Gorbachev presenting arms ideas

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev is laying new arms control ideas before a global audience today and breaking bread for the last time with President Reagan at a meeting that will set out the groundwork for relations when George Bush becomes his superpower counterpart.

As Gorbachev was arriving at John F. Kennedy International Airport under sunny skies Tuesday, Reagan was in Washington preparing for the meeting that will close out an extraordinary chapter in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Gorbachev's warm words for his U.S. hosts as he stepped onto the airport tarmac reflected the changing tone in a relationship that barely three years ago was still marked by Cold War rhetoric and attitudes.

Of chief interest to U.S. officials was the prospect that Gorbachev would announce Soviet troop reductions in Eastern Europe, a step that could put coming negotiations on conventional forces into high gear.

Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov, appearing on ABC's "Good Morning America," refused to comment today on whether the Soviets already had decided to unilateraly reduce conventional forces.

"The desire is here, because we want your country, NATO countries and of course Warsaw Pact countries to adopt a defensive strategy, so that we have armed forces only for defense so you cannot use them for offensive purposes," he said.

They bantered at a picture-taking session, with Shultz asking the foreign minister whether Gorbachev should be addressed as president now that he heads the Supreme Soviet.

"You can call him 'Comrade Gorbachev'," Shevardnadze said through an interpreter.

Shultz responded: "He calls me 'George', so I'll call him Mikhail."

Typically blase New Yorkers couldn't help but notice the hubbub surrounding Gorbachev's arrival, which was heralded by a quarter-mile motorcade and left some natives applauding, some grumbling and some demonstrating.

Gorbachev's visit to New York and the United Nations was the first by a Soviet leader since 1960, when an irate Nikita S. Khrushchev punctuated his rhetorical points by pounding his shoe on a desk in the General Assembly.

Roads, drainways getting clean sweep

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

Some do it in the spring. Some — like the city — do it all through the fall and into the winter.

From streets to drainage — Midland is making a clean sweep of the area as part of a project expected to cost $300,000.

"We're making a concerted effort to get this work done," said Mike Butler, assistant director, streets, traffic and engineering.

In fact, the department is so intent on staying ahead of the weather that it went ahead and created a pothole hotline.

One of the first major projects the scheduled maintenance program, according to Butler, was a six-week drainage path excavation from Midland International Airport at Highway 80 to Interstate 20.

"We went in there with some heavy equipment and cleared out all the overgrowth," he said. "We plan to start maintaining it on an annual basis."

Other channel areas — particularly those running through town — are now the prime focus of a city-wide cleanup along the Northwest Drainage Channel and the Scharbauer Draw.

According to Butler, crews have been canvassing the area to make on-site channel repairs that have included mowing, grading and excavation. Once the brush is cleared, the city has a long list of alleyways that must be reworked.

Butler says the department intends to eventually grade every dirt alley in town to make those torn up by local refuse trucks again passable.

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders may start to feel the cold shoulder of winter, as the National Weather Service predicts a 40 percent chance of rain turning to snow tonight and a 60 percent chance of snow Thursday.

Accumulations of one to two inches are a possibility, according the the service, located at Midland International Airport.

Skies should be cloudy today and tomorrow, with a low near 30 tonight and a high Thursday not much warmer — in the mid-30s.

Snow that falls Thursday morning may turn to rain by the afternoon, according to the service.

Northeast winds at 10 to 20 mph are in the forecast for tonight, with north winds at 15 to 25 mph and gusty predicted for Thursday.

Tuesday's high of 69 was nine degrees cooler than the record high of 78, set in 1966. Today's low of 28 was eight degrees warmer than the record low of 20, set in 1976.

STATE

A winter storm watch has been issued for a vast area of West Texas tonight as forecasters call for as much as six inches of snow across the area before the snowfall stops Thursday.

The storm watch covers the Panhandle and South Plains tonight and the northern Concho Valley, the Permian Basin, the mountains of West Texas and extreme West Texas Thursday.

A cold front will move into the Panhandle this evening and across the South Plains tonight. The cold front will produce snowfalls of 2 to 4 inches tonight and an addition 1 to 2 inches are possible tomorrow.

Forecasters say snow will begin early tonight across the Panhandle and move into the South Plains later tonight. Thursday morning the system will reach the northern Concho Valley, the Permian Basin, the mountains of West Texas and extreme West Texas.

Some freezing rain is possible in the mountains tonight and Thursday while rain is forecast for the Big Bend valleys. Some sleet is possible in the Concho Valley and the Big Bend Thursday.

Singer-songwriter Orbison, formerly of Wink, dies at 52

HENDERSONVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roy Orbison, a balladeer of lost love whose piercing, three-octave voice in songs like "Pretty Woman" and "Cryin'" pioneered early rock 'n' roll, died of a heart attack at age 52.

The singer-songwriter, known for his black pompadour and ever-present sunglasses, was brought by ambulance to Hendersonville Hospital late Tuesday, said Melanie Lamb, a hospital spokeswoman. He died just before midnight.

Orbison achieved fame more than two decades ago with the hits "Only the Lonely," his first million-seller, then "Blue Angel" and "I'm Hurtin'." "Oh, Pretty Woman," in 1964, sold more than 7 million copies and was later a hit for the group Van Halen.

At his death, he was again on the charts, at No. 45, with the single "Handle With Care," a collaboration with artists including Bob Dylan, George Harrison and Tom Petty. Their album, recorded under the name The Traveling Wilburys, is No. 8.

Orbison, who played guitar, gave a concert Sunday in Akron, Ohio, before 2,000 people. On Tuesday, Orbison was at the Nashville-area home of country singer Jean Shepard, who said he had been with her husband, "having a great time."

Dallas study indicates 1990s decade of higher oil prices

DALLAS (AP) — The days of lower oil prices will end by 1992 and the coming decade will be marked by higher prices that will slow economic growth in the United States, a study by two economists at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas says.

Stephen Brown and Keith Phillips contend that falling demand for oil in the 1980s has had more to do with the collapse in oil prices than the disarray in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

And, they say in a study to be published next month, that growing demand in the 1990s will push OPEC countries to full capacity and prices above $30 a barrel.

"People planning on building big cars in the next decade may be headed in the wrong direction," Brown said in an interview. "(But) it won't be as bad as the the '70s where we saw sharp price increases that really nailed the economy."

■ Mosbacher may not be best for industry; Kassebaum favors oil import fee — 7B

The economists said, however, that those in the currently depressed oil business shouldn't begin dancing in the streets.

After adjusting for inflation, the higher price level will still amount to only 60 percent to 80 percent of the peak price of oil reached in 1981, they said.

By 1992, oil prices should begin rising. And by the year 2000, oil prices will reach $35 to $40 — or more than double the current level, they said.

"I really don't think we'll see a return to the boomtimes of 1981 in the oil industry," Brown said. "But we should see some increases as early as '92, barring OPEC action, and definitely by '95. By 1995, the price will have to be in the neighborhood of $25 because of the demand."

In the United States alone, Brown and Phillips said, oil consumption will increase between 2.1 percent and 9.5 percent annually.

Current price levels encourage consumption and discourage the development of alternative resources or conservation efforts. In the next decade, the growth of world economies will continue to spur demand and pressure prices higher, the economists suggest.

President-elect fills five more jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect George Bush filled his top two trade jobs with a close friend and a Ford administration veteran, and tapped longtime officials William Webster and Thomas Pickering for positions he once held himself — CIA director and U.N. ambassador.

Bush said Tuesday he has chosen Texas oilman Robert Mosbacher, a longtime friend and Republican fund raiser, as commerce secretary, and Washington attorney Carla Hills as U.S. trade representative. The latter move prompted quick Democratic criticism that Bush had selected someone without extensive experience in trade.

Rounding out appointments to his economic team, Bush announced selection of Stanford University economist Michael Boskin to head the Council of Economic Advisers. Bush called Boskin "one of this nation's preeminent economists."

Bush said he was seeking continuity at the CIA when he asked Webster to stay on at the intelligence agency. President Reagan named Webster, a former FBI director, to the CIA job last year after the death of William Casey.

Pickering, 57, currently is ambassador to Israel. If confirmed by the Senate, he will replace Vernon Walters as ambassador to the United Nations.

Pickering's primary experience is in the Middle East, where he also was ambassador to Jordan from 1974 to 1978 during President Jimmy Carter's administration.

County seeks intervention in suit on judges

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland County, citing inadequate representation by Attorney General Jim Mattox, is asking a federal judge to grant its motion to intervene in a lawsuit seeking to overturn the method of electing 205 district judges in Texas.

"While Midland County does not desire to disparage the actions of the Attorney General, it is respectfully submitted that that office simply has not, as of this date, fully and properly represented Midland County's interest," according to the motion filed in U.S. District Court in Midland.

Midland County Attorney Mark Dettman expects U.S. District Chief Judge Lucius Bunton to rule on the motion in 10 days to two weeks.

The motion stems from a lawsuit filed July 11 by the League of United Latin American Citizens, asking the court to order single-member districts in 19 Texas counties — including Midland and Ector — and in 15 multi-county judicial districts. It predicts the change could increase the number of minority judges in those counties from less than 20 to more than 110.

"The white majority votes sufficiently as a block to enable it — in the absence of special circumstances, such as the minority candidate running unopposed — usually to defeat the minority's preferred candidate," the lawsuit alleges.

Light snow fell from eastern sections of Washington and Oregon through Montana and Wyoming and into western Colorado and northern Utah, as well as in the Black Hills of southwestern South Dakota.

There were no significant accumulations by early morning, but up to 6 inches were expected at higher elevations near Denver, where a snow advisory was in effect.

Patches of light rain continued along the Pacific Coast, and rain stretched over a large area from north-central Texas to Oklahoma, northwest Arkansas, central and southern Missouri and western Kentucky. Thunderstorms developed over southwest Oklahoma and northwest Texas.

SINGER

During his heyday in the early 1960s, Orbison had 27 straight records on the charts. In May 1963, he toured Britain with the Beatles, then a smash in England but still virtually unknown in the United States.

Paul McCartney today called Orbison's death "a great shock."

"We toured with Roy in the early days and he was a really good guy," the former Beatle said in a statement issued in London.

In 1977, Elvis Presley introduced him as "the greatest singer in the world." Bruce Springsteen saluted him in his song "Thunder Road."

Orbison once estimated he had sold 30 million records, but added, "I don't normally keep tabs."

Some of his other hits include "Cryin,'" "It's Over," and "Blue Bayou." Last year, he re-recorded his 1963 hit "In Dreams" after the song had been revived in the movie "Blue Velvet."

Orbison grew up in Wink, Texas, and was taught to play guitar at age 6 by his father, an oil field worker. He played guitar on a radio station at age 8 and was in a country music band by age 14.

He got his early recording experience in the 1950s with Sun Records of Memphis, the company that launched the careers of Presley, Johnny Cash and Jerry Lee Lewis.

He was one of the first "rockabilly" singers — a hybrid of rock 'n' roll and hillbilly music, as country music was known then.

Orbison began wearing sunglasses publicly all the time in 1963 when he accidentally left his regular glasses at home and had to wear shades while in London. His appearance was well-received and he kept it a tradition.

His career plummeted in the late 1960s in the aftermath of two personal tragedies. His wife died in a motorcycle accident in 1966. Two of his three sons, ages 10 and 6, died in a fire that destroyed his $150,000 lakeside home in 1968. His third son is now in his twenties.

His most successful songs focused on broken romance and his "Too Soon to Know" was written after the death of his wife. "A little hurt went a long way," he said in the 1986 interview.

Orbison remarried and had two sons from that marriage.

Asked in the 1986 interview how he would like to be remembered, he replied:

"One day when they are mentioning people who had an impact, if they just mention me among the rest of the guys and gals, it would be great."

Transition officials said no additional appointments were expected until Bush returns from New York, where he was accompanying President Reagan to a meeting today with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Bush said that his CIA director and U.N. ambassador will not have Cabinet rank, but that both would attend Cabinet meetings when pertinent subjects were discussed.

"There is no point in the United Nations ambassador sitting around, as I did for a while, talking about agriculture policy," Bush said.

Bush was U.N. ambassador under President Nixon and was CIA director during the Ford administration.

Bush's choice for trade representative, Hills, also served in the Ford administration, as secretary of housing and urban development.

The 54-year-old Hills is the first woman Bush has tapped for a high-level post, but the choice drew immediate criticism from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, this year's Democratic vice presidential candidate.

He called Hill's "a very able person," but criticized Bush's selection of a trade representative with little background in the field.

Bentsen said that while Hills probably will be confirmed by the Senate, "I had hoped, frankly, that we'd have someone from the business world who had extensive international experience in trade. That didn't happen."

The two trade jobs will be highly visibly with the federal trade deficit totaling $170 billion last year and running at an annual rate of $137 billion this year.

Mosbacher, 61, is a longtime friend of Bush's who headed his primary campaign fund-raising operation. He also was chairman of a Republican Party program that raised $24 million in $100,000 contributions for the general election campaign.

Mosbacher, worth an estimated $200 million from his oil and gas holdings and investments, is a former chairman of the National Petroleum Council.

The commerce secretary enforces trade policy and seeks more markets for U.S. goods, as well as serving as a voice for U.S. business within the government. Mosbacher also will oversee agencies ranging from the National Weather Service to the Census Bureau to the National Bureau of Standards.

The trade representative negotiates trade agreements with other countries and investigates complaints of unfair trade practices.

Bush had lunch Tuesday with Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Afterward, Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said Bush was "very firm in the fact that he did not want to discuss the increasing of revenue" to combat the federal deficit.

Bush also met Tuesday with former Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, whose name had been circulated as a potential U.N. ambassador. A Bush aide said no promises were made to her regarding administration jobs.

Announcement stunning

OIL

"Under nearly all of our scenarios, the growth in oil consumption pushes OPEC close to full capacity between late 1992 and early 1995," said the study, which will be published in January in the Fed's regional economic review. "As OPEC nears full capacity, prices are likely to rise sharply."

The study assumes no major disruptions in oil production or artificial pushes, such as a resumption of the Iran-Iraq war or sharp tax increase on oil.

"Rising oil prices will strengthen economic growth in energy-exporting countries while hindering economic growth in energy-importing countries like the United States," the study said.

And as in the past, the effects will cut unevenly through this country.

Energy-producing regions, like Texas and Louisiana, will benefit with energy-consuming regions, like the Northeast and heavy industrial areas, suffering.

Currently, production of oil exceeds worldwide demand, thus triggering the fall in prices to between $15 and $16 a barrel. Last month OPEC agreed to try to limit production and bolster oil prices, but past attempts at production quotas have failed.

One of the few common elements was the English translation provided at the airport by Viktor M. Sukhudrev, who also translated for Khrushchev 28 years ago.

Wearing a top coat and fedora, and accompanied by his wife Raisa and two members of the ruling Politburo, Gorbachev declared: "We believe — and we hope that is the belief of the American side as well — that this meeting will serve the best interests of the United States and the Soviet Union; indeed of all the world."

Referring to his meeting with Reagan and Bush, Gorbachev said "we have not arranged any formal agenda, so either side will be free openly and frankly to raise any questions that it wishes to."

A unilateral Soviet troop reduction would begin to redress what the North Atlantic Treaty Organization describes as a more than 2-1 Warsaw Bloc edge in conventional arms in Europe, and provide momentum to long stalled talks on reducing forces on both sides. It could also boost Gorbachev's image in Western Europe.

U.S. officials said they expected spirited discussion of issues ranging from arms control to the lingering Soviet military presence in Afghanistan, but that no formal agreements were likely to result.

Mood was as important as substance at this meeting, with Bush about to take his place as Gorbachev's equal on the world stage. Bush made it clear that he is willing to work with the Soviets but not about to jump into any serious negotiating while still Reagan's understudy.

"I will make it clear that we want to go forward, but I am not going to be pressed into going beyond that," Bush said at a news conference in Washington.

Gorbachev and his wife rested at the Soviet mission overnight before throwing themselves into a hectic day of meetings starting with a morning session with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar. After an 11 a.m. speech to the General Assembly and then lunch with Reagan and Bush on Governors Island in New York Harbor, he planned to do some sightseeing with an afternoon visit to the top of the 110-story World Trade Center.

A day of tourism was laid out for Thursday, in contrast to the Soviet leader's first visit to the United States, one year ago in Washington, when he and Reagan signed a treaty calling for the elimination of all intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

STREETS

"Overall, we're going to be in pretty good shape coming into winter," said Harvey Hansen, director of streets, traffic and engineering, who announced the start of a pothole hotline at 685-7299.

"Our street commission suggested it, but I've seen it done in a number of communities and it seems to work well," said Hansen. "We don't have a backlog of potholes and we don't want any."

According to Butler, those using the line can expect a response time within 48 hours "Unless it's an emergency. If there's a car eater out there, we will respond faster."

City officials say another preventive program scheduled to go on over the winter period will involve asphalt crack sealing. "We just want to keep the water from reaching the (roadway) base which causes potholes," said Butler.

In the meantime, a parts search has placed the traffic department's four to five weeks behind its street painting schedule. The problem — which involves continued downtime on a spraytruck — may force a capital expenditure the city didn't plan on.

"We have a lot of roads out there that were sealed this summer and need to be striped. If we can get this up and running, we're looking at about four weeks of painting just to catch up," said Hansen.

The traffic department also will begin a two to three year program in the coming months that will involve light loop triggers at intersection throughout the city.

The department has budgeted $60,000 for the project in 1989, and according to Hansen, will dedicate one to two days each week until the project — which will include the installation of several new controllers — is complete.

Leaders should recall attack, survivor says

HONOLULU (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev should remember Pearl Harbor as they meet in New York, says a retired Navy captain who survived the Japanese sneak attack 47 years ago today.

"I hope they're working for peace as we're remembering war," said Forrest Biard, who was to be the keynote speaker at a National Park Service ceremony marking the Dec. 7, 1941, attack that plunged the United States into World War II.

"We were both on the same side during World War II, but look what's happened since then," the 75-year-old Biard said of the superpowers. Gorbachev arrived in New York on Tuesday for informal talks with Reagan and President-elect George Bush.

Thousands were expected to attend ceremonies across Hawaii today commemorating the air raid on Hawaiian military installations. The largest crowds generally gather at Pearl Harbor, which was hardest hit.

SUIT

It charges that the at-large system denies the plaintiffs right to vote "on account of their races or color in that the political processes leading to nomination or election of district judges are not equally open to participation by plaintiffs in that they have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to elect candidates of their choice."

However, Midland County, in its motion, claims that the allegations reveal nothing to show any violation of the Voting Rights Act or the U.S. Constitution.

"Such allegations fail to show the exact 'minority' populations in each listed county, fail to show whether the proportion of 'minority' district judges in a particular county comports with the 'minority' population of the particular county, and fail to show that there exist within any particular county any 'minority' individuals qualified to serve as a district judge," the motion states.

According to the motion, the number of district judges mirrors the percentage of minority lawyers in Texas, which is reportedly to be at about five percent.

"The fact that the minority population in the State Bar of Texas mirrors the number of district judges tells me that the system is working fine," Dettman said.

Midland presently elects three district judges, two of which have general civil and criminal jurisdiction and one which handles primarily family law matters.

Under the at-large system, all voters in the county elect all three judges to four-year terms. Under a single-member district system, the county would be divided into district for each judge, and only voters living in each portion would elect each judge.

The suit alleges that Midland, Ector and 17 other counties contain more than one judicial district and large enough minority populations "for the drawing of at least one majority (black and Hispanic combined) single-member district." Those counties have a combined minority population of almost 30 percent yet only 10 of the 190 district judges (5.3 percent) are minority.

Eight Texas counties, including Ector, have a large enough Hispanic population to create at least one majority-Hispanic single-member district. Those counties have a Hispanic population of 15.4 percent, but only four of the 148 district judges (2.7 percent) are Hispanic.

The plaintiffs in the suit are: Aquilla Watson, a black voter from Midland; Cristina Moreno, a Hispanic voter from Midland; James Fuller, a black voter from Midland and president of the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees; the LULAC chapters in Midland and Ector Counties; and the statewide LULAC organization.

Named as defendants in the suit are Mattox, Gov. Bill Clements, Secretary of State Jack Rains, Texas Judicial Council President Joe Spurlock II and the president judges of the Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals, and the state's nine administrative judicial regions.

Atlantis astronauts make night journey home after shrouded mission

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlantis' astronauts returned home under a cover of darkness early today, a fitting finale to their secret space mission during which they reportedly launched a powerful spy satellite into orbit over the Soviet Union.

Atlantis, bruised a lot more than usual, streaked out of orbit Tuesday, completing a four-day space voyage with an unusual afternoon landing on a packed clay runway at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert.

The military mission, the second shuttle flight since Challenger exploded 34 months ago, was believed to have included deployment of a sophisticated satellite that can peer through clouds and darkness to spy on the Soviets.

The five astronauts' low-key, middle-of-the-night arrival here seemed an appropriate ending to the classified flight, which had been shrouded in secrecy since it launched Friday from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Despite the crew's 12:50 a.m. arrival, more than 200 people were there to cheer the astronauts and their wives when they stepped off two planes. In contrast, some 5,000 flag-waving spectators greeted the evening return of Discovery's crew in October.

Navy Cmdr. Robert L. Gibson, who guided the 97-ton shuttle to a centerline touchdown Tuesday, was surprised at the early-morning turnout.

"I can't believe all of you are out here at one o'clock in the morning," he said. "This is incredible. I expected just a hop in the cars and go."

"It really was a great flight," said Air Force Lt. Col. Guy S. Gardner, who made his first trip into space as Atlantis' pilot. "I think we did a good job for NASA and the space program and think we did some good things for our country."

After making a few brief remarks to the crowd, the astronauts shook hands with other astronauts and Johnson Space Center employees and then left with their families in vans.

The other crew members were Col. Richard M. Mullane and Lt. Col. Jerry L. Ross of the Air Force and Navy Cmdr. William M. Shepherd.

Before Tuesday's 3:35 p.m. PST landing, NASA and the Air Force only broke their silence twice — to say the crew could proceed with operations and to give 24-hour notice on the landing time.

Mission Control then lifted its curtain of secrecy about an hour before landing to report, as it was happening, that Gibson had fired braking rockets to slow the spaceship's 17,400-mph speed by 283 mph and drop it out of orbit onto an hourlong fiery descent through the atmosphere.

Atlantis landed with a slow leak in a tire on its landing gear that NASA previously had said was not a concern. The leak did not seem to affect the smoothness of the touchdown.

Sources said Atlantis' primary goal — to deploy the spy satellite — was accomplished during the weekend.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Incense, prayers and pleas for the homeless were part of a memorial for a scion of a wealthy New England family who battled addiction and AIDS-related complex before dying homeless on a Tenderloin District sidewalk.

Tuesday night's ceremony for Joseph Emerson Eaton Jr., 38, took place near the spot where he was found dead five hours after he passed out and was dragged from a fast-food restaurant by a guard who thought he was drunk.

"It was our brother who died and we shall miss him greatly," said a homeless man who identified himself as C.Z. and said he knew Eaton.

About 100 people, many of them homeless, gathered around two Eastern Orthodox priests and a makeshift altar with a frayed white cloth, candles, flowers and religious pictures to remember Eaton and other homeless people who have died.

"Let this be a time again of healing and reconciliation ... the time for anger is over," said the Rev. Thomas Flowers, a monk who runs a soup kitchen in United Nations Plaza nearby. It was Flowers who found Eaton's lifeless body just two blocks from City Hall while making rounds in the seedy Tenderloin.

The coroner's office said Eaton suffered from alcoholism, drug abuse and AIDS-related complex and his arms showed fresh needle marks. They were awaiting toxicology test results before determining the cause of death.

"There's no one to blame," Flowers said. "We're all to blame."

Two long sheets of paper taped to a wall outside the Carl Jr.'s restaurant listed others who have died on San Francisco's streets.

Scattered through the gathering were gaunt people with bedrolls strapped to their backs, shopping carts loaded with belongings and plastic bags filled with food. One man wore a lapel button reading, "Have Faith." A group called "Food Not Bombs" distributed free fruit.

As Carl Jr.'s workers looked on, Flowers urged listeners not to ignore anyone they see lying in doorways or on the streets.

As a result of Eaton's death, Dr. James Werdegar, head of the city's Department of Public Health, on Tuesday urged the public to call authorities when they find someone unconscious on the sidewalk. Eaton was found dead early Saturday.

The Tenderloin is known for panhandlers, homeless people sleeping in doorways and on benches, and a tent city outside the U.S. Health Department office demanding more federal funding to fight AIDS.

It's a far cry from the affluent Boston suburb of Duxbury where Eaton grew up. His late grandfather, Charles Freedom Eaton Jr., was a financier who founded Investors Bank & Trust Co. His father, Joseph Emerson Sr., is a retired business executive.

Eaton attended prestigious New England prep schools. But he was "an alcoholic from the time he was 13, from the time he took his first drink," said his brother Nick, a New Hampshire contractor.

"And later, he got heavily into using drugs," Nick Eaton said. "But time after time after time, it was alcohol that brought him his troubles."

Family members said Eaton tried several treatment programs with their moral and financial support.

He never attended college, but worked as a chef or florist. Eaton moved to San Francisco in 1981, and told his family he was homosexual.

"We accepted his choice of lifestyle," said another brother, Boston television reporter Henry Eaton. "It was only his self-destructive drinking that ever concerned us."

Skin cancer hitting earlier, more often, expert says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fatal type of skin cancer is affecting more people at a younger age than ever before, and the trend may get worse if chemical pollution continues to leach natural ozone from the atmosphere, an expert says.

Dr. Darrell S. Rigel, an assistant clinical professor of dermatology at New York University Medical School, said Tuesday that melanoma, a type of skin cancer that can be fatal if not treated, is now diagnosed at the rate of one of 128 Americans, an increase of about 1,500 percent compared to 1935.

Even more disturbing, the ages of patients developing melanoma is dropping dramatically, Rigel told the American Academy of Dermatology annual meeting.

