Cullen Davis Jailed On Murder Attempt Charge

FORT WORTH (AP) — Millionaire T. Cullen Davis, who was acquitted in Texas' longest, costliest and perhaps most lurid murder trial, was charged Sunday with trying to arrange the killing of the judge who is hearing his wife's divorce suit, a district attorney said.

Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry said Davis was arrested Sunday morning after a meeting with an employee who allegedly gave him a .22-caliber pistol with a homemade silencer attached.

The employee, David McCrory, had been wired for sound at several meetings with Davis, police sources said. Curry said McCrory furnished an affidavit in which he said that "within the last four days" Davis discussed with him "hiring a hit man to kill the judge presiding in his divorce case."

That judge is Tarrant County District Judge Joe Eidson. Davis' socialite wife Priscilla, 36, has rejected Davis' offer of $1.5 million for the divorce settlement.

McCrory, 40, was identified as an employee of one of the companies owned by the Davis family. Davis is a partner in Ken Davis Industries, a conglomerate that includes Mid-Continent Oil Gas Supply.

Curry did not say what motive Davis might have for having the judge killed. Eidsen recently approved Mrs. Davis' request to postpone the trial from Aug. 14 to Sept. 18.

She filed for divorce in 1974 after Davis moved out of their $6 million mansion. He shares a middle-class suburban home with longtime companion Karen Master, 29.

Curry said his office was tipped to the alleged murder-for-hire plot by the FBI last Thursday, and Eidson was alerted and provided with 24-hour police protection beginning last Friday.

Curry said Davis is charged with solicitation of capital murder, a first degree felony punishable by not less than five years nor more than 99 years in the state penitentiary.

A second charge, alleging illegal possession of a prohibited weapon, was also filed. That charge is a second degree felony punishable by not less than two nor more than 20 years in prison.

Curry said Davis was being held in the Torrant County Jail. He said evidence seized included a firearm silencer and $25,000 in $100 bills.

Curry said he would file a motion Monday to deny bond.

Sunday's charges were filed precisely two years from the day Davis was charged with two counts of capital murder and two counts of attempted murder in connection with the bloody night of Aug. 2, 1976, at the mansion.

Davis, 44, was acquitted last fall in Amarillo of the murder of his 12-year-old stepchild Andrea Wilborn, Mrs. Davis' daughter.

Mrs. Master served as a key defense witness in the murder trial, at which Mrs. Davis testified that she and her companion, Stan Farr, 31, arrived home at midnight to find bloody handprints on walls, the girl's body and a man lurking behind a door, dressed in black and wearing a woman's wig.

The man shot at them, Mrs. Davis said, and Farr was killed. Mrs. Davis was seriously wounded. A family friend, Gus Gavrel, 23, was paralyzed.

Mrs. Davis accused her husband, and Davis was arrested at the home of Mrs.

377 Perish In Fire At Iranian Theater

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A fire apparently set by Islamic extremists tore through a theater in the southwestern Iranian port city of Abadan killing at least 377 persons, most of them youngsters.

Police said the theater's only exit had been locked as an anti-terrorist measure, trapping the frantic, screaming but helpless crowd Saturday night.

A survivor said many of the victims were trampled to death. Authorities said between 20 and 40 escaped, some through a roof exit.

Police said the arsonists poured gasoline around the outside of the theater, then ignited it after some of it had seeped inside.

The search for more victims in the charred theater continued Sunday as many of the victims, their bodies burned beyond recognition, were buried.

Police said entire families were wiped out.

Investigators say they strongly suspect the arsonists were Moslem reactionaries opposed to state-ordered religious reforms and to attendance at movies during the current Moslem holy month of Ramadan.

Movie-Goers Escape Heat

It was a hot, muggy night in Abadan, an oil-refining city of 335,000 on the northern tip of the Persian Gulf. The crowd had gathered at the Rex Theater to see the Persian-language film "The Deer" and to escape the heat in the air conditioned hall. Iranians often attend movies only to escape the heat.

The fire broke out "from all sides of the hall," said Gholam-Hussein Nemayandeh, 20, who escaped with minor burns through a roof exit.

About 10,000 foreigners, including many Americans, live in Abadan but police said none was believed in the theater, which is in a poorer, working class district of the city.

In a recent fire disaster in the United States, 165 persons died or were fatally burned in a blaze at the Beverly Hills Supper Club in Southgate, Ky., May 28, 1976. The largest number of fatalities recorded in a fire in a U.S. building was on Dec. 30, 1903, when 602 persons perished at the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

China Fire Worst Ever

The worst fire in history, according to reference books, killed 1,670 persons at a theater in Canton, China, in 1845.

Police scoured Abadan for those responsible for setting the fire, but reported no arrests.

The theater attendent, Hamid Payan, was arrested, as was owner Ali Naderi. Charges were not announced. But there was speculation they might be charged with negligence.

Locking the doors of public assembly places is a common anti-terrorist measure in Iran. A time bomb went off in the basement of the burned theater two months ago, and police said Payan told them he feared another attack. There were no fatalities in that bombing.

The Shah of Iran, Mohammad Rezi Pahlavi, in a message to families of the victims, promised severe punishment for the arsonists.

Since Ramadan started Aug. 8 extremist religious leaders have been addressing mass rallies throughout the nation urging Iranians to attend prayer sessions at mosques instead of watching movies or television and not to eat in restaurants. Reports from Abadan said the fire followed such a meeting there.

Other Fires Attributed

At least six theater fires have been attributed to the extremists since Ramadan started. Ramadan is a month of fasting during daylight hours for devout Moslems.

The extremists, who seek a ban on all alcohol in keeping with Moslem teachings, also have wrecked liquor stores, nightclubs and restaurants.

The reactionary Moslems stepped up their campaign about eight months ago to oppose the shah's reforms that emancipated women and moved control of massive tracts of farmland from Moslem leaders to peasants.

About 100 have been reported killed in riots opposing the reforms.

The shah pledged to crush the riots and continue the reforms.

An angry crowd of 2,000 gathered outside the police station a half block from the theater Sunday to demand the expulsion of the religious leaders.

FEWER 1978 SANDSTORMS

Changing Weather Pattern Not All Bad News For Area

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SOUTH PLAINS residents have shuddered in freezing record-low temperatures and shoveled record snowfalls from their sidewalks during the first months of 1978, only to swelter in scorching record-high temperatures during the past summer months.

But there is a bright spot to this year's weather — we have had fewer and less intense sandstorms.

The decreased number of dusty days this year was a surprise to most, including weather and wind erosion experts throughout the area.

Texas Tech professors in fields affected by weather had warned students of a severe spring, and Billy Fryrear, a soil erosion expert for the U.S. Department of Agriculture field station at Big Spring, predicted 84 days of blowing dust this year compared to 1977's total of 29.

But records of the National Weather Service (NWS) and Lubbock Soil Conservation Area headquarters indicate this year's dust storms so far have been less

CHICK IT OUT — An unnamed goat, wandering around loose near E. 46th Street and Globe Avenue posed obligingly for A-J photographer Dennis Copeland beside a sign advertising baby chicks for sale Sunday, possibly giving some thought to the possibility that the chick sign just might attract someone who might be interested in buying and, in turn, appeasing the appetite of a hungry goat.

Motel, Store Hit By Armed Robbers

By PAT TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MRS. TULIA Brashears, who is 74 years old today, got a shoddy birthday surprise Sunday evening when two men, one of them armed with a knife, robbed her at the Cactus Inn Motel, 401 N. University Ave.

The 6:20 p.m. holdup was the second in the city Sunday and the 180th such incident this year, according to police.

Mrs. Brashears, manager of the motel, was very shaken Sunday following the holdup, a companion said. The incident marked the second time in eight months the elderly motel manager has been victimized by robbers.

Police said the two men, both described as Mexican-Americans, pushed the buzzer at the motel office door and were let in by Mrs. Brashears.

Inquire About Room

After inquiring about a "room for two," one of the men began looking over the rate schedule while his companion waited on a small porch outside.

Seconds later, police said, the bandit followed Mrs. Brashears, a widow, behind the counter and displayed a small knife.

The man reportedly then forced the victim into her quarters adjacent and shoved her down on a couch.

After closing her door, the bandit returned to the lobby where he took an estimated $25. The suspect, dressed in blue jeans, a white T-shirt and a green, spotted cap then rejoined his companion, who wore cutoffs.

The pair climbed into a waiting brown Dodge Charger, its rear window obscured by black tape except for a small, diamond-shaped area. The car then sped west on Cornell Street, a witness said.

7-Eleven Robbed

Earlier Sunday, at 7:10 a.m., two black males in their late 20s, entered the 7-Eleven Store, 313 N. Detroit Ave., and terrorized a female clerk with a box cutter before slipping away with $25 in rolled $1 bills.

Manager Don Bonneville, who drove up at the store while the robbery was in progress, said one of the men reportedly stepped behind the counter with the clerk and told her, "Honky ..., if you don't give me your money, I'm going to slit your throat."

As the manager drove up, one of the suspects reportedly told the woman to "be cool"

When Bonneville asked why the man was behind the counter with the woman, the clerk replied that the man was her boyfriend, police said.

Seconds later, however, the woman stepped away from the suspect and followed the manager to the rear of the store, despite warnings from the bandit.

In the meantime, a witness told police later, one of the men struggled to gain entry to the cash register, dislodging a "total" button as he pried the machine.

Finding a roll of dollar bills, the man reportedly grabbed the small bundle and left on foot with his partner.

Sharpshooters Aid Probe Of JFK Assassination

DALLAS (AP) — Police marksmen fired rifles and pistols into Dealey Plaza Sunday from the old Texas School Book Depository and the adjacent "grassy knoll" as acoustical experts working for the House Select Committee on Assassinations probed the 1963 killing of President John Kennedy.

An Italian rifle similar to the Mannlicher-Carcano that the Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald used to gun down Kennedy spat out the first shot just after dawn. The round struck one of three piles of sandbags placed at the approximate positions where Kennedy was hit.

More shots followed from the sixth-floor window from where Oswald is said to have fired.

Newsmen perched on a nearby rooftop watched the action, then heard the ninth shot from a different direction and at a markedly lower volume.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw later confirmed that the marksmen were also firing a .38 pistol from a fence behind the grassy knoll. Several theorists have said shots were fired from there during the assassination.

50 Microphones Placed

Batteries of more than 50 microphones had been placed around the plaza by employees of the Boston firm of Bolt, Beranek and Newman, which analyzed the 18 1/2-minute gap in Richard Nixon's White House tapes.

Dr. James Barger of the Boston company spoke briefly with newsmen and said the recordings would be analyzed in Boston and the results turned over to the Assassinations Committee by Sept. 1.

"Standard electronics will be used," Barger said, repeatedly refusing to speculate about what might be heard.

Triggered By Police "Blips"

The tests were triggered by the recent discovery of audio "blips" on a police recording made during the assassination. There were indications that the recording, made by an unidentified motorcycle officer whose microphone stuck in the "open" position, revealed that four shots were fired.

The Warren Commission report said that Oswald, acting alone, fired three shots into the presidential motorcade. Experts generally agree that a fourth shot would mean another gunman was involved.

In all, more than 40 shots were fired in three separate programs as technicians changed the placement of microphones, generally tracing the motorcade route toward the "triple underpass." The entire project took more than six hours.

Officers C.L. Metcalf, Jerry Compton and Tom Knighten fired the shots. "I had 12 hits," Metcalf said afterward. "I fired all my shots from the knoll. The pistol shots from there were all hits," too.

Compton said the bolt-action Italian rifles weren't hard to fire. "It's not much

CHECKING THE TARGET—A Dallas Police Department sharpshooter looks down the site of his rifle from the window in the Texas School Book Depository Building from which Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed President John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963. The riflemen fired shots into sandbags in the street below so accoustics experts could record the sound. When the actual firing was done the window was closed halfway so the shots were fired under the same conditions as those that killed the president. (AP Laserphoto)

Black Minister Assails Carter In Church

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter attended Sunday church services where the Rev. Clennon King, a member of the audience, accused him of interfering with King's efforts to build his own church.

King, of Albany, Ga., a black minister who was denied membership in the Plains Baptist Church almost two years ago, followed the president into the Fellowship Baptist Church here and stood up during the service, alleging that Carter stopped construction of the church he planned to build in Carter's hometown of Plains, 10 miles away.

"I did not even know about it," Carter told reporters after the service he attended with his mother, Miss Lillian. "I hope he gets his church built."

The president planned a relaxing day Sunday with church services and an afternoon softball game on his schedule. He arrived in his hometown of Plains Friday to begin a two-week vacation that will take him to Idaho Monday for a wild river ride and then on to the Grand Tetons in Wyoming.

Carter avoided attending either the Plains Baptist Church, to which he used to belong, or the Maranatha Baptist Church that was formed by a splinter group from the Plains Church after King was denied membership.

Instead, the president drove 10 miles to Americus to worship at the church his mother joined last year.

King had distributed leaflets to reporters before the service, and tried to give one to the president before Carter sat down inside. Instead, a Secret Service agent took it and asked King to leave. But King said he wanted to attend the service and took a seat two pews behind Carter.

After the pastor, the Rev. William Givens, had introduced some guests, King rose to introduce himself.

He announced that an unidentified millionaire offered to build a church for him in Plains but that Carter stopped it.

"I love the president and he loves me," King declared. "But he's listening to the wrong Negroes."

Carter did not turn around during the incident. King remained throughout the rest of the service.

After the service, reporters asked King for proof of his allegation. He replied he just knew it was true.

Carter and his 80-year-old mother drove to a restaurant outside Plains to meet First Lady Rosalynn Carter, daughter Amy and Mrs. Carter's mother, Allie Smith, for lunch. Mrs. Carter and her mother had attended a worship service at a Methodist church in Plains.

King's unsuccessful attempt to join the Plains Baptist Church led to the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. Bruce Edwards, who had called for the all-white church to be integrated.

AGING CONGRESS BEGINS

TOKYO (AP) — The International Congress on Gerontology, the study of aging, got underway Sunday minus 500 American and European delegates who pulled out because of financial problems caused by the declining value of the dollar in Japan. About 2,000 scientists from 46 countries are attending the conference. Many would-be participants canceled their visit to Japan, complaining that the foreign exchange rate meant it cost too much in dollars to make the trip.

D.C. Voting On Senate Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a natural gas deregulation bill off the calendar until after an upcoming recess, the Senate faces a decision this week on whether to endorse full congressional representation for the District of Columbia.

The House, meanwhile, enters the first full week of its Labor Day recess.

The Senate is due to continue on Monday the debate on whether Washington, D.C. should be granted two senators and one or two voting members in the House. The number of representatives is determined by population.

A vote on the question has been set for 6 p.m. Tuesday with supporters predicting its passage.

The change in the voting status for the nation's capital is contained in a proposed constitutional amendment which would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

The amendment has already been approved by the House and affirmative votes by two-thirds of the Senate members are needed to launch the ratification process.

District residents have been allowed to vote for president and vice president only within the last 18 years.

They have not had a voting representative in Congress at any time since Washington became the nation's capital in 1800.

The district does elect one nonvoting delegate to Congress.

The district's population of some 705,000 is larger than that of seven states.

Majority Leader Robert Byrd said the Senate won't act upon the natural gas portion of the president's energy package until some time in September.

The legislation, which had been a candidate for action this week, would allow the gradual deregulation of gas prices by 1985 while providing some incentives for increased production.

Legislation to extend the government's major elementary and secondary education programs is scheduled for consideration later in the week. Another bill on the Senate agenda would authorize federal aid to highway programs.

Secretary Backs Veto Of Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spending $2 billion for a new nuclear aircraft carrier would make an unwise U.S. military trend toward bigger but fewer ships "almost irreversible," Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Sunday.

Appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," Brown defended President Carter's veto last week of a $37 billion weapons authorization bill containing the carrier allocation.

"We need to have the strongest navy in the world, and we do have it," Brown said. "We can continue to do that only if we reverse the trend toward smaller and smaller numbers of larger and more expensive ships."

If such a trend is not stopped, he said, "we're going to end up with a fleet too small to cover all the parts of the world we need to cover."

In the interview, Brown also spoke briefly on these topics:

—Civil Defense: He said the Soviet Union outspends the United States about 10 to one in shelter and evacuation efforts in case of nuclear attack, but he added it would be "a dangerous illusion" for the Soviets to count that as much protection in an all-out nuclear exchange.

—Israeli arms: Brown said talks are continuing about possible future U.S. transfer of weapons or planes to Israel, but he also said emphasis should remain on finding lasting peace in the Mideast, thereby making less military might necessary.

—SALT negotiations: He said he sees "steady but slow progress" toward a new strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union, with a reasonable chance of resolving "sticky problems" by the end of the year.

Even if further SALT agreements are reached, Brown said, "I would expect the arms competition to continue."

He said he was well aware of Soviet military activity in Europe and said "that's part of the reason" Carter vetoed the military authorization bill.

Carter said in announcing his veto last week that he wasn't objecting to the spending level — although he felt it could be higher — but to the ways the money was to be spent.

He said the $2 billion for the nuclear aircraft carrier — it would be the nation's fifth — could be much better spent in beefing up conventional forces. Brown said that might include ship repair, ammunition and other items.

Many House Republicans have complained about the veto, and the House has scheduled a vote to try to override it Sept. 7 after the Labor Day recess.

Queen Anne (r. 1702-1714) was the last British monarch to refuse approval to an act of Parliament.

TV Movie To View Gay Activist Case

NEW YORK (AP) — He's 35 and Catholic, 6-foot-1, lean with short red hair and a friendly smile.

A former Air Force sergeant with an impeccable 12-year military record, he won the Bronze Star and Purple Heart during one of three tours of duty in Vietnam.

He could be your next-door neighbor, a mechanic, accountant or the family doctor. He wants what you want: a decent job, a comfortable home, love.

His name is Leonard Matlovich and he's one of the country's most controversial homosexuals.

Today scores of Americans — gay and straight — are following the case of Matlovich vs. the Air Force through the courts in an historic challenge of the military's long-standing ban against homosexuals.

The story is told in an NBC movie, "Sgt. Matlovich vs. the U.S. Air Force," starring Brad Dourif as Matlovich. The movie will be broadcast at 8 p.m. CDT.

The film was shown recently at the in Washington as part of "The Celluloid Closet — Homosexuality in the Cinema," a series sponsored by the American Film Institute.

Matlovich's attorney, E. Carrington Boggan, who is handling the case free of charge, says he hopes the issue will reach the Supreme Court and produce a landmark decision on gay rights comparable to that court's historic school integration decision in 1954.

"It's a simple case of civil rights," says Matlovich, who was discharged in 1975 after informing his superior officer he was gay.

A decision on Matlovich's appeal to have his Air Force discharge overturned is expected soon from the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia. It's likely that the losing side will appeal to the nation's highest court.

"No matter what happens, gay men and women will continue to serve in the military," says Matlovich.

Born at Hunter Air Force Base in Savannah, Ga., the son of a retired Air Force sergeant, Matlovich now lives in San Francisco and lectures around the country on his struggle for the right to be openly gay.

"Homosexuals aren't interested in 'converting' heterosexuals," he tells his audiences. "Heterosexuality is as strong as it ever was. But new sexual values, women's liberation and the changing roles of the sexes terrify and anger many persons.

"People think the mere knowledge that military personnel or teachers are gay will automatically seduce others. Hogwash! Today's alternatives are not limited to a choice between straight or gay lifestyles. The choices center on a reconsideration of the traditional roles of masculinity and feminity."

