Crops production a record

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are headed for another record year for total crop production, including new highs for corn and wheat.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that the corn harvest will yield more than 8.31 billion bushels this fall, 1.4 percent more than in 1982 and virtually the same as forecast a month ago.

Based on the most recent available figures, only about 7.6 billion bushels of this year's corn crop will be needed for domestic and export use.

With production now estimated at more than 8.31 billion bushels, that means the excess of about 715 million bushels will be added to the already bulging U.S. grain inventory.

The latest report, based on Oct. 1 field surveys also included revised production estimates for a number of other key 1982 crops:

—Soybeans, a record 2.3 billion bushels, up 15 percent from revised 1981 output but down fractionally from the September forecast.

— Cotton, 11.4 million bales, down 27 percent from 1981 but 3 percent more than indicated last month.

—Total wheat, a record 2.81 billion bushels, up 1 percent from last year's high but down fractionally from the September forecast.

—Fall potatoes, 307 million hundredweight, up 4 percent from the fall harvest in 1981. It was the department's first forecast of this fall's potato crop.

The department's Crop Reporting board said that 1982 crop harvests, overall, were rated at a record of 118 percent of the base year 1977, which is used for comparison. That was up one point from the previous high of 117 per cent set in 1981 and matched in the September forecast.

Corn is the largest and most valuable farm crop grown in the United States. As livestock feed, it is an essential element in the production of meat, poultry and milk for Americans.

Moreover, along with wheat, cotton, soybeans and a number of other crop, corn is a top item on the U.S. export list for scores of foreign markets, including Japan, the Soviet Union and European countries.

Grain prices at the farm have been generally depressed since last year's record harvests. Corn, for example, averaged $2.17 per bushel in mid-September, compared to $2.55 a year earlier.

Wheat was $3.38 per bushel last month, down from $3.65 a year earlier, and soybeans, at $5.28 per bushel, were down from $6.21.

The report said that 1982 corn yields are expected to average 114.2 bushels per acre, compared to 113.9 indicated in September. The 1981 average was 109.9 bushels per acre.

Wheat yields, including all types, were estimated at 35.6 bushels per harvested acre, compared to the September forecast of 35.7 bushels and the average of 34.5 last year.

Non-partisan Reagan speech set

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Democrats fume, President Reagan is taking a break from his in-person campaigning to sign a job training bill and deliver a nationally televised progress report on the economy that he promises will be "non-partisan."

Reagan's request for free time tonight from the major networks followed an unsuccessful effort by the Republican National Committee to purchase a similar block of time for him to deliver a campaign speech.

But the president appeared to be winning a battle with the television networks, two of which first balked at carrying such a broadcast less than three weeks before the Nov. 2 elections. CBS and NBC say they plan to carry the Oval Office speech scheduled for 7:30 p.m. EDT. ABC told the White House it would not.

Even before the speech, Reagan was keeping his focus on the economy as Election Day approaches, setting aside time today to sign a job training bill that his spokesmen argue the administration has supported since last January. Democrats claim the measure was their idea.

The president has been pointing to the legislation for more than a week as evidence of his administration's efforts to help counter the nation's rising unemployment rate. As passed by Congress, it represented a combination of proposals from both Democrats and Republicans.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., complained last week that no Democrats were being invited to the signing ceremony.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan had no new program or announcements to offer in his economic address, although one administration official promised "there will be some news in it."

And the president himself

Cablevision rate increase explained

The Hereford Cablevision rate increase, approved earlier this month by the city commission, will go into effect as customers are contacted about accepting the four new channels, it was reported Tuesday by Lloyd Ames, cablevision manager.

The monthly cable subscription rate will be increased from $6.20 a month to $9. The $2.80 hike, a 45 percent increase, will apply on all cable first outlets, whether or not the customer secures a converter for the four new channels.

Installation of a converter for the new channels will cost $15, according to Ames. The four channels are scheduled to be added Nov. 1, and Cablevision will start contacting customers about installing the new converter.

The rate increase does not affect HBO charges, which are $8.95 a month, said Ames. HBO customers can reclaim their $25 deposit and get one of the new converters for $15 and it will receive both HBO and the new channels.

The four new channels to be added are USA Cable Network, Nickelodeon--Arts, Satellite Program Network (SPN), and CNN Headline News.

Ames said some of the newer television sets are capable of receiving the new channels without a converter. Cablevision installers can determine if converters are needed by their customers.

Fire hero shrugs off commendation

HOUSTON (AP) — A terminally ill cancer patient who says he has had no fear of death since being clinically dead briefly 19 years ago shrugs off the praise he's gotten since breaking down a door and rescuing a woman and her child from a fire.

"I didn't do anything, really," Sam McCloud, 41, said of his actions Monday.

But 25-year-old Sheri Learned, whose family shares McCloud's north Houston home, said, "I owe him my life."

Mrs. Learned said she and her 4-year-old son were asleep Monday morning when she heard McCloud shouting for them to get out of the bedroom.

The room was on fire and the boy was screaming "at the top of his lungs for help," she said.

Beverly Bashlor, who also was in the house, said McCloud ran up the stairs after the smoke alarm buzzer sounded.

"They had a chain lock on the door and he kicked that in and got Sheri out and went back in through the flames and got the child out," she said.

McCloud, a former Green Beret who said a doctor treating him for cancer of the spine gives him three years to live, suffered minor burns on one leg, his hands and arms, but required no hospital treatment.

"If you love people enough, then you're willing to sacrifice yourself for others," said McCloud, who said he has not feared death since 1963, when his heart stopped for six minutes after he fell 85 feet from a power pole.

Mrs. Learned said when McCloud arrived in the room, he tried to coax the boy through a small area that had not caught fire but the child would not respond.

"He got me out and went over the top of the bed through the flames and got my boy out," she said.

Federal jury acquits Cryts

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Wayne Cryts, the farmer who got into trouble when he removed soybeans from a grain elevator that had gone bankrupt, has been acquitted of interfering with a law officer.

A U.S. district court jury deliberated about two hours Tuesday afternoon before returning the verdict.

Cryts has been in and out of the courts in Arkansas over the past year in the complicated bankruptcy case.

The latest charge against him stemmed from an encounter with Deputy U.S. Marshal Chuck Papachio in Gravette on Aug. 14. Cryts was in the northwest Arkansas community to serve as grand marshal of a parade when Papachio tried to seize the van Cryts was driving as partial payment of a bankruptcy court claim.

On June 7, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Charles Baker had ordered Cryts to pay $287,000 to cover losses suffered when Cryts took 33,000 bushels of soybeans from the bankrupt elevator. Baker had ordered the soybeans sold to satisfy the elevator's debtors.

Cryts, of Puxico, Mo., has refused to pay the money, saying the soybeans rightfully belonged to him. He also is appealing the ruling.

The beans were among the tons of grains farmers had stored in 11 Missouri and Arkansas elevators owned by James Brothers Co. of Corning, Ark, which filed for bankruptcy in August 1980.

HISD approves advisor; retains juvenile officer

Quietly and unanimously the Hereford School board approved a contract with First Southwest Company of Dallas to serve as financial advisor and bond attorneys for the special events center project studied jointly with the city and county.

Last month the board was reticent to pass the measure, however the contract was redrawn to fit their specifications.

Tom Simons, a representative of HISD on the special events center planning committee reported that the committee had met with three building firms Monday night to hear their presentations. He said two of the firms were favorable to the committee.

The board also agreed on a two year contract to hire, through the sheriff's department, a juvenile officer. Randy Williams, the current officer, will continue in that position. The contract had to be revised to meet specifications by the Juvenile Board that an officer would not be allowed to carry a weapon. Through employment by the county, he will. The school board, county and city will share the costs of that office.

A deadline was set for 3:30 p.m. Oct. 25 for firms to enter insurance policy bids. The board will call a special meeting Oct.26 at 7 p.m. to consider the bids received.

Demo head to speak Tuesday

Texas Democratic Party chairman Bob Slagle will be in Hereford Tuesday, Oct. 19 to address interested citizens during a Dutch-treat dinner at K-Bob's Restaurant.

The dinner is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

Slagle, State Rep. Charles Finnell of Archer County and John Gavin of Wichita County kicked off the Democratic Party's Statewide Caravan Tuesday in Wichita Falls.

"We are making an effort to take the Democratic Party message across the state and to garner support for the Demo ticket," said Slagle.

The Demo caravan will span 75 counties across the state and include stops in North Central, West Rexas, East Texas and South - Central communities and cities.

Gramm hints of party switch

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas, who critics contend is a Republican in Democratic clothing, says he will consider switching to the GOP next year or returning to Texas A&M University if ousted from his House Budget Committee seat.

"If I were denied my committee assignment, it would be a very serious provocation," he said Tuesday during a visit here. "If and when that ever happens ... I would have to look at all my options."

Those options would include "serving out the two years and going back to Texas A&M, or switching parties," he said.

Gramm, who has voted consistently against the Democratic leadership and in favor of Republican-backed budget and tax alternatives on the House floor, is one of the leading conservative "Boll Weevils" in the House.

The College Station Democrat helped draft the so-called "Gramm-Latta" budget proposals in 1981 that helped President Reagan overcome Democratic opposition and put in place his economic program of domestic spending cuts, a military buildup and tax cuts.

In Washington, Rep. William Brodhead, D-Mich., told a group of businessmen that Gramm "certainly will not be elected" to his seat on the Budget Committee when Democrats meet in December to decide on committee assignments for the new Congress.

Brodhead also told a session arranged by the National Association of Manufacturers that Gramm's "opportunity for advancement" was limited in the Democratic Party.

"I would expect that within a year or two you would see him become a Republican," Brodhead said.

Gramm, a 40-year-old former professor of economics at Texas A&M, is a two-term veteran of both the House and the Budget Committee. He has no Republican opponent in the fall elections.

Gramm has come under heavy criticism from mainstream Democrats during the past two years. Several Democrats have suggested that he and others be disciplined for resisting the party leadership's discipline on key votes.

But so far, no action has been taken, and Gramm said other conservative Democrats would "find that objectionable."

"It's hard to argue that I haven't been an effective member" of the committee, Gramm said.