"Five years ago it was unusual to see someone under the age of 40 with skin cancer," said Rigel. "Now we're commonly seeing people in their 20s with skin cancer."

About 25 percent of the estimated 27,300 Americans diagnosed as having melanoma this year will be aged 39 or under, he said. Only a few years ago, melanoma was conidered a disease of the aged, Rigel said.

"Not only has the overall rate grown, but the age group where it has grown the most rapidly is in the youngest group," said Rigel. "The rate of increase is highest among the youngest people, not only here, but in other countries."

It's generally believed that melanoma, a skin cancer that will spread throughout the body if not excised by surgery early, develops after 10 to 20 years of heavy or damaging exposure to ultraviolet rays of the sun. But Rigel said the increasing rate of the disease among the young suggests that the time it takes to develop the disease may be decreasing.

A loss of ozone in atmosphere "might be the explanation of why people are getting it younger and younger — maybe. That has been brought up as a hyposthesis," said Rigel. "For every decrease of 1 percent in the ozone layer, there is a 2 percent increase in the incidence of skin cancer."

Ozone is a natural gas present in the atmosphere that partially blocks ultraviolet solar rays from reaching the Earth's surface. Studies in recent years have shown that some types of chemical pollutants, principally the fluorocarbons that are used for refrigerants and solvents, destroy the atmospheric ozone, thus allowing more ultraviolet rays to reach Earth.

Counterbalancing the ozone-loss effect, said Rigel, is a growing consciousness about the dangers of excessive exposure to the sun. He said more people are using solar screens, a lotion that is applied to the skin to filter out ultraviolet sun rays.

"People are so much more sun conscious than they were just five years ago," he said in an interview. "The use of sun screen has risen very dramatically."

Many parents have become aware that sun damage on the skins of children under the age of 10 can result in cancer among those youngsters before they are 30, said Rigel. As a result, he said, even children now are using sun screen.

About 90 'middlemen' indicted in drug probe

MIAMI (AP) — More than 90 top U.S. drug middlemen were indicted Tuesday based on evidence from a sting operation in which an undercover FBI company sold traffickers radios, navigational beacons and other high-tech equipment.

By Tuesday afternoon about half of those charged were in custody in various cities around the country, including Los Angeles, Boston, Houston, Tampa and Miami, the FBI said.

Tapes and other evidence from the operation led to drug indictments in Miami and Tampa against 93 people. About five tons of cocaine, 100 tons of marijuana and some heroin also was confiscated, FBI Director William Sessions announced in Washington.

"We believe that this case, because of the positions and large numbers of those charged and arrested, will have a significant impact on the ability of these cartels to continue to import drugs into the United States and abroad," the FBI director said.

Nussbaum describes life

NEW YORK (AP) — The former live-in lover of a lawyer accused of beating his illegally adopted 6-year-old daughter to death described a life of drug use and hypnotism, and testified the girl was sexually abused at age 2.

In her third day of cross-examination by the defense in state court Tuesday, Hedda Nussbaum admitted using heroin, cocaine and LSD, and said defendant Joel Steinberg told her she had the power to put people in a trance.

Steinberg's attorney, Ira London, attempted to discredit Ms. Nussbaum's testimony for the prosecution with repeated questions about drug use, hypnotism and an imaginary cult.

Steinberg, a 47-year-old disbarred lawyer, is charged with murder in the November 1987 beating death of Lisa Steinberg, whom he illegally obtained at birth from an unmarried teen-ager.

Burst pipe floods homes

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — A burst water main flooded 20 houses and caused at least $1 million damage in this Boston suburb days after a work crew decided the leaky main could wait for repair, authorities said.

"It was a gusher. If it had been oil, we would be rich," Mayor Theodore Mann said Tuesday, hours after the deluge.

A leak in the 48-inch main was reported Saturday, said Paul DiNatale, a spokesman for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. A crew was dispatched but decided the problem could wait until Tuesday for repair, he said.

"We're all angry that the judgment wasn't a better call," the mayor said. "But anger isn't going to get it repaired. We want to prevent this from happening again."

'Sex offender' convicted

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A jury Tuesday convicted a man described by his lawyer as an irrational sex offender of first-degree murder in the stabbings of two women and wounding of a husband and wife at an archaeological dig.

The Montgomery County jury returned the verdict in late afternoon and later began hearing evidence on whether Arthur Faulkner should be put to death or sentenced to life in prison.

After hearing psychiatric testimony from a doctor called by the defense, Judge Samuel Salus stopped the proceedings for the night. Testimony was to resume Wednesday morning.

Supreme Court likely will debate training mission issue

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal law that stripped governors of their power to veto National Guard training missions dictated by the federal government is unconstitutional, a federal appeals court ruled Tuesday.

However, another federal appeals court has ruled just the opposite and the two rulings presumably will have to be considered by the Supreme Court.

A panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 Tuesday that the so-called Montgomery Amendment, taking away a governor's control over National Guard units, is unconstitutional.

The amendment was challenged by Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich, who objected to the Defense Department ordering Minnesota Guard units to Central America. Governors of other states also have objected and the states of Massachusetts, Ohio, Colorado, Vermont and Maine supported Minnesota's lawsuit.

However, the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in October rejected a similar challenge to the amendment filed by Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Dukakis said in a statement: "Today's ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is a victory for common sense, the Constitution and the governors of the United States."

Massachusetts Attorney General James Shannon said the state was now more likely to appeal the 1st Circuit ruling.

"Today's ruling in the Minnesota case was what we argued here in Boston. So our position has been vindicated by one court of appeals," said Shannon.

Justice Department official said Tuesday's ruling will apply only to states within the 8th Circuit. A Guard official in Washington said no decision had been made on whether to appeal.

The amendment was attached to the Defense Authorization Act of 1987 by Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss. Prior to its passage in 1986, state units could not be sent on federal training missions without a governor's consent.

The 8th Circuit concluded that the Montgomery Amendment contravenes the intent of the framers of the U.S. Constitution, who they said designed the militia — or National Guard — "to serve as a check on the potential abuse of military power by the federal government."

The opinion was released in St. Paul and at the court's headquarters in St. Louis.

The amendment violates the plain language of the Constitution, is at odds with declarations of the U.S. Supreme Court and "departs from an unbroken pattern of congressional deference to reserved state authority" over the National Guard which is embodied in the militia clauses of the Constitution, the court said.

Minority search vital to Bush team

Recent reports that President-elect George Bush is making an effort to break outside what might be called the bureaucratic establishment to attract people with new ideas to this nation's center of government are refreshing to say the least.

The reports indicate that not only is Bush concerned with the familiarity of some of the names being suggested to him for appointments, but that he also wants to place special emphasis on bringing women, minorities and the disabled into his administration.

One such prospective appointee, Elizabeth "Libby" Dole, reportedly had rejected being named as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in the Bush administration. But Bush apparently is still interested in getting Mrs. Dole, who served as Transportation Secretary for 14 months in the Reagan administration, onto his team, along with other women and minorities.

Not only is such a move highly commendable from the standpoint of ensuring adequate representation of the entire American population spectrum, but it is especially critical to disspelling any carryover from the Reagan administration which has not been noted for sensitivity to either women or minorities. It's true that President Reagan did appoint both women and racial minorities to his administration, but sensitivity must go beyond the mere acknowledgement that minorities are an integral part of this nation. They must become active players in the political makeup and direction of the government in order for this nation to assert that it is truly racially representative.

Although President Reagan has preached the equality line at various times during the past eight years, his presidency has not been heralded as a high-water mark for minority improvement. In fact, the administration became known for its heavy dependence on white males, and many blacks, Hispanics, women and members of other minorities have lambasted the Reagan years for the lack of active pursuit of more equal representation in government. That equality is important because it means the greatest possible degree of participation in our government by the entire spectrum of Americans. And that isn't a Democratic or Republican goal, but rather an American goal.

Through his appointments and in other ways Bush can bring this nation a long way down the road toward true equality by stressing minority representation throughout his administration. We're proud to see he's moving in that direction.

Another View:

Gorbachev on stage

Mikhail Gorbachev loosened the gags on his people and thereby created something radically novel in the Soviet Union: public opinion. He now has to do something equally revolutionary — feed it. And that is just what he's doing on the grand tour that brings him to New York tomorrow.

Soviet public opinion will be diverted by his journey but only momentarily, for the grumbling runs deep: bad food, too little housing, too little autonomy in the Baltic states, ethnic hatreds between Armenians and Azerbaijanis, a bleak and gray life.

These two considerations, Soviet public opinion and economic weakness, will govern Mr. Gorbachev's meetings with President Reagan and President-elect Bush. Thus, the Soviet leader will seek to impress, not to bargain. He's not in a good position to deal. Far from testing and challenging George Bush, he's likely to want to extend the atmosphere of peace and good will. That remains the only way he can gain the time and the resources necessary for economic reconstruction.

Mr. Gorbachev is employing a stratagem familiar to American presidents: When troubled at home, seek solace — and photo opportunities — abroad. President Nixon offered a prototypical example with his jaunt to Egypt in 1974, as Watergate reached a crescendo. Little so impresses public opinion as pictures of great leaders talking peace. Only a few weeks ago, Mr. Gorbachev made another grand trip, to India. Now he will touch down briefly in New York, then proceed to Havana and London.

The intriguing point is that he is acting as if he believes he leads a country whose public opinion requires care, feeding and diversion. And so it now does.

Since Mr. Gorbachev cannot feed his people a better life, he has to offer them a better show. They will see their leader at the New York Stock Exchange, the very soul of the evil capitalist empire — some of whose riches he implicitly promises by his presence there. He will address the United Nations. Advance word suggests that he intends to dazzle listeners with farsighted statesmanship on, for instance, the need for multilateral efforts to combat narcotics and to protect the global environment.

Yet showmanship and even statesmanship should not be confused with negotiations. Mr. Gorbachev knows his hand is not strong. He has already made the lion's share of concessions in the Euromissile treaty, Afghanistan and southern Africa. And he will make more, though not too fast nor too obviously and not before the Bush inauguration.

Mr. Bush has undoubtedly made it clear that he also intends to avoid bargaining. He must first assemble the players on his team, organize his policies and work with the allies. Thus this week's high-level encounters will probably be brief, pictorial and, by definition, successful.

Mr. Gorbachev needs a receptive international climate so that one day soon he can confront his military and hard-liners with the necessity of cutting Soviet forces. The money and talent thereby freed are crucial to exploiting technology better and galvanizing the Soviet economy.

With these thoughts in mind, Mr. Gorbachev is about to command the world stage. An unhappy but proud people will take pride, and perhaps give their hero a little more leeway, a little more time.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 7, the 342nd day of 1988. There are 24 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese warplanes attacked the home base of the U.S. Pacific fleet located at Pearl Harbor on the Hawaiian island of Oahu. Japan then declared war against the United States and Britain.

On this date:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1817, British naval officer William Bligh, well remembered for the April 1789 mutiny against him on the "Bounty," died in London.

In 1836, Martin Van Buren was elected the eighth president of the United States.

In 1842, the New York Philharmonic gave its first concert, performing works by Ludwig van Beethoven and Carl Maria von Weber.

In 1888, newspaper columnist Heywood Broun, co-founder of The Newspaper Guild, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

In 1917, the United States declared war on Austria-Hungary.

Drug smugglers dressing for success

WASHINGTON — What is the well-dressed drug smuggler wearing this season? Probably a few extra pounds of cocaine or heroin stuffed in his shorts, stitched in his cuffs or stashed in the heels of his penny loafers.

Jack Anderson

Only a rank beginner would amble through customs with illegal booty in his hip pocket. Experienced drug couriers going through airports are outfitted by their own tailors in clothes specially designed to conceal little souvenirs from foreign countries.

Fortunately, it didn't take drug enforcement agents very long to catch on to the fact that while they were examining packages and luggage, drug couriers were literally wearing the evidence.

A federal intelligence center in El Paso, Texas, that collects data for various drug enforcement agencies has distributed a confidential report to its clients telling them where to look for drugs on suspicious characters. When your mother told you to make sure you were wearing clean underwear before you left home, she never had this in mind.

Tailored-to-fit vests, underwear and leg or ankle bandages can be custom shaped to hold drugs, money or other contraband. One team of inspectors at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York found 7.5 pounds of heroin in a vest and underwear combination specially made by the smuggler's personal designer.

In Hong Kong, officials seized 66 grams of heroin from the waistband of a man's trousers.

Miami customs officials have found marijuana and currency wrapped around the lower back, thighs, calves and ankles of couriers. Evidently drug smugglers don't mind being accused of having thunder thighs or fat ankles, as long as they aren't caught committing more serious crimes.

The body wrap method is a dead giveaway if the smuggler can't bend over and walks like a swathed mummy. Ditto if the smuggler is wearing a wool overcoat in August or is an ectomorph wearing clothes from the big and tall shop.

Finally, check the shoes. The confidential report notes that California port of entry inspectors found couriers hiding drugs in false soles. Customs people have to sniff the shoes for one clue — the fresh smell of glue overpowering the stale smell of old socks. Another giveaway is a shiny pair of new shoes when the rest of the ensemble is well worn. The only sure test is to drill a hole in the heel, which understandably might annoy a tourist whose only crime is wearing a new pair of shoes.

If smugglers are sophisticated at the wardrobe game, they have also perfected their luggage techniques. Hard-sided suitcases with false sides are a favorite. Inspectors look for trim and rivets that don't appear factory-installed or suitcases that feel heavy when they are empty. One courier, snagged in Lima, Peru, diversified his stash. He had cocaine in false compartments in his suitcase and briefcase, with more inside a hollow pair of shoes in the suitcase.

Soft-sided luggage is popular with smugglers coming out of Peru. The Drug Enforcement Administration found a factory in Lima that was producing soft suitcases with hidden compartments capable of holding two kilograms of cocaine per suitcase.

If the suitcase is clean and the clothes are empty, the customs officer still can't assume the search is over. U.S. customs officials in Houston and New York caught Nigerian couriers carrying 130 to 300 grams of heroin inside the metal tubing of baggage carts. The tip-off was telltale soldering. Nobody's perfect.

MINI-EDITORIAL — If Yasser Arafat has something to say to the United Nations about a Middle East peace plan, let him say it at home, let him say it in a letter, let him say it at a negotiating table, let him say it on TV or over the radio. But he doesn't need to say it in New York City. The international protest over Secretary of State George Shultz's refusal to grant a visa for Arafat to address the United Nations is a red herring. It's posturing and politicking and blowing smoke. Arafat doesn't have a gag in his mouth. He can give speeches whenever he wants. But as a terrorist, he shouldn't be allowed to give speeches wherever he wants.

Familiar names make Bush seek fresh ones

WASHINGTON — Irked by the familiarity of names submitted to him for unfilled Cabinet posts, President-elect Bush last Wednesday issued this order to his transition talent scouts: Spread your nets and get some fresh blood in here.

Even key transition officials privately admit that if future appointments follow the same pattern as the early ones, the Bush administration will be a retread of past Republican regimes — with a specially strong flavor from Gerald R. Ford's team. Bush has not been pleased by the sameness of the names presented to him for domestic Cabinet slots.

One obstacle to casting a wider net: demands of Bush political aides that possible appointees show a high degree of past support for Bush. Transition aides insist that non-support does not necessarily disqualify anybody from an administration post, but nobody who opposed Bush before Super Tuesday has yet been tapped.

QUAYLE'S QUESTIONS

Vice President-elect Dan Quayle, reflecting possible concerns over positions by National Security Director-designate Brent Scowcroft, will meet him Tuesday in an unannounced, closed-door lunch.

Scowcroft is an outspoken advocate of the Midgetman missile, opposed by Republican conservatives, and is lukewarm at best about President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). Quayle likes Scowcroft's opposition to the current Reagan administration stance on Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START).

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

Quayle will be joined at lunch by three other Republican senators with whom he has collaborated on defense questions: Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, Pete Wilson of California and Warren Rudman of New Hampshire. Their big question for the ex-Air Force general who was also Gerald Ford's national security aide is whether he will be an "honest broker" of conflicting administration views, as they desire, or an advocate.

WHITHER THORNBURGH?

Attempts to put an ideological fix on Atty. Gen. Dick Thornburgh were not helped when he scheduled private luncheons at the Justice Department on successive days with Robert Bork and the architect of the campaign that kept Bork off the Supreme Court.

Conservatives were delighted when they learned that Thornburgh had not only lunched with Bork but asked him for guidance in selecting federal judges. But their glow faded when they learned that on the previous day he had a lunch scheduled with Ralph Neas, who, as head of the Civil Rights Leadership Conference, crafted strategy to kill the Bork nomination. The Neas date was cancelled, but will be rescheduled.

Unease about Thornburgh was further heightened by the fact that during his tenure as director of Harvard's Kennedy Institute of Politics, Neas was selected as a fellow to run a "how-we-nailed-Bork" seminar. A Thornburgh aide responds that his office in the Justice Department will be open to all stripes of opinion and that Kennedy Institute fellows cover the full political spectrum.

KEMP FOR U.N.?

With former Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole out of the picture, friends of Rep. Jack Kemp have been joined by the powerful pro-Israel lobby to promote him for U.N. ambassador.

Kemp's associates say the U.N. job is one of the few they are certain the defeated presidential hopeful would be glad to have. The campaign took on force when Tom Dine, executive director of the powerful American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), started a quiet Kemp sell. AIPAC likes Kemp's hardline pro-Israel position.

President-elect Bush felt Mrs. Dole's appointment to the U.N. would smooth over his bruised relations with her husband, Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole. According to transition insiders, Liddy Dole finally put an end to that possibility by saying she was not interested.

WHERE IS JIM BAKER?

State Department officials have been suprised that since being named to replace Secretary of State George Shultz, James A. Baker III has been around for only a one-hour lunch with Shultz and a brief visit to watch the secretary swear in William Brown as U.S. ambassador to Israel.

"I think Mr. Baker has a different agenda than briefing himself at State," an insider told us. That agenda consists of advising President-elect Bush on policy and personnel far transcending foreign affairs. However, a transition office at State is now ready for Baker, and he is expected to move in soon.

A footnote: Lawyer Robert Kimmitt, a former National Security Council aide renowned for his interview with Sen. Dan Quayle prior to the vice presidential selection, is Baker's leading choice for deputy secretary of state. But Baker also ponders the selection of a foreign service professional: Winston Lord, currently ambassador to China.

ART BUCHWALD

Christmas without cheer? Bah, humbug!

Scrooge & Marley, the Wall Street investment bankers, have just announced that they plan to make a serious attempt to take over the Christmas Holiday for $100 billion.

Art Buchwald

"This could be the largest unfriendly buy-out in history," Scrooge cackled at a press conference. "We are offering $10 a share to every man, woman and child who has an interest in Christmas, provided they sell by Dec. 25. Since we have almost total control of the stock right now, it makes no sense for anyone to hold out and refuse our offer."

Scrooge said that he had been secretly buying up Christmas stock for more than a year because he felt it was grossly undervalued.

"Its parts are worth far more than the whole. What we intend to do is spin off the unprofitable enterprises such as the egg-nog division and the reindeer transportation company, and hold on to the big money-makers which are Christmas cards and fake snowflakes."

"How about Christmas mail-order catalogues?"

"We're going to keep them, but we may dump the Christmas tree business because it has such a low profit potential. If we make this deal, we're going to be up to our ears in debt and so every dollar counts."

"But without trees you won't have a market for Christmas decorations," a reporter pointed out.

"That's probably true, but we were planning to get rid of the decoration business anyway because we needed the cash to buy Del Monte Catsup from Nabisco."

"Where are you going to get the money to pay for Christmas?" someone else asked.

"Bob Cratchit, my accountant, has advised me to issue junk bonds. We'll offer the bonds to the public at 20 percent interest, which is junkier than Drexel Burnham. If we can't dispose of enough of those we will sell off the world rights to Santa Claus."

"Santa Claus is sacred. You can't unload the rights to him and still call yourself a Christmas Company."

Scrooge said, "Bah, people can do anything they want in an unfriendly take-over. Cratchit has discovered that the old Christmas management tolerated unbelievable waste in their operations. They even gave free shopping mall space to high school choirs who wanted to sing 'Jingle Bells.' Believe me, if Scrooge & Marley succeed in this buy-out, we're going to run a lean and tough holiday ship."

"But," said a reporter, "Christmas excess is essential to a happy holiday season."

"If it's so essential, then we ought to make people pay for it. Spreading Christmas cheer doesn't come cheap."

"Sir, why did you decide on an unfriendly take-over rather than a friendly one?"

"Because the Scrooge & Marley company never gets involved in friendly bids. When we made noises about our plans, the present Christmas Board of Directors told us to butt out. So we decided to go for it on our own. At the beginning we never thought Christmas was much of an investment. But then we realized that everyone on Wall Street would treat us with new respect when they saw how much debt we were in."

"Do you believe the present Christmas stockholders will go for your bid?"

"Of course. Christmas has been a losing proposition for most people and Scrooge & Marley are offering them a way to bail out."

"Suppose present management says that Christmas is not for sale."

"My answer to them is, 'Humbug'. Somebody is going to acquire the holiday sooner or later, and better Scrooge & Marley than the people who bombed Pearl Harbor."

Uprising in occupied territories shows no signs of subsiding

By G.G. LaBELLE

JABALIYA, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Children stop chattering when the Israeli soldiers come in their trucks and riot helmets. Young men grip stones and the faces of their elders grow grim.

A year ago in this ramshackle refugee camp of tin shacks and crude concrete-block houses, Palestinians began their first sustained rebellion in 21 years of Israeli occupation. No end is in sight.

More than 300 Palestinians and 11 Israelis have been killed. More than 7,000 Palestinians have been wounded. Of 20,000 arrested, nearly 6,000 remain in jail.

The intefadeh, the Arabic word for uprising used even by the Israelis, has generated international sympathy and a new sense of purpose and identity among the 1.5 million Palestinians of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Although the Palestine Liberation Organization did not start the rebellion, it has become deeply involved and a young underground leadership has been formed to direct the protest.

An Israeli election was fought largely on policy in the occupied lands and the related question of how to achieve peace with the Arabs. The Palestinians declared an independent state, changing the situation irreversibly.

On this day, schoolgirls were walking home when two trucks filled with soldiers rumbled by in the muddy street. The grins on the girls' faces disappeared and they fell silent, their faces blank.

A 33-year-old man standing nearby, who said he had five children, was asked about the future for the 50,000 people of Jabaliya.

"The blood will keep flowing," he said.

Hardly a day goes by in the camp without a teen-ager being wounded by soldiers who open fire on stone-throwing youngsters. On the West Bank it is much the same.

The revolt has spread to the Arab sector of Jerusalem, and in small ways to Arabs who live inside Israel and are citizens of the Jewish state.

For many Palestinians, the revolt is a source of both pride and dismay. The passivity of the occupation has ended but thousands of families have a son killed or wounded, or someone imprisoned.

Israelis view the rebellion with fear or hatred. The cars of Jewish settlers in the occupied lands are stoned as they travel to their homes. Some respond with gunfire.

Jews are afraid to go to the Arab sector of Jerusalem, which the government has annexed as part of Israel's capital.

Parliamentary elections Nov. 1 made clear that Israelis are deeply divided on how to deal with the Palestinians. Parties winning seats in the 120-member Knesset advocated every solution from trading occupied land for peace to expelling all Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza.

Dedi Zucker, a member of parliament for the left-wing Citizens Rights Movement, sees an odd unity in this and said of the two extremes: "In both cases, people don't believe Israelis and Palestinians can live together in the current situation."

Dozens of times in the past year, Israeli officials have interpreted a lull in the violence as evidence that the rebellion was waning, but each time the lull has passed.

Ephraim Sneh, former head of the West Bank military government, wrote in the newspaper Haaretz that, despite the toll taken on Palestinian society, "it would be a mistake to assume it is incapable of sustaining the intefadeh."

For most Palestinians, the question is not whether to continue, but with what tactics.

Daoud Kuttab, a leading Palestinian journalist, sees the revolt at a crossroads — pulled one way by those weary of trouble and frequent general strikes and the other by those who believe only violence will drive Israel from the occupied lands.

Kuttab says the problem is to keep the revolt in the world's eye without making Israel angry enough to crush it by any means necessary.

Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza see the great achievements of the intefadeh as building their own pride and drawing attention to their plight, not only in the West but among their own leaders in PLO.

They believe television pictures of Israeli soldiers shooting or beating young Palestinians have had a lasting effect.

As for the PLO, for years it declared with overblown rhetoric that the Jews would be driven into the sea. Last month it issued a Palestinian declaration of independence based on a U.N. resolution that calls for creating Jewish and Arab states side by side.

Hatem Abu Ghazali, a community leader in the West Bank city of Nablus, sees this as a major accomplishment for Palestinians who live with the reality of Israeli occupation rather than with dreams of the past.

"We have shown international public opinion that we are looking for peace, not only the people but the leadership of the PLO," he said, adding that the response from Israel and the United States will increase Palestinian anger and frustration.

Israel called the PLO declarations "doubletalk" intended to mask an aim of destroying Israel in stages.

Israeli soldiers paying high price for occupation duty

By NICOLAS B. TATRO

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — First Lt. Sheffy said he was torn apart emotionally after wounding a 12-year-old Palestinian boy with a plastic bullet.

"For two days, I couldn't face myself," the tall, dark-haired company commander recalled. Sheffy, 23, said he and his companion on a two-man patrol fired on hundreds of stone-throwing Palestinians who ambushed them, wounding several.

He estimated he had fired plastic bullets more than 100 times in three months of almost daily street battles. A rifle with a sniper scope was on the table in front of him.

Sheffy says he has tried to block out his emotions so he can do the job, and "now it's easier. I just don't ask myself too many questions."

"I don't see myself as a hero for shooting someone," he said, "but I think it is necessary to keep the situation from getting even more violent."

Second Lt. Doron, a platoon leader, said constant stress and face-to-face conflict with Palestinians make the soldiers short-tempered and prone to quarrel.

"I feel there is a tendency towards more violence," said Doron, who is 22 and comes from a kibbutz, or communal farm. "It's difficult to act one way here and differently at home."

