Party Congress Ends

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish Communist Party's emergency congress has ended with an appeal to all Poles to unite behind the party's leadership and save "the motherland in need."

"The secure existence of the nation and the future of the state are threatened," the congress said in a statement adopted at its final session Monday. "Let us join efforts to avert the threat that hangs over Poland."

The appeal, which was published after the delegates adjourned, came in advance of threatened strikes Thursday by some 46,000 dock workers in four Baltic ports and Friday by employees of LOT, the national airline.

The dockers are seeking higher pay and improved working conditions, while the airline employees are demanding the right to name the director of the airline. Unconfirmed reports circulated in Warsaw that the airline conflict might be resolved, but there was no indication of an agreement between the dockers and the government.

Agca Penalties

ROME (AP) — If Turkish terrorist Ali Mehmet Agca won his demand for trial by a Vatican court, he could die before a firing squad for shooting Pope John Paul II.

Life imprisonment is the stiffest penalty Agca faces in the Italian court whose jurisdiction he challenged.

A law still on the books of the Vatican City State provides for death by firing squad for anyone who attacks a pope. Italy has no death penalty.

Agca, 23, freely admitted when his trial opened Monday that he shot the pontiff in St. Peter's Square on May 13.

To Consider Cease Fire

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet met today to consider an American call for a cease-fire to halt the escalating attacks across the Lebanese-Israeli border.

After the Cabinet meeting, Begin was to confer with U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, who is trying to bring an end to the current round of fighting and to find a peaceful solution to Lebanon's other conflicts.

There were reports both in Israel and Lebanon that the major parties might accept a cease-fire, but only under conditions that would be difficult, if not impossible, to achieve.

Talks Continue...

Tentative Postal Service Deal 'Off'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement to avert a nationwide mail strike collapsed today after union leaders said the final Postal Service wage offer contained "a serious inconsistency" with what they had accepted two hours earlier.

Postal workers remained on the job, however.

As the negotiations resumed, leaders of the two largest postal unions said there were no immediate plans for a strike by their half-million members.

The unions had threatened to pull their workers off the job at midnight Monday, when the old contract expired.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, told his members today "to hang in tough."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told reporters at mid-morning, "We had a misunderstanding; I don't want to go into details.

"The mail is being delivered; people are working; and isn't that good news," he added.

Biller and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers said they thought they had reached agreement about 2 a.m. EDT on a tentative three-year contract.

They had announced that to the unions' rank and file on a taped telephone message and even recommended ratification, but five hours later Sombrotto said: "We are now in a position where we don't have a contract."

"At approximately 2 a.m., we made an agreement. We brought that down to our rank and file and our executive bodies for their attention and approval ... and we put in motion our telephone network," he said.

"The terms and conditions ... were discussed at length" in a caucus with top union policy-makers, Sombrotto said.

It was at that point that "serious questions about it" arose, he added. "Then we returned to the bargaining table. When the wage proposal was presented, we noticed there was a serious inconsistency with what we had agreed to" orally.

"We don't view it as a misunderstanding," Biller said.

The union leaders refused to elaborate on the discrepancy.

The unions had said the agreement would continue unlimited cost-of-living protection and provide base pay raises of $750 per worker the first year and $600 in each of the next two years. It also would prohibit any employee from being forced to work more than 10 hours a day for five consecutive days, the unions said.

First word of the collapse came from federal mediator Nicholas Fidandis, who emerged from the bargaining room to tell reporters waiting for the formal announcement of a settlement:

"There's no agreement here. I've still got people in there talking."

Postal Service officials were not immediately available for comment.

Despite strike threats, the Postal Service reported attendance was normal at most post offices for predawn shifts and higher than normal at some facilities.

The Postal Service said the public could expect "business as usual" at the nation's post offices in the event of a strike. A contingency plan included suspending the Postal Service monopoly to let private companies deliver letters and calling out more than 100,000 military personnel, including national guardsmen and reservists, to sort mail.

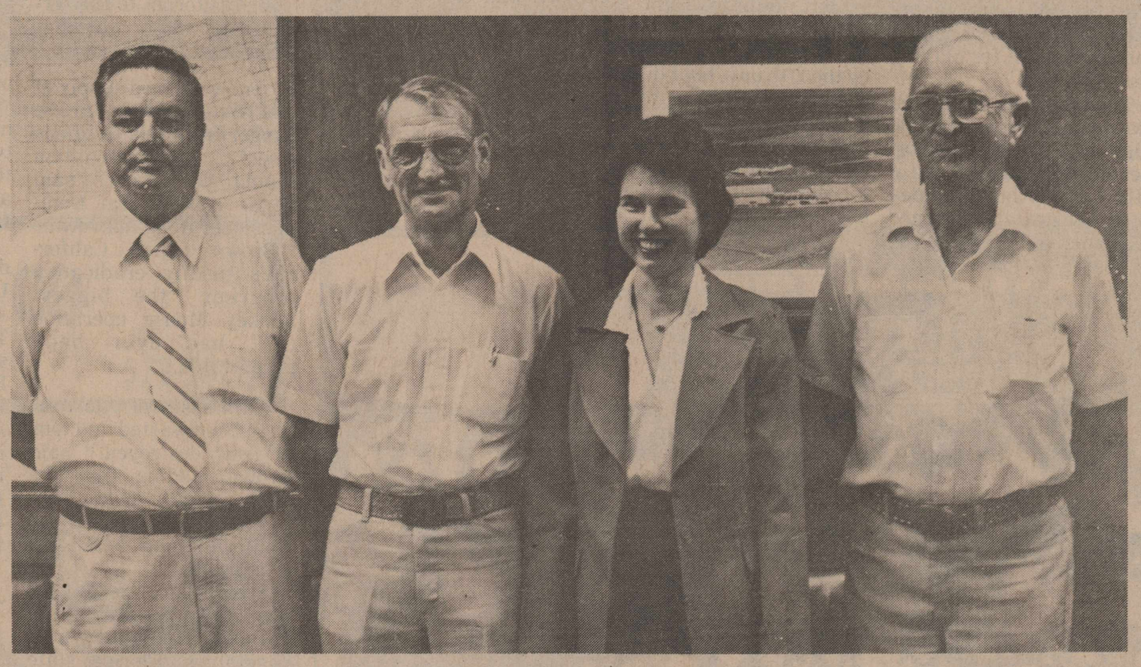

The executive boards of the two unions voted unanimously Monday night to reject out of hand a Postal Service wage offer extended just hours earlier.

"This offer adds nothing except to further insult 500,000 postal workers," said Biller.

Sombrotto added, "We know we are right and we know the employer continues to provoke a nationwide strike."

Postal officials, however, said they expected to reach a settlement.

Monday night's management proposal would have produced lower cost-of-living raises than had previously been offered.

Depository Bids On School Agenda

Snyder school trustees are scheduled to consider bids for the school depository at their meeting tonight.

The meeting is set for 8 p. m. in the board room on the school administration building.

Also on the agenda for tonight's meeting are routine personnel changes, approval of additional supplementary reading materials for grades 1-3 as adopted by the state and revision of policy and regulations in line with decisions made at various recent meetings in connection with development of the 1981-82 budget.

