SENATE VOTES FOR 25 MORE JUDGES

"Judge Kills Man in Wife's Arms"

MAINLY ABOUT People

BY H. N. F.

Twenty new federal judges are to be appointed according to the provisions of a bill enacted by congress. Texas, Missouri and Oklahoma take down three of the federal judgeship plums. Since the federal courts have been turned into police courts by the vast number of violators of the Volstead act haled before them there appears to be a necessity for a greater number of judges; but why shouldn't the federal judge work eight hours a day and occupy his place on the bench every work day of the year. He is a government employe, a paid servant of the people and there is no constitutional reason why he should enjoy special privileges.

England is said to be ready to pay the debt interest on war loans and she will ask European allies in turn to pay the interest on their war debts to Great Britain. On April 15 the deferred interest due from Great Britain will amount to approximately 615 million pounds sterling. Principal and interest due the United States government from the allies represents a total of 11 billions dollars. Cancellation would be an unpopular issue in this country. Repudiation by any one of the allies would place the repudiator in the position that Russia occupies today in the great family of nations. Russia, the Russia of Lenine and Trotskey, repudiated the foreign debts of their country made by the Romanoffs. Russia has been an outlaw nation ever since and her people have paid the price of the insane program of confiscation and spoilation inaugurated by the mad communists who followed in the wake of the bloody passing of the Romanoff dynsty.

Alien violators of the narcotic or prohibition laws of the Federal government or of any of the states may be deported if the senate passes the Johnson house bill. Representatives Blanton and Box of the Texas delegation voted for the Johnson deportation measure. All the candidates for senator who are clamoring for the resurrection of state rights are reminded that this act seeks to impose a federal penalty for violation of a state law. That is if an alien is convicted of violation of the Dean law he may be deported by the federal authorities. Hon. Robert Lee Henry has a slogan, "Back to the Republic." What is he going to do with the Johnson act? Hon. Earle B. Mayfield has a slogan, "Back to the Ancient Landmarks." Of course the Johnson act places Mr. Mayfield in a most embarrassing position. Hon. Cullen F. Thomas is for "the government and the laws and traditions of the fathers." Up bobs the Johnson act and wallops "the laws and the traditions of the fathers." Now which road is open to Mr. Thomas—the federal or the state highway. But why continue along this line of thought? If an alien violates and is convicted of violation of the federal narcotic law or the Volstead law or state laws prohibiting the sale of narcotics or intoxicants, why shouldn't he be deported and just what real objection is there against sending to the penitentiary violators who are to the manner born? If these laws are oppressive or repressive and do not reflect the will of the people then the people should organize and bring about a repeal of the obnoxious acts. Tells is a democracy, a government of the people and the majority must rule. Never forget that the ballot is the thing.

Rev. George W. Truett, one of the noted Baptist preachers and orators of America, believes that the ballot is the thing and that the power to maintain law and order rests with the voter. This is his viewpoint, "No grievance is ever great enough to justify the overthrow of law and order, for law and order is the most precious jewel in our civilization. It will be a lamentable day for us if the people who vote should be indifferent to the best care for the people ~~physically~~ and intellectual-

SHOOTING DONE IN DEFENSE OF HOME, IS CLAIM

Murder Charge May Yet Be Filed

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 7.—Jean P. Day, wealthy Oklahoma oil operator and attorney, shot and killed Lieutenant Colonel Paul Ward Beck, army flyer "in defense of home" and if he tells the true story of the tragedy any red-blooded jury would acquit him, County Attorney Forrest Hughes, declared today in a formal statement giving the result of his investigation of the case.

Day "saw something that swept him off his feet," when he returned to his home early last Tuesday morning and found his wife on a divan in the arms of Beck, the county attorney said he was convinced. "Beck was not looking at Judge Day at the time of the firing." Hughes said he had concluded. It was not in self-defense that the attorney shot Beck down, he added. "It is my opinion," he declared "that Day has not told the whole truth."

Despite the picture of the tragedy drawn by County Attorney Hughes, Moman Pruiett, attorney for Day, declared tonight:

"Judge Day has told the whole truth." Day and Mrs. Day will tell at the coroner's inquest Saturday the same story they have already given the public. "Because it is the truth" Pruiett said.

County Attorney Hughes has announced unless the whole truth is forthcoming, it would be his duty to file either a murder or manslaughter charge against Day. The facts and circumstances developed at the inquest will guide his action, Hughes said.

"An important matter that I think has been entirely overlooked," Hughes' statement said, "is the proposition of a handkerchief being found in the clenched hand of Paul Ward Beck. What had Beck been doing with his handkerchief immediately before the gun was discharged?"

Shooting Accidental.

Day has declared that he returned to his home after driving home some midnight party guests, found Mrs. Day fighting Beck who was attempting to assault her. Day said he went up stairs, obtained a revolver, came down, and confronting Beck struck the army officer over the head with the revolver when Beck drew back one hand. The discharge of the revolver was accidental, he asserted.

"One thing is absolutely certain in my mind, and that is the gun was discharged while immediately adjacent to the head of Paul Wark Beck," Hughes declared. Whether Beck was shot from the front or back is one of the greatest questions involved in the case, the county attorney said, but he added that X-ray photos indicated Beck was not in a position to see his slayer when his life was ended.

Defense of Home.

"Judge Day asserted that he fired in self-defense," Hughes' statement continued. "In my judgment, if the shot was fired in defense it was in defense of home and not of life."

Declaring that Day and Beck had been close friends before the tragedy, Hughs asked:

"What extraordinary occurrence changed the attitude of one towards the other? What caused Mrs. Day, after the shot to moan 'Oh my honor'?" Hughes' statement asks.

"I do not believe that there were any other parties in the house at the time of the firing of the fatal shot except Judge Day, Mrs. Day and Paul Beck," the statement said.

SKIN GAME ALRIGHT BUT IT'S DIFFERENT WHEN COOK'S 'SLICKED'

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 7.—A banana skin tossed to the sidewalk by a tenant cannot be charged to the owners of the tenant's home if a passerby skids on it and falls. But it's quite a different matter when a discharged cook slips on a piece of soap carelessly left on the steps in her former employer's house, and breaks a leg.

These doctrines were set forth by the appellate division of the Supreme court today in appeals from the lower court, which had guessed wrong in both cases.

A verdict for $10,000 won by Frieda Frank from Victor Muller on the ground that Muller's tenants had tossed to the street a banana peel on which she slipped, was upset.

Then the court reversed a decision which threw out of court a suit brought by Sarah Morrison against the Rutledge Hotel company for injuries suffered by slipping on a piece of soap.

The defense, as pointed out by the court, was that the soap was left by a scrub woman, "agent" of the hotel on property controlled by the hotel while the banana skin was thrown by a person over whom the landlord had no control.

JUDGE TO QUIZZ 3 WITNESSES IN KU KLUX PROBE

Grand Jury's Work Blocked When Silence Rules.

Dr. Wallace Martin of Burkburnett, H. D. Miller of Electra and J. C. Jennings of this city, will appear before Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district court and the grand jury of that court this morning at 9 o'clock in connection with their refusal Friday afternoon to answer questions concerning their connection with the Ku Klux Klan.

Judge Napier placed the three men in the custody of officers after Sam Holliday, assistant district attorney, in behalf of the grand jury, had reported that they had refused to answer all questions connected with the activities of the Klan. Just what action the court will take this morning if they refuse to answer the same questions is problematical.

Witnesses May Be Fined.

Wednesday morning the grand jury submitted three questions to Judge Napier regarding their deliberations with special reference to the klan and what should be their action in the event witnesses refused to answer questions with regard to connection with or knowledge of the organization.

Judge Napier in answering the question read the statute covering the matter, declaring that the witnesses may be fined $100 and sent to jail until they consent to answer. In answer to another query the court instructed the grand jury that they were not only to investigate officers and officials on their relations to the klan, but were to make a general investigation.

The three men concerned in the action were allowed to return to their homes under promise to appear for the hearing this morning.

Grand Jury's Questions.

In a communication addressed to Judge Napier, the grand jury wanted to know if "we are to take your former instructions to mean that we are to question county and city officers only in investigating the klan."

The jury also wanted to know if it should call individuals if the first means of ascertaining the information was exhausted. Whether it should put all witnesses, including officers, under oath before submitting questions to them was another question asked the judge. The final query was the course they should take if the witnesses refused to answer.

MEASURE PUTS ANOTHER JURIST IN NORTH TEXAS

Final Vote 44 to 21 With Party Lines Obliterated

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The bill to provide a score or more of federal judges, advocated as a measure to relieve congestion in the federal district courts and opposed as a political patronage "pork barrel" was passed late today by the senate and sent to conference with the house.

Twenty-three more federal district judges distributed throughout the country and one more judge for the fourth circuit are provided by the senate bill as against 22 district judges under the original bill passed by the house last December. The northern Texas and eastern Oklahoma districts each would get an additional judge.

The senate vote of final passage was 44 to 21, with party lines broken. Eight democrats, Ashurst, Arizona; Fletcher, Florida; Hitchcock, Nebraska; Meyers, Montana; Pomerene, Ohio; Rammell, Florida; Walsh, Massachusetts, and Walsh, Montana, voted with 36 republicans for the bill.

The opposition included eight republicans and 13 democrats, the republicans being Senators Borah, Idaho; Capper, Kansas; France, Maryland; Ladd, North Dakota; La Follette, Wisconsin; McNary, Oregon; Norris, Nebraska, and Townsend, Michigan. The democratic opponents were Senators Broussard, Louisiana; Caraway, Arkansas; Dial, South Carolina, Harris, Georgia; Harrison, Mississippi; Kendrick, Wyoming; King, Utah; Overman, North Carolina; Sheppard, Texas; Shields, Tennessee; Stanley, Kentucky; Underwood, Alabama, and Williams, Mississippi.

The "pork barrel" and "log rolling" charges made openly on the floor by democratic opponents of the bill and denied as vehemently by its supporters were followed by some open maneuvers and kaleidoscopic vote changing during the dozen roll calls on amendments today. The bill finally contained provisions for four more district judges than recommended by the senate judiciary committee. These included one each for New Jersey, New Mexico, the western Missouri district and the southern Florida district.

The bill provides for an annual fall conference of senior circuit judges at Washington, with the chief justice and attorney general of the United States to make a comprehensive survey of judicial business of the country and make bench assignments. It provides also for assignment by the chief justice of judges to districts where there is congestion or where the public interest in general require such assignment.

In adding four judges to the bill's total, the senate voted down numerous amendments for other judges and to reduce the number authorized.

"Maximum Amount of Motion in Least Area of Space—That's Jazz" Says Educator, Rapping Dancing Flapper

They Sleep Thru Day to Spend All Night On Waxed Floors.

By Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., April 7.—"Jazz" music, scanty dress, suggestive dancing and other foibles of the flapper and her masculine counterpart formed the subject of discussion among educators of the Pacific Northwest in attendance here today at the annual convention of the Inland Empire Teachers' association.

Speakers were unanimous in condemning them as the causes for many of the evils which they said existed today among the younger generation.

"There is no drug in existence that furnishes the sex stimulus that dancing does," Dr. C. P. Cary, former state superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin, told the teachers. "The dress of the girls is greatly conducive to this, many of them having practically nothing on but their gowns, shoes and stockings."

"Flappers" Dr. Cary defined as "girls of the wealthy class who are idle, who dress in extremes, smoke cigarettes, who are out all night and who sleep all day."

"But the girls are really not to be criticized," he declared. "Their indiscretions are mainly the result of conditions and they have too little willpower to overcome them."

Mary McKee, instructor in physical education at Washington state college, added a denunciation of modern dancing.

"The jazz, as danced by many persons, young and old, is lewd to the psychological limit," she declared. "In many cases it leads to worse things." Modern dancing, she defined as "the maximum of motion in the minimum of space."

Restraint of jazz orchestras and promoters was urged by Miss McKee.

"Were Beethoven alive he would thank heaven for his deafness," she declared.

BABSON SEES NEED OF GOLD

General Trading on Upgrade

(Authentic Statement by Roger W. Babson to be quoted only by The Wichita Falls Record News.)

Roger W. Babson answers the farmers question.

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., April 7.—Checking up the findings of his recent tour of investigation with the figures available at his home office, Roger W. Babson, the statistician today made a very interesting observation regarding our present supply of money. "Everywhere throughout the south and middle west," he says, "I found business men and farmers clamoring for more money and more credit. The cry is not a new one. Ever since we have had money, men have looked to the apparently simple formula of more money as a solution to financial problems.

"Witness Europe today for example. They have followed this plan—meeting each new emergency with more money and more credit. As a result the franc has fallen from 19c to 9c; the lire from 19c to 5c; the mark from 23c to 1-3 of a cent, and the Australian crown from 20c to one hundredth of a cent! Living costs have gone to ridiculous heights in these latter countries and everyone is much worse off than they were before the inflation took place.

"While this has been going on we have steadily reduced currency and credit. Our circulating media has been cut from $59.43 per caplta—the figure for November, 1920, to $50.27 in March, 1922. This is fundamentally an improvement which critics have failed to realize. Fundamentally our finances are better than they have been for years.

"No, the farmers trouble is not due to the supply of money," continued Mr. Babson, "but to the fact that our merchandising machinery is temporarily out of joint. An increase of currency and credit at this time would boost living costs and make conditions worse instead of better. You cannot solve our economic problems by legislating prices up and down or by running the printing presses overtime. Prosperity is measured in goods not in gold.

"Our merchandising machinery needs oiling and cleaning. Distribution must be speeded up—middlemen who do not serve a legitimate need must be eliminated—freight rates must be reduced—in short, our channels which lead from producer to consumer which now wander about like cow paths on the general theory that the longest way around yields the greatest number of profits must be reconstructed on the cold mathematical truth that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

"Incidentally there is altogether too much ignorant criticism of the Federal Reserve Board. This group of men has done a wonderful work during this trying period of readjustment and has stuck by its guns in spite of tremendous pressure and public demand for a "more liberal" policy. This single body of clear thinking men has done more to keep us out of the sort of economic mess that Europe finds itself in today, than all the rest of the country put together. They deserve your enthusiastic support."

