OLD LAUGH ON ICE-BOXES IN ALASKA DEAD

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 14. (AP)—When those salesmen get together again in Atlantic City to sing the praises of their number one man they've got to think up a better one than "why, he could sell ice-boxes in Alaska."

That old phrase is getting to be a pretty tame commendation, Juneau residents say.

For if Juneau wasn't more electric refrigerators per thousand families than any other city in the world, the men who sell them up here want to know what city holds the record so they can knock it over.

Completing a census today of the 2,000 residences in Juneau, W. P. Johnson of the Alaska Electric Light and Power company found the city had more than 1,000 electric refrigerators in service.

"The interesting feature of this is that far from nearing what might seem the saturation point, the sale of these units had been steadily building up," Johnson said. "It looks like the score is going close to 100 per cent some of these years."

TRIO DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

LEFT WING CRUMPLES AND PLANE PLUNGES TO THE GROUND

(By The Associated Press)

HILLIARD, Fla., Oct. 14—Three men were killed today in an airplane crash caused by the loss of a wing about two miles south of this city.

Papers found in the pocket of one of the victims bore the name of T. Green, Daytona Beach, Fla. Identification of the others was lacking.

The craft, a cabin monoplane, flew low over a CCC camp going north, circled slowly and started south. Members of the CCC corps said the left wing suddenly crumpled and the plane went down.

The three men were dead when the CCC workers reached the badly wrecked plane. Ensign J. E. Lanier of the navy air corps, a junior officer at the camp, said the plane's motor seemed to be functioning perfectly when the aircraft circled the camp.

LITTLEFIELD, Oct. 14 (Special)—Three men who have been charged with forgery in connection with one of 71 bogus warehouse receipts sold to three cotton brokers for approximately $3,200 today were at liberty on $2,000 bond each.

The defendants are Luke Tipton, about 38, his brother, J. D. Tipton, about 23, farmers, and W. H. Newton, about 25, all of Maple, Bailey county.

Mrs. Smith was shot seven times with a .22 caliber rifle.

Friends of the couple said they had been separated and that Smith had gone to the place where his wife was staying.

British Defenses Resting On Ships

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 14. (AP)—British defenses will continue to be concentrated in fighting ships rather than bombing planes, experts have decided.

Woman Fails To Collect On Ribs Broken In Hug

DALLAS, Oct. 14 (AP)—A jury told Mrs. L. Brunnett, widow, yesterday, she could not recover $5,000 damages because Karl W. Hagedorn, a suitor, hugged her and broke four ribs, May 1, 1934.

Mrs. Brunnett contended Hagedorn's hug was not a gesture of esteem but an aggravated assault on her person.

Jurors found, however, the muscular swain was not liable.

PRAYER MEETING TONIGHT

SAYS COUNTRY IS THROUGH WITH FDR

STAND REVEALED AFTER CONFERENCE; TELLS OF IMPRESSIONS

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Oct. 14 — Henry Ford formally declared his support for Gov. Alf M. Landon today as the Republican presidential nominee pursued a cross state campaign for Michigan's 19 electoral votes.

"I admire and believe in him; I hope he is elected," the motor car manufacturer said in a statement after conferring with the Kansas governor.

Enough Of New Deal

"I am not criticizing the New Deal," Ford continued. "I am only saying that we have had enough of it, we have had about all the country can stand."

The veteran industrialist, who talked to Landon with his son Edsel, stated his position for the first time just before Landon headed his campaign forces toward Grand Rapids. The candidate said the New Deal was a "threat to our American form of government" in an address last night before thousands massed in the chill windswept American league baseball park.

Would Destroy Rights

Concentration of power in the hands of President Roosevelt, Landon said in the third major address of his lake states campaign, represented the "first steps" toward destruction of the "rights and liberties of the people" which would make the executive "all powerful."

Ford pictured Landon as "a business man who knows how to make both ends meet," and who "ate out of a dinner bucket for years and still thinks along with the men who carry dinner buckets."

"I gained three very distinct impressions of him," the tall, thin automobile magnate said. "First, he is exceptionally well informed and has experience along many lines; second, he is able to speak his mind in the frankest way—he is open and honest in his opinions; third, he knows where he stands because he has thought things through.

"Governor Landon's mind has not been warped. My judgment would be that he would be a hard man to turn from the American way of doing things. . . . He knows the difficulty of the job before him but he believes he can make adjustments that will help everything move along more smoothly. I think he can."

Ford said New Deal "intentions may have been good but its performance was very poor."

Cause Of Peace Being Promoted

PRESIDENT HEADS FOR CHICAGO FOR MAJOR SPEECH TONIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 14.—Dedicating a World war memorial site here, President Roosevelt declared today that "we best honor the memory of those dead by striving for peace, that the terror of the days of war will be with us no more."

"In what we have done during the last three years to promote recovery at home, to extend the hand of good neighbor to the nations of the world, to break down the barriers to commerce which divide nation from nation, we are promoting the course of peace throughout the world," he said, adding:

Call To Service

"Here at home is the call to service, too."

Inequalities in the social order call for correction, he said, and a little later on declared all major wars had brought about "major disturbances" in the social and economic machinery.

"The late war has been no exception," he asserted.

"New problems arise to take the places of the old. We rejoice here that those problems re being met and solved without impairing our faith and confidence in the people's ability to do it themselves by the peaceful processes of Democratic representative government."

In Chicago Tonight

The president was due in Chicago around 6:40 p. m., Eastern standard time. His address there was set for 9:30 p. m.

In his first night rear platform talk of the trip, Mr. Roosevelt after urging "broader and firmer" opportunities for youth in a formal address in Kansas City's municipal auditorium last evening, addressed a crowd of several thousand at Carrollton, Mo.

LIFE'S IRONY IS DISTRESSING FOR "BARKER"

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Life's irony is distressing to Kenneth Rowley, 17-year old itinerant carnival "barker" whose heart is on the right side.

Doctors say this misplacement is "one case in 100,000" but Rowley says his heart is no good as a sideshow attraction because it can't be seen and he hasn't figured any way to dramatize it.

"All I can do is stand outside the tent and build up other acts," Rowley laments. "Sometimes it gets discouraging. Me, with a guaranteed heart on the wrong side, spieling for phoney wild men."

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 14—Bette Davis, American film player was called a "rather naughty young lady who wants more money" in King's bench court today during arguments over her contract with Warner brothers.

The characterization was made by Sir Patrick Hasting, representing the Hollywood film company which obtained a temporary injunction Sept. 9 to restrain Miss Davis from appearing in British stage or film productions without its consent.

Suit Is Outlined

The film star, wearing a red and blue checked tweed coat and matching beret, sat in the courtroom with her attorney while Hasting outlined the basis for the injunction suit.

"What this young lady is seeking to do is in effect to tear up her contract and say that whether she is right or wrong the court will not grant an injunction against her," Sir Patrick told the judge.

Naughty Young Lady

Referring to Miss Davis' contention the contract had been broken by Varner brothers itself, Hasting declared:

"In regard to this I venture to suggest your lordship will doubtless come to the conclusion this is really a rather naughty young lady and

NEW DEMANDS BEING MADE IN EUROPE

ULTIMATUM TO OTHER NATIONS IS GIVEN OUT BY SOVIETS

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 14—High Soviet Russian diplomats, pressing a stiff new demand for action to isolate the Spanish war, went into consultation today with officials of the British foreign office.

Soviet Ambassador Ivan M. Maisky and M. Kagan, Russian member of the international non-intervention committee, descended on the foreign office just after the new note had been submitted to Lord Plymouth, chairman of the neutrality group.

Virtual Ultimatum

Some sources described the Soviet communication as a virtual ultimatum.

Ambassador Maisky, it was understood, asked that a full meeting of the committee be called at the earliest possible moment to consider the new document, which was understood to have advanced concrete proposals to balk violation of the non-intervention accord in the future.

The Soviet demand—second in a week—was delivered to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the non-intervention group.

Ends On Ominous Note

Informed sources, who declared details of the message were not disclosed, asserted the note ended on the ominous note of—"or else."

Russia previously threatened to withdraw from the neutrality agreement unless measures were taken to assure non-intervention by European nations in the Spanish conflict.

Ivan M. Maisky, Soviet ambassador to Great Britain who recently returned to London after a holiday in Moscow, was reported to have brought new instructions to attempt to force the committee into action.

Dared to EXPLORE Mexico's "FORBIDDEN" UNDERGROUND RIVER

For centuries southern Indians had feared the mysterious subterranean Amacuzac, but recently Jose Ortega's brave party traversed the stream's 12-mile course and discovered caverns almost unbelievable in size and wonder

By Jack Howell

MEXICO CITY.

"IT is the forbidden river of the underworld gods."

Thus did the Indians of southern Mexico speak of the underground river, the Amacuzac, when the first devil-may-care Conquistadores came swaggering over the mountains from Veracruz, bound for Montezuma's golden city, Mexico.

For ages before the Spanish "houses that walk on the water" appeared off the west coast of Mexico the Indians had held the region where the foaming Amacuzac plunges underground in dreadful fear. They believed that to go near this place, about 90 miles south of Mexico City, was to court certain disaster in the form of the wrath of the gods of the under regions.

The Spaniards, who would have stormed the very gates of Hades if the occasion had arisen, were amused at these superstitions. But more pressing matters than exploring the lairs of underworld gods demanded their attention. First, there was the Venice-like city of Mexico rising from the shining lake, where the Aztec emperor, Montezuma, reigned over a court rivaling in wealth, pomp, and splendor that of any Oriental potentate.

After the crimson-spattered years of the Conquest, the Indians lost a great deal of their fear of the Amacuzac. They and others even came to venture into the entrance of the cavern in which the river drops from sight. In past years a few went there for fishing. But no one ever before dared explore the river's course beyond the first cavern. This remained for Jose Gonzalez Ortega, Mexican attorney, world traveler, and adventurer. Recently, Ortega, with his two sons and two sons-in-law, succeeded after many almost unbelievable hardships and adventures in traversing the 12-mile-long course of the river underground. There they found grottos of marvelous beauty and of startling proportions compared with those of the famous Carlsbad caverns of New Mexico.

But first, more of the river. In the snow-covered peaks towering over the valley of Toluca several small but torrential streams race down to the lower hills and plains, converging to form the Amacuzac.

