Schools open Aug. 30 without changes

Special master John Skogland heads for federal court hearing.

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland schools can begin Aug. 30 as scheduled under the present pupil assignment system, U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle said this morning.

Judge Suttle also said no changes in the student-minority student composition of the schools will be required until the court has reviewed all proposed desegregation plans and the parties have been given the opportunity to be heard on behalf of any of the plans.

These announcements were part of a clarification of an earlier court order by Judge Suttle to immediately deseqregate all Midland elementary schools beginning with the first grade.

The clarification had been requested jointly by the school district and the U.S. Justice Department.

Judge Suttle read his clarification in open court and then met in his chambers with attorneys in the case and special master John Skogland, who was appointed by Judge Suttle to draw up a desegregation plan.

Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey, school district attorney Thornton Hardie Jr. and Skogland met in the courthouse afterwards to discuss procedure to be followed. Hardie said there would be no comment.

Judge Suttle said the court order gives the special master "complete discretion to consider any or all of the elementary schools" in the district in preparing a plan which will follow the mandate of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals which ordered that the "dual" education system be dismantled. That order specifically mentioned Pease, Milam, Crockett, Washington and De Zavala elementary schools as "racially identifiable."

Today's order said no hearing would be held on Pease, Milam and Crockett elementary schools prior to the commencement of "studies and planning" by the court's special master. School officials had hoped for a hearing on their contention that these schools should not be included in the court order.

A hearing will be scheduled for parties to be heard on proposed plans before any plan is implemented, the order said. The court strongly urged that the plan ultimately submitted to the court be a joint submission of the parties and the special master.

The order to immediately desegregate requires the parties and the special master to begin work "immediately and to remain working continuously on this problem until a plan for the complete desegregation of the Midland elementary schools has been submitted to and approved by the court, and has been fully implemented by the defendant (the school district)." The court has set a deadline of Sept. 17.

School board president Joe Dominey said after the judge read the order the question of whether or not a plan will have to be implemented during the school year has not been finally resolved.

Four board members attended the session in open court.

The trustees expressed pleasure at the ruling that school may open on schedule.

Dominey, asked about the judge's urging a joint submission, said it is "a

Citizens protest park use

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Suggesting everything from a strictly enforced curfew to a complete shut-down of the facility, a group of about a dozen Midlanders appeared before the city Parks and Recreation Commission Tuesday regarding the use of Wadley-Barron Park.

"We don't want our names known or used," one spokesman said. "We fear retaliation by some of these people. We fear for the safety of ourselves, our families and our homes."

The group, mostly residents of Country Club Road, Bedford Street and Harvard Avenue, complained to the commission that Wadley-Barron Park, also known as the A Street Park, has become a "hangout for alcoholics, dope peddlers and young people who are being misled." The group noted that the park is no longer safe and "it's a miracle no great tragedy has happened there yet." yet."

Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon and City Attorney Joe Nuessle attended the parks session to provide input and answer questions.

"A park is supposed to be a source of pleasure for most residents, but now our children won't play there (at Wadley-Barron Park), and it's become a place for transients, the wayward and those seeking a place to spend the night while going through town," one resident noted.

Another resident said the park "has developed a reputation as the 'in' place for locals and others." He said the number of speeding cars in the

Ford's nomination seems to be assured

Washington Post

KANSAS CITY — President Ford Tuesday night won the crucial Republican national convention test vote, setting the stage for his first-ballot nomination tonight.

The dramatic 111-vote victory defeated challenger Ronald Reagan's effort to force Mr. Ford to name his vice-presidential choice this morning.

More important, it crushed the Reagan forces' main defense against what now seems a certain decision by the convention to send the 62-year-old Michigander against Democrat Jimmy Carter in the November presidential election.

The vote against the Reagan-backed rules change was 1,180 to 1,069, and when Florida — which passed earlier in the roll call — delivered the votes that cinched the President's win, Kemper Arena erupted in cheers from the Ford supporters.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), the President's floor manager, shouted, "It's all over. That's it."

The procedural vote exceeded the strength claimed by the Ford delegate-counters and shattered the claim by Reagan manager John P. Sears that the former California governor had 40 to 50 secret supporters hidden in the convention ranks.

But the evening did confirm Sears' prediction that it would be "one of the most dramatic nights in political history."

Before the verdict came at midnight EDT, the galleries packed with Ford and Reagan supporters cheered and howled at every state's verdict.

The tension was heightened by the fact that Reagan's strength was concentrated in the early part of the alphabet. Not until New York was reached did Mr. Ford take the lead over the challenger who had forced the President into a nine-month struggle through 30 primaries for the nomination.

Mississippi — whose 30-member delegation had been the subject of almost frantic maneuvering by both camps — finally came down solidly on the President's side. But by passing on the first call of the roll, it missed its chance to be the king-maker.

The honor went to Florida, where Mr. Ford had beaten Reagan in a vital primary last March.

Justice challenges board election method

The Midland school district will have to change its method of electing trustees or go to federal court to try to keep the present system, school board president Joe Dominey said Tuesday night.

Dominey said the U.S. Justice Department objects to the present method on the basis of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. He made the announcement following an executive session with school attorneys following the Tuesday school board meeting.

Under the present system, candidates for school trustee file for a specific place and must win a majority of the votes for that position, with a runoff election held if needed. All voters in the school district may vote for each place.

Before 1973, when the method was changed, candidates filed at large and were listed on the ballot together. Those receiving the most votes were elected, Dominey said.

For example, if six persons ran for the school board and there were three vacancies, a voter could vote for three candidates and the top three vote getters were elected.

Dominey said the school district was notified Aug. 6 of the Justice Department's decision to void the change unless the school district obtains a favorable court judgement. Notification came through a letter from Stanley Pottinger, head of the Justice Department civil rights division.

The letter stated that the department is "unable to conclude, as we (the Justice Department) must under the Voting Rights Act, that these requirements (filing for places and majority vote) will not have a discriminatory effect on the basis of race, color or membership in a language minority group."

The evidence is "to some extent, conflicting," the letter noted, but the law provides that the attorney general must enter an objection if the conflict cannot be resolved.

Dominey said the school district has furnished information about racial makeup of the community, the number of persons registered and the number of people who voted in the past several years, on request of the Justice Department, over the past year.

The letter said the department had received information also from "other interested parties."

The school board could go back to the old method of electing trustees, use geographical precincts or it may seek a declaratory judgment from federal district court, Dominey said.

However, this judgment would have to come from the district court in Washington, D.C., he said.

The court would have to rule that neither the purpose nor the effect of the change in election system will deny or abridge "the right to vote on account of race, color or membership in a language minority group," in order for the school district to maintain its present system, the Justice Department said.

"Until such judgment is rendered by the court, however, the effect of the objection by the attorney general is to make the changes in question legally unenforceable," the department said.

Dominey said a decision to make some kind of change in the system or to seek such a declaratory judgment will probably have to be made in the next month to allow time for litigation.

If a change is to be made, however, action would not be required until early next year since there will not be another election until April of 1977.

"The idea of electing trustees by geographical precincts is distasteful to the entire board," Dominey said.

The board feels that such a system might lead to a situation in which board members feel loyalty to individual schools "to the detriment of other schools," Dominey said.

He said the board could take the option of not acting at all but, if someone in the community took action at a later date, the legality of action by boards in the future would be questionable.

He said there is no question of the legality of action taken by boards from 1973 through the election next year.

All of the current school board has been elected under the new system, Dominey said.

The present system "permitted incumbent board members to run for reelection without running against each other, which, in effect, they would be doing under the old plan. But the major consideration was that it prevented the technique of doubling up on a person's vote by just voting for one candidate out of the number of seats available," Dominey said.

Korean attack kills 2

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two U.S. Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

The U.N. Command said the two American officers were "brutally murdered in an unprovoked assault." The announcement made no mention of any North Korean casualties.

The U.N. Command gave this account of the attack:

The two American officers, a South Korean officer and several American enlisted men were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the center of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in midmorning as the South Koreans were "routinely trimming branches" from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a U.N. Command

Politics, courts: the people will prevail

I ought to be getting on with my inane meanderings in Oestexas, but I want to get something off my chest about at least two questions that may be considered little of my business. But, then, many of us are most vocal about things that are least of our business.

They are the matters of the Republication nomination for president, going to the wire today in Kansas City, and the racial integration of the Midland schools, much in the news lately.

I don't have any children, and I'm a member of no organized political party (I'm a Democrat.), but no person is an island and even the school bell tolls for all of us.

And that's the point. We've been through troublous times that have caused many of us to reassess taken-for-granted attitudes and myths about our system of government and our way of life. The American Dream has been a little nightmarish at times during the troubled sixties and the confused seventies.

But "That old anvil, the people, has worn out many a hammer," Carl Sandburg said in his epic love-song to America called "The People, Yes." And—"man will prevail," William Faulkner said in accepting the Nobel Prize for a lifetime of literary considerations about his neighbors in Mississippi. And this is a good time to ponder the long-range truths of those two careful observers of the recent roots of our times.

Whoever is nominated in Kansas City and whoever is elected in November, this old anvil will prevail—and be stronger, I would say, for the tempering of the campaign forum. (Whoever wins should have a good idea of where the majority stands and—as importantly—how slight may be the margin between the victorious amalgamation and the vocal opposition.)

And the key to the fruitful and equanimitous operation of the Midland schools rests ultimately with the people of Midland— not with judges or court-appointed czars or, for that matter, with school boards. Because the rules-makers and the plan-drawers and the boundary-fixers can do their things but they can't make those most directly concerned like it.

Nor can the apparent inconveniences of any final solution subvert what seems to me, on brief and casual investigation, a decent, generous, and broadly cooperative community.

It may be unfortunate that something mutually satisfactory wasn't worked out years ago. (If the educators had encouraged the kind of public input we've been getting from every sector the last two weeks, it might have been.) But we can't erase the record—either of community patterns that have caused problems in relation to school populations or of court proceedings that have been instituted.

What we can do is approach the problems with open minds and the conviction that we're all good people in Midland— some of us just have different ways of demonstrating it.

And that's what meaningful integration is all about anyway.

Mondale more than hero in Minnesota home

The Washington Post

ELMORE, Minn. — About the time he turned 15, the kid everyone in town called "Fritz" started talking and arguing politics, and he never let up.

He'd argue all day with Ed Emerson, the grocer who was his boss. He'd talk politics with is friends and with any grown-up who would listen, and at home he'd hear it from his father — morning, noon and night.

When he graduated in 1946, the Elmore High School speculated he'd run for the U.S. Senate — and lose. It was one of the few miscalculations the local people made about the boy who most people figured would grow up to be a success.

"Fritz" went on to become Sen. Walter F. Mondale and, now, the Democrats' vice presidential nominee, and he traces it all to the lessons' learned in this little farm town where his father was the Methodist minister.

"I get it from my dad," Mondale recalled in an interview last week. "He was very serious about politics. He was an old Farmer-Laborite, before they merged with the Democratic Party (in Minnesota). He couldn't be active because he was in the church. But we'd get it at home — at breakfast, lunch and dinner.

"I didn't know just how, but I knew all the time back then that my life was somehow going to be involved in politics. Deep down, I guess you'd say I wanted dad to be proud of me."

Elmore (population 910) is a main street, grain elevators and a clump of small, neat homes on tree-shaded streets, a market community surrounded by fields of soybeans and corn.

Mondale was born in 1928 in nearby Ceylon, Minn., and grew up in Elmore and three other southern Minnesota towns where his father was assigned pastorates.

These days, the streets of Elmore are festooned with American flags in celebration of the vice presidential nomination, and the local Cash and Carry Store has put up a sign telling strangers that Elmore is the town "where Fritz grew up." The local post office is deluged with stamp collectors' requests for the postmark.

Mondale is remembered here as a fun-loving, somewhat mischeivous prankster who loved athletics but did not care much for school books and classrooms. Under his picture in the 1946 yearbook is this observation by his classmates: "A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men."

Frederick Yahnke, vice president of the First National Bank of Elmore, taught Mondale's Sunday School class and remembers him as a lively boy who was anxious to get lessons out of the way so the class could start talking about sports.

"He was sort of their ringleader," Yahnke said. "If he decided it was time to have some fun in class, the others would follow along. Fritz didn't think that life was supposed to be all hard work. I always had a theory that he didn't want to be the stereotype of the minister's son."

Mondale concurs: "I was not always serious," he said. "A minister's boy has to fight against the danger of being taken for a dandy. Preachers' kids tend to overcompensate a bit."

He over-compensated once too often for Elva Pulley, whose memories of young Mondale have not been softened by his rise to national prominence.

"He was a pickle," she declared defiantly as she left the counter at the post office last week. "I remember one time he and his gang came out to my place and got in the corn crib and threw all the corn out on the ground. Who picked it up? I had to. That's what I mean — a pickle."

Mondale was a star athlete in high school — a dash-man in track and captain of the football and the basketball teams his senior year.

From his mother, Claribel, who played the organ in her husband's churches, Mondale gleaned a musical talent that brought him an "A" rating as a vocalist in a state music contest. He was in demand as a singer at funerals and weddings, delivering choruses of "The Lord's Prayer" and "Bless This House" in what Mondale describes as his "screeching baritone."

He worked summers at whatever jobs Elmore offered — grocer's clerk, newspaper delivery boy and canning factory laborer. The canning company employed him in the lowly chore of checking plants for pea lice, a small green bug that could destroy entire fields. Mondale recollects that job with disgust and occasionally jokes that he is the only former pea-lice inspector in the U.S. Senate.

The Mondales were known as a happy family with a strong social conscience. Gene Kelly, Mondale's closest friend as a boy, recalls that anyone who was homeless — even the town drunk — could find a bed for a night in the Mondales' white frame house. "They were always concerned with people who had problems," Kelly said, "No one was ever beneath them."

Mondale recalls that one of the few stern lectures his father gave him was provoked by an offhand, derogatory reference during World War II to "the Japs."

"Dad said, 'We're not fighting the Japanese people — just their government. They're human beings just like all of us,'" Mondale said.

Mondale left Elmore after high school for Macalester College in St. Paul and the University of Minnesota and has not been back except for short visits and an occasional speech.

Japanese after-hours schools big business

TOKYO (AP) — About half of Japan's junior high school pupils spend their after-school hours going to another school, to learn to pass the tests to advance to the "right" higher schools and eventually the "right" job.

Education ministry officials say they don't know how many after-hour schools, called "juku," there are in Japan because they are "not legally recognized institutions."

But a recent poll in a city near Tokyo showed 52 per cent of sixth graders, 61 per cent of seventh graders, 53 per cent of eighth graders and 57 per cent of ninth graders attend such schools. Two out of 10 junior high school pupils take additional lessons at home from private teachers hired by their parents, the survey showed.

Those who rise to the highest positions in Japan's government and business generally come from a small group of elite universities, and entering those universities is considered easier for students from prestigious high schools. This makes the "shiken jigoku" — examination hell — a way of life in this nation of 110 million people.

The ordeal is primarily for boys since Japanese business and government are still mainly a man's world.

Harue Yajima, 35, mother of a fifth grade boy who attends a juku, said, "Though I oppose the competitive examination system, it is how the social framework is set up and I feel pity for my child if he lags behind on the social ladder of success.

"Even if I am criticized as a shallow-minded parent, I can do nothing about it," she added.

Her son, Goro, who has a home tutor besides attending the juku, said, "Since I started going to the juku, my grades improved quite a bit." But, he added, "I just don't have time to play."

Juku sessions usually are two hours, twice a week, with tuition averaging 5,000 yen ($17.50) a month.

"I think the recent prosperity of juku is an inevitable consequence of the Japanese educational system," said Shin Iriye, 53-year-old headmaster of Shingakusha, a well-known juku in Osaka, in central Japan.

Requirements for entering Iriye's juku include close-cropped hair, a pledge, "I want to get into (X) high school," an initiation fee of 30,000 yen ($100) and 10,000 yen ($33) monthly tuition.

Its program is spartan and thorough. Just before entrance exams, the students are housed in a hotel for last-minute cramming. Iriye takes personal responsibility for training them day and night. Then he charters a plane to take them to the high school they seek to enter.

As they march in to take the exams, Iriye shouts to his students, "Everyone will pass. Never forget to fight to the end. Fight, fight."

So far this year, 30 per cent of his students have gained entrance to high schools famous for their high rate of admissions to prestigious universities.

"Some people criticize me, saying it is absolutely mad to have cramming and use a chartered plane, but it is a good investment if you want your children to go to a private university," Iriye said.

Critic Hutcheson blasts high school texts again

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Eleanor S. Hutcheson of Fort Worth was sued two years ago for her criticisms of proposed textbooks, but that hasn't slowed her down any.

She spent Tuesday morning tearing into several publishers' offerings for such things as an account of a ritual circumcision.

That selection appears in a volume on Kenya in "People of the World," a set of six thin books published by Scott, Foresman & Co. for use in high school world history classes.

It is a young Kikuyu tribesman's account of his circumcision at age 16 as a rite of passage to manhood.

When it was over, he said, "I was now a grown up Christian Kikuyu."

"There is no connection between this kind of custom and Christianity. I don't feel it is necessary to go into detail. Y'all can read it yourself," Mrs. Hutcheson told the 15-member State Textbook Committee. The committee will vote on proposed texts next month, picking as many as five in each of several subjects. The State Board of Education will make the final adoptions in November.

Mrs. Hutcheson was one of three protesters sued for libel in 1974 by the Economy Co., which failed to get a contract for its sets of seventh and eighth grade readers. She filed a countersuit, contending her remarks were protected by the constitutional right of free speech. The suits are still pending, with no trial setting, she said Tuesday.

She criticized Allyn & Bacon's "Action Biology," a text for high school students who read below grade level, because of a set of "agree or disagree" statements designed for possible class discussion.

Statements offered for student response in the "Let's Rap" selection include: "Sex should wait for marriage;" "Masturbation is bad for your health; it can even make you insane;" and "It is all right for men to 'play around' but not for women."

These subjects could lead to unguided debate since they are not covered in the text itself, Mrs. Hutcheson said.

Richard Carroll of Boston, an Allyn & Bacon vice-president, said the "Let's Rap" worksheets are optional and can be used only if the teacher decides to take them up.

He said the book, while "designed for low level, underachieving high school students," meets nationally accepted standards for the material covered.

"A World History," published by Webster-McGraw-Hill, drew Mrs. Hutcheson's ire because, she said, it gives little mention to Christianity in a 30-page section on world religions.

"One has to search to find even a few passages that mention, much less describe, the Christian religion," she said.

Corpus Christi civil rights group queries school boss

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — The superintendent of Corpus Christi schools testified under subpoena Tuesday before a federal Civil Rights Commission here looking into classroom integration and minority hiring practices.

Dana Williams had declined to appear in May before the federal agency's Texas Advisory Committee.

Commission member Manuel Ruiz said he was unoffically critical of what he called a "dearth of leadership" by Williams. Ruiz suggested the school district had been "wearing blinders" in its search for Mexican-American teachers.

Mrs. Frankie Freeman, another commission member, asked Williams, "Isn't it true that the district isn't carrying out fair employment practices?"

Williams said the district had not been unfair and is working to boost the number of minority group members working for the school system. He cited a statement by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that he said indicates the number of available minority employes does not correspond to the members of minorities which make up school student bodies.

Wiliams said that Anglos-Americans hold the district's top four administrative positions, seven of 12 directorships, nine of 12 assistant directorships, nine of 15 coordinator positions and 39 of 53 consultant posts.