Matlovich's fight comes at a time of conflicting national attitudes. While singer Anita Bryant preaches against equal rights for known homosexuals, the American Psychiatric Association no longer considers homosexuality a mental disorder.

"Remaining in the closet encourages ignorance, fear and self-hatred," Matlovich says. "I just want to live and let live. That means equal rights and protection under the law."

Safety Concerns Delay Cleanup

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — State officials have postponed Monday's scheduled start of the clean up of the chemically-contaminated Love Canal, deciding that further work is needed on safety procedures for the decontamination.

No new date has been set for the start of work, state Department of Transportation spokesman Jack Bryan said Thursday. "It's apparent to everyone now that we just won't get started Monday."

The delay has been caused by a desire to find a plan that will protect both the workers doing the decontamination work and families still living in the area.

The Love Canal Homeowners Association has threatened to attempt to block in court any cleanup plan that it feels does not provide sufficient protection for remaining residents.

And Gov. Hugh Carey assurred the residents earlier this week, in a visit to the site, that no work would start until he was personally sure the process was safe for everyone.

Gays To Get Honorable Discharges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A little-known Defense Department policy will let thousands of homosexual veterans apply for honorable discharges, a spokesman said Sunday.

The rules still demand that homosexuals leave the military, but a Pentagon spokesman said a temporary policy allows veterans with a less than honorable discharge — homosexual or not — to apply for an upgraded discharge, based on their service record.

David Addlestone, an attorney who specializes in military law, told UPI that the military's attitude toward discharging homosexuals "has changed dramatically" since T.Sgt. Leonard Matlovich, a decorated Vietnam War veteran, proclaimed his homosexuality and was expelled from the Air Force Oct. 22, 1975, after a widely publicized hearing.

In the past, it was not unusual for homosexuals with otherwise good records to receive less than honorable discharges. Addlestone, who defended Matlovich, and other experts say even a general discharge "under honorable conditions" can hinder a veteran's ability to get jobs.

The Defense Department's new policy says a discharge for homosexuality should be based on a person's record in service and "circumstances around the homosexuality" but each branch of service has its own specific guidelines.

Franklin Kameny, a Gay Task Force board member and an expert on homosexuals and the government, said the Navy "has gone from the worst to the best service" concerning homoseuxals. Navy Secretary Graham Claytor issued a memorandum on Jan. 20 spelling out the policy:

"An individual administratively separated because of his homosexuality should normally be given an honorable discharge unless the quality of his service as reflected by official service record, warrants otherwise," said Claytor.

Assault or child molesting are considered "aggravating circumstances," and anyone discharged for these or similar reasons would be dealt with accordingly, military spokesmen said.

Addlestone said the other services seem to be following the Navy's lead on an informal basis.

The Navy has kept careful statistics on its homosexual discharges which show the difference. In fiscal 1975, 147 homosexuals received honorable discharges while 347 got general discharges.

Between Oct. 1, 1977, and June 30, 1978, there were 372 honorable discharges for homosexuality und 276 general discharges.

Matlovich, Kameny and other gay rights activists are pressing for ending exclusion of homosexuals from military service.

"Homosexuality or heterosexuality are irrelevent when talking about someone's capabilities" in military or civilian life, Kameny said.

Matlovich, who is now on the speakers circuit and counsels homosexuals in the armed forces, said homosexuals no longer are just serving quietly in the armed forces. "More gays are fighting back, and are not leaving (the military) like we used to," he said.

The defense spokesman said that because of the new policy, the 15-year statute of limitations for applying for discharge review has been lifted until Jan. 1, 1980.

Veterans who think the new standards might affect the quality of their discharge may apply to their respective review boards until the 1980 deadline. Veterans counseling centers can help provide information.

The new policy applies only to administrative discharges. Misconduct discharges given by military courts can only be reviewed by courts.

AN EDITORIAL:

Ship Veto--Two Views Of It

IN BECOMING the first President ever to veto a general defense authorization bill, President Carter circled the wagons around a deep split among military strategists.

Carter said he objected to authorization in the bill for a $2 billion nuclear aircraft carrier, preferring instead to spend that money to beef up ground forces in Europe, buy spare parts for existing military hardware, and encourage research and development activities.

"We cannot afford to waste our defense dollars," the President said in explaining his opposition to the carrier, which would be the Navy's fifth.

Parenthetically, the President failed to draw any comparison between the alleged $2 billion "fat" for a nuclear-powered ship and the $10 billion spent annually to perpetuate an especially generous military retirement system.

CONGRESSIONAL leaders were uncertain but generally appeared to believe that the veto of the $37 billion weapons procurement bill would be sustained.

House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., fumed, however, that a nuclear carrier is not as vulnerable to enemy attack as is a conventional one requiring frequent refueling. He predicted most Republicans would vote to override the veto and claimed "most American people feel that way."

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, likewise expressed disappointment and said the nuclear carrier was "the cement that holds the bill together."

Carter, backed by his Defense advisors and some other military strategists, believes on the other hand that it is more important to beef up existing ground forces and weaponry.

THERE IS ENOUGH disagreement on whether a nuclear ship is a dependable line of defense to make it difficult if not impossible for the average American to "choose up sides" on that particular issue although Carter's arguments carry the weight of logic in many respects.

The President himself said he's not questioning the amount of money Congress authorized for defense, only the manner in which it mandated the funds be spent.

On the heels of his earlier decisions to axe the B-1 bomber and let the Soviet Union surge ahead of the United States in other advanced weapons systems, however, the veto is certain to be second-guessed for some time to come.

Central to that debate, both the President and Congress must come to grips with the question of whether the nation can continue to give servicemen over-generous pay and retirement benefits at the risk of denying them the advanced weaponry essential to their survival—and the nation's.

A Red Echo From The Past

IT HAS BEEN 10 years since Czechoslovakia in effect joined "the living dead."

At that time, shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 20, more than 200,000 Russian, East German, Bulgarian, Polish and Hungarian Communist soldiers marched across Czechoslovakia's borders.

What little freedom had been left for all practical purposes was encircled in a figurative barbed wire fence.

TODAY, THE world takes little note of such anniversary events. No more so than the anniversary of the crushing of Hungary.

Yet, as is the case in Africa today, the same forces which spawned those blatant shows of force are alive and well and still slowly encircling the world.

There are those who will argue that such rhetoric is "alarmist" and exaggerated. The "it can't happen here" complex goes hand in hand with a Pollyanna attitude all too prevalent in the West—and especially Washington—today.

The problem in Czechoslovakia a decade ago was not that Moscow needed more territory. Ostensibly, Prague was a part of the Soviet bloc.

The problem was that under Alexander Dubcek, the reformist Czech Communist Party chief, Czechoslovakia was moving in its own direction and in so doing was taking other "New Left" nations with him, at least in philosophy.

THE TAKEOVER, from a military and governmental standpoint, was complete.

But, if a Gallup poll could have been taken among the Czech population, Premier Leonid Brezhnev's rating would have been even lower than President Carter's is today.

The Czech people met their "conquerors" with cold, calm fury. Hundreds of young men and women, according to an eyewitness, "practiced the Russian and Marxist dialect they had learned in school on wide-eyed Red Army men—who were prepared for combat but not for explaining why they came."

BUT, NO MATTER what people inside or outside Czechoslovakia thought, Communist arms had prevailed.

Today, the spirit of freedom still lives in the hearts of Czechs, Hungarians and Yugoslavs. Bulgaria is an unusual entity within the Eastern bloc.

Yet, while all "do their own thing" to an extent, the fact is that each is linked to Moscow, if not by choice by fear and threat. It is something to remember the next time someone in Washington's high echelons start talking about "getting along" with the Communists.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Equatorial Guinea Today 'Immense Torture Center'

WASHINGTON—A campaign of genocide that rivals the bloodbath in Cambodia in ferocity, if not in absolute numbers is now occurring in western Africa.

Emerging data from the tiny nation of Equatorial Guinea, situated on the Atlantic between Cameroon and Gabon, make it plain that the regime of Marxist dictator Macias Nguema has embarked on an orgy of murder and terror seldom equaled in modern history.

As the headline in a recent issue of Amnesty International's newsletter puts it, Equatorial Guinea today is "An Immense Torture Center."

Evidence on this score was brought to the nation's capital last week by the Most Rev. Raphael M. Mze Abuy, the Catholic bishop of Equatorial Guinea in exile (the nation is, or was, 95 percent Catholic).

BISHOP ABUY appeared at a press conference with Rep. Robert Dornan (R-Calif.) in an effort to focus America and world opinion on the plight of his nation's people.

To date, he noted, the Carter Administration, the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity have averted their gaze from the ongoing genocide.

That the genocide is taking place, however, is disputed by no one. The U.S. State Department estimates that "tens of thousands" of people have been murdered in Equatorial Guinea, while the Vatican places the figure at 50,000.

It is estimated that one-quarter to one-half of the country's population of 350,000-400,000 has either been killed or gone into exile in neighboring African states or in Europe.

BISHOP ABUY observed that the Catholic Church has now been outlawed in Equatorial Guinea and that a fanatic campaign is being waged against the Christian population.

Foreign priests have been expelled, and native-born clergy "have no freedom and are under house arrest. Religion has been banned and the churches closed."

Also according to Bishop Abuy, this murderous regime is propped in place by Cuban bayonets. President Macias, the bishop notes, has appointed 500 Cubans as his personal bodyguard "because he doesn't trust his own countrymen."

The bishop also noted recent reports that Soviet submarines are based at the island of Fernando Po—which constitutes one of Equatorial Guinea's two provinces and is located within easy striking distance of Nigeria's offshore oil-drilling facilities.

THE COMMUNIST ties of the regime are further indicated by the fact that the only embassies in the country are those of the Soviet Union, East Germany, Cuba, Communist China and North Korea.

It is reported that the economy of the country is in a state of near collapse, kept going with financial aid from the Eastern bloc and assistance from UN funds.

The tortures inflicted on the citizens of Equatorial Guinea by the Marxist regime are particularly gruesome.

According to the testimony of two escaped political prisoners, techniques of murder and terror have included crucifixion, castration, rape, severing of fingers, hands and ears, burning alive, hanging with nylon cords that cut through the flesh, gouging out of eyeballs, death by beating and starvation and virtually every other form of brutality imaginable.

INCREDIBLY ENOUGH, while our government and the United Nations engage in constant criticisms of Rhodesia and South Africa, nobody is saying much of anything about the infinitely more repressive regime in Equatorial Guinea.

According to Rep. Dornan, certain U.S. groups are attempting to correct this oversight.

Friends of Equatorial Guinea Refugees (320 Rose Lane, Lexington, Ky. 40508) and Catholics for Christian Political Action (1139 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 22045), are two groups to contact if you want to know more concerning this dreadful situation and what to do about it.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Specter In Germany

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Carter's uncertain foreign policy is unwittingly contributing to stepped-up contacts between the Soviet Union and left-wing leaders of West Germany's ruling Social Democratic Party (SPD) who have long opposed Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's devotion to Washington and the North Atlantic alliance (NATO).

Playing the prime role in these very private contacts is Egon Bahr, secretary-general of the SPD. Bahr had extensive talks with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev shortly before Brezhnev's highly successful visit to Bonn in May.

He renewed his Moscow talks in July—not as an emissary of Schmidt, but as agent of the SPD's activist left wing and the party chairman, former chancellor Willy Brandt.

HERE IS THE specter of what has always made the Western alliance tremble: a menacing new version of the 1922 Rapallo Soviet-German treaty. Another Rapallo is certainly no possibility in the near future. Indeed, it is unthinkable in Helmut Schmidt's Germany.

Nevertheless, what is clearly at issue in the Brezhnev-Bahr talks is chilling, even though no immediate threat: West Germany leaving NATO with Soviet guarantees against aggression and with the prospect of German reunification.

Bahr, a fanatical German nationalist, leads SPD's far-left faction which believes the key to Germany's future reunification is held in Moscow, not Washington.

POLITICAL SOURCES in Europe, both West and East, provide the following outline of Bahr's Soviet contacts in Moscow and Bonn, together with collateral talks between other leaders of the SPD's left wing and East European Communist officials.

Bahr attacks the Carter foreign policy, particularly the administration's intention "to play the China card."

According to one qualified informant, Bahr agreed with Moscow that the Soviet Union "would not accept this" and would retaliate "in Africa, in the Middle East, in Asia and Western Europe," possibly with a "Berlin crisis." Bahr contends West Germany might not survive a new Berlin crisis.

* The impact of Carter's human rights policy on the Soviet Union threatens Soviet reaction which could put pressure on West Germany.

* GIVEN THESE alleged dangers to West Germany, Bahr has asked the Soviets what sort of guarantees they could offer "in case of a crisis" between the superpowers.

* To facilitate such a cataclysmic shift in West German policy, a major propaganda operation has been discussed with this purpose: to dramatize perceived dangers of U.S. policy and "Carter's inexperience in foreign policy."

This would start by denying the U.S. "unlimited power" to dictate Western policy to West Germany on strategic arms limitation, Communist China, the Third World and Europe itself.

Bahr and the SPD left wing have exploited President Carter's stunning decision not to produce neutron weapons by constantly reminding Schmidt how erratic U.S. policy is today.

SCHMIDT HAD privately informed Carter he wanted the neutron warhead (widely opposed inside the SPD) and was left holding the bag when the President ruled against it.

Although Bahr greatly influences the SPD's left wing (compromising about one-third of the party), he lacks power within Schmidt's coalition government.

Still, Bahr's wide-ranging explorations pointing toward a possible second Rapallo builds rising pressure on Schmidt.

SCHMIDT IS becoming trapped in the continuing uncertainty of Carter's Washington: he boldly opposes his left wing on neutron weapons, and the President pulls the rug out; he yields to his left wing on Africa, and a common Western European policy is sacrificed.

"U.S. leadership is not a realistic factor in the great struggle with the Soviets today," one European expert on German politics told us. "There is all too obvious a lack of declared will."

That lack of will, and the inconsistency that results from it, is what gives Egon Bahr and his supporters their license to hunt in Moscow for a radical change in West German policy at awesome risk to Europe, the United States and the West.

ANDREW TULLY:

Take My CETA...

WASHINGTON—Light-hearted critics of what is called "home rule" in the District of Columbia chuckle over the story of a D.C. city councilman who dropped in on his neighborhood church to be baptized.

The minister excused himself to go fetch some water for the font. When he returned, the councilman was gone—and so was the font.

The story is relevant to a proposal by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, of an alternative to awarding Hell City two voting senators and a representative. At present the city has one non-voting "delegate."

McClure suggests that D.C. become a part of Maryland. The city would vote for representatives from their new state "while maintaining self government at the local level."

AH, SENATOR. Your idea would be a good one except that it misses the important point. The District of Columbia's problem is not that its citizens have no vote in Congress but that what passes for self government under "home rule" is a shambles.

Becoming a part of Maryland would not solve that problem any more than New York City's membership in New York state has made it a model of fiscal responsibility.

It would take a book to cite the examples of larceny (petty and grand) that bedevil D.C. But a recent scandal will give readers a whiff of the governmental odor of the nation's capital city.

CONGRESS PASSED a bill called the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). It was emergency legislation designed to provide the funds and mechanism whereby communities could train the hard-core unemployed and unskilled and then place them in public service jobs.

Nationally, the average CETA worker in his temporary job is paid $8,500 a year. But the atmosphere in Washington is insidiously grandiose. So what happened?

A Labor Department investigation revealed that 60 of the 144 council employes are paid with federal jobs money and probably were improperly hired. And, because the council uses city as well as federal money to pay its CETA employes, 44 of those workers earn between $10,000 and $20,000, and at least one earns more than $20,000.

THIS HAS ENABLED the council members to assemble a collection of friends, relatives and other political supporters that may be a new national record.

The Labor Department found no evidence that the District Manpower Department checked to determine whether residents who had properly registered for the U.S. program were available for those council jobs.

So, it's not surprising that 19 of the CETA-paid workers had toiled in political campaigns of council members, 27 had been volunteers or interns, and 28 others were hired after council members "requested" their employment by name.

Investigators called it "pre-selection." I call it blatant favoritism. And whatever happened to the law's requirement that CETA jobs be temporary?

Some City Council. Some self government. And now Jim McClure wants to foist the District of Columbia on poor Maryland. In Maryland's place, I'd opt for a state-wide epidemic of the Black Plague.

A Sudden Shock...

THOUGHT FOR Today: Be content with what you have—but never with what you are.

★

OVERHEARD: Sometimes, Mondays are like the first dent in your new car.

★

THAT RUMBLING noise you have been hearing over the city the past few days, if not weeks, has been from people opening their electric utility bills.

Unless we are reading the tea leaves and coffee grounds wrong, the next "revolt" is going to be over the spiraling cost of utilities, especially electric power.

We have heard more comments the past week about "unbelievable" utility power bills than anytime since the fuel pass-through started. And although most persons are aware we have suffered through an unusually hot summer, they still don't like it.

While the proposed tax changes were burdensome, in most instances they are not in the same league with the extra utility expenditures most residents are forking over this year as compared to some previous periods.

And there doesn't seem to be any quick end to it.

AS THINGS NOW stand, the cost of producing electricity is going to remain high for the foreseeable future.

But, every effort should be made to see that utility bills don't go any higher. And this applies to the request for an increase in natural gas rates, itself a major factor in soaring utility costs.

A friend of ours the other day visited an elderly couple. He noticed their air conditioner was off during one of the city's warmer afternoons.

When he asked if it were broken, he was told: "No, the bills got so high we couldn't afford to run it all the time, so we just use it at night..."

Somewhere, somebody—including the Georgia geniuses in Washington as well as the leaders of business and industry better start figuring out what to do about Inflation--before it is too late, for everyone. And that includes the consumers, power companies, gas firms and Georgia you-know-whats.

SPEAKING OF advice, we ran across an item the other day in the St. Petersburg Times for cat lovers. Especially those who move and have trouble keeping Tabby, or Morris, home.

Seems that someone had written in about a wandering feline which kept trying to return to its old haunts. Here is what the writer suggested:

"When a cat has been taken to a new home, butter its feet and it will sit and wash each foot carefully.

"When this has been done, the cat will be content to stay in the new location. Why this is so, I cannot say, but it has been proven many times," claimed the writer, who said she got the idea from her grandmother.

Reckon' it would work on wandering mates, of the human variety!

THAT TIME OF year is fast approaching.

This year, the opening of schools will be something a little different from the past. Hopefully, all will turn out well.

Lubbock this Fall gets its first real taste of forced busing, something other cities have had to contend with all over the country. Under the plan as now devised, the City has an opportunity to show that it can handle the challenge in such a way as to bring credit to its citizens.

And while we sympathize with the deep-rooted feelings of those who oppose a Big Brother bureaucracy dictating every move a nation's citizens make, any sort of violence or protest which holds the potential for damage to property, or injury to persons, is not the answer.

There are better ways of halting the mad rush toward a totalitarian rule.

THOSE AMERICANS who feel their nation has taken a turn for the worse do have a choice.

They can start "doing their homework," attending City Council, Commission and Town Hall meetings, read up on what is happening—in their own communities, states, across the nation and world—and then start making decisions.

They can ask pertinent, knowledgeable questions of political candidates who seek their votes. And they can judge, objectively, the actions of those who represent them.