OF this wild stream, the Mexican author, Miguel Salinas, once wrote, "If the Amacuzac could talk, it would say, 'I owe my first waters to the melting ice of the ancient craters in the mountains from whence I roar down into the valleys. For ages, I have watered the soil where men have grown maize and cane. . . . I have aided in forming the delicious juices of the choice fruits such as the oranges of Coahuistla, and the melons of Chisco. I have moved the power wheels of the linen factories, and I have made possible the lighting of many beautiful towns . . . I have flowed sometimes at the level of the plains, other times I have roared through deep arroyos and formed magnificent arches more beautiful than those made by man. In my passage I have saluted many grand and ancient monuments, and I have formed the most beautiful caverns in the world, The Grottos of Cacahuamilpa.'"

The latter are world famous for their beauty and grandeur, and it was long believed before Ortega's discovery that other wonderful grottos existed in the subterranean passages of the Amacuzac.

After reading Salinas' account of the Amacuzac, Ortega determined to explore the mysteries of the stream in the 12 miles where it was lost from sight. Although little or next to nothing was known of the river once it plunged into the darkness, it was known that great danger lay in the fact that terrific rainstorms often burst over the outside valley with alarming suddenness, causing the river to swell to three and four times its normal size.

The underground river was dotted with small islands like the one pictured here. They proved welcome refuge for the weary explorers.

Should one of these storms break while the explorers were underground the swelling river would catch them in a death-trap. But the adventurers ignored this possibility and descended into the grotto wherein the river passed into the unknown. If rain should come, it would be just too bad.

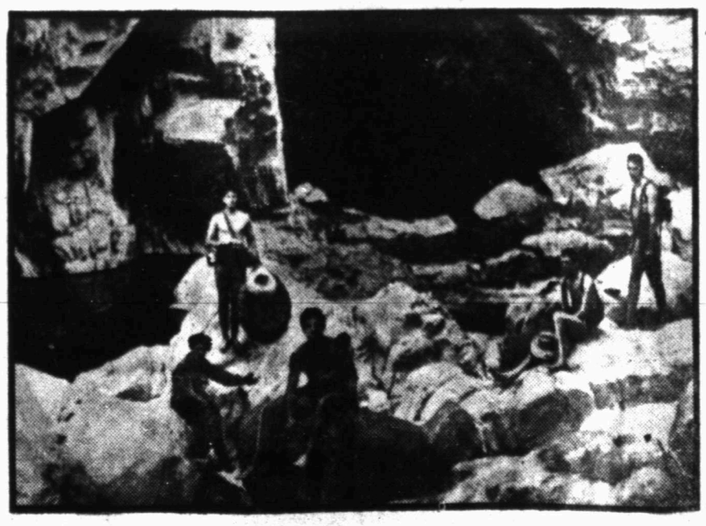

"At the very outset we were amazed at the unusual beauty we encountered on every hand," Ortega said. "The way from the entrance of the cavern down to the stream bed was of a whitish earthen formation in which were embedded millions of minute particles of glistening quartz. The light penetrating from the opening, or entrance, playing upon all this produced the most fantastic creations imaginable. Some resembled facades of gigantic and unusual edifices. This striking scene made us more anxious than ever to continue and to learn what beauties and secrets lay beyond."

The explorers made their way down the perilous slopes of the grotto to the water's edge, where they made ready to enter the mammoth black tunnel into which the swift river swept. They carried food rations, four carbide lamps and two electric lanterns, and a light pontoon to be used as a raft. Each man was equipped with a whistle for giving signals, for one's voice is not powerful enough to carry over the roar of the water.

For the first few hundred feet into the tunnel it was possible to follow the stream by walking along a perilously narrow ledge paralleling the river's course. But soon the stream made an abrupt turn, and the ledge terminated at a spot high over the water.

To proceed, it was necessary to cross the torrent by holding hands to keep from being swept away. The icy-cold water lapped around the adventurers' shoulders, and the sharp volcanic rocks of the stream bed cut their shoes to ribbons. But they succeeded in crossing to the opposite shore, where they were forced to climb over gigantic boulders, as massive as a modern office building, to continue downstream.

AN hour and a half later, they found it impossible to progress in even this manner, for the river suddenly plunged between two towering walls of granite, the height of which could not be determined by the comparatively feeble rays of the lamps carried by the party. There was now only one manner in which to proceed. That was by navigating the actual stream. Once caught in its rapid current anything could happen. They could be carried down water falls or trapped in eddies from which there might be no returning.

Here members of the Ortega expedition pose for photographs just before they began their descent of the mysterious Amacuzac.

(Copyright, 1936, by EveryWeek Magazine)

But they threw the raft into the water. One of the party, signaling whistle between his teeth, leaped in after the frail craft, clinging to it with one arm while he kept an electric lamp above the water with a free hand. Those on the shore let the rope attached to the raft pay out its full length of 180 feet. Soon out of the darkness came three blasts of the whistle, the signal to haul the raft back upstream. The rope had not been long enough to permit the raft to reach the shore beyond the canyon walls, the swimmer reported. The raft had reached a large boulder in the stream below the walls. But the swimmer had been able to catch a glimpse of a small strip of beach 50 feet or so beyond the water-bound boulder by the aid of the lantern.

The entire party took to the water, clinging to the raft as it swept downstream, and after a long struggle finally succeeded in landing on the beach. By this time everyone was suffering severely from the almost unbearable cold and bruises and lacerations from the rocks.

However, they continued, sometimes swimming under water for several yards at a time, and crawling over house-sized masses of varicolored, shining stone. They passed through caverns in which thousands of gigantic stalactites, many as large as mature trees, were suspended from the roof. In places, the washing of the current for ages had formed countless altars, arches, pipe-organs, and other objects of stone, all fantastic beyond belief.

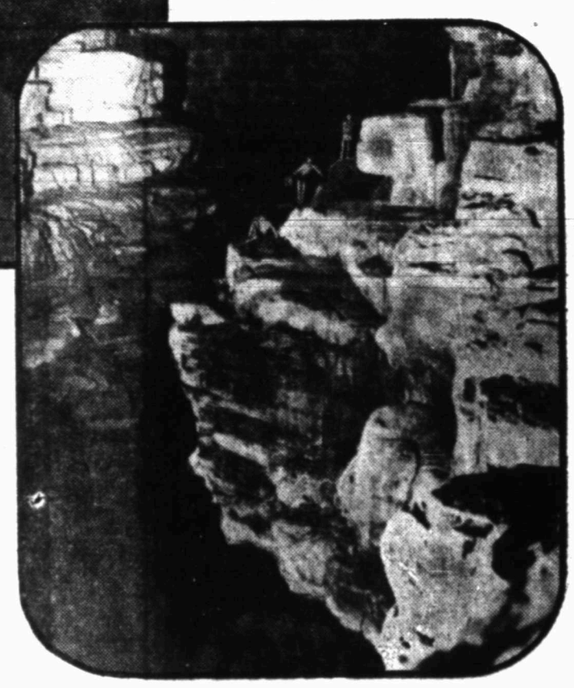

The members of the party had gone nine hours without food when they stopped on a sandy beach to eat. But to their dismay they found that the water had ruined the food brought along. This was not all. The carbide supply was running low, and the electric lanterns were out of commission from too much battering against the rocks. One member of the party ventured downstream to reconnoiter. He returned to report that the river below again narrowed between sheer walls of stone, both impassable.

Reluctantly, the explorers decided to return, and to outfit more extensively for a second expedition.

THE start of the second expedition was delayed by sudden flood waters from the mountains, swelling the Amacuzac to thrice its normal size, leaving no leeway between the river's surface and the top of the cavern into which it plunged. After the delay, a second and successful start was made. The party of explorers again conquered the hardships encountered on the first trip and arrived at the spot where they had turned back.

Photos by Rafael Garcia

Here two swimmers took to the water with the raft, leaving the others behind paying out the rope, of which they had brought a far greater length than on the first time. Almost 400 feet of line spun from the reel, then fouled on the rocks in the darkness. The swimmers finally abandoned the raft, taking a chance that they would reach a landing place along the river before they were exhausted. Luck was with them. Their feet touched bottom before they had gone more than 100 yards from the raft. They signaled the others to follow.

"The water became colder than before," Ortega said. "But the scenery illuminated by our lamps became more fantastic with every step downstream. We passed fairyland castles and dream chateaus hewn of solid stone by the caprices of the waters. There were many beautiful likenesses of marble fountains and arches of transparent crystal formation. They were of many hues. In one cave we came upon a spectacle that resembled a deserted, or lost, city of marble."

After 21 hours of exhausting toil, the explorers came into a mammoth grotto near the end of the underground passage. It was a place of breath-taking splendor, crowded with palaces and weird architecture of carved marble, gray, red, and black in color.

The atmosphere inside this cavern was tepid. There was no vegetable growth present with the exception of small quantities of thin reed grass. Ortega found what he believed to be tracks of some prehistoric monster.

Ortega later made a third trip down the river, taking with him Rafael Garcia, one of Mexico's outstanding photographers. A striking photographic record of the underground caverns was obtained as a result.

TECH PROGRAM IS PLANNED

MANY FEATURES WILL BE ON SCHEDULE AT HOMECOMING HERE

Plans for the annual homecoming Oct. 23 and 24 of Texas Technological college alumni and ex-students were outlined last night at an all-college convocation at 7 o'clock in the school's gymnasium. Passage of a proposed amendment to the student constitution was postponed because of limited attendance.

The plans for Oct. 23, drawn up by the student council and announced by Claude Thompson, council president, are: following a pep rally broadcast over the Texas Quality network, there will be a "tug-o-war" between members of the sophomore and freshman classes. The winner will be allowed to endeavor catching a greased pig.

Proceeds from the sale of the animal may be retained for the class treasury.

Amateur Hour Planned

Dean James M. Gordon will preside over an amateur hour, contributing to which will be entrants from the various clubs of the school.

The college alumni association is planning events for Oct. 24, terminated by the Red Raider-Centenary Gentlemen football game and a dance.

The section of the postponed constitution reads: "The one elected yell leader shall select his own assistant, whose qualifications must be the same as his own. There shall be no freshman yell leader."

Pep Rally Ends Meet

The prescribed amendment to be voted by students at the next convocation reads: "The one elected yell leader shall select three assistants, one whose qualifications must be the same as his own, and two others, each of whom must have at least full sophomore standing. There shall be no freshman yell leader."

The meeting was ended by a pep rally.

MILLION MILES BY AIR

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Seven commercial airlines flew 1,339,246 miles in Brazil the first six months this year in 11,820 hours. The planes carried 15,186 passengers, 207 metric tons of baggage, 54 of correspondence and 73 of freight, and completed 96.5 per cent of their flights.