But one key House Democratic aide said a separate vote is likely in the House Democratic caucus on whether to grant Gramm's request to retain his committee seat.

"I expect there will be an attempt to take him off," said the aide, who asked not to be identified by name. "I can't imagine that he will go unchallenged. There's likely to be a separate vote on him."

All Democrats win their committee assignments by a decision of the party's Steering and Policy Committee, subject to a ratification of the full caucus, which is composed of all Democratic members.

Judge refuses hearing to drop appeal

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A judge says he will not hold a hearing on a request from one of two women on Texas' Death Row to drop the appeal of her capital murder conviction and go ahead with her execution.

State District Judge Larry Gist said Tuesday that both Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath and Mrs. Burnett's attorney, Joseph C. Hawthorn, opposed such a hearing.

Gist said he received a letter from Mrs. Burnett last week. Mrs. Burnett, found guilty in the July 1978 kidnapping and murder of 3-year-old Jason Phillips, said it was "unfair" to sentence someone to die and then hold lengthy appeals.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals heard oral arguments in the case in October 1980 but has not issued a ruling.

The Phillips boy and his parents, Elmer and Martha Phillips, were visiting the child's grandparents in Winnie, 30 miles west of Beaumont, at the time of the killing.

All five family members were found slain and buried in a common grave July 10, 1978.

Ovide Joe Dugas Jr., Mrs. Burnett's boyfriend, also was convicted and sentenced to die in the murder.

Tylenol victim takes lie detector test

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The man who reported becoming ill after taking Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules laced with strychnine has taken a lie detector test, and officials are examining the results.

Gregory Blagg, 27, voluntarily took the test at police headquarters Tuesday, answering questions put to him by an FBI employee, Blagg's lawyer said.

Attorney Joseph VanDervoort did not attend the session. But he said the questions included, "Did you tamper with the capsules?" "Do you know who did it?" and "Are you covering up for someone?"

VanDervoort said if he wasn't satisfied with the conclusions reached by federal officials, he would conduct his own polygraph test.

"My client is fed up with all the implications and innuendos which have been circulated and wants to clear himself. I expect the test to clear him of any suspicion," the lawyer said.

Police detectives would not say whether they consider Blagg a suspect in the tampering. They have said they believe the poisoner is someone local.

Prince Andrew 'hijacks' plane

British press reports said Queen Elizabeth II's 22-year-old son "hijacked" a light plane chartered by photographers and was flown off the island of Mustique on Tuesday to Barbados, leaving newshounds behind on the first leg on his journey back to London. He had not planned to leave until Thursday.

The Sun tabloid said Miss Stark was smuggled off Mustique "in tears" earlier Tuesday, flying from a private airstrip to the island of St. Lucia where she boarded an Eastern Airlines flight to Miami with two women friends.

The British tabloid quoted people who saw the 25-year-old actress as she waited for the plane to St. Lucia as saying she looked "distraught."

The Sun said Andrew and his Scotland Yard bodyguard leaped aboard the photographers' plane at Mustique as it taxied along a runway. It said one photographer had to dive for cover as the plane took off and that another photographer was punched by local police.

It said at least one of the photographers had loaded his luggage on the Mustique Airways plane before the "hijack."

The prince, dubbed "Randy Andy" by the British press because of his many sweethearts, boarded a scheduled British Airways Boeing 747 flight at Barbados, bound for London via Antigua. It was scheduled to arrive by early afternoon.

Safety Council awards county

Sheriff's Department Recognized

A plaque for outstanding service to the safety education of children was presented to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department Tuesday. Sheriff Travis McPherson accepted the plaque from Betty Borgia of Lubbock, representing the National Child Safety Council.

The National Child Safety Council presented a plaque award Tuesday to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department "in recognition of outstanding and dedicated services to the safety education of children.

Sheriff Travis McPherson accepted the plaque from Betty Borgia of Lubbock, representing the National Child Safety Council.

The sheriff's office has sponsored NCSC programs in the public schools for five years and will again be placing the educational materials in schools this fall.

The program is set up for children in kindergarten through eighth grades.

Those in kindergarten and first grade receive the basic safety course, which teaches them safety precautions on crossing streets, not to pet strange animals, and not to go with strangers.

Second graders received the "Becky Book", which introduces them to drug education. Third and fourth graders are cautioned against shoplifting, and fifth graders are given the crime fighter manual, which teaches them to observe and report crimes.

Sixth graders received the NIDS book (narcotics, intoxicants, drugs and sniffers), which gives them a history of drugs and their use and abuses. Seventh graders learn about the dangers of smoking, and eighth graders are taught from the drinking book.

The program this year will emphasize to all children the danger of "friendly strangers", said Ms. Borgia. She said the local sheriff's department will receive the Dexter Gardner tape, which is a 20-minute recording made by a young man on an LSD trip, telling how he got involved with drugs and how he felt his brain was damaged.

The program is a tax exempt, non-profit plan, which is funded by donations from people in the local community. All of the funds collected here remain in this community.

Holdridge named ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, ending a year-long diplomatic impasse, says he will name a senior State Department official to serve as the next U.S. ambassador to Indonesia.

Reagan, in a surprise move, announced the nomination of John H. Holdridge to the ambassadorial post in a toast during a state dinner Tuesday night honoring Indonesian President Suharto.

"It's a terrific choice," said Holdridge's boss, Secretary of State George P. Shultz. The 54-year-old Holdridge is currently assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs.

Reagan's announcement in the White House East Room brought cries of surprise, and a round of applause.

"As you are aware, Assistant Secretary Holdridge is our most senior diplomat experienced in East Asian affairs," Reagan told Suharto.

"In commending him to the Senate...I shall do so assured that no one is better qualified to continue on my behalf the frank and mutually beneficial dialogue which has marked your visit here, and which is so essential to the advancement of mutual understanding between our two countries," Reagan said.

Several U.S. officials who commented after Reagan's action said Holdridge should encounter little or no difficulty in winning Senate confirmation to the Jakarta post.

"Reagan has cut the Gordian knot," said one official, who asked not to be identified by name.

Reagan's decision, which was made known to Holdridge on Saturday, leaves open the question of who will succeed him in his State Department post.

At State, Holdridge has been criticized by some U.S. supporters of Taiwan because of his advocacy of a closer relationship with the People's Republic of China.

Charges of slave labor probed

AP News Special
By DAVID MASON Chief European Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Several West European governments are investigating charges by two human rights groups that the Soviet Union is using thousands of political prisoners as slave laborers to build the Siberian gas pipeline.

But the governments, which have a large stake in the pipeline and oppose President Reagan's sanctions against it, say they have not confirmed the charges.

The United States opposes the project for commercial and political reasons and has tried to delay or halt it by preventing European firms from using U.S. technology in fulfilling pipeline contracts. Britain, France, West Germany and Italy have condemned the U.S. embargo and their firms are proceeding with deliveries.

The London-based human rights organization Amnesty International said it had received no information to suggest any prisoners known to it are working on the pipeline.

But two other European human rights groups will hold a hearing next month to air their charges that forced labor or slave labor is used on the 3,600-mile pipeline designed to bring natural gas to Western Europe by 1984.

The International Society for Human Rights in Frankfurt first raised charges in June that as many as 100,000 political prisoners were working on the pipeline, forced to labor in sub-zero conditions without adequate clothes.

In July, the International Sakharov Committee in Copenhagen, named after Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, made similar charges. Committee chairman Feldsted Andresen estimated the pipeline workforce at 100,000, of which he said 10,000 were slave laborers.

On Sept. 21, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said "in recent weeks the evidence has been mounting that the Soviet Union may be using slave labor" on the pipeline. Weinberger said "the evidence is not conclusive. I hasten to say that."

Brian Crozier, a British consultant on international affairs, wrote in The Times of London on Sept. 7:

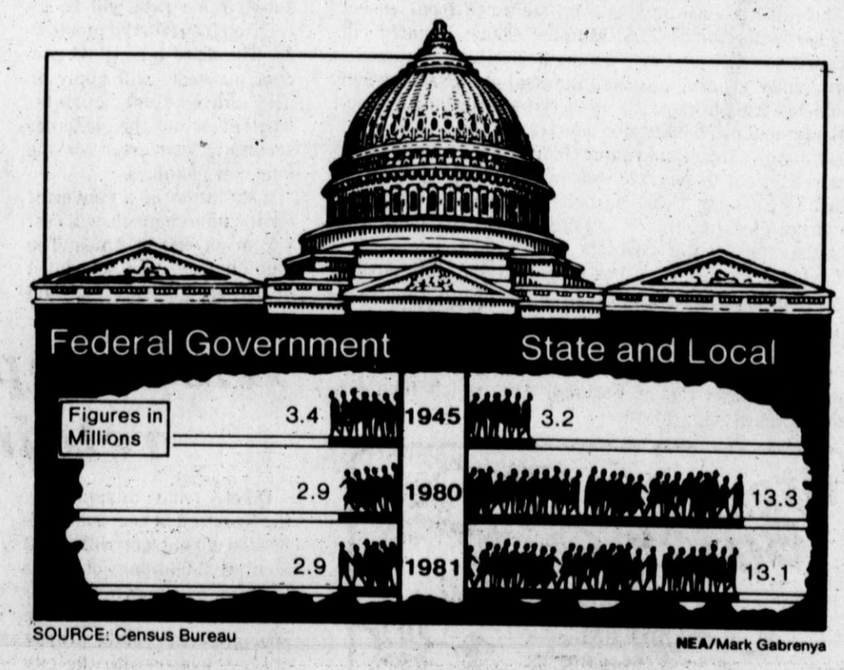

"I have been struck by the readiness of certain commentators to accept on face value the Soviet denials of reports that forced labor is being used in the construction. Yet there is nothing inherently improbable in the reports ..."

Crozier said according to reports reaching him, the Soviets "plan to use half a million Vietnamese political prisoners on the pipeline" and "some 110,000 Soviet prisoners are now at work on the pipeline, about 10,000 of them political detainees."

The Soviets have said there are about 7,000 Vietnamese in the Soviet Union on training programs, but Moscow denies they work on the pipeline.