The explanation of how we got where we are is simple: We got here by default. We sat by and let it happen, and in some instances saw it aided by farout do-gooders and those who would give the country away, as long as someone else paid for it.

As an aside, we heard a story about how a first-time teacher in one of Lubbock's Schools was told by her teaching colleagues the past week: "We run a tight ship at this school. We insist on discipline and punishment, if necessary. We assign homework and expect it to be done. And the principal backs us up." The new teacher, one of the old school, was elated.

That, for our money, is a start in the right direction, at least for the next generation!

Sea Conference Opens With Mining Arguments

UNITED NATIONS (AP) -- The slow-sailing Law of the Sea Conference opens yet another session Monday — its seventh since it began in December 1973 — under threats from the United States and other industrialized nations to sanction unilateral mining of valuable minerals on ocean floors.

In the United States, Britain and West Germany, legislation is being encouraged to allow private mining companies to begin exploitation of mineral-rich nodules on the bottom of the world's seas.

"We can't be in a position where seabed mining is held up indefinitely simply because an international conference of 156 countries has not been able to agree on all the details of an international system," says Elliot L. Richardson, the chief American negotiator.

Consequently, he says, the Carter administration is backing a bill in the U.S. Senate that would permit American firms to begin operations to retrieve nickel, cobalt, copper and manganese from the seabed after 1980. The bill cleared the House of Representatives last month by a vote of 312-80.

Even by optimistic estimates, a comprehensive international treaty is not likely to be ready for signing before the summer of 1980. Once signed, the treaty must be ratified by individual governments, a process that could take years, before it can become effective.

Besides regulations for mining ocean floor minerals, the treaty would also cover freedom of navigation and overflight, fisheries and other marine issues, settlement of disputes, pollution and scientific research.

Four-fifths of nearly 400 articles of the proposed treaty have been generally agreed upon, but conference officials admit negotiations could still come apart over seabed mining and a few other "hard-core" issues that remain — mostly the differences between rich and poor and between coastal and landlocked countries.

At stake in the seabed mining battle is an estimated 1.7 trillion tons of manganese nodules lying on the deep ocean floor, ready for scooping or flushing by modern technology developed by the United States. Manganese is used in making alloys of iron, aluminum and copper.

Third World countries denounce the proposed U.S. legislation, claiming that the ocean floor and its potential riches are "the common heritage of mankind" and should not be exploited by individual countries but by an international seabed authority.

Ambassador T. T. B. Koh of Singapore, who heads one of the conference's key negotiating committees, charges that the U.S. bill is "wrong in principle and relies on a doubtful legal basis."

He expressed fear that a U.S. seabed mining law would be copied by other industrialized countries and thus harden the Third World's position on this key question.

Richardson emphasized in a recent talk with reporters that the proposed U.S. legislation is "interim in nature" and designed to provide guidelines until an international treaty comes into force.

But Koh told reporters that such a unilateral move would be interpreted by Third World nations as a form of pressure and would backfire.

Both Richardson and Koh agree, however, that significant progress was achieved in the eight-week session held in Geneva last March-May and, as a result, there is a renewed spirit of cooperation and realism.

Reflecting the sense of urgency and seriousness, the delegates will start the four-week session without opening ceremonies and procedural debate.

"We still have a long tough road to travel before we'll resolve the issues," Richardson said. "But the degree of cooperation is at a higher level than ever before and we should bear in mind that the successful negotiations of a code of law can serve in itself as a demonstration of the capacity of nations to cooperatively deal with complex concerns they all share."

Boy's State Serious After Arm Surgery

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A 2½-year-old boy whose arms were reattached after being severed by farm machinery was in serious but stable condition Sunday at St. John's Hospital, a spokesman said.

Surgeons worked in shifts for 12 hours Friday and early Saturday to reattach the limbs of Devin Vannoy.

The boy was playing around a corn auger on his father's farm near Atlanta, Ill., when his arms were caught in the machine's corkscrew mechanism, authorities said.

Chinese Leader Continues Eastern Visit

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng wound up his trip to Romania Sunday and prepared to continue his visit to Eastern Europe with a flight to Yugoslavia.

The Soviet Union is openly displeased with Hua's visit to the region it has dominated since the end of World War II. The Soviets have suggested Hua is trying to drive a wedge between Moscow and its allies in southeastern Europe.

The timing of the trip to coincide with Monday's 10th anniversary of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia was believed no accident.

In 1968 Romania was the only member of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact to refuse to take part in crushing the liberal Czechoslovak regime of Alexander Dubcek. Romania and Yugoslavia denounced the invasion at the time. Yugoslavia is not a Warsaw Pact member.

Britain's Prince Andrew is named for his grandfather, Prince Andrew of Greece.

Mark 14:1-16. The Living Bible

CHAPTER 14

1 The Passover observance began two days later—an annual Jewish holiday when no bread made with yeast was eaten. The chief priests and other Jewish leaders were still looking for an opportunity to arrest Jesus secretly and put Him to death.

2 "But we can't do it during the Passover," they said, "or there will be a riot."

3 Meanwhile Jesus was in Bethany, at the home of Simon the leper; during supper a woman came in with a beautiful flask of expensive perfume. Then, breaking the seal, she poured it over His head.

4,5 Some of those at the table were indignant among themselves about this "waste," as they called it. "Why, she could have sold that perfume for a fortune and given the money to the poor!" they snarled.

6 But Jesus said, "Let her alone; why berate her for doing a good thing?

7 You always have the poor among you, and they badly need your help, and you can aid them whenever you want to; but I won't be here much longer.

8 She has done what she could, and has anointed My body ahead of time for burial.

9 And I tell you this in solemn truth, that wherever the Good News is preached throughout the world, this woman's deed will be remembered and praised."

10 Then Judas Iscariot, one of His disciples, went to the chief priests to arrange to betray Jesus to them.

11 When the chief priests heard why he had come, they were excited and happy and promised him a reward. So he began looking for the right time and place to betray Jesus.

12 On the first day of the Passover, the day the lambs were sacrificed, His disciples asked Him where He wanted to go to eat the traditional Passover supper.

13 He sent two of them into Jerusalem to make the arrangements. "As you are walking along," He told them, "you will see a man coming towards you carrying a pot of water. Follow him.

14 At the house he enters, tell the man in charge, 'Our Master sent us to see the room you have ready for us, where we will eat the Passover supper this evening!'

15 He will take you upstairs to a large room all set up. Prepare our supper there."

16 So the two disciples went on ahead into the city and found everything as Jesus had said, and prepared the Passover.

AEROSPACE ORIENTED — Maj. Jack D. Cusano, chief of the aerospace physiology division at Reese Air Force Base, shows Sally Templer how the oxygen mask works in the altitude chamber, then demonstrates the Vista Vertigon which was added to the training recently.(Staff Photo)

Simulator Gives Taste Of Flying

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With the Barany Chair, a would-be flier learns that senses can be fooled, that instruments are more to be trusted than sight or instinct.

Demonstrations with the twirling chair are highlights of any tour or open house at Reese Air Force Base.

A complement to the chair, the Vista Vertigon, now carries the lesson further, teaching the student pilot how difficult flying can be while disoriented.

Shut into the single seat simulator, he loses the image on his viewer just as though closed in by weather. Disoriented by the spinning machine, he must respond to recorded instructions with his deviation in "flying" noted by the computer.

The new teaching aid doesn't replace anything in the aerospace physiology division at Reese, but it does take training a little further on the ground, teaching something a student used to have to learn in the plane.

The cockpit instruments do not simulate any particular aircraft. It is a generalized set geared for training.

During the three-and-a-half weeks spent with the division at the beginning of the 50-week undergraduate pilot training course, student pilots get two rides in the Vista Vertigon to be better prepared for the first rides in the two Reese jets, T-37 and T-38, with instructor pilots.

The recent addition to physiology training at Reese is "the perfect interface with training and flying," Maj. Jack D. Cusano, division chief, noted.

Aerospace physiology training, Cusano added, is a safety course prior to going to the aircraft.

In the altitude chamber a person learns what happens to the body at different altitudes and how to deal with it. Learning how to recognize changes due to barometric pressure saves time in the aircraft end of training.

Parachute training involves instruction in emergency egress with a cockpit mock-up with ejection seat.

The "boom bucket" carries the rider 10 feet up a rail in one-hundredth of a second to simulate ejection.

"It's to get rid of the fear of the unknown surrounding ejection. It's a confidence builder," Cusano said.

"We fire the guy one time and he's over it."

Parachute training climaxes with parasailing which adds more confidence and competence, just in case the time to eject should ever come.

While not readying student pilots for their meeting with the aircraft on the Reese flight line, the division is supporting functions of other bases.

Crew members as well as pilots must go through the training and every three years all Air Force personnel on flying status must be updated on the physiology end of training.

Cusano, who has headed the Reese function four years, is a native of Syracuse, N.Y., who earned his wings at Reese in 1966.

He flew the KC-135 Stratotanker for the Strategic Air Command before transitioning to become a helicopter rotary wing pilot.

As a rescue helicopter pilot flying out of Bhin Thuy Air Base in Vietnam, Cusano flew 330 combat missions and is credited with saving 51 lives under combat conditions.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross nine Air Medals and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with gold palm.

Bureaucracy Blamed For Fuel Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican Party advisory panel says the enemy in President Carter's "moral equivalent of war" on energy shortages is "bureaucratic inertia" in the Carter administration.

A subcommittee of the GOP National Committee's Natural Resources Advisory Council, headed by Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV of Delaware, said that "government policies ... have been woven into tangled webs that strangle and inhibit our efforts to solve the very problems they have created." The panel said "a return to the free market system" was the answer to developing a diversity of fuel sources for the future.

Census Report Studies Spanish Origin Persons

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's Spanish origin population is younger and poorer than the rest of the country, the government reported Sunday.

A new Census Bureau report shows that in March 1978, the median age of the country's 12 million persons of Spanish origin was 22.1, compared to 30 for the rest of the population.

Also, the report showed that Spanish origin men had a 1977 median income of $7,797, compared with $10,261 for non-Spanish origin males. The median income for Spanish origin women was $3,669, somewhat lower than the $3,956 median for non-Spanish origin women.

About 21 percent of Spanish origin families had incomes below the poverty level in 1977, compared with about 9 percent of non-Spanish families.

Only 9.7 percent of Spanish origin families had incomes of $25,000 or more, compared with 23 percent of all other families.

At its height, the British Empire was the largest hegemony under one government in the world's history.

Minimum Wage Hike Squeezing Food Businesses

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Teen-agers used to make up about half the staff at Chuck's Supper Club in Oconomowoc, Wis. Today, they account for only 10 percent.

Owner Bob Chuck prefers to hire older workers. Last January's increase in the minimum wage means that Chuck has to pay his 80 employees at least $2.65 an hour. At those rates, he said, he can't afford the inexperience of the youngsters. "We've gone more to retired people," he said. "They're used to working."

The $79 billion-a-year restaurant industry has been especially hard hit by the rise in the minimum wage because it employs a lot of people at the low end of the pay scale: people like dishwashers and busboys.

No one has figures on how many of the 4.1 million workers in the nation's eating and drinking establishments earn the minimum. But industry officials point out that an increase in the minimum usually means a boost for people who are above the bottom level as well. "Everybody's wage structure has been affected," said Doug Timberlake, a spokesman for McDonald's Corp, the fast-food chain.

"People are taking measures to tighten up and increase productivity," said Susan Mills, an economist with the National Restaurant Association.

Chuck says profits at his restaurant have disappeared; he is losing money for the first time in the 32 years he has operated the place 35 miles from Milwaukee. His prices are up; he has boosted them 15 cents to 20 cents an item. After Labor Day, he will no longer open for lunch; "We just can't afford to serve." And he is trimming the staff; "We used to have three salad girls. Now we'll have two. They'll simply have to get the work done."

There were fears that the rise in the minimum wage would lead to widespread layoffs, particularly in the fast-food industry. Thus far, that hasn't happened.

"Instead," according to a report in a recent issue of the USDA's National Food Review, "many fast-food employees have seen their hours shortened as their employers tighten work schedules to offset the effects of the higher wages. Some fast-food outlets are simply closing earlier, during marginally profitable periods. Other methods being considered ... to cope with the higher wage rates are more automation and higher prices."

Both McDonald's Timberlake and Doug Reinhard of Burger King said they had no reports of any shorter hours. "Our hours have remained fairly constant," said Reinhard.

Statistics indicate, however, that the average work week in the industry has been reduced. Miss Mills said that figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics for May, the latest month for which information is available, show that the average non-supervisory employee in a restaurant or bar worked 26.9 hours a week, down 2 percent from the same period in 1977. The average hourly wage was $3.15 — 10 percent higher than the $2.87 average a year earlier.

Legislation passed by Congress last year boosted the minimum hourly wage from $2.30 to $2.65. The minimum will increase to $2.89 next January and to $3.15 on Jan. 1, 1980. Beginning in 1981, the minimum will be set at a level equal to 53 percent of the average hourly wage of production workers.

Concern that the increases will lead to further inflation led G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, to recommend postponing next January's boost. Miller said, however, that the Carter administration rejected the idea.

For the restaurant industry, an equally important provision of the law affects the so-called "tip credit." Under this program, workers who receive tips do not have to be paid the full minimum wage. At present, employers can pay tipped employees only half the minimum. Next year, they will have to pay them 55 percent of the minimum and in 1980 they will have to pay 60 percent.

Restaurant owner Chuck is worried about what will happen next January. He says he can't raise prices any more. His luncheon business already has dropped by 40 percent because of the increased prices for his sandwiches and his $2.95 and $3.95 specials, he says.

Most of Chuck's employees are part-time. The full-time employees work 42 hours a week — no more. After that, Chuck would have to pay them overtime. "They don't like it (no overtime)," Chuck says, "but we can't afford it."

The squeeze on large operations like McDonald's and Burger King is less apparent, but it is still there.

Timberlake said it is "almost too early to say" what the impact of the higher minimum wage will be at McDonald's because the full force of the law will not be felt for three years. But he added that: "The minimum wage has created an impact in that it has contributed to the increased cost of doing business."

Burger King is concentrating on "developing new equipment and procedures that may help us use our labor force more effectively," Reinhard said. "We're trying to speed up the operation in the back room a little bit."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. There are two types of investment companies — closed-end and open-end. Shares of open-end investment companies sell at net asset value, while closed-end investment companies usually sell at a discount from net asset value. Why the difference? Does the discount make the closed-enders a better investment?

A. First off, so that all readers have a fix on the situation, let's define two things: investment company and net asset value.

An investment company is a company or a trust which invests in other companies. A typical investment company owns stock in 100 or more other companies. An investment company might also own bond, or other investments.

Net asset value is the value of everything an investment company owns, minus its liabilities — what it owes. Net asset value per share is the investment company's net assets, divided by the number of shares it has outstanding — owned by investors.

If an investment company has $100 million of net assets and 10 million shares outstanding, it's net asset value per share is $10.

Almost all open-investment companies — better known as mutual funds — stand ready to redeem their shares at net asset value on any business day. An investor can turn his or her shares back to the open-end investment company and get the net asset value per share at any time. The exceptions to this rule are the handful of mutual funds which charge a small redemption fee when their shares are redeemed.

So, for most mutual funds, the price of each share never falls below the asset value behind each share. Also, most mutual funds continuously issue new shares and sell them to investors.

Closed-end investment companies, on the other hand, have fixed numbers of shares outstanding. They neither redeem their shares nor, except in unusual circumstances, do they issue new shares.

Shares of closed-end investment companies are traded, much the same as stocks of individual companies are traded — on stock exchanges and in the over-the-counter market. If you buy 100 shares, you buy from some other investor who wants to sell. And if you sell 100 shares, you sell to someone who wants to buy. The closed-end investment company is not involved in your transactions.

The shares of most closed-end investment companies trade at "discounts" — below net asset value — simply because they are not very popular with investors in the marketplace. And they don't have what is really a "price support" of net asset value redemption, as open-end investment companies do.

When you buy shares of a closed-end investment company at a discount, you do have more money working for you. At a 10 percent discount, $9 buys $10 worth of assets. But, unless the asset value goes up or the discount "narrows," the market value of your investment will not increase.

And let's not forget that the per share asset values of both closed-end and open-end investment companies can rise and/or fall. Neither guarantees profits.

Q. Why do so many of the higher-yielding savings certificates offered by banks and savings and loan associations require a person to tie his money up for long periods of time?

A. It's because of federal regulations. The Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation set the interest rates banks can pay on savings accounts and savings certificates, implementing laws passed by Congress. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. do the same thing, where S&Ls are concerned.

Except for the relatively new six-month savings certificates — on which interest is pegged to the yield on 26-week U.S. Treasury bills — the rule on savings certificate interest is fundamental. The longer the term of the certificate, the higher the interest rate.

Textbook Critics Split

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' annual textbook hearings this year sometimes resemble a debate on the Equal Rights Amendment more than a forum on different teaching methods.

In one corner are the self-described homemakers with protests about women's rights activists getting prominent display in history books.

Groups such as the National Organization for Women sit in the opposite corner, claiming that a book depicting females in 20 photographs and males in 25 illustrations is "sexist."

In the middle is the State Textbook Committee whose guidelines from the State Board of Education include:

— The books shall present examples of men and women participating in a variety of roles and activities and shall further present the economic, political, social and cultural contributions of both men and women, past and present.

— Traditional roles of men and women, boys and girls shall be included as well as those changing roles in our society.

Those will the most at stake financially are publishers, who have maintained a low profile during the first three days of this year's hearings.

After the critics and publishers have their say, the committee and the state board have final word on almost $40 million in textbooks proposed for use. The hearings continue Monday and Tuesday, with committee selections scheduled Sept. 11 and board action expected Nov. 11.

Before this year's two simultaneous hearings began, critics and book company's filed close to 40 volumes of objections and responses to the various texts.

Mrs. Carl S. Droste of Fort Worth protested mention of NOW in an American history text:

"What is not mentioned is that NOW is pro-lesbian and favors the drafting of women and sending them into combat."

Another reviewer charged a literature book's selections promoted disrespect for parental authority and a breakdown in family values.

"Indeed," the publisher responded, "concerning the family, the reviewers for NOW charge, among other things, that the text presents too many traditional families."

The Continuing Task Force on Education for Women took aim at a handwriting text's picture showing a girl in the background and a boy in the foreground.

"The illustration fosters the untrue belief that women are behind and inferior to men," the group said.

Each side already has won agreement from publishers on specific objections, including protests of "his, her, he, she" pronouns and use of an 18th Century British cartoon depicting a wounded American patriot.

The state board, however, has final say on what changes, if any, will be made in books that children will use beginning in 1979.

New Type Of Meteorite Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meteorite found in Antarctica last winter has been identified as the first of an entirely new class of space rock, the National Science Foundation announced Sunday.

The rare meteorite, one of hundreds of well-preserved samples recovered by a U.S.-Japanese expedition, is a type called achondrite. Samples of this general type comprise only about seven percent of all known meteorites.

Dr. Brian Mason, a curator in the Smithsonian Institution's mineral sciences department, said the new meteorite has features in common with two classes of achondrites called chassignite and diagenite.

"In its mineralogy, the specimen I examined shows resemblances to these two classes, but its overall composition is significantly different," said Mason.

Meteorites are chunks of stony or metallic material from space that survive the searing trip through earth's atmosphere to strike the surface. Scientists believe they are remnants of the solar system's formation 4.5 billion years ago and may provide valuable clues to the origin of the planets.

