Battle brews over road closing

'Our commissioner has sold his public ...'

By LESLIE ABRAMS

Staffwriter

Citizens concerned over the closing of Bayside Rd. by the Aransas County Commissioners Court met Thursday evening, Nov. 18, at the Aransas County Courthouse to discuss the problem and plan course of action to re-open the road.

Aransas County residents Frank Riordan and Ray Thomas organized and presided over the meeting, which approximately 55 attended. After explaining the circumstances which led to the closing of the road, Riordan urged action at the next meeting of the commissioners court Nov. 24.

Bayside Rd., near the Port Bay Hunting & Fishing Club was closed in response to a petition signed by eight freeholders of the county, which stated that the closing of the road "will not in any way interfere with public travel or convenience, and that it is not now and will not be in the foreseeable future, practical or feasible to use said roadways for public use." The petition, signed by Curtis Harist, Ivan Silkenstedt, J.T. Stelman, A.H. Bankert, H.R. Bean, Pat Blackwell, Homer F. Elliott and Val Jean Eaton, was presented to the commissioners court at their Oct. 27 meeting. At the time of the meeting, no one present spoke out against the closing of the road.

The road supplies access to the bay for area fishermen and hunters. Riordan contends that no one spoke out against the road closing because no one saw notices of the closing posted. At the Nov. 8 meeting of the commissioners court, Riordan asked the attorney for the original petitioners, William G. Walston, where notices were posted. Walston replied that one had been posted in the post office and two in locations near the road — where exactly he did not know. At the meeting Thursday evening, Riordan asked for a show of hands as to how many present had seen any of the notices posted. Not one hand went up.

After the road had been ordered closed, a fence was immediately put up across the road and a sign which reads closed by order

Hearings called for annexation

Public hearings on proposed annexation of Traylor Avenue have been set for Dec. 13 and 20 as a necessary first step before city officials can consider a request to annex the site of Harbor Oaks Shopping Village.

The annexation hearings were scheduled during Monday night's city council meeting when council members scheduled a meeting with the Aransas County Conservation & Reclamation District at 5 p.m. Monday, Dec. 6, to discuss the city's water supply problems.

A meeting proposed for 9 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, with the county commissioners court to discuss city-county drainage problems was cancelled. City Administrator Herman Johnson said county officials thought the matter should be considered in a city-county workshop session. No date for a workshop was discussed.

The first public hearing on proposed annexation of Traylor Avenue — and a stretch of Hwy. 35 to the north line of Traylor — has been set for 7:15 p.m. Monday, Dec. 13, at Rockport's City Hall. The council at that time will consider annexation of Hwy. 35 North from the south line of Wal-Mart to the north line of Traylor and Traylor from Hwy. 35 to the Fulton Beach Road.

A second on-site public hearing — required by state law — has been set for 2 p.m. Monday, Dec. 20, at the intersection of Traylor and Hwy. 35.

City officials received permission from the county to annex Traylor last May.

Consideration of Traylor was sparked by a request earlier this year from Candy Stick Corp., developers of proposed Harbor Oaks Shopping Village, for annexation of the shopping center site. In order to consider that request, city officials first must annex Traylor Avenue.

In related action, Rockport Mayor Burt Mills read a letter from Roger Seaman Jr., president of Candy Stick Corp., in which Seaman restated his desire for annexation and said his corporation would pay the costs of providing drainage facilities off the Harbor Oaks Shopping Village site.

In the letter, Seaman specifically mentioned drainage to Long Reach Canal which is the proposal by Gene Urban of Urban Engineers, the city's engineering firm, to handle drainage from the area north of Rockport along Hwy. 35.

City officials have authorized a study of the Long Reach Canal drainage area to determine whether such a proposal would fit the naturally-existing conditions of that area. Pending the outcome of the study, the council determined no action could be taken on Seaman's letter.

In an unscheduled item prior to the beginning of Monday's meeting, Oscar Alvord was sworn in as the newest member of the city's planning and zoning commission.

One request for rezoning was brought before the council and city P&Z board in a joint public hearing at 7:15 p.m. That was a request of Paul H. Goodman Jr. and A.W. O'Neil for rezoning a portion of Outlot 15, on the southwest corner of Church and 1st streets, from R-2 to R-6 residential & resort.

A portion of the 6.25-acre tract, along Church Street, already has R-6 zoning and the owners were asked that the remainder of the tract be given that zoning. Juanita Wagley, acting as agent for the owners at Monday's meeting, said the tract is being considered by a group that would like to build multi-family dwellings on the land.

Following additional deliberation in a separate meeting, the P&Z commission, under Acting Chairman Jack Guillett, recommended that the R-2 portion of the lot be rezoned R-4, which is multi-family zoning but is more restrictive than R-6.

Holiday closings announced

Aransas County schools, area banks and savings and loans, government offices and many businesses will be closed for the Thanksgiving Holiday this week.

For some, the closing will be for Thanksgiving Day only, Thursday, Nov. 25. Others will close for a two-day holiday.

County schools will be closed Thursday and Friday as will Fulton's City Hall, the Aransas County Navigation District office and the Aransas County Courthouse. The Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce will be closed Thursday through Saturday.

Rockport's City Hall will close Thursday only, and no garbage pickups will be made on that day. Scheduled garbage pickups will be made on Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Bank and savings and loan employees will get a one-day holiday as those institutions close Thursday only. Other businesses that will close for the day on Thanksgiving include the Rockport Pilot.

The Pilot offices will be open for business as usual on Friday, Nov. 26.

Charter commission hopeful:

Charter to be written by Christmas

By PAT BLAIR

Staffwriter

Following adoption of a final provision in proposed Article X Monday, Rockport's city charter commission is hopeful the initial charter draft can be completed before Christmas.

Only three articles of the proposed charter remain to be written. But one of those three is Article VIII, dealing with the city tax administration. Because of the complexity of current state laws and the possibility — expressed by some state officials — that the laws may be changed by the next Texas Legislature, Rockport's charter commission members remain uncertain of how to write tax provisions into the city charter.

Charter Commission Chairman Ed Armstrong told those at Monday's meeting that City Administrator Herman Johnson has requested information from the Texas Municipal League concerning the tax laws but this information has not yet been received.

The Rockport Pilot will publish each of the proposed 12 charter articles in successive editions of the weekend edition. The proposed draft of Article I will appear in Saturday's, Nov. 27, issue.

In action Monday evening, the charter commission adopted a rewrite of proposed section 5, Charter Article X, that will require that deviations from a citywide master plan — required under provisions of Article X adopted last week — be submitted to the city planning and zoning commission for review and approval.

Under provisions adopted by the charter commission at its Nov. 15 meeting, the city planning and zoning commission would be required to draw up a master plan for the city, which will be periodically reviewed and updated and which will determine the city's future development.

It was the intent of commission members at that time that Section 10.05 require P&Z review and approval of any proposed changes to the master plan, but commission members felt the wording of that section, as originally submitted, did not clearly express that intent. They asked Mary Lou Tiner, chairman of the Article X subcommittee, to rewrite that section and re-present it to the commission at this past Monday's meeting.

