POLITICAL CHARGES AGAINST CANNON DROPPED

Jury Considers R. B. Creager's $500,000 Libel Suit Against Magazine

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Wichita Falls' census figures now having been announced, all of us might to canvass the opportunities for development, put our money to work and roll up our sleeves to make the home town the best town in the country.

Wichita Falls has dropped from eighth to 10th in rank in population among the cities of Texas, but it has grown substantially nevertheless and has made a remarkable gain in the number of folks who are citizens and who just didn't happen to be stopping here when the count was taken. That was what happened when Wichita Falls made such a phenomenal gain in the 1920 count.

As Talker said the other day there is nothing in mere numbers; it's the welfare and happiness of its citizens which really counts in the greatness of any city, and measured by that standard we can believe that Wichita Falls ranks very high among the cities of Texas.

There are now 16 cities of more than 20,000 population in Texas. These cities, their probable rank, and their populations, so far as they have been announced are as follows:

Houston 290,811.
San Antonio, (not announced).
Dallas, 260,397.
Fort Worth, (not announced).
El Paso, 101,795.
Beaumont, (not announced).
Waco, 52,823.
Galveston, 51,939.
Austin, 51,435.
Wichita Falls, 43,607.
Amarillo, 43,107.
Port Arthur, (not announced).
Laredo, 32,661.
San Angelo, 25,804.
Abilene, 23,129.
Lubbock, 20,612.

In some instances these figures may be slightly changed on their final recheck but no substantial changes are expected.

If Wichita Falls environs could have been included in the count it would have put this city in the 50,000 class, but this is of no great importance either. The 50,000 people are here almost the same as if they were within the corporate limits of the city. They are here to work and to employ and be employed, to entertain and be entertained, to buy groceries and clothing and to have their part in the activities of the community. Wichita Falls is justified in claiming to be a community of more than 50,000 inhabitants.

Everybody feels that District Supervisor T. L. Ball and his enumerators have made a pretty thorough count of noses here and that few have been missed. The offer of the chamber of commerce some days ago of 25 cents for each new name reported brought in more than 700 new names, but these were names that could hardly have been reached in any other way. The added names were enough to keep Wichita Falls ahead of Amarillo, but not very much ahead.

Captain Hamer of the Texas ranger said that he received no message from Governor Moody directing him to protect the negro who was burned to death at Sherman but not to shoot anybody. If Governor Moody had sent such a message Captain Hamer would certainly have received it. In such a situation an officer receiving such a message would be pretty effectually disarmed. Talker is glad to call attention to the error in the press report which said that such a message had been sent out.

George L. Berry, president of the Pressmen's Union, sends a message to the convention of the Texas Federation of Labor, declaring that mechanisms which are labor eliminating instead of labor saving had gained such proportions as to constitute the greatest waste recorded in the history of the country.

The distinction between "labor eliminating mechanisms" and "labor saving" is not clear to this Talker. But it does appear that we have arrived at a place in this country where labor saving or labor eliminating mechanisms are resulting in unemployment. Economic experts, we believe, call it "technical unemployment" but by whatever name it is called it makes little difference to the man out of a job and unable to find one.

The introduction of labor saving machinery in the beginning of the mechanical age met with opposition from workers but this opposition subsided when it was found that labor saving machinery actually produced more employment at an increasing scale of wages. Up until recent years this has continued to be true, but more recently there seems to have been a turn in this condition and the installation of labor eliminating mechanisms, to use the term of Mr. Berry, now appears actually to be reducing opportunities of employment for numbers of workers.

Even in times of great commercial and industrial activity there are now in this country numbers of unemployed workers. It is a new condition and one that may well be given serious consideration.

DISTRIBUTING FIRM NAMED IN COURT CHARGE

Jurors Ordered to Take P. F. Collier and Son Into Case

MONKEYS DISPLAYED

Attorneys Enliven Talks by Using Carvings of Three Apes

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 14. (AP)—The jury considering evidence in the $500,000 libel suit of R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman from Texas, against Collier's weekly, retired tonight just after 10 o'clock without reporting.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 14. (AP)—The half million dollar libel suit of Republican National Committeeman R. B. Creager against Colliers' Weekly was given to the jury at 5 p. m.

The most unusual feature of the judge's charge was submission to the jury of the issue concerning whether P. F. Collier and son, distributing corporation, was liable for any damage. The Crowell Publishing company was the other defendant.

J. A. Graham closed the arguments, speaking for the Creager side. He called out that "effects of the magazine article will meet Creager's grandchildren 50 years from now."

Monkeys Shown

George Hill Jr., of Houston pleaded first to "vindicate the good name of my friend and punish his foreign detractors." Representatives of the magazine, among them Owen P. White, author of the article on which the committeeman sued—"High Handed and Hell Bent"—sat grinning as Hill drew from a brief case carved figures representing three monkeys, one with eyes shut, one with ears closed and one with hands over the mouth.

"These," he shouted, "are the three wise monkeys of Colliers. One is Kelley" (Charles Kelley, chief of defense counsel), the suave and insinuating one who has his ears shut and hears no wrong.

"One is the courtly and gallant Braucher (Frank Braucher, vice president of Crowell Publishing company) who has his eyes shut and sees no wrong.

Exhibits "Tarzan"

"One is the affable Larkin (William P. Larkin, vice president of Collier and Son Distributing corporation) He has his mouth shut, he says no wrong. He ain't saying nothing."

Having recourse to the brief case again, Hill pulled out another figure of a monkey, and dubbing it "Tarzan," said it represented White.

William S. West, the second plaintiff attorney, was even more sarcastic. He took up the article point by point and sought to show that Collier's had charged Creager with guilty knowledge of corrupt conditions alleged in the Democratic Hidalgo county administration.

V. W. Taylor, who broke the ice for the defense, turned the monkey jest back on Hill, saying the figures represented a small minority of Hidalgo county Republicans who favored Creager.

The attorney's voice fairly shook the room as he shouted that Creager never denied being an ally of Baker "until poor old A. Y. began going down."

"Then," he declared, "what does Creager do? Well, he comes to the courthouse and picks out the last paper that said anything about him and he says give me a half million dollars."

Cooking School Expert to Solve Many Problems of Home in Talks

Marketing, Budgeting, Child Feeding, Diets and Menus Among Subjects Selected by Leader

Announcement Tuesday of the coming of Mrs. Frances Northcross to conduct The Times and Record News free cooking school next week at the Municipal auditorium has met with enthusiastic response from housewives of Wichita Falls and neighboring localities. Regardless of how long a wife or mother has been running a home, interest in the cooking school indicates cookery and housekeeping are open to new ideas. The Times and Record News feel this is ample justification for the service this series of lectures will bring to the women of Wichita Falls. The cooking school is a contribution to housewives in the conviction that womenfolk are deeply interested in short cuts in kitchen and housekeeping procedure, marketing economies, variety in menu planning and methods for saving time for social life and recreation so often made secondary by self-sacrificing women.

Sessions to be held next week, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons at the Municipal auditorium will be free of any admission charge and no tickets will be required. Everybody is invited, with no obligation to any one.

Wide Reputation

The far-reaching benefits of such a course of lectures by so notable an authority as Mrs. Northcross make the cooking school an especially worthwhile event. Mrs. Northcross has had many years of experience, with a nation-wide reputation for bringing timely hints on the world's oldest and most important calling, that of coping with the responsibility of a home, such as marketing, budgeting, child feeding, diets for fat and lean, menu planning, time and labor-saving appliances, and, also, that equally important angle of modern housekeeping—charm and beauty in home appointments.

The cooking school will be an enjoyable and constructive conference on housework and not a social or theoretical entertainment. Housekeepers are entitled to receive practical information from a lecturer of mature experience. That is just what Mrs. Northcross at The Times and Record News free cooking school proposes to bring to Wichita Falls. The fascinating personality of Mrs. Northcross, supplemented by a refreshing humor, will make the sessions interesting as well as educational and helpful.

Mrs. Northcross finds problems of housekeeping pretty much the same the country over. Sometimes it is a matter of adding cheerfulness to the kitchen through colorful appointments. Sometimes it is

TEXAS FAMILY IMPERILED BY BOMBARDMENT

Gainesville Couple and Children Are Among Those in Danger

BIG BATTLE DUE

City of Cheng Chow to Be Attacked in Drive on Communists

WASHINGTON, May 14. (UP)—The Chinese government today warned Americans to evacuate Cheng Chow and vicinity which is about to be bombarded by airplanes of the Nationalist army making war on Communist troops.

The Americans in danger in Cheng Chow are Mr. and Mrs. Victor Koon and three children, Gainsville, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lawton and one child, Greenville, S. C.

The department also was advised that a telegram had been received from the Chinese general at Kweishsein, where it was reported on May 10 seven Americans were in danger from a similar bombardment, that armed troops had been placed at their disposal to bring them out to safety.

The department is without any advices whatsoever concerning the fate of Bishop O'Shea and 18 associated American missionaries who have been besieged by Communist troops at Kanchow since April 22, although every effort has been made to communicate with them. It could not be learned whether they have been brought safely out of the danger zone, because of the lack of communication.

GAINESVILLE PAIR IN DANGER ZONE

Special to The Record News

GAINESVILLE, Texas,—Mr. and Mrs. Victor Koon, reported among the Americans in the besieged Cheng Chow province in the interior of China, are representatives of the First Baptist Church of Gainesville in the missionary field. They have served the church there for the last several years with only one brief visit to America.

A. E. Koon, an official of the Baptist Mutual Life Insurance company, said Wednesday night that he had not heard from his son for more than a month and that he knew the young couple were deep in the danger zone. Victor Koon spent his boyhood in Gainesville where his family have been leaders in civic life for more than 25 years.

Mrs. Koon was Miss Aurora Lee Hargroves, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Hargroves of St. Clair, N. J. Her parents, missionaries themselves, were in China at the time of her marriage, but have now returned to their New Jersey home.

NATIONALISTS IN CRUSHING VICTORY

SHANGHI, May 14. (AP)—The Nationalist government forces defeated the Northern alliance Rebels in a six-day battle, taking 10,000 prisoners and driving the enemy out of Anhwei province, the government announced tonight. Although casualties were not stated, the severity of the struggle was attested by previous dispatches which said that the Nationalists' wounded in the first two days of fighting numbered 20,000.

Pursuing the retreating rebels, the Nationalists attacked their new Baseat Kweiteh in Honan province. Capture of that city, the Nationalists asserted, would force the Northerners to fall back upon Kaifeng to consolidate their shattered ranks.

Led by Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government and generalissimo of its armies, the nationalist captured many field guns and 7,000 rifles with their prisoners.

Disorder and 'Dumping' Feature Curb Sales Of Wichita Area Produce

Stores Buying Home Vegetables and Fruit, but Unorganized Producers Profit Little in Face of Outside Competition; Merchants Give Views

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the marketing situation in Wichita Falls as it relates to the problems and conditions faced by producers. Interviews with local growers will be presented in the second article.)

Marked increase in production of vegetables, greater variety, longer growing seasons, provision for shipment of surplus above local consumption to other markets, and more business-like methods by growers were among the many steps recommended by wholesale and retail merchants here Wednesday in discussion of the local truck-growing problem for The Record News.

Review and analysis of the combined producing and marketing situation here by five concerns dealing in vegetable produce reflected graphically the present method of marketing, and to some extent, the manner in which price schedules on such commodities determine themselves.

In a large measure, according to the opinions given, the amount of fresh produce arriving by truck during the night from Dallas, Fort Worth, and other points for sale on Ohio avenue here before 9 o'clock in the morning determines the prices which prevail on bunch-vegetables during the day.

So far as out of town truck operators can determine, it was said, they endeavor to bring into Wichita Falls items of produce which are not plentiful here. As many as six to 10 trucks, particularly on Friday, arrive from down-state with the surplus from vegetable production in those communities. In competition with that supply is the preceding day's harvest from truck farms near Wichita Falls. Buyers for local stores, as well as representatives of wholesale firms, and some individuals, frequent the "market" area on Ohio avenue from before sunrise to 8 o'clock, bargaining for desired produce.

Must Sell Quickly

This situation is precipitated, dealers say, by two facts. In the first place, operators of trucks who have brought loads from Dallas or Fort Worth must dispose of their supply and get back to point of origin. Consequently, since the street must be cleared of such vehicles by 9 a. m., the rising sun of 8 a. m., threatening rapid deterioration in remaining stocks of vegetables, effects a definitely depressing effect upon quotations. In the second place, it was pointed out, local growers are not organized, not standardized either as to bunches, grades or prices, and are therefore subject almost entirely to whatever fluctuations take place among the other group.

Relative to statements sometimes made that local dealers do not buy locally grown truck products, it developed Wednesday that at least seven retail grocery concerns, as well as some wholesale houses, are buying practically all of their supply of certain vegetables regularly from growers in and near Wichita Falls. Management of the C. H. Parker stores, the A. & P., Clarence Saunders, Lotus, the Gate and E-Z stores declared that 95 per cent of bunched beets, radishes onions, mustard, turnips and tops, carrots, and spinach now being handled in their establishments are purchased daily from local producers. Other items of fresh produce are purchased from other sources because they are not grown here, it was pointed out. Among the supplementary stock were mentioned lettuce, celery, tomatoes, cucumbers potatoes, peppers and parsnips.

Regularity and dependability of supply has improved materially in this vicinity in the past two years, it was said. Information given indicated that there are perhaps six or eight growers near this city who maintain more or less definite connections with local dealers for disposal of their crops, and govern their harvest and deliveries accordingly. To such an extent as their produce supplies the local consumption of vegetables, it remains satisfactorily regular and dependable, it was said. Dissatisfaction, and depression of the daily market, was said often to result from other growers bringing in large quantities of this or that product, without advance survey of the market, with the result that before the morning passes his "lumping off" of that supply for almost any price offered complicates trading for that article during that and the succeeding day.

Two Women in Center of Stage In India Strife

BOMBAY, May 14. (US)—Women tonight held the center of the Indian stage. While Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, Hindu poetess, and self-styled "modern Joan of Arc," was preparing to lead her followers in a salt depot raid on Dharsana, the British imprisoned the first woman to be arrested since the start of the civil disobedience campaign.

The prisoner is Mrs. Lakshmipathi, well known Madras social worker. Mrs. Lakshmipathi was arrested at Vedaranyam, where she was preparing to lead a party of volunteers in a demonstration. She was immediately tried and sentenced to a year of simple imprisonment.

Before departing for Karachi, where the raiders are concentrating, the woman who has succeeded to the leadrship of the imprisoned Mahatma Gandhi said:

"I go to death or victory. I feel as Joan of Arc must have felt—under divine inspiration. We shall ask no quarter and we shall give no quarter. In making the most of this heaven-sent opportunity neither jail or death hold any terrors."

COMPLAINT ON STOCK DEALS STILL PENDING

Episcopacy Committee Fails To Announce Findings After Session

FIVE EXONERATED

South Carolina Leader Spends Long Hours in Fighting Case

DALLAS, May 14. (AP)—The fate of Bishop James Cannon Jr., of Washington, D. C., charged with speculation on the stock market, was in doubt as the episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, here, adjourned without announcement as to disposition of the complaint. The committee dismissed charges of undue political activity against Bishop Cannon and four others.

One short statement was issued, which in effect said the committee had exonerated all bishops charged of the complaints of undue participation in the 1928 political campaign. The statement made no reference to the speculation charges against Bishop Cannon.

The statement follows:

"In view of the widespread publicity given to charges against five of our bishops for their recent interest in political campaign, and because many of our people, well as non-Methodists, are greatly concerned with the probable action of this committee, we deem it wise to issue this statement.

"All charges of this (political) nature have been patiently considered, and much of the time of this committee has been devoted to their consideration, and we do not find that the charges are such as call for action by this committee."

DALLAS, May 14. (UP)—Behind closed doors, Bishop James Cannon Jr., accused of unbecoming conduct by participating in politics and maintenance of a marginal account with a New York stock broker, tonight pleaded his own defense before the powerful episcopacy committee of the Methodist church, South.

The committee must either give Bishop Cannon a full vote of character or hold him for trial before an ecclesiastical court of 25 delegates. The episcopacy can not be content with merely passing a vote of censure.

Members refused to reveal any of the procedure, explaining that the function of the committee was the same as the grand jury and publicity would defeat its purpose.

"I will make whatever statements necessary when the right time comes," Bishop Cannon said upon leaving the church. "Before the senate investigating committee will I explain publicly my connection with the anti-Smith forces of Virginia."

Bishop Cannon refused to reveal how he had defended himself before the committee on the stock market charge.

Texas Lions Clubs at Meet Name Dr. R. H. Graham Governor-General

AUSTIN, May 14. (AP)—Selecting Port Arthur as the 1931 convention city and Dr. R. H. Graham of Wichita Falls, governor general of Texas, the 12th annual convention of the Texas Lions clubs, in session here since Monday, concluded its program today.

The convention today voted to divide Texas into five Lions districts, designated T. E. X. A. and S. and elected governors for each of the districts. Sam Braswell of Clarendon was chosen governor of district T; G. Rollo Davidson of Electra, district E; Fred O. Grimes, Hillsboro, district X; Will Dugger, San Antonio, district A, and Dr. B. D. Fuller of Bryan, district S.

A resolution condemning the action of the mob at Sherman last week, where a negro was lynched and the courthouse burned, was adopted by the convention.

Another resolution endorsing the proposed licensing of motor vehicle drivers also was adopted by the convention.

