Paulk tract in the 2000 block on Ave. K resulted in the commission remitting $115 in penalty and interest after it had shown that valuations had been too high on certain years.

Woman Found Sane, Given Her Freedom

FORT WORTH, Feb. 22 (AP) — Miss Kathleen Latham, 25, who 18 months ago was sent to the state hospital at Wichita Falls after being adjudged insane as an aftermath of her slaying Jack B. Disney, warplant worker, in a strange triangle shooting, was found sane this afternoon by a criminal district court jury which deliberated less than five minutes.

The entire procedure in the court, with the district attorney's office offering no opposition, required only about 30 minutes.

Miss Latham, calm even during her own brief testimony in this, her third attempt to win freedom from the insanity judgment, paused in the court room to thank jurors and members of the district attorney's staff.

Principal witness for her was Dr. L. Mackechney, superintendent of the Wichita Falls hospital, who testified that Miss Latham is not only sane now but was sane when she arrived at the hospital.

As the murder indictment against Miss Latham was abated when she was found insane, the jury verdict today made her a free woman for the first time since the slaying of Disney who had objected to Miss Latham's association with his wife.

Proposed Tax Power Shift Rouses Cities

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Officials from several Texas cities will descend on Austin Tuesday to oppose a proposed constitutional amendment that would give all tax collection powers to county governments, it was learned today.

Acting City Manager V. R. Smitham of Dallas talked by telephone with City Manager John N. Edy of Houston today and plans to contact other officials on the subject immediately.

"It looks like there is more pending legislation affecting cities vitally than for several past sessions," Smitham said, "and we will have to get down to Austin to protect our city governments."

A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday on a joint resolution proposing a statewide vote on a constitutional amendment taking taxing powers away from all local governments except counties, Smitham said. Under this plan cities and school districts would have to depend on county tax collectors for their revenue.

Pilot Commended For Photo Of Air Attack

ABOARD U. S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER OFF TOKYO, Feb. 17 (Delayed) (U.P.)—Lt. (jg) J. J. Sargent, Houston, Tex., a fighter pilot assigned a photographic mission today, brought in perfect strike photographs of the bombing of an aircraft engine plant on Tokyo's outskirts.

Vice Adm. Marc C. Mitscher personally complemented him for his performance.

To bring home the photos, Sargent went in low over the target despite flak and got his first pictures, then shot down a Japanese "Oscar" and came in over the target again for his second set. On the way home he dropped low over the suburbs and strafed two railway trains from one end to the other.

Heavier Demand For Chicks Is Reported

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—Demand for chicks beyond earlier expectations was reported today by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Texas commercial hatcheries as a whole were seasonally active in January with an output of 3,300,000 as compared to 3,295,000 in January, 1944, and 3,180,000 for the 1939-40 average.

Hatching eggs were reported more plentiful but still relatively scarce considering the active demand. Hatcher output of turkey poults however, was much greater last January because of an earlier start and increased interest, said the USDA.

Solons Tangle Over Dirty Communist, Dirty Liar Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—Reps. John E. Rankin (D-Miss) and Frank E. Hook (D-Mich) exchanged strong words and feeble blows in the House today.

No blood was spilled and there were no knockdowns. Other House members pulled the fighters apart after a matter of seconds. At the conclusion, Rankin's hair was hanging down over his face, and Hook's was disarranged as the result of a vigorous pulling by Rankin.

Rankin, 62 and slightly-built, had accused Hook of associating with "dirty Communists." Hook, 51 and stocky, came back with "you're a dirty liar."

Rankin had the last word after the battle, however. With some fast parliamentary in-fighting, he moved to have Hook's words read to the House and expunged. Hook countered with a similar move about Rankin's words, but the Mississipian had got in his demand first.

Under the rules, the chair having sustained Rankin, Hook had to resume his seat and be silent for the rest of the day.

No really solid blows were landed during the fight. It was more a matter of clinching and, on Rankin's part, hair-pulling. It was preceded by much gesturing.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox (D-Ga) said today that a resolution to expel Hook from the House will be offered tomorrow.

Identity Of Crash Victims Announced

DALLAS, Feb. 22. (AP)—Names of three crewmen whose bodies were recovered from a heavy bomber which crashed in the flooded bottomlands of the Trinity river were released today by the Fifth Ferrying command at Love Field here.

They are listed as:

First Lt. Frederick Donald Gaulke, Desplaines, Ill.; Second Lt. Arthur Peter Bick, jr., Malinto, Ohio; Pfc. Herman N. White, Rome, Ga.

Search continued today for the body of the fourth crew member aboard the plane, from the Smyna, Tenn., Army air base. His name was not released immediately.

Treaty Ratification To Be Recommended

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 22 (AP)—A Washington dispatch to the Phoenix Gazette said today that the Senate Foreign Relations committee would recommend Senate ratification of the United States-Mexico water treaty.

Lengthy hearings on the proposed agreement have just been concluded in Washington by the committee. The recommendations are expected to be made public shortly.

The Gazette article quoted Arizona's attorney general, John L. Sullivan, as saying Arizona's position on the treaty would be sustained. Arizona has urged ratification. Sullivan is in Washington, the Gazette said.

Bullock's School Plan Approved

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP) — Sen. Pat Bullock's constitutional amendment which would completely upset the present system of allocating available per capita school funds, had cleared a committee hurdle today after beating down well defined committee opposition.

On a close voice vote, at the end of a two-hour public hearing, a majority of the committee placed its approval of the legislation yesterday.

Bullock, in explaining the legislation, said that figures obtained from the state superintendent's office, show that out of 1,511,231 students enumerated in the 1944 census 506,000 of this number are not attending public school.

Under the provisions of Bullock's legislation the available school funds would be allocated on the basis of average daily attendance.

Examples Cited

Citing examples of the difference in application of the present and the proposed formula, the author of the measure said that a large number of Latin-American children are enrolled in various South Texas counties but when school opens in the fall these students have migrated to West Texas or to the sugar beet fields in the middle west. The schools where they were enumerated, however, receive the per capita apportionment which this year totaled $29. In the meantime they return in time to be counted in the March census.

J. A. Bix of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce from Fort Worth told the committee that a survey had been made by his organization and that a majority of five to one favored the Bullock proposal.

Major opposition to the proposal came from members of the committee from South Texas. West Texas members who said they did not believe they had received their fair share of school funds were solidly behind the measure.

Women's Panties Now May Have To Be Declared Vital

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 22.(U.P.) —Most of the department stores here were out of women's panties today.

The announcement yesterday of the War Production board's newest list of vital, low cost items, included diapers, men's shorts and other items, but omitted women's panties. As a result, housewives flocked to the stores to snap up what they considered vital even if Washington didn't.

Local merchants called upon Ahlon Gregg, district manager of the WPB, for explanation. He turned to the regional WPB office in New York.

Officials in New York explained the unmentionables were omitted only because a survey showed that there were enough in stock to meet present demands. However, they said, as soon as the supply runs short, women's panties, too, will be added to that list of vital items.

In other words, they become vital when you don't have any.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 22 (AP)— Elisco R. Russek, Mexican consul, reported the arrest in Mexicali, Mex., today of Max Weber, an American, wanted by the Mexican government in connection with the slaying of Enrique Diarte near Tijuana last October 31.

Mexican government officials said Diarte's death was connected with a violent narcotic smuggling war along the international border. Two Mexicans are awaiting trial in Guadalajara in connection with Diarte's slaying.

Soldier Buried Alive By Nazis, Recovers

TEMPLE, Feb. 22. (U.P.)—A Dallas soldier was recovering today in McCloskey General hospital from wounds received when a German tank ran over his foxhole.

Pvt. Ocie E. Gilbert said his unit was warned that Germans were planning to counter attack with tanks. While he and another soldier were in a foxhole, they were buried alive. However, a man nearby saw what had happened and rescued them.

When Gilbert escaped from the grave, he saw three of the German tanks left burning on the spot and the others were going back over the hill.

"There were lots of supplies in France and Belgim," was Gilbert's main comment, "so it was not so bad when we ran out of food and water."

His wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Gilbert, live in Dallas.

Service Tourney Here Called Off

Plans for the first annual Tri-State Service Basketball Tournament set for the Texas Tech gym March 2-3 were dropped Thursday afternoon as officials at Lubbock Army Air Field announced that the promising hardwood event had been cancelled.

The tournament was called off after officials at LAAF received a directive from higher headquarters which prohibits any Army Air Force cage squad to enter in tournament competition after March 1.

An attempt to arrange the tournament for an earlier date was not successful because some of the teams which had accepted invitations to enter the event had previous commitments.

However, even though the tournament has been called off the LAAF squad and Texas Tech still have some top hardwood tussles on their schedules for the remainder of the campaign. Tuesday, Feb. 27, the LAAF cagers will journey to Frederick, Okla., to tangle with the strong Frederick Army Air Field team, one of the squads which had been entered in the tournament and a team which holds a lopsided decision over the Fliers from a contest earlier in the season at LAAF.

The same night Texas Tech takes on the strong Roswell Army Air Field team at the Tech gym. The next night, Wednesday, Feb. 28, the LAAF team will play the New Mexico club. This will mark the first meeting of the two clubs, although LAAF has just completed a two-day invasion of New Mexico where they lost a last-minute one-point decision to Clovis Army Air Field and won a last four-second one-point thriller over Hobbs Army Air Field.

Plans for the tournament were the most extensive of any such event planned in the city. Games had been planned for the afternoon and night of Friday, March 2, and the morning and night of Saturday, March 3.

Schoolboy Fighters Open At Petersburg

The fisticuff lid of the South Plains high school boxers will be blown off Friday night, at 8:15 o'clock when the powerful Amarillo Golden Sandies invade the Petersburg gymnasium for a fifteen fight joust with the potent Petersburg pugs.

The Petersburg fencers are extremely anxious to trip the powerful Sandies in view of the fact that the Sandies were the only team to hold an advantage in dual matches during the last year. In three meetings of the two schools last year, the Sandies posted a two to one advantage in the matches.

While the Sandies are reputed to be as strong, or stronger, than a year ago, the Petersburg puqilists are also more potent by virtue of a year of active campaigning that has gained the much needed ring lore and finesse that was missing at this time last year.

Only a single face is missing from the starting roster of last year's Petersburg team and such familiar names as Ralph White, Frankie Stanton, Gordon Depriest, Coyt Thompson, Hollis Black and others are expected to make the going tough for the invading Sandies.

Of more than four hundred tickets placed on sale, only forty remain untaken and indications are for a capacity crowd; however it is thought that all who come can be accommodated at least with standing room.

Junior Meet Opener Won By Shallowater

Pulling away in the final period, the Shallowater Juniors won the opening game of the Lubbock Senior High School invitation junior basketball tournament Thursday night at the Westerner gym, 24-17.

For better than three quarters, Slaton held its own with the highly touted Shallowater five, and Gentry kept the Tiger Cubs in the ball game as he won scoring honors of the night with 13 of his team's 17 points.

Slaton was never able to grab a lead, but the ball game was tied up several times in the first three periods. Shallowater led 13-11 at the half.

Galey and Murphy paced the winners, each flipping in eight points.

Play will be resumed promptly at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon with the Meadow Juniors playing one of the Boys Club fives from Lubbock. The field will be reduced to the quarterfinals this afternoon and tonight. The quarterfinals will start at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, the semifinals will start at 4 o'clock, and the finals will be played Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Twin Bill Booked At Tech Tonight

Basketball fans of Lubbock will get plenty of basketball tonight at the Texas Tech gym, with a colorful two-way show offered, and the season's greatest turnout for basketball is predicted.

The Lubbock Westerners make a brief return to the basketball floor, and battle the Kermit Yellow Jackets, champions of District 6-A, in the opening game, scheduled for 7:30 o'clock.

Tech Plays Teachers

In the nightcap, Coach Polk Robison's Texas Tech Red Raiders will take the floor with the West Texas State Teachers college Buffs with the Red Raiders seeking to win their fifth straight, and at the same time to reap revenge for early season losses at the hands of the rangy Buffs.

Coach Burton Adams, former Littlefield coach, will bring to Lubbock a schoolboy basketball team, rated as one of the fastest and best teams in West Texas. The Kermit lads won their title without a defeat, and will enter the regional tournament at Abilene March 2-3 for the second straight year.

Kermit Club Fast

The Kermit five are not overly tall, but have plenty of speed and hustle, and some deadly marksmanship on the baskets. The regular starters are Joe Ethridge, Kenneth McIver, Glenn Beard, Lavoy Hinkle and Eddie Kay Norris.

Coach Dixie White is expected to start Lonnie Balch and Gerald Davies at forwards, Verdell Turner at center, and George Brewer and Charles Pressley at guards. R. W. Moyers, a regular with the Westerners, will be missing Friday night, while taking his pre-induction physical at El Paso, but hopes to be back Saturday.

Just who will start for the Red Raiders was also somewhat in doubt, but the local collegiate cagers have been working hard for these two games, and have a much improved ball club over the ones that suffered early season defeats to the Canyon five.

Meadow Beats New Home For 9-B Title

ROPEVILLE, Feb. 22. (Special) —The Meadow High school carried home the trophy in the District 9-B basketball race here tonight, winning a 35-25 victory over New Home in the finals of the tournament played here last weekend.

Jack Barnes set a blistering pace for the new district champions, pouring 18 points through the hoops for scoring honors of the night. He was closely followed by Delbert Timmons of New Home, who racked up 14 points.

The Victory gave Meadow the right to play in the Class B regional tournament at Canyon, March 2 and 3.