Mr. Babson went on to discuss general conditions which are holding up very well in spite of industrial unrest. The Babson chart index for instance shows general business is running but 13 per cent below normal as compared with 12 per cent below a week ago.

"Are Authorities Adequate?" Theme of Dr. Groseclose

"Are the present authorities adequate?"—this is to be the Sunday night sermon subject of Dr. J. H. Groseclose at the Floral Heights Methodist church, according to a Friday announcement.

"It seems the times are ripe to speak on this question," declared Dr. Groseclose in making his announcement.

CHANGES LOOM AT CITY HALL

Expect Action by New Council

Some changes among department heads at the city hall will undoubtedly come with the induction of a new city administration, according to information obtained from council members, although actice in this direction will not be undertaken until after Monday night.

The pay roll will, of course, be one of the first documents to be scanned by the new administration. The old administration had this in mind when four months ago they declined to further revise the list—pointing out that this was a natural first duty of a new management.

In the changes which are agreed upon, and they will probably be agreed upon during the coming week or early in the succeeding one, there will be no necessity of holding the public inquiry usually necessary for the ousting of a department head. This is the view taken by the councilmen who hold that the terms of all city employes automatically expire, and that they can be replaced simply by a failure to reappoint the present official and appointing a successor.

The new officials take office Monday night. Several adjourned meetings during the first week are expected.

The old city council will hold its final meeting this morning at 10 o'clock.

PRESCRIBES FOR MARINE MALADY

Preferential Tariff Lasker Plan

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The most economical way to build up American merchant marine would be to put into effect section 34 of the Jones act, which provides preferential tariff duties to insure to goods imported in American bottoms, Chairman Lasker of the shipping board declared today at the joint congressional hearing on the administration ship subsidy bill.

Forced to turn to an alternative by the refusal of Presidents Wilson and Harding to abrogate portions of commercial treaties with certain foreign nations which prohibit the United States government from giving American ships preferential treatment as against foreign vessels, Mr. Lasker said, shipping board officials with presidential approval had to work out the subsidy program now pending before the senate commerce and house merchant marine committees.

"It will be more expensive," he added, "but its the only thing we could do."

'GET-RICH-QUICK' PLAN UNIQUE BUT WAS UNRELIABLE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Confession of thefts amounting to $25,000 by the simple plan of following the postman through fashionable districts and collecting letters the postman left, was made today by George Stearn, 27, the police said.

His arrest ended a three months search by postal inspectors. Stearns' arrest was due to the fact that one of the checks he pilfered from a letter was no better than his own, and put police on his trail as a bogus check author.

MAN CONVICTED OF KILLING BOY

Old Kansas Cowman Found Guilty

By Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., April 7.—The jury in the sixth trial of B. W. A. Henson, aged rancher, found him guilty this afternoon of manslaughter in the first degree in connection with the killing of his 17-year-old crippled stepson, Walter Shafer.

Henson previously had been tried four times for the alleged killing of his wife here Dec. 29, 1915. The first two trials finished in hung juries. The third trial ended in conviction, but the verdict was set aside by the state supreme court. The fourth trial brought an acquittal. Then Henson was tried on a charge of slaying his stepson. The jury hung.

Henson, a Civil war veteran, is now 74 years old. Once reputed to be wealthy, Henson said today he is practically penniless as the result of paying attorneys' fees in his various trails.

Testifying in his sixth trial, Henson said he killed Shafer in self-defense, striking him with a shotgun when attacked by a knife, following the shooting of Mrs. Henson, Shafer's mother.

Henson announced immediately after the verdict was read that he will file a motion for a new trial.

BIG TERM FOR DRUGS.

FORT WORTH—The highest sentence assessed for possessing drugs was imposed against Everett Hill, who must serve 18 months on a charge of having narcotics in his possession.

GOING AFTER CONVENTIONS

C. of C. Seeks Four State Meetings.

Chamber of commerce members are after four big conventions for 1923 as a result of action to this end by the business council at its weekly luncheon Friday.

The four conventions are the state meetings of the physicians and surgeons, the retail merchants association, lumber dealers and retail clothiers. The last named convention has an average attendance of around 1,000 men, with the others having an attendance running upward to over 2,000 in the cases of the physicians, the largest.

Belief that Wichita Falls had a good chance to secure these meetings was expressed at the luncheon. The chamber of commerce organization will at once begin an active preliminary campaign in the ranks of each association.

HE'S CHAMP HOLD-UP

By Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 7.—Complicity in 25 or 30 big bank railroad holdups in western and southern states was said to have been admitted today by Fred A. Perkins, 38 years old, arrested here Tuesday. Perkins told officers where they could recover $50,000 worth of Liberty bonds and stamps.

He gave other information regarding the whereabouts of more than $200,000 worth of government bonds which he said were stolen by his gang in holding up banks and railroad trains in Oklahoma and other parts of the southwest within the last 18 months.

Perkins said three members of his gang were captured after a bank holdup in Oklahoma and now were serving long sentences in the Oklahoma state prison. Federal agents said his statement had been verified in many details.

ANNUAL RODEO PLANS UNDER WAY HERE

Wichita Falls' fourth annual rodeo—an event which has grown to one of the best of its kind in the nation, and which has attracted thousands of visitors to Wichita Falls each year, is now an assured fact. This announcement was made Friday afternoon by Fog Horn Clancy, the right-hand man of Tom Burnett, Wichita county ranchman, who will again promote the show.

The announcement of Clancy's was made following the completion of a fund of $2,000 to secure the baseball grounds for staging the three-day roundup, the one condition which Burnett made to holding the show here again. With W. Newton Myer, Chamber of Commerce director in charge, the fund was obtained by solicitation among local business men.

Offices for the rodeo have been opened up by Clancy at 705 Ohio. He says it will be a busy place from now until the end of the rodeo, which is to be held May 3, 4 and 5.

Refinery Charging Ouster Plot

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 7.—That the Standard Oil company and its subsidiaries are trying to eliminate competition in San Antonio by reducing the price of gasoline below cost of production, is the charge made today to First Assistant Attorney General E. F. Smith by five San Antonio men.

Following a conference with Mr. Smith, it was announced that the attorney general's department would send an investigator to San Antonio to inquire into the charges.

The party making the charges was headed by A. B. Slimp, president of the Pioneer Oil & Refining company. He declared that the Standard Oil company is endeavoring to oust them and the other oil companies operating in San Antonio by selling gasoline below cost.

Suits
—that appeal in style and value

Young men who buy suits nowadays want to be sure of two important things—correct style—correct value. We don't know which to place the most importance on, so we give both a maximum emphasis.

You'll find that true here, now. All the style that edicts permit and the latitude is great. All the value that very powerful manufacturing connections have developed for us.

Young man's style is expressed here in very smart sport models and semi-conservative, close-fitting effects. Very likable are the new patterns in tartan checks, subdued overplaids and sedate stripes. A very favorable group at

"MARRY AGAIN" URGES CUNNING

Tells Woman Her Husband Cares

Despite the fact that Dr. Cunning requested no more letters be sent in to the Record News, several hundred were received yesterday. While it is of course absolutely impossible to answer all that have been received, Cunning has prepared as many more as time and space would permit and these will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Record News. These will be the last. If yours has not been answered, it was because there was such a number received that he could not reach them all. Dr. Cunning closes his Wichita Falls engagement here at the Majestic and goes to Amarillo next week. He will go by airplane with Errett Williams who is handling the flying circus for the American Legion leaving here Sunday and will attempt to lower the record between Wichita Falls and Amarillo. Send in no more letters. The offer is over.

Q. Did I do the right thing by divorcing my husband? Shall I marry again? I have a good proposition, should I consider it?—B. S.

A. It is my opinion that he still cares for you and it comes to me that you will marry him again as you were too hasty and have regretted the move you took. I do not think much of the business proposition in question.

Q. Will I get out of the trouble I am in? Should I change climate? Will I get the money?—O. F. R. (Burk.)

A. Yes you will get out of this. A change of climate would help your physical condition. I see you first, however, in the hospital for a time. You will not get the money at once; you know these matters move slowly.

Q. Will I get better?—J. C.

A. While you have been in ill health for some time, you have been getting better the past few weeks and you will continue to improve.

Q. Should I wait for my husband to return?—M. H.

A. You would only wait in vain. He deserted you and the children over six years ago. Divorce him and marry again.

Q. Will I hold my present position? Will I marry?—W. E. D.

A. I see no change from your present employment. Yes, there is a marriage for you, not to the girl left in that other town, but to the one you are waiting on now. Have your brother consult a good physician.

Q. Will the man I am dealing with prove to be a good partner?—J. T. (Burk.)

A. I am sure you can rely on the man. He is as anxious to make good as you are. I see no reason why you two should not work well in double harness.

Q. Should I change my life's vocation?—J. L. G. (Dalhart.)

A. You would do better in a professional career should you take one up.

Q. Did I make a good investment? Will I marry —E. P. B.

A. I think in buying the place you made a very good deal. There is a second marriage for you; this as I get it, in 1923.

Q. Will the party that owes me pay me or not?—J. L. G.

A. Eventually but he cannot do so now.

Q. Will I sell the property? Will my husband continue with same company?—F. W.

A. It is my impression that you will have a good offer on your property in Missouri this fall. Hold until then. Husband had best stay with same company.

Q. Will I make either of the deals I am working on?—J. M. K.

A. Best hold your city home and not trade for a farm as you have figured on. I do see, however, another deal you are on going through.

Q. Will my father recover—G. S.

A. It is my impression that he will recover slowly as the season advances.

Q. Will we ever be able to sell for what we put in?—H. S.

A. I do not see you losing your equity in the lot though you cannot sell at this particular time for a profit.

Q. Will we be successful with our tomatoes?—E. R. F.

A. I believe so and get a fair price for the early ones.

Q. How long will I be on the run I now am on?—B. O. S.

A. About five more weeks.

Q. Will my wishes ever be realized?—T. E.

A. Yes, and before the year is out.

Q. Will I get another job and when?—W. H. L.

A. I see no new position, you will be put back on the old one as I get it.

Q. Will my health improve? Will I rent? Will injury prove fatal? Could I sell?—L. B. B.

A. You worry entirely too much and until you stop this you will not show much improvement in your health. I feel sure you will be able to rent the rooms. No the injury to the party in question will not prove fatal. You could not sell at the present time without sacrifice.

Q. Are there any changes in the near future?—P. C.

A. I see no decided changes for you or your husband in the immediate future. Your ambitions will be realized to own a car before summer is over.

Q. Will I ever win her? What would I do best in?—J. T. W.

A. "Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady." Sure you can win her. She received you kindly the other night, but you must show some speed and not let the grass grow under your feet. You would do best in merchandising.

Q. Will I ever see the man I met a year ago?—M. P.

A.—Yes, you will again meet him, but he will mean little in your young life.

Q. What is best for us to do? Will my husband be laid off this year?—T. B.

A. Move as you have planned, it is best. I do not see your husband idle over 30 days.

Q. When may we expect Harry to come back?—L. P. Y.

A. He is still in St. Louis but will be here by the 15th.

Q. Should I accept the offer made or what is best?—K. P. B.

A. Take what they offer as you cannot afford to enter suit.

Q. Will I make any money by the investment I have just made?—B. D. C.

A. You can double your money in the next 30 days, but do not hold too long.

Q. Will they ever find oil on my land?—B. C.

A. I do not see oil as being found there. This, of course, is only my opinion.

Q. What became of my War Savings Stamps, who took them.—D. G. H.

A. They were not stolen. You accidentally put them in the stove with a lot of trash one day and they burned up.

Q. What is the matter with my health.—F. B. M.

A. I do not prescribe in medical cases. See a good doctor.

Q. Will we take the trip and when?—D. V. B.

A. You will go to California for six weeks starting in June.

CRISSINGER MAKES REPORT ON EXTENT OF BANK FAILURES

WASHINGTON, April 7.—During the calendar year 1921 a total of 528 state and private banks in the country were closed, according to a statement issued today by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger, summarizing bank failures for the year. However, he added, 163 of these banks were able to reopen or otherwise liquidate their liabilities.

The liabilities of the other 365 banks, he reported, aggregating approximately $96,000,000 making the average per bank about $263,000.

The southern geographical division, Mr. Crissinger declared, was the most seriously affected in respect to the number of bank failures and the volume of liabilities, there being 131 failures with liabilities totalling $27,000,000 in that section.

Failures in the western states, he continued, numbered 122 and the liabilities exceeded $16,000,000. In the middle states the number of failures was sixty and the reported liabilities $9,826,000. Failures in the number of 43 with liabilities exceeding $13,500,000 occured in the Pacific states.

There were only five failures in the eastern states with liabilities of $3,600,000, Mr. Crissinger said, and four in the New England states whose liabilities were $17,700,000.

Failures in states in which the depositors guaranty system is in operation, were Mississippi 6; Texas 36; North Dakota 34; Nebraska 22; Kansas 11; Oklahoma 22; Washington 11.

COMMUNITY THEATER PLAYS TO PACKED HOUSE FRIDAY

Scores Success in Initial Shows

Wichita Falls' Community theater was officially welcomed into being Friday night, by a capacity house at the Wichita theater with Mayor W. D. Cline doing the honors of welcoming.

After outlining the conception of the local Community theater and its growth, under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Fulton, the mayor stated that from the initial showing the Community theater was going to be "a whale of a big thing."