"These are the decision makers?" Mrs. Freeman asked. "So when you say 'we think' minority group children have equal educational opportunities, what you mean is that the Anglos think the minorities, who make up more than half of Corpus Christi's school population, are getting equal opportunity," she said.

Ruiz said he is "dismayed" about what he called the gap in qualified bilingual teachers in the United States. He suggested the school district look outside of Texas and in the neighboring Mexican state of Coahuila for such teachers.

Williams said he saw no benefit to Corpus Christi in "court-ordered juggling" of student bodies.

Syrian troops near Beirut leave to allow Palestinian withdrawals

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces have moved back from the mountain town of Hammana to clear the way for Palestinian withdrawal from Christian towns and villages along the mountains east of Beirut, Christian spokesmen said today.

Palestinian leaders and commanders of the Christians' Phalange militia have been negotiating quietly to arrange such a withdrawal, but so far the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies have refused to budge unless the Christians' Syrian allies pull back their invasion army.

Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt vowed Tuesday not to "withdraw as much as one iota." He said the Moslem forces would defend their positions in the mountain area "because it is for us a battle for survival."

Christian and Palestinian forces on the western slopes of the mountains have been trading increasingly heavy artillery fire since the Christian capture of the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar camp last week. The mountain front overlooks the Christian enclave north of Beirut.

The Christians said the Syrians remained deployed in positions just above Hammana, with their artillery commanding the main supply routes to the leftists. They said the Syrians pulled back to open the paved road through Hammana so the Moslems could retreat to Beirut, 18 miles to the more than 120 wounded during the night. Most were noncombatants, they said.

Meanwhile, Beirut's residential areas were rocked by heavy shelling by both sides during the night. The Phalange radio said the exchange was one of the fiercest in the 16- month-old civil war. Shells were still falling on the Hamra shopping area late this morning.

Hospital officials who try to keep a casualty count said about 90 persons were killed and

Lawyers undecided on action

HOUSTON (AP) — A State Bar of Texas grievance committee says it will decide by Sept. 1 if actions should be taken against Donald Yarbrough, a Houston attorney and Democratic nominee for the State Supreme Court.

The committee met for the third time Tuesday in Houston to hear testimony against Yarbrough in some 30 complaints, many of them coming from a June civil court trial in which the Democratic candidate was found to have engaged in fraud and gross negligence.

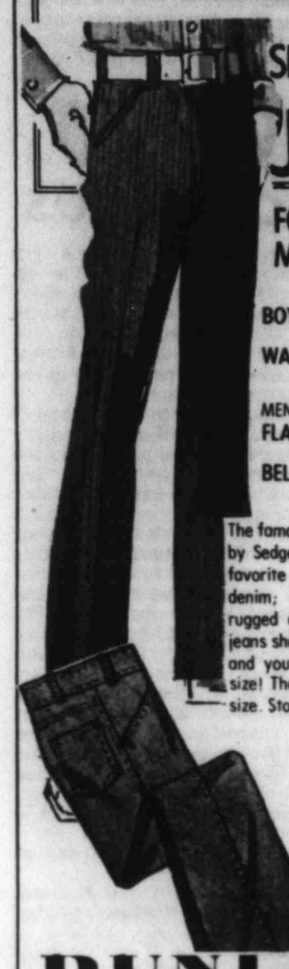

The committee could refuse to take any action, recommend that Yarbrough be reprimanded, disbarred, or several things in-between.

Yarbrough won the Democratic nomination to the Supreme Court and faces no Republican opposition in November. He has insisted he will stay in the race.

However, two write-in candidates have announced they will oppose the Houston attorney in the general election.

State Dist. Court Judge Sam Houston of Denton announced in Austin Tuesday he would go for the write-in vote, using his famous Texas name and a campaign aimed at telling voters how to use the write-in as his major weapons.

School trustees approve hike in tax rate, 1976-77 budget

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

School trustees Tuesday formally approved a 14 per cent tax increase and adopted a $19.86 million budget for the 1976-77 school year.

The tax increase, 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation of real property, based on 75 per cent of true value, will bring the total tax rate to $1.625 per $100 of valuation. The increase will mean $45 per year more in taxes for a $30,000 home.

The budget, which totals $19,863,714, is approximately $1.8 million over last year's budget as adopted.

Schools superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey cited the 4.47 per cent drop in the portion of the budget provided by state funds and inflation as the two primary factors in the need for the tax increase.

This year, most of the $218,812 budgeted from reserves has been spent, Mailey said.

He said the total tax rate had not changed since 1968 when it was lowered by 2 cents.

The reason for the drop in the percentage of the budget covered by state funds, Mailey said, is a change in the formula by which the local share of the basic state foundation program is calculated.

Part of an effort by the legislature to equalize school financing across the state was to modify the foundation system and then require the district to surrender a larger portion of money that would otherwise go to local enrichment of the foundation program, Mailey said.

Last year, the district was required to pay 30 cents per $100 of true market value of property in the school district (not the 75 per cent used by the school district for taxing purposes) toward implementing the state's basic program. This year, that rate increased to 35 cents.

The total budget for this year is 9.95 per cent above last year's, Mailey said.

The tax rate and budget were adopted unanimously with no discussion after Mailey explained the budget during a public hearing portion of the meeting. Only 10 persons attended the hearing and none spoke to the board.

The board had tentatively approved the budget and tax rate at its Aug. 10 meeting.

In discussing the budget, Mailey said the district's receiving federal funds has no bearing on the desegregation case now before federal court.

"The fact that we take federal monies would have nothing to do with our situation," he said.

Mailey explained that at one time the threat of withdrawal of federal aid was used to encourage voluntary desegregation, but that is not now the case.

He said if a desegregation plan is ordered which involves busing, aid from the Texas Education Agency could be sought for route mileage. The agency would not, however, assist in routes for transportation less than two miles from the school in question and routes would have to be approved.

State funds presently cover between 40 and 50 per cent of the district's transportation cost.

Of the total budget, 77.09 per cent is for salaries, a 3.5 per cent increase, Mailey said. (The cost for employes' health insurance, $255,735, is not included in that total in this budget.)

The remaining expenses of the budget includes purchased and contracted services, supplies and materials, other operating expenses, debt service and capital outlay.

The largest percentage of increase, 30 per cent, is for capital outlay, with a 28.92 per cent increase in other operating expenses, a 21.66 per cent increase in supplies and materials, a 25 per cent increase in debt service and a 15.18 per cent increase in purchased and contracted services.

The increase in debt service is due to the air conditioning bond issue approved by Midland voters, Mailey said.

Debt service must be kept separate in the budget. It accounts for 22.75 cents of the total $1.625 tax rate and 2.75 cents of the 20-cent increase.

In explaining the budget, Mailey said Midland is below the state average in value of property and "is not a rich district."

He also said state aid is based on the average daily attendance. Thus, if attendance falls below the predicted 14,681 average daily level, a smaller amount of state money will be received.

Trustee Johnny Warren pointed out the loss of 500 students to private schools would cause a loss in state funds equal to approximately 5 cents of the Midland tax rate.

Dominey said there would be a corresponding drop in personnel needs. Mailey said personnel for the coming school year are already under contract.

When asked about next year's budget, Mailey predicted an increase in cost, pointing out that inflation is between 5 and 6 per cent now, but said the need for another tax increase next year would depend on the actions of the state legislature during the year.

City schools to open Aug. 30 without desegregation changes possibility." He said all segments of the community should have put in the designing of a plan.

He said he envisions more than one plan being submitted since the issue of the inclusion of Milam, Pease and Crockett has not been resolved. School officials have indicated they will resist through legal channels any inclusion of these schools.

Dominey said the school district had not asked specifically the meaning of the term "all schools" because any plan for five schools implicitly involves all 19.

He said he was pleased the school district "will get our day in court."

Sparks expressed pleasure that the district will have a hearing but said it is "unfortunate that we have not defined what schools we are discussing."

He said devising multiple plans will cost the school district - "a lot more money."

Trustee David Grimes said the opening of schools on time pleased him and "it promises to be an orderly transition."

Judge Suttle's clarification is as follows:

Order in response to counsels' joint motion for clarification:

The court's order of Aug. 12, 1976, does not contemplate a hearing on Pease, Milam and Crockett elementary schools prior to the commencement of the studies and planning of the court's special master. The court's order of Aug. 12 confers upon the special master complete discretion to consider any or all of the elementary schools in the Midland Independent School District in his preparation of a desegregation plan which will comport with the mandate of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Nothing in the court's order of Aug. 12 prevents or enjoins the defendent, Midland Independent School District, from beginning school this year on Aug. 30, 1976, as planned. Neither does the court's Aug. 12 order prescribe immediate changes in the present student population for any elementary school in the Midland Independent School District. Changes, if any are required, in the student-minority student composition of the Midland Elementary schols will be ordered only after the court has reviewed all the proposed desegregation plans submitted, and has afforded the parties the opportunity to be heard on behalf of any such plan. It is strongly urged that the plan ultimately submitted to and approved by the court be a joint submission of the parties and of the court's special master.

The court's order to "immediately" desegregate the Midland elementary schools requires the parties and the special master to begin work "immediately" and to remain working continuously on this problem until a plan for the complete desegregation of the Midland elementary schools has been submitted to and approved by the court, and has been fully implemented by the defendant. The complete and immediate desegregation of the Midland elementary schools will be accomplished by the adoption and implementation of a plan or plans which comport to the mandate of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, as set out in United States of America v. Midland Independent School District, 519 F2d 60 (5th Cir. 1975).

So ordered this the 18th day of August, 1976.

D. W. Suttle
United States District Judge

Texas leader still contends nomination battle not over

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Suddenly Texas delegate David Keller, a Houston longshoreman, lunged and grabbed the blue President Ford sign tacked up on the wall beneath the row where Betty Ford was sitting.

Keller, one of the devoted 100-member, Ronald Reaganpledged delegation, wadded the sign up in his hands Tuesday night as President Ford supporters all around him yelled angrily on the floor of the Republican National Convention.

The episode occurred shortly before Texas voted all its delegates for a Reagan-backed rule forcing President Ford or any nominee to name his vice presidential choice by 9 a.m. today. The rule later lost.

As Keller crumpled up the sign, delegation aide Coby Piepper appeared quickly and tried to calm him down, saying "a scene" could hurt Reagan's image.

Keller said he pulled down the sign "in retaliation" because convention security yanked down a sign backing Reagan, the former California governor, the night before.

When the vice presidential vote was over and the tension on the floor had eased somewhat, Ray Barnhart, the delegation chairman, said the rule defeat was definitely a "setback. But the battle is not over yet."

Earlier in the day, state Sen. Betty Andujar of Fort Worth echoed the same sort of never-say-die sentiment when she said:

"The Reagan people are tuned out to anything but victory..."

She and several other Texas delegates disputed media tallies showing Ford could now claim the nomination as his own.

Asked by reporters if the Texas delegation would unite behind Ford if he were the victor, she said: "Yes, they must. The common enemy is the Democratic party."

But emotions in the Texas delegation were still far from friendly toward the Ford forces.

Barbara Culver, Midland County judge, said the Ford strategy to win over delegates could be described as "Santa Claus is coming to town."

"Do you want a judgeship, an Air Force base, a defense contract or whatever they've had to offer," she said. Asked if she knew if anyone in the Texas delegation had been offered a bribe, she said no.

Did someone tell her that was the Ford strategy? "No one has told me that," said Mrs. Culver with a wide grin. "I figured that out myself."

Barnhart also alluded to the Ford forces' strength when he told the Texas caucus during an afternoon meeting that Reagan forces faced an "uphill battle" that "might very well be doomed to defeat."

The Houston businessman, who quickly said he still thought Reagan could win, told the delegation: "I don't estimate the force of an incumbent White House."

In a speech reminiscent of a revivalist minister's preaching to his congregation Barnhart in a loud, strong voice told the delegates Reagan could carry the convention and confound the experts, just as he did in the Texas primary with his win there.

Shortly after the night session began, the delegation heard from another speaker it was familiar with — John Connally, whom they cheered on with shouts of "Big John" and placard waving.

"Connally gave a good talk. Connally always makes a good talk. Unfortunately, I couldn't hear much of it," said Ernest Angelo, the Midland mayor who was co-chairman of Reagan's Texas campaign.

Angelo was referring to the noise and confusion around the Texas delegation, which is seated far to the side and back of the convention floor.

Meanwhile, a six-member grievance committee appointed by Barnhart continued collecting Texas delegates' complaints about the convention's handling. Barnhart has said Ford forces favored their own rooms, convention guest passes and floor seating.

City residents object to Wadley-Barron use

area is unbelieveable, and property values in that section of town are decreasing. He said the park "is an absolute disgrace. What goes on there is something you read about in other cities—big cities—not here."

A Harvard Street resident agreed that speeds in excess of 80 and 100 mph had been noted at times in the park area. He warned, "Someone's gonna get killed there. The situation's not getting any better." He also noted that the city police department "is doing all it can, but officers can't patrol all hours of the day and night there."

One Midlander who does not live in the park area but whose parents do said he agreed with everything said about the facility. He complained about the double and triple-parking on streets in the park area, the "foul language" used and the abundance of trash. He said, "If the city can put in and maintain a park, at least it should be able to keep it from becoming a nuisance."

The "deplorable" conditions at Wadley-Barron have existed the past eight years, according to a woman resident of the area. She noted that some people living in the park area are ill and do not need the noise from people and traffic there, and that many widows also live there and "are afraid for their lives." She said, "It's a public park, but it's no longer beautiful."

Some possible solutions to the matter, according to a resident of the area, could be the city's imposing a curfew on the park or establishing cul-de-sac streets leading to the park, for example, between Country Club Road and Harvard Street.

Other residents said an 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. curfew should be imposed, or a 7 p.m. curfews or, according to one man, "if you can't control and enforce the curfew, you ought to close the park down."

Commissioner Mrs. Martha Houston expressed surprise the group has not appeared en mass earlier, considering the seriousness of the situation. But she also noted the parks commission is only an advisory board to the city council and has no real power to take action.

Police Chief Gideon said he would not deny the actions described do take place in the park. But he noted the department is faced with a situation of limited manpower.

Other places in the city, such as Grafa Park and Sinclair Street, are also becoming favorite hangout areas, the chief said. "We can't be everywhere at once, but we're doing the best we can," he added.

At a suggestion to close down the facility until a workable solution can be found, Gideon said, "If you close the park down, they (young people) are going to go elsewhere. If you remove the parking from B Street, they'll just move to the feeder streets in the area. I really don't know what the solution is."

Gideon noted that officers cannot do anything if the persons are not violating the law. "Proof's what we're looking for, not mere suspicion," he said. He added that persons listening to loud music or using drugs in the park area generally change their ways when an officer appears on the scene.

A resident said another "unpalatable" possible solution exists — cutting down the trees at Wadley-Barron and putting the area back on the tax roll.

One woman who is not a resident of the area noted that the "good" people should not have to "suffer because of a few."

Parks Director Robert Thomson said the "problem goes beyond the bounds of Wadley-Barron." He suggested that, before a curfew on this and the remaining city parks is imposed or before city parks are closed down entirely, additional police personnel be employed to patrol the area, "even if it means an increase in our taxes."

The commission agreed that chairman Bill Spruill and other designated members would meet with Nuessle and Gideon at 2 p.m. Thursday to investigate the problem and report to the full commission within a week so it can make a recommendation to the city council.

Rain chance still persists

Hope continues for some precipitation in the area, as the weatherman calls for a 20 per cent chance of rain today through Thursday.

Partly cloudy skies with a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms through Thursday with no important change in temperature is the prediction of the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The low for tonight should be in the mid-60s, with a high Thursday in the upper 80s. Tuesday's high was 90 degrees, and the low was 65 degrees.

Winds tonight should be from the southeast at 10 to 20 mph.

Andrews reported 64 degrees, clear weather and no wind this morning. At 68 degrees, Lamesa was clear with a light wind. Stanton also reported clear, warm weather with no wind.

Crane's weather was a little cooler this morning with cloudy skies. Rankin also reported high clouds with a little breeze. Odessa was cloudy and cooler, while Garden City was warm with a slight breeze.

Big Lake was the only lucky area city, reporting that it received a trace of rain last night. It was overcast and 69 degrees there this morning.

checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to "kill" the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

The two Americans died from massive head injuries and stab wounds, a Pentagon spokesman said in Washington.

The identifications of the dead and wounded Americans were withheld until their families could be notified.

Betty and Nancy differ in roles, campaign style

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The First Lady, a former dancer, and the former first lady of California, a former actress, are as different in their showstopping convention roles as in their daily campaign style.

Betty Ford, the President's wife, swung into the arms of singer Tony Orlando and danced to the tune of "Tie a Yellow Ribbon" at Tuesday night's session of the Republican convention.

Nancy Reagan, wife of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, stood quietly, smiled and waved.

They brought down the house.

Hours earlier, it was Nancy Reagan who undertook an exhausting day of campaign travel while Betty Ford made a single public appearance and worked quietly behind the scenes.

Both women attended a brunch held by the National Federation of Republican Women. They met briefly and shook hands.

Mrs. Ford told the group, "There is nothing I am more concerned about than getting more women into government....More power to them."

Mrs. Reagan was not called upon to speak.

Then, the two first ladies — veteran entertainers and veteran campaigners — went their separate ways to boost the political futures of their husbands.

Mrs. Ford has attended relatively fewer teas and made fewer public appearances at the convention than Mrs. Reagan. Since arriving Sunday, Mrs. Ford has privately chatted with delegates in the suite of convention rooms rented by the Ford forces.

Mrs. Reagan went from the brunch to the Royal Hills Nursing Center, then attended a tea at the Kansas City Museum and a noisy reception for young Republicans at a downtown hotel.

Along the way she made time for interviews on the bus and said several times, with increasing exasperation, that her husband will not accept the No. 2 spot on the GOP ticket.

It was not the crush of well-wishers or the pace of the receiving line, but rather her time with the fragile, the pale and the dying at the nursing home that touched her deeply.

It was hardly a place to reap votes or inspire election workers, the nursing home where residents crave compassion, not promises.

The home turned out in its Sunday best, or at least its best pink slippers and faded dressing gowns, with wisps of bright yarn to pull back wisps of hair.

Mrs. Reagan spoke to everyone who gathered, and they responded with childlike pleasure, or sunken stares.

"Oh, thank you for coming. You're so pretty and we're so honored," said Sally Gray, 96, as she gripped a walker with one hand and handed Mrs. Reagan a white orchid corsage with the other.

Mrs. Reagan kissed her.

Upstairs, with the most severely disabled and bedridden, Mrs. Reagan's cheery exterior melted in quick tears as 92-year-old Ellen Peppergias bent over the bedside of her friend, 84-year-old Ida McMillian.

Ellen wished her a good sleep, kissed her and said the Lord's Prayer.

Outside, Nancy Reagan dried her eyes.

"I guess that really got to me," she said.

Nancy Reagan smiles and waves at delegates.

Spending limits illegal, Hill says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas' limits on campaign expenditures by politicians are unconstitutional, Atty. Gen. John Hill has held.

Hill applied to Texas a U. S. Supreme Court decision that wiped out a federal ceiling on expenditures by candidates for national office.

Hill said the Texas limits were "an impermissible burden upon the right of free expression and are, therefore, unconstitutional."

The limits on expenditures by statewide candidates were 10 cents per voting age Texan in primary and general elections and four cents per voting age person in run-off primaries.

Also struck down was a ceiling of $1,500 for State Board of Education candidates, who run in congressional districts.

Secretary of State Mark White and education commissioner Marlin Brockette sought the opinion.