The board also is scheduled to name a delegate and an alternate to represent the local board at the Texas Association of School Boards Assembly scheduled Sept. 26-28 in San Antonio.

Following action on the agenda, Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, assistant superintendent-instruction, will present a slide-sound report on Project Excel, the school district's program for gifted and talented students.

WTC Trustees Approve $4.2 Million Budget

Western Texas College trustees Monday night approved a $4.2 million budget for 1981-82 following a public hearing attended by two oil company tax representatives.

The new budget reflects a 12 percent increase over the current $3.7 million budget despite a 15 percent across-the-board increase for all personnel.

Local tax funds needed to balance the budget is up six percent, from $1.6 million to $1.7 million. Local tax funds pay for 41 percent of the budget and state revenues account for 44.5 percent of the budget.

Attending the budget hearing were Bill Vick of Midland, representing Chevron; and Carlton Meredith of Houston, representing R.E. Smith and other producers.

The oil company representatives asked few questions, dealing generally with operation of the college. Meredith asked about enrollment and was assured that enrollment had not declined here.

The new budget approved by the board also included a 15 percent pay hike for college administrators. Administrative salaries next year are: president, $47,724; vice president, $42,645; business manager, $36,054; occupational-technical dean, $33,058; dean of student services, $34,776; and learning resource dean, $31,290.

The board also discussed the need for additional student housing. The board recently opened bids for an addition to the dorm that would house 48 students. However, low bid of $729,000 far exceeded estimates.

The board then asked T. E. Shelburne and Sons to approach the project from a construction management standpoint. D. D. Shelburne met with the board and said the project could probably be reduced to $584,241.

The board then authorized the administration to advertise for bids on new specifications to see if the project is feasible. In addition, the board agreed to seek bids for construction of duplex apartments that would house eight to 12 students each.

In other business the board approved the employment of Margaret B. Shawn as instructor in mid-management. Also the administration was given approval to explore a new agreement for typewriter maintenance.

Several bids were accepted by the board. Arnold and Morgan Music of Garland was low and successful bidder, $2,256, for music equipment.

Paulben Industries, Inc. was awarded two bids for cosmetology equipment and Frank's Beauty Supply was awarded a third item.

Paulben's bid was $917 and $365 and Frank's low bid on a third item was $1256.

Colonial Motors of Dallas was given the bid for purchase of a greens mower. The low of two bids was $6,340. Computer Patch of Odessa, with a low bid of $3,627.50, was awarded contract for purchase of a computer to be used in electromechanical and petroleum technology programs.

Computer, Ltd. of Midland was low bidder in the amount of $4,281 for a computer to be used in the office occupations department.

Bill Wilson Jr. presided at the meeting. Other board members present were Howard Sterling, Wacil McNair, R. C. Patton, Edwin Parks and Dr. Robert Hargrove. Not present was Bill Jones.

High Interest Rates Expected To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board shows no signs of loosening its rein on the nation's money supply to bring down near-record U.S. interest rates. If anything, indications point to an even tighter grip.

That would mean a continuation of high interest rates — and hard times for builders, home-buyers, auto dealers and many other Americans whose businesses or living standards are hurt by high rates.

It is a price that Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker is convinced must be paid to wring chronic inflation out of the U.S. economy.

Volcker, who was testifying today before the House Banking Committee today on the Fed's plans for controlling the money supply the rest of the year, says a tight rein — keeping credit expensive and sometimes hard to find — is necessary to hang onto this spring's tentative gains against inflation. The Reagan administration agrees.

Last year the Fed tightened the money supply and then reversed itself. Afterward, banks' prime lending rates — the most closely watched rates because many other rates are tied to them — gradually dropped to 17 percent in April from December's record 21.5 percent. But since then they have risen back to 20.5 percent. Home loan rates are at a record level pushing 17 percent.

As recently as two weeks ago, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said the administration still expected the prime rate for short-term loans to fall below 10 percent by the middle of next year.

But White House counselor Edwin Meese III said heads of state at the opening session of the economic summit conference this week were told the administarion feels it would take "a long time" for interest rates to decline to an acceptable level.

Senate Kills SS Minimum Benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate today killed a Democratic attempt to preserve the minimum monthly Social Security benefit.

By a vote of 52-46, the Senate tabled, and in effect killed, an amendment by Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., to the pending tax bill that would restore the benefit.

The Senate voted 53-45 to end the minimum benefit on June 23.

Today's Senate action came after President Reagan, accusing Democrats of playing "on the fears of many Americans" to keep the minimum Social Security benefit, said he would go on national television to set the record straight.

Meanwhile, the House was considering a resolution today by Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas to preserve the $122 minimum benefit. Under the parliamentary move used to bring the resolution to the floor, a two-thirds vote was required for passage.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said he wasn't sure Democrats in the House had the votes to pass the resolution. But, he added, "We're putting their (Republicans') feet to the fire. We're going to keep on the issue of Social Security."

Outside, the National Council of Senior Citizens was scheduled to hold a rally on the Capitol steps to protest proposed cuts in Social Security.

Riegle decried the cutoff in the minimum benefit as "about as heartless a thing as you could do."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., also criticized the harm that would be done to "those dear little people."

But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., opposed Riegle and called on Congress not "to lose its nerve" in cutting the budget. He added that the primary issue is to preserve the entire Social Security System.

Florida Not Getting Rain

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — It's the rainy season in Florida, but you wouldn't know it from the weather. The state has had only 2.5 inches of precipitation since the "rainy season" began in mid-May, a far cry from the average at this date of 16 inches.

Gov. Bob Graham declared a disaster emergency Monday in parched Southeast Florida, freeing up to $100,000 in state money for a cloud-seeding project aimed at replenishing shrunken Lake Okeechobee.

Officials say the cloud-seeding project, which could cost up to $450,000, should boost rainfall by about 40 percent.

She was giving a luncheon party for a newcomer to the neighborhood. She decided she needed some new guest towels for the bathroom. So, she rushed downtown and bought a pair of very expensive ones and, on the day of the luncheon, placed them carefully on the towel rack. She wanted her husband and children to stay out of the downstairs bathroom prior to the luncheon, but, not trusting them, she also pinned a sign on the new towels.

"If you use these," it read in heavy black letters, "I'll kill you."

During the luncheon, she said, she noticed she was getting some strange looks from some of the guests, especially those who had paid a visit to the facilities. But it wasn't until she, herself, visited the bathroom that she discovered why. You guessed it. She had forgotten to take down the sign.

at wits end

The ad said if I bought an 11-piece coordinated vacation wardrobe, I could make 135 clothes combinations and exist for three weeks living out of one suitcase.

The coordinated ensemble included a basic dress, reversible skirt, slacks, blouse, jacket, shorts, T-shirt, vest, two scarfs and a cap with a bill.

I will not bore you with all 135 combinations...only the interesting ones.

Three days out, I outgrew may slacks.

Four days out, I ripped the breast pocket on the jacket and could wear it only when my arms were folded or if I used one of the scarfs as a sling and pretended I had a broken arm.

Five days out, the blouse did not dry and the scarf faded over it, forcing me to wear it with the darts facing backwards.

The T-shirt shrunk on the sixth day and I found by buying another cap with a bill and joining them with a scarf I had an interesting bra for playing tennis.