There was no opposition to the plan to divide the state into five districts. It was pointed out in the discussion that Texas now was the largest Lions state in the union and that the organization had become too unwieldly for one governor to properly administer its affairs. Un-

Slain Sheriff Lies in State As Posses Widen Search for Youth

Special to The Record News

DUNCAN, Okla., May 14.—While the body of Sheriff Wal Williams, widely known Oklahoma peace officer killed in a gun battle with the four Cunningham brothers Monday night, lay in state here today, posses continued their search for the only one of the four bandits who escaped the officers' return fire. Forrest Cunningham was killed, and John and Manuel Cunningham desperately wounded in the affray. Jess, the youngest of the quartet, is still at large.

Meanwhile Police Chief I. B. Gossett, critically injured by the bandit's fire, and the wounded brothers were fighting for their lives in the Duncan hospital Wednesday night. Slight hope was held for their recovery.

Funeral services for the slain sheriff will be held at Marlow Friday. Last rites for Forrest Cunningham were said Wednesday but the body is being held for the identification of officers from Kiowa, Kan., who are investigating the connection of the Cunningham gang with a bank robbery there.

committee resumed consideration of the charges.

Bishop Cannon, seemingly tired when he left the afternoon session apparently was refreshed by the recess.

If a trial is called, it will not be public. The 25 delegates who will compose the ecclesiastical tribunal, will be appointed by the bishop presiding over the conference on the day the trial is ordered.

Bishop Cannon was called before the episcopacy at 3 p. m. when the committee resumed its executive session after a long meeting last night. Disabled by injuries received in an automobile accident recently, he hobbled into the First Methodist church on a crutch.

The Rev. Rembert Smith, of Washington, Ga., brought the political charge while Judge G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, Josephus Daniels and 18 other members of the denomination presented the allegation that he had speculated on the stock market.

John T. Scott, Houston, layman, today asked the episcopacy committee that his name be added to the score that had preferred charges against Cannon, the United Press learned through Daniels.

"It is of highest importance," Scott said, "that the whole matter be investigated and Bishop Cannon placed on trial."

Judge Fitzhugh exhibited to the committee a photostatic copy of a New York broker's ledger, purportedly listing Cannon as a customer and recording his transactions.

The general conference today made provisions for forming a Methodist church in Mexico, Brazil and Korea. The denomination for many years has maintained missionaries in these countries but, due to the rapid growth of mission work and development of native ministers, voted unanimously today to "set the church free" from the United States branch.

Delegates voted to continue mission work in China until the branch can be supported independently of the mother church. Two Chinese delegates, Z. T. Kanug and Y. C. Yang, pleaded for continuance of mission work in the orient.

Foreign missionaries, delegates to the 21st quadrennial conference of the church from all parts of the world today appeared before the convention.

With one accord, they pleaded for funds to carry on their work of preaching and teaching and asked for the spiritual and moral support of the home church.

Several of the native missionaries were forced to address the conference through interpreters.

MARRIAGE RITUAL MAY BE ALTERED

DALLAS, May 14. (AP)—Omission of "obey" and "serve" from the Methodist matrimonal ceremony was likely to be ordered by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, after the committee on revisals today concurred in the memorial of the Louisville conference to amend the form of solemnization of matrmony by striking out these words.

WOMEN MINISTERS TO BE RECOMMENDED

DALLAS, May 14. (AP)—The itineracy committee today voted 36 to 18 to recommend to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, that women be admitted to the ministry. The matter had been pressed in a memorial, the women claiming equal rights with men for ordination.

The report was to bring a contest on the floor, Cullen Booth of Fort Worth having announced he would submit a minority report.

MONKEY HUNT

Washington Police Push Pursuit of Woman's Escaped Pet

WASHINGTON, May 14. (UP)—The capital's famed Panther-hunting police were trailing a monkey today.

The monkey hunt started last night when Mrs. Margaret Laigmaul's pet Simian, Bimbo, escaped. The 11th precinct police, veterans of last winter's hunt for a stray panther, were called.

They came. They saw. They climbed trees—but failed to conquer. As fast as police could ascend one tree, the nimble and obdurate pet would jump to another.

Darkness fell. Tired and vexed, the police limped back to the station house. The big monkey hunt was renewed today with increased forces.

men, continued Wednesday to lend his aid to the officers in the search for his youngest son.

The battle at Marlow Junction followed the hi-jacking of the Checkered filling station in Lawton Monday night. Investigations brought a confession from John Cunningham in which he linked himself and his brothers with three hold-ups in Kansas and Oklahoma. His statements were denied by Manuel.

W. E. Henry and R. L. Goforth, officers in the Kiowa, Kan., bank, accompanied by Jess Hessler, a client of the bank who witnessed the holdup, late Wednesday identified John, Manuel, and Forrest Cunningham as three of the four men who robbed the bank of $3,500 on March 24, 1929.

George M. Frittz, Texas county attorney, C. A. Leeman, sheriff and H. J. Hollman, cashier of the First National bank of Hooker, Okla., were here to identify the brothers in connection with the bank robbery at Hooker July 26, 1929. Frittz said he was convinced the Cunningham brothers were the bandits after hearing a detailed confession of John Cunningham.

Three men are being prosecuted in connection with the Hooker robbery. G. T. James was found guilty and given life. Paul Brooks and Walter Seals are in jail at Guymon awaiting trial May 28. James and Brooks have confessed a bank robbery at Willow, Okla., in August, 1929, and were given long terms, Frittz said.

Disorder and 'Dumping' Handicaps To Fruit, Vegetable Growers of Wichita

Falls community is not as great as elsewhere, the general opinion was that quality of the produce now being obtained locally is all that might be desired. In order to maintain such a satisfactory local supply, it was urged that more growers in this area lengthen and distribute their harvest of various crops, at least until August, by replanting and alternating. The local market often is flooded, for short periods, by many growers bringing in vast amount of the same commodity on the same day. The city does not absorb the entire amount, it was said, and inadequate provision for disposal of the surplus creates a bad market.

Increase of production of all vegetables grown here, and organization of growers to provide for shipment of at least two or three carload shipments of produce weekly to other markets, was regarded by one retail merchant as indispensable to the successful development of truck-growing here. He pointed out that local growers compete daily with the surplus from communities further south and east, which harvest their crops just enough in advance of the Wichita Falls area to permit of profitable disposal of their surplus here. During all that time, he said, other commodities move through the Fort Worth, Dallas and Wichita Falls area en route to points further north. Provision of an office through which the daily surplus could be loaded at once into a car for sale elsewhere would prevent the throwing of such stock on the local market to depress prices received by local growers.

Wholesalers Give View

Complaints were offered by wholesalers because, they allege, growers come to them in the morning with heavy supplies of fresh stuff, sell the wholesaler all he can use, and then proceed to the store of his prospective customer to sell the remaining supply for the same price received from the wholesale house. In spite of that fact, it was said, they buy from local producers all vegetables which possibly can be obtained here for the current demand.

One dealer offered a direct suggestion to truck growers in the following words: "Our greatest trouble is that we are depending upon Wichita Falls alone to consume our entire production. We must provide means of distributing our products to other communities which are not so well supplied at the time we make our crops.

"Failure in business often results directly from one's failing to change as all one's business surroundings change," he continued. "Successful vegetable marketing is a matter of gradual development, but growers must be trying to keep pace, and utilize proven new methods. The Wichita valley can not be developed to its fullest extent until the truck farmers get together, grow more per acre, and put in more acres, diversify to the maximum degree, lengthen the season as much as possible, and provide constant outside markets."

Another suggested that a canning factory would provide the best possible outlet for the potential production of vegetables in this district. All agreed that the most important improvement to be sought is a profitable outlet for whatever surplus may be produced here above local demand. Some small amounts of Wichita Falls grown produce are being taken by truck now to points north and west, and during the past year considerable quantities of vegetables from this community were disposed of by that means. Such stocks were not regular enough, nor sufficient in amount, however, it was said, to develop a fixed and profitable market through established channels.

COOK SCHOOL OPENS TUESDAY

Mrs. Northcross to Give Series of Free Lectures

a conscientious effort to use a worn out appliance that saps strength and patience and costs more to use than is fair to the family budget. Sometimes it is a matter of food waste and spoilage through an inefficient range or refrigerator, or through unscientific marketing methods. The daily contact with food and equipment problems from hundreds of housewives gives Mrs. Northcross an expert advisory capacity.

The cooking school will be immeasurably more helpful if some advance preparation is made in the way of jotting down questions for explanation from the platform by Mrs. Northcross. It may be a matter of proper dining room appointments in silver, linens, china or the newer and very fascinating tinted glassware. Or possibly there is a problem in child feeding, or diets for those of the family who wish to reduce or to put on weight. The discussions of food values for children and for adults is an especially valuable feature of cooking school talks.

Blanks will be provided at the auditorium on which questions may be asked, and Mrs. Northcross will devote time to answering inquiries concerning cookery and any phase of home economics.

With the knowledge that the cooking school definitely performs this sort of helpful service to those in attendance, The Times and Record News confidently and gladly offers this contribution to the home life of Wichita Falls.

The recipes demonstrated by Mrs. Northcross each day will be printed and may be taken home. The four programs for the week will make a compact and handy reference library easily filed with other cookery material for future use.

The cooking school will abound with many gifts such as the dishes prepared on the stage at each session. Then there will be six market baskets filled with choice food products contributed by various Wichita Falls merchants and manufacturers, as selected by Mrs. Northcross, for the cookery demonstrations. Finally, on Friday, a very large assortment of handsome gifts of real decorative and utility value in the home will be awarded. The gift feature of the cooking school will add much amusement for everyone present, as well as bringing to a large group of women very welcome additions to the home.

It will be especially important to bring pencil and notebook to each session. There will be many occasions to jot down little pointers that especially appeal for immediate application at home. And also it is urged that plans be made early for handling tradesmen's calls and marketing duties in the morning next week, so that afternoons will be available for attendance at these talks, which are being elaborately planned for a gala affair. Remember the days—next week, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Memorial auditorium, doors opening at 1 o'clock, and lecture to start at 2 o'clock.

Oil Lease Claimant Puts Gun Aside to File Court Plea

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 14. (UP)—Jake Simms who has been guarding his 25 by 140-foot lot in the oil fields because "if there is going to be an oil well here, I'm going to drill it," left his shotgun behind today to file a restraining order in district court.

The order prevents the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company from erecting a derrick near the lot. The order was made on a cross petition. Simms contended that the oil company's derrick to be erected on his slush pit wound undermine the derrick to be built on his own lot.

With a shotgun rested on his knee, Simms kept guard at the lot the first three days of this week.

Swollen Streams Cause Damage

the road near Mankins for a while Wednesday afternoon, but the highway was passable again after emergency repair work, D. M. Puckett, district highway engineer, announced.

The heavy downpours of the last several days have damaged the bridge on state highway 51 between Knox City and Benjamin, the engineer reported, and wrecked the Orient railway bridge about 700 feet upstream. The bridge across Double Mountain creek on the Wichita Valley Spur line between Haskell and Stamford is also out.

The rising waters of the Salt Fork of the Brazos river have brought fears for the safety of four other spans across the streams, but no other damages had been reported here late Wednesday.

Near Altus, Okla., hail, wind and rain Wednesday afternoon damaged grain and fruit crops. Telephone lines were down for a three-mile strip near Duke and seven residences were unroofed by a miniature tornado. Rivers and creeks are rising but all roads are passable.

The fresh rains in Haskell county have brought the month's total to 9.90 inches. Except for track and road washouts no damages have been reported.

RITES TODAY FOR MRS. HALL

Wife of Wichita Pastor Dies Early Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Gaines B. Hall, wife of Dr. Gaines B. Hall, pastor of the First Southern Presbyterian church, and beloved teacher in the public schools here for the past six years, who succumbed early Wednesday after a brief illness, will be held at the First Southern Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon with Dr. E. S. Lowrance, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Iowa Park, officiating.

The body will then be forwarded to Taylor, Texas, at 11 o'clock Thursday night. Interment will be in that city, where Mrs. Marshall Monroe, a sister of the dead woman, is buried. The body is in the charge of the Merkle Undertaking company here.

School to Pay Tribute

Active pallbearers for the services here will be F. M. Rugely, C. M. Kitchell, F. L. Story, J. M. Biggs, H. A. Glass and T. W. Brumbalow.

Honorary pallbearers will be all the officers of the First Southern Presbyterian church and Sunday school.

Besides Doctor Hall, survivors include three children, Clifford, Sarah Beth and Louise, all of this city; the parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Evans of Tampa, Fla.; one brother, Henry Evans, also of Tampa; and an aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Scott of Fort Worth.

H. A. Glass, principal of Zundelowitz Junior high school, where Mrs. Hall had been head of the Latin department for the past three years, Wednesday announced a memorial service honoring the memory of the beloved teacher would probably be held Friday at the school, in which both faculty and students would take part. Mr. Glass Wednesday morning described Mrs. Hall as "one of the most splendid teachers I have ever known."

Before coming to Wichita Falls six years ago, Mrs. Hall had been a member of the faculty at Texas Presbyterian college at Milford. Her father, Dr. H. C. Evans, was principal of that institution for many years before moving to Florida. It was during that time that Mrs. Hall became known throughout the state for her work among the students at the college. On coming here she became a teacher in the Wichita Falls public schools and three years ago was made head of the Zundelowitz Latin department.

Active in Church Work

In addition to her school activities, she was leader of the largest Bible class in the church of which her husband was pastor, a class composed of young women. She was also Bible teacher for the Business Girls' circle until recently. She gave up her class work at Zundelowitz only a few days ago, although she had been in failing health for several weeks. Her condition suddenly became serious and she was taken to a hospital, although it had not at first been thought she was so critically ill as to be near death.

Members of the Lions club here at their weekly luncheon Wednesday voted to send a wreath from the organization to the Hall home. Doctor Hall is vice president of the club.

LIONS EXPRESS SYMPATHY

Expressions of sympathy with Dr. Gaines B. Hall, vice president of the Lions club, were voted by members of that organization in its weekly meeting Wednesday noon at the Kemp hotel following the death of Mrs. Hall at a local hospital early Wednesday morning.

Difficulties which must be faced by a political candidate were discussed by James V. Allred in a brief address. Miss Loraine Mathis, violinist, played several solos, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. J. C. Mathis.

Texas' Fur Crop Found to Be Worth More Than Many Better Known Yields

Pelts Valued at Over $2,000,000 in One Year Outstrip Peach, Pecan or Citrus Production in Value

By J. G. BURR
Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission

AUSTIN, May 14.—Not that it is anything new under the sun but it has been officially learned for the first time that the annual Texas fur crop is greater in value than either the peach crop, the pecan crop, the boasted citrus crop, or the watermelon crop in this greatest of all agricultural states, or the yield of fish, oysters and other marine products of its extended coast line.

This information came to light when trappers for the season just closed reported the taking of 1,248,485 fur pelts which in normal years bring into the state over $2,000,000. This represents only what was reported under the operation of a tax law which was little understood by trappers and was so difficult of administration that it had to be amended by the 41st legislature. Nor does it include the pelts of animals such as coyotes, wild cats, cougars, bear, and rabbit which are not taxed and on which no reports are made. That large quantities of furs were unreported and escaped taxation is beyond cavil, which together with those on which no report was required, would vastly swell the total production. Indeed, after conferences with leading fur buyers, William J. Tucker, executive secretary of the commission, is authority for the statement that the total fur crop easily reaches the $3,000,000 mark.

Facts Little Known.

That the existence of a fur industry of such proportions should be unknown to the average Texan is not to be wondered at when it is understood that until recently the state government had not provided for fact-finding regulations in the way of taxes and reports. It was against strong opposition that the first law was enacted a few years ago for the protection of furbearers and last year marked the first operation of a tax law on pelts. The idea of protecting skunks, opossum, civet cats and other animals which prey upon poultry and game birds was repugnant to the mind of the legislator, but this protection was in reality only protection of the pelt which could not be sold except during the winter when prime and marketable. The result of such regulation made the killing of these animals all the more profitable, thus tending to diminish their numbers.

It may be said that the state just stumbled upon this $3,000,000 industry, the profits of which can be had only for the harvesting, while farmers, with heavy investments are producing their $2,096,000 peach crop, their $1,407,000 water melon crop, their $2,040,000 pecan crop, their $1,640,000 citrus crop, and the fishermen of the coast their $1,000,000 of marine production.

How happy the trapper! When the farmer is out with his smudge pots trying to save his fruit trees from the biting cold, the fur animal is putting on an extra coat, raising its value in exact proportion as the temperature falls. Fortunately, the farmer may also become a trapper for the pelts must not be taken until winter when the farm crops are all gathered and he is at liberty to take up new work.

Fox Preserved

The old political slogan of "Turu Texas Loose" has not fully struck in with respect to the fur business in East Texas, where, through the influence of fox hunters, a law was enacted prohibiting the sale of the fox pelt and reserving the fox for the purpose of sport. In addition to this another law was passed prohibiting the use of steel traps in some 30 East Texas counties, presumably because dogs were occasionally caught in the traps. The fox belongs to the wolf family and has been destroyed without mercy in West Texas for many years by farmers and ranchmen, and yet the reports show that last winter the trappers took 19,908 foxes which had survived the campaign of destruction. The pelts are worth $2 each and it is easily conceivable that trappers could have taken $200,000 worth of pelts in East Texas where foxes are more numerous than in any other portion of the state.