Crozier's account was sharply criticized by professor Alec Nove of the University of Glasgow department of international economic studies:

"How many workers does he think are engaged on this controversial pipeline-laying project? I doubt if it is more than 50,000 in all. A few of these may be prisoners. But talk of a 'half million Vietnamese' and '110,000 Soviet prisoners working on the pipeline' is just plain ridiculous."

Big government to most Americans may mean Washington, but measured by numbers of workers government is bigger by far at the statehouse and city hall level. Federal non-military employment peaked at the end of World War II and then declined. It has remained at around 3 million since 1967. The end of the war began a period of steady growth for state and local government personnel. Numbers declined slightly last year for the first time in that period. In terms of payrolls, local governments lead on the basis of the 1981 figures at $11.3 billion, followed by the federal government at $5.2 billion and the states at $4.7 billion.

had trouble keeping a straight face when he told reporters Monday evening — as he returned to Washington after a Texas campaign appearance — that the speech would not be political, smiling and then chuckling when he said "the broadcast will be non-partisan."

Reagan will resume his political travel next week, in Illinois and Nebraska.

On Tuesday, Reagan responded to a question about the partisanship issue by asking: "Doesn't everyone want the economy to get better?"

Mark Goode, Reagan's television coordinator, said the president will make the speech "a discussion of the facts, rather than a campaign pitch."

Democratic leaders, meanwhile, are continuing their effort to get the networks to boycott the speech.

NBC was offering Democrats time at 7:30 p.m. EDT Thursday to respond while CBS was offering 11:30 p.m. EDT tonight.

However, Christopher Mathews, spokesman for O'Neill, said Tuesday night that Democrats will reject the equal time offer, demanding instead that the networks carry a response immediately following Reagan's speech.

Jewelry, watches stolen from home

Over $1,500 in jewelry and watches are missing from a house left unlocked for just a few minutes, according to Hereford police.

Taken from 138 Avenue I were; a yellow gold wedding ring shaped like a half heart with one larg diamond surrounded by smaller diamonds, valued at $1,200; five men's gold watches, all valued at $300; two gold chains valued at $72; a heavy gold charm bracelet valued at $100; and other jewelry.

In a burglary at 110 Avenue G, over $2,000 in household items were stolen. A family moving from that address returned to pick up more furniture and found much of it missing. Reported stolen were: a console color television valued at $1,000, a stereo outfit valued at $450, records and tapes totalling $400, a CB radio valued at $130, four watches valued at $80, a jar with about $30 in pennies and several other jewelry items.

Thriftway at Fifth and Main reported four packages of steaks, ribeye and round, were taken from the store. Police have a suspect and charges probably will be filed.

Police checked out a domestic problem and issued five traffic tickets Tuesday.

Two women saw man lurking near death scene

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two women testified they saw a man lurking nearby shortly before U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was assassinated, but only one said she could positively identify the "suspicious man" as convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson.

Both witnesses were residents of the Chateaux Di-Jon Townhomes, where the 63-year-old Wood was shot in the back in what prosecutors charge was a $250,000 contract killing. Harrelson is accused of firing the shot from the high-powered rifle that killed Wood.

Attorney Chrys Lambros earlier picked Harrelson, 44, out of a lineup as the man she literally bumped into about 40 minutes before Wood was slain on May 29, 1979.

"I will never forget Mr. Harrelson's eyes," she said shortly before leaving the witness stand Tuesday. "The face of the man I saw the morning of the shooting made such an impact on me, I will never forget it."

But the other witness, Mary Wilkinson, chose a Houston policeman from the same lineup as the man most closely resembling the man she spotted skulking in the parking lot the day of the murder.

She picked Harrelson's picture from a five-photograph display shown her by FBI agents in November 1980 as "the one that most nearly looked like the person I saw."

The government today was to call its eighth witness as it continued to build a case against Harrelson, his wife — 41-year-old Jo Ann Starr Harrelson — and Elizabeth Chagra, 28.

Mrs. Chagra is the wife of 39-year-old Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, an El Paso drug trafficker charged with paying Harrelson to shoot Wood. Chagra will be tried for murder separately later. Prosecutors say he hired Harrelson to kill Wood to prevent the tough judge from presiding at Chagra's 1979 narcotics trial.

Miss Lambros, 28, and Miss Wilkinson, the middle-aged manager of the townhome complex, both used a pointer and a scale model of the parking area Tuesday to show jurors where they saw a suspicious man skulking.

Miss Lambros underwent hypnosis at the FBI office here two weeks after the murder and gave a detailed description of the dress and face of the man.

She identified Harrelson from an FBI picture display on Nov. 6, 1980 and then from a Nov. 20, 1980, police lineup in Houston. In a dramatic courtroom scene Monday, she confronted Harrelson and told jurors he was the man she saw the morning of the murder.

Miss Wilkinson demurred Tuesday when Harrelson's attorney — Tom Sharpe Jr. — asked whether she could say the man she saw was in the courtroom. She also answered "no" when prosecutor Ray Jahn asked whether she could say definitely the man was not in the courtroom.

But despite nearly a day of interrogation by Sharpe and attorney Charles Campion, representing Mrs. Harrelson, Miss Lambros adamantly stuck with her identification of Harrelson.

Sharpe told jurors in his opening statement he would show the Harrelsons were 300 miles away in Dallas when a news bulletin about Wood's assassination interrrupted the television program they were viewing.

The defense attorney told the jury he would name the "real killer" during the trial, expected to last up to eight weeks. He began laying the groundwork for his defense Tuesday by posing questions about suspicious automobiles and two men in white overalls allegedly seen near the murder scene.

Brewers can play "Whitey Ball", too

Molitor gets record 5 hits in 10-0 rout of Cardinals

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Surprise, surprise. The Milwaukee Brewers can play Whitey Ball, too.

The American League champion Brewers charged into the World Series with an image of sluggers who thrive on the long ball, as evidenced by 216 home runs in the regular season.

St. Louis, on the other hand, got here on speed and defense, a bunch of singles hitters assembled by Manager Whitey Herzog and conditioned to zip around the bases at breakneck speed.

So in Tuesday night's opener, the Brewers put together 13 singles, three short of the World Series record, in a 17-hit attack and rode the three-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell to a lopsided 10-0 victory.

Herzog called it an old-fashioned, back of the shack, rump-kicking. "I'm glad it only counted as one game," he said. "I'm glad we didn't have a doubleheader."

The jackrabbits at the top of the Brewer batting order drove the Cardinals to distraction.

Leadoff man Paul Molitor set a World Series record with five hits, all singles. Three were infield hits and one, driving in a key run, came when he shattered his bat and looped the ball beyond the infield.

"It's the first time I've had three infield hits," Molitor said. "They weren't very pretty."

No. 2 man Robin Yount had four hits, three of them singles. Molitor and Yount drove in two runs apiece as Milwaukee punished four St. Louis pitchers.

"I just hit the ball where the fielders weren't," explained Yount.

How's that for Whitey Ball?

Just to make sure their long-ball image wasn't forgotten, the Brewers also had a towering home run by ex-Cardinal Ted Simmons and a two-run triple by Jim Gantner.

"It's nice to score 10 runs," said Molitor, "but we still didn't swing the bat as well as we're capable of. The Cardinals know we can hit the long ball."

What St. Louis might not have known, though, was the kind of performance Caldwell had in his 33-year-old left arm. Shelled in his last two starts, he was passed over by Manager Harvey Kuenn in the decisive fifth game of the American League playoffs. But he came back with an air-tight, workmanlike game against the Cardinals.

"I was getting ahead of the hitters, throwing mostly sinkers and a back-door slider," Caldwell said. "I felt strong and when I got three ground balls in the first inning, I got a lot of personal confidence."

Simmons, the Brewers' catcher, knew early that the veteran left-hander was on his game.

"I could tell right away," he said. "There was no question in the first inning. He was throwing the sinker at three-quarter speed and we were getting the ground balls. I said to myself, 'This could be nice for a while.'"

It turned out to be nice all night long. Caldwell surrendered a double to Darrell Porter in the second inning, a walk to Tommy Herr in the sixth, singles to Porter and Ken Oberkfell in the eighth, and nothing else. He retired 17 of the first 18 batters he faced and threw first-pitch strikes to 22 of 31 Cardinal batters, including 10 in a row at one point. He retired 14 hitters on ground balls.

"That's as good as he can pitch," said Simmons. "You're not going to see him any better."

Before Caldwell ever took the mound, he had a two-run lead thanks to an error by usually a sure-handed Cardinal first baseman Keith Hernandez.

St Louis starter Bob Forsch had opened by getting Molitor to ground out to Herr, the only time all night the Cards would retire the Brewer leadoff man. Yount singled and Cecil Cooper walked. After Simmons struck out, Ben Oglivie hit a bouncer at Hernandez' feet. The ball got by for an error, scoring one run, and Gorman Thomas followed with an infield single for another.

"I didn't have time to move," said Hernandez, who has won four Gold Gloves for his defensive ability. "The ball was hit very hard. I just booted it. I'm not going to offer any excuses." Herzog knew Forsch was not himself.

"He threw 39 pitches in the first inning," the manager said. "I don't know if it was World Series jitters or what. He didnt get the ball where he wanted to."

In the fourth, the Brewers were back for more. Charlie Moore opened with a double, moved to third on a perfect Whitey ball sacrifice by Gantner and scored on Molitor's broken-bat single.

An inning later, Simmons smashed Forsch's first pitch deep into the right field seats, but foul. Then he got into a little guessing game with the Cardinal pitcher and came up a winner.

"They are going to throw me slow stuff," he said. "That's what the scouting reports say and I was seeing screwballs and slow changes prior to that. The ball I hit foul was a slider up. I was geared to take the gamble that they would throw me a fast ball down and it was right there."

Simmons hit it over the right field wall, making it 4-0. Then in the sixth, the Brewers pushed across two more runs with two out. Gantner and Molitor singled and Yount dropped a double just inside the right field foul line, making it 6-0.

Meanwhile, Caldwell was breezing through the St. Louis batting order. He occasionally has been accused of doctoring baseballs, but there were no complaints from the Cardinals.

"I didn't think he had to the way we were swinging," Herzog said dryly.