"The Will O'The Wisp," a one-act tragedy, a bit of Irish folklore, put into play form by Doris F. Hallman, was given first, as a taste of what many of the little theaters are putting on. Miss Bruce Dickson took the part of the Poet's wife, who in the climax of the play, follows the light of the "Will O'The Wisp" over the precipice to her death. A dance in the firelight by Miss Mary Colquitt, the "Will O'The Wisp" was the culmination of her pantomimic interpretation of the spirit which leads to destruction. The parts of the country woman and her daughter were taken by Misses Sheilah Kavanagh and Berenice Martin. Miss Elisabeth Carrigan took the part of the maid to the post's wife.

The three-act comedy, "Belinda," is another favorite of Community theaters and Friday's audience found the Wichita Falls cast well worth approving.

Mrs. Nat L. Inge, who made her first appearance as a player in the Community theater, was an exceedingly realistic Belinda, frolicking quite as kittenishly as the author of the play could have desired, throughout the three acts. Charles Angle, who has been prominent in programs of the Studio Players and as an entertainer, was seen for the first time in a character role, as the statistical Mr. Baxter. Templey Sheil, Miss Kathleen Lynch and Harold White made their first appearance as Community theater players, while Miss Ella Merle Mathis, the maid, and more than conventionally attractive as such made the most of her few lines.

The accompaniment by the Community orchestra, with Ernest Katz as director and Miss Beryl Knickerbocker as accompanist, added much to the success of the evening. Particularly pleasing was the special accompaniment of "The Will O' The Wisp."

CHEST, LOCKED FOR 37 YEARS, BRINGS SURPRISE

(By International News Service)

DEFIANCE, Ohio, April 7.—With courthouse habitues gathered in his office, visions of a hidden fortune dancing before the eyes of those assembled, Probate Judge C. W. Palmer wielded a wrecking bar on the two giant padlocks holding the lid on a brass-bound chest.

Brought from the west 37 years ago, it was claimed the chest had been unopened since that time.

Breaking off the padlocks, the judge drew forth—

Three musty vests, a bundle of patent medicine advertisements, several pictures of pretty women, dressed in old-fashioned costumes, and a sock filled with letters.

The chest was bequeathed by an uncle to Edward C. Beal, for whom a guardian had just been appointed by the court.

NOT AN IRISH FAERIE

BOSTON, April 7.—Irish faeries may have been at work, but a chemist would more likely give a different explanation. A barrell of yellow mustard that fell from a truck and scattered over a Boston street turned a bright green when a hose was turned on it to wash it away. It happened on March 17.

LANHAM AND HELIUM

By H. N. F.

Congressman Fritz Lanham represents the Fort Worth district in the lower house. He is a product of Texas and his father was for many years a congressman and later served two terms as governor of his adopted state. Fort Worth had a helium plant. It was put out of commission because there was no appropriation made for it. Then came the Roma tragedy and its awful loss of life. This gave Congressman Lanham an opening and he scored his colleagues for their refusal to appropriate a small sum of money to keep the Texas helium plant going. "It would have cost $216,000 at most to fill the Roma with helium," said Lanham. "If the Roma had been filled with helium today you would in all likelihood have the helium and the Roma and you would have the men who lost their lives in that great disaster. There ware thirty men who went down with the Roma who had war risk insurance. Assuming that they were carrying insurance at $10,000 each, there is $300,000 and if that $300,000 had been applied for this fiscal year in order that we might have continuous operation of the plant we would have had enough helium to fill six or eight Romas." Of course, if the people in many of the congressional districts of the United States prefer to send to congress as their representatives men who represent the canal boat and stage coach period of civilization, it is their own business. Congressman Lanham should be told that there are M. C's who don't know whether helium is a plant or an animal and now that the Roma has gone it is too late to inaugurate an educational campaign for the development and education of their oleaginous brain cells. The earth isn't flat. There are men who believe that it is flat. There are men who believe in the tallow dip. It fluttered and then it flickered out ages ago. There are men who insist that the world should stand still. They die in the rut where they were born. When all the people read and all the people think then all the people who vote will send constructive brains to the halls of legislation and constructive laws will be the order of the day. America would have a monopoly of helium if American law-makers would make suitable appropriations and see to it that the government directs the source of supply and then controls the product.

North Dakota blizzards are becoming extinct. They were in evidence until the coming of H. C. Townley and his non-partisan league. Then they quit. There was too much opposition.

NEWSPAPER BOSSES

There are newspaper bosses as well as political bosses. In recent years the people have been toppling the bosses political and there are two instances on record already this year where the people of two American cities gave the newspaper bosses a test of their strength as well as an outburst of their displeasure. All the powerful newspapers of New York, with the exception of the Hearst journals, decided that Mayor John F. Hylan deserved to be driven from power and defeated for re-election. They waged a campaign that was noisy and spectacular as well as abusive and vituperative. They could not find one trait of character or one act of Hylan's four years administration to praise. Election day came around. Hylan was re-elected by 446,000 majority, the largest ever given in Father Knickerbocker's town. Kansas City had an election Tuesday, April 4. There the Star and the Times decided that the candidates on the Democratic ticket represented the slums and the grafters and the crooks of society. They called Governor Hyde of Missouri to his home city to denounce the candidates on the ticket which the two newspapers insisted represented all that was rotten in morals and reprehensible in political practices. Senator James A. Reed of Missouri hurried from Washington and championed the cause of the Kansas City Democracy and its standard bearers. There was the largest vote ever cast in the history of the city and the unexpected must have happened to the Times and the Star. By a majority of 13,000 the men who had been ridiculed, denounced and placarded as a menace to society and the enemies of good government won by majorities ranging from 10 to 18,000. Governor Hyde lost in his home city and Governor Hyde is admittedly one of the ablest and purest men in the political life of Missouri. Senator Reed won in his home city which is squarely behind him in his race for re-election to the American senate and the Times and the Star lost in their own city where if the allegations or charges made in the campaign are true then a vast majority of the people of this progressive and growing western metropolis prefer the rule of the representatives of the underworld to the rule of the political angels or evangelists backed to a finish by these two widely read newspapers of the middle west. Whenever a political boss over-reaches himself it is getting so the people knock him off his perch and whenever a newspaper goes too far and is vindictive or unfair the publishers of the aforesaid newspaper are handed a wallop just as the New York newspapers were repudiated in the Hylan election and the Kansas City Times and Kansas City Star were repudiated in the Cromwell-Foster contest for municipal supremacy on April 4. It pays to be fair. It pays to be impartial. Leaders are always necessary; bosses never should be tolerated.

Rev. Edwin Curtis of the First Presbyterian church of Brookline, Massachusetts has talked himself out of a job. His tongue wagged furiously and blasphemously, if his opponents are telling the truth. They said that he baptised a dog and offered grace at the table in the words "thank Thee, O Lord, for the French fried potatoes." His praise prayer to the French fried got by but the Presbytery would not stand for the baptism of the canine. Now it is said that the Rev. Edwin's congregation, with the exception of a few noisy dissenters, are not in accord with the decision of the Presbytery. Some men are born that way but the place for a comedian is on the vaudeville stage and not in the pulpit.

Never sneer at little Delaware. This is an exerpt from a speech recently delivered by Congressman Layton of that state: "Delaware has only one representative and yet when it comes to paying money in the census returns and the income tax returns show she actually pays more money for the support of the government than nine out of twelve Southern states put together and we pay more than nine other states of the Federal union north of the Mason and Dixon line." Delaware has three counties; Texas has 248. Before Tom Green county was trimmed down to proper shape Delaware would have been lost if tossed into the center of Tom Green.

If the daily markings of the American petroleum institute are correct crude oil production in the United States is close to 1,500,000 barrels a week or about a fifth more than a year ago. In the mid-continent territory fancy premiums are being paid for production and the prophets of the industry predict $3 oil and 32 cent gasoline before the coming of mid-summer. Of course the coal strike is helping it along and the miners of Wales are getting ready to reap a rich harvest during the spring and summer months by coal shipments to America. On April 1 there was a ninety-day supply on hand to meet the demands of the consumers of the 48 American states. A very costly game is the strike. This one will cost capital millions of dollars, it will cost the miners millions of dollars and it will cost the consumers millions of dollars before peace returns and a pact has been signed by representatives of the parties who have staged the most gigantic strike in history.

ly. He who fails to use the ballot as he ought is recreant to the most commanding duty and false to a most sacred trust. With that little piece of paper, the ballot, health can be safeguarded, ignorance can be dispelled, crime can be reduced, the weak and the poor can be protected, wrongs can be righted, injustices can be corrected and righteousness everywhere advanced and strengthened. No grievance is ever so great as to justify the overthrow of law and order. Courts and juries and witnesses are without hesitation and with all fidelity to see the faithful administration of the law. In this every private citizen is to give his most faithful support. The glory of the Anglo-Saxon race has been its love of liberty, its respect for the rights of others, its respect for the dignity of the courts and for the administration of the law through the legally and properly constituted agencies. Whoever gives his support to mob violence thereby proclaims his loss of faith in the crowning American doctrine of the inalienable rights of the individual." Those who are familiar with American history from the very dawn of national independence will hasten to say that this gifted divine talked as the fathers of the Republic talked.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WEIGHING THE KISSES.

I've just kissed Prunella, oh, rapture! oh, joy!
At the top of the list I shall grade it;
It's a full ton of bliss measured avoirdupois—
I know that it is for I'VE WEIGHED IT!

o o o

There's too much short-weight kissing going on in America.

o o o

It's getting so you can't trust a girl any more than the grocery man in the matter of honest measure.

o o o

There was more cheating in the weight of kisses during 1921, according to statisticians, than there was in the weight of nut coal.

o o o

Don't be fooled any longer, boys; come out for honest weight wherever two lips meet as one!

o o o

Watch for a government announcement of a standard weight for kisses! The Bureau of Weights and Measures should be heard from any minute.

o o o

Honest weight between married couples will, obviously, not be expected. No kiss under such circumstances has any weight with either party. Ask dad; he knows!

o o o

Just what to do about those moving picture week-end kissing exercises presents a problem, but there is a feeling they are not all as represented on the bottle, and that it is high time they were labelled with the true weight and ingredients like all patent operations.

o o o

When this kissograph machine gets to be common it is expected considerable competition may result and that the sporting pages may carry pictures of beautiful girlies over items like these:

Santa Barbara, Cal.—Miss Tillie Tweet broke all records at the National Amateur Kissing Tournament held here today. Miss Tweet won from a field of 2,000 contestants and was the dark horse of the tournament, very few people thinking she could kiss worth talking about. She threw the 200-pound kiss a distance of seventy-five yards, setting a new world record, and then shattered all marks for the standing broad kiss with a total weight of 600 pounds.

A great crowd was present and the police had a hard time keeping the men spectators from mobbing the winner.

It is said that even Miss Tweet's casual kiss has a weight of over 200 pounds and that the railroad station kiss, heretofore considered too light to be recorded, has a weight of forty-five pounds when planted by this young lady.

Chicago, Ill. — Millicent Muggh, former national amateur kissing champion, will protest the victory of Miss Tweet. She claims that Miss Tweet competed professionally last spring and has no amateur standing.

Miss Muggh has previously been regarded as the peeress of kissers. Five "kisses" at the bottom of a letter in ink weighed so much that four letter carriers broke down delivering her letters.

o o o

And there is this possibility from another angle:

He: May I—er—er—, kiss you?

She: What weight?

He: Oh, I dunno; what weight do you like?

She: I wouldn't consider a kiss under twenty-five pounds.

He: I have just one twenty-five-pound kiss left.

(They kiss.)

She: Oh, you deceiver! You cheat!

He (stupidly): What's the matter?

She: You cheated me. You gave me a kiss that was at least two and a half pounds short weight.

He: But, darling, I really think you're mistaken. If any kiss of mine fails to come up to the standard, I guarantee to take it back and replace it.

She (pleased): Well, do so, Egbert, at once or I shall feel compelled to report you to the commissioner of weights.

(Egbert makes good.)

THERE CAME OUT THIS CALF

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1922, by Frank Crane.)

The Reverend Karl Reiland some time ago preached a sermon in St. George's church, New York, and took for his text a sentence from the Book of Exodus, "And there came out this calf."

The sentence occurs in the story of Moses' visit to Mount Sinai. While he was up in the mountain where he received the Ten Commandments his brother, Aaron, allowed the people to slip back into idolatry and made for them a golden calf to worship.

When Moses came down from the mountain and saw what had happened he was very angry. He smashed the idol and demanded an explanation from Aaron. Aaron's excuse was naive. He said:

"Let not the anger of my Lord wax hot; thou knowest the people, that it is bent on mischief. They said unto me, Make us gods that shall go before us; and I said unto them, Who hath any gold. They took it off themselves and gave it to me, and I cast it into the fire and there came out this calf."

The incident is illustrative of a good deal of the explanation which people give of their misdoings. We are apt to give any excuse for our failings, except the fact that we are weak and foolish.

We like to give polite and easy names to our faults, but to state our virtues in explicit terms.

It is easy enough to go to church and declare with the congregation that we are all miserable sinners, that we have done the things we should not have done and that we have left undone the things we should have done.

But how many of us dare to tell the bald truth? Who wants to say in so many words that he has lied or stolen or been thoughtless and cruel?

A man who is lazy and incompetent is very quick to say that the reason for his failure is the social system or the general injustice of mankind.

The drunkard will tell you that he just took a little drop because he was not feeling very well, instead of telling the truth, which is—that he is weak-willed, has no self- mastery and proceeded to poison himself because he did not have the stamina to resist.

The weak woman with no moral character is quick to lay the blame for her wrongdoing upon circumstances, or upon other people.

The employer whose arrogance and brutality have disorganized his employes is very apt to rant about the spread of socialism and bolshevism among the working classes. The envious, the idle and the vicious join readily in the chorus that curses capitalism.

The kaiser and his junkers are doubtless very sure that all that happened in the late war was not their fault. They were just marching around trying to keep peace and to put "Deutschland uber alles," and the first thing they knew "there came out this calf."