We are not saying that the pelts would have not been more valuable than the sport for which the fox is reserved, but these predators and those of the 30 odd counties where no trapping is allowed must be sustained at the cost of much small game and poultry, and the time may come when the sportsman will be obliged to decide which of the two kinds of sport will meet the greatest need. Farm crops deplete the soil which must be enriched, but depletion of fur-bearers means more game. Extinction of the fur-bearer, however, is well nigh impossible for the trapper will not work when they become scarce and hard to get. The East Texas angle of the picture is mentioned to show how much greater the fur yield would be if Texas were fully turned loose.

Huge Tax Collection

The state collected $50,096.37 the past season for taxes and license. The number of trappers engaged was 31,371, not counting farmers and tenants who, under the law before it was amended, were allowed to trap without a license.

Fur-bearers as designated by law are the badger, civet cat, fox (in West Texas), mink, muskrat, opossum, skunk, raccoon and ring tail cat. Which of these animals is most numerous we are now to find out for the first time. Because he does not hide out so much it would be natural to suppose the skunk would lead in numbers but such is not the case. The lowly opossum with his lumbering gate leads in numbers far in advance of all the rest. Reports to the department show that 756,502 opossum pelts were taken, 235,905 skunk pelts, 75,867 musk rats, 45,317 raccoons, 41,633 ring tail cats, 11,490 minks, 19,908 foxes, 58,074 civet cats, 3,878 badgers. There were 11 other pelts taken illegally, the season being closed permanently on both otter and beaver.

Special to The Record News.

GOREE, Texas, May 14.—E. L. Covey, newspaper publisher and formerly a member of the Texas legislature announced here today that he would withdraw from the race for state commissioner of agriculture.

He stated that he had been unable to arrange his business so that he could make a thorough campaign of the state and that A. H. King of Throckmorton, an adjoining county, is in the race and he believes it best for one of them to withdraw. He stated that King is running on a platform that is in line with his views and that he will support King.

Lubbock Seeks 1931 W. T. C. C. Meet

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 14.—A big hat has been thrown into the mythical ring for the next convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce by Lubbock.

Lubbock entered the race for the convention after a number of towns over West Texas suggested that it now is her time. The conventions have been held at Fort Worth, Ranger, Plainview, Amarillo, San Angelo, Brownwood, Mineral Wells, El Paso and other towns. Most of the larger towns of West Texas have entertained the meeting once, and for this reason, citizens of Lubbock and other West Texans feel that it is now Lubbock's time to entertain.

A large delegation of Lubbock citizens will attend the convention. They will be joined by delegates from a large number of other cities in pressing Lubbock's invitation.

Annual Luncheon Given By Bi-Monthly Culture Club

A color scheme of pink and green in all appointments was cleverly carried out at the Angelina Tea Room Wednesday when the Bi-Monthly Culture club members held their third annual luncheon there. Pink roses in silver bowls were spaced at intervals and sprigs of fern interspersed with pink flowers were strewn along the table. Place cards were individual monograms in green paper with fronds of fern and tiny pink flowers attached.

Mrs. Sam Egger served as toastmistress and introduced the numbers on the program in original fashion. Mrs. S. J. Schwab opened the program with a prayer after which a song, "Keep Your Culture Club Up," composed by Mrs. Max Shain, was sung by the group. Mrs. J. W. Ginsburg reviewed the accomplishments and programs of the year. Mrs. Sam Kruger read four of her own poems, entitled "Israel," "When Life Passes," "The Russian Mujhik," and a poem dedicated to Mrs. Ginsburg, originator of the club. Mrs. Abe Sandler gave some original lines of poetry dedicated to the new members.

A mock trial was held, the case presented being: "Shall Mrs. Louis Franklin Be Sentenced to Another Year at Hard Labor as President of the Club?" Mrs. Sam Egger acted as judge, Mrs. Sam Quicksilver as prosecuting attorney and Mrs. Ben Newman served as defense attorney. Owing to the weighty arguments involved, the trial resulted in a hung jury.

Mrs. Louis Franklin gave a travesty on the shortcomings of the members in a unique paper on "My Experiences in a Shoe Hospital." Mrs. Louis Rosenstein gave an original interpretation of some of Oscar Wilde's witticisms as adapted to the future of the club and the interesting program was closed with a tribute to the president by Mrs. Joe Emold.

Handmade tally cards in pink and green were used for bridge which followed the luncheon. Novelty match boxes were awarded to Mesdames Paul Green and Eugene Liepold for high scores.

Mrs. Sam Egger, chairman, assisted by Mesdames J. W. Ginsburg, Max Shain and S. J. Schwab made all arrangements for the lovely affair.

Members present were Mesdames Louis Franklin, Sam Egger, J. W. Ginsburg, Abe Sandler, S. J. Schwab, Louis Rosenstein, Sam Kruger, Sam Quicksilver, Joe Emold, Max Shain and Ben Newman. Guests were Mesdames Paul Green, Nathan Marantz, Charles Rosenthal, B. Brettler, C. R. Yauger, Joe Max, Jake Cohen, T. J. Brock, Eugene Liepold, Lazarus Cohen, Ephraim Garonzik, Ed Klein, S. H. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"Inquire Within" is the title of a dog's eared old book that lies before us, published at 18 Ann street, Philadelphia, by Dick & Fitzgerald in the year of our Lord, 1858.

"Inquire Within," says the compiler, "is decidedly the most wonderful and useful book that has been issued for many years. It gives a vast amount of information on every subject connected with domestic life."

"Better pay the cook than the doctor," says one headline. And the advice of 1858 is as applicable today—"the best rule for marketing is to pay ready cash for everything and to deal with the most respectable tradesman in your neighborhood."

Nice little rhymes make maxims for health; for instance, "Disease is soon shaken by physic soon taken."

We gather that up to 1858, there were no babies. All were called "infants." Husbands and wives were "spouses," and many of the yellow pages give hints to each sex how to make home happy. "If there be a husband who could abuse the smiles of a really good tempered wife," says the author, "we would like to look at him. No, no, such a phenomenon does not exist." . . . And it was a man who wrote the book.

A hint for comfort is "one flannel petticoat will wear nearly as long as two if turned behind-part before when the front begins to wear thin." That is advice given even before the mauve decade. When has one heard of a flannel petticoat wearer?

"A gentleman walking should always wear gloves," the world of 1858 was admonished, "this being one of the characteristics of good breeding." And the female of the species is advised not to wear her rings on the outside of her gloves.

Elements of manly character are given to be frequently meditated upon. One that impresses us most vividly is "to be a lamb in his home." Fancy wanting a lamb around the house! Even a goat would be more exciting.

Man is told how to propose and woman how to answer. And in telling a man how to win a sweetheart, he is urged to follow the phrenologist Fowler's knowledge of the bumps that predominate. One type of young lady is to be flattered —"and if the brain be rather small, lay it on thickly."

"Eat peas with a dessert spoon," we read. It reminds us of the old "Cranford" story where the poor visiting ladies were embarrassed with the idea of either forking up one or two peas on the twotined forks or shovelling them in with their knives. Eighteen hundred fifty-eight was so much more modern.

One, to be a lady or gentleman, is advised to behave—"even in the presence of relations," and—(what seems to us to be the root of true gentility), to "be kind in little things."

P.-T. A. Council Closes Year of Splendid Work

With glowing reports from all officers and chairmen, a highly satisfactory year's work in the Wichita Falls P.-T. A. council was brought to a close Wednesday morning when Dr. J. W. Cantwell installed new officers with an impressive ceremony. The speaker stressed the importance of the P.-T. A. and stated that it is a privilege to hold office in such an organization. The council, Dr. Cantwell said, holds leadership of P.-T. A. work in a community, success or failure being largely dependent on it.

Officers for the coming year are Mrs. I. R. Sheldon, president; Mrs. R. L. Underwood, vice president; Mrs. Harold Murph, health chairman; Mrs. C. P. Fore, secretary; Mrs. C. P. Warman, treasurer; Mrs. R. P. Willis, thrift exchange chairman; Mrs. J. E. O'Brien, magazine chairman; Mrs. O. H. Karr, publicity chairman; Mrs. Frank B. Creighton, parliamentarian. All stood before the audience while Dr. Cantwell outlined their duties and asked the cooperation of the association for them.

Mrs. R. P. Willis, retiring president, was in the chair and Mrs. H. J. Strief in charge of the program. An effective devotional was offered by Mrs. C. P. Warman and the financial report given by Mrs. Harold Murph, treasurer, showed a satisfactory financial standing. Three life memberships were reported purchased, and Mrs. O. H. Karr, retiring secretary, made a brief talk presenting one to Mrs. R. P. Willis, in appreciation of her work during the past year.

Reports were given by all retiring chairmen, and representatives from Austin, Barwise, Bowie, Benjamin Franklin, Crockett, Fannin, Huey, high school and junior college, Sam Houston, San Jacinto, Travis and Reagan and Zundelowitz junior highs reported for their associations and introduced the new presidents.

Mrs. I. R. Sheldon introduced C. C. Bunnenberg who made a brief talk on "The Wise Use of Leisure," saying the P.-T. A. could do a wonderful work in this field as only three supervisors were available for the many children's playgrounds in Wichita Falls where 10,000 children will spend more or less of their leisure time during the summer.

Mrs. Sheldon explained the need of a school of instruction and the idea was accepted by the council, members pledging to attend lessons to be conducted during the last week of May by Mesdames Frank B. Creighton, R. P. Willis, H. J. Strief and H. R. Cloughley.

Members attending the morning session were Mesdames George E. Chokas, Monty Staniforth, H. W. Conn, E. E. Ray, Billy Staniforth, M. T. Clements, W. B. Smith, D. W. McShan, R. A. Yeager, G. Galmiche, M. E. Sansbury, I. R. Sheldon, R. D. Bone, W. L. Goodson, R. D. Lewis, Geo. Holdstead, T. C. Watkins, Otis Nelson, J. E. O'Brien, E. C. de Montel, O. H. Karr, H. R. Cloughley, R. P. Willis, C. P. Warman, A. P. Perry, L. C. Ficklin, Walter D. Daugherty, Harold Murph, J. Z. Steinkoenig, R. A. Bailey, W. E. Wilson, John M. Fox, Claude D. Whitley, C. P. Fore, A. J. Newby, O. D. Scott, Chas. Harr, M. B. Smith, Bert Ming, Wyett Parrish, H. J. Strief, J. L. Ware, Miss Dora Cornitt and Dr. J. W. Cantwell and C. C. Bunnenberg.

Country Club Parking Costs Couple $29 Fine

The parking problem has become a serious question to America's millions of motorists who day after day drive around the block innumerable times hunting a place to put the car, but here in Wichita Falls Wednesday the problem reached the peak of seriousness when a few minutes' parking cost a man and a woman $29.

The parking charges were, however, a fine imposed by Judge R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, when the man and woman were brought before him by George Garrett, special officer for the Country Club Estates area, who charged them with having disturbed the peace Wednesday night by parking for several minutes near a residence in the district patroled by him.

County Attorney Held in Booze Conspiracy

WICHITA, Kan., May 14. (AP)—Arraignment of a county attorney on charges of liquor conspiracy and attempted bribery and the arrest of an alleged bootleg baron and more than a score of suspected henchmen today marked the sudden stroke of 45 prohibition officers in southwestern Kansas.

In addition to the arrests, made here, at Dodge City and at Hutchinson, efforts of the officers resulted in the seizure of stills, contraband and bootleg materials estimated valued at more than $100,000. Twenty-eight of the arrests were made here.

Everett G. Minner, county attorney of Ford county, said by officers to have been an intermediary in a pay-off scheme, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Alva Fenn, United States commissioner at Hutchinson last night. He was released on a $15,000 bond.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 14. (UP)—An apparent attempt at murder by mail, in which poison pie was sent to the intended victims, was under investigation by postal authorities here today after the plot had been frustrated by a postoffice clerk.

A woman appeared at the Tatnuck branch postoffice on the west side of the city yesterday with two packages, both addressed to Mrs. Joseph Fish, wife of a local dry goods merchant.

Investigation disclosed that the package contained a pie. Analyzed by chemists, the contests of the pie were found to contain a deadly poison.

Proposal Before Congress to Bar European 'Brains' From America

WASHINGTON, May 14. (INS)—English lecturers, Italian sopranos and German musicians all may have trouble getting into the United States if proposals made to the house immigration committee are adopted.

The subject was opened when American musicians demanded amendments to stop the influx of foreign saxophone and violin players.

The "talkies" have put 6,000 musicians out of work, they claim, and still foreign musicians come in and get jobs.

"This measure before us applies to musicians but it doesn't protect vaudeville actors, chorus singers and others," remarked Representative Scynelder, Republican, of Wisconsin.

"Why not require lecturers to come under the provisions of the contract labor law?" asked Representative Johnson, Republican of Oregon, chairman.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Husband demurred, saying the labor department would have to decide whether the lecturer was good or bad, or the musician a skilled workman or an artist expert from the provisions.

He disclosed that American singers protested recently against a German opera company bringing its own chorus to this country, saying chorus singers could be hired here.

Queer situations have arisen from the present contract labor law, the committee was told. One Italian who "barbers" by day and "piccolos" at night was ruled an artist by a federal judge and admitted for permanent residence.

Widow of Oscar Hammerstein Calls Charge of Immoral Conduct Absurd

NEW YORK, May 14. (INS)—Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, widow of Oscar Hammerstein, who suffered the humiliation of arrest on the charge of immoral conduct, today declared the allegation was "absurd" and expressed the opinion that her "enemies" were at work against her.

Mrs. Hammerstein was arrested Monday afternoon in her room at the hotel Winthrop by three detectives who brought specific charges against her. She spent Monday night in jail because she was unable to find anyone to furnish bail, and yesterday morning, was arraigned in Jefferson Market women's court. She was released in $500 bail pending a hearing next Tuesday.

Bail was furnished by Saul Birns, a radio dealer, who had been a friend and admirer of the late Mr. Hammerstein. He did not know Mrs. Hammerstein but had read of her plight in the newspapers.

Mrs. Hammerstein gave her age as 47.

After her release she said "the same enemies who robbed me of all I owned must be back of this."

She had been living at the hotel for the last six months. She said she is writing a biography of her late husband.

A philosopher of the 14th century has left it on record that: "Most men have three characters—that which they do exhibit, that which they have and that which they think they have."

Valentino's Statue
Papa Joffre Totters
Mothers and War
Whalen's Farewell

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Out in Hollywood a statue goes up as an interesting symbol of our peculiar civilization. The city commissioners grudgingly permit the dedication of a bronze in memory of Rudolph Valentino, a young man with a come hither look in his eye who made women gasp by his screen love-making. His funeral in New York would have done credit to a jungle orgy. And yet, his statue, called "Aspiration," showing a tensed figure, head thrown back as though facing the wind, will mean more to our unthinking, crooning generation than the shafts memorializing the truly great.

One by one, the men we call great because they conducted a world war pass on, some hoping for a reward hereafter. Clemenceau died lashing his enemies. Foch expired with a firm belief in a straight trip to Heaven. Now comes the time for Marshal Joffre to count his days. He was the hero of the Battle of the Marne, but a man who would have been termed a mediocre commander by Napoleon. Foch and Hindenberg were the two great generals of the war. Those under them will be forgotten a hundred years hince while Michel Ney will still hold his place in military history.

Gold Star Mothers leave for a foreign land to visit the graves where their soldier sons are buried. How many of these mothers will think that woman, entrusted by nature to bring human beings into the world, is the born enemy of war? The greed and egoism, the real origins of bloody conquest, do not have their beginning with the mothers. With them rests the secret of world peace.

Gentlemen who like a business way of doing things assemble at a great dinner in honor of Police Commissioner Whalen who builds up a farewell climax with all the drama of Napoleon's goodbye to the old guard. With all of the fanfare and the new caps and uniforms of his administration, nevertheless Mr. Whalen has shown New York how the police department should be run. He has made every figure in the city government look like a candle in a tropical sun. He basks naturally in the limelight, but he wouldn't be in the headlines if he hadn't accomplished anything. His resignation will be a loss to the city.

Colonel Lindbergh presents an interesting picture of future New York, and it is in the near future. He visualizes the city as a gigantic air terminal of utmost importance to the growing airways system of the country. He predicts transatlantic air mail service within five years. All this coming from a young man who could visualize a flight direct to Paris, and who then accomplished it.

Battle scarred veterans of Wall street waterloo will be interested in what is happening to Mr. James C. Parrish Jr., a broker, who is being sued by his former wife, who says she lost $50,000 by following his stock market advice. She submits a letter in which he said, "If I tell you to buy a stock, you can't lose unless I die." Much to her surprise the stock didn't go up. Other people, as painfully surprised as this hopeful lady, have learned little by their experience.

Woman Gets Second Divorce From Actor

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 14. (INS)—Mrs. Laura Rhinock Guisti today was granted her second divorce from Roy D'Arcy, her screen villain husband, who now operates a New York night club.

The divorce was granted on charges that D'Arcy had a superiority complex that mixed ill with his artist's temperament, and that he threw teacups at his wife.

KIDNAPING DENIED

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 14. (UP)—Police today branded a reported attempt to kidnap Harry Carey Jr., son of the prominent motion picture actor, as a hallucination of the actor's chauffeur, I. W. Weaver, negro.

The durndest sensation I know is havin' a doorknob come off in your hand. Life Kits was in a mess today as full as a prison.

Men in the United States are said to use $1,000,0000 worth of "beauty preparations" a year. And judging from the way they get along with women it seems some make-up is essential.

What this country needs is a good definition of prosperity.

'Don't Go Into Politics'

SHORTLY after his campaign manager and eight of his workers had been arrested for alleged election irregularities, former Mayor William J. Fulton of Gary, Ind., shot himself to death in the bedroom of his home. He left a note to his family, containing this significant message to his son:

"Bill, you have been a good boy. Take care of mother, finish school and carry on; but don't get into politics."

