UHF channel offered...

New channel now available in city via TV transmitter

Snyder residents are now able to receive an additional television station signal over the air–KJTV of Lubbock, available here on UHF Channel 75.

The station is Channel 34 in Lubbock being retransmitted locally on Channel 75 with a transmitter located north of town on Old Cemetery Rd.

A company spokesman said local viewers should be able to pick up the programming without the use of an outside antenna.

KJTV is an independent station featuring general programming that is family oriented.

KJTV and the new Fox Broadcasting Corp. have recently affiliated to bring "The Late Show" starring Joan Rivers to West Texas.

Fox is forming a fourth network with the live presentation of Rivers each week night at 10 p.m.

The regular program lineup includes cartoons in the morning and afternoons during the week.

During the morning, He-Man, Transformers, Dennis the Mennis and the Fintstones air from 6:30 until 8:30 a.m.

From 3 until 5 p.m., the station has Smurfs, She-Ra Princess of Power, Thundercat and G.I. Joe.

Six of the Top 10 syndicated animated shows are featured on KJTV.

Late afternoons are devoted to comedy shows. At 5 p.m., the "Beverly Hillbillys" lead off a two-hour block, followed at 5:30 p.m.

Ask Us

Q. — Are there plans to have pep rallies with junior high school football games?

A. — Campus officials say no. Principal Charles Anderson pointed out these activities are reserved for high school years. He noted also the scheduling difficulties associated with House Bill 72 mandates designed to "keep the student in the classroom."

In Brief

Plane crashes

CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — A seaplane with 15 people aboard crashed into the ocean shortly after takeoff today, leaving one person dead and two missing, civil defense officials said.

Ten passengers and two crew members survived the crash, officials said. The number of injured was not known.

Local

Ira PTA

The Ira PTA has a called meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school cafeteria.

All members are urged to attend.

Spook House

The Scurry County Vietnam Veterans Association will be sponsoring a Spook House this Thursday and Friday beginning at 6 p.m. each night. The Spook House will be located at Clark's County Kitchen, 2403½ 25th, next to Permian Communication. Admission is 50 cents for grade school age children and $1 for junior high age students and up.

For Clements

Kent Hance, who switched from the Democratic Party in order to run as a Republican candidate for governor last spring, will be in Snyder Wednesday campaigning for the man who defeated him, Bill Clements.

Clements hopes to unseat Democratic incumbent Mark White in Tuesday's General Election.

Hance is scheduled at the GOP Headquarters at 3:30 p.m. The office has been located in the old site of the RS&P depot on 25th St.

Hance, of Lubbock, has served as both a state senator and a U.S. representative and waged an unsuccessful campaign as a Democrat for the U.S. Senate seat formerly held by John Tower.

Nuclear arms proposal upcoming

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping U.S. proposal to reduce superpower strategic nuclear weapons by 50 percent in five years and to rid Europe of all intermediate-range weapons will be submitted to the Soviet Union at the Geneva arms talks later this week, an administration official said today.

The proposal, which also sets as a goal eliminating all ballistic nuclear missiles in 10 years, was approved at a White House meeting of President Reagan and a planning group of the National Security Council on Monday, said the official, who demanded anonymity.

The decision carries out the thrust of Reagan's discussions at the Iceland summit with Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Soviet leader.

The Soviets have insisted that Reagan went further at Reykjavik, suggesting the United States and the Soviet Union work to ban all strategic nuclear weapons by 1996, not just ballistic missiles.

One official, who said U.S. records of the conversations between Reagan and Gorbachev had not yet been prepared, acknowledged the president "may have said that at one point."

But the official stressed that Reagan undoubtedly told Gorbachev many more times he was seeking only a ballistic-missile ban since this is the U.S. position.

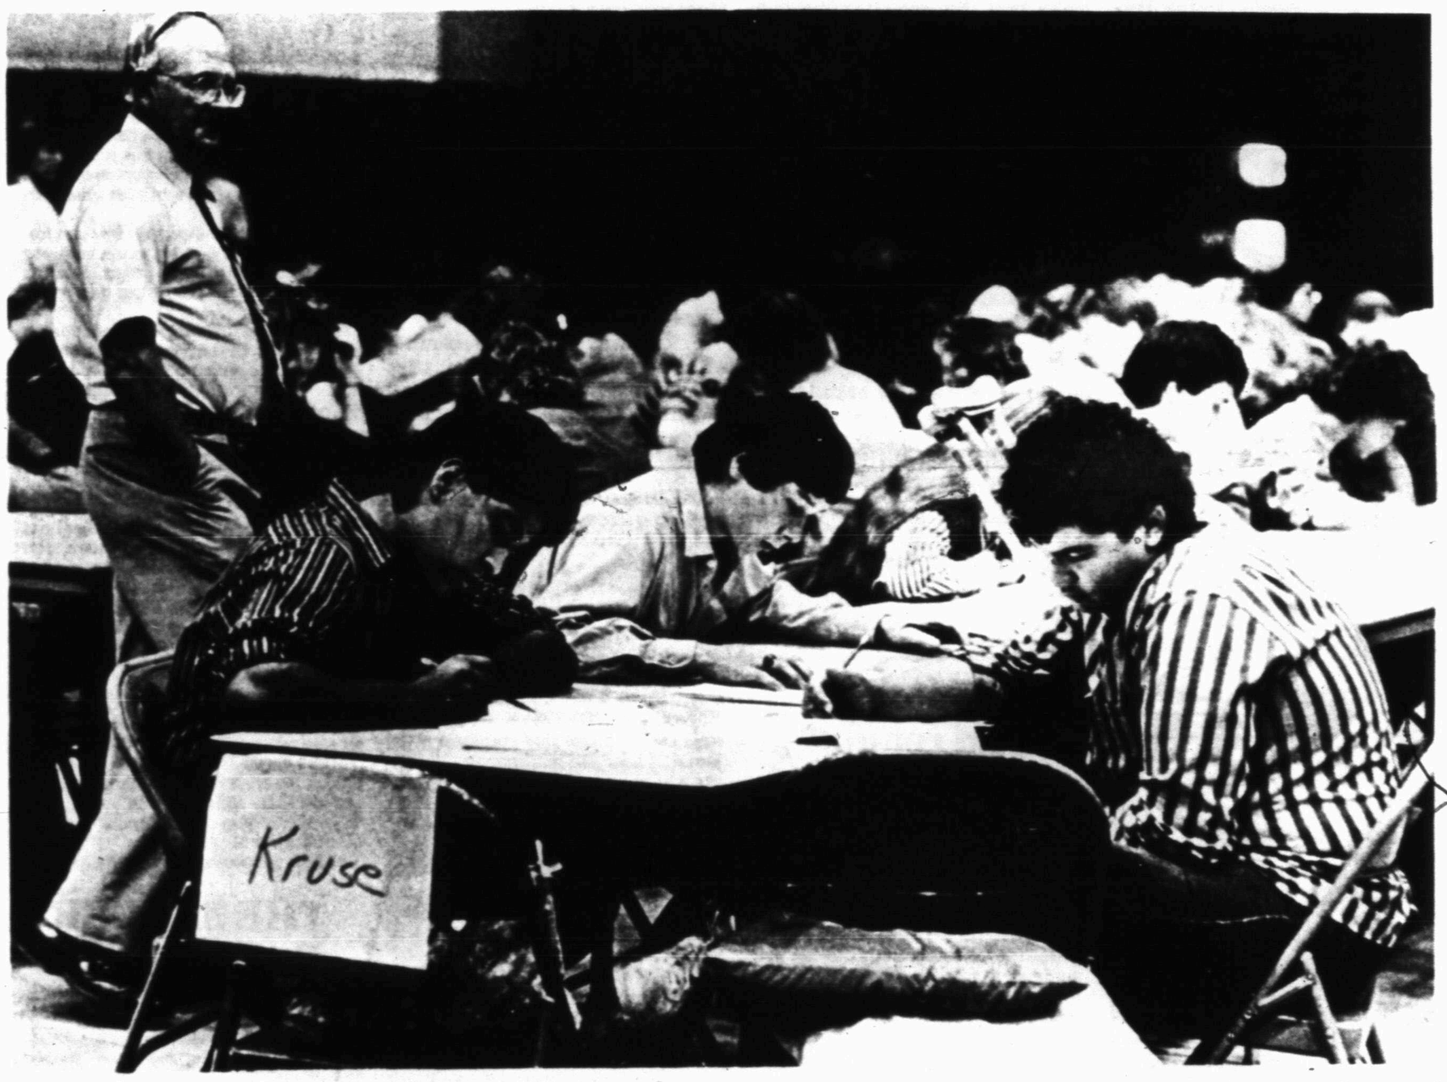

Among those endorsing the package at Monday's meeting, which was put in the form of new instructions to chief U.S. arms negotiator Max M. Kampelman, was the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William J. Crowe, other sources said.