Achondrites bear a closer resemblance to earth rocks, particularly igneous types, than all other meteorites.

The new specimen Mason examined is composed of 55 percent olivine, 35 percent pyroxene and 8 per cent maskelynite. Olivine and pyroxene are iron-magnesium silicates found extensively in earth rocks. Maskelynite is a form of the glassy mineral feldspar.

Mason said the conversion of feldspar to maskelynite had to have occurred in space under great pressures from a tremendous shock. He speculated that the shock must have come from the breakup of the meteorite from a parent body, probably one of the asteroids in a belt between Mars and Jupiter.

The meteorites found in Antarctica on the west side of McMurdo Sound are thought to be the cleanest, best preserved specimens ever recovered. The samples were preserved under the ideal conditions of constant cold and extremely dry air, which protected against the erosion and chemical reactions that destroy meteorites elsewhere.

The new achondrite is the second extremely rare meteorite fragment to be classified this summer from the Antarctic cache. In June, experts identified a Type II carbonaceous chondrite, one of only about 16 known to exist in the world's collection of several thousand meteorites.

GOOD TASTE — A hungry squirrel and a resourceful photographer combined for this photo which looks like the little critter is taking a cooling drink. Actually when cameraman Mark Losey finished his milkshake, he put a little dab of peanut butter on the straws and sat back to wait for a nosey customer. Begin Plays Down Camp David Summit

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin warned Sunday that the United States should not submit a Mideast peace plan at the Camp David summit meeting Sept. 5. He also said it was dangerous to regard the summit as "fateful."

"I warn against the submission of a plan by the United States since she is not a party to the conflict which should be resolved only by the involved parties," said Begin, in an interview with the government-controlled Arabic daily Al Anba. "One must be wary of the view that the Camp David talks will be fateful."

HEARTLINE: I am 60 years old. I am the common-law wife of a man who will turn 65 this year. He will start drawing Social Security benefits then. We have two children who are 14 and 16 years old. When my husband retires, will our children be eligible for Social Security benefits on their father's work record? — V.L.

They may be. In many states a child born of a common-law marriage may be recognized for inheritance purposes even if the state does not recognize the validity of the common-law marriage. If the child has inheritance rights with respect to his father and he is living with or receiving contributions from his father, he can receive dependent children's benefits.

Even if the child is not eligible under the applicable state law, there are four other alternatives. If your common-law husband has been declared the father by a court action or ordered to pay support because he is the father, or if he has acknowledged the children in writing, the children can qualify. In addition, if you have other evidence to show that he is the father of your children and he is living with or contributing to the support of the children, they can qualify for benefits on his earning record.

HEARTLINE: Due to the ever-present rising inflation, I had to move out of the neighborhood in which I had always lived. I am on Social Security and my new location was downward to a higher crime area in the city. This scares me tremendously as there seems to be a home broken into almost every night. What can I do to make my house safer? — S.G.

Any home that someone wants to break into badly enough can be broken into. However, there are many things which can be done to discourage the average thief. The following list of home safety tips was recently published by the Action for Independent Maturity:

1. Have secure locks (preferably dead bolts and pin fall locks).
2. Lock the house even when home.
3. Don't leave your keys in hiding places, such as in your mailbox or under your doormat.
4. Keep an outdoor light on at night.
5. Use automatic timers to regulate the lights while you are away.
6. Install a burglar alarm that sets off noise, floodlights, both.
7. Don't keep valuables around the house.
8. If you must have valuables at home, mark them with an electric pencil, available at most police departments.
9. Don't keep handguns at home.
10. Know your neighbors and check up on each other's safety.

HEARTLINE: Can you tell me who is eligible for vocational rehabilitation benefits from the Veteran's Administration? — J.C.

Veterans who served in the armed forces during World War II or thereafter are eligible for vocational rehabilitation if all three of the following conditions are met:

(a) They suffered a service-connected disability in active service which entitled them to compensation, or would do so but for receipt of retirement pay;

(b) They were discharged or released under other than dishonorable conditions;

(c) And, if the VA determines that they need vocational rehabilitation to overcome the handicap of their disabilities. A veteran is eligible for nine years following discharge or release. An extension may be made under certain conditions.

Misfortune Follows Unhappy Attache

CHICAGO (AP) — "I am mad. I am not going to take it any more," said Dieter Murmann, who was held hostage by terrorists one day and apparently was robbed in his hotel room the next.

Murmann, an attache with the German Consulate in Chicago, was among eight persons held hostage Thursday by two Croatian terrorists.

Freed by the terrorists after several hours, Murmann retired the next night with his wife in his Chicago hotel room and awakened in the morning to find he apparently had been robbed of $150 to $160.

He told the Chicago Sun-Times in a telephone call Saturday that he was angry beyond his ability to explain.

"I've had enough. You can take just so much and then it is enough. To be held hostage and then this ... well, it is too much," Murmann said.

Being held hostage is part of his job, said Murman, 46, a native of Bonn who was sent to Chicago in July from New York to help in the consul general's Michigan Avenue offices. "Oh, to be held hostage, we have to count on it," he told the paper. "We know that can happen."

Murmann says he's had nothing but trouble since he arrived here. He lost $100 shortly after he came to Chicago and thought he had misplaced it. Now he believes it too was stolen.

Murmann was processing passports as usual Thursday morning when the two terrorists, identified by authorities as Mile Kodzoman, 31, and Bozo Kelava, 36, entered the consulate and took eight persons hostage, holding six of them for 10 hours.

Murman was not to arrive at his Bismarck Hotel room until 10 or 10:30 p.m. that night, after questioning by police and FBI agents.

He said he worked as usual on Friday, then spent the evening with his wife and a friend. But when the two awoke at 8 a.m. Saturday, they discovered the money they had had earlier was gone.

"I always put on the night lock. I can't remember if I did last night. We think somebody came into the room when we were sleeping," Murmann told the Sun-Times.

"My nerves are OK. My nerves are always OK. I am mad. I am not going to take it anymore. But I don't know what I can do about it."

Karpov Takes Two-Game Chess Lead

BAGUIO, Philippines (UPI) — Chess challenger Viktor Korchnoi blundered under severe time pressure Sunday to lose one game and then resigned a second game, giving Soviet champ Anatoly Karpov a commanding 3-1 lead in the championship series.

The 47-year-old Korchnoi was crushed as he surrendered on the 62nd move at the resumption of the 13th game, which he had adjourned Thursday in a winning position.

Karpov's stunning reversal of the game so unnerved the challenger that he gave up only nine moves after continuing the 14th game the Soviet whiz kid had left hanging Saturday with an overwhelming edge.

"A 3-1 lead means very little," said British grandmaster Michael Stean. "But the psychological blow in losing a good position is another thing."

The time pressure on Korchnoi in the 13th game was the key to the two victories Sunday.

Korchnoi went into the playing hall with only 20 minutes to make 15 moves. He spent 40 minutes pondering his sealed 41st move, R-R7, at adjournment of the 13th game and had to play rapidly at the resumption.

In making two lightning moves, Korchnoi blundered and the 27-year-old Soviet champ sensing the victory, stood from his seat, walked at his corner of the stage and eyed his hunched opponent with a contemptuous stare.

The second error on the 56th move, Q-KR4, sealed Korchnoi's doom. It immobilized his queen and opened the white king to a devastating attack. When Korchnoi resigned six moves later, Karpov was poised to spring a mating trap with his queen, rook and bishop.

Thirty minutes after the 13th game was resolved, the two men went back to the stage to continue the adjourned 14th game.

But Korchnoi was a shattered man. He did not have the fighting heart to continue the game and resigned on the 50th move less than an hour after it began.

Victory in that game for the Russian whiz kid was a foregone conclusion. He had made a daring gambit in the middle game, trading a rook for a bishop which gave him five pawns, a rook and a bishop against the challenger's two rooks and two pawns.

Karpov needs six wins to show the world he deserves the crown U.S. chess genius Bobby Fischer gave up by default in a dispute over match rules.

The winner gets the top prize of $350,000 and the loser, $200,000.

The 15th game is scheduled for Tuesday, with Korchnoi playing white.

Netmakers Commute To U.S. Jobs

CAMERON, La. (AP) — Joao Marcal has spent 20 years traveling back and forth from his home in Portugal to his job as a netmaker here, seeing his children grow up in stop-action sequences of three months duration.

Marcal, 54, is one of 17 skilled netmakers who learned their trade as children in Portugal making sardine nets. They hired on with Joe Carinhas to make menhaden nets for Gulf Coast fisheries when Carinhas couldn't find anyone in this country to do the job.

All but three of the netmakers spend nine months of the year in the United States, then return to families in Portugal for three months.

"It's hard to leave your family for a year at a time, but many in Portugal are used to it. There are not too many jobs there," said Marcal. "Many people there would like to have my job."

Marcal speaks some English. Most of his fellow commuters don't.

"There's a dog at our Patterson, La., place that doesn't understand anything but Portuguese," said Carinhas, a decendant of Portuguese seafarers and a pioneer in the menhaden industry here.

He said a netmaker earns about $12,000 plus room and board during his nine months on the job here.

The netmakers who work here live together in a sparsely furnished, tin-sided house provided and provisioned by Carinhas. They take turns cooking, and there's a huge supply of antacid stored near the television set in one room.

Carinhas said he has tried for 30 years without success to find American-born netmakers. "It's impossible to find anyone in this country to do it," he said. "The Department of Labor has tried.

"We went all up and down the Eastern Seaboard where menhaden fishing started in this country. We found some netmakers, but none of them wanted to move. And a lot of them have died.

"We tried to train American netmakers. We ran an on-job training program, but there just wasn't anyone who was willing to learn.

"We tried housewives. Their fingers are nimble enough, but there's a lot of pulling and carrying involved."

The menhaden nets are purse seines 1,800 feet long and 60 feet deep.

The nets are drawn in from the bottom, forming a big scoop which traps menhaden — commonly known as pogey — in its purse.

Carinhas provides nets for 17 boats — some of the boats his, the rest owned by Wallace Menhaden Products. The nets sell for about $18,000 apiece, and each boat has at least two sets of nets.

"Out of my nets, I get three or four years service," said Carinhas. "We have a system of changing nets after a boat catches 5 million fish with a net — that's about every two weeks or a month.

"The nets snag on something and tear, or normal wear puts a hole in them after a while. That's what these men do — mend nets and make new ones."

Marcal said he plans to mend nets and make new ones for about eight more years, then retire. The youngest of his three children is 20, and he has two grandchildren.

The Theater Royal in Drury Lane, London, has been open perpetually since Charles II granted its charter in 1668.

Thieves Take 21 Greek Orthodox Icons

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The government alerted border guards Sunday to be on the lookout for 21 valuable Greek Orthodox religious icons stolen Saturday from a 5th century Byzantine church now used as a museum.

Border patrols were warned to watch for attempts to smuggle the religious pictures out of the country.

At the same time, Istanbul police security launched a citywide search for the three gunmen who raided the museum before dawn Saturday. Authorities said the thieves tied up a guard, broke the glass vaults containing the icons and escaped in a waiting car.

The painted plates, described as "unique remnants" of the art of "iconography," depict Greek Orthodox saints. They were stolen from the Kariye Museum, formerly the Church of Chora.

Black Lung Victim Regulations Eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government regulations will allow a greater number of victims of black lung disease and their survivors to receive federal benefits, the Labor Department says.

The regulations, which went into effect on Friday, liberalize the legal definitions of coal miners and black lung disease, thus expanding elibility for benefits. The standards will be used in reviewing more than 120,000 outstanding or previously denied claims for compensation filed since 1973.

BUCKING THE WIND — These students on the playground of Bayless Elementary School battle against this typical West Texas sandstorm which blew through Lubbock during March of 1978. Mother Nature gave South Plains residents a break this year and diminished the number of sandstorms that usually curse the area each spring. Among the benefits derived from less wind was a decreace in soil erosion so far during this year. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis) intense and produced fewer days of blowing dust than previously had been expected.

Dusters Decrease During 1978

While spring winds are traditionally the strongest, Fryrear points out that "we could still get some (sandstorms) in the fall." He adds, though, that he expects this year's number of gritty days will fall short of his 1978 prediction.

The NWS records a "windy day" when wind speeds reach 30 mph or higher. Blowing dust is reported when visibility is reduced to below seven miles and only is considered a "dust storm" when visibility is reduced to less than 5/8th of a mile.

Three-Month Blowing Averages

Throughout 1978, the NWS recorded 22 hours of blowing dust in February, 22 more hours in March, and 28 hours in April.

The average wind speeds throughout the months of 1978 have been noticably lower than averages taken for those same months over a 30-year period.

February's average wind speed this year was 10.8 mph, March's average wind speed was 12 mph, and April's was 12.3 mph. The 30-year average for those months are 14.1 mph, 15.5 mph, and 15.6 mph respectively.

The decrease in sandstorms also marked a decrease in soil damage this year over 1977, according to Dan Blackstock a soil scientist with the Soil Conservation Service Area headquarters in Lubbock.

The service, which serves an 11-county area, measures and records soil movement during the months of October and November, and also measures the number of acres with soil damage during May and June.

Wind Damage Erosion Decreases

Blackstock's records show that in 1977 wind damage erosion occured to 436,970 acres, while in 1978 only 397,560 acres were damaged.

In Lubbock County alone, 14 days with damaging high winds were recorded this year, while 18 were recorded during 1977.

The major source of sand comes from disintegrated sandstone in the soil. However, soil conservationist Mickey Black points out that the amount of sand in the air also is affected by "cultivation methods, soil moisture and soil roughage" in the surrounding area.

Winds Linked To Geographical Location

Lubbock is subject to more intense winds than many cities on the Great Plains because of its geographical location, according to an NWS forecaster, who explains that Lubbock is surrounded by plowed fields with much dryland farming to the west of the Hub City — the direction from which many of the area's winds blow.

Lubbock also sits higher and further north than several other cities on the Plains.

In comparison, Amarillo is surrounded by more ranch land that more adequately holds the soil in place, and Big Spring sits lower on the Plains where it is more protected from the severe winds.

But Fryrear adds that winds in the Big Spring area may pick up more dust since the ratio of dryland farms to irrigated farms there is 95 to five. Lubbock has a ratio of 45 to 55.

Black comments that this year we had "weather conditions to initiate dust storms" and "we were dry and susceptible because of the climatic weather conditions we had in November."

A weather service spokesman also points out that the South Plains generally "had a dry winter and a lack of moisture in the upper level of the atmosphere," to contribute to a severe spring. He attributes 1978's mild spring to less intense frontal systems and slower winds.

Soil Protected By More Residue

Blackstock says another contributing factor to the mild spring in the Lubbock area was "more residue on the soil this year." Many farmers left cotton stalks in the soil during the winter months, according to the soil scientist.

Fryrear also credits the milder spring to "much colder temperatures." The agricultural engineer says when temperatures are cooler the winds are not as high; they become stronger when temperatures are average or hotter.

Fryrear's method to predict the annual number of days of blowing dust is called the "Big Spring Index." The method is 72 percent accurate, coming within five days of the number of days with blowing dust 72 percent of the time, according to the booklet "Predicting Blowing Dust in the Southern Plains."

During 1977, Fryrear estimated 27 days of blowing dust at Big Spring and 29 days were recorded for that year.

The formula implements evaporation rates, precipitation, and average daily wind movements from September to December of the preceding year to arrive at a prediction.

Flash Flood Kills Five Persons At White Sands Range

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — A 12-foot wall of water rushed down a normally dry arroyo on the sprawling White Sands Missile Range in southern New Mexico late Saturday, sweeping four family members and a military policeman to their deaths.

More than 100 men and three helicopters searched Sunday for other possible victims of the violent storm which dumped more than an inch of rain and was accompanied by 50 mph winds. The search was discontinued during the night because of severe weather conditions but resumed when the storm moved out of the area.

The bodies of the five victims, whose names were being withheld pending notification of relatives, were found by searchers early Sunday.

No other victims had been found by midday, although one other vehicle was spotted overturned and covered by debris in another arroyo.

"More Like Monsoon"

"It was more like a monsoon than a thunderstorm," said Maj. John Nieland, a missile range information officer.

Officials said a man, his wife and their two children were in one car and the military policeman in another which had stopped just short of a bridge spanning the small arroyo on an access road near the base of the Organ Mountains.

"The military policeman was following the car containing the four other persons and the officer apparently decided the bridge was too shaky to cross," said Pete Jax, a missile range spokesman. "They had stopped just short of the bridge when the water hit them."

The bodies of the woman and her 3-year-old daughter were found in one car near the bridge. The bodies of the man and a boy were washed about two miles downstream and the body of the military officer was carried three miles from the spot where the wall of water hit.

Jax said the abutments beneath the bridge also were washed away.

Missile Range Damage

Nieland said the storm damaged the missile range's housing area, but most of the damage was confined to the access road between the facility's Las Cruces, N.M., gate and U.S. Highway 70.

Flash flooding also was reported in El Paso, south of the missile range, where streets and underpasses were flooded. However, no serious damage, injuries or deaths were reported in the Texas city.

The National Weather Service said the sudden storm was created by the combination of a cold front and very moist tropical air out of the Pacific. Skies were clear Sunday but the weather bureau said there was a possibility of additional rain.

T. CULLEN DAVIS
In Jail On New Charges

Master, who testified he was asleep in her bed when the murders occurred.

Davis spent more than $3 million in legal fees. He has not yet been tried on charges of killing Farr and wounding Gavrel and Mrs. Davis. He was free on $650,000 bond.

Last week, Curry said he was not sure whether he would prosecute Davis on those charges. But on Sunday, he said, "This puts an entirely different light" on those cases.

of a weapon, though," he said.

Later, Compton dry-fired three shots at different targets to simulate tracking. The AP timed the shots in 5.8 seconds.

The handful of spectators and more than 100 media representatives found information hard to come by.

Dallas police performed only in a support role, and no one from the Assassinations Committee was on hand.

Besides the surprise shooting of a pistol from the knoll, shots were also fired at a fourth target in the general area where concrete curbing was found to be chipped following Kennedy's shooting.

Traffic Restricted

Blockades restricted traffic to official cars and went up before dawn.

One of the biggest question marks remained the recording made by the Dallas officer in 1963.

SOLONS TO VISIT HANOI

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Eight American congressmen fly to Hanoi today on an historic mission that could lead to the opening of formal diplomatic ties between the United States and Communist Vietnam. "We can but wonder what lies ahead," said Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., chairman of the congressional delegation invited to Vietnam.

Temperatures Due To Edge Back To 90s

Warm temperatures and sunny skies will blanket the South Plains today as a high pressure system continues over the area.

The system will bring the area fair skies and sunny afternoons through Tuesday. Today's high is expected in the low 90's, and tonight's low will be in the mid-60s.

Winds today will be at 10 to 15 mph.

Forecasters expect no precipitation across the area through Tuesday. But, by Wednesday area residents, especially those in the Panhandle, may have some shower activity.

Late Sunday light showers to very heavy thunderstorms were scattered over an area near Dalhart southwest to the Texas-New Mexico state line west of Amarillo. Movement was to the north at 15 mph.

In other portions of the state, heavy rains of up to two inches prompted the National Weather Service early Sunday to issue a flash flood warning for the El Paso area.

Showers were also reported Sunday morning in northeastern sections of the Panhandle and along the coast near Corpus Christi.

Idaho Man Makes Threats On Carter

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — A Twin Falls man was arrested late Saturday night and charged with threatening the life of President Carter on the eve of the chief executive's vacation trip to Idaho.