"He kept the ball where he wanted it and he had good motion on his off-speed pitches," said Gene Tenace, who was the Cards' designated hitter. "He kept the ball down on me and when a pitcher can do that, he's tough to hit. If he throws a spitter, it doesn't matter to me. If he gets it over more power to him."

Ozzie Smith agreed.

"What can you do about a spitter?" he wondered. "Hit the dry side?"

The Cardinals weren't hitting any side.

In the ninth, Milwaukee wrapped up the rout with four more runs, two of them on Gantner's triple and the final one on Molitor's record-breaking fifth hit.

"I had no idea about the record," Molitor said. "I was hoping to get another chance for a fifth hit in the ninth. Gantner came through and all I had on my mind was to get a hit and drive in a run." Why, with a 9-0 lead and three outs to go, did a 10th run matter?

"It seemed like a magic number. You don't want to make the last out you want to keep things going."

When it was over, the Cardinals had seen a side of the Brewers that they might not have known existed.

"I think there is a great misunderstanding about the Brewers being a one-factor ball club," said Molitor. "We can adjust to different surfaces. We have speed. We just don't have to go to it too often. Why run ourselves out of an inning when there are five guys in the lineup who hit over 20 home runs?"

Simmons agreed.

"Our club surprises a lot of people," he said. "Besides the Harvey Wallbangers, the Molitors, Younts, Gantner and Moores - those four people can create havoc. These type hitters are very effective on any field and they run well, too."

Were the Cardinals impressed with Milwaukee's version of Whitey Ball?

Porter smiled at the question.

"Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs said late in the year that we got a lot of ugly hits," the St. Louis catcher said. "If he was watching this game tonight, he'd have thought they were very pretty."

News blackout ordered

Mediator hopes to end strike

By IRA ROSENFELD
AP Sports Writer

COCKEYSVILLE, MD. AP – A private mediator who says he hopes to outlast the adversaries in the National Football League strike was listening to both sides spell out their positions amid a news blackout he ordered shortly after taking a seat at the negotiating table.

"My tactics are to tire them out before they tire me out," San Francisco attorney Sam Kagel said Tuesday night after holding an introductory session with representatives of the club owners and striking players whose walkout 23 days ago has resulted in four weeks of no pro football.

Kagel, named earlier Tuesday to mediate the NFL Players Association's contract dispute with the NFL Management Council, said he asked both sides to be ready to start intensive negotiations today. He also announced an immediate news blackout.

"I have ordered all parties, players and owners throughout the league, to make no public comment while the mediation effort is ongoing," Kagel said following the meeting at a site in a suburb of Baltimore.

Three weeks of games already have been bypassed, and earlier Tuesday the NFL announced the games of Oct. 17-18 would not be played as scheduled.

The 73-year-old son of a junkman, Kagel came to the talks with a reputation as a tough, no-nonsense mediator.

The choice of Kagel was announced Tuesday by Kay McMurray, chief of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

McMurry discussed the selection Monday evening with both Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the Management Council, and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA.

Kagel, who served an an independent arbitrator in three cases involviong NFL players in non-injury grievances, was quickly agreed upon by both sides as a logical candidate to mediate the dispute.

While both sides welcomed the selection, union officials were quick to add that Kagel's participation was no sure sign of a quick settlement.

"I don't think the fans or the players should get too excited at this point. This is just the beginning of the bargaining process, and management has still not addressed the basic issues placed on the table by the players," Garvey said.

The players' concern that the strike would continue was underscored by their continued plans for a series of union-sponsored games.

The first two games are scheduled for Sunday in Washington and Monday in Los Angeles.

Union officials have guaranteed winning participants in the game $3,000 and $2,500 for the losing side.

"I am one of the few players who is probably getting a raise by playing in the game," Danielson said. "I played out my option three times and never got a raise. The current system needs to be changed."

Booster club hoping to get fans involved

Plans are underway this week, by the Hereford Booster Club, to get fans involved in Friday night's Hereford-Plainview game, set for 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium.

The booster club would like everyone in town with a business, or car along Highway 385 to decorate them with signs, if possible, pertaining to the upcoming game.

Also, they ask people to make signs (any size) and bring it with them to the game to be put in the areas surrounding the field.

The booster club is making signs (3,500 of them 8½X11 inches) which will be passed out as fans enter the stadium Friday.

In Harris poll

Hereford favored

How about this for a turnaround?

This week's Harris Rating System poll has Plainview ranked 13th and Hereford 31st.

However, in the picks the Whitefaces are a two-point favorite to knock the Bulldogs from the ranks of the unbeaten.

Lubbock Monterey, the only team to defeat Hereford this season (6-0 three weeks ago), is ranked 52nd in this week's poll.

Port Arthur Jefferson, for the seventh week in a row, is the No. 1 team in Class 5A. Odessa Permian, which has gone some 35 straight games without losing (the Panthers have been tied three times during the span), is No. 2, while Bryan, ranked No. 1 in the weekly AP poll, is third.

Canyon, a 28-20 upset winner over Borger last week, moved into the number 39 spot in Class 4A. However, the Eagles are six-point underdogs this week against Estacado, ranked No. 11 and the pre-season pick to win District 1-4A.

Vega, which has been in and out of the Harris poll top 10 thus far this season, moved back into it this week. The Longhorns are ranked No. 8 in Class 1A, and this week they're favored by 33 points over Lazbuddie.

Harris says this week's Game of the Week will be in Fort Worth Saturday when number two-ranked Brownwood takes on number five-rated Cleburn in TCU's Amon Carter Stadium.

The game originally had been scheduled to be played at Cleburne, but was switched to a much larger stadium to accomodate an expected big crowd.

In other games involving 3-5A teams, Tascosa is a 13-point favorite to defeat Lubbock High. The winner of that game likely will escape the celler in the district race.

Elsewhere, Monterey (tied with Plainview for the loop lead) is a 14-point pick over Caprock and Coronado is a seven-point favorite to beat Palo Duro.

Tickets are gone; bleachers installed for Friday's game

Temporary bleachers, which will accomodate approximately 600 people, are being moved to the North end zone at Whiteface Stadium for Friday's key District 3-5A battle between Hereford and Plainview.

All tickets for the game have been sold for the East and West sides.

In addition, space along the track will be made available on an standing-room-only basis.

Tickets for the standing and end zone seating will go on sale at the North end of the stadium at 6 p.m. Friday. These tickets will entitle the holders to a standing room, or the end zone seats on a first come, first serve basis.

Temporary rest tooms will be located at the North end of the stadium. Fans are urged to stay behind the barriers currently being erected during the game.

A spirit bonfire will be held Thursday beginning at 8 p.m., west of the Nazarene church.

Fans of the Whitefaces are urged to attend that bonfire.

To Jim Thorpe

Olympic medals returned

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)---The International Olymic Committee today restored Jim Thorpe's amateur status and will return to the family of the late American athlete the medals he won at the 1912 Olympic Game.

IOC's President Juan Antonio Samaranch will present the medals to Thorpe's daughter in Jaunuary. "The name of James Thorpe will be added to the list of athletes who were crowned Olympic champions at the 1912 games," the IOC said.

Thorpe, who was regarded one of the finest all-around athletes of his era, won the decathlon and pentathlon at the 1912 Games at Stockholm. It was later found that Thorpe, a strapping 6-footer, had played semi-professional baseball in 1911. His medals were taken away and the Olympic records he established were stricken.

Thorpe, who was born in 1888 in Oklahoma, played six seasons of professional baseball after the Olympic Games, ending his career in 1919 with the old Boston Braves.

Thorpe's exploits in American football are legendary. A powerful runner and excellent passer, he scored 25 touchdowns in 1912 for Carlisle, Pa. Institute and later played professional football for Canton Ohio, Cleveland and the New York Giants. He made his last gridiron appearance in 1929 with the old Chicago Cardinals.

Thorpe, who died in 1953, was elected to both the college and professional football halls of fame.

King Gustav of Sweeden said at the 1912 Olympic Games that Thorpe was "the greatest athlete in the world" and an Associated Press poll in 1950 ranked him the best athlete of the century's first half.

NFL owners have $150 million line of credit

DALLAS (AP) — Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, said Tuesday that the National Football League owners have a $150 million line of credit which has not been used and are more solidified than ever in their standoff with the NFL Players Association.

"We have the line of credit with several banking institutions in the country which we established several months ago and it has not been touched," said Schramm. "The owners knew what the cost of a strike would be and we made provisions for that eventuality."

Ed Garvey, the executive director of the NFLPA, had predicted the owners would soon feel a pinch from the 22-day strike.

"We're more solidified than we've ever been," Schramm said, adding "that's saying something for the owners of the NFL."

Schramm said, "Instead of listening to what Garvey says, maybe the individual players should ask themselves what their owner is going to do...is their owner going to say 'I can't stand the pinch, you win, if you come back we will give you anything?'

"Maybe if the players ask themselves that it might put the financial situation into better perspective."

School district fighting miniskirt war once again

HOUSTON (AP) — The opening skirmish in what may be Miniskirt War II has been fought quietly this fall at a school district here. The battleline has been drawn at the top of the kneecap and, so far, the score is School Administrators 13, Miniskirts 0.

Administrators at the Pasadena Independent School District first fought the miniskirt war in the 1960s when styles sent the hemline over the knee and up the thigh.

"This business of measuring skirts is something we don't want to get into," said assistant superintendant Elmer Bondy. "But we did it once and we can do it again."

School leaders won the first war, with the treaty line drawn at five inches above the knee. They remained vigilant until, eventually, styles changed, hemlines dropped to a less startling level, and the war was forgotten.

But this fall, Paris designers — or whoever decides such things — sent the hemlines creeping upward again. And when school started, the Pasadena school leaders found themselves once more in the battle of the hemline.

Two or three female students at each of the district's 13 secondary schools have shown up in miniskirts this year, Bondy said.

School administrators once more manned the barricades and cracked down on the district's dress code. Some of the offenders were sent home and others had different skirts brought to them. It was a decisive loss for high fashion.

Bondy admitted the hemline issue is not as extreme as it was in the 1960s. Hemlines then had only a distant acquaintance with the wearers' knees. School leaders battled back with rulers used to measure hemlines, and with letters and public comment.