Commission recommends bond election for zoo

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland Parks and Recreation Commission Tuesday agreed to recommended the city council put back the approximately $25,000 deleted from the proposed city budget for a zoo and call a bond issue soon on construction of a new zoo.

Recently, council had proposed a cut of $27,127 from last year's city budget for the city zoo at Cole Park during the upcoming fiscal year. At the time of the announcement, Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. noted the council was seeking input on whether to put the funds back into the budget or to close the facility permanently.

Roy Kimsey, president of the Midland Zoological Society, told his fellow parks commissioners that the society last week had unanimously agreed to ask the city council to call a $5 million bond election for construction of a new zoo.

He said the bonds would be realized through general obligation bonds expected to be sold over a three to four year period. However, the funds would not include land acquisition or animals for the 50-to 100-acre zoo proposed.

Zoo Director Bob Cooper told the commission that most of the budget cut had been for personnel with the remainder being taken from animal purchase and maintenance. He then explained the feasibility study made by Zooplan Associates Inc. of Wichita, Kan., at a cost of $17,500.

The study proposed a "River of Life" theme for the zoo, with the animals grouped geographically and the facility built aroun a river.

Kimsey noted the zoo could become a major tourist attraction for the city. The zoological society is shooting for 1980 as the opening date for a new zoo, he added.

Commissioner Dick Saxe noted he could not believe the city must construct a "$5 million facility or have nothing at all.

Kimsey said the zoo is "behind the times and isn't keeping up with the city's cultural and population advances.

The group agreed to recommend the city council put the funds back into the budget for the zoo and call a bond issue as soon as possible for construction of a new zoo.

In other action, the parks commission:

—Disscussed temporary parking changes instituted by the men's Softball Association at Hogan Park;

—Agreed to take under advisement a request for a basketball and hoop in Fasken Park, as the request was received too late for it to be placed on the agenda;

—Approved a request by Gulf Energy and Minerals Co. for use of Cub Stadium Oct. 16 for a company picnic;

—Approved, no charge, the use of Hogan Pool for an annual swim meet by the Boy Scouts of America, as the BSAF places no charge on the city's use of its conoes for lessons;

—Heard a report describing city council action earlier this month on two requests for the use of park facilities and on expansion of Hogan Park Golf Course; and —Heard the July progress report by the city parks staff.

Houston to oppose Yarbrough

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Dist. Court Judge Sam Houston of Lewisville formally announced today as a write-in candidate for the Texas Supreme Court.

He will be challenging the Democratic nominee, Houston attorney Don Yarbrough, and another write-in candidate, Houston lawyer Tom Lorance.

"I feel that a write-in candidate has a good chance of winning this race," Houston told a news conference.

He said his biggest job would be one of educating Texas voters how to vote for a write-in candidate, particularly in counties with mechanical or punch card voting machines.

Houston said he planned to take a vacation from his court duties in October and spend the time touring the state. He also hopes to do considerable billboard and television advertising.

Houston said he did not run as a candidate in the Democratic primary because he considered Chief Justice Charles Barrow of the San Antonio Court of Civil Appeals a qualified candidate. Barrow was defeated decisively by Yarbrough, who has no Repubican opponent.

"I want to give the people another chance in November," Houston said.

There has been widespread speculation that many voters chose Yarbrough in the May primary because they confused his name with another well-known name, Don Yarborough, a Houston attorney who lost three times for the governor in the 1960s.

Houston, 41, is a native of Austin and attended public schools there. He is a graduate of both The University of Texas, with a business administration degree, and the Southern Methodist University law school.

Commissioners approve two zoning requests

The Midland Zoning Board of Adjustment Tuesday approved both requests for variances on its two-item agenda.

Tom Jenkins appeared before the board seeking a variance in side yard setback requirements at 1706 Country Club Drive. He said he is a new builder in town and, at the time he started construction of the house at that location, he was unaware of the city code's prohibition of side yard air conditioner units.

The board approved the variance, and both air conditioner units will remain.

Gerald S. Pitts then appeared before the board and asked for a variance in side and rear yard setback requirements at 1804 Culver St. Pitts said he wants to build a hobby shop in the northeast corner of his lot. He also presented a petition signed by a number of his neighbors, none of whom had objections to the request.

The board approved Pitts' request.

Date changed for bidding on buildings

Date for opening bids for the three new buildings at Midland College has been changed to Sept. 16, it was announced Tuesday in the regular meeting of the college's board of trustees.

The new buildings were the subject of the $6.3 million bond iss ue approved last in February. Bids originally were scheduled to be opened Sept. 21.

The board also approved the transfer of $100,000 of construction funds in order to pay, by Aug. 31, final bills including $72,000 for paving and parking lots, about $8,000 to $12,000 for street repairs and $9,000 for 4-foot sidewalks around the tennis courts to protect the courts from water damage.

In connection with this action, the college auditors recommended the creation of a restricted fund against encumbered funds. The fund would allow for the authorization of purchases at the end of the year, if the money is known to be encumbered.

College president Dr. Al G. Langford, in his report, told trustees that the growth of vegetation on the tennis courts had stopped and the courts should be complete by Aug. 30.

In other action, the board:

— Approved the appointment of two division chairmen, Dr. Charles Wakefield for technological studies and Wayne Holcomb for vocational studies;

— Received $25,690 in funds from the Texas College and University System. Of the $293,388 the college is entitled to receive, based on the number of academic students, it has received a total of $97,408;

— Announced that Reagan Legg, state chairman; Robert Leibrock, president of the board of trustees; President Langford, and the Rev. Horace Doyle, trustee, will attend the national convention of the Association of Community College Trustees Sept. 28 through Oct. 2 in St. Louis, Mo.;

—Learned from C. C. Dakil, dean of students, that enrollment pre-registration is up to 1,096 from 644 this time last year.

— And approved the hiring of new instructors, Mark Ahern, English; Charles Carter, law enforcement; Dr. Alan Hart, chemistry; Jay Dee Martin, business and economics; Warren A. Field, drafting; Charles mechanics, auto ; Miss Jo Aline Collins, assistant librarian, and Lynn Laycock, business.

Proposed bond total hiked

The proposed bond issue for city parks improvements now stand at $4,781,761 compared to its original proposal of $4,325,000, the city Parks and Recreation Commission agreed Tuesday.

The changes in the proposal were made to allow for a 6.7 per cent inflation factor and for a time lapse of almost a year since the bond issue was first presented, according to parks superintendent Wayne Kohout.

Included in the additions and deletions for the new proposal is an addition of $300,000 for an extra nine holes for golfing at Hogan Park and a deletion of $25,000 for improvements to field number four at Hogan Park, for a total of $1,156,900; the addition of $14,000 for automatic irrigation at Sidwell Park, for a total of $30,200; and the deletion of $10,000 from New Park (the Kiwanis Park), for a total of $45,000.

Other suggested changes involve a title change from Northwest Park to Northwest Athletic Park with a total of $160,000; neighborhood park land acquisition at the Northwest Athletic Park for $22,500; a concession and restroom facility, irrigation and landscaping on the Texas Electric Service Co. property for $25,000; landscaping and irrigation at the Lancaster annex for $8,000; and the addition of $14,000 for irrigation at Hill Park, for a total of $24,000.

Also included in the proposed changes for the bond issue is the addition of $10,000 for pool renovation at Ulmer Park, totaling $514,100; the deletion of $12,000 for restrooms at Garret-Brown Park, totaling $83,200; the deletion of $50,000 for pool renovation at Halff Park, totaling $75,100; the addition of $10,000 for pool renovation at Washington Park, totaling $99,700; the deletion of $150,000 from the downtown park which is now being handled in a separate issue; and the change from a theme park at Cole Park to an area with improved picnic facilities.

The bond proposal's total is $4,481,500 without the inflation factor of $300,261, according to Parks Director Robert Thomson. Its full total, as approved by the commission to be recommended to the city council, is $4,781,761.

Richard Nixon: a name GOP wants to forget

The Los Angeles Times

KANSAS CITY — "I think of a man who has everything in the world and then he walks down the street and he's Joe Scum."

Cynthia Mozzetti, 24, a California alternate delegate from Fremont, was talking Tuesday of a man who attended every Republican National Convention since 1948 — Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon would have loved it here.

He was one of the Republican Party's great gutfighters and tacticians, equipped with an encyclopedic political mind, a readiness to use political clout and an understanding of how to stretch ideology to bridge the huge divisions in the GOP.

Nixon would have been a superb field general in the fight now under way. But he is gone and his name is never mentioned at this Republican National Convention.

A move that would have placed his name in the platform was defeated in a subcommittee.

Not once was the name of the man who opened America's door to Communist China invoked by speakers at the opening session Monday night.

But in response to a reporter's questions, some delegates from around the country spoke of the first American President to be forced to resign.

Like Miss Mozzetti, they spoke of him with sympathy. They blamed the Democrats for pursuing him, ignoring the fact that one of his pursuers was Republican Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who may become their vice presidential nominee. And they expressed general agreement with the decision of GOP leaders to pretend at the convention that he never happened.

Because of Watergate and deep ideological differences, the GOP has become a party that is trying to forget its past.

Even someone hurt by Nixon, Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.), said, "History moves on."

At the 1972 Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Dole was one of the preferred Nixon spokesmen. He is a witty, intelligent politician who is liked and respected by reporters.

That made him a perfect front man. The Nixon team made him available to reporters to talk about politics and to deny the White House was involved in the Watergate burglary.

While he gave his daily assurances, the real strategists planned in secret. They isolated themselves in the Doral, the Nixon headquarters hotel. Only rarely did they emerge for interviews. Only members of the team were allowed to go to any floor above the lobby.

It turned out that Dole, like other outsiders, did not know what was going on. His Watergate denials looked silly and the senator, in trouble in his home state, had to fight hard before he was re-elected in 1974.

Despite this, he said, "You can dwell in the past if you have to. I don't know what purpose it would serve to rehash that."

But how can history be ignored? How can a man who served five years as the nation's twice-elected President become a nonperson?

That was the question asked by Nixon's staunch defender, Rabbi Baruch Korff, who fought and raised money to defend him.

Korff complained bitterly about the way Nixon was being ignored at the convention.

He said it was like the Soviet Union, when Khrushchev was deposed and not mentioned again.

It is un-American," he said. "phantom?"

He listed the accomplishments of the Nixon administration and said, "Did a phantom do this? Yes, we have sinned but yes, too, we have achieved a good deal. I'd be hopeful the Republican platform would cite the achievements of the last five years....There is a Nixon constituency and that Nixon constituency will sit out the election if they make a phantom out of Richard Nixon."

Mrs. Adelle Haines, a delegate from Brooklyn, took what she considered a more pragmatic view. Thinking ahead to the election against the Democrats in the fall, she said of the convention leaders: "To talk about Nixon, they'd have to be stupid."

Philippine quake toll soars past 5,300

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — The official toll of dead and missing in the earthquakes and tidal waves in the southern Philippines soared to more than 5,300 today, with nearly 30,000 reported homeless.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center (NDCC) said 3,103 deaths had been confirmed and there were at least 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless following Tuesday's catastrophes.

The casualties were concentrated in the towns and cities along Mindanao island's 500 miles of coastline around the Moro Gulf, on the northern side of the Celebes Sea.

The Philippine Air Force was shuttling tons of medicine, food and other supplies to Cotabato, on the eastern shore of the gulf, and Zamboanga, across the gulf at the tip of the Zamboanga peninsula. They were among the hardest hit cities.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were ferrying relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast.

President Ford sent President Ferdinand E. Marcos a message expressing sorrow and offering U.S. aid.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato.

Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

The first quake struck shortly after midnight Monday, while the people of Mindanao were sleeping. It was centered in the Celebes Sea between Mindanao and Indonesia's Celebes island and sent 24-foot-high tidal waves crashing ashore, carrying away fishermen's stilt shacks as far as 100 yards inland.

The first quake was followed by the usual aftershocks, and shortly after noon Monday another major tremor hit. But by then the survivors of the first quake had moved into the streets and other open spaces, and it was not likely that there were more casualties.

The National Geophysical Observatory said the first quake registered 7.8 on the Richter Scale while the U.S. earthquake center in Golden, Colo., got a reading of 8.0. The second quake registered 6.8 on U.S. seismographs in Honolulu.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion, and every increase of one whole number means the ground motion is 10 times greater. A tremor registering 6 indicates severe damage; a reading of 7 is a major quake, capable of widespread, heavy damage, and 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3.

Meanwhile, Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported that the major earthquake in the mountains of central China Monday night caused only slight damage because it had been predicted and officials had taken precautions. It occurred about two hours before the first Philippine quake about 700 miles southwest of Peking and registered 7.9 on the Richter Scale, Hsinhua said.

Greenwood sets hearing

The Greenwood school board will meet Thursday night for a public hearing on the budget, to set a tax rate and adopt a budget for the 1976-77 school year.

In July, trustees tentatively set the tax for maintenance and operations at $1.50 per $100 of assessed value of real property, with assessment based on 60 per cent of market value. The rate is the same as that for the past year.

The debt service tax rate, however, will increase significantly because of a bond issue passed July 31 for a new elementary school and other construction.

Tax rate will be set Thursday. Previous debt obligations will require a 20-cent tax rate, with additional taxes of between 45 and 69 cents, depending on the number of years pay-out, based on preliminary figures from the district's financial advisors.

The tentative budget for 1976-77 totals $598,790, up by approximately $50,000 from last year.

Ronald Reagan watches the Tuesday session of the Republican National Convention as he sits in his Alameda Plaza Hotel suite in Kansas City.

Republicans divided internally, poll says

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Regardless of how the presidential nominating controversy is resolved, Republican National Convention delegates are pessimistic about the chances of either President Ford or Ronald Reagan winning the general election on Nov. 2.

A Washington Post survey shows that convention delegates generally rate both candidates' chances of beating Jimmy Carter, the Democratic nominee, as unfavorable.

The delegates also do not think that either Mr. Ford or Reagan would provide very strong coattails to help state and local Republican candidates into office in November.

In addition, there are signs that the ill will generated during the primary campaigns may continue after a nominee is chosen. Some Ford backers say they cannot support Reagan, and some Reagan backers say they cannot work for Mr. Ford.

The survey, conducted early this month, obtained responses from 449 of the 2,259 convention delegates. They were asked whether they thought each candidate's chances of winning the general election were favorable or unfavorable.

Fewer than half of the delegates thought either man's prospects against Carter are favorable. Forty-one per cent viewed Mr. Ford's chances as favorable, and 46 per cent thought Reagan's chances would be favorable.

Those figures contrast sharply with the feelings of Democratic delegates about Carter. In a Post survey of 407 delegates to the Democratic convention in New York last month, 96 per cent thought Carter would win in the fall campaign.

The Republican delegates' relative lack of confidence may have been influenced to some extent by recent major national public opinion polls which showed Carter beating either GOP candidate soundly.

In addition, a bit of the pessimism can be traced to the low regard the delegates have for the chances of the GOP candidate they oppose. Only 14 per cent of the Ford backers, for example, rated Reagan's chances against Carter as favorable, and only 12 per cent of the Reagan delegates rate the President's chances as favorable.

In viewing their own favorites, the delegates are much more optimistic. Eighty-six per cent of Reagan's delegates rated him as a likely winner in November, and about two-thirds of Mr. Ford's delegates rated the President that way.

Uncommitted delegates, those nominally pledged to neither candidate, also were skeptical of the outcome in a race against Carter, but gave Mr. Ford a much better chance than they did Reagan. Forty-six per cent of the uncommitted delegates viewed Mr. Ford's chances as favorable and 27 per cent like Reagan's chances.

There was a similar element of pessimism among the GOP delegates when asked how they rated the candidates' ability to help state and local Republican candidates beat Democrats.

Only 30 per cent of the delegates thought Mr. Ford would be helpful in this respect. Reagan fared better, with 41 per cent rating him as helpful.

Even Mr. Ford's supporters were not optimistic about his pulling power. Less than a majority of them — 48 per cent — regarded his coattails as helpful.

Reagan couldn't hide feelings on rules vote

The Los Angeles Times

KANSAS CITY — Ronald Reagan was betting the whole bundle on a simple little amendment to the Republican convention rules and it was not easy for him to sit quietly and watch what was happening on the television screen.

His nerves a bit raw and his feelings bruised by his long and hard-fought battle against President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination, the Californian tried to appear impassive when cameras were allowed into the presidential suite in his hotel during the amendment debate.

But it was not easy. He snorted derisively at some of the Ford supporters on the TV screen and he worried aloud about some of his supporters.

He was amused when the television screen showed a disturbance in the New York delegation, heavily pro-Ford.

The whole idea, in Reagan's mind, was to force Ford into a pre-nomination roll call disclosure of the President's choice for running mate. Reagan had made his choice three weeks ago and he believed the Ford choice, whoever it might be, would shake some delegates out of the Ford camp and into his.

When a pro-Ford speaker argued against the Reagan amendment, he said:

"I don't understand what's wrong with letting the people know."

He had worked for two years to position himself for tonight's nomination roll call.

The vote on the amendment was Reagan's final gamble that Ford somehow would blow it, presumably either by being made to look weak or indecisive, or on television through his opposition to the disclosure amendment, or by coming up with a vice presidential choice that met even less favor than Reagan's selection of a liberal Pennsylvania senator — Richard S. Schweiker.

Reagan has tried for the past three weeks to appear comfortable with and relaxed with Schweiker. It has not been easy for a conservative of Reagan's mold to run in tandem with an eastern liberal.

Whether the Schweiker move ultimately proves successful or a crushing blow remains for the delegates to determine with finality tonight. But first Reagan had to sit almost alone and undisturbed in his 10th floor suite, waiting through the long roll call on the amendment, a vote that most people here believe is a sure sign of what is to come tonight.

When a pro-Ford speaker said the Reagan amendment had been defeated twice in committee, Reagan growled: "Yeah, all the Ford delegates against all the Reagan delegates," a reference to his earlier complaint that the committee was stacked against him.

When one of his supporters and longtime friends, Mrs. Eleanor Ring Storrs of Coronado, Calif., appeared to be in danger of being gaveled down for overrunning her allotted speaking time in favor of the amendment, he noted the applause for her remarks and said, "I don't think they ought to count it (against her time)."

"How are you to write a two-minute speech when it is interrupted by applause?"

Reaganites like to be visible

The Washington Post

KANSAS CITY — Rock ribbed. Diehard. Red hot. Any one of those sobriquets is considered flattering by the ideologically pure Ronald Reagan supporter, the total conservative.

They love to be identified, singled out from the rest of the crowd. They wear knitted Reagan hats, Reagan ties, Reagan rhinestones, giant rubber elephants on top of their heads. They don't wear one pin or one button — they wear clusters of Reagan insignia so nobody will mistake them for moderates.

Take Clare Giordano, for instance. There is no mistaking her for any Ford delegate. She wears a huge red button that covers more than half of her ample front, saying: "I'm a red-hot Republican."

"That means," she says with gusto, "we're involved. We've got a candidate we know can win and Ronald Reagan is the survival of the party, the nation and the world."

She also wears a "Stop ERA" button and is deeply involved in the Right to Life movement. The interesting thing about Clare Giordano is that she is a Michigan delegate against Ford.

"Gerald Ford was a good congressman in Michigan, he was clean; but he was silent, he never wrote legislation. We need someone to protect the nation. Why am I against Ford? Because he chose Rockefeller as his running mate."

Clare Giordano is very popular on the convention floor. She is almost never at the Michigan delegation, but runs instead from one side of the floor to the other, having her "Red Hot" pin admired and generally firing up some of her less passionate colleagues.

VAN seeks helpers

The Visual Aids News-Mobile(VAN) is seeking volunteers, individuals and organizations, who are able to provide two to four hours of assistance weekly to the project.