With American and NATO conventional forces outnumbered in Europe by the Soviet Union and its allies, U.S. military officials are concerned that eliminating U.S. nuclear weapons there would be a dangerous step.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and others have noted that nuclear disarmament would leave the Soviets in a commanding military position.

In the hours immediately following the conclusion of the summit in Reykjavik on Oct. 12, U.S. government spokesmen indicated the all-out elimination of nuclear weapons was the administration position. Now they maintain that while Reagan discussed elimination of all nuclear arms, he never proposed more than destruction of all ballistic, or long-range guided missiles, in two five-year phases.

The distinction is strategically important because the U.S. position as now stated would leave both sides with substantial arsenals of cruise missiles.

EXIT TESTING UNDERWAY — Snyder High School Juniors were at the Scurry County Coliseum shortly after 8:30 a.m. Tuesday taking the state-mandated exit test required for all Texas juniors. Students are shown being monitored by Mackey Greene, who served as a testing proctor for the morning session. (SDN Staff Photo)

Junior testing begins

The language arts portion of a state-mandated exit level test will be given to Snyder High School juniors Wednesday following the first portion of the test which was administered Tuesday morning.

Both the math portion taken Tuesday and the language arts exam must be passed in order to receive a graduation diploma.

Both sessions are scheduled in the Scurry County Coliseum.

A second series of exit exams are scheduled in May and those failing may retake the tests at that time.

As seniors, those failing will be given two more opportunities to pass with tests again scheduled in October and May.

The exit level tests for juniors were implemented statewide last year. This year's senior class will be the first in Texas required to pass the exit exam in order to graduate.

During testing conducted last year, comments heard frequently were that the exams were easier than anticipated.

High school officials report only a small percentage of local juniors failed to pass both portions of the exit level test.

City learns of billing scam

City officials say it may have been only an isolated incident, but they indicate at least one water customer has reported an individual coming to their home and requesting immediate payment of a city water bill.

"The important thing we want people to know is that no one is authorized to accept water bill payments anywhere except at the city utility office," said Carolyn House, head of the water billing department.

The incident, which occurred at an east Snyder residence, involved an individual who informed the woman who lived there that an immediate $15 payment was now due on her water bill.

In addition, the man told her if he had to come back later for the payment there would be an additional $5 charge.

The woman refused to make the payment and, after the man had left, went to city hall to pay the bill. At that time, city officials learned of the incident.

"If there are any other cases like this out there, we'd like to know about it now," House said.

Interviews Monday end without jurors

District attorney Ernie Armstrong and defense attorney Frank Conard interviewed eight persons Monday, but none were chosen to serve during the sixth day of individual interviews for prospective jurors in the capital murder trial of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr.

Interviews resumed shortly after 9 a.m. Tuesday and no additional juror had been selected by presstime. So far, four individuals — three women and one man — have been selected.

Burglaries prompt reward offer today

A cash reward is being offered by the Scurry County Crime Stoppers Inc. for information "resulting in an indictment" of persons responsible for four local burglaries.

The crime incidents include break-ins at:

—Thompson's Shoe Store reported Sept. 14. Items taken include tennis shoes and boots.

—The Wes-T-Go Conoco Station reported Oct. 6. Items taken include various brands of cigarettes.

—Tom's Marine reported Oct. 9. Items taken include chain saws and change.

—The Ann Davis residence, 2800 Denison, reported Oct. 23. Items taken include a coat and jewelry.

Scurry County Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information leading to the indictment of individuals responsible for felony crimes.

The caller's identity will remain anonymous, law enforcement authorities note, adding that the name will not be used in any reports or disclosed to any other individual.

Persons with information regarding local crimes are urged to call Crime Stoppers at 573-6700.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Tolerance is what we have when the situation doesn't directly affect us."

We always welcome letters to the editor, providing space for readers to express views and opinions. But, please don't send us one if you want to endorse any political candidate.

We're all for voters supporting and endorsing their candidates, but not in our free letters column. Most of these letters are pure political advertising.

There's an organization in a nearby town that cranks out computer-typed letters inserting "Snyder" and "Scurry County" to make them appear local in nature. If you run one, you have to run them all, and the space does not permit.

We also admit prejudice on the matter of free advertising. Many candidates, especially state and national ones, spend thousands of dollars with TV for 15-second spots.

Then they send massive packets of so-called news releases and letters to the editors to newspapers trying to tell folks what they were unable to get across in 15-second spots.

If a candidate comes to town and makes a public appearance, then we'll be happy to provide news coverage. If the TV stations get the money, then they are also entitled to the news releases and free letters. But don't hold your breath waiting for the TV folks to read 'em over the air.

A fellow in the coffee shop says he has proof that the economy is much better than we want to believe.

We still have illegal aliens wanting to get in. That's a good point.

Elections are just a few days away, and the boys at Louise's Coffee Shop have come up with a suggestion with unquestionable merit.

"What voters really need is an obedience school for candidates who get elected."

Burglars are sued

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A couple who sued two teen-aged burglars for setting fire to their house say a $288,000 jury award should encourage other crime victims to file lawsuits.

Edward and Joan Mutchek of this southern Illinois city won the award Friday against the homeowners' insurance policies of the parents of two juveniles who broke into the Mutcheks' home five years ago.

The St. Clair County Circuit Court award will be reduced by $115,000 the Mutcheks' insurance has paid, said their attorney, Stephen M. Tillary.

Both of the burglars testified at the trial that they had inadvertently started the fire in the Mutcheks' garage while trying to remove a radio from one of the family's cars on Oct. 9, 1981.

—$1,500 and over--ADC 13 inch color television.

DNA markers have been identified, bringing scientists closer to isolating the genetic defect that causes CF. Also DNA markers have been closely linked to defective CF gene studies proving a successful biochemical approach to CF has been made. All this progress has been made within the last two years.

Rocket tests duplicate flaw

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Early tests show that a new rocket engine design will eliminate the flaws that caused space shuttle Challenger to blow up, a NASA official said.

John Thomas, manager of the space agency's solid rocket motor redesign team, also said Monday that NASA is on track toward a resumption of space flights in early 1988.

A new engine "has been tested and we are much more confident than ever before that it is a good design," Thomas said, but added that much more testing remains to be done.

Challenger blew up 73 seconds after launch Jan. 28, killing all seven crew members. A presidential commission determined that a joint on the solid rocket engine leaked flame that ignited rocket propellant.

Among the factors blamed by the commission were warping of the metal parts of the joint that unsealed two rubberized O rings and low temperatures that reduced the seals' resilience.

Thomas and his team designed a joint with an extra lip to prevent warping, added another O ring, and developed a heater to keep the joint warm. All of these elements worked well in early testing, he said.