Donald P. Bressette, 48, a free-lance writer, was arrested by Secret Service agents and placed in the Twin Falls County jail after he was questioned by police.

The threats apparently were made in a telephone call and a letter written with characters cut out of newspapers.

Bombing, Burglary Linked In Probe

MINERAL WELLS (UPI) — Investigators have linked an attempted bombing at the Mineral Wells Savings and Loan Association to a burglary and narcotics ring in the Martimore, Md., area.

Police said the sophisticated, pipe bomb that was deactivated Wednesday before exploding was meant to divert police attention from the burglars' break-in at a discount store from which an estimated $30,000 worth of firearms, narcotics and cash was taken.

Most of the merchandise was recovered in the Baltimore area, Mineral Wells Police Chief Bobby Becknal said.

Balloonist Trio Starts Reaping Awards

LONDON (UPI) — The three Americans who made history's first trans-Atlantic crossing by balloon spent Sunday reaping the first material benefits of their feat — negotiating for sales and publication rights to their story.

Ben Abruzzo, 48, Ma Anderson, 44, and Larry Newman, 31, all of Albuquerque, discussed offers for their story of a six-day trans-Atlantic balloon journey that succeeded where 18 other crews mad failed, including an Abruzzo Anderson attempt last summer.

They declined to name the competing parties until the complicated contracts could be completed and signed, spokesman Jim Mitcmell said.

For the first time Sunday, the three balloonists also were able to sit down with their flight crews for an informal debriefing —discussing what went right and what could have been improved —possibly with an eye to the trip around the world the men say is their next goal.

"We've all been terribly busy. It's been a problem trying to do any sightseeing," said Mitchell.

Saturday night was taken up hosting a dinner to pay off a bet with British balloonists Don Campbell and Maj. Christopher Davey, forced to ditch 117 miles short of the French coast in their own crossing attempt last month.

Exchanging toasts and quips, the dinner was a long and enjoyable shop-talk session that last until about midnight.

The team that accompanied the balloonists from Albuquerque to the launching from Presque Isle, Maine, to the triumphant landing in France is splitting up to go back ton normal life, said Mitchell.

But for the balloonists themselves and their wives the glamor continues for a while longer.

Tuesday they head for France to accept an award from the mayor of Evreux, the small town where their craft finally came to rest. They then go on to Paris for a reception at the U.S. embausy and 5o receive the medal of the city of Paris and the French Aeronautics medal.

They plan to return home Friday or Saturday aboard an Air France Concorde jetliner.

West Coast Supermarket Clerks Walk Off Jobs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clerks at major supermarkets serving 10 million residents of Southern California walked off their jobs Sunday to support demands for higher wages.

"Food will still be available to the public," one union spokesman said, but he added, "It will just be harder to find."

Some of the supermarkets stayed open, staffed by supervisory personnel and non-striking employees.

It was the second strike to hit California retail food stores. Warehousemen, members of the Teamsters union, have been on strike at supermarket supply centers in the San Francisco Bay-area for a month.

The walkout by 55,000 members of nine locals of the Retail Clerks union began as stores in a nine-county area opened for business Sunday.

Federal mediators had asked the union to postpone action until Monday, but Kenneth Edwards, head of Local 770, said the request was "too little, too late."

Negotiations broke down late Saturday, three days after rank-and-file members of the union voted by a 7-1 margin to reject a contract proposal from the Food Employers Council that represents 15 major Southern California supermarket chains with 1,100 stores stretching from Bakersfield to the Mexican border.

Dollar Continues Rally In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. dollar continued its rally on the Tokyo foreign exchange market Monday, opening at 188.90 yen.

It slipped back in the first few minutes of trading to 188.60-.80, compared to Friday's closing 186.025.

One trader said the dollar's climb was due to its very strong performance in Europe and America on Friday.

"It seems a concerted effort at intervention is being made by central banks" in Germany, Switzerland, Japan and America, he said.

The Bank of Japan reportedly intervened both Thursday and Friday.

Dog, Man Who Ski Together Hopefully Stay Together

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Thunder is a 75-pound mutt who follows in the footsteps of his master — even in the water. They ski together.

"He dived out of the boat while it was moving and tried to climb up on the ski with me," says owner Ken Kuikman. "That's when I figured it was time to teach him how to do it."

It didn't take the 3-year-old dog long to get the hang of it. "In a couple of weeks he had his balance," says Kuikman, a carpenter from Wisconsin Dells, Wis., who lives here now.

"That was about a year ago and we've been skiing together ever since."

Kuikman, a father of nine, built a pair of skis with a piece of plywood between the runners to stabilize them for his dog, a mixture of German shepherd and collie.

"He does pretty well, even better than some people," laughs Kuikman, no novice to the sport. "Now, literally, the whole family skis."

They've taken some spills crossing the wake behind Kuikman's 16-foot runabout pushed by a 75-horsepower motor. But that never seemed to dampen Thunder's enthusiam or trust.

"The hardest part," says Kuikman, "is when he first gets up and shakes the water off."

They ski every weekend on Lake Tarpon, usually 10 to 15 miles. "One day we skied from noon until 3:15 — the equivalent of 36 miles," Kuikman says. "And he hung right in there with me. We were both tired. We were just feeling crazy that day."

When Kuikman gets into his bathing suit, Thunder's ears perk up. "He'll snatch the boat keys out of my hands if he has to come five feet off the ground to do it," Kuikman says. "And when I put on my ski vest, he goes into orbit, straining to get into the water."

He barks at other skiers. But Kuikman says the biggest kick he gets out of the whole thing is the reaction of boaters and swimmers who see the tandem.

"Jaws drop, or they hoot and holler, little kids start waving, we get a 'thumbs up' sign or people clap. And I'll bet Thunder is in a couple thousand snapshots."

TANDEM SKIERS—Ken Kuikman and his dog, Thunder, spend an afternoon water skiing on Lake Tarpon at Tarpon Springs, Fla. Kuikman says the dog jumped from the boat one day and tried to climb on the skis with him, so he decided to teach him to water ski. Thunder was a willing pupil. (AP Laserphoto)

Hamilton Gymnastics Introduces New Home With Week-Long Offer

Three important announcements head a list of newsmaking items this week from Hamilton Gymnastics School:

(1) Formerly located at 107-A N. University Ave. for two years, Hamilton Gymnastics School is now in new, expanded, modern quarters at a new location . . . at 4811 W. Loop 289 (at corner of 50th Street and the Loop, adjacent to the Honda firm);

(2) Enrollment starts today at this new location, and anyone bringing in the Hamilton Gymnastics ad on these pages during the enrollment week (today through Aug. 25) will receive a 10 per cent discount on the first month fee!

(3) Not only is there a new home for the school (three times as much space as formerly) but the curriculum has been expanded, with top instructors in charge of each area ... dance, gymnastics, karate and cheerleading for ages as young as pre-school, 3 years old, in some classes! Attention is given to all skill levels, at all ages, for both boys and girls.

Meet the Staff

Johnny Hamilton, already with an enviable personal achievement and instruction record, is director. Hamilton, a former NCAA All-American, Big 10 champion and in 1967 ranked fourth in the world professional champions (gymnastics) has lived in Lubbock for five years and has earned quite a following in his gym program. Johnny is an Amarillo native.

Wayne Downing, assistant coach, has had three years training under Hamilton and has directed gym camps in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Sharon Storey is dance director and internationally certified. She has recently returned from teaching and performing in South Africa.

Mary Powell, karate director, is a five-times Karate Olympics champion.

Doubly Certified

Hamilton is enthusiastic about this staff, stating, "I believe it the best available. And this is the only private gymnastics school in Lubbock certified by both the U.S. Gymnastics Safety Association and the Tri-State Gymnastics Federation."

"We take pride in having had the No. 1 gymnastic team in the area, too."

The new program schedule, at the new location, basically begins Aug. 28, with completion of this term at the Christmas holiday break. Classes are conducted Mondays through Thursdays. There are morning and early afternoon classes for the pre-school crowd; and after-school time for grade school students, and there are some adult classes, too.

"Now, isn't it true that Hamilton Gymnastics has something for you? We think so, and we'll be happy to give full details of our program and facilities. Phone the gym offices at 793-1013, or Johnny Hamilton residence, 795-9870; or better yet, come out and see this new addition to Lubbock, the Hamilton Gymnastics School at 50th Street and Loop 289. And don't forget the 10 per cent coupon offer."

Locally-Owned Efco Firm Serves Area Building Fences Of Customers' Choice

"Efco Fence Company is in the business of building fences. We build a good fence and we stand behind our work," says Glen Herndon, sales manager.

Locally-owned Efco Fence Company has been in operation on the South Plains for several years. The business office is at No. 33, Redbud Square, 13th Street and Slide Road in Lubbock.

A phone call to 792-8246 will bring quick response to any questions about fencing.

Multiple Types

Spruce, cedar, redwood or chain link fencing is no problem for Efco. This company can build it all to the customer's satisfaction. They are pleased to offer free estimates on new construction, replacement fencing, repairs, removal and maintenance services.

E. R. Forrester, senior partner and commercial sales executive for Efco Fence, tells:

"All construction materials have risen in price dramatically the past few months. Fencing material is no different. Through efficient management and volume production, we are able to hold our costs down on some lines of fencing. We like to pass these savings on to our customers.

'A Fence For The Need'

"There seems to be a trend to more chain link installation, especially in the rural areas. A fence can serve three purposes . . . to keep something in, or out, or for privacy. If privacy is a primary concern, then wood is the logical selection, and we can build a fence to our customers' specifications," says Forrester.

Several Crews

Herndon is quick to stress that "our success as a company in this community depends upon our service record. We try to live up to what we say. At the present time we have several crews building fence and we try to hold our backlog time to one week from the time of receiving an order for a fence. Most times we are successful, and it is less time than even that. Unforeseen contingencies can cause delays, too. These we strive to avoid as often as possible."

"Wouldn't you think that now is the time to consider building that fence you've been needing? Or repair the one you've been renailing for years?

"Then why not inquire now and discover the advantages of having Efco Fence Company as your contractor; you'll be glad you did."

Exceptional facilities and the experienced personnel who are customer oriented make "relying upon this firm a pleasure for a change."

Long On Experience

Chico Gutierrez, construction superintendent, has been with the company a long time and will see that your fence is constructed in the best possible way to meet your requirements.

For free estimates call E. F. Forrester or Glen Herndon at 792-8246.

FOR WOODEN, CHAIN LINK FENCING — E. F. (Floyd) Forrester of Efco Fence Co. in Lubbock is shown with a recently installed fence, with wood utilized on sides and chain link at rear. The Efco firm constructs, replaces, repairs, removes and maintains fences.

Robert Spence School, In New, Larger Quarters, Tells Expanded Schedule

With fall around the corner, Robert Spence is now making plans for its new classes. The staff at Robert Spence School is very excited about their new, larger location in Terrace Center, 4902 34th St., Suite 15, phone 797-8134, in Lubbock.

"Have you decided what you want to accomplish this fall? If the answer is 'no,' why not give Robert Spence a call. Maybe you want to be a model, or maybe you just want to be poised, assured, looking and sounding your best. Robert Spence School, in any event, has the training you desire."

With the new facilities, many more classes can be offered for the individual person. New classes are soon to begin in exercising, television and radio advertising for the model, and male modeling classes. Rooms are available for small group meetings and seminars.

Registrations now underway for fall classes which will begin Sept. 5. The deadline for registration is Sept. 1.

Classes will be offered with various weekly schedules from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, or 1-3 p.m. Evening classes meet once weekly from 7 until 9 p.m.

All schools in Texas that are teaching any course of instruction must be certified by the Texas Education Agency. This is not only a protection for the school, but also for the students. The Robert Spence School and its staff are certified by the Texas Education Agency, and is owned and directed by Brenda Becknell.

Classes Listed

Classes are offered in Self-Improvement and Personal Development, Professional Modeling, the Classsic Woman course, the Little Princess course and the Young Miss course, and are designed to assist girls and women toward the self realization that leads to mature confidence in one's own image.

The instructors can impart the skills taught because the classes at the school are so small; no more than eight persons are assigned to any instructor in any phase; and teachers devote individual attention to the needs of each.

The basic course in self-improvement consists of instruction in several fundamental elements which combine to develop the truly poised person. These elements include posture and walking, skin care and makeup application, hair styling, figure correction, speaking, wardrobe coordination and personality development.

Beyond the self-improvement course, the Robert Spence School offers instruction in professional modeling which opens career vistas to many women. The school functions as an agency and has placed many women in modeling jobs in the Lubbock area, Dallas and New York.

The Classic Woman course is designed for the woman who is interested in updating her wardrobe, hairstyles, makeup and in being poised in all situations she may encounter. This course is especially successful for business organizations, clubs and area groups.

The Young Miss and Little Princess courses are designed for girls from age five to 14 to help them develop poise and manners and grooming. Pageant modeling also is offered to all ages who may be interested in entering pageants.

Qualified Instructors

Instructors other than Miss Becknell include Mrs. Jerry (Lynette) Thuett, Mrs. Ralph (Gloria) Madrid, Mrs. Ron (Donna) Chandler, Miss Linda Wilks, Mrs. Bill (Johnnie) Hardage and Miss Robin Becknell. They are members of the World Modeling Association. They attend workshops and seminars in New York and Salt Lake City to update their curriculum and keep abreast of the current trends in the high fashion industry of New York and other areas.

The instructors have been speakers in the public schools, social organizations, banking institutions, small groups and clubs. They are available to give lectures and demonstrations to groups and organizations for a minimal fee. They also teach the short courses for groups of eight or more in the local area.

As a model agency, Robert Spence makes available its professionally trained models and instructors for those special occasions such as conventions, grand openings, fashion shows, commercials and photography.

Aside from being a modeling agency, Robert Spence also represents talented men, women and children involved in the performing arts area. They are available for entertainment at meetings, conventions and special functions.

Top Honors Garnered

Miss Becknell sponsored a group of advanced graduates to the World Modeling Association in New York and brought home top honors. Phyllis Johnson won American Model 1978 designation, most beautiful hair and makeup and photo posing in New York and the Bahamas. Susan Purser was a Teen Finalist and won the most beautiful hair and makeup.

GRADUATE — Susan Purser, a graduate of Robert Spence School, was a finalist in Teen Division competition in New York, also winning 'Most Beautiful Hair and Makeup.' Susan has done tea room, television and photography modeling.

Robin Becknell was selected to dance in the opening production number directed by Gerry Gavreau of Canada. Another type of honor recently was awarded to graduate Suzette Scholz, named Dallas Cowboy cheerleader.

Miss Becknell is the owner-director of the school. She is a graduate of Texas Tech and is a former teacher for the Idalou Public Schools. She has taught professional modeling and pageant modeling. She is frequently a guest on "People Place" show and has modeled and lectured for various organizations in the area.

Mrs. Thuett is a Robert Spence graduate and a resident of Post. She has taught for the school four years and has modeled for television and fashion shows in the area and is well known for her lecturing and seminars.

Mrs. Madrid, a Texas Tech and Robert Spence graduate, is a former teacher for the Lubbock Independent Schools. She frequently appears on "People Place" and is well known for her lecturing and modeling in the area.

Mrs. Chandler is a graduate of Robert Spence and Texas Tech and is involved in the fashion merchandising area and has been modeling in the Lubbock area, as well as teaching in the Robert Spence curriculum.

Miss Wilks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Wilks. She is a graduate of Coronado High School and attended Texas Tech. She has modeled for various stores and for television and also instructs all courses at Robert Spence.

Mrs. Hardage is a resident of Lamesa. She is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons and is a former teacher in the Lamesa School District. She has modeled locally and teaches various Robert Spence courses in Lubbock, Lamesa and surrounding towns.

Robin Becknell is a graduate of Robert Spence and attends Texas Tech. She teaches various courses at the school. She has been trained in the gymnastics and dance areas and has performed at the WMA convention. She has done runway, television photography and tea room modeling.

Miss Brenda Becknell will be happy to talk to any interested person, and a phone call to 797-8134 can bring complete information.

Gilberts, Stride Rite: Names To Know, Appreciate In Readying For New Term

FOR THE BEST IN FITTING AND BRANDS — Kids love the look of Stride Rite; mothers love the way they fit and wear for the school rigors at hand. Pictured with a selection of the new-season footwear at Gilberts Shoes in Indiana Gardens are (standing, from left) Harold Simms, long experienced and formerly owning his own juvenile store in another state; Polly Gilbert, co-owner, who has with her husband, Lewis Gilbert (not pictured), been in the shoe business in Indiana Gardens for 20 years; manager Maburn Thompson with over 30 years of fitting experience in juvenile and adult shoe needs, plus working with orthopedic surgeons and pediatricians in the proper fit and type of shoe needed for different prescriptions; (at front) Kathy Lenning and Tricia Holcombe, both added to the staff in early summer. Absent when the picture was made was Jean Lingo.

"If you want to keep their heads in school, keep their feet in Stride Rite shoes, the shoe with a high eye-cue!"

And for Stride Rites, it is Gilberts Shoes, 3434 34th St., in Indiana Gardens, the store in full readiness for fall, school and winter.

It is quite a new-season parade of shoes for boys and girls that is now presented at Gilberts Shoes. The new style are really super, with colors and leathers to please. "Neat" as your kids will say.

Stride Rite shoes never pinch or squeeze; they come in more sizes and widths than any other childrens shoes, and they're fitted to each foot by a professional shoe specialist at Gilberts Shoes.

Visa and Master Charge purchases ar welcomed at Gilberts, a complete juvenile shoe store offering the only in-store orthopedic shoe service (in most instances the same day) between Dallas and Alburquerque.

More about the field of children's shoes:

Gone are the days of the indispensible Oxford in staid black or brown.

Children's shoes are walking and running in most unexpected new directions. What once called the special-purpose shoe now goes everywhere. Leathers shine in a rich range of colors.

From tiny tots to older children, "fashion" is the key word.

Stride Rite shoes are styled in all the new fashion trends.

For the finest in juvenile shoes, for in-store orthopedic shoe service, for latest new-season fashions for the young set, and even for boot and shoe repair, Gilberts merits full consideration.

AT BILLIE JO'S — The superb instruction and the student enjoyment and expertise in the various departments of Billie Jo's School of Dance, 4228 Boston, phone 795-0108, are reflected in these just-made photos at the school where ballet, tap, modern jazz, baton, tumbling and balance beam are subjects.

Billie Jo's School Of Dance Sets New Fall Term Involving Multiple Subjects

"Dancing is the first of the fine arts and should be taught to children."

We at Billie Jo's School of Dance, 4228 Boston Ave., phone 795-0108, teach coordination of mind and body, cooperation with others through group training, instill confidence and self assurance. These are the required qualifications for social success and good citizenship.

Fall classes start today (Aug. 21) and enrollment will continue through August. Five teachers, all specialized in their field, will be doing his or her job to perfection.

At Billie Jo's, Sherry Hornack heads up the Ballet Department. Pictured here is one of her ballet classes. Ballet gives a child the feeling of self assurance, builds a beautiful and healthy body, lends grace, poise and charm to the personality. Ballet is fantasy, and the world of fantasy (a very real world for children) should be encouraged.

Sherry has been teaching at Billie Jo's for three years; she has her Bachelors degree of Arts in Dance from Texas Tech.