VAN is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing ways to help the visually handicapped with aids and services not available by other means.

The service is accomplished with a mobile unit which can travel in an approximate 80-mile radius of Midland and in Midland. Counties served are Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Andrews, Martin, Howard, Mitchell, Loving, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Sterling, Reeves, Ward, Crane, Upton and Reagan.

Objectives of VAN are to assist the visually and physically handicapped to adjust to their home or institutional environment by marking stoves, clocks, canned goods, cooking equipment, etc., and order appliances and aids such as Braille writers, canes, raised lined paper, prism glasses and talking book equipment.

VAN also enrolls persons needing help in the government talking book or big print book program. Volunteers will give Braille instruction and persons showing progress will be enrolled in Hadley School for the Blind for correspondence courses.

Another important VAN project is providing handicraft materials so the handicapped can earn money for themselves. VAN lends the necessary equipment so the handicapped can make finished products to be sold without profit by participating stores in the area.

VAN is supported solely by contributions and memorials. There are no paid workers, and the directors and administrators receive no salary.

According to Mrs. Mayme K. Martin, director of the service, volunteers are needed to prepare handicraft materials and to visit with the handicapped on a person to person basis.

Information may be obtained by contacting VAN, 2008 Princeton St., 683-3438.

NEEDLEPLAY

Inspiration from the Indians

By ERICA WILSON

The old adage, "the simplest ideas are the best," can certainly be said for American Indian crafts. Take moccasins, for instance. If you walk into a shoe store today and buy a pair, you'll no doubt be buying a design very similar to the basic one originated by the Indians hundreds of years ago, when they padded through the forests with their bows and arrows in search of deer.

The backs of the very old moccasins are stitched with beads—very firmly stitched so that they could take the wear and tear of years of use. When I was doing my TV show last year, "The First Americans," I learned that the chiefs of the tribes actually wore moccasins with beads stitched on the soles! Talk about beads going to your head—or, rather, your feet.

It's not at all difficult to get the effect of this stitching without using beads: simply work bargellow stitching (see djagram) on needlepoint canvas, then set it into your moccasins. Or if you'd prefer starting from scratch, there's a marvelous fake suede called "suede cloth," which you can buy by the yard in most notions departments. There are all sorts of varieties available that are easy to stitch on, won't fray when cut with the scissors—and can be popped into the washing machine!

The Indian craftspeople today have the same gift their forefathers did for knowing how to weave the art of Mother Nature into their own art. Jute is a wonderful, natural twine that can be effectively combined with embroidery floss and crewel wools by couching it down on neddlepoint canvas, and it's only a hardware store away. Tuck some of it into your sewing basket when you're headed to the beach, and by the time you go home, you can have a lovely coiled plaque.

Start in the center, sewing over the jute with bright colors of thread at various intervals, and work outward, round and round, establishing the pattern as you go. When you have finished, cut the canvas around, leaving ½-inch turnbacks, fold them back and back the whole mat with felt.

At home, you can make a rug with the jute by couching long lengths of jute onto very coarse-weave needlepoint canvas (a number 7 would be good). Couch in straight lines using three of four strands of ordinary needlepoint wool to sew it down.

Bargello Pattern

Though I adore the simple earth color that jute gives, last summer on Nantucket I decided to try something different. We were due for a new clothesline out back, so I "recycled" the old one and made a trivet.

Freeze mashed bananas for 'bananas in bank'

Do you sometimes find the bananas you buy getting ripe before you are ready to use them? There's a way to conserve their good value.

Simply peel the bananas, mash the fruit and freeze it. It will be all ready to use in delicious home baking with real banana flavor, a favorite with everyone. The will be at maximum sweetness and flavor — just right for including in baked goods.

Nothing could be simpler than mashing bananas. The Banana Bunch, industry-sponsored center for consumer information, recommends either mashing the fruit with a fork, or pureeing it in an electric blender, and that's all there is to it. It takes three medium bananas to make a cup of mashed banana. When you have mashed the fruit, put it in a one-cup freezer container, or in an empty half-pound soft margarine tub with a lid, if you have one around. This tub equals one cup.

With this "waste not want not" pure gold in the freezer, you can make luscious Banana Oatmeal Muffins, a treat that gives you two good sources of food fiber — bananas and oatmeal. Just thaw the mashed banana for a couple of hours before you want to use it, or put the container in warm water to hasten thawing, being sure the lid is on tight.

BANANA OATMEAL MUFFINS

½ cup uncooked oats, quick or regular ½ cup milk
one cup unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted one egg
one cup mashed ripe bananas (3 medium)

In medium bowl combine oats and milk; set aside until milk is absorbed. In medium bowl mix flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add butter, egg and bananas to oat mixture; add to dry ingredients and stir just until moistened. Fill greased 2½-inch muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake in 425 degree F. oven 15 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. YIELD: 12-14 muffins.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Thurs., Aug. 19)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when many are apt to be in a critical and nervous frame of mind. You will need to make a conscious effort to use self-control to sidestep getting involved in an unfortunate situation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use utmost care in travel, especially while driving. Helping another with communications can also prove to be worthwhile for you.

TAURUS (Apr.20 to May 20) Taking risks where monetary position is involved could prove to be most unwise now. Make certain that reports and statements are correct. Curtail expenses whenever possible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are feeling out of sorts and could make mistakes that could prove costly. Be more tactful at social affairs and don't start arguments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get rid of those frustrations early in the day and then you can function well and get much accomplished. Don't criticize others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't bother a good friend to go along with your ideas today since that individual has many problems to handle. Avoid the social which could prove to be rather trying at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Observe every rule and regulation that applies to you and take no risks. Handle career matters precisely and conscientiously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Work on those promises you made; then delve into the new which is on your mind and get good results with both. Avoid one who bickers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to back out of some obligation but this would only make more trouble for you in the future. Avoid an argument with a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You think that by changing plans you have made with a partner you will be ahead of the game, but this is not so. Study how to have a better image with the public in general.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to go off somewhere instead of taking of obligations. Be wise and carry through instead. A co-worker could prove to be difficult, but smile and placate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Delve only in that recreation that will not tax your pocketbook so much and which is tried and true. Show more kindness toward loved one for satisfying results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 21) Do not antagonize those at home. Make an effort to ease the tension that might arise there. Not a good day for starting new projects.

Allergic reactions possible with some to specific foods

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Allergy sufferers often experience much the same symptoms, and often as severe, as those caused by disease.

Inhalant allergens, such as pollen, dust, animals, give similar symptoms of sinusitis, bronchitis, rhinitis and asthma.

Allergic reactions to specific foods are exhibited by diarrhea, intestinal cramping, hives, edema, excerna and migraine symptoms.

Some, though not all, allergists suggest that allergic reactions to food can cause such diverse symptoms as lethargy, malaise, fatigue, irritability, and in some children, the hyperactivity syndrome. In rare but authenticated cases, epileptic-type seizures have been observed.

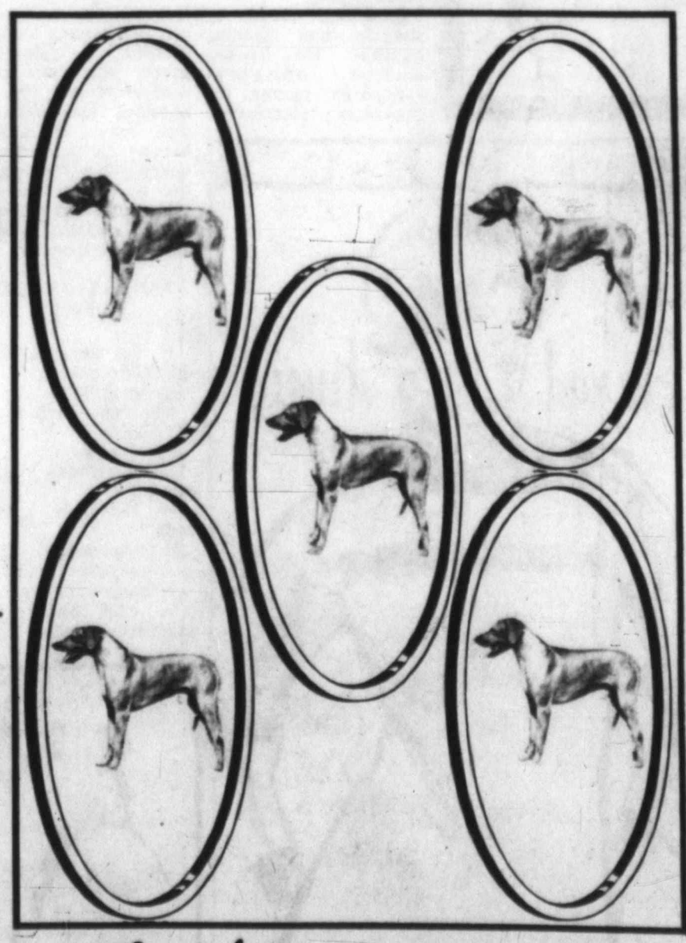

Milk, wheat and eggs are common offenders. If a true allergy to specific foods exists, they cannot be tolerated in any form — bakery goods, casseroles, soups, stews or in any other dishes. The preparation method of the food usually will not lessen its allergenic reactions.

Abstaining from food allergens in every form can pose a problem, however it is not impossible, and the effort is preferable to risking an attack.

Darts star in patterns

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Look at it this way — if we all were built the same, life would be so dull! That is why we have patterns that can be adjusted, altered, rearranged and recut to fit each one of us.

And that's where darts star. We can do wonders by changing a dart. For example: bustline darts create cupping over the bust. But what if your cupping and the pattern cupping can't get together? You move the dart. Up or down. Put it where it needs to be.

If you widen the base of a dart it creates more cupping. If you lessen the dart width, you will have less cupping.

Bustline darts should be directed toward the crown of the bust, but should stop one inch before you get there (more if you are fuller busted).

Waistline darts on a skirt or pants are used to create a little fullness over tummy and seat. If the darts are too short, you will have cupping above where you need it. If they are too long, there will be strain on the dart.

How do you know where they go? Do not baste any darts in your skirt. Try it on. Now, starting at the waist, pin the darts in. As you work down the dart, you will see how it affects the fit of the skirt. Stop when it reaches the right place — no matter what the pattern says. Back shoulder darts in the bodice can be shortened or widened to create a smoother fit across the back.

Let darts work for you.

Mrs. Reavis bid farewell

The Xi Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi gave a farewell party for Mrs. Ira Reavis in the home of Mrs. David Owens.

Attending were Mrs. Dick Bench, Mrs. Sam Blanck, Mrs. Oland Butler, Mrs. Barbara Elliott, Mrs. Carl Emerson, Mrs. Charles Gardner, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. James Husband, Mrs. Bill McCoy, Mrs. Jerry Moritz, Mrs. Andy Schumann, Mrs. Bill Stover, Mrs. Carl Williams, all members, and Wanda Matthews, a guest.

DEAR ABBY

Cannot condone cover up for child's truancy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: So a teacher was upset because a student skipped school and her mother lied to protect her. Well, listen to this:

When my son was 15, he skipped school and I was called at work and asked if he was home sick. I said, "No, if he's not at school, he's playing hooky."

I was then informed that because he had skipped school three times before, he was kicked out of school for the remainder of the semester.

After trying for two and one half months to get him back in, I found out it was against the law to suspend a student for that long, but by then, he was so far behind, he couldn't catch up, so he lost a whole semester.

I always thought honesty was the best policy, but that's the thanks I got for being honest.

If I had known then what I know now, I'd have lied to protect my son and punished him in my own way.—UPSET PARENT IN HELENA, MONTANA

DEAR UPSET: Although I think suspension is a most inappropriate punishment for skipping school, I can't condone lying to cover up a child's truancy.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the husband and wife who allowed their small son into the bedroom during their most intimate moments interested me. This is a far cry from the way I was raised.

Now, at middle age, after two marriages and two children, I still haven't been able to think of sex as anything else.

Perhaps if my parents had invited me into their bedroom, I would have been less frustrated, self-conscious and guilt-ridden where sex is concerned.—JUST JOHN

DEAR JOHN: Sex education can and is taught to include an honest explanation without live demonstrations.

DEAR ABBY: Why don't they proclaim a national Daughter-in-Law Day to honor all those daughters-in-law who do things for their mothers-in-law because their own daughters are too busy to bother with them?

I have just had another one of those Mother's Days, and I don't think I could face another one. I invited my mother-in-law to my home for dinner when she let me know that her own daughters hadn't planned anything "special."

I was raised to respect my elders and to honor my parents (my own mother is deceased), so I was glad to have her.

Well, behind my back she invited her own children to come to MY home for dinner! They all "surprised" me, fed their fat faces, told Mom how "wonderful" she looked, and then left. Not one of them lifted a finger to help me, and nobody even said thanks.

To top it off, my mother-in-law is always bragging about what "terrific" children she has, and she doesn't even LIKE me.

In case you're wondering how I managed to feed a flock of unexpected company, I sent out for six buckets of chicken.—MARIE HAS HAD IT

DEAR MARIE: O.K. Let's hear it for daughters-in-law out there!

Housewives share, for pay, dinner party secrets

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP) — For two years newlyweds Dick and Vickie Hentrich never turned down a dinner invitation: even bad company was better than Vickie's cooking.

Tam Hooks thought a recipe calling for "one c" of garlic meant one cup, and the fiery results can be imagined. As a young bride, she cooked a roast at 500 degrees for eight hours, and her husband, Jim, disgustedly threw the blackened beef against the wall.

The roast broke.

To redeem herself, Tam fixed cherries jubilee, for the first time, as a treat for Jim's FBI boss. When the boss bit down, however, his tooth broke. Tam had forgotten to pit the cherries.

Years later, Tam and Vickie met, and by then, their families rated them five stars for their crisp salads, succulent meats and delicate desserts.

"Tam," said Vickie, "why don't we do something fun and make some money, to turn out the dough."

"We decided," says Vickie, "to do a party service; the whole thing, not just cardboard cake and monotonous mints."

It would be unlimited: Parties Unlimited.

"We love parties," says Vickie. "We love to cook. We enjoy making people happy."

Several Austin housewives are getting more than compliments for their "homecooking." The same is true in other cities.

Mary Margaret Albright of Austin uses her kitchen in the summer to teach teen-agers to cook and turns out ckicken crepes, pecan tarts and a footlong list of special foods for three or four parties a month.

Her food service is so casual that often price is not mentioned until after the plates have been cleaned.

She admits, however, she feels "psychological tension in making sure that it's going to go, that you're going to have enough, that it's going to be appropriate for the weather."

Jean Gilbert, as cool and smooth as her orange souffle, worked out of upstairs-downstairs kitchens in her Austin home, hauling food for as many as 125 in her station wagon until she had a chance to go uptown—fulltime.

Uptown is the Heritage Guild's 1886 Tea Room, where Jean buys and cooks for up to 200 luncheon customers, Monday through Friday. The Tea Room nets the Guild $3,000 a month, and the money is used for historical preservation in Austin.

Parties Unlimited is on a much larger scale, and Vickie says, "I want it to be the Neiman-Marcus party service of Texas."

To begin, Tam and Vickie wrote a $15 newspaper ad. They waited for four days, visions of sumptuous dinner parties dancing in their heads, before the first customer called. "I would like," a woman said, "four you to do my 8-year-old daughter's birthday party."

Tam, in her husband's undershorts and tennis shoes, went as a clown. Vickie was the clown's mother. When the clowns whipped into a drive-in grocery to buy candles, a nervous clerk thought they were robbers and pleaded with them to spare his store.

Vickie recalls they each cleared $7.50 off the party. Tam says it was $3. "I am never," said Tam, measuring her words as carefully as bitter lemon, "doing this again."

Diet of HOGWASH!

There is no doubt that Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana is out to wreck the petroleum industry. And he seemingly works diligently at it.

Most persons in the industry have known this for a long time, as well as have most persons residing in the oil patch but not directly engaged in the business.

Yet, if there is any doubt in anyone's mind as to Bayh's intention, he or she should read one of the senator's news letters distributed regularly among his constituents "back home in Indiana."

Copies of some of the letters have drifted down West Texas way. Two copies of a recent issue have landed on the editor's desk.

The information dished out in generous helpings by the senator is nothing more or less than pure hogwash. It is no wonder that many of his constituents are misinformed on the subject, having been fed on such a diet of complete misinformation over a long period of time.

Bayh, as you undoubtedly know, is the senator who introduced legislation which, as his newsletter says, is intended "to bring competition to the oil petroleum industry by breaking up the vertical integration of major oil companies."

The senator went on to say that favorable action on the bill by the full Judiciary Committee of the Senate "is a major step forward in the long and difficult struggle to bring true competition to the petroleum industry."

What he really meant perhaps was that the action is seen by him as a step forward in his difficult struggle to wreck the petroleum industry. And this is exactly what would happen should his absurd proposal meet with success.

Bayh's letter went on to explain that under terms of the legislation the 18 largest integrated oil companies would be required to separate their exploration and production from their refining and marketing within five years of the bill's enactment.

The legislation, according to the letter, also empowers the Federal Trade Commission to receive and approve, and to amend if necessary, divestiture plans to be prepared by the affected companies and submitted to the FTC within 18 months of enactment. Such plans "must" take effect no later than five years after enactment.

"A special Temporary Petroleum Industry Divestiture Court is created to handle all litigation arising from the legislation to assure expeditious action on such litigation," the letter explains. "All appeals from decisions of the Temporary Court will go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court which is also instructed to give expeditious action to suits arising from the legislation."

And here's another one for you. Bayh said one objective of the legislation is to create a free market in crude oil. That's what he said, pointing out that:

"At present independent oil producers are often forced to sell their oil to major, vertically integrated oil companies and independent refiners are almost entirely dependent on federal regulation to assure them of a fair supply of crude oil at reasonable prices. Creating a free market in crude oil will not only provide all refiners equal access to crude oil, but also will provide now absent price competition. It will also remove the existing entry barriers that have limited the growth of independent refining capacity."

And here's another wild shot fired by the senator from Indiana:

"The legislation is also designed to remove major incentives for the multi-national, vertically integrated oil companies to cooperate fully with the pricing and supply practices of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Because higher OPEC prices increase the value of oil reserves of the major oil companies, and because those companies need an assured supply of crude oil for their refining and marketing operations, there is now no incentive to try to weaken the cartel. Through divestiture, we can create a situation in which refiners will finally want to buy crude oil as cheaply as possible and thus begin to exert pressure on OPEC prices."

HOGWASH in capital letters is all that it is!

PAN AMERICAN REPORT:

Panama reconciled to delay in canal pact

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Panama seems to be reconciling itself to the likelihood that the new canal treaty with the United States won't be ready until 1978, if then.

Gen. Omar Torrijos, the National Guard officer who has been running the isthmian republic for most of the last eight years, appears now to recognize that the Panama Canal is a real political issue in the United States.

At least, Panamanians report, Torrijos is saying privately that the U.S. and Panamanian treaty negotiating teams still face another "difficult 18 months" of work.

His last talk with Gen. George S. Brown, the Air Force officer who is chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, apparently convinced him.

That leaves the impetuous Torrijos in a difficult position.

He has long been telling Panamanians that a new treaty spelling out how Panama would get complete jurisdiction over the U.S.-built interoceanic waterway would be concluded by late 1976 or early 1977.

Beyond that time, he has said, he could not guarantee that he would be able to keep Panamanian students in check. That amounted to a threat Panama would use violence to gain control of the canal. In the past, high school and university students have been used to spark demonstrations and riots against the United States in Panama.