The skirt was getting on everyone's nerves and one night as it stood in the corner of my room, I noted it still had my body molded in it. The next day I turned it around, put my blouse on the outside and told everyone I was expecting in four months.

Mercifully on the 11th day, the hem dropped out of the dress, giving me a new look for evenings.

The ugly oil spot on the reversible skirt penetrated both sides on the 14th day, giving me a choice of wearing my handbag on my left side or my right.

The vest was the only clean thing in my suitcase by the 17th day, but I didn't know what to do with it. When my blouse was ordered off the sightseeing bus by a vote of 43-0, I wore it sleeveless with pins holding it together.

By the 20th day, nothing mattered anymore. I wore the scarf with the oil-stained skirt, the slacks with the broken zipper with the two caps with a bill, the dress with the torn jacket, the T-shirt with the shorts. On the last night, there was a masquerade party. I went as myself and won first prize.

When I arrived home, there was one scarf that had been soaked in perfume that leaked. The fashion coordinator had thought of everything. All I had to do was to light a match, ignite it and in time...forget all 11 pieces.

Firm Likes Walkways; Discounts Speculation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The president of a firm that helped design Hyatt Regency Hotel is discounting speculation that vibrations set up by dancers caused two suspended walkways to crash into the hotel lobby, killing 111.

Meanwhile, the first suits to stem from Friday's accident were filed in circuit court Monday on behalf of a man who was critically injured and two people who were killed. A total of $105 million in damages was requested.

Thirty-seven funerals were scheduled today for victims of the disaster, which turned the crowded lobby of the luxurious hotel into a heap of concrete, twisted metal and mutilated bodies. On Monday, 25 funerals were held.

There were conflicting statements from witnesses about whether people were dancing on the two 45-ton walkways Friday as a tea dance went on in the lobby below. The catwalks crashed to the floor without warning. Beside those killed, at least 186 were injured.

From California...

States Reject Produce

An army of agriculture officials mobilized in five southern states to battle a hidden enemy that left unhindered could devastate Sun Belt fruits and vegetables. Their battlegrounds were not produce fields, but highways.

Like lonely sentries, inspectors mounted vigils beginning at midnight Monday along major highways at their respective states' borders.

They guarded against the spread of the destructive and fast-breeding Mediterranean fruit fly from California to the fertile fields and orchards of the south.

"The very food supply of this nation is in grave danger from this insidious insect. ... every precaution should be taken," said Texas Agricultural Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown called California's medfly eradication program "the biggest Mickey Mouse operation that has ever been perpetrated."

"Millions (of dollars) have been wasted and tons of fruit destroyed," said Brown, adding that the quarantines would have been unnecessary if California had acted six months ago.

After nearly a day of opening trucks and sifting through fruits and vegetables, Florida state inspectors compared their jobs to that of finding the proverbial needle in a haystack.

"Imagine if a semi contains a thousand ... bushels and there's a hundred some-odd pieces per bushel so you have 100,000 pieces of fruit," said Ralph Brown of Gainesville, chief of methods development for the Florida Department of Agriculture. "There's no way you can inspect each piece of fruit."

Florida officials turned back nine truckloads of California produce in the first 12 hours of their quarantine of fruits and vegetables that could host the medfly. Other states quarantining the fruit are Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

A federal judge late Monday issued a temporary restraining order against Texas' quarantine.

"This crisis is not over...," said Brown. "Our growers and citizens are very concerned. Our farmers and producers and consumers are very concerned that this most insidious insect may spread."

Previously, Texas and Florida had implemented the most stringent restrictions, requiring all produce from California to be treated to kill the fly and its larvae, not just crops from the affected areas.

Texas farmers have been fumigating their exported fruit for more than 10 years to prevent the spread of the Mexican fruit fly, said Texas Agricultural spokesman Richard Henderson.

"That makes it a little hard to be sympathetic to California," he said.

The monitoring procedures in Mississippi and South Carolina resembled an international border check. Officials asked truck drivers carrying California fruits and vegetables for certification that produce was not from three counties quarantined by federal agriculture inspectors. Spokesmen for those states said it would be physically impossible to check each truck.

In Florida, 35 trucks were admitted after the quarantine aimed at preventing the spread of the Mediterranean fruit fly infestation became effective at 12:01 a.m. on orders of state Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner. Sixteen inspection stations guard the approaches to Florida's prime agricultural regions.

Texas Colleges Sue To Stop Diploma Handouts

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas company that offered college diplomas based on a combination of previous college credit, "life experience" and money has been sued by two Texas universities and their governing body for allegedly issuing fraudulent degrees.

The suit was filed Monday by Texas A&M University, Prairie View A&M University and the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board. It names Dr. S. Barnett Haynes, Raul Aceves and their Continuing Career Institute, alleging they violate the Texas Education Code standards for institutions of higher learning.

Haynes is identified in the lawsuit as the institute's director and Aceves, its registrar. They are accused of issuing diplomas in the name of Prairie View A&M without authority of Prairie View, Texas A&M or the coordinating board.

An assistant attorney general, Nancy Lynch, said the case first came to the attention of authorities when Lorenzo Holland of Dallas paid CCI $175 and received documents saying he held a bachelor of science degree in electrical technology from Prairie View.

The lawsuit said Holland was given a copy of a transcript containing the forged signature of the registrar at Prairie View.

Ms. Lynch said CCI solicited degree candidates by promising they could obtain a degree through a combination of previous classroom work and "life experience," but that no additional classroom time — only money — was demanded of applicants for undergraduate and graduate degrees from the institute.

Lighting Bolt Kills Texas Man

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — A bolt of lightning killed a Texas man camping with a companion at the 10,000-foot level of Sierra Blanca, a mountain in south central New Mexico, state police reported.

Killed by the lightning which struck in the midst of a storm that hit the area early Monday was Edward Grady Taylor, 23, of Lubbock.

Taylor's companion, James Hartman Jr., 24, also of Lubbock, survived and walked out of the area after daybreak Monday to notify authorities.

State police said they believed Hartman survived because his sleeping bag was lying on a foam pad that acted as an insulator. Taylor's sleeping bag was lying directly on the wet ground, state police said.

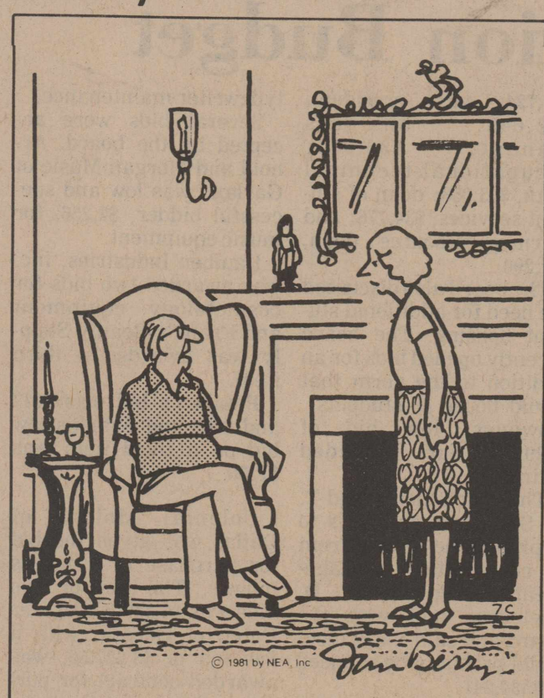

Authorities said the two men were asleep in a pup tent northeast of the Sierra Blanca summit when the storm struck. Their campsite was well above 10,000 feet, according to a U.S. Forest Service official.