Sheffy and Doron are first names. Army regulations prohibit the use of last names of soldiers serving in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Some Israelis fear soldiers returning from duty in the territories will release their pent-up anger on civilians, both Arabs and Jews.

Israel is especially vulnerable to such side-effects of conflict because virtually all men and women are required to serve in the military. Men do up to 62 days a year of reserve duty until age 49.

Reuven Gal, former chief army psychologist who now heads the private Israeli Institute for Military Studies, said research indicates one effect of Israel's wars has been an increase in crime. He said that also could be a result of the year-long Palestinian uprising.

"I would not be surprised to see a sharp increase in crimes such as beating and assault," along with an increase in traffic accidents, he said.

Gal's wife Ivria, an author, wrote a poem about how service during the uprising changed her 20-year-old son Yoav from an anti-war activist to a tough-minded soldier.

"The pictures of my son the soldier, who attended Peace Now rallies with long hair and an earring, are on the front page of the newspaper, and he is described as a brute occupier," she wrote. "My heart is torn because I know the soul behind that picture. I know the confusion and I know the pain."

When her son came home for the weekend, the poem says, she washed the dirt from his clothes and treated his swollen feet, his blisters and cuts, 'but I cry and my heart goes to him because who is going to treat my son's internal wounds? Who is going to see the unseen wound?"

Sheffy and two of his platoon leaders spoke to a journalist in a tent near the maze-like public market of Nablus, a focal point for anti-Israeli violence since the uprising began Dec. 8, 1987.

They said the army faced protests by thousands of Palestinians early in the intefadeh, the Arabic word for uprising that has been adopted even by Israelis.

Today, most confrontations are on a small scale — a foot patrol or army vehicle ambushed by half a dozen young Arabs who hurl stones or bottles of flaming gasoline and dart into an alley.

Two soldiers from Sheffy's elite infantry unit suffered severe head injuries and one was partially paralyzed by large blocks of stone dropped from rooftops.

UPRISING——

Secretary of State George P. Shultz refused PLO chairman Yasser Arafat a visa to address the United Nations in New York, and four days later two firebombs were hurled into the compound of the U.S. consulate in Arab east Jerusalem. They caused no damage.

Abu Ghazali said the U.S. and Israeli responses provided "a hearty ideological meal" to those who want violence, but journalist Kuttab contended that more violence is not inevitable.

He said the uprising's future will be decided by debate among Palestinians and throughout the world. In the West Bank and Gaza, however, anger often outpaces hopeful thinking.

The intefadeh began when an Israeli army truck collided with two Arab vans just outside Jabaliya on Dec. 8, 1987, killing four Palestinians and injuring six.

Rumors spread that it was not an accident, but revenge for the slaying of an Israeli businessman three days earlier.

Ousted lawmaker looking for job to pay off debt

By JENNIFER DIXON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years after Mac Sweeney wrested the 14th District out of the Democrats' century-old grasp, the 33-year-old congressman is looking for a job in the business world where he can earn enough money to pay off an $85,000 debt — part campaign and part personal.

One of only six incumbent congressmen nationwide to lose their reelection bids, Sweeney faced an opponent seasoned by a 1986 campaign and backed by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee in a nationally targeted race for the sprawling South Texas district.

His Capitol Hill office is now bare, the walls stripped of their pictures and plaques, cardboard boxes stacked about, the staff gone or looking for other jobs.

Sweeney, who spent three years in the Reagan White House under Texan James A. Baker III before running for Congress, said it would be unseemly to return to the public sector while working off his debt. He hopes to manage either capital or technology.

"My penitence is that I have to worry about working off the financial obligations I've incurred by realizing my dream of representing my boyhood home in Congress, which is not something I'd give back for any amount of money," he said.

In January, West Columbia attorney Greg Laughlin will take Sweeney's place at the Capitol, winning the seat after unsuccessfully challenging Sweeney two years earlier.

"It's hard for me to be bitter toward the same system that allowed a mostly obscure 28-year-old from Wharton, Texas, to get elected to Congress in the first place," said Sweeney, one of a "six-pack" of Texas Republicans elected in President Reagan's 1984 landslide.

Yet winning the seat proved far easier than holding it; for four years he said he has heard a "steady drumbeat" of opposition, each of the 1,400 days a battle to represent a national battleground district.

"I was fought every step of the way in this district," he said. "I was fought because of my age, I was fought because of the size of the district — one of larger ones in the country, I was fought because I was a Republican in an overwhelmingly Democratic district, I was fought because I was a different kind of Republican, I was fought because I didn't have access to the big money."

He said part of the problem is that the district "will allow a Democrat to lead and relegate a Republican to follow." He, though, is not one to follow.

Losing, he said, was inevitable without a superhuman effort. He was willing to risk it all in 1984, as a 29-year-old staking a $220,000 debt for the seat, but this year's race exacted too high a price.

"I now have two children. My wife and I have been trying to restore some normalcy and stability to our lives. At some point, you have to ask yourself...Are you willing to risk it all, place things in jeopardy that would allow you to win? If I had been able to do what I first did to win this seat in 1988 maybe I could have held this seat a little longer."

He said he wishes that the 1988 election had been a referendum on his vision for the district but it became, instead, a tactical fight.

"The greatest concern to the people in that district was what was going to happen to the next generation," Sweeney said. "Whether there were going to be hospitals open in their town for the next generation, whether there were going to be jobs available for their children, whether the quality of education was going to improve and the drug problem was going to be cleaned up, whether the environment was going to be controlled better than it is tending to be controlled today in our district — which serves as a dumping ground for urban waste...

"It wasn't a campaign about issues, it was a campaign about who could run, tactically, a better campaign," he said.

Super shopper spends two days a year buying groceries

By KATHLEEN SHAMLEY NELLIS

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Estrella Dietz has turned grocery shopping into a marathon event.

Although aisles stacked with loaves of bread and bottles of ketchup seem an unlikely setting for an endurance contest, Mrs. Dietz has set records. The super shopper used seven grocery carts and 499 coupons in her latest shopping event. Her careful planning saved more than $200 at the finish line, a new record for the marathon shopper.

A secretary at St. Mary's University, for the past three years she has gone to the grocery store only twice a year. The task is monumental, a feat of stamina and strategy. After months of preparation, clad in Reeboks and armed with hundreds of coupons, she began her most recent 7½-hour odyssey at the Lackland Air Force Base commissary.

Her husband, Richard, a retired master sergeant, accompanied her. "I get the fruits and vegetables and I push the baskets," he said.

But she took charge of the operation. "I hate crowds and I hate shopping," she said. "I would rather just go once or twice a year and get it over with."

Her first 1988 trip was early this summer. For that visit she got a map of the commissary and attached appropriate coupons to individual lists for 14 aisles. But this time she came without a list. "I didn't prepare a list this time because I wanted to check out the many new items in the store. Also, I wanted to take advantage of the specials. I don't need a list. I can remember what I need."

She began her shopping at 9 a.m. With her tray of coupons arranged alphabetically and propped in the seat of the cart, Mrs. Dietz began selecting items. Four jars of super chunky peanut butter. Thirty cans of tomato sauce. Eleven tubes of toothpaste, three different kinds. Eight cake mixes in assorted flavors from German chocolate to lemon.

"I have a weakness for junk food," Mrs. Dietz confessed. Yet most of her purchases were basics and staples. She is allergic to milk and both she and her husband are diabetic and have to watch what they eat.

At the beginning of aisle 2 she got serious and removed her jacket. By 10 a.m. she was on aisle 3. Her husband, who was medically retired from the service, sat out most of the trip in the rest area, but occasionally came to check on her progress. "Get me another basket, honey," Mrs. Dietz asked him.

Testimony indicates man shot three times

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Testimony continued today in the trial of 40-year-old Francisco Lozano, who was accused of the April 30 rifle slaying of a man at a south Midland bar.

Lozano is accused of killing Geraldo Soto in the parking lot of the La Bamba Club, 1804 Rankin Highway, following a fight.

According to testimony Tuesday in Judge Pat Baskin's 142nd State District court, Soto was shot three times.

Midland pathologist David Shneidman told prosecutor Chuck Roades a shot that hit Soto in the side proved fatal. He was also shot in the chest and hip, and at least one of the other two gunshots also came from the side, Shneidman told the seven-man, five-woman jury.

Israel Jimenez, 34, testified he was at the bar with Soto when he saw the defendant and the victim scuffling. The fight quickly moved outside to the parking lot, he said.

Jimenez said he then saw the defendant go to his car.

"When I saw him, I saw a rifle in his hand," Jimenez told the jury.

A few minutes later he heard a shot, but Jimenez told prosecutor Robin Sams he did not see who fired the shot.

On cross-examination, Jimenez told defense attorney Woody Leverett the victim was "pretty mad" when he was fighting with Lozano. Jimenez agreed with Leverett's assertion that at one point the defendant said, "I don't want any trouble."

Before testimony began, a .22-caliber rifle was introduced into evidence and attorneys for both sides agreed the rifle was the weapon used in the killing.

MISD board to discuss leasing office space

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

The potential lease of additional office space will be the subject under condsideration Thursday morning at a specially called school board meeting.

Midland Independent School District trustees are scheduled to meet in executive session at 8 a.m. to deliberate the lease of what is thought to be centrally located downtown office space.

The main reason behind the proposed move is to free portable building classroom space at Sam Houston Elementary currently utilized by the MISD computer services department, said Ted Miller, a district spokesman.

The four portable buildings likely would be transferred to other elementary locations for use.

In addition, the business and personnel departments currently housed at the central MISD administration building would be transferred to the new office.

Education officials currently officed at the district's administration annex would move into the main administration building in place of the business and personnel employees, Miller explained.

Transferring the educators from the office annex, located at West Elementary, would also free space for additional classes, he added.

All the moving probably won't occur until after Christmas, but officials are meeting Thursday to facilitate the process, Miller said.

Trustees have considered a number of potential office sites since they first considered the idea several months ago.

Miller said he did not know how much square footage trustees were considering.

Trustees are expected to take action on the matter Thursday morning after the executive session.

Odessa officers continue to hunt suspect in robberies

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Police in Odessa continue to seek the suspect, or suspects, who may have been involved in as many as 16 armed robberies that have occurred in the past month or so, according to Cpl. John McAhon.

The latest robbery happened about 1:40 a.m. today at the 7-Eleven store at 4601 Oakwood Ave., he said.

Investigating officers reported an Hispanic man about 18-years-old, approximately 5-feet 6-inches tall, weighing about 160 to 165 pounds entered the store and demanded that the night clerk hand over all the money from the store's cash register.

When the clerk hesitated, McAhon said, the man pulled a small gun, forced the clerk into a back office area and tied and gagged him. He then went back into the main part of the store.

At about 3:20 p.m. Tuesday, McAhon said, a gunman described as "closely matching" the description of suspects in earlier robberies entered the Cashway store, 1020 E. 2nd St., and demanded money from clerk Lisa M. Lopez, 20.

Suspect will be charged in hit-and-run accident

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 27-year-old man was scheduled to be formally charged this morning with vehicular manslaughter, driving while intoxicated and failure to stop and render aid in connection with the death of a 22-year-old man early today.

A 1972 Pontiac Grand Prix 2-door, driven by Hugo Torres Amador, 3912 W. 14th St., was struck as it headed east in the 3300-block of East University Blvd. by a 1985 Ford F-7000 flat bed truck headed north in the 2600-block of Bonham Ave., according to Cpl. John McAhon.

Amador's vehicle was struck on the passenger side in the early-morning accident.

Amador was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice R.G. Hungerford, who ordered an autopsy.

McAhon said the 27-year-old suspect in the hit and run accident was stopped by officers about 4 a.m., taken into custody and booked into the city jail without bond pending arraignment on the three charges.

Cigarette bandit sought by police

BIG SPRING (AP) — Police are searching for a fast-moving man with a heavy smoking habit who is making a habit of stealing cigarettes from convenience stores.

Officers said the cigarette bandit performed his vanishing act again late Monday and early Tuesday at three convenience stores in Big Spring.

Police believe the man who stole hundreds of dollars worth of cigarettes from three convenience stores is the same person who committed a series of cigarette thefts at the same stores Nov. 27.

Officers said the man struck three stores taking 22 cartons of cigarettes valued at more than $250 within a few hours.

The same man is a suspect in the theft of 36 cartons of cigarettes from the same stores during a two-hour period Nov. 27, officers said.

The man doesn't threaten the clerks, police said. He just walks in, picks up the cigarettes and leaves hurriedly.

One manager said the man tells clerks to "just be cool" while he carries out the thefts.

KPEJ to air Rudolph

For some, watching an animated TV special about a reindeer with a very shiny nose is an annual Christmas rite going back to 1964.

About 100 Permian Basin residents this year missed their Rudolph enough to call KOSA-TV in Odessa Tuesday wondering what happened to Santa's eighth reindeer — the red-nosed one.

The special, scheduled for airing nationally on CBS Monday night, had been pre-empted locally for a Billy Graham crusade.

Those callers and others who missed the special can take heart. Midland-Odessa independent television station KPEJ will air Rudolph 7 p.m. Thursday under a special agreement with the CBS.

School plans activities

Armed man robs store

An unidentified man armed with a knife escaped with $20 in cash after robbing a local convience store, according to Midland Police Department.

Officials said the man entered the Town & Country store, 2622 Rankin Highway, at about 3:45 a.m. today. After threatening a clerk, he took the money and ran out the front door, reports said.

Juveniles held in train incident

From Staff Reports

Three juveniles were briefly detained by Big Spring Police Tuesday in connection with the Nov. 18 release of two locomotives that traveled 200 miles of West Texas track from a Union Pacific Railroad yard.

Capt. Lonnie said the juveniles — all 13 years of age — were given polygraphs to determine their whereabouts and later released from custody. Smith said the department is now waiting on the results of those tests.

Union Pacific officials have offered a $25,000 reward and have been working with local law enforcement officials and the FBI to determine just who freed the 200-ton locomotives, which were eventually derailed to a side track about 20 miles east of Van Horn.

Officials believe someone boarded the lead engine about midnight and pushed a throttle forward that sent the train speeding through two switches and onto a main westbound track in Big Spring.

Dean DeSoto, chairman of the Governor's Motorcycle Operator Training and Safety Committee, discusses changing the state's helmet safety law.

Busey accident shows there's need for helmet law, advocate says

AUSTIN (AP) — Leaders of a Texas motorcycle safety group say the accident involving actor Gary Busey may help convince the 1989 Legislature to require motorcyclists to wear helmets.

"This Gary Busey accident definitely has raised awareness," said Dean DeSoto, chairman of the Governor's Motorcycle Operator Training and Safety Advisory Committee.

DeSoto said the accident also may change the attitudes of some lawmakers who have rejected changing the state's helmet law in the past.

"I think there's a better chance" such legislation will pass, DeSoto said. "It (the Busey crash) might very well have helped."

Busey, 44, was in serious condition in a California hospital after surgery for head injuries suffered when he was thrown from his motorcycle and smacked headfirst, without a helmet, into a curb.

DeSoto noted that lawmakers in recent years have passed a number of automotive safety laws, including requirements for wearing safety belts and for use of safety seats for infants and young children.

The motorcycle committee issued legislative recommendations at a news conference Tuesday. It called for:

— Changing the current law that requires helmets for riders under age 18 to include all riders, regardless of age.

— Designating motorcycle parking areas.

— Allocating money for motorcycle training and education, with a $1 per year surcharge on the motorcycle license fees.

"Yes, helmet laws are important. But so are training and other factors," DeSoto said.

DeSoto said that in 1987, there were 8,382 motorcycle accidents reported in Texas, with 9,039 people injured and 297 killed. Of those killed, 81 percent weren't wearing helmets, and 63 percent of those injured were helmetless.

"This Gary Busey accident definitely has raised awareness (of need for helmet law)...I think there's a better chance such legislation will pass. It (the Busey crash) might very well have helped."

— Dean DeSoto

He noted that there was a 69 percent increase in fatalities in 1977-78, the first year the law allowed riders over 18 to ride without helmets.

Texas has the fifth-largest number of motorcycles registered in the United States, with 226,006 registered last year. Currently, 678,081 Texans are licensed to operate the machines.

Although it wasn't included in the committee's recommendations, DeSoto said his personal belief is that insurance companies should offer financial incentives to motorcyclists who wear helmets.

Also attending the safety committee's news conference was Tom Carter, 28, who displayed the battered red-and-white helmet he was wearing when his motorcycle crashed at 55 mph about two years ago. Carter was thrown from the motorcycle, struck a curb and then bounced into a telephone pole.

SHOPPING

Into the cart went eight bottles of oil, five of one brand, three of another. "I don't stick to one brand. I use coupons and watch prices, too, for big savings," she said. But her husband said they use coupons only to buy foods they like. "In other words, it ain't no sale unless you can use it."

She loaded the cart with packages of tea. "Right here I can save $20, since I have $1 off coupons for each box. Richard drinks a lot of tea and the coupons expire at the end of the year so I will use them all now." There were 2,000 tea bags in the cart!

She also bought nine jars of coffee. "I drink water, but he drinks lots of coffee and tea. I might drink a soda once every two weeks."

Six large cans of black pepper joined the ever-growing load. Mrs. Dietz combed through the damaged goods section for bargains. "You can find things that are perfectly good here and use coupons with them and really save. You can get some great bargains." She got a dented box of pancake mix for just 19 cents that way.

Midway through her trip, disaster happened. Mrs. Dietz dropped her coupons. Luckily, only a few dozen spilled to the floor and she quickly retrieved them. Barely 5 feet tall, she gets quite a workout on her grocery store rounds. She must clamber onto the lowest shelves to reach goods stacked on top shelves.

One cart overflowed with cat food — 13 bags of dry plus assorted cans of feline chow. "We have one cat we got, another we adopted and now a new stray. We use 10 pounds of cat food every two weeks." A new cat collar went into the cart.

Aisle by aisle the load increased. Sixteen rolls of paper towels. Fabric softener sheets for only 7 cents. Dishwashing liquid. "I don't have a dishwasher. Mr. Dietz is my dishwasher," she said. He also does the cooking and runs to the store for fresh fruit and vegetables about every 10 days, she said.

The couple did not buy much meat on this trip. "Our walk-in deep freeze is already well-stocked," Mrs. Dietz said. They also freeze bread because they are not big bread-eaters, she said. "We only use a loaf about every two weeks."

Mrs. Dietz took the day off from work to do her shopping. "Last time, seven months ago, I went on a Saturday. It was too busy."

Checking her coupons she explained that she gets free milk, free orange juice, free bread, free fruit, and free soup with various cereal purchases.

She talked to herself as she made her selections. "Too expensive...Ah, this is on special and I have coupons, too! Ooh, that looks delicious."

Part of the giant load will go into their large freezer "the biggest Sears makes!" she exclaimed. "And I use closets in two spare bedrooms as well as my pantry."

After nearly six hours, she was giddy with success. "I'm going illegal!" she yelled as she pushed her cart the wrong way down aisle 11, with its frozen fish and household cleaners.

During her hours at the commissary, she took filled carts to a special waiting area at the front of the store. The manager had been notified of her marathon shopping plan. And she marked each cart with a sign. "Patron still in store" so that the groceries would not inadvertently be restocked.

Upon reaching aisle 14, Mrs. Dietz smiled broadly and heaved a sigh of relief. "I'm almost through!"

At the checkout counter, Michelle Scallion, a checker with four years' experience looked wide-eyed at the carts of groceries. "I heard there was a lady in here with seven carts. I thought it was a joke!"

Mrs. Dietz put her first can on the conveyor belt at 3:40 p.m. She got her receipt at 4:17 p.m. One store employee helped her unload her baskets, two checked the coupons and Scallion rang the items on the cash register.

Two baggers worked rapidly to fill the 76 bags. As she tallied coupons, Teresa Garza joked, "The cashier next to me went home. He was afraid she would come to him!"

The total, before subtracting the 499 coupons, was $860.46. Mrs. Dietz saved $227.52 by using coupons. The total after coupons was $673.91, which includes a 5 percent surcharge ($40.97 here) normally applied at the commissary. Mrs. Dietz was thrilled with her coupon savings. "And none of them were double coupons," she declared.

The 10-foot-long receipt was twice the height of the shopper. Cashiers broke into applause as Scallion read out the total. "673.91 and my arm is still there!"

ROBBERIES

As the man demanded money a second time, she told investigating officers, he was reaching for a small gun, described as a small silver gun with white grips, when a customer came in, saw the robbery in progress and fled.

The gunman then left the store.

A gunman entered the Winn's store on West County Road about 7:45 p.m. Monday and took an undetermined amount of money from the store.

McAhon said that, while the description of the holdup man matches "fairly close" in most of the 16 aggravated robberies, and that a small silver derringer handgun with pearl hand grips was used in most of the robberies, a small pocket knife was displayed in some of the robberies, he stated.

In at least one of the robberies, the holdup man was described as "slim," while in others he was described as being short and stocky, from 5-feet 2-inches tall and 160 to 165 pounds.

In several of the robberies, McAhon said, the gunman wore a jacket, which could lead to a "different witness perception" of weight.

At the current time, he said, investigators are not sure if more than one suspect "may be invloved" in the string of robberies," but officers are not ruling out the possibility that more than one individual is involved.

Initially, McAhon said, the robberies had been confined mostly to the West County Road area, but the area has expanded to include the near-downtown and eastside areas.

Christmas store files bankruptcy 3 weeks before holiday

HOUSTON (AP) — There's another "Times are so tough in Texas that..." story.

Times are so tough in Texas that The Original Christmas Store, a Houston yuletide tradition since 1974, has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization less than three weeks before the holiday.

George R. Grubich, owner of the seasonal retailer, also said Tuesday he plans to seek personal protection from bankruptcy because his personal debts and business debts are mingled and confusion exists over who is responsible for outstanding liabilities.

Grubich said he filed for bankruptcy protection after a two-year search for new capital, including an unsuccessful attempt earlier this year to take the company public.

At one time, before the oil crunch, The Original Christmas Store operated retail outlets during the Christmas season in five cities, selling an array of Christmas items from traditional tree trimmings to elaborate imported decorations. The Houston store is the only outlet operating this year and it will remain open, Grubich said.

The company has assets of $807,992 and owes $1,975,284, mostly to suppliers of Christmas merchandise, according to the filing.

STATE

The bankruptcy filing was not the first recent indication that the store was having financial problems.

Harris County constables visited the store last month to collect almost $6,000 in unpaid Houston property taxes and a promise from the store's manager that he would pay an additional $7,500 owed to the Houston Independent School District.

Grubich said the store's financial problems began in late 1986 when its bank withdrew the company's $2.3 million credit line used to finance inventory and operations. The credit line was withdrawn because of a change in the bank's management and lending policies and not because of past payment problems, Grubich said.

Grubich said he eventually found a small Houston bank willing to loan the company $500,000, but that amount proved to be inadequate.

"You just can't do the same amount of business with $500,000 that you can with $2.3 million," he said.

The company spent a year attempting to cut costs before launching a plan to sell up to 3 million shares of company stock at $1 a share, targeting customers who were asked to sign cards indicating they were willing to buy stock. He said 55,000 customers signed up, but the plan was not approved by state securities officials until early October of this year.

Grubich said he eventually sold about 120,000 shares before putting the offer on hold.

The company has hired a small New York broker and plans to go forward with plans to go public, Grubich said.

There is still a large public appetite for the products his company sells, Grubich said, noting that his Houston store did $8 million in sales during the 1986 season — the last year his company's financing was intact.

"And that's a lot of little Christmas ornaments, I can tell you," he said.

Escapees still at large; Their hostage flees

CONROE (AP) — A woman who had been abducted by her estranged husband after he escaped from the Madison County Jail bolted to freedom Tuesday night as officers surrounded the couple in a wooded area near Conroe, authorities said.

But her husband and the other escapee remained at large, officers said.

Montgomery County Sheriff's spokesman Bob Morrison said Lenee Suzanne Dean managed to escape from Gregory Orley Dean as authorities moved in on him in a wooded area.

He said tracking dogs from the Texas Department of Corrections and helicopters from the Department of Public Safety were continuing to search. He said the whereabouts of Jon Raymond Ratliff, who escaped with Dean from Madison County Jail Monday morning, was still unknown.

Vena Marie Clement said her sister was dragged out of her home Monday morning by Dean and that it wasn't until she called the Madison County Sheriff's Department to ask why Dean was out did they notice he had escaped.

The 20-year-old may have been at large with cell mate Ratliff as long as eight hours before jailers learned from Ms. Clement that the inmates were gone.

Dean had been held jailed since Sept. 6 in lieu of a $20,000 bond on aggravated robbery charges. Ratliff, 23, has been in custody since July 31 on a $50,000 bond on auto theft charges and a probation violation.

Madison County Sheriff Ed Fannin said the pair escaped the cell through the ceiling after cutting a hole through a steel plate with a hacksaw. The hacksaw, he said, may have been slipped to the inmates in a food package they received from visitors Saturday.

Ms. Clement said Dean had threatened his 20-year-old wife in letters he wrote from jail after she threatened to divorce him because of his incarceration.

Mauro plans to announce attorney general candidacy

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro plans to announce his intention to seek the Democratic nomination for the Texas Attorney General's office, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Mauro's statement was tentatively scheduled during a Tuesday fundraiser on his behalf at the Doubletree Hotel, according to spokesman Andrew Mangan.

"He's going to go as close as he can, (to announcing his candidacy)," said Mangan. "He's going to say that if he had to make the decision tonight, that decision would be for attorney general."

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has all but announced he will run for governor in 1990.

Mauro won election as land commissioner in 1982 and was re-elected in 1986. He served as executive director of the Texas Democratic Party from 1979 to 1980.

Rice increases tuition

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University students will find an $800 increase in their tuition bills next year, causing many to wonder whether they'll be able to afford to attend the private school.

Despite the tuition hike, school officials say Rice's admissions policy will ensure that qualified students won't be turned away for lack of money.