It is that final admonition that makes one stop and think.

"Don't get into politics!" The last word to his son of a man who had been for 17 years. "Don't get into politics!"

There is a good deal of meaning in that bit of advice. It signalizes the result of a trend that has long been apparent, but that we seldom have brought home to us so closely; the long, steady decline of politics from the honored place it used to hold.

A couple of generations ago a political career was the goal of every ambitious young American. It was a highly honorable career; to be a senator, a mayor, a congressman or a governor carried a great deal of prestige, marked one as a man of exceptional talent, testified to one's ability and rectitude.

The result was that with few exceptions the best brains in the country turned to politics, and the public service was enriched with statesmen of a high order. There were rascals in high office, to be sure—no country was ever without them—but on the whole politics was the one profession for the energetic man who wanted to make his mark upon his times.

But now? The ambitious youngster, 20 to one, will look to business, to the law, to industry. Politics is in bad repute. The easiest way to get a reputation for sophistication is to ridicule congress. We are no longer surprised to read of a congressman or a mayor being caught in some law violation; nor are we surprised to find this Gary politician advising his son, "don't get into politics."

We have brought all of this on ourselves. Politics doesn't interest us as it used to. We devote all of our attention to other matters, and let the politicians do about as they like. We feel, broadly, just about as this Gary man evidently felt; that politics is no place for a fine, ambitious youngster.

Politics won't regain its old eminence, either, until the day comes when we make it our business to study questions earnestly, vote intelligently and demand 100 per cent performances from the men we elect to office.

Owen J. Roberts for High Court Place

PRESIDENT HOOVER nominated Owen J. Roberts for supreme court justice to fill the vacancy brought about by the death of Justice Sanford of Tennessee. Owen J. Roberts is said to be one of the great lawyers of America. He is a member of the American Institute of Law, composed of high court judges of the 48 states. He was one of the famous prosecutors of the government in the Sinclair and Doheny-Fall cases. He had a large practice before the supreme court of the United States. He is credited with never having lost a case which he argued before that eminent tribunal of justice.

He has never held a public office. Indeed, it is said of him that the law has been his mistress. He is a life-long Republican of conservative tendencies, but he has never mixed in the factional rows of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, his native state. He is 55, over six feet of commanding stature, and pleasing presence. His nomination drew the fire of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas.

Senator Sheppard said that in the not remote past the presidential nominee for place on the court of last resort had delivered an address in which he was classed by the New York Times as an anti-prohibitionist. Of course the nomination was referred to the judiciary committee of the senate, a committee that rejected the nomination of Judge John J. Parker by a vote of six for and ten against.

Now if there is anything in the record of the distinguished prosecutor of Fall and Doheny and Sinclair and their allies, the senatorial researchers are certain to uncover it.

Tourists and Forest Fires

THE OPENING of the automobile touring season brings Americans once more up against the growing menace of the forest fire; not because the tourist is ever menaced by forest fires, but because he so often starts them.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the forest fires now raging are caused by human carelessness," declares Charles Lathrop Pack, famous president of the American Tree association.

"The touring season is at hand and millions are going into our forests this year. These forests are fast becoming the nation's playground, and the citizen who enjoys them must get the point of view that these forests are his forests and that he must exercise the same care with fire while in them that he does in his own home.

"In 1929, 250,000 'foreign' cars carrying nearly a million people visited Montana. If a small percentage of this number is careless with fire, the result cannot be estimated. The terrific drain on our forest resources because of fire must be cut down to the point where lightning alone can be blamed."

If every motorist could take this warning to heart, our summer forest fire bill could be cut down very materially.

Man About Town

Although we originally scribbled it for Collitchumor, one of the better mags, we have been yenning to revive it here. Chiefly because we fear that the locals concerned are not magazine fiends. At any rate, please permit us to reprint it, and then consider yourself kissed.

People who put on their bibs and tuckers when going places, do so, of course, because they have manners. Dressing up is all right when mlady is in the lorgnette-juggling mood, or when she has a new frock she wants other femmes to envy. But dressing up to frequent the sucker rendezvous where "dressing" is compulsory is strictly the whoocy as we used to say in the old country, and the Man About Town who takes such ultimatums from people (with whom he wouldn't associate outside of a night club), rates your contempt.

Take the case of Dr. Keating, one of New York's better physicians, who administers to the sick and injured at all hours of the day and night. Keating seeks his diversion in the night clubs when he can find time, and is listed high among the huge spenders.

We are in mufti, as we usually are, in the corridor of one of the so-called fun places. It was the opening night of the new floor show. We had just checked our "Worth & Worth" and "Ben Roeke" with the hat check bandits when Dr. Keating and two companions ankled in breathlessly. After swapping salutations with the captain, Dr. Keating was taken aside and told: "Doctor, it pains me more than you know to have to tell you that you cannot come in tonight. You are not dressed and tonight it is strictly formal."

"I'm being kidded," the doc replied. "Surely you don't mean it?"

"But I do mean it, doctor," said the suave lackey. "Orders from the boss."

"You mean to tell me," said the doctor, "that I cannot come in here tonight because I am not dolled up, after all the money I've spent here? You told me yourself that I am one of the few customers whose checks never bounce back."

"I'm so sorry," lied the little captain with the dialect, who rents his own dinner attire.

Dr. Keating became exasperated and with good cause. He was embarrassed no little before his lady and gentleman companions. "Well," he welled, "you can all go to hell, and, believe me, I'll never come in here again." Then he took his departure.

Keating, a humanitarian if ever there was one, is not allowed to mingle with people because he isn't in the correct uniform! And the people, mind you, in the place that night consisted of the town's better known crooks, gunmen, Ladies of the Pavement, forgers, thieves, bootleggers and other illicit citizens.

Over near the piano sat a man who was lucky enough to be acquitted by a coroner's jury after a married woman had been found strangled in his apartment. At the next table sat a woman who was in the chorus of a Ziegfeld show last season, and who is now playing a small role in a big hit because her "man" has that much influence. If you asked us, she is strictly a "keptive," and even if you didn't ask us.

Your wife, daughter or "heart" would have been as safe with any of the managers as she would be with a white slaver. Three of the waiters are ex-convicts. Other attaches and patrons had been convicted of this and that, and the star opening there that night still is on the front pages as a notorious husband-burglar! Oh, yes, another illicit who was permitted to come in was New York's most terrible newspeeper columnist.

But Dr. Keating was barred because he wasn't "dressed."

George Bernard Shaw, incidentally, once taught the snooty management of a London playhouse a good lesson. Shaw came to the play wearing a red velvet coat, among other things. He occupied a front pew and, of course, he was conspicuous. The manager sent an usher down to urge the critic to shelve the noisy coat, pointing out that it was so eye-filling that it detracted the audience's attention from the stage.

Shaw went to the rear of the orchestra and checked the disturbing coat with the cloakroom attendant. Then he returned to his front-row-on-the-aisle-seat where he rolled up his shirt sleeves and revealed a terrific mess of arm spinach.

And the playgoers shrieked!

Among other perfectly grand persons was a woman named Adele Shreve, whose character was something to cheer. Mrs. Shreve hated the icy indifference of social service workers and never gave them a centime. Instead, she extended the helping paw to individuals who were in distress. That was before her husband met with financial reverses. If Adele Shreve were alive now, the world would be a better place to dwell in, indeed.

Here are two concrete examples of her good deeds. A nurse engaged for her tots, decided that she wanted to middle-aisle it and live! A good girl, this nurse, but a trifle dizzy. Instead of sinkling up an altar with some one she adored, she was seduced and abandoned in a West Side rooming house. The usual routine of empty stomach and lots of advice from women of easy virtue followed, and shortly after her pavement-pounding career began, Alma picked up a detective and went straight. To the hoosegow.

A probation officer got in touch with Mrs. Shreve. You know as well as we do, that most society women wouldn't be bothered with a case of this sort, let alone take Alma back to look after her youngsters. But that's just what Mrs. Shreve did. She took Alma out of the can and gave her back the job. Alma would have been there yet, no doubt, had it not been for Mrs. Shreve's accidental death.

Before the sudden end, Mrs. Shreve performed another graceful gesture. One of her grown daughters was at a finishing school in Wisconsin, patronized by lassies of good Mid-Western families. One of the pupils had a honey or two, and slipped up with the inevitable consequences.

It happened just before the summer holidays. The daughter, something like her mother in kindliness, wrote home about her roommate's plight.

The grand Mrs. Shreve knew what would happen if the distressed gal's family heard about her, so she advised her daughter to bring the girl home with her for the summer vacation period. The girls arrived in due course, and the matter was taken care of at Mrs. Shreve's expense. The girl went back to her parents and a lot of humanity was exercised, with the exception that when the befriended gal was informed of Mrs. Shreve's passing she never even had the decency to pen a letter of condolence.

However, among other flowers on Mrs. Shreve's grave up at Woodlawn is an inexpensive bouquet that is placed there annually.

It comes from Alma, the nursemaid.

Who never went to a finishing school.

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

"And as for you!" Ted turned to Deering, "you wife-stealer you!" He was shaking with rage.

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is jilted by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Nowell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Morton place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

Deering becomes a boarder at Shady Lawn Inn and his friendship with Caresse develops rapidly. Teddy Branard returns suddenly, and calls on Caresse. She forces him to take her to a local roadhouse as a blow at Ted's father.

The elder Branard promises Ted a new boat if he will forget Caresse, then offers Mrs. O'Neill $50,000 for the inn on condition she leave Riverton. The offer is refused.

At a birthday party for Caresse the next night, the village constable appears and informs them a complaint has been signed against them for disturbing the peace.

In court the next day the case is dismissed for lack of prosecution, Teddy forcing his father to drop the matter on the threat to "tell the truth" about the whole affair and the persecution of the O'Neills.

Caresse and Teddy elope, but the car crashes into a wall when Teddy, drunk, loses control.

Teddy is seriously injured, and Caresse loses the friendship of Deering when he smells whisky on her dress and believes she also has been drinking. Edith Leigh, former sweetheart of Deering, is invited by Mrs. Branard to Riverton to be with Teddy during his convalescence.

Caresse and her mother are ostracized by Riverton society because of the affair.

Teddy Branard returns home from the hospital, and Mrs. Branard suggests to Edyth Leigh that she would like to have her capture Teddy's love.

Teddy marries Edyth Leigh and Deering returns to the Shady Lawn inn as boarder.

CHAPTER XV

Considerably against Lee's protests, Caresse the next day took up her duties as his visiting housekeeper. It was not in the least what he had intended when he had asked her to help him get some one, but he could not deny she made him wonderfully comfortable. It was nice, too, to have her around.

As their friendship gradually found its old footing, Caresses spent more time on the hilltop. They found again how much they had in common. And it was not only the music.

They read together, or Lee would read to her as she sat in the shade outside the door mending some garment for him. They strolled through the hills and gathered berries with which Caresse's mother concocted wonderful pies.

"Just as if I were his sister," she told her mother. "He's so kind, Moms."

She was content with that kindness, too, until the new discovery began to dawn on her. Its dawning however, was so slow as to be almost unrecognizable. When the full recognition of what it was did sweep over her, it was with the suddenness and unexpectedness of a cloudburst. And as devastating.

Lee was reading to her while she set to rights the jumbled mass of manuscript and books on his big table. He looked up at her as he laid down the book, and smiled approvingly.

"You'll make a marvelous housekeeper for some man, Caresse," he told her. "Some very lucky man. Now, when I'm married, I'll probably get someone who'l be too busy putting white and red dust on her face, and spending what dust I can raise, to bother much about any dust on the furniture."

"You're thinking of getting married, Lee?" she asked, lightly, teasing.

She was surprised at the dark look that spread over his face; at the seriousness that bore down on him.

"I was thinking of it—once," he acknowledged, slowly.

Then he was silent for a long time, staring out through the open door, as oblivious of Caresse as though she were not there. At last he spoke.

"Love, Caresse," he said, contemplatively, "can be a terrible thing—a devastating thing. If the one you love should prove unworthy, it can play the devil with your whole life. If you let it."

"I know," murmured Caresse.

"I'm not trying to let it play hob with mine," nodded Lee, emphatically. "It's why I say I'll some day be married. I thought I never would, but I've come to the conclusion that would be entirely too much to the taste of the lady who—"

Then was when it swept over Caresse.

Lee married! The idea was overwhelming! With a sharp pang she realized she had known no such appalling feeling when she had known Ted was going to be married.

Her eyes rose to Lee. She watched him as he stared off into the distance, not seeing her. Why, she loved Lee Dearing!

She watched the firm set of his jaw as his teeth were clamped shut. Her glance swept over his long, athletic figure. She knew, without seeing it then, the look in his gray eyes. His dear eyes!

She caught her breath with a stifled sob as she knew what it was that had happened to her. She turned her back to him to try to get control of herself. It would never do for Lee Deering to know how she felt about him. He must not know!

She heard him still speaking, almost as if he were speaking as much to himself as to her. The blood was pounding in her ears.

"Yes, Caresse, there was one wedding recently that meant a lot to you and to me. And neither of us was present. Oh, well, I suppose all we can do is to be good sports and wish them happiness."

He arose and strolled to the door, hands clasped behind him in his familiar, thoughtful attitude. Caresse's heart ached for him—for the pain she saw he was suffering. It ached a little for herself, too, at the realization of what had come to her, and her belief that her love for Lee Deering was hopeless.

"You mean," she asked, hesitantly, "you mean that you loved—"

"Edythe Leigh? Yes, Caresse. Didn't you know? I was once engaged to her. I loved her. I'm afraid I love her yet. But I never want to see her again."

With Lee's words ringing in her ears, Caresse was going thoughtfully homeward, when a car passed her on the little-used back road. It passed swiftly, but she saw who was at the wheel.

"Edythe Leigh!" she exclaimed to herself, with a gasp of astonishment. "Ted's wife! And she's going to be Lee's! O-oh!"

She knew that Edythe had not recognized her. The eyes of the bride had not been turned from the road, and she was intent on something ahead of her.

What should Caresse do? Should she go back? Lee had said he never wanted to see Edythe again, and there she was—

The roar of another car coming swiftly, caught her attention. In a swift glance she recognized another Branard car. That was Teddy beside the chauffeur, her keen eyes

The Record News Offers a Booklet on Housecleaning Made Easier

How to make housecleaning simpler and easier and at the same time get full service from the materials used in the furnishing and care of the house, are discussed in this bulletin. The scarcity of labor and the high cost of materials have made these questions increasingly important to the housekeeper.

The methods suggested by the government experts are based on the well-tested experience of practical housekeepers and on the result of scientific studies in saving labor in the household. Attempt has been made to explain the reason behind the methods described, and to give definite, concise directions that any one can follow.

M'KELVIE RAPS BOARD CRITICS

Distribution of Circulars Brings Attack

WASHINGTON, May 14. (INS)—Distribution of circulars among grain elevators and farmers in Nebraska relative to the grain marketing program of the federal farm board, today drew fire of Sam R. McKelvie, wheat member of the board.

In making public a letter to Fred A. Marsh, regent of the University of Nebraska, McKelvie said:

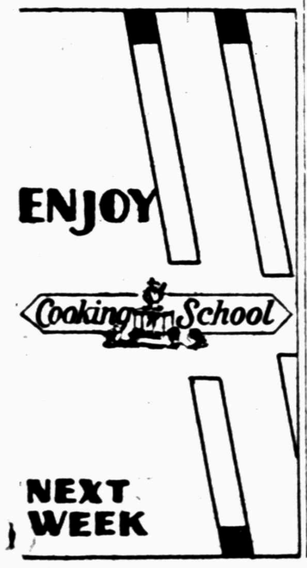

"The question is, who is responsible for these attacks and who is paying for their circulation."

Marsh is said to have been the author of a full page advertisement published in the Central City, Neb. Republican under date of April 3, entitled: "The Farm Board—The Chain Store; the American Farmer; the Three-way Sword." Representative Howard, Democrat of Nebraska, had this advertisement inserted in the Congresional Record.

McKelvie called attention to the strange anomaly of a regent of the State University of Nebraska, an institution that receives federal funds to promote education and practice in improved methods of farming and marketing, who places himself squarely in opposition to another agency of the government that is designed to do the same thing.

"I might better have expected that such out-pourings would emanate from the United States Chamber of Commerce," McKelvie added.

A collection of 4,000 books on cookery, gastronomy and dietics has been given to the New York Academy of Medicine.

CARESSE

told her. What was he doing, following Edythe?

A moment more she hesitated. Should she go back? No, she could only make matters worse, if there were trouble. She stepped out into the road and started for home.

Lee had just taken up his hat and stepped out of the house to go down the hill to his supper at the inn. He paused on the flat door-stone as a car swept into his private road and started up his hill. He frowned with annoyance. He did not wish to see anyone.

He was too astonished to speak when the car drew up before his door with a flourish, and he recognized Edythe. She waved at him gaily as she shut off the power. She leaped lightly out.

"Greetings, Lee!" she called, blithely. "Well, here I am! Back again."

He backed away from her as she came toward him.

"Well! A fine way to welcome a friend who's come all this way to see you, I must say! Just because I'm married, must I take the veil?"

"We can't be friends, Edythe," said Lee, firmly.

Edythe laughed lightly and started to answer. The sound of a car coming furiously up the hill startled her. She whirled about to see Teddy clumbing out of the car as it came to a stop.

"My dear husband," she said, softly sarcastic. "Couldn't bear to have me out of his sight, could he?" She shrugged carelessly.