About 2 a.m. Monday, a lightning bolt struck a knoll about 20 feet above the pup tent, Hartman told an officer. The campers were knocked awake, Hartman said, and Taylor was gasping for air and grasping his chest.

Hartman told officers he started heart massage and later tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but it was not enough to save his friend.

Police said Hartman waited until there was enough light to hike to Three Rivers Campground, where the two had left their car.

The bidding wasn't perfect, but a good small slam in spades was reached. Six clubs is a superior contract, but this was match points and North-South bid to the higher scoring slam.

West hit upon the best lead of the heart queen and South won the ace in dummy. Barring a bad break in either of the black suits, slam is there as long as South isn't careless.

Declarer played the king, queen and ace of spades drawing all the opponents' outstanding trumps. Now, as long as clubs were not divided 4-0 (only a 10 percent chance) declarer could dispose of his heart loser on dummy's fifth club and lose only one trick to the diamond ace. But South has to be careful.

South needs to collect all five club tricks. We have already mentioned that he won't get them if the suit breaks 4-0. If they break 2-2 they come in automatically, but 50 percent of the time the suit will divide 3-1.

It is rather normal play for South to lead a low club to dummy to start the suit. Then back to his king and over to dummy's other honor for the third lead.

All well and good and an expert makes what is his perfect normal play on the first lead. He leads either the seven or the eight. Then after the third club dummy holds the six-four and declarer the five. He can overtake the five to get that heart discard.

Swiss "French" Chef Has Gourmets Swooning

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

CRISSIER, Switzerland (AP) — "I'll bicycle to Vallorbe to pick up the frogs' legs," said Switzerland's No. 1 chef, Alfred (Fredy) Girardet.

Vallorbe is about 18 miles away — uphill — from the Girardet restaurant in Crissier, near Lausanne, and the chef wasn't joking. He will do anything to procure good produce, and loves to ride a bike for exercise.

"The frogs' legs come from Hungary, since France doesn't furnish enough anymore," he said. This Swiss, considered by many to be the world's best "French" chef, has won phenomenal success in only 10 years. His daring creations delight both feisty food critics and the public, who have to book for dinner two months in advance.

Gourmets swoon over dishes like scalloped angler fish with oysters, or cassoulet of fresh truffles and cardoons (a vegetable of the artichoke family); or feuillete pastry with rabbit liver and leeks.

The Gault-Millau guidebook awards Girardet the supreme accolade of four toques and a grade of 19 out of 20 — shooting him into the gastronomic galaxy of France's top chefs.

Michelin would probably give their top three stars. "But they don't come to Lausanne," explained 45-year-old Girardet, taking a break from lunch preparation. With sandy blond hair, dark blue eyes and suntanned face, the 6-foot chef looks like a movie or ski-slope star. He does ski cross-country, but he mainly likes to cook.

Except for Heidi-style food like cheese fondue and smoked meats, nobody ever thought much of Swiss gastronomy — until Fredy Girardet came along.

Today he's probably the chef most admired by his French peers. Michel Guerard, Paul Bocuse and others have dined at his restaurant, to emerge delighted, even awed.

Chef Jean Troisgros, who shares three-star honors with his brother Pierre for their Roanne restaurant, has high praise: "What Fredy invents is beautiful; he is the only chef to unfailingly season food perfectly, to turn it out neither raw nor overcooked. He is also the only one who has never copied anybody else."

The daring Girardet tours de force (imagine serving mounds of parsley simmered in butter to accompany game hen, or mussel salad with wild boletus mushrooms) might once have been termed "nouvelle cuisine." But like many other food lovers, Girardet doesn't much like that term.

"I'd rather talk about good or bad cooking," he said. "Today we're trying to offer lighter dishes more in tune with the fast-paced life everybody leads."

Faultless ingredients are a must in this style of cooking, and Girardet goes first class. Cream and vegetables come from the best Swiss farms. Fresh fish arrives daily from Brittany, via Paris and Geneva by plane, then to Crissier by truck.

No wonder eating here is not cheap. But most connoisseurs agree it's worth the price. The set menu offers seven courses, wine included, and costs 110 Swiss francs ($55.)

Girardet's dazzling inventions don't mean he goes out on a creative limb.

"The best cooks have a solid, classical technique. You can't just go around throwing raspberries on fish and thinking that's brilliant new cuisine," he says.

His own technique is rock-solid. At age 15, he started as an apprentice in his father's restaurant, continuing to work up in other Swiss restaurants. When his father died, Fredy bought the stodgy Crissier town hall in 1970. People told him he was crazy.

Crissier is a tatty industrial Lausanne suburb, with little to attract.

"We worked like mad," said Girardet. "From three employees then, I'm up to 18 in the kitchen now."

He lives above the town hallturned-restaurant with his wife, 15-year-old daughter, his mother and an airedale dog. All help out or greet guests in the reception area.

He creates by imagining what he'd like to eat, and listens to customers as well, he says.

BEAUTY DIGEST
Diane Robbens

Eye test

When trying on eye makeup at a cosmetic counter, avoid putting applicators and products others have used directly on your eye. It's possible to pick up an eye infection that way. Instead, test makeup on your hand. Or ask the salesperson to open a new product and apply it with a clean cotton swab. Samples that come as gifts with a purchase are a good way to see if a product is right for you.

Oatmeal bath

If winter has made your skin rough and red, soothe it with an oatmeal beauty bath. Grind one cup of old-fashioned oatmeal into a powder in a blender. Add two cups of warm water and mix. Add two more cups of water and blend again. Strain the milky fluid through cheesecloth. Slip into a tub filled halfway with warm water. Massage the "oatmilk" into your skin (instead of soap), then soak. Do this daily and your skin will be soft, clean and clear.

Dancers do it

If you'd like to flatten your stomach, try the sit-ups that dancers do. Lie on the floor with your arms extended over your head and one knee bent. Slowly raise yourself using your abdominal muscles (not arms and shoulders) until your arms are level with the raised knee. Hold for a count of two, then lower back to the floor. Repeat eight times, alternating legs.

Miss Venezuela Wins Miss Universe Pageant

NEW YORK (AP) — Irene Saez Conde had watched the Miss Universe pageant since she was a child, and she had always dreamed of being named the most beautiful woman in the world.

Miss Conde's dream came true Monday night when, as Miss Venezuela, she was crowned Miss Universe 1981.

The 19-year-old civil-engineering student from Caracas said the first thing she did when she learned she had won the pageant was to thank God. Miss Conde won more than $100,000 in cash and prizes along with her title, including a Mazda RX-7 automobile, a sport boat, jewelry, a mink, a wardrobe and $20,000 cash.

Miss Venezuela was among 76 contestants. There had been 77, but Miss Mauritius got homesick and went home Sunday, according to Steve Solomon, a spokesman for the pageant.