A Hungarian scientist, working in Hamburg, Germany, has demonstrated that benzol, mixed with water, will produce steam at a temperature so much below ordinary water that Germany could effect a coal saving of $650,000,000 a year in generation of steam.

Don't Burn Stomach With Soda!

USE THE MODERN ANTI-ACID

So many medicines are mostly baking soda—just the kind you buy at the grocery store. But do you know that soda is a caustic—and that its continued use tends to burn the stomach?

Scientists have found a NEW WAY to take care of excess acid—by ABSORPTION. GASA Tablets have a remarkable medicament that ABSORBS the acid in your stomach—instead of a caustic to neutralize it.

Is eating a torture for you—sour, acid stomach afterward — painful, bloating gas? So many people have trouble with bread, potatoes and pie—because starches take so long to digest. But GASA Tablets contain an enzyme (digestive juice) that actually digests your starches for you.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO EAT ANY LONGER! Just make this test. Try a GASA Tablet tonight right after your dinner. You will feel its soothing juices mixing with your food, sweetening your stomach, leaving your mouth cool and refreshed.

GASA Tablets are sold in this city exclusively by the John Halsey Drug, 1118 Broadway. Go there today and get your bottle of GASA Tablets (they cost surprisingly little). They will give you complete relief from any after-dinner distress—or your druggist pays your money back! Start with GASA Tablets today! Adv.

Jeffersonian Democrats

Offer Proof Of Anti-New Deal Charges

We recently made charges in this paper that Mr. Roosevelt and his administration were not Democrats, and had no claim to Democratic loyalty. We charged that continuation of his administration would undermine the economy of the nation, and threaten its institutions. We charged that he had opened the sluice-gates of the federal treasury, and, through Boss Farley, had Tammanyized the nation. We charged that he had surrounded himself with radicals, and had more nearly discharged their radical platforms than his own. We are offering the proof of our charges through our paper, the Jeffersonian Democrat.

We reassert that we are regular Democrats. We would prefer to vote the regular ticket. But we refuse to put party loyalty above our loyalty to America. In scratching Roosevelt we violate no party pledge, for the primary ballot contained a pledge to vote for the nominees of that primary. Mr. Roosevelt's name was not on that ballot. Furthermore, the Texas law instructs the voter how to cast a mixed ballot, and the Supreme Court has upheld that right.

We ask all true Democrats to weigh the proof before voting for a continuation of government by irresponsible radicals. Unlike the New Deal we have no ready made organization to spread our propaganda and raise money for our campaign. We will appreciate your support and whatever donations you can make us.

Write us for copies of The Jeffersonian Democrat, and help us distribute it throughout your county.

J. EVETTS HALEY, Chairman Jeffersonian Democrats of Texas. Austin, Texas.

CHANCE MEETING IN AN OLD INN HAS GIVEN BROADWAY ANOTHER NEW SHOW

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Out of a chance conversation in the Austrian Tyrol seven years ago has come what Broadway believes will be the major spectacle of the 1936-37 theatrical season.

Late in 1929 Emil Jannings, the great German actor, and Erik Charell, the French director, met at the historic old White Horse Tavern in Salzburg.

"I've often wanted to come here," Jannings told Charell. "Years ago someone wrote a play about this inn and called it "At the White Horse Tavern." It was a comedy and it had a fine success in New York. That was back in 1898."

Jannings Tells Story

Then Jannings told Charell the story of the play—a sentimental, romantic comedy about a tourist who falls in love with the mistress of the inn.

Charell was fascinated with the Tyrolian scenery, the reflection of the mountains in the still blue waters of the lake.

"Why wouldn't this story be marvelous for a musical play?" the producer demanded.

"No reason why it shouldn't," Jannings agreed.

That night Charell put in a call for Hans Mueller, the noted Austrian playwright, and Ralph Benatzkey, the Austrian composer. Together they pored over the old script. Mueller redrafted the book and Benatzkey set to work on the score.

Musical Is Born

The outcome of this was "White Horse Inn," which has now entered its fourth year in England and which has been produced in practically eery nation in Europe, including France, Spain, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Norway, Germany, Bulgaria, and Sweden.

Only one musical in recent years has offered a cast that approximates the 160 players who will appear here in "White Horse Inn." This was the successful "The Great Waltz," for which an entirely new stage at the gargantuan Center theater had to be constructed.

The diminutive, comely Kitty Carlisle of Hollywood has been selected to play the important role of Katarine, the little Tyrolian keeper of the inn. Opposite her will be Broadway's own Bill Gaxton, star of many successful productions.

REGULATIONS ARE BEING PROTESTED

AUSTIN, Oct. 14 (AP)—Where is great divergence of opinion among dove hunters on the present state laws but those in the south zone are especially dissatisfied.

Hunters in the north zone may shoot for two full months, September and October, but those in the south zone must wait until Dec. 1, and are allowed but 45 days until Jan. 16.

Will J. Tucker, secretary to the game, fish and oyster commission, said efforts likely would be made to change the season, at least for the south zone, in the next regular session of the legislature, but he did not expect any move in that direction during the current special session.

The game secretary ventured the opinion that a split concurrent session for both zones might be a good way to satisfy all concerned. His plan is an open season for the entire state during the month of September, to concur with a white wing season, and then from Dec. 1 to Jan. 16, to concur with the quail season.

The present rule for determining the date of Easter was adopted by the Council of Christian Churches in 325 A. D. This rule says that Easter shall be on the first Sunday following the Paschal full moon, on or soon after March 21.

SLINGIN' SAM CONSIDERING PRO BERTH

IF HE FAILS TO MAKE GOOD THEN HE WILL TRY COACHING

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Professional football scouts are talking it over with "Slingin' Sam" Baugh . . The Texas Christian "football team" will lose his noted heaves for pay next fall . . and if he doesn't make good (imagine it!) he'll try his hand at coaching, Samuel says.

San Antonio's Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the first annual San Antonio Amateur invitation golf tournament over Brackenridge park's par 36-35—71 course December 3-8 . . . Preceding that tourney will be another classy Corpus Christi country club invitation, from November 5-8, with little Halbert Grumbles of San Antonio defending his title.

Aggies Try To Scratch

Twelve years ago Matty Bell, then Texas Christian mentor, took a crippled Horned Frog team to College Station and lost a 24-0 game to the Texas Aggies . . The Aggies haven't scratched since but they'll try again Saturday . . . Ticket sales indicate the largest throng in a decade, exclusive of Texas games, will witness the Frog-Aggie clash . . Incidentally, that Aggie line has given up but 112 yards in three games with Sam Houston Teachers, Hardin-Simmons and Rice.

"Dynamite" Joe Devaney, the St. Edward's halfback who made football's longest run last year—105 yards from a kickoff in the Southwestern game—is the Texas conference's most feared runner . . . They can't say enough about Big Ollie Cordill, former Big Spring high school backfield star, down at Rice institute . . Best sophomore prospect in years, they admit.

Meyer Is Grass Puller

Leo (Dutch) Meyer, T. C. U. coach, is a grass puller . . During games he always removes all the Bermuda within reaching distance of his chair . . Get this: Dan Stollworth, Quanah high school coach, for the first time in his coaching career, allowed a picture to be made of his players recently . . . He's not superstitious, says Dan, just doesn't "want to take any chances."

Babe Didrikson will be in the field that tees off October 19 at Fort Worth for the Texas open golf tourney . . She brought Miss Helen Dittweiler, holder of the Vermont, Maryland and Washington, D. C. titles, down for the event . . Hal Michelson, the Sam Houston high coach of Houston stricken with pneumonia after he took his gridders to Corpus Christi for a game two weeks ago, has been released from a Corpus hospital . . He was removed to his El Campo home and will coach no more this season.

Sandies Are Green

Blair Cherry, the Amarillo high coach who is just before winning another state schoolboy football title, says his boys "are so green they don't fully realize they're on the spot as defending champions."

LITTLE TAKES RAP AT BELL

COLUMBIA COACH SAYS THERE ARE JUST TWO KINDS OF FOOTBALL

BY SCOTTY RESTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Columbia's Lou Little, weary of all the sectional and technical classifications of football, said today there are really only two kinds of football—good and bad.

"All this discussion about eastern and western football, open and closed football, Warner and Rockne football, is the bunk," said Little. "It's either good or it's bad."

Wants No Argument

Little refused to discuss directly the statement of Matty Bell, Southern Methodist coach, that eastern football is five years behind time, commenting:

"I don't want to get into any controversy with Matty or anybody else, but last week's record is pretty clear.

"They said Francis Schmidt at Ohio State had really developed something new. He had an intricate, deceptive attack featuring lateral and forward passing. But Pitt beat them without using a pass, and after all, Fordham, which plays conservative football, did beat Southern Methodist Saturday."

Theory Is Questioned

Little questioned Bell's theory that the forward pass will soon replace the running game as the chief offensive weapon.

"The success of the pass depends a great deal on the threat of the running game. If you have no effective running game, it is easy to stop a passing attack by putting more men into the backfield," he said.

DETTON MEETS DAN McSHAIN

GOOD WRESTLING CARD IS PROMISED LOCAL FANS TONIGHT

With Dangerous Dan McShain, the wild Irishman, back in the spotlight as the man to watch, wrestling attendance is due to boom at Sled Allen's Auditorium tonight.

Danny, who takes the silver-plated dishrag as the toughest, craziest, most merciless middleweight who ever came out of Portland, Oregon, is to meet Dory Detton, pleasant gentleman from Utah, in the main event tonight. But that's just part of the card. Dale Haddock, the Detroit killer, meets Herb Parks, king of the circuit just now, in the semi-final, and Bob Cummings fights Joe Bauer in the prelim.

"Gentleman Dan" in his last appearance here didn't look so good against Yaqui Joe in a 30-minute draw, but then no one ever looks so very good against the wily Indian. On the other hand, Detton lost a tough one a few weeks ago to that fast stepper, Herb Parks, who is tops in the circuit at the present time.

It has been a foregone conclusion for some time that once McShain enters the ring he loses all love for his fellow man and sets out to exterminate him as quickly as possible, and although Detton is billed as a clean wrestler he can and does get rough without much provocation. If you enjoy lots of fist slinging and blood shed this one should be a lulu.

Haddock Faces Parks

This will be Haddock's second appearance in Lubbock since returning to his old stomping grounds and he has a tough nut to crack in the person of Herb Parks. The Vancouver lad was practically unknown until he stepped in against Tex Watkins and beat him in one of the wildest matches of the season. Since then he has taken on and beaten the best in the circuit. Haddock, a rough and rugged fellow should be able to match Parks' great wrestling with his own aggressiveness.