Following presentation of the rewrite by Tiner, the section was unanimously approved on a motion by J.C. Harlan seconded by Ralph Winkelman.

In the absence of Bill Walston, chairman of the subcommittee appointed to draft Article VIII, the tax administration article, Armstrong told other commission members Monday he was hopeful that article can be presented for the commission's consideration at next Monday's meeting, Nov. 28.

"I think," Armstrong said at one point, "we can be done with this (the initial draft)"

Winter Texans keeping busy

Cribbage and euchre tournaments and a pancake breakfast helped enliven this past week for residents of Trav-Trail-R Inn on Hwy. 35 North.

Harry Douglass picked up first place in the recent cribbage tournament. Otis

Smith came in second and Leonard Hawkins third.

The euchre tourney was won by Russ Sellers. Stan Parker finished second and Barbara Davis third.

Saturday morning, Nov. 20, 41 people enjoyed a pancake breakfast at the park. Cooks and waitresses were Joyce Hewett, Joyce Goosen, Esther Hawkins, Dorothy Compton, Trudy Gowell and Violet Prostko.

On Sunday, a committee composed of Mrs. Hawkins, Ken Cook, Becky Nichols, Collett Flanigan and Maxine McDonald served the "Banana Split Special" to 46 people in the Recreation Hall.

Other activities during the week included a Saturday night film showing of "Radiation Naturally," "The Tragic Death of the Salmon," a film of belly dancer Nell Jarvis putting on a show at the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association dinner and slides taken by TTI resident Bill Mayer of Carlsbad Caverns and the Big Bend Country.

Some 29 residents of TTI attended the Nov. 17 RFTA-sponsored potluck supper at which Paramedic Bobby Motes and Joyce Thornton, president of the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc., explained the purpose of the ACMSI and EMS.

3-7 record

Pirate season wrap-up

What begun as a season of bright expectations grew to a clouded season of disappointments when the 1982 Rockport-Fulton Pirate football season is reviewed.

The Pirates opened with a win over Aransas Pass, and then added only two other wins to their record in the midst of a season of pushing injuries. Evidence of this was the Refugio game where a good many Pirates, including premier running back Dwayne Walls, who was trying to come back off of an injury sustained in the final quarter of the Port Lavaca game, lasted two plays. Things then seemed to go downhill as Refugio blasted the Pirates. So much so, in fact, that the Junior Varsity had to be dismantled for three games in order to field a Varsity team.

Rockport was really out of only two games during the season, and if breaks and mistakes could have gone the Pirates' way, the season record could have done quite a turn-around from the final 3-7. The Pirates dropped the Port Lavaca game 20-16 in the final quarter, and later lost a 7-0 decision to Beeville when the Trojans broke one big play.

A year ago, the fantastic yardage totals were provided by the Pirate offense and the running combination of Walls and Michael Simmons. Both runners had gone over 1,000 yards in the Pirates' 1981 5-5 season. This season, only Walls went over 500 yards, reaching 732 yards in only six full games, in one of which he was held to zero rushing yards (Sinton). Closest to Walls was kinsman Trinelle Walls, a sophomore pressed into service after Ramon Romero fell to injuries. Trinelle gained 414 yards. The Pirates found the yardage tough, as well, when they tried to go up-top through the air. Only two of the Pirates' poor total of 13 receptions for the year went for touchdowns.

Overall, the Pirate defense was up and down. Too many times the opponents would find the vulnerable places, and they would make the Pirates pay to the maximum. As a team, the Pirates recovered 19 fumbles, but took in only five interceptions.

Looking below the Varsity, the Pirate JV jumped off to a torrid start before the Varsity was so ambushed by injuries. The JV won three in a row before losing five games scattered over the remaining part of the football season. At the Freshmen level, the Pirates posted only one win for the season.

Many fishermen toss back edible fish

Many a good seafood dinner has been tossed back into the brine by fishermen along the Texas Gulf Coast, according to a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fisheries biologist.

Jerry Mambretti of Rockport said anglers, particularly those who bank-fish from jetties, often discard certain species of fish assumed to be unfit for the table.

"The shark and stingray species are two which often are wasted," Mambretti said. "But most of them can be prepared in a variety of ways for a wonderful main course."

Another fish whose reputation as a trash fish is underserved is the Atlantic cutlassfish, often used by offshore fishermen for trolling bait. Their sharp teeth make unhooking a delicate operation, but their flesh is quite edible, Mambretti said.

The Florida pompano so closely resembles others of the jack family that many anglers mistakenly figure its flesh is unpalatable.

Mambretti said there are several other commonly-caught species which probably are more toothsome for the table than most people realize. These include the spot, whiting, pinfish and pigfish.

Mambretti said fishermen should brush up on their fish identifying skills and take advantage of some of these lesser-known seafood treats. Recipes for cooking a variety of Texas saltwater fish may be obtained by writing to

Annette Hegen, Texas A&M University Extension Service, P.O. Drawer Q, Port Aransas, Texas 78373.

Fish kill investigated

AUSTIN — Officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the Texas Department of Water Resources investigated a fish kill in the Colorado River below Austin in late October.

Officials estimated some 1,800 fish were killed, but the incident was reported too late to obtain an accurate count.

P&WD chemist Dennis Palafox said low dissolved oxygen in the river may have caused the kill, but he said the cause of the low oxygen levels could not be determined with certainty.

He said dead fish were observed between Monto-polis Street Bridge and Farm Road 973 just east of Austin.

Palafox said most of the fish killed were shad and other "rough" fish species, but several largemouth bass, channel and flathead catfish also were observed.

L.O.C.C. course record tied

The course record at Live Oak Country Club was tied Sunday as David Belser, Kokie Couch, Ken Dauherly, Judy Rittiman and Ollie Rogero, playing in a scotch foursome, turned in a 16 under par score that included 12 birdies and two eagles.

Kokie Couch was also a member of the team that set the 16 under par record 20 year ago.

Second place went to J.P. Lynch, Mike Wells, Ted Brooks, Sandra Hurn and Mary Wilson with a score of 11 under par.

The team of Randy Ramey, Connie Arnold, Ben Rippey, Doug Vanderpool and Aggie Arnold took third place with a 9 under par.

All winners were also awarded turkeys.

A buffet luncheon was served at noon after the tournament.

Forty-five golfers participated in the event.

Liquids can be stored without refrigeration

COLLEGE STATION — A packaging procedure called "aseptic processing" now allows consumers to store perishable products for months without refrigeration, reminds Beverly Rhoades, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

This permits families to use items such as milk, fruit juices and similar perishable liquids in throw-away cartons for lunches, camping trips and other purposes without energy-consuming refrigeration, she emphasizes.

"Aseptic packaging is not new — it's been used in more than 50 other countries for over a decade — but it's just recently been approved by the federal government for use in the United States," Rhoades says.