The five runners-up were, in order, Miss Canada, Dominique Dufour, 22, of Toronto; Miss Sweden, Eva Lundren, 19 of Pitea; Miss Brazil Adriana Olveira, 20, of Rio de Janeiro; and Miss Belgium Dominique Van Eeckhoudt, 20, of Brussels.

The 12 judges for the contest, including Brazilian soccer star Pele, fashion photographer Francesco Scavullo and actor Lee Majors, judged the beauties throughout the week in three ways — swimsuit competition, evening gown competition and personal interviews.

Early in the evening they narrowed the field to 12 semifinalists. Besides the five finalists, they included contestants from Holland, Ecuador, New Zealand, Norway, Germany, Tahiti and the United States. Miss U.S.A. is Kim Seelbrede, a 20-year-old model from Germantown, Ohio.

The Venezuelan ambassador to the United States, Alberto Martini Urdaneta, who came on stage after Miss Venezuela won her title, said, "It is a very happy day for all the country and for all the people. All of Venezuela is with her." He noted that it was the second Miss Venezuela to be chosen Miss Universe in three years.

In 1553, Lady Jane Grey, 16, was proclaimed Queen of England. She reigned only nine days before being executed by Queen Mary, who successfully claimed the throne.

Dear Abby

Photographer Presses All Kinds of Buttons

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: FUNNY NAVEL wrote to say that she was embarrassed to wear her bikini to the beach because she had a funny-looking navel. She said, "It's not round like a normal belly button; it's square, and I keep a dime stuck in it to keep it from popping out."

You told her to take the dime out of her navel and call a plastic surgeon. Shame on you, Abby, for suggesting that she change its natural shape!

I hope I'm not too late because I'd like to get in touch with this lady. I'm a singer/composer and writer with a special interest in navels, which I consider the most erotic part of the human anatomy.

Unique navels have always fascinated me. In fact I am writing a book on the subject, and have a collection of photographs of unusual navels from all over the world. I would like to photograph your correspondent's navel for my book. Will you please send me her name and address?

BELLY-BUTTON BUFF

DEAR BUFF: Alas, FUNNY NAVEL requested anonymity. However, you possess a rare kind of navel intelligence. Good luck with your book. I hope you get the no-belly prize.

DEAR ABBY: IN THE MIDDLE asked if she should decline invitations from her ex-husband's family to attend their family gatherings. It seems that her "ex" has remarried and his new wife is uncomfortable at family gatherings with Wife No. 1 present, so consequently Wife No. 2 stays away — and so does her husband.

Abby, you told the "ex" wife that if she was invited, it meant she was wanted, and she should go if she wished. If Wife No. 2 was "uncomfortable" and stayed away, that was her problem.

While your answer sounds reasonable, let's face it, Abby, that's not being fair to the new wife. I know.

My husband was married before, and I know how difficult it is to become accepted by John's family. They loved John's first wife. Marge was part of their family for 10 years, and the fact that John and Marge have children makes it even harder for me to compete.

The ex-wife should let go of those old family ties and give the new wife a chance to become part of her husband's family. If there is real affection between Wife No. 1 and her ex-husband's family, they can invite her on occasions other than family gatherings. Her "ex" and his new wife belong there — she doesn't. And if Wife No. 1 is invited, knowing if she accepts Wife No. 2 will stay away, she should have the good sense to decline.

IN THE MIDDLE TOO

DEAR IN: You make a good point. But this sticky situation could be avoided if the family would refrain from inviting former members, unless they know for sure everyone will be comfortable.

DEAR ABBY: Please referee:

Situation: Man makes luncheon date with woman — a new acquaintance. Half an hour before meeting time, woman telephones man and cancels lunch date in haste, offering no explanation. She says she will call him later in the afternoon. Man goes to lunch. As man is walking toward cashier, in walks broken lunch date with man No. 2. Man No. 1 does not know man No. 2. Man No. 1 greets woman with, "Why, hello there" or something. Woman smiles and says, "Hello" or something. Man No. 1 pays cashier and leaves.

Later that afternoon woman calls man No. 1 and accuses him of being rude and inconsiderate for not stopping to chat a moment, at least long enough to be introduced to man No. 2. Man No. 1 says "Nuts!" Who's right?

JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Man No. 1. The woman is clever. She knows that the best defense is a good offense.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To The Daily News:

The Scurry County Fair Association met recently to finalize plans for this year's fair.

Fair dates are Sept. 24-25-26 at the coliseum. I would like to remind everyone to begin now to plan for the fair. Don't wait until you visit the fair and realize you should have entered something. There is a place for everyone. There are adult and junior divisions in art, baked goods, china painting, canned foods, handicrafts and textiles, as well as agricultural and livestock divisions.

Many people devote time and effort on preparation for the fair. Some years there are only a few entries in various categories. Start now and decide what you have done this past year that you can enter. Get out your projects and be ready for fair time!

At Summit Meeting...

Reagan Scores Diplomatic Win

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — While high U.S. interest rates remain a sore point, President Reagan is scoring a diplomatic victory at his first economic summit by persuading allies to consider tightening high-technology and military-related trade with the Soviet bloc.

Leaders of the "Big Seven Democracies," concluding their three-day conference in this village outside Ottawa, also are borrowing a hardline from the Reagan administration in condemning "the continuing buildup of Soviet military power" and declaring that "we ourselves ... need a strong defense capability."

Aides to Reagan said Monday that the other government leaders concurred with a U.S. request for a meeting of major industrial countries later this year to consider new restrictions on the export of goods and technology that might be of strategic benefit to the Soviet Union and its allies.

Reagan has been pressing for such a meeting as a first step toward limiting East-West trade for political purposes. U.S. allies in Europe have resisted the idea because Soviet trade is more important to their economies than it is to the United States.

A particularly contentious issue is U.S. concern that West Germany's plans to buy Soviet natural gas would create too dependent a relationship between the two countries. Germany is Europe's biggest trader with the Soviet bloc, largely due to trade with East Germany.

Reagan and his counterparts from Japan, Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and host Canada, planned to discuss East-West trade in greater detail today before concluding the conference and releasing a joint communique.

Reagan also was to confer privately today with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki. He met privately Monday with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Italian Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini.

In agreeing to review trade with the Soviets, the European leaders made no specific commitments. U.S. officials said, however, that all they had expected from the summit was arranging a high-level meeting of NATO allies and Japan to consider additional trade restrictions.

When Reagan arrived for his first major summit Sunday just six months in office, he was seemingly on the defensive because of European unhappiness over the harsh effects that near-record U.S. interest rates are having on their economies.

While interest rates remained a popular — and sore — point on Monday, several of the participating leaders made conciliatory gestures that helped defuse any rancor over economic policy.

—Reagan, although pledging to stay on his current economic course, agreed to set up a new procedure for consulting with allies about economic action that might affect other countries, such as anti-inflation policies that produce high interest rates.

—Japan, the target of U.S. and European criticism for restricting foreign goods from its home market, agreed in principle to the concept of free trade as the seven nations proposed a review of trade barriers and ways to remove them.

—The allies reflected Reagan administration language in decrying a Soviet military buildup and defending the need for a strong Western defense. But they also stressed the need for disarmament talks, an objective sought more strongly by the allies than by the United States.

Reagan's White House counselor, Edwin Meese III, said Monday's two formal sessions of economic discussions were marked by "a general spirit of harmony and unity."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the mood was "surprisingly one of total solidarity on the issues."