Self-conceit, self-sufficiency and self-excuse bring many a man into hot water.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

OUTCLASSED.

When Ananias was on deck he sprung his falsehoods day by day; he strove to make the truth a wreck, succeeding, in a modest way. He did his best, and if his best was cheap, compared with modern curves, we should not flout him with a jest, denying praise that he deserves. We should not greet with ribald jeers the liars of an age gone by; we should not scorn the pioneers who first discovered how to lie. There were no oil stocks to be sold when Ananias blazed the way; there were no salted mines where gold was shown to comeons every day. There were no offices in sight, no candidates the snaps desired; there were no burbling blurbs to write, in praise of books that made men tired. Financial wizards didn't sell blue sky to boobs unknown to fame, and so there was no chance to tell a falsehood worthy of the name. There were no yearly almanacs in which to boost some wooden pills; men knew not how to dodge a tax, or sidestep merchants' monthly bills. The world was then a simple place where people toiled and paid their debts, and it is surely no disgrace if Ananias missed some bets. He bravely warred against the truth, with tireless if misguided zest, and if his efforts were uncouth, he surely tried to do his best.—(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

MARGARET TRENTON'S DECISION

Winter had shut down early. Even while sumacs and maples and oaks still revelled in their glory of color, premonitory squalls of rain turning to sleet, piercing winds and more than a hint of ice forecasted what speedily came. Few welcomed it, Margaret Trenton least of all. For several winters now she had done her work only with great difficulty. She was too old and frail, she told herself, for such tasks as carrying water from the well and fuel from the coalhouse even if she could have made the necessary paths, which sometimes had to be shovelled through banks of snow.

What to do was a question she could not answer. There was little money for hiring. She lived respectably, to be sure, but it was only by doing without luxuries she would like to have had. Also the thought of the long, lonely days and evenings when there were few visitors appalled her. She wanted companionship as well as help in her work.

One day the solution of her problem came, a solution so simple and easy that she marvelled it had not occurred to her before. She would sell her cottage and buy a life membership in the home for the aged in the city. She had seen it many times—a beautiful building with wide porches and a sun parlor. The rooms, of course, would be light and airy and the big smokestacks she remembered noticing bespoke warmth. She would be simply a boarder, one of many, at a well-kept boarding house. Already she saw herself always daintily dressed and within her grasp was the thing she most coveted—a free-from-care life.

The day came. Her impression of "the home" sent her spirits skyward. As she had surmised, there was warmth and comfort everywhere. There were lounging chairs and swings and tables for magazines and papers and books. Palms and ferns stood here and there and hanging plants added to the effect. It was more beautiful than she had ever hoped, and as she was shown over the house her good impression grew.

One room, more beautiful than the others, held her. It had a piano and cases of books, and on a stand by a window was a globe with goldfish. Canaries in a cage chirped and sang. A little woman in a soft gray dress with a book propped open before her was tatting, and Margaret noticed how white and delicate her hands were. She noticed also that many of the books in the cases were among her favorites and the feeling that she should find congeniality added to her pleasure.

"You must be very happy here," she said, and as the woman did not at once reply she went on, "I, too, am thinking of coming here. Perhaps you can tell me——"

The woman raised her eyes as though it cost an effort, and Margaret somehow felt her spirits dampen even before she spoke. "All who enter here leave hope behind," she said, and her voice was so dispassionate that it might have belonged to an old-time oracle.

Margaret felt chilled, face to face with something that startled her and made her afraid. "Leave hope behind!" she stammered. "But that is why I am coming—because I have no hope."

"Listen. I, too, felt that I had no hope. I was no longer young. My work, I thought, was too much for me. The ease and comfort of life here as I saw it appealed to me. My children—I have five—thought it was an excellent plan. You see, they did not want me, and I thought I could not live alone, so I brought my lares and penates (a glance around the room explained the unusual furnishing) and came. Don't misunderstand. It is as you see, but there is no hope here—no hope."

"But there was no hope there. You——"

"I thought so. I know better now. I had my flowers and garden then, my pet rabbits and chickens, but above all I had my neighbors, and my table for my friends. I could have lived. Here I do not. An uprooted tree cannot take on new life."

"Your children?"

"I love my children, they love me, but they have their families and interests. I am not necessary to them. I am just a part of the past they have grown away from. Sometimes I visit them. Sometimes they visit me. They write, too, and send me beautiful things that are not even a salve for the wound they have made. But I do not complain. It is better as it is; that we be apart."

"Why, then, not go back?"

"Friend," the even voice replied, "I have nowhere to go. My home went before I could come here. In the whole world there is no place I can call 'home.' But I have something to be thankful for. I am not cold or hungry and I can still work. My hands and brain are always busy. Besides I have found an interest. I sell my lace and knitting, and am planning a scholarship for some deserving young person whom I shall never know. It gives one pleasure, but I would so love to look into the eyes of that person and see what kind of a man or woman I am to help send out into the world."

There were many things Margaret would have been glad to ask, but her brain seemed unable to put anything into words, and, if it had, she feared her tongue would have failed to utter it. Presently the little woman spoke again, but she seemed only to be thinking her thoughts aloud, totally unconscious of another's presence.

"And though my life was dull, that I had no interests and no hope for anything better or different. I was blind. I knew everybody; there were no strangers in that little old town. The sorrows and joys of each one I knew. The sick, too, I could cheer with scraps of news from the papers or bits of gossip about their neighbors and friends. When there was a new baby, and, oh, the doughnuts and popcorn balls and half-moon pies for the children when they came to wish me a Merry Christ——"

Margaret's voice came back. Suddenly new habits of life needed defending. "But I have never done things like those," she protested. "I could not. I have never been very well and when I have been busy. But I have always paid——"

"Money is nothing unless it costs—unless it takes something that means very much—unless it——"

The matron returned and Margaret went out, but for her very life she could not bet a time for her arrival. She was favorably impressed, but would consider further, was the utmost she could bring herself to say. And when her little cottage loomed mistily in the early winter twilight, such a wave of thankfulness that it was still there and her very own swept over her that she almost choked. There was no one to welcome her, no one to ask whether she had had a pleasant day or whether she were sick or well, but for the first time in years she did not feel aggrieved.

Her first act when she had made a light was to pluck the big "For Sale" card from the window and burn it. She felt strangely well and strong. She sang over the work of washing the dishes she had left in her hurry to make the train and in preparing her supper and when a half dozen youngsters happened along with the boy who brought her milk, she invited them in and popped corn and told funny stories till the house rang with their laughter. She was surprised when she found herself laughing with them.

"We've had such a good time," they said when the went. And she told them to come again, but through all the fun the little woman in the pretty gray dress with a book propped open before her and her soft, white fingers pushing the shuttle in and out in a maze of rings and points persisted. She would not be downed. Sleep brought no relief, for Margaret dreamed of her.

But one day Margaret came to a decision and walked unannounced into the pretty room in the beautiful building on the hill in the city. The little woman sat in the very same spot doing the same work.

"I have come," Margaret began, but with the slow, sad eyes, meeting hers she hesitated and stopped and began again—"I can give you back some of the things your life has lost," she told her, "and you can give me some of the things mine has never known. Will you come?"

"You mean——"

"That I have a home and a little money. We will live somehow, and we can find help and companionship in each other. Then you can show me what I have not seen and I——"

Never while she lives will Margaret Trenton forget the look that crept into the little woman's countenance, and never while she lives, she feels, will she regret her decision.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

This morning I got into conversation with the head of an American railroad. By "head" I mean president. He is gray-haired, wrinkled, pink-skinned, bright-eyed, full of pep and still young. His railroad is a little one, but never mind. Watch that boy go!

"They don't like us very well over there," I said. I meant in Europe and Mexico and Canada and the Virgin Islands and wherever else we go that isn't home. There was a sort of a sneering edge in my voice. I didn't say it, but my thought was that no one liked us because we are so good looking and so smart and so honest and so enterprising and so warm-hearted—so all of those things that foreigners are not. I pulled out the Pharisee stop in my vocal organ and let the note of pride ring. You remember—or you ought to remember—the Pharisee. It was he who was grateful that:

"I am not as other men."

The young railroad president almost bit me.

"You bet they don't like us," said he. "And do you know why?"

Before I had a chance to tell him he told me.

"Because as a nation we have less courtesy than any other white folks in the world," said he. "I mean it. The Englishman is the only one who approaches us in absolute disregard of his neighbors' feelings. The German is next to him. But when you're looking for folks who run all over any one they come in contact with, pick an American. Do you know what the Guatemalans call us?"

"I do not."

"They call us 'machos,'" said he. "A 'macho' is a he-mule. There is no more stubborn, hard-headed, heavy-footed, unreasonable, stiff-necked animal in the world than the 'macho.' He gallops heavy-hoofed down any street he wants to gallop on, and he gallops over everything that is in his way."

Maybe he is right. Maybe we are just what he said we are. I haven't discovered that any of these other nations suspect for a moment that they are not just what we say loudly we are in the matter of perfection, but they are a bit more kindly about expressing it. They only hint to us that we are a set of barbarians, whereas we stand on the corners and tell the world they are a race of saps.

Come to think about it, maybe that hard-headed, brass-checked quality of ours accounts for the fact that we do stand on almost every street corner in the world and tell 'em so—and get away with it.

WOMAN STARTS OUT FOR SECOND TIME IN SEARCH OF SON

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Mrs. Mary Whitaker, widowed mother, who is seeking her lost son, Sidney LeRoy Ross, today defied the ill-luck which nailed her on her first start into the wheat fields of the west and is ready to go again in the little motor car which is her home and main possession, on her search.

Hardly out of sight of New York last week, Mrs. Whitaker met with an accident. Going down a long hill just outside Jersey City, the brakes on her machine failed to hold. The little car careened off the road, smashed into a plate glass window and Mrs. Whitaker landed in jail. She remained there one night; then a fine was remitted and she returned to New York, leaving the automobile in the hands of an insurance company. Today she told her story to the insurance company and they decided to help her by releasing the car. She plans to start again but this time she will pick a pleasant day. "It rained when I started the last time," she said, "but I had already put off the trip once because of rain. I believe it will be unlucky for me to go in the rain again, so I am going to wait until it is pleasant before I start.

EPISCOPAL WOMEN REQUEST 'OBEY' IN WEDDING CEREMONY

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Several women holding high positions in Episcopal organizations today voiced disapproval of any attempt to eliminate the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. E. F. Kenyon, member of the national council of the Daughters of the King, which is meeting here, said she thought the proposed change was an attempt to accommodate the laws of the church to the lowering standards of society and that she did not favor any change.

Miss Brenneman of Cleveland, Ohio also a member of the council, said she favored keeping "obey" in the ceremony and also the words "with my worldly goods I thee endow."

Two men, lay delegates to the church convention in Portland, Oregan, next September favored a change however. They were Jesse Holdum and Courtenay Barber.

WATER TAXES SHOW GOOD COLLECTIONS

The Wichita county improvement District No. 1 collected 85 per cent of all taxes due for the last year, according to a report Friday from the office of V. W. Cain, tax assessor. Out of a total of $85,000 due, $72,250 was collected. The per cent of collections is larger than those of the city and county tax collector's offices. This condition is in part due to the fact that the irrigation board extended the period of collection two months, no taxes becoming delinquent until April 1.

HEREFORD BRASS BAND GOES TO PLAINVIEW

HEREFORD, Texas, April 7.—The directors of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce at a special session yesterday voted to send the Hereford band to the Fourth Annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Plainview, May 22 and 23. Hereford will also send a large delegation to this convention headed by E. L. McDonald, president.

HOME NURSING COURSE HERE

Changing of Lower Sheet Is Told.

"There now. You look real nice and neat," said the woman who had never attempted to do anything for a sick person before, patting the bedspread nice and smooth and settling the big satin comforter.

"It feels nice. Just a trifle hot, mebbe, and a mite wrinkled underneath. But it looks nice." And the elderly woman in the bed tried to speak with an enthusiasm she did not feel.

When one has been lying in bed for a long time the sheets are bound to become hot and wrinkled underneath. And the mattress covering, beneath the sheet, the very mattress itself, causes vague pains and aches to the poor human body pressing against it.

Orderlies Were Very Gentle.

But the old lady who was bedridden patted the rose satin comforter and thanked her daughter-in-law gratefully. It was a nice comforter. And after all, she mused, when one is old one must expect aching bones.

Just then the boy who had been in the army stamped into the room and greeted his grandmother affectionately. It was to him, while Amy was downstairs, that the dear old lady mentioned the slight matter of her aching bones.

"I suppose all your bones ached when you were sick with trench fever in that camp hospital in Gallipoli," she said.

"Not so badly as you'd imagine. Those orderlies were the best ever," said the boy. "If you could only have seen them, with hands as gentle as a woman's, and a way of straightening out the sheets. That's what makes you ache. Wrinkles underneath."

What He Learned in Hospital.

"I wonder?" mused the old lady. "Of course, it would be a sight of trouble, unless a person could get up in a chair." She spoke almost wistfully.

"Heaps of the fellows were months in bed, though. And I soon learned how those orderlies changed the beds, and everything. Just watching them, you know. The way you change a sheet under a person who can't get out of bed, for instance. Take the fellow who had both legs smashed. Heavy splints on and all that you know. Couldn't move a muscle. Well those orderlies would roll them over on their side with some convalescent soldier standing by on the other side to steady the splints, you know. The man that was changing the sheet would unfuck the soiled sheet and fold it up close to the patient's back in tight flat folds against the mattress. Then he would lay the clean sheet on the side of the bed nearest him, one-half of it folded flat against the roll of soiled sheet. Then he would tuck in the clean side of the sheet, and the fellows would tip the sick man back, easily you know, so as not to hurt his broken bones any more than they could help.

Changing Very Little Trouble.