The process involves aseptic liquids being sterilized and stored in bacteria-free protective containers, generally made of paper-board and plastic or poly-ethylene. Liquids are heated to ultra-high temperatures for a short time to destroy the bacteria which normally cause milk and juices to spoil quickly.

The sterile liquid moves under non-refrigerated but bacteria-free conditions to the package and is sealed. Then it can be transported to grocery shelves for display without refrigeration.

"When you purchase these products, you may store the liquids at home as shelf-stable foods at room temperatures," Rhoades says.

It's best to compare the prices of these products with their traditionally packaged counterparts, she suggests. Aseptic liquids may be less expensive than similar refrigerated products in other containers because of high speed packaging and reduced energy consumption through elimination of refrigerated processing, transportation and storage. In some cases, however, aseptic products may cost more.

"When aseptic liquids are more economical, they're an excellent buy. You save both money and energy. If they cost more, you have to decide if the storage convenience and extended shelf life is worth the extra cost," Rhoades says.

EPA to hold hearings on water quality

DALLAS — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will hold the first of a series of public meetings to discuss proposed changes in the Agency's water quality standards regulation in Dallas on Nov. 30.

Dick Whittington, EPA Regional Administrator who will preside at the meeting, said that the changes in the regulation proposed last October are designed to bring the standards, first established by the States in 1968, up to date while continuing to protect water quality.

The revision also will meet a new statutory requirement that the standards be reviewed by December 1984, he said.

The changes are designed to give the States more flexibility in tailoring the standards to the specific uses and conditions of their waters as well as to enable the States to deal more readily with water quality problems that are not addressed by national technology-based standards.

The series of meetings around the country was scheduled to promote public discussion of the proposed changes during the public comment period.

EPA staff members who developed and field tested the proposed regulation will attend the meetings to explain and discuss the changes. Also to be discussed are draft documents designed to guide States in planning and implementing water quality programs.

Participants are encouraged to reserve formal statements for submission in writing during the comment period.

Written comments should be sent to David K. Sabock, Chief of the Criteria Branch, Office of Water Regulations, U.S. EPA, 401 M Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20460.

Major new approaches built into the proposed regulation include:

A scientific process for states to use to determine water uses that are attainable (drinking water, recreation, fishing, agriculture, etc.) and to weigh the environmental and physical factors impairing the attainment of such uses.

A method of benefit-cost assessment to help states in considering whether the benefits of achieving a designated use bear a reasonable relationship to the cost.

Procedures that states may use to tailor water quality criteria to specific water bodies rather than using national laboratory derived criteria established by EPA.

The Dallas meeting will be in EPA's 29th floor conference room, First International Building, 1201 Elm Street. Registration will start at 8 a.m. with the meeting starting at 9 a.m.

Protect your dog's health now

Dr. Hap Lutz

The marked change of temperature we are now having, and will continue to have through March, is one of the factors that can be responsible for lowering your dog's immunity to bacteria and viral diseases. The diseases that can be prevented through inoculations are infectious hepatitis, distemper, parvovirus and leptospirosis (which can be transmitted to humans).

Before weaning, puppies are assumed to receive immunity to these diseases from their mother's milk. When they are weaned (at six to eight weeks of age) this immunity rapidly disappears. This is the time to start a series of vaccinations and continue at two to three week intervals until 15 months of age.

After that, annual boosters will maintain his protection — except on parvovirus. This is a semi-annual booster. Rabies vaccination is given at six months of age. At that time, you will be issued a rabies tag and certificate for your pet.

The expense of the preventative inoculations are relatively inexpensive. However, if they are not vaccinated, it is likely that they will develop one or more of these diseases. The treatment can be expensive. Not all dogs that develop a disease can be saved, even with treatment.

Don't procrastinate — have your dog vaccinated now.

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University.

Trailer taken from marina

A boat trailer valued at $15,000 has been reported taken sometime between August and this past Friday, Nov. 19, from Key Allegro Marina.

Officials with Esperanza Energy Corp. of Dallas, owners of the trailer, told sheriff's deputies the company's trailers "are moved around a lot" but that August is the last time anyone from the company used the trailer.

The theft was reported Friday morning.

A motorcycle belonging to Chad Kesler of Rockport and valued at $750 was reported taken from Kesler's yard between 9:45 p.m. last Wednesday, Nov. 17, and 4:34 p.m. Thursday. The vehicle is a green 1982 Kawasaki.

Two businesses in Aransas County were reported burglarized this past week. Western Warehouse on Hwy. 35 North was broken into between 11:50 p.m. Wednesday and 12:06 a.m. Thursday after someone peeled away a portion of the metal siding. And the Shrimp Net Restaurant on Hwy. 35 South near Freeze Lane was burglarized between 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday morning. Lists of items taken in those two burglaries were not available.

Aransas County Paramedic Leonard Callier reported someone damaged his car while the vehicle was in the parking lot of an area restaurant on Nov. 13. Estimated cost to repair damage was $180.

Texans urged to watch for fever tick outbreak

Livestock producers in this area are being urged by the Texas Animal Health Commission to continue surveillance efforts as a result of a recent fever tick outbreak in Webb County.

Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, reported that combined efforts of state and federal animal health officials are showing progress in eradication of the outbreak. "But we need the continued cooperation of all livestock producers," he said.

An outbreak of fever ticks was found Nov. 2 about 10 miles northwest of Laredo. As a result, about 20,000 acres were placed under quarantine involving more than 35 premises.

An 11-day roadblock in the area has been terminated, but spot checks are to be continued, Dr. Holcombe said.

Two species of fever ticks can transmit tick fever to an animal. Presently, there is no cure. Tick fever is not known to exist in Texas, but parts of Mexico are infested.

Cattlemen are being requested to continue to "scratch" or inspect their cattle for ticks. "Early reporting of ticks has been the most beneficial and important factor in our eradication efforts," Dr. Holcombe said.

Medical titles are often confusing

The title "doctor" is used by a diverse group of professionals in medicine and education, and similarities in certain specialty areas can leave consumers confused.

The Texas Medical Association offers these examples and explanations:

— Ophthalmologist, optometrist, optician: An ophthalmologist is a licensed physician — M.D. or osteopath — who specializes in treating medical eye disorders as well as prescribing corrective lenses. The ophthalmologist also is the doctor who performs eye surgery.

An optometrist is a licensed doctor of optometry who examines eyes and prescribes corrective lenses.

An optician, not normally called a "doctor," makes or sells lenses, glasses and other optical instruments for optometrists and ophthalmologists.

— Psychiatrist, psychologist: A psychiatrist is a licensed physician who specializes in diagnosing and treating mental disorders and may prescribe drugs. A psychologist is a licensed professional trained to perform psychological analysis, therapy or research and has a Ph.D. in psychology or the equivalent. Psychologists cannot prescribe drugs.