Meadow and New Home shared honors in the naming of the All-District basketball team, each placing two men on the six-man squad named. Others came from Plains and Ropesville. The All-District team is Albright of Plains, Locke of Meadow, Jay of Ropes, Delbert Timmons of New Home, Terry of Meadow and Wayne Timmons of New Home.

Jack Dempsey Urges Sports Continuation

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22. (U.P) —Athletes rejected for military service can do their country no better service than by participating in sports events to build the morale of men overseas, Cmdr. Jack Dempsey of the U. S. Coast Guard declared today.

Dempsey, en route to an overseas assignment in the Pacific war zones, looked fit as a fiddle. The former world's heavyweight champion was unable to divulge his Pacific destination but said he hoped ultimately to meet up with an old friend of his—Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Philippines.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22. (U.P) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced today they have offered a 1945 contract to Gus Mancuso, 39 year old former catcher of the New York Giants.

Favorites Win Girls Openers

ABERNATHY, Feb. 22 (Special) Three favorites won their opening games here tonight in the District 18 girls basketball tournament with sextets from Meadow, Cooper and New Deal surviving the first round of play.

Meadow won the opener, eliminating Littlefield 38-22, as Jean Finley and Pat Walker turned on the steam to score 27 points between them, Finley getting 17 of these. Imogene Harlin paced the Littlefield girls with nine points.

The Cooper win was almost a one-man show, with Mary Frances Wilke pouring 17 points through the meshes to lead Cooper to a 27-15 win over New Home. Werda Rhea Robinson led the scoring for New Home with seven.

In the finale, New Deal won over Petersburg in another free scoring battle, 31-22, but scoring honors of the game went to Lily Byrd of Petersburg, who flipped in 12 points. Mary Ann Kveton paced the winners with 11 points.

The afternoon session Friday will call for three games, with three more on the night session. The afternoon play will start at 2 o'clock, with Wilson playing Lorenzo, followed by Whiteface and Anton. Meadow will return to action at 4 o'clock, playing Abernathy.

The night session will start at 7 o'clock, with Cooper returning to play Whitharral. Union of Terry county plays New Deal at 8 o'clock, the finale Friday will pair the winners of the first two afternoon games.

The opening card drew one of the banner crowds of the year.

Childress Bobcats Cop 2AA Cage Title

CHILDRESS, Tex., Feb. 22. (AP) —The Childress Bobcats defeated Burkburnett's Bulldogs tonight, 32-21, to take the District 2-AA Interscholastic League basketball championship.

Tuesday night at Burkburnett, the Bobcats won the opening game of the three-game series.

Burkburnett staged a late rally that at one point cut the victor's lead to four points. But Childress pulled away in the final minutes of play.

Demaret Tunes Golf Game In Rain Storm

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 22. (AP) —Jolly Jimmy Demaret, athletic specialist F/C of the Corpus Christi, Tex., Naval Air Station, bucked a steady rain to post a 6-under par 66 today in the pro-amateur warmup to the $6,500 Pensacola Open war bond golf tournament scheduled to start tomorrow.

Demaret, holder of the all time P.G.A. tournament record of six championships in one year, 1940, made 6 birdies and 12 pars in posting a score of 33-33. His driving was brilliant and his putting almost sensational on the west course.

The Texan will be making his second start of the winter season in the open. He was sixth in the Corpus Christi, Tex., Open earlier this month.

Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who won the Gulfport Open in a playoff with Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio. stylist, Monday, was suffering from a cold and passed up play today. Nelson and his "gold dust twin" Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Sanford, Me., played only the first nine holes and both claimed "par 36's."

Section C Line Wins LAAF Loop Feature

Section C Line retained the league leadership in the Lubbock Army Air field squadron basketball league last night by winning a 33-29 decision over the Section A five in the feature game. Colla paced the winners with 11 points.

With Harris getting 14 points for top honors, Section C Hanger won the opener over Section F, 26-23. Section I nosed out Section B, 18-17, with Markarian leading the winners with eight points. Finance topped the Flying Officers, 26-21, with McNelly tying the night's high mark for the winners with 14 points.

District 4-A Openers Won By Levelland And O'Donnell

LEVELLAND, Feb. 22. — The O'Donnell Eagles and Levelland Lobos turned in opening night wins in the District 4-A basketball playoffs here tonight, O'Donnell winning the opener over the Sudan Hornets, 35-25, and Levelland winning over the Slaton Tigers, 36-23.

In the opening game, O'Donnell bounded away to a 12-0 lead in first few minutes, and were never headed off. Sudan seemed reluctant to take chances at shooting for the basket in the game, and this tactic put them too far in the rear to catch up.

Brownlow High Scorer

Brownlow poured in 19 points for the winners, followed by Pearson with seven. The scoring for Sudan was well divided, with Albert Lynch getting nine points, Eddings eight and L. Lynch seven.

In the second game, Slaton jumped away to an eight point lead before the Lobos could find the range on the basket, and the first quarter ended with Slaton leading 8-3.

Lobos Take Lead

Levelland found the range in the second quarter, and took an 18-13 lead at the halftime, and were never headed off. The Lobos moved into the final period with a 23-19 advantage.

Palmer paced the winners, scoring 13 points before he went out of the game on fouls midway in the final period. Garrison followed him with nine, and Clairdy with eight. Elder, a big boy with the Tigers, paced the losers with nine points.

Sudan and Slaton will play Friday morning at 11 o'clock, with the loser of this game being eliminated from the tournament. O'Donnell and Levelland meet at noon in the feature game.

The winner of the Sudan-Slaton game will play the loser of the O'Donnell-Levelland tilt at the afternoon session, with the finals due Friday night.

District 8-B Cagers Name Final Standing

The final standings in the District 8-B conference basketball race were released Thursday by Supt. O. T. Loyd of McAdoo school, conference chairman.

The standings revealed that Lorenzo boys and Robertson girls won their respective divisions with a record of nine wins and one loss. The lone loss for Lorenzo was to Robertson early in the season, while the Lorenzo girls were the only ones to defeat Robertson.

Lorenzo won second place in the girls bracket with eight wins and two losses, while Jayton was runner-up in the boys play with seven wins and three losses.

Austin Repeats For District Cage Title

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 22. (AP)— Austin's Maroons repeated as District 15-AA basketball champion by trimming the Brackenridge Eagles here tonight, 31 to 23, in the decider of a three-game series between the two schools, but that isn't the story.

Brackenridge started fast and held a 13-2 lead during the second quarter only to blow that when the Eagles began shooting long shots and Austin gradually whittled away until finishing with an eight-point lead.

Fishing Bill Ready For Governor's Pen

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 22 (AP)—A bill abolishing closed seasons on fresh water fishing in Texas and relaxing size limits will become law when Governor Coke R. Stevenson signs it, probably next week.

Overwheming House approval of the Senate sponsored bill today sent the measure toward the governor's desk in a race against the general closed season which begins March 1 under present statutes.

A revision of policy in Texas fish conservation, the bill was based on a recommendation of the Game, Fish and Oyster commission whose biologists and other scientists have determined that fishing does not exhaust the fish supply of water which has adequate food and cover for fish.

The present general law closes fresh water fishing in most counties in March and April. The new bill creates a continuous season and repeals a multitude of special or local laws on open seasons. Bills to create new local laws may be introduced if the new general bill is approved by the governor.

If it becomes law the newly approved bill will remove the minimum size limit on all fish except black bass. A seven-inch minimum displaces the present 11-inch limitation on black bass.

To encourage the taking of smaller black bass the bill permits a daily bag limit of 15 bass under seven inches. Not more than 10 additional bass of more than 11 inches may be taken.

The bag limit on white bass, catfish, white perch and bream (no minimum size is stipulated for any of these) is increased to 25 per day.

The bill has no effect upon present general or special licensing requirements or methods of legally taking fish.

Volleyball Play Opens At Lubbock Schools

The volleyball season opened in Lubbock grade schools Thursday afternoon, with three games played on the opening round. The boys teams of K. Carter and Dupre and the girls team from Sanders schools turned in wins.

The K. Carter Coyotes won 29-12 over the Bean Bronchos and the Dupre Dogies won 33 to 17 over the Sanders Bulldogers. The Sanders girls evened the count with Dupre by winning 39-11, Bean's girls were awarded a victory by default over K. Carter girls.

An Oldfashioned View

Let The Boss Have Some Rights

THE fellow who signs the paychecks, or, in some cases, the fellow who bosses the fellow who signs the paychecks, used to be the cock-of-the-walk around any businesshouse employing him. But today, wrapped in governmental directives, union demands and the burdens of keeping things running without sufficient experienced personnel, he's usually the most helpless of individuals.

And if some vote-seeking congressman and higher government officials have their way, he'll be worse off than ever—not only for "the duration," but forever and a day; or, at least, until some semblance of order is returned to nationwide domestic affairs.

A segment of Washington officialdom is pressing for some sort of law to enforce the President's politics-born "Fair Employment Practices Committee," under which employers are supposed to hire anybody and everybody adjudged (by someone besides the employer) to be fit for employment. Under the legislation now planned The Atlanta Journal, for instance, might have to employ a negro as advertising manager; the Catholic World might have to accept as its managing editor a former kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan; the Baptist Standard might have to take on an editorial writer named Abe Cohen—and Abe's father might have to hire Mike Fogarty to manage his kosher restaurant or, even worse, might have to take Mike on as a cook! Even the Pittsburgh Courier, the "rabble-rousingest" of the bigger negro newspapers, might have to employ a white reporter to cover the activities of the American Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which certainly wouldn't be satisfactory to either the Courier, or the AAACP.

Of course, such legislation doesn't make sense—but if it doesn't, it couldn't be called a departure from much of New Deal Washington's policy. It might even start very unobnoxiously, by applying only to firms having government contracts, although the so-called "Fair Employment Practices Committee," operating under very questionable presidential war powers, already has attempted to force unacceptable employment practices on streetcar and railroad companies which couldn't exactly be called war plants, or holders of government contracts.

For out part, we're just oldfashioned enough to think that the boss, after all, has a few rights, even if he doesn't vote for permanent continuation of the New Deal each fourth November.

Since his is the responsibility of keeping a business running; of keeping people working, of seeing that the business makes money so it and its stockholders and its employes can all pay taxes, we think his wishes occasionally should be taken into consideration. After all, keeping businesses running is much more important than keeping any politician, or set of politicians, whomever they may be, in the front row at the public trough.

The trouble is, it is difficult to persuade the affected politicians that this is so.

Youth's Day On The Wane

WARTIME influences are still increasing the population of this country at a rapid rate, according to estimates made public by the Bureau of the Census. As of last July 1, the population of the United States was 138,100,874 compared to 131,600,000 in 1940, a net gain of 6,500,000.

Moreover, in the year between July 1, 1943, and July 1, 1944, the net increase was 1,600,000. It was the result chiefly, as in other war years, of the difference between births and deaths, although immigration accounted for part of it.

But the trend, while it is still upward, is no longer as vigorous as it was. According to the bureau's experts, the peak in the birth rate came in late 1942 and it has been declining ever since. Meanwhile the death rate has risen, owng to mlitary casualties, and it may rise still further this year. Eventually, too, battle losses will make themselves felt on the birth rate.

Thus the population curve, which had been flattening out in the prewar years, appears to be about to return to its characteristic course. The factors that altered it in one direction are now working in reverse. Many Americans now living will see the day when deaths will balance—or over balance—births and the population will be stationary, even decline.

That will mean eventually, important changes in the character of the American people because the percentage of older persons in the population will rise as the percentage of younger persons fall. Undoubtedly this fact alone will have significant consequences on American thinking in time to come.

"The emotion of love often brings on a cold," says a physician. And also chills and fever, he might well have added.

A GEORGIA TOWN IN 1807

V

When the dinner was over the ladies rose from the table at a signal from Mrs. Earle and went into the parlor, leaving the gentlemen to their brandies and toddies. As naturally as water runs downhill the conversation flowed into the perennial, inexhaustible subject of cotton.

"We were paying only 18 cents for middling today," William Clayton remarked.

"That's quite a comedown from last season," said Harvey Earle, and it makes me uneasy. I'm holding over a lot of cotton that I paid 20 and 21 cents a pound for. Do you think the price will come back?"

"I don't know, I'm sure, but to be on the safe side we must pay the farmer less. There's no sense in buying cotton at 20 cents a pound and selling it for 17 or 18. What are your ideas on this subject, Mr. Lowther?"

"My instructions," the Englishman replied, "are to pay the current price, whatever that may be, but never to go above the price of the previous year, ah, what?"

"So you see how it is," Harvey Earle said, nodding to William Clayton, "pay the current price, he says, but never exceed last year's prices. The tendency is downward."

"Yes, we must expect that," was Clayton's comment. "There's a bigger crop this year than there was last year, and last year's was the biggest up to that time. Twenty years from now this region — I mean the whole South — will not only grow cotton, but will think cotton and talk cotton all the time. The whole world's supply will be raised here. How it is going to affect our future, and that of our children, God only knows. I wish we were not so dependent on a single commodity."

"And Whitney's little cotton gin did it all, did it all, did it all," said Robert Harrison huskily, thrumming the table with his fingers. He had drunk too much brandy.

"I remember the days before the cotton gin," said Harvey Earle. "It seems a long time ago, but it is really only 14 or 15 years. Whitney invented his gin in 1793. Nobody ever expected in those days that cotton would ever be an important crop."

"It took a Negro all day to get the seed out of five pounds of cotton," Joe Hutchinson said. "Five pounds — working from morning to night. John Hartley, who has a big place on the Savannah road, produced about 2000 pounds of cotton a year, and he was looked upon then as a big cotton grower, but today a crop of that size is considered pretty small. Raised four or five bales a year and at that he had 10 or a dozen Negroes sitting on a barn floor separating the seeds from the lint, and it took these darkies six or seven weeks to do the job.