Rice, rated the ninth-best major university in the nation this fall by U.S. News & World Report magazine, has about 4,200 students, including about 2,700 undergraduates. Even with the planned increase, Rice would remain the least expensive of the magazine's top 10.

Rice's board of governors Friday approved the increase requested by school President George Rupp. He said the total rise in costs, including tuition, room and board, will be about $1,000 per year. That will mean an annual price tag of about $10,475, he said.

Among his reasons for the increase, Rupp cited intense competition to attract and keep top faculty members. The school also has had to offset cuts in state and federal financial aid and has seen educational revenue from tuition drop from 41 percent in 1970-71 to 25 percent last year.

That decrease did not pose a problem during the time when Rice's endowment was growing dramatically, Rupp said, but the growth rate has slowed and there is pressure to look to other sources for income.

Half ton of cocaine found

LAREDO (AP) — A U.S Border Patrol drug dog sniffed out more than a half ton of cocaine Tuesday that was hidden on a welding truck stopped near Laredo.

A Border Patrol agent noticed the truck traveling on a Farm-to-Market Road had no welding equipment on it, but was stacked high with sheets of plywood.

The truck was stopped about 1 p.m. and a canine unit alerted authorities to 1,200 pounds of cocaine concealed in a hollowed-out center of the plywood pile.

The drug is valued at $38 million dollars. Border patrolmen arrested the driver, a Mexican alien, who remains in the custody of federal drug agents.

Nurse's aid suffocated patients for emotional release, friend says

Graham

WALKER, Mich. (AP) — A nurse's aide suffocated elderly patients at a nursing home for the "emotional release" it brought her, her alleged accomplice told police, according to court documents.

Catherine Wood, former nurse's aide supervisor at Alpine Manor Nursing Home, also told investigators that Gwendolyn Graham killed six patients in their beds and collected a "souvenir" from each, according to search warrants released this week.

The women are suspects in the deaths of eight female patients at the nursing home in this Grand Rapids suburb from January 1987 to May 1987.

Wood, 26, was charged Monday with two counts of murder and held without bond pending a Dec. 16 preliminary hearing.

Graham, 25, was arrested Sunday near her home in Tyler, Texas, and arraigned on one count of murder. She was being held on $1 million bond, and was fighting extradition to Michigan.

Police Chief Walt Sprenger said Tuesday that the six other deaths were being investigated and that more charges against the women were likely.

Under questioning by police Oct. 7, Wood said Graham had told her "that each of the (six) killings provided an emotional release for her," with the exception of the death of 97-year-old Edith Cook, who was killed to end her suffering from gangrene, according to the documents.

Wood also told police that she and Graham lived together from September 1986 to July 1987 and were lovers, the documents said.

Wood told police she witnessed the Jan. 18, 1987, killing of 60-year-old Marguerite Chambers, an Alzheimer's patient.

She "observed Gwendolyn Gail Graham suffocating (the patient) by pressing a washcloth beneath the chin of Chambers and another washcloth over Chambers' mouth and nose," the warrant said. She told police she did not intervene.

Wood told police Graham would tell her of the killings either just before or after they occurred.

At the time of their deaths, the eight patients were believed to have died from natural causes and no autopsies were performed.

Harris County to file motion against TDC

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County officials plan to file a motion this week asking a federal judge to take action against state prison officials who refused to accept more prisoners from the crowded county jail, Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen said.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda had ordered the county to begin delivering 290 prisoners each week to ease crowding in the Harris County Jail, but prison officials already under another federal judge's order refused to accept the inmates.

The Texas Department of Corrections was ordered by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice not to exceed 95 percent of capacity, a ruling that has caused crowding in county jails where penitentiary-bound inmates are held.

The TDC has accepted an average 182 prisoners a week from the county.

Harris County officials accused the TDC of "hindering" their compliance with DeAnda's order, but avoided a confrontation by delivering only the number of prisoners Monday that state officials agreed to accept.

Klevenhagen said 49 prisoners were delivered to TDC Monday morning, which he said was the most TDC officials would allow.

Jokes fly over scrawny Soviet chickens

WORLD

MOSCOW (AP) — The chickens sold in the Soviet Union are so scrawny that shoppers joke the poultry is starved to death rather than slaughtered, and even Frank Perdue says he can't help until the emaciated birds are fed better.

Perdue, who picked over the poultry during a visit to Moscow's famous G.U.M. department store on Red Square last week, politely referred to the chickens he saw as "lean" and "narrow-breasted."

"The chickens lack protein," concluded Perdue, chairman and chief promoter of Perdue Farms Inc., the United States' fourth-largest poultry producer.

Soviet chickens make do with 15 percent corn feed plus wheat and barley, while Perdue says he feeds his birds on a diet of nearly 60 percent corn.

Their diet isn't likely to improve soon since both corn and high protein soybeans require a warmer climate than found in most of the Soviet Union, said Donald W. Mabe, president and chief executive of Perdue Farms.

"They could buy corn on the world market, but what could they use to pay for it?" he asked. "All their vodka is taken up by Pepsi Cola."

Mabe was referring to the obstacle facing Western companies: the fact that Soviet rubles are not convertible on the world market, thus forcing most firms to barter one commodity for another.

The Soviets have few goods to sell, and Pepsi Cola sewed up world demand for its vodka 15 years ago with a deal that sends soft drink syrup to the Soviet Union in exchange for Stolichnaya vodka.

Still, a visit to a market makes it clear the Soviet Union could use Perdue's help. Soviet chickens are so tough that few will bake them.

One solution by local cooks is impaling the chicken on a glass milk bottle filled with water. The bird and bottle are balanced in the oven and the chicken is steamed from the inside out while it bakes. The recipe is called "Chicken on a Bottle."

Perdue said chickens could be the answer to the Soviet Union's perennial food shortage, as the birds require only two pounds of feed to produce a pound of meat — twice as efficient as hogs, and more than three times as efficient as producing beef.

Perdue, along with his father, built the company from a few dozen chickens into an operation with sales of $964 million in 1986-87 that distributes poultry products along the East Coast from Maine to North Carolina. At age 67, he stepped down last summer as chief executive, with Mabe taking over that job.

Perdue and Mabe visited the national Poultry Breeding Institute north of Moscow in Ptitsagrad, or "Poultry City."

They found that Soviet breeding methods were quite advanced.

Wrapped in orange nylon capes and booties to prevent the spread of infection, they found the barns barely lighted but cleaner than the average Soviet street.

They even picked up a few ideas for their own operations. They discovered that the Soviets ration water to the birds, slowing their digestion and resulting in more chicken for less feed.

Some chicks are fed rotten fruits and vegetables from local produce packagers and processing consists of stuffing plastic bags with whole hens that often are not quite plucked or gutted.

The hens at G.U.M. contrasted starkly with the packages of barbecued chicken breasts, precooked chicken nuggets and fillets that Perdue brought along from the United States and gave to his hosts.

Warden held hostage in prison riot, 13 injured

GUAYAMA, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hundreds of inmates rioted when a gang war broke out at a southern Puerto Rico penitentiary on Tuesday, and prisoners took the warden hostage and set fire to a prison wing before surrendering, police said.

Five inmates were wounded by gunfire and eight others were injured during fighting among 400 inmates of a maximum-security unit of the Guayama Regional Prison, about 51 miles south of San Juan, police said.

The seven-hour prison takeover ended when the prisoners surrendered weapons and released their hostage.

"I am fine. They didn't hurt me but at one point I was scared for my life," warden Roberto Sanchez Camareno said after his release.

The violence was triggered by a clash between two gangs, said police Capt. Paulino Rodriguez Fonseca.

Department of Corrections administrator Mercedes Otero, who headed negotiations with the prisoners, said that in exchange for the warden's release, prison officials agreed to transfer 130 inmates to other institutions beginning Wednesday.

Osvaldo Medina Lugo, a leader of the rebellion, said in a telephone interview "we also received assurances that there would be no reprisals or punishment" for the prison takeover.

Inmates surrendered homemade weapons, including knives, and returned to their cells after receiving assurances the promises would be kept, officials said.

Medina Lugo said the wounded prisoners were shot at by prison guards during the melee and that inmates had no guns inside the prison.

The injured, suffering from gunshot wounds, burns and broken bones, were being treated at local hospitals.

"This was a horrible rebellion," said Rodriguez Fonseca.

About 100 riot police surrounded the prison while negotiations took place.

Department of Corrections administrator Mercedes Otero said the prison has a capacity of 1,000 but that only 774 prisoners were jailed at the time of the riot.

Rodriguez Fonseca said the rebellion flared at around 3:50 p.m. (4:50 p.m. EST) when one gang tried to break into the new maximum-security section of the prison where another gang was being held.

He said many inmates went on a rampage during the fighting and set fire to part of the prison. A wing of the prison appeared gutted.

Meanwhile, police reported two girls and an employee at the Villalba Juvenile Home were injured after fighting broke out at the girl's home, located in the central city of Villalba. Police also reported a rebellion at another juvenile center in the southern city of Ponce but there were no injuries.

Duarte hospitalized in good condition

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador continued to improve after leaving a Mexico City hospital, where he was treated for an intestinal ailment, his doctors said Tuesday.

"His evolution has been very favorable. We can speak of success," said Dr. Jose Luis Saca, Duarte's physician.

"His vital signs are normal, as well as his blood pressure. His temperature is under control," Saca said of the 63-year-old president.

Duarte, whose term as president expires next year, has liver cancer. In June, doctors gave him between six and 18 months to live, but now say the spread of the cancer apparently has been halted.

Group of Spaniards set out to ban bullfighting

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Ban bullfighting in Spain? It's as if someone wanted to ban baseball in the United States.

But a group of Spaniards, nevertheless, wants to put an end to what it sees as cruelty in the bullring.

The Spanish Animal Rights Association and several European Parliament deputies have launched a Europe-wide petition drive calling on governments to adopt legislation that would ban bullfighting in Spain and France and fox hunting in Britain, France and Ireland.

The petition, which organizers say would carry half a million signatures, is to be given to Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez of Spain in January in Brussels, Belgium, shortly after Spain assumes the rotating presidency of the European Economic Community for the first time.

While organizers want animal protection legislation passed in all 12 EEC member states, the petition is aimed specifically at ending or "modernizing" bullfighting in Spain and doing away with the torturing or killing of animals during many traditional religious festivals around the country.

Making bullfighting "modern" or acceptable to opponents would involve eliminating the picadors on horseback who lance the bull to weaken its neck muscles so its head goes down, the banderilleros who spike the animal's neck muscles with three pairs of long darts, and the final act — the moment of truth — when the matador stabs the bull between the shoulder blades and through the heart.

In neighboring Portugal, the bull is picked lightly by a bullfighter on horseback, then grabbed by the tail by a group of men called "forcados" and wrestled around until it is dazed. The bull does not die in the ring but is slaughtered shortly afterward in packing-house fashion.

The proposed legislation would also eliminate the use of horses during bullfights, prohibit young people from attending and force televised fights into a late-night time slot when children are in bed.

Carlos Briones, a spokesman for the Ministry of Interior which oversees bullfighting, said the government had no official comment on the subject.

But Briones said he personally feels bullfighting is part of Spanish culture and should be maintained.

Bullfighting is considered an art rather than a sport in Spain.

This past season, 23 million people attended bullfights in Spain, 3 million more than 1987. The capitals of 49 of Spain's 52 provinces have permanent bullrings, and during the summer months portable rings are set up in thousands of towns and villages for their annual fiestas.

The number of major fights rose 11 percent this year to 566, the highest number in the past decade.

A first-class bullfighter earns from $27,000 to $35,000 to fight three bulls in an afternoon during the big fiestas in Madrid, Seville, Bilbao, Pamplona, Zaragoza, Malaga and Valencia.

Bullfighting and animal sacrifice in religious festivals are centuries-old traditions in Spain. Dona Mercedes de Borbon, the mother of King Juan Carlos, is an avid bullfight aficionada, and the king occasionally makes an appearance at Madrid's Las Ventas ring, the world's largest.

Last year the government of the autonomous region of Catalonia in northeastern Spain banned the torturing and sacrificing of animals in religious festivals but still permits bullfighting.

The Spanish Animal Rights Association, an organization of 2,000 members and 8,000 contributors, says Spain is the only EEC country that does not consider mistreatment of animals a criminal offense.

The association's vice president, Consuelo Polo, said there has been a resurgence of ritualistic street festivals since the death in 1975 of Gen. Francisco Franco, who banned animal taunting and sacrifice connected with them during his 36 years of authoritarian rule.

"They don't think it's a fiesta unless they have bulls running through the streets," she said.

On most Sundays during the bullfighting season — March to October — association members stand outside bullrings, at Madrid's Prado Museum and on the southern Costa del Sol beaches handing out literature in an effort to discourage tourists from attending bullfights.

But Pedro Geraldo, a bullfighter for 14 years, says Spaniards not only respect the bullfighters but the bull for its courage and beauty.

"It's an art that is sometimes misunderstood by foreigners," he said.

Quake hits Soviet Union, killing four

MOSCOW (AP) — At least four people were killed today by a strong earthquake centered in the southern Soviet Union near Turkey and Iran that caused extensive damage in eastern Turkey, authorities said.

State Turkish radio quoted Kars provincial Gov. Hasan Fakir as saying the four people who died came from the town of Akyaka. Many houses were damaged in this township and in the nearby Cildir township, it said.

The Kandilli observatory in Istanbul, reached by telephone, said the quake shook four eastern Turkish provinces twice, at 9:43 a.m. and 9:48 a.m.

In Moscow, the Soviet Earthquake Center reported the quake measure between 5 and 7 on the Richter scale and said it was registered in the republic of Armenia, just south of Tbilisi, a city of nearly 1 million inhabitants. It gave no immediate details or casualty figures.

In a telephone interview, an editor with the Armenian news agency Armenpress said the earthquake was felt in the Armenian capital of Yerevan.

"Everything in the building shook," said the editor, who would not identify himself. He said there was no damage or loss of life in Yerevan, but that there were no reports yet out of other areas of the small republic located on the Iranian and Turkish borders.

In Washington, D.C., David Terrell of the U.S. Geological Survey said the quake was measured by American seismologists at 6.9 on the Richter scale and its epicenter was about 50 miles southwest of Tbilisi.

A quake of that magnitude is capable of causing widespread, heavy damage.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the geophysics department at Tehran University had measured the quake at 6.8 on the Richter scale.

The agency said it was centered 600 miles northwest of Tehran. Iran's border with Turkey and the Soviet Union is about 450 miles northwest of Tehran.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

On Tuesday, an earthquake measuring 4.8 on the Richter scale shook Bushehr in southern Iran, IRNA said today. No immediate casualties were reported.

Kassebaum calls for oil import fee

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Tuesday she supports further attempts to levy a fee on imported oil, saying the domestic oil industry needs government help to survive.

During the last session of Congress, Kassebaum co-sponsored legislation calling for an oil import fee. She came out for it again Tuesday during a meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission in suburban Kansas City.

"From an economic standpoint, the only real solution for domestic producers is for the price to stabilize at a level above their production costs," Kassebaum said. "This means government intervention."

She called for a fee that would be applied to imported oil when the price per barrel fell to $13 to $16.

But Kassebaum's remarks were criticized by two other speakers at the meeting.

C. John Miller of Michigan, who is former chairman of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, called the $13-to-$16 trigger too low.

OIL INDUSTRY

Mosbacher may not help oil

Expected to be bound by philosophy

By BILL MINTZ
and ANNE PEARSON
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — If leaders of Texas' energy business were counting on Houstonian Robert Mosbacher to help their beleaguered industry, they may be disappointed with President-elect George Bush's new secretary of commerce.

Mosbacher is a member in good standing of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association — one of the groups that petitioned President Reagan's Commerce Department for protection, arguing that flow of imported oil into the United States constituted a threat to national security, according to a spokesman for the oild producers' group.

But if current indications are correct, the new administration probably will remain bound by philosophical inclination and political reality to oppose a fee on imported oil or a floor price for crude oil.

During the campaign, Bush advocated a program of tax credits and other incentives to spur the domestic exploration and production of oil and natural gas rather than protectionist measures such as a duty.

One advocate of oil price protection, Coastal Corp. Chairman Oscar Wyatt, said he seriously doubts Mosbacher would wrestle with the issue. "I can't see him being a factor in the oil business," Wyatt said. "In the Commerce Department, he almost would have to be neutralized by the fact that his holdings are in the oil business."

In a statement this week, Mosbacher acknowledged that parts of the country have not enjoyed the fruits of the long-running economic recovery. He said he was excited to be part of an administration that is "committed to seeing the prosperity expanded to all areas of the country."

In a 1987 interview with the Houston Chronicle, Mosbacher admitted that the Reagan administration "has not been particularly helpful" to the ailing domestic oil industry. "I'm not sure they could have done a lot anyway," he said.

Bush, a former Houston congressman; James A. Baker III, the new secretary of state; and Mosbacher all have strong ties to Houston's energy business.

Mosbacher said Bush and former Treasury Secretary Baker "understand the economic plight of the energy industry in this part of the country and how it relates to the total country."

"It's not just an industry or regional problem. It's a national problem," he said. "Unfortunately, the majority in the (Reagan) administration has had that short-sighted view of, 'Hurrah, we have low energy prices.'"

Mosbacher said low energy prices are great for the short term, but in the long term, "it's going to enslave this nation economically to the Middle East."

Mosbacher — a Bush friend of 30 years and the president-elect's campaign finance chairman — will enjoy access to the new president that is unprecedented for a commerce secretary.

Other commerce-related issues will also affect the energy industry.

The Texas-based petroleum equipment industry looks to the Commerce Department to protect it from politically motivated trade embargoes, such as an unsuccessful move in Congress to penalize Iraq for its use of chemical weapons by banning Finance and market professionals from People's Bank of China view Wall Street activity. The trio have been studying the stock market for the past two months.

China studies Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — The whiff of Wall Street may be enticing to reform-minded Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but he's way behind his Chinese Communist rivals.

A trio from the People's Republic has been training in the heart of high-stakes capitalism for two months.

The interns from the People's Bank of China are guests of America's largest stock exchange, sent as part of a cooperation pact signed two years ago enabling the Chinese to study how a sophisticated securities market works.

The Peking government began tolerating limited stock and bond trading in 1985 after a 35-year ban on what was considered immoral speculation that benefited the rich. The official position now is that buying and selling securities play a useful role in the country's modernization.

"We're only in the very beginning," said Zhang Zhiping, 32. Zhang is a senior official in the People's Bank's financial control department, the rough equivalent of the Securities and Exchange Commission because it regulates where and what type of securities can be sold.

"We have to develop trading firms and brokers, skilled professionals," Zhang said. "We have to educate the people on what is a stock. We have to develop companies that issue securities. We have to change all the systems.

"In China, if you want to do something, it takes a long time," he said. "You can't build Rome in a day."

Zhang and his two colleagues, Duan Jining, 28, and Han Jianjun, 33, spoke highly of their experience in the heart of the Wall Street jungle. In their brief time here, they have witnessed some of the biggest corporate takeover brawls in history, the first anniversary of the Black Monday crash and the normal barrage of market gossip that traders thrive on.

"We don't have such takeover business in China," said Han, an executive in the People's Bank branch

DOE seeks recovery proposals

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

The Department of Energy is measuring interest in researching novel petroleum recovery techniques.

The DOE's Bartlesville (Okla.) Project Office is soliciting research ideas for enhanced oil recovery programs for both heavy and light oil reservoirs, according to Herbert Tiedemann, project manager for technology transfer for the DOE in Bartlesville.

The notice of intent announced by the department in the Commerce Business Daily on Nov. 15 is for information and planning purposes only and does not commit the DOE to soliciting proposals or funding research in the future.

The areas the DOE is soliciting indications of enhanced recovery research support for are:

- Heavy oil reservoir characterization, sweep efficiency improvement and fluid displacement;
- Novel extraction processes — including horizontal drilling, microwave and radio technology for heavy oil and microbe technology for both light and heavy oil reservoirs; and
- Fundamental research into the chemical, physical and thermodynamic behaviors of reservoirs.

By seeking out statements of support for such research areas at this point, the DOE will have a foundation to start from in the future if it does solicit specific research proposals from the private sector, Tiedemann explained.

Debbie Underwood of the Permian Basin Bid Center, whose clients rely on the Commerce Business Daily as a prime source of government contract information, said that few center clients focus on research and development projects.

New long distance service debuts

By MELLA McEWEN

A new long distance telephone service has opened an office in Midland.

STAR-TEL, an Abilene-based company, has entered the market, offering long distance service to residences and businesses. The privately-owned company, owned by J.T. Poorman, has offices in San Angelo and Brownwood as well as Midland and Abilene.

The 5½-year-old company offers equal access, incoming and outgoing calls, WATS lines and 24-hour operator service with no set-up or monthly fees. Also available is travel service, and touch tone or rotary dial phones can be used with the service.

"We're a reseller — we buy lines from other companies and reroute through Bell," explained Cindy Graham, Midland representative. She has been in the long distance industry for six years, having worked for Metromedia and National Telephone. She can be reached at 563-4404.

Just opened at 4322 Andrews Hwy. is DIAMOND SECURITY.

Diamond Security, a subsidiary of Diamond Ventures, owned by Midlander Ken Bryant, installs and maintains security systems for residences and businesses. Prices range from $490 to $1390, according to Jackie Hayes, technical services manager.

The company is introducing a new product called "Call Alert," a service for elderly or disabled customers. The customer wears a lightweight medallion the size of a silver dollar, and if an emergency occurs, the customer can push a button and alert the company, who will respond. Customized software will alert the company of special medications and give a person to contact in case of emergency. Cost of "Call Alert" is a $100 installation fee and $19 per month, which includes any repairs, said Hayes, who has been in the alarm business since 1982.

Another subsidiary at the same address is DIAMOND COMPUTERS offering sales, service and maintenance of a number of makes and brands of computers.

Relocating from Plaza Shopping Center to Midland Plaza near The Mole Hole KIDS ONLY, owned by Kathy Wurster.

According to Wurster, the new location is nearly twice as large as the old location — from 1,302 square feet to 2,560 square feet. "We're putting together a jungle gym, which we've never been able to display before," she said. She said she is very pleased with her new location's high visibility.

Wurster has a degree in education and taught school three years before moving to Houston to go through Foley's executive program. After completing that program, she worked for the company seven years, then moved to Midland and opened Kids Only.

She describes her store inventory as "old fashioned. I don't carry violent toys or what I call "television" toys. I carry old-fashioned, quality keepsake toys." She added that approximately 1/3 of her store is devoted to dolls, and she carries such items as balls, jacks and jumpropes.

Opening Friday in North Park Shopping Center, near Wal-Mart, is PAPRONI'S PIZZA.

Paproni's, managed by Mario Munoz, offers pizza and soft drinks for dine-in or carry out. The restaurant includes video games, a children's playport, skee-ball, and big screen television. They will cater to birthday parties or large gatherings, Munoz noted.

This is the second store for the company, which is expanding from San Angelo to Midland. It employs 40 to 50 Midlanders. Hours are from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 11 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday.

MARKETS

Price continues cautious climb

From Staff and Wire Reports

Oil futures resumed their climb this morning, opening 14 cents higher by midmorning, after ending higher Tuesday largely on technical factors.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the January contract for West Texas Intermediate settled 12 cents higher to $15.46 a barrel, after falling 30 cents on Monday.

Among refined petroleum products traded on the exchange, the January contract for heating oil closed up 0.24 cent to 48.60 cents a gallon. The contract had fallen 0.22 cent in the previous session.

Analysts said that technical factors continued to dominate the market Tuesday, as they had in the previous session, in the absence of any market-moving news.

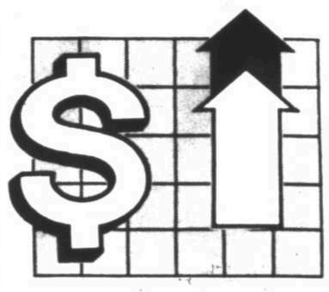
Bush, arms hopes bolster dollar



LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose against all major currencies in nervous European trading early today, buoyed by hopes President-elect George Bush will act decisively to trim the nation's budget deficit. Gold prices fell.

Dealers said the market was boosted by a rally that sent the dollar up sharply in New York trading Tuesday. They said the upward move was triggered by new hopes Bush is intent on cutting the massive budget deficit.

Traders said rumors of a Soviet arms reducation initiative also propelled the dollar higher. Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev arrived Tuesday in New York for his final official meeting with President Reagan.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose 0.89 Japanese yen to a closing 122.43 yen. Later, in London, it rose further to 122.85 yen.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.8535 from $1.8675 late Tuesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $425 a troy ounce, down from $427.25 bid late Tuesday. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $425.35.

Silver bullion rose in London to a bid price of $6.13 a troy ounce, up from $6.12 bid late Tuesday.

Two-day Dow gain tops 55 points

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 25.60 to 2,149.36 on top of a 31.48-point jump Monday.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 8 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 914 up, 555 down and 520 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 158.34 million shares, up from 144.66 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 190.25 million shares.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market increased $20.17 billion, or 0.75 percent, in value.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Trade talks bog down on ag subsidy issue

MONTREAL (AP) — Deadlocked talks on farm subsidies were suspended as U.S. and European negotiators reported no progress on agriculture, the stickiest issue in broad-ranging free-trade talks that involve more than 100 nations.

There was also little movement Tuesday on developed nations' proposals for free trade in services such as banking and insurance, and protection of intellectual property such as copyrights, patents and trademarks.

Cabinet ministers are meeting here to give political thrust to the final two years of the four-year Uruguay Round of free-trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

FHLBB's Wall: Worst of crisis is history

NEW YORK — The chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board says that before year's end regulators "will have dealt with the worst cases" of the troubled savings and loan industry and that with $30 billion more they could tackle the others.

However, members of the National Council of Savings Institutions gave a more somber picture of the industry on Tuesday, saying that FHLBB Chairman M. Danny Wall might be underestimating the cost of removing the 511 insolvent thrifts nationwide.

MCI trims interstate long-distance rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — MCI Communications Corp. says it is lowering its basic interstate long-distance rates by 3.9 percent as part of an overall package of price cuts.