Sherry Allen is pictured teaching one of her jazz classes. Modern jazz is sweeping the country today. All children love to do jazz; it gives them an opportunity for self expression and teaches them to project their personalities into all other phases of dance. Sherry is a former member of the Apache Belles, an organization that featured Sherry for many Dallas Cowboy games. She is a member of Dance Masters of America. She also teaches baton and her students hold many titles due to her excellent training.

Marilyn Campbell and Tracy Inglis are fantastic with the acrobats and tumblers at Billie Jo's. Marilyn and Tracy are pictured with a group of students who love the balance beam and a fun warm-up time on the mat.

Every little boy and girl has a great desire to become a gymnast. Strength and muscle control are developed through this training.

Marilyn also teaches ballet modern jazz. She is a member of Dance Masters of America and is a favorite with all the students at Billie Jo's. She takes many of her students out to perform at various organizations. She is not only a marvelous dancer herself, but she can also sing like a lark! This will be Marilyn's third year on the staff.

Billie Jo teaches the tap at this versatile dance studio. Tap is rhythm — the quickest and surest way of developing coordination. Children so trained are outstanding at sports in school and at social activities. Tap is enjoyable, good for children full of nervous energy and it creates self discipline.

Billie Jo has been teaching in Lubbock for 20 years and has been at 4228 Boston for 18 of these years.

Subjects taught at Billie Jo's School of Dance are Ballet, Tap, Modern Jazz, Baton, Tumbling and Balance Beam.

Special pre-school classes are offered for "tots" starting at the age of three. All teachers are specialized in the subjects they teach.

Beginning Through Advanced Classes Starting At Mrs. B's

For fall, there is an exciting and new schedule of classes, seminars and workshops beginning in early September at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts, 5105 29th Drive, phone 797-5850, in Lubbock.

First classes begin Sept. 5, just a few days away, so early inquiry and registration is advised, as all sessions are limited in number of student spaces.

Beginners, intermediate and advanced instruction is scheduled, and sessions will be in mornings, afternoons and evenings.

So . . . if one is interested in expert instruction in tole painting, canvas oils, etc., Mrs. B's provides the time, the place and the instruction by authorities in their respective fields.

Faculty of 'Pros'

Returning to conduct tole classes are Charl Egeland and Sarah Storrs, both most popular here and proven capable in their traditionally packed classes.

For oil painting, Jo Daughtery, who hardly needs introduction in this area, and Frankie (Pee Wee) Lanier, artist and popular instructor, will be on hand.

Later workshops and classes will involve the leadership of Jeannie Lewis, Sally Carter and others. Watch for announcements.

Schedules and details on impending instruction are gladly furnished at Mrs. B's, but early inquiry is quite necessary for the classes beginning in early September.

Supplies for all instruction courses are available at the shop.

Picture Frames

One of the more notable additions there has been the increases inventory of picture frames . . . in the popular standard sizes, and at prices that hold business at home!

Insult Cards Make Job Easy For 'Chickens'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Your boss's sense of justice could earn him an appointment to the Supreme Court: of Uganda.

When it comes to pillow talk, your spouse stutters.

This doesn't imply that you're old. But yesterday there were three vultures circling your house.

Well, here's some good news to help you recover more quickly. During your hospital stay, there has been a different car parked in your driveway every night.

A former writers' club has brought these and other insults to the national market as greeting cards, for people who can't or won't verbalize what they really think.

"Most people don't have the guts to go up to a friend and say it. It's not easy to come up with a good, classy insult," said John O'Donnell, president of Group Ten Press. "Ours are sort of a sugar-free, non-toxic form of revenge."

The cards feature a front-page build-up: (Everyone knows you deserve a promotion) and a punch line inside: (Hot air always rises to the top.).

O'Donnell, a playwright, and Steve Stone, a former creative writing professor, direct a group of eight insulting people with a variety of personalities.

"The group sits around throwing out new insults and then refining them. But I can think of at least three members who wouldn't even have the courage to send an insult card to somebody without writing 'ha, ha' at the bottom," Stone said.

The former Bellevue College writing group started printing 12 insult cards a year ago to finance an anthology of Midwest writers. "Suddenly," O'Donnell said, "people were screaming for more insults."

About 150,000 cards were sold and the group "broke even" financially in its first year. In May, Group Ten Press became a full-fledged business and leased offices in Omaha's Old Market area. Recently a national distributor asked to market the insults.

O'Donnell has found that the "harder insults" have been best sellers.

Try sending this greeting to a friend or loved one: "We're having a roast suckling pig at the luau. You'll feel right at home."

Most people laugh when they receive the cards from friends, said O'Donnell. "But maybe there's just a little element of truth involved."

Like in this one, for instance: "I don't care what anybody thinks about your management abilities. I like you — Mein Fuhrer."

Or how about: "If your conscience were surgically removed, it would be a minor operation."

Stone believes it is a "comment on society" that people can laugh at themselves. The jokes work as long as "everyone is insulted equally" and an insult is thrown out if anyone in the group finds it offensive.

S. African Union Gives Jobs To All

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The South African Electrical Workers' Association became the first union in this racially divided country to call for job training for qualified people of all races, the Johannesburg Star said Saturday.

After the decision Friday by leaders of the 20,000-member union, Arthur Grobbelaar, head of the Trade Union Council of South Africa, predicted major changes in the country's labor legislation.

Some professions and jobs in South Africa are reserved for whites. Because of a shortage of whites in some fields, including transportation and motor assembly, blacks and persons of mixed race are getting jobs on an unofficial basis.

Mass Ends Mourning Period For Pope Paul VI

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church ended its nine-day mourning period for Pope Paul VI on Sunday with an Eastern Rite Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, and an American cardinal said the field of candidates for the papacy "is quite open."

The official mourning period ended with a Mass said in Armenian by Patriarch Hemaoagh Pier XVIII Ghedighian before 2,000 worshippers. The patriach lauded the late pontiff, who died of a heart attack Aug. 6, for his efforts to bring peace to war-torn Lebanon.

During the mourning period, which began with the pontiff's burial last Saturday, an estimated 500,000 pilgrims knelt and prayed before the simple tomb of the pope in the grotto of the basilica.

In the last few days preceding the conclave to elect a new pope, the cardinals reportedly were avoiding politicking for favorites at their daily meetings. Instead, Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia said, the cardinals are exchanging ideas and information about background experience and capabilities of colleagues, delicately steering clear of promoting individuals.

Meanwhile, Cardinal Joseph Marie Trin-nhu-Khue, the archbishop of Hanoi, arrived in Rome to participate in the secret conclave of 111 princes of the Roman Catholic Church that begins Friday.

"The field is quite open," Krol said in an interview with The Associated Press, adding there has been a kind of spontaneous, voluntary agreement not to talk about papal preferences. "As for any naming of those who would or would not make a good pope, it's yet to be," Krol said. "There has been no advocacy at all, no discussion on who is considered eligible."

Vatican observers say the list of "papabili," or likely papal candidates, include Italian Cardinals Sergio Pignedoli, Sebastiano Baggio and Giovanni Benelli as well as foreigners such as Argentina's Eduardo Pironio and Holland's Johannes Willebrands.

Krol, dean of the voting cardinals from the United States and former president of the U.S. National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said the shunning of advocacy has an edifying significance. "It is evidence of the awareness of the presence of the Holy Spirit," he said.

Sitting on a bench in the green, landscaped grounds of Villa Stritch on the outskirts of Rome, where most U.S. cardinals are residing, Krol said: "We have supreme confidence that we can do more on or knees than we can discussing."

Another U.S. prelate, Cardinal William Baum of Washington, D.C., said a prime need of church leadership today is a "firmer, clearer representation" of the Gospel message.

"That's the heart of the matter," he said. "In our time, in the West and the United States, there is a kind of crisis of doctrine, a diminuition of it. Many are very confused."

The pope holds a central role in offering guidance, Baum said. "He is looked to by all to set the tone, to encourage, to guide and sometimes even reprove his fellow bishops," the cardinal said, also pointing out that this did not mean any disciplinary crackdown.

Both American cardinals backed continuation of the directions taken by the Second Vatican Council, including an expanded role for the laity, liturgical reforms and pressing efforts for Christian Unity.

"There is hardly any conceivable way these efforts could be stopped, reversed or the process of implementation stemmed," Krol said. He said the papacy demands both "fidelity to doctrine" and "openness to change" to the varying human conditions and needs — a "conservatism in doctrine" but "progressivism in manner, means and methods."

While the substance of the message doesn't change, he said, there has to be "differences in the way it's presented to penetrate and permeate the world today."

The Church of England, founded because of a divorce, does not recognize divorce today.

Papal Election Process Detailed

VATICAN CITY (AP) -On Friday, cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church will file into the famed Sistine Chapel and open their conclave to elect a successor to Pope Paul VI.

It is unlike any election anywhere, based on an 800-year-old formula modified 32 times. How does the procedure work to pick the church's 263rd pontiff?

Here, in question and answer form, are the points involved.

Q: Who votes in the conclave?

A: Only cardinals of the church and only those who have not passed their 80th birthday at the moment of entry into the conclave.

Q: How many will actually vote?

A: A total of 114 of the 129 cardinals are under 80 and eligible but three are ill so only 111 are expected to be present. Their average age is 66. One cardinal died last week.

Q: Do the cardinals actually cast ballots?

A: Yes. Each cardinal writes his choice on a rectangular card under the words in Latin "Eligo in Summum Pontificem" (I Choose as Supreme Pontiff).

Then each cardinal, in order of seniority, approaches an altar set up in the chapel, kneels, prays for a short time and then arises and pronounces aloud the following oath: "I call to witness Christ the Lord who will be my judge, that my vote is given to the one who before God I consider to be elected."

He then drops the ballot on a plate placed upon the altar. When all cardinals have voted, the ballots are recorded and read aloud by three "scrutinizers."

Q: Who can be elected pope?

A: In theory any male Roman Catholic but in practice the last non-cardinal was selected 600 hundred years ago.

Q: How is the election carried out?

A: Two ballots are held each morning and two in the afternoon. A majority of two-thirds plus one is needed for election.

Q: What if the balloting is inconclusive?

A: After three days, the cardinal electors take a pause for prayers and discussion. Then they resume. If the conclave is still deadlocked after seven more ballots, there is another pause and then further voting.

If after another seven ballots they are still deadlocked, the cardinals can decide to switch to a simple majority plus one or a runoff between the two top candidates.

They can also decide to delegate the voting to an assembly of nine to 15 cardinals.

The apostolic constitution on the conclave also allows the selection of a pope by acclamation or the delegation of the choice to a group at the start without any general balloting.

Q: What are the first acts of the winning candidate?

A: He is first asked whether he accepts the papacy. If he does, he then must choose a name. By tradition, the new pope won't pick his own first name or the name Peter. Catholics consider St. Peter the first pope and there has never been a pontiff Peter II.

Q: How secret is the voting?

A: The word conclave itself comes from the Latin cum clavé, meaning with key, and the cardinals will be locked into the conclave area for the duration along with about 70 other persons — church officials, priests to give confessions in various languages, two doctors and one or two male nurses and technicians to guard against any possible use of film or recording devices.

Each cardinal as well as the others will be sworn to secrecy with the penalty of excommunication.

Documents Show FBI Aided Klan

DETROIT (UPI) — Documents obtained by the American Civil Liberties Union show the FBI in 1961 passed along information about two Freedom Rider buses to a Birmingham, Ala., police sergeant who was a known Ku Klux Klan agent.

Howard Simon, Michigan ACLU executive director, said the 3,000 pages of FBI letters, memos and teletype messages were released to ACLU attorneys in a lawsuit filed against the agency for allegedly failing to prevent Klan attacks on Freedom Riders.

"What we found in the documents was rather startling," Simon said Sunday. "The ACLU is charging that the FBI provoked the Klan to carry out terrorist acts against civil rights workers." n

He said documents show the FBI knew that Sgt. Thomas Cook of the Birmingham Police Department's intelligence branch was passing information the FBI gave him on the activities of civil rights workers to the Klan's top leadership.

According to the documents, the chief of the Birmingham FBI office called Cook to inform him of the progress the buses were making through the racially tense South and when they were due to arrive at Alabama bus stations.

Simon said an FBI informant who had infiltrated the Klan said Cook and Birmingham Public Safety Director Eugene "Bull" Connor conspired with Klan leaders to allow physical attacks on Freedom Riders when the buses arrived at terminals in Birmingham.

The documents, he said, showed Birmingham police agreed to arrive at the terminals 15 or 20 minutes after the buses arrived to give Klansmen time to attack the civil rights workers. Klansmen arrested after that time period were promised light sentences.

When buses arrived, no police were present and Klansmen attacked civil rights workers, news reporters and photographers with chains, pipes and baseball bats.

Earlier the same day, Klansmen intercepted a Freedom bus at Anniston, Ala., 50 miles east of Birmingham, and set it on fire.

"Wa found," Simon uaid, "that the FBI knew that the Birmingham Police Department was inflitrated by the Klan, that many members of the police department were Klan members, that they knew a person in intelligence was passing information directly to leaders of the Klan and they also knew that their undercover agent had worked out an agreement with the police department to stay away from the terminals.

"They knew all that and yet they continued their relationship with the police department."

The documents were released to attorneys for Walter Bergman, 80, a former Wayne State University professor and Detroit school board official who has filed a $1 million lawsuit against the FBI.

Bergman, who now lives at a Grand Rapids, Mich., nursing home and is confined to a wheelchair, says he was partially paralyzed from the beating he suffered in the Anniston attack.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born: If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

It wasn't my idea to buy the jawbones and teeth of a shark to bring home from our vacation.

Okay, so I take the blame for buying the ceramic chess set, the two Aztec dolls in full costume, and the round mirror surrounded by bread dough flowers, but the shark's orthodontic nightmare was definitely my husband's idea.

I told him, "You can buy a shark's mouth on every street corner in the United States. Why do we have to lug it back over 3,000 miles?"

"You should talk," he grumbled. "I thought we made a pact never to buy any souvenir we couldn't pack in our luggage, wear, eat, or pour over ice cubes."

"If you're referring to the Mexican hat I bought with the sequins, you'll change your mind when it covers a wall in the family room and Tom dances around it at our next party."

As we stumbled on the plane, I said, "Besides, that gross thing smells."

"It does not smell," he said defensively.

"Then why are people on the airplane trying to open their windows?"

"I can't get my feet under my seat," he said. "You're going to have to move the drum. Maybe if you took the shopping bag on your side, I wouldn't have to hold the drum between my knees."

"Okay, I'll take the shopping bag if you'll take the sourdough bread we bought in the airport. And remember if the Grecian urn in the shopping bag breaks, let it be on your conscience. Besides, I don't see why you can't put the bread in the shark's jaws."

"Can you imagine how this conversation sounds to the people in the seats in front of us?"

"I don't care what it sounds like. We have to get all this stuff under the seat. What did you do with the coconuts with the cute Indian faces?"

"Over by your handbag."

"Look, let me out in the aisle and I think we can stuff all this under the seat."

Minutes later, I straightened up and slid into the seat. At that moment, two sets of upper and lower teeth clamped around my backside, causing me unbelievable pain.

"What's the matter?" asked my husband.

"I've just made a sequel to Jaws I and II that no one is going to believe."

My husband was smiling. No one will convince me he didn't put the shark up to it.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ7 ♡AQ5 ◇6 ♣KQ10872
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Dble.	Rdble.	1 ♡
Pass	3 ♡	4 ◇	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—By first redoubling and then introducing his own suit at the four-level, partner has shown a very strong hand, so a bid of five clubs does not do your hand justice. If four no trump in this situation were natural, you might try that. The trouble is that partner will probably read it as Blackwood in support of his suit. Therefore, we suggest a cue-bid of four hearts to tell him that you, too, have a strong hand.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K105 ♡AQJ72 ◇2 ♣AKQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Your already powerful hand has been improved by the fit for partner's suit, and you should be thinking in terms of slam. The best way to flash the message to partner is with a jump shift to three clubs.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ97 ♡AQJ ◇AQ8 ♣A94
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	4 NT	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Partner's bid of four no trump is a quantitative raise, not Blackwood. It asks you to bid a slam if you are maximum for your opening bid. Since you are not, you have nothing to add to the auction.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ32 ♡A9762 ◇6 ♣85
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	Dble.	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—It is not usually our practice to pass partner's low-level penalty double when we have a five-card major which has not yet been shown. Here, however, we have excellent defensive values, especially since partner rates to be short in spades. Even if we can make game in hearts, what we collect from two clubs doubled should compensate amply.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQJ83 ♡7 ◇AQJ9 ♣73
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with three hearts. What action do you take?

A.—In our book, it is simply a question of whether to double or bid four spades—three spades would be a gross underbid on a hand where a key king in partner's hand would virtually guarantee game. A double could prove awkward if partner jumped in clubs, so our choice would be four spades. Partner is free to move with a good hand—after all, four spades is not a weak bid by any standards.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠4 ♡8 ◇A105 ♣AK987432
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 ♠	Dble.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—You could easily have a grand slam on this hand. Unfortunately, West's preempt has left little, if any, room for scientific exploration of the possibility. We suggest you simply take a plunge by bidding four no trump. If partner shows two aces, try seven clubs. Partner will never appreciate the tremendous playing strength of your hand if you attempt any other approach.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J1097 ♡KJ8752 ◇A ♣AK
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—Slam is an excellent prospect unless your side has two fast spade losers. To guard against that possibility, you should start off by jump-shifting to three clubs, followed by a cue-bid in diamonds. When you bid five hearts, partner will realize that you are concerned about spades, and his action will depend on his holding in that suit. An immediate jump to three hearts is so huge an underbid that it earns three demerits.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1076 ♡Q ◇872 ♣AKJ6
Partner opens the bidding with four hearts. What action do you take?

A.—If your partner's preempts are disciplined, you must be missing an ace—you don't preempt with a hand that contains two aces. Since partner has promised to take eight tricks in his hand and you have four, slam should depend on how many fast losers you have in diamonds. Unfortunately, there is no way to uncover partner's diamond holding. We would simply bid six hearts. First, partner might hold a singleton diamond. Secondly, even if there are two diamond losers, the opponents might not lead that suit, and your hand should then provide sufficient discards for partner.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is seven years old. We were told last year that he had a very low blood platelet count. He had bone marrow tests, which were OK. His count went back up on its own, but by March this year it was back down to 1,000. It has not risen above 12,000 since. He was given prednisone and it went up, then dropped again. He is now being taken off that drug. It has been recommended that he have his spleen removed. Your thoughts on this? — P.B.

The spleen is still pretty much a mystery organ. It is an organ rich in blood vessels, and plays an important role as a factory, clearing house and storage warehouse for blood particles. In the adult it measures approximately five by three inches, and is located in the upper left quarter of the abdomen behind the ribs.

While its chief role is in production of blood particles, particularly red blood cells and platelets (clotting factors), it can, paradoxically, cause a destruction of these elements, a condition called hypersplenism.

The failure of conservative treatment (drug therapy) along with his negative bone marrow studies, would indicate that your son has this spleen disorder. Removal of the organ usually corrects it.

While the spleen sounds like a very important organ, one can live a healthy and normal life without it (another of the spleen's parodoxes). The complications from spleen disorders, particularly ease of bleeding from a low platelet count, which your son has, can be serious. If splenectomy (removal) has been recommended, you should give serious consideration to having it done. Seven is not too young for this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am trying to quit smoking once again after about five failures. I am tired of blowing smoke into my young children's faces and smelling up my home. My husband doesn't smoke. What really bothers me is the thought of gaining weight. You have mentioned that the rate of metabolism slows down when you stop smoking. Does this mean that no matter how you cut down on food and no matter how much you exercise you will still gain when you quit smoking? — Mrs. K.D.