Ted was shaking his cane as he hobbled hurriedly toward them. His face was red with anger.

"What are you doing here, Edythe?" he demanded, hoarsely. "And you!" He turned on Lee. "You wife-stealer! I knew you had arranged for a meeting—"

"I didn't ask her to come," declared Lee, calmly, "I didn't want her to come."

"No?" sneered Ted. "Think you can make a fool of me, do you? Think I'm blind? Hmmph! Know whose picture she had in her dressing-case during our honeymoon? Not mine! Yours! You four-flushing piano pounder!"

Teddy was shaking with rage. Lee looked at him coolly, and smiled cynically.

"Edythe always did have rather good taste in art," he commented.

Edythe moved toward Ted, and stamped her foot impatiently.

"Oh, Ted, for goodness sake!" she cried, petulantly. "What in the world's the matter with you? Just because I married you, do you think you can tell me I can't see or talk to an old friend—"

Ted strode to her menacingly, and grasped her by the arm.

"Let go of my arm!" she spat at him.

He grasped it tighter.

"Get into that car!" he demanded. "You're going home; And you!"—he might have been the stern embodiment of his uncompromising father as he shook his cane in Lee's face—"You! If I ever see or hear of you seeing my wife, again, I—I'll shoot you!"

"Rot!" sneered Edythe.

Lee's shoulders shrugged, but he did not give an inch.

"Suits me," he said, laconically. "Keep her home."

"Bye, Lee!" she called, gaily. "See you some more!"

"No!" said Lee, his jaws clinched. "You won't!"

Her heart filled to overflowing with sympathy for Lee, and fear for herself because of her newly-discovered love for him. Caresse watched him eat his supper in silence. His face was white and set. She knew he had been through an upsetting scene.

What had happened? She dared not ask him, nor let him know she suspected. And Lee offered no word to say he had seen Edythe.

SENATE FAVORS POISON 'ALKY'

Vote Upholds Method of Denaturing

WASHINGTON, May 14. (US)—After hearing the practive denounced as barbaric the senate today voted 53 to 19 to retain the present method of poisoning industrial alcohol.

The amendment seeking to prohibit the poisoning was offered by Senator Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland to the pending bill transferring the enforcement unit from the treasury department to the justice department.

Tydings said the retention of poison alcohol put congress on record as favoring the death sentence for dry law violators. He offered a substitute formula to make liquor unpalatable without being deadly.

First efforts to amend the bill, which has strong administration backing, proved unavailing. By a vote of 61 to 11, the senate rejected an amendment giving the attorney general joint supervision over alcohol permits with the secretary of the treasury.

Users of industrial alcohol generally desired to see this power lodged in the treasury department exclusively.

The transfer of the prohibition unit was branded as an unfortunate move to turn the justice department away from its primary duties by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts. He was joined by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, who predicted that administration of the dry law would bring the department into disrepute.

The bill provides that control of industrial alcohol shall remain in the treasury department. Walsh pointed out only 2,500 employes, engaged in enforcement activities will be transferred to the justice department, while about 3,000 employes, engaged in the permit sections, will remain with the treasury.

Municipal Museum Plans Launched At Meeting of Junior Chamber

Directors of the Junior chamber of commerce definitely adopted plans for the establishment of a municipal museum on the second floor of the Industrial Mart building at the regular bi-monthly meeting held Wednesday night.

Organization of a museum has been under consideration by the Junior chamber of commerce for several weeks as an institution which has long been wanted in Wichita Falls and which can be developed to advantage in connection with the industrial display recently established.

Plans adopted Wednesday night call for the construction of substantial, fire-proofed cases in which relics, documents, pictures, etc., may be displayed and properly safe-guarded. Expectations for a large collection of interesting articles are based upon numerous offers made variously during the past few months to loan privately owned specimens for such a purpose. It was said that many families in the city have valuable and rare items of historic interest for which a safe and advantageous place of exhibition would be welcomed.

Exhibits Available

One of the exhibits already assured for the museum, it was said, is a collection of coins belonging to Bentley Bacon. The collection was started by his father, O. T. Bacon, the first mayor of Wichita Falls, and has been extensively increased. For the natural history section, it was said, Franklin Henderson will supply bones of a man-eating shark. Bones of a pre-historic mastodon, said to have been unearthed years ago in this city, also may be available for the museum, it was indicated.

According to information given Wednesday night, one section in the museum probably will be devoted to relics brought back by world war veterans from the battlefields of France—and the homes of Germany. One of the first entries is a German rifle, to be placed in the case by Gus Hecht. Another section will be devoted to paintings; and one department will be developed for geological specimens. Any residents of this or nearby communities wishing to loan articles of any kind for exhibition in the museum are urged to get in touch with the Junior chamber of commerce.

P. R. Freeman, formerly an alternate-director, was elected Wednesday night as a director, and J. A. Richker was named alternate-director in Mr. Freeman's stead.

Trip Approved

Approval of the goodwill trip planned for May 28 to Quanah and return was voted, and efforts of the directors pledged to assist in obtaining a delegation of 200 persons for that event.

It was reported that additional exhibitors for the Industrial Mart are being added to the original list, the total number now approaching 50.

Mr. Freeman stated that he has placed 10 head of registered Jersey cows, brought from South Texas, on the Junior chamber of commerce demonstration farm as permanent dairy stock for that enterprise. Numerous visitors from various cities in Northeast Texas already have inspected the farm, it was said. The directors voted to place signs on the highways leading into this city directing visitors to the demonstration plat.

Wilburn Page, who will assume the office of secretary of the Junior chamber of commerce on May 16, met with the directors Wednesday night, familiarizing himself with the current program of the organization.

CAVE MAY HOLD MISSING GIRL

Searchers Drag River for Body of Maid

ALABAMA, Ark., May 14. (INS)—Although all hope has been abandoned that Ruth Holland, 17, may be alive in the mouth of a cave on the King river near here where a boat in which she was riding with three others capsized five days ago, searchers today continued their efforts to at least find the body of the girl.

Behind the search lies a story of heroism of the girl's father, Hugh Holland, who rescued three of the occupants of the boat when it capsized in 18 feet of water.

The father, who narrowly escaped death in the swirling waters near the mouth of the cave, made three trips into the water, rescuing Virginia and Irene Holland, 9 and 11, cousins of Ruth, and Lois Lindsey, 10, all of Alabama.

He then failed in his desperate effort to save Ruth.

Today divers have descended into the water, which has reached flood stage, and dragnets are being used in the lowlands downstream from the scene of the tragedy.

Relatives of Ruth still express hope that the girl may have found her way to the ledge inside the cave and may be found alive when the flood waters recede.

Heart Attack Fatal To Edward F. Frank

ST. LOUIS, May 14. (INS)—Edward L. Frank, booking agent, narrowly escaped a murder plot in Kansas City four years ago, only to drop dead in a theater lobby here last night. Death was said to be due to heart disease. Frank had seven cents on his person.

Frank came here in 1926 after exposure of the sensational plot in which his beautiful wife, Alberdina, and Carl Davis, a grocer, unwittingly hired a detective to shoot him with Frank's $60,000 life insurance their objective. Alberdina and Carl were sentenced to the penitentiary but later were freed by the supreme court.

Ten Millions Just First 'Ante' In Building of Mammoth Dam

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Director, Record News Information Bureau

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Work is to begin this summer on the greatest of all river dams, the greatest of all power projects, the greatest of all irrigation developments—Boulder dam. After years of controversy over plans, over water rights, over control, and over distribution of benefits, contracts have at length been signed and as soon as congress makes available an initial appropriation of $10,000,000 actual work will begin. This is merely a preliminary sum, a sort of ante, to pay for the first scratching of the surface. Before the dam is completed $165,000,000 will have been spent.

The wonders to be worked by this project can only be imagined because nothing of equal magnitude has been attempted before. On the basis of achievements on a smaller scale, however, some idea of the benefits to accrue can be comprehended.

"Outlaw" River

The Colorado river is the stream to be dammed and Boulder canyon is the location of the artificial obstruction which is to impound the stream flow. The Colorado is an outlaw among rivers. The Grand canyon is the most famous result of its pranks. Refusing to be stopped by mountain barriers it wore its way through, leaving ragged walls as red as though stained with the blood of combat. Its moods vary, although they are mostly turbulent. Many times in the past it has swept in flood through its lower reaches, burst its banks and inundated wide spaces, careless whether they were desert or cultivated by man. Where it empties into the gulf of Lower California it meets a tidal bore. The force of the incoming tides meeting the force of the Colorado's current creates such a troubling of the waters that they fume and roar in utter disorder. There is no navigation of this stream. It cannot be entered even at its mouth.

This is the stream which Uncle Sam now sets about harnessing. It is no more than natural that so unruly a watercourse should require a dam structure and disposal project heretofore unequalled in magnitude.

An Unusual Dam Site

Boulder dam is to be constructed in Boulder canyon. This narrow gorge which the outlaw river has cut through solid rock in the course of centuries looks like some fabulous valley of the moon or a landscape from the inferno. But the very strangeness of the deep-cleft canyon makes it possible to trap the stream.

The dam builders will fill this gap with a gargantuan wall of cement. The fact that the Colorado had cut its pathway so deeply into the rugged surface of the earth at this place has made it feasible to imprison it. At this point the outlaw river has walked into a trap.

The dam will be located about 100 miles north of Needles in a mountainous and desolate country. On one bank is the triangle point of Nevada; on the other Arizona. It is a haggard country and, in the vicinity of Boulder canyon, little can be done in the way of irrigation. Down below Needles small fertile valleys open out here and there and water will be diverted to irrigate them. But the greatest benefit of the life-bringing water will not be felt until the flow turns westward and reaches the Imperial Valley of California, some 200 to 250 miles from the dam.

Rich Soil

The Imperial valley, a desert when dependent solely on rainfall, has a soil capable of producing enormously and variously under irrigation. It now supports a population of 60,000 farmers but when the water comes, from 400,000 to 500,000 can garner wealth from the luxuriant vegetation which will spring.

The easterner who has never beheld the effects of irrigation on the desert is always astounded. Take a given tract of land right out on the desert. Water it regularly and almost every known form of vegetation will grow in riotous profusion. Then observe the unwatered land adjacent. It is almost as hard as a street pavement, a glaring yellow in color, hot to the touch, and innocent of growth save for hostile-appearing cactus plants. The astonishing fact is that the line between the luxuriant irrigated growth and the dry desert is as sharp as though marked by a trowel. A fraction of an inch at one side grows rich grass; on the other side, nothing but the stark yellow earth. On the irrigated land grow orange trees, lemon trees, date palms, fig trees, the olive, the graceful cottonwood, and cotton, wheat, corn, alfalfa, with every sort of delicate green vegetable. The abundance of flowers is overwhelming. So rich is this land that a 10-acre farm, under irrigation, is adequate to insure the owner a good living. Early lettuce, asparagus, tomatoes, every sort of table vegetable grows here all the year 'round. The grapefruit of this section are regarded as superior to those of the citrus groves of Florida or of western California.

Largest Cement Dam in World

The water will be carried on across the Imperial Valley to Los Angeles and will irrigate thousands of acres in that region. The Los Angeles district now is capable of supporting a population of some 3,000,000 on the basis of existing water facilities. When the water from the Boulder dam is added there will be ample to serve the needs of up to 10,000,000 people.

The Boulder dam is to be 575 feet high, 20 feet higher than the Washington monument. It will be the largest cement dam in the entire world. The design calls for a structure somewhat similar to the much smaller Roosevelt dam in Arizona which waters the Salt River valley. It will be in the form of an arch lying on its side; that is, the dam will curve upstream, the feet of the arch being fastened to the sides of the canyon. A highway will cross the top of the dam. This is a new road to be built for transcontinental motor travel.

An enormous amount of power will be developed from the fall of the water. This will be distributed through public utility agencies and the entire region down to the Mexican border and over to the west coast will be electrified. A price of only 1.63 mills per kilowatt hour has been fixed by the government contracts. In 50 years the sale of this power will return every cent of expense in construction of the dam. So, at the end of half a century the dam will have cost the American tax payers nothing because interest will be paid.

Flood Control

In addition enormous new wealth will be produced below the dam as the result of irrigation. The periodic floods of the Colorado will be regulated by the impounding of the water and the millions of dollars of damage they have done in the past will be saved.

The dam will impound a lake of sparkling mountain water 110 miles long, 10 miles wide, and from 400 to 500 feet deep. The pressure on the dam will be enormous. Some idea of what this pressure is can be obtained from a tragic incident at the Elephant Butte dam in New Mexico. The water falls down through the interior of such a dam, turning energy-generating machinery, and then discharges, to flow on down to the irrigation ditches. It spouts through great round openings with tremendous force. To facilitate this discharge it is necessary to let air in behind the water. A large vent was provided for this at the Elephant Butte dam. Soon after the water was turned on when this project was new, two workmen approached the air vent. Instantly they were snatched by the in-rushing current, slapped up against the grille covering the air vent and, still sucked tightly against it, later were found dead.

Mail Order Houses Quit Paying Freight

CHICAGO, May 14. (UP)—Montgomery Ward and company and Sears Roebuck and company, two of the nation's largest mail order houses, have agreed to discontinue the prepaying of freight charges, officials of the two organizations said today.

The reason for their change in policy, they said, was because of different freight rates on different articles and varying freight rates between various points. Because of this wide variance the officials said the problem became one which was too much for them to handle.

IT JUST DOESN'T SEEM RIGHT . . .

(and it's really unnecessary)—that after clothes are clean you should have to rinse and rinse and rinse to get out part of the stuff that was in the soap. It is annoying. But the answer is that when you bought your soap, you got more than soap. You got "filler"—useless matter added to bring up the weight. So you have to rinse away the filler.

There's no such problem when you use White King. It's all pure soap, condensed, scientifically made from high-grade vegetable oils—no filler added. When you see how richly it lathers, how thoroughly it cleans, and how quickly it rinses away, you'll appreciate what that means.

You can use White King Granulated Soap for everything—from lingerie to blankets, dishes to shampoos. And a little goes a long, long way. Try it today. Sold by your grocer.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.
(Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Be Careful With Your Starch Combinations

The term, carbohydrate, includes both sugars and starches, but in arranging food combinations it is important that we distinguish between the two. The majority of people use far more starch than their bodies require. A small amount of starch can be converted by the body into a form of sugar which it can use in performing work and keeping warm, but an excess only produces fermentation, stomach acidity, biliousness, and leads to such diseases as tonsilitis, stomach trouble, skin eruptions and liver disorders.

It is not necessary for us to eat starch, as all of the elements which it contains can be found in the fruit sugars and proteins. I have found better results with sick people by eliminating starch from the diet until they regain their health. Starch may be used in moderate amounts by healthy people providing they will take the pains of properly masticating it so that the saliva has an opportunity to thoroughly mix with the starch before the latter enters the stomach.

Starches should never be used at the same meal with acid foods and seldom with proteins. The use of acids with the starches seems to prevent the thorough digestion of them, and excess fermentation is usually the result.

Starches include all of the cereal products, bananas, peas, dried beans, tapioca, sago, potatoes and most of the fully developed root tubers.

When you do use starches it is good to use only one kind at a meal and this should be combined with only the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No fruits of any kind, not even tomatoes, should be used with a starchy meal. When starch is used with tomatoes and meat, as this mixture passes out of the stomach, both the meat and tomatoes stimulate the flow of gastric juice which has no digestive element in it that can in any way convert the starch. On the other hand, the excess of the gastric juice is mixed with the starch and makes it less liable to digest in the intestines where the principal change in starch takes place. An exception to the starch rule is wholewheat muffins, which may be used in small amounts with a protein meal by those in good health. Another exception is starches which have been thoroughly toasted, or dextrinized, making them less liable to ferment and, therefore, may be eaten in small quantities with any other food.

Some foods, such as navy beans, are such a bad mixture of starch and protein in themselves that excess fermentation always occurs when they are eaten. Those with strong digestive power will be able to withstand the effects of such a mixture for a long time, but it is bound to react upon them eventually and finally produce serious consequences. The best way, then, is to use only one kind of starchy food at a time and use it in combination with the different non-starchy vegetables, both in the cooked and raw form. The following combinations will give you some idea as to how you can combine these foods.

No. 1. Wholewheat muffins, cooked carrots and string beans, lettuce salad.

No. 2. Baked potatoes, cooked summer squash, salad of raw grated carrots and lettuce.

No. 3. Boiled whole rice, cooked asparagus and carrots, raw spinach salad.

Tomorrow: More about combinations.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Scarletina

Question—Mrs. R. writes: "I enjoy reading your articles, and I would like for you to state the symptoms of scarletina—how long the rash stays, and how long before the skin starts to peel. Is it dangerous to be around a sick person?"

Answer—The early symptoms of scarletina are chills, high fever, sore throat and vomiting. The disease takes from a few hours to a week to incubate. Small rash papules soon coalesce into a uniform scarlet inflammation, developing first on the head, face, wrists and abdomen and spreading quickly over the rest of the body. The eruptions will last from seven to 10 days, and the disease from two to three weeks. The disease is highly contagious and remains so until the skin has stopped scaling. Some of the usual complications of scarlet fever are inflammation of the kidneys, inflammation of the ears, and rheumatism. The recovery is slow unless the right treatment is used. I believe the patient should not be given any food except citrus juices and water until the skin has stopped peeling. Patient should be kept in bed, with the room shaded, and if fever is too high, cold sponge baths may be used. The patient should also be given enemas several times daily.