And the summit host, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, declared the conference a success because no one participant tried to "force views" on the others.

Trudeau released a four-page "chairman's summary of political issues," in which he identified several areas of agreement among the seven nations. These included East-West relations.

"Our concern is heightened by Soviet actions which are incompatible with the exercise of restraint and responsibility in international affairs," the statement said. "We ourselves, therefore, need a strong defense capability."

Business Is Burglarized

Police were investigating a burglary of a business Monday in which $378 in cash was taken. The burglary was reported at 7:30 a.m. at McCormick's 66 Station at 100 East Hwy. The money was taken sometime between Sunday night and early Monday morning. Officer Buddy Kinney took the report.

A hit and run was reported at 10:13 a.m. at 2011 Ave. K. Involved was a legally parked 1978 Chevrolet Caprice owned by Virginia Perez and a 1979 Chevrolet pickup which left the scene. Minor damage was reported to both vehicles. Working the wreck was officer Kinney.

Officer Kinney also worked a minor accident at 27th and College Ave. at 12:08 p.m. Involved was a 1971 Ford Mustang driven by Sheila Jo Rawlings and a 1974 GMC pickup driven by Marvin Hammond.

At 12:59 p.m., Ruth Franks, at 2000 Ave. R, told police someone threw a rock through the window of a 1971 trailer.

And at 5:30 p.m., Thomas Thames reported that sometime over the weekend, someone had walked on his 1982 Ford causing $460 in damage. Taking the report was Sgt. Dale Burns.

Another criminal mischief was reported at 2:14 a.m. today. Brenda Gaddis, at the Texaco Truck Stop, said someone slashed all four tires on her 1978 Pacer causing $260 damage.

Service For Vets To Be Expanded

The popular Vet Center Counseling Service for Vietnam Era veterans will be expanded by 50 percent, Veterans Administration chief Robert P. Nimmo has announced.

Forty-two new counseling facilities will be added to the program, including one in Fort Worth and one in San Antonio, said E. H. (Dan) Dever, Scurry County Veterans Service Officer.

"We hope to have all the new centers in operation within three to four months," said Nimmo. He said the centers typically have staffs of three to five persons who operate on an informal, person-to-person basis with Vietnam Era veterans experiencing emotional and other readjustment problems.

Since the vet center program began early in 1980, approximately 72,000 Vietnam Era veterans have been counseled. The Vet Center Program has a budget of $29,580,000 for fiscal year 1982.

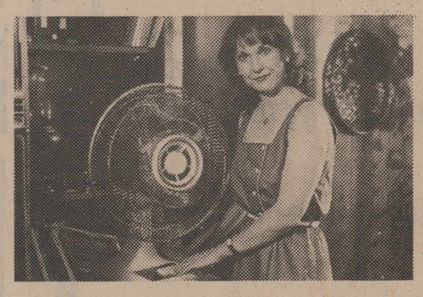

Information about VA benefits may be obtained locally by contacting Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building.

Live warmer and help hold down your bills.

You may not feel quite comfortable at first when you set your thermostat at 80° or higher, but most people adjust very quickly to living warmer. At the same time, if you dress cooler and use a fan, you may not even notice the difference. But it will help hold down your electric bill.

WHO'S WHO?—The Scurry County Museum is seeking identification of the members of this earlyday jury. The photo was made about 1900 on the steps of the Scurry County courthouse and was given to Mr. and Mrs. Waylon Gladson by his uncle, an early county settler. Anyone who can identify the men in the photograph is urged to contact the museum on the Western Texas College campus.

Museum To Expand Its Photograph Collection

The Scurry County Museum, recognizing the fact that pictures can be a tremendous asset in telling the history of an area, is seeking to enlarge its photograph collection and to further identify some of the photos already held.

"The museum would welcome donations of photos, especially those from the 1950s and before," Sharon Sutton, museum director, said. "We can copy and return the originals if the owners don't want to part with them.

The museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College, is open each weekday and anyone who would like to take photographs in is invited to contact Ms. Sutton or Rachel Kerry, museum secretary.

A Scurry County Amateur Photographer-of-the-Month contest is being planned by the museum, with the first honoree to be named in October. Persons wishing further information are invited to call the museum office at 573-6107. Area amateur photographers are invited to enter a separate contest and are to contact Lisa Hillis at the museum for details.

In Property Tax Requirement...

Solons Vote For Delay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators have voted to delay for a year the requirement that all property taxes be based on values determined by a single appraisal office in each county.

The Senate takes a final vote today on a bill revising the 1979 Property Tax Code. Senators amended it heavily Monday, ignoring protests of its sponsor, Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, one of the most powerful senators.

Countywide appraisal districts have been organizing for two years. They must be fully functioning and take over all the property appraisal duties in each county on Jan. 1, 1982.

That means that after Jan. 1, all city, school, county and special district taxes could be based only on property values determined by the appraisal districts.

An amendment by Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, to Jones's bill would postpone full implementation of the code until Jan. 1, 1983, and authorize delays until 1985 if approved by a majority of taxing units in a county.

"You want to postpone the tax revolt for one year?" said Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana.

"Yes, it would have that effect," Harris said.

Jones pleaded in vain to keep his bill "fine tuning" the Property Tax Code — or "Peveto Bill" — free of controversial features. He said he would introduce a second bill containing changes in the Code that had drawn controversy during the regular legislative session.

The key vote was 21-7 against Jones' motion to table the Harris amendment.

Jones, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said a year's postponement would be "extremely poor public policy" because most appraisal districts are ready to start work on Jan. 1, 1982.

Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, won approval, 20-8, of an amendment requiring appraisal district board members to be elected officials of taxing units served by the board.

McKnight said this would make the districts "more responsive and more responsible to citizens under the board's jurisdiction."

The Texas Research League says such a requirement would inject politics into the appraisal process.

Senators also approved, over Jones' objections, an amendment by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, dropping a requirement that 25 percent of the voters participate in local elections to roll back property tax increases.

Jones said it was designed to protect schools from unwise tax cuts.

The House Ways and Means Committee is attempting to "fine tune" the Peveto Bill with about 40 single-shot bills instead of one massive revision.

The Jones bill would:

— Prohibit small taxing entities in a county from ganging up and weakening the voting strength of the dominant city or school district in electing appraisal district board members.

— Allow two-thirds of the local governments served by an appraisal district to veto its budget.

— Require appraisal notices to inform taxpayers that local governments, not the Legislature, determine the property taxes they pay.

— Mandate reappraisal of property every five years instead of merely "review" property values.

Singer Off Critical List

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Jerry Lee Lewis, who underwent two stomach operations and lingered near death for nearly three weeks, has been taken off the critical list, Methodist Hospital South reports.

Lewis, 45, whose condition is now considered "serious but stable," will remain in intensive care for one to two weeks, according to a hospital statement released Monday.

The rock 'n' roll singer was hospitalized June 30 when he suffered severe stomach pains and began spitting up blood at his Nesbit, Miss., ranch.

Wedding Bells After Ride

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bertha Barclay, an elevator operator at the Commercial National Bank Building, is Peoria's old-fashioned answer to computer dating.