Thomas said engineers also tested the joint design used on Challenger and duplicated the leaks that the investigation concluded occurred.

The new design was subjected to "hot fire" tests using a scale model burning some 70 pounds of propellant for 80 seconds, said Thomas.

"The results have been very, very pleasing," he said. In one of the tests, he said, the joint sealed even without the use of O rings.

Engineers are testing two ideas for insulating the steel walls of the engine from the 1,500-degree heat generated by the propellant, but Thomas said the experts are confident of the new metal parts design.

Controller given 11-year term for embezzling

HOUSTON (AP) — A former controller of the Houston-Galveston Area Council will serve 11 years in prison and repay more than $1 million embezzled from the agency, a federal judge decided.

William B. Prince Jr., 36, of Houston, was sentenced on Monday by U.S. District Carl O. Bue. Prince pleaded guilty earlier to siphoning the money in a scheme that included laundering the funds through a phony business.

He apparently used the money to buy luxurious homes, an expensive car and several gold watches, Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott Woodward said.

"He was high rolling," Woodward said.

Prince was fired in December after serving as the agency's top financial officer for nine years, Woodward said.

Sense of taste should return

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two months ago I had a tonsillectomy, and it has left me unable to taste anything. This is a terrible problem for me, since I am a caterer. Is this a normal complication of such surgery?

DEAR READER — Loss of taste following tonsillectomy is troublesome, but usually temporary. Once the tissue has healed and the swelling has receded, your taste should return to normal.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been to several doctors about my problem, and one practically laughed in my face. I am unable to control the passing of gas. A gastroenterologist told me that I probably have a weak muscle and that nothing can be done. I find that hard to believe. I understand that having gas is a natural, normal response in the digestive process, but I don't like having a perpetual gas leak.

DEAR READER — Passing gas provides the basis for much folk humor, but it's not funny when it happens to you. Try eliminating gas-producing foods from your diet: carbonated beverages, legumes and spices. Make sure that you are not swallowing air when you eat or drink. Try anti-gas compounds, like simethicone. Omit milk products. Ask your gastroenterologist to teach you exercises to strengthen your sphincter.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on DIGESTIVE GAS, which tells what causes this common problem and how you can manage it. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is there any scientific evidence to support the claim that wearing a copper bracelet helps relieve the discomfort of arthritis?

DEAR READER — Nope. That was simply a popular fad several years ago.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son-in-law says that if an alcoholic completely abstains from alcohol, he won't live long, because his system has come to depend on it and has lost the ability to process food. Fortunately, this is not my problem, but is this true?

DEAR READER — Your son-in-law's viewpoint is pure hogwash. The reverse is true: If an alcoholic does not abstain, he will die. Alcohol is a poison for anyone. For an alcoholic, it is worse. Under these circumstances, booze — in the form of wine, beer or liquor — is a one-way ticket to court or to the mortuary. Alcoholism is a fatal disease, but it can be treated by abstinence. And that is the only successful treatment.

By the way, does your son-in-law drink a good deal? His irrational rationalizations sound very much to me like what is known as "alcoholic thinking."

Honey Do's hold meeting

The Honey Do Extension Homemakers met Oct. 16 in the Texas Electric Reddy Room for their regular meeting. President Shirley Bullard presided with six members present. Patsy Burleson joined as a new member.

A special program on self-defense for women was presented by Charlie Reynolds, deputy sheriff and crime prevention officer. Members were given booklets called "What Every Woman Should Know About Self-Protection." Points covered included how to keep a home safe from crime; how to protect oneself while walking or driving and what to do in case of attack.

Craft Day was discussed and officers were elected for the year. Refreshments were served.

How do you play three no-trump? If you're my average reader, your objective is to make nine tricks safely and surely. So take a look at the North-South cards in today's deal and cover the East-West hands so you won't be distracted as you plan the play.

Suppose you win the king of hearts in dummy and play a spade. That would be wrong if East held the spade ace and took it right away to lead back a heart. In that scenario, West would hold the club ace and would be able to take enough heart tricks to set your contract when you eventually played clubs.

What if you won the heart king and played dummy's club queen? East would grab the ace and play back a heart. Because clubs do not split, you would have to try for a spade trick to make the game. West would then take his ace and defeat you once again with his heart tricks.

Fort Lauderdale bridge professional Fred Hamilton showed me this deal recently, citing it as a good "instructive" hand. If you take the heart king and lead a low club from dummy, nothing can stop you. If East ducks, you win the club king and then switch to spades. If West has the club ace and takes your king with it, your A-10 of hearts is safe from attack. And if East rises immediately with his club ace, it beats the air as you play small from your hand, ensuring you of three club tricks and your contract.

A review for the Craft Day activities was given by Kathy Roberts and Pearle Waller. A centerpiece to be given away as a door prize was shown to the members.

The Plainview club will host the annual council Christmas party with the theme, "Old Fashioned Christmas." The time and place will be announced.

A get well card was signed to be sent to Ruby Butts, a patient at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Palette Club holds workshop

La Gina Fairbetter of Abilene presented a workshop in watercolor and mixed media for the Thursday meeting of the Snyder Palette Club.

La Gina studied at McMurry College in Abilene and with the Art Students' League of New York City. She has a studio at the Artists' League of Texas.

The next club meeting will be held Nov. 13 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on West 37th.

Art Guild hears history of clubs

The Art Guild Study Club met Oct. 21 at 6:30 p.m. with 16 members present. Hostesses for the event were Hattie Gatlin, Jim Logan and Margaret Dell Pilcher.

After a meal was served, Verna Lee Roe presented a program on the history of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

A brief business meeting was held in which M. J. Merritt, Evelyn Fenton, Maxine Holt and Hattie Gatlin gave committee reports. The meeting was adjourned by president Katherine Williamson.

Special preschool storytime is set

There will be a special storytime for preschool children at the Scurry County Library Friday at 10 a.m. Janice Mitchell, dressed for the part, will tell a halloween story. There will be a puppet show, "Henrietta's Halloween," and a movie, "Trick or Treat."

-6 Days Until Election Day-

ELECT

TROY MARTIN
Justice of the Peace
Scurry county

•Family Man
•Conservative
•Educated
•Qualified

On November 4th one of the most important elections in Scurry County will take place. This election will determine who will be Justice of the Peace in Precinct 1 for the next four years. Before casting your vote I would ask that you take another look at both candidates for this office and their reasons for seeking the office.

Current Justice of the Peace:
•Wanting "A Last Term"

His Opponent:
•Wanting "A First Term"
•Wants to improve relations between the Justice of the Peace and the Public
•Wants to find a better more efficient way to operate this office.

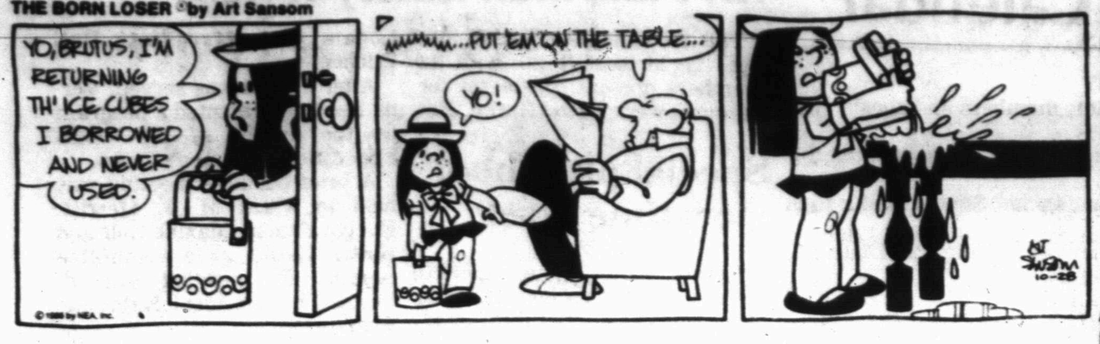

On Election day you have an opportunity as voters to elect the man you feel will do the best job for Scurry County for the next four years. Think about it carefully before voting for either candidate. Your support and vote will be greatly appreciated.