— Orthopedic surgeon, podiatrist, chiropractor: An orthopedic surgeon is a licensed physician specializing in bone and joint disorders, including those of the feet. A podiatrist is a licensed doctor of podiatric medicine who is limited to diagnosing and treating foot problems. The podiatrist also can operate, but only on feet. Chiropractor is another name for a podiatrist.

— M.D. and D.O. (osteopath): An M.D. is a doctor of medicine. A D.O. is a doctor of osteopathy, who may use manipulative therapy as part of his or her treatment of patients. Both are licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners to diagnose and treat patients in Texas.

Rockport motel owner reports two service thefts

The manager of a Rockport motel reported two incidents of thefts of service to city police this past Thursday, Nov. 18, including one that occurred this past summer.

The earlier incident occurred during a period between March 26 and June 26 when a man who was checked into the motel during that time left without paying a bill of $577. In a more recent incident, police were told a man checked into the motel on Oct. 10 and checked out on Nov. 6, leaving without paying a bill of $344.40.

Police recovered a purse and most of its contents Thursday afternoon, Nov. 18, shortly after the purse was stolen from the car of Carla Krueger while the vehicle was parked in downtown Rockport.

Krueger told police her purse was taken from her unlocked vehicle between 5:10 and 5:20 p.m. while she was inside a store. Police Detective Andy Valdez found the purse in a nearby alley about 5:30 p.m.

A clerk at a convenience store on South Bronte called police shortly after a man reportedly ran out of the store owing 87 cents on a pack of cigarettes. That incident happened about 11:45 p.m. Thursday.

Police arrested three persons on charges of public intoxication during the weekend. Two of the arrests were on Friday, Nov. 19, and the third on Saturday.

AARP news

The winners of game afternoon on Thursday, Nov. 18, were Maxine Eckhart and Floyd Dailey. The finale was won by Frank Ogle.

The hostesses for this party were Myrtle DeForest and Frances Wofford. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

The next game afternoon will be at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2, at the Paws and Taws Building. There will be no game afternoon on Thursday, Nov. 25, Thanksgiving Day.

In addition, there will be no dance on Thursday, Nov. 25. These parties have been most successful and the first dance in December will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2, at the Paws and Taws Building. The public is invited.

There will be only one meeting in December at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 8. This will consist of the installation of officers, gift giving and the annual Christmas Program presented by the Rockport-Fulton High School Choir under the direction of Martha Luigi. A sandwich lunch will be furnished by the chapter.

All members are asked to bring canned goods or dry staples for the Christmas baskets to be given to the poor in the community.

The "55 Alive Driver Improvement Course" will be offered a second time on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, at 9:30 a.m. each day. If anyone is interested in taking this course, please call Florence Samson, 729-1187 or Frances Cook, 729-2925. The course is $7 per person.

It's moving-in day at Fulton mansion

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

FULTON — The halls and rooms of Fulton Mansion are no longer empty.

Boxes line the downstairs hallway. Furniture — some of it not yet unpacked — sits in the mansion's various rooms while personnel with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department carefully unpack and catalog the various items, checking each piece against their inventory sheets, noting what final repairs are needed before the pieces can be put on display and the mansion opened to the public.

Furniture, carpeting and other household items for the mansion arrived this week from the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department and Zane Morgan, TP&WD's furnishing planner, and Arlinda Abbott, TP&WD curator, joined June Secrist, parks superintendent at the soon-to-be-open historical museum, inventorying the pieces as they were unpacked.

At this point, Secrist said, parks & wildlife officials are hoping to open the museum to the public in March. "We're waiting on tiles (for some of the floors) and a few more exhibit pieces," she said. The opening date will depend on when those items arrive.

Authenticity has been the key word both in restoration of Fulton Mansion and in the furniture and interior decor. Care has been taken to use original materials where possible and, where not possible, to use replications as close as possible to the originals.

Parks & Wildlife officials were assisted by the extensive documentation available on Fulton Mansion. Detailed inventories are available, Secrist said, not only of household furnishings, draperies and other items but of the food that was ordered, plants, personal items used by members of the family...

Photographs of some members of the Fulton family have been located and will be placed in the mansion. Knowledge of the times, the man and members of his family have also aided, Secrist said.

During Fulton's era, there was an interest in "gadgets" like the folding chair that will be placed in one of the mansion's rooms. Because Col. Fulton was himself an inventor, Secrist said, he probably had more than ordinary interest in such things.

"We know what was popular with the family," Secrist said. "We know, for example, that one of the daughters — Anna Ware (Nannie) Fulton (later Holden) — was a china painter. And from letters, we know the Fulton women were making flowers out of fish scales."

Such "fish scale embroidery" was a popular pastime of women in the Victoria era, she said. Handcraft was often framed and displayed and examples of the type of work will be hung in the completely-restored Fulton Mansion, Secrist added.