"Now he raises 50,000 pounds a year, and doesn't need a single nigger to pick out the seeds. The gin does it all."

Cecil Lowther listened with vivid interest to Hutchinson's talk, and said when it was finished, "I suppose Mr. Whitney spent years in working on his idea of the gin before perfecting it."

"Mr. Clayton can tell you all about that," Joe Hutchinson said. "He's a friend of Eli Whitney."

Mr. Clayton cleared his throat and said, "I met Eli Whitney soon after he arrived in Georgia. Fine boy, he was. From Connecticut, graduate of Yale.

"Well, to get back to the gin. He was a guest of Phineas Miller and his wife, on their plantation near Savannah when I made his acquaintance.

"One evening Mrs. Miller had a lot of us in for dinner. After dinner we got to talking about the difficulty of seeding the cotton. Eli Whitney listened closely; he sent a Negro out for some cotton with the seeds in it, and I remember his sitting there and pulling the lint off.

"He told me later that the idea of the gin occurred to him that evening in all its features. In a week he'd built a rough little gin, not much bigger'n a hat box. He saw that the way to handle the matter was to comb the lint cotton away from seeds. So he put a lot of wire teeth on a roller, arranged in rows so that when the roller was turned the teeth would run through slots, or through a sort of grating. The cotton was put on the other side of the slots, or grating. Then, as the roller turned the teeth would pull the cotton from the seeds.

"He invited me, and some others to see the gin work. Well, sir in a few hours it had ginned 20 pounds of cotton. The machine didn't have any name at the time, so Whitney called it a gin, which is a contraction of the word engine."

"I've often wondered why I didn't invent the gin," said Joseph Hutchinson, "or you, Harvey, or any of us. It's the simplest device in the world, and looks like the idea might occur to anybody. But it didn't. It just goes to show—"

He did not say what it goes to show, for Mrs. Earle, coming to the door, smiled at the gathering and said, "Are you gentlemen going to remain here all night?"

Her husband said, "No, darling, we're coming right away." Then he glanced at Robert Harrison, lying asleep with his head on the table, and said to his wife, "I think you'd better ask Mrs. Harrison to come in for a moment. We'll have to lay Robert out on the sofa in here, and I want her to see that he's comfortable."

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

YOU know the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun.

I thought that in my many years as a newspaperman I had met about everything there is in the line of human beings.

But read this letter from Ohio:

"Last evening my husband, our two older boys and I went downtown together. I wanted to buy groceries, and since my husband does not believe in chain stores, refused to go in with me.

"As I buy staple food only about once a month, it took me about an hour to buy and pay for the things I got. This made my husband mad, and I was ashamed of him because he didn't get out of the car and help me across the street with the big bundles I carried. However he did open the door.

BRANDEIS

"As usual, very little was said when things went wrong. My husband put the car in a parking lot and we all went to a show, as we had planned. When we came out it was way past our meal time but since he didn't say anything about eating out I supposed he would rather eat at home.

"Arriving home, my husband said he would bring in the groceries while I went after our baby at my folks near by. This I did, and when I came back, found the groceries in the middle of the floor, husband in bed, boys hungry and house chilly.

"The fire was out, so I built another, put the baby to bed, gave the boys something to eat and put them to bed. Then I gathered the eggs, for they would freeze and crack if left out, and got myself something to eat.

"But in spite of his thoughtlessness I feel happy, because I blame his bad temper for what he does and that at heart he is all right."

When I read the letter my first thought was how I would like to meet that guy and just paste him a good one in the nose.

But then I pictured that poor wife, loving a disgusting prig like that in spite of all his shortcomings and I said to myself what right have I to judge when she is happy with him?

I can tell you this, however: Any man who acts like this fellow from Ohio did, is a contemptible coward.

He knows darn well that she can't do much about it, with three children, and probably depending on him for everything she has.

What a noble thing to do, to let a woman carry the groceries, to make her do the cooking and gathering the eggs and lighting the fire, when he, the master of the house goes to bed and sulks!

But he did open the door for her, she says. Now isn't that wonderful? What chivalry, what effort it must have taken!

WHY IN THE world do so many men get so careless after they get married? Why can't they treat their wives the same as they did before they married them?

I wouldn't stay with a woman if she took that kind of treatment from me.

How can a marriage be successful unless there is mutual respect? How can a man love a woman if she lets him treat her like a doormat?

And how can a woman love a man who promised her everything under the sun before she married him, and then breaks not only every promise but every law of decent human behavior?

The woman who wrote me this letter says that, perhaps I don't understand her happiness and asks me to read the first Psalm, which I did.

And maybe that is the answer: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners."

FDR's Appointments Criticised

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ALTHOUGH President Roosevelt's selection of the American delegation to the San Francisco conference of United Nations was generally approved on the first announcement, second-thought Democrats and Republicans here now beg to differ. They doubt whether the personnel will stack up against the diplomatic bigwigs who will speak for Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Always quick to attribute political motives to FDR from their 12 years' experience with him, Republican leaders on Capitol Hill are especially provoked. They grumble particularly about the choice of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Lt. Commdr. Harold Stassen of Minnesota as their representatives, although for different reasons in each instance.

TUCKER

They point out that Mr. Vandenberg has more than 300,000 voters of Polish descent in his state. Should he become involved in the dispute over the partition of Poland at the San Francisco deliberations, it might cost him his seat when he runs for re-election next year.

GOP-ers also note that the man from Michigan has emerged as their party's leading spokesman on foreign questions since he proposed an immediate agreement by the Big Three for the demilitarization of Germany. At the moment he is frequently mentioned as a prospective presidential nominee in 1948. Naturally, they do not want to see their "white hope" knocked out of the running while serving under White House colors.

STASSEN: But it is the choice of Commander Stassen which really irks the gentleman of the "loyal opposition." They regard the dragooning of the former governor of Minnesota as an attempt to keep alive the Republicans' family fight over the controversial question of nationalism versus internationalism.

The Navy officer is looked on as the direct political heir of the late Wendell Willkie. His close friend and original appointee, Sen. Joe Ball, repudiated Tom Dewey and supported Mr. Roosevelt in the 1944 campaign. So the GOP-ers consider the Stassen selection as the "payoff."

Republicans want to hush-hush all factional divisions concerning the role the GOP will assume in forthcoming battles over American participation in world affairs. In their opinion Messrs. Dewey, Vandenberg and Saltonstall, to name a few, have embraced the major theses of the administration's foreign policy, and have cooperated fairly well. But they don't want their hand forced or old bitternesses reopened. They think the presence of Mr. Stassen at San Francisco will have this effect.

Nor do they like the picking of Rep. Charlie Eaton of New Jersey. The late John D. Rockefeller's former pastor has been more of an internationalist than President Roosevelt himself. They believe he has made commitments on these questions which go far beyond any position the party can or will take.

Minority leaders dare not voice their criticisms openly. It would place them in the position of playing petty politics regarding international problems. But a stronger and more popular representation from their side of the aisle would make it easier to get Congressional approval of any agreements negotiated in the city by the Golden Gate.

SAN FRANCISCO: The sudden and surprising naming of San Francisco as the meeting place involves a host of domestic bread-and-butter problems. The designation was a complete shock to the authorities of that city, to California's state department officials and its Congressional delegation.

Counting the official delegates, their technical advisers, foreign and American correspondents, the clerical and other personnel forces, it is estimated that 2,000 or more people will attend what may be the most important United Nations conference yet staged.

Such an invasion will impose great strains on housing, eating and transportation facilities, and the Bay area has been one of the most seriously congested spots in the United States.

CONFERENCE: Several factors apparently lie behind the move. Forget for the moment that the Russo-Jap Neutrality treaty affecting Pacific questions expires on April 25, the opening day of the conference. San Francisco is geographically convenient to most of the countries that will be represented—Russia, China, South American Republics. It is probable that the British will have the most arduous, if not the longest, trip to make.

FDR did not want the meeting to be held in Washington, for the delegates would be subject to too much on-the-spot pressure from international groups, Congressional influences and New York interests. It will be easy to withhold transportation priorities to unwanted and unfriendly people who would like to go to the coast.

Last, the White House undoubtedly derived some satisfaction from holding a hands-across-the-sea gathering in the home city of the most famous isolationist on Capitol Hill—Sen. Hiram Johnson. And California was also the state that saved Woodrow Wilson in the election of 1916. Those little considerations always appeal to FDR, even when he moves in the midst of great events.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

THE noise of bursting bombs all the way from the Volcano Islands to Tokyo is the fanfare to announce to the Nips that the inevitable full-scale landings on the mainland will come—maybe sooner than they think.

Everyone knows that the Assembly Call has been blown for warships, planes and ground troops. But the layman hasn't been told of the gigantic armada of cargo vessels which is massing to supply this great amphibious expedition.

These ships are owned and operated by several score steamship companies under control of the War Shipping administration. New vessels built by the Maritime commission have also been turned over to the private corporations, except those assigned for the specific use of the Army and Navy. All these passenger liners, freighters, colliers and tankers will carry everything to our fighters overseas from watch springs to howitzers—seven hundred thousand separate items in all.

LEMAN

Steamship executives of the American Merchant Marine Institute in New York present this indication of the complicated task—already performed or on schedule:

The landing of 250,000 troops on Japan will require cargo space for more than 1,500,000 tons of equipment, including 25,000 tons for chemical warfare and 100,000 tons of medical supplies.

To keep this force fighting ashore for a single month will call for 35 Liberty ships and 15 tankers with more than 250,000 troops will be needed to wipe Nippon off the map.

We are adding to our prewar and newly built Merchant marine many fast cargo boats which will be useful in peacetime commerce. But the old Liberty ship—big, slow and homely—is still the back bone of the fleet.

Had it not been for the speed with which this model was completed, the Normandy invasion would still be on the list of coming events. The Scotch engine in the Liberty was on exhibition at the World's Fair in 1893. Its simplicity of construction and operation by hastily-trained engineers made the old-timer ideal for our accelerated shipbuilding program.

MULES: Liberty ships are constantly employed in new ways: They are acting at present as troop transports, hospitals, tank carriers, prisoner-of-war vessels and are used for conveying ammunition. One that ran aground is a target for Navy student bombers; a wreck was converted into a fire-fighting school: several are "floating training centers."

"Life Moves Like A Book Of Short Stories"

A Few Added Notes On Tolerance

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Life moves on like a book of short stories in which the same characters reappear, except that in war the pace is swifter, the events more dramatic, the tragedies so much more frequent and poignant.

Here in this space, a few days ago, there was related the story of the American Legion post at Hood River, Ore., which had erased the names of 16 Japanese-Americans, or Nisei as they are called, from its honor roll, and how National Commander Edward N. Scheiberling intervened with the post, in vain to recall its action.

Now comes the story of one of the 16, Frank T. Hachiya, 25, of Portland, Ore., who died a hero's death after a dangerous mission for which he volunteered at Leyte.

STOKES

It was one of those sharp cameos of war. The regiment was in a difficult position. Information of the disposition of the enemy was needed. Hachiya volunteered to lead a patrol across a valley swept by Japanese fire. He got out ahead of the patrol. A Jap sniper shot him through the stomach. He was able to make his way back up the hill. But the bullet had passed through his liver. He died on the operating table.

What Happens Now?

What the American boys who served with him thought of him is shown by the fact that nearly everybody in the regiment volunteered to give blood transfusions to try to save his life.

Will his name go back on the honor roll?

IN THIS same place, too, only a few days ago, was told the story of the Disabled American Veterans post at Hermiston, Ore., which had voted against admission of Japanese-American or negro veterans to membership.

Now comes the copy of a letter which an American aviator, a first lieutenant, has sent to that post, from which the following is quoted:

"I read in the morning paper where you had recently voted 'never to allow a Japanese or a colored veteran' to become members of your post.

"It is impossible for me to convey to you the great dismay that seeing this caused me.

"I have just returned from a tour of combat duty as a navigator on a B-24 with the 15th Air Force and am fully aware of the great esteem in which the colored fighter pilots are held by the bomber boys they cover. Are they fighting for the continuance of discrimination against themselves?

Testimony Is Repeated

"Infantrymen returning on the same boat with me told me of the fine record established by the Japanese-American troops of the Fifth Army. These white men to whom I spoke had only great admiration for these 'Japs' who had evidently carried far more than their share of the battle.

"Consider, gentlemen, what many such things as you are doing would mean."

HE referred then to other incidents of discrimination against Japanese-Americans reported here a week ago.

"Read and reflect on this. Other references suggested are the Bible and the American Constitution.

"Please do not consider this as a mischievous paper, but rather a letter from a man genuinely concerned with what he considers to be an un-American trend and one detrimental to the interests of our country."

Such tolerance is typical among servicemen who have fought side by side with Americans of other races.

Tolerant, too, are communications which have come from civilians in this country.

They reflect the view that this country is a haven for refugees from other lands, that it has always been so, and that once they become citizens, they are due the protection of our laws which are a guarantee of our democratic tradition. They also point out, quite aptly, that we all stem back to "aliens."

Cattle Auctions May Get Ban Exemption

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation may issue an order to exempt cattle auction shows from the travel ban against conventions, it was reported today.

Following a conference with ODT Director J. M. Johnson, a spokesman for the Texas Hereford association said such an order might come out this week-end.

At ODT, it was stated in response to a question that the office had under consideration an order dealing with cattle sales shows, as distinguished from shows that are strictly exhibits.

Representing the Texas association, Dale Miller of Dallas said he informed Johnson that 54 auctions were held throughout that state last year by Hereford breeders and that while such gatherings appeared to be shows and sometimes were a part of fairs, they were in reality regular marketing events.