And there he would be, on the clean sheet, and all there was to do was walk around the bed, draw the soiled sheet out gently, smooth the fresh one, and the mattress covering, tuck them in and there it was. No trick at all. Why I've often helped change a mattress under a fellow who couldn't move a muscle."

The old lady whose bones were aching gasped.

"Change a mattress with a person lying on it?" she said.

"Absolutely. I'll tell you all about it one day. Meantime I'm going down to tell Amy what an easy thing putting fresh sheets on the bed can be—when you know how. I half suspect that you are lying on wrinkles this very minute." And the lad who was studying medicine and had a hand as gentle as a woman's himself went cheerily downstairs to try to tell his sister Amy about changing the lower sheet.

CONTESTED DIVORCE SUIT BEING HEARD

Jackson against Ida Jackson involving a cross action by defendant, was not completed Friday at adjournment in the 78th district court and will continue this morning. The couple, past 50 years of age, are asking for divorce. Each is represented by two attorneys.

Cotton Crepe Makes an Apron That Is Dainty as Well as Practical.

Aprons and other work garments that combine utility and beauty are the demand of the moment. Among the materials that have been found particularly worth while heavy cotton crepe occupies a place well at the head of the list. There are dress and apron styles galore, of course; but the little model shown in the sketch seems especially worth while. It is easy to make, easy to slip on, easy to launder, and certainly designed to give long wear as cotton crepe is used both to make and trim it.

To make this apron a perfectly square section of material is cut, and one point is cut off, so as to give a square line at the neck. This piece of material may be used to form the pocket, the strap that holds the apron around the neck, and the strap that joins the two points at the back. The neck strap is attached at both sides so the apron is merely slipped over the head, and another strap is attached to one of the points in the back, fastening to the other point with a button and button hole or a snap fastener. Crepe in contrasting color borders the apron, it is trimmed with appliqued motifs in two or three colors.

For another easy to make and practical little work apron is used a straight strip of the material long enough to reach to the waist line in the back, and whatever length is required for the apron in front. The neck is simply hollowed out, making it a slip over. The back section has a band attached to it that is long enough to circle the waist. This is drawn to the front and fastened. It is trimmed with pipings and appliqued motifs in contrasting color.

A new and practical apron recently seen was merely a straight length of fabric gathered at one side and slipped over a metal hoop bent to fit about the waist. The particular advantage to this apron, so its originator declared, was the fact that it would fit any figure, and could be slipped off the hoop for laundering.

CHAPTER XLV.

Dr. Campbell thought he knew Howard Blake. He did know the Howard Blake of his college days; the Howard Blake of France. But he did not know Annette. And so the Howard Blake who had married Annette seemed a stranger to him.

Had it not been for the occasional spurts of enthusiasm and interest that still showed glimpses of the old Blake, Dr. Campbell would have found a way to let him know his services were no longer of use to him. But these flashes in the pan, some wonderfully delicate operation, the necessity for which had roused Howard to his old-time keenness, would come just as the older man was ready to yield to discouragement and sever the connection. He knew Howard was a proud man, that only a word would be needed.

"Ask me to your house, Blake. Mrs. Campbell is out of town for a few days and I'm rather lost without her, although she often laughs and says that when I'm old and retired we'll get acquainted."

"Certainly. Come home to dinner with me tonight."

It was after one of Howard's spells of working that this conversation had occurred. For several days he had spent every available moment with a patient upon whom he was grafting practically a new face. A poor fellow whose jaw and the entire side of his face had been torn away. The operation promised to be a success, but the patient needed close attention. Both Dr. Campbell and Howard were intensely interested in it, not only because of the operation, so difficult, but because of the personality of the injured man.

"Annette, may I present Dr. Campbell. He has consented to dine with us."

"I begged an invitation, Mrs. Blake. My wife is away and I am lonely without her."

Annette was perfectly polite. Too polite. Her greeting had no warmth. It meant nothing to her that the man who had honored her was sought in vain by hostesses, that he was considered the lion of any gathering to which he could be coaxed, that he was respected and beloved. All these things weighed nothing as against the fact that he was the man who urged her husband to remain away from her, to take work at the hospital that required the time and attention she considered belonged to her. So, while polite, even courteous, and a perfect hostess as far as looking after his wants at table went, she never changed her attitude of cold frigidity.

After dinner over their coffee, the two men spoke of the case in which they were interested. After a bit Dr. Campbell apologized:

"You must excuse us for talking shop, Mrs. Blake. But I expect you are like Mrs. Campbell, and expect it. She says if I didn't talk shop with every doctor who comes near me she would think I was ill."

A slight acknowledgment, a frozen smile, was Annette's answer.

Dr. Campbell did not remain late. The next day he remarked to Dr. Caldwell, the man with whom he had spoken before of Howard:

"You were right, Caldwell. It's the wife!"

"Yes."

"She froze me out all right. She disapproves of me, of the hospital, of our profession. She has money and she wants all of Howard's time," he finished with the intuition that is so unusual in a man.

"You think so?"

"There is nothing else to think. It accounts for Blake's spasmodic efforts, his absences, his lack of interest, then that fevered work that makes me still keep my faith in him. But he won't last. That is, he won't unless a miracle happens, and I am afraid that day has passed."

"I don't quite understand yet how Mrs. Blake impressed you."

"She isn't the nagging, crying sort—at least, I don't think she is. But she is the kind that tells a man he must do this or that and—he does it. I understand she is alone in the world since her father was drowned and that except for distant relatives she has no one but Blake. Probably makes stock of that. I hope I am not doing the lady an injustice. She has a marvelous cook," he added with a laugh.

Had he known that scarcely had the door closed upon him the night before Annette had coldly requested Howard not to ask him to dine with them again, he might have been a bit surprised.

"But he is continually sought by hostesses. Yet he seldom accepts an invitation, because of his work."

"That makes no difference to me. You have spent all your time with him for the last three days. I have scarcely seen you. Then you bring him home and talk shop while I sit more alone than if you weren't in the room. It is money. I will choose the guests I entertain."

Howard had left the room without a word. While Annette had let him feel it was her money from the first, she had not so bluntly put it into words. She had rather made him feel she liked to have him share it. Now he realized that it was only in her own way, when he did as she wanted him to, that she was happy in sharing her inheritance with him.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

FARMER BROWN'S BOY FEELS HIS HAIR RISE

'Twas just a sudden odd surprise
Made Farmer Brown's boy's hair rise.

That's a funny thing for hair to do—rise up all of a sudden—isn't it? But that is just what the hair on Farmer Brown's boy's head did the day he went fishing in the Laughing Brook and had no luck at all. There are just two things that make hair rise—anger and fear. Anger sometimes makes the hair on the back and neck of Bowser the Hound and of some other little people bristle and stand up, and you know the hair on the tail of Black Pussy stands on end until her tail looks twice as big as it really is. Both anger and fear make it do that. But there is only one thing that can make the hair on the head of Farmer Brown's Boy rise, and as it isn't anger, of course it must be the other thing, fear.

It never happened before. You see, there isn't much of anything that Farmer Brown's Boy is really afraid of. Perhaps it wouldn't have happened this time if it hadn't been for the surprise of what he found. You see, he had patiently fished down the Laughing Brook through the Green Forest without getting so much as a nibble, and this seemed very, very queer to him, for it had never happened before. Then he had found the heads of some trout on the bank, and this had seemed very queer, too, because they had been bitten off and not cut off with a knife. He knew right away that some one else had been fishing and that was why he couldn't catch any, but the only fisherman he could think of who might bite off the heads of the trout was Billy Mink, and he had never known Billy to do it before and leave them lying around that way. Besides, it didn't seem possible that little Billy Mink could have eaten all those trout. He didn't once think of little Joe Otter, and so he was very, very much puzzled.

He was turning it all over in his mind and studying what it could mean, when he came to a little muddy place on the bank of the Laughing Brook, and there he saw something that made his eyes as if they would pop right out of his head. It was right then that he felt his hair rise. Anyway, that is what he said when he told about it afterward. What was it he saw? What do you think? Why it was a footprint in the soft mud. Yes, sir, that's what it was and all it was.

But it was the biggest footprint Farmer Brown's boy ever had seen, and it looked as if it had been made only a few minutes before. It was the footprint of Buster Bear.

Now, Farmer Brown's Boy didn't know that Buster Bear had come down to the Green Forest to live. He never had heard of a bear being in the Green Forest. And he was so surprised that he had hard work to believe his own eyes, and he had a queer feeling all over, a little chilly feeling, although it was a warm day.

Somehow he didn't feel like meeting Buster Bear. The very thought made his hair rise. If he had had his terrible gun with him it might have been different. But he didn't, and so he suddenly made up his mind that he didn't want to fish any more that day. He had a funny feeling that he was being watched, although he couldn't see any one. He was being watched. Little Joe Otter and Buster Bear were watching him and taking the greatest care to keep out of his sight.

All the way home through the Green Forest Farmer Brown's boy kept looking behind him, and he didn't draw a long breath until he reached the edge of the Green Forest. He hadn't run, but he had wanted to.

"Huh!" said Buster Bear to Little Joe Otter, "I believe he was afraid!"

And Buster Bear was just exactly right.

NEXT STORY — LITTLE JOE OTTER HAS GREAT NEWS TO TELL.

KNICKERBOCKER HAS 15 MINUTE SUNDAY SERMON

"We are going to have 15 minutes with a butterfly and 45 minutes with the soaring seraphs of song at our church," said Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First Methodist Church, South, corner Tenth and Lamar. "In other words, I am going to preach on 'The Flight of a Butterfly,' a 15-minute sermon, to fit in with the extraordinary musical program is an Easter cantata entitled "The Greatest Love." It is one of the most melodious and captivating compositions of this sort that has ever been rendered in the city. It will be given by a full chorus choir of 40 voices, competent and well trained, with solo voices to carry the principal parts. The church is beautifully decorated with the wedding decorations of last Wednesday night and these add a harmonious background for the musical feast of the evening.

"At 9:30 a. m. we are going to have more than a thousand present in the Sunday school. At 10 o'clock after the classes have all met and tended to class business. I am going to preach a special 20-minute sermon on 'Choosing a Master.' This will be illustrated and enforced with some illustrations that will not only interest the children, but will be of deepest interest to the grown folks. This is the greatest day of all the year for the Sunday school. Dozens and scores of children and young people and older ones too will make the destiny making decision to serve Christ and join the church.

"At 10:50 a. m., my subject will be "The Triumph of Tears." This is especially appropriate at the Easter time.

"The Win-One campaign grows in favor and results every day. More than one hundred and fifty have signed up already to join the church on Easter Sunday morning and we confidently expect this to run around three hundred."

Some Nervous Cases

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

As emphasizing the importance of seeking competent medical aid, instead of attempting to treat one's self, in the event of marked nervous symptoms making their appearance, I would cite a few cases from real life. And, first, I would instance a typical case of a "tired business man."

The patient in this case, when he finally consulted a Washington physician, Dr. T. A. Williams, gave a long history of increasing inability to attend even to the routine duties of his business. Nightly he returned home feeling worn out, to have his evenings darkened by thoughts of impending collapse, and his night's rest broken by distressing dreams.

"I cannot concentrate, I can no longer trust my judgment, I seem to be going to pieces. Yet I have been careful not to overwork, and for months I have been taking highly recommended nerve tonics."

Answering the questions put to him by Dr. Williams, he denied having any special cause for worry, such as financial difficulties or family troubles, notorious producers of nerve exhaustion. Nor, indeed, did Dr. Williams deem it necessary to press questioning along this line, after making a thorough physical examination of his patient.

He found in the latter a blood pressure of less than 100, and other indications pointing to deficient secretion by the adrenal glands. Promptly he set about increasing the glandular output, and within a few weeks had the satisfaction of seeing this victim of nerve exhaustion begin to feel physically himself once more, while also recovering "his former intellectual resiliency."

To the same Washington physician came another nervously exhausted man, who had likewise been dosing himself with tonics to no effect. Why the tonics did not help him became apparent when Dr. Williams discovered that there was present a blood pressure in this instance not abnormally low but abnormally high.

Put on dietetic and other pressure-reducing measures, the nervous state improved as the blood pressure fell. So that ere long all the exhaustion symptoms completely disappeared.

Compare also the case of a young woman, a stenographer, who became progressively more fatigued, more irritable, and more troubled by insomnia because of a gnawing pain in the shoulders and the lower part of her neck. She, too, made use of tonics with no benefit whatever.

Nor did she obtain relief until medical and psychological examination revealed that all her nervous symptoms were secondary to the pain in the neck. No organic cause for this could be found. But it was found that she habitually used a faulty stooping posture at the keyboard of her typewriter.

"You must sit better," her physician informed her. "Then you will no longer have the pain of which you complain." The event bore out his prediction, and coincident with cessation of the pain came recovery from the nervous exhaustion, of which there has been no return for nearly two years.

So varied, in fact, are the causes giving rise to so-called nerve exhaustion—ranging as they do from discordant modes of thinking to the gravest of bodily ills—that I might fill columns of this paper with a recital of cases, each differing in its origin from the others. But I trust I have said enough to insure acceptance of the warning:

"If nervous symptoms multiply and persist, don't undertake to be your own doctor. Go to some one who can tell what the symptoms really mean, and what really should be done for them."

Walter Takes First Fall From Barney: Time, 1 Hr., 45 M.

SPUDDERS HIT THE PILL HARD IN SEVENTH, AND GRAB FIRST GAME OF OMAHA SERIES 7 TO 1

"I didn't crash the agate with
That hickory I was wielding;
I figured we would win the game
If I just kept on fielding."
—Ray's Reason.

By "NICK" CARTER

And, having it all figured out mathematically, Ray O'Brien, the Spudders' new 1922 center gardener, started in the first inning yesterday to do a little fielding—and after Ray had pulled down 6 flies and had also thrown a runner out at third, his former boss, Barney Burch, hauled down the flag and surrendered, admitting his Omaha club was licked 7 to 1.