Although neither of the men in the prelim are top-notchers this should be a good bout. Joe Bauer, who supplies the comical interest in the local circle, is capable of a high class grade of wrestling and he will have to bring it all into play to stop this young but ambitious Cummings.

Houston Woman Is Killed By Robber

HOUSTON, Oct. 14. (AP) — Mrs. Clara Middlekauf, 35, was beaten to death Tuesday in a tiny bedroom at the side of a cafe she operated. Her head was crushed and the body was covered with a quilt.

Officers, expressing belief the woman was killed in a robbery, said bloody fingerprints might lead to the early capture of the slayer.

The cafe had been ransacked.

BORAH ENDORSED

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 14. (AP)—Senator William E. Borah (R-Idaho) received the endorsement last night of the Union party in his bid for a sixth consecutive term in congress. Approval was announced by the state executive committee.

STRONG TEAMS WILL BATTLE THIS WEEK

CHANCES FOR UPSETS SEEN IN SCHEDULE FOR WEEK-END

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—It's highly improbable that the championships of any of the major football conferences will be decided this week, since most of the leading teams are just getting started on championship play after the usual early season warm-up and intersectional battles. But there are plenty of chances for some of the teams that look like important contenders to get themselves belted right down among the also-rans.

From the title viewpoint, perhaps the most important game scheduled Saturday is that between Washington State and Southern California. They're two of the four teams that remain undefeated in Pacific coast conference play.

Texas Teams Play

The Southwest and Rocky Mountain conferences also may cut their title races down to a couple of leading contenders, pending further developments in the weeks to come. Two of the outstanding Southwestern teams, Texas Christian and Texas Aggies, meet in a game which may eliminate one from the race for the crown.

Four teams seem to dominate the Rocky Mountain picture with Denver at the head of the list. Denver takes on Utah and Utah State meets Brigham Young.

While more conference games have been played in the south than farther west, this week's program will do little to clear up the situation. The Alabama-Tennessee and Mississippi-Louisiana State games stand out.

Eliminations Due

In the Southern conference, Duke meets Georgia Tech while North Carolina plays New York university.

In the Big Ten one contender is due for elimination when Ohio State meets Northwestern. Minnesota battles Michigan.

Nebraska, outstanding in the Big Six, tackles another Big Ten rival, Indiana, while Oklahoma prepares to move up on even terms in the conference race by taking on an apparently weak Kansas team.

TECH CLUB ON SICK LIST

LIME BURNS PROVING SERIOUS HANDICAP TO WORKOUTS

Texas Tech coaches continued to stress the fundamentals of football in the Red Raider camp, with blocking of linemen receiving particular attention. Backfield men, after a session of kicking and punt-returning, did not escape the blocking practice.

And the "kindergarten" session isn't over. It'll be blocking and tackling for the rest of the week, or those will be the most carefully watched phases of general scrimmages. Individual and group work occupied the time of Coaches Cawthon and Smith and Assistants Harold Crites and Ed McKeever yesterday, and it will be that way for the remainder of the week, to a large extent.

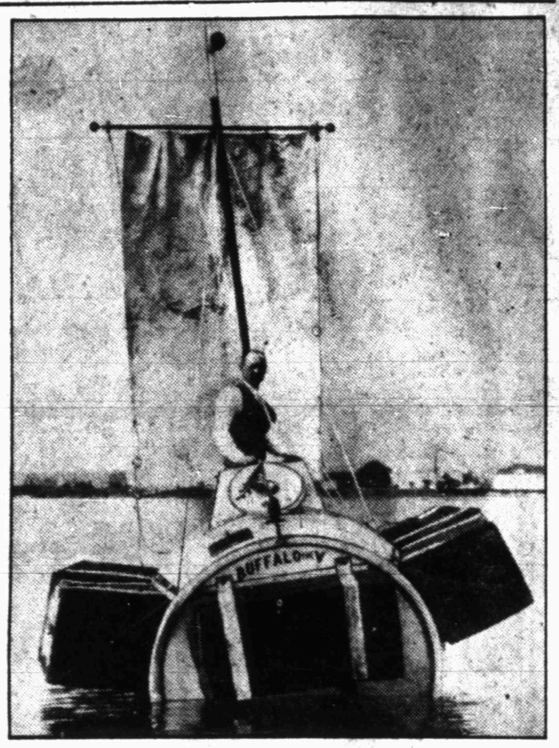

Suffer From Lime Burns

But not all the boys were so disposed. Some of them, members of the regular lineup, were offering criticisms and encouragement from the sidelines—but not from the bench. About nine of the lads are not sitting down much this week. Certain parts of their anatomies came in contact with sideline and yardline markers at Wichita, Kansas Friday night and the markers were indicated by lime. Chemical reaction of lime to the wet field resulted in a solution which burned through uniforms and seared the flesh of athletes who could not stand on their feet, and the Red Raiders were in that position.

Captain Demp Cannon was calling signals for a smashing blocking drill yesterday, but he was standing straight, and in street clothes, taking no part in the drill. He was one of the more seriously burned. Jesse Owens, regular tackle, was another who was excused from yesterday's drill. Line-Captain Louis Jones, guard, still another, and Winny Baze, halfback, another. George Winters, regular fullback, was not in uniform, due more to a sprained knee than to lime burns. Tox Wiginton, center, who suffered a knee injury, was in uniform and taking part, but not a heavy part.

A goodly number of tickets for the Tech-Centenary game remain on sale at the downtown agency, Walton's men's shop. A few thousand have been reserved, but some ten thousand haven't, and Bo Williams, head of the ticket sales, warns that potential fans to the Homecoming feature may find themselves in a jam if they don't purchase tickets early.

To Dare Sea Waves In Barrel

Ernest Biegaski, Buffalo, N. Y., world war veteran, hopes to reach Europe in this seagoing barrel. Using only a sail for motive power and traveling alone, he expects to complete the voyage in 40 days. He is shown launching his queer craft for a short test trip. (Associated Press Photo)

SPORTOMETER by COLLIER PARRIS

The local sports calendar says "wrestling tonight," and the probable starting lineups indicate that a colorful session of grappling is in store for the fans.

The cash customers have been staying away by the droves recently, but tonight's card at the Auditorium should pack them in. It's a good card—Danny McShain, the evil one, and Dory Detton in the main event; Dale Haddock, the three-fingered destroyer of Detroit, and Herb Parks, the Vancouver vanquisher, in the semi-windup, and Jabbering Joe Bauer of Milwaukee versus Bob Cummings in the prelim.

The Detton boy, brother of the world's heavyweight champion, showed himself in a new light last week. For the first time, he started in as a rough fellow, instead of waiting for Joe Bauer to make him mad, and he fixed Mr. Bauer up pretty handsome. Here's a hope that he'll start rough tonight, and maybe discourage Dapper Danny into losing the first two falls. It would help Detton's stock to win two in a row, the first two.

Dale Haddock pulled a Sailor Watkins last week, showing up tougher and meaner than ever after a few months vacation in the West. He'll have his hands full tonight, and not with supporters. They'll all be for Parks, the gentlemun—all, that is, except the pert little titian-haired lady Haddock was lucky enough to marry last June.

CAPITOL HILL High school of Oklahoma City has fine irons in the fire. Its Redskins are coming here to play Weldon Chapman's Westerners Friday night. Two Fridays ago, the Redskins lost to Amarillo, 27 to 7. Last Friday, Capitol Hill, at full strength, drubbed the Pampa Harvesters 27 to 0.

Supported by a 100-piece band, a large pep squad and numerous fans, who shall board a special train in Oklahoma City Thursday, the Redskins have it all doped out: They'll beat Lubbock. Lubbock will beat Amarillo. So Capitol Hill will be the champions of District 1, in Texas. Lubbock will go on and win the state title. Capitol Hill is confident of winning the Oklahoma pennant. So Capitol Hill will be champions of Texas and Oklahoma.

Weldon Chapman very gladly would cooperate with Capitol Hill, and he would have the sanction of this department and the fans of Lubbock, to that end. He wouldn't mind in the least losing to Capitol Hill if he were assured of victory over Amarillo. He wouldn't oppose Capitol Hill's claim to the high school championship of the United States if the Lubbock Westerners could win from Amarillo on November 11.

But that's getting ahead. Right now we have Capitol Hill of Oklahoma City with which to contend. The Redskins and the Westerners play ball Friday night at the Tech Field. It will be Lubbock's toughest game of the season thus far. The Westerners are not due to win it. They do not profess to be as strong as Capitol Hill. Still, they did not profess to be as strong as Cleburne, and you know what happened.

We're not predicting any surprise for Friday night, but we do predict a tough tussle, a good bit of football entertainment for any fan.

PUT THIS DEPT. down as one who thoroughly enjoyed Matty Bell's dictated story in last week's Sat. Eve. Post. We are not one of Matty Bell's staunchest supporters. We disagree with his philosophy of life, or that part of it which demands that he do a lot of talking—and writing—without backing his talking and writing with solid facts. We do not mean to call Mr. Bell a prevaricator, because he is bigger than we; he has made observations, however, that he was unable to qualify, such as starting the stuff about Texas Tech playing dirty football, etc.

The esteemed S. M. U. coach had to eat some more of his words, casually expounded to listening scribes in New York the other day, which were not grounded on fact but merely the observation and opinion of one coach. Before his team engaged Fordham university last Saturday, he was quoted at length by reporters in the big town, the theme being that eastern football was five years behind that in the Southwest. Last year we would have agreed, but some Texas scribe had the comeback proper on Sunday morning: Eastern football five years behind, S. M. U. seven points behind, or words to that effect. Another instance of Bell's quick tongue.

But getting back to the SatEve-Post yarn, "From Pink Slip to Rose Bowl."

Matty, we think, had a say coming when he said what he said to the professional writer who put it down for the magazine.

Fired from Texas A. & M. for failing to win all his games, or a good part of them, Bell went straightway into S. M. U. and before he'd been there six months had coached a Rose Bowl challenger. He told it to the Aggie alumni in no uncertain style, and power to him. The alumni needed it. They need it in even stronger language than that.

LUBBOCK HIGH NOW FACING HARD WORK

LOCAL WESTERNERS TO HAVE HARD GOING HERE FRIDAY

In preparation for the Redskins of Capitol Hill High school, Oklahoma City's top ranking team, the Lubbock High Westerners bore down in a gruelling and spirited workout on their practice field yesterday.