Softening Water

Question—S. C. W. asks: "Will you please advise me if sea salt has any properties that are more beneficial than rock or table salt when used in bathing? And which is better to soften hard water—washing soda, borax or epsom salts?"

Answer—Sea salt is no more beneficial than the ordinary table salt. Borax is usually the best substance to use to soften hard water.

Wichita Falls, Texas.

Gentlemen:

We have recently concluded in a most successful manner "National Ward Week" in Wichita Falls. Because we carried the majority of our advertising on Ward Week in the Times and Record News we are sure you will be interested in the results of this merchandising event.

On a quota basis the Wichita Falls Montgomery Ward & Company Store was first in the Texas Territory. While we had real values to offer, and a complete stock, such outstanding success could not have been secured unless we had told the north Texas and Southern Oklahoma Public about it in the right way.

The Daily Times and Record News evidently was the right way.

Again our belief in the result producing power of your papers has been justified. Our hearty thanks for the great part you played in putting over this successful event.

With best wishes for your continued success and our pleasant relation, we are,

Very truly yours,

SPUDDERS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER WITH BEAUMONT SHIPPERS

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Young Temple Harris, the Spudder outfield prodigy, Carroll Burrows, first sacker, and George Nebel, center gardener, who were farmed out by Prexy Huff to the Springfield, Mo., club of the Western association, are having great times over in those parts, according to reports filtering back to the Spudder offices.

Last Wednesday, for instance, the Springfield club won a double bill from the Fort Smith, Ark., club, principally with the aid of lusty slugging on the part of Harris and Nebel. Speaking of the second game, press reports from Springfield said: "Nebel's second double and T. Harris' triple clinched the verdict although the Marr brigade filled the bases with only one out."

Burrows, in the two games, got three hits in six times up, one of them a double. Nebel, in eight times up, got three hits, two of them doubles, and two runs. Harris, in seven times up, got two hits, one of them a triple, and two runs. Harris has been assigned regular duty in left field, but on account of his versatility is used often at third base, the reports said.

The next day after these two battles was an even greater day for the Wichita Falls element of the Springfield nine. Nebel was the hero. In the game with Independence on that day George led his side's attack with a home run, a triple, and a single.

All in all, it looks like the Spudders have some good material up there in the Middle West, and more than likely Wichita Falls fans will be given an exhibition by the youngsters ere many months pass.

Incidentally, Prexy Huff has received word that Roland Flinn, right-hand hurler from Maine who was sent to Augusta, Ga., is doing well there. Word came in that Flinn, in a recent game, allowed only six hits, and struck out eight men.

These reports concerning future Spudders are interesting. The newspapers carrying them appear to be convinced the players of whom they write are quite the stuff. Indeed, the Springfield sports scribe does very well, but he commits a very common fault. He has so far neglected to spell Mr. George Nebel's name correctly. In the Springfield paper, George is called Mr. Nevel. It is a glaring error, and should be corrected.

This fault, as we said, is common. Sports editors all o'er the land have an utter disregard for the spelling of players' names. Take Jinx Tucker, our bombastic Waco friend. To this day he spells it Gottlieber, when the Waco third sacker's real name is minus the "i," thusly, Gottleber.

These errors are sometimes the result of sheer laziness on the part of sports scribes, but should they be called on the carpet for spelling the players' names in just any way it is easy to foretell the alibi the scribes would put up. The alibi, to wit: that the men who make possible the great allegedly American pastime have such awful names that to spell them correctly is to be a second Webster. Indeed, it does seem a parody that we refer to our daily ball game as strictly an American affair, when the lineups on the box scores plainly show such names as Gottleber, Hodapp, Fonseca, Thormahlen, Wachtel, Narlesky, Bluege and Jablanowski.

Panthers Win Out Over Indians in 12 Innings

SAN ANTONIO, May 14. (AP)—Larry Cox's three base wallop scoring two runs with two down after Red Farrell dropped a thrown ball broke up a 12-inning pitchers' duel between Jim Chapman and Henry Hardaway as the Fort Worth Panthers won the rubber game of the series of three Wednesday, 4 to 2. Score:

France Pushed For Ace Talent On Hard Courts

PARIS, May 14. (AP)—The absence of Henri Cochet and Rene Lacoste from the entries for the French International Hard Court Tennis championship opening here May 19, leaves Jean Borotra virtually alone in the task of carrying the tricolor to victory.

Fear has arisen that for the first time in several years the French title may go to a foreigner, as it went in 1923 to "Little Bill" Johnston.

The formidable list of players to represent other countries, the French organizers feel, demands the best possible French talent. Cochet, however, finds himself "too busy" to play, and Lacoste's poor health is expected to keep him out of tennis all season.

If William T. Tilden sees fit to participate the foreign threat will be considerably intensified. With the two French starts out, Tilden would be considered here an even bet against the field.

Such countries as Australia, with Crawford, Hopman and Willard; Japan, presenting Harada, Ohta, Abe and Satoh; and England, with Austin, Gregory, Collins and Lee, will give the French champion ships a broad international aspect. Any of these men conceivably might reach the finals.

WILTSE WINS FIRST, 1 TO 0

And Spuds Drop Second by Same Score

Special to The Record News

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 14.—After two days of inactivity forced upon them by rainstorms in this section, the Wichita Falls Spudders and the Beaumont Exporters went after it like refreshed little boys today and staged one of the most sensational exhibitions ever seen here, splitting a double-header, 1 to 0 and 0 to 1.

Hal Wiltse was credited with his third shut-out of the season by winning the first game. Wiltse allowed only three hits, while his mates were collecting 11 off D. Burns, In the second game, Steengrafe pitched great ball, allowing, like Wiltse, only three hits. The Spudder attack was weaker in the second fracas, however, Martin, Steengrafe's opposition, also allowing only three bingles.

Wade, Beaumont center fielder, won the second game for the Exporters with his home run.

The games today left Wichita Falls and Houston tied for first place in the league standings, Houston winning from Shreveport, 6 to 4. The second Houston-Shreveport game was rained out.

Spudder Hits Scattered

The first game was an air-tight affair featured by heavy hitting on the part of the Spudders, although Burns succeeded in keeping their 11 bingles well scattered. It was a neck and neck pitchers' duel between Wiltse and Burns.

The Spudders pushed over their winning, and only, run in the seventh inning. The eventful frame was given a start when Wiltse grounded out, short to first. Levey popped out to third. Storti cut loose with a single to right. Fitzgerald then singled in the same direction, Storti taking second. Kloza saved the day when he doubled to right, scoring Storti and sending Fitzgerald to third. Burns left Fitzgerald stranded on the paths when he grounded out, pitcher to first, to close the inning.

Wiltse pitched masterful ball, allowing the Exporter bats to swat nothing worth over two bases, and only one good enough for that. Beaumont's three hits were made by Easterling, who singled in the second; Baker, who singled in the third; and Mullen, who made a threat in the ninth with his double. The threat was formidable, and only quick defensive work kept the Spudder heads above water. Shiver, who followed Mullen grounded to third and Mullen was tagged out by Storti, who ran the runner down between second and third. Shiver tried to make second on the play, but Storti threw hard to Levey, who covered second, and Shiver was thrown out. This closed the inning, as Eckhardt, who batted for Stapleton, swung at it for the first out.

Wade Wins Game

The second game was a repetition of the first, with Beaumont making the single tally of the game, and with Steengrafe and Martin staging the pitchers' duel. Kloza doubled to right in the second, and took third on Irving Burns' sacrifice, but Bettencourt and Bradbury were retired in order. Kloza got a hit again in the fourth, singling to left, but was thrown out at second trying to stretch it.

In the last half of the fourth Beaumont's winning run was made by Wade, who lifted a home run over the left field fence.

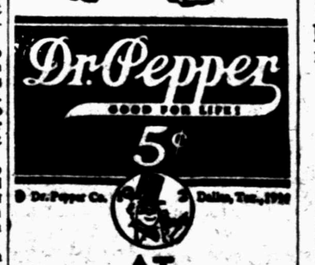

The Spudders came their nearest to scoring in the sixth. Steengrafe swung at it. Levey singled to center and went to second when Wade let it get by him. Storti sacrificed, and Levey took third. Fitzgerald left him there, however, when he grounded out, pitcher to first. Beaumont was held scoreless in their half of the sixth despite Easterling's single to left, but Martin likewise smothered the Spudders in the seventh, and the game was over.

BUFFS DEFEAT SPORTS, 6 TO 4

Hunt Has Great Day; Second Game Rained Out

HOUSTON, May 14. (AP)—Hunt, Buff center fielder had a big day today and Houston beat Shreveport, 6 to 4. Hunt figured vitally in the victory. In three official trips to the plate he drove out a triple, a double and a single. He knocked in two runs and scored two himself. He stole two bases and made a miraculous catch in center field. The last two innings of the game were played in a drizzle and a torrential rain washed out all hope of playing the second game. Score:

Hitter Breaks Tie; Mates Later Groan

ST. LOUIS, May 14. (AP)—Not often does it later call forth moans from his team when a batter slugs one over the outfield stands.

The homer of Del Bissonette, Brooklyn first baseman, was a welcome one at the time, too. In a recent game between the Robins and the St. Louis, the big slugger broke up a 4-4 tie, with his clout.

He sprained his ankle in rounding first base, however, and had to be supplanted by Harvey Hendrick.

The same inning the Robins broke through with three more runs, and behind the smooth pitching of Watson Clark, Bissonette's injury-making homer was not needed.

The Robins were particularly perturbed through anxiety to present full strength on the first western invasion.

GO IN FOR "SALTY" HUMOR

HELIGOLAND, May 14. (AP)—The wettest crew is the winner of the annual spring race here. In old boats—the condition is that they are leaky—the sturdy young fishermen row two miles to a nearby island, "the Dune," and the most waterlogged boat gets the prize.

FRENCH GIANT SCOFFS AT CARNERA

415-Pounder of Paris Wants to Take on Primo

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, May 14.—Fernand Contat is very, very sorry that Primo Carnera's great American treasure hunt appears to be almost ended. For the banning of the Man Mountain of Italy from the prize rings of two states doubtless will cast giantism into considerable disrepute among the boxing fans. This being the case, Fernand Contat may just as well go back to his French carnival company and forget about the fortunes which once were available in the prize fight push-over business.

Fernand, you may have guessed, is a pretty big boy. In fact, looking down from his altitude of 7 feet, 8 inches, he will tell you that the ponderous Primo is only a pygmy. He insists that if he were placed in a prize ring, there just wouldn't be room for anybody else. Fernand also is willing—and anxious—to pick on Primo first, as the man nearest approaching his own size.

Weighs 415 Pounds

The Frenchman is a physical freak who, like Primo Carnera in his pre-barnstorming days, goes in for exhibitions in itinerant circuses. When down to "working weight," though he can find little work to do, he whirls the scales to 415 pounds and his wrist, proportionately, is slim. Possessed of as much courage as he has brute strength, he naturally is green-eyed over the profits and publicity that Carnera has cornered.

The French boy, who still is filling out at 28, is particularly scornful about the feet that have made Carnera famous. Journel, former boxer who discovered Carnera, always claimed that he tracked him down by following gigantic footprints in the mud and that Carnera was barefoot because he could find no shoes to fit him. But Fernand says that his shoe would make Carnera's look like Cinderella's slipper.

Then, as to eating, another claim to Carnera greatness: Fernand says there would be nothing to it if they were matched. He modestly pointed out that, like all good Frenchmen, he breakfasts lightly. But instead of being satisfied with one cake, he eats three dozen. At other meals, his normal nourishment would put Primo completely out of form.

Drinks Cocktails in Beer Glasses

He likes a few cocktails before dinner, and has them served in beer glasses. A loaf of bread split in half lengthwise, makes him a fairly substantial sandwich. A leg of lamb put before him is handled very informally, like a chicken drumstick. M. Contat receives very litle money from his circus engagements, but since he also gets his board, room and clothing, he considers himself very well paid.

Everything, of course, has to be made especially for him, with about twice the usual amount of material. Nobody wants him for a boarder—even the boarders themselves, for Fernand easily can reach the entire length of a dining table. The cafes, however, find him excellent publicity and seldom charge him more than the regular amounts for meals and steins of wine or cocktails.

As for boxing, M. Contat doesn't claim to know very much. But neither does Carnera, he growls, pointing to the decision of the California State Athletic commission after the Oakland fiasco. He certainly can outreach the Italian, and believes he can outshove him if they ever meet.

"I can learn more about the boxing game, too," said Fernand. "Enough to take care of myself with ease, I think. But this Carnera that they think is so big—ah, I wish the rich Americans would give us a chance to perform together."

Here you see Fernand Contat, giant Frenchman, standing in the center of a group of ordinary sized people. Contat's greatest desire is to battle Primo Carnera, the huge Italian boxer whose ring appearances in this country have attracted so much attention.

N. B. A. Recommends Indefinite Suspension of Italy's Alp

CHICAGO, May 14. (UP)—Recommendation that Primo Carnera and his four managers, Leon See, William Duffy, Walter Friedman and Frank Churchill, be suspended indefinitely by the National Boxing commission, was forwarded today to President Stanley Isaacs of Cincinnati, by a committee appointed to investigate the Italian heavyweight's American appearances.

"After an exhaustive investigation," said the report sent by Gen. John V. Clinnin of the Illinois Athletic commission and chairman of the committee, "the committee believes there has been a definite conspiracy to defraud and recommends that for the best interests of boxing and the public that Carnera and his managers be suspended indefinitely."

The suspension, which President Isaacs is expected to order immediately, will be effective in 28 states. The only main boxing centers not affected would be New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. New York already has suspended the huge Italian.

The report was several thousand words long and covered every fight Carnera engaged in while touring the United States.

"We are of the one conclusion," the finding stated, "that P. T. Barnum was correct in his analysis of the American public. It likes to be fooled.

"Total gate receipts of $375,105 were paid by a guillible public to witness exhibitions in which little attention was paid to the fitness of the Italian giant's opponents."

FREAKS SIGNED TO STAGE BOUT

Carnera and Godfrey to Clash June 23

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, May 14. (UP)—The ultimate in fistic exhibitions (from several points of view) has been arranged for the Phillies' ball park, June 23, when Primo Carnera and George Godfrey, representing between them more than 500 pounds of something, will meet in a 10-round bout.

If it comes off, this should be one for the book, for two more oddly matched performers it would be impossible to find. Primo has been trained to push over his opponents, Godfrey to hold his up. In each case, the arrangements have been necessary, and generally recognized.

Two Boxers Signed

Herman Taylor and Bobby Gunnis, Philadelphia promoters, announced today the signing of the Gargantuan gondolier and the black menace of Lieperville and unless the California ban against Carnera is extended to Pennsylvania, there is no reason to suppose the bout will not take place.

It should be a masterpiece, from every point of view. The Venetian has never met an even third-rate opponent in this country, while Godfrey seldom meets a first-rate for the reason that he could, if not "hand-cuffed," tear his man to pieces. There is little doubt that the Leiperville negro is the potential heavyweight champion of the world, forever barred because of his color.

Carnera is a clown, a circus strong man, who couldn't keep his feet with young Willie Stribling in two fights abroad.

Primo reminds one of a playful puppy when in action; Godfrey, a slumbrous crocodile. If Carnera's opponents don't go down from sheer fright before his first awkward rushes some one has to throw in a towel to keep the Italian out in front. As for Godfrey, he seldom gets an opportunity to fight these days unless it is understood he will be under wraps.

Big Gate Expected

One cannot picture Carnera making any impression upon the powerful, impervious Godfrey, and if Gawge is permitted to cut loose and can work himself out of his accustomed lethargy they will be picking up pieces of Primo for miles around.

Such is the gullibility of the American fight fan, however, the bout should draw the largest gate known in Philadelphia fight circles since the Dempsey-Tunney affair four years ago.

Jack Dillon, former light heavyweight champion, now 45, is reported fighting in armories and at fight clubs.

Robins Defeat Reds, 7 to 4, Advancing To Third Place in National League

CINCINNATI, May 14. (AP)—Adolfo Luque, the veteran Cuban who pitched for Cincinnati 14 seasons, went against his old mates today and hurled the Brooklyn Robins into third place in the National league standing with a 7 to 4 victory over the Reds.

Luque pitched a good game, allowing the Reds only nine hits and keeping them well scattered, except in the first inning. He received a large amount of assistance from Glenn Wright, who hit a home run, two triples and a single in four times at bat, scored two runs and drove in another.

Wright's homer tied the score at 3-3after the Reds had bunched four hits in the opening frame fro two runs. In the sixth, Johnny Frederick drove the ball into the right field bleachers with two on base to give the Robins a safe lead. Bob Meusel outdid the others in hard hitting in the same inning with a homer that did not stop until it struck a wall on the far side of York street, beyond the left field wall.

Rixey started the game for the Reds, but was taken out after he had allowed 12 hits in six innings. Ray Kolp finished. Score:

YOUTH HAILED AS GOLF STAR

Alabaman First American to Lead Oxonians

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 14. (AP)—Bobby Baugh of Birmingham, 22-year-old captain of the Oxford university golf team that administered a crushing defeat to Cambridge at Hoylake recently, is about ready to step into the foreground of the American golf picture.

His victory over Eric Prain, the Cambridge leader, and his fine play in the foursomes featured the first Oxford triumph over its old rival in four years, but was not the first time the Alabaman has attracted attention.

He has been little short of a golfing sensation at Oxford since he first sent the ball over British fairways. Immediately elected a member of the team, he won medal honors and the university championship. He is the first American to captain the Oxonians.