After traveling through one season with Omaha perhaps Ray O'Brien learned that Barney Burch has a weakness for ball players who bit to center. At any rate, Ray was all set yesterday for everything and anything. He made a basket of his glove for the easy ones in front of him, he went to the rear and pulled down long ones, and he raced recklessly over into right field and cheated Homer Summa of the glory of plucking a few in that pasture.

Neither Abe Bowman nor Steve Mokan had to worry about the Bees stinging 'em. Neither Abe nor Steve had to enter the hall of fame via the strike-out door. All Abe and Steve had to do was to serve 'em up the alley, and let the Spudder outfielders and infielders do the rest. They done 'er, gang; they done 'er. With the exception of two rather excusable errors, the Spuds never wavered, even though Skipper Salm sent almost a new infield into play.

Fred Beck reported "down" yesterday, the big fellow having been knocked out by a slight touch of cold, a bad night's rest and the heat of yesterday. Wherefore, the Skipper stuck "Speck" Comstock on first, and then, just to bamboozle ol' Fagan Burch a bit, Walter also switched his keystone combination, put Buddy Tanner at second and sent Sorey over to play in that tough spot halfway between the second cushion and Tex McDonald.

The change worked O. K., especially insofar as Buddy was concerned. Tanner only had one opportunity to handle a ground ball, but he showed in the fielding workout that he could cover a world of territory east of second, while he was able to put additional hop on the shorter throws to first. Sorey has a fine arm for the long throw from short, but he seemed a little nervous on his ground chances; rushed the ball too fast, probably thinking of the longer throw than he has been accustomed to making. However, he lost only one man and that was excusable under the circumstances. Speck Comstock did a creditable job as understudy to Fred, although he pulled one of his "dogs" off the sack on one occasion — but it should be remembered that Comstock has had very little opportunity to become accustomed to play the initial bag, which is one of the hardest positions in baseball.

Tex Going Strong.

Tex McDonald was back again on third after the "late unpleasantness" and apparently is determined to hustle like a good sport. The fans showed their appreciation of old "Thirty-Thirty's" change of heart by giving him a good hand when he first came to the plate, and Tex responded by humping himself at every stage of the game, turning in two put-outs and three assists on difficult chances and laying the old apple up against the center field fence for three bases in the seventh inning with Buddy Tanner perched on first and Steve Mokan on third just waiting for the hefty wallop to bring them home.

Both Abe and Steve hurled pretty ball, good enough to win games in any league. Abe toiled for six frames and I believe the Skipper must have taken my tip that Abe was ready to pitch after that wild rabbit hunt of Wednesday; at any rate, the Big Boy was right yesterday and Omaha would not have scored save for an error of judgment when Abe and Tex let a ground ball roll between 'em, each thinking the other would make the play. Mokan also had something during the last three frames, and the youngster worked the corners prettily.

Here's how it went by chapters:

First.

Bees: Gislason singled to center. Mee beat out an infield hit when Tex and Abe let the ball roll. Lee sacrificed both runners along, dying Abe to Tanner who covered first. Manush hit a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Gislason, but Mee was nipped going to third on a fine peg by O'Brien to McDonald. One run, two hits, no errors.

Spuds: Summa crashed a double to deep center, and scored a minute later when Wilson tried to pick him off the bag and threw the ball to center field. Tanner flied to Gislason. O'Brien walked. McDonald forced O'Brien first to short. Comstock slammed a single to right, Tex going to third. On a double steal, McDonald scored and Comstock made second. Miller flied to center. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Second.

Bees: Griffin walked. Herman beat out an infield hit to second that Buddy broke down. Grantham sacrificed, McDonald to Tanner who covered first. Lingle on an attempted squeeze play popped to Abe who doubled Griffin off third with an easy toss to McDonald. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Spuds: Sorey flied to left, Kitchens walked, Bowman struck out and Summa also flied to left. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third.

Bees: Wilson flied to O'Brien, Gislason flied to Miller, Mee was safe when Speck took his foot off the bag in handling McDonald's peg, but was out a second later on an attempted steal, Kitchens to Sorey. No runs, no hits, one error.

Spuds: Tanner walked and was sacrificed to second by O'Brien, pitcher to first. McDonald went out to Herman unassisted. Buddy going to third. Comstock fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth.

Bees: Lee flied to O'Brien. Manush beat out a hit to third, Tex making a brilliant stop. Griffin flied to O'Brien. Herman and Manush were both safe when Sorey juggled Herman's offering just long enough to lose the play at second by a hair. Grantham struck out. No runs, one hit, one error.

Spuds: Miller flied to left and Sorey to center. Kitchens singled to left and Bowman flied to deep short. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth.

Bees: Lingle flied to O'Brien. Wilson died Sorey to Comstock and Gislason went out to Comstock unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Spuds: Summa flied to center, Tanner fouled to Lingle and O'Brien was thrown out by Wilson. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth.

Bees: McDonald threw out Mee. Lee flied to Miller and Tanner tossed out Manush. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Spuds: McDonald out to Herman unassisted. Comstock out short to first, Miller flied to center. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh.

Bees: Mokan now pitching. Griffin flied to O'Brien. Herman fanned and Mokan threw out Grantham. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Spuds: Sorey opened the bombardment with an infield hit to short, and promptly went to second when Herman let Wilson's peg go over his head to the club house. Kitchens also beat out a hot one to short. Sorey taking third. Mokan was safe and the bases were choked when Grantham's bad peg pulled Herman off the bag. Summa hit a sacrifice fly to right, scoring Sorey and placing Kitch on third. Tanner singled to right scoring Kitchens and sending Mokan to second. O'Brien flied to right also, Mokan going to third after the catch. Tex McDonald smashed a three-ply wallop to right center, scoring Mokan and Buddy. Comstock singled to left, scoring Tex, but was out on an attempted steal later, catcher to short. Five runs, five hits, two errors.

Eighth.

Bees: Lingle went out Mokan to Comstock. Wilder, batting for Wilson, died Sorey to Comstock and Gislason flied to Summa who made a nice running catch. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Spuds: Miller flied to center. Sorey was tossed out by Coffindoffer, who took Wilson's place on the hill for the Bees, and Kitchens flied to right. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth.

Bees: Mee singled to center and Lee fanned. Manush forced Mee, Sorey to Tanner. Mokan threw out Griffin. No runs, one hit, no errors.

QUAILS DODGE AT WEEKLY SHOOT

Deatherage High in Both Singles and Doubles

There must have been a Spudder pitcher concealed in the traphouse yesterday morning during the weekly shoot of the Gun club. If there wasn't then that Senegambian youngster has been teaching the trap to throw curves, drops and fast ones with a hop on 'em—as many shooters will testify.

Perhaps it was the wind, which wasn't very strong but blew in little gusts that caused the clay birds to rise and dip in unexpected fashion. Several good trapshooters nearly went "goofy" trying to cover up the ducking, dodging targets, with the result that scores suffered heavily and the general average of the club slumped likewise. Those ol' clay quail yesterday had more ups and downs than S. E. J. Cox.

However, Al Deatherage figured that as president of the club he had to set a good example on a bad day, so he kept on busting every bird he could, and by consistently following this policy he succeeded in winning both the singles and the doubles, smashing 43x50 in the singles event and 32x48 in the doubles.

Many members of the club decided bright and early yesterday morning that they preferred live game, with the result that quite a goodly number went to Thornberry for the rabbit drive. But there were still enough on deck for three squads of singles, and "a good time was had by all."

DENIES MEX OIL WAR

SAN ANTONIO.—There is no fight between oil companies and the Mexican government, Edward L. Doheny, head of the Mexican Petroleum company said. Doheny arrived on a special train after a trip into Mexico and departed for the west. He said that tax paid to the Mexican government for April has been fixed at 27 cents a barrel on oil; 18 cents of which is for production and the remainder as an export tax. Companies are paying 45 cents a barrel for the oil at wells.

BURCH AND SALM HAVE FREAK BET ON SUNDAY TILT

Walter Salm and Barney Burch made a freak bet yesterday, and both of them swore it would stick, and called in witnesses to everything they said; the bet being:

Barney must pitch Sunday's game against the Spudders. If Omaha wins, Barney can have his one-man pick of Salm's ball players. If the Spudders win, Walter gets his pick from the Omaha club.

SCHOOL SPORTS

The Junior high school and part regulars and part scrubs of the Baptist church nine tangled for four innings yesterday afternoon. As the Baptists were not in the same good form that the youngsters were, the game was a runaway for the Juniors, 9 to 3.

Tate pitched for the Baptists, but his teammates did not field very well behind him. He was very steady, however and struck out five. Pearson of the Juniors pitched good ball, but Gildwell did not enter the box as he is to do the twirling for the Junior-Burk game at Burk today.

The score:

Junior High	9	3	2
Baptists	3	6	6

Batteries: Juniors: Pearson and Perry. Baptists: Tate and Brooks. Umpire, Gloss.

The Wichita Hi baseball team left this morning for the neighboring city of Graham, where they will do their best to subdue the nine that held Mineral Wells to a 6-6 tie in a game last Saturday. After practice games with different city league outfits and stiff workouts, the boys say they are in the best of condition, and feel confident that they will bring home the candy.

Those who accompanied Coach Henderson on the expedition were Kenley, Bashara, Kizziar, Roberts, Baldwin, Haney, Clark, Ross, Bourland and Harris, and one or two second string men. They expect to be back about 10 o'clock Saturday night.

RETIRED JAZZ MOVERS' ART IS DYING

Wrestling Is a Gone Goose in N'Yoik, Expert Says

By DAVID J. WALSH.
(International News Service Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, April 7.—The noble art of catch-as-catch-can, largely participated in by retired piano-movers, is dying a lingering death within the confines of the sovereign state of New York. The demise has not been proclaimed with official finality, yet the end is ordained and predestined.

If a coroner's report were rendered the verdict would be death by an overdose of legislation. The State Boxing Commission, vested with the power to control wrestling, foistered the system of flying and rolling fals upon the game, and they have eaten into its vitals like a cancerous sore.

Right at the moment wrestling is permitted by law, but you couldn't prove it by the number of shows that are held. It is worth a promoter's financial life to put on a series of bouts nowadays, so abortive to public taste have the flying and rolling falls become.

Matchmaker Is Hopeful.

Until recently one Bill Wellman held down the dual role of matchmaker and promoter of wrestling matches at Madison Square Garden. Just now he is neither.

Bill is a hopeful soul, but he does not carry optimism beyond the elastic limit of plain common sense. He was a modern Atlas, but finding the burden irksome stepped from under. Thus far, there has been no crash, for the simple reason that interest in the wrestling game is so trivial the sport can float in midair through its own lack of weight.

In all, Wellman promoted two shows. The first was a harvest, the second a blight. In the former Stanislaus Zbyszko defended his world's heavyweight championship against Earl Craddock and although some $25,000 was taken in at the gate it would have been worth many times that amount to wrestling had the bout never been held.

The Pole successfully defended his title, winning two out of three falls with the obnoxious "roll," and twelve thousand fans went away vowing never to return. That was the blow that killed father.

The prince of Wales is also earl of Chester, duke of Cornwall, and in the Scotch peerage, duke of Rothesay, earl of Carrick, baron of Renfrew and Lord of the Isles.

ADAMS BOUGHT FROM CARDS BY SALM

Spuds Grab Classy Infielder Sought By Houston

Skipper Walter Salm announced yesterday that he had closed a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals for the purchase of "Shorty" Adams, the sawed-off, speedy little infielder with the shotgun arm, who played here recently with Branch Rickey's second team.

There seems to be a "nigger in the woodpile," however, in that Houston apparently is trying to stop the deal in some manner. Branch Rickey is in St. Louis, and his ball club is there also. Yesterday morning at 9.00 o'clock Salm wired Rickey accepting the St. Louis boss's terms on Adams and asking for immediate confirmation of the deal. At 9:40 o'clock Walter received a telegram from Houston, Texas, signed "Branch Rickey" stating that Lavan was injured and that the deal was off.

"It looks crooked somehow to me," Salm said. "Someone has signed Rickey's name in the effort to stop this deal is the way I dope it out. Houston has probably been dickering for Adams, and there's something on foot to keep me from getting him. But I don't see how the deal can be blocked. I went through with my end of it, and met the terms asked."

Adams would look mighty sweet in a Spudder uniform. I talked with Charlie Barrett, scout for the Cardinals, the last day they were here, and he told me he expected Adams to stick; that was how he had been impressed with the youngster's work. In the two games against the Spudders here, Adams hit almost .500, showed a lightning turn of foot in getting down to first base and in the field, and displayed a beautiful arm in getting all his throws away. He went to bat 9 times, scored 1 run and made 4 hits, had 3 putouts and 7 assists, and booted one chance. He also stole one cushion.

Salm has wired Houston and St. Louis in an effort to see where the hitch in the deal is located. I sure hope nothing blocks it. The Spudders can use Mrs. Adams' boy.

STOCK TRADING BREAKS RECORD

Market Moves on Huge Proportions

NEW YORK, April 7—For the fifth consecutive session of the week, trading on the stock exchange today took on enormous proportions, transactions aggregating 1,650,000 shares and established yet another new record for almost two years.

The movement of prices was "spotty" at intervals as a result of realizing for profits in several of the issues which made greatest gains in the preceding days of the week. This was most noticeable in such stocks as Baldwin and Studebaker although net losses in both cases were limited to fractions.

Gulf Steel Dominates.

Gulf States Steel was the dominant feature, gaining 10 5-8 points on steady buying which exceeded the demand for any other stock. Crucible was used to drive in the shorts and including Sloss-Sheffield, Great Northern Ore, Otis and Iron Products made noteworthy gains.

Rails contributed largely to the market's constructive side, coalers leading the division on the heavy accumulation of Lehigh Valley, Reading and Norfolk and Western. Secondary rails were featured by Rock Island at a gain of 2 3-8 and many of the investment shares, including Pacifics, Grangers and cotton carriers rose 1 to 3 points.