Red Threat To Berlin Mounts

the Russians and they seized it in an 11-mile advance through forested territory to the east. Other Soviet forces the day before had reached the mouth of the Neisse at a point eight miles north of Guben and only 49 miles from Berlin.

Two thousand Germans encircled in the snowy forests southeast of Guben were wiped out, the Soviet bulletin said, and an unconfirmed report from Moscow said the Russians already had crossed the Neisse, next to last water barrier before Berlin. German broadcasts also said that the Russians were attempting to force the Neisse and encircle Guben.

Capturing Strega, farther up the Neisse, Soviet troops rolled to within five miles north of Forst and 12 miles northeast of Cottbus, big rail junction town astride the Spree river, last natural defense line before Berlin. The Russians also took Teuplitz, eight miles southeast of Forst.

At Triebel, three and one-half miles south of Teuplitz, the Russians captured another section of the big military autobahn, or superhighway, leading into Berlin.

Near Danzig Territory

Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army drove to within eight miles of Danzig territory and to within 34 miles of the former free city with the capture of the Polish "corridor" village of Gogolewo, two miles west of the Vistula river crossing town of Gniew.

Gaining up to five miles on a 45-mile front stretching westward to the Berlin-Danzig railway the Russians seized nine localities including Long, on the trunk line 42 miles southwest of Danzig.

Soviet heavy bombers made mass attacks Wednesday night on enemy military and industrial objectives in Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital, and in Bratislava, Slovak capital 30 miles east of Vienna. Scores of fires and great explosions were touched off, the communique said.

Reds Admit Setback

The Russians acknowledged that German counterattacks on Samland peninsula west of Koenigsberg had pressed back Soviet troops from the northern shore of Koenigsberg gulf. The Germans lost 8,000 killed and 86 tanks destroyed in three days, the Russians said. This is in the area where Berlin said its troops had opened up a corridor between Koenigsberg and Pillau, the capital's port.

Zinten, 17 miles southwest of besieged Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital, is 10 miles inland from the Frisches Haff, Baltic lagoon coast against which the remnants of perhaps 20 Nazi divisions are pinned. The German pocket is less than 40 square miles in area.

The Germans said the Russians were using more than 2,000 warplanes to batter Koenigsberg, German positions on the Samland peninsula to the northwest, and the trapped Nazi forces in the pocket below the capital.

Little activity was reported on the Oder front due east of Berlin, but a German Transocean news agency report said the Russian Army there was massed "like a colossus," and predicted a large-scale offensive was imminent.

Aerial Assaults

John Mitenbuler of Loraine, Ohio, gave this vivid description:

"The bombers were hitting bridges, freight yards, tunnels and transportation everywhere. There were so many planes in the air you couldn't move. Bombers and swarms of fighters were piled layer on layer. The country there will never stop bouncing."

Instead of dropping their bombs from 20,000 feet or higher as usual, the four-engined Fortresses and Liberators swept over their targets at about 10,000 feet. Bomber gunners were so close to the ground they used their machine-guns to shoot at railway cars and other objects.

Few Nazi planes were encountered and the Allied escorts kept them from getting close to the bombers. At most points flak was not heavy.

This absence of opposition from the enemy and the brilliant sunshiny weather over most of the objectives permitted careful bombing and excellent results. A few of the bombers ran into clouds and had to aim by instruments.

Mediums, Lights out, Too

Medium and light bombers of the U. S. Ninth Air force flew nearly 600 sorties against more than 50 targets, including 46 vital railroad bridges in a huge arc extending south from Hannover to the Saar basin. Fighter bombers of the same command flew more than 1,000 sorties and destroyed or damaged at least 129 locomotives and 1,506 rail cars. Pilots reported various railroads cut in 109 places.

The size of the RAF fleet participating in the daylight action was not disclosed, possibly because the British planes carried over their attack into the night in a virtually continuous operation.

It was estimated that upwards of 1,000 four-engined Lancasters and escorting fighters were out during the day, however, and the RAF announced the targets included two important viaducts at Bielefeld and Altenbeken, near Paderborne, which carry two main rail lines between Berlin and the Ruhr, and benzol plants at Scholven and Osterfeld.

Telephone Inquiry Reveals Burglary

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 22. (AP)—Sadie Cohen telephoned her gasoline station to determine whether the manager, who had been ill, had opened the station for business.

"Yes, the manager is okay and everything is all right here," a voice answered.

Miss Cohen thought it over, became suspicious, and called police. They found a burglar had looted the station and apparently took time out to answer the telephone.

Casualties On Iwo

stricted their lines around volcanic Mt. Suribachi on the south tip.

The Japanese launched two powerful counterattacks on the flanks of the forces attacking the airfield. Significantly, Nimitz did not specifically claim either had been completely blunted.

Nimitz said that artillery and the supporting guns of U. S. Fifth Fleet warships "appeared to have repulsed the assault on the left."

He added, however:

"No reports were available on the action on the right."

On the extreme south tip of the island, other Marines surrounded Mt. Suribachi "and strong patrols were moving up the cliffs under attack by the enemy, who was using hand grenades and demolition charges," the communique said.

Heavy rains hampered the fighting.

Japanese planes, earlier acknowledged to have inflicted some damage on units of the Fifth Fleet, continued their attacks Thursday.

The raids were unsuccessful, the Navy said.

Fighters and anti-aircraft guns shot down six enemy planes.

Warships Pound Area

Warships and carrier planes, despite bad weather, kept adding to the more than 20,000 tons of explosives which have been pumped into Iwo's enemy garrison—one ton for each Nipponese who was on the island's eight square miles when the invasion was opened Monday.

Supplies steadily moved ashore over beaches lined with the debris strewn there on D-day when enemy mortar fire accurately raked the landing parties.

Vice Adm. John Hoover, commander of forward areas, disclosed today that at one time the beachhead actually appeared "doomed."

Other observers reported only a few trucks got ashore the first two days, during which the landing parties were almost without supplies.

Bonins Also Battered

Today's communique belatedly reported attacks Tuesday by Liberators at neutralizing enemy bases in the Bonin islands just north of Iwo.

It also confirmed a Tokyo broadcast that American warships on Monday moved close enough to the Kuriles, north of Japan, to shell Kurabu Saki at the southern end of Paramushiro. The next day Liberators hit the same target.

Five enemy planes intercepted and four were damaged. Also on Tuesday, Navy Ventura planes made a rocket attack on Miami Saki off Paramushiro.

Today's communique reported air attacks on other enemy Pacific bases included Marcus, Babelthuap in the Palau group, Yap in the western Carolines, Pagan in the Marianas and islands in the Marshalls.

Sunspots are cyclones or hurricanes occurring on the sun, and they often cover billions of square miles.

Third Army Is On Loose Again

a unique operation designed to paralyze all rail traffic in Germany and set the stage for the final big push from the east and west to crush Hitler's Reich.

38 Towns Mopped Up

It took Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's hard-hitting veterans just three days to mop-up the triangle with a total of 38 towns after breaking through formidable Siegfried line fortifications at the southern base. In all, approximately 70 towns have been captured all along the front since the big attack began Tuesday.

Without giving the Germans time to rest, Patton's troops manned assault boats and crossed the Saar river south of newly-won Saarburg, a German town from which the enemy had been driven except for a small section on the east bank of the river.

Patton was striking all along a 55-mile front northward to the vicinity of the fallen fortress of Pruem, and in gains up to three miles was inexorably squeezing the Germans from the fortification-studded Eifel mountains east of the Duchy of Luxembourg.

Two other Allied armies were hammering at Germany's first line of defense 175 miles apart.

94th First To Cross

It was the 94th infantry division of Patton's Third Army which was the first to cross the Saar near the apex of the triangle.

A front dispatch said that the Germans made little effort to challenge the crossing, which threatens to undermine the Siegfried line positions along the Moselle valley at that point, but ahead of the infantry was a belt o' pillboxes.

Six miles north of Saarburg, tanks in a three-mile push reached the Saar where it joins th Moselle river, five miles southwest of Trier. Trier's frowning fortifications now were within range of Patton's guns.

Nazis See Bigger Blows

German broadcasts, insisting that Allied bigger blows were to come, declared Patton's strategy was to draw off forces guarding the Roer river front, where the U. S. First and Ninth armies are deployed for a possible blow straight at the heart of the Rhineland.

At any rate, Patton's troops were caving in German defenses in mountainous Rhenish Prussia along a 55-mile front.

North of the Moselle river, the Third Army was within nine miles of closing a pincers on a stretch of the Westwall lying between the fallen fortress of Pruem and a secondary road center and base at Bitburg, 15 miles to the south.

In the past 24 hours, the Third Army captured 1,925 prisoners. The Eleventh Armored, the Sixth Armored and the 26 Infantry divisions were disclosed to be on the Third's firing line.

Battle For Forbach

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army was locked in bitter fighting for complete contral of Forbach, a French town of 11,000 population two miles southeast of Saarbruecken, a field dispatch said, after crossing a main highway in the center of Forbach.

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian First Army, engaged in the heaviest fighting anywhere on the Western front, was forced back yesterday at one point, but was on the move again today.

The Canadians on the east flank fought into Moyland, two miles northwest of Calcar, and to the south cleared bitterly-contested Moyland forest, which reached almost to the edge of that bomb-flattened road hub.

Losses To Reds

and will gasp at the most extreme and base means of struggle. Therefore, bear in mind that the nearer our victory, the greater must be our vigilance and the heavier must be our blows at the enemy."

Unparalleled Blow

"In January of this year the Red Army brought down upon the enemy a blow of unparalleled force along the entire front from the Baltic to the Carpathians," Stalin said.

"On a stretch of 1,200 kilometers (about 745 miles) it broke up the powerful defense of the Germans which they had been building for a number of years. In the course of the offensive, the Red Army, by skillful actions, hurled the enemy far back to the west."

"In stiff fighting," Stalin added, "Soviet troops have advanced from the frontiers of East Prussia to the lower reaches of the Vistula for 270 kilometers (168.7 miles) from the Vistula bridgehead south of Warsaw to the lower reaches of the Oder for 570 kilometers (356.3 miles); from the Sandomierz bridgehead into the depths of German Silesia for 480 kilometers (300 miles)."

40-Day Accomplishments

He noted that the Russians within 40 days in January and February hurled the Germans from 300 towns, captured about 100 warplants "manufacturing tanks, aircraft, armaments and ammunition, occupied more than 2,400 railway stations and seized a network of railways totalling 15,000 kilometers in length."

"Within this short period," Stalin said, "Germany lost more than 350,000 officers and men in prisoners of war and not less than 800,000 killed.

"During the same period the Red Army destroyed or seized about 3,000 German aircraft, more than 4,500 tanks and self-propelled guns and not less than 12,000 guns.

France Still Leary Of Post-War Role

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP) — Foreign Minister Georges Bidault will leave for London, probably tomorrow, to confer with Foreign Secretary Eden on details of the Crimean conference, the French government announced tonight.

(A dispatch from London, where it was announced that Bidault had accepted Britain's invitation to make the trip, said the visit was expected to help relieve tension resulting from French resentment over being excluded from the Crimea discussions, but that the real purpose was thought to be negotiations preliminary to a British-French military alliance.)

An authorized official said today France was satisfied thus far with the position accorded her in the postwar world by the Crimea conference but was reserving decision on participation in the San Francisco United Nations conference.

This official declared France would delay the decision until full information is received concerning France's postwar role.

Fifth Army Drives Forward In Italy

ROME, Feb. 22 (AP)—Attacking on an eight-mile front southwest of Bologna, the U. S. Fifth Army has captured as much as 1,000 yards over rough, difficult country, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Germans hitherto had met such attacks with concentrations of heavy guns, but these were absent as the attack rolled up in the area of Monte Belvedere, from 27 to 35 miles southwest of Bologna. However, the American infantry was meeting increased resistance of small arms, machineguns and mortars.

Tactical air forces ranged through the skies of northeastern Italy, Austria and Yugoslavia, attacking communications targets, while close support targets also were attacked on the Fifth Army front.

In all, more than 2,300 bombers and fighters took to the air yesterday, and heavy bombers for the ninth straight day bombed marshalling yards in the Vienna area.

News Briefs

A meeting of the board of directors, executive committee, committee chairmen and all officers of the Lubbock county chapter, American Red Cross, was held Thursday night at Hilton hotel.

Casinos Getting Set For Monday Curfew

RENO, Nev., Feb. 22. (AP)—Doors of Reno's gambling casinos, some of which have been swinging night and day for a quarter century, today had locks on them in preparation for Monday's midnight curfew.

The Bank club, one of Reno's oldest which caters to 5,000 pleasure seekers daily, had its first locks on its doors since opening in 1924.

Club operators said they had instructions to close Monday at midnight but nothing which told them when to reopen business on Tuesday.

Veterans Hospital

sulted in action to continue efforts to obtain the hospital for Lubbock dispite the Brownwood announcement.

Further, as can be ascertained by study of maps, Lubbock is within a 100-mile radius of Sweetwater, which in itself inspired no "special significance" to the committee.

Eight Sites Inspected

Getting away from the speculatory elements, the hospital committee here made this announcement:

"L. A. Warren, inspector of proposed veterans hospital sites for the Veterans administration, of Washington, D. C., was here Feb. 8 and 9 and our committee took him on a 10-hour inspection of eight sites in and near Lubbock.

"Those sites, located on all sides of the city, some of which are inside, some outside the corporate limits, simply were shown Mr. Warren so that he could gain a cross-section opinion of what could be made available to the Veterans administration in case it should elect property here for purpose of the veterans hospital.