Thank you
Troy Martin

FAA gets tough with private pilots who violate airspace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, concerned about collisions between small planes and jetliners near busy airports, is moving against private pilots who encroach illegally into restricted airspace.

The agency on Monday announced a range of actions, many of them requiring regulatory changes that could take a year or more, aimed at reducing the frequency in which small planes violate so-called terminal control areas near the nation's 23 most active airports.

The actions, prompted by the Aug. 31 collision of a single-engine Piper PA-28 and an Aeromexico Airlines DC-9 near Los Angeles, included stepped up tracking of pilots who violate restricted flight zones and a stiffening of penalties once pilots are caught.

"We simply cannot tolerate anything less than full compliance with the (airspace restriction) procedures," FAA Administrator Donald Engen told a news conference. He said, however, he continues to be opposed to suggestions that all small planes automatically be barred from the terminal control areas, or TCAs, used by commercial pilots.

Engen and other FAA officials acknowledged there have been numerous incidents over the years in which pilots of small, slow-moving planes enter the restricted TCAs near busy airports without authority and, at times, without proper equipment.

In the Aeromexico collision over Cerritos, Calif., in August, in which 82 people were killed, the single-engine Piper did not have proper equipment and had not been authorized to enter the restricted area in which the jetliner was making a routine landing approach.

FAA officials also admitted Monday that enforcement against such violations has in the past been lacking. In all of 1985 the agency filed fewer than 30 enforcement actions against pilots violating restricted air space, with most getting only a letter of reprimand, the officials said.

Neither Engen nor other top-ranking agency officials could say how many such violations occurred in recent years.

William Fromme, the FAA's director of air safety, said, however, that enforcement has been stepped up since the Aeromexico accident.

'We were destined,' - Darling

NY Mets win series; true to word

NEW YORK (AP) - All along, the New York Mets said they would win the World Series. And they did Monday night, finishing in the fall what they promised in the spring - with a flourish that left them undeniably at the top of the heap.

Start spreading the news. The Mets mugged the Boston Red Sox 8-5 in Game 7 and are now baseball's world champions.

"We were destined to win," Mets' starter Ron Darling said, summing up the season and the Series.

Call them arrogant, cocky or rude. Say they symbolize a pushy, shovy city.

New York, New York won because it refused to lose - not in the regular season, not in the playoffs against Houston and not here.

The Mets spit in the face of fate Saturday night in Game 6. They were two runs down with nobody on base, one strike away from elimination, so close that their own stadium inadvertently flashed "Congratulations, Red Sox" on the scoreboard. Still, the Mets rallied to win.

They came back again on a misty Monday evening, breaking a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning on a home run by Series MVP Ray Knight, who made a comeback of his own after being benched in Game 2 for lack of hitting. When New York choked Boston's final gasp of the season the next inning, it was over.

The Mets lost the first two games at home, and they had two losses by ace Dwight Gooden. Still, they won.

The Red Sox could not. Boston, the only team ever to be within one out of the World Series championship and not win it, saw its history of collapse finally catch up.

Deny it. Don't believe it. Toss aside the allegation. The Red Sox are not meant to win. Instead, add another loss to their painful trail of Game 7 defeats in the World Series, alongside the ones from 1946, 1967 and 1975.

"This team deserved better," said Boston reliever Bob Stanley, on the mound when the Mets struck in Game 6. "We deserved to win, but we didn't."

No, the Red Sox did not. They still have not won the World Series since 1918.

"History is great to learn from, but all that matters is what we have in front of us," said Red Sox starter Bruce Hurst, who had beaten the Mets twice and got another chance because of Sunday night's rainout. "We never could get that third out."

Yet for awhile, it looked like Boston might be able to end the jinx.

Dwight Evans led off the Red Sox second with a home run deep to left-center, Boston's first earned run off Darling in 15 innings. Rich Gedman followed with a drive to right which 6-foot-6 Darryl Strawberry gloved by reaching over the fence, but dropped over the wall for another homer. Somewhat shaken, Darling gave up an RBI single to Wade Boggs and it was 3-0.

"My job at that point was to protect the lead and not let it slip away," Hurst said.

Hurst, a left-hander pitching on three days' rest for only the second time this year and in place of scheduled starter Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, did his job for five innings.

Hurst's off-speed stuff limited the Mets' right-handed lineup - the one minus sparkplug Lenny Dykstra - to just a ground single by Knight through five innings.

But after retiring 11 straight batters, it all began to unravel for Hurst and the Red Sox with one out in the sixth: A pinch-single by Lee Mazzilli, who also started a game-saving rally Saturday night. A single by Mookie Wilson. A walk to Tim Teufel.

Keith Hernandez singled sharply to left-center, and two runs scored. Gary Carter followed with a blooper to right field and Evans trapped it, getting a forceout at second as the tying run scored.

Mets left-hander Sid Fernandez, a starter all season, replaced Darling with two out in the fourth. Fernandez had groused about his role as a reliever in the Series but again did it well, pitching 2 1-3 hitless innings and striking out four.

Calvin Schiraldi, the ex-Met who had blown the crucial two-run lead Saturday night, took over for Hurst in the seventh.

And Knight hit his fourth pitch into the left-center field bleachers.

Dykstra hit a pinch-single, took second when Schiraldi made a wild pitch on a pitchout and came home on Rafael Santana's single. A sacrifice fly by Hernandez made it 6-3.

The Red Sox, who had been one strike away from elimination in the playoffs against California, did not fold.

Hobbling Bill Buckner, whose error allowed the winning run to score in Game 6, opened the eighth with a single. Rice followed with a single and Evans then lined a two-run double, making it 6-5 and finishing Roger McDowell.

It was Jesse Orosco's turn, and he was perfect. He retired Gedman on a line drive, struck out Dave Henderson and got Don Baylor - finally appearing as a pinch-hitter with the designated hitter not in play - on a grounder.

Baylor's out seemed to take the life out of the Red Sox, but the Mets made sure by stomping relievers Al Nipper and Steve Crawford for two more runs in the bottom of the eighth on a lead-off homer by Strawberry and Orosco's RBI single.

That left the Mets only three outs away from their second World Series championship since the miracle of 1969, and Orosco quickly wrapped it up.

Ed Romero grounded out. Boggs grounded out. And Marty Barrett, who had earlier tied the record of 13 hits in a Series, struck out swinging.

The Mets were the World Series champions. The city that never sleeps exploded.

Morris runs wild as Giants triumph

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - There was a strange quality to the New York Giants NFC East showdown victory over the Washington Redskins, both on and off the field - and some of it had nothing to do with football.

Maybe it was the fact that most of the 75,923 fans at Giants Stadium Monday night spent much of the game with one eye on the field and another on one of the numerous portable TV sets tuned to Game 7 of the World Series between the New York Mets and the Boston Red Sox.

"World Series ... what World Series," quipped Washington Coach Joe Gibbs after the Giants downed the Redskins 27-20 Monday night to move into a three-way tie with Washington and Dallas in the NFC East.

The ups and downs of the World Series finale made for raucous cheering at odd moments in the Giants-Redskins game. Washington players admitted crowd noise that was a reaction to happenings elsewhere drew them offsides on at least two occasions - one of which cost the Redskins a touchdown in the second quarter.

The noise at odd times wasn't the only thing out of the ordinary.