In neighboring school districts, female students in questionable skirts were required to kneel and hemlines could be no more than five inches from the floor.

At Pasadena, Bondy said, women administrators would talk with girls whose fashion was too high. Sometimes, he said, the girls were instructed to reach over their head or to bend over and pick up something from the floor. If the exercise showed too much student, she was sent home to change.

"It was a question of modesty," recalled Bondy.

Now, he said, it's a question of interpretation.

The school district's dress code does not spell out the precise proper height of the hemline, but states only that dresses cannot be "revealing or excessively tight."

This year, he said, anything generally an inch above the knee fails the dress code test.

"If a staff member notices a skirt above the knee," explained Bondy, "then it's a miniskirt."

"They shouldn't be that strict," said Sara Gammage, 13, an eighth-grader who wore a miniskirt two inches above her knees on the first day of school.

"If (the administrators) were in school now, they would want to go with fashion, too," she said. "If we were up there and they were down here, they wouldn't want us doing this to them."

Another eighth grader, 14-year-old Rhonda Jennings, said many of her classmates spent a lot of money on miniskirts only to find they can't wear them to school.

"I think the school should tell you if it isn't decent or something," she said. "But the girls think this is unfair."

The argument doesn't move Bondy. If necessary, he said, school administrators will go to war again with their arsenal of rulers.

Thinks step-mother due life term

Son unhappy with sentence

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The teen-age son of Fort Worth gynecologist Darwin Fielder says his stepmother, sentenced to two years in prison, should have been incarcerated for life for the slaying of his father.

Pamela Fielder was given the minimum prison sentence Tuesday for her voluntary manslaughter conviction after a jury deliberated the punishment for almost eight hours over two days.

The 37-year-old woman had contended Fielder's strange, sometimes violent, sexual behavior led her in 1981 to shoot him to death in self-defense.

Drew Fielder, the doctor's 17-year-old son by a previous marriage, called the sentence "unfair."

"She not only killed my dad, she told a bunch of lies about him," he said. "She killed him. She should have gotten life."

Mrs. Fielder could have been sentenced to a maximum of 20 years in prison or up to 10 years' probation. She was charged with murder, but was convicted of the lesser charge Sunday after the jury met four hours.

She stood motionless and expressionless as the sentence was read about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Defense attorney Don Gandy said the sentence would be appealed, and prosecutors indicated Mrs. Fielder would be released on bond pending an appeal or motion for a new trial.

"We do have avenues available to us," added lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes of Houston. He had asked that she be given only a probated sentence.

Prosecutor Mike Worley said he was pleased.

Another prosecutor, Betty McCutchan, called the sentence "a definite victory for the state. I'm pleased that they assessed some time in the penitentiary."

At the request of defense attorneys, State District Judge Howard Fender polled the nine-man, three-woman jury. Each said he agreed to the two-year sentence.

Haynes contended Mrs. Fielder was terrified by her husband's violent and sexually bizarre lifestyle, which turned her life into "a sewer."

Economic perspective helps

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1965, with Lyndon Johnson's Great Society program symbolizing an attitude that anything was possible, the Dow Jones industrial average made its first stab at 1,000 points.

It topped that level for the first time early in 1966, but then dipped below 1,000 again before the day was out. But in November 1972, it did manage to sustain its gains and for the first time closed above 1,000 points.

Since then, according to the Wall Street Journal, the same average, which measures the performance of 30 blue chip stocks, closed above the 1,000 level on no less than 109 trading days through Oct. 12.

The point: Perspective helps in understanding.

For example, perspective helps in understanding the prime interest rate. Big news was created Tuesday when Morgan Guaranty Trust lowered its prime rate a full point to 12 percent, or 9.5 points below the all-time high of 21.5 percent in December 1980.

In the perspective of the past two years, such a decline represents an enormous accomplishment. But in the perspective of decades, it suggests a long way to go.

The prime throughout the early 1960s was about 4.5 percent. And while the 1.5 percent rates of the 1940s may never be seen again, the under-7 rates of 1976 and 1977 remain within the realm of possibility.

Perspective helps in understanding the unemployment rate, too. September's 10.1 percent rate has been surrounded with perspective during the past few days, having reached the highest monthly level in 42 years, and bringing on comparisons with the Great Depression of the 1930s.

But without underestimating the terrible impact on families brought on by the joblessness of 11.3 million workers and the involuntary acceptance of part-time work by more than 6.5 million others, the comparison is probably not fair.

There are numerous reasons why. Among them: Many more families with two or more wage-earners exist today, many of today's unemployed are not heads of households and most of today's unemployed have some type of jobless insurance.

Perpsective also can enhance the understanding of the CPI.

Rises in the CPI, or consumer price index, have shriveled to single-digit levels, a major change when compared with the double-digit range of the past three years — 10.4 percent in 1981, 13.5 in 1980 and 11.3 in 1979.

Double-digit rates of consumer inflation' however, are rare in recent history. You can look back through figures for 1948, before which comparisons are not precise, and find only one other year in which the CPI exceeded 10. That was in 1974, when the rate reached 11 percent.

As recently as 1972, the CPI rose only 3.3 percent, generally considered an acceptable level, and from 1959 through 1965 it remained under 2 percent a year. If the rate does come in under 10 percent for 1982, and almost certainly it will, the accomplishment will be great in terms of the past few years, but nothing special when compared with levels through most of the 1970s.

Daily newspapers in the United States average 70 pages for morning editions, 58 pages for evening editions and 210 pages for Sunday editions.

VOCT Officers

The Vocational Opportunities Clubs of Texas, chapter 569, met recently to elect new officers for the 1982-83 school year. From left, back row, are Patricia Trevino, vice-president; Diana Abalos, secretary; Lupe Marquez, treasurer; and Maria Alvarez, student advisor. Front row, left to right, are Suzanne Ramirez, reporter; Nancy Pacheco, parliamentarian; and Juliet Coronado, sergeant-at-arms. Not pictured is Jorge Medina, president. The group will travel to Plainview for a leadership meeting on Saturday.

Ann Landers

Dealing with epileptics

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This afternoon I was having lunch in the school cafeteria. It was just another ordinary day. The students around me were studying, eating, talking or listening to the jukebox.

Then suddenly there was panic. A perfectly normal girl sitting at the next table began to jerk wildly. Her eyes were rolling up into her head, her legs seemed to be getting stiff and she was frothing at the mouth. I was scared to death, and so was everyone else. We didn't know what was happening or what to do to help her. Suddenly one of the boys said, "I had an aunt who had the same thing. It's an epileptic seizure." He said," Just leave her alone." In a few minutes, after she had fallen out of her seat to the floor, the school nurse came in and took charge. After a while everything was OK, but it was a very scary experience.

Please, Ann, print something in your column about this. Tell people what to do in case they are around a person who has a seizure. The public surely does need educating. – St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR MO: Thank you for giving me the opportunity to say something about a subject that should have been let out of the closet 50 years ago. Here are instructions for those with individuals who have an epileptic seizure.

Don't try to interfere with his or her jerking movements. Never try to force anything hard into the mouth. Gently slip something soft, such as a folded handkerchief, between the person's teeth to keep him from biting his tongue or cheeks.

Loosen any tight clothing, especially around the neck, and turn the person onto his side so that the excess saliva will drain out of his mouth.

Once the convulsive movement has stopped, let the person rest if he feels like it, and by all means be calm and reassuring when you talk to him. He may be embarrassed and ask what he did or said. Be kind and say "Everything was OK."

There are several pamphlets available for the patient and the lay person on epilepsy. Write to the Epilepsy Foundation of America, Suite 406, 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old male who has a summer job running errands and making deliveries for a well-known men's clothing store. I have learned a lot in the last six weeks and would now like to ask Ann Landers a question.

At least seven out of 10 men who come in here to buy a suit have their wives with them. The wives seem to do all the talking and the guys always buy what their wives like.

Does this mean men are getting weaker and women are getting stronger? Do you think women's lib has anything to do with this? I think it's a bad sign myself. Why would a guy let his wife pick out a suit for him? – J In Philly

DEAR J.: Wives were picking out their husbands' suits long before women's lib was a gleam in Betty Friedan's eye. Those guys are in the store because their wives hauled them in. Most men hate to go shopping for clothes and, if their wives didn't drag them in, they'd look like Skid Row bums. Any more questions, Son?

Program deals with planning for future

Members of the Cultural Extension Club met Friday in the home of Mrs. Art Lewis. The program, "Making Plans for the Future" was presented by Wilma Goettsch.

She gave suggestions for several ways that things can be taken care of before a death, helping to remove stress from the family at the passing of a loved one.

Mrs. M.W. Sumner, assistant secretary, read the roll call, which was answered with "What I do as a memorial for a death."

Mrs. Lewis led the opening exercise with a poem, "What a Grandmother Is."

The Council report was given by Mrs. John Hunter in the absence of the Council delegate, Bertha Dettmann.

A committee was appointed by the president, Mrs. M.H. Wiseman, to secure officers for the new club year. Members include Mrs. Sumner, Mrs. Lewis, and Jewel Rogers.

It was announced that Mrs. Wiseman and Mrs. Dettmann will attend rural Homemakers Day at the Villa Inn in Amarillo on Oct. 21.

Others attending were Mmes. George Pope, Johnie Townsend, and Vernis Parsons.

Mrs. Sumner will host the Oct. 22 meeting.

Pioneer Study Club meets for luncheon

Mrs. Bill Griffin of Borger, president of the Top of Texas District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, spoke at the Pioneer Study Club luncheon held Tuesday at Hereford Country Club.

She explained to members that the club is a member of the largest women's organization of the world and was quoted as saying that the club women had a hand in every facet of life in Texas. They have established public libraries and the MD Anderson Hospital in Houston.

The speaker also urged club women to take part in all volunteer work and club participation and to serve on committees. She also suggested that women attend their meetings regularly and listen carefully to the business.

Mrs. Griffin said that only 12 percent of eligible voters actually vote.

In closing, she asked the club women to attend the district workshop and board shop scheduled Oct. 23 at Spearman.