Most serious of those outbursts came in early January, 1964, when a clash between U.S. and Panamanian students inside the Canal Zone touched off days of rioting that cost more than a score of lives, including those of four U.S. Army men.

Although Panamanian and other anti-U.S. propagandists blame that trouble on U.S. authorities inside the zone, an on-the-spot investigation made by the International Commission of Jurists, at Panama's request, indicated that violence escalated because of the failure of the Panamanian National Guard to maintain order on Panama's side of the wire fence that marks the Canal Zone border.

Torrijos has said repeatedly that, although in his younger years as a National Guard officer he had to take part in violently repressing student demonstrations, never again will he turn National Guard weapons against the people of Panama.

That raises the possibility that enemies of Torrijos' dictatorship could seek to agitate students into marching into the zone, confident that the National Guard would not use force to stop them, in the hopes of provoking a clash with the zone police and the U.S. Army units stationed there.

Panamanians consider that a serious threat. For instance, Vice President Gerardo Gonzalez recently cautioned Panamanians that a confrontation with the United States would not be realistic under existing circumstances.

He said that the Panamanian government is confident that the controversy over the canal treaty will be resolved diplomatically.

Duration of the proposed treaty is the crux of the matter, according to Gonzalez.

Panama wants the United States out of the Canal Zone no later than the year 2000. The United States wants the right to administer the canal for 30 years and to defend it for an additional 20.

Under terms of the existing treaty with Panama, signed in 1903, the United States enjoys all rights in the zone, as if it were sovereign, in perpetuity, that is forever.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

Reagan's 'Road from Damascus'

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

KANSAS CITY — The conversion of Ronald Reagan, like the experience of the Apostle Paul on the road to Damascus, was a sudden awakening. One friend, fellow actor-turned-politician George Murphy, can even cite the moment that Reagan saw the light. Not long afterward, the crusading liberal of the 1940s became a militant conservative in the 1950s.

The youthful Reagan, who was later to inveigh against student activists, himself led a student protest at Illinois' Eureka college in his freshman year. With all the zeal of Paul, he also began persecuting the corporations that he would later embrace. He became a union activist, quick to take the stump in behalf of the workers.

In Hollywood, he became better known as the ardent, articulate president of the Screen Actors Guild than as a "B"-picture actor. Entertainer Sheila MacRae, who worked with Reagan in the Hollywood of the 1940s, described him as "the Warren Beatty of his day." Beatty is devoted to liberal causes.

Assigned to an Army motion picture unit during World War II, Reagan regularly assailed his fellow soldiers with his leftist views. He became associated with several left-leaning groups, including the American Veterans Committee.

In 1950, he supported Helen Gahagan Douglas against Richard Nixon in the classic Senate campaign that Nixon won by smearing her as the "pink lady." But two years later, Ronald Reagan startled Hollywood by backing the Dwight Eisenhower-Richard Nixon ticket.

What had turned Reagan into a sudden Republican? Former Sen. George Murphy, R.-Calif., told us it was Reagan's dread of Communism. "We had discussions about the Communists," Murphy said. He warned Reagan that left-wing radicals were infiltrating Hollywood's craft unions.

"Ronnie didn't believe me at first," recalled Murphy. "But finally one night, when he was booed off the stage while giving a speech, he saw the light."

There was another new influence on Reagan. He married Nancy Davis, a young actress from an arch-conservative family, in 1952. Knowledgable sources told us she is a strong-willed person who helped pull Reagan to the right. But other sources close to the family minimized her political influence on her husband.

In 1954, the former labor agitator signed on with General Electric. He not only became GE's mouthpiece on television but also lectured company workers across the country on the virtues of free enterprise and the rewards of capitalism.

Reagan intimates say his GE experience, which lasted eight years, helped to shape his political views. Recalled one source: "It was as though he underwent a religious conversion. From extreme liberalism, he made a strong shift to the right. He felt he had to prove that he was a true believer in the conservative cause."

Another important influence, according to several sources, was Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., who ironically has turned against Reagan in the showdown with President Ford. Reagan was so impressed with Goldwater's political writings that he pushed them on friends.

Whatever the causes of Reagan's political transformation, a campaign spokesman preferred to attribute it to a "long process of education and political maturity."

Most people who know Reagan, including those who dislike his politics, agree that he is a likable guy. He has an all-American quality — the easy grin, the engaging sincerity, the open manner.

He has always been quick to mount the soapbox, to stand up and speak up about the issues. "Ronnie is the kind of guy who, if you ask the time, will tell you how to build a watch," Art Linkletter told us. But he has always found Reagan practical — a "realist," not a "dreamer," said Linkletter.

Others called Reagan "shallow" and "superficial." He looks for "easy answers to complex problems," said one acquaintance. Novelist Irving Wallace said Reagan gleaned most of his information in capsulated form from the Readers' Digest. The two served together in the Army.

Reagan also studied the Army maps and followed the war closely. He was deeply interested in world affairs, an interest that still occupies him, an intimate said.

Reagan likes to limit his working hours from nine to five, with plenty of rest. He tends to get cranky when he's tired and detests the long campaign grind. Some cited this as evidence that he is lazy. Others said he is well organized and sees no reason for putting in overtime.

Ronald Reagan, according to those who have worked under him, is a good administrator, but above all, he is a polished performer

Mark Russell says

The Kansas City Convention is the most exciting thing to happen in Missouri since Harry Truman's haberdashery went bankrupt.

The music at the Convention is very inspirational. In Kansas City, Anita Bryant is considered a soul singer.

Here in Kansas City, you can purchase many nostalgic items commemorating the glory days of the Republican Party, such as a gold medallion engraved with Clement Stone writing a 3-million dollar check.

Or, a color portrait of Chuck Colson walking over his grandmother.

Ford has said he will find good uses for Ronald Reagan, such as receiving the swine flu injection until they get it right.

When Ford trips, they call it clumsy. When Reagan trips, they call it selecting a running mate.

INSIDE REPORT:

The enigma of Carter raises eyebrows of supporters

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

ATLANTA — The drama of Jimmy Carter's scornful, bared-teeth attack on President Ford recently, widely criticized as politically premature, has obscured the Democratic presidential nominee's subtle leftward movement toward positions deeply entrenched in the party's liberal wing.

Carter's assault on the "Nixon-Ford administration" which governed "by vetoes, not vision, by scandal, not stability," astonished lukewarm Carterites high in the party's inner councils. More significantly, 10 days later the former Georgia governor's close aides were still expressing surprise of their own in the skyscraper offices here where both the fall campaign and a not improbable Carter administration are being planned in chaotic 18-hour days.

"We'd talked about an eventual switch to a harder line," one such aide told us, "but no one expected it so soon. After all, Jimmy is the candidate of love and reconciliation."

Likewise, Carter's worried warning of "an almost unprecedented, vicious personal attack" during the campaign may have been designed as a battle flag for overconfident and hence complacent Democrats, but it was out of place against a Republican party flailing in civil war with no presidential ticket yet in the field.

Thus, the Carter move signalling a political hard line for the fall campaign was both premature and topheavy with overkill. However, except for raised eyebrows on leading Democrats asking what Carter will be saying when and if that "vicious, personal attack" really materializes, the overkill will do no permanent damage.

That may not be true of the nominee's subtle movement toward political positions and campaign advisers taken from the heart of the party's Northern left wing. Indeed, a stern word of caution has already come from the long-time pro-Carter Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer, which — though still pro-Carter — on Wednesday editorialized as follows under the title "Carter Moves to Left":

"Jimmy Carter...proved to be a more liberal governor than many Georgians — Carter supporters and non-supporters — had expected. The same thing is happening again. Once again, his positions are more liberal than many people, particularly Southerners, had expected."

Examples abound of Carter's seeming insistence to identify himself and his campaign with the liberal hard core. Minnesota Democrats, scarcely notorious for conservative or even moderate ideology, are astounded that Arvonne Fraser, wife of Rep. Donald M. Fraser, will be the Carter campaign coordinator for the five-state upper Midwest region. Arvonne Fraser is well to the left of her husband, and he is perhaps the leading liberal activist in the House.

Likewise, Carter has drafted the main architect of the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill, liberal economist Jerry Jasinowski, from the Joint Congressional Economic Committee as one of his chief transition economists here in such controversial areas as full employment. Yet, in a typical Carter paradox, one top issues adviser told us that, despite Carter's endorsement of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill (designed to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent in four years), and his hiring of Jasinowski, the bill will go nowhere in a Carter administration.

That raises this interesting question: is Carter packing his staff of political and issues advisers with left-leaning activists for image reasons, trying to convince Northern liberals that the self-styled "redneck" Southern Democrat will betray no liberal principles?

The extraordinary public visibility down in Plains accorded by Carter to Ralph Nader, whose consumer-protection advocacy has become more controversial of late, suggests that Carter is at least as interested in show as in substance.

Likewise, the former Georgia governor during his speech here Wednesday to the American Bar Association, delivered in typically passionless style, cluttered his text with a list of symbolic legal issues dear to liberals — but highly controversial to everyone else in the party, such as: a strong legal services corporation, expanded class action suits, funding of public interest law and strengthening of "citizen advocacy groups."

Not a single lawyer's hand clapped when Carter ended his recitation of these symbolic liberal issues, yet in fact he actually committed himself to absolutely nothing — simply labeling what he called "this agenda" as things the lawyers themselves must be concerned about.

Whether Carter is concerned he carefully did not say, except by remote suggestion. Such veiled rhetoric, coupled with the real or fancied influence of his glittering stable of liberal activists, deepens the mystery of Jimmy Carter far more than his premature attacks on Jerry Ford. Whether it is the right politics to protect his unprecedented lead in the polls, however, is a different question.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. Ponder on all the uncomplimentary names women have been called in Biblical writings and consider how long these labels have lasted. Men have escaped this and even Solomon with 700 wives and 300 concubines expressed himself quite freely on the subject of lewd women. Who presumably was first to call men's attention to their own licentious standards? John 8:7

2. What judge of Israel called his wife a heifer? Judges 14

3. Who addressed himself to the "elect lady" in the 2nd Epistle of John?

4. What is the symbolic foundation of the Christian Church? Matt. 16:18

5. What sour fruit, used mostly as a flowering shrub, was for design in the first priestly vestments? Ex. 28:34

Four correct...excellent. Three correct...good.

Greedy player tries to grab too much

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Once upon a time there was a greedy bridge player. He could have defeated a slam, but he wasn't satisfied. He tried to grab too much and lost everything. (Don't waste your tears; the greedy player usually wins. Today's hand is just an exception.)

In an expert partnership North's rebid of four diamonds promised strong heart support, maximum strength and the ace of diamonds. After this encouragement, South had trouble stopping at six.

South took the ace of clubs and led a trump to dummy's queen. East's spade discard was not a pleasant sight.

Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds and the top spades, ruffed a spade in dummy, discarded a diamond on the king of clubs, ruffed a club and led a diamond to the king. Finally he ruffed dummy's last club with the king of hearts.

West had three trumps and a diamond; and he greedily threw the diamond to keep all of his trumps.

MUST RUFF

When South led his last diamond West had to ruff and return a trump from his J-9 up to South's A-10, giving declarer his slam contract.

West should underruff instead of discarding his last diamond. This allows East to win the 11th trick with the queen of diamonds, and West eventually gets his trump trick to defeat the contract.

Star is more artist than outlaw

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Paycheck doesn't want the current "outlaw" cult to interfere with his identity as a country music singer.

Paycheck, 35, admits he fits the "outlaw" mold normally associated with Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson and David Allen Coe.

Some 15 years ago, he served two years in a New Hampshire federal prison for various offenses, including desertion and escape.

In 1972, he received a suspended sentence of 11 months and 29 days for forgery.

This June, he filed a bankruptcy petition listing assets of $153,000 and debts of about $489,000.

Despite that and confessed battles with liquor and drugs, he doesn't totally embrace the "outlaw" cult.

"I've got pride in my profession and I want to be judged on my ability, not my background," said Paycheck, whose current single is "11 Months and 29 Days."

"I happen to think I'm a damn good singer and people come to see me sing, not because of my background. I'm becoming known as an outlaw, but I personally don't want to lose my identity as a singer and be known as a complete outlaw.

"I hope it doesn't come to the place where people come to see an outlaw instead of a singer."

The title of his current single, he said, was not intended to embellish his past. The idea for the song came from producer Billy Sherrill and the title simply fit.

In interviews, he does not project an "outlaw" image. He's friendly, perceptive, articulate. He could pass as a high school history teacher.

Nevertheless, he believes the "outlaw" following is good for the music industry.

"I love the outlaw image and I think the industry has needed it," he said. "It takes the artist off a pedestal and brings him down to the people's level. This type of music lets the listener be comfortable. I think this is more the music of the land than has come along in a while."

His bankruptcy petition came as a relief, he said.

"I feel a lot better about getting it off my shoulders," he said. "I couldn't sleep for a year and a half. They told me I should have filed a year earlier.

"It was just impossible to keep up with my debts. Nobody realizes the tremendous expense of becoming a star. I just had to do this to get the pressure off, otherwise I would have been wasted and couldn't continue my career. Now I can.

"Bankruptcies are common— they are filed daily."

His financial situation will not seriously affect his career, he said. He recently taped several syndicated country music shows that will be shown this fall and his seventh album will be released in September.

"Life is good and I'm glad I'm here," he said. "The album has five originals and a couple of the nicest ballads I've ever done. It's a mixture of things. I think it's the best album I've ever done.

"I'm on my way back, and I'm going to get there."

Author sees movies as reflection

By ROBERT KIRSCH
The Los Angeles Times

"Unlike the more elitist arts, which appeal to the solitary self or the select group, movies at their best assert that art should transform individual life by making us into a new community through their power," Leo Braudy concludes in this exciting, entertaining exploration of films. "Whatever their stories, whatever their methods, movies show us how to be human in ways that the other arts cannot."

The elitist critics, who have tried to impose on film "the same terms of value used by the aesthetes and the modernists who have attacked, ignored or condescended to film," may resist such notions, but Braudy, a professor of English specializing in 18th-century literature and a film buff, makes his case persuasively and refreshingly. "Experiencing and thinking about films, like the process of creating them, is a mixture of solitude and community."

The distinction between popular and serious art is the bone "serious" critics have not been able to swallow or disgorge. Braudy argues for, and demonstrates, a film criticism which is less prescriptive and polemical, more expansive and descriptive, less fearful of exploring the qualities of experience not covered in literature and the other arts.

Movies are not merely a projection of the 20th century; they have turned back and interacted with life so that they no longer can be detached from the culture or the community.

"We need to look as closely as possible at what film in general has accomplished, instead of assuming that only occasional works of value could come from such a deficient and bastardized process," he writes.

"The history of film is a model of the history of the 20th century, in which there are an increasing number of things to which the viewer must pay attention. Like all new orderings of human experience, film allows us to reevaluate the past, to cut across the old divisions between the arts and in the process create a criticism that ignores the academic compartmentalization of the arts and sciences."

This is exactly what Braudy does, exploring film as a supple and virtually unlimited language of experience, fantasy, memory, symbol, ritual and pleasure. The clue to his attitudes and approach lies in the 18th century, in the emergence of the novel as a new popular genre, in the attempts of Fielding and others to comprehend and encompass the new power and potential of the form. "Film extends the revolution in art begun by the 18th-century novel and its assertion of a continuous form that had to be entered into by the reader, a new conception of art not as a controller and former of images and principles but as a place of testing experience."

Perhaps Braudy's most important assertion of confidence in the audience and the "new continuities and new connections" of the form is to resist the notion that the passivity of the film audience is a type of hypnosis or mind control.

Indeed, there is evidence that movies have helped us bear the increasing mechanization of our culture and to remain individuals in modern society. Like most of us, Braudy is not afraid to enjoy films.

Going to the movies with Braudy is an adventure. And it comes as no surprise that "most of this book began at the movies as notes to myself in the dark," that most of his acknowledgments are to friends with whom he attended movies and with whom he discussed, argued, debated the nature of the experience.

I like the intimacy and tone of his writing. It is after all written for us, "nonprofessionals.

Barbecue to entertain city's new educators

The annual barbecue sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce for new teachers will get under way at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Midland College physical education building.

Fred Tyler, executive vice president and general manager of the chamber, said the informal barbecue will be held for new teachers in the Midland Independent School District, at Midland College, at St. Ann's, at Trinity and Hillander and at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The chamber will present a slide show entitled "You'll Like Midland" as part of the evening's entertainment. Brief remarks also will be made by Dr. James H. Mailey, MISD superintendent; Dr. Al G. Langford, president of Midland College, and Dr. V. R. Cardozier, president of UTPB.

Wally Craig, chairman of the chamber's education committee, will act as master of ceremonies for the event.

That evening, new teachers and their spouses or guests will be the guests of the Midland Cubs for their game against Amarillo.

Singer's lifestyle changing

The Los Angeles Times

WESTWOOD, Calif. — Multitudes of dashing nicknames are usually applied to singer James Brown, including the Godfather of Soul, the King of Soul and Emperor of Soul. However, none of these titles seemed applicable to the man who walked wearily out of the bedroom of his hotel suite here, still tired from a long television taping session the previous day. The small, muscular man lay down on a couch in the living room wearing only tan pants and flashy jewelry and struggled to overcome fatigue long enough to be interviewed.

Brown wanted to talk about the changing focus of his career, which began more than 20 years ago. He and his huge supporting cast used to play about 300 concerts each year. Now they perform only 75.

"Times are changing and I move with the times," he said. "There is no market for all those concerts I used to do. The concert market is down for all artists because ticket prices are so high. They have to be high because it costs so much to put on a show now. People are staying home and watching television."

Brown's yearly album output has also dwindled from four to two. "I found it's not good to put out so many albums," he commented. "The albums get more attention and you have more leverage when you don't saturate the market with your product. When you don't record many albums, you can spend more time on the ones you record and make them a lot better. Also, I just don't have as much time for recording as I used to."

The singer has less time for concerts and recording because he has been spending more time on his booming business empire, which includes radio stations, a record production company, a music publishing firm and extensive real estate holdings. He is now concentrating on expanding his empire throughout the world, particularly in Africa.

These women lost their lives in the Colorado flood...

But they are still alive. They have a message for you.

On July 31 these women hastily left a weekend retreat in the Colorado Rockies. They had been warned to flee a flash flood which was roaring down the canyon. They started out, but never reached the bottom of the canyon alive. More than 100 others also lost their lives in the Big Thompson Canyon that same night.

A tragedy, people say. It is certain that these seven women who were part of the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International will be deeply missed by family, friends and fellow staff members.

But what these women and their families would want you to know is that they are more alive than ever—in heaven. That they lived a full and wonderful life on this earth. And that they now are better off in the presence of the loving God and Savior whom they served.

If you were to die today, do you know for certain that you would go to heaven? Would you spend eternity in heaven with Christ or separated from Him forever. For those who have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ, death's sting has been taken away. God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble.

He reaches out in love to all men and women, offering His forgiveness, peace and comfort through Jesus Christ. So there is no reason to fear life or death.

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life; whoever believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die" (John 11:25,26).

A personal relationship with Jesus Christ doesn't begin at death—but it is available to you now—in life. Twenty-eight other women leaders of Campus Crusade for Christ International left that retreat with these seven. They are still alive—physically as well as spiritually.

But they also have a more keen awareness of the delicate balance between life and death. And more than 5,000 other staff of Campus Crusade for Christ have a keener awareness of life. For them, life is Christ. For the women who died, Christ is life. The message that follows explains what these women want you to know—how you can find new life in Jesus Christ. They had committed themselves to sharing this message in life or in death.