Bobby's golfing history is similar to that of another Dixie Bobby—Emperor Jones of Atlanta—in that it extends back to the time he was barely big enough to pull his father's clubs from the bag and practice putting into a tin can in the back yard. His father, Robert H. Baugh Sr., has been a prominent Southern amateur for two decades and was medalist in the Dixie amateur several years ago. So Bobby has plenty of golf background.

When he was in high school young Baugh was challenging par. By 1922, when he reached the ripe age of 14, he had won a local invitation tournament, a tri-state title, two city championships; the North Carolina Inter-State crown and medalist honors in the Southern amateur at Louisville.

Entering the University of Alabama in 1923, he helped the Crimson Tide win three Southern conference championships in a row and was individual title holder in 1926. He captained the Tide two years and was president of the Southern Intercollegiate Golf association.

Baugh is a studious youth, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and a Rhodes scholar at Oxford.

He probably will sail for home in June.

Following a three-hour test of Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton was pleased at the boat's possibility of winning America's cup.

Pop, Goobers, Vanity Make Free Day Pay

TAMPA, Fla., May 14. (AP)—The moguls of the Tampa club in the Southeastern league couldn't get people to pay admission so they gave a game away.

The result was an agreeable overflow crowd of 6,000. But what pleased the magnates still more was the revelation that a number of people had paid to see a free game by purchasing box seats, which hadn't been thrown open. The free customers, it was found, also had ample funds with which to buy peanuts and pop.

John Nabors, one time pitcher for Connie Mack's "White Elephants," lost 19 consecutive games in 1916.

COLLETT, HICKS STILL IN LEAD

Other American Golfers Lose to Britons

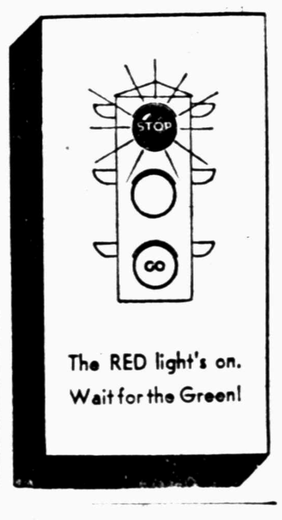

FORMBY, Eng., May 14. (INS)—Glenna Collett, the queen, and Helen Hicks, the crown princess of American golf,, went serenely forward this afternoon to the round before the semi-finals in the British women's championship. Maureen Orcutt, another America's "royal family" in golf, and Mrs. Leo Federman, not previously considered to be of the "aristocracy," went turbulently out of the championship to the limbo of the eliminated.

Glenna, having won a bitter 21-hole match from the noted Molly Gourlay this morning, won as she pleased from Beryl Brown, another Briton, in the fifth round this afternoon, 7 and 6. It was Helen's unpleasant but necessary task to eliminate her compatriot, Mrs. Federman, in the same round by 4 and 3.

Nittany Lions Likely To Play Host to Pitt

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 14. (AP)—Penn State students here are highly pleased at the possibility that the University of Pittsburgh football team will play here Thanksgiving day in 1931.

Previously the Lions had traveled to Pittsburgh for the engagement. Present tenative plans call for the playing of the game at State College as a homecoming game for Penn State.

Babe Anderson Goes to Singles Semi-Finals

The first round in the Wichita Falls Municipal Tennis tournament was played on the Junior college and Municipal golf course courts Wednesday afternoon with approximately 70 entrants, the largest number in recent years, participating. The tournament will continue on the two courts today. The feature event of Wednesday's play was the advance of Babe Anderson, Junior college champion, into the semi-finals in the junior singles. Anderson defeated Bruce Benton, both of whom drew byes in first matches, 6-2, 6-4. Anderson was the only player to advance so far as the semi-finals. In other quarter-final matches in this event, Norvin Presley defeated Herman Paul, 5-7, 8-0, 6-1; and John Graham defeated Sonny Sherrod, 6-2, 6-2.

Mud No Hindrance To Gallant Fox

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14. (INS)—All doubt as to the ability of Gallant Fox to run in the mud was dispelled today when the derby favorite breezed a mile and an eighth over the soggy racing strip in 2:04.

Earle Sande, greatest of all American jockeys who is to ride him in the derby next Saturday, hopped aboard the big chestnut colt early today with instructions to just lope him along and to keep a tight hold all the way.

Gallant Fox was never given a chance to run at high speed at any stage of the trip, Sande keeping him up in his lap all the way.

Crack Brigade, one of the serious menaces to Gallant Fox, also demonstrated that a muddy track holds no terrors for him. He worked for only three-eights of a mile in :36 and ran as gracefully and evenly in the heavy mire as water over a dam.

Sharkey Regains His Old Swagger

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, May 14.—The terrible Sharkey man, of Boston, is at last in camp at Gus Wilson's, near Orangeburg, and is throwing off some of the symptoms of the old Sharkey. He has commenced to gurgle fiercely. The terrible Sharkey man is at his best when he assumes a ferocious posture and breaths fire and brimstone. He then makes good reading.

Following his fight with the Manassa Mauler, the Terrible Sharkey man lapsed into more or less silence, after having kept the scalps of the newspaper clients stirring with his sanguinary utterances for a couple of years. I reject the theory that Dempsey knocked him dumb. I am inclined to think that someone must have told the Terrible Sharkey Man that his gab was not pretty.

Anyway, he fell into brooding silence, which cramped his style. He publicly declared that he had sworn off on garrulousness, and befor his battles with Stribling, and Loughran, and Scott, he was positively reticent, and dull reading. He failed to knock their blocks off in the public prints. He declined to conversationally mash their ears down. He was no better subject matter for the sports writers than a docile old cow.

But since he has been matched with Herr Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship of the whole world, the Terrible Sharkey Man has begun burbling like an infuriated dromedary, and his preliminary utterances at Orangeburg indicate that he will once more be chewing barbed wire in his public speech. I confess I rather like the Terrible Sharkey Man in oratorical character. I certainly like him better that way than in the pose of a tubby suburbanite such as he was in danger of becoming if he let the boys see him and interview him much more in his family retreat at Boston.

I do not like my fighting men watering the lawn, or tending the hollyhocks. I like 'em swaggering into the hot spots, and mingling with the mob, and talking high, wide and handsome. I like the old roaring, chaw-terbacker type of a fighter far better than I do the modest, retiring pill with a book under his arm. I like a fighter natural, and human, and I have seldom seen a fighter who made a show of peacefulness and quietude who was ever either natural or human.

The swashbuckler attitude of the Terrible Sharkey Man toward all the world when he was going on, and up, fitted him like a glove. It gave him background, and color. His ship-ahoy tone, and his blast-my-tarry-toplights attitude when he first came rolling up the gangplank of fistic fame tickled me no little. Much of it was assumed, to be sure, but it was great capital for the Terrible Sharkey Man. No gladiator of my time furnished better copy than the so-called "Garrulous Gob" before his fight with Dempsey.

But I can't say I have cared much for the toned-down garden-trowel, pater familias Sharkey of suburban Boston. Not as a picture of a fighting man, I mean. It sounded too carpet-slippery, and fire-sidey, and comfortable. I was really relieved the other day on reading the bombastic blast that Sharkey let go on arriving at Orangeburg. It was something about knocking Herr Max Schmeling bow-legged in a few heats. Never mind the specific language. The aroma of the old Sharkey was in it.

I like the open bombast of Sharkey better than the blushing modesty with which Herr Max Schmeling seems inclined to drape his remarks, even in private. It seems to be one of the accepted rules of sports writing to always depict a gladiator as modest, and unassuming, though it has been observed that good fighters are generally the reverse, especially with their intimates.

Jack Dempsey made a point of modesty in public utterance and demeanor, yet in private the old mauler had no hesitancy in declaring the most sanguinary intent toward an opponent. He would tell you in just so many words what he expected to do to the varlet, and not infrequently he would express the conviction that the bloke was a pugilistic falsetto, and a kiyoodle to boot.

Mr. James J. Tunney, formerly a species of thinly veiled bombast. Mr. Tunney knew Mr. Tuney was good, and he didn't mind letting you know that he knew it. John Arthur Johnson was openly blustiferous about his fighting ability, and history tells us that old John L. Sullivan roared his prowess to the world.

History also tells us that Mr. James J. Corbett in his pugilistic heyday was a mighty cocky individual about himself — mighty cocky, indeed. He didn't bluster like Sullivan, but he wore his heavyweight crown like it was a chip on his shoulder. Bob Fitzsimmons, who licked Corbett, was known to brag plenty on occasion. James J. Jeffries had a sort of surly grizzly bear contempt for his fistic contemporaries, and a lot of confidence in himself.

Jess Willard, the old Pottawatomie pounder, had supreme confidence in his tremendous size when he was champion, but he was probably the least bombastic of all about his fighting ability, because Jess Gene had a superciliousness toward his fellow fistic mankind that was didn't like fighting, anyway. He regarded it merely as a means to an end, which end he has attained in the ponderous prosperity of his middle age out in Los Angeles.

I am inclined to think that Sharkey's early braggadocio was assumed to attract attention to himself, but I am also inclined to think that he found it easy and natural. I think that behind it in the beginning was some mantle-of-John L. Idea, and you can't see that Sharkey didn't wear it with plenty of flourish.

It is popularly supposed that the world dislikes a braggart, and yet there is a certain amount of braggadocio, by gesture, at least, if not by utterance, in most of our public figures. Personally, I am inclined to like Boozookus who says out loud that he is going to accomplish any certain thing, and then goes ahead and accomplishes that thing.

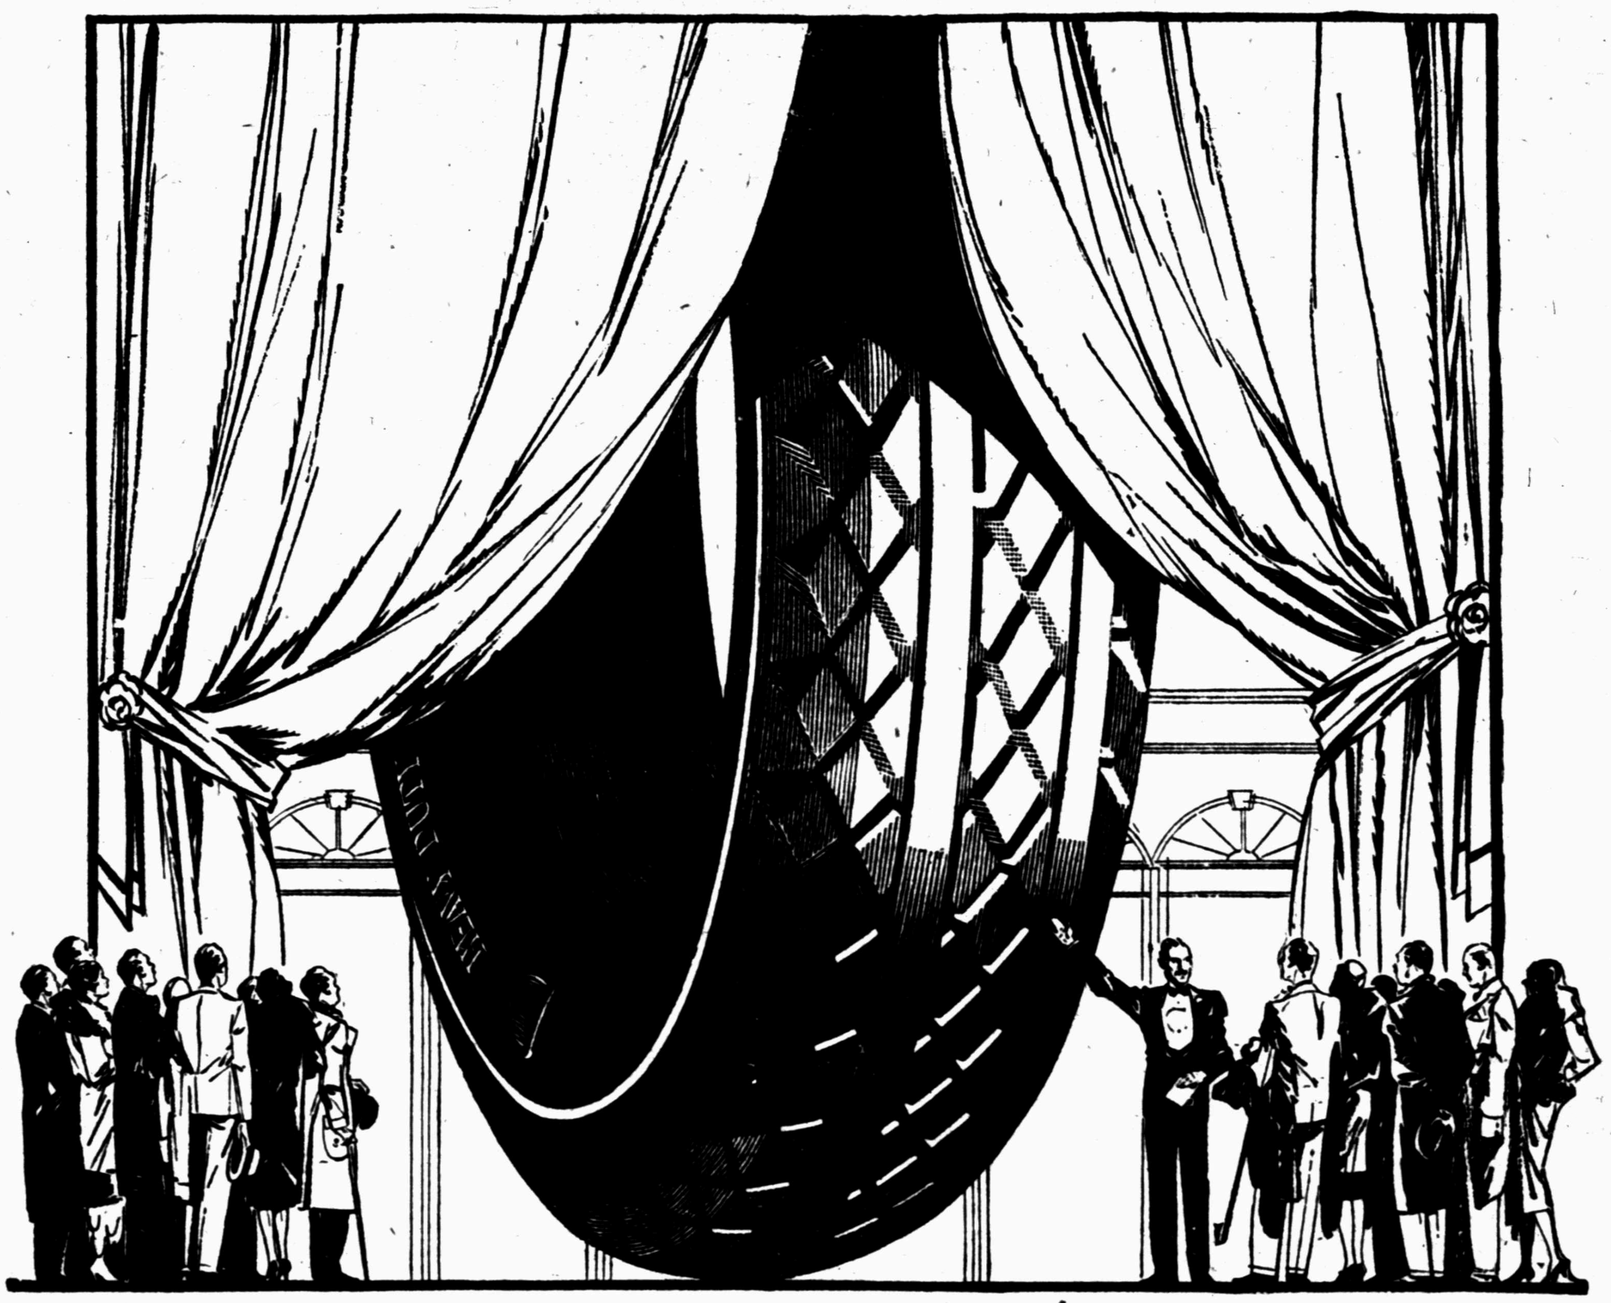

The terrible Sharkey man fell down but once of late years on a brag, and that was when he said he would smash the Manassa Mauler. Many citizens were delighted to see the downfall of the braggart, yet Dempsey, in private, stated with just as much braggadocio as Sharkey back in character again. The NEW Goodyear Heavy Duty Balloon

you ought to see

It isn't enough to call the new Goodyear Heavy Duty Balloon an extra-mileage tire—it's an extra-style tire as well.

Once your car is shod with them, it takes on a new and smarter look; it stands proudly on a more solid and distinctive foundation.

In the first place this new Heavy Duty Balloon is bigger, handsomer, more massive; and around its sleek black side-walls runs a single identifying stripe of silver.

Then the outer rows of All-Weather blocks on both sides of the deep-cut extra-thick tread are prismed down into the side-wall, a touch as arresting as anything in modern sculpture.

The essential merit of this tire of course is in its capacity for extra mileage—it is made stronger and tougher in every part to withstand hard, fast, rocky-road driving.

Before you buy your next tire be sure you see this stunning Goodyear Heavy Duty — you owe it to yourself not to overlook its remarkable advantages.

Goodyear can give you greater tire values because Goodyear builds more than

of all the tires sold in America, the remainder being divided among some forty manufacturers. "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 14. (AP)—Trading in cotton was quieter today with prices lower under selling promoted by relatively easy cables and reports of beneficial rains in the eastern belt.

July sold off to 16.23 and closed at 16.25 while the new October contract after declining to 14.65 closed at 14.71. The general market closed steady at net declines of 17 to 25 points.