The announcement Tuesday by Washington-based MCI, the second-largest long-distance telephone company, came six days after industry leader American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and No. 3 US Sprint Communications Corp. announced cuts averaging 3.8 percent and 3.85 percent, respectively.

OSHA propses $71,000 fine against Eastern

MIAMI (AP) — The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration proposed fines totaling $71,620 against Eastern Airlines for alleged health violations involving cadmium dust exposure.

OSHA inspectors found the alleged violations after an inspection at the landing gear shop located at Miami International Airport. The inspection began June 7, and the fines were proposed Tuesday.

Eastern officials will meet with OSHA Dec. 21 to discuss the proposed fine, company spokeswoman Karen Ceremsak said.

FTC approves Icahn increasing USX stake

PITTSBURGH (AP) — USX Corp. stock climbed following an announcement that financier Carl C. Icahn had received federal clearance to increase his 11.4 percent stake in the steel and oil giant.

Icahn's intentions were not known, and was not available to comment, a secretary at his New York office said Tuesday. He received the same clearance a year ago and apparently did not act on it.

Executives at USX's headquarters declined to comment on the announcement from the Federal Trade Commission that Icahn had gotten the clearance about a week ago.

FEE

And C.J. "Pete" Silas, chairman and chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum Corp. in Bartlesville, Okla., said an oil import fee was unworkable.

"I have a hard time appreciating the fact that you could get that past Congress," Silas said. "I have also never found out how such a fee would work."

The three did agree in their disapproval for a recent report by U.S. Energy Secretary John Herrington. Herrington's report said energy policies during the Reagan administration had been successful.

"I'm sure this pronouncement leaves many of you scratching your heads," Kassebaum said. "Given all the turmoil in the oil patch, how can one conclude our energy fortunes have substantially improved?"

Silas said the federal government needs to consolidate regulations affecting the energy industry.

"When it comes to that policy, we respectfully submit that we don't need a thousand points of light, but a single, brilliant North Star by which Congress and all federal agencies may navigate," he said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Deduct sale price from purchase price for tax basis

By BILL DOYLE

Q. During my working years, I belonged to a small investment club at my place of employment and bought stock at a total cost of $2,193.30. I retired in 1987 and I sold that stock for $27,465.50 in 1988.

When I file my 1988 income tax return, can I deduct the $2,193.30 or do I have to pay tax on the entire $27,465.50?

Doyle

A. You'll pay tax on the difference between those two numbers — $25,272.20. That's your profit from the sale and is taxable as a capital gain.

You report this on the Schedule D you will be required to file with your Form 1040 federal income tax return. There, you list $27,465.50 in column (d) as your "Sales Price," $2,193.30 in column (e) as your "Cost or other basis" and $25,272.20 in column (g) as your "Gain."

You never pay tax on the entire sales price unless your basis is zero. That can happen in some cases, but it's not the story here. Your basis is the price you paid for that stock — $2,193.30. Your taxable profit is the difference between that cost price and the $27,465.50 proceeds from the sale.

Q. I recently received some common stock as part of a divorce settlement. Is my basis on this stock — cost for tax purposes —the price of the stock on the day the divorce was granted or is it the price at which my former husband bought the stock?

A. It's the price your husband paid for that stock, because you received the stock after July 18, 1984. On transfer of property — including stocks — between spouses in connection with a divorce since that date the basis for the spouse receiving the property is the same as the basis for the spouse who transferred the property.

The July 18, 1984, effective date for this rule comes into play because of an obscure provision of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984. Before that date, tax could be due on a so-called "gain" when stock was transferred in a divorce settlement — even though the stock was not sold.

In your situation, no tax will be due unless you sell that stock at a profit. Then, the difference between your basis and the higher price at which you sell will be taxable.

One last point. The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 requires the spouse (your former husband) making the transfer of property in a divorce settlement to provide permanent records of the basis. Unfortunately for you, that federal law contains no penalty for failure to do so.

Q. My basis on some stock I own is $2,000. That stock presently has a market value of $10,000. If I give the stock to my son, I believe his basis would be $10,000.

Suppose he keeps the stock for a year and then gives it back to me. Assuming no change in the market value of the stock, what would my basis be?

A. $2,000. And let's back up to correct your "belief." If you give that stock to your son, his basis won't be $10,000. It will be $2,000. You can't increase that stock's basis by giving it to your son or anyone else.

Q. My 68-year-old widowed mother will shortly receive $35,000, all of which will be a capital gain. If she endorses that money over to four relatives would this qualify under the $10,000 rule so that she won't have to report the $35,000 as taxable income?

A. You have the tax rules mixed up — badly.

Like anyone else, your mother can make annual gifts of up to $10,000 to each of as many people as her generosity allows without paying federal gift tax or even filing a federal gift tax return. But that has nothing to do with federal income tax — an entirely different levy.

If that $35,000 is a capital gain, your mother will have to file a federal income tax return and pay income tax. What she does with the money is her decision. She can give it away, if she is so inclined. But that won't reduce her income tax obligation.

Sage Energy unable to find buyer

SAN ANTONIO (SWN) — K.K. Amini, chairman of the board of Sage Energy Co., has reported that the marketing effort which has been conducted by The First Boston Corporation over the last three months in an attempt to find a buyer for the company has produced no acceptable offers.

Amini, who owns 69 percent of the outstanding shares of the company, further stated that he has presented a proposal for a cash merger to the company's board of directors which would involve the payment of $5.875 per share for all of the outstanding stock of the company owned by shareholders other than Amini. The proposal by Amini is presently under study by a special committee of the outside directors of the company. The committee has retained legal and investment banking advisors.

on southern Hainan Island, a special zone for foreign trade and investment. "The government tells one company to buy another company. Bankers don't play much of a role."

Although primitive over-the-counter markets for trading company-issued securities have been allowed in about 70 Chinese cities, there is no structure and few laws governing how they operate, the three bankers said.

Nevertheless, China is much more advanced in securities trading than the Soviet Union, the other Communist superpower, where talk of establishing stock and bond markets is still in its infancy.

That raised speculation that Gorbachev's itinerary might include a last-minute stopover at the NYSE during his New York visit, although Big Board officials said no trip was planned as of late Tuesday.

The Chinese interns have spent much of their visit at the NYSE, where they talk to floor traders, surveillance officials and market economists. They also have spent time on the trading floors at First Boston Corp., Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. and Merrill Lynch & Co.

When they go home later this month they will drag a few file cabinets' worth of training manuals and textbooks with them, on topics ranging from stock-index futures to insider trading.

"I didn't know much about stocks and capital markets, it's very useful," said Ms. Duan, a researcher in the People's Bank's international department.

If the billions of dollars that change hands on Wall Street is staggering to most Americans, it is even more so for the three visitors, who could not afford New York's cost of living unless they stayed at an NYSE-leased apartment. Still, they are considered highly paid in their home country.

Zhang said he makes about 250 Chinese yuan a month, or about $92.50 at current exchange rates — lunch for two at Windows on the World in downtown Manhattan. Duan and Han said they each earn about 150 yuan a month, or $55.50.

"The government takes more care of you in China, but it's still not so good," Han said. "The people don't have enthusiasm when they get the same pay no matter how hard they work."

DOE

The small companies who make up the bulk of the center's clientele are more interested in procurement contracts, rather than research; however she said all the information on the DOE notice is available on the center's computerized version of the CBD.

Interested firms have until the end of the year to respond to the notice and should include the number and qualifications of scientific, engineering and technical personnel; a description of research facilities and equipment; and a listing of any previous projects.

The government is also interested in determining if interested firms are socially or economically disadvantaged; 51 percent or more women-owned and operated; or a small business — average annual sales receipts of less than $17 million over the past three years or 500 or fewer employees.

The oil country tubular steel industry is looking to the new administration to renew a series of 20 agreements with foreign governments setting quotas on the amount of foreign steel entering the United States. The agreements expire Sept. 30, 1989.

While Bush did not embrace protection for the domestic oil industry, he endorsed the steel accords, called voluntary restraint agreements, in a Nov. 4 letter to Sen. John Heinz, a Republican from the steel-producing state of Pennsylvania.

"The effective administration of those agreements by the Commerce Department is extremely important to the American steel industry," said Sheldon Wesson of the American Iron and Steel Institute.

"We believe in free trade, but we don't believe in dumping," said Carl Pfeiffer, president of Houston-based Quanex Corp., a steel company. "We can compete with foreign companies because we're very efficient in our plants, but we can't compete with foreign governments that subsidize their companies."

Oil-field equipment suppliers say they are encouraged by the Mosbacher appointment because their business is dramatically affected by changes in the international trade environment.

"It will be very helpful to have someone in that post who understands the oil business," said J. Stephen Larkin, executive vice president of the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

The Commerce Department has a great deal of influence on the imposing and lifting of trade bans, Larkin said. He cited the department's role in Reagan's decision to lift a ban imposed against the Soviet Union after the invasion of Afghanistan.

Larkin said Commerce Department officials now are working with Soviet officials to cut through red tape that hindered U.S. equipment makers from selling to the Soviet Union.

Police officers' hats place for storing personal mementos

By CONSTANCE L. HAYS
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Hat couture at the New York City Police Department appears every bit as impersonal as the rest of the uniform.

The same dark blue, eight-pointed, $16-retail hat with the shiny brim is worn by the rookie in the street and the commander behind the desk, with only minor bits of metal or braid to distinguish them.

But there is something, seldom seen except by chance or inquiry, that sets one officer's hat apart from the others.

"Our hats have a plastic pocket inside," said Carlos Molina, a salesman at Russell Smith Gray, an East 20th Street source of police uniforms. "Some people, they put money or letters or stuff like that in it."

"Years ago, when my kids were small, I had a picture of the kids in the hat," said Inspector Richard Mayronne, commanding officer of the 16th Division in Queens County. These days he keeps a copy of the Policeman's Prayer, which invokes the protection of St. Michael the Archangel, although it wasn't in there the other day.

"I just bought a new hat," he said, "and I think I've got it in my other hat."

Officer Randall Bush, a patrolman in the 19th Precinct, stores a stack of photographs of his children in his hat. "This is when I had only two," he said, holding one up. "And this is when I had only three. This is all four."

"I keep them in my hat," Bush added, folding up his bullet-proof vest for the night, "and I keep them in my heart."

At least one member of the force, a serious Mets fan, keeps a Daryl Strawberry baseball card between his hat and his hair. Many officers carry St. Christopher medals, and some keep paperwork and telephone numbers — both work-related and otherwise — in their hats.

Officer Robert Gilmartin, the assistant desk officer in the 19th Precinct, said he never kept anything in his hat, out of experience.

"I have no hair," he explained, "and when I went chasing after someone, the first thing that came off was my hat. It got run over by a yellow cab, and it got trampled one time, too." His colleagues insisted that he had a wig attached to his hat.

"If I lose my hat, I lose everything that's in it," said Officer Victor Alicea, who has been on the force seven years and who also believes in an empty hat. "You lose them when you run after perps (perpetrators). This is my fourth hat."

A sergeant passing through the station house muttered that he never heard of anybody asking what was in a police officer's hat. "It's personal," he said.

Officer Michael Gambert of Manhattan North keeps nothing in his hat. Nothing at all.

"Not even the plastic," he said, revealing the truth as he stood on a sidewalk on Upper Broadway recently. "They say the plastic makes you go bald. That's why I took it out."

One ranking police officer, who requested anonymity, confessed that he kept a picture of Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward — carefully clipped from the newsletters that the department's leader periodically issues — in his hat.

"The reason why I don't have a picture of the kids or anything was that I was afraid that the hat might be lost, and the picture of my loved ones would fall into the hands of someone who would not cherish it," the officer said. "I was always afraid it would end up in a shooting gallery, with somebody spitting on it.

"So I just used a replacement photograph, something that would separate my hat from somebody else's. I carried a photograph of the commissioner, and there was no chance for confusion, because there were very few people who had the commissioner's picture in their hat."

The officer said his choice of material, which he called "Ben-heads," was prompted by "my admiration and respect for the Commissioner," who is five years into the job.

Bar links lawmaker to constituents

New York Times News Service

BALTIMORE — American Joe Miedusiewski could be one of the young professionals who have been lured in recent years to East Baltimore by inexpensive housing and safe streets.

But Miedusiewski, who is 39 years old and is a new state senator, grew up here, over the tavern his parents own at the corner of Luzerne and Foster.

Miedusiewski, who was christened Joseph Francis, legally adopted the name when he first ran for election, winning a seat representing the 46th District in the State House 15 years ago.

At American Joe's, the drinks are mixed with politics.

"The tavern serves as a good center of operations for me," Miedusiewski said. "Hundreds of people come in here every day."

Miedusiewski, a Democrat, was appointed a State Senator in October to fill the vacancy created by the death of Joseph Bonvegna, 66. With the advancement, Miedusiewski will move his office from the cluttered back room of the tavern. But the bar will continue to be his link to constituents, he said.

They are a mix of longtime residents — mostly blue-collar and the children and grandchildren of Polish, Italian, German and Greek immigrants — and newcomers, many of them young professionals.

The two groups live alongside each other in a Democratic stronghold overlooking the waterfront.

Here the party machine is well-oiled and given young blood by the likes of Miedusiewski. When he strolls his neighborhood of Canton, which along with Fells Point and Highlandtown, make up his district, passers-by shout familiar hellos and sometimes offer suggestions and complaints.

"The challenge to me is to be able to bridge the gap between the old system and the new people coming in who may or may not be accustomed to that kind of political system," he said.

On a recent Saturday afternoon at American Joe's, about 30 people were gathered in a familial way in a corner of the dark, cavernous main room watching football on a big-screen TV.

At the end of the bar were two younger people who were there to talk politics with Miedusiewski.

"The corner bar is an extremely vital place," said Elaine Eff, a Canton resident who is the folklorist for the city of Baltimore. "This is a community that literally walked to work and carried its lunch."

Frank Miedusiewski, American Joe's father, found the long bar at the tavern a natural springboard into politics. He worked as a precinct captain and later ward executive in the organization of State Senator Joseph Staszak.

But when the organization put him up for the House of Delegates, he lost at the polls.

The problem, said his son, is that he was listed on the ballot as Frank, while everyone knew him as American Joe.

In the next election, when the youngest Miedusiewski replaced his father as the candidate for House of Delegates, Joseph Francis went downtown and legally changed his name.

Now that he has moved to the Senate, Miedusiewski has taken a top leadership role in the "Proven Democratic Team," an organization that includes the city's senior city councilman, Dominick DiPietro, who is 83.

It practices a "family kind" of political system, Ms. Eff said. "Joe and his family really typify the neighborhood there," she said. "That's why he's a favorite son. He's everybody's son, nephew, neighbor."

And no problem is too small. When a constituent complains that a city inspector has unfairly ordered him to repair his sidewalk, Miedusiewski carefully takes down the information and promises to make a few calls.

Broken sidewalks are the least of the neighborhood's concerns these days, however. The factories where many residents worked are closed now, slated either for demolition or renovation as upscale shopping centers, movie theaters and restaurants.

The waterfront is lined with new row houses that sell for as much as $300,000, and old houses that once could be had for $16,000 now fetch $60,000 to $70,000.

"Some of the older people are worried whether they will be able to stay around," Miedusiewski said.

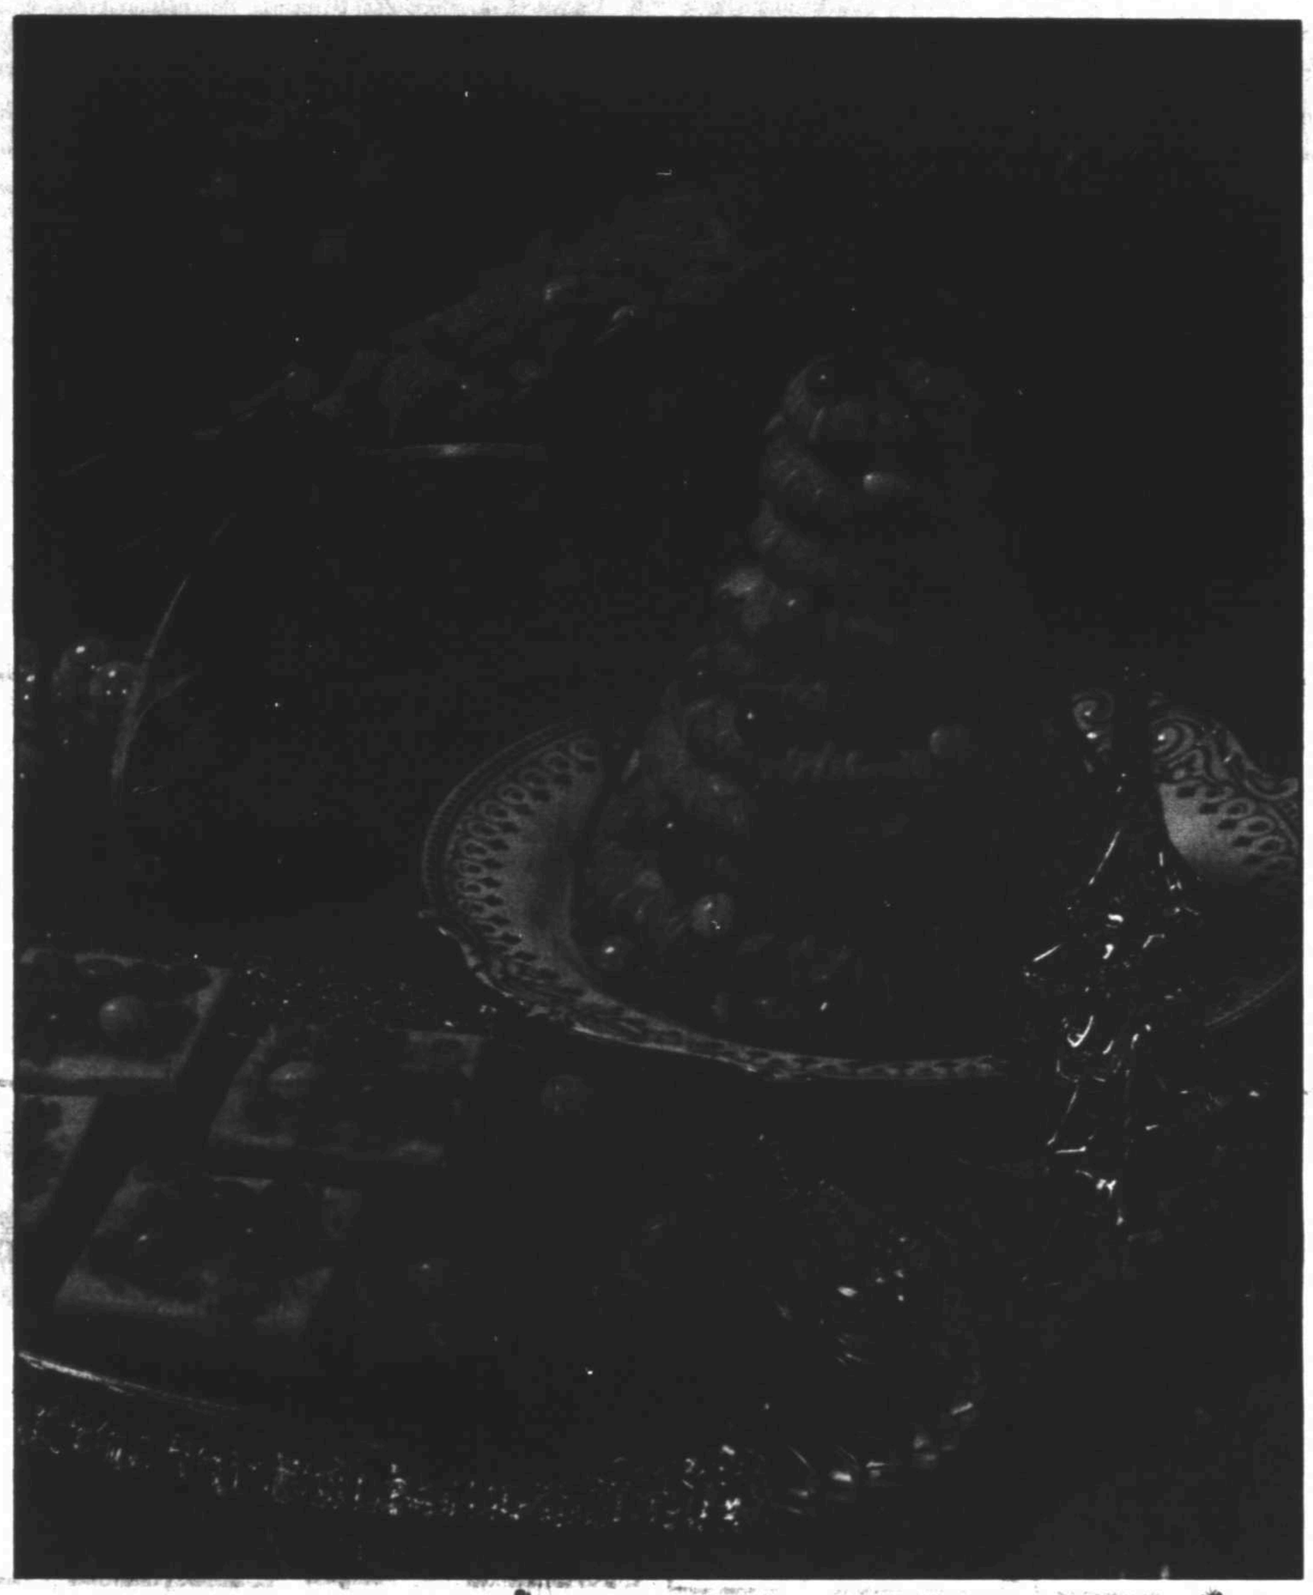
Christmas Tree Decorating Party



Christmas – that wonderful time of the year. And what is so much a part of Christmas throughout the world is the beautiful Christmas tree. "Oh Christmas Tree, Oh Christmas Tree . . . " is just one of the many songs written about the tree. And of course the brightly-colored ornaments, old fashioned strings of popcorn, strands of lights and the marvelous crown – the star that readies us for Christmas.

Get into the spirit of Christmas by having a Christmas tree decorating party. Jolly Christmas melodies jingling in the air, strings of lights and boxes of decorations galore – all necessities to get the party underway. You may even want to use some early American decorating tips, such as stringing cranberries, making homemade paper cut-out ornaments and hanging candy canes. Now, add to all of this some delicious holiday treats – homebaked festive favorites with Plain and Peanut Chocolate Candies. Everyone will enjoy taking part in hanging the ornaments while partaking of Ms. Claus' Cheesecake Squares or the ever-popular Santa's Peanutty Chocolate Fudge.

This is also a delightful time to have the children become creative by making their own tree-trimming decorations. In-a-Hurry Christmas Cookie Ornaments are easy to make – just by decorating soft cookies and hanging them on the tree with thin ribbons. Elf Snacking Bundles and Colorful Christmas Yo-Yos make showy ornaments as well as terrific snacking gifts for the neighborhood carolers.

Delight your family and friends by creating the edible centerpiece – the Easy Cookie Tree. Add to the fun by having everyone help in decorating the tree with those crunchy, colorful chocolate candies. By the end of the evening you can be sure that the excitement will continue to build in anticipation of Christmas morning.

Merry Christmas everyone!

Ms. Claus' Cheesecake Squares

- ½ cup Plain Chocolate Candies
- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 ¼ cups flour
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Preheat oven to 350° F. Line an 8-inch square pan with foil. Sprinkle ¼ cup candies in pan. In medium bowl, beat butter and brown sugar until smooth; beat in flour until crumbly. Crumble ¾ mixture over candies; pat to completely cover the bottom of the pan. Bake 15 minutes.
Meanwhile, beat cream cheese and sugar until smooth; stir in egg, vanilla and lemon. Pour over crust. Bake 15 minutes. Toss remaining candies with remaining crumbly mixture; crumble over filling. Bake an additional 15 minutes or until filling is set. Remove to wire rack to cool. Using foil, lift out cheesecake, cut into squares. Makes about 9 servings.

Santa's Peanutty Chocolate Fudge

- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 can (5 fluid oz.) evaporated milk
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 package (8 oz.) semi-sweet baking chocolate
- ½ cup marshmallow creme
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 ½ cups Peanut Chocolate Candies or 1 cup Plain Chocolate Candies
- ½ cup peanut butter

Line an 8-inch square pan with foil; lightly grease foil. In medium saucepan, combine sugar, milk and butter. Over medium heat, stirring constantly, bring mixture to a boil. Continue boiling and stirring for 5 minutes. Remove from heat; add chocolate, marshmallow creme and vanilla, stirring until chocolate is melted and mixture is smooth. Fold in peanut candies. Pour into prepared pan. In small saucepan, stir peanut butter over low heat until melted. Drizzle over fudge. With knife, swirl peanut butter into chocolate to marbleize. If desired, decorate top with additional candies. Let stand several hours or overnight until firm. Remove fudge from pan by lifting foil; remove foil from fudge, then cut into squares. Makes about 2 lb. fudge.

Easy Cookie Tree

- 1 cup margarine or butter, softened
- 1 ½ cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 3 ½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 ½ teaspoons cream of tartar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 ½ cups Plain Chocolate Candies
- 1 cup confectioners sugar
- 1 to 2 tablespoons orange juice

Preheat oven to 350° F. In large mixer bowl, beat margarine and sugar until light and fluffy; beat in eggs. Add flour, cream of tartar, salt and cinnamon, stirring to form dough. Stir in 1 cup candies.
To form cookie pieces in graduating sizes, start with 2 tablespoons dough and pat into a circle ½-inch thick on cookie sheet. Continue forming cookies, increasing dough by 1 tablespoon for each. Ten to twelve cookies will be formed; press additional candies into each cookie. Bake until edges are golden, about 12 minutes for the smaller cookies, to 17 minutes for the larger cookies. Remove cookies to wire rack to cool.
In small bowl, combine confectioners sugar and orange juice until smooth and a glaze consistency is reached. Place the largest cookie on serving plate. Place a dab of glaze in the center and drizzle some glaze over the edges. Top with the second largest cookie and follow the procedure until tree is assembled. Dip candies into any remaining glaze and attach to the tree. If desired, place a bow at the top of the tree. Makes one cookie tree.