I would like to knock down this bit of medical folklore. True, the absence of the nicotine stimulant can cause a slight decrease in metabolism (how we use up the nutrients in food). But this does not account for the gain some experience after quitting the weed. The real cause is a combination of things — increased appetite, snacking as a nervous crutch, even drinking inordinate amounts of water. Keeping active and exercising more than compensate for what slight weight gain occurs. Don't use the prospect as a convenient roadblock to quitting. It is not unusual for a reformed smoker to have tried numbers of times before attaining the goal. After five unsuccessful attempts I'd say your chances of succeeding this time are good.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that even if a woman previously had German measles and comes in contact while pregnant with someone who has them that her baby can be harmed? — Mrs. D.D.

Not if she really had German measles. This provides lasting immunity. The symptoms can mimic those of other ailments, so one can't always be sure. But if the German measles as actually diagnosed by a doctor at the time, she can feel safe. Otherwise, it is best, when in doubt, to have the fact of previous exposure verified by a test before becoming pregnant.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any harm in eating uncooked meat, such as ground beef, salted and spread on a bun? I used to eat this when I was younger. I'm 68. Somewhere I read unfavorable reports about it. My son, who is 30, is starting to eat this and I am getting concerned. — Mrs. I.S.

This is a practice among some nationalities. It is not wise. Even with the close inspection meat undergoes today, there is a possibility of infection by parasites or other organisms. In fact, ground meat probably has greater potential for contamination because it is handled more in preparation.

I recall being served this delicacy — ground up with onions and all sorts of other goodies — but I abandoned it as soon as I learned something about bacteriology. This is called "Tartar" steak in some areas. All meats should be cooked before eating.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I had a bronze kitchen light fixture that I could no longer polish but I didn't want to replace it.

I removed it and took a can of car enamel spray-paint and painted it. The result was beautiful. — Viv Englert

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

I have been trying something for about six months with a great deal of success and have decided it is worth passing on.

We have a glass door on a tile shower. Our water is very hard, and with it and all the soap from teen-agers' constant bathing, I spent a lot of time fighting the film on the shower door.

I put some baby oil on the door and tile between scrubbings (not, I repeat, not on the floor of the shower), and now the shower and I get along a lot better — and I spend less time scrubbing it out. — Marjorie Wootton

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a faithful reader and I hate to throw anything away if there is a possible use for it.

We were putting mirror film on our windows and here was this big piece of plastic that the film was on.

It is ideal to put on shelves and in drawers.

Put down your pretty paper and cover with this plastic. Easy clean up. — A.K.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever get caught away from home painting another house? Run out of paint with paint-covered clothes on?

Next time put your clothes on wrong-side out to paint. Then if you need to go shopping or get another gallon of paint to finish the job, turn the clothes right side out, wash your face and hands and go.

All painted spots are underneath. Of course, wear older clothes to start with.

Works for me. — Mrs. Loretta Golden

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

In these days of high postal rates, an inexpensive way of keeping in touch with Mom, sis or a friend is to write a postcard.

The trick is to divide the stamp side of the card in half across the narrow width, address the half under the stamp and begin to write your letter on the other half.

Turn the card over and finish on the whole back of the card. It is surprising how much you can say on a postcard written this way, especially if you write frequently to someone. — Mrs. Shedon W. Hardin

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "The world pair championship recently held in New Orleans was won by Marcelo Branco and Gabino Cintra of Brazil."

Alan: "Successful slam bidding combined with good play was responsible for a large part of their success. Here we find them in a six-club contract that depended on avoiding a trump loser."

Oswald: "The normal play with nine cards in a suit is to try to drop a missing queen, but Branco had a little extra going for him — West had made one of those weak jump overcalls."

Alan: "That two-spade call by West was one of the weakest possible of all weak jump overcalls. It did have one effect on the bidding. Somehow or other it sort of pushed Branco and Cintra into the club slam."

Oswald: "Branco won the spade lead and cashed his king of clubs. Then he entered dummy with the ace of hearts, led the ten of clubs and stopped for real study. Finally, he decided that West who had shown lots of spades would be short in clubs. He finessed, made his slam and scored 72 and one-half out of a possible 77 match points as a result."

Dear Ann Landers: This news item appeared in the Kitchener/Waterloo Record — dateline, Montreal:

About a dozen people watched a seven-year-old boy drown Saturday and refused to jump into the Riviere des Prairies to save him. Some said the water was too polluted.

Police said Martin Turgeon of Montreal slipped off a wharf near a spot where untreated sewage is dumped into the river.

"I'm not going in there — the water is much too dirty," witnesses quoted one onlooker as saying.

Some people even left the scene as the boy's father, a non-swimmer, thrashed about in the water and screamed for help.

A boater fished the boy's body out of the river about 25 minutes later.

"It makes you wonder about how human people are," a police officer remarked. "The boy probably could have been saved."

The boy's family said they were too shaken up to talk about the incident. And that was the end of the news item.

What does this say about the state of the world, Ann Landers? I have searched my mind and my heart for some answers and finding none, I turn to you. — Your Neighbor To The North

Dear Neighbor: It says indifference to the suffering of others is the central sickness of our time. It also says that fear and cowardice are contagious.

All too often one reads in the newspapers of similar incidents, and it is sickening. Has it always been this way? No, it has not. Does the explanation lie in the fact that there are more people, therefore more heartless, uncaring and crazy ones along with the rest? In part this is true, but there is evidence to support the theory that drastically altered lifestyles since World War II have caused great masses of people to behave differently.

The United States is now largely a mobile society and Canadian trends are similar. One out of every three U.S. families moves every three years. People no longer have the feeling of "belonging." There is a lesser attempt to become part of the community. They don't feel responsible for what happens to their neighbors because they don't know them.

An added problem: Because there are millions of guns and knives in the hands of everybody and anybody, people are afraid to intervene when they see a woman being raped or a man being mugged. Whenever we read or hear about the fatal shooting or the stabbing of someone who "tried to help" it reinforces the message, "Don't get involved."

Somehow we must instill in our children the old values of concern and caring — the Biblical concept that we are indeed our brother's keeper. But we cannot hand down to our children something we don't have ourselves. This means it must start somewhere — with someone. How about YOU?

News Briefs

Televisions Tempt City Thieves

It was business as usual recently for city burglary detectives following a spate of residential break-ins in which televisions seemed to be the most tempting items for intruders.

W. Timothy Gilmore of 6801 W. 19th St. said someone broke into his apartment Saturday and stole a $250 television and his $500 grandfather clock.

Porter New of 2020 5th St. said someone broke into his residence during the past week and took a pair of televisions and a beauty case.

There was no entertainment viewing possible at the Clifford Collins household at 1003 E. 29th St. Sunday, after intruders entered his apartment Saturday and swiped his $260 television.

Besides a television, burglars grabbed an expensive video tape recorder from the Ming Tree Restaurant, 4007 19th St., early Sunday, according to Ted Quan. The loss was estimated at $1,200.

Noelin Powell said someone broke into the Powell and Phipps Tire Mart, 1519 Ave. H, Sunday and rolled away nearly $1,500 worth of tires and wheels. Powell said the break-in artists also caused $350 damage to a south side door. About 25 tires and wheels were taken, police said.

Manager Marvin Specter of 2807 64th St. said someone caused about $500 worth of damage to his car and house Sunday, following a vandalism incident.

Two police officers finished second and third Sunday in a three-man foot race involving a 17-year-old car burglary suspect. The juvenile officers had handcuffed the tennis-shoed suspect Sunday and had taken him to 2223 Quirt Ave., where the officers hoped to gain entry into a car trunk to secure evidence.

As the officers stood by the suspect sauntered off, then broke into a sprint and headed north on Weber Drive in the 2600-block, reports indicate.

Burglars took some change, a jewelry box and a pair of earrings, all valued at $132, from Lee Hammond's 2232 Auburn Ave. residence Saturday or Sunday.

John Shepherd of 2317 5th St. said car burglars took $470 worth of property from his car Saturday or Sunday, including a CB radio, a 40-watt booster, a tool box and a tapedeck.

Larry Strain, 23, of Colorado City said he was leaving a South Lubbock club early Sunday when he "walked into a fight." Moments later, reports indicate, Strain stopped an assailant's fist with his nose, as he attempted to intercede in a friend's behalf. Strain received cuts on his lip, chin and nose as well as a broken nose during the rhubarb. He was taken to Methodist Hospital where he was admitted for treatment.

A $630 stereo system was taken Sunday from Mike Handren's 4118 18th St. residence, police said, while robbers lifted Lesa Giles' purse Sunday while she was in the 2400-block of Main Street, causing the 4303 19th St. resident about $150 worth of financial grief.

TWO DIE IN LONDON GUN AND BLAST ATTACK — Two terrorists believed to be Arabs attacked an El Al Israeli airline bus picking up a jumbo jet crew at London's Europa Hotel Sunday. Two persons were killed and at least eight others wounded. The scene of the attack is shown, with the Israeli airline bus with a flat front tire and other bullet marks. (AP Laserphoto)

Police Plan 'Paying' Off

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Money talks. And in Albuquerque, the cops will pay up to $2,000 for a tip that helps solve a murder.

The city has spent some $50,000 since 1976 on its Crime Stoppers program, the brainchild of a police officer who was frustrated because ordinary citizens often wouldn't tell police what they knew about a crime.

The program combines rewards ranging from $25 to $2,000, a heavy media campaign to encourage tipsters to talk, and the promise of complete confidentiality for informants.

Officer Greg MacAleese, who developed and runs Crime Stoppers, says the program has helped solve more than 500 crimes and put over 100 criminals behind bars.

Rewards are paid for information leading to grand jury indictments, and prosecutors have won all but one of 109 cases, MacAlesse said.

MacAleese has also benefited — winning a promotion from a patrol car duty to the rank of detective.

MacAleese says he was ready to quit police work a few years ago after a neighborhood resident gave police a tip on a suspected burglar and then clammed up out of fear.

"I went on home and told my wife I couldn't see the point in continuing as a police officer because the very people we were trying to protect were fighting us," he said. "My wife is a woman of very few words. She said, 'Don't just complain about it — do something.'"

MacAleese and his wife, Jo, who is now a member of the City Council, spent the next two weeks working on a program to encourage citizen participation.

They got the okay for Crime Stoppers in April 1976 from Police Chief Bob Stover.

"I thought if we solved 25 cases the first year we would be doing a hell of a job," MacAleese said. "After two months we had solved 42. The very first call we ever received was about a rape case that was a year old and involved three men. The caller identified one of them."

Since 1976, MacAleese has helped police set up similar programs in Buffalo, N.Y., Portland, Ore., and Orlando, Fla. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department and police departments in Phoenix, Ariz., and Las Vegas, Nev., are also interested.

MacAleese says the source of the information isn't crucial — about half of the tips come from what he calls "the shadows of the criminal world" — just its quality.

"Ordinarily money motivates those people," he said. "A number of criminal types are calling, but we're not checking the pedigree of the informant, we're checking the quality of the information. It just depends on which side of the fence you're on."

Study Backs System Of Plea Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The system of plea bargaining does not generally mean that criminal defendants get off easier than if their cases went to trial and they were convicted, according to a federally sponsored study released Sunday.

The study analyzed 5,000 arrests in Washington, D.C. in 1974 involving plea bargaining for the crimes of assault, robbery, larceny and burglary.

The report said that in 80 percent of the assault cases, 90 percent of the larceny cases and 63 percent for the burglaries, the defendants pleaded guilty to charges that were about as serious as a conviction and trial would have produced.

Only in the robbery category did defendants who pleaded guilty generally receive lighter sentences, the study said. But the report contended the shorter sentences were offset by the certainty of conviction and the time saved in eliminating trials.

The study was funded by a $1.5 million four-year grant by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and was conducted by William Rhodes of the Institute for Law and Social Research. Rhodes said the study suggested that society gains more than it loses from plea bargaining. "Trials are expensive both in terms of required monetary resources and...organizational interests," he said.

According to a study done in California the average jury trial requires about 24 hours and $3,000 in taxpayers' funds. A guilty plea takes about 15 minutes of court time and costs $215.

BOMB DISMANTLED

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A bomb found in a bus station in Ramlah, five miles southeast of here, was dismantled Sunday, police said. Authorities said the bomb apparently was placed in the bus station's restaurant during the morning rush hours. It was not known who put the device in the station.

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When inflammation and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H®. Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment and suppository form. Use only as directed.

Arabs Blast El Al Bus

LONDON (AP) — Arab terrorists armed with submachine guns and grenades shot up an Israeli El Al Airlines bus carrying cabin crew members outside a London hotel Sunday, killing a stewardess and wounding at least nine other persons, Scotland Yard reported.

One of the terrorists also was killed when a grenade exploded in his face as El Al security men shot it out with the attackers, Scotland Yard said. Police theorized the terrorist was shot before he could throw the grenade.

Three detectives leaped from a squad car and arrested a man running down a street near the hotel. He was handcuffed and dragged away screaming. Police said they are hunting three other men believed to have been involved in the attack.

An Israeli Embassy spokesman said it was the first attack launched against Israelis on the streets of London.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin called the attack a "barbarous crime" and said there were no other words to describe "such an attack against the lives of women and men."

Witnesses, many of them Londoners out for a Sunday stroll on a summer afternoon, said they saw several armed men "all of dark, Middle East appearance," running around during the two-minute attack.

Scotland Yard declined comment on the identity of the terrorists, but witnesses said: "There was a lot of shouting about the PLO."

The Palestine Liberation Organization is the umbrella body controlling various Palestinian guerrilla factions waging a war against Israel to gain control of the Holy Land.

El Al's London office said two of the wounded were airline employees and the others apparently were either hotel guests or passers-by. The airline said no passengers were involved.

Commander Jim Nevill, head of Scotland Yard's crack anti-terrorist squad, said six of the wounded were in critical condition in Middlesex Hospital near the hotel.

Nevill told reporters at least two terrorists, possibly backed up by three more, launched the attack about 1:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT). They struck when the bus carrying about 20 El Al stewards and stewardesses pulled up outside the luxury Europa hotel near the U.S. Embassy in Grosvenor Square. El Al crews normally stay at the Europa during London stopovers.

All the airline personnel were from an El Al Boeing 747, flight 016 from New York to Tel Aviv, which changed crews at London's Heathrow Airport. An El Al spokesman identified the dead stewardess as Irit Gidron, 29, of Kfar Gallim, an agricultural settlement south of Haifa. He said Israeli stewardesses Yehudit Arnon, 23, of Holon, and Mihal Unger, 22, of Jerusalem, were wounded.

The terrorists opened up with long bursts of fire at the bus and lobbed at least three grenades. David Faulds, the doorman at an apartment block across the street, said the stewardess who was killed was cut down near the bus and fell "with the back of her head blown off."

Jim Murray, manager of the nearby Running Horse pub, said one of the terrorists, "a chap in green shirt, brown trousers and with fuzzy hair," stood coolly pulling grenades from a haversack and lobbing them at the bus.

"He was just taking the stuff out of the bag and throwing it," Murray said. "God, but he was cool. He even did up his haversack before he nonchalantly walked off. He didn't even run."

Police patrol cars, on alert in recent weeks after a spate of fighting between rival Palestinian factions in European cities, were quickly on the scene.

Hotel chef Alan Fykin, 20, told reporters: "After the shooting, several men ran into the kitchen and tried to get chef's uniforms to put on. For some reason they didn't and they ran out again."

Outside the hotel there was carnage. A London taxi driver who had drawn up outside the hotel looking for a fare was wounded in the cross-fire and his cab shot up.

Witnesses reported several bodies were slumped around the bullet-riddled bus, its driver's cab shattered by gunfire and shrapnel. Buildings across the street were peppered with bullet holes.

Julian Harris, a 23-year-old Londoner who lives in an apartment beside the hotel, told reporters he saw a man lying on the ground near a taxi outside the hotel with a gun beside him. "He was lying very still," Harris said. "A woman with a lot of blood about her legs was lying near the bus and there was another one there, but I couldn't see how badly they had been hit."

Sunday's bloody attack in the heart of London followed a string of bomb attacks by Palestinian terror squads in Israel.

El Al long has been a prime Palestinian terrorist target. The last major attack on the airline was at Paris' Orly airport May 20, when El Al guards and French police officers fought a gun battle with terrorists attacking passengers waiting to board an El Al flight. Two policemen and three terrorists were killed in the incident in London which was blamed on feuding Arab factions. That violence, over the past 15 months, is part of a worldwide fight between Al Fatah, the main guerrilla group within the PLO, and a militant, pro-Iraqi splinter faction that is fiercely opposed to any negotiated settlement with Israel. The feud has triggered attacks in London, Paris, Karachi, Islamabad and Beirut in recent months in which scores of persons were killed or injured.

Official Says Peace In Rhodesia Possible

LONDON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen said Sunday he believes a conference to end guerrilla warfare in Rhodesia and bring black-majority rule to that African country will be held soon.

"We're very close to getting a genuine settlement," Owen said in a British Broadcasting Corp. interview. He expressed hope that an all-parties conference sponsored by London and Washington could take place late this month or in September.

But conditions for attending such a conference were still being laid down by the antagonists — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and the three moderate black leaders who formed a bi-racial government last March ending Smith's white-minority government and Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance.

In Lusaka, the capital of Zambia, Mugabe said Sunday he was prepared to attend the proposed talks "as and when they are held." But he added the guerrillas will not drop their demand to be in charge of Rhodesian security forces during the transition period to black rule.

Mugabe and Nkomo had met in Lusaka to discuss the Anglo-American proposals for the conference.

Smith, in a nationally broadcast speech Sunday in Salisbury, Rhodesia, again insisted the guerrillas would not be permitted to form the base of a new national army.

"One of the people who will be coming to the conference has again reiterated his stand that Rhodesia's security forces should be completedly dismantled," Smith said. "I think it would be dangerous for us even to attend a conference with people who are going to put forward that kind of demand. I can think of few things that would do more harm to us and our future than to tamper with the security forces."

His bi-racial government has promised to hold elections by Dec. 31 that would establish black majority rule in Rhodesia, where blacks outnuber whites 26-1.

Smith had defied British demands in 1965 that blacks be given a larger role in government and unilaterallly declared the colony's independence from Britain.

Owen said he hoped the all-parties conference could be held "towards the end of this month but it may now well go into September." He did not elaborate on his reasons for optimism.

Owen and Ambassador Andrew Young, the chief U.S. envoy to the United Nations, have long insisted that any agreement on Rhodesia's future should include the Patriotic Front leaders who command guerrilla units that have been fighting the Salisbury government for more than six years.

Owen declined to comment on reports that Britain has emergency plans to evacuate Rhodesians who would want to flee the country if the situation deteriorates.

"We're very close to getting a genuine settlement so let's leave contingency planning," Owen said.

Smith had said Friday the bi-racial government was discussing an agenda with U.S. and British envoys for new settlement talks, and his statement was seen as representing a new flexibiliy on his part.

But at that time he also rejected portions of the Anglo-American plan advanced last September that would have an all-powerful British administrator run an interim government with the guerrillas forming a new army.

Mugabe and Nkomo refused to join the talks that led to the March agreement setting up the bi-racial government and have rejected appeals for a cease-fire.