Priced $10,000-$78,000

"The sites, priced from $10,000 to $78,000, range in size up to at least 20 acres.

"Two of them have been optioned to trustees, Sam Arnett, Walter Posey and C. E. Maedgen, acting in behalf of the Veterans administration, which now is placing such hospitals within city limits or adjacent thereto.

"No preference was expressed of the two sites optioned, it being understood here that Mr. Warren, rather than make selections, makes recommendations based on his inspections of property.

Chances Unknown

"There is no assurance whatsoever that Lubbock stands more than an outside chance of getting the hospital. Numerous other cities and towns in West Texas are making strong bids for the institution.

"According to the scant information the veterans hospital committee here has obtained, the hospital as proposed would have approximately 250 beds and cost approximately $2,000,000. Its buildings would be beautiful in architectural design and grounds would be landscaped."

It also was announced by the committee that costs attaching to efforts to obtain a site, were Lubbock to be designated by the Veterans administration for the hospital, would be underwritten by the Chamber of Commerce.

Committee Meets

The Lubbock hospital committee met briefly Thursday morning, a day after the Chamber of Commerce directorate had reaffirmed its intentions to continue unabatedly its efforts toward getting the hospital designated for Lubbock. It recognized the illness of Chamber Manager A. B. Davis, who is in West Texas hospital for treatment of a respiratory condition, as an impost in those efforts, but voted to send one or two representatives to Washington "at the proper time" to determine whether anything more could be done.

The committee said the "natural welter of rumors" had arisen, but said there was no basis for believing "any concrete decision in designating a location for the hospital" had been made or that, in case Lubbock were fortunate enough to get it, "that it would be located on any particular site."

It said furthermore that "what seems to be an understanding that the McKinney section on west Nineteenth seems to be preferred probably traces to our inability to obtain as long an option on that property as on the other optioned site. As a matter of fact, it is entirely possible that we might need to option other properties, or ask extension of options on property already optioned by trustees."

New Yank Landing

was intensified as First Cavalry Yanks made ready for a grand assault to clean up the Japanese garrison there. Howitzers and cannon were attempting to pound an entranceway for tanks.

Front reports said 37th division infantrymen seized the three-story city hall, near the Intramuros, after a bitter hand-to-hand fight in which the Yanks withdrew from the building four times in the face of machinegun fire before going in to stay.

Bitter room-to-room fighting continued in the luxurious Manila hotel. The Americans captured the first floor but the enemy was fighting stubbornly on and above the second floor.

On Corregidor, 24th Infantry and 503rd Paratroop division Yanks continued the grim task of exterminating the remaining Japanese with liquid fire and explosives.

Bombers Sweep Area

Fighters and bombers swept the central Philippines in support of the new invasion and heavy Liberators ranged across the China sea for their daily attack on Formosa and shipping off the China coast.

Sixty tons of bombs were dropped on barracks, supply areas and rail facilities on Formosa. The town of Chosu was raked. Fighters reaching Formosa's east coast destroyed 13 enemy planes on the ground.

Five coastal freighters were sunk off the coast and another was damaged.

Heavy bombers dropped 72 tons of bombs on north Borneo airdromes.

revolution of history," he added. "We must realize the dream of the humble man of the world."

Padilla expressed his support of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, asserting that:

"Peace is not all. Peace without justice does not merit its name."

He declared the world must face a battle between two ideologies—violence and democracy — and charged the Americas to fight against militarism.

"A regression to totalitarianism or Nazi-Fascism anywhere is a menace to America," he said.

Stettinius and Padilla spoke in the elegant chamber of deputies, crowded to the roof while Mexicans milled about outside listening to the proceedings from loudspeakers.

Considerable support for the program of organized peace outlined by Stettinius and Padilla was taking form among the conference delegates. Several have introduced resolutions against aggression and for guarantees of national integrity.

Meanwhile, Paraguay indicated that the Argentine discussion is going to pop up again quickly. Paraguay fired the first shot on Argentina yesterday, but it was a dud because Buenos Aires' case was officially put off to the end of the meeting.

Uruguay has prepared a resolution for introduction tomorrow which could make conspiracy against the security of any American state by a non-American person or country a criminal offense.

In Use By Montevideo

The Uruguayan delegation said this idea has already been put into law in Montevideo, and they are seeking to have it extended to the entire hemisphere.

It is directed primarily against "Nazi-Fascist conspirators," and is expected to be a basis for approving military sanctions as laid down in the Dumbarton Oaks plan.

There is a possibility that a special power to impose such sanctions will be granted to a new American organization, or a reorganized Pan-American union.

The Uruguayans have already put in a proposal condemning the use of unilateral force in international relations and guaranteeing, by armed might if necessary, territorial integrity and political independence of all American countries.

Even more far-reaching ideas are expected to come later when Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla speaks at the second plenary session in the chamber of deputies. Others scheduled to speak are U. S. Secretary of State Stettinius who is expected to give the conference more details on the Big Three Yalta meeting, and the chief of delegations from Ecuador, Cuba, Costa Rica, Colombia, Brazil and Honduras.

Want Argentina Back

Meanwhile, a small group of delegates from different nations have been meeting to work out a plan for getting Aregentina back into the Inter-American fold before the United Nations conference in San Francisco on April 25.

They indicated that the solution of Argentina's isolation must come from Buenos Aires. It appeared that this referred to a declaration of war, active steps to remove any vestige of Nazi influence and possibly a definite promise of elections in the near future.

Several countries have economic resolutions ready for introduction. Panama has one on shipping rates and Ecuador has three, including one against the United States' dissolving its foreign purchasing agencies at the conclusion of the war.

baby.

Her mother, weary from the long ordeal, asked "Them why did you do it?"

"Because I wanted that baby," Mrs. Branson replied. "And I'd do it again under the same conditions, too," she added.

Charlie Mays, cowboy-booted attorney who took the lead in the defense, had elicited testimony from witnesses that Mrs. Branson suffered a miscarriage on Dec. 30, thwarting a long standing desire for a child and thereby temporarily unseating her mind.

The Finchers urged McGill to accompany his wife with them to the Fincher's home, but he at first demurred because he said "I can't go like this," indicating his clothes.

He later accepted the invitation and left with his wife, the defendant and her mother.

Mrs. Fincher assured the McGills they were welcome at the Fincher home until they could find another place to live.

Full House Is Seen For Hughes Address

Indications are that a record audience will attend the lecture of John B. Hughes, internationally known radio commentator and war correspondent, who will be in Lubbock Wednesday evening at the Lubbock High school auditorium, according to Mrs. Joe H. Bryant, general chairman of arrangements for the Junior Welfare league which is sponsoring Hughes' talk here.

A check-up of ticket sales by league members will be made tonight in a meeting at the Hilton hotel and Mrs. Bryant said this afternoon that reports already made to her by ticket saleswomen indicated few tickets remain to be sold for the event.

Exchange tickets which are selling for $1 may be exchanged in the Hilton lobby next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for reserved seats. Reserved seats are $1.65 and $2.40.

The league's share of proceeds from Hughes' appearance will go into funds for the Well Baby clinic, which the league maintains for underprivileged infants throughout the year.

Mighty Air Attacks Said Curtain Raiser For Knockout Of Germany

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The aerial curtain-raiser for the culminating Russian-Allied winter attempt to reach the heart of bomb rocked Germany with land armies is on.

London reports of 7,000 planes teamed up in an attack that poured explosives into German rail hubs for 24 hours at a rate of 100 tons per minute can have no other meaning. It looms as a knockout air blows at Nazi internal communications in preparation for virtually simultaneous Russian and Allied ground attacks to crush in the walls of the last German defense citadel.

SIMPSON

Judged by its size and east-west scope as well as by its strict limitation to rail hub targets, no other construction could be placed on the massive air blasting over Germany. It outmatched every previous exhibition of air power in this war.

Yet the attack conformed strictly to the American air policy of striking only at military targets, not to terrorize civilian populations, War Secretary Stimson told a news conference in Washington. If the conclusive attacks of the winter campaign by Russian and Allied armies are close at hand, the rail hub targets selected hold the answer to German ability to survive the two-front storm.

Through them must shuttle the men and supplies from side to side to prop faltering defense lines. With her sources of natural or synthetic motor fuels lost or badly knocked out by air, the German web of hard surfaced roads is an undependable prop for German battle fronts. The gasoline to drive motorized supply and troop caravans as well as tanks and mobile gun mounts is fast leaking away. It is upon her vast rail network and coal and even wood burning motive power Germans must increasingly rely as the final clutch of the war in Europe takes hold.

How long Germany can stand the ever increasing strain without an internal convulsion of some sort none can say. It seems clear, however, that this devastating and far spread Allied bombing attack while directed at military targets must have some effect on German public morale.

Chinese Capture Big Burma Mine

CALCUTTA, Feb. 22 (AP)—Chinese troops under Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan have captured the fabulous Bawdwin silver and lead mines 22 miles northwest of Lashio in Burma, depriving the Japanese of lead production sufficient to supply their whole war machine.

The mines, among the richest in the east, were captured intact yesterday after the Japanese had put up only brief resistance a few miles to the north. Chinese units drove on and captured Nantu, which is on a branch railroad to Lashio.

Other Chinese forces, which have been pushing directly down the old Burma road toward Lashio with the aid of American tank units, were reported across the Nantu river and within less than 25 miles of Lashio.

Bridgehead Enlarged

British troops in central Burma, now separated by only some 120 miles from the Chinese-American forces driving down from the northeast, enlarged their bridgeheads over the Irrawaddy river both north and southwest of the big Japanese base at Mandalay, which fast was being caught in a three-way squeeze.

Allied planes continued to range at will over all central and southern Burma. Enemy air resistance had dwindled almost to the vanishing point.

(Chungking announced that the first supply convoy from India had safely traversed the Myitkyina-Lungling cut-off of the Stilwell road and had reached Kunming on Tuesday. The cut-off saves more than 100 miles.)

Capper Would Ban Liquor Advertising

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — A bill which would in effect exclude advertisements from the press and radio was introduced today by Sen. Arthur Capper, (R., Kan.). It would prohibit the transportation in interstate commerce of alcoholic beverage advertisements.

Capper told the Senate the purpose of the bill is to curtail "the mass propaganda for alcoholic beverages" and to protect children from advertising which tells them "alcohol is a healthy, harmless, socially compulsory beverage."

Liquor advertisements in street cars, on billboards, in the press, and over the radio repeat these "subtle suggestions or positive statements . . . Until we come unconsciously to accept the ideas that our awakened judgment might reject," he declared.

Capper's bill is sponsored and endorsed by the National Temperance and Prohibition council.

Stimson Says Terror Bomb Report Wrong

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (U.P.) — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson today flatly denied reports, not carried by United Press, that the Allied air commanders had decided to start terror bombing of German population centers.

The reports were contained in dispatches from Paris.

Relying to a question at his press conference, Stimson said: "Our policy has never been to inflict terror bombing on civilian populations."

He explained that he had investigated the report and found it arose "from what I consider an excusable but incorrect interpretation of some remarks by a briefing office at supreme Allied headquarters."

"As a matter of fact," Stimson continued, "the basic policy of the United States Army Air forces has not been changed. Our efforts are still confined to the attack of enemy military objectives."

Negro Solon Lauds A "New White Man"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (U.P.) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, jr., D. N. Y., said last night that "a new white man" was rising in the South and that negros should stop blindly hating the entire South.

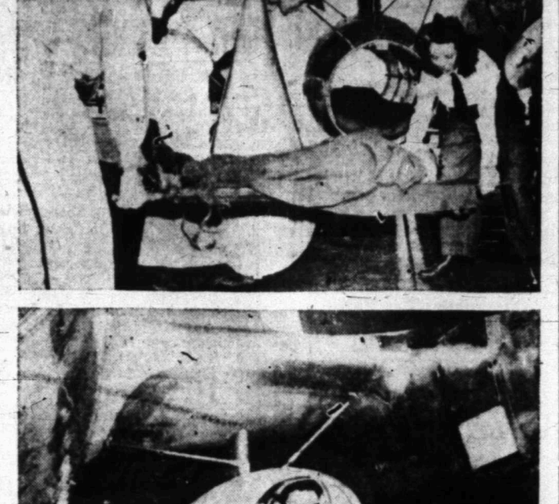

"Hatred," said the newly elected negro congressman, "will result in poisoning those who hate."

Addressing the students of Howard university, Powell described the "new white man" in the South as one who was "breaking from the rut of blind hatred for the negro."

"This new white man can be found not only in the fields, farms and mines but also in the privileged, educated and professianl groups," he said.

Powell said last week's House vote on the George bill was "the most noteworthy event in contemporary political history" because it marked "the revolt of the vast majority of southern congressmen against the dictatorial rule of Rankin, Cox and company."

(Reps. John E. Rankin, D., Miss., and John E. Cox, D., Ga., were leaders in the fight to delay passage of the George bill in hopes of thereby preventing confirmation of Henry A. Wallace as commerce secretary.)

Tank Corps Berates Army Newspaper For Identity Confusion

BROWNWOOD, Feb. 22 (AP)—There's pride in the tank corps, yes sir!

This week's Armored News, published at Covington, Ky., editorially takes "Stars and Stripes," the Army newspaper, to task for painting an infantry helmet on a tankman chosen as the "GI of the year."

The editorial said the retouched picture was widely published in the United States and that "people got curious to know the name of the anonymous face." In response to "thousands of inquiries," Stars and Stripes identified him as Sgt. Hobart Drew, of Camp Bowie-trained 4th Armored division, the Armored News relates, but "didn't explain about retouching job."