The Westerners have been up against some pretty tough clubs so far this season, have won two of their three games, tied another. But they're meeting the toughest, so far, Friday night, and Coaches Chapman, Keyes and Ayers are trying to drive that fact home.

Any club which beats Pampa's Harvesters 27 to 0 at this time of year must have something, and if it's weight, the Redskins have it. If it's experience, they still have it.

Lack 32 Pounds Of Ton

Coach Jim Lookabaugh, former Oklahoma Aggie star, brings a team in to Lubbock Thursday night that lacks 32 pounds of weighing a ton. On it are 15 letter men from last year's team. The interscholastic age limit rule in Oklahoma gives teams of that state an additional advantage over Texas schools.

It was learned definitely last night that Capitol Hill pep squad and 100-piece band, one of the best drilled, most colorful high school bands in the state, will be here for the game. A special train is to bring additional students and fans from the Sooner capitol.

Work On Aerial Game

The Westerners got in more defensive work yesterday, but didn't stop with that. Work was done on offense, with Captain C. L. Storrs striving to perfect his passing arm. Passing duties were taken over by Storrs when Earl Ince was found ineligible, and Storrs moved up from his fullback position to Ince's quarterback slot. The Lubbock passing attack was exactly nothing last week against Cleburne, the Westerners depending on ground plays to see them through to an impressive victory.

But the overhead game must be worked up before the Westerner offense can be expected to go against teams which remain on the schedule. Capitol Hill is reported to have a fine passing attack. Lubbock's anti-aircraft guns are in fair condition.

Chapman believes that his full strength, with the exception of one man, can be launched at Capitol Hill Friday night at the Texas Tech gridiron. Babe Ritchie, big tackle, is back and going good. H. L. Gantz, regular end who was out last week, probably will play. Another end, Arvie Lee Oden, likely won't play his week.

Two Lubbock Teams Will Clash Today

The Lubbock Junior High school Cowboys, looking around for more worlds to conquer after knocking over three corresponding teams from smaller towns hereabouts, surely found what they were looking for, and probably more, yesterday.

The Cowboys have challenged Coach Walker Nichols' Lubbock High school Cowhands, who have been finding the going rather rough against Class B high school teams, and the Cowhands have accepted. The game will be played this afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock at the Westerner practice field.

In a practice game yesterday, the Cowboys took the Cooper team of the Class C circuit into camp, 31 to 0. The Davis-coached outfit rode herd on the Brownfield juniors last week, 49 to 6.

Today's game is free, and all fans are invited.

Newcomers in the Malay country can be deceived quite easily by the roar of the hornbill's wings. One of these birds overhead gives a most convincing imitation of an airplane, due to the rush of air through the stiff wing quills.

If there is one classification of germ lower than the rest, it's the genus alumni, that particular alumni which can't get over being a college freshman and which, long after graduation, tries to run the alma mater.

Matty didn't bring it out in his story, but those on the inside know that it was the Dallas branch of alumni germ which "got" Bell's job at Aggieland. How those old boys must be squirming now!

Mustangs Preparing For Aerial Barrage

FROGS TANGLE WITH AGGIES, THE LONGHORNS WITH BRUINS WHILE RICE TACKLES GEORGIA

(By The Associated Press)

The Southern Methodist aerial circus, its tent pitched on the home grounds again, set to work today on a passing barrage to hurl at the Vanderbilt Commodores in the Centennial cotton bowl Saturday.

A broken leg shattered the possibility of Jack Morrison, stellar Mustang back and son of Ray Morrison, Vandy mentor, playing against his father's team. Young Morrison was injured in the Fordham game last week.

Frogs Also Passing

Passing also held the attention of the Texas Christian Horned Frogs, who tangle with the Texas Aggies at College Station Saturday. Sideline quarterbacks predicted Coach Dutch Meyer would present an altered lineup.

Texas A. & M. freshman backs took turns at emulating "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh, Texas Christian's ace hurler, as the Aggies worked on a pass defense for use against the air-minded Frogs.

The Baylor Bears passed up heavy scrimmage and gave their attention to a study of University of Texas plays. The Bruins, tripped by Arkansas last week, meet the Texas Longhorns Saturday.

Strenuous Blocking

After Texas freshmen made several long gains through the varsity with Baylor plays, Coach Jack Chevigny sent his Longhorns through a strenuous blocking drill.

Coach Jimmy Kitts at Rice called off hard practice sessions to guard against increasing an already large casualty list among the Owls. The team will leave tomorrow for its game with Georgia at Athens.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, en route to Washington for a Friday night encounter with George Washington university, will stop at Cincinnati tonight for a workout.

JIM NEILL AND RED RAMSEY ADDED TO ALL-AMERICA CANDIDATES' LIST

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Add Jim Neill, halfback, and Red Ramsey, end, both of Texas Tech, to your list of All-America candidates . . . The same fans who packed Madison Square Garden (capacity 18,000) at $15 tops to see Joe Louis half kill old Paulino Uzcudun, didn't fill the Hippodrome (capacity 6,700) at $10 tops to see Louis meet Jorge Brescia, who gave the bomber a much better fight . . . What's the answer? . . . Are they getting fed up on the tariff or just tired of seeing Louis? . . . Don't be surprised if Joe's next few appearances are away from New York.

Schmidt On Spot?

Has the down town coaches' association, along High street, Columbus, O., already put Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State on the pan? . . . The elaborate offense of the Bucks, after rolling up 60 points against New York U, got past midfield only once against Pittsburgh. . . . If they don't snap out of it this week, against Northwestern, the old familiar war whoops will be heard.

Brooklyn correspondents say Casey Stengel will join up with the Red Sox if the Yanks don't grab him. . . Trouble is, Casey can't make a move so long as he is under contract to the Dodgers . . . And he's the property of Brooklyn until they pay him off for 1937. . . .

Getting No Bids

The Giants can't understand why they're getting no bids on Hank Leiber, who is definitely on the market . . . Young Jack Gibbons, son of old Phantom Mike, collapsed after his last bout and may be on the shelf for good. . . . Bill Terry told Memphis interviewers he needed a hair cut most of all, but Giant fans would rather see him come up with a first sacker, third sacker and two starting pitchers.

TWO TEAMS CARRY ON WITH RECORDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Princeton and Minnesota are carrying on with their unblemished gridiron records of a year ago.

Eight teams completed their regular 1935 schedules without a defeat or a tie, and only the Tigers and the Gophers have maintained that rough-riding rhythm thus far this year.

Although Princeton and Minnesota, whose relative merits stirred up considerably more than a tempest in a teapot last fall, still are undefeated there is no assurance at all they'll duplicate their 1935 performances.

There are too many ominous-looking opponents awaiting them in their remaining seven games to concede them anything, but Princeton appears to have the easier assignment.

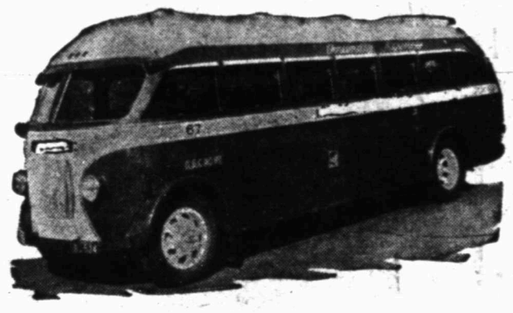

MIDLAND IS FAVORED

ODESSA, Oct. 14 (AP)—The executive committee of district 7, region 2 of the Texas Interscholastic league, class B football, ruled today in favor of Midland in a dispute arising from the 7 to 7 tie played by Midland and Pecos Oct. 2.

Pecos high school officials had asked for an interpretation of the rule governing 20-yard line penetrations but filed no protest.

Down East Inspires Design For Residence Down South

Cape Cod sends inspiration to Nashville, Tenn., for this colonial style house luxuriously landscaped.

The main part of the house is typically Cape Cod, especially in balance and in the horizonal line maintained by the tops of the windows and the top of the front door.

To avoid constructing a cellar, a heating unit was installed in a wing which, to keep its proper position, was set back a few feet from the line of the main facade. A one-car garage is included in this subordinate wing.

The landscaping has been continued successfully to include both main portion of the house and the wing.

The walls of the living room are paneled and the construction beams are left exposed, a direct contrast to the staid puritanism of the exterior.

THE present Presidential campaign may not be unique in many ways but it's a leadpipe cinch that, from the standpoint of literary efforts, it's the most outstanding in history.

More books, booklets, pamphlets and just plain letters have been written about the Roosevelt-Landon series than about any other since elections became a four-year plague.

And the writings have been of all kinds.

Some have been studious, intelligent attacks or boosts for one or the other candidate.

Some have been vitriolic assaults.

Others have been humorous and others downright scurrilous.

There's been every kind of literary effort you've ever heard of.

The latest campaign book to be advertised, however, is the strangest, the author applying Biblical quotations in an effort to prove that Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal are "works of the devil."

At any rate, it shows all over again that "you can prove anything by isolated Biblical passages."

THE Plainsman often has wondered if any official, any truant officer or social worker, amateur or professional, has ever looked into the background of those two little girls who are familiar sights on Lubbock streets and in Lubbock stores, insistently asking, "will you buy some needles?"

The thought first came to this writer when, after encountering the pair in Lubbock for months, ran across them at work in Spur.

Later, he saw them back in Lubbock and, upon several occasions, has heard Lubbock people remarking about seeing them plying their trade in various cities over the South Plains.

We haven't seen the children lately, perhaps because we haven't been on the streets or in the stores often in recent weeks.

Perhaps the children are in school—where they should be.

But if they aren't, their cases should be looked into and proper steps taken to remove those children from the streets.

THE Plainsman doesn't blame the poor, underprivileged children for the predicament in which they have been placed. He blames the circumstances which forced them into it, whether they be honest circumstances or a vicious racket.

It is neither right nor necessary for children in this country to be street beggars. If they are without parents or guardians they can be otherwise taken care of; if their parents or guardians cannot take care of them they can and should be placed where they will receive care.

This column would like to know what has happened to those two youngsters, as well known by sight here as the courthouse, and if any reader happens to know will that reader write in, please?

As a matter of fact, this community and everybody in it is to blame for the situation's not having been looked into long, long ago.

OVER in Levelland yesterday, The Plainsman could not forego the pleasure of comparing, in his mind's eye, the present, bustling Hockley county capital of today with that of January, 1924.