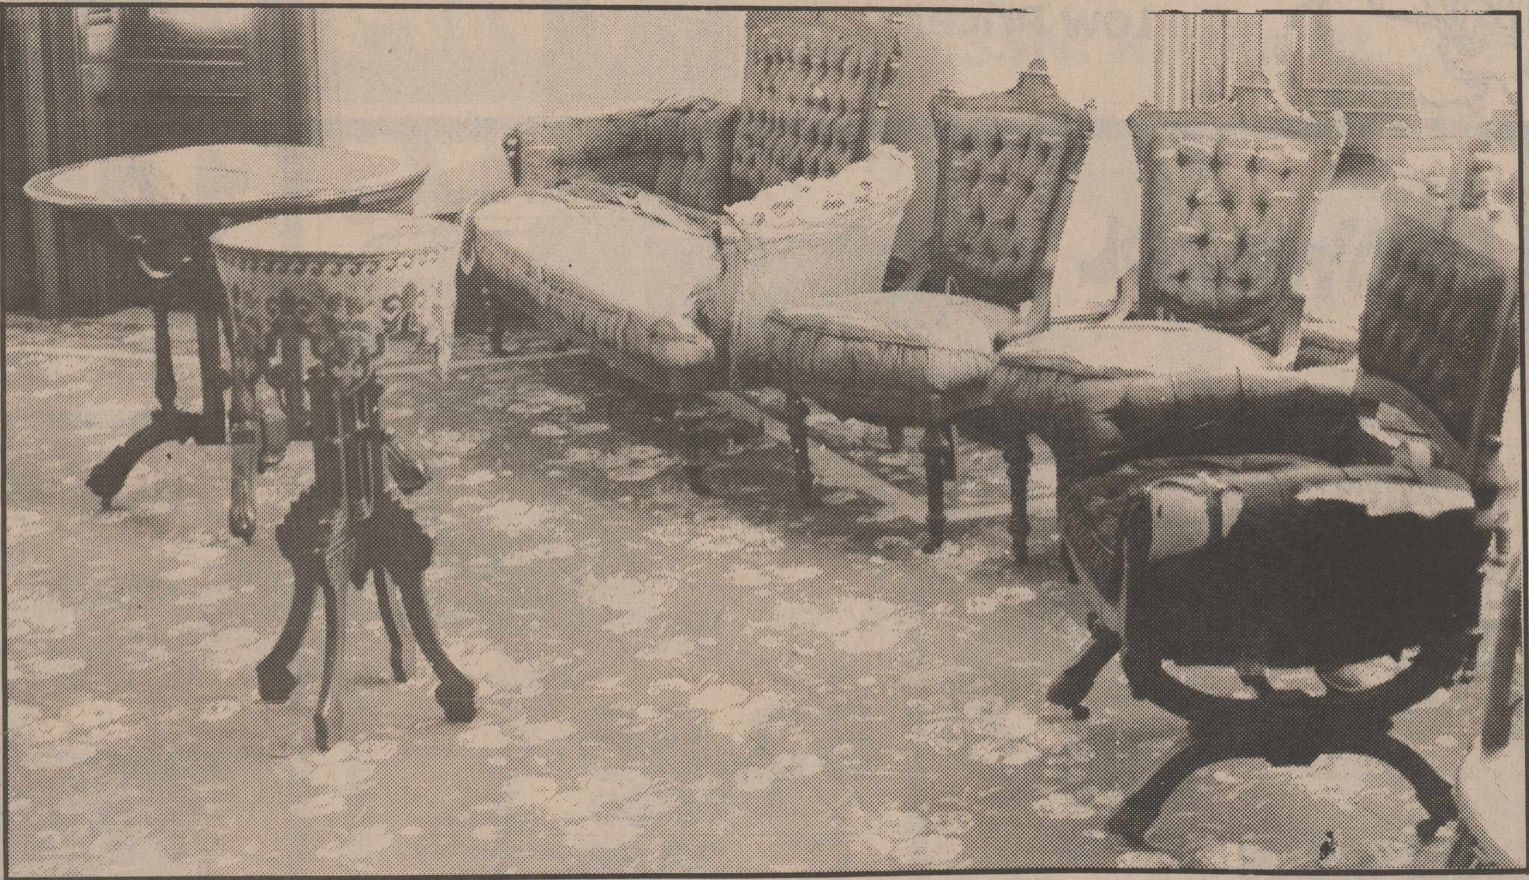

Adding to the authenticity of the restored mansion, Secrist said, are plans for canaries. "When Nannie was living in the house, she kept canaries," Secrist explained.

The first two floors of Fulton Mansion will be opened to the public when restoration of the structure is completed. The third floor will be used by Texas Parks & Wildlife for office space.

Plans at this point call for Fulton Mansion to be more than just a refurbished old house that visitors can tour. "We want to start a family, arts and crafts of the period," Secrist said. The work is just beginning.

Von Dohlen: District needs voice

Veteran State Rep. Tim Von Dohlen says the people of the newly redrawn

Senate District 18 deserve a senator whose voice will be heard in the halls of the Texas Legislature and says his 12 years of service in the Legislature will make him more effective than his opponent, two-term Rep. Sharp.

"The people of District 18 should have a strong voice in the Senate, which will be dominated by big city representatives," Von Dohlen said, pointing out that Dallas and Houston have a total of nine senators in the 31-member Senate.

"District 18 is made up mainly of small towns and communities, farms and ranches. Many of the residents have deep roots in the Texas soil and all their lives they have worked to make Texas great," Von Dohlen said. "They don't deserve to have their voices stifled by senators representing newcomers in the big cities."

Von Dohlen is running against two-term Rep. Sharp in the new district 18 which stretches from Fort Bend County in the north to Aransas County in the south. Von Dohlen has pledged to run on his record which he says proves he can represent "small town Texas" and rural interests in the Legislature.

Von Dohlen, a veteran of the state legislature who has authored many major pieces of legislation, authored the law providing a cap on state spending — no more spending than the rate of the states growth.

"It's easy to talk tax reform during a campaign," Von Dohlen said. "But not so easy to deliver. I can point to the record books and the statutes which bear my name as proof that I deliver on my promises of tax reform."

"It takes a veteran to pass a good tax reform package, someone who has experience, not someone who is new at the game."

How do you cook a turkey?

Everyone has a different recipe for cooking a turkey on Thanksgiving Day. These youngsters at the ABC Learning Center had their own ideas for cooking the holiday bird.

"I cook a turkey with mustard. I put on mayonnaise. I slap the turkey, slam the turkey, and chop it up with a big saw."

Alex

"Cook it in the stove, put in ketchup and salt and french fries and hot pepper and good tomatoes. Put a dinosaur on it."

Jason

"Put it in the oven. When it's ready, take it out."

Shana

"Put it in a pan. Fry it like a pancake. Make turkey-cakes."

Zachary

"Lay it down and mix it up. Put it in the oven. Take the feathers off. Take the head off. Eat it."

Justin

"You would buy vegetables and eat them."

Adult education classes begin

Eleven adults attended the first Adult Continuing Education class held Thursday, Nov. 18, in the high school annex. Kay Woodard, home demonstration agent for Aransas and San Patricio counties, conducted the class in microwave cooking. Instruction covered recipes for the microwave oven and ways in which the oven could be economically used for preparation of meals.

The final session of this class will be held on Thursday, Dec. 2.

Those still interested in signing up for the Defensive Driving Course should do so as soon as possible to prevent cancellation.

New motel to be built in area

Plans for a new motel building on South Church Street have been filed at Rockport's City Hall, according to officials who issued the building permit Friday, Nov. 19, for the proposed construction.

Owned by W.H. Stretch of Rockport, the $80,000 building will contain 12 units with bath plus living quarters in 4,609 square feet. The frame structure will be constructed on concrete slab and flooring will be carpeting and tile.

The new motel is to be located in the Stewart Subdivision on land adjacent to the Aransas County Council on Aging, 912 S. Church.

Blacklock to receive award

Gene W. Blacklock, of Corpus Christi, will receive the Awareness Award this year from the Kingsville Bird and Wildlife Club. Blacklock is the Coordinator of Environmental Education and Museum Curator at the Welder Wildlife Foundation, Sinton, Tex.

The award is being presented Nov. 16 at a covered dish dinner in honor of the event. Blacklock will receive the award from Jane Rogers, president of the Kingsville Bird and Wildlife Club.

The Awareness Award is an annual award given to a person or business in the South Texas area that has made a special contribution toward increasing the public's awareness of the environment around us.

Last spring Blacklock initiated a bird identification class for the general public. This is probably the first class of its kind in this part of the country.

Although enrollment for the class is through Texas A&I, the classes are held at Welder Wildlife Refuge.

Since South Texas is one of the best birding areas in the country, Blacklock emphasizes how our numerous bird species fit into their ecological niches here in this area.

This is the first time in this area that an attempt has been made to provide an easy access of information about the natural world here to the average public.

Students have ranged from high school age to senior citizens, and have come from Victoria and Kingsville and all points in-between.