"Bert knows everybody in the building, and everybody knows Bert," said Mike Hilary, an accountant. "If you see a good-looking girl in the building, Bert will find out if she's available, and if she is, Bert will get her phone number for you."

During 29 years as an elevator operator and erstwhile matchmaker at the Commercial National Bank building, Bert has arranged hundreds of dates.

Consider the case of Diane Shaffer, who found love between floors — and wedding bells besides.

"Bert said there was this guy in the building who was about my height, had blond hair and nice manners," she said of Steve Bundy, a young accountant Bert had spied earlier.

"She asked me if she could give him my phone number," said Ms. Shaffer. "We met Nov. 18 on a blind date and got married exactly six months later. Love that Bert."

City Does Not Want Refugees

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — The superintendent of a federal prison camp said he cannot guarantee the city will receive no additional Haitian refugees, after city council members voted to protest the relocations to federal lawmakers and Gov. Bill Clements.

Prison camp supervisor John Allman, questioned by the council, said he would not know how long the refugees will be detained until he meets with Immigration and Naturalization officials Wednesday.

But he added, "If I say I can't handle them safely, they will not ship them here."

The council voted 4-1 to forward a complaint over the sending of 90 Haitians to the local federal prison camp.

The refugees, who arrived Saturday night, were among 266 Haitians the INS said it transferred to other states to relieve the congestion at the Miami federal processing center.

Allman said he approved the Haitians' transfer when he was asked to do so Friday by the federal government.

Refugees remain under the impression they were brought to Texas to work, assistant camp Warden Jerome Edwards said Monday.

"They're still looking for a paycheck," he said.

The Haitians were spending their time relaxing and playing checkers and dominoes, Edwards said.

The men were given physical exams Saturday night and were placed in the Sunset dormitory, where they are separated from inmates at the minimum security federal prison, an INS official said.

Allman and Edwards said INS officials assured them the Haitians were not criminals.

But camp officials increased security at the institution upon the refugees' arrival. Five guards were brought in from other prisons to handle the larger population.

Edwards said Big Spring was chosen because it has space for 250 additional inmates.

Weakened vaginal wall

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Just recently I was told I have a rectocele. This is a small protrusion in the vaginal area.

Is this very rare? I am a little on the stout side. Is sex permissable with this? I am a married woman with several children and I am ashamed to ask my doctor.

DEAR READER — Your question is a natural one to ask your doctor. It's unfortunate that you feel embarrassment discussing this with him. He would be surprised if you were not having sex.

A rectocele is a rupture. The vaginal canal is a muscular tube and there is a muscular wall between the vagina and the rectum. Mostly through the stretching effects of childbirth, this muscular wall is stretched and weakened. In the course of time this allows the muscle fibers to separate and the rectal tube to rupture through the weakened wall.

Like other similar ruptures, it is intermittent. When you are lying down the abdominal contents fall back against the spine. When you stand or sit up they press down against your pelvis. So the hernia tends to occur when you are sitting or standing and not when you are lying down as in bed. Sex should be no problem.

The hernia will pop out also when you increase the intra-abdominal pressure as in straining. That is why poor bowel habits increase the chances of the hernia occurring.

To give you a better understanding of a rectocele, I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-12, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes a diagram that may help you.

A prolapsed uterus and a cystocele are also hernias caused by a weakened vaginal wall. When they are mild they don't cause any serious problem. But if they cause a lot of protrusion or symptoms, it is often necessary to surgically repair the weakened wall and other structures. No, none of these is a rare condition.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a real problem. I am only 5 feet 5 and I'm 18 years old. I would give anything to be about 6 feet 2. I'm praying to God every night to make me taller. There must be some kind of operation or drug that could help. It's really terrible because all the girls are taller than I. I'm always insecure when I go out. I don't think I could go through life this short. Don't suggest counseling because I have already gone through that. It helped for a while but now I am in the same boat.

DEAR READER — X-rays that show your bone age help in determining if there is still any chance of increased growth. Once the zone of cartilage at the ends of the leg bones have calcified, growth stops.

Despite your comments, I am going to advise counseling. You are not nearly as short as many others and as you know, there are many girls who are 5 feet 5 or shorter. Your reaction to being short is extreme and out of proportion to the degree of your problem. I do wish there were a way to increase your growth but at your age it is unlikely. Even if it were possible, most physicians would not be inclined to tamper with things in someone who has attained as much height as you have.

NFL: Cuts, Signings And Welcomes

by The Associated Press

National Football League teams cut rookies, signed draft choices and prepared to welcome old hands to training camp with less than two weeks remaining today before the start of preseason.

The Hall of Fame Game between the Cleveland Browns and Atlanta Falcons on Saturday, Aug. 1 at Canton, Ohio marks the start of the 1981-82 preseason. Most of the 28 NFL teams, however, must wait until Saturday, Aug. 8 to begin the exhibition season.

In preparation for their season opener, the Falcons cut three free agents - including Texas A&M running back Michael Wright - and welcomed a full contingent of veteran players to camp Monday night. The veterans were not scheduled to begin workouts until Wednesday, but, like many other "oldtimers" feeling the pressure from below, Atlanta wide receiver Alfred Jackson started training a week early.

"Every year I try to set different goals for myself," said Jackson, who reported to camp last week in an effort to crack the starting lineup this season.

Among those who fit the traditional role of neither rookie nor oldtimer was the Browns' Andy Bushak, a linebacker. Bushak turned down three scholarship offers when he graduated from Valley Forge High School in Ohio and is trying to make the team after five years in the Navy.

Alan Page of the Chicago Bears and Jon Keyworth of the Denver Broncos also had a long time to think about their careers, and they have come to slightly different conclusions.

Page, an All-Pro or All-NFC defensive tackle for the past nine years, is entering his 15th NFL season, and he says it will be his last.

"You usually can't say for certain that you will never do something again in your life," Page said, "but I'm fairly confident that this will be my last year playing football."

Keyworth announced his retirement Monday after seven seasons with the Broncos. Last season, he carried the ball only 38 times for 127 yards.

Still another veteran, defensive end Claude Humphrey, arrived at the Philadelphia Eagles camp as a free agent and signed a one-year contract. Humphrey, with 13 NFL years under his belt, had been with Philadelphia the past two seasons.

Elsewhere, the Houston Oilers cut 12 rookies and welcomed veteran running back Ronnie Coleman to camp two days early; free agent offensive lineman Steve Gettel walked out of the Tampa Bay training camp with a foot injury; the Bears signed veteran cornerback Wentford Gaines, a free agent from Cincinnati; tackle-center Justin Cross of Western State College and wide receiver Mike Mosley of Texas A&M signed with Buffalo, and San Diego signed wide receiver Bobby Duckworth of Arkansas and tight end Pete Holohan of Notre Dame.

Antitrust Trial Appears To Be Nearing Finish

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The antitrust trial of the Oakland Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission's suit against the National Football League appears to be nearing an end.

As the 11th week of the trial in U.S. District Court began Monday, Judge Harry Pregerson told jurors he expected this would be the final week of testimony and that deliberations may begin by the middle of next week.

The Raiders and the L.A. Coliseum Commission are suing the NFL over the league's refusal to allow the team to move to Los Angeles.