Just as there are physical laws that govern the physical universe, so are there spiritual laws which govern your relationship with God.

LAW ONE

GOD LOVES YOU, AND OFFERS A WONDERFUL PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

(References should be read in context from the Bible wherever possible.)

God's Love

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

God's Plan

(Christ speaking) "I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly" (that it might be full and meaningful) (John 10:10).

Why is it that most people are not experiencing the abundant life?

Because. . .

LAW TWO

MAN IS SINFUL AND SEPARATED FROM GOD. THEREFORE, HE CANNOT KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR HIS LIFE.

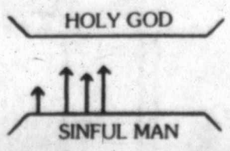

Man Is Sinful

"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Man was created to have fellowship with God; but, because of his stubborn self-will, he chose to go his own independent way and fellowship with God was broken. This self-will, characterized by an attitude of active rebellion or passive indifference, is evidence of what the Bible calls sin.

Man Is Separated

"For the wages of sin is death" (spiritual separation from God) (Romans 6:23).

This diagram illustrates that God is holy and man is sinful. A great gulf separates the two. The arrows illustrate that man is continually trying to reach God and the abundant life through his own efforts, such as a good life, philosophy or religion.

The third law explains the only way to bridge this gulf. . .

LAW THREE

JESUS CHRIST IS GOD'S ONLY PROVISION FOR MAN'S SIN. THROUGH HIM YOU CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

He Died in Our Place

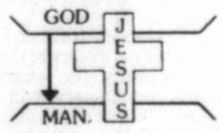

"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

He Rose from the Dead

"Christ died for our sins. . .He was buried. . .He was raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures. . .He appeared to Peter, then to the twelve. After that He appeared to more than five hundred. . ." (I Corinthians 15:3-6).

He Is the Only Way to God

"Jesus said to him, 'I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me'" (John 14:6).

This diagram illustrates that God has bridged the gulf which separates us from God by sending His Son, Jesus Christ, to die on the cross in our place to pay the penalty for our sins.

It is not enough just to know these three laws. . .

LAW FOUR

WE MUST INDIVIDUALLY RECEIVE JESUS CHRIST AS SAVIOR AND LORD; THEN WE CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR OUR LIVES.

We Must Receive Christ

"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name" (John 1:12).

We Receive Christ through Faith

"For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast" (Ephesians 2:8,9).

When We Receive Christ, We Experience a New Birth.

(Read John 3:1-8.)

We Receive Christ by Personal Invitation

(Christ is speaking): "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any one hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him" (Revelation 3:20).

Receiving Christ involves turning from self to God (repentance and trusting Christ to come into our lives to forgive our sins and to make us the kind of person He wants us to be. Just to agree intellectually that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that He died on the cross for our sins is not enough. Nor is it enough to have an emotional experience. We receive Jesus Christ by faith, as an act of the will.

These two circles represent two kinds of lives:

SELF-DIRECTED LIFE
S—Self on the throne
†—Christ is outside the life
•Interests are directed by self, often resulting in discord and frustration

CHRIST-DIRECTED LIFE

†—Christ is in the life and on the throne
S—Self is yielding to Christ
•—Interests are directed by Christ, resulting in harmony with God's plan.

Which circle best represents your life?

Which circle would you like to have represent your life?

The following explains how you can receive Christ:

YOU CAN RECEIVE CHRIST RIGHT NOW BY FAITH THROUGH PRAYER

(Prayer is talking with God)

God knows your heart and is not so concerned with your words as He is with the attitude of your heart. The following is a suggested prayer:

"Lord Jesus, I need You. Thank You for dying on the cross for my sins. I open the door of my life and receive You as my Savior and Lord. Thank You for forgiving my sins and giving me eternal life. Take control of the throne of my life. Make me the kind of person You want me to be."

Does this prayer express the desire of your heart?

If it does, pray this prayer right now, and Christ will come into your life, as He promised.

Diablos' muscle men turn out lights for M-Cubs

BY TED BATTLES

El Paso's Diablos saw their slim half game Texas League West Division lead slipping away at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night. Pursuing Amarillo was leading San Antonio, 6-2, in the sixth, a game the Gold Sox were to eventually win, while the Diablos were losing 5-2 to Midland's struggling Cubs.

Then it happened.

"We busted our butts building up a three-run lead," Midland Manager Denny Sommers lamented after the dust had settled, "And they wipe it out with two swings."

A four-run seventh saved the day for the California Angels' farmhands and enabled the Diablos to retain that precarious perch atop the TL West.

STEVE STROUGHTER'S 11th homer, a two run job, tied it and then Willie Aikens' 27th boundary belt, in effect, won it, although the Diablos went on to push over three superfluous runs in the ninth to make the final margin 9-5. And disaster struck, just when it looked as though Darrell Turner might escape, as he had from a bases loaded situation the inning before.

A walk infield single by Marty Friedman and an infield out put runners on second and third, but there were two out. Turner worked two strikes against Stroughter and then a wild pitch let in a run.

"It was a slider that went into the dirt," Turner recalled. "I thought I got the next pitch out and away from him, but he got enough wood on it to push it out." The left handed hitting Stroughter's fly caught the wind and cleared the left field barrier to make it 5-5.

AIKENS THEN greeted Jim Kremmel's arrival from the bullpen with a solo shot over the right field barrier to make it 6-5.

Actually, that was all the Diablos needed. Virgil Barrientos, who came on in relief in the fifth with one out, slammed the door on the Cubs, retiring 12 in a row before giving up a harmless one out single to Bob Hrapmann in the ninth.

About the only satisfaction the Cubs derived from the loss was that they escaped a fourth straight defeat at the hands of lefty Bob Nolan, chasing the Diablos' ace who was in quest of his 13th victory , while building up the 5-2 lead.

Bill Huisman cracked out three hits and leftfielder Jose Ortiz made a couple of "you-gotta-see-to-believe" catches in left to keep Midland in the game early.

AFTER TERRY Stupy's line shot over the left field fence staked El Paso to a 1-0 lead in the second, the Cubs struck for five hits amd three runs off Nolan. That's as many of both as the Cubs have been known to get in a season off the former San Francisco State pitcher.

When Nolan was pitching for Midland manager Denny Sommers at Amarillo in 1974, his last effort against Midland was a shutout. This season, after a year's absence in AAA ball, Nolan blanked the Cubs in the first two of his three wins over Midland.

Nolan started off in painfully familiar style fanning the Cubs in the first, but then Mike Gordon and Huisman opened the second with successive singles. Ortiz advanced the runners into scoring position with a sacrifice, but when Nolan whiffed Cubs newcomer Duane Gustafson on three pitches, Midland hopes faded.

NOLAN WENT to 1-2 on Earl Chew before the former Temple University athlete bounced a two-run single through the left side. Then Keith Drumright, the All-America from the University of Oklahoma, sliced a run scoring double down the left field line.

Midland struck after two were out for a run in the third when Huisman singled to right, stole second and moved to third as Ortiz beat out a bouncer. That set up a run-producing double steal, Ortiz drawing the throw and Huisman beating the return throw with a belly-whopper across the plate.

Ken Landreaux singled home Danny Goodwin who had doubled in the fifth, but Midland made it 5-2 as Huisman doubled imto the left field corner and Gustafson's second hit plated him to chase Nolan.

NFL pre-season gate really not as bad as it looks

By The Associated Press

"It seems the National Football League preseason attendance is way, way down," someone in Buffalo said recently as he observed about 31,000 fans in 80,200-seat Rich Stadium for the Bills' exhibition game against New Orleans.

If he'd been in Washington last weekend, he'd have thought otherwise. The Redskins, who averaged about 22,000 for their exhibitions, drew better than 40,000 for their game, a loss to Pittsburgh.

If he'd been in Chicago to see the Bears beat Baltimore, he'd have been in the company of 54,328 fans. Last year the Bears' top preseason crowd was 42,503.

If he'd been in Dallas, he'd have been one of 54,567 fans— about 10,000 more than last year—who saw the Cowboys lose to Denver.

Or maybe if he'd seen O.J. Simpson on the field with the rest of the Bills, he'd have seen a lot more people in the stands, too. They were there last year, better than 51,000 a game—but then, so was O.J.

With three of the six preseason weekends completed, attendance is, in fact, down a bit at NFL exhibitions—an average of about 39,500 this year compared to last year's six-week average of 42,000.

But to leave it at that is misleading.

As the regular season gets closer, attendance rises. Fans stay away from the early exhibitions on the theory they'll be seeing a plethora of rookies and free agents doomed to be cut from the squad. They attend the later games, when the lineups are more likely to have most of the season's starters in them.

The exhibitions started earlier this year. That meant it was hotter in some cities. Football came out second-best to a day at the beach or in the park. It is, after all, a winter sport. Or it's supposed to be.

In some cases, a club's exhibition tickets, which used to be a mandatory part of the season-ticket package, are now optional. And many fans aren't picking up the option.

And the NFL has a policy of spreading early games around at neutral, non-league sites like Oklahoma and Japan, games which generally draw smaller crowds than those played before the home folks.

Then there's the memory factor. A team that finished with a 4-10 record or worse in 1975 or started out by losing a few exhibitions in 1976 can't expect to find a line at the ticket booth.

And, of course, some ticket prices have gone up a buck or two.

Then there are the unique and sometimes inventive reasons given for dwindling attendance.

In Philadelphia, where an average of 39,000 fans watched the Eagles' exhibitions last year, 16,823 braved Hurricane Belle's wind and rain to see Pittsburgh win.

In New York, the Giants and Jets drew about 35,000 to Yankee Stadium for their annual preseason game. The attendance might have been higher—something like 48,000 tickets were actually sold—but the game was postponed when Belle blew into town.

Two nights after losing to the Giants, the Jets played again at Yankee Stadium, this time against Oakland. They acknowledged beforehand that they'd go heavy on the rookies. That and the vandalism which accompanied the Giants game (hundreds of cars were damaged and hundreds of people menaced by roving gangs) helped drop attendance under 11,000.

A spokesman for the New England Patriots, whose preseason count is down about 10,000 fans to 30,000 at home, said he felt it was a residual effect from last year's players' strike, adding pointedly: "In our case, we were one of the teams on strike."

In Kansas City, the Chiefs' attendance is down about 6,000 per game from last year's 37,000 average. The team blamed success—but not its own. The city's baseball team, the Royals, are doing so well, they said.

But the best slim-crowd excuse, a gold-medal winner if ever there was one, came from the St. Louis Cardinals, who averaged 39,000 for two games in Busch Stadium last year but drew only 16,168 on July 31 for a visit by the Jets.

It was the last night of the Summer Olympic Games. The Spinks brothers, boxers from St. Louis, were fighting for gold medals up in Montreal. The local gentry didn't want to miss that.

When Mike, a middleweight, and Leon, a light heavyweight, both won their golds, the word was flashed on the stadium scoreboard. The crowd went crazy—and shook up the players on the field, who couldn't figure out what was happening. The ovation was far greater than any the victorious Cards got that night.

Cowboys' Longley 'long gone'

DALLAS (AP)—Clint Longley is apparently long—gone as far as the Dallas Cowboys are concerned despite a telephone conversation with Coach Tom Landry.

Longley called Landry Sunday to discuss the reserve quarterback's request to be traded following round two of a training camp feud with starting quarterback Roger Staubach.

Asked if he would take a contrite Longley back, Landry hinted Tuesday that he wouldn't.

"I'm leaning a certain way but it wouldn't be fair to say which way," said Landry. "I'm not sure at this point. I don't know what will happen. There is no time table. Hopefully, something will happen during the week."

Landry said Longley "felt bad about the embarrassment the incident had caused the Cowboys. His loss has been a great blow to our football team."

The Cowboys have received a lukewarm reception in the trade marts for Longley, who came off the bench as a rookie to stun Washington two years ago in a nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game.

Dallas is believed asking a first round draft choice for Longley who was running No. 2 behind Staubach before feelings between the pair exploded into fisticuffs last week at the team's Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp.

Staubach was pulled off Longley after the first encounter. Three days later Staubach said Longley tagged him with a cheap shot in the dressing room while Roger the dodger had his arms up putting on his shoulder pads. Staubach reeled into the training room scales and it took nine stiches to close the cut.

Longley said he was provoked and left camp in a huff with Staubach looking for him. Since then Longley has challenged Staubach to a bout in Memorial Auditorium.

Landry dismissed the first fight because "It happened on the field" but considered the dressing room punch a different matter.

"I was shocked when I heard what happened," said Landry. "Clint still wants to be traded."

Staubach is still seething over the incident and Cowboy insiders say a Longley return to the team could trigger another round.

Landry said he plans to enter the season with Staubach and Danny White, a former Arizona State product who played for Memphis in the World Football League.

These women lost their lives in the Colorado flood...

But they are still alive. They have a message for you.

On July 31 these women hastily left a weekend retreat in the Colorado Rockies. They had been warned to flee a flash flood which was roaring down the canyon. They started out, but never reached the bottom of the canyon alive. More than 100 others also lost their lives in the Big Thompson Canyon that same night.

A tragedy, people say. It is certain that these seven women who were part of the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International will be deeply missed by family, friends and fellow staff members.

But what these women and their families would want you to know is that they are more alive than ever—in heaven. That they lived a full and wonderful life on this earth. And that they now are better off in the presence of the loving God and Savior whom they served.

If you were to die today, do you know for certain that you would go to heaven? Would you spend eternity in heaven with Christ or separated from Him forever. For those who have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ, death's sting has been taken away. God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble.

He reaches out in love to all men and women, offering His forgiveness, peace and comfort through Jesus Christ. So there is no reason to fear life or death.

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life; whoever believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die" (John 11:25,26).

A personal relationship with Jesus Christ doesn't begin at death—but it is available to you now—in life. Twenty-eight other women leaders of Campus Crusade for Christ International left that retreat with these seven. They are still alive—physically as well as spiritually.

But they also have a more keen awareness of the delicate balance between life and death. And more than 5,000 other staff of Campus Crusade for Christ have a keener awareness of life. For them, life is Christ. For the women who died, Christ is life. The message that follows explains what these women want you to know—how you can find new life in Jesus Christ. They had committed themselves to sharing this message in life or in death.

Just as there are physical laws that govern the physical universe, so are there spiritual laws which govern your relationship with God.

LAW ONE

GOD LOVES YOU, AND OFFERS A WONDERFUL PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

(References should be read in context from the Bible wherever possible.)

God's Love

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

God's Plan

(Christ speaking) "I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly" (that it might be full and meaningful) (John 10:10).

Why is it that most people are not experiencing the abundant life?

Because. . .

LAW TWO

MAN IS SINFUL AND SEPARATED FROM GOD. THEREFORE, HE CANNOT KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR HIS LIFE.

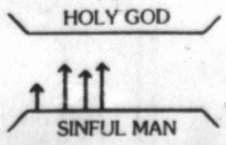

Man Is Sinful

"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Man was created to have fellowship with God; but, because of his stubborn self-will, he chose to go his own independent way and fellowship with God was broken. This self-will, characterized by an attitude of active rebellion or passive indifference, is evidence of what the Bible calls sin.

Man Is Separated

"For the wages of sin is death" (spiritual separation from God) (Romans 6:23).

This diagram illustrates that God is holy and man is sinful. A great gulf separates the two. The arrows illustrate that man is continually trying to reach God and the abundant life through his own efforts, such as a good life, philosophy or religion.

The third law explains the only way to bridge this gulf...

LAW THREE

JESUS CHRIST IS GOD'S ONLY PROVISION FOR MAN'S SIN. THROUGH HIM YOU CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE.

He Died in Our Place

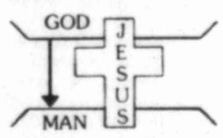

"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

He Rose from the Dead

"Christ died for our sins. . .He was buried. . .He was raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures. . .He appeared to Peter, then to the twelve. After that He appeared to more than five hundred. . ." (I Corinthians 15:3-6).

He Is the Only Way to God

"Jesus said to him, 'I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me'" (John 14:6).

This diagram illustrates that God has bridged the gulf which separates us from God by sending His Son, Jesus Christ, to die on the cross in our place to pay the penalty for our sins.

It is not enough just to know these three laws. . .

LAW FOUR

WE MUST INDIVIDUALLY RECEIVE JESUS CHRIST AS SAVIOR AND LORD; THEN WE CAN KNOW AND EXPERIENCE GOD'S LOVE AND PLAN FOR OUR LIVES.

We Must Receive Christ

"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name" (John 1:12).

We Receive Christ through Faith

"For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast" (Ephesians 2:8,9).

When We Receive Christ, We Experience a New Birth.

(Read John 3:1-8.)

We Receive Christ by Personal Invitation

(Christ is speaking): "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any one hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him" (Revelation 3:20).

Receiving Christ involves turning from self to God (repentance and trusting Christ to come into our lives to forgive our sins and to make us the kind of person He wants us to be. Just to agree intellectually that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that He died on the cross for our sins is not enough. Nor is it enough to have an emotional experience. We receive Jesus Christ by faith, as an act of the will.

These two circles represent two kinds of lives:

SELF-DIRECTED LIFE
S—Self on the throne
†—Christ is outside the life
•Interests are directed by self, often resulting in discord and frustration

CHRIST-DIRECTED LIFE

†—Christ is in the life and on the throne
S—Self is yielding to Christ
•—Interests are directed by Christ, resulting in harmony with God's plan.

Which circle best represents your life?

Which circle would you like to have represent your life?

The following explains how you can receive Christ:

YOU CAN RECEIVE CHRIST RIGHT NOW BY FAITH THROUGH PRAYER

(Prayer is talking with God)

God knows your heart and is not so concerned with your words as He is with the attitude of your heart. The following is a suggested prayer:

"Lord Jesus, I need You. Thank You for dying on the cross for my sins. I open the door of my life and receive You as my Savior and Lord. Thank You for forgiving my sins and giving me eternal life. Take control of the throne of my life. Make me the kind of person You want me to be."

Does this prayer express the desire of your heart?

If it does, pray this prayer right now, and Christ will come into your life, as He promised.

Diablos' muscle men turn out lights for M-Cubs

BY TED BATTLES

El Paso's Diablos saw their slim half game Texas League West Division lead slipping away at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night. Pursuing Amarillo was leading San Antonio, 6-2, in the sixth, a game the Gold Sox were to eventually win, while the Diablos were losing 5-2 to Midland's struggling Cubs.

Then it happened.

"We busted our butts building up a three-run lead," Midland Manager Denny Sommers lamented after the dust had settled, "And they wipe it out with two swings."

A four-run seventh saved the day for the California Angels' farmhands and enabled the Diablos to retain that precarious perch atop the TL West.

STEVE STROUGHTER'S 11th homer, a two run job, tied it and then Willie Aikens' 27th boundary belt, in effect, won it, although the Diablos went on to push over three superfluous runs in the ninth to make the final margin 9-5. And disaster struck, just when it looked as though Darrell Turner might escape, as he had from a bases loaded situation the inning before.

A walk infield single by Marty Friedman and an infield out put runners on second and third, but there were two out. Turner worked two strikes against Stroughter and then a wild pitch let in a run.

"It was a slider that went into the dirt," Turner recalled. "I thought I got the next pitch out and away from him, but he got enough wood on it to push it out." The left handed hitting Stroughter's fly caught the wind and cleared the left field barrier to make it 5-5.

AIKENS THEN greeted Jim Kremmel's arrival from the bullpen with a solo shot over the right field barrier to make it 6-5.