Blacklock is affiliated with numerous wildlife organizations and is coordinator of several different ecological studies and projects. In the first part of November he coordinated the Tamalipan Biotic Province Symposium held in Corpus Christi, which was attended by people from all over Texas and Mexico.

Co-author of two publications, "Birds of the Texas Coastal Bend" and "The Texas Colonial Waterbird Survey," he received a Bachelor of Science degree from Texas A&I. He also leads natural history tours to Mexico, Alaska and here in Texas.

Last year the Awareness Award was presented to The Kingsville Record for its news coverage of the environment.

of the commissioners court was erected. Neither the commissioners, Walston, nor anyone else seemed to know who put the fence and the sign up, nor does anyone know who moved it back 100 feet after it was found to be in violation of the provisions of the original petition.

The property near the road in question has been the site of trespassing, vandalism, litter, poaching, and one resident reportedly had three head of livestock slaughtered and left on his property. Some of these points were brought out when the case was presented to the court for a decision.

If the original petition is determined to be valid and legal then the only way to re-open the road is for the commissioners court to condemn the property and purchase it from the property owners. Riordan and others are hoping that the original petition will be declared invalid due to some legality. The case is currently being reviewed by District Attorney Thomas Bridges.

Most of those attending the Thursday evening meeting were angry and they expressed their anger one by one before the rest of those present. Most faulted the commissioners — in particular John Lee, commissioner of Pct. 1, the precinct where the road is located.

"No commissioner spoke out in favor of the public," said Riordan at the meeting. "They've (the original petitioners) got a lawyer and a lot of money behind this so-called action. It was done by private interests for selfish purposes."

Others came down on Lee specifically.

According to several people present, Lee was invited to attend the meeting to hear what those concerned had to say. Lee did not attend the meeting, which made those who were already angry even angrier. "I believe our commissioner has sold his public down the river," exclaimed Gene Carter.

Another man, Art Rinehart, told those present that Lee had guaranteed him in a conversation some time ago that the road would never be closed.

Others expressed disbelief. "I go down that road at least once a week," said Charles Clark, "and I can't back up what was said in that petition at all."

"They're violating my rights and the rights of my children to use that road for recreation," said John Mayhall.

Commissioner John Lee, in an interview at The Rockport Pilot Monday morning, Nov. 22, said "I believe if all the people who were against the road closing at the time objected, it probably wouldn't have been closed. Right now the road is closed and it doesn't belong to the county."

"I don't think it (the road closing) affects more than a handful. There's not half of those people who use that road. It's not a very good place to put a boat in or even fish there," he continued.

"It (the road) was closed because of all the people disturbing the property owners. We can't turn back any pages. If they get it open, I will not close it again," Lee stated.

When asked why if the protection of special interests played a part in closing the road he said, "Not to my knowledge, but there could have been."

Lee was also asked why he did not attend the Thursday evening. "I didn't feel that it was important," he said. "If I was invited, I didn't know about it."

"I knew what was going to be said in advance. My mind was already made up about how I felt. Besides," he added, "Democrats don't go to Republican meetings."

As to what will take place when the commissioners court meets again at 9 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, Lee is unsure how things will turn out. He said he is willing to listen to anyone who has something to say at the meeting. "I take the feelings and considerations of the people in my precinct seriously."

city inspector and director of public works. An emergency was declared concerning purchase of a car for the city administrator which means the city will not advertise for bids for this vehicle but that it will be purchased off the lot.

A date of Jan. 10 was set for opening bids on repainting of the 1.5 million gallon ground water storage tank adjacent to the water plant in Peninsula Oaks.

Bills paid from Oct. 8 through Nov. 8 were approved.

Hearing

Guillett noted the zoning board "can't do anything" about the portion of the tract that already has R-6 zoning.

The council accepted the P&Z recommendation and approved R-4 zoning for the area in question. Also approved was a recommendation by the P&Z board that a request by Donald Kelley of Texas Starbrite Corp. be granted. Kelley asked for replatting of two lots at the southeast corner of Alamo and Church streets.

The council set Dec. 13 as date for opening bids on two new vehicles for the

by Christmas, then we can begin the review process."

When all of the proposed charter articles have been drafted, they will be submitted to a rewrite committee which will be charged with "cleaning up" any grammatical or other errors.

Armstrong suggested that this draft of the charter be submitted to the Texas Municipal League for review before submission to citizens of Rockport for at least on public hearing.

Following public hearing on the proposed charter and a campaign by the charter commission to acquaint as many Rockport residents as possible with the charter, it will be submitted to a vote. At this time, charter commission members are shooting for an April election concurrent with the regular city elections.

'82-'83 flu season expected not to be severe

HOUSTON — The state's 1982-83 influenza season is not expected to be severe. But Texans by the thousands will once again rush to the drugstore — seeking relief from sneezes, coughs and fevers — only to be confused by the number of over-the-counter (OTC) medications.

Flu and drug experts at Baylor College of Medicine have a few pointers on how to avoid the emotional trauma.

Deciding what to choose begins with thinking about the symptoms you have, and treating only the serious symptoms, Robert Couch, M.D., director of Baylor's Influenza Research Center, said. Ingredients are listed on the packages of OTC medications.

If you are "stopped up," or congested, look for a medicine that has a decongestant, such as phenylpropanolamine hydrochloride or pseudoephedrine.

A runny nose can be controlled by an antihistamine, which dries up fluids, but it is recommended only for a very runny nose. One of the popular ones is chlorpheniramine.

Coughs can be helped by suppressants, such as those containing dextromethorphan. A dry cough may require an expectorant — one is guaifenesin — to loosen lung fluids.

Most OTC medications for colds and flu are combinations of ingredients to treat a number of symptoms, but in this case more is not necessarily better.

"Many concoctions that contain three or more drugs will probably have something necessary in them," Couch said. "And the more drugs you take the more likely you are to have reactions to one of them."

He also said the amount of one or more of the combined ingredients may be too little.

The aspirin in some medications may not be enough to control your headache. It might be better to use a medication with two ingredients, such as a decongestant and cough suppressant, and then take aspirin or an aspirin substitute.

The form medications are in — nose spray, nose drops, liquid, tablet or capsule — should be considered.

Frank Bennett, a registered pharmacist and Baylor graduate student, said that decongestant nose sprays and drops are effective for short term use.

"They have a fairly quick action because they are administered at the site where needed," he said. "But people can develop a tolerance to these in a matter of days, and get what is known as 'rebound congestion."

Liquids usually act faster than tablets or capsules and the elderly and children seem to tolerate them better.

Bennett said that there are some individuals who should be careful about cold and flu OTC medications.

People with glaucoma, an increased pressure in eye fluids, should not take antihistamines. They tend to increase fluid pressure.

Decongestants may cause problems for diabetics and those with high blood pressure. They can increase blood sugar levels, and interact with blood pressure medications.

"There is probably little difference between different brands of over-the-counter medications for colds and flu," Bennett said, "if they have the same ingredients in the same dosage level."