The Plainsman's first view of Levelland was on a cold and—believe it or not, a windy—Sunday afternoon nearly 13 years ago, when the first county clerk, George Smith, had a little frame office on what now is the courthouse square. If there were more than two other buildings on the townsite, your humble servant's memory is slipping. Anyhow, there wasn't a brick building within miles and miles and miles.

Yesterday, as October's bright skies caressed the city of 2,000 and its streets lined with automobiles, trailers and trucks, the new Levelland, thoroughly shaken from the economic doldrums which plagued it—as they plagued every other town—presented an entirely different appearance. George Smith is still there but his little shack is gone and, of course, a handsome courthouse stands in its place.

John Doyle, a doughty West Texan if ever there was one, is nursing a painful injury to his right leg but is doing swell, thank you, with things in Levelland looking so fine. He's the boss banker there.

Former Mayor Sam Combs, who is helping farmers of the Levelland section to refinance and march ahead, proudly shows an almost miraculous statement on collections on loans made by his association and the Federal Land bank.

And W. J. Baldwin, editor of the Hockley County Herald, is so busy he can hardly find time to stay in his office!

LEVELLAND has its eye cocked on the oil doings in Cochran county just a few miles west; is watching WPA slowly but surely completing hardsurfacing of the Highway 24 "loop" and thinking about added pavement; and is girded for what looks like the best fall and winter seasons in some time.

There's no doubt about it, Levelland is on the up-and-up.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance thought teaching school at Ashboro would be a simple and relatively pleasant springboard for her budding career. The winter has brought her two searing emotional experiences, however, and she is already looking forward eagerly to the close of school. Now Ben Tyler, bachelor and tower of strength to Carol, tells her that Blake Thornton, who runs an advertising agency in Atlanta, is to be guest of honor at a dinner Ben is giving. Perhaps, Carol thinks, she may impress Blake enough for him to give her a job.

Chapter 20
BESIEGING BLAKE

There were eight people at Ben's dinner party: Alice and Tom, Janet Malone, Mildred Harbin and Carol; Blake Thornton and Ben and Andy Tyler. They had cocktails at the Tylers, then drove to the country club for dinner.

Carol found herself remembering the September dance and Denis. September was dim and unreal now, and Denis was a man she'd known once. She hadn't heard from him in two months, and the rift had been so inevitable that its existence scarcely mattered. She had made the break herself, in January.

"This has been too good to kill by inches, Denis," she wrote. "So I'm not going to write again. I could make you a pretty, tearful valedictory, but it was too good for that, too. Carry on, my darling. . . ."

The letter had evoked a swift, vehement protest, because the prospect of farewell was an artificial stimulus to a fading affair, but she had kept her word. And Denis hadn't written again because he knew she was right.

Blake Thornton was saying: "You don't live here, do you, Miss Torrance?"

She left Denis and came back to the party. "No, Meredith. I'm teaching history and French in the high school."

She rather liked Blake Thornton, but he was hardly the type to "wangle" a job from: if he gave you a job it would be because he thought you could do it. He was thirty-three or four, she decided; thin and blond and not very tall, and there were deep lines on either side of his mouth. His eyes were as cold and gray as slate, and his speech was crisper than that of most Southern men.

"I didn't think I'd ever met you—or heard of you—and I've been here several times." He smiled, and his eyes warmed a little. "Teaching must call for infinite tact."

"And patience. More of both than I possess, I'm afraid. I'm cleaning out after this year; I've tempted Providence long enough."

"That's rather a pity, isn't it? After all, somebody has to pioneer."

She shook her head. "It takes sterner stuff than I'm made of. I've had one narrow escape already; next year I wouldn't be so lucky."

His eyes questioned the nature of her escape, but she ignored the question. He said curiously: "And when you clear out, where do you go then?"

The talk was following the path she would have chosen, but instinct warned her against hurrying it.

"I wish I knew. I'm stopping in Atlanta on the way home, to talk to a friend in personnel work. She may have something to suggest although I doubt it." She changed the subject quickly, before he should think she was soliciting his help.

"Tell me about Atlanta—how it's making the grade. I haven't spent any time there in five years, and the place has rather grown beyond my recognition."

He frowned. "It's beginning to breathe again — whether from returning consciousness or artificial respiration, God alone knows."

"What do you think?"

"I think it's a little of both."

She saw his eyes considering and weighing her, and she looked calmly back at him. It was a relief to talk to an intelligent man and know that sexual attraction was outside the picture. There was nothing of that in Blake Thornton's quiet look and she was glad; she was still bruised and sore from her encounters with Denis and Mike, and she wanted to forget that side of existence until her spirit healed.

Alice cut into their talk from Blake Thornton's left.

"Blake, darling, you've ignored me all evening. I'm getting violently jealous."

Carol sighed with relief. After a round with Alice, she thought, I'll seem to him like Minerva herself! She turned to Ben, who was grinning inquiringly.

"Making any time?"

"Not yet. I think it's better strategy not to try too hard."

He nodded emphatically. "He's a canny duck; his company is one of the few that hasn't folded up in the last three years."

She dismissed Blake to say:

"What are we going to do when we finish eating?"

"Go back to the house, I guess, and have a round of bridge. Any objections?"

"None at all."

She drove to Ben's house with Alice and Tom and Blake Thornton. Alice had evidently counted on riding with Blake, but he helped Carol into the back seat as a matter of course, and Carol smiled in the darkness.

When the car was moving he said casually: "Tell me some more about this job you're looking for."

She held her breath, and tried to sound equally casual. "I can't, until I find it. I'll probably end up—if I land at all—selling hardware in a basement."

They were silent for a time, and then Thornton said curiously: "Why Atlanta, Miss Torrance" and there was an overtone of weariness in his voice.

The question jerked her back. Evidently his mind had been following the path of their talk, which was, perhaps, an encouraging sign.

"I'm — not quite sure." She laughed parenthetically. "I wish you would not call me Miss Torrance. Nobody does, except pupils and faculty."

"Thanks; I won't."

She went back to his question: "Why not Atlanta? What would you suggest—Ashboro or Meredith?"

"Oh, no! But cities are so diabolically feverish. When I retire (funny how we all cherish the illusion of being rich enough some day to retire, isn't it?) I'm going to live on a farm and raise chickens and vegetables."

"Who wouldn't?" She said it wistfully. "But you'd have to own the farm. You wouldn't go and hire yourself out as a farm hand."

They played indifferent bridge for over an hour, until Tom said:

"Oh, heck, let's play black jack. Ten cent limit."

The black jack game broke up at midnight, and Ben and Blake Thornton drove Carol and Janet home. At Mrs. O'Connor's Blake held out his hand.

"Good luck, Carol." He hesitated, then added carelessly: "If you come to town, give me a ring. I might have an idea between now and then."

She gave him her hand. "Thanks. I may do it. Ben, it was a grand party. 'Night, Janet. . . ."

May, and a presage of real summer. The final lap of school seemed interminable to Carol. Examinations occupied the last week, and substituted grinding desk work for the uphill battle of injecting knowledge. The brighter students were exempt and thus the load was lightened, but reports filled in the crevices of leisure.

Mr. Hudson spoke to Carol about returning, and the triumph in his eyes was for his own vindication as well as hers.

"The Board have asked me to tell you, Miss Torrance, that they hope you'll re-apply."

She smiled at him. "I'm awfully glad—for your sake more than for my own. I hated having you tarred with the same brush."

"Oh, pshaw . . ." he waved the tribute gallantly aside. "Then you will do it?"

"I'm afraid not. We wouldn't be as lucky next time, and there'd be sure to be a next time. I've got a positive genius for opening my mouth and putting my foot in it."

He argued it with her, but in the end he had to give in.

"I'm sorry. The hope of education is in young women like you."

"I'm sorry too. But I'm just selfish enough to have an eye on my own future."

Ellen too had declined to commit herself at present. "I'm not quite sure yet," she confessed to Carol, "but I think I've got other plans for next year."

Carol smiled affectionately. It wouldn't take a Philo Vance to guess what they are, would it?

Ellen's answering smile was glowing and self-conscious. "Maybe not. But I haven't quite made up my mind. . . ."

Carol snorted disdainfully. "Oh, no? Well, the best of everything to you, darling, and I know you'll have it."

What wouldn't I give, she thought desperately, for a destiny like that? Or for the temperament to fulfill it?

Ellen would take Ashboro to her heart because it held Mack Hudgins. And the turbid, tumultuous river of existence would rush past, while Ellen and her family lived serene and reasonably secure upon the higher bank.

Tomorrow, Carol takes the big plunge — a little fearfully.

IT'S "FAIR TIME" DOWN AT LAMESA

A little well-deserved praise is due our good neighbors down Dawson county way. The folks down there are all set for the Dawson County fair, opening Thursday at Lamesa, after a lapse of several years and from advance reports they plan to "do the thing up brown."

Dawson county, like a majority of the other counties over the country, called time out on its fair during what is "faintly" remembered as the depression. But those days are gone and the people of Dawson county are feeling pretty good about things. It's only natural that progressive folks want to show off their accomplishments. And that's what they're planning to do this week.

Officials of the fair, promising a big time for visitors, say exhibits from the surrounding section "will make your eyes bug out." The fair's plant has been overhauled, fences are being rebuilt, booths erected and other improvements made.

Lamesa's merchants are offering inducements to the exhibitors and cash prizes amounting to about $500 have been listed.

The courthouse square and downtown streets are being decorated in gay colors, a carnival is on hand and everybody is all pepped up for the event which will continue through Saturday.

Looks like "happy days are here again," doesn't it?

And since Dawson county has opened its doors in a great, big way, now would be a good time for some of our Lubbock people to renew acquaintances and make some new ones by paying a visit to Lamesa during the affair. Those folks down there have been loyal to the Panhandle-South Plains fair held in Lubbock each year. The Evening Journal believes they would appreciate this evidence of the "good neighbor" role on the part of Lubbock.

From Hollywood MOVIE SIDELIGHTS

Behind The Scenes With The Stars Of Talkietown

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Horse opera is having a renaissance! Wander around the lot of any studio, from the largest to the most impoverished independent, and you'll soon find a set where some wide-hatted husky is shouting: "Git yore shootin' irons, Buck; the varmints have got the foreman's daughter and are headin' for Dead Man's Gulch!"

Westerns are sure-fire at the box office. Most box offices, anyway. The sagebrush sagas were in a slump until the Purity League went into action. They've been cleaning up, financially, ever since.

Recently, on the crest of some super westerns, the boom has grown, and has been given added impetus by the foreign market.