Mrs. O.G. Hill, Sr., gave the invocation and Mrs. W.W. Wimberley led the pledge of alligience. The salute to the Texas flag was led by Mrs. E.E. Bishop.

Serving as hostesses to members present were Mrs. L.H. Lookingbill, Sr., Ted Panciera and Johnson.

Those in attendance were Mmes. Frank Ball, Bishop, Jim Clark, Herman Ford, Hill, W.C. Hromas, Johnson, Lookingbill, Thomas Manning, H.E. Miller.

Also, Mmes. Panciera, Eunice Petersen, J.V. Pickens, Paul Rudd, Clayton, Guy Walser, R.L. Wilson and Wimberley.

The next meeting is slated at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 9 at K-Bob's Steak House for a luncheon.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Bill Griffin of Borger, at right, was guest speaker during the Pioneer Study Club luncheon held Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club. Pictured with the speaker is Eunice Petersen, club president.

Honors bestowed at recognition service

Award Recipients

Several girls received special awards during a Girls-in-Action and Acteen recognition service Sunday evening at Summerfield Baptist Church. Top row, from left are Kerri Dobbs and Terese Dawson, who received Acteen crowns. Receiving badges were, from left on middle row, GA's Jolene Balko and Kristin Jesko. Pillow bearers for the ceremony were, left to right in front, Jenny Balko and Camille Lance.

A special recognition service for Girls-in-Action (GA's) and Acteens was held Sunday evening at Summerfield Baptist Church.

Earning queen's crowns were Acteens Karri Dobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dobbs, and Terese Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reece Dawson. Seventeen separate studies were completed for this honor.

GA's Allie Jolene Balko, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Allie Balko, and Kristin Jesko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jesko, received Adventure II badges. Five mission studies were completed to earn badges.

Mothers of the girls presented their crowns and badges. Pillow bearers, who carried the crowns, were Mission Friends, Camille Lance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lance, and Jenny Balko, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Balko.

Ushers were Stephen Baum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Baum, and Shane Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Thompson. Both are members of Royal Ambassadors.

A special guest, who gave the Acteen charge, was Mrs. Bobby Starkey, assistant Acteen leader for the Amarillo Baptist Association. Guest soloist was Dean Stanley of Hereford, and Mrs. Atless Stewart of Dawn was pianist.

Mrs. Wilma Bryan, Women's Missionary Union director and Acteen leader, gave the introduction, welcome and GA charge. The Rev. Allie Balko, pastor, gave the reading and invocation.

GA's and Acteens lit 16 candles set in a brass candelabrum for missionaries who are celebrating birthdays this month. The GA interpretation was given by LaNita Balko and Acteen interpretation was presented by Glenda Jesko.

Dawn Olson, a GA, was also present and helped light missionary candles. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Olson.

Other Acteens present were Trracy Hargrove, daughter of Mrs. Janie Young, and Michelle Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Thompson. They both registered guests and helped Kim Northcutt serve refreshments at a reception which followed.

The serving tables were covered with red and blue cloths and decorated in the Acteens' colors of blue and green. A white candle centered the table, surrounded by miniature dolls dressed as Acteens and GA's. The cakes were decorated with the GA and Acteen symbols. The girls had their notebooks and work on display.

Other guests were Catherine Luster of Wildorado, Linda Houston of Amarillo, Ray Stewart of Dawn, Mrs. Dean Stanley and Jeremy and Mr. and Mrs. Tim Dawson of Hereford, Mrs. Ray Johnson of Summerfield, and Teresa Grantham of Lubbock.

Norwegian king has private visits

HOUSTON (AP) — King Olav V of Norway retired from public view today for two days of private visits in Houston after two busy days of appearances here, officials said.

The King on Tuesday attended a briefing on oil seismic exploration, toured an employe facility at a Houston oil company and attended a luncheon hosted by Houston mayor Kathy Whitmire.

Tenneco Oil Inc. and GECO, a Norwegian seismic research company, had planned to demonstrate seismic exploration techniques on an open prairie west of Houston Tuesday, but heavy rains forced cancellation.

Instead, King Olav attended a briefing at Tenneco offices here. Experts from Tenneco and GECO explained the seismic methods used to explore for oil and gas. Tenneco board chairman James L. Ketelsen presented the monarch with a gold-tinted metal hard hat. The King thanked the executive, but did not don the hat.

The monarch then toured a Tenneco employee exercise facility and watched several employees go through a series of exercises.

A spokesman at the Norwegian consulate, who declined to give his name, said the King would remain in Houston until Thursday for private visits. He is scheduled to then fly to New Orleans. King Olav later is to visit Miami and Washington, D. C. and then return to Norway next week.

In addition to mothballs, place whole cloves in pockets of woolen coats or in bags of sweaters for winter storage. Helps prevent moth damage and adds a nice spicy fragrance.

Military Muster

Roland B. Parten of Hereford has been selected vice-president of the college sophomore class at Marion Military Institute, Marion, Ala. He will serve along with 20 other officers in six classes during the 1982-83 year.

Marine Lance Cpl. Phillip D. Simon, son of Jim and Joyce Simon of 329 Cherokee, and Marine Lance Cpl. Ismael Orta, son of Orencio T. and Irene P. Orta, also of Hereford, recently returned from a deployment to Okinawa.

Both are members of 3rd Battalion, 5th Marines, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Their unit spent six months overseas as part of the Marine Corps' Unit deployment program. The concept is designed to rotate whole battalions or squadrons at one time instead of individuals at separate intervals.

In this way unit integrity and efficiency is maintained and the actual time they spend overseas is shortened.

During the deployment, the battalion conducted training exercises with other Marine forces, the U.S. 7th Fleet and those of allied nations.

Members enjoy Amarillo trip

Members and guests of the Young Mothers' Study Club met at the home of Tracy Coker on Monday evening, and from there departed for Amarillo and an evening at the Crystal Confectionery, in celebration of their annual Mother's Night Out.

Lynette Leasure was a guest for the trip. Members attending were Lisa Blakely, Doris Artho, Janie Poland, Tracy Coker, Jeanne Lomas, Carla Hollinger, Jo Schilling, Kelly Wagner, Kathy Boyd, and Dee Dee Coker.

G.E.D. TESTING

Good Timers enjoy covered dish supper

Members of the Good Timers Square Dance Club enjoyed a covered dish supper Friday night.

Following the supper, James Pettus of Portales called tips for club members and guests from Amarillo and Portales.

The next dance will be Friday, Oct. 22, with Audrey Brown from Amarillo as guest caller.

Prevention of teen suicide should begin early in the life of a child through a parental love and acceptance, opportunities to develop skills in decision-making and problem solving, development of positive parent-child communication, and a stable home environment, explains Cindy Wilson, a specialist in family life education with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Every day, more than 107,000,000 Americans — seven out of 10 adults — read a daily newspaper. Every week nine out of 10 adults read at least one newspaper.

Panhandle-Plains Museum hires director

The Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society recently named B. Byron Price to the position of Director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

Price succeeds Dr. William C. Griggs, who recently resigned to accept a position with the Harris County Heritage Society.

A Lubbock native, Price holds a bachelor of science degree from the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York, and a Master of Science degree from Texas Tech University. He is completing of Ph. D. in history from the same institution.

Price has served as Research Coorinator for the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech, as Field Representative for the Southwest Collection Archive of Texas Tech, and as a teaching assistant in the history department of Texas Tech. Since 1977 he has been Curator of History for the Panhandle -Plains Museum.

The new director is also a graduate of the National Trust Seminar for Historic Agency Administration, Williamsburg, Va. He has published over a dozen books and articles dealing with western American history, and he has conducted eight seminars on interpretation and exhibition of artifacts and historic objects for the American Association for State and Local History.

In announcing the appointment, Rufus Gaut, spokesman for the Executive Committee, stated that "We are at a critical time in the development of the Museum. There are several very important programs going on at the present time, and the Committee feels strongly that uninterrupted progress is essential.

"Price's appointment will ensure a smooth, orderly, and rapid transition in the director's position. He is thoroughly acquainted with the staff, facilities, and purpose of this museum. The committee is confident that he is the person most capable of guiding the Museum through the critical next few years."

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum is the oldest and largest state- supported museum in Texas. Presently under construction are a 70,000 square foot petroleum exhibit wing and a 30,000 square foot addition to house the Texas Conservation Center.

Commenting on the Committee's decision, Price indicated that he is very enthusiastic about his appointment. He said, "I believe in the mission of the Museum and the direction in which it is going. We have gained an international reputation, we have the best staff in the state, and we are going to carry on in a creative manner.

"The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum has had excellent leadership over the past six years, and we will maintain the same commitment to education and the same record of attention to community concerns."

Price will assume the Directorship in mid-October.

Tagco makes new feeder

One ingredient for the design of Tagco Industries' new heavy feeder mixer series is complaints, according to Geary Gearn.

Taking the complaints heard about other feeders and the technical know-how from Tagco's oilfield product line the company has developed a feeder-mixer considered to be one of the largest on the market.

Overall lengths on the three models are 197 inches, 221 inches and 245 inches with mixing capacities of 396, 450 and 501 cubic feet.

Size is not the only uniqueness. A central greasing system gives access through hoses to all the different bearings operating the mixer.