The Giants defense, which entered the game ranked No. 1 in the NFL, didn't play like the best in the league, while the club's struggling offense worked well.

On the other side of the ball, Washington quarterback Jay Schroeder hit 22 of 40 passes for a personal-best 420 yards, while wide receiver Gary Clark caught 11 passes for a club-record 241 yards.

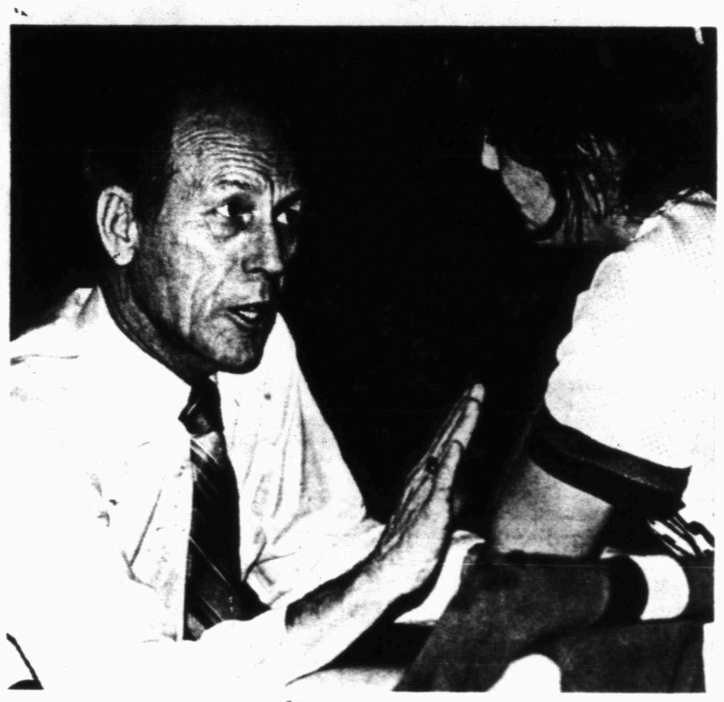

In the end, the difference turned out to be Joe Morris. The Giants' star halfback rushed 31 times for 181 yards and scored the game-winning touchdown on a 13-yard sweep arund right end with 1:38 to play.

A last-ditch Washington attempt to tie the game ended when Schroeder threw an imcompletion at the New York 35 with 21 seconds to play.

"That's the NFC East right there," said Parcells. "It's a battle and I'm just happy that we could win. That finishes up the first half (of the season) and I guess there are three teams that kind of got to start over."

Those teams are the Giants, Washington and Dallas. All are tied with 6-2 marks heading into the second half of the season.

Washington could have had sole possession of first place with a victory, but they made too many mistakes while falling behind 20-3.

Ladies host LV Maidens 7:30 tonight

Coach Vicki Nelms' Lady Tigers entertain San Angelo Lake View in a District 2-4A volleyball match at 7:30 p.m. in the Snyder High School Gym.

A junior varsity match will be held at 6:30 p.m. No freshman game is slated.

The contest will be the next to the last of the season for the Lady Tigers, who are 16-13 on the season and 6-8 in district play. Snyder hosts Monahans on Saturday for the season finale.

"I know the girls want to finish the season strong. They want to beat both Lake View and Monahans. They'll be giving it their best shot," said Coach Nelms.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Concessions will be available.

Western Texas College's Dusters open the 1986-87 season in typical fashion - on the road and with a few question marks.

The Dusters take on San Jacinto at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Highlassie Classic in Waco. They'll also play Temple at 6 p.m. Thursday and McLennan Community College at 8 p.m. Friday.

"Of course we'd rather be playing at home," admitted Coach Kelly Chadwick. "No more than we practice in the coliseum it's not really a home court advantage, but there are some advantages to playing at home. It means you get to sleep in your own bed, for one thing."

The Dusters only play four home games before the holiday break, who of which are in the Nov. 28-29 WTC Thanksgiving Classic.

The Highlassie Classic will give Coach Chadwick a chance to learn more about his team.

"We have several girls right now that you can't tell a whole lot of difference in. We'll see who comes through when the lights are up and the clock is on. Some girls just play differently in a game than they do in practice or a scrimmage," said the coach, who is looking forward to the season.

"I've been pleased with the girls. They are working hard. We've had some sickness and things and I've been under the weather but the girls have done a good job working hard without really being pushed. I think our good sophomore leadership is showing through," he said.

Western will likely open with three sophomores and two freshmen Wednesday. Working the inside and short perimeter will be Dee Ann Marr, 5-10; Gi Gi Robinson, 6-0; and Brenda Welch, 5-11; - all sophomores. Welch is a returning all-conference, all-region player who averaged 21.3 points and 8.8 rebounds as a first-year player. Kayla Thompson, a 5-9 freshman, will start at point guard, with Bonnie Detrixhe, a 5-8 freshman, at the second guard.

"I think we're pretty strong inside, though we're lacking in height," said Chadwick, whose tallest player is Robinson, at 6-0. "I'm more worried about the guard spots because we're not experienced there. That's something this tournament will do. We'll try to get some experience, and hopefully try to get five girls that can play together."

While Chadwick listed his five starters, he expects others to get plenty of playing time.

"I think depth could be an asset this season. That was one of our problems last season, but hopefully we'll be stronger in that area. I've been especially pleased with Wendy Milner (a 5-10½ sophomore). She can come in and play three or four positions. She should be the first one off the bench," noted the coach.

"Lisa (Thompson, a 6-0 transfer from Tyler) will be another one. She's really a potential all-American."

Thompson, however, will not play in the classic. She has been placed on misconduct probation by the college.

Other players on the team include 5-8 sophomore Carie Housden, and freshmen Nancy Bals, 5-8; Racquel Rodriquez, 5-8; Karen Smith, 5-11; and Barbara Straley, 5-8. Also on the squad is manager-player Shelly Hayes.

"It's hard to say how good we can be. We've got some question marks as you always do early in the season," said the coach. "I can see a lot of improvement from our first scrimmage until now. We just need to get some playing time and see what happens."

Milner improved for '86-87 season

Wendy Milner returns to lend experience to the 1986-87 Western Texas College Lady Duster basketball team.

Milner, 5-10 from Columbus, Ohio, was primarily used as a defensive player last season. She has been working on ball handling and shooting, and hopes to be an offensive threat for the Dusters this year.

"Wendy worked extremely hard during the off-season. This effort paid huge dividends. She is our most improved returning sophomore," said Coach Chadwick. "Wendy played a post position last season. She will be much improved in this area offensively, as well as being much wiser on making the proper decisions. Wendy has also been working in our early season practice as a perimeter player.

"Her improved ball handling and outside shooting skills have allowed her to move outside as well as playing inside," added the coach.

"Wendy was our premier post defensive player last year, an area that is critical to good team defense. She has the opportunity to develop into our best defensive player outside as well as inside. She is extremely quick and strong, which are both assets to her and the team.

"An extremely intelligent young lady, Wendy has provided superb leadership to our Lady Dusters in early season practice. She must learn when to shoot and when to pass the ball to be a great college player. She is working diligently in both areas. We are looking for great things for Wendy during the 1986-87 season," the coach concluded.

Milner averaged 10 points and seven rebounds for Columbus High School.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

Men Dropping In From Woman's Past May Drive Her Lover Out

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive 46-year-old woman. I have been divorced for three years, during which time I dated several men. I was intimate with two, but not at the same time.

I met "Jimmy" eight months ago and haven't dated anyone else since we met. I told him the truth about my past relationships with both men. He grew very fond of me and we were having a very loving romance when both of these men from my past dropped in to see me during the same week! I had not had any contact with either of them, and was completely surprised when they showed up at my door!