Hollywood's average run of pictures, including most of the million-dollar epics, has been kicked in the teeth by political and moral censors in other countries.

But westerns, with virtue always triumphant, and without political significance, are acceptable everywhere, and foreigners understand them. In Calcutta, India, they're billed thus: "A Cow and Boy Picture."

Frontier Epics

Cecil B. DeMille has just finished "The Plainsman," with Gary Cooper. That's an extra-colossal epic of the frontier, but there have been others recently which were mildly tremendous: "The Last of the Mohicans," "The Texas Rangers," "Ramona," "Rhythm on the Range," and "Arizona Mahoney" (new title for a Zane Grey story). "The Charge of the Light Brigade" is fundamentally a western, but clad in epaulets and a British accent.

Zane Grey, as you may have guessed, is the world's foremost fiction writer as far as Hollywood is concerned. About 50 of his stories have been filmed.

Harold Bell Wright is well up on the list, too. Most hoss opera is written and produced very quickly right here in Hollywood. Plot patterns are the same, but who cares?

Westerns' Alumni

Lots of current male stars—Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Richard Arlen, and Randolph Scott among them—were graduated from westerns. Montana's Mr. Cooper had a legitimate claim to range roles, but only two of the current cowboy stars are products of the open spaces.

Ken Maynard is one. He was born in the heart of the 10-gallon-hat region, reared on a cow ranch, worked as a trick roper with wagon shows, trouped with Buffalo Bill and the Ringling circus. When he came to Hollywood in 1922 they first cast him in society parts.

The other sagebrushman is Gene Autrey, also a Texan. But he's more at home before a microphone than he is in the saddle.

Synthetic Cowboys

Practically all the others are products of the east, and most are eastern college men. Dick Foran, born in Flemington, N. J., once sang with the Princeton Glee Club.

Buck Jones, son of an Indian insurance salesman, became a bronc rider and trick roper for the 101 Ranch and Ringling shows—but not until he had served as a top sergeant in the Philippines and as an aviation mechanic. He crashed flickertown in 1915, and for years doubled in dangerous stunts for William S. Hart, William Farnum, and Tom Mix.

Jones now lives on a three-acre "ranch", owns three cars and a 105-foot sailing yacht. Maynard gets his thrills from flying.

Richard Dix was born in St. Paul, Minn., Charles Starrett in Athol, Mass. "Crash" Corrigan is the son of a Milwaukee opera singer.

The censors have done some meddling with westerns, cutting out scenes of hanging, too many killings, and corruption of public servants—meaning that sheriffs should be honest.

The trend these days is to the light romantic hero who can win a gal with his singing voice, and not with blast of guns.

Two Souls With But A Single Thought!

Dignified And Aloof Supreme Court Again Being Pushed Into Campaign Picture As Minimum Wage Issue Reawakes

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. — The United States Supreme Court has been rather effectively kept out of the election campaign and if it finds itself now involved it has only itself to blame.

The justices aren't passing on any more New Deal legislation before election day. But their answer to petitions for a rehearing on the New York state minimum wage law will generally be taken as approximately equaling in importance the 5 to 4 decision against the law which the court handed down early in the summer.

Dutcher

The original decision had a pronounced influence on the two political conventions and probably on the campaign as well. Popular reaction was such as to bolster somewhat the administration as against the court and to cause Governor Landon to suggest a possible constitutional amendment—the inevitable effect being to blur what many politicians had figured would be a clean-cut issue.

Looms Again As Issue

Lately the politicians have again been figuring. New Dealers decided that if the court should grant the rehearing asked by New York, Illinois, and other states which have minimum wage laws, they would be able to cry out that even the supreme court itself had recognized that it wasn't infallible.

On the other hand, if the petition were denied, they would again be able to picture the five conservative justices as hard-jawed, biased reactionaries.

Republicans, in the first instance, felt they could make a point of saying the court had proved itself flexible but fair, and in the second contingency could point to Landon's suggesting a possible amendment.

New York and 11 other states have undertaken to continue enforcement of their minimum wage laws for women and children since the decision. They have taken the position, outlined in the petition for rehearing, that the court didn't really pass on the validity of the New York law, but had erroneously assumed that New York wasn't asking it to recognize principles asserted in the Adkins decision in 1923.

New York, Illinois, and other states came back with the emphatic request for such reconsideration, claiming that the reasoning in the Adkins case had been offset by subsequent court decisions.

The petition tended to put Justice Owen J. Roberts in a hole. Although he was able to stand with—and make — the majority last summer against the law, he declared in the Nebbia case that "so far as the requirement of due process is concerned . . . a state is free to adopt whatever economic policy may reasonably be deemed to promote public welfare and to enforce that policy by legislation adopted to its purpose."

Hughes Balks Cameramen

Journal and other photographers went out after the justices for individual pictures just before the court went into session again, with varying results.

Chief Justice Hughes refused to come out of his house as long as cameramen stayed on the front walk and they were told to go away. He didn't travel the short distance to his automobile until his secretary and two colored servants had made a reconnaissance up and down the street.

Next day photographers rushed up as he was leaving. "No pictures!" exclaimed Hughes. "What, no pictures?" echoed the boys. "No pictures!" repeated Hughes firmly.

Justice VanDevanter posed obligingly and Justice Cardozo made no complaint about a surprise shot.

Justice Roberts was out of town, but the doorman at his home was found to be wearing a big Landon sunflower. Mrs. Justice Stone was very nice and was sure a photo could be arranged later. Justice Sutherland sent out word that he was ill. Justice Brandeis was non-co-operative. Justice McReynolds refused.

Justice Butler became enraged at an attempt to snap him in his automobile. He poked his cane under the photographer's nose and cried, "You get out of here!"

Court May Stay Intact

One table says the oldest of the justices has a life expectancy of more than four years and so it might be deduced that Roosevelt would have no chance to fill a court vacancy if re-elected.

On the other hand, since 1789 no five years have ever passed without the occurrence of a vacancy. The last one was in 1932, when Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes resigned and was succeeded by Cardozo.

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

practice, he said, were that the "blessings of medicine were not being carried far enough and not being as widely distributed as they should be, principally because many have no money to pay for such services."

Yet, he emphasized, "one out of every 4 1-2 persons on the average owns a car; those who smoke, chew and dip spend three times as much as is spent on medical care; people spend two times as much for soft drinks and chewing gum as they do for physicians' care and special services; more money is paid for hair curling, to have eyebrows plucked and fingernails painted than is paid physicians annually."

Faults Are Cited

The lack of a wider distribution of medical benefits is not all the fault of the medical profession, Dr. Dudgeon stated. "It is partly the fault of those who won't be vaccinated, won't call in a doctor for treatment, of those who consult non-licensed practitioners and quacks, and those who don't know what medical science can do for them."

Among the disadvantages of socialized medicine the speaker listed the "loss of personal science administered by private practitioners," including "sympathy, kindness, pity and optimism."

Dr. Stiles Toastmaster

Toastmaster for the banquet was Dr. J. H. Stiles of Lubbock, president of the Lubbock-Crosby County Medical society. Music was furnished by Ned Bradley's orchestra, which also played for a dance following the dinner, and novelty numbers were presented by the Larrymore school of dance.

A suggestion that the thirteenth district, including the vicinity of Fort Worth, be invited to the next meeting was entered by Dr. J. J. Crume of Amarillo, president of the Panhandle society. Officers of the societies are in charge of all program arrangements.

Cotton Weather In Territory Is Good

Good cotton weather has prevailed here the past three days, with temperatures of 85 degrees maximum for Monday and Tuesday and 80 degrees on Sunday, records of the state experiment sub-station show.

These are not a record by any means, as October, 1934 had a maximum of 97. There have been peaks of 90 or more, during most of the years in the past decade.

Minimum Wednesday morning and also Tuesday, was 48 degrees; Monday it was the same and Sunday, 43

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Cotton futures opened very steady, 2 to 12 points advance on higher Liverpool and Egyptian cables and active trade and foreign buying. Oct. 12.06; Dec. 12.02; Jan. 12.02; March 12.03; May 12.08; July 12.04.

Wall street houses also bought. Foreign demand apparently was influenced by views that the gold stabilization plan was constructive for international cotton business.

The census bureau report on September domestic consumption of 629,727 bales against 574,289 in August and 450,647 in September last year, although somewhat under recent trade estimates, was the highest consumption for any month since June, 1933, when 697,261 bales were consumed. It was believed to be the highest September consumption on record.

December rallied from 12.02 to 12.08 carrying prices 12 to 16 points net higher. Reactions from the best under hedge selling and realizing were limited to 3 to 6 points.

Liverpool reported general buying on the strong statistical position. Egyptian markets were 24 to 31 points higher for Achmouni and 47 to 94 higher for Sakellarides compared with Saturday's.

Prices ruled steady later in the morning on continued Wall street, trade and foreign buying. Hedge selling and profit taking were readily absorbed as outside interest broadened. Dec. sold up to 12.09 and May to 12.11 with prices generally 13 to 17 points net higher by midday.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Cotton continued its advance in early dealings today, moving ahead from 8 to 10 points during the first half hour.

There appeared to be an overnight accumulation of buying orders, some of them for foreign account, and options were actively bid for at the first call and in the immediate dealings following the opening.

Dec. opened at 11.98, March was up an even 50 cents a bale at 12.02 and May gained 9 points to 12.03. There was little hedging pressure exerted against the market and this was a contributing factor on the advance.

Early weather reports included no important change.

Official census bureau figures on domestic cotton consumption were made available to the trade immediately after the opening and were decidedly bullish. The government placed September consumption of cotton at 629,727 bales, compared with 574,289 bales in August, 1936 and 450,647 bales in September.

Gains were extended during the morning until the market was from 11 to 15 points higher in comparatively active dealings. Dec. sold at 12.05, up 75 cents a bale. March scored a similar advance to 12.07 and May was up 11 points at 12.07.

The advance across the 12-cent level for all options was attributed to the all-time high set by cotton consumption in September, improved foreign markets and weather developments interpreted bullishly.

The government crop summary for the past week reported that temperatures had been cooler than normal for this time of the year in the western half of the belt, with the eastern section experiencing good weather.

"In Texas the crop has been nearly all picked, except the light top crop," the report said. In Oklahoma picking made slow progress, but is completed in many places. Staple has been damaged. In central districts the first part of the week was decidedly unfavorable for picking, but good progress is reported for the last couple of days."

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Led by American Telephone, Western Union, Santa Fe and other bellwethers, the stock market pushed aside profit taking today and resumed its advancing stride.