Colorful Christmas Yo-Yos

- 1 package (18¼ oz.) chocolate cake mix with pudding added
- ½ cup margarine or butter, melted
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup Plain Chocolate Candies
- 2 cups confectioners sugar
- ¼ cup solid shortening
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 egg white
- ⅓ cup chopped Plain Chocolate Candies

Preheat oven to 350° F. In large bowl, combine cake mix, melted margarine and egg. Stir until dough is formed; stir in candies. Shape dough into 1½-inch balls. Place 2 inches apart on cookie sheets. Bake 10 minutes or until set. Cool cookies on cookie sheets 1 minute. Remove cookies to wire rack to cool.
In small bowl, combine 1 cup confectioners sugar, shortening, vanilla and egg white, beating until smooth. Add remaining sugar, beating until smooth. Stir in chopped candies. Spread heaping tablespoon of filling between two cookies. Wrap in plastic wrap and tie as desired. Makes 12 cookie yo-yos.

Elf Snacking Bundles

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- 4 cups crisp corn chex cereal
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 ½ cups Plain Chocolate Candies or 2 cups Peanut Chocolate Candies
- 1 cup raisins

In large skillet, over medium heat, melt butter. Add orange peel, then cereal. Gradually sprinkle in sugar, stirring to coat cereal well. Cook an additional 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Spread on paper towel to cool. Stir in candies and raisins. Store in air-tight container. Makes about 6 cups snack mix.
If desired, wrap ¼ cup snack mix in plastic wrap; tie with ribbon and hang on tree.

In-A-Hurry Christmas Cookie Ornaments

- 1 package (16½ oz.) soft molasses or soft oatmeal cookies
- 1 ½ cups prepared frosting, tinted with food coloring if desired
- ½ cup Plain Chocolate Candies
- Thin ribbon

Using a straw or wooden pick, work a hole 1½ inches from edge of each cookie or in the center; spread each cookie with frosting. Press in candies; let stand until set. Thread a ribbon through the hole, tying a bow for hanging. Makes about 18 ornaments.
If you don't want to use the cookies as ornaments, any store-bought cookies can be decorated this way for quick holiday cookies.

Christmas feast international

From Germany: roast goose for Weihnachten

Throughout much of Northern Europe, the goose reigns supreme as the centerpiece of a winter holiday spread. We have followed that tradition with this recipe from Norbert Knoll.

Many home cooks, approaching the idea of roast goose for the first time, may welcome a few words about what to expect. The Germans have a saying: The goose is a funny bird — too much for two, not enough for three. That exaggerates the matter, but it does illustrate the point that goose is less meaty than duck (which it resembles) and far less so than chicken and turkey.

With plenty of side dishes, you probably can serve eight with the 10-pound goose suggested here. Don't buy a goose much over 12 pounds; it may be too mature and tough. The roasting process itself is straightforward, and I do not advise poking holes in the flesh or basting with boiling water as suggested in some cookbooks.

The goose has more copious fat than even duck, so make sure to use a deep roasting pan and to be prepared to remove some of the accumulation with a bulb baster. Central European cooks prize the fat as a cooking medium.

ROAST GOOSE

1 10-pound goose, defrosted
2 apples
4 sticks celery
Salt, pepper
Paprika

Wash goose under running water and dry with cloth or paper towels. Make a mixture of salt, pepper and paprika and rub over skin and inside of bird. Cut apples into quarters and celery into convenient lengths and use to stuff goose. (This stuffing is not to be eaten, but to flavor bird.)

Place goose on rack in a roasting pan — bird will be about 14 inches long — and add 2 tablespoons water. Cover tightly with foil and roast at 375 degrees for 2½ hours. Remove foil and roast until nicely brown, basting with drippings. Knoll specifies a total of 3 hours cooking time. Goose is done when juices run clear and meat is tender. As with most poultry, allow to stand at least 15 minutes at room temperature before carving. Be sure that everyone gets some of the rich crisp skin.

Winter is very dark everywhere in

CNS Graphic

Sweden, and that may be why holiday festivities glow with particular brilliance. Friends gather over a lavish smorgasbord, perhaps including lutfisk, the cod preserved in lye that you probably have to be Swedish to appreciate.

Everyone can derive a warming glow from the traditional wine punch, Glogg. This is Hoyt's recipe.

GLOGG

½ cup aquavit or vodka
4 or 5 sticks cinnamon
20 cloves
1 teaspoon crushed cardamom seeds
Small piece of fresh ginger
1 liter or quart of inexpensive red wine
Zest (colored peel) of an orange, removed with potato peeler
1 cup sugar (or to taste)
1 teaspoon vanilla (you might like less)
Small handful of raisins
Almonds

The day before you plan to make punch, place spices into glass jar with lid, breaking cinnamon sticks into small pieces and being sure cardamom is well crushed. Pour aquavit or vodka over spices, close jar and allow to stand overnight.

Strain liquor into saucepan large enough to hold all ingredients, add wine, zest, sugar, vanilla and raisins. Bring to simmer, but do not boil. Serve hot in small cups with 1 almond in each.

Many Scandinavians feel that Christmas Eve mandates this hallowed sweet, which you probably can trace back in one form or another to Viking days.

RICE PORRIDGE

1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
Small stick cinnamon
⅔ cup round-grain rice
2⅔ cups milk
Sugar
Additional milk
Cinnamon

In saucepan ample to hold all ingredients, bring water, salt, butter and cinnamon stick to a boil. Add rice, cover and boil gently for 10 minutes. Add milk and simmer over very low heat for 30 to 40 minutes, until milk is absorbed. Serve warm with sugar, additional milk to pour over it and cinnamon as a topping.

Every British table is graced with a Christmas cake, which seems to recall the feasts of Dickens' day. This version has been provided to us by Phil and Ruth Elwell, he from the Midlands, she from Pennsylvania. It's made with treacle, a thick sugar syrup, and the candied fruits that were known as sugarplums in Victorian days.

CHRISTMAS CAKE

8 ounces (2 sticks, 1 cup) butter, softened
8 ounces (1 cup) dark brown sugar
6 large eggs
1 small lemon
½ teaspoon blended spices (see directions)
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
6 tablespoons black treacle (or molasses)
1 pound (3¼ cups) flour
12 ounces (2 cups) raisins
8 ounces (1¼ cups) sultanas (golden raisins)
8 ounces (1¼ cups) currants
3 ounces (cup) candied cherries
Orange juice
1 teaspoon baking soda
5 tablespoons brandy

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. Butter 9-inch springform pan and line bottom with waxed paper. Butter paper.

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Separate eggs and add yolks, 1 at a time, beating well after each. Grate zest of lemon and squeeze out juice. Beat grated rind, lemon juice, spices and treacle into creamed mixture. (For blended spices, use premixed pumpkin pie spice, or combine nutmeg, mace, allspice and ginger to make ½ teaspoon.) Sift flour and stir it into mixture alternately with dried fruits, adding a little orange juice to make it workable. It should be stiff at this point.

Blend soda into a little orange juice and stir into mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter alternately with brandy. The consistency should now be like a dough for cookies that will be dropped from a spoon.

Turn into cake pan and bake for 3 to 4 hours until cake is brown and firm to touch and cake tests done. Unfortunately, it's impossible to give a more precise cooking time for this type of cake, so keep an eye on it.

Allow to cool in pan for a few minutes, then turn onto cooling rack. Traditionally, Christmas cake is coated with a layer of marzipan and then a sugar icing.

'Bready' bears fun for holidays

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

Move over Rudolf, the bready bears have arrived! These happy-dough-lucky animals are just waiting to liven up your Christmas festivities.

BREADY BEARS

5¼ to 5½ cups all-purpose flour
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup milk
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
2 beaten eggs
2 tablespoons finely shredded orange peel
¼ cup orange juice
1 slightly beaten egg white
1 tablespoon water
Sugar Glaze (Recipe follows)
Dried fruit or nuts (optional)

Combine 2 cups of the flour and the yeast. Heat milk, sugar, shortening and salt until warm (115 to 120 degrees), stirring constantly.

Add to flour mixture along with eggs, orange peel and orange juice. Beat with electric mixer on low speed 30 seconds, scraping bowl often. Beat 3 minutes at high speed.

Stir in as much remaining flour as you can. Turn out onto lightly floured surface. Knead in enough remaining flour to make a moderately soft dough that is smooth and elastic (3 to 5 minutes). Place in greased bowl.

Cover; let rise in warm place until double (about 1 hour).

Punch down. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough in half; on lightly floured surface roll out one half to ½-inch thickness. With biscuit cutters, cut five 2½-inch circles, five 2-inch circles and twenty-five 1-inch circles.

Let dough rest before re-rolling. Mix egg white and water.

To assemble each bear, place one 2½-inch circle (body) on baking sheet. Brush edge of one 2-inch circle (head) with egg-white mixture; join to body. Brush four 1-inch circles (arms and legs) with egg-white mixture; join to body. Cut one 1-inch circle in half (ears). Brush flat side; join to head. Repeat with remaining dough.

Cover and let rise in a warm place until nearly double (about 20 minutes). Bake in 375-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes. Brush with Sugar Glaze. Decorate with dried fruit and nuts as desired. Brush glaze over decorated areas. Makes 10.

Sugar Glaze:

Blend together 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, ¼ cup hot water and 1 teaspoon margarine.

Nutrition information per bear: 381 cal., 9 g pro., 79 g carb., 3 g fat, 55 mg chol., 242 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 31 percent thiamine, 22 percent riboflavin, 19 percent niacin, 13 percent iron, and 11 percent phosphorus.

Flaky cookies make delicious gifts

By NANCY Byal
Associated Press

Yum! Tender, flaky cookies with creamy double peanut butter filling topped with chocolate drizzles. Just the thing to give a holiday thank you to Santa or other helpful friends and neighbors.

Here's a tip from the Better Homes and Gardens test kitchen for tender rolled or cutout cookies: sprinkle the pastry cloth with powdered sugar rather than flour. The dough won't stick and doesn't become tough from excess flour.

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE ROLLS

¾ cup margarine or butter
2 cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup dairy sour cream
1 (6-ounce) package (1 cup) peanut-butter-flavored pieces
⅓ cup peanut butter
½ cup sifted powdered sugar
½ cup semisweet chocolate pieces
1 tablespoon shortening

For dough, in a large mixing bowl cut margarine into flour until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in sour cream until mixture forms a ball.

For filling, in a medium saucepan melt peanut-butter-flavored pieces over low heat, stirring constantly. Stir in peanut butter. Remove from heat. Stir in sugar.

Halve dough. On a surface sprinkled lightly with additional powdered sugar, roll each dough half into a 12x9-inch rectangle. Spread half the filling on each rectangle. Roll up from the long side. Wrap and chill for 1 to 2 hours or until firm.

To bake, cut into ½-inch slices. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes or until edges are slightly brown. Remove and cool completely on wire racks. In a small saucepan cook and stir chocolate pieces and shortening over low heat until melted. Drizzle over cookies. Makes about 36.

Healthy eating begins at supermarket

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Dough Sehres/Reporter-Telegram

Deborah McPherson

For years, health care professionals have urged consumers to cut back on their consumption of dietary fats. And for years, concerned consumers have limited their intake of such obvious sources of fat as whole milk, well-marbled meats, butter and margarine, and most fried foods.

Unfortunately, removing unwanted fats from the diet isn't as easy as that. Harmful fats can be hidden in the most innocent-looking cookie or bread product or frozen dinner.

Deborah McPherson, MS, RD/LD, with CardioCentral in Odessa, guided a "Supermarket Survival" tour in one of Midland's larger supermarkets recently, pointing out which products contain more healthy ingredients, and which ones don't.

CardioCentral offers a 12-week program of rehabilitation, exercise and diet consultations for heart patients who have been referred to the program by their doctors. But even after completing the comprehensive course, many of these patients were still confused about dietary recommendations, Ms. McPherson said. "So many of my patients could not quite grasp what the diet was all about," she said. "What better place to teach them than the grocery store?"

However, heart patients are not the only ones who benefit from the program. People who are concerned about cholesterol, triglycerides, diabetes, fat, or who just want to eat healthier, may find the tour useful.

"Ector County Independent School District sent 11 groups of teachers," Ms. McPherson said. "We were going to do six tours, and so many signed up that we ended up doing 11."

The tour is based on the "Nutrition Know-How" program, originated by Leni Reed Associates Inc. in Dallas. The program's manual points out: "This program is intended to provide general information, based on the information provided by the manufacturer's labels (and thus no endorsements are intended or implied). Please remember that manufacturers constantly change formulations on various products. Thus labels discussed today may vary from the labels on similarly named products from time to time."

Ms. McPherson discussed the differences between polyunsaturated, saturated and monounsaturated fats; "good" and "bad" fats; cholesterol; types of sugars; and product labels and how to read them. Each gram of fat contains nine calories, she said, while each gram of carbohydrates or proteins contains four calories. So when reading nutrient labels, consumers can multiply the number of grams of fat per serving by nine, and divide that number with the total number of calories per serving to determine the percentage of fat calories in the product.

"The American Heart Association and the Cancer Society recommend lowering (dietary) fat to under 30 percent of calories," Ms. McPherson said. "Some (healthier) products may be more expensive, but you are getting more nutrition for your food dollar."

To eat healthier diets, Ms. McPherson said consumers should avoid products containing coconut or palm or palm kernel oils, cut back on consumption of egg yolks, avoid snacks with too much fat or salt such as microwave popcorn and most chips, and remember that drinks that are fruit "blends" or "beverages" or "ades" or "drinks" are not 100 percent fruit juice but instead contain sugar.

Some of the foods recommended by Ms. McPherson include plain nonfat yogurt, unsweetened fruit juice, string cheese — "good for kids' snack" — bread products made with vegetable shortening instead of animal fat (except, of course, coconut, palm or palm kernel oils) and pasta — "Pasta is the best thing you can eat when on a diet, as long as you don't put cream sauce or cheese or margarine or butter on it."

But healthy eating doesn't have to be boring, she said. "Variety and moderation are the key to everything."

The main points she listed were: (1) Have more of the best and less of the rest. (2) Choose the healthiest calories, not just the fewest. (3) Variety is dietary insurance. For more information about Supermarket Survival tours, call 333-2222 in Odessa.

Some recipes from Leni Reed's program are:

BERRY DESSERT
2 cups (about) blueberries or blackberries, frozen (no sugar), slightly defrosted
2 to 3 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
2 to 3 tablespoons water
Fresh mint or any fruit of contrasting color as garnish

Place all ingredients into food processor fitted with metal blade. Process until smooth. Garnish as desired. Serve immediately.

FROZEN BANANA "YOGURT"
2 large frozen bananas
2 to 3 tablespoons part-skim ricotta cheese
2 to 3 tablespoons skim milk
Pinch of ground or freshly grated nutmeg or cinnamon

Eight minutes before serving, remove bananas from freezer and defrost at room temperature. Cut each banana into five or six pieces and place in blender or food processor fitted with metal blade. Add remaining ingredients and process until smooth and creamy.

NOTE: To freeze bananas, let ripen until speckled. Peel and freeze in plastic bag — at least six hours. If using blender, make up to three servings at once.

TORTILLA CHIPS
Cut tortillas into chip-sized pieces and place on cookie sheet. Do not overlap pieces. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 15-20 minutes or until lightly browned and crisp. Watch carefully to prevent burning.

WHITE CAKE SUPREME
2¼ cup sifted cake flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1¼ cup sugar
3 egg whites
½ cup oil
¾ cup nonfat milk
1 teaspoon vanilla or 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Sift flour, baking powder and ¾ cup sugar. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add remaining sugar and beat until stiff peaks form.

Make a well in dry ingredients and pour in oil, ⅓ cup milk and flavoring. Beat 150 strokes (or 1 minute at medium speed). Add remaining milk. Beat again 150 strokes.

Mix ⅓ of egg mixture with batter. Fold batter into remaining egg whites. Turn into two lightly oiled (or greased with margarine) 8-inch layer pans. Bake about 30 minutes. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pans. Makes 12 pieces with 235 calories each, without icing.

BISCUITS FOR YOUR HEART'S DELIGHT
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
⅓ cup oil
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup nonfat milk

Preheat oven to 475 degrees. Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Measure oil and milk into cup but don't stir. Add all at once to flour mixture.

Stir with fork until mixture leaves side of bowl and forms ball. Knead 10 times. Roll out ¼-inch thick and cut wtih floured glass or biscuit cutter. Bake 10-12 minutes. Makes 18 biscuits at 95 calories each.

PIE CRUST
(Two-crust pie)
⅓ cup oil
2 cup flour
¼ cup low fat milk or water
Dash mace or allspice

Sift flour. Measure milk and oil into same measuring cup. Add to flour. Stir quickly until it leaves side of bowl and forms ball. Divide in half. Roll between waxed paper. Peel off top piece of paper and turn into pie pan. Peel off other piece of paper.

One-sixth of pie crust contains 330 calories, without filling.

After 6 minutes, cook uncovered for 7 minutes more. Turn quail often. Add 2 ounces teriyaki sauce and spoon mixture over the birds. Allow to brown for 1-2 minutes. Place each bird on a piece of thin toast to serve. Serves 8.

ORANGE ALMOND SALAD
1 head romaine lettuce
1 small can mandarin oranges
1 bunch scallions cut in ⅛-inch slices
¼ cup toasted almonds
Sweet and Sour Dressing (recipe follows)

Chop romaine. Distribute on plates. Place 6 to 8 orange segments on each plate. Sprinkle with scallions and almonds. Serve with sweet and sour dressing.

ROCK CORNISH HEN WITH MUSHROOMS AND SAUSAGE
2 Rock Cornish hens
1 lemon, halved
4 tablespoons olive oil
2 sprigs fresh rosemary or 2 teaspoons dried rosemary
4 fresh sage leaves or ⅛ teaspoon chopped dried sage leaves
1 large celery stalk, washed and cut in thin slices
1 dozen mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
1 Italian sweet sausage, skinned
3 to 4 tablespoons dry vermouth
2 tablespoons crisp croutons
1½ tablespoons salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste
1 tablespoon unsalted butter

Remove the hens' giblets; clean, trim and chop and set them aside. Rinse the hens' cavities and rub well with one-half lemon.

Heat the olive oil in a large frying pan. Add the rosemary, sage, celery and mushrooms. Saute for 5 minutes.

Break the sausage into 3 or 4 pieces and add them to the pan; then add the prepared giblets and the dry vermouth and cook another 3 to 4 minutes or until the wine has evaporated. Stir in the croutons. Add salt and pepper and remove from heat.

Fill the hens' cavities and neck pouches with stuffing. Skewer the two openings shut. Any remaining stuffing may be placed in the hens' baking dish. Butter the hens' breasts.

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees F. Bake 45 to 55 minutes or until tender. Baste 2 or 3 times during baking. Cut the birds in half with poultry shears, sprinkle with the juice of the remaining one-half lemon and serve. Serves 4.

A few years go, we came across a most charming bridge book, A Christmas Stocking, by Frank Stewart. (Available from Stocking, P.O Box 18099, Memphis, Tenn. 38181-0099, $8 postpaid.) To make it a personal gift, the author will autograph or inscribe the book on request.

On this hand, one of the characters, Lance, was defending against three no trump with the West cards. He led a heart to declarer's ten, and back came the queen of spades to the ace.

"I played low, a bad mistake as you will see. Declarer then cashed his two top clubs and threw me in with the king of spades. It was then I realized that I should have covered the queen of spades with my king even though dummy had the stiff ace!

"You can see what I had done to myself. Another heart lead now, besides losing a trick, puts me out of touch with partner's hand; and if I lead a diamond, declarer can always set up the suit without letting (partner) in. If I still had the five of spades, I could exit safely. Declarer would have only eight tricks, and Millard is bound to get in to lead a heart through.

"I actually led the jack of diamonds, hoping (partner) had the ace. Declarer ducked in dummy and was all set to duck in hand, too ... But (partner) played the king ... I don't know what made him do it, maybe 'cover partner's honor with an honor' Who knows? Declarer didn't give either one of us much credit—he won the ace and led a diamond to the nine.

"Down four. Another top."

A book to warm the cockles of your heart any time of the year.

U.S. opera star to sing French national anthem on Bastille Day

PARIS (AP) — U.S. opera star Jessye Norman reportedly will sing the French national anthem, "The Marseillaise," before President Francois Mitterrand on Bastille Day to mark the bicentennial of the French Revolution.

Mitterrand has invited leaders from around the world to attend the July 14 ceremony on the Place de la Concorde.

Ms. Norman, who is to appear Saturday in a sold-out performance at the Champs Elysees Theater, is scheduled to meet Thursday with Culture Minister Jack Lang to discuss the performance of the national anthem, according to sources close to Ms. Norman.

She also will record a version of "The Marseillaise" on the Philips label accompanied by the Orchestra of Paris, conducted by Semyon Bychkov.

Taylor

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor is "taking it easy in California," recovering from recurring back problems that kept her from attending a tribute to an AIDS researcher, her publicist said.

Miss Taylor, who has raised millions in the fight against the deadly disease, missed the recent fete at Carnegie Hall for Dr. Mathilde Krim.

"She's had a lot of problems with her back," Chen Sam, Miss Taylor's publicist, said Tuesday. "She's alive and well and just taking it easy in California."

The actress was admitted July 25 to St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica for a compression fracture of the first lumbar vertebra. She was released after more than three weeks of treatment that included strict bed rest and physical therapy.

She has suffered back problems since falling off a horse 30 years ago, an accident in which her spine was fractured.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Western record company has pulled off a musical coup by signing five Soviet musicians, including conductor Yuri Temirkanov, violinist Vladimir Spivakov and 17-year-old pianist Evgeny Kissin, to five-year deals.

"All of them are making their first long-term agreement in the West," Michael Emmerson, president of West German-based BMG Classics, said Tuesday. "I think we have a lot to be thankful to glasnost for."

The other artists are violist Yuri Bashmet and cellist Natalia Gutman, along with the Moscow Virtuosi and the Leningrad Philharmonic.

The first recording by Kissin of Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2" with the London Symphony will be released this month.

Temirkanov will record with the Philadelphia Orchestra, Royal Philharmonic of London and Leningrad Philharmonic, of which he is music director.

"Basically we made five-year deals," Emmerson said. "We generally have options for further recordings after that period."

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — William E. "Joe" Potter, a retired Army major general and former Panama Canal governor who helped build Walt Disney World, died Monday of heart failure at age 83.

Potter spent 38 years with the Army Corps of Engineers and was governor of the Panama Canal Zone from 1956 until he retired from the Army in 1960. He directed logistical planning for the World War II invasion of Europe and later headed the Army's "Red Ball Express" transportation operation on the continent.

The late Walt Disney met and hired Potter at the 1964 New York World's Fair, which Potter was instrumental in building. He directed construction of the infrastructure for Disney World, including underground sewer, power and water treatment plants that were considered revolutionary at the time.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John H. Geisse, a World War I Army aviator who later held many patents in aviation, died Sunday at age 96.

Geisse invented the crosswind landing gear, which contributed to flying safety and economy. He also designed the first electric wing de-icer for airplanes.

Geisse was director of the development section of the Bureau of Air Commerce, the predecessor of the Federal Aviation Administration. He was with the department for 17 years before retiring in 1949.

Keeshan

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Bob Keeshan, known to generations of children as Captain Kangaroo, has been invited to speak at Gov. John R. McKernan's lecture series.

"He's a lifelong Captain Kangaroo fan," said McKernan's spokesman, Willis Lyford.

Keeshan, who created for CBS in 1955 what has become the longest-running children's network television program, has emerged in recent years as a spokesman on children's issues. He has appeared before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee to discuss television violence.

McKernan decided to ask the 61-year-old Keeshan to Maine after attending a February lecture on child care Keeshan presented to the National Governor's Association, Lyford said.

The topic of Keeshan's talk Friday will be "Small Children Need Big Friends."

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ray Mabus was hospitalized briefly because of a stomach virus, according to his spokesman.

The governor was released from George Washington University Hospital Tuesday afternoon, a day after he was admitted to the Washington, D.C., medical center, spokesman Kevin Vandenbroek said.

Mabus, 40, was in Washington for interviews involving the premiere of the movie "Mississippi Burning," a ficitious account of the investigation into the deaths of three civil rights workers in Neshoba County in 1964.

"The governor was given an I.V. for dehydration and a shot for nausea," Vandenbroek said. "He presently is back at the hotel and plans to finish his Washington schedule."

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC White House correspondent Chris Wallace is moving into prime time next year — on ABC.

Wallace, whose contract with NBC is up next month, will help develop a new prime-time news program on which he will be chief correspondent, ABC announced Tuesday. The show is expected to premiere in spring 1989.

Wallace, who had recently served as moderator of NBC's "Meet the Press," is being replaced on that program by Garrick Utley, host of NBC's "Sunday Today." That show is moving to Washington from New York.

"All of us here at NBC News are sorry Chris is leaving and we wish he were staying," said NBC News President Michael Gartner in a statement.