The opening was steady at a decrease of 7 to 26 points in response to the easier Liverpool cables and reports of eastern belt rains. There was a little covering but the market weakened under continued realizing. May sold off to 16.13 and the new December contracts to 14.73, making net declines of about 21 to 32 points in the active positions.

Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest on old crop positions while new crop months showed rallies of some 4 to 10 points from the lowest. NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 14. (AP)—Cotton was dominated by the weather today, new crop months being naturally the most affected.

Liverpool came in 6 to 8 points worse than due and first trades here showed losses of 14 to 15 points. July rallied to 16.00 on trade buying up to 12 points but the new crop months recovered but little.

The census bureau's domestic consumption total for April of 532,382 was about as expected and had no influence on the market.

Stock Market's Recovery Gains Momentum Under Steel Flurry

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 14. (US)—The recovery in the stock market gained momentum today under the stimulus of continued good demand for Steel and other pivotal stocks that influenced belated short covering and attracted a little outside demand. While reports from the steel industry were less favorable, there were indications that continued ease in money was inspiring some confidence in general trade cricles so that hopes were aroused for improved trade reports in the near future. U. S. Steel gained over a point to 174¾. American Can advanced 2½ points, United Aricraft 3⅞ points, Westinghouse 3½ and American Telephone and Telegraph 3 points. Vigorous advances were recorded in the Public Uitlity division, with Consolidated Gas in the lead with a rise of 2⅞ points. Public Service spurted 3 points. American and Foreign power gained 2¼ and Electric Power and Light was up over a point. Among the specialties, Worthington Pump and Vanadium Steel were outstanding features, scoring 11 and 10⅛ points, respectively. Call money again held at 3 per cent for the entire day. Turnover for the session amounted to 3,179,900 shares.

Strength of United Corporation, Consolidated Gas and Columbia Gas was taken as indication that the Morgan-Electric Bond-Mellon interests were going right ahead with plans for grouping all the eastern utility and power companies under the same control. Buying of Consolidated Gas was reported to be for the account of United Corporation. While reports of splitup, etc., were revived there was no such expectation among those close to the management where the belief still prevails that such recapitalization or melon cutting will wait on completion of concentration of exisiting properties. There was further quiet picking up of the Public Service of New Jersey also due to belief that the United Gas would make another offer for minority stock.

The Radio interests apparently do not fear the government action any more than the Electric Bond group worried about the investigation of their organization. They voice similar belief to that of the Electric Bond people: viz, that the inquiry will ultimately prove favorable in that it will show no violation of law and prove the proposed deal with General Electric and Westinghouse will benefit the public. As Steel held strong in the face of the less favorable mid-week reviews the opinion was circulated that current falling off in operations and softening in prices had been "discounted."

Pools were inspired to greater interest and there were rumors that several groups were planning to resume activity. Those that attracted most interest were Pan Pete "B", Raybestos, and Missouri Kansas Texas Pipe Line. The latter registered a new high. Eastman Kodak also reached a new high with further talk of eventual splitup. There was some belief that the Case directors would authorize splitup of the stock at tomorrow's meeting. Those who should know, however, feel that such action will wait until the full results of the first six months operations are known. Investment Trust absorption of American Tobacco was reported and there were rumors that indicated another advance in cigaret prices was scheduled for the not distant future.

The old group is taking an interest in Associated Dry Goods again. It is claimed that the improvement shown in sales during April has continued so far in May. The much warmer weather is credited with influencing most of the improvement. Dry Goods came through the slump in business of early in the year in better shape than did most other retail store organizations, it is stated. At the current rate of sales, it is maintained, the falling off of the early months will more than be made up by the end of June. There were rumors that leaders in the department store field were discussing mergers again but inquiry indicated that no development along this line was to be expected for the immediate future.

Estimated receipts for the day: Wheat, 17 cars; corn, 9; oats 9, and sorghums, 9 cars. Rest unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 14. (AP)—Notwithstanding announcement that world's available supplies of wheat have decreased 13,397,000 bushels in the last week, wheat values today showed a general downward trend.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ⅜@1⅛c a bushel below yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to ⅜@⅜c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Late estimates put the total purchases from Canada and the United States today for overseas at 70,000 to 800,000 bushels.

Corn and oats went lower with wheat. Canadian points advised that Argentine corn is being offered at much below a parity with corn from the United States.

Provisions held relatively steady owing to an upward trend of hog values.

Closing indemnities—Wheat: July $1.03¼@⅜, $1.03⅞@1.04; Sept. $1.05@¼, $1.06⅜@⅞; Dec. $1.09⅝, $1.11⅛. Corn—July 78⅜@⅜c, 80c; Sept. 79⅜@80c, 80⅞@81c; Dec. 74⅜@½c, 75⅝@½c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, May 14. (US)—Those who see possibilities of an incentive to higher wheat prices in possible crop developments also call attention to the fact that news of movement of old supplies which has been attracting only slight attention would undoubtedly gain more prominence with any upturn.

Developments regarding the new crop of corn are also holding sway as the leading market incluence in the light trade which is largely of a local character. There was some scattered commission house buying today, however, on the better shipping demand and smaller receipts.

Bartlett Frazier company, says: "It seems apparent prices fully discount current conditions. The main future problem is the size of the 1930 wheat crop the world over, none of which has as yet been harvested and until something more assuring is known of final production, a material lowering of the dollar level of values is unlikely."

A factor which is coming into greater prominence in the wheat gossip is the shortage of subsoil moisture in Canada.

Broomhall says: "Chartering in the Argentine is dull and European are said to ignore wheat offers. The quality of this wheat is inferior and the weight below normal. Owing to the lack of foreign interest in this year's crop there will very likely be a substantial carryover at the end of the season which will be used for mixing with next year's crop."

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, May 14. —Cotton goods continued very quiet today with prices barely steady. New lines of fall silks are being shown. More small lot duplicates are coming forward on wool goods for fall. Burlaps showed little change.

Weather Improving Faster Than Gasoline

Weather conditions in the east and north are improving fast, but Mid-Continent refiners report spot gasoline market is strengthening slowly. It is expected that it will be another week before genuine strength reappears for U. S. motor grade of gasoline. A survey showed spot prices ranging from 6⅝ cents to 7½ cents a gallon in tank cars lots.

Platt's Oilgram, the Mid-Continent criterion of the market, is understood to have reported that gasoline stocks increased 7,000,000 gallons in the past week.

PIPE LINES TO CURTAIL RUNS

Beter Demand Needed to Increase Takings

Special to the Record News.

TULSA, Okla., May 14.—Pipe lines serving the Oklahoma oil fields do not care to increase their takings above the present daily production, a portion of which is going into storage. Therefore there cannot be any increase in the daily takings from the Oklahoma City field until a greater demand for crude oil develops, and which does not now appear in the picture.

This is what the state-wide proration committee of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association reported after making a thorough study of the situation, interviewing purchasers and producers, and reviewing the demand of Oklahoma City operators who want runs to be increased about 16 2-3 per cent of the daily potential of wells. Another look at the oil picture will be made on May 29, regarding programs that expire in June.

The scheduled conference that was to have taken place Tuesday was not held, because the statewide committee was able to meet Monday evening with the Oklahoma City operators and conclude in one day's time the matters planned for a two-days' session.

Purchases Cut

Weather conditions this spring have caused many refiners to cut down their crude oil purchases, thus increasing the amount of oil going into storage, and purchasers are obligated to take certain amounts of oil in different areas, and not wholly from one field or district. It will be many months before the Ajax Pipe Line company, now being served, can be constructed and get into the Mid-Continent.

Encouragement to the Mid-Continent operators, who favor a tightening up of production, maintaining proration indefinitely and thus preserving the present price structure, came Tuesday from Santa Fe Springs, Southern California, where the operators voted approval of the program of curtailing daily production to 57 per cent of daily potential and limiting output to 105,000 barrels a day. This new program was to become effective at 7 a. m. May 13.

Gas Production

Necessity for immediate action there was brought home by data compiled by the state umpire that present gas production at Santa Fe Springs of May 2 totalled 340,000,000 cubic feet daily against 324,282,000 cubic feet on April 17, and 295,718,000 cubic feet on March 19, when the California court's restraining order on the new gas conservation act went into effect. Gas allotment per well varies from around 1,000 to as high as 3,782 cubic foot per well. Oil allotment for the field was set at 114,429 barrels with the gas allotment at 335,478 cubic feet, or almost 3,000 cubic feet per barrel. It was explained that new completions may develop potentials above 200,753 barrels that of May 1. The report, along with the threat of purchasers to slash the price, assisted in bringing forth an agreement of curtailed daily output.

FAMILY RELIEF REPORT FILED

2,383 Persons Given Aid During Month

A total of $557.60 was spent in actual relief by the Family Relief association during the month of April it was announced by Mrs. Effie McHam in her monthly report given at the board meeting of the organization held in the directors rooms of the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The largest item was for food which was $372.89 and $160 was used for buying milk.

Only 12 new cases were added to the list which now totals 480 families in which 2,383 persons received assistance during the month. Four hundred and 28 visits and interviews were made and of the causes listed for application, unemployment ranked first. Illness and desertion were minor.

Unemployment and conditions as they actually exist were discussed. It was announced that the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company donated $200 worth of groceries to the organization to be used to the best advantage.

Traffic Club Planned Here

Industrial executives and traffic managers of various industries in this vicinity will be organized to form a traffic club Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a meeting to be held at the local chamber of commerce, according to Dudley B. Foy, manager of the traffic department.

About 60 men are anticipated for the charter membership of the club, Mr. Foy said, out of approximately 100 to whom letters have been sent out asking attendance at Friday afternoon's meeting.

Motor freight lines, railroads, bus lines and aviation companies will have representatives in the club, it was said, the program of which will be largely educational in the matter of traffic problems in this section.

Distribution of a freight rate book compiled by the traffic department of the chamber of commerce, and containing rates between Wichita Falls and prominent shipping points, will begin next week, it was announced.

Traffic Manager Gives Talk at Club Luncheon

Factors which enter into the building of freight rate schedules, the history of transportation, and the workings of the Interstate Commerce and Texas Railroad commissions were discussed Wednesday noon before members of the Optimist club by Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce.

Mrs. J. C. Payne, soprano, sang two solos at Wednesday's luncheon meeting, accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey. As an encore, the two ladies gave a vocal duet. R. D. Ford led members of the club in a singsong, with Miss Lorene Tucker at the piano. Bert King introduced Mr. Foy. The program was arranged by Arch Smith.

The Optimist luncheon was served at the Grace Methodist church by the ladies of that church. Tables were attractively decorated with marigolds and larkspur, and the Optimists were regaled with a home-style chicken dinner.

The Lenten season was originally only 40 hours—from Good Friday until Easter day morning.

Those who have faintly suspected that Dr. Fu Manchu's resurrection was effected as much through Hollywood business office intrigue as through Oriental "black magic" will receive unmistakable confirmation of their suspicions before traveling far with Oland Warner and company in "The Adventures of Dr. F. M." at the Majestic. This picture proves with amazing clarity that other themes will be prostituted quite as readily as was that of musical comedy to accelereate the flow of tickets through the boxoffice throughout the land.

Sax Rohmer's novels have had more than usual popularity among lovers of mystery-fiction, even before adopted for a talking screen version in "The Mysterious Dr. F. M." That film had the appearance of having been carefully prepared, with a skillful adaptation of the original story and not too much of Halo'een party spook detail. Edges were smoothly trimmed and the binding smooth. "The Return" of the doctor smacks not at all of an acceptable story, but decidedly of a hurriedly concocted group of episodes, abundantly supplied with inconsistencies, and forced to a degree of sensationalism which barely escapes being ludicrous. Most ghost stories will be authenticated history when laid parallel to this tale.

Mystery-drama, like other types, appeals because its hearers may (if it is well done) lose themselves quickly in the characters appearing in the play. Therein lies recreation, fostered imagination, change of environment, and all that goes to construct entertainment. In mystery stories of the better sort, the motivation is so restrained, so repressed, that one may and does—feel constantly in danger. Hence the thrill. And his mind is challenged—hence the interest. Mr. Fu Manchu's return just isn't like that. Characters are so burdened with impossible situations, and the characterizations consequently are so stilted, that one could fall into a part only by being actually hypnotized. If any plausibility can be found in the tale, then the proverbial haystack hides behind the needle.

Remembering O. P. Heggie's performance as Louis XI in "Vagabond King," Jean Arthur's commendable exhibitions of real ability in several recent pictures, and Warner Oland's former screen roles, one feels sympathetically embarrassed on their behalf while they struggle, like flies in glue, through the mazes of Dr. Fu's lamentable return.

Delegations From Other Towns To Join Wichita Falls Trip to Quanah

Further details of the Junior chamber of commerce good-will tour along the F. W. & D. to Quanah and return on May 23 were planned at a meeting of the good-will trip committee at the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon.

According to A. D. Lightsey and W. P. Lacy, who made a preliminary trip Tuesday to the cities to be visited on the tour, the Wichita Falls delegation will take lunch in Vernon with the Lions and Optimist clubs of that city. The latter organization, it was said, postponed its regular weekly meeting from Wednesday to Friday in order to "sit in" with the visitors.

The party plans to reach Quanah at 4 p. m., where a program will be given by talent drafted from both the good-will party and the citizenship of Quanah. Dinner will be had at the Crawford hotel.

Returning to Vernon, the Wichita Falls good-willers will be guests of honor at a dance to be given at a place yet to be selected, it was said.

Cities along the route to be traveled have promised to supply delegations of their own as additions to the Wichita Falls caravan, according to Mr. Lightsey. It is expected that 200 persons will comprise the party when it reaches Quanah.

Provisions are being made for taking almost 200 representatives from this city, according to the good-will trip committee. Persons who plan to go on the tour in their own cars are asked to notify Mr. Lightsey, or Charles Spragins Jr., at 3121.

Those present at Wednesday's meeting were R. H. Dewey, M. K. Cushing, Mr. Lightsey, W. P. Lacy, Harry Duren, Roy J. Daniels, R. J. Fletchner, J. Frank Cline, and C. A. Spragins Jr.

CROWELL FALL VICTIM BURIED

Youthful Cowhand Crushed Beneath Horse

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, May 14.—Funeral services for Marvin Watson, 15-year-old cowhand cruhsed in the fall of his horse on the Minnick ranch Tuesday evening, were held at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The boy is survived by his parents, and four brothers.

Watson was attempting to jump a five-foot fence in rounding up a bunch of horses at the time his mount became entangled in the wire. Ranchmen believe his spur hung in the stirrup and pulled him beneath the horse. He was crushed about the chest and head and suffered several broken bones. Zerald Schaver, foreman of the ranch who was with him at the time, rushed him to the ranch house where he died a few hours later.

Testimony Started In $10,000 Damage Suit

Plaintiff's testimony was begun Wednesday afternoon in the 78th district court in the trial of the suit brought against the S. H. Kress company here by Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stewart on a claim to $10,000 damages growing out of injuries alleged to have been sustained by Mrs. Stewart when she stepped down a small step in a corridor near the rest room in the Kress store.

Mr. Stewart claims she suffered permanent injuries to her ankle, having fractured several bones when she fell to the floor.

Skins of fur-bearing land animals to the number of 297,448, and valued at more than $4,513,000, were exported from Alaska in 1929.

a Brother in Texas
a Sister in California
and a telephone call that broke twenty years of silence

ONE NIGHT, in a little Texas town, a man dropped a letter into a box.

The mail snatched it up with mechanical precision . . . sorted it . . . stamped it . . . routed it . . . hurled it into the lighted doorway of a steel coach. Westward it raced, the coach a part of a heavy train that pounded upward along steep mountain grades, then slid down long, pleasant slopes to the Pacific.

And one morning, from across 2,000 miles of distance, out of 20 years of silence, a postman dropped it at a California doorstep.

A young housewife opened the letter. She read it . . . . and sat for many minutes gazing with unseeing eyes out of a window! From times dim in memory, pictures moved across the sun-filled street: a mother's death . . . days of confusion that a tiny girl had not quite understood . . . . a little boy who had gone far away to live with relatives.

Picking up a pen, she began to write!

But even after she had mailed her reply, she was not satisfied. There were still the pictures . . . of the days of sadness . . . of the little boy! How did he look now? How had the years treated him? Was he waiting impatiently for word from her?

In a corner of the room, the telephone met her eye.

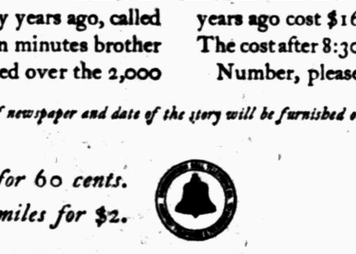

Was he waiting . . . impatiently? . .

Thoughtfully, she moved toward the telephone. She lifted the receiver, gave a name, an address, a Texas town.

"Thank you," said the operator, "Hold the line, please."

Read a newspaper's matter-of-fact account of that conversation:*

"His sister, who has grown up and married since he last saw her twenty years ago, called him . . . . for fifteen minutes brother and sister conversed over the 2,000 miles of telephone wire as perfectly as if they had been a block apart."

Where have you a loved one . . . . a relative . . . . a friend who once was close?

"Long distance" can bring them to you today, quickly and at a low cost!

On eight out of ten long distance calls, connections to the called point are established while the person calling waits at the telephone, telephone statistics show.

Service is fastest when you give the number of the distant telephone.

And as to price . . a call from New York to San Francisco which three years ago cost $16.50, now costs $8. The cost after 8:30 p.m. is still lower.

Number, please?