But to be sure, Couch and Bennett suggest that people ask their doctor or pharmacist for information on cold and flu medications. And above all, see a doctor if coughing, fever or other symptoms continue for more than three to five days.

Della Roberts

Self-taught local artist

— up and coming in art community

For someone who has not been painting long, Della Roberts is well on her way to making a name for herself in the art community. Although Roberts has only had 15 art lessons, she has already had one painting hanging in the Amin-Carter Museum in Fort Worth.

"I'm what you might say self-taught," says Roberts, a native of Bagdad, Ky., who discovered Rockport while vacationing down here. Roberts specializes in western painting, portraits and wildlife — all done in oils. Of the three, western painting is her very favorite. "However, the portraits are what has managed to pay for my supplies," she laughs. Oleg Stavrowsky, a western painter, is her favorite artist.

The painting that hangs in the Amin-Carter Museum is of Toby Harris — one of the last of the old area cowboys who worked on a ranch out on Matagorda Island. Roberts painted Toby two weeks after his death and gave the painting to his former employer as a gift. "I was overjoyed," exclaimed Roberts, when she learned her painting had been given to the museum.

Roberts has also done several portraits, including one of the late Lester Roloff. The portraits require a lot of study before the actual painting begins, as do both wildlife and western paintings. "Sometimes it takes weeks and sometimes it almost goes onto the canvas by itself," she says of the time it takes to complete her work.

She has recently donated two of her paintings to the Ducks Unlimited banquet. In addition, she has donated her time to residents at Travel Trailer Haven and says she may someday consider teaching.

Her work is currently on display at Willetts Frame Shoppe located at 1015 Concho, across the street from H.E.B. The phone number is 729-3681.

Leather is fashionable this fall

COLLEGE STATION — Leather and leather-like fabrics are very much in fashion this fall and several things should be considered before sewing garments from these materials, says Becky Saunders, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Many leather or leather-like fabrics currently available have different weight and color than those used previously, making them easier to sew and care for," she explains.

Choose a vest or tunic pattern that is simple to sew when making a leather garment the first time, Saunders suggests, and select fabric accordingly.

"The newest trend in suede and leather looks or actual skins is they are also lightweight and soft," she adds.

Skins are sold by the square foot, and an average size full skin is about six square feet. For one yard of fabric, approximately nine square feet makes a fabric 36 inches wide, 11 square feet equals a fabric 45 inches wide, 13 square feet equals 52 inches in width and 15 square feet equals 60 inches in width.

"Add approximately 10 to 15 percent to the square footage needed to allow for any irregular shapes of a real skin," Saunders suggests.

Skins should be matched according to color and weight and sewn with a minimum seam of one-fourth inch. Leather doesn't have a true grain line but stretches the way it grows, and stretch should go around the body.

"Avoid back stitching at the end of the seam when using real leather, because it weakens the garment," Saunders suggests. "Knot thread instead, and remember to stitch slowly for maximum evenness."

All pattern pieces should be laid out in the same direction and skins should not be folded when cutting out a true leather garment, she advises. Some leather-like fabrics can be cut with double thickness to save time.

A test seam should always be constructed when making the garment to see if tension and pressure may need adjusting, she says.

Caring for the finished product is also important, she says. Use the right temperature and recommended brand name detergent when machine washing. If dry cleaned, as suggested for real leather, make sure leather techniques are used.

If the leather garment becomes wet, Saunders says to stuff it with paper or let it air dry at room temperature, since heat may cause shrinking. The garment should be kept on a padded or shaped hanger in a cool, dry place, and plastic should never be used. Sunlight may also cause fading.

"Pressing will vary according to the fabric content and weight," Saunders says. "True leather garments use a low setting and for best results require heavy brown paper between the fabric and iron."

Always test for the right heat and pressure before ironing so no visible marks will be left on the fabric, she concludes.

Book provides help for parents

Dorothy Cretcher is a wife, mother of two sons who are college graduates and an author. Her most recent book, "Steering Clear: Helping Your Child Through the High Risk Drug Years," was stimulated by a chance conversation she had with her boys concerning the attitude of young people toward drug abuse. Although not drug users themselves, Mark and Jeff surprised her by admitting the prevalence and acceptance of drugs such as marijuana, alcohol and even cocaine, was extremely widespread among others of their age.

Disturbed by their information, Dorothy was intrigued by a newspaper article she read soon afterward. The article dealt with a survey revealing that 78 percent of the parents in the Kettering, Ohio, school district believed that marijuana was a problem in the schools, but only 17 percent believed their children were involved.

The figures didn't make sense to Dorothy, and her reporter's instinct for fact was aroused. She began her search at the library, reading all the available books on drug abuse. What she found was a mish-mash of contradiction and scientific technology too complicated for most parents to absorb.

She turned instead to the source of her interest — young people. They were completely frank with her, some of them telling her yes, they smoked pot, yes, they got smashed on beer and telling her why. Next she interviewed parents and examined their concerns or lack of them over drug use by their children. Often she listened to them express feelings of helplessness. She went on from there, talking to the professionals — the teachers, the medical people. Her alarm grew with her knowledge, not only because of the evidence of epidemic use among children from the sixth grade up, but also the abysmal ignorance, misunderstanding and misstatements that cloak the drug usage problem.

She set to work to do something about it — to write a book that everyone, young people and parents alike, could easily understand. She sought the guidance of experts; or parents who cared. No one was paying her to do this; it was all voluntary because she felt the need was paramount.

So did Bill Pflaum, who publishes books for pre-school children and from whom Dorothy had previously done editorial work. Bill has three teenage sons and he says, "None, so far as I know, is involved with drugs but the threat is there every day." After he read Dorothy's manuscript he offered to help find a publisher. Although he approached many, he found none willing to publish the book. They all had the same response: No one is interested in the subject. Drugs are no longer a problem.

"It was a denial of reality," says Bill, "the same kind of denial that goes right down into the home." The upshot was that Bill decided to put his money where his convictions lay and bring the book out at his own expense.

Dorothy Cretcher wrote "Steering Clear: Helping Your Child Through the High Risk Drug Years" because she recognized the gravity of the problem and wished to help resolve it. Money was not the objective for either author or publisher. Their purpose was to alert parents to the danger of all drugs and to tell the young people of America how and why they should be "Steering Clear."

Cataract surgery proven successful

Like clear glass, the lens of a normal eye is transparent. If the lens becomes cloudy or opaque, the person has a cataract.

The Texas Medical Association says cataracts can develop because of injuries, medications, radiation or diseases in the eye or elsewhere in the body. Cataracts may be present at birth through inheritance or faulty embryo development, or they may arise during early childhood.

The most common type, however, is associated with aging. The cells of the lens age like the cells of the skin. As they age, lens cells become less transparent.

Because use of the eyes is not a cause of cataracts, resting them will not prevent cataract development. Nor will eye drops, ointments, injections or any exercise prevent cataracts or stop their development once begun. The degree to which they impair vision varies.

Surgery is currently the only procedure used for removing cataracts. The laser, used to treat other eye disorders, is not used to remove cataracts.