"Next," the editorial continued, "harassed editors discovered the face wasn't Drew, but Sgt.o John H. Parks, an infantryman. Now Sgt. Parks is a member of the 37th Tank battalion.

"We extend deepest sympathy to editors of Stars and Stripes. It just goes to show, though, that you can't play fast and loose with a tanker and get away with it. In fact its poetic justice—that's what it is."

West Texas Mother Wants Her Money

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—A West Texas constituent of Sen. Pat Bullock of Colorado City wonders why she has not received $29 from the state in behalf of her school age daughter.

The state paid $29 per capita last year from the available school fund to public schools. That means each school district receives for expenses $29 state money for each pupil.

But the West Texas mother, evidently misunderstanding the nature of the allotment, wrote Bullock:

"My aughter has been in school since September but she has not received the $29. How soon may we expect same?"

Committee Selection Postponed At Texas U

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (AP)—The faculty of the University of Texas in a brief meeting today postponed selection of its committee to advise with the regents on a new president for the university.

The faculty will meet March 16 to decide on a method of selection of the committee. Originally it had been announced the selection would be made today.

Industry's Reaction To New Oil Treaty Generally Favorable

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee reported tonight a generally favorable reaction from the oil industry to a proposed new Anglo-American petroleum agreement.

He said there is one principal difference between the present draft and the original agreement President Roosevelt recalled from the Senate after protests came from oil men. It eliminates the compulsory powers of a projected international commission.

Day-Long Session

Oil representatives attended a day-long session at which International Secretary Harold L. Ickes, the petroleum administrator, and his staff, outlined the proposal behind guarded doors of the committee room.

Connally said that the producers "were, in the main, satisfied with the proposal worked out by the petroleum administration."

The chairman called another session for next week, he said, to allow further consideration and additional conferences of Ickes' office and the State and Justice departments.

"The new agreement is based upon voluntary procedure and the international petroleum commission it would set up would have no authority to require compliance with its regulations by the oil industry here or elsewhere," Connally explained.

Make Recommendations

"It would make studies and recommendations on the need for production and on distribution and other phases of the international oil pictures, but these regulations would require the action of the participating governments before being carried out."

If an agreement is reached here, the proposal will be taken up with the British for negotiation, and later submitted to the Senate for ratification as a treaty requiring a two-thirds vote for approval.

If the pact is adopted, it would be followed later by the negotiation of a multi-lateral agreement in which other nations, including Russia, would be invited to join, Connally said.

Five Southern States Threatened By Floods

(By The Associated Press)

Rivers swollen by early thaws and recent rains flooded lowland areas yesterday in five southern states.

In the remainder of the nation, normal winter temperature and precipitation conditions prevailed except in sections of Iowa and Nebraska which were buried under the season's heaviest snowfall.

Hardest hit by flood water was Nashville, Tenn., where 15 families were washed out of their homes when Town creek overflowed and the city expected further inundation from the Cumberland river, expected to reach four or five feet above flood stage today.

Rampant waters of the Pearl river in Mississippi rose to 23.8 feet at Eppsburg and were expected to hit six feet above flood stage there Saturday.

The Tombigbee river was spreading over lowlands from Aberdeen, Miss., into Alabama where it recorded 54.4 feet at Demopolis — 15.4 feet over flood stage.

Other states in which streams left their banks were Louisiana and Arkansas. In Arkansas, however, rains stopped and the threat of floods from the Petit Jean, White and Ouachita rivers was minimized.

Nazi Treatment Of Yanks Bared

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 — Nazi guards at one German prison camp butchered one cow a day, kept half of the beef for themselves and distributed the other half among 800 Allied prisoners, one of the prisoners who escaped when the Russian Army rolled into the Reich disclosed today.

The prisoner, Capt. Ernest Gruenberg, a medical corpsman of New York City, said his fellow inmates called the camp at Chalons sur Vire Starvation Manor. He told of being taken from one camp to another and sometimes living on bread and water.

Discrimination Is Cited

German Red Cross girls refused a German officer's request at one camp to give the prisoners hot soup because some Jews were in the group, he said.

Gruenberg told his story as U. S. authorities, with 12 Americans repatriated from Poland, began making arrangements for assembling American officers liberated or escaped from German prison camps.

Those already repatriated were men who escaped individually from German prison camps during the past six months and reached Soviet territory with the aid of the American Eastern command.

Others Are Liberated

The others were liberated by Russian armies or escaped in the confusion in German ranks when Soviet forces approached their areas.

Five more liberated American officers arrived in Moscow today, making a total of eight who have reached here in the past 24 hours. (The new arrivals included Lt. William Everett, (410 E. 12th St.) Sweetwater, Tex.)

The Americans still in Poland are broken up into small groups. Some individuals have broken from the parties, however, and are hitchhicking their way to Warsaw and Moscow.

To Be Started Homeward

Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, head of the U. S. military mission in Moscow, said American authorities are planning to round up the latter groups at various points in Poland. They will be transferred to one camp and started homeward.

Deane said American medical officers in Moscow will go to Lublin to arrange the repatriation in accordance with the Crimea agreement.

The complete list of Americans was not yet available and the names of only three of them were known. They were Capt. Gruenberg, a medical corpsman of the 101st airborne division; 2nd Lt. John Dembling, jr., of the 30th infantry, Third divison, Winston Salem, N. C., and 2nd Lt. Frank H. Colley, 17th field artillery, Washington, Ga.

Escape From Camp

The three officers, together with other Americans, British and French, escaped from Oflag 64 at Szubin, near Bydgoszcz, when the Germans became confused on the arrival of the Red army.

Grueberg, a 29-year-old physician, said that some of the liberated Americans now in Poland included War Correspondent Wright Bryan, former managing editor of the Atlanta Journal; 2nd Lt. Sydney Waldman,, Cleveland Heights, O.; Col. E. A. Gans, Hendersonville, N. C., and Captains Van Gorder and Rada, medical corpsmen of the 101st airborne division. First names and addresses of Van Gorder and Rada were not known.

Gruenberg was captured in Normandy June 8, 1944, when his plane landed 23 miles behind the German lines. Dembling was captured on Anzio beachhead, and Colley, 30-year-old former fellow of Duke university, fell into German hands at Faid pass in Tunisia.

The three, at a press conference in Deane's office, disclosed long treks from prison camp to prison camp, starvation diets and miserable living conditions while in German hands.

PRISONERS FORCED TO MARCH IN BITTER COLD

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP) — Richard F. Allen, vice chairman of the American National Red Cross, says that American prisoners of war in Germany are being marched deeper into the Reich through temperatures as low as 30 degrees below zero without proper clothing.

Allen, in charge of insular and foreign operations for the Red Cross, told members of the organization's Brooklyn branch yesterday that "those of you who have someone in the German prison camps must be ready for bad news."

"I am sorry to tell you that with the structure of Germany breaking up, there is real cause for concern for our prisoners of war."

Many Needed Items To Be Much Shorter

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Paper sacks, copper wire, safety matches and tin cans will be hit by the War Production board move to save materials for military needs, George L. Noble, jr., regional WPB director said today.

Pulp used in production of paper bags and wrapping paper, already cut 40 per cent, has been reduced 10 er cent more because of the increasing pulp shortage.

Demands on the batlefield for copper wire and in ordnance production for copper and brass materials has brought suspension of the WPB relief order which several months ago allowed retail and repair men to get allotments of the wire for civilian use. The emergency suspension, effective this week, is set through June 30.

Boosted Army needs for lumber from supplies already short has led to allocations on district quotas for matches. All safety matches will go to the armed forces.

Iron and steel, supplies of which last fall were sufficient enough to send allocations to manufacturers moving into civilian production under the reconversion program, are now back on the urgency list for the nation, Noble said.

Japs Urged To Build More Wooden Planes

(By The Associated Press)

The Japanese munitions ministry today called for the production of more wooden aircraft "whether we like it or not."

Tokyo radio in a domestic broadcast heard by the FCC quoted Ichiro Tanaka, a ministry spokesman, as urging the building of more planes of all types "since Grummans (U. S. Navy carrier planes which participated in last week's raids on Tokyo) are penetrating Japan."

Tanaka said wooden aircraft "may give the impression of inferior quality" when compared with metal planes "but it is not an inferior substitute."

CLOTHES FOR FRENCH

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP) — The American Red Cross tomorrow will make its first distribution in Paris proper of clothing sent from America for destitute families and refugees. Ten tons of clothing will be handed out from the 65 tons recently received, bringing the total distributed in France to 1,600 tons.

Keep Up Fine Old Customs--- Breakfast Is One Of Best

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on breakfasts, showing the importance of the day's first meal and also suggestions as to what constitutes a good meal. Others will follow on the food page.)

"Is breakfast a problem meal during these spring days?" asks Mrs. Ruth Wilson, emergency war food assistant, extension service, A. and M. college who spends two weeks of the month in Lubbock and is available for questions at the county agent's office.

Don't give up on the problem, try to solve it, she suggests and offers this as a three-point test of a good breakfast:

1. It gives you materials for body building and repair and to keep you healthy.

2. It provides fuel for body energy.

3. It tastes good.

A doughnut and coffee breakfast fails the test right on point one. It leaves far too much for the other meals to make up. A fruit juice and coffee breakfast goes a little way toward point one, but not far enough, and it is short on point two also. Between supper and breakfast there is a 10 to 12 hour stretch. Therefore, breakfast should supply its share of energy food.

For many people, particularly children it is sound planning to have one-fourth to one-third of the day's food at breakfast. There is no hard and fast rule, but ONE THING IS CERTAIN going without breakfast is a bad start for the day.

Hungry Ones Are Inefficient

It has been found that workers who skip breakfast get less done in the first working hours than those who tuck away a good meal before work. And as the morning goes one, the hungry ones grow less efficient. After lunch they do better; then they slow up again. What happens to these workers, happens to homemakers too, and to every one else. It is especially true for children. A child who eats a good breakfast has a better chance to do well in his studies and games. As one high school girl remarked to me recently, "those girls who fainted in our gym class this morning were the ones who didn't eat breakfast."

If weight is on your mind, learn enough calorie arithmetic to even out your days quota over three meals. For work and warmth, your body uses as fuel, mainly starch, sugar and fat. The amount of fuel that foods provide is figured in calories, some few in given sized portions. There are about 100 calories in each of these which will give some idea about calorie portions:

About 5 teaspoons sugar, 1 inch cube butter or margarine, 2 slices cooked bacon, 1 thick slice of bread or two thin slices.

An average sized woman sitting still, uses calories at the rate of 80 an hour. While she walks to work she uses 160 an hour; as she rides a bicycle, 185. Even asleep she uses calories about 50 an hour. For one day's living, an average sized woman who is a typist or housewife require about 2,100 calories. An average-sized man requires about 2,500 calories. An active farmer needs about 2500 to 4000 calories, a farmer's wife 2,600. Just remember: Pounds are added when daily eating totals more calories than your body can use for energy. And the foods that pack the most calories are the starches, sweets and fats.

Get a good start each day, eat a good breakfast.

Favorite Recipes

(At the invitation of the food editor, women of Lubbock and the South Plains are presenting recipes in this column. You are invited to submit family favorites, especially those that are short on ration points or made of materials available in the grocery stores at present.)

Mrs. E. R. Gibson, 2017 Fourteenth, submitted three recipes which are made of ingredients found on grocery shelves most of the time.

Chicken Cream Sandwiches

1 cup cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped celery
1 cup milk
1 cup pecans
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
Whites 2 eggs
Salt and lemon juice

Chop chicken, add celery and milk and heat to boiling point. Add flour and butter which have been thoroughly mixed. Cook until thick and add nuts, stiffly beaten whites, salt and lemon juice. Turn into mold and let stand 12 hours. Slice and place between slices of buttered bread.

Vitamin Salad

½ cup chopped green pepper
2 cups shredded raw cabbage
1 cup shredded raw carrots
1 cup shredded raw turnips
½ cup finely sliced celery
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup catsup
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water

Wash raisins in hot water and drain. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve by setting in a pan of boiling water. Combine vegetables with raisins. Add catsup to mayonnaise, then dissolved gelatin, and blend with other ingredients. Place in individual molds and chill. Unmold, serve on lettuce with a garnish of mayonnaise.

Raisins in Sweet Potato Cases

1 egg
4 cups riced or mashed sweet potato
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon cinnamon
1-8 teaspoon ginger
¼ cup melted butter

Beat egg, add potato, salt, cinnamon, ginger, butter, and blend thoroughly. Drop potato by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and shape into nests by making a hollow in the center and smoothing outside surface. Bake in a hot oven (500 degrees F.) until edges are brown, about 15 minutes. Fill centers with a raisin sauce which is made as follows:

1 cup seedless raisins
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sliced fresh orange peel

Wash raisins, add strained orange juice to sugar and bring to boiling; add orange rind, raisins, and thicken with cornstarch mixed with a little cold water. Stir constantly until the mixture boils. Serve hot in the hot potato cases.

Harvard Beets

2 cups diced beets, cooked
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons butter

Melt butter. Remove from stove and stir in combined sugar and salt, and cornstarch. Dilute vinegar with water and stir into the first mixture. Cook over low heat until the sauce thickens, stirring constantly. Cook five minutes longer without stirring. Add beets and let them stand in the sauce until it becomes very red, stirring occasionally (over very low heat).

To avoid overdoing sage flavor, poultry seasonings made of several different herbs are recommended.

Soak a glass baking dish in warm water to which baking soda has been added. This will make dish-washing easier.