Unfortunately, Jimmy was here both times, which upset him terribly. I tried to explain that neither man meant a thing to me now, but I suppose I acted flustered and guilty. He doesn't believe me, Abby. I swore that I have had no contact with either man since I met him, but he is not convinced of my innocence.

How can I prove to Jimmy that I have been entirely faithful? We were discussing marriage before this happened. Now he's unsure. Please help me.

HURT IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR HURT: Your word should be sufficient. And if it isn't, don't knock yourself out trying to "prove" your innocence. I suggest you take a good hard look at Jimmy and be grateful for a preview of this stubborn, suspicious man. He has insulted your integrity. Is this the kind of person you want to spend the rest of your life with?

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I hope to curb before it gets too far out of hand.

Our 6-year-old son lies to us and others. We've tried grounding him, depriving him of things, but he still looks us right in the face and lies. I know it's not a huge problem, but I don't want it to go unchecked.

Our 4-year-old is starting to do the same thing now. Some people say it's just a phase all children go through, but I don't want to have my sons grow up to be the kind of people no one can trust.

Thanks for any help you can give me.

F.E.D. IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR F.E.D.: You are to be commended for wanting to instill truthfulness in your children, and the time to do it is now. All children tell small lies. Some actually confuse facts with fantasies; some lie in order to escape punishment; others just have vivid imaginations.

When your sons lie, let them know that you don't believe them. Don't come on as though they had committed a cardinal sin, but do "discuss" it, and impress upon them the importance of being truthful. (The parable about the little boy who cried "wolf" can be used.)

I realize that there are just so many things a parent can harp on, but making truthfulness a top priority will do more to build a child's character than anything else.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I've read many anti-smoking letters in your column, but I've never seen my biggest gripe: smoking in public rest rooms.

I have seen employees standing in rest rooms doing nothing but smoking. They use the rest room as an excuse to take a cigarette break when they should be on the job.

Department store and restaurant employees are the worst offenders. It is maddening to go into a rest room and practically gag on the smoke, then have another employee or two come in for a smoke.

What can be done? I hope a lot of business owners/managers will see this and take action.

HOLDING MY BREATH

DEAR HOLDING: A complaint directly from the customer to the owners and managers would be more effective than a suggestion from a newspaper columnist. Perhaps one day we will see "Thank you for not smoking" signs in public rest rooms.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO JUANITA JAMISON: I thought your answer was wonderful, but how did you expect me to respond when you failed to give me your address, the name of your newspaper or even the city in which you live?

DEAR READERS: I would like to share a rather unusual letter with you. The postmark on the envelope indicated it came from a small town in Poland. The return address, written in a neat and legible hand, read: Mr. Roman Majewski and Mr. Jozef Warzynski. The letter was written entirely in Polish, with the exception of two English words — "necking" and "petting"!

Since Polish is Greek to me, I sent the letter to Mr. B.J. Solak, a Polish-born friend now living in Aspen, Colo., who at 78 still happily skis and hikes. I asked B.J. to please rush the English translation, hoping the letter wasn't just a bad Polish joke, or worse yet, something of an embarrassing nature.

My Polish friend swiftly accommodated me with this English translation:

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: Your fame has gone far beyond the frontiers of the U.S.A. and has reached us in our unhappy land. We are aware that the San Francisco Chronicle publishes your column, so we hope that it, and perhaps some other newspapers, will publish our matrimonial offer.

We are two 100 percent gentlemen, over 30, sensitive and sincere, of unusual courage, endowed with superior capacities for love, from necking and petting to seeking adventurous new ways of lovemaking. We are endowed with rich spiritual values, and while capable of loving like nobody in the world, we regard marriage as sacred and holy, and we would be faithful like gold.

We desire to meet two American women who know the Polish language and wish to marry two sincere young men of Polish nationality. Age is of no importance. A photo would be appreciated, but will not be the decisive factor. We are not seeking material wealth, only love from two American women who would teach us the English language, as we wish to become completely Americanized and live in your wonderful country.

Miss Van Buren, kindly accept our expression of deep respect and appreciation for your assistance in this matter. We are hoping for a compassionate response.

ROMAN AND JOZEF

Sadly for Roman and Jozef, as a matter of policy this column does not provide a matchmaking service, so please, readers, no letters asking to meet them.

While their letter may strike many as somewhat amusing, it conveys a very important message: Here are two obviously sincere Polish men who are willing to marry any American woman, sight unseen, in order to live in the land of the free and home of the brave. Three cheers for the red, white and blue!

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on those who wrote in to tell you about the secret "code" used by loved ones in the service overseas to communicate their locations during World War II.

I lived through those years and was aware of that practice. As I look back, I am not surprised that Tokyo Rose and Lord HaHa could personally welcome by name new arrivals in a combat area within a day after their arrival.

When I served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, we were told, "A slip of the lip may sink a ship." I wonder how many men died because someone tipped off the folks at home as to where they were going.

RICHARD C. ROBENALT, DAVIS, CALIF.

DEAR RICHARD: Only you and Omaha reader Laurie S. Robertson (Major, USAR, Ret.) wrote to express that view.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UNMARRIED, PREGNANT AND BETWEEN TWO FIRES": Since you are opposed to abortion because you consider it "murder," and your only problem is whether to keep your baby or put it up for adoption, I urge you to get in touch with an organization called Birthright. It is very much concerned about women in your plight and will help you to make a decision you can live with. God bless you.

Ellis battles utility trying to build plant

DALLAS (AP) — Finding a place to sit in Juanita Ellis' living room takes a lot of luck.

Her house, and her life, are consumed by a 12-year fight with builders of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant. The facility is under construction near Glen Rose, about 80 miles south of Dallas.

Ms. Ellis, a 50-year-old former bookkeeper, has almost singlehandedly slowed construction of the plant.

"Frankly, Juanita is the opposition to the plant," said Billie Garde of the Government Accountability Group, a Washington-based watchdog that has helped Ms. Ellis.

"Her single-minded perserverance, which I'm sure the opponents sometimes call obsession, has not let anything significant fall through the cracks."

Her house is a pack rat's dream. The place is full of documents on the nuclear industry. She gave up on using her couch, carting it off and replacing it with tall metal shelves stuffed with records.

Ms. Ellis is president of Citizens Association for Sound Energy. Her weapons include a desktop copying machine and computer, more than $100,000 in contributions and help from about 100 whistle-blowing former plant workers.

The plant is 94 percent complete and its price tag is $5.46 billion and climbing. The facility faces at least two more years of licensing battles before it can open.

Ms. Ellis said she has often been at the breaking point, but she keeps going because "it's just about impossible to stop in midstream and walk away from it."

Tony Roisman, a lawyer who has joined the Comanche Peak case, said Ms. Ellis has a "natural instinct" for working within the legal system during licensing hearings.

That ability shocked officials of Texas Utilities Electric Co., principal owner of the plant. Four years ago, those officials sat in the rear rows of hearing rooms and mocked Ms. Ellis for her lack of engineering knowledge.

Reagan signs anti-drug bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan and Sen. Paula Hawkins are two of the driving forces behind America's changing attitude toward drug abuse, says President Reagan, who signed a tough new anti-drug bill into law at a White House ceremony.

Reagan was surrounded by senators and representatives Monday as he signed the $1.7 billion measure, which doubles the federal budget for chasing drug dealers and smugglers and stiffens penalties for traffickers.

Even though the measure was born of a strong bipartisan effort on Capitol Hill, Republicans outnumbered Democrats on the White House attendance list, and Reagan took the opportunity to single out Sen. Paula Hawkins as being the "driving force" behind the anti-drug abuse effort.

The Florida Republican is locked in a tough battle against popular Democratic Gov. Bob Graham and she has made her anti-drug efforts a hallmark of her campaign. Graham has stressed that his own tough law-and-order background has been as strong as his opponent's.