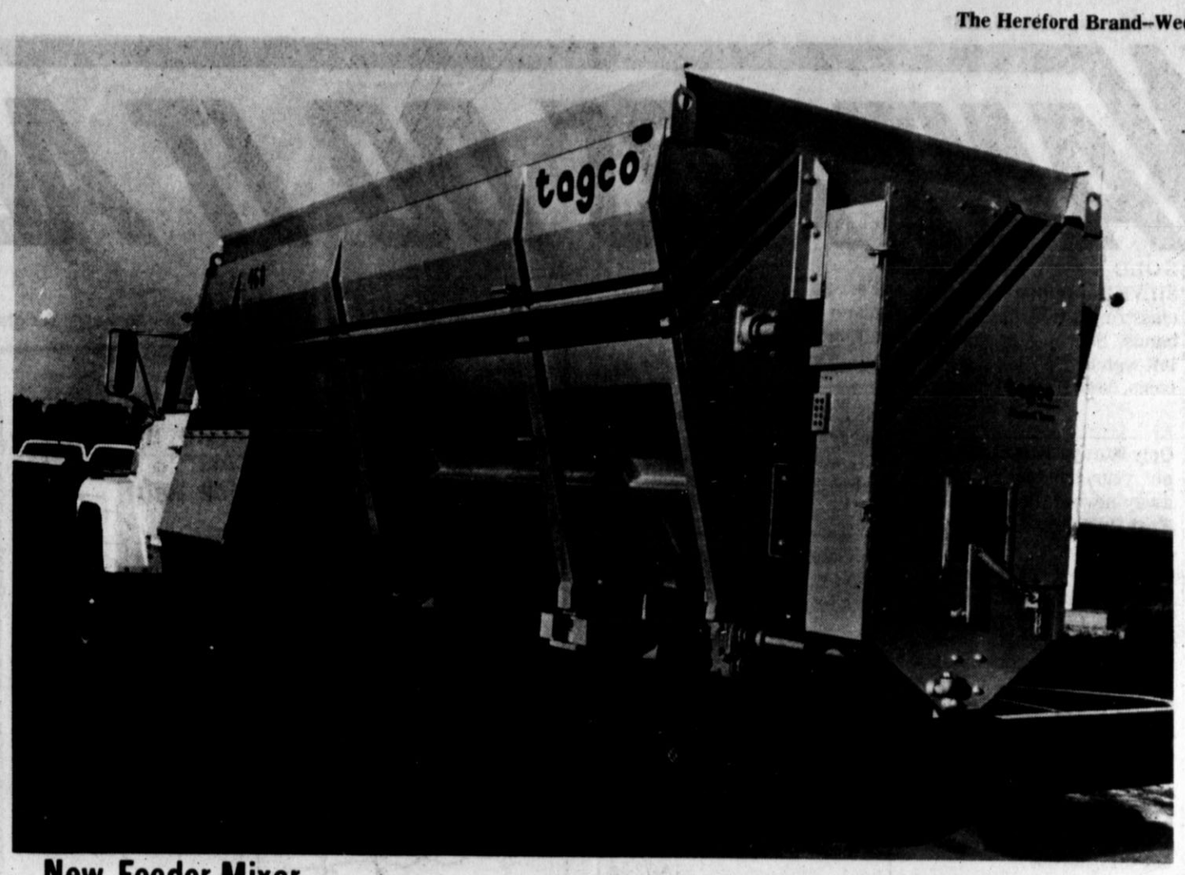

The metal used for construction is 25 percent heavier and is acid resistant.

All framing is square tubed rather than channel construction.

The feeder also has removable wear plate to allow longer wear and easier replacement.

Tagco spent four to five months on the construction and engineering of its new project and is shooting for mass production after the first of the year with the possibility of employing 15 to 20 more workers.

The only model built currently is on the road in Texas and neighboring states. Gearn said Tagco is affiliated with a dealer organization in Colorado, Kansas and South Texas and may market through that group.

New Feeder-Mixer

Tagco Industries, Inc., has developed a new feeder-mixer that is larger and easier to lubricate than others on the market. A central greasing system pumps lubricant through hoses to the proper area. The box is made with a metal 25 percent heavier than most feederas and includes an easily removable wear plate.

FARM NEWS

Leadership confab Oct. 21

A Farm Leadership Conference will be held in Lubbock on Oct. 21, to analyze the 1983 farm programs and the importance of farmer's participation in them.

It is planned primarily for the agricultural news media and officers and leaders of agricultural organizations and commodity groups who will be responsible for disseminating information about the 1983 programs to their members. Leaders of the nation's major farm organizations are expected to be present.

The 1983 programs for feed grains, wheat, cotton, rice and soybeans will be reviewed along with the basic alternatives of each. A comparison of the effects of full participation versus low farmer participation will be made.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. at Plains Co-op Oil Mill, 2901 Avenue A, in Lubbock.

Sponsoring organizations include: Texas Association of Cotton Producer Organizations, Grain Sorghum Producers Association, Texas Corn Growers Association, Texas Wheat Growers Association, Texas Soybean Association, American Rice, Inc. and Women Involved in Farm Economics.

Commodity inventories doubled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had $14.8 billion invested in surplus farm commodities as of Aug. 31, nearly double the $7.5 billion worth of inventories a year earlier.

According to a monthly balance sheet issued Monday by the Agriculture Department, price support loans on various commodities total $9.8 billion. Inventories owned outright by the Commodity Credit Corp. amounted to $5 billion.

Comparatively, loans a year earlier totaled $3.7 billion and inventories, $3.8 billion, the report said.

The huge harvests of 1981 and 1982 have resulted in lower market prices, forcing farmers to place large amounts of grain under loan and to store much of it in the government's farmer-held reserve program.

Not all the loan expense will be a net loss to the government. When market prices rise significantly above the loan rates, farmers generally repay the loans and thereby redeem their grain for use or sale.

However, the outlook at the present time is for a continuing low grain prices — and greater dependence on federal loan and reserve programs.

Feed grains — mainly corn — accounted for almost $5.8 billion of the total, compared to $1.56 billion a year earlier.

Wheat loans and inventories totaled $3.5 billion, compared to $2.3 billion on Aug. 31, 1981.

Dairy products bought by the CCC under the milk price support program, accounted for $3.43 billion of the total, compared to $2.43 billion a year earlier.

Brazos hybrid available in spring

COLLEGE STATION -- Brazos, a new bermudagrass hybrid that tops Coastal in performance, will be released through the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's Foundation Seed Service at Texas A&M University in early 1983.

"Brazos bermudagrass has a higher level of digestibility and has produced better weight gains in cattle than Coastal bermuda," said Dr. Ethan Holt, professor of forages with the Experiment Station and Texas A&M's Department of Soil and Crop Sciences.

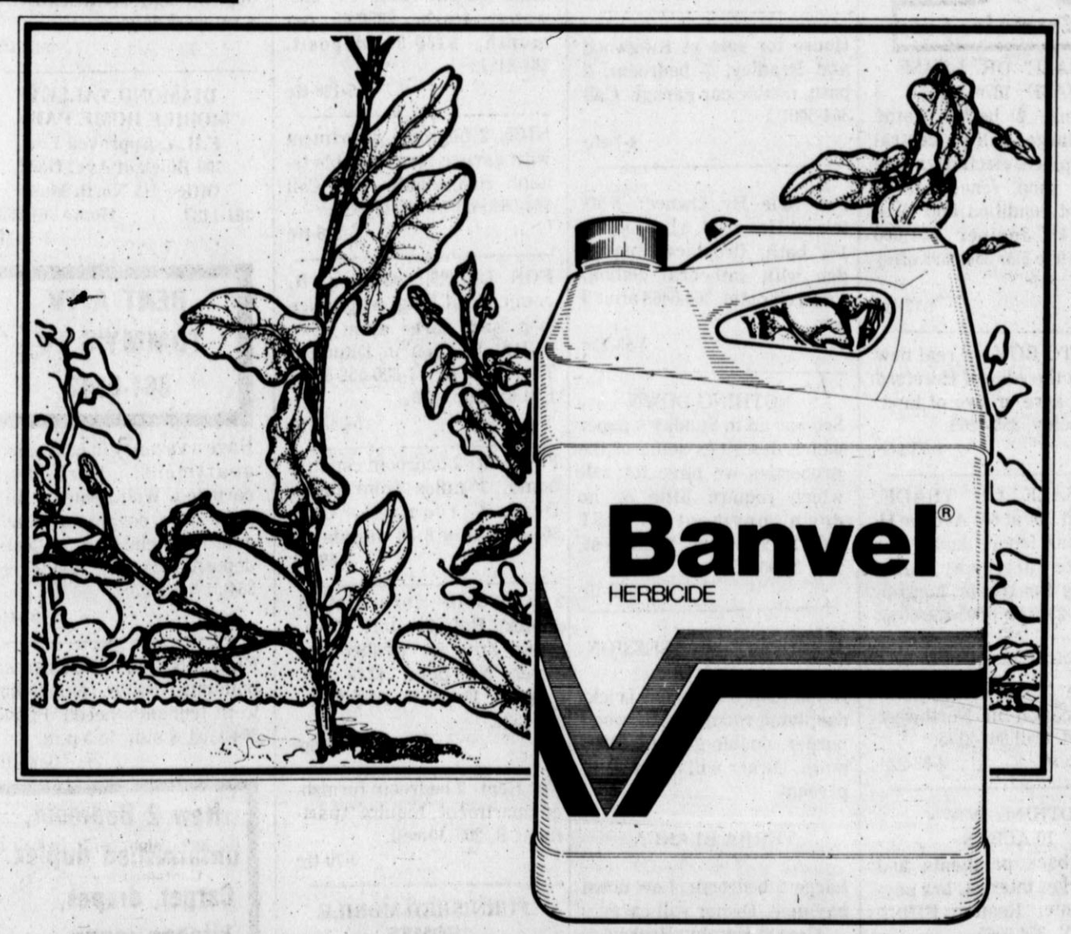

"In grazing trials Brazos has produced 20 to 25 percent higher animal performance than Coastal," Holt noted. "Brazos also has superior nutritional quality (dry matter digestibility) and is adapted to all areas of Texas except the High Plains."

Sprigs of Brazos bermudagrass will be available in limited amounts to qualified growers early next year, Holt said. To be qualified individuals must have their land free of other bermudagrasses and must have passed inspection by Texas Department of Agriculture officials. Production plots must be certified by the TDA to protect the new Brazos variety from contamination, the forage scientist said.

Better bindweed control with a Banvel® herbicide Between Crops Application.

Want to end your bindweed problems once and for all? Start planning a Banvel* herbicide Between Crops Application now.

Banvel herbicide works right into your fallow/rotation program. Go in after crop harvest this fall with up to 2 quarts of Banvel herbicide per acre on fallow land.

The fall application kills bindweed that would otherwise have time to store up nutrients before the winter freeze. A follow-up application in the spring will catch seedlings and escapes.

In addition to cleaning out bindweed, a Banvel herbicide Between Crops Application controls many other annual, biennial and perennial weeds, including blueweed, lakeweed, and silverleaf nightshade.