Actually, that was all the Diablos needed. Virgil Barrientos, who came on in relief in the fifth with one out, slammed the door on the Cubs, retiring 12 in a row before giving up a harmless one out single to Bob Hrapmann in the ninth.

About the only satisfaction the Cubs derived from the loss was that they escaped a fourth straight defeat at the hands of lefty Bob Nolan, chasing the Diablos' ace who was in quest of his 13th victory , while building up the 5-2 lead.

Bill Huisman cracked out three hits and leftfielder Jose Ortiz made a couple of "you-gotta-see-to-believe" catches in left to keep Midland in the game early.

AFTER TERRY Stupy's line shot over the left field fence staked El Paso to a 1-0 lead in the second, the Cubs struck for five hits amd three runs off Nolan. That's as many of both as the Cubs have been known to get in a season off the former San Francisco State pitcher.

When Nolan was pitching for Midland manager Denny Sommers at Amarillo in 1974, his last effort against Midland was a shutout. This season, after a year's absence in AAA ball, Nolan blanked the Cubs in the first two of his three wins over Midland.

Nolan started off in painfully familiar style fanning the Cubs in the first, but then Mike Gordon and Huisman opened the second with successive singles. Ortiz advanced the runners into scoring position with a sacrifice, but when Nolan whiffed Cubs newcomer Duane Gustafson on three pitches, Midland hopes faded.

NOLAN WENT to 1-2 on Earl Chew before the former Temple University athlete bounced a two-run single through the left side. Then Keith Drumright, the All-America from the University of Oklahoma, sliced a run scoring double down the left field line.

Midland struck after two were out for a run in the third when Huisman singled to right, stole second and moved to third as Ortiz beat out a bouncer. That set up a run-producing double steal, Ortiz drawing the throw and Huisman beating the return throw with a belly-whopper across the plate.

Ken Landreaux singled home Danny Goodwin who had doubled in the fifth, but Midland made it 5-2 as Huisman doubled imto the left field corner and Gustafson's second hit plated him to chase Nolan.

But the best slim-crowd excuse, a gold-medal winner if ever there was one, came from the St. Louis Cardinals, who averaged 39,000 for two games in Busch Stadium last year but drew only 16,168 on July 31 for a visit by the Jets.

It was the last night of the Summer Olympic Games. The Spinks brothers, boxers from St. Louis, were fighting for gold medals up in Montreal. The local gentry didn't want to miss that.

When Mike, a middleweight, and Leon, a light heavyweight, both won their golds, the word was flashed on the stadium scoreboard. The crowd went crazy—and shook up the players on the field, who couldn't figure out what was happening. The ovation was far greater than any the victorious Cards got that night.

Cowboys' Longley 'long gone'

DALLAS (AP)—Clint Longley is apparently long—gone as far as the Dallas Cowboys are concerned despite a telephone conversation with Coach Tom Landry.

Longley called Landry Sunday to discuss the reserve quarterback's request to be traded following round two of a training camp feud with starting quarterback Roger Staubach.

Asked if he would take a contrite Longley back, Landry hinted Tuesday that he wouldn't.

"I'm leaning a certain way but it wouldn't be fair to say which way," said Landry. "I'm not sure at this point. I don't know what will happen. There is no time table. Hopefully, something will happen during the week."

Landry said Longley "felt bad about the embarrassment the incident had caused the Cowboys. His loss has been a great blow to our football team."

The Cowboys have received a lukewarm reception in the trade marts for Longley, who came off the bench as a rookie to stun Washington two years ago in a nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game.

Dallas is believed asking a first round draft choice for Longley who was running No. 2 behind Staubach before feelings between the pair exploded into fisticuffs last week at the team's Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp.

Staubach was pulled off Longley after the first encounter. Three days later Staubach said Longley tagged him with a cheap shot in the dressing room while Roger the dodger had his arms up putting on his shoulder pads. Staubach reeled into the training room scales and it took nine stiches to close the cut.

Longley said he was provoked and left camp in a huff with Staubach looking for him. Since then Longley has challenged Staubach to a bout in Memorial Auditorium.

Landry dismissed the first fight because "It happened on the field" but considered the dressing room punch a different matter.

"I was shocked when I heard what happened," said Landry. "Clint still wants to be traded."

Staubach is still seething over the incident and Cowboy insiders say a Longley return to the team could trigger another round.

Landry said he plans to enter the season with Staubach and Danny White, a former Arizona State product who played for Memphis in the World Football League.

Slumping Reds drop fourth straight tilt

By The Associated Press

Sparky Anderson stays stoic and silent through losing streaks, so if you want to get the word from the Cincinnati Reds, you have to ask Pete Rose.

"We're not taking the game to them," says the Cincinnati third baseman in his usual direct observation. "This is not like the Big Red Machine."

The "Machine" hasn't been hitting on all four cylinders lately, and Tuesday night, the National League West leaders dropped their fourth straight game—a 3-2 decision to the Atlanta Braves. That's the longest losing streak of the year for Anderson's gang.

"If you're looking for excuses," Rose said, "you might blame it on our recent road trip. We played three games in Chicago and two in New York, which means getting up early."

Anderson, however, put it this way: "It doesn't mean anything more than if we had a 13-1 record. We're just not hitting—and that happens."

The Reds have batted merely .180 in their last four games, or about 100 points under their norm for the season. All four losses have been by one run.

Phillies 11, Expos 3

Jay Johnstone ripped a double and three singles and batted in five runs while Greg Luzinski collected a homer and four RBI as Philadelphia battered Montreal. Winner Tommy Underwood, 8-3, allowed just four hits, striking out five and walking four.

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

Rick Rhoden doubled home the decisive run to cap a four-run Los Angeles rally in the fourth inning and the Dodger right-hander went on to post his 11th victory in 12 decisions by beating New York. The Mets took a 3-0 lead in the first on John Milner's 13th homer with two men on.

Steve Garvey bunted for a base hit to start the Los Angeles rally. Ron Cey walked and Bill Russell singled home one run. Lee Lacy singled home the second run and after Dusty Baker grounded out, Ellie Rodriguez' scoring fly ball tied the game. Rhoden, who entered the game with a .302 batting average, then doubled home Lacy.

Cardinals 9, Padres 4

Hector Cruz drove in four runs with a grounder and bases-loaded double, while Lou Brock stole three bases and scored three runs to lead St. Louis over San Diego in a game featuring 19 walks. The Cards, recipients of nine bases on balls, piled up an 8-0 lead through the first six innings.

Astros 8, Cubs 1

J.R. Richard fired a five-hitter and Roger Metzger drove home a pair of runs with a fourth-inning single as Houston defeated Chicago and ended a five-game losing streak. Richard, 14-12, struck out nine and walked only one, giving up the only Chicago run of the night on Rick Monday's homer in the ninth. Chicago starter Steve Stone, 3-5, took the loss.

Giants 7, Pirates 6

Gary Thomasson's two-out solo homer in the bottom of the eighth inning broke a 6-6 tie and powered San Francisco over Pittsburgh. Just prior to Thomasson's blast, the Giants had tied the game when Steve Ontiveros doubled and scored on shortstop Frank Taveras' wild relay throw into the Pirates' dugout.

Singer forgets words

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — The Star-Spangled Banner was given a new twist Tuesday night.

Stephany Nielsen, listed in the program as "Miss Bloomington," was singing the national anthem at home plate before the Baltimore Orioles-Minnesota Twins baseball game when she forgot the words.

She had just sung the next-to-last line, "Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave," when she suddenly stopped, apparently confused by the echo in the stadium. She paused a few seconds, threw up her arms and said, "Aw, rats."

Then she smiled graciously, bowed and retired to a seat near the Twins' dugout as the crowd gave her an enthusiastic ovation.

Texan captures diving

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Cynthia Potter McIngvale of Dallas repeated as champion of the women's one-meter springboard in the National Amateur Athletic Union outdoor diving championships Tuesday.

Mrs. McIngvale, who took the bronze medal in the recent Olympics on the three-meter board, said afterward that she would like to see the one-meter event become part of the Olympics.

"It's just as difficult at the three-meter," she said, adding that she might compete in the 1980 Olympics at Moscow if the short event is added.

Another Olympic diver, 17-year-old Jenni Chandler of Lincoln, Ala., the three-meter gold medalist, finished seventh on the one-meter board Tuesday.

Second was Cindy Riddell of Dallas, a student at the University of Alabama, followed by Carrie Irish of New Canaan, Conn.; Peggy Anderson of Madison, Wisc.; Julie Bachman of Mobile, Ala.; Julie Capps of St. Louis; Miss Chandler, and Laurie Brunet of Tucson, Ariz.

Kimm's homer gives Bird 14th

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers' rookie bounded around the bases with his arms raised, jumping for joy all the way.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, right? Wrong!

"I'm always excited when I do something great and I don't do something great very often," said a bubbling catcher Bruce Kimm, who helped fellow rookie Fidrych to his 14th victory in 18 decisions with an eighth-inning home run off Frank Tanana—his first in the majors—that gave the Tigers a 3-2 triumph over the California Angels.

It was Kimm's night...and Fidrych knew it. "Hell, yeah, I'm happy," said the young pitching sensation, "but not as happy as Bruce Kimm is."

Fidrych fell behind 2-0 as Ron Jackson homered for California in the fifth, but the Tigers tied it in the sixth on a walk to Kimm, Ron LeFlore's triple and Alex Johnson's sacrifice fly. Kimm then walloped a Tanana fast ball into the upper deck two innings later.

"I'm just happy it came off a great pitcher and for Fidrych, who has gotten me into so many games," said Kimm, who has been behind the plate in all of Fidrych's 19 starts. "I was looking for a fast ball right down the middle because I had been taking a lot of pitches. "I'd hate to be the only player in the big leagues who hasn't hit a home run."

The game drew a crowd of 51,822—largest for a night game at Tiger Stadium in six years and largest for any game in Detroit in more than three years.

Royals 4, Indians 3

Brett stole home with two out in the bottom of the 10th. He singled with one out, stole second and continued to third on a wild throw by catcher Rick Cerone. With Dave Nelson at bat, Brett broke for the plate and was two-thirds of the way home before reliever Dave LaRoche noticed him and he slid safely under the pitch.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Royals and enabled them to remain eight games ahead of second-place Oakland in the AL West.

"I said to (third base coach) Chuck Hiller, 'I think I can make it; look how slow his wind-up is,'" Brett said. "Chuck said, 'Okay, go if you want to, but be safe, don't be out.'

"I got a pretty good lead and then I just put my head down and went. If I hadn't gotten a good jump I would have gone back. If I hadn't made it I never would have heard the end of it. Now, they'll never hear the end of it."

Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson was annoyed that LaRoche never checked Brett.

"You check after you get the sign," he said. "That's elementary. You've got plenty of time to pick up the sign and look."

A's 5, Brewers 4

The A's stole four more bases and their 266 thefts are the most by a major league team since 1913, and they're taking aim at the record of 347 by the 1911 New York Giants.

Trailing 4-3, Phil Garner walked with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored on Bill North's single. North took second on the throw to the plate and came home with the winning on a single by Bert Campaneris.

Yankees 2, Rangers 1

Graig Nettles slammed his 19th home run of the season on rookie Tommy Boggs' first pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning. Oscar Gamble homered for New York's first run while Doyle Alexander pitched a five-hitter and blanked Texas until the ninth.

"The difference between Class AAA and the majors is you can't make any mistakes up here," said Boggs, who was making his fifth major league appearance. "They make you pay for them. I came out in the ninth determined to throw hard and I put it right dead pipe in the middle of the plate."

Orioles 10, Twins 3

Lee May drove in five runs with a homer, triple and single as Baltimore won its fourth in a row. May cracked a three-run homer in the first inning off Tom Johnson, who was making his first big league start.

White Sox 2-7, Red Sox 1-11

Boston's Bob Montgomery drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double in the nightcap while Rick Burleson had seven hits in 10 at-bats during the twin bill. However, Chicago won the opener as Pat Kelly singled home one run and then doubled in the ninth and scored on a single by Bill Stein. Rookie Ken Kravec made his second major league start and first this season for Chicago in the opener and struck out 10 in seven innings while allowing nine hits and one run.

Homers pace Amarillo win in Texas race

By The Associated Press

The status quo in the close Texas League division races was maintained Tuesday night as both leaders won and both second-place teams stayed in dogged pursuit.

Jackson — leading Shreveport by one game in the East — nipped Arkansas 8-7 while Shreveport edged Lafayette 2-1. El Paso — ahead of Amarillo by just one-half game in the West — mashed Midland 9-5 and Amarillo topped San Antonio 10-6.

Jackson won a seesaw battle with Arkansas when the Mets' Lee Mazzilli hit a ninth inning, three-run homer. The Travelers had led through most of the game, despite constant threats from the division leaders.

Shreveport's Mike Gonzales won his fifth game in 11 decisions with a seven-hit complete game against Lafayette. The Captain runs scored as Paul Djakonow tripled twice and scored both times on singles by Ron Mitchell.

Chuck Baker and Don Reynolds homered and Amarillo's Steve Mura pitched an eighthitter as the Giants hammered San Antonio.

Switzer harbors no illusions about third straight

NORMAN, OKla. ZAP) — Oklahoma may have won back-to-back national championships, but Coach Barry Switzer and crew aren't having illusions of continued grandeur heading into the 1976 college football campaign.

No team has ever won three straight national titles, and the Sooners don't figure to either— on paper, that is.

But make no mistake, the Sooners will be a very good football team and they'll be in the thick of the Big Eight title race.

And they may have something to say concerning who wins the mythical national championship since their schedule includes such powers as Texas, Nebraska and California.

THE OKLAHOMA wishbone is expected to roll on, despite the graduation of quarterback Steve Davis, running star Joe Washington and the split end tandem of Tinker Owens and Billy Brooks.

But the defense, beset by injuries in the spring, faces the critical problem of replacing the All-American trio of tackle Leroy Selmon, noseguard Dewey Selmon and end Jimbo Elrod.

"I think we'll be a good team, but remember that those other people we play against will be good, too ... I'd feel a lot better about the situation if we hadn't suffered all those injuries last spring," said Switzer.

Among the top four interior defensive line prospects, only sophomore noseguard Reggie Kinlaw was healthy during the spring. Injured were tackles Anthony Bryant, a starter last year, soph Phil Tabor and Richard Murray, who also is in the noseguard picture.

BRIGHT SPOTS are the return of linebackers Bill Dalke and Daryl Hunt and a secondary anchored by cornerback Jerry Anderson and Zac Henderson that could be the best in Sooner history.

Offensively, the Sooners will be led by Dean Blevins, a junior with speed and plenty of savvy, backed up by sophomore Thomas Lott.

Proven performers include halfbacks Horace Ivory and Elvis Peacock and fullback Jim Culbeth. Soph Kenny King was a sensation in the spring at fullback.

Pressured prexy appeals to 'cooler' heads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles S. Feeney, president of the National League since 1969, says he has done a good job and hopes "cooler heads will prevail" over the demands of St. Louis Cardinals President August A. Busch that Feeney be fired.

At a meeting of the baseball league's owners in Phoenix last Thursday,the 77-year-old Busch assailed leadership of the National League as incompetent and called for the firing of Feeney and John A. Gaherin, the major league's labor negotiator.

Feeney spent the weekend relaxing at Lake Tahoe and delayed comment on the blast by Busch until after his return to his office here Monday.

In a five-page statement released in St. Louis, Busch accused Feeney of bungling the proposed move of the San Francisco Giants to Toronto and withholding information from other owners to create more time to keep the club in San Francisco.

Answering this charge, Feeney said: "It's obvious that I was in a position where I had to keep the league apprised of any developments.

"We had a temporary restraining order here which kept us from discussing Toronto, and San Francisco was trying to get local buyers. The owners were told everything that was happening."

Feeney said if the National League wanted to expand, "all the owners had to do was vote for it. The last time we talked about it, the votes just weren't there."

Regarding a statement by Busch that the American League "has become the more influential of the two leagues," Busch said: "Our attendance is up again this year and we're outdrawing the American League by more than a million fans."

NY Giants' youth, enthusiasm turn on Csonka

By JOE GERGEN
Newsday

NEW YORK — He is, he strongly suggests, what you see and nothing more. He is Larry Csonka, professional football player. Any other interpretation of his role is bull, and Larry Csonka, professional football player, detests bull.

It's a game he plays, and he plays it well. That much is obvious. He plays the game for money, and that is obvious, too. What is not so obvious is the enthusiasm he brings to his job and the satisfaction he derives from it. He wants those factors clearly understood.

" ... I love football," he said. "I really love the game. I've never done anything more exciting as an activity. The thing that I really appreciate is being with a young, enthusiastic team like this, sacrificing for a goal."

Csonka once said as much as a member of the Miami Dolphins. Csonka once said as much as a member of the Memphis Grizzlies. And Csonka said precisely that the other evening as a member of the Giants. Repetition has not dulled the sentiment.

HE HAS played for three teams three years, but that is a matter of economics. And the thought of economic gain is not what motivates him on the football field. Five yards may be an insignificant distance in a salary drive, but it is a constant challenge to a man who must carry the ball over the middle.

The challenge, that was everything. Not the acclaim or the stardom or the publicity, all of which he could live without, all of it bull. "That's the sideshow around football," he said a year ago when he was beginning his first and last season in the uniform of the defunct Grizzlies. "I'm glad people are excited because that's good for the team and for me. It enables me to make more money at what I do.

"But I've always kept the two apart, the unrealities of publicity and the realities of the field. I like to play. I don't care how people interpret it among themselves or in the papers. I think people like to read about us as much as they like to see us. But that's part of being a spectator. I'm just concerned about playing."

AND SO, as he settled onto the clubhouse stool in Yankee Stadium the other night, he wore a look of satisfaction. He had done his job against the Jets and his team, the Giants, ahd won the game. He had rubbed his nose in the dirt with a bunch of other professional football players, and he had enjoyed himself to the fullest.

Csonka's blue pants were ripped at the right thigh and he carried the marks of another night of labor on his arms and face. He plays football with his legs and with his forearms and with his shoulders and with his nose. Mostly, it sometimes appears, with his nose. He can't even remebmer how many times it has been broken.

"Any place I can stick for three, four yards," he said, "I'll take it." Football, for him, is elementary. Leave it to others to offer the fancy explanations. It is not his style.

He made it a point to offer the fancy explanations. It is not his style.

He made it a point to offer unsolicited words of praise for the Giants' offensive line, a line which had been routinely embarrassed and then ridiculed last season, a line which now is his line. A fullback cannot succeed without an offensive line. A fullback cannot survive without a line.

"Anybody with an IQ over 60 who wants to retain his conscious mind," Csonka explained, "makes it a point to communicate with his offensive; I'M NOT TALKING ABOUT BUYING THEM DINNER. That sort of stuff is for after the season. I don't have to take them out for dinner. They want to win, too."

WITH CSONKA behind them, they know now there is a chance. And if they have exhibited uncommon enthusiasm for the work at hand this summer, itnis partly a reflection of Csonka's own zeal. He and running mate Doug Kotar ("A helluva halfback, a tough hombre," he called him) expected to play a half against the Jets. They asked to play another quarter, and got their wish.

"Outside of my two sons, wild-eyed out there in Ohio," Csonka said, "I can't think of anything that makes me more enthusiastic than football. And that was a pretty good slugging match out there. I don't know what the fans paid for tickets, but whatever it was they got their money's worth."

His definition of a good game, of course, is a physical game. And that, apparently, was what the fans came to see. They gave him a tremendous ovation in his New York debut as a Giant and they marveled audibly as he ran over tacklers, his left shoulder lowered in that distinctive style.