Utilities Gain.

Local utilities made impressive responses to the plan by which Interborough Rapid Transit receivership was averted Interborough Consolidated preferred gained 4 1-4 points, Manhattan Elevated 2 7-8 and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 3 1-2, similar or greater advances being made by the bonds of those companies.

The course of money was helpful to stock dealings, all call loans holding at 4 1-2 per cent, this applying to renewals into the coming week. Time funds were quoted at 4 3-4 per cent for the longer dates, but this was shaded to 4 1-2 per cent on prime collateral.

Foreign exchanges reflected the more hopeful advices respecting the forthcoming Genoa conference, Sterling rose 1 cent, almost its best quotation of the week. All the allied remittances showed moderate improvement, as did also German, Dutch, Scandinavian and Spanish bills, the latter rising 12 points. Czecho-Slovakian rates hardened on the strength shown by the new bond issue.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, April 7.—Foreign exchange firm. Great Britain demand $4.39⅝; cables $4.39⅝; 60-day bills on banks $4.36⅛. France, demand 9.13c; cables 9.13½c. Italy demand 5.20½s; cables 5.30c. Belgium, demand 8.45; cables 8.45½. Germany, demand .32c; cables .32⅛c. Holland, demand 37.74c; cables 37.77c. Norway, demand 18.20c; Sweden demand 26.08c; Denmark, demand 21.15c; Switzerland demand 19.43c; Spain demand 15.52c; Greece, demand 4.42c; Poland, demand .02⅝c; Czecho-Slovakia demand 1.93c; Argentine demand 35.25c; Brazil, demand 13.70c; Montreal 97½c.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 7.—Buoyancy in the bond market was unabated today on another very large volume of dealings. Several of the Liberty series, notably the 3 1-2s, second 4s and second 4 1-4s registered still higher records, though easing later on profit-taking

Local utilities were the dominant issues, however, on the outcome of the traction situation, which averts receivership or other serious financial consequences. The several Interborough Consolidated and Interborough metropolitan issues showed extreme gains of 3 to almost 9 points, but these too gave way to realising Manhattan Elevated third avenue and Brooklyn Rapid Transit also made substantial gains

Rails continued to follow the upward course of stocks at new maximums, coalers, cotton carriers and Grangers leading. Total sales, par value, $14,100,000.

GRAIN PRICES TRIFLE HIGHER

Corn and Oats Show Upward Trend

CHICAGO, April 7.—Wheat averaged a little higher in price today. Helped upward by firmness of quotations at Liverpool and by sellers here holding off to avoid any surprise in the government crop report. The market closed unsettled at a gain of 1-4c to 3-4c net with May $1.30 3-4 to $1.30 7-8 and July $1.19 1-4 to $1.19 3-8. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8c higher. Oats unchanged to 1-4c up and provisions varying from 10c decline to 7½c advance.

Cautiousness which would-be sellers of wheat evinced regarding the government report was apparently more or less mistaken, for a slightly bearish construction of the report was general when the document became public after the close of the day's trading.

The view most widely taken was that crop conditions had improved since the statistics were gathered on which the report was based. Further offers of wheat shipments from Omaha to Chicago together with sales of wheat to go to store here led to something of a setback in prices during the late dealings.

Estimates were current here that 500,000 bushels of hard winter wheat had been taken at Montreal at 8c over July for last half of August shipment to Europe. One report put the amount as high as 1,000,000 bushels. It was said also that Buffalo mills were bidding close to the market at Minneapolis for dark number 1 northern.

Corn and oat prices reflected to some extent the upward tendency of the wheat market. On the other hand, seven corn product manufacturing plants were reported as having shut down owing to slackness of demand.

Commission house selling weakened in lard and ribs. Advance in pork was chiefly nominal.

SUGAR EASIER

NEW YORK, April 7.—The raw sugar market was easier but the demand was light and no sales were reported. Cubas were offered at 2 7-16c cost and freight equal to 4.04 for centrifugal, for April shipment and at 2 1-2c cost and freight equal to 4.11 for May.

Raw sugar futures were easier under realizing and scattered liquidation by commission houses, owing to the lower ruling of the spot market. At the lowest prices showed declines of 4 to 7 points although there was a partial rally near the close on covering. Final quotations were 3 to 6 points net lower. May 2.53; July 2.72; September 2.89; December 2.94.

The market for refined was unchanged at 5.25 to 5.50 for fine granulated but the demand was less active.

Refined futures were without transactions. Closing: May 5.85; July 6.10; September 6.25.

REDUCED WHEAT CROP FORECAST

Estimate Rye Yield Will Be Larger

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A winter wheat crop of about 14,000,000 bushels smaller and a rye crop almost 12,000,000 bushels larger than was produced last year were forecast today by the department of agriculture. Winter wheat came through the winter in good shape and showed an improvement of 2.4 points in condition on April 1 as compared with last December. The smaller crop is due to a reduction of 1.2 per cent in the area sown last fall as compared with that of last year's crop.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Winter wheat production this year was forecast at 572,974,000 bushels and rye production at 69,667,000 bushels, by the department of agriculture in its first estimate of the season issued today and based on the April 1 condition, which was winter wheat 78.4 per cent of a normal and rye 89.0 per cent.

The winter wheat forecast compares with 587,032,000 bushels produced last year, 610,597,000 in 1920 and 578,575,000 the average of the preceding five years.

The rye forecast compares with 57,918,000 bushels produced last year 60,490,000 in 1920 and 66,474,000, the average for the preceding five years.

Winter wheat condition on April 1 showed an increase of 2.4 per cent since December 1 last, compared with an average decline of 4.7 points in the last ten years between those dates. Wintr wheat condition a year ago was 91.0 per cent of a normal, while the April 1 10-year average is 84.3.

The area sown to winter wheat last fall was 44,293,000 acres which was 1.2 per cent less than the revised area sown in the fall of 1920. The condition of December 1 last was 76.0 per cent wah 11.9 per cent lower than the previous year and 13 per cent lower than the 10-year average on that date.

In forecasting the production of winter wheat, the department of agriculture based its estimate on the assumption of average abandonment of acreage and average influences on the cron from now until time of harvest.

Rye condition on December 1 last, was 92.2 per cent of a normal while on April 1 last year it was 90.3 and the average condition for the last ten years on April 1 is 88.5.

The condition of winter wheat on April 1 in the principal producing states was: Pennsylvania 92; Ohio 87; Indiana 90; Illinois 93; Missouri 88; Nebraska 80; Kansas 65; Texas 57; Oklahoma 64; Colorado 77; Washington 85.

DRY GOODS QUIET

NEW YORK, April 7.—Cotton goods were generally quiet today with moderate amount of business reported in sheetings and odd constructions of print cloth yarn goods. Shipments of burlaps to the United States from Calcutta during March totalled 109,000,000 with one exception, the largest ever recorded. Cotton yarns were easier and business was spotty. Wool was easier. Sales were well maintained at the carpet auction.

NEW ORLEANS SPOTS

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—Spot cotton quiet; 12 lower. Sales on the spot 541 bales; to arrive 100. Low middling 15.38; middling 16.63; Good middling 17.63. Receipts 2,740; stock 262,002.

COTTON MARKET IS RATHER UNSETTLED, CLOSING AT GAINS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 7.—A renewal of May liquidation caused declines from opening advances in the cotton market, but as soon as the pressure of this sort subsided, prices showed a tendency to steady on reports of unsettled weather conditions in the southwest. The widest price movements were in May deliveries which sold off from 17.94 to 17.70 and closed at 17.78. The general market closed steady, net three points lower to seven points higher, new crop months being relatively firm.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 12 points in response to relatively steady cables, but the market quickly weakened owing to the near month liquidation. There were recurrent spurts of May selling during the morning which gave the general list a very nervous and unsettled appearance, but many of the May sellers were buyers of either July or early new crop deliveries which, as a result, were relatively steady. The May premium over July, which had amounted to about 50 points at the close of the previous day, narrowed to 45 points before the liquidation was absorbed, but later there was very little May for sale and the difference widened out again to about yesterday's figures. Early weather advices were more favorable but failed to create much selling power, and there was some nervousness late in the afternoon over the Texas coast storm warning which tended to offset rather bearish week-end figures. July sol doff to 17.24 on the forenoon decline and December to 17.04 with closing quotations a few points up from the lowest. Private cables again reported some falling off of business in Manchester, but attributed the relative steadiness of Liverpool to trade calling and a good spot demand. There was no change of importance in the news from the domestic cotton goods markets, and reports of a further increase in domestic mill curtailment seemed to counterbalance the steady showing of the Liverpool market. Exports for the day were 20,779 bales, making 4,334,992 so far this season. Port receipts 16,311. United States port stocks 1,039,032.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—Dry weather over the belt and small mill takings gave cotton small declines today. There was steadiness in the early trading and again on the close. Early steadiness unquestionably being the result of expectations favorable week-end figures, which were disappointed. On the close the warning issued for the Texas coast because of a storm over the interior of Texas caused recovery from the lower to four higher than the last prices of yesterday, May closing at 16.63.

Around the opening May was 6 points lower on the dry weather map but a little later enough buying came in to put the list two to eleven points over the final prices of yesterday, May trading up to 16.66. Selling increased again on mill takings of 132,000 bales against 172,000 this week last year and in the afternoon on an absence of anything resembling support, prices went to their lowest, 3 to 7 points under the finals of yesterday, May sagging to 16.57.

For a while the storm warning on the Texas coast had no effect on values, but when it was pointed out that it was likely to bring heavy rain with it, shorts commenced to cover and found only a limited supply of contracts to work on.

LIVERPOOL SPOTS

LIVERPOOL, April 7.—Cotton, spot in moderate business; prices firm. Good middling 10.90; fully middling 10.60; middling 10.45; low middling 9.75; good ordinary 8.90; ordinary 8.40. Sales 8,000 bales, including 5,200 American.

WOOL QUOTATIONS

BOSTON, April 7.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will publish wool prices as follows:

Scoured basis: Texas fine 12 months 1.05; fine 8 months 90.

STRIKE NOT FEARED AS DISTURBER OF REVIVAL IN TRADE

NEW YORK, April 7.—Duns' tomorrow will say:

With recognition of the unsatisfactory phases which still prevail, the fact is nevertheless clear that the business revival is being extended.

Close observers of conditions do not disregard the deleterious influence of present labor troubles nor the unsettling effects of past economic readjustments, but a basis unmistakably exists for the statement that the scope of the recovery is widening. While uniformity of improvement is conspicuously lacking irregularity of demand and prices is a natural concomitant of commercial recuperation, and its absence now would be surprising. The maintenance of a conservative policy in many quarters is more to be desired after the experience of the last two years than a repetition of unwholesome inflation, and prudent action at this time affords a solid foundation for subsequent progress.

That confidence has strengthened rather than lessened is indicated, and gains in actual transactions have exceeded expectations in some important industries.

RENEWED STRENGTH SHOWN IN COFFEE FUTURES MARKET

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The market for coffee futures showed renewed strength today and predictions of 10 cents for contracts were nearly realized as May deliveries sold up to 9.97 compared with 8.78 the low price of last month and 8.21 the low level touched on the peak of last January. The general market opened at an advance of 9 to 15 points on the higher Brazilian markets and covering by near month shorts, with active positions showing net advances of 12 to 18 points right after the call. Realizing became rather active around 9.60 for September, easing the price off to 9.47 but the close was up from the lowest on reports of higher cost and freight offers.

Last prices were 6 to 13 points per higher. Sales, including switches were estimated at about 78,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 9.90; July 9.83; September, October and December 9.55; January 9.52; March 9.45.

DALLAS COTTON

DALLAS, April 7.—Cotton middling 16.75; steady. Houston, 17.30; steady. Galveston, 17.40; steady.

Sales 7,000 barrels. Prime crude 10.00 asked; prime summer yellow spot 11.65 @ 11.90; May 11.53; July 11.45; September 11.42, all bid.

WHY SHOPPERS GO ELSEWHERE

Thomas Says Can Buy Better Here.

Most Wichitans who buy away from home, fall into two divisions—those who consider price alone and do not consider quality, and those who have an erroneous impression that they can not secure the high quality of goods they want elsewhere, John W. Thomas told members of the Chamber of Commerce Business Council Friday noon. It was the first of the "classification talks" scheduled by the council. Thomas was substituting for R. E. Penick, who was prevented from being present for the first talk.

Taking up his discussion of the reasons taking shoppers elsewhere to make their purchases, Mr. Thomas, wh ois secretary of the Rtail Merchants association, declared that price and quality offered in local stores would stand comparison with any of the big markets of Texas or Oklahoma, as would the range of qualities carried in stock.

W. Newton Maer and Fog Horn Clancy, committee soliciting a fund for the staging of the 1922 rodeo, reported that they had secured the necessary $2,000 to secure the grounds, as required by the rodeo promoters.

Dr. O. W. Wilson, president of the local post of the American Legion, spoke of the post's air circus to be held on April 29 and 30, promising spectators a thrill a minute for the two days.

Hunter Mona Marie Test Estimated at 100 Bbl. Producer

Swabbing was started Friday afternoon in the T. F. Hunter, No. 1 Mona Marie-Roberts, in the Fowlkes pool. The well is estimated good for 100 barrels, from the Friday showing.

The No. 1 Roberts, lease 2 of the T. F. Hunter, is standing 400 or 500 feet in oil, and is standardizing to drill in. This test got the 1,600-foot sand early in the week.

Gulf's Burnett 1 Drilling Deeper

The Gulf Production company's No. 1 Burnett, in Carson county, is drilling deeper from the gas sand just encountered below 3,100 feet, according to the reports from the field Thursday. The gas, drilled just after the sand showing oil, reported earlier, gave sufficient pressure to send the oil flowing out of the hole, according to reports from Amarillo Thursday, and giving rise to expectations of a flowing well.