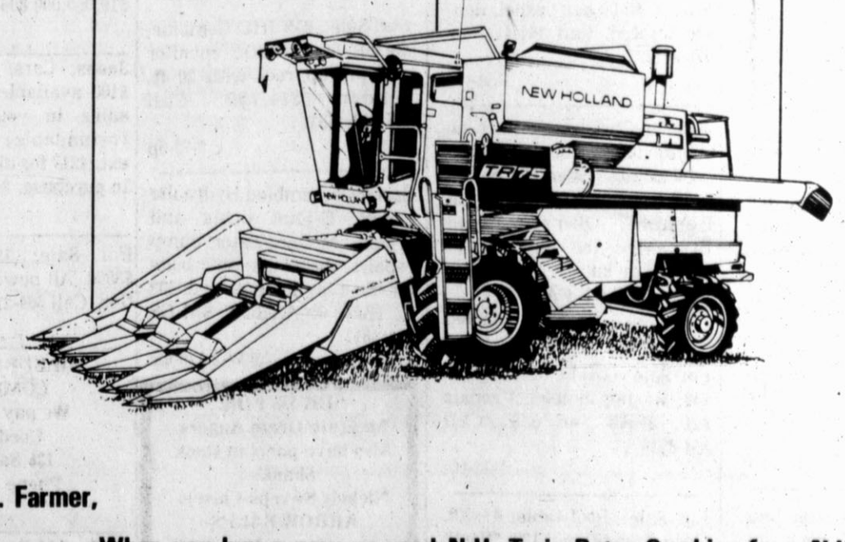

Make this season the last that you're wrapped up in bindweed. Ask your ag chem dealer for between crop weed control with Banvel herbicide.

WHY SETTLE FOR AN ORDINARY COMBINE?

Own a Sperry New Holland Twin Rotor™ combine instead. Patented dual-rotor threshing process produces a cleaner sample with less grain damage and lower losses. Three models to choose from. Stop in today. And be sure to ask us about the completely new line of corn heads, flexible cutterbar bean headers and rigid cutterbar grain heads. And like all Sperry New Holland machines, Twin Rotor combines are backed by a parts and service system that's second to none.

Mr. Farmer,

When you buy a new or used N.H. Twin Rotor Combine from N.H. Hereford from 10-1-82 thru 10-1-83 we guarantee you to have any repair parts needed within 24 hours or the part is yours free. If you experience a major breakdown with a N.H. Combine purchased from us during this time period we will, at no charge, loan you a combine out of our stock. Ask about our finance plans.

NBC program plugs get your attention

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Sohmer gets your attention. As NBC's chief cheerleader, he's made promotional points with a humorous jab for "Taxi," a sophisticated wink for "Remington Steele," and a dramatic heartbeat for "St. Elsewhere."

You may not like NBC's shows, but you're bound to notice its program plugs — particularly this week. When Sohmer was hired away from CBS last summer to head up NBC's promotional department, NBC was thinking of the World Series, when a nation tunes in for baseball and gets program pitches in between.

"The World Series is a wonderful launching pad for our shows," says Sohmer, NBC's vice president for advertising and creative services.

When Sohmer was creating national phenomenon, like the "Who Shot J.R.?" campaign that kept "Dallas" so hot in the summer of 1980, he had successful shows to boost. He could promote "The Dukes of Hazzard" with cornpone and a hard sell.

At third-rated NBC, however, he has to sell things differently. He needs to persuade people to try NBC. "Just Watch Us Now" is the NBC slogan, compared to CBS' "Great Moments," emphasizing that network's No. 1 tradition.

For "Taxi," an award-winning comedy that was canceled by ABC and picked up by NBC, Sohmer tweaked ABC with the the promotional tag line: "Same time, better station."

For a tongue-in-cheek show, like "Remington Steele," he offered a classy promotion, pegged to the relationship of stars Stephanie Zimbalist and Pierce Brosnan.

And for "St. Elsewhere," a hospital drama patterned after the network's popular "Hill Street Blues," he sold drama.

"People need to be intrigued," says Sohmer. "Give them one mouthful less than they want."

With few hit shows, NBC is promoting its distinctiveness — quality programming. Soon after ABC's Emmy award telecast, NBC was on the air with this Sohmer-produced promotion:

"NBC didn't bring you the Emmy awards, but our shows brought a lot of them home. Twenty three Emmys. Wow!"

That night, Sohmer had taken the unusual step of inserting live reports of NBC's Emmy successes into its Sunday night movie breaks. Minutes after Michael Conrad of "Hill Street Blues" was named best supporting actor, it was on NBC.

Having a national forum, like the World Series, is any snake-oil salesman's fantasy. The World Series, which alternates annually between ABC and NBC, couldn't have come at a better time for NBC. For one week, NBC is assured blockbuster ratings and a captive male audience, not easy to find since the National Football League strike.

SPS reports 1982 earnings

Southwestern Public Service Company today reported 1982 earnings of $2.02 per common share, representing a 5.8 increse over the $1.91 figure for the previous year.

The electric utility reported $588.9 million gross revenues for the year ended Aug. 31, 1982, up $55 million or 10.3 percent over 1981. The year's earnings applicable to common stock totaled $67.3 million, a 19.8 percent increase over the $56.1 million posted in 1981.

Net operating income for the period rose 10.0 percent to $84.9 million.

Berl M. Springer, the Company's board chairman, said the revenues gain resulted primarily from increased cost of fuel recovered through revenues and increased base revenues. He said base revenues for 1982 were $278.3 million, an increase of $18.1 million, or 7.0 percent over 1981, reflecting rate relief and a moderate increase in KWH sales.

He also said construction expenditures for fiscal 1983 have been budgeted at $131 million, which includes outlays on Tolk Station Unit No. 2, a 561,000 - KW - coal -fired unit, scheduled for completion in the summer of 1985.

Tolk Station Unit No. 1, also a 561,000-KW unit, recently went on-line, raising the Company's electricity generating capacity from coal-fired power plants to approximately 45 percent of total capability.

Southwestern Public Service primarily provides electric service to a population of more than 1 million in a 45,000 -square-mile area

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Mudslinging on the campaign trail appears to be becoming contagious this year.

First it was Gov. Bill Clements dredging up an old 1963 drunk driving charge against Attorney General Mark White, his Democratic gubernatorial opponent.

Now, Euless Sen. Bill Meier, the Republican candidate for attorney general, has decided to use similar tactics against his opponent, Democratic Congressman Jim Mattox of Dallas.

Meier held a press conference last week to inform reporters that Mattox had been charged with obstruction of justice in Dallas in 1971.

The incident apparently involved mass arrests made at a Dallas park and Mattox, who says he went to the scene in his capacity as an attorney, got caught up in the arrests.

White has called Clements' tactics "garbage," "scurrilous" and a few other colorful adjectives, and Mattox says Meier's adoption of the smear tactics shows that the Republican's campaign is in trouble.

In fact, Mattox predicted a day before Meier's press conference that the mudslinging would soon begin.

Mattox is so confident of victory in the attorney general's race that he says the Nov. 2 vote will amount to no more than a formality.

But Mattox better not get too cocky. That same overconfidence is what many political observers feel cost then Attorney General John Hill the governorship.

Campaign Funds

And while Mattox and Meier were slugging it out in alternating news conferences, Clements was filing the latest in a series of campaign financial reports that show he has raised a record war chest for his battle with White.

Clements has topped his 1978 record by raising some $9.3 million to finance his re-election campaign.

Not only has he amassed the most ever in a Texas campaign, but he also has received the largest number of contributions ever — 45,468 separate contributions.

Of the $9.3 million taken in, $8.2 million already has been spent, leaving Clements slightly more than $1 million — and whatever he can take in this month — for the rest of the campaign.

White, on the other hand, has collected $4.9 million, of which $1.6 million has been borrowed.

The large Clements war chest has prompted White campaign officals to charge that Clements is trying to buy the election.

The Clements people say, however, that the large number of donations just confirms "the broad, grass roots support" the governor enjoys.

Greenhill Resigns

Texas lost its top jurist last week when Chief Justice Joe Greenhill resigned from the Texas Supreme Court.

Greenhill, who has served as a judge for a quarter of a century, will leave the high court Oct. 20 to open a new Austin office for the prestigious Houston law firm of Baker & Botts.

Greenhill, a Democrat, says there was no politics involved in his decision and that the decision was based only on financial considerations.

However, Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle was quick to criticize the timing of the move as denying Texas voters the opportunity to choose their own chief justice.

Other Democrats have charged that the Republicans have bought themselves an opening on the Supreme Court because Clements will now be able to appoint Greenhill's replacement.

There are two years remaining on Greenhill's term.

The incident has prompted some politicos to re-urge efforts to institute a nonpartisan basis to select judges, and even White has offered Clements some advise on selecting Greenhill's successor.

Clements should give the "highest priority" to consideration of a minority for the post.

Ruiz Case

And while the state's top judge was announcing his resignation, one of the state's best known ex-convicts was winning his final victory in attempts to stay out of prison.

A Texas parole board officer ruled that there was not sufficient evidence to revoke the parole of prison reform activist David Ruiz.

Ruiz recently was acquitted of the November 1981 armed robbery of an Austin bar and a 15-year-old murder charge against him in Ohio was dropped.

Ruiz, who gained national prominence as the initiator of the lawsuit that resulted in sweeping reforms of the Texas prison system, was released from jail shortly after the parole board ruling.

Ruiz, who has spent nearly 11 months in jail awaiting the outcome of the robbery trial and parole hearing, contends the charges against him were trumped up in retaliation for his reform activities.

Water Plan

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has released a five-point plan that would greatly expand the state's ability to finance construction of reservoirs and protect water quality.

Hobby's proposal calls for the state to insure water-related debt of local governments in a manner similar to the aborted water trust fund plan of House Speaker Bill Clayton, expand the Water Development Fund program to finance water quality projects, restructure the state's program for acquiring storage capacity in new reservoirs to help finance construction, help farmers purchase machinery necessary for more efficent water use and initiation of strong conservation and management programs.

Hobby's recommendations were based on recommendations made by special task forces, the Texas Department of Water Resources, the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council and other groups.