"I've always liked playing in New York," he said. "Open any book about great sports teams and you find New York. Get a good team together in New York and you know you got wild-eyed fans behind you."

Angels more relaxed and so is ex-pilot Williams

By RON RAPOPORT
The Los Angeles Times

IRVINE, Calif. — Dick Williams pointed to the sports section, which was open to the page reporting another Angel victory.

"They're playing well now, aren't they?" he said. "They're probably more relaxed. And I'll tell you what. I'm more relaxed."

And with that Williams leaned back in his chair, crossed his legs and took a long swallow from a bottle of beer.

Conversation in the Irvine home of the Richard Hirshfeld Williams' these days is often of golf, tennis and family and seldom of hits, runs and errors.

When he played golf for the first time in several months recently, he shot par for the first nine holes. And while his wife, Norma, is heavily into tennis lessons at the moment, she is not thrilled to have him as an opponent.

"ALL MY lessons are gone when we play," she said. "He uses topspin."

Seemingly, Williams is one fired baseball manager who isn't worried where his next job — or his next dollar — is coming from.

"I feel great," said Wiliams, who was fired by the Angels July 23. "I feel fabulous. Like a 2,000-pound weight has been lifted off my back."

Williams' $100,000-a-year contract runs through 1977 so he isn't in a hurry to find employment. But no manager who has been in a World Series three times is going to go long without drawing interest from some team, no matter how poorly his most recent one has done.

"I'VE HAD three clubs contact me," he said, "but I'm not going to jump at anything. I'll listen to people, whatever they have to say. I know one thing-I'd check into everything real thorough, the organization and everything."

One organization he is thinking about the most these days is the Yankees. Owner George Steinbrenner invited Williams to New York last week and a front-office job was discussed. With President Gabe Paul expected to retire soon, Williams is getting some consideration for that job, he said.

"He made some offers," Williams said of Steinbrenner. "I'm expecting a letter spelling out what happens when Gabe retires."

Williams was cautious in his remarks about what had gone wrong with the Angels ("Everything that happened probably won't get out. At least I won't let them out."), but it is clear that his feelings for general manager Harry Dalton are not warm.

"Other than Gene Autry, I could care less," he said of the Angel front office. "Autry's a tremendous man. He deserves better than he's been getting. I think he's been a very patient man. Harry's a pretty good politician. Hell, I'm one of four managers in this regime.

"I'm disappointed things didn't work out, but I think I was fighting a losing battle. The farm system was a case of the tail wagging the dog. Usually what you want done when you're operating a ballclub is established down through the minors. This wasn't done.

"And a lot of things that went on around there were basically done without my knowledge. That shouldn't be. So I was more or less fighting City Hall and they figured the best thing was to get rid of me. I think I forced the issue."

When Williams was fired, many Angels — both on the field and in the front office — had some hard things to say about the stern way he dealt with players. But these views were not unanimous.

SEVERAL PLAYERS called to say they were sorry he was leaving and one said he'd like to play for him again in another situation.

"I had a couple of guys call me," Williams said. "I don't want to say who they are. I don't want to get them in trouble. One guy called after midnight and I said, 'You're fined for being out after hours.' We just sat there giggling."

Was he really hard on the Angels? "If a guy's hitting .180 or .190, I've got to be lousy," he said. "basically my managing has been the same all the way through. Whether I'm liked or disliked I could care less."

When Williams was fired, the Angels said he was being too tough on younger players and made them so tight they couldn't play to their potential. But he said he was pleased with the way some of the first and second-year men were performing.

"I WOULD have stuck with the younger guys," he said, "the ones you're going to build around. But when players are going bad, some guys are going to try to put the blame on somebody else."

Williams also disputed the opinion expressed by one Angel official that he felt above the Angels' losses and somehow was tainted by them personally.

"I'm involved in all the losses," he said. "If you lose it goes right to the manager. I don't know where it stops. You try everything you can try."

Williams said he could tell his days with the Angels were numbered as the club began a road trip the week before he was finally fired.

"I sensed it," he said. "It was a process of everything accumulating and the direction in which the club was going. I think it's best that I'm away from there. I know they're happy to be rid of me and I'm happy to be away from them. Let's let it go at that."

NFL's fringe players are holding breath

NEW YORK (AP) — With kicking and runback specialists holding their breaths at training centers across the United States today, executives of the 28 National Football League teams met to decide the roster limits for this season—limits which may decide as many as 308 jobs.

NFL bylaws provide each team with a roster of 36 players, but that number has been amended each season since the law was written in 1962. Squads reached a high of 47 two years ago, with 43 the limit last season. It will take 21 votes to decide the controversial issue, but if agreement cannot be reached, squad sizes will drop to 36.

So the fringe players and hangers-on await the word that may cement their professional futures. Should rosters revert to 36, it's certain that they would be the first to go; should limits remain at 43, or even be extended to 47, as many as 11 players on each club may sigh in relief.

The coaches, meanwhile, continued to pare their preseason food bills Tuesday. The Cincinnati Bengals waived punter Greg Coleman and defensive tackle Richard Bishop; the Lions cut wide receiver George Farmer and linebacker Andre Roundtree; and Washington Redskins Coach-GM George Allen traded three draft choices to Houston for guard Ron Saul.

The Miami Dolphins didn't cut anyone, but they did suspend veteran safety Jake Scott—a move which will be investigated by the NFL Players Association.

Scott was suspended after refusing to test an injured shoulder in an exhibition game. Dolphins Coach Don Shula said he had scheduled Scott for action in the second half against the Philadelphia Eagles last weekend, but that the six-year veteran would not go in.

Examination by team doctors exposed no shoulder separation, but did reveal a bone spur underneath the armpit. Shula said Scott's personal physician, Dr. Fred Allman, "feels cortisone could be injected if the shoulder is painful and Jake should be able to play without problem."

Scott reportedly said he didn't mind taking the pain killer before a regular season game, but objected to the treatment for an exhibition contest. The early indication was that Scott has the NFLPA's support in this regard.

The union's executive director, Ed Garvey, said by phone Tuesday night that "there is a lot of controversy about using cortisone in joints, and I would say most doctors on NFL teams are opposed to it for this reason. We'll have to look pretty seriously at the circumstances.

"We'll talk to Jake, have him looked at by a neutral doctor and then make a determination as to how to proceed," said Garvey.

Cincinnati running back Boobie Clark has made the Bengals, but he doesn't appear too thrilled about it. The power back says he is playing out the option year of his contract with Cincinnati because he doesn't feel he fits in with the Bengals' pass-oriented attack.

"I don't prefer being a receiver," says Clark, who added "I've asked them to trade me a couple of times, but they flat out said they wouldn't do it. They say they plan to run the ball more this year, but I'm skeptical."

Skeptics convinced that the Atlanta Falcons would fire Coach Marion Campbell were proven wrong Tuesday, when Owner Rankin Smith announced he had given Campbell a new contract. Smith said he gave Campbell the contract before the exhibition game against the expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers last Saturday night.

Then the Falcons got shot down by the Bucs, 17-3, for Tampa Bay's first victory ever.

Texas gridder dies

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Funeral services are tentatively scheduled at the Flour Bluff football stadium Thursday afternoon for a Flour Bluff High School gridder who died Wednesday night.

Shane Ray Greger, injured last Wednesday when he collided with another player during a routine offensive play drill, died from a "traumatic head injury," said Nueces County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Rupp.

"The death was a direct result of the injury in practice," Dr. Rupp said after performing an autopsy.

Greger was a senior center and two-year letterman on the District 15-3A Flour Bluff team.

Dale Shaw eliminates champion

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The way Dale Shaw began the 76th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship, eliminating defending champion Beth Daniel, was a lot more impressive than her first try at the game.

"I didn't take up golf until I was 21. I took three weeks of lessons and shot a 119. The pro forgot to teach me how to hit out of sand," the Canadian woman recalled Tuesday after her upset, 1 up triumph over Miss Daniel.

Several golfers among the 32 advancing to today's second round on the 6,175-yard Del Paso course are far younger than 21. Nancy Lopez, 18-yearold national collegiate champ from Tulsa University, is one of the favorites and she played under par in a 7-and-5 victory Tuesday over Janet Engesser of Long Beach, Calif.

Two 16-year-olds, Mary Murphy of Naples, Fla. and Liz Waynick of Roanoke, Va., won, along with U.S. Junior champion Pilar Dorado, 17, of Hayward, Calif. and Lauren Howe, also 17, of Colorado Springs.

Miss Shaw, who now lives in Victoria, B.C., has taken about 50 strokes off her game in eight years to rank at 29 as one of Canada's top amateurs. Before concentrating on golf, she played field hockey well enough to make the province team in Alberta.

"It was kind of hard playing both sports because in hockey you're not allowed to raise the stick above your shoulder," she said.

It's hard to imagine that 55 years ago the sprawling 150 acre Knott's Berry Farm food and amusement center in Buena Park, Calif. was nothing but undeveloped land with a lone berry stand along a dusty roadside. When Walter Knott and his wife Cordelia, opened the stand in 1920, they never realized that it would develop into the nation's third largest amusement park, attracting more than five million people annually.

Over the years, more than 100 million visitors have enjoyed the Old West atmosphere at Knott's Berry Farm, taken its rides, eaten in its restaurants and shopped its charming stores. Millions have also purchased some of the farm's renowned delicacies. Knott's line of jams, jellies, syrups, dressings, pickles, sauces and relishes all started out as freshly prepared sauces and garnishes in the farm's Chicken Dinner Restaurant and Steakhouse. Eventually, these products became so popular that Knott's decided to offer them for sale to the public. They are for sale to the public now in this area because Martin Distributing makes them available to the stores in this area.

Martin Distributing, Midland Air Terminal, has long been established as one of the top wholesalers in West Texas. The Knott's products are one of the latest additions to an extensive inventory of specialty products.

Committees to meet on transportation study

ODESSA — A joint meeting of the steering committee and policy advisory committee for the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study will be held at 10 a.m. Aug. 25 in the district office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Odessa.

Bill W. Jones, highway department public affairs officer, said the meeting will provide an opportunity for the two committees to review the transportation planning process being utilized in the two-county study area.

"The intent of the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study is to provide an overall transportation plan which will permit the most desirable and efficient means of meeting transportation needs of the study area for the next 20 years," he noted. Development of such a proposed system is being handled cooperatively by the state and local governmental agencies.

Jones said annual certification of the transportation planning effort is required by the Federal Highway Administration and the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. The certification insures that all transportation plans and programs for the two cities will be based on a continuing, comprehensive and cooperative planning process.

State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland is chairman of the policy advisory committee. Other members include Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock, Rep. John Hoestenback of Odessa, Rep. Richard C. Slack of Pecos, Ector County Commissioner Salvador Guerrero, Midland County Commissioner John Thomas, Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Odessa city councilman Glenn Brown.

Reagan board to receive bids

BIG LAKE — Reagan County school trustees will receive bids Sept. 9 for a $2,275,000 middle school to be completed by the fall of 1977.

School superintendent W. J. Teel said construction will begin within 20 days after acceptance of a bid. The construction project was approved in a May 29 bond election.

The budget for the 1976-77 school year totals $1,894,256, Teel said, including $294,686 in debt service as a result of the bond election. Last Year the school district was completely debt free with a $1,427,475 operations budget, Teel said.

The tax rate adopted by trustees is $1.76 per $100 of assessed value, based on an assessment of 58.32 per cent of market value.

Of that rate, 31 cents is for debt service. The operations tax rate, $1.45, is the same as the operations budget for last year, with the debt service rate new this year, Teel said.

AUSTIN — State Representative John Hoestenbach of Odessa has been appointed chairman of the subcommittee to study appropriative matters relating to higher education in Texas.

Center assists student parents

Married students looking for a place to deposit their children while they attend class need look no further than Midland Student Child Care, Inc., located at Christ Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St.

In existence for about a year and a half, Midland Student Child Care is licensed by the state welfare office and is designed for children between the ages of three months and ten years. 22 states seeking more tax

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

The American motorist, already facing the specter of higher gasoline prices next winter, had better brace for another possible grab at his or her pocketbook — increased state gasoline taxes in some regions of the nation.

The Highway Users Federation, a nonprofit organization representing segments of the highway and transportation industries, says a survey of state legislatures shows that nearly 100 proposals on motor vehicle-related taxes were introduced this year.

Twenty-two states either have considered or are studying tax boosts on gasoline, the federation reports.

Idaho this year approved a fuel tax climb from 8.5 to 9.5 cents a gallon. Kansas boosted its gas levy from seven to eight cents, and Hawaii and South Dakota legislatures approved continuation of previous fuel tax increases.

In Minnesota, Nebraska, Tennessee, Washington, Colorado and Wisconsin, moves to hike fuel taxes died or were vetoed.

In Alabama, Alaska, California, Florida, Iowa, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, a variety of gas tax advances still are before the legislatures.

The Virginia lawmakers went a step beyond a plain tax jump by authorizing cities and counties in the Northern Virginia Transportation District to impose a 4 per cent sales tax on motor fuel for roads and other transportation purposes, to be determined by local government agencies. Much of northern Virginia is considered suburban Washington, D.C.

Two states, Iowa and West Virginia, considered slapping percentage taxes on gasoline — up to 25 per cent of the per-gallon price. The proposal died in Iowa, but still is being considered in the West Virginia Legislature.

State legislatures, always searching for new revenues, considered a variety of proposals this year. Here are some:

Six states studied car weight taxes; five looked into horsepower levies; three considered user taxes for transit (use of the highways); 17 investigated a miles-per-gallon tax; 19 discussed new vehicle sales taxes; two talked of higher truck taxes; five discussed higher motor vehicle registration fees; and eight states considered diversion of highway-related taxes to other uses.

New York and Hawaii considered changes in six of these areas, California and Minnesota in five.

The federation predicts 1977 will bring an even more furious scramble by state legislatures to hike motor vehicle taxes one way or another. Every state except Kentucky will hold regular legislative sessions next year.

A comparison of state motor fuel taxes in 1965 and 1975 reflects an average climb from 6.33 cents to 7.96 cents per gallon — a 25.8 per cent increase.

In the same period, automobile operating costs rose 45.5 per cent, the consumer price index went up 75.5 per cent and highway construction prices rose 125.4 per cent.

Eight states — Alabama, Alaska, California, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas — didn't hike gasoline taxes at all between 1965 and 1975. Tennessee has had the same seven-cent-per-gallon levy for 43 years.

By the end of last year, state gas tax rates ranged from a low of five cents per gallon in Texas to a high of 10 cents in Connecticut and Rhode Island. However, Pennsylvania is considering a climb in its fuel tax from eight to 11 cents per gallon in its current legislative session.

TIPPING THE SCALES at four pounds and two ounces is the more than 700 pages of detailed gas purchase information delivered Tuesday to the various city governments throughout Pioneer Natural Gas Co.'s West Texas System. Weighing the materials in Amarillo are Pioneer employes Billie Washington, left, and Doris Vivens, right. The packets contain company testimony and exhibits for Pioneer's hearing to be presented before the Railroad Commission of Texas in Austin Sept. 14 to enable Pioneer to study its cost of gas for the West Texas system.

Delayed lease sale brings more money than U.S. expected

By WILLIAM CHAPMAN
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — After an eight-hour delay and a final legal test before a Supreme Court Justice, the government Tuesday opened bids for the first sale of offshore oil and gas drilling leases off the Atlantic coast.

More than 800,000 acres of potential oil and gas deposits lying off New Jersey and Delaware went on the block.

Preliminary sales figures indicate that the government had realized far more money from the sale than had been anticipated.

The total amount of high bids came to more than $1.1 billion. The Department of Interior had said previously that it expected to receive between $400 and $600 million from the high bidders.

Only 101 of the 154 tracts were bid on by the oil companies whose representatives almost filled a large hotel ballroom where the bids were opened.

The 154 tracts are underwater between 47 and 92 miles off the coast of New Jersey and Delaware. The government has estimated that they contain between 400 million and 1.4 billion barrels of oil and between 2.6 and 9.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The government's plan to sell the drilling rights has been strongly opposed by New York State, Suffolk and Nassau Counties and five individual communities on Long Island and some environmental groups.

All have claimed that the government has not paid enough attention to potential environmental damage, particularly from pipelines or tankers.

They won a round last Friday in a federal district court here, where Judge Jack Weinstein issued a preliminary injunction prohibitng the sale.

However, on Monday the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals lifted the injunction and the sale was set to begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

But opponents obtained a last-minute hearing from Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall. He finally agreed to let the government go ahead with the sale and the bids were opened at 6 p.m. Justice Marshall said he will explain his order in a written statement today.

A court hearing on the key points raised by environmentalists will be held Sept. 27. If the court finds that the Department of Interior violated the law in ignoring potential environmental damage, the bids opened will not be valid.

Oil company executives said that it would be at least six months — and probably more — before the first preparations for drilling would get underway. The leases give the companies up to five years to begin drilling. The crux of the argument in court involved how the oil found on the tracts might be transported. New York State has indicated it might refuse licenses to build pipelines into the state. That would force the companies to resort to tankers to transport the oil and Judge Weinstein said in his opinion on Friday that that would increase the danger of serious oil spills tenfold.

The 154 tracts lie in what is known as the Baltimore Canyon Trough on the Atlantic's Outer Continental Shelf.

Another Atlantic lease sale, involving tracts off the coasts of Virginia and Maryland, is still many months away, Department of Interior officials said.

The sale involves several high bids. A consortium headed by the Mobil Oil Company offered the highest bid for any single tract—$107.7 millions. That appeared to be the highest bid per acre in any of the government's recent sales of oil and gas leases offshore. The major offshore sales in recent years have been off Alaska and Southern California and in the Gulf of Mexico.

Exxon, Chevron and Mobil were among the other leading bidders. However, Interior Department officials said it would be several days before the bids are examined and the winning bidders on all the tracts were established.

The government has argued that the offshore drilling for oil is a key element in the effort to make this country independent of foreign oil sources.

Four Basin sectors report oil activity

Garza County gained a discovery and field extensions have been completed in Gaines, Sutton and Tom Green.

MCM, Dallas, finaled its No. 1 Swenson Estate, an Ellenburger oil strike in Garza, 1¼ mile west of the Barron Ranch (Strawn and Ellenburger) field, but separated by failures.

It gauged a 24-hour potential of 175.33 barrels of 41-gravity oil and 37 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 73.5-1.

Earnings reported

Tom Brown, Inc. of Midland, today reported for its fiscal quarter ended June 30, net earnings of $1,309,248, equal to 40 cents per common share, on total operating revenues of $7,615,710.

This compares with net income of $1,416,052 (restated), or 43 cents per share (restated), for the same three months of 1975, on revenues of $6,814,173.

The company has diversified interests in oil and gas exploration and production, contract drilling, oil equipment leasing and oil field chemicals.

Thomas C. Brown, president, said the 1976 quarter results reflected higher costs in contract oil drilling, the company's larger business, higher depreciation, depletion and amortization charges, and a substantial dry hole and abandonment charge connected with a non-productive well in Sweetwater County, Wyo., part of which was written off in last fiscal years' fourth quarter.

Casing set in Mitchell

Soma Energy, Inc., Midland, was waiting on cement after setting 4½-inch casing at 7,574 feet, for completion attempt at No. 1 Soma-Spade, Mitchell County wildcat, 14 miles south of Colorado City.

Production was indicated with the recovery of 1,210 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, 3,621 feet of free oil, and 612 feet of sulphur water on a drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 7,550-7,577 feet. The tool was open two hours.

The project spots 2,800 feet from north and 2,350 feet from west lines of section 14, block 18, R. M. Thomson survey.