The newest sand has a pressure of 5,000,000 feet, making a total of 145,000,000 feet of gas encountered thus far in the several gas sands in this particular well.

GUARD FAILS THUGS WHO PUT HIM OUT

By Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., April 7.—After being blackpacked and mound to a chair with ropes by four armed and masked men who entered the Majestic distillery last night, Ralph Wetzel, watchman, worked loose while the men were stacking nineteen cases of whiskey near a door, and pressed a burglar alarm. Before he could return to his chair, one of the robbers saw him and suspecting he had turned an alarm, the four men knicked him unconscious and fled without obtaining the liquor.

HOW TO MAKE A RADIO SET

RECEIVING APPARATUS

By WILLIAM G. H. FINCH,
Associate Member Institute of Radio Engineers.
(Written for International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 2.—A simple radio receiver suitable to receive the radiophone broadcasts and telegraph consists of the following items, which will be treated separately.

1. An inductance or tuning coil by means of which the wave length of your set may be tuned to that of the station you desire to receive.

2. Crystal rectifier or mineral detector that will enable you to rectify or make audible the electro-magnetic wave carrying voice or telegraph signals in your telephone receiver.

3. High resistance telephone receiver, the use of which enables you to hear the weak current rectified by the detector.

4. Fixed condenser across the receiver that stores up the weak currents and, then discharges them through the telephone receiver.

Aerial Is Essential.

5. Antenna, or aerial—A wire or wires suspended in the air and insulated from all surrounding objects by which the electro-magnetic waves are sent or received.

6. Ground—May be a wire buried in the earth of an artificial ground may be a waterpipe which completes the radio circuit.

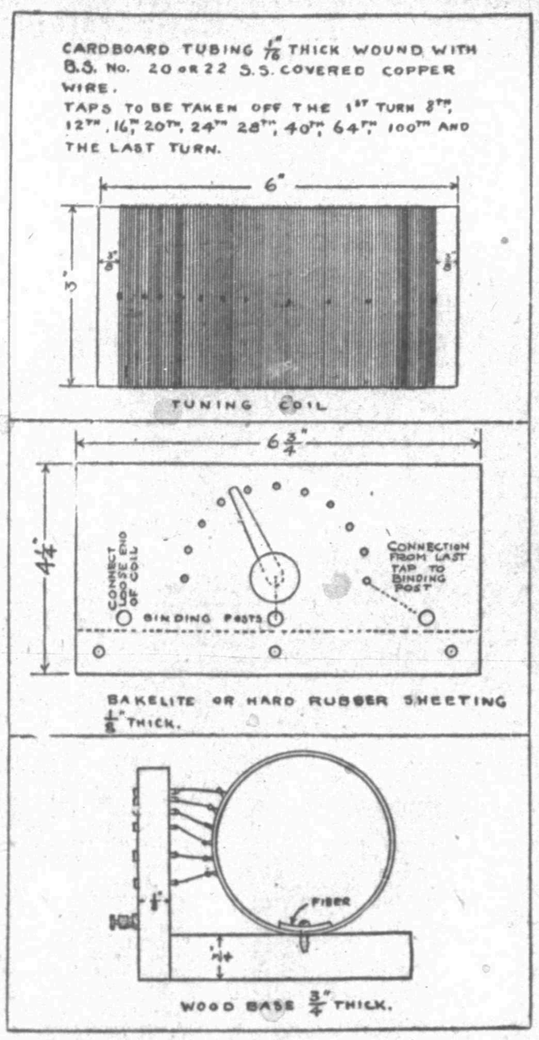

The first item to consider is the tuning inductance or tuning coil. One that will give good results may be constructed as follows:

Materials Needed—One cardboard tube 1-16 of an inch thick, 3 inches in diameter, 6 inches long; 1-3 pound of No. 20 or 22 B. S. single silk-covered copper wire; one 1 1-2-inch radio switch lever and hard-rubber knob; twelve switch points; one wood base 3-4 of an inch thick, 6 3-4 inches long, 4 inches wide; one sheet of bakelite 6 3-4 inches long, 4 1-2 inches wide, 1-8-inch thick and drilled as shown; three nickel-plated binding posts; four wood screws to secure bakelite front to base as shown.

How to Start It.

After you have secured the above materials and with the aid of a screw driver, paint brush, hand drills and some orange shellac, take cardboard tube, give it a good coat of shellac, after it is dry punch small holes 3-8 of an inch from either end with a darning needle, pass wire through and tie. Allow about one foot to make connections. Wind eight turns, scrape a small amount of the insulation off and make your first connection or tap. (Note—Use about six feet of wire and cut same into eleven equal lengths to use for taking taps off of the coil.) Be sure when taking taps from the coil that connections are tight, soldered and taped. Take taps off ——, 12th, 16th, 20th, 24th, 40th, 64th, 100th and last turn. Be sure you have all connections soldered and taped, because you are working with very weak currents and cannot afford to let any leaky conditions exist.

After you have the above work done shellac the windings as this will help keep them in place and at the same time help keep the moisture away, thus warding off grounds. Take the hard rubber or bakelite sheeting and drill to take switch points, binding post and switch lever as shown in the drawing. Drill also three holes to take 1-8-inch wood screws as shown to secure bakelite front. Connect and solde, taps, starting from the left, as illustrated. Secure coil to base with fibre strip and make connections as shown. to make a Catwisker or Galena de- The next installment will tell how tector.

PLENTY OF TIME.

He—May I hold your hand a second?

She—How will you know when the second is up?

He—Oh, I'll need a second hand for that.

European factories each week produce about 16,000,000 pounds of artificial butter, with cocoanut oil as the base.

TATUM AGAIN UNDER ARREST

Aggravated Assault Charge Filed

Said by officers to have failed to live up to the amicable agreement reached in his family affairs Thursday, brought about by juvenile officials, W. H. Tatum, arrested the first of the week for kidnaping was taken in custody again Friday evening by county officers. Charged with aggravated assault Tatum is being held at the county jail.

The Tatums have figured all week in official circles at the hourthouse, their difficulties centering around a 4-year-old boy, Clifford Tatum, which both parents were attempting to hold Thursday after a conference with Judge J. P. Jones and Juvenile Officer Yates the husband and wife, who have been separated for several weeks, agreed to live together again and the boy and an 11-year-old sister were turned over to their care.

Complaint was made Friday that Tatum began abusing his wife and children soon after their arrival home Thursday night. The family lives at 611 Lee street.

EXTRA SESSION FOR SCHOOLS?

Terms Shortened Two Months

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 7.—A special session of the legislature for the purpose of apportioning sufficient funds to maintain the schools of Texas next year, is urged in a report made by H. D. Fillers, superintendent of the public schools at Corsicana, as chairman of a committee which made a financial survey of the state of Texas. The report was made to M. H. Moore, president of the Texas State Teachers' association and was received recently at the state department of education. The two other members of the committee were Miss Mamie Bastian of Houston and J. A. Hill of Canton.

The report:

"The public schools of Texas cannot weather the storms of the scholastic year 1922-23 with the revenues now in sight. The situation is so serious as to demand immediate attention. Overcrowded schools, unfinished buildings, terms shortened by two or three months mean disaster for the children of the state.

"The urgent and imperative need of the hour is a special session of the legislature for the distinct and specific purpose of appropriating sufficient funds to maintain our public schools next year. The three million dollar appropriation which was made for this year must be duplicated or exceeded.

"The conditions which confront us without this special session of the legislature can be enumerated as follows:

"The state apportionment will be lowered from $13 to $10.

"The terms of schools will be shortened by two or three months."

MARKET STOCKS CONTINUE GAINS

Further Rise Breaks Two-Year Record

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Subject only to moderate reversals, due to "cashing in" of profits, the stock market today resumed its upward sweep, sales of 1,650,000 shares establishing another new high record for almost two years.

The further rise was characterized by net gains of two to more than 10 points in popular steels, with Gulf States as the outstanding feature. That same stock several months ago enlivened the market by its extraordinary gyrations, but today's gain of 10 5-8 points was almost steady and resulted from purchases of about 52,000 shares.

Rumor and stock market gossip again associated Gulf States with an important part in one or more of the several mergers or consolidations still under discussion, but today's buoyant rise was preceded by statements showing the company's excellent financial position.

Other independent steels, notably Sloss-Sheffield, Crucible, Bethlehem, Great Northern ore and iron products, also made substantial gains. United States steel denoted pressure, from which partial recovery was made in the later dealings. The market again owed most of its solid foundation to the strength of rails, in which coalers again were conspicuously strong, despite the less favorable aspects of the coal strike situation.

Equipments were irregular at times, as were also oils, but the latter bounded forward in the final hour, Mexican Petroleum leading.

Liberty bonds shared prominently with the further enhancement of stock market quotations. New tops were made by the 3 1-2's, first 4's and secon dand fourth 4 1-4's, while victory 4 3-4's made a net maximum on a cash sale at 101.20.

WILL ASK CHANGE IN NEW ORDINANCE

"We will only ask the council to put two words in the meter reading ordinance to be presented soon," said Pete Rodgers, general manager of the Wichita Falls Electric company Friday—"these two words will be 'on request.'"

The ordinance spoken of is one soon to be presented by Commissioner Fitts requiring that the meter readers of every public utility leave copies of his readings after each visit.

"The leaving of these tickets only when requested by the patrons will answer every purpose of the ordinance and will save the expense of leaving them at so many places where they are not wanted," Rodgers said.

"This could easily be requested where a patron thought his bill was too high, it was pointed out. The electric company has recently conducted a campaign to instruct its patrons in the reading of their own electric light meters.

IRRIGATION WORK RESUMED FRIDAY

Excavation at both irrigation dam sites, interrupted for a short time by the rise in the Wichita river following recent rains, was resumed Friday. While the river was higher during the middle of this week than at any time for nearly a year, the water was falling steadily Friday.

FOERSTER URGES BUILDING MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM NOW

Says Necessity to Conventions

"Wichita Falls business men might as well get ready to build the proposed municipal auditorium during this coming year—that is, if they expect to secure and to derive benefit from the big conventions that are being sought for 1923." That is the view of H. J. Foerster, manager of the "commissary" department at the Kemp. And Foerster's views on the question come as the result of former service on the Kansas City convention committee—a city which makes going after large conventions a business, and their staging a science.

"A large downtown auditorium is a necessity if the convention is to be held without inconvenience to the delegates, and this is an important factor in creating a good impression of the town," Foerster says.

"But there is another reason. Such an auditorium is necessary if the conventions are to be made self-sustaining, and Kansas City makes them so. They do that by leasing spaces in the convention hall to exhibitors who wish to display their wares at the conventions, and who pay good prices to get them in the convention hall.

"For instance, Dr. M. M. Walker, tells me that about 40 sample spaces would be needed at the state convention of physicians and surgeons—one of the conventions we propose to go after. Without an auditorium we should have to scatter these exhibits all over the business district and that would not go at all. With a convention hall, and the leasing of spaces in one end, it would largely pay the expense of the convention.

"Such an auditorium is necessary, of course, aside from its use in the entertainment of conventions. It could be paid for with the money which would be dead expense in the holding of conventions without it.

"During other times in the year it could be used for the staging of great big entertainments—the appearance of a famous operatic star, for another instance, an event which would bring people here from all over this part of the country. Incidentally this would help pay for the auditorium, coliseum or whatever you want to call it.

"I remember in this connection Bert Bean's recent narrative of the building of the Wichita theater at a time when the town itself was not large enough to support it or the shows that were brought here. It drew patronage from the whole surrounding territory, however. It was a financial success."

BAPTISTS PREPARE FOR EARLY REVIVAL

Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, will speak on the subject "Catching Live Fish" Sunday night and his subject for the morning service will be "Soul Winning. The two sermons are preparatory to the revival services which open April 16 at the church under the leadership of the Dr. L. R. Scarborough.

Sunday morning the choir under the direction of R. Vaughn Rar will sing an anthem "Fling Wide the Gates." Charles H. Angle will sing a special solo at the morning service.

ADVICE OF MARTIN

"The right kind of a husband or wife will determine whether a person will have two heavens or two hells," Dr. S. M. Martin, evangelist at the First Christian church, declared Friday night in a sermon on "Marriage and Divorce."

A large audience heard Dr. Martin discuss his subject from what was termed a "modern view point." The speaker read numerous injunctions from the Bible on the subject and based his sermon from his scripture reading taken from the ninth chapter of Mark.

"Courtships," the speaker said, "should be neither too long or too short. They should be long enough to become acquainted and for a couple to know whether or not they are suited for each other.

"Take all the advice that you can get before you are married. Talk with her or his parents and find out what they think about your marriage. Just to love is not sufficient. There never was a more popular falacy than the belief that to love justifies marriage. Love is a passion without reason and the latter is needed for a successful marriage as much as the former.

"There are a great many skeletons in the closets. Keep them there. Nothing will be gained by bringing them to light. Let marriage be for all time. Let there be no separation until death. Let it be a home of love, where father, mother and children respect each other."

FIVE KILLED WHEN AERIAL EXPRESSES CRASH IN MIDAIR

By Associated Press.

PARIS, April 7.—The Paris and London aerial expresses collided in mid-air this afternoon over the village of Thiulloy, 70 miles north of Paris. The pilots of both airplanes, three passengers and one mechanic were killed in wreckage that fell flaming to the ground.

The French airplane piloted by Aviator Mire, aided by a mechanic, was carrying three passengers. It left Lebourdet, in the environs of Paris, at noon for London.

The British airplane, which left Croydon, in the London area this morning, carried mail and was manned only by a pilot.

The British machine, piloted by Aviator Duke, had only been in use three days on the express route.

The accident occurred during a fog, the pilots seeing each other too late to avoid a collision.

Five persons from the machines were dead when inhabitants of the village of Thiulloy arrived on the scene.