Engagement Party Easy To Manage If You Keep Your Refreshments Simple

DESPITE war, or perhaps even more because of it, young people keep on getting themselves engaged. They are engaged at younger ages, too. Most of our girls have so little time for the fun and excitement that used to go along with being engaged that we want to be sure not to have them miss all of it. An engagement party may be their first chance at really grown-up entertaining. They'll need help in planning and they'll want to do it nicely. Here is where mother comes in with suggestions and assistance.

We must, of course, keep things simple, both because it's bad taste to give elaborate parties in wartime and because there just isn't time or help to go into lots of fussy preparation. On the other hand, we want things to be nice, by all means, and we want them to be a little special.

The easiest-to-manage kind of entertaining is a tea party. And it's really the nicest and most convenient time of day to announce an engagement, too. For adults, the best food to accompany tea is the thinnest of plain bread and butter sandwiches and perhaps some very plain cake or cookies. For the older adolescent or very young adult, however, who may be about to be married but still doesn't have to give a thought to her figure, more elaborate refreshments are certainly in order, and serving them will give the touch of elegance these young girls will love.

PARTY FARE... For a festive engagement tea...

Make sandwiches as elaborate as the ingredients you are able to buy will allow. Cut some slices of bread into rounds. Spread them with, perhaps, a fish paste or deviled meat and then "pipe" them around the edge with mayonnaise squeezed from a pastry tube. A slice of stuffed olive in the center makes them look very professional. Ribbon sandwiches of whole wheat and white bread, separated by two kinds of cheese spread, are pretty and delicious. If you can get a fowl and cook it the day before, some plain sliced chicken sandwiches, cut into diamond shapes, will offer a substantial bit of food. Make a few "cigarettes" by rolling a stalk of watercress in bread which has been spread with a little mayonnaise.

All these sandwiches can be arranged, assorted, on several plates, and garnished with some beautiful big black olives placed between them.

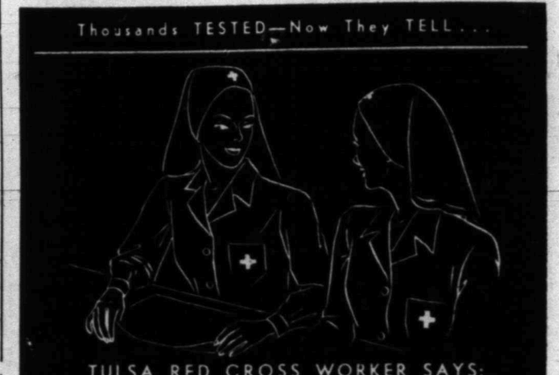

It's nice, if space and accoutrements permit, to serve both tea and coffee at such a party, with one of Mother's friends officiating at each end of the table. Be sure to have the coffee strong and fresh and the tea freshly made at intervals, with plenty of hot water close by and both cream and lemon to meet varying tastes.

At this young party there must be sweets. Your best silver compotes can be filled with gaily colored candies to match the candles on the tea table.

You can have individual pies with your favorite filling, which may be lemon, orange, pineapple chiffon (if you have enough points or put up pineapple last spring).

Captain, Medics Rescue Wounded

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

IN GERMANY.—Night fell over the battlefield, hiding 30 wounded men from their comrades.

It was just one of those tough breaks the infantry is used to. Attacking a small village, company F had been caught in heavy German artillery fire as the doughboys bucked through snowdrifts.

Most of the men made it—but somewhere back in the darkness lay 30 wounded and the thoughts of the shivering doughboys of company F were back there with them.

Chances Against Them

They knew the chances were against the wounded. It was pitch black and the falling snow soon would hide the bleeding men. You can't walk around a battlefield flashing lights at night.

It looked as if the 30 men would die of their wounds or freeze in the bitter cold before medics could find them in the morning.

Their commander Capt. George Duckworth knew what must be going on in their pain-twisted minds, waiting for death to take them in the night, waiting in a strange land with no friend's hand there to save them or ferry them into eternity. By the hard, harsh logic of battlefield economics these men or most of them would die.

Disregarded "Economics"

But Capt. Duckorth thought this was the time to disregard "battlefield economics" as soon as he was sure the rest of the company was bunked down as warmly as possible he set out to find his wounded men.

Foot by foot he tramped back and forth over the area his company had gained during the day. There was nothing to guide him but luminous surface of the snow and occasional shellbursts from harassing German artillery fire.

Gave Emergency Treatment

When ever the captain found a wounded man, he quickly gave emergency treatment to keep him alive and conscious until stretcher bearers could start him toward warmth and hot food, with lights and blankets and hot water to sponge aching wounds crusted with frozen blood.

It was dawn when Duckworth and the medics who helped him finished their task. All 30 wounded men had been found. Twenty-four of them had been discovered and treated by the captain himself.

The light of morning shone upon them. It was time for company F to attack again and neither the captain nor his dreaming men knew who among them would be lying in the snow before another day was through.

Liberated Nationals Prefer Philippines

HONOLULU, Feb. 22 (AP)—Fifty-four American nurses wearing jaunty new uniforms flew into Hawaii today on their way home from Bataan and Corregidor, after three years internment by the Japanese in the Philippines.

The nurses, rescued in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Luzon island conquest, were met at Hickam Field by Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, jr., commanding general of the Pacific ocean areas, and Maj. Gen. William Ord Ryan, commanding general of the Air Transport command's Pacific division.

March Oil Order Highest On Record

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (U.P.) — The oil industry today faced the challenge to reach a new all-time record production of 5,118,760 barrels daily in March.

The Petroleum Administration for War's certification was 43,910 barrels daily above the 5,074,850 barrels daily for February.

Daily production of 4,793,350 barrels of crude oil was certified, and the remaining 325,410 barrels was for natural gasoline and other petroleum liquids.

Texas topped the list of states, with a certified daily production of 2,316,000.

Weather Service For Airlines Envisioned

FORT WORTH, Feb. 22 (AP) — E. L. Hardy, director of the U. S. weather bureau at Fort Worth, at the Civil Aeronautics board's Texas-Oklahoma feeder air line hearing at Fort Worth, testified recently that 50 per cent more weather stations would have to be established in Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana to give complete coverage for local air carrier service.

Hardy was presented as a witness by a public counsel of the CAB, Paul Reiber and Vernon Kohlhaas.

Earlier today, the final day of the hearing which started 22 days ago, Thomas Wrenn, CAB examiner, accepted into evidence the exhibits prepared by Wichita Falls Air Transport company and West Central Airlines.

Many Entertainers Affected By Curfew

Noah Braunstein, counsel for the cafe owners guild, estimated the number of dismissals.

Meanwhile the night clubs laid in champagne and figuratively nailed down the tables in preparation for their second "New Years Eve" in two months — Sunday night's farewell to the era of wee small hours.

Budget Director Bill Passed By House And Legislature Recesses

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (AP)—House approval by a vote of 99 to 28 today sent to the Senate the much debted budget director bill Rep. Joe Humphrey of Abilene.

As amended it assigns the state auditor the duties of the budget director instead of authorizing appointment by the governor of a budget director as originally intended.

Humphrey said he thought the change possibly strengthened the measure which is intended to tighten up state budgeting, spending and financial planning.

Since the auditor is an appointee of the legislature the budgeting function of government would remain under close supervision of the lawmakers.

Now Under Control Board

Budgeting is now done by a division of the board of control. The board of control is appointed by the governor.

Before adjourning for the week end the House also passed finally, sending it to the governor, a Senate bill abolishing closed seasons on fresh water fishing in Texas.

The House also passed several house bills while the Senate, which also adjourned until Monday, was approving a Senate bill which in its final form after numerous amendments permits counties of less than 20,000 population to elect either the fee or salary system for their officials.

Sen. Buster Brown of Temple is author of the bill which was estimated to affect 166 counties.

Bills Passed By House

Bills passed by the House and sent to the Senate include these:

Appropriating $1,215,000 for purchase by state colleges of surplus war materials, at an estimated savings of 10 cents to 50 cents on the dollar under open market prices.

Appropriating $88,698 to the department of agriculture for salaries of citrus fruit inspectors for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Permitting members of the armed forces to drive private vehicles without renewing their driver's license and extending the privilege to the first six months of honorable discharge of a former member of the services.

The House concurred in Senate amendments to a House bill —which now goes to the governor —permitting the board of regents of state teachers' colleges to contract with the War department for manufacture of war munitions in the shops of Sam Houston State Teachers' college, Huntsville.

Six-Year Campaign

The Humphrey budget bill is the Abilene member's compromise on six years of effort to put across a complete revision of state fiscal policies.

The amendment replacing an appointee budget director with the auditor, an office already in existence, was by Rep. M. A. Bundy of Wichita Falls who said he opposed creation of a new state bureau.

As introduced, Humphrey's bill authorized payment of a $7,500 annual salary to a budget director and permitted the director to name a staff. Presumably, as amended, the auditor would be permitted to enlarge his staff for the additional duties of budgeting. His functions are now limited to auditing.

Requirements Of Bill

Under the Humphrey bill the auditor-budget director would be required to:

Keep in continuous touch with operations, plans, and needs of state agencies and with sources and amounts of revenues.

Appraise quantity and quality of services by these agencies.

Develop cooperatively with the agencies long range plans for capital improvements and means of financing them.

Prepare the biennial budget for the governor and legislature.

Advise and assist the governor, legislature and appropriations committees on matters of finance.

Maverick Sends Check For Personal Postage On Unofficial Letters

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Maury Maverick has sent his personal check for $15 to the U. S. Treasury—and it wasn't taxes.

Maverick, chairman of the Smaller War Plants corporation, told the Treasury in a letter it made public that part of the money was to pay the postage on 50 unofficial letters that accidentally went out from his office postage-free and marked "official business."

And the remainder is "a gift to the United States of America, the protector of freedom of speech and press."

Last Friday, Maverick mailed to newspapers—postage free—advance copies of his statement before a congressional committee in which he urged as an interested citizen, that congresmen be paid $15,000 a year instead of $10,000.

The Washington Daily News printed an editorial crticizing the postage-free part of it.

Indians On Warpath, Paleface Ickes May Get Scalping Knife

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22—Woo-woo-woo-woo. Injuns! I think a paleface is about to get scalped. Names of Ickes. Harold L.

The war bonnets are hanging on the hat racks in the Senate's Indian affairs committee room. The cases along the walls are full of tomahawks. Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma is sore. So, is Sen. Harlan J. Bushfield of South Dakota. Sen. Dennis Chavez of New Mexico is going to find out what's wrong with the Indian bureau, if he has to abolish it.

Morning Started Peacefully

As for Chief Robert Yellowtail, boy-oh-boy, I'm glad my name's not Ickes.

The morning started peacefully. A dozen Indians sat quietly in blue serge suits listening to a dozen Senators open hearings on the nomination of William A. Brophy, an Albuquerque paleface, as commissioner of Indian affairs. Nobody had anything much against Brophy, except that he was no Indian. But what they had against the Indian bureau was plenty.

President Vetoed It

Congress passed a law about estates of rich Indians in Oklahoma, said Sen. Thomas, and the President vetoed it on the recommendation of the Interior department.

"And I had two poor Indians in South Dakota who wanted a patent on 140 acres of land," added Sen. Bushfield. "I wrote the law. Both houses of Congress passed it. And what happened? It was vetoed. This business of the Interior department circumventing the wishes of Congress has got to stop."

Indians Want An Indian

Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney said he'd call Ickes to explain (those tomahawks looked like they'd been freshly sharpened). Sen. Chavez said that was good because the Indian commissioner was only a clerk for the Interior secretary.

Rep. William C. Stigler of Stigler, Okla., a Choctaw Indian, himself, said what the Indians needed was an Indian for a commissioner. So did Rep. Paul Stewart of Oklahoma, who is no Indian, but whose best friends are.

Let Indians Starve

Then came Chief Yellowtail in a green whipcord suit, a bright blue necktie of Indian wool and a turquoise ring. The chief is superintendent of the Crow reservation in Montana. He charged that Indian bureau officials lolled in million dollar headquarters in Arizona, while the Indians starved in grass shacks.

He said there were Indians who'd never head of Washington, or Congress or the Great White Father. He said they'd made no progress in 50 years, because of commissioners who shouted: "I love you, I love you, I love you."

"They say this," the chief said, "and they do nothing."

Chief Yellowtail said the government could look far and find worse Indian commissioners than Chief Yellowtail.

"I am a candidate for the job," he said. "I know I could do a better job than this, this . . . ". He looked in Brophy's direction.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana asked if he'd made his wishes known at the White House. The Chief said the appointment came too quickly for him to keep up with it and while President Roosevelt was somewhere in Russia.

Woo-woo-woo-woo. Watch your scalp, Ickes. The committee's tomhawks have razor edges.

Latin Nations Reflect Worry

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22 (AP) — The Latin American delegations are reflecting a definite trend of growing anxiety for their post-war economic security in the flurry of proposals on this subject either already in the inter-American conference hopper or about to be thrown in.

The most recent and pressing worry appears to be a fear that the United States will suddenly cut off its huge war-time purchases of Latin American raw materials and other products and go back to its pre-war sources for goods.

American war purchases in this hemisphere has brought a huge development of Latin American resources with the attenadant rise in employment, standard of living, and happier ministers of finance.

Fear Cut In Buying

But as the end of the war draws nearer, they fear that the United States will curtail its purchases suddenly, causing a tremendous reaction in each country that may take years before a normal situation is restored.

In addition, the Latin American delegations look upon a devastated Europe as a questionable source of trade since practically all European countries will need credits to revitalize their economies and to rebuild. Such credits will have to come from the United States and for that reason they look to the United States to find out which way the pendulum of post-war buying and selling will swing.

SHELDON, Mo., Feb. 22 (U.P.)—Ralph Houdeshell and his 13-year-old bride came to Sheldon from the 46-year-old tenant farmer's home in the Wild-Rose community of the Missouri Ozarks today on a house-hunting expedition.