According to an NFL exhibit introduced Monday at the trial, the league had $326 million in total income in 1979, but its net income after taxes was estimated at just $22.5 million or $836,000 per team.

Paul Tagliabue, an NFL attorney, said outside court that the report was the basis for testimony to be given by an auditor today - to show that the Raiders' income is above the league average and among the top nine clubs.

The Raiders have contended that they need the extra income available in Los Angeles to remain competitive in the future.

Little Word On Strike, News Blackout Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) - The mouthpieces have been gagged in the baseball talks - once they leave the negotiating table. Whether that means stadiums will soon ring with the cry of "Play ball!" remains to be seen.

The two sides in the 40-day-old strike were to resume negotiations over the issue of free-agent compensation at 9:30 a.m. EDT today, with a news blackout imposed at the suggestion of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

Donovan was due back at today's talks after spending some four hours with the two sides Monday, the first session in Washington after more than two months in New York.

"We've had face-to-face talks all afternoon. There's a press blackout," said Kenneth Moffett, acting head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the mediator for almost two year's in baseball's war over free-agent compensation.

Moffett refused to discuss what went on at the session in the federal agency's downtown headquarters, but later told the Associated Press that negotiators "had never been further apart."

Generally, news blackouts are viewed as protection for negotiations reaching a critical stage or close to settlement. Moffett declined to characterize the blackout imposed Monday that way, but reiterated that he felt the intensive media coverage of the talks while in New York had hindered progress.

"The main reason for the blackout is the same reason we came to Washington," he said. "The two sides should be allowed to talk back and forth without having to come down here (to the press room) like it's a tennis match."

Members of the two negotiating teams declined comment as they left the building.

"Hope you guys have a nice evening," Raymond Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said to reporters as he departed.

Marvin Miller, the usually talkative executive director of the Major League Players Association, would only smile and nod as reporters approached him.

Houston Trims Roster By 12

SAN ANGELO (AP) - Houston Oilers Coach Ed Biles has trimmed his training camp roster at Angelo State University to 89 players by cutting 12 rookies.

Rookies cut Monday were: wide receivers Rick Beasley, Appalachian State, Rodney Smith, Southwestern Louisiana; running back James Copeland, Texas-El Paso; offensive tackle Michael Durgin, Harvard; centers Scott Gallas, Southern Colorado, Kelly Monk, Southwest Texas State; defensive ends Tommy Harper, North Texas State, Jeffrey Holm, Southwestern Louisiana; defensive backs James Holden, Southern Colorado, David Knowles, Angelo State; linebacker David Horning, North Carolina State and guard Darryl Payne, Bishop College.

Veteran running back Ronnie Coleman also reported Monday and started workouts, athough veterans aren't required to be at camp until Wednesday. Coleman was seldom used last year in Coach Bum Phillips' two-tight end offense but Biles' plans a varied attack that could utilize Coleman's pass-catching skills.

Coleman could play an even larger role this season if running back Rob Carpenter fails to report to camp. Carpenter has demanded to be traded and threatened to sit out the season if his demands aren't met.

Veterans are due in camp at 6 p.m. Wednesday with the first workout schedlued Thursday. The Oiler roster must be down to 60 players by Aug. 19.

Kush Has Tiger Cats Players Growling Now

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) - Frank Kush travels with trouble. That's generally the way his bosses like it.

Long before Kush arrived in the Canadian Football League with his taskmaster theories, his rigid training methods were known throughout the American college scene.

There was never a doubt his ways proved successful at the collegiate level. Kush, in 22 years at Arizona State, amassed a record of 173 victories, 52 losses and a tie - second among active U.S. college coaches to Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama.

However, issuing similar demands on professionals - specifically the Hamilton Tiger Cats - seems to have had a negative reaction. There have been grumblings among Hamilton players that Kush's sessions are too rigid, his ways too strict.

Those who take exception or question his methods have been ignored for the most part or, in some cases, traded.

The latest controversy arose after a 26-6 loss Friday to the Calgary Stampeders. The subject was spatting, the practice of players taping their shoes to their feet and ankles.

Kush claims it's a potentially dangerous practice and outlawed it as "a precautionary measure." He says a player he coached in college injured his ankle and the injury was compounded before the training staff was able to cut the tape.

Kush's players, however, don't agree that one incident is reason enough for them to jeopardize their careers by not providing additional support for their own limbs - a practice some have maintained since their high school days.

"I've been spatting for seven years as a pro, four years in college and four years in high school," said all-pro cornerback Dave Shaw, an outspoken critic of Kush who doesn't hide the fact he wants to be traded, preferably to Toronto Argonauts. "My shoes roll off my feet when I cut and the tape restricted that.

"I don't like playing without it."

'Satisfied Customers' Mark West Texas Carpet Cleaning

Nothing can give your house that sparkling clean look like freshly cleaned carpet.

Jack Bryant, owner of West Texas Carpet Cleaning, offers the ultimate in carpet cleaning with the Castex Cyclomatic. The amazing feature of this system is that it has 10 to 30 times more power to get the dirt out than an ordinary carpet cleaner.

The system features a truck mounted unit—nothing goes in your house but the cleaning head and hose. This not only allows for maximum mobility, but also guards against an accidental spill inside the house.

Homemakers, apartment dwellers and businessmen across the country have been amazed by the Super Clean Power of this unique system.

Jack Bryant says, "After five years of cleaning carpets in Snyder I have many satisfied customers. With this equipment I can clean the dirtiest carpet."

Bryant invites both former customers and folks who have not yet tried West Texas Carpet Cleaning to give him a call for a free estimate. The number is 573-2480.

Another important service of West Texas Carpet Cleaning is the Dyna-Fog system for removal of animal, sickroom and smoke odors. This system may be used in the home, in business or in your automobile.

West Texas Carpet Cleaning guarantees their work. When you combine this feature with fast, efficient, courteous service you have a business that you need to be acquainted with. Give them a call—you'll be glad you did.

Strickland Offers Everything From Television To Microwave

If you're looking for a television set that will give you dependability and service--you already know that the place to go is Strickland TV, located at 2413 College Ave.

The television by Quasar has been proven first-class not only in the picture that you see, but also in warranty and service. The Quasar offers a one-year warranty on parts and labor and a two-year warranty on the picture tube. Add to this computerized touch tuning, and you have one fine television set. And now that the 1982 models are arriving, this is the time to get a good deal on a 1981 model.

Owners Hoyle Dean and Pauline Strickland also carry the Quasar line of microwave and microwave-convection ovens. Quasar microwaves are unique in that they have automatic humidity sensors that will allow different foods to be cooked at the same time and not over or under cook any of the foods.

At Strickland, not only can you buy a TV or Microwave but you can also rent one by the week or by the month.

Strickland TV has added several new items to their stock-- a new line of sound equipment including a portable cassette player with AMFM radio, small TV's for travel trailors and a Video Tape Recorder which enables you to record one program while you watch another or record programs while you're gone.

Unlike many places that sell but don't service, Strickland TV services everything they sell, which means a lot these days.

West German growers who proposed a rent-a-tree scheme have found a welcome reception among their countrymen. Under the plan, customers would pick all the fruit off the apple, pear or cherry tree of their choice for a $15 annual fee. The fruit growers said applications to participate were being received at a rate of more than 50 a day.