Reagan has traveled three times to Florida to aid Mrs. Hawkins' re-election campaign, one of the seats needed to keep GOP control of the Senate. On a visit last Friday, Reagan lambasted "the liberals," whom he accused of jumping on the anti-drug bandwagon after Mrs. Hawkins took up the cause.

Using the glittering East Room ceremony as a background, the president praised Mrs. Hawkins and his wife, Nancy, for making a commitment to fighting drugs "long before it was the popular thing to do."

Reagan saluted his wife for having "mobilized the American people" with her five-year effort against drug abuse among children. After signing the bill, the president handed his pen to the startled first lady, then rose from his seat to give his beaming wife a kiss.

Reagan also paid tribute to Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.; Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y.; and Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y. They had joined Reagan on the podium, along with Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Dozen or so senators have very few re-election worries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politics is a perilous business but a dozen or more U.S. senators seeking re-election this year can probably relax: Barring the unforeseen, their seats are safe.

The reasons are as diverse as the candidates and the states they represent. For some, strong opposition never developed. Others are simply well entrenched. And still others are merely lucky.

Although the safe seats are nearly evenly divided between the two parties, that may give a small edge to Democrats simply because fewer of them are running.

Twenty-two of the 34 Senate seats at stake in the Nov. 4 election are Republican seats. Only 12 Democratic seats are at risk.

On the Republican side, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., was elected to a third Senate term with 64 percent of the vote six years ago. As he seeks a fourth, he may improve that margin.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., decided not to challenge Dole and his eventual opponent, Guy McDonald, an unemployed teacher, is raising almost no money, is not criticizing his opponent, and doesn't particularly like crowds.

In Oregon, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who had only a narrow re-election victory six years ago, has been buoyed by his success in steering a sweeping tax overhaul bill though Congress. A possible challenge by Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., evaporated when the House ethics committee opened an investigation of Weaver's handling of campaign funds. State Rep. Rick Bauman ultimately got the Democratic nomination but was given little chance because of low name recognition.

Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, has converted his opposition to President Reagan on a variety of issues into a political plus in a state whose agricultural economy is in bad shape, a fact blamed on the Reagan administration by many Iowans.

By all accounts, Sen. Daniel Quayle, R-Ind., is well on the way to an easy victory over Democrat Jill Long, a member of the Valpairaiso City Council.

3rd quarter report...

Pennzoil loses $10.1 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil Co. officials blamed a third-quarter loss of $10.1 million on depressed prices for crude oil, liquids and natural gas, as well as lower natural gas sales volumes.

The loss amounted to 34 cents per share, Pennzoil officials announced Monday.

Sales for the quarter ending Sept. 30 were $422 million vs. $564 million for the three-month period in 1985.

The third quarter earnings included a $23 million extraordinary item, amounting to 56 cents per share, incurred in connection with the Houston-based company's successful debenture exchange, officials said. Substantially all of the $23 million, a non-cash item, will be amortized and reported in income in future years over the life of the debenture, officials said.

Atlantic Richfield, the nation's 6th-largest oil company, said it earned $102 million compared with $403 million in the year-ago quarter.

Eleventh-ranked Occidental, which is also based in Los Angeles, said it earned $39.1 million on sales of $3.7 billion in the third quarter, compared with a year-ago profit of $381.7 million on sales of $3.4 billion.

Pennzoil reported a net income before the extraordinary item for the third quarter of $13 million or 22 cents per share, according to a company statement.

The company's manufacturing and marketing areas continued to realize a significant increase in operating income, reflecting higher motor oil sales volumes and improved margins, the statement said.

With the inclusion of a first quarter write-down and the extraordinary item, the company reported a loss of $1 million for the first nine months of the year, or 31 cents per share.

The first quarter write-down was for $58 million in oil and gas properties of Pennzoil's 48.7 percent-owned affiliate, Proven Properties Inc.

Net income before the extraordinary item for the first nine months of 1986 was $22 million or 25 cents per share, compared with $154.3 million or $3.26 per share earned during the comparable period in 1985.

Sales were $1.4 billion for the nine months versus $1.7 billion for the 1985 period.

U. S. cuts funding

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar received formal notification from the United States that it intends to pay only $100 million of its $210 million 1986 assessment to the world body.

A spokesman for the U.N. chief, Francois Giuliani, said a letter containing the formal notification was delivered on Monday and is being studied by Perez de Cuellar and his chief aides.

Toe-thumb transplants get thumbs up from surgeons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Big toes may look a bit large when attached to the hand, but they make reliable replacements for thumbs destroyed in accidents, say doctors who performed 60 successful toe-to-thumb transplants.

"There are problems with them being a little bigger and leaving a defect on your foot, but those are very acceptable tradeoffs," said Dr. Fredrick Valauri, who told a medical convention Monday that the controversial transplants should be considered safe and effective.

Critics have argued patients risk losing a toe besides the destroyed thumb if the operation fails. They advocate alternative operations, including moving the index finger to the thumb position while keeping nerves and blood vessels intact, or reconstructing the thumb using pieces of hip bone and skin from toes or other body parts.

But since 1972, Dr. Harry Buncke's surgical team at San Francisco's Davies Medical Center succeeded in all 60 toe-to-thumb transplants it performed, and hundreds of such transplants elsewhere also had a high success rate, said Valauri, a plastic surgeon who works with Buncke.

Toe-to-thumb transplants have restored accident victims' ability to grasp objects, tie their shoes, pop champagne corks and even thumbwrestle, Valauri, Buncke and their colleagues said Monday in a paper presented to the annual meeting of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

They said transplanted big toes make thumbs with better sensation, appearance and grip strength than those created by other surgeries for people whose crushed or severed thumbs couldn't be reattached.

"If you have a choice of missing a thumb or a big toe, you're better off missing the toe," because the thumb accounts for nearly half the hand's ability to function, while the foot loses only some of its "pushoff" ability without a big toe, Valauri said.

Toes were used to replace missing fingers as early as 1900, but such transplants often failed or yielded poor results without modern microsurgery, in which tiny nerves and blood vessels from the toe are sutured to those in the thumb stump, Valauri said.

Buncke performed the first microsurgical toe-to-thumb transplant on a monkey in 1964. The first human transplant was done by Dr. John Cobbett in England in 1968. Buncke performed the first such surgery in the United States in 1972.

The surgery costs $20,000 to $30,000 for surgeons' fees, hospitalization and therapy, but accident insurance often covers much of the cost.

India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru died in 1964 in New Delhi.

U. S. walks thin line with Syria on terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Syria's influence with radical Arabs and its potential role in a Mideast peace settlement have restrained the United States from following through on the suspicions of terrorism it harbors against the Middle Eastern country.

Eager to find all the help it can in gaining the release of the seven Americans listed as hostages in southern Lebanon, the Reagan administration repeatedly has turned to President Hafez Assad's government — even while accusing Damascus of giving terrorists safe haven.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told reporters in New York earlier this month, after appealing for help to Foreign Minister Faruk Shara, "I never miss the opportunity to talk to the Syrians about the subject."

However, Shultz said, "How much influence they have is the question." Hostages have been held in Syria and released through their lines, he said, but, "that's different from being the party responsible for getting them released."

Terrorism experts in and outside the U.S. government credit Syria with helping at least three American hostages make their way to freedom after being released by their captors in southern Lebanon. They were Jeremy Levin, a Cable News Network correspondent; the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister; and the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest.

And yet, after Britain charged on Friday there was "conclusive evidence" Syrian diplomats and intelligence agents were involved in an attempt last April to bomb an Israeli airliner, the Reagan administration recalled Ambassador William Eagleton from Damascus.

The move could be a first step toward breaking ties with Damascus, as the British did, although Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman, on Monday stressed that recalling Eagleton was, in itself, "an extremely serious measure."