It was reported that Houdeshell "had his eye on a place," that would meet their needs—a five room frame house described as in only so-so repair but boasting a pump in the kitchen.

Houdeshell wanted to leave the Wild-Rose farm to the occupancy of seven of his ten children, the older of whom had let him know they were not pleased with his selection of a step-mother several years their junior.

Several Were Schoolmates

Five of the Houdeshell youngsters were school mates of their father's bride, the former Mary Lou Brown, who was a sixth grade rural school student at the time of her marriage last week.

Two older sons are in military service and one daughter is married. Youngest in the family are two pre-school agers whose older sisters have convoyed them daily to the rural school since, neighbors said, there was no one at home to look after them in the daytime hours.

The bridegroom himself was described as a medium sized man with light hair and blue eyes. His customary attire, acquaintances said, is blue denim.

When his wife died in childbirth last June, Houdeshell and the older children "managed one way and another," to keep the home going, neighbors said.

Then his eye fell on Mary Lou, large for her age and "neat looking."

Mary Lou's mother, Mrs. Oscar J. Brown, gave her consent to the marriage and was a witness at the wedding, according to records at Girard, Kan., where the ceremony was performed Saturday night.

Probate Judge Robert W. Colborn of Girard said Mary You looked "at least 16 or 17 years" and it didn't occur to him to refuse to marry the couple since her mother consented and gave her daughter's age as 17.

Governor Speaks At Laredo Celebration

LAREDO, Feb. 22 (AP) — Gov. Coke R. Stevenson said today Texas and Mexico can equally honor George Washington, particularly as the war reaches its climax.

The governor keynoted the 48th annual Washington birthday celebration, speaking from a reviewing stand before thousands of persons from the two countries.

Responding, Gen. Eulogio Ortiz, head of the armies of northern Mexico, declared war and its sufferings had brought the peoples of Mexico and the United States much closer.

Lic. Hugo Pedro Gonzalez, new governor of Tamaulipas, praised the joint policies of Presidents Manuel Avila Camacho and Franklin Roosevelt in working shoulder to shoulder in the war effort.

Last night the stockmen's ball highlighted the third annual pan-American fair and livestock show. This afternoon cattle were auctioned, there was a bullfight at Nuevo Laredo and other features on the program.

Solons Urge Support For Roadside Plan

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (AP) — House and Senate today approved a resolution urging Texans to support the citizens roadside development program for highway beautification.

The resolution by Rep. Joe Humphrey of Abilene, and Sen. Pat Bullock of Colorado City proposed that cities and towns through their garden clubs and other civic organizations inaugurate program for planting highway entrances to cities with distinctive vegetation.

Huge New Oil Pools Discovered In 1944

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP) — Oil pools aggregating more than two billion barrels were located in the United States last year, increasing known reserves a net of 389 million barrels to 20,453,231,000 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

Of the additional reserves located last year, 511,308,000 were in new pools, and 1,556,192,000 barrels resulted from extensions of known fields.

Louisiana and Mississippi led in new oil discovered, and Alabama joined the 25 other oil producing states during the year.

Texas, however, continued to lead in aggregate reserves, its 11,375,480,000 equalling 55.6 per cent of the nation's total known crude oil reserves.

The institute's report estimating production and proved reserves at the end of 1944 (in thousands of barrels) includes:

Louisiana 129,556 and 1,573,387; New Mexico 39,556 and 562,564; Oklahoma 124,747 and 970,262; Texas 747,790 and 11,375,480.

WOMAN LIBERATED

ABILENE, Feb. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Roy C. Heflebower, Abilene, said today she and her sister, Mrs. W. A. Dumas of Temple, have been informed by the War department that another sister, Mrs. Helen Cutting, was among Americans rescued from Santa Tomas prison camp in the Philippines.

Red-Hot Burlesque Of American Politics Is Staged On Saipan For Enlisted Men's Group

By HAMILTON W. FARON
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAIPAN, Marianas.—That Congressman back home who started such a debate with his suggestion that wives be sent into the Pacific war areas can go stand in a corner now. Enlisted men of the headquarters squadron at Saipan's B-29 base, faced with the routine task of choosing an enlisted men's council, made it a red-hot burlesque of American politics with such slogans as:

"A WAC for every shack!"

(There are neither WACs or shacks on Saipan. . .)

"A beer with every dear!"

(There aren't any dears here either, and too few beers if you want to be precise about it.)

Bribery Is Charged

Torchlight meetings, political signboards, slogans, electioneering, even mock charges of bribery by supporters of opposing candidates figured in the drive for votes.

Frank M. "Hug" Huggins, and John W. Smith, Spokane, Wash., were leading rivals for the council seat to be held by a private. They garnered votes in typical machine style, attending pep meetings, speaking at smokers, making guest appearances at various tents in the headquarters area.

Rally Climaxes Campaign

A giant rally climaxed the campaign. Politicians took over the outdoor movie theater. Hug sat with his backers, diminutive but happy. Smith, across the stage, was surrounded by his supporters and wore a good conduct ribbon —fully a foot long — as evidence of his trustworthiness.

Hug emphasized his slogan, "A beer with every dear," by waving an empty beer can throughout the rally. He avoided with top-notch political skill the question of how he'd get either beer or dears to Saipan. Smith was equally adroit in the hearty vagueness of his pledge: "A WAC for every shack!"

The cartoonists stepped into the campaign, too.

Large sketches were displayed prominently on the stage, emphasizing — very unkindly, too — rugged features of each man.

Edward J. Patrick, Brooklyn, N. Y., opened as a non-partisan but was cheered loudly at each mention of Huggins' name. Smith the rival candidate, seemed quite swayed by it all. He joined in the applause for his opponent, particularly when Huggins was described as:

"The man who has clipped everybody from the general down." (Huggins, former Wallace, Idaho, school teacher, is the squadron barber.)

Original slogans promising WACS, shacks, beers and dears seemed pretty thin, however, as voters began to realize their impossibility. So true genius won the elections for Huggins.

"If elected," he proclaimed with a cheery shout, "My aim shall be: a jeep for every jerk on this island."

Smith conceded shortly thereafter.

Incidentally, other council members were chosen by ballot of the enlisted men, but without benefit of a campaign included:

M/Sgt. Horace A. Blagg, Ralls, Texas.

Winnie, Who Likes An Occasional Nip, Put On Hot Spot

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Winston Churchill, who is known to enjoy at least an occasional pony of brandy or a bit of scotch, did some fancy side-stepping in Commons today as prohibitionists, led by the outspoken, Virginia-born Lady Astor, attempted to pin him down in favor of a dry-V-day celebration.

With a twinkle in his eyes the prime minister attempted to quiet fears that the celebration would develop into a drunken orgy with the subtle expression of hope and belief that "when the time comes we shall celebrate a victorious peace in a manner worthy of the British nation."

"The drink trade is already making plans to get our men drunk on the one day when we shall all be on our knees thanking God for victory," snapped Lady Astor, insisting that now is the time for closing pubs and bars on V-day.

Without raising his voice, the prime minister continued: "Of course Lady Astor is very much inclined to be sensitive on these points—in fact, more sensitive than the average man of a community or their representatives."

GIs To Hear Typical Texas Church Service

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 22 (U.P.)—In response to a request from Gen. Eisenhower for a typical Texas religious service to be broadcast to American overseas forces, Stephen Fry of the British Broadcasting corporation is in the Lone Star state for the purpose of recording just such service to be short-waved throughout the world.

"The soldier's church," pastored by Dr. P. B. Hill and located in the historic South Texas city of Victoria, has been chosen as the originating point of the broadcast, an announcement made today by Ken McClure, news editor of radio station WOAI, revealed.

Fry will supervise the technical portions of the production, while McClure will handle the color and commentary at the beginning and end of the broadcast. Numerous recordings of the services will be made and air expressed to key points in the war zones for rebroadcast.

Third Sinking Of Jap Prison Ship Disclosed; Over 800 Yanks Perish

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (U.P) — A Navy officer today disclosed a third sinking of a jam-packed Japanese prison ship, with a loss of more than 800 Americans.

The vessel was sunk Dec. 15 by American planes which could not distinguish it from a cargo ship. In this case, however, the cargo was 1,600 Americans held in the ship's holds at rifle point. Less than half survived.

In two previously-disclosed cases Allied submarines unknowingly sank two Japanese prison ships. The first such incident occurred Sept. 7, when only 83 out of 750 American prisoners aboard the ship survived. On Oct. 24 another prison ship carrying 1,800 Americans was sunk, with only five known survivors.

Apparently upward of 3,200 Americans perished in the three tragic incidents of war.

Only Two Escaped

The story of the Dec. 15 sinking was related by Lt. George K. Petriz, of Rockford, Ill., in a press conference at the Navy department. He said he and an Army private were the only two out of the 1,600 prisoners aboard who got away from the Japs.

The 27-year-old lieutenant told how he and the other prisoners were stuffed into the ship's small holds on Dec. 13, 1944. That night the vessel steamed quietly out of Manila harbor.

The next day, American planes subjected the vessel to intermittent bombing attacks which caused some casualties among the prisoners.

That night Japanese civilians were taken off the damaged craft. But a guard of Japanese soldiers stayed aboard and kept the prisoners in the holds at rifle point.

Ship Bombed Again

The next morning—Dec. 15—the ship was bombed again. Fewer than 800 survivors got into the water and swam for shore, Petritz said.

He said most of those who lost their lives were prisoners unable to get out of the hold before the ship went down.

Conditions aboard the vessel were frightful, the tall, stocky officer told newsmen.

Half of the prisoners were put into the after hold of the vessel, which was less than the size of a regulation tennis court and only as high as a man's head.

Died From Suffocation

Some of the Americans died from suffocation in the short time they were aboard the vessel, Petritz said. He estimated that about 90 per cent of the men probably would have died ultimately even if the Americans had not attacked the ship.

He said about 30 prisoners in the after hold were wounded during the bombing attack, but that happened 12 hours after the Japanese could have evacuated the prisoners, he pointed out.

He was asked how he got away from the Japanese after he got into the water.

"I swam away from the Japanese garrison instead of toward it," he replied, smiling.

Cared For By Guerrillas

After his escape, he got in touch with Filipino guerillas who took excellent care of him. On Jan. 27, he was picked up by the Seventh fleet and taken aboard the flagship of Adm. Thomas C. Kincaid. A few days later he was flown back to the United States.

Petritz went to the Philippines in May, 1941, and was stationed at Cavite, then an American naval base. Later he went to Manila, then Bataan and lastly Corregidor. Skipper of a small patrol boat, Petritz and his squadron ran night patrols inside Manila bay until the fall of Corregidor.

His Japanese captors took him to Cabanatuan prison camp. In October, 1944, he was transferred with 1,600 Americans to Bilibid prison in Manila to await shipment to Japan.

Petritz said he was lucky during his imprisonment. He was in pretty good health and not suffering very much.

Food Generally Sufficient

He said the food was generally sufficient. American Red Cross packages and personal packages reached them intact. He said the Japanese more or less left them alone in camp, and that officers were given a small salary which permitted them to supplement their diet at the commissary.

He did not undergo the infamous death march. Prisoners taken on Corriegidor, he explained, were marched down Dewey boulevard in Manila. But he thought this was an attempt to humiliate the Americans rather than do them bodily harm. Those that fell by the wayside from weakness, he said, were picked up in trucks and brought to the camp later.

Petritz has been in the Navy hospital at Bethesda, Md., since his return.

He said he did not know until he talked with his father, after his return, that he had been awarded the Navy Cross for heroism in action before the fall of Corregidor.

"There were lots of others who did a lot more than I did," he told reporters.

Argentina Says Nazis Must Pay Damages

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22 (AP)—The government announced today that Germany would be required to pay for the loss of two Argentine ships torpedoed by submarines and for damage to another.

Germany also will be billed for the loss of cargoes plus judicial fees involved in the collection of damages. Red Cross Support Is Urged By O'Mara

Many people are of the opinion that the war is almost over and the Red Cross will not need so much money this year as its services would decrease, said W. C. O'Mara, Lubbock county chapter chairman of the American Red Cross, who spoke at the luncheon of the Kiwanis club Thursday in Lubbock hotel.

"Even if the war should be almost over, Red Cross would still remain at the side of our boys as long as they remain in the service, and will aid them in many ways following their discharge," he said.

He pointed out that it would be impossible to put a monetary valuation on the services rendered by Red Cross to the fighting men overseas. He cited the many services of the Red Cross, such as clubs, rest homes, snack bars, canteens, movies, club mobiles, blood plasma, prisoner of war food packages, recruiting of nurses, family assistance, emergency messages, kit bags, surgical dressings and many other things.

Mexican Squadron Of Fliers Given Wings

GREENVILLE, Feb. 22 (AP) — Mexico's 201st fighter squadron, making ready for foreign service with other Allied forces, received its battle flags and best wishes of its own government and the United States at an impressive ceremony here today.

Dressed in natty uniforms and standing at attention under a brilliant Texas sun, 300 members of the squadron—pilots, ground and administrative personnel — were given the oath of allegiance and handed the Mexican battle flag by General Francisco Urquizo, undersecretary of national defense and personal representative of President Manuel Avila Camacho.

In a few more days the squadron will complete its training at Majors field here and make ready for overseas duty.

A second flag was presented in the name of General H. H Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air forces, by Lt. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commanding general of the U. S. Training Command.

The squadron is commanded by Col. Antonio Cardenas.

A resolution enacted by the Texas Legislature praising the young pilots, who have been training in the United States since last July, was read by Senator Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo.