Cataract surgery has a high success rate and need not be delayed until the cataract is "ripe," meaning the patient no longer can see through it. The operation should be considered when the obstruction interferes with the person's ability to function satisfactorily and when glasses no longer improve sight sufficiently.

The lens of the eye is located within the eyeball and just behind the pupil (black central hole) and the iris (colored area surrounding the pupil). Cataract operations involve a cut into the eye, made under the upper eyelid. Through the incision, the cloudy lens (cataract) is removed wholly or in pieces.

In some cases, the ophthalmologist (a medical doctor specializing in eye treatment) may implant a plastic, artificial lens into the eye when the cataract is removed. Or the person can wear glasses or contact lenses to bring images back into focus. With successful cataract surgery, a person may expect better vision as long as no other disease exists within the eye.

Md., will be the luncheon speaker at the seminar. Donovan will discuss prospects for growth in the areas of shipbuilding and repair, offshore development, port development and marine transportation.

He will present the results of a recent study by his firm assessing the economic impact of the marine industry on the Texas Coast and projecting the industry's growth.

The seminar will include a panel presentation on the outlook for major segments of the marine and offshore industry in the Coastal Bend area.

Panelists will include Jerry Edmondson, vice president for personnel of Marine Drilling Co.; Walter A. Flippo, vice president, Western Hemisphere, Jackson Marine Corp.; James M. "Jimmy" Thwing, president, Loyd W. Richardson Construction Corp.

The afternoon session on financial management and concern to the marine industry will feature the following presentations on "Outlook for Commercial Loans and Other Financing Alternatives for the Marine Industry," Jimmy R. Price, president and chairman of the board, Texas Commerce Bank, Corpus Christi; "Primer on Bankruptcy Management," Matthew A. Rosenstein, attorney, Kleberg, Dyer, Redford and Weil; and "Developing a Financial Statement for a Bank Credit Officer," James B. Frazier, CPA.

The registration fee for the seminar is $25 per person, which includes the luncheon.

Texans can take charge of their lives

COLLEGE STATION — Older Texans should take charge of their future now. "You can take charge of your future — physically, mentally, socially and financially. Control the things you can to become the person you want to be," suggests Judith L. Warren, family life education specialist-aging, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"While a lifetime of familiar habits cannot be ignored and surely cannot be changed overnight, there are ways each person can reshape some of these habits, provided he or she feels the need to do so," Warren says.

Warren suggests these guidelines for "taking charge of your future."

1. Decide what you expect of yourself in the future. Look at yourself now, and think about what kind of person you want to be and what kind of life you want to lead in five or 10 years. If you are physically active now and currently involved in a sport or exercise program, continue it. You may want to start an exercise program, if you are not currently involved. Even if an illness or disability has confined you to a bed or wheelchair, you can — in many instances — do some exercises. Your family doctor can assist you in these plans.

2. If you want to remain mentally alert, take up — or keep up with — activities that stimulate the mind. Interested people are interesting to others, so develop new interests and share these with other people. The joy of learning can be awakened no matter what your age or educational experience. Leadership and volunteerism offer many challenges.

3. For many older adults, continuing a meaningful level of social activity is a challenge. Keeping up an active social life means making an effort to join a new club or find a new friend.

4. Financial security is important, and many older adults must take extra steps to protect what they now own, while stretching their income to meet current needs. Explore second career or part-time employment, and determine acceptable options for reducing current expenses.

Texas Brownbuilder Robert Holman: One of the Best

Robert Holman, from Westhoff, is helping build the economic growth and progress of his state as part of Brown & Root's worldwide engineering and construction team.

Robert joined Brown & Root in 1978 as a laborer and is now a general warehouseman. He and his wife, Jonquil, live in Cuero with their son and godson. An ordained Baptist deacon, Robert is secretary-treasurer of the St. Thomas Baptist Church Deacon Board and also spends his spare time working with young people as president of the DeWitt County Sunday School and Training Union Institute.

Another thing about Robert: he's one of the best. He's helping Brown & Root do a better job, because he knows his job and gets it done right.

Wherever Brown & Root works, we always look for people like Robert. We give preference in hiring to people in jobsite communities and offer them opportunities to advance as fast and as far as their abilities and merit take them. That way, we share the benefits of every job with local people and share the economic benefits of payrolls, purchases, savings and taxes with local communities and states.

Brownbuilder Robert Holman helps us all by being one of the best.

Beware of door-to-door sales

By Mark White
Attorney General
[Governor-elect]

AUSTIN — It's hard to resist a smiling youngster who rings your doorbell and asks you to subscribe to a magazine to help him earn a college scholarship.

It's especially difficult when he adds that part of the purchase price of the subscription will be donated to charity — and even more enticing when the price you are quoted seems very reasonable.

But our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say they have received reports of travelling magazine "crews" working one part of the State and moving to another, selling magazine subscription contracts on the basis of fraud and deception.

Consumers have not the only persons defrauded in such operations. In many cases, the youngsters working on the crew also have been the victims of misrepresentation.

They have responded to classified newspaper advertisements which promote glamorous jobs involving travel, resort hotel stays, and the opportunity to meet interesting people. Such jobs are said to be "available to the right applicants." What they find is a job selling magazine subscriptions as part of travelling crews, often at below average wages.

Sales persons on the crew tell potential subscribers that they are working toward a college scholarship which they can get if they sell a certain amount of magazine subscriptions. Sometimes they vary the story by saying they are working for a savings bond bonus. In many times, in such operations, the purchaser ends up paying more than he would if he ordered the magazine directly from the publisher. The typical sales pitch in such magazine operations is that you will pay only "pennies per week." Remember, though, that 48 pennies per week equals $24.96 per year, so it's important to consider the total price you are agreeing to pay.

You also should be aware that some magazine sales operations have failed to provide the subscriptions even though they were paid in advance for them.

If you have a consumer complaint involving door-to-door sales of magazines or other items, get in touch with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division nearest you.

Make toys easy to reach

Toys should be kept in a place that is easy for a child to reach. Open shelves are best, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

Toys on an open shelf are inviting. A child can reach them without help, and can put them away (maybe with a little help!).

Don't use a toy chest. It may keep the toys out of sight and make the room look neat, but toys will get jumbled inside, parts will get lost, and worst of all, there is danger of the lid falling on the child's head or hands.

Open toy shelves can be used to teach a child many things. You and the child can decide where each new toy will "belong." In this way you can help a child understand categories: blocks go here; cars, trains and trucks nearby. Balls and outdoor toys go here, books and records there.

Later on, whenever a new toy is received, the child can figure out its category and where it should go. This kind of orderly thinking is helpful in learning mathematics and reading.

To help a child remember where each toy goes, you can put a picture of it in the right place — either directly on the shelf or on the wall behind.

When toys are easy to reach, always ready to use, and easy to put away, a child is learning independence and responsibility and parents will be avoiding a lot of playtime hassles!