Schlesinger Says Job In Jeopardy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said on Sunday that unless Congress approves the natural gas pricing bill or a tax on domestic crude oil, the effect on the already sagging dollar would be "devastating."

And Schlesinger indicated that without a national energy program — keyed to President Carter's long-stalled energy legislation — he might have to resign.

"We must have an energy program in this country," he said. "I am totally dedicated to achieving that. If it becomes clear that we are unable to have such a program, then my usefulness may have been ended."

Schlesinger was interviewed on the CBS television program, "Face the Nation."

In apparent anticipation of close floor votes in the House and Senate on the measure that would deregulate the price of domestic natural gas by 1985, Schlesinger said the bill's failure would be a serious setback for the country.

Without approval of the natural gas bill or Carter's long-dormant crude oil tax proposal, he said, the president will be unable to fulfill his pledge at the Bonn economic summit meeting for a substantial reduction in U.S. oil imports.

"If we fail to get either of these major bills, I think that we can confess that we do not have the discipline in this country to face up to our energy problems," he said. "The impact on the dollar, which is already in weakened condition, will be devastating."

Passage of the natural gas bill, he said, would save the United States about 500,000 barrels of oil a day in increased gas usage, and would mean an immediate savings of $2.5 billion on foreign exchange. Also, he said, "it is a very important symbol, internationally, of America's ability to face up to its energy problems."

Failure to enact the gas bill, Schlesinger said, would cause oil imports to rise substantially next year, at a cost of more than $50 billion.

On the other major legislative proposal, the crude oil tax, Schlesinger said the measure is "not dead — just sleeping," and that he expects it will be revived by Congress after the November elections.

But he added he could not say exactly when Congress will act on the crude oil tax, or what form it finally would take.

Martin Recognizes Ford Connection

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Billy Martin and Gerald R. Ford have two important things in common.

Both men are out of major management jobs they once held — Martin as manager of the New York Yankees and Ford as the nation's president.

Martin is scheduled to return as manager of the Yankees in 1980 and Ford has indicated he may run for president again that year.

Martin recognized the connection Friday night at a dinner here in conjunction with the Danny Thompson Memorial Golf Tournament, which Ford also attended.

"Mr. President, I don't know how you did it with all those newspaper guys around you for a term, but I hope 1980 will be a winning year for both of us," Martin said.

Ford responded, "Retirement isn't so bad, and 1980 might be just our cup of tea."

Elder Cans Short Putt To Win At Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Lee Elder tapped in the little birdie putt he had to have on the final hole, scored a one-stroke victory in the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic Sunday and called it "the most gratifying moment of my life."

Elder called his triumph "a little more significant to me personally" than his first tour triumph four years ago, which enabled him to become the first black player to compete in the Masters.

"I've reached a goal I've been wanting for a long, long time," said Elder, who won the Milwaukee Open last month and now, as a multiple winner, is eligible for the World Series of Golf this fall.

"Becoming eligible for the World Series is something I've been striving for," he said. "And this puts me in position where I may be able to help represent the United States on the Ryder Cup team next year. That's been on my mind for a long time."

Elder's 12-inch putt for a birdie 4 on the 72nd hole broke a tie with Mark Hayes, finished off a round of 4-under-par 67 and gave him his second victory of the year and fourth of his career.

The 44-year-old Elder won this one with a 274 total, 10 shots under the listed par on the hilly, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

The victory, which followed his triumph in Milwaukee a month ago, put him in the rich World Series of Golf later this year and all but assured him of a place on the 1979 American Ryder Cup team.

In 1975 he created an international sensation when he became the first black to play in the Masters and now seems certain to become the first of his race to play against Britain's best in the biennial Ryder Cup matches.

Both Hayes, who finished second alone, and Hubert Green, third, had chances to force a playoff or win it outright.

Neither could handle it, however.

"I lost my chance on 17 and 18," said Hayes, who played about 1½ hours in front of the other leaders. He finished with a 66-275. He missed an 8-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole and left a 15-footer short, dead in the heart of the hole, on the 18th.

Elder, who was wearing a support stocking to ease the pain of water on his left knee, had a target all day.

And he never faltered.

Sutton, Garvey Come To Blows In Locker

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Don Sutton and first baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers got into a pregame locker-room fight Sunday, apparently over a recent newspaper story in which Sutton bad-mouthed Garvey.

Several days ago the Dodgers' pitching ace was quoted as saying that Garvey was more interested in his off-the-field image than in his performance, and that right fielder Reggie Smith, not Garvey, was the Dodgers' leader and should have been named the team's Most Valuable Player last year.

Part of the story quoted Sutton as saying: "All you hear about on our team is Steve Garvey, the All-American boy. But Reggie Smith was the real MVP. We all know it ... (Smith) has carried us the last two years. He is not a facade. He does not have the Madison Avenue image."

A Dodgers source told The Associated Press that, before Sunday's game against the New York Mets, "Garvey approached Sutton with an article from the Washington Post and showed it to him. The two talked for several minutes," then Sutton, according to the source, pushed Garvey.

"The two wrestled to the floor," the source continued. "There was more clawing and scratching than any punches being thrown. About four or five players broke up the fight, including Dave Lopes, who was not injured, and (Dodger vice president) Al Campanis."

"It was just a difference of opinion on the article written this week in the Washington Post," said Garvey. "The article ws completely unnecessary. We are dedicated to winning the pennant. We are supposed to be winning the pennant, not singling out individuals."

Sutton, whose right side of the face was bruised and swollen and whose right jaw looked as if it had been clawed, was sarcastic in his only comment on the altercation.

"I know you won't believe this," he said. "We had a slight disagreement. I couldn't convince Garvey the Southeast Conference is as good as the Big Ten."

Garvey, who started the game, had a small abrasion above his left eye. Lopes, Los Angeles' second baseman, did not start but entered the game in the seventh inning. Sutton, 12-10, was the loser Saturday in the Mets' 8-4 victory.

Garvey made a fourth-inning error in Saturday's game which allowed the Mets to tie the game.

Campbell Leads Oiler Romp

DALLAS (AP) — Earl Campbell officially arrived in the National Football League Saturday night. And what he did to the World Champion Cowboys was awesome.

It was only a preseason scrimmage but not many folks run for 151 yards on 14 carries against Dallas. Walter Payton and O. J. Simpson, the two premier NFL runners, have never had such a night against the Cowboys.

Campbell, the 5-foot-11, 224-pound fullback who won the Heisman Trophy at the University of Texas, rambled 55 yards for a touchdown and averaged 10.7 yards per rush.

He also blocked, clearing the path for Ronnie Coleman's 18-yard touchdown run with a cut block on Cowboy safety Cliff Harris in the Houston Oilers' 27-13 rout for the "Texas Professional Football Championship."

The Oilers also knocked off the Cowboys last year.

"Earl is a good fullback and if you let him run, he's gonna run," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, also a Texas graduate. "I'm sure our secondary was disappointed because when you have to tackle Earl at full speed it's pretty tough."

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips said with tongue definitely in cheek: "Yes, I think Earl Campbell will survive the cut Monday."

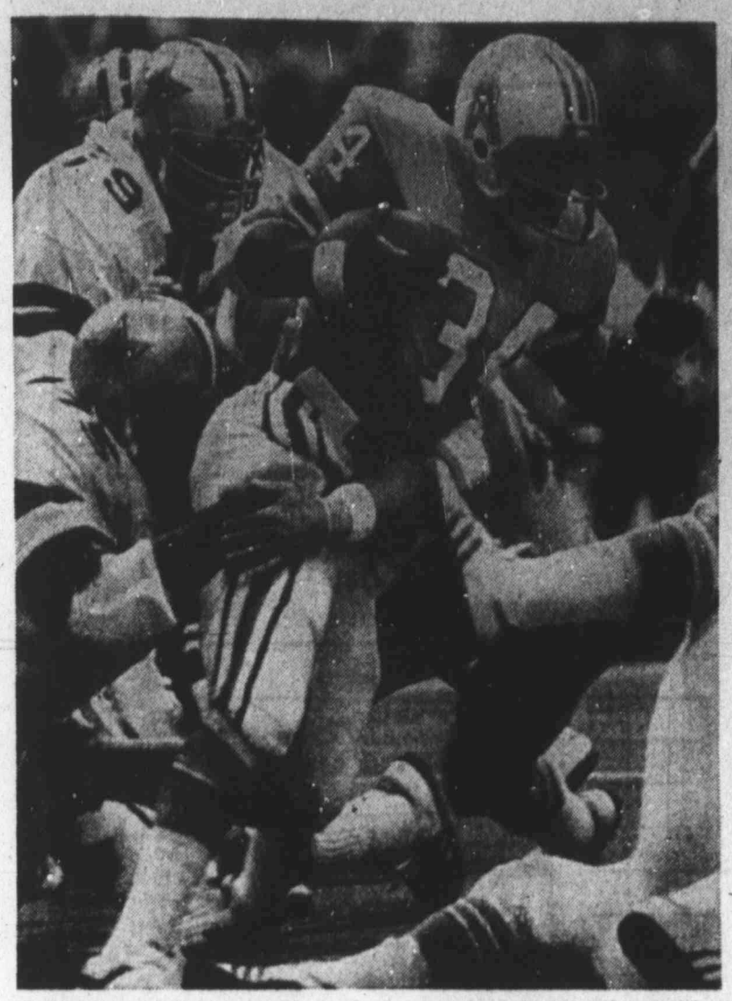
Phillips said "Earl is a complete football player. He threw some good blocks out there tonight."

Harris, the victim of one of Campbell's blocks, said "Earl Campbell ... I did not give him enough credit. He is a good running back—one of the best I have ever faced."

Phillips pointed out that "this is really the first game Campbell has really had the opportunity to back off and run. He was just learning earlier.

"I think he rated himself out there tonight. He learned to control his running more. That's what (Dallas running back) Tony Dorsett has learned to do and the first thing you have to do in the pros. It takes more than just speed and muscle."

Phillips added "I don't know what else I can say about Earl that I haven't already said. Just write anything good, that's what I say about him. I don't think Earl is the franchise and I don't think Earl wants to be the franchise. He is a team player and he just wants to do his share. I think everyone that saw him thought he was just about perfect ... except Dallas."



IN HEISMAN FORM—Dragging Dallas Cowboy defenders behind him, Houston Oiler Earl Campbell (34) plows forward for a short gain in the first quarter of Saturday night's exhibition game at Texas Stadium. Campbell ended the game with 155 yards rushing. (AP Laserphoto)

Raiders Whip San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Stabler tossed three early touchdown passes for Oakland's offense and the defense made O.J. Simpson's playing debut with San Francisco a rough one as the Raiders trounced the 49ers 31-14 Sunday in a National Football League exhibition game.

Simpson, who sat out the 49ers' first two preseason games, appeared physically sound buo was held to 12 yards on six rushing attempts, fumbled once and dropped the only pass thrown at him. But the former Buffalo star had a good day compared to teammate Jim Plunkett, the quarterback who was an embarrassing 0-for-11 passing before leaving the nationally televised game.

Scotts Courtship Wins Race

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M.—Scotts Courtship a colt who was first in a $6,500 claiming race late last year and hadn't won since, earned more than twice that claiming figure with an upset in Sundays 13th running of the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby. Scotts Courtship overtuned a star studded field in the mile and sixteenth struggle over a rain dampened track.

In the final sixteenth, it was a hard hitting battle between Scotts Courtship, Double B Express and the peoples choice, Bionic Babe. But Scotts Courtship refused to quit when put to pressure and came on with a late powerburst to win going away by three quarters of a length.

Dale Irion was up in an overweight package of 118, five more than originally scheduled. But the extra load appeared to make no difference when Scotts Courtship turned on kthe afterburners at the end of the backstretch run. The colt obviously liked the stickly going and was full of run during the second half of the marathon.

The winner is trained by Victor Karns for Ralph Maynard and Warren Siegel of Phoenix, Ariz. The derby gross was $23,250.

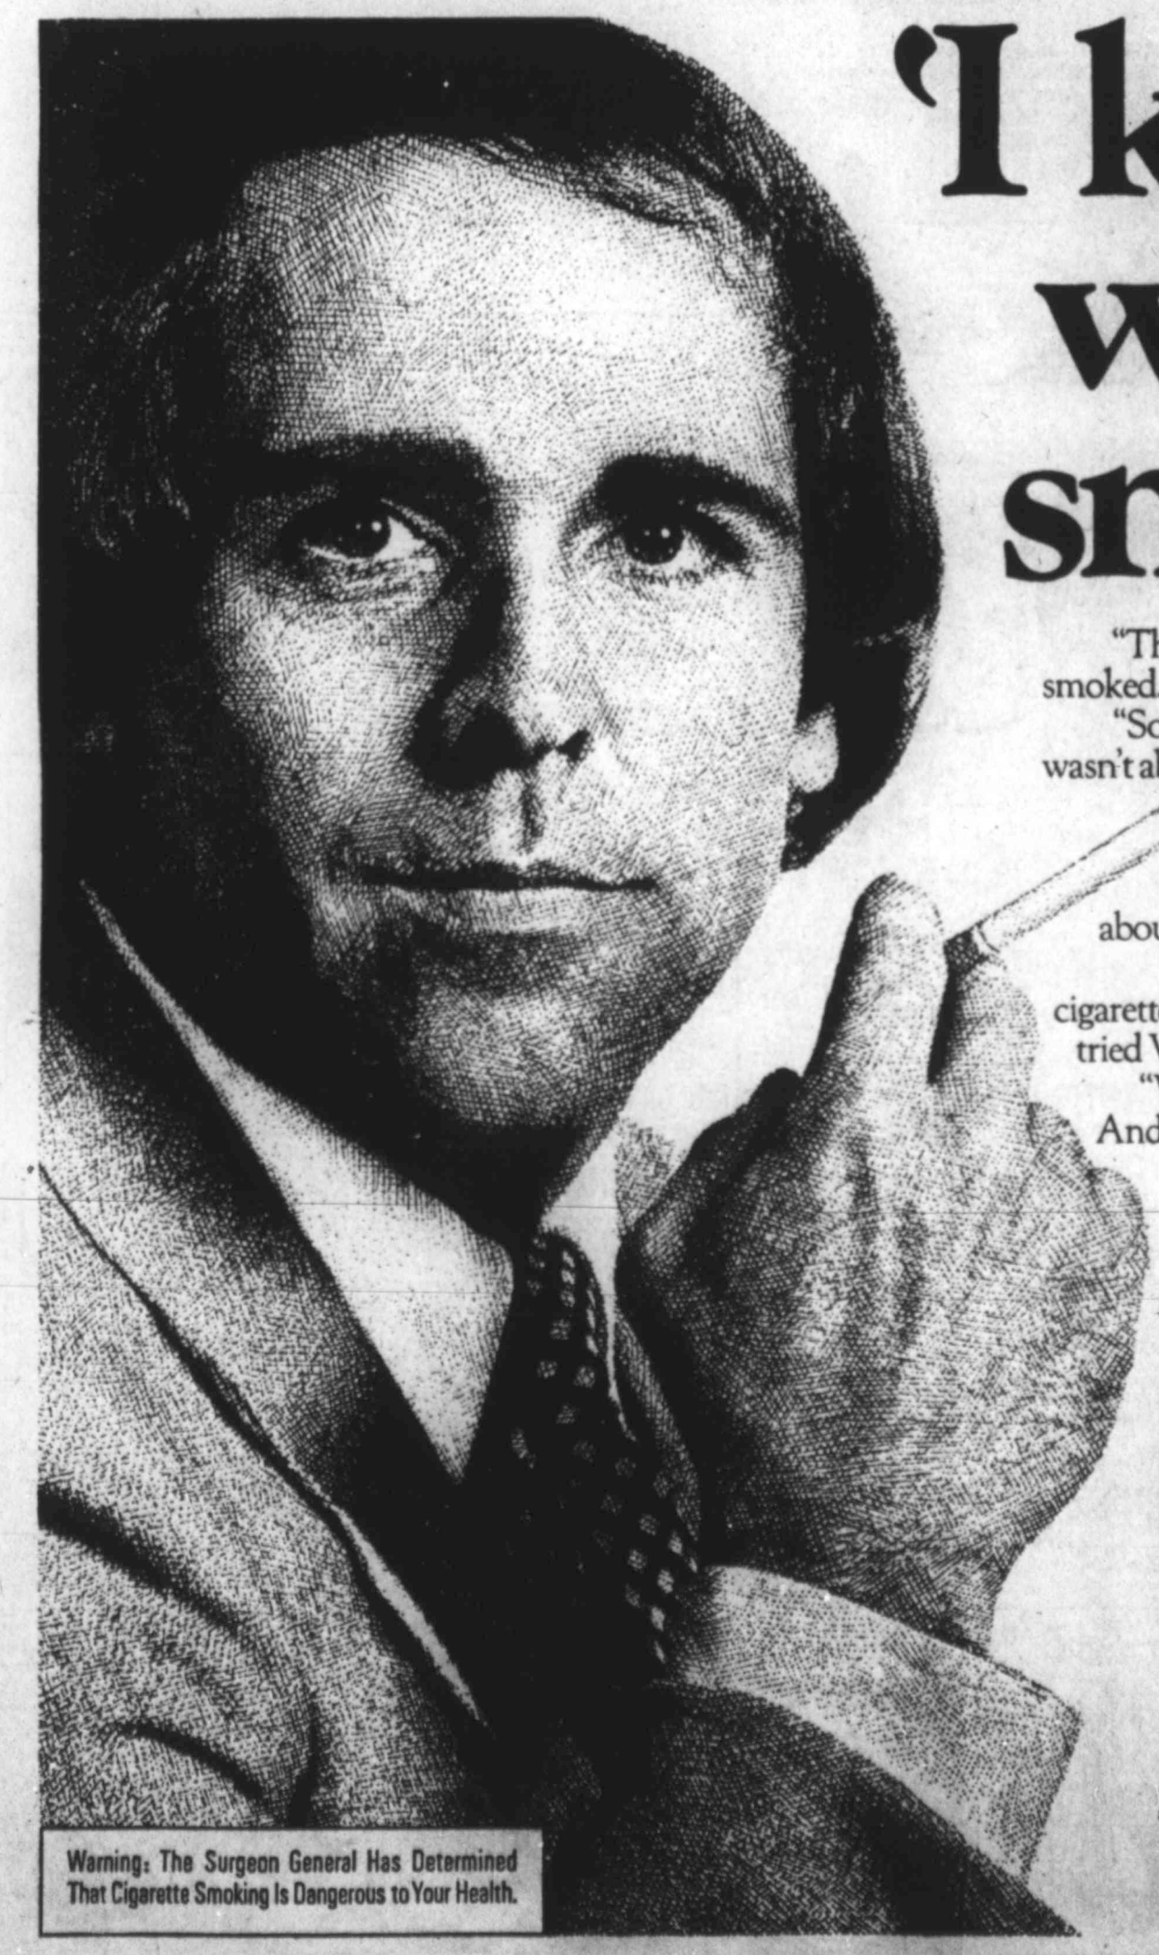
'I know why I smoke.'



"There's only one reason I ever smoked. Good taste.
"So when I switched to low tar, I wasn't about to give that up. If you don't smoke for taste what else is there?
"But there was all that talk about tar.
"Unfortunately, most low tar cigarettes tasted like nothing. Then I tried Vantage.
"Vantage gives me the taste I enjoy. And the low tar I've been looking for."