Reflecting the U.S. dilemma, the spokesman also sought to hold Assad to his pledge to assist the seven American hostages. "We would expect the Syrians to continue their effort," Redman said.

Syria is considered the dominant political force in Lebanon, and while Assad's government is philosophically too secular to please most Moslem fundamentalist groups allegedly involved in terrorist incidents, its political influence is substantial.

Assad has consistently denied the accusations that his country abets terrorists. Shara, meanwhile, dismissed the British allegations Sunday. "We are not threatening," he said. "We condemn terrorism."

However, he made an exception for "legitimate struggles against Israeli occupation."

Experts on terrorism are convinced Syria plays a double role: providing a safe haven for Abu Nidal, head of the Fatah Revolutionary Council and others accused of terorism, but also assisting American hostages, at least after they are released.

"Nobody here thinks Syria could press a button and get them out," a State Department official said. "But we feel they've tried to be helpful up to a point."

Animal nutrition course offered at local college

"Basic Nutrition for Livestock Owners" will be offered by the Continuing Education Department of Western Texas College on Monday nights beginning November 3 and ending December 1. Classes will meet from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Instructor for the course will be Kent Mills, sales representative for Ezell-Key Grain Co.

The course will help students learn how the animal's body uses nutrients and which ingredients are the best sources for these nutrients. Determining nutrient requirements for various livestock such as cattle, sheep, horses, and swine and developing rations to meet those requirements will make up the bulk of the class. Students will become acquainted with the various types of feed, their ingredients, and how to adjust rations to meet a growing animal's needs.

"I think this course will be especially useful for those who are wanting to learn more about feeding an animal and understanding how different rations will influence an animal's growth and condition," Mills said. "I hope that a feed bag will make more sense to them when we finish this course."

Mills feels this course will be especially beneficial to those who are feeding 4-H and FFA animals, though it would benefit farmers and ranchers as well.

Fee for the course is $25. For more information, call the Continuing Education Department at WTC, 573-8511, or Mills at 573-1308.

Independent oil producers urge action against OPEC

DALLAS (AP) — An emergency task force representing independent oil producers stopped short of recommending an oil import fee, but said President Reagan should threaten to impose such a tariff if foreign producers continue depressing domestic crude prices.

The task force of the Independent Petroleum Association of America said Monday that manipulation of oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries threatens national security. Prices are too low to pay for domestic oil exploration and drilling, the panel said.

An import fee should be triggered "if the dominant Arab OPEC countries continue to hold oil prices below the level needed for the United States to maintain adequate reserves of oil and gas," said Raymond H. Hefner Jr., association board chairman.

"A goal of the government of the United States of America must be to insulate domestic energy resource development from economic control and manipulation by the governments of Persian Gulf producing countries," Hefner told a news conference.

An estimated 85 percent of the wells in the United States are drilled by independents who are credited with most major discoveries of oil and gas.

The association's executive committee adopted the task force recommendations, and the suggestions will be submitted to the board of directors Tuesday.

Hefner said that Reagan should "declare to OPEC that the U.S. will take all actions necessary to prevent the destruction of domestic energy industries."

He said an import fee might be avoided if the administration and Congress support legislation to help domestic producers. Such steps would include repeal of the windfall profits tax, tax credits for exploration and deregulation of natural gas.

"If (higher domestic prices) cannot be achieved, we're saying, 'Please Mr. President, and please to Congress, move forward and put that tariff into place and get that thing going,'" said C. John Miller, task force chairman.

"We're alerting the nation to what we perceive is a national security threat," Hefner said.

Association officials said that at the current rate, the United States in two years will receive more than 50 percent of its oil from foreign countries.

"Most of these imports will come from unstable and often hostile producers in the Persian Gulf which own 69 percent of the free world's oil reserves," according to a report by the emergency task force.

Miller said the association plans a nationwide program to alert the public to the dangers of dependence on foreign oil.

"The big problem is people are looking at the comfort level of the low price of gasoline," Miller said.

Local student in college play

Rehearsals are progressing for the Howard Payne University Drama Department's upcoming production of "The Miracle Worker," by William Gibson, said Neil St. Clair, director.

A true life drama, "The Miracle Worker," tells the story of the child, Helen Keller, who was deaf, dumb and blind, and of the efforts of her compassionate tutor, Annie Sulllivan.

The two central characters, Helen and Miss Sullivan, will be portrayed by Venee DeSoto, a junior education major from San Antonio, and Shannon Lunsford, a freshman drama major from Snyder, repspectively.

The production will be presented November 7.

Tools removed at store, home

A gasoline-powered lawn edger and an electric-powered air compressor were reported stolen in Snyder Monday afternoon.

In each incident, the alleged thieves loaded the tools into their vehicle and drove away.

Pete Lowrance of Western Auto filed the first of those reports at 3:51 p.m.

He told police that three men in a blue and white older model car had taken a Wizard brand gasoline edger from the sidewalk in front of his store.

Value of the missing edger was listed at $150.

Isabell Huddleston of 401 29th St. filed the second theft report at 4:20 p.m.

She reported seeing two men in an older model blue car drive up to the front of her house and take and electric air compressor from her yard.

by "Alice." "Too Close for Comfort" is at 6 p.m., and "Gimme a Break" is at 6:30 p.m.

General Manager Brad Moran noted KJTV has a feature film library of more than 1,600 titles. Each night at 7 p.m., the station presents a movie with several of the nights devoted to special types of movies.

Monday night is set aside for romance movies and Tuesday night for TV premiere screenings, movies shown for the first time on television.

Saturday night includes western movies on "The Cowboy Picture Show," which Moran said has consistently been the highest rated Saturday night movie on an independent station in the nation.

"Stars and Stripes Cinema" is the title for a Sunday night theme of war stories.

In addition to the nightly 7 p.m. movies, KJTV also airs a double feature beginning at noon each Saturday and Sunday.

The later movies run Monday through Thursday at 11:30 p.m.

There is also a horror feature running at 11 p.m. each Friday and movies all night long on Friday and Saturday.

The five-year-old station since its inception has offered religious programs in the morning Sunday through Friday.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday is "A Study in the Word with Jimmy Swaggart," followed by Pat Robertson's 700 Club, Jim and Tammy Bakker and Richard Roberts.

The station is operated by Ramar Communications owned by Ray Moran of Lubbock. "We have always wanted to expand our service area and Snyder is a very important area to us."

He said he hopes to provide additional local interest programs in the future, specifically Texas Tech sports.

KJTV broadcast the Tech-Miami game live from the Orange Bowl in September.

He said the station would eventually like to obtain the rights to cover more of the Tech football and basketball games.

Mourners attend Machel's funeral

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — African royalty, presidents and guerrilla leaders joined thousands of Mozambicans today for the funeral of President Samora Machel, whose violent death stirred Third World protests against South Africa.

Machel's plane was en route from Zambia to Maputo when it crashed just 200 yards inside South Africa on Oct. 19. Thirty-four people were killed and 10 survived.

Mourners began gathering at dawn in Independence Square for the 9 a.m. ceremony. They heard Machel eulogized as a soldier who fell in the fight against apartheid, South Africa's system of legalized race-separation.

Activity in Maputo ceased as Marcelino dos Santos, the top official in the ruling Marxist FRELIMO party and a possible successor to Machel, delivered a eulogy.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

PERFECT SCORE $100.00

FIRST PRIZE $12.50

SECOND PRIZE $5.00

Entries Must Be In By NOON FRIDAY

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, SNYDER DAILY NEWS, BOX 949, or bring your entry by the News Office. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 12 o'clock noon, Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the score for that game only and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second prize winners. In case of a tie for a perfect score, the same formula would apply.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all the person's entries. Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the Snyder Daily News and their families are not eligible to enter.