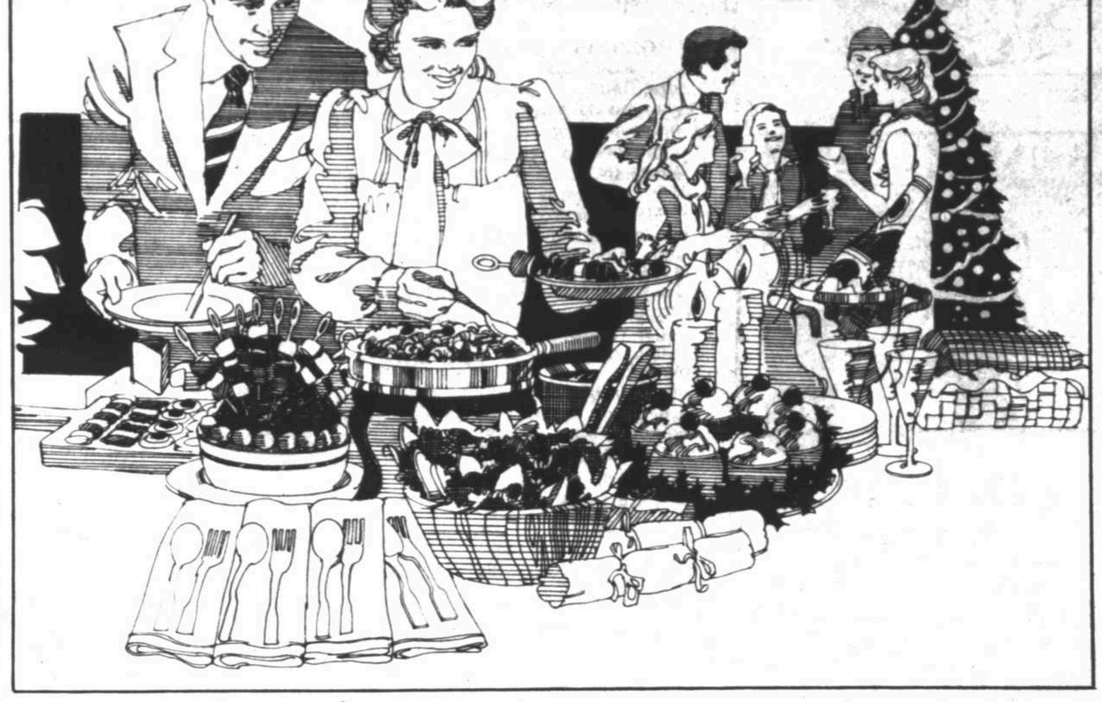
Cajun food featured in holiday buffet

By MELANIE BARNARD
and BROOKE DOJNY
Copley News Service



Are you like us? At this time every year, we always plan the perfect holiday party, but never get around to sending invitations because we become so overburdened with the other tasks of the season.

Well, this year we decided to make our dream a reality. The following recipes are the basis of our own holiday buffet.

The main event is Drumstick Jambalaya, an easy and delicious version of the American classic. We have called for drumsticks since using only one chicken part assures uniform cooking and pretty presentation. You can, of course, use any combination of parts that you like.

Almost all types of smoked sausage will do here, but if you can find real Cajun Andouille, by all means use it. If your budget allows, you might add some peeled and deveined shrimp during the last 10 minutes of cooking time.

Serve the jambalaya from a silver chafing dish or your best casserole and accompany it with a basket of French bread and big green salad.

BROWN SUGAR Shortbreads are deceptively simple and easy to prepare. But, rich with butter and the lightly caramel flavor of the brown sugar and vanilla, they elevate the word "cookie" into a whole new dessert category.

If you wish, you can arrange them on a tray with one or two other cookies from a bakery, but we like them all by themselves accompanied by a platter of multicolored grapes and ripe pears.

DRUMSTICK JAMBALAYA

1 to 1½ pounds chicken drumsticks
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
8 ounces smoked or Cajun sausage, sliced about ¼-inch thick
1 large onion, chopped
1 medium green pepper, seeded and chopped
1 large rib celery, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon thyme
1 cup uncooked long-grain white rice
1 (16-ounce) can tomatoes in juice
1 cup water, plus additional as needed
¼ cup thinly sliced scallions
3 tablespoons minced parsley
½ to 1 teaspoon Tabasco or other hot sauce to taste

Yields 4 servings.

Sprinkle chicken all over with cayenne pepper.

Heat oil in 12-inch skillet with tight-fitting lid and saute chicken over medium heat for 6 minutes, turning once or twice. Add sausage slices and saute about 3 minutes more, turning frequently until chicken and sausages are lightly browned on all sides. Remove chicken and sausage from skillet with tongs or slotted spoon.

Add onion, green pepper and celery to drippings in skillet. Saute about 4 minutes over medium-low heat. Add garlic and saute 1 minute. Add thyme and rice and saute about 30 seconds, stirring to coat all grains of rice. Add tomatoes with juices and 1 cup water. Stir and break up tomatoes with back of spoon. Return chicken and sausage to skillet. Bring to boil, then lower heat.

Cover pan and simmer for 25 to 35 minutes until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed but mixture is still moist. Check rice after 25 minutes of cooking. If it seems dry, but is not yet tender, gently stir in ½ to one-third cup additional water, recover and continue to cook. (The jambalaya can be made earlier in the day to this point. Reheat over very low heat or in microwave oven.)

Stir the parsley, scallions and Tabasco to taste into mixture and serve from a rimmed platter or directly from skillet.

BROWN SUGAR SHORTBREADS

8 tablespoons chilled butter
Pinch of salt
¼ cup packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons granulated sugar

Baking time: 25 minutes.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place a metal, 9-inch fluted tart pan or pie pan in freezer to chill.

To make dough in food processor, cut butter into about 8 chunks and place in work bowl along with salt, brown sugar and vanilla. Process about 20 seconds until light and smooth. Sprinkle flour and cornstarch over top of mixture in work bowl and stir to combine. Then pulse machine on and off 6 to 8 times until dough begins to clump together. (The dough can me made by hand or electric mixer using the same steps.)

Scrape dough into chilled tart pan and press and flatten with heel of hand to cover bottom of pan smoothly. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and prick dough in several places with tines of fork. Return dough-filled pan to freezer for 5 more minutes to chill.

Bake in center of preheated oven for 25 to 28 minutes until edges have begun to lightly brown and center is firm. Remove from oven and place pan on a rack. While still warm, cut shortbread in 12 to 16 wedges using small sharp knife. Cool completely in pan before removing wedges carefully with spatula.

Wine, champagne add spirits, not alcohol to holiday cooking

Associated Press

Spirits add exquisite flavor to your holiday cooking. When you flame or add spirits to a recipe, the alcohol — and its calories — evaporates, leaving only the special taste. Here are some tips on cooking with spirits.

COOKING

— You don't have to buy special wine for cooking. It's the perfect way to use small amounts of leftover table wine. Even champagne can be used in sauces and soups.

— Dry white wines work well in delicate sauces; use red wines for highly seasoned sauces.

— Turn a white sauce or bernaise sauce into a topping extraordinaire. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons of wine or liquor for each cup of sauce. You can add spirits after thickening but the spirit may have a slightly raw edge. If the wine or liquor is cooked first — used to deglaze a pan, for instance — the alcohol flavor mellows.

■ Use wine for part of the liquid when poaching fruit, fish or poultry.

■ Beat 1 or 2 tablespoons of brandy or dry sherry into the cheese mixture for cheese balls and dips.

■ Add 1 or 2 tablespoons of your favorite liqueur to the cheese mixture for cheesecake.

■ Wrap a fruitcake or steamed pudding in cheesecloth moistened with rum, brandy or whiskey. Overwrap with foil and refrigerate at least a week.

FLAMING

■ Choose brandy, rum or liqueur that is at least 40 proof. Do not use 150-proof spirits for flaming; they're too volatile.

■ Warm a few tablespoons of alcohol in a small saucepan or long-handled ladle over low heat or in the microwave. Using a long match, immediately ignite the alcohol and pour over hot food in a flameproof dish. After the flames subside, stir the food to blend in the flavor.

PRESERVING

■ When making homemade mincemeat, cook the meat mixture as directed. Then add the desired alcohol and cook the mixture for 5 minutes before filling jars for processing. Otherwise, alcohol fumes may cause jars to explode during processing.

■ The wine and sugar for a wine jelly should come just to boiling before adding pectin.

SAFE COOKING TIPS

■ Never pour any type of alcohol directly from the bottle over a flame.

■ Do not carry a flaming dish.

■ Bake cakes or desserts high in alcohol in an uncovered pan in a large oven. Allowing for good ventilation prevents an explosion caused by a buildup of pressure, heat and alcohol fumes.

Obese child may be taller than thin one

Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — During a famine, the growth of children may be stunted. But the reverse is also true. Children who eat too much may accelerate their growth, says an authority on child nurtrition.

"Obese children tend to be taller than their normal-weight peers," says Dr. Gilbert Forbes of the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Forbes adds that if an observer tracks height and weight relationships over time "it appears that the height increase coincides with the weight increase or follows somewhat later. It never seems to occur before."

Therefore, he concludes, the increase in height and surfeit of food are linked.

Cookie baking a sweet tradition

By MAUREEN CLANCY
Copley News Service

When we asked our readers to share those memories and cookies with us in a Christmas Cookie Contest, we received letters that talked of sugar and sparkles, molasses and nuts. They talked of saucy "Mae West-like" gingerbread ladies, hand-painted stars, Hanukkah dreidels, and log cookies rolled in powdered sugar by the littlest baker in the family.

Just as important as the recipes were the stories behind them. Stories that made us laugh, made us cry, and made us remember.

Rosemary Furry was a new bride in 1951 when she entered a cookie contest in a downtown department store. Furry's letter said she and her neighbor, Jane Jones, worked hard on their recipes, with Furry being rewarded with first prize — a blue ribbon and a set of steak knives.

"I did feel sad for my neighbor, however," Furry wrote, adding that Jones worked on a recipe all year long and was awarded first prize the following year.

"My friend and neighbor is gone now, as is the store and even the steak knives.

THE RIBBON is faded, but the memories I have every Christmas when I make these (cookies) are just as vivid as they were then."

Furry's Moonbeams are moist, powder-sugared nuggets, in the Mexican wedding cake-Russian tea-cake tradition. Jones' Toasted Almond Orange Butter Balls are buttery, citrus-spiked and perfect for afternoon teatime. Both cookies submitted by Furry received a perfect score from the judges.

"When I married, I brought this Swedish cookie tradition to our marriage," wrote Flynn. "I now have two boys and a mother-in-law who say it just isn't Christmas without these cream-filled delights."

Donald Sheffo's grandmother brought her kolaczki recipe with her from Czechoslovakia more than 80 years ago, and baked the cookies for special family occasions each year. "I can vividly remember my grandmother and mother baking these festive cookies and me eating them almost as fast as they came out of the oven," wrote Sheffo.

Judy Borecky's letter about her favorite Czechoslovakian Apricot Roll Ups told how her mother-in-law ("one of the best cooks I know") made similar cookies for years but would never part with the recipe.

"I searched for 10 years and was almost obsessed with finding the recipe," wrote Borecky. "I finally found a recipe which I think is better than hers."

BUT THE TASTING and reading pleasure did not stop with these winners. Our letters told stories of love, laughter and family traditions. Of little hands reaching into the cookie jar, and old, gnarled hands teaching baking tricks learned decades ago in the old country.

Patricia Lapiezo's three sons enjoy a cookie tradition that Lapiezo created when she married — "I wanted my family to have traditions because I never had them."

Today, the boys form an assembly line, with elegant Filbert Lemon Logs the final product. One child cracks the nuts. Another gathers the ingredients and toasts the nuts. And the 4-year-old rolls the logs in the chopped nuts.

Cynthia Molin wrote about her memories of her grandmother ("Nana") who hailed from England and brought with her a recipe for fine, buttery shortbread. Over the years, Molin has updated the timeless little cookie with chocolate chips and cinnamon and now makes them every Christmas season with her two small children.

The joy of holiday sugar cookies knows no religious boundaries. Jean Klaber makes elegant cookies, iced with blue and white frosting and cut into six-sided Jewish stars, menorahs (candelabra) and dreidels (four-sided tops with Hebrew letters on each side). Her children use the cookies to "gamble" with when they play the traditional Hanukkah game of chance called Dreidel.

ALL OF THE LETTERS received echoed the warm themes of tiny helping hands, cookies being sent over the miles as gifts, and hours of pleasant chatter while cookies baked.

Sugar, sprinkles, butter, flour, nuts and cream ... the things that memories are made of. Here are some recipes from our Christmas Cookie Contest finalists.

ROSEMARY FURRY'S MOONBEAMS

2½ tablespoons powdered sugar
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon vanilla mixed with ½ teaspoon water
½ cup chopped nuts
Powdered sugar for rolling

Cream butter and powdered sugar. Add flour, vanilla and water. Mix well. Stir in nuts. Shape into walnut-size balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 30 minutes at 300 degrees. Roll in powdered sugar.

JANE JONES' ALMOND-ORANGE BUTTER BALLS

1 cup butter
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 tablespoon orange rind
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup finely chopped almonds

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add orange juice and rind. Add flour and mix well. Shape dough into walnut-sized balls. Combine cinnamon, sugar and nuts. Roll balls in nut mixture, pressing nuts into dough. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet for 18 minutes at 350 degrees.

JUDY BORECKY'S APRICOT ROLL UPS

1 cup butter
1 package yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3½ cups flour
2 large eggs
Apricot jam
Chopped pecans or walnuts
Icing (recipe follows)

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm milk. Mix together all ingredients except for nuts and jam, blending well. Dump out on floured counter and knead just until you have a smooth lump of dough. Divide into 4 balls. Roll out in circle. With knife slice 4 times to make 8 crescents. Smear on apricot jam (not too thick), roll up as in a crescent. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly brown. Frost and immediately sprinkle with chopped pecans or walnuts.

ICING

¼ cup soft butter or margarine
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups powdered sugar
3 tablespoons warm cream or milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine all ingredients and beat until well blended.

DONALD SHEFFO'S KOLACZKI

1 pound soft margarine
2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese

Cut soft margarine into flour as you would for pie crust, until it is well mixed and crumbly. Soften cream cheese with fork and add to flour mixture. Mix well, until dough is formed. The best way to mix this is with your hands. When dough is mixed and has pulled away from sides of bowl and formed a ball, refrigerate for several hours or overnight.

When you are ready to bake the cookies, take part of dough and roll out to about 3/16 of an inch thick. Roll in sugar-flour mixture, 2 to 1. Cut dough into squares and dab a small amount of filling (recipe follows) or jelly in the middle and pinch together opposite corners.

Place on cookie sheet and bake in 350 degrees oven for 20 minutes. These cookies do not brown; you have to keep a close watch on them, so as not to burn bottoms. When cookies are cool dust with powdered sugar.

Filling: Put dried apricots into saucepan and add water just to top of apricots. Simmer for 20 to 40 minutes. When apricots are mushy and liquid is absorbed, mash with potato masher. A 1-pound coffee tin of dried apricots will make enough filling for above recipe, with 1 cup left over. Jelly is another alternative, but runs and is messy.

GLORIA TREMOLINI'S ROLLED COOKIES

2 cups flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon cream or milk

Mix 1½ cups flour, baking powder and salt. Set aside. In separate bowl, cream butter until soft. Beat in sugar, egg, vanilla and milk. Stir flour mixture in, then gradually add the remaining ⅛ cup flour until dough is stiff. Chill at least ½ hour. Roll, cut, decorate on floured surface and place on greased cookie sheets. Bake for 10 minutes at 375 to 400 degrees.

RANDI FLYNN'S CREAM-FILLED COOKIES

1 cup butter or margarine
One-third cup whipping cream
2 cups flour
Granulated sugar
Filling (recipe follows)

Mix butter or margarine, cream and flour. Chill. Roll out one-third of the dough at a time and keep rest refrigerated. Roll one-third-inch thick on floured board. Cut with 1½-inch cutter. Transfer cookie rounds to bowl with granulated sugar. Turn each around so each side is coated. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Prick each round with a fork about 4 times. Bake at 375 degrees for 7 to 9 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet and cool completely. Fill to make sandwich cookies.

Filling:
¼ cup soft butter or margarine
¾ cup powdered sugar
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients until well blended. Divide in half and tint with red and green food coloring.

CYNTHIA MOLIN'S SHORTBREAD CHOCOLATE CHIP SURPRISE

2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup mini semisweet chocolate chips

Preheat oven to 350 degreee. Cream softened butter and gradually add sugar, mixing well. Mix flour, salt, baking powder and cinnamon together, then add to butter mixture and mix thoroughly. Add chocolate chips and mix again. Roll into balls or log shapes, putting them on ungreased cookie sheets, pricking each cookie with a fork. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly brown around edges.

PATRICIA LAPIEZO'S FILBERT LEMON LOGS

1 cup sweet butter
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 cup chopped toasted filberts

Cream butter and sugar until light. Add lemon rind, sifted dry ingredients and lemon juice. Mix well and chill several hours. Shape into fingers. Roll in nuts and put on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes.

Sparkling holiday punch features hint of cinnamon

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

For a whistle-wetter that's always ready for a party, steep stick cinnamon in apple and cranberry juice.

Take note: ground cinnamon won't work in this recipe — the flecks of spice muddy the drink's clear sparkle.

At serving time, gently add champagne or ginger ale to the juice mixture. Add a cinnamon-stick stirrer and float an orange-peel star in each cup.

HOLIDAY APPLE FLING

One 14-ounce jar spiced apple rings
One 32-ounce bottle apple juice
One 32-ounce bottle (4 cups) cranberry juice cocktail
1 cup water
4 to 5 inches stick cinnamon
Peel from 1 orange
One 750-milliliter bottle champagne or one 28-ounce bottle ginger ale
Cinnamon sticks (optional)

Drain apple rings, reserving syrup. In a 3-quart container combine reserved syrup, 2 cups of the apple juice, cranberry juice cocktail, water and stick cinnamon. Cover and chill 24 hours. Remove cinnamon. Chill, covered, up to 2 weeks.

In a 4-cup ring mold freeze a little of the remaining apple juice just until slushy (about 30 to 45 minutes). Using a hors d'oeuvre cutter, cut orange peel into stars. Press stars into slushy juice in mold. Center apple rings over stars. Freeze until firm. Add remaining apple juice to mold. Freeze up to 2 weeks.

To serve, unmold ice ring; place in a large punch bowl. Add syrup mixture. Slowly add champagne or ginger ale. Serve immediately with cinnamon stick stirrers, if desired. Makes 24 (4-ounce) servings.

DEAR ABBY

Poinsettias are as safe as they are beautiful

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've always heard that poinsettia plants are poisonous. Every year at Christmastime, I warn friends with small children or pets to avoid poinsettia plants for that reason. Well, last year, my roommate, who is a landscape architect, showed me an article in Landscape Contractor magazine saying that poinsettias are not poisonous. So, please pass this information on to your readers, as I am sure there are many who believe otherwise. — BILL IN ILLINOIS

DEAR BILL: I telephoned several local florists in Los Angeles, asking if the poinsettia plant was poisonous, and was told, "Yes, we think so."

However, Marvella Crabb (her real name), manager of the Florist Information Committee of the Society of American Florists, stated that the poinsettia plant is not poisonous — and she is amazed that this rumor still persists.

Furthermore, according to the American Medical Association, no deaths or serious injuries have been attributed to poinsettia ingestion.

So, after years of being maligned, bad-mouthed and discriminated against, the beautiful poinsettia plant rates a clean bill of health — and comes out smelling like a rose!

DEAR ABBY: I sent for your cookbooklet and just love it. Our 12-year-old son made your fruitcake. It was the best fruitcake we've ever tasted, and he couldn't get over how easy it was to make. We plan to make some for Christmas gifts.

Here's our question: Some of your recipes call for sherry. Abby, two of our close friends are recovering alcoholics. Would using just a few drops of sherry be permissible? — MRS. J.C., COLUMBUS, GA.

DEAR MRS. J.C.: Not even ONE drop of alcohol is permissible for a recovering alcoholic. The sherry is not essential to the fruitcake recipe. Omit it entirely.

DEAR ABBY: This may be a little late, but you're always saying, "Better late than never."

Four years ago, "Buddy," a friend I was very close to at the time, needed $300 in a hurry, so I gave it to him on the promise that he would pay it back "as soon as possible." I didn't ask him to sign a note because I thought that would be an insult, and besides, I knew Buddy was good for it.

Well, he wasn't as "good for it" as I thought he was. He left town because of a job change, and believe it or not, that's the last I heard from him. He has a brother in town, so I called him and asked where I could find Buddy. He told me he didn't know. I wrote to Buddy's last address, hoping my letter would be forwarded to him, but it was returned to me.

Abby, Buddy's brother is a very rich man. Wouldn't you think he would offer to pay the $300 his brother owes me just to protect the family honor? It's chicken feed to him, and I could use the money. So what should I do? — TOO TRUSTING

DEAR TOO TRUSTING: Forget it. "Buddy" apparently has. Also, forget the notion that Buddy's brother should assume Buddy's obligation.

Write it off as tuition in the school of experience. And if you ever lend money again, be sure to get a note stating the terms of repayment.

DEAR ABBY: I have been an avid Dear Abby reader for many years and have never seen this question addressed in your column.

A friend who is soon to be married mentioned to me that she is paying $125 a plate for each guest who will attend her wedding and reception. I have received an invitation to both, and now I am wondering what to give her for a wedding gift. Am I required to give her a gift that would cost at least $125?

I really didn't think it was proper for her to have mentioned her cost, but now that I know, I feel compelled to spend at least that much on the gift. I am not a pauper, but I am far from wealthy, and I would rather not go to the wedding than to appear cheap. — TO GO OR NOT TO GO

DEAR TO GO: A guest is not "required" to give a wedding gift that costs at least as much as the bride spends per plate. I agree, it was not proper for the bride to have mentioned her cost.

Gain weight

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — A chronically underweight person may have a condition such as hyperthyrodism and should have a complete medical workup, says RN Magazine.

If no disease is revealed, the patient can try to gain weight on his own by eating smaller meals more frequently to increase the daily calorie intake. Quitting smoking is also advised as it slows down the metabolic rate.

Finally, the very thin person should consume such calorie-dense items as juice, milk, nuts, cheese, dried fruit and avocados.

Coronado edges Lee in stretch

By DEENE EHLIS
MRT Correspondent

One would think it was in the NBA where you had to watch only the last two minutes of the game to pick up on all the excitement. Midland Lee and Lubbock Coronado struggled for 30 minutes Tuesday night at the Chaparral Center before the Mustangs pulled it out in the last two minutes, 54-51.

The Rebels built a 27-21 halftime lead, but gave up the first eight points of the third period and trailed 29-27 and was outscored 19-7 in the third period to trail 34-40.

Lee's Ed Brown hit a 15-footer and Reagan Gobin countered with a short jumper. Lee's Torval Crisp missed a three pointer, a sign of things to come. With 66 seconds left, Brown fouled the Mustangs' Gogan and he nailed both free throws for a 49-47 Lubbock advantage.

Lee coach Paul Stueckler called for a press, but it backfired when Lubbock when Kenneth Stewart got free for a layup and a 51-49 lead that stood up the rest of the way.

Ed Brown missed a shot and was forced to foul Clark with 17 seconds left. Clark hit both charity tosses and to make it 53-49. David Meade popped in a 16-foot baseline shot, his only two points of the night, with 10 seconds remaining to slice the score down to 53-51.

BROWN was forced to foul again, putting Coronado's Kirish McGrew at the line. McGrew hit the first and missed the second.

Five seconds were left as Torval Crisp launched a shot from the left side, 20-feet away, but missed the three-pointer at the buzzer and the Mustangs had revenge for an earlier three-point loss in Lubbock to Lee.

There was nothing wrong with that last second shot by Crisp according to his coach.

Stueckler said, "I was pretty well pleased with that last five second shot because our best three-point shooter got it. He got it off in plenty of time and he gave us time for a shot on the rebound, so that worked out fine, except it didn't go in."

STUECKLER didn't seem as pleased with his team's play for the game as he was with the contest's final shot.

"We didn't seem as mentally sharp and physically quick as we have been. On the other hand, Coronado knows that we like to play a fast game up and down the court and they kind of established the tempo with their offense. They didn't get us into a running game...they controled the tempo of the game, which I think was the key to the ballgame."

Defense was the key to victory according to Coronado coach Barry Voss. "I think we played a pretty good defensive game tonight. The first time we played Lee (75-72 Rebs in Lubbock), a lot of up and down the floor...but I think we did some things we had to do defensively to win and got a little bit more offense going the second half."

On the game's key basket, the hoop by Stewart through the Lee press, Voss said, "It wasn't anything we drew up, David Cobb did a good job of seeing Stewart open down there and he picked him up and we got an easy basket."

Stueckler had an easy explanation on what happened with his team's press in the final seconds. "Our safety man was not there. We had changed presses and he did not pick up the change. He was at midcourt when he should have been under the basket...a mental mistake."

Midland Lee, 6-3, meets El Paso Bel Air Friday in the Midland College Invitational at the Chap Center.

Ryan signs with Rangers

ATLANTA (AP) — Nolan Ryan, major league baseball's all-time strikeout leader, is leaving the Houston Astros and has agreed to a terms on a two-year contract with the Texas Rangers, sources said.

A news conference announcing the deal was scheduled at baseball's winter meetings.

A Houston radio station, KILT, reported that Ryan, a free agent, was going to the Rangers, and the report was confirmed by the Associated Press.

Reports Tuesday said the Rangers offer was worth $1.4 million for next season and $1.6 million for 1990. The Rangers also would have the option of buyinllion for one season.

San Francisco confirmed it made a two-year offer to Ryan over the weekend. Reportedly, the Giants offered Ryan $1.5 million for 1989 and $1.6 million for 1990 with a $300,000 buyout clause for the 1990 season. Giants general manager Al Rosen, the former Astros' general manager, said he thinks the Giants have an excellent chance to sign Ryan.

Houston, where Ryan has played since 1979, offered him a base salary of $1.15-million base. The Astros informed Ryan they would not offer him salary arbitration.

Rebels no ladies to Lady Mustangs

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

To say the Andrews Lady Mustangs had a hard time of it Tuesday night against the Midland Lee Lady Rebels would be like saying the Dallas Cowboys have had a less than impressive season.

You just can't sum up how rotten the Lady Mustangs' luck went as Midland Lee outdid the visitors 51-27 in non-district girls basketball action at Rebel gym.

This is not to say things were perfect for the Lady Rebels by any means. It's just that Lee made fewer mistakes and the goof-ups Andrews made were far more costly.