Selling carried over from yesterday's session and was fairly well distributed before noon. Trading turned inactive on the declining trend, however, and buyers later appeared for many of the depressed leaders. The pace was a little brisker near the fourth hour.

General business and industrial developments were deemed satisfactory by brokerage circles and European affairs were not too disturbing marketwise.

Bonds just about held their own, although rail loans were a bit ahead. Commodities pointed upward and foreign currencies moved indifferently.

The major telephone stock recorded a new 5-year top with a gain of more than a point. J. I. Case got up about 4 and Santa Fe 2. Advances of a point or so were shown by Western Union, Great Northern, M-K-T preferred, Kelvinator, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, Hercules Motors and Budd Mfg.

Unchanged to a shade higher were Westinghouse, Du Pont, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Baldwin Locomotive, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Anaconda, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

In the backward division were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Loew's, Woolworth, Spiegel - May - Stern, Deere and Consolidated Edison.

what she wants is more money."

To support his contention that Miss Davis wanted more money, Sir Patrick read a letter which, he said, she wrote to the head of Warner brothers.

The letter related that after a long vacation "I am so rested it hurts." It expressed Miss Davis' jubilation at being able to work.

Change Does Her Good

"Mentally, change does me good and makes me do better work," the letter went on.

"Also, I am anxious to become known as a great actress—I might, who can tell?

"As a happy person I can work like hell.

"As an unhappy one I make myself and everyone around me unhappy.

"I know you do, too, in business where you have a fickle public to depend on.

"Money should be made when you mean something. Not when the public has had time to tell you to go to hell."

NEW DEMANDS

LOYALISTS READY FOR FINAL ATTACK

(By The Associated Press)

Frost-bitten militiamen of Madrid pounded back today at San Martin De Valdeiglesias, newest fascist objective in the march on the capital, while Soviet Russia demanded that Europe act speedily to isolate the Spanish war—"or else."

Bent on making San Martin, less than 40 miles from Madrid, the Fort Douaumont of the civil conflict, the government men poised for a "final" air and land attack and announced they already had penetrated to a strategic vantage point.

Insurgents, however, declared the government forces had been pushed back three miles in the San Martin sector.

Jackson, associate professor of education, will teach the high school phase and Miss Bonnie K. Dysart, also an associate professor, will teach the elementary school phase.

A class in English is to be organized Saturday at Memphis. Donald Murphy, associate professor of English, is to teach the course.

Enrollment still is open in the classes. Extension courses are taught for $5 for a semester hour credit. Most courses have three semester hours credit.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Major James Mollison, British flier, plans to start next week on a west-to-east crossing of the Atlantic from New York to England.

Roosevelt field officials said Mollison, who has thrice flown the Atlantic east-to-west but has never gone by air in the opposite direction, was expected at the field next Sunday to make a final check-up of his plane.

SAFETY LANE TO OPEN IN TAHOKA

Capt. W. W. Legge and members of the Texas highway patrol left Lubbock for Tahoka today to conduct a safety lane and will return here Oct. 27 and 28 for another inspection.

Data given by Captain Legge on the two-day inspection showed that 383 cars had faulty brakes; 374 defective lights; 254 defective horns; 363 faulty windshield wipers; 14 each defective mufflers and steering gears. Total defects for the two days were 1,410, number of cars tested 3,869. Two hundred 34 drivers had defects remedied and returned for blue "o. k." slips.

Talks were made by Captain Legge and Sgt. George Schauer, Tuesday in Lubbock Senior High and Central Ward schools, and schoolboy patrols were shown how the official inspection was conducted.

Captain Legge said that the authorities were appreciative of the cooperation by local motorists during the inspection.

aid through the various channels, and Lubbock county has received her share. Naturally, the administration is expecting Lubbock county to do her part."

Situations Compared

"I cannot determine how any one can vote against the present administration, when I think about conditions prior to the present Democratic regime and compare the situation then with things now," Bradley declared.

He said that a bulletin board in the courthouse was stacked high with notices of trustee's sales during the Hoover administration, that "people's homes and farms were being sold out from under them by the big corporations that are hollering so much about the administration now."

"The earning power of all people has been increased by putting money into circulation and putting people back to work," he continued.

"The many people who were unemployed have been taken off the streets where they talked against the government. I honestly believe that if steps taken by the Roosevelt administration had not been taken there would have been revolution."

He lauded President Roosevelt for the vigorous steps he took when he entered the presidency.

"This man Roosevelt had a different situation than any other president when he was inaugurated," Bradley said. "He took off his coat and went to work. He didn't say, 'Prosperity is just around the corner,' but he recognized that there was a depression. He went to work to do something about it.

"The work is unfinished, and we can't afford to change horses in the middle of the stream. When a government has done for us what our government has done we must support it."

The campaigners were urged to report to Jackson at noon today.

Traditional Black Rapidly Yielding

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14 (AP)—Traditional black is rapidly yielding to less somber and even vivid tones at funerals.

This was revealed today by Samuel J. Walters, of New York, vice-president of the National Funeral Directors association, which is in convention here.

"People have come to realize in the last decade that beauty and reverence may be combined appropriately in funerals," he explained. "Instead of increasing the misery of the family by gloomy surroundings and somber colors, funeral services and their paraphernalia nowdays are planned to uplift and console through the beauty of their rites and settings."

WHO'S PUTT-PUTTING AT MY DOOR? IT'S CARSON THE MAILMAN; HE DOES NOT WORRY ABOUT THE BAD ROADS

BY A. F. MAHAN, JR.

MAGNOLIA SPRINGS, Ala., Oct. 14 (AP)—Bad roads, the plague of rural mail carriers the country over, never bother Carrier Emory Carson—because he has the only all-water rural free delivery route in the United States He even serves a ferry-boat.

EMORY CARSON

It's not a new job for Carson, either, because he has been working down Magnolia river, fair weather and foul, for the last 13 years.

Carson and his staunch little cabin boat, Edess, go through mighty rough weather at times on Week's bay and Turkey branch, but they always manage to get around to 117 bay country families who depend upon them for a major contact with the outside world.

Holds To Title

Emory and Edess unofficially lost their titles as carriers of the only all-water route several months back when the postmistress, Miss Grace Thomas, "heard about another somewhere." But a check of the post office department in Washington revealed her information in error.

So folk hereabout again point rather proudly when they hear the familiar "putt," "putt" of the Edess and proclaim their distinction of living on the nation's only motorboat mail route.

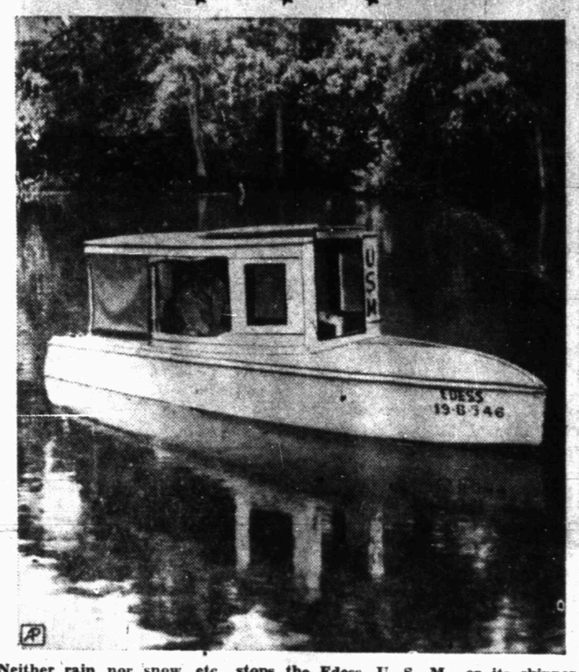

There are a dozen or so "star" motorboat routes—where mail is transported from one post office to another via boat.

Has 22 Mile Route

Carson turns the prow of the Edess down Magnolia river around 10 a. m. daily, the big letters "U. S. M." glistening on the front of the white cabin.

The little craft goes putt-putting down the river, then tours Week's bay, Turkey branch, Nolty creek and Fish river—a route 22 miles.

Folk in the little fishing camp of Yupon listen daily for the sound of the motor that signals that the mail's in, and residents at Barnwell also get letters and papers from the boatman postman.

Neither rain nor snow, etc., stops the Edess, U. S. M., or its skipper Emory Carson—shown in the cabin—on the all-water route in southern Alabama.

CURE WOOD BY RADIO

MOSCOW, (AP)—Drying and seasoning wood by ultra-short radioactive rays has been accomplished successfully by the Scientific Research Institute for the reworking of wood. Engineers claim they can cure beams for railroad car construction in 2-3-4 hours instead of 15 days required for fire-curing.

In India, after the wedding ceremony, the bride and the bridegroom are tied together by the corners of their garments to signify that they are united for life.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Effective

PHILADELPHIA—Mrs. Editn Kaplan captured a burglar with a scream.

She yelled as the sound of an opening door awakened her; the intruder started to run, tripped over a rug, and fell headlong down a flight of stairs.

Police found him a heap, revived him and hauled him off to a cell.

Needs More Lessons

COLUMBUS, O. — Billy Davis, 12, climbed into his father's automobile to practice a little driving, let out the clutch too fast and the car jerked out of the garage and through a fence.

Then Billy disappeared.

His parents asked police all over Ohio to hunt for him, but, aside from a hurried visit to his grandmother's home in Wilmington, there has been no trace of the young motorist.

One For Webster

SEATTLE — A. M. Hamrick wrote the state game department he was holding a quail for $1.11 damage, the cost of a window it broke in flying into his house.

"Ransom, eh;" mused Game Director Bernard T. McCauley. "Well, I guess I'll send Webster Ransom, who holds a game protector's badge, out after it, but no ransom for it."

The Final Straw

MINNEAPOLIS — Emil Bikkevold's car wasn't exactly stolen. It just sort of disintegrated.

Within two days after its purchase, some one removed the battery. The generator and coils disappeared next. When Emil found the radiator missing he began to worry. Then a rear wheel and three tires vanished.

The thief or thieves took the heart of Emil as well as his car when he found the motor gone.

Conquering Drouth

COLUMBUS, Neb.—Local firefighters hailed Frank Scholtz, hardware merchant, as a fire fighter extraordinary after the midnight blaze at the J. C. Ernest farm.

The fire laddies found no water supply when they arrived to subdue a fire in 80 tons of fodder and five tons of hay so they called Scholz, who has a reputation for well digging. With the aid of flashlights and automobile headlights he dug a well that by dawn furnished sufficient water to extinguish the blaze.