IN THE first place, the Lady 'Stangs were unable to mount anything that even remotely resembled a drive. Andrews made just two field goals in each of the first three quarters and only four shots in the final frame. Andrews was held to single digit scoring in each quarter and finished shooting just 20 percent (10 of 50) from the field.

If there was a bright spot for the Mustangs, they hit on 6 of 11 free throws, or 55 percent.

"Defense just gets so many of your shots for you," Lee head coach Shirley Stephenson said. "Our girls were moving very well tonight. But the really important things — defense and rebounding — worked extremely well for us."

QUITE frankly, there were only two eye-openers the whole night. The first came with 3:37 left in the third quarter when Lee's Monica Ramirez, from just beyonf the three-point arc, brutally blocked an attempted shot by Andrews' Pattie Nolen. Ramirez drove the blocked shot home for a lay-up for the Lady Rebs' 40th point of the night.

The only other bright spot came when Andrews' Christia Rogers was called for a technical foul in the third quarter. Lee's England Carter converted both shots to give the Rebs a 43-18 advantage.

Lee's play on the boards was the bright spot of the night. The Lady Rebs out-rebounded Andrews 45-30. Thirty-two of those grabs came in the first half for Lee. Ramirez, from her low post spot, led with 16 rebounds and at the end of the first half, the entire Andrews team had outrebounded Ramirez by just two, 17-15. All 10 Lady Rebels had at least three boards on the night.

WITH THE exception of Ramirez' 24 points, shooting from the field was sparse for both teams. Andrews, now 4-6 on the year, finished hitting 20 percent of its shots; Lee was close behind with just a 30 percent effort. Take away Ramirez' 11-for-19 effort and the Rebs hit only 18 percent from the field as a team.

"Sometimes that's deceiving," Stephenson said of the 30-percent mark. "We shot the ball 63 times so 30 percent's OK. You gotta do what you gotta do. It'd be nice to shoot 60 percent every night but's it's just not going to happen. We had some good, easy shots, and we missed some good, easy shots."

Lee did do just what they had to to win. Since the shooting wasn't coming through as much as Stephenson probably would have liked, defense and play on the boards led the team to its eighth win in 11 tries this season. The Lady Rebs travel to Greenwood for a 6:30 p.m. game Friday. It is the last non-district game of the season before the Rebs open league play Dec. 16 at Odessa Permian.

In junior varsity action, Andrews downed Lee 37-32 Tuesday. The Lady Reb JV, now 2-5 on the season, was led by Sheena Parker and Allison Low, both with seven points, and Ann-Marie Turner, who had six. The JV will play the Greenwood JV Friday at 5 p.m.

Jackson scores 30 as Lady Dogs win

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland High's Lady Bulldogs got a career high 30 points from Kim Jackson Tuesday night at the MHS gym to defeat Lamesa 52-42 and end a four-game losing streak.

Jackson seemed more pleased that the losing streak was over rather than with the fact that she put her best numbers in lights with the 30-point effort.

"The losing streak was getting a little frustrating for the team," said Jackson. "We did things tonight like catching and passing the ball that has been beating us before. I was glad to see all that end."

Jackson scored 20 of her points in the first half when the Lady Bulldogs reeled off 35-15 lead at the half. MHS outscored the Lady Tornadoes by a 22-2 margin in the second period to put the game away. Lamesa closed to within eight points late in the fourth quarter as the MHS offense went back into hibernation.

But the second quarter was something the Lady 'Dogs haven't seen this year. Robin Landreth helped stretch the lead with eight of her 10 points in the second period.

"WE JUST hustled more," said Landreth. "Coach (Jane) Young ran us a lot more in practice and we knew we were in better shape. We've been getting beat in the third quarter and it's still bad there and we're still shooting terrible."

To point out the fact, Landreth hit only two of 10 shots from the field while her teammates were much the same with a 15 for 47 night (32 percent).

But it was a victory and MHS coach Jane Young was pleased with that.

"We played very well in the first half, but I think we lost our intensity in the second half. Our press in the second half wasn't as good as in the first half, either," said Young.

Three of MHS' four recent losses came in last weekend's Tall City tournament.

"I don't want to make excuses, but we opened with champion Lubbock Monterey and then had to play games almost back-to-back and that hurt us a lot. We didn't play well at all in the tournament. It was nice to see the girls hustle more tonight," said Young.

LAMESA, 1-3 for the season, hit only four of 28 shots in the first half while MHS was building a big lead, but the Tors came back in the second half. Stacie Dennis hit 10 of her 12 points in the fourth quarter to spark the Tors. Saresa Butler, normally a good scorer for Lamesa, ended the night with eight points, hitting only four of 19 from the field.

Jackson said of her 30-point effort, "I've never, ever had 30 points in a game at any level, but we worked on getting me the ball inside this week and they got it to me."

Jackson could have even had higher numbers. She hit 11 of 23 shots from the field, but some were easy A-zone tries that were a little flat.

"This was a great game for Kim, but she did miss some easy shots," said Young.

The MHS girls carry a 3-6 record to Hobbs, N.M., Friday for their next outing.

In junior varsity action, Lamesa took a 53-23 victory with Pepper Richman leading the way with 17 points. No one for Midland High was in double figures.

Lamesa (42): Jane Brown 1 2-2 4; Stacie Dennis 5 2-3 12; Trish Wright 2 0-2 4; Saresa Butler 4 0-2 8; Jeanie Lester 3 1-2 7; Kendra Williams 0 0-4 0; Tiffany Meeks 0 2-2 0; Stacey Butler 2 0-3 4; LaQuita Jimerson 0 0-2 0; Amy Felts 0 1-2 1. Totals 17 8-20 42

Carter 'mess' indicative of UIL's diminishing authority

Williamson

The one unescapable fact is that Odessa Permian is alive and well in the Class 5A state football semifinals. At this writing, Mojo is to meet Dallas Carter at 2 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Austin Saturday.

Carter is still dragging its dirty laundry through the courts, leaving team after team wondering if the Cowboys will show up on any given day, much like the rest of us wonder about the "other" Cowboys in Dallas.

This is a mess that shouldn't be. I fear for the athletic system we have in this state. The University Interscholastic League is losing power with each passing year. No longer is the UIL the final judge in matters of athletics.

The UIL should be able to decide who is in its playoffs — and not the court system or the Texas Education Agency. Now the courts seem to have more power at deciding playoff fates than does the UIL. And you know how long it takes the courts to decide anything.

I know little about the merits of the Carter case. But that really isn't important. I know big trouble is on the horizon. It won't be long before the courts are going to be asked to rule on the rulings of umpires during regular season games. Where will we be then?

To play games, you need quick decisions by persons who know the rules. Those decisions are sometimes wrong, but at least, those decisions are followed as a basis of sanity in athletics. The UIL should be our basis of sanity in all athletic matters, right or wrong. The only alternative to that conclusion is confusion — and we have plenty of that right now.

BUT THERE is good news on the athletic front for Midlanders. Three former Midland Lee athletes rose to great heights this past week at various stages of their college careers.

Tyrone "Smurf" Thurman was named to the All-Southwest Conference team from Texas Tech as a punt return specialist and as a second team wide receiver. Nebraska's Jake Young was named All-Big Eight center in his junior year and Eastern New Mexico's Anthony Pertile was a uninamous selection to the All-Lone Star Conference secondary.

Thurman, known far and wide as the smallest regular duty player in college football, was a 1,000-yard rusher for Lee in 1984. He literally re-wrote kickoff and punt return history in the SWC. He will always be remembered here, however, as a big star in four games against Odessa Permian, including his "dribble sweep" touchdown against Mojo in the 1983 state quarterfinals. Thurman has played his last game at Tech.

YOUNG, who blossomed at Lee in 1985 when he gained something like 30 pounds in the off-season, was an All-State player at Lee as an offensive guard. Jake has now put himself in position to fight for the pretigious Outland Trophy as a senior next year. It's certain, barring injury and a Cornhusker "El Foldo", that he will be a near concensus All-America pick next year.

Pertile has set the LSC on its head as a sophomore. It's really something to be a unanamous pick in your sophomore season. Says Lee assistant football coach Eddie Wolski, "I think the major colleges really missed out on this one. I always thought Anthony had the ability to play at a major college. He's proving that now."

Quick now, what major league team holds the season record for saves? And remember, Dick Radatz pitched for the Boston Red Sox and Sparky Lyle pitched for the New York Yankees....

Hubbell died recently a few days after his auto struck a utility pole in Mesa, Ariz. Officials theorized he had suffered a stroke.

A few years back, talking to King Carl watching a minor league exhibition, he mentioned he had had a stroke and was gradually coming back, although he had to think out everything he did, even walking with a cane.

The reason he retired to Mesa, he said, "is because I can watch baseball eight months out of the year."

Take heart, if you are on the Boston Celtics' season ticket waiting list, there were three cancellations after last season. Boston just won't support a loser?....

Want to fuel a heated debate? Since Odessa Permian is in the state 5A playoffs by virtue of a coin toss and Midland is out for the same reason, if the Panthers go on to win the state championship, does that mean there will be co or tri state champions?

4-5A swim title on line

From Staff Reports

District 4-5A's dual season swimming titles will be decided at COM's Mabee Memorial Swim Center on North A Street Thursday night when Midland High, Midland Lee and San Angelo square off in a triangular swim competition.

The Lee, MHS and San Angelo girls all own perfect 4-0 district marks coming into the competition. A champion will leave.

The Midland High and San Angelo boys also own perfect 4-0 marks while the Lee boys are 2-2 and have enough talent to help decide who is No. 1 when all is said and done.

The diving action will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the MHS pool. Action then moves to the COM pool for the 7 p.m. swimming competition.

"It should be a real barn burner," says MHS coach Jesse Marsh. "Both the boys and the girls titles could go either way. I think it will come down to just how the relays perform for each school."

This is the last fall meet of the season for both MHS and Lee. San Angelo has one other meet left on its district schedule. But Thursday's winners will undoubtedly wear 4-5A championship crowns for 1988.

Tour de Trump in works

NEW YORK (AP) — When he was at first approached about promoting a Tour de France-style bicycle race in the United States, entrepreneur Donald Trump said, "You have absolutely got to be kidding."

There the race will pass through New York City, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Delaware, covering about 900 miles.

Scheduled to participate are 18 international pro and amateur teams. Purse money will be $200,000.

Blaylock's 30 paces Oklahoma over SMU

Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — Mookie Blaylock, former Midland College star, tied his career high with 30 points — 21 coming on 3-point shots — as sixth-ranked Oklahoma beat Southern Methodist 104-87 Tuesday night.

Stacey King added 24 points and Andre Wiley had a career-high 20 as the Sooners of the Big Eight Conference improved to 3-1. Southern Methodist of the Southwest Conference got 27 points each from Eric Longino and Kato Armstrong but dropped to 1-2.

Blaylock scored 11 points during a 90-second stretch of the first half in giving the Sooners a 23-17 lead. Then five Oklahoma players scored in a 13-6 run that made the score 36-23 with seven minutes left in the half.

UT-El Paso 72, Prairie View 54

EL PASO — Ken Hardaway scored 20 points, and Texas-El Paso, 6-0, held Prairie View, 1-3, without a field goal for nearly 10 minutes in the second half.

Antonio Davis added 18, David VanDyke 15 and Jerry Johnson 10 for UTEP.

Texas 119, Oral Roberts 91

TULSA, Okla. — Alvin Heggs topped six Texas players in double-digit scoring Tuesday night with 25 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead the Longhorns, 4-1.

Pat Durham paced Colorado State with 19 points.

Judge rules Carter OK

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge ruled Tuesday that a high school football player is eligible to play football for Dallas Carter, allowing the school to continue its bid for a state football championship.

"Were they fudging to make him eligible to play football?" Judge Paul Davis said in announcing his decision. "I can't find any evidence of that."

Carter will play Odessa Permian in the Class 5A state semifinals Saturday at Memorial Stadium in Austin.

The judge's decision ended more than one month of controversy over the eligibility of Gary Edwards, whose grade in algebra class was changed from a failing to a passing grade as a result of confusion over grading symbols.

At a hearing of the Texas Education Agency and the University Interscholastic League last month, TEA Commissioner William Kirby ruled Edwards ineligible under the state's no-pass, no-play rule. Hours later, Carter and Dallas Independent School District officials obtained a temporary restraining order that allowed Carter to continue play, pending the court hearing that began Thursday.

"In my opinion, the commissioner of education for the state of Texas should not be in the business of looking into assigning of grades," Davis said.

Running Eagles speed past Bulldogs, 112-68

Midland High jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead, but as far as leads go, that was the last one for the 'Dogs the entire game. Hobbs then put on an impressive 11-0 spurt and led MHS 11-2 with just over two minutes gone in the first quarter.

The Bulldogs were led by Aundria Shaw, who had 16 points. Greg Lewis (14) and Dexture Young (12) combined for an additional 28 points to pace the Pack.

Hobbs improved its season to 2-2; Midland High falls to 4-4.

Sports in Brief

Football

STILLWATER, Okla. — Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders was credited with an additional 75 yards after a review of videotape from Sunday's 45-42 Oklahoma State victory over Texas Tech in Toyko.

Sanders was originally credited with 257 yards rushing. The videotape revealed that two running plays were incorrectly credited as pass receptions by Sanders giving him a career-high 332 yards rushing on 44 carries.

NEW YORK — Former Yale halfback Clint Frank, the 1937 Heisman Trophy winner and member of the College Football Hall of Fame, received the National Football Foundation's Gold Medal.

Baseball

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles have been sold for $70 million to a partnership of four men, including former vice presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver and acting team president Larry Lucchino.

The sale by Mrs. Agnes Williams, the widow of Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams, must be approved by three-quarters of the American League owners and a majority of National League owners.

Mrs. Williams inherited the team when her husband died in August.

MAJORS

MURPHY attracted more attention, with the New York Mets and San Diego Padres intensifying their efforts to work a deal with Atlanta. Among the Mets who interest the Braves are Len Dykstra, Howard Johnson, Keith Miller and rookie pitcher David West.

The Mets' talks with Atlanta stalled and New York turned its attention to Cleveland's Joe Carter.

Another big star, Dave Winfield, is likely to stay with the New York Yankees. Minnesota inquired about the 37-year-old Winfield and Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, a constant source of aggravation for Winfield, said the big hitter was "getting older and this might be the last chance to trade him."

But Twins general manager Andy MacPhail said the trade "was as close to being dead as it could be."

The action around Hurst and Ryan, however, was quite lively. The Angels made a $1.8 million offer plus incentives to Ryan, the highest yet, and said they would match any offer Hurst gets. California on Tuesday increased its offer to Hurst to $5.5 million for three years, up from $4.9 million.

Hurst earlier was said to be leaning toward San Diego, which Tuesday increased its offer to $5.25 million for three years from $4.7 million. Boston, Hurst's former club, is expected to make a late pitch for their ace left-hander. On Tuesday the Red Sox increaed their offer by $500,000 to $5.5 million, matching the Angels.

MEANWHILE, Mike Schmidt and Philadelphia worked out their differences on a one-year contract that will guarantee him $500,000, according to Schmidt's agent, Arthur Rosenberg. Schmidt could earn another $1.3 million in performace bonuses — $500,000 if he is able to play May 15, $500,000 if he is able to play Aug. 15, $150,000 if he starts 130 games, and $150,000 more for starting 140.

In ownership activity, the Orioles were sold by Mrs. Agnes Williams, widow of the late Edward Bennett Williams. Jacobs will be the principal shareholder with Luccino, Shriver and Robert Shriver Jr. also having shares.

"Baltimore is a great baseball town. The new ownership will be dedicated to the rebuilding and future success of the franchise," Luccino said.

The sale must be approved by three-quarters of American League owners and a majority of National League owners. AL President Bobby Brown said a decision would be reached within 90 days and approval is expected.

But no decision was reached on the sale of the Rangers. Brown said the matter would be considered again in late January.

1949 — Leon Hart of Notre Dame becomes the second lineman to win the Heisman Trophy. Considered by some to be the finest end ever. An outstanding blocker and tackler, Hart carried the ball on end-around plays and was extremely effective from the fullback spot. Notre Dame never lost a game in his four years.

1973 — Jerry West of Los Angeles sets an NBA record with 10 steals in the Lakers' 115-111 loss to the Seattle Supersonics.

1985 — Auburn tailback Bo Jackson beats Iowa quarterback Chuck Long by only 45 points in the balloting for the Heisman Trophy, the closest vote in the 51-year history of the trophy.

GRIFFITH EYES TCU— Arizona offensive coordinator Ben Griffith resigned, reportedly with an eye on a job at Texas Christian. Child safety advocate Edward Swartz fires a motorized cap machine pistol during a press conference Tuesday in Boston. He released his annual list of the "Ten Worst Toys." The pistol he is demonstrating carries warnings that it should not be fired closer than one foot from the ear and should not be used without parental supervision. Swartz says a toy carrying those warning shouldn't be given to children at all.

BOSTON (AP) — Ten toys ranging from a one-dollar play sword to a $100-plus motorized riding toy are dangerous and should be kept out of children's reach, a consumer advocate said.

"Toys that maim and kill still flood the marketplace," lawyer Edward Swartz said Tuesday in releasing his 17th annual pre-Christmas "10 Worst Toys" list and urging the government to impose stricter toy safety standards.

But a Consumer Product Safety Commission spokeswoman defended the government's efforts.

"We do what we can with the resources we have," said Anne Pavlich. She said the government doesn't clear toys for sale, but depends on people like Swartz "to let us know which toys they feel are not safe."

Manufacturers said at least two of the toys listed have been discontinued, but may still be on store shelves:

■ The "Sweetheart" battery-operated riding toy by Power Wheels, which Swartz blasted for its potential speed of 5 mph and six-volt rechargeable batteries housed in unsecured areas. The product was discontinued because it resembles the three-wheeled all-terrain vehicles banned this year, said Chip Herman, vice president of Kransco Corp., which marketed it.

■ The Battle Beasts Warrior Sword, discontinued because of poor sales, said Bernie Epstein, senior vice president of Imperial Toy Corp. of Los Angeles.

One popular nursery toy made Swartz's list, the Johnny Jump Up Baby Exerciser by Evenflo Juvenile Furniture Co. The swinglike seat is clamped to the top of a doorway, and Swartz said an infant could severely be injured by hitting the side of the doorway.

Toy weapons under fire by Swartz included Guarantee Distributors' .22 Caliber Pellet Firing Target Pistol and the Challenger Rubberband Target Shooter, made by the Artner Corp. of Boisie, Ind., which can shoot a rubber band up to 25 feet.

Attack Force, Strombecker Corp.'s motorized cap machine pistol, carries warnings that it should not be fired closer than one foot to the ear, should not be used without adult supervision and that its roll caps may be hazardous if misused. Swartz said a toy with those warnings shouldn't be sold.

Guarantee Distributors officials did not return a telephone call and an attempt to reach Artner for a response was unsuccessful because its number has been disconnected.

Swartz said four toys made the list because of small parts that could choke a child:

■ "My Train," a wooden train set, by Montgomery Schoolhouse of Vermont.

■ A Burger King Cheeseburger Set, by Multi Toys Corp.

■ Paddington's 30th Anniversary Bear, by Eden Toys Inc.

■ My Ladybird First Pull Along Puzzle, by Berchet.

Leonard Gilman, vice president of sales for Multi Toys, said the cheeseburger set was tested by Lab Test Hong Kong Ltd. to meet U.S. safety standards.

Eden Toys Chairman David Miller said the bear is safe and has passed all standards.

Mine owners favor decision of court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal mine owners are generally pleased with a Supreme Court ruling shielding them and their insurance companies from paying up to $13.6 billion in additional black lung benefits but an attorney for miners claimed a partial victory.

The justices ruled 9-0 on Tuesday that a group of miners estimated to number between 94,000 and 155,000 is ineligible to seek disability benefits for the disease. The group consists of those who missed deadlines for filing court appeals after they were denied benefits.

But Solomons said a second part of the Supreme Court's ruling will spur additional litigation for a smaller number of miners hoping to receive benefits.

In that section, the justices voted 5-4 to permit some miners who worked less than 10 years in the mines to seek disability pay for black lung disease, or pneumoconiosis, a respiratory ailment caused by prolonged inhaling of coal dust.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 miners with pending claims could be in line to receive hundreds of millions of dollars in benefits under that part of the high court decision.

The court said even if miners have less than 10 years on the job, they are presumed to be eligible for benefits if they display medical evidence of the disease.

Paul Smith, a lawyer representing miners, said the ruling is a significant — if only partial — victory for the workers.

"The presumption makes a big difference," he said, because it shifts the burden of proof to the government to deny such claims. "It's very difficult to prove you are disabled by black lung disease," he said.

Congress created a special industry-supported fund to pay off claims by miners with the disease. Coal mine operators already owe the fund some $3 billion that was lent to it by the federal treasury.

"There is not even a colorable basis for the contention that Congress has imposed a duty to reconsider finally determined claims," he said.

But Scalia said Congress also never intended to exclude from benefit eligibility miners who worked less than 10 years.

"We do not sit to determine what Congress ought to have done given the evidence before it, but to apply what Congress enacted — and ... the exclusion of short-term miners from the benefits ... finds no support" in a 1977 law aimed at making it easier for miners to seek benefits, Scalia said.

■ Threw out an appeal by an unwed California father seeking to restore a parental relationship with his 7-year-old daughter. Eight days after hearing arguments in Edward McNamara's case, the court dismissed the appeal for procedural reasons and left unanswered whether unwed fathers have the same parental rights as unwed mothers.

■ Ruled unanimously that federal employees holding sensitive intelligence-agency jobs are not entitled to administrative hearings when fired as security risks. The justices reversed a ruling requiring a hearing for a National Security Agency employee who says he was dismissed for homosexual activities.

Panel suggests possible curbs on alcohol advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The portrayal of alcoholic beverages in national advertising likely contributes to underage drinking, and government limits on such ads eventually may be needed, according to a group studying alcohol use by minors.

The National Commission Against Drunken Driving suggested in a report released Tuesday that if the alcohol and advertising industries do not impose reforms "legislation should be enacted to regulate alcohol beverage advertising."

The panel did not say what kind of regulation it envisioned or how much time the industry should be given to make changes in its alcohol advertising.

The report is part of a continuing examination by the commission of efforts to curb drunken driving. The commission was formed five years ago to continue where a presidential commission on drunken driving left off.

During a series of public hearings around the country, repeated testimony from teen-agers indicated a link between advertisements and a widespread view among young people that alcohol is a normal part of a social event, the report said.

V.J. Adduci, commission chairman, said at a news conference the panel was not suggesting the need for immediate government intervention in alcoholic beverage advertising, but wanted to send a message to the industries involved to "take a look at your advertising" and "act like a parent" when putting together ads widely watched by youngsters too young to legally purchase alcoholic drinks.

Bob Hallahan, a spokesman for the National Association of Broadcasters said his group agreed with Adduci's comments. "He's not looking for any legislation, but with working with the industry," said Hallahan. He noted that his organization, which opposes advertising curbs, also is represented on the commission.

A spokeswoman for the Association of National Advertisers said the group would have no comment because it had not seen the commission report. Officials of the Beer Institute could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

The report noted that between 1982 and 1987 the number of alcohol-related fatalities among people under 21 declined by 21.9 percent, but "drinking and driving continues to be the number one killer of teenagers."

Last year the alcohol-related highway fatality rate was 19 per 100,000 for those under 21 years of age compared to 11 per 100,000 for those 21 years or older, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — More human rights workers were killed or suffered persecution in countries under freely elected leaders than in dictatorships of either the left or the right, according to a survey of abuse cases.

The most violence directed against those trying to preserve human rights during the past year came in the 3-year-old democracy of the Philippines, while the Soviet Union showed some of the greatest progress in support of human rights, said the 217-page report released Tuesday by Human Rights Watch.

The report for 1988 documented 750 cases of persecution against people monitoring human rights in 61 countries, including 30 killings or deaths under detention, three disappearances and 16 killings of people associated with human rights monitors. The number of deaths was more than triple that found in the first such survey last year, but officials said the higher figures reflect increased human rights activity rather than increased repression.

"The country which unfortunately looms largest in terms of violence to human rights monitors is the Philippines," said Aryeh Neier, Human Rights Watch executive director, at a news conference.

Nine of the deaths and two of the disappearances were in the Philippines. Columbia led a similar survey last year as the most dangerous country for pursuing human rights.

Neier said President Corazon Aquino's overthrow of 20-year ruler Ferdinand Marcos in February 1986 brought hope for change, but new civilian governments often are "either too weak or lack the political will" to protect their people against abuses by the military and other forces.

"The largest number of cases do not take place in dictatorships of either the right or the left who seem able to maintain control without resorting to extreme forms of violence against human rights monitors," Neier said.

Other countries with elected civilian governments and serious human rights problems include Brazil, Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Peru and Sri Lanka, said Neier, director of the group which includes Americas Watch, Asia Watch and Helsinki Watch. It also is setting up Africa Watch and Middle East Watch to document and combat human rights abuses in those regions.

In both years covered by the group, the largest number of persecutions — not necessarily leading to death — were in South Africa, Chile, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union, the report said.

B-52s may return to air

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — The Strategic Air Command lifted its grounding of its aging fleet of B-52s imposed after the crash of a bomber during a training flight that sent eight crewmen to the hospital.

The cause of early Tuesday's crash at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base remained under investigation, said Capt. Paul Bicking, a spokesman for the SAC base in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

SAC grounded its fleet of about 260 B-52s as a precaution so their fuel systems could be inspected. The grounding was lifted Tuesday night and some of the bombers could be cleared to fly as early as today, said Lt. Col. George Peck, a spokesman at SAC headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb.

The B-52 broke into three parts about 1:15 a.m. EST Tuesday during practice "touch-and-go" landings that followed a seven-hour training flight, said Sgt. Naomi Siegel, a Sawyer spokeswoman. In a touch-and-go, the plane immediately takes off again rather than slowing down.

No weapons were aboard the plane, which is equipped to carry nuclear bombs, officials said.

Four crewmen were treated at Marquette General Hospital and three were transported to the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base Medical Center in Dayton, Ohio, Bicking said.
